235 W Tenth St 57102
(605) 336-1167 Tue-Sat 11:30-5, Sun 2-5
Dir: Raymond Shermoe
Permanent collection; exhibitions by regional, national and international artists in all mediums.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jean Bailey, Fritz Scholder, Mel Spinar, Barnard Taylor, Lucy M. White.

3226. GALLERY 306
306 S Phillips Ave 57102
(605) 335-3728 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Jocelyn K. Hanson
Exhibition posters and prints; South Dakota and regional artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Linda Ackland-Kolb, Bob Alber, Rob Deibert, Nancy Fritz-Howard, Jim Groth, Mary Groth, John Kolb, RaVae Marsh, Bob Miller, Chad Mohr, Thomas Rickers, Gayle Sharps, Abby Tamara, Dick Termes, Tom Thoreson.

Other artists represented:
Grete Heikes, Dale Lamphere, Signe Stuart.

3227. JIM SAVAGE'S WESTERN ART GALLERY
713 S Cleveland St 57103
(605) 332-7551 Mon-Sun 9-6
Dir: Jim Savage/Shirley Savage
American Indian and Western art.

Other artists represented:
Harry Brunk, Pamela Harr, Ted Long, Gerry Metz, Harvey Rattey, Jim Savage, Bob Tommy.

Sturgis

3228. GALLERY 21
1101 Main St 57785
(605) 347-5211 Mon-Sat 9-5:30
Dir: Dean McNenny
Local prints, graphics, sculpture.

Vermillion

3229. UNIVERSITY OF SOUTH DAKOTA UNIVERSITY ART GALLERIES
Warren M. Lee Center for the Fine Arts 57069
(605) 677-5481 Daily 10-4
Dir: John A. Day
Changing exhibitions of historical and contemporary visual arts; collection of works by Sioux artist, Oscar Howe.

Tennessee

Chattanooga

3230. HUNTER MUSEUM OF ART
10 Bluff View 37403
(615) 267-0969 Tue-Sat 10-4:30, Sun 1-4:30
Dir: Cleve K. Scarbrough
18th-20th-century American painting, drawing, sculpture; Oriental decorative arts; 1904 classical revival mansion.

*see catalog index

Clarksville

3231. AUSTIN PEAY STATE UNIVERSITY
Margaret Fort Trahern Gallery 37040
(615) 648-7333
Dir: Larry Hortenbury
20th-century works; contemporary paintings, sculpture, prints.

Knoxville

3232. DULIN GALLERY OF ART
3100 Kingston Pike 37919
(615) 525-6101
Dir: Rebecca Massie-Lane
Non-profit; community gallery; contemporary prints, drawings; miniature rooms; changing exhibition.

3233. UNIVERSITY OF TENNESSEE
Art Department
1715 Volunteer Blvd 37996
(615) 974-5464 Mon-Thu 10-5, 7-9; Fri 10-5; Sat, Sun 1-4
Dir: Sam Yates
Japanese prints and woodblocks; contemporary prints, drawings; architecture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Alvar Aalto.

Other artists represented:
John Massey.

3234. UNIVERSITY OF TENNESSEE
Frank H. McClurg Museum
Circle Park Dr 37996
(615) 974-2144 Mon-Fri 9-5
Dir: Paul Parmalee
Anthropology, archaeology, fine arts, furnishings, and history.

Memphis

3235. DIXON GALLERY AND GARDENS
4339 Park Ave 38117
(901) 761-5250 Tue-Sat 11-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Reba Russell
French and American Impressionist, 18th- and 19th-century British painting; English furnishings, porcelain; gardens.

3236. MEMPHIS ACADEMY OF ARTS
Overton Park 38112
(901) 726-4085 Daily 9-5
Dir: John S. Slorp
Jacob Marks Memorial Collection; works of graduates.

3237. MEMPHIS STATE UNIVERSITY
University Gallery 38152
(901) 454-2224
Dir: Lynda Ireland
Egyptian and African art collections; contemporary work, especially prints.

Other artists represented:
Tarrence Corbin, Sam Gilliam, Michael Gross, Moshe Kadishman, James Little.

3238. OATES GALLERY
97 N Tillman 38111
(901) 323-5659 Mon-Sat 9:30-4:30
Dir: Rena Dewey
19th- and 20th-century French and Dutch paintings; American art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Raoul Hynckes.

Other artists represented:
Walter Anderson, Jay Connaway, George Ionescu, Dorothy Stern.

3239. SOUTHWESTERN COLLEGE
Clough-Hansom Gallery
200 N Parkway 38112
(901) 274-1800 Sep-Jun Mon-Fri 9-5
Dir: Lawrence Anthony
Regional contemporary art; annual student exhibition.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Lawrence Anthony.

Nashville

3240. CUMBERLAND GALLERY
2213 Bandywood Dr 37215
(615) 297-0296 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Caroline Stevens/Carol Stein
Prints, painting, sculpture; primarily contemporary.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Hugh Kepets, Carol Mode, John Mominee, McHugh Owen, Paul Pollaro, Minna Reich, Joan Root, Susan Shockley, Hiroko Swornik.

Other artists represented:
David Bigelow, Teresa Bucy-Reed, Herbert Creecy, Donna Fink, Lanie Ganon, Bryan Harrington, Ida Kohlmeyer, Marilyn Murphy, Janice Pollard, Elizabeth Sanford, Nancy Siegel.

3241. FISK UNIVERSITY
Carl Van Vechten Gallery of Fine Arts
18th Ave and Jackson St N 37203
(615) 329-8685
Dir: Robert Hall
Alfred Stieglitz collection of modern art; Cyrus Baldridge collection of West African drawings, traditional African sculpture; photography.

3242. NASHVILLE PARTHENON
Centennial Park 37201
(615) 259-6358
Dir: Wesley M. Paine
Paintings from 1850 to 1925; contemporary works; Bicentennial collection.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jorge Arrieta, Richard Connors, Cynthia Garrard, Njalle Helle, John Nartker, John Richardson, Jack Robertson, Margo Sebelist, Barbara Wallace.

3243. TENNESSEE FINE ARTS CENTER, CHEEKWOOD
Forrest Park Dr 37205
(615) 352-8632 Tue-Sat 9-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Kevin Grogan
18th-20th-century American painting, graphics, sculpture, decorative arts.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
David Bigelow, Charles Brindley, Olen Bryant, Lucy Clark, Alfred Eisenstadt, Maryann Fariello, Russell Faxon, Jean-Louis Forain, Hans Hofmann, Wolf Kahn*, Thomas L. Neff, James Norman, Marjorie Phillips, Gregory Ridley, Norman Rockwell, Michael Smith*, Robert Stark, Jack Stoddart, Garry Trudeau, Andy Warhol.

3244. VANDERBILT ART GALLERY
23rd St and West End Ave 37203
(615) 322-2831 Mon-Fri 1-4; Sat, Sun 1-5
Dir: Larry Perkins
A study collection containing ancient through contemporary, Eastern and Western art; early Renaissance paintings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Dale Leys.

Paul Oberst: Surface Study for Sculpture, 1982; at The New Gall. of Contemporary Art, Cleveland.

Sewanee

3245. UNIVERSITY OF THE SOUTH
Fine Arts Gallery 37375
(615) 598-5931
Dir: William Wadley
Contemporary and historical exhibits; paintings, drawings, prints, furniture.

Texas

Abilene

3246. ABILENE FINE ARTS MUSEUM
801 S Mockingbird 79605
(915) 673-4587 Tue-Fri 9-5; Sat, Sun 1-5
Dir: Jerome Collins
20th-century American art; artists' books, prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Fay Jean Hooker Knell.

Amarillo

3247. AMARILLO ART CENTER
2200 Van Buren 79109
(806) 372-8356 Tue-Fri 10-5, Wed eve 7-9:30, Sat-Sun 1-5
Dir: David G. Turner
20th-century American paintings; prints; drawings; photographs.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Frank Hein*, Jesus Bautista Moroles, Andrea Rosenberg, Martin S. Schreiber*, Jan Tipps, Stephanie Weber.

see last page for advertiser's index

VOL 71
ISS 7
AG 1983
UMI

Arlington

3248. UNIVERSITY OF TEXAS, ARLINGTON
University Art Gallery
601 Monroe St, Box 19089 76019
(817) 273-2891 Mon–Fri 9–4, Sun 1–4
Dir: Max W. Sullivan
19th-century and contemporary American paintings, sculpture, prints; changing loan exhibitions.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Rex Dyer, Robert Einbeck, Calvin Grigg, Joe Guy.

Austin

3249. LAGUNA GLORIA ART MUSEUM
3809 W 35th St, Box 5568 78763
(512) 458-8191 Tue–Sat 10–5, Thu 5–9, Sun 1–5
Dir: Laurence Miller
Modern and contemporary painting, sculpture, photography, architecture; outdoor sculpture, regional art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Rafael Ferrer*, Christopher Middleton, Robert Rauschenberg*, Robert Smithson*, Margaret Wharton*.

3250. NI-WO-DI-HI GALLERIES
2104 Nueces 78767
(512) 472–3049 Mon–Fri 9–5, Sat 10–6
Dir: Brooks Bennett
American Indian art.

Other artists represented:
Katalin Ehling, Steve Forbis, King Kuka, Charles Lovato, Paladine Roye, Virginia Stroud, Donald Vann, Harry Westlund.

3251. PATRICK GALLERY
721 E 6th St 78701
(512) 472–4741 Tue–Sat 1–6
Dir: Mary Lou Patrick
Contemporary work, concentrating on Texas artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Helena de la Fontaine, David L. Deming.

Other artists represented:
Bob Band, Suzanne Bocanegra, Sandy Brooke, Danville Chadbourne, John Chatmas, Vicki Teague Cooper, Jerry Dodd, Marilyn Duke, Bebe Fenstermaker, Martha Fenstermaker, Betty Gold, Kathy Green, Berry Klingman, Robert Levers, Melissa Miller, Connie Morrison, Gary Nowlin, Bradley R. Petersen, Carol Rabel, Hills Snyder, Steve Swagerle, Karl A. Umlauf, Bill Wiman.

3252. UNIVERSITY OF TEXAS, AUSTIN
Huntington Art Gallery, Ransom Center
21st and Guadalupe Sts 78712
(512) 471–7324 Mon–Sat 9–5, Sun 1–5
Dir: Eric McCready
Michener collection of 20th-century art; contemporary Latin-American art and Smith collection of Western art; prints and drawings from the 15th-20th century.

3253. UNIVERSITY OF TEXAS, AUSTIN
Huntington Art Gallery, Art Building
23rd and San Jacinto Sts 78712
(512) 471–7324 Mon–Sat 9–5, Sun 1–5
Dir: Eric McCready
Changing exhibitions; student and faculty work.

Beaumont

3254. BEAUMONT ART MUSEUM
1111 Ninth St 77702
(409) 832–3432 Tue–Fri 10–5; Sat, Sun 2–5
Dir: Katherine Wallace Paris
20th-century paintings, sculpture, graphics, drawings, and photography; traveling exhibitions.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Keith Carter.

Corpus Christi

3255. ART COMMUNITY CENTER
902 Park Ave 78401
(512) 884–6406 Tue–Sat 10–4, Sun 1–5
Dir: Victor Hampel
Non-profit, city-sponsored; painting, sculpture, tapestries.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ricardo Aguilar, Esther Aguilo, Jean Allen, Dorothy Burkett, Henry Compton, Henry Compton, Cindy De Hart, Marion Folckmer, Helen Friemel, Lou Gagnier, Janie Nichols, Lisa Nichols, Doris Pittman, Jo Prairie, Julie Watson, Thelma Wilkins, Lucille Willard.

3256. ART MUSEUM OF SOUTH TEXAS
1902 N Shoreline Dr 78401
(512) 884–3844 Tue–Sat 10–5, Sun 1–5
Dir: Ric Collier

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Roland Garcia, Edward Hopper*, Suzanne Klotz-Reilly, Danny O'Dowdy*, William T. Wiley.

3257. CORPUS CHRISTI STATE UNIVERSITY
South Texas Artmobile
6300 Ocean Dr 78412
(512) 991–6810 Mon–Fri 9–5
Dir: Miriam Wagenschein
A mobile gallery traveling to 27 communities in Southern Texas.

3258. CORPUS CHRISTI STATE UNIVERSITY
Weil Gallery
6300 Ocean Dr 78412
(512) 991–6810 Mon–Fri 9–5
Dir: Miriam Wagenschein
University gallery.

3259. DEL MAR COLLEGE ART GALLERY
Ayers at Baldwin 78404
(512) 881–6216 Mon–Fri 7–4
Dir: William E. Lambert
Changing exhibitions; annual national drawing and small sculpture show.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Lynn Havel.

3260. MUSEUM OF ORIENTAL CULTURES
426 S Staples 78401
(512) 883–1303 Mon–Fri 10–4, Sun 2–5
Dir: Margaret Kadoyama
Oriental culture and history; Hakata dolls, artifacts, theater masks; porcelains; metal ware; art of Buddhism and Hinduism.

Dallas

3261. ADAMS-MIDDLETON GALLERY
3000 Maple Ave 75201
(214) 742–3682 Tue–Fri 10–6, Sat 11–5
Dir: Anita Middleton/Terry Adams
20th-century American and European art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
C. James Frazier, Veloy Vigil, Francisco Zuniga.

Other artists represented:
Armond Lara, Marcia Myers, Paul Rotterdam.

3262. ADELLE M FINE ART
3317 McKinney Ave 75204
(214) 526–0800 Mon–Fri 9–5
Dir: Barbara P. Mohrle
Contemporary American artists.

3263. AFTERIMAGE PHOTOGRAPH GALLERY
Quadrangle #151, 2800 Routh St 75201
(214) 748–2521 Mon–Sat 10–5:30
Dir: Ben Breard
Photography.

Other artists represented:
William Abranowicz, Howard Bond, Joseph B. Englander, Ron Evans, Peter Feresten, Elliott McDowell, Martin Schreiber, George Tice, John Ward, Harry Wilks.

3264. ALLEN STREET GALLERY, CENTER FOR VISUAL COMMUNICATIONS
2913 Canton St 75226
(214) 939–0052 By appt
Dir: Robin Milsom
Non-profit photography alternative space; lectures and workshops.

3265. MATTINGLY BAKER GALLERY
3000 McKinney Ave 75204
(214) 526–0031 Tue–Fri 10–6, Sat 11–5
Dir: Kathleen Sterritt
Paintings, drawings, sculpture, prints; New York and Texas artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Timothy App, Mark Lavatelli, Jesus Morales.

Other artists represented:
Linda Blackburn, Vincent Falsetta, Flukinger/Harrah, Peter Julian, Aaron Karp, Polly Little, Roberto Munguia, Philip Van Keuren, Jana Vander Lee, Bob Yarber.

3266. CLIFFORD GALLERY
6610 Snider Plaza 75205
(214) 363–8223 Tue–Sat 10–5:30
Dir: Jutta Clifford
Texas and regional artists.

Other artists represented:
Dan Allison, Gary Bush, John Evans, Jane E. Goldman, Victoria Henderson, Shep Miers, William B. Montgomery, Betsy Muller, Pamela Nelson, Peter Nickel, Gisela-Heidi Strunck, Wayne Toepp, Jeffrey Vaughn, Carol Wilder.

3267. CONTEMPORARY GALLERY
5100 Beltline, Suite 544 75240
(214) 934–2323 Mon–Sat 10:30–5
Dir: Ralph H. Kahn
European and American contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Michael Eisemann, Paul Jenkins, Arthur Koch, Jeanne Koch, Carole Scholder, Susan Headley Van Campen.

Other artists represented:
John Axton, Dennis Blagg, Woodrow Blagg, Joan Brams, Susan Harrington, Zanne Hochberg, Cobie Russell, B. Skynear, Pat Thomas.

3268. D-ART, VISUAL ARTS CENTER
2917 Swiss Ave 75204
(214) 821–2522 Mon–Sat 9–5
Dir: Patricia B. Meadows
Non-profit; exhibitions of regional artists and organizations.

*see catalog index

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Sam Gholson, Olivia P. Powell, Patricia Regan.

Other artists represented:
Norman Adair, Bob Biggs, Pat Childress, Norman Kary, Lynette Miller, Morton Rachofsky, Martha Robbins, Esther Wiley-Jones.

3269. DALLAS MUSEUM OF FINE ARTS
Fair Park, PO Box 26250 75226
(214) 421-4187 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Harry S. Parker, III
Pre-Columbian, Oriental, African collections; European, American, and ancient art.

3270. DELAHUNTY GALLERY
2701 Canton St 75226
(214) 744-1346 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Hiram Butler
Contemporary art, photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Vernon Fisher, Michael Lucero*, Nic Nicosia, Italo Scanga*, James Surls*.

Other artists represented:
Jo Ann Callis, Clyde Connell, Steve Dennie, Rick Dillingham, Richard Fishman, Phillip Galgiani, Wanda Hammerbeck, George Legrady, Phillip Maberry, Mark McFadden, David McManaway, Stephen Mueller, Suzan Pitt, Martin Puryear, Dan Rizzie, Don Rodan, Johnnie Ross, Al Souza, Joel Sternfeld, Danny Williams, Terry Winters.

3271. DW GALLERY
3305 McKinney 75204
(214) 526-3240 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Diana Block
Contemporary regional art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
David Bates, Rebecca Best, Rick Maxwell, Susie Phillips, Lee N. Smith, Ellen Soderquist, Linda Ridgway Taylor.

Other artists represented:
Frances Bagley, Julie Cohn, Martin Delabano, Pat Forrest, Lou Lyne Fredrickson, Linnea Glatt, Bill Komodore, Yoshiko Schranil, Ann Lee Stautberg, Linda Surls, Frank Tolbert II, Stirling Willis.

3272. 500X GALLERY
500 Exposition Ave 75226
(214) 828-1111 Thu-Sun 1-5
Contemporary painting, sculpture, installations, performances.

Other artists represented:
Mark Bartos, Kathy Drake, Susan Grant, Joseph Havel, Susan Magilow, Manuel Mauricio, Gary Monroe, Dennis Scharnberg, John Snygg, Georgia Stafford, Bruce Stiglich, P. M. Summer, Mike Swenson.

3273. FLORENCE ART GALLERY
2500 Cedar Springs 75201
(214) 748-6463 Mon-Fri 10-4
Dir: E. Shwiff

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Florence Arven, Marlene Cohen, Jan De Ruth, Harry Marinsky*, Carol Miller, Dennis Paul Noyer, W. Terlikowski.

Other artists represented:
P. Auge, F. De Panis, Larry Harmon, Marcia Marx.

3274. FRONTROOM
6617 Snider Plaza 75205
(214) 369-8338 Mon-Sat 10-5
Fine crafts, paintings, drawings, silkscreens, and ceramics.

3275. FOSTER GOLDSTRUM
4144 N Central Expy, Suite 1200 75204
(214) 744-0711 Tue-Sat 11-5
20th-century paintings; emerging Texas and West Coast artists.

Other artists represented:
John DeAndrea, Joe Doyle, Richard Estes, Sam Francis, Duane Hansen, Ben Kaiser, Bill Kane, Stuart Lehrman, David Maxim, Louise Nevelson, Kenneth Noland, Wayne Thiebaud.

3276. HUMANARTS
2800 Routh St, Suite 150 75201
(214) 748-3948 Mon-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Marise Riddell
American crafts: glass, jewelry, pottery.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Mark Lindquist, Melvin Lindquist, Harvey Sadow.

Other artists represented:
William Bernstein, Robert Hurlstone, John Kuhn, Nancee Meeker, Mark Russell.

3277. MODERN REALISM
1903 MacMillan Ave, Rm 1 75206
(214) 827-0376 Wed eve 6-9; By appt
Dir: Jonathan Held/Paula Barber
Mixed mediums; correspondence art, artists' books, stamp art.

3278. NI-WO-DI-HI GALLERIES
2526 Cedar Springs at Routh 75201
(214) 651-7656 Tue-Sat 10-6
Dir: Audrey Beilharz
American Indian art.

Other artists represented:
Steve Forbis, Charles Lovato, Paladine Roye, Virginia Stroud, Donald Vann.

3279. NIMBUS
1135 Dragon St 75207
(214) 742-1348 Mon-Fri 10-5, Sat 10-4
Dir: James Chumley
Contemporary abstract and figurative painting, sculpture; graphics, and fiber art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Manuel deArce, James Franklin, Joy Laville, David Newman, Kitty Wallis.

Other artists represented:
Jack Silverman, John Strawn.

3281. PAIGE GALLERY
1519 Hi Line Dr 75207
(214) 742-8483 Mon-Sat 9:30-4
Dir: Bobette Bird
Painting, sculpture, graphics, fiber art, ceramic and enamel murals.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Mozelle Brown.

Other artists represented:
Hester Bender, David Burt, Michael Cobb, Mahmehri Golestaneh, Max Hayslette, Charles Jeffress, Mary Frances Judge, Joseph A. McDonnell, Ivan Rabuzin, Scott Sandell, Li Shan, James Twitty, Bobbi Winborn.

3282. PS GALLERIES
2525 Fairmount 75201
(214) 871-1000
Dir: Amy Piaza

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Vonnie Brenno, John Dirks, Rudolph Dirks, Stephen Etnier, Gaston Lachaise, Jeanne Norsworthy, Henry Strater.

Other artists represented:
Michael Appalmer, Edward Betts, David Bumbeck, Jayne Dwyer, David Gray, Beverly Hallam, Walt Kuhn, George Kunkel, Cabot Luford, Harriet Matthews, Richard Murray, Margot Rosenthal, Judith Shahn, David Shaw, Robert Vickrey.

3283. SIMONS LUCET ART GALLERY
2133 Cedar Springs 75201
(214) 761-9912 Mon-Fri 9-5
Dir: Francois Lucet
Contemporary and impressionist paintings; sculpture.

Other artists represented:
Jean Allemand, Michel Beck, James Paul Brown, Richard Childers, Sophie Coors, Raoul Dufy, Goulandris, Carole Greer, Otello Guarducci, Joe Linz, F. M. Lucet, Matsutani, Christi Pate, Alma Ramsden, Kim Russell, Tarabella, Ronald Thomason, Larry Van Haren.

3284. SOUTHERN METHODIST UNIVERSITY
Meadows Museum and Meadows Gallery 75275
(214) 692-2727 Mon-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Irene Martin
15th-20th-century Spanish art; sculpture garden; modern and contemporary art.

3285. SOUTHWEST GALLERY
737 Preston Forest S/C 75230
(214) 696-0182 Mon-Sat 9-6
Dir: E. C. Carmack/Susan Jaffe
18th- and 19th-century American and European oils; contemporary graphics, sculpture; antique furniture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Will Barnett, Tony Bass, Bogomir Bogdanovic, R. C. Gorman, Bruce McCombs, Henry Moore, W. A. Slaughter, Rufino Tamayo, Marcus Uzilevsky.

Other artists represented:
Yaacov Agam, M. Berber, Antoine Blanchard, Bruno Bruni, Jack Bryant, Marc Chagall, Alexander Clayton, Salvador Dali, Erté, Johnny Friedlaender, Sharon Gainsberg, A. D. Greer, Robert Kipniss, Joan Miró, Armando Morales, Lowell Nesbitt, Robert Owens, Nancy Sims, Larry Young, Francisco Zuniga.

3286. STEWART GALLERY
12610 Coit Rd 75251
(214) 661-0213 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: John S. Houston
Contemporary paintings, drawings, pastels, watercolors, and sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Charles Campbell, Randolph Lee McIver, Jeff Tabor.

Other artists represented:
Don Beaulieu, Lau Chun, Ann Cushing Gantz, Syd Ginsburg, Georgia Houston, Richard Iams, Russell Jacques, Nathan Jones, Jo Taylor, Arie Van Selm.

3287. CAROL TAYLOR, ART
2508 Cedar Springs 75201
(214) 745-1923 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Renee Milliken
Contemporary art.

Other artists represented:
Bernd Becher, Hilla Becher, Barton Lidice Benes, James Biederman, Lloyd Birdwell, Mel Bochner, Sam Gummelt, Joe Guy, Al Held, Mel Kendrick, Andrew Lord, Doug MacWithey, Robert Mangold, Howard Meyer, Bruce Nauman, Jud Nelson, Lucio Pozzi, Edda Renouf, James Risser, Bruce Robbins, Andrea Rosenberg, Richard Serra, Ellen Stavitsky, Hap Tivey, Michael Venezia, Mia Westerlund-Roosen, Jennifer Wynne.

3288. VALLEY HOUSE GALLERY
6616 Spring Valley Rd 75240
(214) 239-2441 Mon-Fri 10-5, Sat 10-3
Dir: Donald S. Vogel/Kevin E. Vogel
19th- and 20th-century European and American art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Donald S. Vogel.

Other artists represented:
Hugh Henry Breckenridge, Peter Chinni, Mike Cunningham, Igor de Kansky, Hub Miller, Loren Mozley, Fred Nagler, Morgan Russell, Earl Stroh, Valton Tyler, Claude Venard.

VOL
7
1
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

3289. RUTH WISEMAN GALLERY
2816 Main St 75226
(214) 363-2631 Wed; By appt
Dir: Ruth Wiseman
Work by local and Texas artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
John Danial, Larry Hopp, Charles Jones, Byron Lacy, Michael Tichansky, Judith Williams.

El Paso

3290. EL PASO MUSEUM OF ART
1211 Montana St 79902
(915) 541-4040 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Leonard P. Sipiora
14th-17th-century European art; American, Mexican, Pre-Columbian art; 20th-century art of the Rio Grande.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
William Kolliker*, Norman Rockwell.

Fort Worth

3291. CARLIN GALLERIES
710 Montgomery 76107
(817) 738-6921 Mon-Fri 10-5
Dir: Electra M. Carlin
American paintings, prints, ceramics; Eskimo works.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Bill Bomar, William Hocker, John McCoy.

Other artists represented:
William Balusek, James R. Blake, John Chumley, Luis Eades, John Guerin, George Harkins, Peter Hurd, DeForrest Judd, Doris M. Lay, Alfred Lee, Dick Mason, Jane McCulloch, Ross Merrill, Christopher Muhlert, Emily Guthrie Smith, Bob Stuth-Wade, Henriette Wyeth.

3292. AMON CARTER MUSEUM
3501 Camp Bowie 76107
(817) 738-1933 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5:30
Dir: Jan Keene Muhlert
19th-early-20th-century American painting, sculpture, drawing, prints, photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Alfred Jacob Miller*, Frederic Remington*.

3293. FENTON HOCHMAN
1420 Shady Oaks 76107
(817) 429-0161 By appt
Dir: Shaindy Fenton
Contemporary American painting, sculpture, prints.

3294. FORT WORTH ART MUSEUM
1309 Montgomery St 76107
(817) 738-9215 Tue-Sat 10-5; Sep-May Tue eve 5-9, Sun 1-5
Dir: David Ryan
20th-century paintings, sculpture, drawings, prints, photography, video tapes; commissioned works.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ed Blackburn*, Richard Bosman, Jay Coogan, Red Grooms, Roy Lichtenstein, Charles Simonds.

3295. FORT WORTH GALLERY
901 Boland St 76107
(817) 332-5603 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Dutch Phillips
Contemporary painting and sculpture.

Other artists represented:
Larry Bell, Sam Gilliam, Russell Hamilton, Joe Johnson, Rockne Krebs, Leslie Kuter, Kevin Marshall, Ken Price, Harold Joe Waldrum, Melissa Zink.

3296. GALLERY ONE
4935 Byers 76107
(817) 737-9566 Tue-Fri 10-5, Sat 10-2
Dir: Bill Campbell
Contemporary painting, prints, sculpture, and ceramics.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jack Boynton, Michel DeManche, Dorothy Gillespie, David McCullough.

Other artists represented:
Dan Allison, Donald Bell, Lamar Briggs, Richard Carter, Gene Davis, Dennis Gabbard, Joe Goode, Gary Komarin, Sandra Leveson-Meares, Sol LeWitt, Jeff Low, Claire Jeanine Satin, Richard Smith, Luanne Standish, Karl Umlauf, Victor Verbalaitis.

3297. HALL GALLERIES
312 Main St 76102
(817) 332-3773 Mon-Fri 10-5:30, Sat 11-4
Dir: Ron Hall
19th- and 20th-century American and French paintings, Hudson River School, Impressionist.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
David Ligare*

Other artists represented:
Bob Haozous, Julio Larraz.

3298. KIMBELL ART MUSEUM
1101 Will Rogers Rd West 76107
(817) 332-8451 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Edmund P. Pillsbury
Western European paintings, sculpture, drawings, and prints from prehistoric to early-20th-century; Pre-Columbian, Asian, and African art.

3299. SID RICHARDSON COLLECTION OF WESTERN ART
309 Main St 76102
(817) 332-6554 Tue-Fri 10-5, Sat 11-6, Sun 1-5
Dir: Jan Fraser
Permanent exhibition of paintings by Charles M. Russell and Frederic Remington.

3300. TEXAS CHRISTIAN UNIVERSITY
Brown-Lupton and Moudy Galleries
PO Box 32919 76129
(817) 921-7926 Mon-Fri 11-4; Sat, Sun 1-4
Dir: Karen Stone/Ronald Watson
University-related exhibitions and works by emerging artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Clyde Connel, Stefani Job, James Quiper, Ronald Watson, James Woodson.

Galveston

3301. ROSENBERG LIBRARY
2310 Sealy 77550
(409) 763-8854 Mon-Sat 9-5
Dir: John D. Hyatt
19th- and 20th-century paintings; sculpture; graphics; decorative arts; Russian icons.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Eric Avery, Grace Spaulding John.

Other artists represented:
Boyer Gonzales, J. Stockfleth.

Houston

3302. ARCHWAY GALLERY
2517 University 77005
(713) 522-2409 Mon-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Mary Jean Fowler
Cooperative; painting, collage, pottery, sculpture; Eskimo stone carvings; felted fiber, weaving.

Other artists represented:
Stanley Alberts, Ann Armstrong, Dick Barlow, Audrey Dygert, C. W. Eggert, Mary Jean Fowler, Ben Howatt, Marleah Drexler MacDougal, Stephanie Nadolski, Carol Stoddard, Jo Zider.

3303. BENTELER GALLERIES
3830 University Blvd 77005
(713) 668-9545 Tue-Sat 11-5; By appt
Dir: Petra Benteler
European photography from the turn-of-the-century to the present.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
André Gelpke, Fritz Henle, Marta Hoepffner, Peter Keetman, Aart Klein, Andreas Müller-Pohle, Floris M. Neusüss, Michael Ruetz, Reinhart Wolf.

Other artists represented:
Pierre Cordier, Heinz Hajek-Halke, Robert Haüsser, Milan Horacek, Gérald Minkoff, Nils-Udo, Karin Székessy.

3304. LOWELL COLLINS GALLERY
2903 Saint St 77027
(713) 622-6962 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Lowell Collins
Antique African, Oceanic, Pre-Columbian, Oriental, Egyptian, and Near Eastern art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Lowell Collins.

Other artists represented:
John Biggers.

3305. CONTEMPORARY ARTS MUSEUM
5216 Montrose Blvd 77006
(713) 526-3129 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 12-6
Dir: Linda Cathcart
Work of living American artists; regional and emerging artists; changing exhibitions; no permanent collection.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
John Baldessari, Tony Berlant*, Gay Block*, Robert Gordy, Melissa Miller*, Robert Morris*, Edward Paschke*

3306. ROBIN CRONIN
2008 Peden 77019
(713) 526-2548 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Robin Z. Cronin
Contemporary American painting, sculpture, photography; figurative works.

Other artists represented:
Lita Albuquerque, Derek Boshier, Ron Cooper, Laddie John Dill, Steve Kahn, Astrid Preston, Jim Sullivan, Richard Thompson.

3307. RACHEL W. DAVIS GALLERY
2402 Addison St 77030
(713) 664-4130 By appt
Dir: Rachel W. Davis
American 20th-century figurative images.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jefferson Smith.

Other artists represented:
Louis A'Davila, Grace Albee, Walter Inglis Anderson, Peggy Bacon, Gayle de Gregori, Fritz Eichenberg, Bill Heise, Clare Leighton, J. Jay McVicker, Ann Royer, John Sloan.

3308. DAVIS/MCCLAIN GALLERIES
2818 Kirby Dr 77098
(713) 520-9200 Mon-Fri 10-5:30, Sat 11-4
Dir: Barbara Davis/Bob McClain
Contemporary regional work; various mediums.

*see catalog index

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Gary Faye, Jesus Bautista Morales, Bill Shepherd, Henry Sinn, Anne Vaccaro.

Other artists represented:
Tom Berg, Brian Blount, Larry Flukinger, Gail Gash, Woody Gwyn, Clark Harrah, Aaron Karp, Diane Lorio, Goerge Lorio, Cynthia Starkweather-Nelson, Doug Sweet, Sheila Zeve.

3309. DUBOSE GALLERIES

2950 Kirby Dr 77098
(713) 526-4916 Tue-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Ellen Penner
Contemporary American art, photography, and sculpture.

Other artists represented:
Douglas Atwill, Michel Bezman, Wayne Blythe, Ronaldo DeJuan, Robert Graham, Jim Groff, William Hoey, Tallie Lipscomb, Kenneth Luce, Herb Mears, Kermit Oliver, John Olsen, Yvonne Parker, Margaret Rochelle, Charles Schorre, Robert Weimerskirch.

3310. F.A.M.E. GALLERY

1980 Post Oak Blvd 77056
(713) 627-7024 Mon-Fri 10-5
Dir: Adrian Shapiro
Modern and contemporary paintings and prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Claude Bellegarde, Elizabeth Franzheim*, Slavko Kopac*.

Other artists represented:
Karel Appel, Romare Bearden, Gwen Branstetter, Fran Bull, Gene Davis, Michel de Saint-Alban, Ron Kleemann, Conrad Marca-Relli, Conrad Schwiering, Mori Shizume, Ivan Theimer, Walasse Ting, Larry Zox.

3311. FINE ARTS OF HOUSTON

60 Woodlake Square 77063
(713) 783-1247 Mon-Sat 10-6
Dir: Matt Thompson
20th-century American art; all mediums.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Sherna Cockrill, Jennifer DeBlock, Sean Didier, Candace Knapp, Ron Vellucci.

Other artists represented:
Gary Niblett, Amado Peña, D. G. Smith, Jennifer Spencer.

3312. GRAHAM GALLERY

2411 Bartlett 77098
(713) 528-4957 Tue-Sat 10-6
Dir: William A. Graham
20th-century and contemporary paintings, sculptures, photographs, prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Viveka Barnett, John Chatmas, Alain Clement, Ron Hoover, Perry House, Terrell James, Hitch Lyman, Dalton Maloney, Charles Rutynowski.

Other artists represented:
Charmaine Locke, Paulus Muster, Gary Roth, Sarah Stites, John Sturtevant, Richard Thompson.

3313. HADLER/RODRIGUEZ

20 Pinedale 77006
(713) 520-6329 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Warren Hadler
Contemporary American ceramics, works on paper, Southwestern art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Betty Woodman.

Other artists represented:
Howard Ben Tre, Jean Dibble, Andrea Gill, Gordon Hart, Karen Karnes, Jimmy Kellough, Phillip Maberry, Carl Palazzolo, Laura Russell, Cynthia Schira, Michael Tracy.

3314. HARRIS GALLERY

1100 Bissonnet 77005
(713) 522-9116 Mon by appt, Tue-Fri 10-6, Sat 11-5
Dir: Harrison Itz
Contemporary American paintings, drawings, photography and 19th- and 20th-century prints.

Other artists represented:
Tony Bass, Peter Brown, George Bunker, Chris Burkholder, James Conaway, Joe DiGiorgio, Willard Dixon, Frank Ettenberg, Linda Graetz, Karen Guzak, Carl Hazlewood, Pauline Howard, Don Irwin, James Johnson, Merrill Mahaffey, Robert McCoy, Ed Mell, Linda Obermoeller, Bob Russell, Larry Samuels, Al Smith, Susan Smith, Jeff Vaughn, Manning Williams, Geoff Winningham.

3315. HOOKS-EPSTEIN GALLERIES

1200 Bissonnet 77005
(713) 522-0718 Tue-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Charles V. Hooks
Late 19th- to 20th-century American and European representational drawings, watercolors, sculpture, paintings, and graphics.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jacqueline Fogel, Helen O. Gross, Jay Lefkowitz, Hib Sabin.

Other artists represented:
Elaine Aptekar, Michael Collins, Jane Egan, Kenneth Frazier, Judith Ingram, Marcia Marx, Peter Paone, Doug Schneider, Leonard Schwartz, Bob Seabeck, Mary Sims, J. M. Sorg, Sherry Sullivan, Ann Trask.

3316. KAUFFMAN GALLERIES

2702 W Alabama 77098
(713) 528-4229 Mon-Sat 10-6
Dir: John Sandor
Contemporary artists.

Other artists represented:
Garo Antreasian, John Axton, Gene Bavinger, Ruffin Cooper, Yrjo Edelmann, Igor Galanin, R. C. Gorman, Peter Holbrook, Friedensreich Hundertwasser, Inque Kozo, Sandra Lerner, Fritz Scholder, Carol Summers, Wayne Toepp.

3317. JANIE C. LEE GALLERY

2304 Bissonnet 77005
(713) 523-7306 Tue-Sat 10-6
Dir: Gene Binder
Contemporary art from 1950 to the present; 20th-century drawings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
John Alexander, Sam Gummelt.

Other artists represented:
Avigdor Arikha, Dennis Ashbaugh, Willem de Kooning, Mark Di Suvero, Jim Dine, Helen Frankenthaler, Nancy Graves, Al Held, Hans Hofmann, Jasper Johns, Donald Judd, Ellsworth Kelly, Lee Krasner, Alexander Liberman, Roy Lichtenstein, Morris Louis, Jim Love, Robert Motherwell, Claes Oldenberg, Beverly Pepper, Robert Rauschenberg, Philip Renteria, Tony Smith, Gael Stack, Frank Stella, Cy Twombly.

3318. MEREDITH LONG

2323 San Felipe 77019
(713) 523-6671 Tue-Sat 10-6
Dir: Meredith Long
19th-20th-century American art; 1920s-40s New York art; area artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Joseph Drapell, Dorothy Hood, Tom Jones, Jules Olitski, James Painter, Richard Yarde.

Other artists represented:
William Anzalone, Al Barnes, Richard Bogart, Herb Booth, Stanley Boxer, Byron Browne, Michael Peter Cain, Dan Christensen, Brian Cobble, John P. Cowan, Werner Drewes, Friedel Dzubas, Carl Embrey, Edmund Greacen, Darryl Hughto, Wolf Kahn, Gary Komarin, Daniel Lang, Craig Lesser, E. M. "Buck" Schiwetz, Sandi Slone, Henry Stallworth, Michael Steiner, Richard Stout, Masaru Takiguchi, Larry Zox.

3319. LOUISIANA GALLERY

77019
(713) 524-6700 By appt
Dir: Adrian Rosenberg
Primitive art.

3320. MCINTOSH/DRYSDALE GALLERY

2008 Peden 77019
(713) 520-1888
Dir: Nancy Drysdale
Contemporary American painting, sculpture, drawing.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Alice Aycock, Jerry Clapsaddle, Martin Puryear, Henry Schoebel.

Other artists represented:
Otis Jones, Gayil Nalls, John Ryan.

3321. JACK MEIER GALLERY

2310 Bissonnet 77005
(713) 526-2983 Mon-Fri 10-5:30, Sat 10-2
Dir: Martha Meier
Contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Virginia Cobb, H. Y. Peter Hsu, Jose Perez, Shirley Romer, David Grant Roth.

Other artists represented:
Wayne Amerine, Jane Bazinet, Marge Brichler, Al Brouillette, Elaine Halpern, Ann Hunt, Bonnie Lhotka, Rosemary Mahoney, Harold Phenix, Janice Pollard, William Preston, Herb Rather, Anthony Sinclair, Joe Sternberg, Mikael Whitley.

3322. MEINHARD GALLERIES

1502 Augusta Dr, Suite 100 77057
(713) 977-6200 Mon-Fri 9-5:30, Sat 10-4:30
Dir: Julie A.Cain
19th- and 20th-century Realist and Impressionist European and American art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ian Houston, Henry Wo Yue-kee.

Other artists represented:
Bogomir Bogdanovic, Dane Clark, Tony Eubanks, John D. Free, Rod Goebel, Glenna Goodacre, David Halbach, Ramon Kelley, Robert Lavin, Bart Lindstrom, George Lundeen, Gerald Merfeld, Dan Ostermiller, Les Perhacs, James B. Robinson, Robert Sarsony, Eric Sloane, Shannon Stirnweis, Dee Toscano, Bob Wygant.

3323. MOLLRING GALLERY

Four Seasons Hotel, Houston Center
1300 Lamar St 77010
(713) 652-2828 Mon-Fri 9-6, Sat 10-5
Dir: Ted Mollring/Christine Mollring
See Trailside Galleries, Phoenix, Arizona.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Charles Loloma.

Other artists represented:
Ted Charveze, Doug Dawson, Bruce E. Dines, Ray G. Ellis, Lincoln Fox, Edith Maskey, John Maskey, Don Polland, Sherry Sander, Steven O. Scott, Frederic Whitaker, Wayne Wolfe, Jessica Zemsky.

3324. MOODY GALLERY

2015-J W Gray 77019
(713) 526-9911 Tue-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Betty Moody
Contemporary regional artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jack Boynton, Lamar Briggs, Roy Fridge, Lucas Johnson, Jun Kaneko, Ida Kohlmeyer, Jim Roche, Arthur Turner.

Other artists represented:
Ed Blackburn, Bob Camblin, MANUAL(Hill/Bloom), Charles Pebworth, Don Shaw, Bill Steffy, Donald Roller Wilson, Dick Wray.

3325. MUSEUM OF FINE ARTS, HOUSTON

1001 Bissonnet 77005
(713) 526-1361 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-6
Dir: Peter C. Marzio
European and American paintings; decorative arts; sculpture; graphics; photography; antiquities; American Indian art; African and Oceanic primitive art; Oriental art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Joan Miró*.

3326. C. G. REIN GALLERIES

4380 Westheimer 77027
(713) 871-9701 Mon-Sat 9:30-5
Dir: Jeanne Parker
See C. G. Rein Galleries: Scottsdale, AZ and Edina, MN.

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

3327. ROBERT RICE GALLERY
2627 Kipling, Suite 20 77098
(713) 528-0741 Tue, Wed 10-4; Thu-Mon By appt
Dir: Barbara Menen
19th-20th-century French and American paintings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ralph Blakelock, Emil Carlsen, Frederic Church*, Thomas Cole*, J. F. Cropsey, E. Gallien-Laloue*, Sandford Gifford, Armand Guillaumin, Maximilien Luce, Paul Serusier, Louis Valtat.

Other artists represented:
Giovanni Boldini, J. G. Brown, Ernest Lawson, Chauncy Ryder, Edouard Vuillard, Martha Walter.

3328. RICE UNIVERSITY
Sewall Art Gallery
PO Box 1892 77251
(713) 527-8101 ext 3502 Mon-Sat 12-5
Dir: Amy Lighthill
Exhibitions related to academic programs, focusing on historical and contemporary painting, sculpture, graphic, video, and performance art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
David Hockney, Allen Jones, Tony Robbins, Earl Staley.

3329. RICE UNIVERSITY INSTITUTE FOR THE ARTS
Rice Museum
PO Box 1892 77251
(713) 522-0886 Sept-May Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 12-6
Dir: Dominique de Menil
Exhibitions from Menil Foundation Collection: Cycladic to modern, Surrealist, African art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
William Christenberry*, Yves Klein*.

3330. ROBINSON GALLERIES
1200 Bissonnet 77005
(713) 521-9221 Tue-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Thomas V. Robinson
19th- and 20th-century works in various mediums.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
John Dawson, Paul Suttman, John Walker.

Other artists represented:
Helen Bickham, Don Foster, Mary Frances Judge, Cynthia Morgan-Batmanis, Gregory Palmer, James Pinto, Reginald Rowe, Vera Simons.

3331. ROTHKO CHAPEL
1409 Sul Ross 77006
(713) 524-9839 Daily 10-6
Dir: Dominique de Menil
Chapel featuring 14 large abstract paintings by Mark Rothko.

3332. DAVID SETTLES GALLERY
1700 Bissonnet 77005
(713) 528-1690 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: David Settles

Other artists represented:
Joseph Almyda, Stephen Edlich, Allan Hacklin, Reuben Nakian, Paul Rotterdam.

3333. TEXAS GALLERY
2012 Peden 77019
(713) 524-1593 Tue-Sat 10-6
Dir: Fredericka Hunter/Ian Glennie
Contemporary American art.

Other artists represented:
Charles Arnoldi, Linda Benglis, Billy Al Bengston, Tony Berlant, Derek Boshier, R. M. Fischer, Jedd Garet, Steve Gianakos, Joe Goode, Alex Katz, Cheryl Laemmle, Robert Loeb, Robert Longo, Kim MacConnel, Robert Mangold, Robert Mapplethorpe, Melissa Miller, Matt Mullican, Suzanne Paul, Dorothea Rockburne, Ed Ruscha, Charles Schorre, Cindy Sherman, Eve Sonneman, Gary Stephan, James Surls, William Wegman, Casey Williams, Joe Zucker.

3334. UNIVERSITY OF HOUSTON
Sarah Campbell Blaffer Gallery
Cullen Blvd 77004
(713) 749-1329 Tue-Sat 10-6, Sun 1-6
Dir: William A. Robinson
No permanent collection; presents a variety of exhibitions, many related to educational programs within the university.

3335. UNIVERSITY OF HOUSTON, DOWNTOWN COLLEGE
O'Kane Gallery
1 Main St 77002
(713) 749-1950 Mon-Fri 10-5
Dir: Veta Winick
Works in many mediums by Texas and particularly Houston artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Cynthia Batmanis, Frank Gerrietts, Ben Howatt, Tommy McAfee, Jeanne Norsworthy, Clarence Talley, Pat Till.

3336. WATSON/DE NAGY
1106 Berthea 77006
(713) 526-9883 Tue-Sat 10-6
Dir: Clint Willour
Contemporary American and Canadian painting, sculpture, works on paper.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Walter Darby Bannard, Tom Goldenberg, Robert Levers, Forrest Moses, Peter Reginato, Robert Utterback.

Other artists represented:
Jane Allensworth, Bob Cole, Stephanie Kirschen Cole, Pat Colville, Robert Goodnough, Roberta Harris, Sandria Hu, Richard Johnson, Mary McCleary, Harold Reddicliffe, Dan Rizzie, Tom Sayre, Earl Staley, Dee Wolff.

3337. GERHARD WURZER GALLERY
5085 Westheimer Suite 3707 77056
(713) 961-9888 Mon-Fri 10-9, Sat 10-6
Dir: Gerhard Wurzer
19th- and 20th-century prints, paintings, and drawings.

Irving

3338. AMERICAN FINE ARTS GALLERY
610 Plymouth Park Center 75061
(214) 254-1425 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Addie White
Realist landscapes, seascapes, wildlife paintings, and Western art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
A.D. Greer, Raul Gutierrez, David Nicholas, Larry Prellop.

Longview

3339. LONGVIEW MUSEUM AND ARTS CENTER
102 West College PO Box 562 75606
(214) 753-8103 Mon-Fri 9-5, Sun 1-3
Dir: Joan Nachbaur Rathbun
Permanent collection of paintings, sculpture, graphics, and photography by contemporary Texas and Southwestern artists; changing exhibitions of contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Christi Pate, Ronald Thomason.

Mary Cassatt: Antoinette's Caress, ca. 1906; Museum of Art, Rhode Island School of Design.

Lubbock

3340. TEXAS TECH UNIVERSITY
Art Dept Teaching Gallery
PO Box 4720 79409
(806) 742-3825 Sun-Fri 1-5
Dir: Ken Dixon
Contemporary art.

Lufkin

3341. LUFKIN HISTORICAL AND CREATIVE ARTS MUSEUM
2nd Ave and Paul St 75901
(409) 639-4434 Tue-Sat 10-4, Sun 1-5
Dir: Rudolph Pharis
Regional art; emphasis on Eastern Texas contemporary artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Bob Bowman, Reagan Bradshaw, Jim Dine, Mark Christopher Weber, Ronnie Wells.

Marfa

3342. DIA FOUNDATION
PO Box 1135 79843
(915) 729-4362 Permanent exhibitions of works by John Chamberlain and Donald Judd.

McAllen

3343. MCALLEN INTERNATIONAL MUSEUM
1900 Nolana 78501
(512) 682-1564 Tue-Sat 9-5, Sun 1-5
Art, science, local history; Mexican folk art and textiles, contemporary European and American prints, local history photographs.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Charles Baugh, Don Foster*.

---

*see catalog index

Midland

3344. MUSEUM OF THE SOUTHWEST
1705 W Missouri Ave 79701
(915) 683-2882 Mon-Sat 10-5, Sun 2-5
Dir: Jerry Porter
Southwestern art; sculpture, graphics; archeology; history.

Orange

3345. STARK MUSEUM OF ART
712 Green Ave 77630
(713) 883-6661 Wed-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Nelda C. Stark
Western American art, American Indian art, porcelain and glass.

San Antonio

3346. CHARLTON ART GALLERY
308 N Presa 78205
(512) 223-2181 Mon-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Anne Alexander
Contemporary Texas painting, prints, sculpture, ceramics, photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Michael Bigger, Brad Braune, Tom Pressly, Gilberto Tarin, Kathy Vargas.

Other artists represented:
Dan Allison, James Elksnin, Charles Field, E.O. Goldbeck, Margit Ilika, David McCullough, David Peacock, Steven Sellars.

3347. MCNAY ART INSTITUTE
6000 N New Braunfels 78209
(512) 824-5368 Tue-Sat 9-5, Sun 2-5
Dir: John Palmer Leeper
Late-19th- and 20th-century European and American art; Post-Impressionist French paintings; graphic arts; New Mexican art and crafts; Gothic, Medieval works.

3348. OBJECTS GALLERY
4010 Broadway 78209
(512) 826-8996 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Caroline Lee
Specializes in dimensional work using clay, fiber, handmade paper.

Other artists represented:
Deborah Aguado, Adela Akers, Sue Brandon, Danville Chadbourne, Bill Dennard, Bill Dodd, Piero Fenci, John Fleming, Joe Guy, Dorothy Hafner, Diane Itter, Janet Kastner, Lewis Knauss, Karen Massaro, Neil Maurer, Tom Nichols, Claudia Reese, Steve Reynolds, Barbara Riley, Rena Thompson, Michael Tracy, Deborah Warner.

3349. SAN ANTONIO MUSEUM ASSOCIATION
PO Box 2601 78299
(512) 226-5544
Dir: Helmuth J. Naumer
Photography; Texas paintings and decorative arts; 18th-20th-century European and American art; Mexican, Spanish, Pre-Columbian art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Judy Bankhead*, Constantine Brancusi*, Russell Lee*.

3350. SAN ANTONIO MUSEUM OF ART
200 W Jones Ave 78299
(512) 226-5544 ext 36 Tue-Sun 10-5
Dir: Kevin E. Consey
Spanish colonial art; Texas furniture, painting, decorative arts, sculpture; 18th-20th-century paintings; Pre-Columbian art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Judy Bankhead*, Constantin Brancusi*, Russell Lee*.

3351. SIGOLOFF GALLERY
7700 Broadway 78209
(512) 826-5588 Mon-Sat 10-6
Dir: Violet Sigoloff Flume
Contemporary art; landscapes.

Other artists represented:
Florent Baecke, Fred Boyce, Bob Butler, Robert Christi, Americo Makk, Eva Makk, Bo Newell, William Slaughter, Maureen Tarazon, Donald Yena.

3352. UNIVERSITY OF TEXAS, SAN ANTONIO
College of Fine Arts & Humanities Gallery 78285
(512) 691-4391 Mon-Fri 12:30-4:30
Dir: Mauricio Gonzalez
Teaching art gallery.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Norman Lundin, Paul Rotterdam.

Snyder

3353. DIAMOND M MUSEUM
909 25th St 79549
(915) 573-6311 Tue-Fri 10-4; Sat, Sun 1-4
Dir: Janet R. Parker
Western paintings, sculpture; European paintings, sculpture, porcelain; ivory, jade, Eskimo soapstone carvings; Currier and Ives prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
W.H.D. Koerner, Pierre Mene, Fried Pal, George Phippen, Julian Robles, Robert Vonnoh, N.C. Wyeth.

Tyler

3354. TYLER MUSEUM OF ART
1300 S Mahon Ave 75701
(214) 595-1001 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: James Weaver
Fine art; changing exhibitions; no permanent collection.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Charles Jones*.

Waco

3355. ART CENTER
1300 College Dr 76708
(817) 752-4371 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Paul Rogers Harris
Museum; emerging Texas and regional artists; historical exhibitions.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Sharon Brown-Johnston, Robert Indiana, Tom Lea, Joyce Lieberman, Bill Reid*, Staci Sipe.

Wichita Falls

3356. WICHITA FALLS MUSEUM AND ART CENTER
#2 Eureka Circle 76308
(817) 692-0923 Mon-Sat 9-4:30, Sun 1-5
Dir: Michael Duty
Permanent collection focuses on 17th-20th-century American prints; traveling exhibitions in art, history, and science; planetarium.

Utah

Brigham City

3357. BRIGHAM CITY MUSEUM-GALLERY
24 N 3 W 84302
(801) 723-6769 Mon-Fri 11-7, Sat 1-7
Dir: Larry Douglas
Paintings, photography, crystal, ceramics; regional and natural history.

Cedar City

3358. SOUTHERN UTAH STATE COLLEGE
Braithwaite Fine Arts Gallery 84720
(801) 586-5432 Mon-Fri 10-5, 7-9; Sat, Sun 1-6
Dir: Thomas A. Leek
Collection of 19th- and 20th-century American art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Sigmund Abeles*, Joseph Mugnaini.

Logan

3359. UTAH STATE UNIVERSITY
Nora Eccles Harrison Museum of Art 84322
(801) 750-3016/750-1412 Mon-Fri 10:30-4:30, Wed 10:30-8, Sat 2-8, Sun 2-5
Dir: Twain Tippets
National, student, and faculty shows.

Moab

3360. JAILHOUSE GALLERY
103 N Main 84532
(801) 259-7523 Daily 2-6, Sat 12-4
Dir: Arleen Ruggeri
Paintings, graphics, and crafts by contemporary Western artists.

Other artists represented:
Robert T. Barrett, Dorothy Bearnson, Chen Chi, Elizabeth Enyeart, Dennis Haberkorn, Evelyn Henderson, Esther Keyser, Thomas Leek, Gaell Lindstrom, Kurt Meyer-Eberhardt, Bonnie Phillips, Denis Phillips, Arleen Ruggeri, Elizabeth Ruggeri, Linda Lee Shimmin, June Wagoner, William Wagoner.

VOL
71
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

Ogden

3361. ECCLES COMMUNITY ART CENTER
2580 Jefferson Ave 84401
(801) 392-6935 Daily 9-5, Sat 10-4
Dir: Sandra H. Havas
Non-profit; regional artists, monthly shows, permanent collection.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Lonna Brown, Farrell R. Collett, Dave Fernandez, Brent Haddock, Terry Johnson, Robert Kleinschmidt, Carolyn Rich, Homer Rich, Paul Schaufler, Steve Songer, Dani Tupper, Blanche Wilson, Sam Wilson.

Park City

3362. KIMBALL ART CENTER
PO Box 1478 84060
(801) 649-8882 Mon-Sat 10-6, Sun 12-6
Dir: Choral "Corke" Pepper
Non-profit; 30 exhibits annually of national and international art and crafts; classes.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Manuel De Arce, V. Douglas Snow.

Other artists represented:
Clifford Beck, Tom Bottman, Lee Deffebach, Lee Dillon, G. W. Granizo, Lark Lucas, Bonnie Phillips, Denis Phillips, Jennifer Sharp, Sharon Shepherd, Kim Whitesides, Frederick Wong.

3363. LIDO GALLERY
750 E Highway 248 84060
(801) 374-2735 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Carole Dewegeli
Contemporary paintings, bronzes by Western artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
James Christensen*.

Other artists represented:
Gene Dodge, John Jarvis, Gary Kapp, Guy Manning, Lad Odell.

Price

3364. COLLEGE OF EASTERN UTAH
Gallery East
451 E 4 N 84501
(801) 637-2120 Mon-Fri 8-5
Dir: James L. Young
American prints; regional art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Lee Dilon, Tom Leek.

Provo

3365. BRIGHAM YOUNG UNIVERSITY
B.F. Larsen Gallery
F-303 HFAC 84602
(801) 378-2881 Daily 8-5
Dir: Jerry Clyff Allen
Western collection; Hudson River School; American Impressionism; Cecil B. de Mille Collection: Motion Picture Sketches; early 20th-century regional art.

3366. LIDO GALLERY
398 N University Ave 84604
(801) 374-2735 Mon-Fri 10-6, Sat 10-1
Dir: Carol Dewegeli
Contemporary paintings, bronzes by Western artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Nancy Lund, Robert Marshall, Lad O'Dell.

Other artists represented:
Jim Christensen, Gary Kapp, Frank Magleby, Guy Manning, Kimball Warren, Larry Wolfe.

Salt Lake City

3367. APPLEYARD ART FRAME GALLERY
3096 S Highland Dr 84106
(801) 467-3621 Mon-Sat 10-6
Dir: Sue Valentine
Regional and local art in all mediums.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Dawna Barton, Pat Briggs, Brooke Morrison.

3368. ARTIST IN ACTION: CROSSROADS
50 S Main, #286 84144
(801) 521-8436 Mon-Fri 10-9, Sat 10-6, Sun 12-5
Dir: Pat Williams
Works of art in all mediums; works by regional artists.

3369. ARTISTS IN ACTION GALLERY: HERITAGE SQUARE
580 SW Temple 84101
(801) 521-9258 Mon-Fri 10-9, Sat 10-6, Sun 12-5
Dir: Pat Williams
Paintings, sculpture, crafts by contemporary regional artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Al Aspenwall, Roger Davis, Burt Dinius, Dan Hill, Phyllis Horne, Helen Paul, Linda Roberts, A. D. Shaw, Renae Taylor, Lynne Toneri Ward.

Other artists represented:
Amos Amit, Dawna Barton, Zelda Bills, Larry Christensen, Sharlene Christensen, Norma Forsberg, Lark Lucas, Randi Wagner.

3370. BRUSHWORKS GALLERY
175 E 2nd S 84111
(801) 363-0600 Daily 9-6, Sat 11-4
Dir: Claudia Drage
Paintings by local artists; prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ian Ramsay.

Other artists represented:
Douglas Bennion, Mark Petersen, Kirk Randle.

3371. GALLERY 56
56 W 400 S 84101
(801) 533-8245 Daily 10-5
Dir: David Ericson
Utah paintings and sculpture; contemporary American and traditional Western art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Peter M. Fillerup, Doyle Shaw, Gary Smith.

Other artists represented:
Dan Baxter, Ken Baxter, Avard Fairbanks, John Jarvis, Earl Jones, Randall Lake, Mark Petersen, Al Rounds, Dennis Smith, Kimbal Warren.

3372. LUMIERE GALLERY
559 E South Temple 84102
(801) 359-7063 Tue-Fri 11-5, By appt.
Dir: Tonya Saxton Reiter
Contemporary regional painting, drawing, prints, ceramics, photography.

Other artists represented:
Wulf Barsch, Chad Buck, Christina Darais, Steven Fawson, Karen Horne, Ed Maryon, Edwin Oberbeck, Edith Roberson, Sharon Shepherd, Adrian Van Suchtelen, Richard Van Wagoner, John Wood.

3373. PHILLIPS GALLERY
444 E 200 S 84111
(801) 364-8284 Tue-Fri 10-5:30, Sat 10-2
Dir: Bonnie Phillips
Paintings, drawings, prints, weaving, ceramics by Utah artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Richard Burton, Sharlene Christensen, Larry Elsner, Jim Jones, Tom Leek.

Other artists represented:
Sharon Alderman, Michael Ashcraft, Margaret Carde, Larry Christensen, Paul Davis, Ann Day, Lee Deffebach, Cynthia Fehr, Earl Jones, Ed Maryon, Howard McLaughlin, Bart Morse, Tom Mulder, Don Olsen, Bonnie Phillips, Denis Phillips, Dennis Smith, V. Douglas Snow, Francis Zimbeaux.

3374. SALT LAKE ART CENTER
20 SW Temple 84101
(801) 328-4201 Tue-Sat 10-5, Fri 10-9, Sun 1-5
Dir: Robert J. Doherty
Visual arts center; exhibitions, emphasizing Utah artists; sales gallery.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Willis Adams, Beverly Mastrim, Gordon Moore, David Pendell, Lin S. Walker.

Other artists represented:
Robert Barrett, Ilya Bolotowsky, Kimberly Burleigh, Larry Christensen, Sharlene Christensen, Ron Clayton, Lee Deffebach, Lee Dillon, David Disko, Ed Dolinger, Cathey Ericson, Cynthia Fehr, John Hess, Michael Craig Hullet, Earl Jones, Robert Kleinschmidt, Kristie Lee Krumbach, Susan Makoff, Joseph Marrata, Marilyn Miller, Stan Roberts, John Schaefer, Dian Shaw, John Shaw, Sharon Shepherd, Kathryn Stats, Bonnie Sucec, David Sucec, Sam Wilson, Fred Wright.

3375. STABLE GALLERY
524 S 600 E 84102
(801) 355-6223 Mon-Fri 9-5
Dir: Paul Wilcox
Regional landscape painting and bronzes.

Other artists represented:
Dan Baxter, Ken Baxter, Robert Bennett, Marilee Campbell, Shauna Cook Clinger, Vaughn Forsyth, Phyllis Horne, Janet Millikan, Lynne Millman, Richard Murray, Don Ricks, Al Rounds.

3376. TIVOLI GALLERY
255 S State St 84111
(801) 521-6288 Tue-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Dan Olsen
Utah artists and early American works.

Other artists represented:
Dallas Anderson, Monte Anderson, Phil Barlow, Ken Baxter, Johna Bronson, Farrell Collett, Tom DeDecker, Frederick Denys, Maynard Dixson, Harrison Groutage, John Jarvis, Gary Kapp, Nancy Lund, John Myrup, Jim Norton, Don Ricks, Doyle Shaw, Gary Smith, Grant Speed, Kathy Wilson, Larry Winborg, Mahonri Young.

3377. UNIVERSITY OF UTAH
Utah Museum of Fine Arts
Art and Architecture Center 84112
(801) 581-7332 Daily 10-5; Sat, Sun 1-5
Dir: E.F. Sanguinetti
17th-19th-century American, French, English painting, furnishings, tapestries; Egyptian and Buddhist objects; contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Anthony Sanna, Alvar Sunol.

3378. UTAH ARTS COUNCIL
Glendinning Gallery
617 E S Temple 84102
(801) 533-5895 Daily 8-5
Dir: Ruth Draper
Collection of 700 works by Utah artists; emphasis on WPA period.

---

*see catalog index

Vermont

Brattleboro

3379. BRATTLEBORO MUSEUM & ART CENTER
Box 662 05301
(802) 257-0124 Tue-Fri 12-4; Sat, Sun 1-4
Dir: W. Rod Faulds
Art and regional and American history exhibitions.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Pat Adams, Scot Borofsky, Marcy Hermansader, Lotte Jacobi, Lynn Lewandowski, Gary Milek, Roger Sandes, Andrew Schneller, Nancy Storrow, Malcolm Wright.

Burlington

3380. UNIVERSITY OF VERMONT
Robert Hull Fleming Museum
Colchester Ave 05405
(802) 656-2090 Tue-Fri 10-5; Sat, Sun 1-5
Dir: Ildiko Heffernan
American and European decorative and fine art, Native American, African, Oceanic, Pre-Columbian, Oriental, ancient Greco-Roman and Egyptian ethnographica.

Montpelier

3381. WOOD ART GALLERY
Main St-Kellogg Hubbard Library Bldg 05602
(802) 229-0036 Tue-Sat 12-4, Sat 9-1
Dir: Olivia Bravakis
19th-20th-century American paintings, prints; local, regional art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Helen Dillon, Fritz Ducheine, Philip Hagopian, Chadwick Harter, Carol E. S. MacDonald, Dolly Miller, Cynthia Ross, Nancy Stone, Thomas Waterman Wood*.

St. Johnsbury

3382. ST. JOHNSBURY ATHENAEUM
30 Main St 05819
(802) 748-8291 Mon-Sat 9:30-5; Mon, Fri eves 5-8
Dir: Jean F. Marcy
Primarily 19th-century American landscapes of the Hudson River School.

Woodstock

3383. CHARLES FENTON GALLERY
Woodstock East 05091
(802) 457-3022 Mon-Fri 9-5, Sat 11-4
Dir: Charles E. H. Fenton
Contemporary and regional paintings, prints, photography, and sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Judith Brown, Linda Ethier, Ronni Solbert.

Other artists represented:
Gunnar Baldwin Jr, Penny Bennett, John Gilbert Fox, Trina Hyman, Harold Krauth.

Virginia

Alexandria

3384. THE ATHENAEUM, NORTHERN VIRGINIA FINE ARTS ASSOCIATION
201 Prince St 22314
(703) 548-0035 Tue-Sat 10-4, Sun 1-4
Dir: Betsy H. Mansmann
Changing art and crafts exhibitions (no permanent collection), sculpture garden.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Murney Keleher, Peter Thomas.

3385. GALLERY 4
115 S Columbus St 22314
(703) 548-4600 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Mary Kay Ryan
Contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Deborah Ellis, Randolph Payne, Katherine Steiger.

Other artists represented:
Daniel Dallmann, William Dunlap, Isabel Field, Dennis Frings, Laura Grosch, Vida Hackman, Michael Jacques, Ruth Kerkovius, Richard Kevorkian, Gerry Komer, Michael Lasuchin, Martin Levine, Teri Malo, Bruce McCombs, Jonathan Meader, Gordon Mortensen, Keith Rasmussen, Charlotte Robinson, Carita Smith, Hilda Thorpe, Priscilla Treacy.

3386. HENSLEY GALLERY
1311 King St 22314
(703) 836-1010 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Bernard R. Hensley
Graphics.

Other artists represented:
John Barber, Salvador Dali, Neal Doty, Eyvind Earle, Peter Ellenshaw, Thomas Hoyne, G.H. Rothe, Jerry Schurr.

3387. LIROS GALLERY
626 N Washington St 22314
(703) 549-7881 Mon-Sat 9-5:30
Dir: Serge Liros
19th- and early-20th-century paintings, maps, prints; Russian icons.

Blacksburg

3388. BLOCK PRINTS GALLERY
143 Jackson St 24060
(703) 552-6969 Tue-Fri 10-5, Sat 12-5
Dir: Robert A. Miller
Works in all mediums by contemporary artists; prints.

Other artists represented:
Charlotte Atkins, Jan Bos, Carole Davis, Martha Dillard, Don Harris, Walt Hewes, Carole Hoge, Vicki Howarth, Catherine Hunt, Dennis Kilper, Harold Little, Marcel, Patrick McKely, Ursule Molinaro, Joni Pienkowski.

Charlottesville

3389. GALLERY II/RSVP
218 W Main St 22901
(804) 977-7787 Mon-Sat 11-5
Dir: Colleen Later
Contemporary international art.

Other artists represented:
Brad Adams, Ken Beer, Jerry Coulter, Jay Kain, Gene Kleinsmith, Frank Riggs, Carol Rose, Stafford Schiefer, Kenneth Szmagai.

3390. UNIVERSITY OF VIRGINIA
Art Museum Rugby Rd 22903
(804) 924-3592 Tue-Sun 1-5
Dir: David B. Lawall
Art in the Age of Jefferson, contemporary American realist art, 19th- and 20th-century American painting; Pre-Columbian, African, Oceanic, Far Eastern art.

Fredericksburg

3391. BELMONT: THE GARI MELCHERS MEMORIAL GALLERY
224 Washington St 22405
(703) 373-3634 Daily 1-5
Dir: Richard S. Reid
Paintings, drawings, etchings by Gari Melchers dating from 1871-1932, in 18th-century manor house; 16th-19th century European paintings and furnishings.

Hampton

3392. HAMPTON INSTITUTE
College Museum 23668
(804) 727-5308 Mon-Fri 8-5; Sat, Sun 12-4
Dir: Jeanne Zeidler
Native American, traditional African, Oceanic, and Afro-American art.

Harrisonburg

3393. JAMES MADISON UNIVERSITY
Sawhill Gallery
Grace and Main Sts 22807
(703) 433-6216 Mon-Fri 8-12, 1-5, 7-9; Sat, Sun 2-5
Dir: Stuart Downs
Temporary exhibitions related to the art program, the campus, and the community.

Lexington

3394. WASHINGTON AND LEE UNIVERSITY
duPont Gallery 24450
(703) 463-9111, ext 351 Mon-Fri 9-5, Sat 11-3, Sun 2-4
Dir: Debora Rindge
Loan exhibitions of art by contemporary painters, sculptors, printmakers, photographers; old master works.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ann Chenoweth, Rubin Peacock.

see last page for advertiser's index

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

Lynchburg

3395. RANDOLPH-MACON WOMAN'S COLLEGE
Maier Museum of Art 24503
(804) 846-7392 ext 433 Tue-Fri 10-12, 2-4; Mon 2-4; Sun 2-5
Dir: Nancy Mowll Mathews
Collection of American art: pre-Civil War; 19th- and 20th-centuries; contemporary painting.

Norfolk

3396. CHRYSLER MUSEUM
Olney Rd and Mowbray Arch 23510
(804) 622-1211 Tue-Sat 10-4, Sun 1-5
Dir: David W. Steadman
Art of all cultures spanning 5000 years; Italian Baroque and French Academic paintings; Chrysler Institute of Glass; American and contemporary art; decorative arts.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
André Kertész*, Louis Comfort Tiffany.

3397. GHENT GALLERY
329 W 21st St 23517
(804) 627-9448 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Dan Taggert/Bill Baird
American prints; contemporary painting, pottery, fiber.

Other artists represented:
Barbara Blumberg, Wally Dryer, David Hunter, Michael Jacques, Johnny Johnson, Terri Malo, Betty Zoe Miller, Rita Montrosse, Ruth Peerless, Michael Sherbert, Dan Taggert, Stan Washburn.

Portsmouth

3398. PORTSMOUTH COMMUNITY ARTS CENTER
420 High St 23704
(804) 393-8543 Tue-Sat 11-4, Sun 2-5
Dir: Frederick S. Bayersdorfer, Jr.
Regional artists; collection of contemporary drawings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ralph Cowan, Laurel Quarberg.

Richmond

3399. CUDAHY'S GALLERY
1314 E Cary St 23219
(804) 782-1776 Mon-Thu 10:30-5:30; Fri, Sat 10:30-10; Sun 12-5
Dir: Helen G. Levinson
Emerging Virginia artists; paintings, crafts.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Eldridge Bagley, Dave Bruner, Dennis Frings, James W. Jones, Michael Robinson, Barclay Sheaks, John Alan Stock.

Other artists represented:
Carlton Abbott, Jane Aman, Skippy Anderson, Eliza Askin, Mary Bach, David Cochran, Eleanor Cox, Stephen Fox, David Freed, Paul Germain, David Gill, Barbara Hails, Edward Hatch, Lynne Kagan, James Kirby, Marci McDonald, Walter Moskow, Edward Myers, Steven Wolf.

3400. REYNOLDS MINOR GALLERY
209 W Franklin St 23220
(804) 788-0812 Tue-Fri 11-5; Sat, Sun 1-4; Jun-Aug Mon-Fri 11-5
Dir: Beverly Reynolds/Charlotte Minor
Contemporary New York, Virginia, Washington works on paper, paintings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Nell Blaine, Richard Carlyon, Ellsworth Kelly, Theresa Pollak.

Other artists represented:
Jeff Davis, Neil Welliver, Nancy Witt.

3401. VALENTINE MUSEUM
1015 E Clay St 23219
(804) 649-0711 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1:30-5
Dir: John G. Zehmer, Jr.
17th-20th-century costumes; regional decorative arts and history; portraits; landscapes.

3403. VIRGINIA COMMONWEALTH UNIVERSITY
Anderson Gallery
907½ W Franklin St 23284
(804) 257-1522 Tue-Fri 10-6; Sat, Sun 1-5
Dir: Marilyn A. Zeitlin
Contemporary painting, sculpture, graphics, photography, crafts.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Pat Adams, John Baldessari*, Terry Berkowitz, Donald Cole, Fred Escher, Jud Fine, Kent Floeter, Sharon Gold, Craig Kauffman*, Paul Rotterdam.

3404. VIRGINIA MUSEUM OF FINE ARTS
Boulevard and Grove Ave 23221
(804) 257-0844 Tue-Sat 11-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Charles L. Reed, Jr.
Ancient, European, Oriental, and American art; Art Nouveau; Faberge Imperial Russian eggs.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Vito Acconci, Sidney Goodman*, Myron Helfgott, Cy Twombly, Neil Welliver.

Roanoke

3405. ART AFFAIR GALLERY
Tanglewood Mall 24014
(703) 774-0400 Mon-Sat 10-9
Dir: Bruce Cody/Michael W. Haga
Contemporary fine art; crafts.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Steve Endres, Peyton Klein, Katherine C. Liu, P. Buckley Moss.

Other artists represented:
Vera Dickerson, Joni Pienkowski, Beth Shively, Michael Sloan, Robert Stephen, Stephen White.

3406. ROANOKE MUSEUM OF FINE ARTS
301 23rd St SW 24014
(703) 342-8945 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Peter Rippe
Japanese collection, Mediterranean archaeology, American contemporary prints and regional paintings; changing exhibitions.

Sweet Briar

3407. SWEET BRIAR COLLEGE
Babcock/Benedict Galleries 24595
(804) 381-5451 Daily
Dir: Sandra H. Orwege
Loan exhibitions, works on paper from college collection, and student and faculty shows.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Douglas Higgins, Zigmunds Priede.

Williamsburg

3408. COLLEGE OF WILLIAM AND MARY
Andrews Gallery and Foyer Gallery
Andrews Hall 23185
(804) 253-4385 Mon-Fri 9-5
Dir: J.D. Kornwolf
Contemporary two- and three-dimensional art work.

3409. ABBY ALDRICH ROCKEFELLER FOLK ART CENTER
307 S England St 23185
(804) 229-1000 ext 2184 Daily 11-7
Dir: Carolyn J. Weekley
American folk art; permanent collection, changing exhibitions, research, publications.

Washington

Bellevue

3410. BELLEVUE ART MUSEUM
301 Bellevue Sq 98004
(206) 454-3322 Tue-Sun 12-8, Sat 10-6, Sun 11-5
Dir: John Olbrantz
20th-century American art with emphasis on regional art; craft and folk art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Paul Heald*, Margaret Tomkins*.

Bellingham

3411. WHATCOM MUSEUM OF HISTORY AND ART
121 Prospect St 98225
(206) 676-6981 Tue-Sun 12-5
Dir: George E. Thomas
Pacific Northwest history and art; Indian crafts; Darius Kinsey and Wilbur Sandison photographic collections.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Paul Ripley Jenkins, d'Elaine Johnson, Craig Lemley, Steve Mayo.

---

*see catalog index

Goldendale

3412. MARYHILL MUSEUM OF ART

Star Route 667 98626
(509) 773–4792 Apr–Oct Daily 9–5
Dir: Dorothy Brokaw

European, American painting, sculpture, ceramics, glass; Rodin collection; Northwest Indian artifacts.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Pema Wangyal.

Olympia

3413. EVERGREEN STATE COLLEGE

Evergreen Galleries 98505
(206) 866–6000, ext 062
Dir: Sid White

Contemporary West Coast art; functional and sculptural ceramics; mixed mediums.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
David Gallagher, Jean Miotte, Isaac Shamsud-Din.

Pullman

3414. WASHINGTON STATE UNIVERSITY

Museum of Art 99164
(509) 335–1910/335–1603 Tue–Fri 10–4, Tue 7–10; Sat, Sun 1–5
Dir: Sanford Sivitz Shaman

19th-20th-century American painting, prints, American Indian portraits, photography, works on paper; contemporary and European art.

Seattle

3415. CORNISH INSTITUTE

Cornish Gallery
710 E Ray 98102
(206) 323–1400 Mon–Fri 10–5, Sat 12–5

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ruth Beer, Mike Caldwell, Paul Conrad, Tobey Kilpatrick, Beth Styer.

3416. DAVIDSON GALLERIES

87 Yesler Way 98104
(206) 624–7684 Tue–Sat 12–5
Dir: Samuel H. Davidson, Jr.

Graphics from 1500 to present; maps and manuscripts.

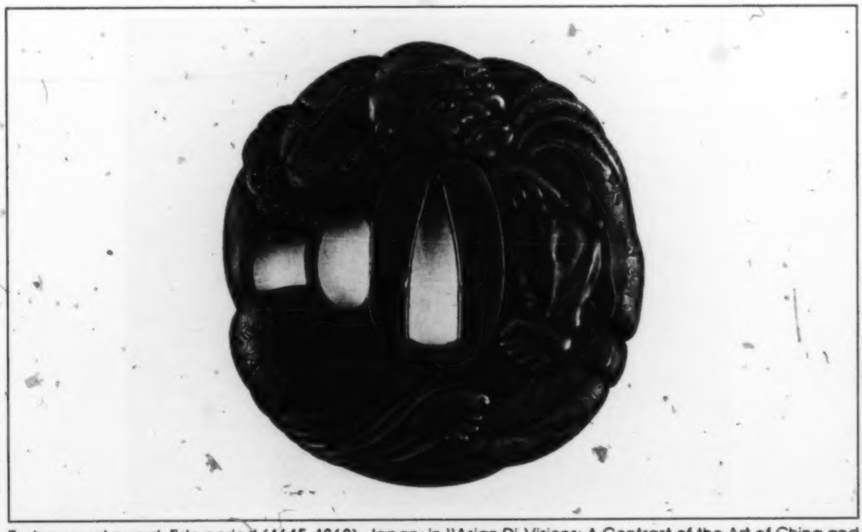
Other artists represented:
C.T. Chew, Karen Guzak, Art Hansen, Robert Marx, Scott Smith, Carol Summers, Liza Von Rosenstiel, Kate Wade.

3417. EQUIVALENTS GALLERY

1822 Broadway 98122
(206) 322–7765 Tue–Sat 11–6, Sun 12–5
Dir: Charles E. Rynd

Modern and contemporary photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Paul Berger, Christopher James, Greg MacGregor, Denny Moers*, Charles Pratt, Christopher Rauschenberg, Gail Skoff, Michael A. Smith, Jane Tuckerman, Catherine Wagner.



Tsuba sword guard, Edo period (1615-1868), Japan; in "Asian Di-Visions: A Contrast of the Art of China and Japan," at the Missoula Museum of Fine Arts, Mont. (July 24-Sept. 4, 1982).

Other artists represented:
Johnny Alterman, Jiri Anderle, Ruth Bernhard, Lucien Clergue, Share Corsaut, Kathy Fridstein, Tod Gangler, Jeffrey Gates, Ford Gilbreath, Jim Goldberg, Charles V. Janda, Michael Kenna, Danny Lyon, Scott MacLeay, Joan Myers, Ruth Orkin, Lilo Raymond, Charles Reynolds, Connie J. Ritchie, Jan Saudek, Christian Staub, Carlyn Tucker, Jack Welpott, Keith Wilson, Marion Post Wolcott, Max Yavno.

3418. LINDA FARRIS GALLERY

322 2nd Ave S 98104
(206) 623–1110 Mon–Sat 11:30–5, Sun 1–5
Dir: Linda Farris

Contemporary art by Seattle and West coast artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Billy Al Bengston, Jeffrey Bishop, Dennis Evans, Louise Hoeschen, Mel Katz, Carolyn Law, Michael Lucero, Nancy Mee, Andy Ostheimer, Barbara Schwartz, Patrick Siler.

Other artists represented:
Peter Alexander, Keith Beckley, Marsha Burns, Charles Clough, Walter Cotton, Laddie John Dill, Richard Francisco, Nancy Genn, David Gilhooley, Randy Hayes, Tom Holland, Andrew Keating, Ronnie Landfield, Sherry Markovitz, Peter Millett, Mark Ota, Mary Ann Peters, Norie Sato.

3419. FLURY & CO

322 First Ave S 98104
(206) 587–0260 Tue–Sat 11–6, Sun 1–6
Dir: Lois Flury

Photography, emphasizing the work of Edward Curtis.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Edward Curtis.

3420. FOSTER/WHITE GALLERY

311-½ Occidental S 98104
(206) 622–2833 Mon–Sat 10–5:30, Sun 12–5
Dir: Johanna Nitzke

Contemporary art of the Northwest.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Tony Angell, Ned Behnke, Joan Ross Bloedel, Dana Boussard, William Cumming, Stephen Dale Edwards, Galen Garwood, Lois Graham, Morris Graves, William Ingham, Thomas William Jones, Charles Miller, Tom Morandi, William Morris, Mark Tobey.

Other artists represented:
Parks Anderson, Howard Ben Tre, John Gary Brown, Kenneth Callahan, James Carpenter, Dale Chihuly, Margaret Ford, Joseph Goldberg, Larry Gray, Karen Guzak, Liza Halversen, Nancy Johnson, Leo Kenney, Joey Kirkpatrick, Flora Mace, Philip McCracken, Neil Meitzler, Klaus Moje, Emily Hall Morse, Johsel Namkung, Rosalyn Gale Powell, David Schwarz, George Tsutakawa, Patti Warashina, James W. Washington Jr.

3421. CHARLES AND EMMA FRYE ART MUSEUM

704 Terry Ave/PO Box 3005 98114
(206) 622–9250 Daily 10–5
Dir: Walser S. Greathouse

German and 19th-century American paintings; watercolors.

Other artists represented:
Sergei Bongart, Nicolai Fechin, Leon Gaspard, Arne Jensen, Sydney Laurence, Fred Marshall, Fred Whitaker, Andrew Wyeth, Jamie Wyeth, Eustace P. Ziegler.

3422. GALLERY MACK NW

123 S Jackson 98155
(206) 623–1414 Daily 10–6
Dir: Lynn McAllister

Contemporary Northwestern, American and international representational art.

Other artists represented:
Erwin Binder, Charles Bragg, Jack Fellows, R. C. Gorman, Doug Hyde, LeRoy Neiman, Amado Peña, William E. Ryan, Rufino Tamayo, Julio Herrera Zapata, Francisco Zuniga.

3423. DIANE GILSON GALLERY

209 Occidental S 98104
(206) 628–9660 Tue–Sat 11:30–5
Dir: Diane Gilson

Contemporary American painting, prints, sculpture, mixed mediums.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Francis Celentano, Alden Mason, Karen Mason, Joseph Raffael.

3424. RICHARD HINES GALLERY

2030 Fifth Ave 98121
(206) 682–5630 Daily 11–6
Dir: Richard Hines

Contemporary art.

Other artists represented:
Mark Boyle, William Crozier, Willem de Kooning, Sam Francis, Jeremy Gilbert-Rolfe, Michael Heizer, Bill Hoppe, Robert Maki, Robert Mangold, Joan Mitchell, Bruce Nauman, Dennis Oppenheim, Robert Rauschenberg, Bruce Robbins, Edward Ruscha, Don Scott, Richard Serra, Cy Twombly, Andy Warhol.

3425. JACKSON STREET GALLERY

163 S Jackson St 98104
(206) 623–0435 Tue–Sat 11–4:30
Dir: Eddie Maurer

Contemporary, local and regional art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Kathy Caprario, Michael Ehle, Mark Fockler, Paula Griff, Royal Nebeker, John Watts, Kathy Wren.

see last page for advertiser's index

VOL
71
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

3426. KIRSTEN GALLERY
5320 Roosevelt Way NE 98105
(206) 522-2011 Daily 11-5, Thu 11-9
Dir: Nicholas Kirsten/Richard Kirsten

Pacific Northwest contemporary and traditional art; sculpture garden.

Other artists represented:
Jody Bergsma, Byron Birdsall, Ken Dowd, Tish Epperson, Richard Kirsten-Daiensai, Nicholas Kirsten, Steve Mayo, Mark Myers, Willis Nelson, Steve Ominski, Marjett Schille, Stephen Tse, Anthony Turpin, John Worthey.

3427. MANOLIDES GALLERY
89 Yesler Way 98104
(206) 622-3204 Tue-Sat 10-4
Dir: Jim Manolides

Contemporary paintings, drawing, and prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Roy DeForest, T. Michael Gardiner, Yadviga Halsey, Charles Laurens Heald.

Other artists represented:
Blanche Brody, Gaylen Hansen, Randy Hayes, Marvin Jones, Les LePere, Jim Manolides, Joan Moment.

3428. NORTHWEST CRAFT CENTER AND GALLERY
Seattle Center 98109
(206) 624-7563 Tue-Sun 11-6
Dir: Ruth Nomura

Northwestern crafts.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Harold Balazs, Frank Boyden, Lynn Di Nino, Greg Federighi, Patrick McCormick, Gerald Newcomb, Mary Robinson, Judith Starbuck, Polly Stehman.

Other artists represented:
Tom Coleman, John Fassbinder, Ellie Fernald, Kathy Frazer, Jerry Glenn, Curtis Haefer, John & Annie Hansen, Anne Hirondelle, Patrick Horsley, Clayton James, David Keyes, Jim Kraft, Loren Lukens, Nancy McCutcheon, Yasuko Oiye, Regnor Reinholdtsen, Evert Sodergren, Don Sprague, Ken Stevens.

3429. PENRYN GALLERY
1920½ 1st Ave 98101
(206) 623-0495 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Paul Carkeek

Paintings by living artists; realism, surrealism, fantasy art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Barbara Berger, Charley Brown, Michael Gesinger, Ilene Meyer, Joseph Palcich, Isabel Sim-Hamilton.

Other artists represented:
Camrose Ducote, Helene Guetary, Wayne Quinn, Frank Samuelson.

3430. ROSCO LOUIE GALLERY
87 S Washington St 98104
(206) 682-5228 Mon-Sat 11-6
Dir: Larry Reid

Contemporary art, performance, film, fashion, video, and new music.

Other artists represented:
Lynda Barry, Wendy Brawer, George Chacona, Beth Elliott, Art Garcia, Jimmy Jet, Nirmal Kaur, Sheila Klein, Rich LaPeer, Cork Marcheschi, Gail McCall, Joyce Moty, Ries Niemi, Susan Nininger, John Rice, George Shayler, Bill Whipple.

3431. SACRED CIRCLE GALLERY OF AMERICAN INDIAN ART
2223 4th Ave 98121
(206) 223-0072 Daily 10-5
Dir: Jim Halliday

Traditional and contemporary Indian, Eskimo, and Aleut art.

Other artists represented:
Lawrence J. Beck, David Boxley, Joe Feddersen, John Hoover, Conrad House, Sylvia Lark, James Lavadour, George Longfish, Melvin Olanna, Lawney Reyes, Jim Schoppert, Mark Swazo-Hinds, Theodore B. Villa, Emmi Whitehorse.

3432. SEATTLE ART MUSEUM
Volunteer Park, Seattle Center Pavilion 98112
(206) 447-4670 Tue-Sat 10-5, Thu 10-9, Sun 12-5
Dir: Arnold Jolles

12,000 art works spanning a 5,000-year period; special collections of Asian, African, ethnic, and modern art.

3433. FRANCINE SEDERS GALLERY
6701 Greenwood Ave N 98103
(206) 782-0355 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Francine Seders

Contemporary painting, sculpture, ceramics.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Guy Anderson, Candace Crockett, Carol Gouthro, Richard Heipp, Kim Hoffman, Fay Jones, Robert C. Jones, Robert Kolden, Jacob Lawrence, K.C. McLaughlin, Mary Nietfeld, Pehr, Leonard Schwartz.

Other artists represented:
Karl Benjamin, Fred Birchman, Roger Bolomey, Wendell Brazeau, Dan Carmichael, Cameron Covert, Michael Dailey, René Groch, Juliana Heyne, Paul Ripley Jenkins, Gwen Knight, Wilhelm Loth, Norman Lundin, Merle Martinson, Linda Okazaki, Elizabeth Sandvig, Ikune Sawada, Michael Spafford, Ted Wiprud.

3434. SILVER IMAGE GALLERY
92 S Washington St 98104
(206) 623-8116 Tue-Sun 12-5:30
Dir: Dan Fear

Photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Reed Estabrook, Donn Leber, Stu Levy.

Other artists represented:
Jim Ball, Michael Burns, Gloria Defillips-Brush, Jack Fulton, Francesca Lacagnina, Arthur Ollman, David Pearson, Susan Rosenbaum, Larry Shlim, Patrick Young.

3435. SNOW GOOSE ESKIMO ART
4220 NE 125th St 98125
(206) 362-3401 Thu-Sat 11-5
Dir: Jane Schuldberg

Eskimo and Northwest Indian art.

Other artists represented:
George Ahgupuk, Gregory Colfax, Joe David, Chuna McIntyre, Melvin Olanna, Pitseolak, Pudlo, James Schoppert.

3436. STILLWATER GALLERY
1900 N Northlake Way, 145 Mariner's Square 98103
(206) 634-1900 Sun-Wed 11-5; Thu, Fri 11-9, Sat 11-5
Dir: Richard Kirsten

Contemporary realism, landscape, and maritime art by Northwestern artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Perry Acker, Bill Conant, Ernest Horswill, Joe Morris, Lorraine Phillips.

Other artists represented:
Don Barrie, R. H. Benson, Byron Birdsall, Rudolph Bundus, Wah Ming Chang, Take Hama, Nicholas Kirsten, Lucy Liu, Edward Ramstead, Raymond Serrano, William Winden, John Worthey.

3437. TRAVER SUTTON GALLERY
2219 4th Ave 98121
(206) 622-4234 Tue-Fri 10-5, Sat 12-5
Dir: William Traver/Iris Sutton

Painting, sculpture, glass, mixed mediums; Pilchuck glass.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Gloria DeArcangelis, Robert Fornell, Walter Lieberman, Debra Sherwood.

Other artists represented:
Paul Heald, Diane Katsiaficas, David Nechak, Peter Shire, Scott Sonniksen.

3438. UNIVERSITY OF WASHINGTON
Henry Art Gallery 98195
(206) 543-2280 Tue-Fri 10-5; Sat, Sun 1-5; Thu eve 5-7
Dir: Harvey West

19th- and 20th-century American art; Japanese folk pottery; contemporary West Coast ceramic sculpture.

3439. WESTLAKE GALLERY
1541 Westlake N 98109
(206) 285-9459 Mon-Fri 8-5:30, Sat 12-5
Dir: Gary Petek

Western and wildlife subjects in mixed mediums.

Other artists represented:
Bill Conant, Hulan Fleming, Mel Johnson, Nate Owens, Patty Reid.

3440. WING LUKE MEMORIAL MUSEUM
414 8th Ave S 98104
(206)623-5124 Tue-Fri 11-4:30, Sat 12-4
Dir: Kit Freudenberg

Exhibits work by contemporary Asian-American artists.

3441. WOODSIDE BRASETH GALLERY
1101 Howell St 98101
(206) 622-7243 Mon-Sat 11-6, Sun 1-6
Dir: Gordon Woodside/John Braseth

Painting and sculpture by Northwestern artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
William Ivey, Frank Okada.

Other artists represented:
Kathleen Gemberling Adkison, Tom Brennan, Steven Cramer, Jonn Geise, Sally Haley, Paul Havas, Paul Horiuchi, Lorraine Ledbetter, Carl Morris, Hilda Morris, Roger Shimomura, Robert Sperry, Mark Tobey.

Tacoma

3442. GALLERY VI
8805 Bridgeport Way SW 98499
(206) 588-8585 Tue-Sat 11-5

Painting, sculpture, pottery by Northwestern artists and craftspeople.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Nobu Burmer, John Crocker, Cliff Dunston, Albert Thomas McNea, Judith McNea, Jack Tavenner, Joan Wolfe.

Other artists represented:
Les Barnett, Elton Bennett, Gary Steele Bennett, Suzi Flood, Mary Griffith, Pete Jordan, Fumiko Kimura, Betty Mears, Nels Mears, Ned Mueller, Pat Rutledge, Colleen Smith, Dale Thompson, Mona Washburn.

3443. PACIFIC LUTHERAN UNIVERSITY
Wekell Gallery 98447
(206) 535-7573 Mon-Fri 9-5
Dir: David Keyes

Painting, sculpture, photography, and mixed mediums.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Greg Bell, Lori Dahl.

3444. TACOMA ART MUSEUM
12th and Pacific Ave 98402
(206) 272-4258 Mon-Sat 10-4, Sun 12-5
Dir: Jon W. Kowalek

20th-century American painting, early American furniture, Sarah Little Center for Design Research, Children's Gallery.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Leo Adams, Gary J. McCutcheon, Mark R. Nishimura, Janet Pietsch, Susan Rosenbaum, Phillip Schwab, William Turner.

*see catalog index

West Virginia

Charleston

3445. ARTS FOCUS
401 Capitol St 25301
(304) 345-9059 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Lakin Ray
Sculpture, oils, acrylics, tapestry, drawings, and watercolors.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Anne Harris.

Other artists represented:
Paula Clendenin, Erté, Burl Jones, Roger Lucas, Wilda Matlick, Carol Newbury, Leland Simmons, George Snyder, Allen Ulmer, Paul Wegner.

3446. WEST VIRGINIA GUILD GALLERY
3212 Capitol St 25301
(304) 345-0289 Mon-Sat 11-5
Dir: Ene Purre
Shows by member artists and craftsmen.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Silvana Cenci, Helen Dean, Bruce Severino.

Harpers Ferry

3447. ALBATROSS GALLERY
1492 Washington St 25425
(304) 535-6637 Wed-Sun 10-5
Dir: August Reinecke
Social and political art in all mediums; sculpture.

3448. STOWELL GALLERIES
769 Washington St 25425
(304) 535-6693 Sat, Sun 9-5
Dir: Walton Danforth Stowell
Contemporary paintings, sculpture, prints, photography.

Huntington

3449. HUNTINGTON GALLERIES
Park Hills 25701
(304) 529-2701 Tue-Sun 12-6, Wed 12-8
Dir: Roberta Shinn Emerson
Museum; 19th- and 20th-century American, French, and English paintings and graphics; rugs, silver, decorative arts; Pre-Columbian ceramics; regional art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Robert de Niro.

Parkersburg

3450. PARKERSBURG ART CENTER
220 8th St, PO Box 131 26101
(304) 485-3859 Tue-Fri 10-4; Sat, Sun 1-4; Mon eve 7-9
Dir: Jane Osborn
Loan shows in various mediums, regional art, classes and lectures.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Harold Altman, Robert Kipniss, Tim Mather, Ken Morgan, Robert Motherwell, Linda Platkin, Cathy Conway Wilkin.

Wheeling

3451. STIFEL FINE ARTS CENTER
1330 National Rd 26003
(304) 242-7700 Mon-Sat 9-5, Sun 12:30-5
Dir: John W. Ellis
Local, regional, and national art.

Other artists represented:
John Clovis, David Faber, Wes Wagner.

Wisconsin

Appleton

3452. LAWRENCE UNIVERSITY
Worcester Art Center
112 S Union 54912
(414) 735-6644 Mon-Fri 10-4; Sat, Sun 2-4
Dir: Arthur Thrall
Graphics; Japanese woodcuts; German expressionists; early to contemporary American and European artists; changing exhibitions.

Beloit

3453. BELOIT COLLEGE
Wright Museum of Art 53511
(608) 365-3391 ext 677 Mon-Fri 9-5, Sat 11-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Marylou S. Williams
Far Eastern arts: graphics, bronzes, pottery, textiles, robes, scrolls; 16th-20th-century American and European paintings; German Expressionism.

Ellison Bay

3454. TRIA GALLERY
Hwy 42 54210
(414) 854-2298 Daily 10:30-6
Dir: Ruth Philipon/Philip Philipon
Contemporary paintings, graphics, sculpture, fibers, and paperworks.

Other artists represented:
Ray Azcuy, Thomas Brings, Graham Clark, James Crane, Keith Davis, John Eckert, Mary Gehr, Robert Hodgell, Charles Kraus, Susan Livingston, Gloria Mahnke, Lois Mogensen, Philip Philipon, Ruth Philipon, Kevin Strandberg, Pat Diacca Topp, Michele Tuegel, Robert Von Neumann, Ann Waisbrot, Alexa Williamson.

Green Bay

3455. NEVILLE PUBLIC MUSEUM OF BROWN COUNTY
210 Museum Place 54303
(414) 497-3767 Mon-Sat 9-5, Wed, Thu eve 5-9, Sun 12-5
Dir: James L. Quinn
Regional art, history, and science.

3456. UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN, GREEN BAY
2420 Nicolet Dr 54302
(414) 465-2271 Tue-Sun 12-4
Dir: Karon Winzenz
Contemporary works; exhibitions related to the cultural heritage of ethnic groups.

Madison

3457. CENTER GALLERY
426 W Gilman St 53703
(608) 251-8498 Tue-Sat 12-5
Dir: Nick Schroeder
Non-profit; artist-run; emerging and experimental area artists. Shows change every three weeks.

Other artists represented:
Cynthia Cukla, Patricia Fennell, Tom Muench, Kathryn Myers, Maurice Thaler, Pat Whyte-Lehman, Peggy Zalucha.

3458. FANNY GARVER GALLERY
230 State St 53703
(608) 256-6755 Mon-Sat 11-5
Dir: Fanny Garver
Graphics and crafts; emphasis on Wisconsin artists; 19th-century British paintings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Harold Altman, Donald Furst, Gregg Kreutz, Lee Weiss.

Other artists represented:
Glenn Bradshaw, Bethia Brehmer, Bob Burkert, Nancy Burkert, Warrington Colescott, Amy Cuthbert, Paul Delong, Leslie Demuth, Bartholomew Dos Santos, Ray Gloeckler, Jacques Hnizdovsky, Susan Hunt-Wulkowicz, Fran Myers, Mickey Myers, Kay Ornberg, Krishna Reddy, Ron Ruble, Zdzislaw Sikora, Judy Uehling, John Wilde.

3459. MADISON ART CENTER
211 State St 53703
(608) 257-0158 Tue-Sat 11-5, Fri eve 5-9, Sun 1-5
Dir: Thomas H. Garver
Museum; modern and contemporary art; works on paper; Japanese and Mexican prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Keith Achepohl, Robert Brady*, John Buck, Christo, Danny Lyon, Sylvia Plimack Mangold*, Dennis Nechuatel*, Lucas Samaras, Richard Shaw, Frank Stella, Amos Zook.

3460. SEUFERER CHOSY GALLERY
218 N Henry St 53703
(608) 255-1211 Tue-Fri 10-5, Sat 11-5
Dir: Grace Chosy/Ellen Seuferer
Contemporary art by regional artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Andrew Balkin, John Colt, Jean Crane, Patrick Farrell, Peggy Farrell, Martha Glowacki, Ruth Grotenrath, Timothy High, Ruth Kjaer, Schomer Lichtner, John Mominee, Dagny Myrah, Paula Nees, Robert Schultz, Marko Spalatin, Santos Zingale.

Other artists represented:
Wendell Arneson, Sylvia Beckman, William Bukowski, Kerry Chaplin, Willem DeLooper, John Earnest, Richard Evans, Wayne Fischer, Rick Foris, Milton Gardener, Mary Griep, C. R. Johnson, Karin Ketarkus, Tim Marcotte, Marjorie Mau, Mary Michie, Charlie Olson, JoAnna Poehlmann, Laurence Rathsack, Jan Serr, Wayne Taylor, Leslie Vansen, William Weege, Charles Wickler, David Willard, Lori Woodruff.

see last page for advertiser's index

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

3461. UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN, MADISON
Elvehjem Museum of Art
800 University Ave 53706
(608) 263-2246 Mon-Sat 9-4:45, Sun 11-4:45
Dir: Katherine Harper Mead
Painting, graphics, sculpture, decorative arts, 2300 B.C. to the present; European, American, Oriental art; Watson collection of Indian miniatures.

Manitowoc

3462. RAHR-WEST MUSEUM AND CIVIC CENTER
Park St and N 8th 54220
(414) 683-4501
Dir: Richard Quick
American paintings; 19th- and 20th-century decorative arts; Indian artifacts; Chinese ivory carvings.

Milwaukee

3463. CHARLES ALLIS ART MUSEUM
1630 E Royall Place 53202
(414) 278-8295 Wed-Sun 1-5, Wed eve 7-9
Dir: Margaret Fish Rahill
French and American paintings; Chinese, Korean, Japanese objets d'art; Greek and Roman antiquities; Renaissance bronzes; French furniture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Diane Balsley, Dorothy Bradley, Anne Cofrin, Celine Farrell, David A. Kopitzke, Michael Kutzer, Karl Priebe, Celeste Spransy.

3464. DAVID BARNETT GALLERY
2101 W Wisconsin Ave 53233
(414) 344-6070 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: David J. Barnett
19th- and 20th-century European and American art.

Other artists represented:
Todd Boppel, Elena Borstein, Warren Brandt, Bernie Carreno, Alicia Czechowski, Wolf Kahn, Barbara Kohl, Claire Lieberman, Clement Meadmore, Mark Mille, Claude Weisbuch.

3465. KIT BASQUIN GALLERY
1042 E Juneau Ave 53202
(414) 224-9420 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Kit Basquin
Contemporary paintings, sculpture, prints from the Midwest.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Gary Freeman, Martha Glowacki, Steven Mannheimer, Robert Merline, Rick Paul, Linn Petri, Robert Postma, Stephen Samerjan, Jan Smith, Dale Traugott.

Other artists represented:
Patrick Bellman, Robert Berkshire, Fran Cheney, Dennis Coffee, Robert Curtis, Kathy Forecki, Moira Geoffrion, Cheryl Hahn, Ike Hay, David Holmes, Anne Kingsbury, Andrea Leland, Marvin Lowe, Steve Luecking, Mark Mulhern, Jill Sebastian, Ed Shay.

3466. BRADLEY GALLERIES
2565 N Downer Ave 53211
(414) 332-9500 Tue-Sat 11-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Dorothy M. Bradley
Wisconsin artists.

Other artists represented:
Diane Balsley, Robert Burkert, Gibson Byrd, John Colt, John Earnest, Joseph Friebert, Ruth Grotenrath, Schomer Lichtner, Anne E. Miotke, Ida Ozonoff, Danny Pierce, Laurence Rathsack, John Sayers, Anthony Tucholke, Christel Tucholke.

3467. D. ERLIEN GALLERY
5623 N Lake Dr 53217
(414) 963-0888 Tue-Sat 10:30-4:30
Dir: Gloria Dee Erlien/Nancy Erlien
American, European, and Far Eastern art; contemporary American glass.

Other artists represented:
Harold Altman, Herb Babcock, Gary Beecham, Michael Cohn, Fritz Dreisbach, Edna Hibel, Eric Hopkins, Harvey Littleton, John Littleton, Tom McGlauchlin, Ed Nesteruk, George Segal, Victor Vasarely, Kate Vogel, Acquaetta Williams.

3468. LENZ GALLERY
7733 W Burleigh St 53222
(414) 444-5375 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Thomas E. Lenz
19th-20th-century American and European paintings.

3469. MICHAEL H. LORD GALLERY
700 N Milwaukee St 53202
(414) 272-1007 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Michael H. Lord
Contemporary American paintings, sculpture, graphics, photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jedd Garet.

Other artists represented:
Charles Bell, Bill Brandt, Brassai, Chuck Close, Rachelle Epstein, Ralph Goings, Nancy Graves, Cleve Gray, Farid Haddad, James Havard, Richard Hennessey, Jasper Johns, Alexander Lieberman, Joel Meyerowitz, Henry Moore, Robert Motherwell, Irving Penn, Frank Stella, Robert Zakanitch.

3470. MILWAUKEE ART MUSEUM
750 N Lincoln Memorial Dr 53202
(414) 271-9508 Tue-Wed, Fri-Sat 10-5; Thu 12-9; Sun 1-6
Dir: Gerald R. Nordland
Painting, sculpture, graphics, photography; ancient to contemporary art; German Expressionism; American Ash Can School; Haitian art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Eve Arnold, Larry Bell, Cynthia Carlson, Arthur Dove, Edward Farber.

3471. ANTHONY PETULLO FINE ART
714 N Milwaukee St 53202
(414) 278-0357 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Anthony Petullo
American and European contemporary and naive art; paintings and prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
H. Huntley Baldwin, Joyce Paul.

Other artists represented:
J. Cheney, Graham Clarke, Alfred Cohen, Barbara Downtain, Eileen Greenwood, Lynne Loshbaugh, Pamela Miles, Bonnie Oehlert, Lawrence Oliverson, Shirley Pasternak, Susan Tereba, Pat Thomas, Tanja Topelmann.

3472. POSNER GALLERY
7641 N Port Washington Rd 53217
(414) 352-3097 Mon-Fri 10-5, Sat 10-3
Dir: Judith L. Posner
19th- and 20th-century American and European graphics, paintings, sculpture.

Other artists represented:
Yaacov Agam, Harold Altman, Doug Danz, Robert Indiana, Barbara Kohl, Julio LeParc, Robert "Buck" Miller, Mickey Myers, Marko Spalatin, Anne Youkeles.

3473. UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN, MILWAUKEE
Art History Gallery
154 Mitchell Hall 53201
(414) 963-4060 Mon-Tue, Thu-Fri 10-4; Wed eve 6-9; Sat 12-3
Dir: Mark Chepp
Changing exhibitions with an emphasis on historical themes.

Oshkosh

3474. OSHKOSH PUBLIC MUSEUM
1331 Algoma Blvd 54901
(414) 424-0452 Tue-Sat 9-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: John H. Kuony
Local and natural history; porcelain, china, and glassware; Tiffany stained glass and interiors.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Earl Krentzin, Michael Newhall, Danny Pierce, Joseph Smongeski.

3475. PAINE ART CENTER AND ARBORETUM
1410 Algoma Blvd 54901
(414) 235-4530 Tue-Sat 10-4:30, Sun 1-4:30
Dir: Donn L. Young
19th-century English and French paintings; Tudor and Georgian rooms; Russian and Greek icons; Chinese art; Gothic gallery.

Racine

3476. CHARLES A. WUSTUM MUSEUM OF FINE ARTS
2519 Northwestern Ave 53404
(414) 636-9177 Daily 1-5; Mon, Thu eves 5-9
Dir: Bruce W. Pepich
Wisconsin and Midwestern art, prints, drawings, and photographs; WPA art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Dale Carlson, Ethel Gelick, Jeffrey Gelick, Art Haas, Christine B. Miller, Jan Serr, Esther Shapiro, Ben-Zion Shechter, Laura Shechter, Edward Weston*.

Richland Center

3477. FRANK LLOYD WRIGHT MUSEUM
300 S Church St 53581
(608) 647-6703Tue-Sun 11-5
Dir: Harvey W. Glanzer/Beth Caulkins
36 photographic murals of buildings by Wright; furniture, memorabilia.

Sheboygan

3478. JOHN MICHAEL KOHLER ARTS CENTER
608 New York Ave, PO Box 489 53081
(414) 458-6144 Daily 12-5, Mon eve 7-9
Dir: Ruth DeYoung Kohler
Visual and performing arts complex; contemporary American crafts, photography, folk art, and the art of naives and visionaries.

---

*see catalog index

Wausau

3479. LEIGH YAWKEY WOODSON ART MUSEUM
12th & Franklin Sts 54401
(715) 845-7010 Tue-Fri 9-4; Sat,Sun 1-5
Dir: David J. Wagner
17th-20th-century art glass, painting, sculpture, porcelain.

Wyoming

Casper

3480. NICOLAYSEN ART MUSEUM
104 Rancho Rd 82601
(307) 235-5247 Tue-Sun 11:30-4:30
Dir: J. M. Neil
Western American prints, painting, and sculpture, Pre-Columbian sculpture, South American crafts.

Cheyenne

3481. WYOMING STATE MUSEUM ART GALLERY
Barrett Building, 22nd and Central 82002
(307)777-7510 Jun-Sep Mon-Fri 8-5, Sat 9-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Steven Cotherman
Contemporary and historical art of Wyoming and the West; exhibitions of art of the Rocky Mountains; Indian and regional history and archeology.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Bruce Allen, Barbara Bradshaw, Talitha Campbell, Esther Clay, Gloria Clay, Daniel T. Driggs, Tom Hart, Laney Hicks, Dorothy Hitchcock, Sid Hull, Dave Hutt, Gary Keimig, Jim Knadler, Terry Kruezer-Hagstrom, William Little, Mike McClure, Florence McEwin, Ron McIntosh, Russ McKeel, LaTrelle Power, Alice Sack.

Cody

3482. BUFFALO BILL HISTORICAL CENTER
720 Sheridan Ave 82414
(307) 587-4771 Tue-Thu 1-5; Summer Daily 7-10
Dir: Peter H. Hassrick
Buffalo Bill Museum; Whitney Gallery of Western Art; Plains Indian Museum; Winchester Museum.

Jackson

3483. TRAILSIDE GALLERIES
105 N Center St 83001
(307) 733-3186 Mon-Sat 9:30-6
Dir: Ted Mollring/Christine Mollring
See Trailside Galleries, Phoenix, Arizona and Scottsdale, Arizona.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Harry Jackson.

Other artists represented:
R. Brownell McGrew.

Jackson Hole

3484. OVERLAND TRAIL GALLERIES
98 Center St 83001
(307) 733-6534 Mon-Sat 9-6
Dir: A. DiTommaso/J. DiTommaso
Western art in all mediums.

Other artists represented:
Paul Abram, Ed Fraughton, Vel Miller, Bill Owen, Ron Stewart.

Laramie

3485. UNIVERSITY OF WYOMING
Art Museum
University Station, Box 3138 82071
(307) 766-2374 Daily 1:30-5
Dir: James T. Forrest
16th-20th-century paintings, sculpture, prints, drawings; collection of 19th-20th-century American and European art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Vivian Berman, Helen C. Boodman, Robert Rose, Jill Uris.

Get it all together.

NEW!
Zero Overcut
Knifehead!

Speed-Mat

4 machines in 1—rectangle cutter, oval-circle cutter, combination mat/glass/plastic sizer. Costs at least $500 less than comparable equipment to do the same work. Ideal for custom or production framer. Unique rectangle system cuts a beveled mat in 4 rapid motions—no marking or repositioning. Cuts 1000 mats a day. Components option available.

Call or write for catalog today!

H.F. Esterly Co. / Industry Rd. / Brunswick, ME 04011 / (207) 729-4340

MUSEUM & GALLERY PUBLICATIONS

Notable for the outstanding reproductions and current scholarship they present, exhibition catalogues are resources indispensable to art historians and collectors. Specialists for nearly two decades, Worldwide Books is the foremost source of these important but elusive publications, offering unique information and distribution services to libraries and individuals alike.

From African art to the European avant garde, all aspects of art history are represented in our annual selection of nearly 800 significant new catalogues from around the world. Thoroughly reviewed and indexed in the quarterly Worldwide Art Catalogue Bulletin, each selected title may be easily acquired from our centralized stock. Moreover, our specialization allows us to assist in the acquisition of virtually any catalogue being published.

More than 7,500 titles issued since 1960 can still be supplied from our inventory of catalogues, the world's largest. Cumulative lists in such subject areas as Oriental art, Architecture and American art are also available. If you would like to subscribe to the Bulletin or receive our future mailings to individuals, we invite you to write to us about your interests.

WORLDWIDE BOOKS
37 Antwerp Street, Boston, Mass. 02135

VOL 7 1 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

News from the front.

How does a collector stay on top of prices and other pertinent information about pictures, antiques and jewelry? An excellent source is Auction News From Christie's, because if you know what's happening at Christie's, you know what's happening in the auction world.

Auctions are where market trends develop and can be observed. Auction News From Christie's provides an intelligent distillation of our activities, including:

An illustrated preview of what's coming on the block and what prices are expected from American Decorative Arts, 19th Century Paintings and European Furniture to modestly priced Collectibles.

An illustrated review of what prices were realized—from $650 for a silver rattle to $1 million for a Degas painting.

An analysis of market trends by Christie's specialists.

A calendar of future sales.

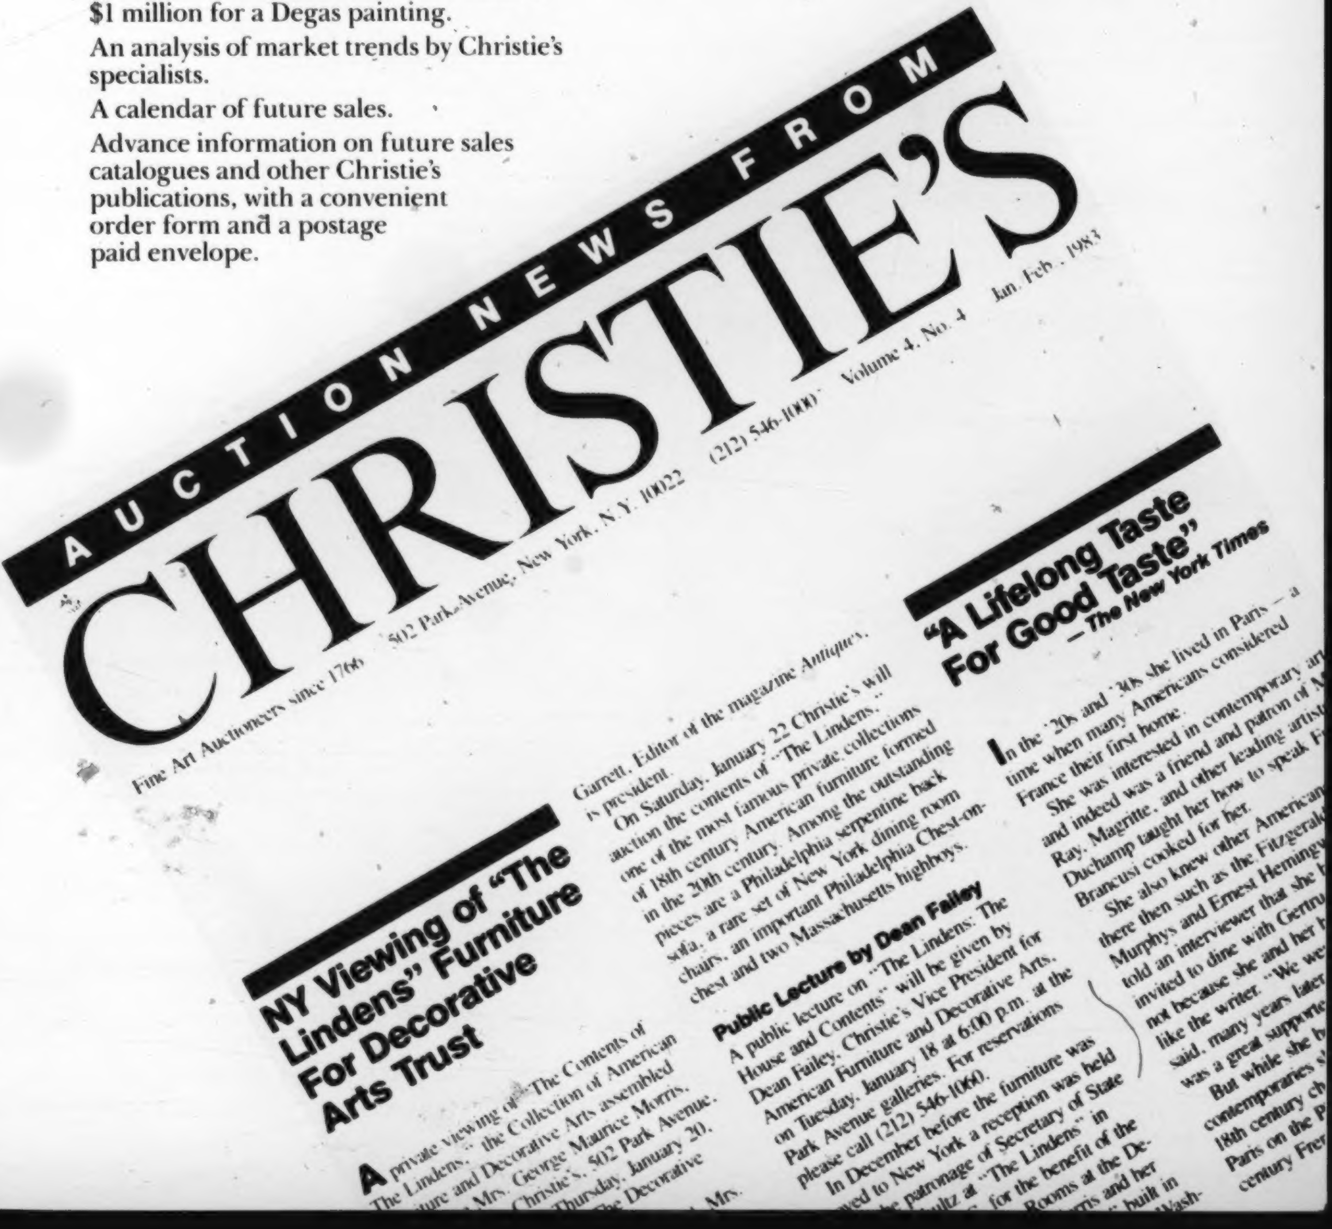
Advance information on future sales catalogues and other Christie's publications, with a convenient order form and a postage paid envelope.

News of Christie's activities and services around the country, including lectures, exhibitions, and sales from Texas to Florida to California.

Relevant news from Christie's overseas salerooms.

Published ten times a year, Auction News From Christie's is truly something neither the experienced collector nor the novice can afford to miss. To order, send your $15 check, money order, or American Express card information (account number, dates valid) to:

Christie's Department AIA
21-24 44th Avenue, Long Island City, NY 11101.



AUCTION NEWS FROM

CHRISTIE'S

Fine Art Auctioneers since 1766 · 502 Park Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10022 · (212) 546-1000 · Volume 4, No. 4 · Jan.-Feb., 1983

NY Viewing of "The Lindens" Furniture For Decorative Arts Trust

A private viewing of "The Contents of The Lindens," the Collection of American ture and Decorative Arts assembled
Mrs. George Maurice Morris,
Christie's, 502 Park Avenue,
Thursday, January 20.
The Decorative Mrs.

Garrett, Editor of the magazine Antiques, is president.

On Saturday, January 22 Christie's will auction the contents of "The Lindens," one of the most famous private collections of 18th century American furniture formed in the 20th century. Among the outstanding pieces are a Philadelphia serpentine back sofa, a rare set of New York dining room chairs, an important Philadelphia Chest-on-chest and two Massachusetts highboys.

Public Lecture by Dean Failey

A public lecture on "The Lindens: The House and Contents" will be given by Dean Failey, Christie's Vice President for American Furniture and Decorative Arts, on Tuesday, January 18 at 6:00 p.m. at the Park Avenue galleries. For reservations please call (212) 546-1060.

In December before the furniture was ved to New York a reception was held patronage of Secretary of State ultz at "The Lindens" in for the benefit of the Rooms at the De-rtis and her built in Wash-

"A Lifelong Taste For Good Taste"
— The New York Times

In the '20s and '30s she lived in Paris — a time when many Americans considered France their first home.

She was interested in contemporary ar and indeed was a friend and patron of M
Ray, Magritte, and other leading artis
Duchamp taught her how to speak F
Brancusi cooked for her.
She also knew other American there then such as the Fitzgeral
Murphys and Ernest Heming told an interviewer that she h invited to dine with Gertru not because she and her h like the writer. "We we said, many years later was a great supporte
But while she h contemporaries s
18th century ch
Paris on the P century Fre

GUIDE TO Auction Houses

An alphabetical listing of auction houses by state, with the names of contact persons in the areas of painting, sculpture, drawing, prints, and photography.

California

BUTTERFIELD & BUTTERFIELD
1244 Sutter St
San Francisco 94109
Also: 660 3rd St
San Francisco 94107
(415) 673–1362 Mon–Fri 9–5
Painting & Sculpture: American, Elisabeth Peters; 19th-century & Old Master European, Charles Credaroli; Impressionists & Modern European, Peter Fairbanks. Prints: Margaret Haneberg. Photography: Cynthia Herron.

CALIFORNIA BOOK AUCTION GALLERIES
358 Golden Gate Ave
San Francisco 94102
(415) 775–0424 Mon–Fri 9–5, Sat by appt
Also: 1749 N La Brea Ave
Hollywood 90046
(213) 850–9424 By appt, open only during sales
Painting: Maurice Powers/David E. Belch. Sculpture, Drawing, Prints, & Photography: Bruce MacMakin.

District of Columbia

G. G. SLOAN & CO.
919 E St NW
Washington, D.C. 20004
(202) 628–1468 Mon–Fri 9–5
Also: 403 N Charles St
Baltimore, Md. 21201
(301) 547–1171
Painting, Drawing, & Prints: Peter Grover/Sally Waterman. Sculpture: Donald Webster.

ADAM A. WECHSLER & SON
905-9 E St NW
Washington D.C. 20004
(202) 628–1281 Mon–Fri 9–5
Painting, Sculpture, Drawing, & Prints: William Wechsler, Jr.

Florida

SCHRADER GALLERIES
211 Third St S
St. Petersburg 33701
(813) 823–5657/823–4701 Mon–Sat 10–5 by appt
Painting, Sculpture, Drawing, Prints, & Photography: Stephen Meter.

Illinois

LESLIE HINDMAN AUCTIONEERS
225 W Ohio St
Chicago 60610
(312) 670–0010 Tue–Sat 10–5
Painting, Sculpture, & Drawings: Leslie Hindman/Clarissa Cutler. Prints: Eric Grossman. Photography: Jain McClain.

Louisiana

MORTON'S AUCTION EXCHANGE
701 Magazine St
New Orleans 70130
(504) 561–1196 Mon–Sat 9–5
Painting: Robert Dishmond. Sculpture: P.B. Alford/David Pumphrey.

Maine

BARRIDOFF GALLERIES
242 Middle St
Portland 04101
(207) 772–5011 Mon–Fri 10–5, Sat 12–4
Painting: Annette Elowitch/Rob Elowitch.

RICHARD W. OLIVER, AUCTION & ART GALLERY
Plaza 1, Route 1
Kennebunk 04043
(207) 985–3600 Mon–Fri 10–5, Sat 10–4
Painting, Sculpture, Drawing, Prints, & Photography: Philip Grimes.

Maryland

HARRIS AUCTION GALLERIES
873-875 N Howard St
Baltimore 21201
(301) 728–7040 Mon–Fri 9–5, Sat 10:30–2
Painting: Barr Harris. Drawing, Prints, & Photography: Christopher Bready.

THERIAULT'S
PO Box 151
Annapolis 21404
(301) 269–0680 Mon–Fri 8:30–5

Massachusetts

RICHARD A. BOURNE CO., INC.
P O Box 141
Hyannis Port 02647
(617) 775–0797 Mon–Fri 8:30–5
Painting, Sculpture, Drawing, Prints, & Photography: Thomas Bourne.

ROBERT C. ELDRED CO., INC.
Box 796
East Dennis 02641
(617) 385–3116/385–3377 Mon–Fri 8:30–4:30
Painting, Sculpture, Drawing, Prints, & Photography: John H. Schofield.

ROBERT W. SKINNER, INC.
Route 117
Bolton 01740
(617) 779–5528 Mon–Fri 8–5
Also: 585 Boylston St
Boston 02116
(617) 236–1700 Mon–Fri 9:30–4:30
Painting: Kathryn Corbin. Drawing & Prints: Lindsay Reed. Photography: Rod MacKenzie.

Michigan

C. B. CHARLES GALLERIES, INC.
825 Woodward Ave
Pontiac 48053
(313) 338–9203 Mon–Sat 10–4
Painting, Sculpture, Drawing, & Prints: Franklin Greenberg.

VOL
71
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

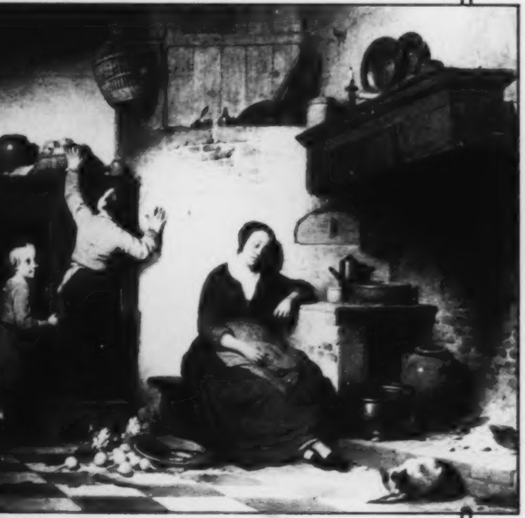
Why not call Weschler's?

Tiffany Studios spider-web favrile glass, mosaic and bronze table lamp, c. 1900. Sold for $210,000.

And ask about our free appraisal service for items to be consigned to auction. If you have been wondering about the value of that piece of art work or antique that no longer fits your life style, we will be happy to give you an estimate of what it could fetch at a nationally advertised catalogue auction.
Also, ask for our brochure "Buying and Selling at Weschler's" and see how easy it is to sell through auction.

Catalogue Auctions Four Times a Year
Illustrated Brochure Available Upon Request

Ferdinand De Braekeleer (Belg. 1792-1883). Sneaking a Snack. Signed and dated Antwerpear, 1852. Oil on panel. Sold for $22,000.



Massachusetts Chippendale mahogany block-front desk, probably Boston, c. 1770. Sold for $21,000

WESCHLER'S
Fine Arts Auctioneers since 1890
Adam A. Weschler & Son / 905 E Street, N.W. / Washington, D.C. 20004 / (202) 628-1281

DUMOUCHELLE ART GALLERIES
409 E Jefferson
Detroit 48226
(313) 963-6255 Mon-Sat 9:30-5:30
Painting & Sculpture: Lawrence DuMouchelle. Drawing, Prints, & Photography: Richard Fedorowicz.

STALKER AND BOOS, INC.
280 N Woodward Ave
Birmingham 48011
(313) 646-4560 Mon-Fri 9-5, Sat 10-4
Painting, Sculpture, Drawing, Prints, & Photography: David Stalker.

Missouri

SELKIRK GALLERIES
4166 Olive St
St. Louis 63108
(314) 533-1700 Mon-Fri 9-5
Painting, Sculpture, Drawing, Prints, & Photography: Ellen Watt.

New Hampshire

YOUNG FINE ARTS GALLERY
56 Market St
Portsmouth 03801
(603) 436-8773 Tue-Sat 10-5
Painting, Drawing, & Prints: George M. Young, Jr./Patricia Young.

New York

ASTOR GALLERIES
1 W 39th St
New York 10018
(212) 921-8861/473-1658 Mon-Fri 9-5
Painting, Sculpture, Drawing, Prints, & Photography: Ralph Levy/Steve Liebson.

EDELMANN GALLERIES
523 E. 73rd St
New York 10021
(212) 628-1700

CHRISTIE'S
502 Park Ave
New York 10022
(212) 546-1000 Sep-Jun Mon-Sat 10-5; Jul-Aug Mon-Fri 10-5
Painting: Old Master, Ian G. Kennedy; Impressionist & Modern, Christopher Burge; 19th-century European, Peter Villa; American, Jay E. Cantor; Contemporary, Martha Baer; Latin American, Lisa Palmer. Sculpture: Alice E. Levi-Duncan. Old Master & 19th-century Drawing & Watercolors: Kathleen Harwood. Impressionist, Modern Drawing, & Watercolors: Susan Seidel. Prints & Modern Illustrated Books: Nicholas G. Stogdon. Photography: Dale Stulz.

CHRISTIE'S EAST
219 E 67th St
New York 10021
(212) 570-4141 Mon-Sat 9:30-5
Painting, Sculpture, & Drawing: Betty Krulik. Photography: Dale Stulz.

WILLIAM DOYLE GALLERIES, INC.
175 E 87th St
New York 10028
(212) 427-2730 Mon-Fri 8-6
Painting, Sculpture, Drawing, & Prints: Joseph Keiffer.

THE MANHATTAN GALLERIES, INC.
1415 3rd Ave at 80th St
New York 10028
(212) 744-2844 Mon-Fri 9-5
Painting, Sculpture, Drawing, Prints, & Photography: Stanley Waldman.

PHILLIPS
406 E 79th St
New York 10021
(212) 570-4830 Mon-Fri 9-5; varies during sales
Painting: Old Master, Mark Leach; European, Deborah Ahearn; American, William Rudd. Drawing: Mark Leach. Prints: Martine de Cervens/Mark Leach.

SOTHEBY PARKE BERNET, INC.
1334 York Ave
New York 10021
(212) 472-3400 Mon-Sat 9:30-5
American Painting, Sculpture, & Drawing: Peter B. Rathbone/Grete Meilman. Chinese Painting: Arnold Chang. Contemporary Painting, Drawing, & Sculpture: Lucy Havelock-Allan. Impressionist & Modern Painting: John L. Tancock. Latin American Painting: Sharon Schultz. Modern Painting & Sculpture: Shary E. Grossman. 19th-century European Painting: Thilo von Watzdorf., Old Master Painting: George Wachter. Drawing: Hermine Chivian-Cobb. Prints: Marc E. Rosen; 19th- and 20th-century, Ruth Ziegler; American and Old Master, Susan Pinsky. Photography: Anne Horton/Beth Warren.

SPINK & SON USA, INC.
445 Park Ave
New York 10022
(212) 223-0477 Mon-Fri 9:30-5:30
Painting, Sculpture, Drawing, Prints, & Photography: Michael Hodder/Cheryl Mervine.

Ohio

MAIN AUCTION GALLERIES, INC.
137 W 4th St
Cincinnati 45202
(513) 621-1280 Mon for viewing, Tue 10:30 auctions
Painting, Sculpture, Drawing, Prints, & Photography: Phyllis R. Karp.

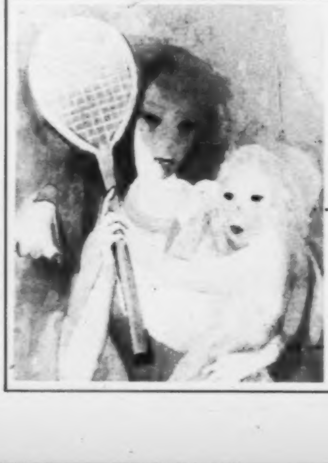
Pennsylvania

THE FINE ARTS COMPANY OF PHILADELPHIA, INC.
2317 Chestnut St
Philadelphia 19103
(215) 564-3644 Mon-Fri 9-5, Sat by appt
Painting, Drawing, & Prints: Alexis C. Manice.

SAMUEL T. FREEMAN & CO.
1808-10 Chestnut St
Philadelphia 19103
(215) 563-9275 Mon-Fri 8:30-5
Painting, Drawing, & Prints: Tom Ferguson. Sculpture: Samuel M. Freeman. Photography: Susan Lane.

Wisconsin

MILWAUKEE AUCTION GALLERIES
4747 W Bradley Rd
Milwaukee 53223
(414) 355-5054 Mon-Fri 9-5, Sat 10-2
Painting & Prints: Mary Walsh. Sculpture, Drawing, & Photography: Murray Feeley/Janice Kuhn.



MARIE LAURENCIN—"Femme à la Raquette"
Sold for $101,750 on May 19, 1983

In ten years of business, William Doyle Galleries has become the largest and most successful American-owned auction house in the United States. As we've grown, so has the quality of our sales. However, world record prices have not changed our personal approach in dealing with our clients.

We are presently accepting paintings for major sales. Please contact:
Joseph P. Keiffer, Painting Department, 212-427-2730.

William Doyle
GALLERIES

175 East 87th Street • New York, New York 10128 • Telephone (212) 427-2730

VOL
7
1
ISS
7
A G 1983
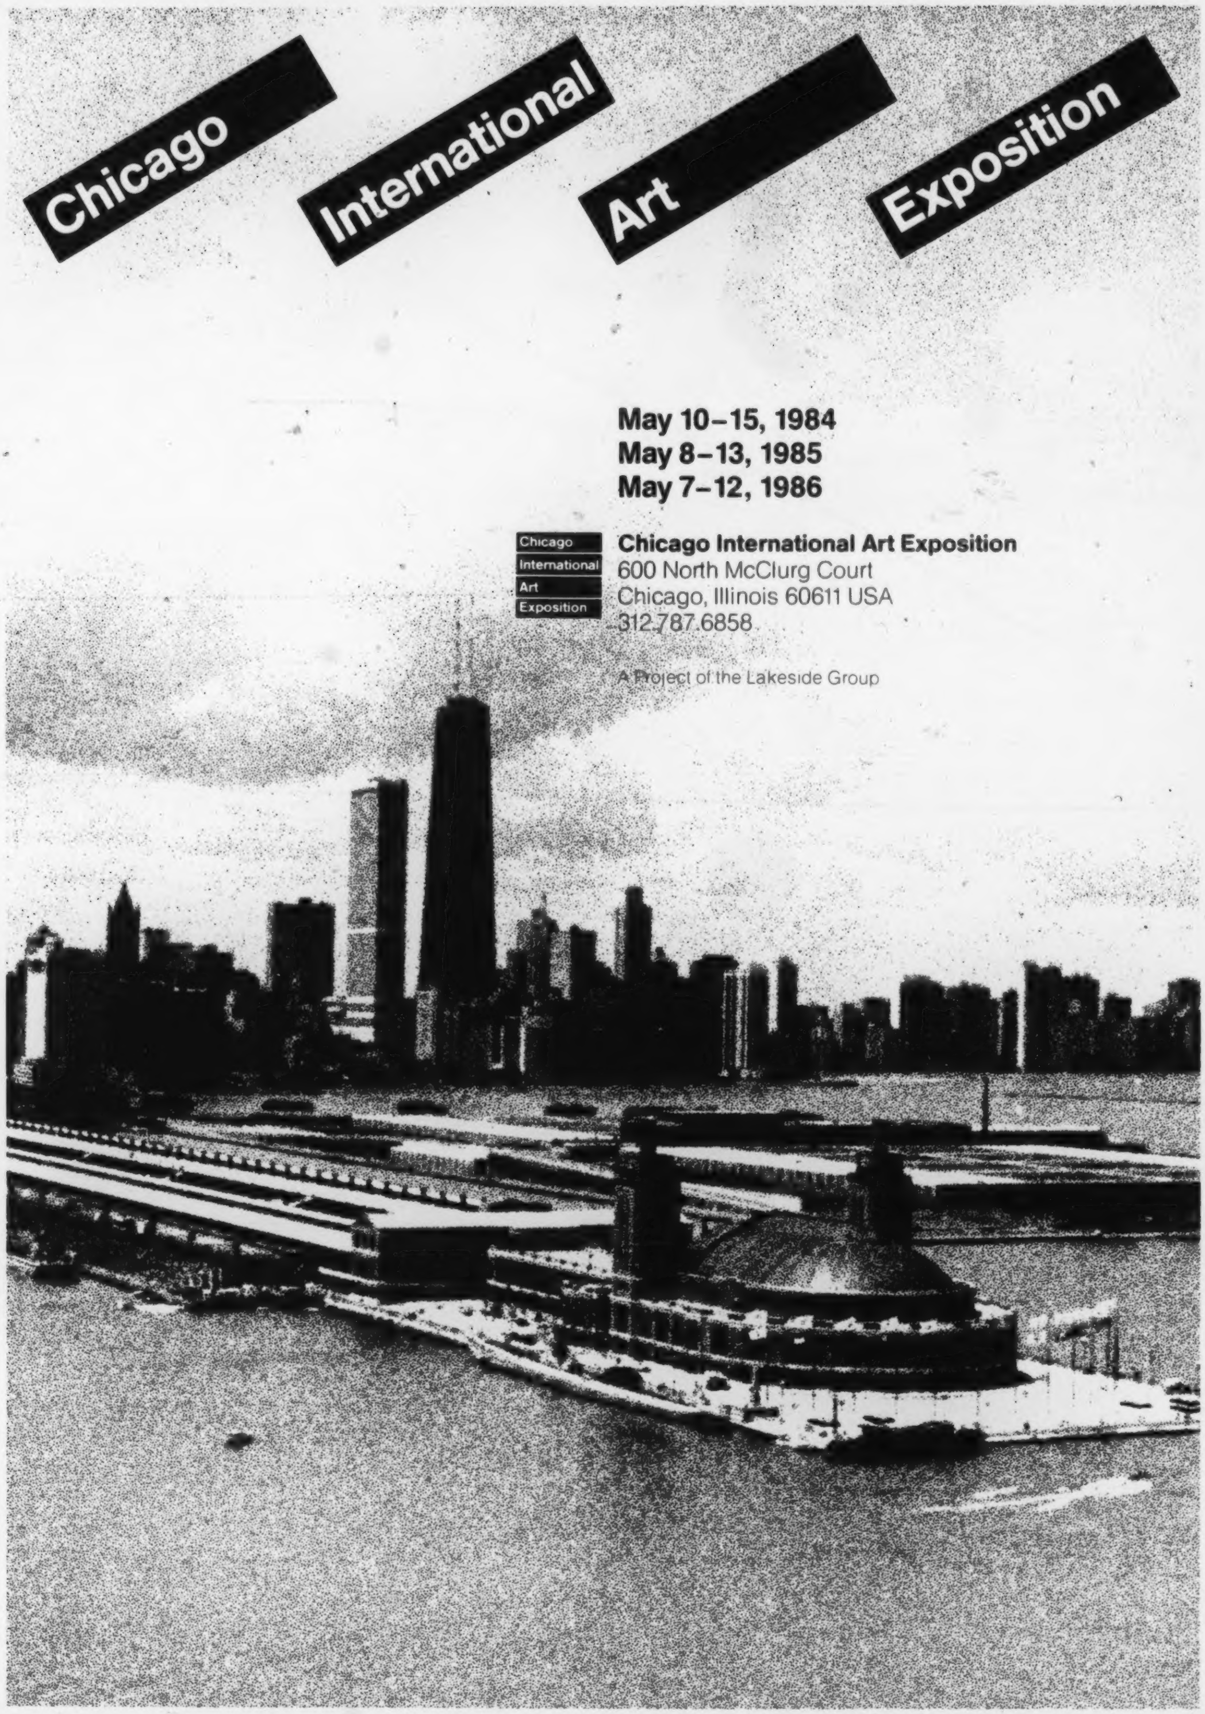
UMI

Chicago International Art Exposition



May 10–15, 1984
May 8–13, 1985
May 7–12, 1986

Chicago
International
Art
Exposition

Chicago International Art Exposition
600 North McClurg Court
Chicago, Illinois 60611 USA
312.787.6858

A Project of the Lakeside Group

INDEX TO Galleries and Museums

A

Didier Aaron 2347
Aaron-Hastings Gallery 1857
Aberbach Fine Art 2348
Abilene Fine Arts Museum 3246
Abreu Gallery 2349
Abstein Gallery of Art and Framing 1564
ACA Galleries 2350
Academy Of The Arts 1912
Acquavella Contemporary Art 2351
Acquavella Galleries 2352
Actual Art Foundation 2353
Alice Adam 1631
Adams Davidson 1431
Adams-Middleton Gallery 3261
David Adamson Gallery 1432
Addison Gallery of American Art, Phillips Academy 1918
Adelle M Fine Art 3262
Adelphi University, Gallery At The Alumni House 2320
Adirondack Lakes Center for the Arts 2283
A.M. Adler Fine Arts 2354
Adler Gallery 1126
Pam Adler Gallery 2355
Rachel Adler Gallery 2356
Adley Gallery 1541
Adobe Gallery 2210
African American Cultural Center 2049
Afro-American Historical and Cultural Museum 3116
Afterimage Photograph Gallery 3263
A.I.R. Gallery 2357
Akron Art Museum 2998
Salvatore Ala 2358
Jeffrey Alan Gallery 2360
Alaska Shop Gallery of Eskimo Art 2361
Albany Bank & Trust Co Sculpture Garden 1632
Albany Institute of History and Art 2274
Albatross Gallery 3447
Albright College, Freedman Gallery 3176
Albright-Knox Art Gallery 2294
Albuquerque Museum 2211
Aldrich Museum of Contemporary Art 1414
Brooke Alexander 2362
Alexander Gallery 1131
Alexander-Suggs Gallery 2094
Alexandria Museum/Visual Arts Center 1845
Alianza 1920
A. J. Allan 2363
Allen Street Gallery, Center for Visual Communications 3264
Allentown Art Museum 3095
Charles Allis Art Museum 3463
Allport Associates Gallery 1123
Allrich Gallery 1241
Lyman Allyn Museum 1411
Alpha Gallery 1921
Alternate Space Gallery 2364
Alternative Museum 2365
Amarillo Art Center 3247
Amaury-Taittinger Gallery 2366
America House 2200
American Art 1565
American Craft Museum I 2367
American Craft Museum II 2368
American Fine Arts Gallery 3338
American Hand 1433
American Museum of Natural History 2369
American Scandinavian Foundation Gallery 2370
American State of the Arts Gallery Exchange 2371
Amherst College, Mead Art Museum 1915
Amityville Art Gallery: United for the Preservation of Womanhood 2277
Anakota Arts 3221
Anchorage Historical and Fine Arts Museum 1014
Anderson & Anderson/Master Prints & Drawings 1381
David Anderson Gallery 2372
Andover Gallery 1919
Jacqueline Anhalt Gallery 1127
Ankrum Gallery 1128
Ann Arbor Art Association 1994
Applewood Art Gallery 1341
Appleyard Art Frame Gallery 3367
W. Graham Arader III 2373
Arapahoe Community College, Colorado Gallery of the Arts 1380
ARC Gallery 1633
Arch Gallery 2374
ArchiCenter Gallery 1634
Archway Gallery 3302
ARCO Center for Visual Art 1129
Arctic Art Gallery 1351
Arizona State University, University Art Collections 1067
Arkansas Arts Center 1081
Arkansas State University Fine Arts Gallery 1084
Arnot Art Museum 2316
Aronson Gallery 1566
Arras Gallery 2375
Art Affair Gallery 3405
Art and Design Atelier 2924
Art and Design Gallery 2376
A.R.T./Beasley Gallery 1234
Art Center 3355
Art Center of Battle Creek 1998
Art Center-Women's Art League Gallery 1778
Art Community Center 3255
Art For Architecture 2377
Art Galaxy 2378
Art Gallery and Studio 1085
Art Gallery—Studio 53 2379
Art In The Atrium 2112
Art Institute of Boston 1922
Art Institute of Chicago 1635
Art Loft 2157
Art Market 3059
Art Museum Of South Texas 3256
Art Research Center 2081
Art Resources 1352
Art School Gallery 2952
Art Space 1130
Art Spectrum 2380
Art Store Gallery 1196
Art Student's League of NY 2381
Artemisia Gallery 1636
Artifacts Galleries 2118
Artique 1015
Artist in Action: Crossroads 3368
Artist Showcase 2897
Artist's Proof 2309
Artist's Union 3069
Artistic Sass 3205
Artists Associates, Inc. 1567
Artists CO-OPerative Gallery 2150
Artists Contemporary Gallery 1229
Artists In Action Gallery: Heritage Square 3369
Artists Involvement In Art 2323
Artists Representing Environmental Arts (A.R.E.A.) 2382
Artists Space 2383
Artists' Cooperative Gallery 2140
Artlink Contemporary Artspace 1764
Artmain 2995
ArtPark 2342
Arts Center 1794
Arts Center of the Ozarks Gallery 1083
Arts Chateau 2122
Arts Club of Chicago 1637
Arts Council of Fayetteville/Cumberland County, Arsenal House Gallery 2961
Arts Council Of Hawaii 1600
Arts Council of Spartanburg 3209
Arts Focus 3445
Arts For Living Center 1784
Arts Signature Gallery 3060
Artspace/Virginia Miller Galleries 1489
Artworks At Sibleys 2911
Arvest Galleries 1923
Asher/Faure 1132
Asheville Art Museum 2950

VOL
71
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

Ashkenazy Galleries 1091
Asia Society Gallery 2384
Asian Art Museum of San Francisco, The Avery Brundage Collection 1242
Aspen Center for the Visual Arts 1342
Associated American Artists 2385, 3117
Associated Artists 2937
Ateneo Puertorriqueno 3187
The Athenaeum, Northern Virginia Fine Arts Association 3384
Atlanta Gallery of Photography 1568
Atlantic Christian College 2981
Atlantic City Art Center 2156
Atlantic Gallery 2386
Attic Gallery 3075
Augustana College, Center for Western Studies 3224
Auraria Higher Education Center, Emmanuel Gallery/Library Gallery 1353
Auslander and Wittgenstein 2387
Austin Gallery 1037
Austin Peay State University 3231
Austrian Institute 2388
Avanyu Gallery 2050

B

B. Lewin Galleries 1092, 1215
Babcock Gallery 2389
Thomas Babeor Gallery 1112
Franz Bader Gallery 1434
Mattingly Baker Gallery 3265
Baldwin-Wallace College, Faywick Gallery 3002
Ball State University Art Gallery 1773
Baltimore Museum of Art 1900
Balzekas Museum of Lithuanian Culture 1638
Bank of America World Headquarters Galleries 1243
Barbara Balkin Gallery 1639
Barclay Fine Art 2390
Barclay Gallery 2391
Bard College, Edith C. Blum Institute 2278
Barnes Foundation 3115
Molly Barnes Gallery 1133
David Barnett Gallery 3464
Jeannot R. Barr 2886
J. Barrett Galleries 3040
Jacques Baruch Gallery 1640
Basement Galleries 2392
Baskerville + Watson 2393
Kit Basquin Gallery 3465
Bass Museum of Art 1520
Donald Batman Gallery 2082
Batz Gallery 2083
John Baughman and Associates 2024
Baum Gallery 1244
Jan Baum Gallery 1134
Jayne H. Baum Gallery 2394
Baumgartner Galleries 1435
Bay Area Friends of the Fine Arts, Grange Art Gallery 2280
William Beadleston Fine Art 2395
Beall Contemporary Gallery 1858
Jean Jacques Beaume Gallery 2396
Beaumont Art Museum 3254
Beaver College, Richard Eugene Fuller Art Gallery 3107
Bel Esprit Fine Arts 2034
Belanthi Gallery 2290
George Belcher Gallery 1245
Belgis-Freidel Gallery 2397
Mary Bell Galleries 1641
Bellas Artes 2225
Belle Arts Gallery 2892
Bellevue Art Museum 3410
Belmont: The Gari Melchers Memorial Gallery 3391
Beloit College, Wright Museum of Art 3453
Benedek Fine Art 2398
Benjamin Art Gallery 1913
Benjamin-Beattie 1642
Elaine Benson Gallery 2284
Benteler Galleries 3303
Berea College, Doris Ulmann Galleries 1818
Bergen Community Museum of Art and Science 2188
John Berggruen Gallery 1246
Berkshire Museum 1978
Aaron Berman Gallery 2399
Mona Berman Gallery 1406
Bernal Gallery 1643
Bernice Steinbaum Gallery 2400
David Bernstein Fine Art 2401
Bernstein Galleries 2402
David Bernstein Gallery 1924
Berry-Hill Galleries 2403
Bethesda Art Gallery 1908
BFM 2404
Jane Bickerton Fine Arts 1569
Bienville Gallery 1859
Toni Birckhead Gallery 3004
Birmingham Museum of Art 1001
Birmingham Southern College, Doris Wainwright Kennedy Art Center 1002
Bishop Gallery 1038
Bismarck Junior College, Gannon Gallery 2986
Blackburn College, Renner Art Gallery 1629
Blackfish Gallery 3076
Blanden Memorial Art Gallery 1793
Block Prints Gallery 3388
Blue Mountain Gallery 2405
Blum Helman Gallery 2406
Blumka II 2407
Bluxome Gallery 1247
Boca Raton Center for the Arts 1483
Bodley Gallery 2408
Boise Gallery Of Art 1625
Boland-Bethea Gallery 1008
Bolen Gallery 1322
William Bonifas Fine Arts Center 2022
Bonlow Gallery 2409
Philippe Bonnafont Gallery 1248
Mary Boone Gallery 2410
Borgenicht Gallery 2411
Harm Bouckaert Gallery 2412
Boulder Center for the Visual Arts 1344
Bowdoin College Museum of Art 1888
Bowen's Franklin Street Gallery 2135
Bowers Museum 1311
Bowery Gallery 2413
Bowling Green Public Library Gallery 1819
Roy Boyd Gallery 1135, 1644
Barbara Braathen 2414
Bradley Galleries 3466
John Bradley's Gallery 2166
Branchville Soho Gallery 1415
Brandeis University, Rose Art Museum 1987
Damon Brandt 2415
Brandywine River Museum 3103
Brattleboro Museum & Art Center 3379
Braunstein Gallery 1249
Breckenridge Galleries 1349
Brena Gallery 1354
Brenner Gallery 1484
Brentwood Gallery 2095
Brescia College Art Gallery 1842
Brevard Art Center and Museum 1509
Brevard College, Coltrane Art Center 2951
Brewster Gallery 2416
Brigham City Museum-Gallery 3357
Brigham Young University, B.F. Larsen Gallery 3365
Crystal Britton Gallery 1570
Brockton Art Museum/Fuller Memorial 1958
Hal Bromm Gallery 2417
Bronx Museum of the Arts 2288
Brook House 1213
Brookfield Craft Center: Gallery 1390
Brooklyn College, Museum of the Borough of Brooklyn 2291
Brooklyn Museum 2292
Brown Country Art Guild 1774
Alan Brown Gallery 2329
Diane Brown Gallery 2418
Malcolm Brown Gallery 3039
Robert Brown Contemporary Art 1436
Suzanne Brown Gallery 1039
Aldis Browne Fine Arts 2419
Browning Arts 2990
Brubaker Gallery 1542
Brunnier Gallery and Museum, Scheman Continuing Education Building 1782
Brush and Palette Gallery 1422
Brushworks Gallery 3370
Bruton Gallery 2420
Bryant Galleries 2070
Gabrielle Bryers Gallery 2421
Bucknell University Center Gallery 3112
Buecker & Harpsichords 2422
Buffalo Bill Historical Center 3482
Bunnell 1925
Burchfield Center 2295
Burk Gallery 2144
Timothy Burns Gallery 2096
Burpee Art Museum 1757
Busch-Reisinger Museum 1959
Noël Butcher Gallery 3118
Marilyn Butler Fine Art 1040
Butler Institute Of American Art 3043
By Hand Fine Craft Gallery 2172
Byck Gallery 1831

C

Cabrillo College Gallery 1086
C.A.D.E. 2015
C.A.G.E. 3005
Susan Caldwell 2423
California College of Arts and Crafts, Artists' Gallery 1205
California College of Arts and Crafts, Isabelle Percy West Gallery 1206
California Institute of Technology, Baxter Art Gallery 1219
California Palace of the Legion of Honor 1250
California State University, Chico, University Art Gallery 1102
California State University, Fullerton, Art Gallery 1107
California State University, Hayward, University Galleries 1108
California State University, Long Beach, University Art Museum 1124
California State University, Northridge, Art Gallery 1204
Camera Obscura Gallery 1355
Campanile Galleries 1645
Charles Campbell Gallery 1251
Canton Art Institute 3003
Cantor/Lemberg Gallery 2000
Capital Gallery of Contemporary Art 1823
Capitol Arts Center, Ervin G. Houchens Gallery 1820
Capricorn Galleries 1909
Carl Hammer Gallery 1646
Carlin Galleries 3291
Carlton Gallery 2424
Carlyle Art Gallery 2425
Carnegie Institute, Museum of Art 3168
Frank Caro Gallery 2426
Carone Gallery 1496
Carson Gallery of Western American Art 1356
Carson-Sapiro Gallery and Art Consultants 1357
Carspecken-Scott Gallery 1427
Amon Carter Museum 3292
Carus Gallery 2427
Casay Gallery 1616
Casell Galleries 1860, 1861
Castelli Feigen Corcoran 2428
Leo Castelli Gallery 2429, 2430
Castelli Graphics 2431
Castle Gallery 2113
Paul Cava Gallery 3119
Cavanaugh Gallery 2432
Joan Cawley Gallery 1810
Cayman Gallery 2433
Cazenovia College, Chapman Art Center Gallery 2301
CDS 2434
Cedar Rapids Museum of Art 1786
Centenary College, Meadows Museum of Art and Library Gallery 1885
Center Art Galleries—Hawaii 1601
Center for Inter-American Relations 2435
Center Gallery 3457
Central Hall Artists 2436
CEPA Gallery 2296
Jackie Chalkley Gallery 1437
Chamberlain Gardens Essex 1393
Chan-Elliott Galleries 1230
Chapman College, Guggenheim Gallery 1212
Charlton Art Gallery 3346
Merrill Chase Galleries 1647

Chautauqua Art Association, Chautauqua Institution 2303
Chevron Gallery 1252
Chicago Center for the Print 1648
Chicago Historical Society 1649
Chicago Public Library Cultural Center 1650
Childs Gallery 1926, 2437
China Trade Museum 1975
Joseph Chowning Gallery 1253
Judith Christian Gallery 2438
Christie's Contemporary Art 2439
Chrysler Museum 3396
Lori Ciancaglini Fine Art 2440
Jan Cicero Gallery 1651
Cincinnati Art Museum 3006
Cirrus Gallery 1136
City Gallery 2441
City University of New York, Queens College, Art Center 2318
City University of New York, Queens College, Godwin-Ternbach Museum 2317
City Without Walls: An Urban Artists' Collective 2183
Civic Center 1652
Civic Fine Arts Center 3225
Civilian Warfare 2442
Claremont College, Galleries of the Claremont Colleges 1103
Sterling and Francine Clark Art Institute 1989
Clark Gallery 1973
Garth Clark Gallery 1137
Wilson W. Clark Memorial Library Gallery 3077
Clay and Fiber Gallery 2257
Clay Dragon Studios 1960
Clayworks 2443
A Clean, Well-Lighted Place 2444
Cleveland Institute Of Art 3016
Cleveland Museum Of Art 3017
Cleveland State University, Art Gallery 3018
Clifford Gallery 3266
John Douglas Cline Gallery 1027
Clinton Art Association Gallery 1787
The Cloisters 2445
A. B. Closson Gallery 3007
Cochise Fine Arts 1024
Eva Cohon Gallery 1748
Coker College, New Gallery 3204
Colby College Museum of Art 1898
Felice Cole Gallery 2315
Colgate University, Picker Art Gallery 2328
Collector's Choice 1110
Collectors Four 2334
Collectors Gallery 1653
College of Eastern Utah, Gallery East 3364
College of St. Catherine, Catherine G. Murphy Gallery 2064
College of William and Mary, Andrews Gallery and Foyer Gallery 3408
Lowell Collins Gallery 3304
Colnaghi 2446
Colorado Institute of Art Gallery 1358
Colorado Photographic Arts Center 1359
Colorado Springs Fine Art Center 1350
Colorado State University, Center Gallery 1375
Colorado State University, Hatton Gallery 1376
Columbia College, Chicago Center for Contemporary Photography 1654
Columbia College Galleries 1655
Columbia Museums of Art and Science 3199
Columbus Museum of Art 3023
Columbus Museum of Art, Collectors Gallery 3024
Columbus Museum of Arts and Sciences 1593
Community Arts Council 2962
Community Gallery 2447
Community Gallery of Lancaster 3111
Conacher Galleries 1254
Concept Art Gallery 3169
Concord Contemporary Art 2448
Condeso/Lawler Gallery 2449
Conejo Valley Art Museum 1333
Connecticut Fine Arts 1420
ConStruct 1656
Contemporary Art Institute of Detroit 2033
Contemporary Art Workshop 1657
Contemporary Arts Center 1602, 1862, 3008
Contemporary Arts Forum 1312
Contemporary Arts Museum 3305
Contemporary Crafts Association 3078
Contemporary Craftsman 2226
Contemporary Gallery 3267
Contemporary Russian Art Center of America 2450
Convergence 2451
Converse College, Milliken Gallery 3210
Paula Cooper Gallery 2452
Cooper-Hewitt Museum, the Smithsonian Institution's National Museum of Design 2453
Cooperstown Art Association 2307
Coos Art Museum 3068
Copenhagen Galleria 1328
Copley Society of Boston 1927
Copper Village Museum and Arts Center of Deer Lodge County 2111
Corcoran Gallery of Art 1438
James Corcoran Gallery 1138
Cordier & Ekstrom 2454
Cornell University, Herbert F. Johnson Museum of Art 2335
Corning Museum of Glass 2308
Cornish Institute, Cornish Gallery 3415
Corporate Art Consultants 2180
Corporate Art Directions 2455
Corpus Christi State University, South Texas Artmobile 3257
Corpus Christi State University, Weil Gallery 3258
Piero Corsini 2456
Cottonwood Gallery 2128
Coty Gallery 1981
Annette Couch Fine Arts 1329
Country Art Gallery 2343
Charles Cowles Gallery 2457
Craft and Folk Art Museum 1139
Craft Company No. 6 2912
Craft House of Durham 2957
Craftsman's Gallery 2925
Craftsmen's Gallery 2141
Cranbrook Academy of Art Museum 2013
Creations Gallery 2458
Creative Directions 1069
Creative Exchange Gallery 2071
Creative Time 2459
Andrew Crispo Gallery 2460
Crispo Graphics 2461
Crocker Art Museum 1231
George Cromartie Gallery 2462
Robin Cronin 3306
Cross Gate Gallery 1827
Crown Point Gallery 1207
Crown Point Press 2463
Cudahy's Gallery 3399
Cultural Arts Center 3025
Cumberland Gallery 3240
Cummer Gallery of Art 1505
Cunningham Memorial Art Gallery 1087
Currier Gallery of Art 2155
Custer County Art Center 2133

D

D-Art, Visual Arts Center 3268
D & R Showcase Gallery 2332
Dahl Fine Arts Center 3222
William & Victoria Dailey 1140
Salvador Dali Museum 1551
Dallas Museum of Fine Arts 3269
G.H. Dalsheimer Gallery 1901
Danforth Museum of Art 1970
Daphne Art Gallery and Frame Shop 3061
Dart Gallery 1658
Dartmouth College, Hood Museum of Art 2154
Davenport Art Gallery 1788
David David Art Gallery 3120
Peter M. David Gallery 2051
Davidson College, Art Gallery 2956
Davidson County Art Guild Gallery 2972
Davidson Galleries 3416
Maxwell Davidson Gallery 2464
Davis Gallery 1863
John Davis Gallery 2999
Rachel W. Davis Gallery 3307
Davis & Langdale 2465
Davis/McClain Galleries 3308
Davlyn Gallery 2466
Dawson Gallery 2913
Dayton Art Institute 3031
DBR Gallery 3019
De Anza College, Euphrat Gallery 1104'
De Colores Art Gallery 1360
Michael De Lorean Galleries 2146
Tibor de Nagy Gallery 2467
De Ville Galleries 1141
M.H. de Young Memorial Museum 1255
Joanna Dean 2468
DeCordova and Dana Museum and Park 1974
Kirk deGooyer Gallery 1142
Deicas Art Gallery 1113
Del Mar College Art Gallery 3259
Marisa del Re Gallery 2469
Delahunty 2470
Delahunty Gallery 3270
Delaware Art Museum 1428
Delaware Art Museum Downtown Gallery 1429
Delta State University, Art Department 2069
Denver Art Museum 1361
Department Of Cultural Affairs, Thomas Center Galleries 1499
Departure 2471
Des Moines Art Center 1790
Marianne Deson Gallery 1659
Ernest deSoto Workshop 1256
Detroit Artists Market 2016
Detroit Institute of Arts 2017
Sid Deutsch Gallery 2472
DeVorzon Gallery 1143
Dewey-Kofron Gallery 2227
Dia Art Foundation 2473, 2474, 2475, 2476, 2477, 3342
Martin Diamond Fine Arts 2478
Diamond M Museum 3353
Jim Diaz Gallery 2479
Dickinson State College, Art Dept, Mind's Eye Gallery 2988
Leonarda DiMauro 2480
Terry Dintenfass 2481
Oscar Dior Art Gallery 1525
Dixon Gallery and Gardens 3235
Dobrick Gallery 1654
Theodore B. Donson 2482
Fred Dorfman 2483
Dorsky Galleries 2484
Doshi Center for Contemporary Art 3109
Doubletree Gallery 2177
Downtown Center for the Arts 2212
Douglas Drake Gallery 1802
Drawing Center 2485
Peter Drew Gallery 1528
Paul Drey Gallery 2486
Driscol Gallery 1362, 1384
Helen Drutt Gallery 3121
Dubins Gallery 1144
DuBose Galleries 3309
Duke University, Museum of Art 2958
Dulin Gallery of Art 3232
Dumbarton Oaks Research Collection and Library 1439
Dumont-Landis Fine Art 2185
Dunedin Fine Arts and Cultural Center 1495
Linda Durham Gallery 2228
DuSable Museum of African-American History 1660
DW Gallery 3271
Dyansen 57 2487
Dyansen Gallery 2488

E

Élan Art Gallery 2987
Earthworks Gallery 2489
Eason Gallery 2229
East Carolina University Museum of Art, Gray Art Gallery 2967
East End Arts Council Gallery 2910
East-West Shop 2945

VOL
71
ISS
7
AG.
1983

Eastern Michigan University, Intermedia Gallery 2046
Eastern Montana College, Northcutt Gallery 2114
George Eastman House, International Museum of Photography 2914
Eaton/Shoen Gallery 1257
Eccles Community Art Center 3361
Eclipse Photographics 1345
Edison Community College, Gallery of Fine Art 1498
Editions Limited 1258, 1768
Educational Testing Service, Henry Chauncey Conference Center 2191
80 Langton Street 1259
Linda Einfeld Gallery 1661
G.W. Einstein 2490
El Paso Museum of Art 3290
El Presidio Gallery 1070
Elements Gallery 2491
The Elements 1395
Robert Elkon Gallery 2492
Phyllis Elliot Gallery 2493
Elmhurst Park Gallery 1851
Andre Emmerich Gallery 2494
Engel 2495
English Gallery 1928
Amos Eno Gallery 2496
Enthios Gallery 2230
Enthios II Gallery 2213
Lynn G. Epsteen 2497
Equivalents Gallery 3417
Eric Galleries 2498
Ericson Gallery 2499
D. Erlien Gallery 3467
Rosa Esman Gallery 2500
Eleanor Ettinger Inc. 2501
Evans-Tibbs Collection 1440
Evanston Art Center 1740
Evergreen State College, Evergreen Galleries 3413
Everson Museum of Art 2938
Kathleen Ewing Gallery 1441
Exchange National Bank of Chicago 1662
Exhibit A 1663

F

Fagen-Peterson Fine Art 1041
Fairleigh Dickinson University, Maples Gallery 2199
Fairweather Hardin Gallery 1664
F.A.M.E. Gallery 3310
Farmington Valley Arts Center, Fisher Gallery 1385
William A. Farnsworth Library and Art Museum 1894
Linda Farris Gallery 3418
Joseph Faulkner-Main St Gallery 1665
Fayette Art Museum 1004
Fedelé Fine Arts 2502
Federal Center Museum 1666
Richard L. Feigen and Co 2503
Feigenson Gallery 2018
Feingarten Galleries 1145
Ronald Feldman Fine Arts 2504
I. Irving Feldman Galleries 1543, 2040, 2041
Rosamund Felsen Gallery 1146
Fendrick Gallery 1442
Fenn Galleries 2231
Charles Fenton Gallery 3383
Fenton Hochman 3293
Fernette's Gallery of Art 1797
Fido Gallery 1232
Field Art Studio 1999
55 Mercer 2505
Film in the Cities Gallery 2065
David Findlay Galleries 2506
David Findlay Jr 2508
Wally Findlay Galleries, NY 2507
Wally Findlay Galleries 1667
Peter Findlay 2509
Fine Arts Museum of Long Island 2330
Fine Arts Museum of the South 1009
Fine Arts of Houston 3311
Firehouse Art Center 3048
Firehouse Gallery 2963
First Federal Mid-Florida (Empire America, FSA-Division of) 1494
First Street Forum 2097
First Street Gallery 2510
Fischbach Gallery 2511
Fisher Collection 3170
Fisk University, Carl Van Vechten Gallery of Fine Arts 3241
Fitch-Febvrel Gallery 2512
Fitchburg Art Museum 1969
Dolly Fiterman Gallery 2052
500X Gallery 3272
537 Artworks 2513
Flanders Contemporary Art 2053
Dan Flavin Art Institute 2285
Samuel S. Fleisher Art Memorial 3122
Janet Fleisher Gallery 3123
Flemington Gallery of the Arts 2170
Flint Institute of Arts 2023
Florence Art Gallery 3273
Florida Gulf Coast Art Center 1482
Florida International University, Visual Arts Gallery 1510
Flow Ace Gallery 1147, 1335
Flury & Co 3419
Focal Point Gallery 2289
Focus Gallery 1260
Fogg Art Museum 1961
Charles Foley Gallery 3026
Foothills Art Center 1378
Form & Function Gallery 1571
Forma Gallery 1490
Fort Smith Art Center 1079
Fort Worth Art Museum 3294
Fort Worth Gallery 3295
Elizabeth Fortner 1313
49th Parallel/49°, Centre for Contemporary Canadian Art 2514
Forum Gallery 1572, 2515
Foster Goldstrom Fine Arts 1261
Foster/White Gallery 3420
Foto Gallery 2516
Foundation for Today's Art/Nexus 3124
Fountain Gallery of Art 3079
Four Arts Gallery 1553, 1741
431 Westbroadway Gallery 2517
Xavier Fourcade 2518
14 Sculptors Gallery 2519
4th Street Photo Gallery 2520
Shirley Fox Galleries 1573
Pearl Fox Gallery 3114
Fraenkel Gallery 1262
Frameworks 1379
Franklin Furnace Archive 2521
Fraunces Tavern Museum 2522
George Frederic Gallery 2915
Polly Freeman Art Services 2035
Freer Gallery of Art 1443
Freidenrich Contemporary Art 1200
Robert Freidus Gallery 2523
Sherry French Gallery 2524
Fresno Arts Center 1106
Nina Freudenheim Gallery 2297
Frick Art Museum 3171
Frick Collection 2525
Marvin Ross Friedman & Co 1511
Anita Friedman Fine Arts 2526
Barry Friedman 2527
Friends of Photography 1097
Frontroom 3274
Allan Frumkin Gallery-Photographs 1668
Allan Frumkin Gallery 2528
Frumkin & Struve Gallery 1669
Charles and Emma Frye Art Museum 3421
Jeffrey Fuller Fine Art 3125
Fuller Goldeen Gallery 1263
F.U.N. Gallery 2529
Furman University, Art Gallery 3201

G

G. E. Fine Art 1864
Gadsden Museum of Fine Arts 1005
Gage Gallery 1444
Larry Gagosian Gallery 1148
Galeria Bonino 2530
Galeria Botello I 3188
Galeria Botello II 3182
Galeria Del Sol 2214
Galeria Eugenio 3189
Galeria Joan Prats 2531
Galeria Palomas 3183
Galeria San Jeronimo 3190
Galeria San Juan 3184
Galeria 2 3181
Galeria Venezuela 2532
Galerie Coté 2921
Galerie De Ville 1865
Galerie Jules Laforgue 1866
Galerie Maeght, U.S. 2533
Galerie Metropol 2534
Galerie Michael 1149
Galerie Naifs & Primitifs Paris 2535
Galerie 99 1476
Galerie Simonne Stern 1867
Galerie St. Etienne 2536
Galeries D'Art International 1670
Galerija 1671
Galesburg Civic Art Center 1747
Galleri Bellman 2537
Galleria Berenson 1485
Gallerie Louise 3180
Galleries Maurice Sternberg 1672
Gallery A 2258
Gallery 56 3371
Gallery 151 1529
Gallery at Craft Alliance 2098
Gallery at Greenville 1423
Gallery at Grove Isle 1487
Gallery at 24 1512
Gallery CJS 1363
Gallery Eas 1603
Gallery East 2310
Gallery Eight 1114
Gallery '85 2115
Gallery 84 2538
Gallery Ellington 1811
Gallery Felicie 2539
Gallery 500 3106
Gallery 539 1868
A Gallery For Fine Photography 1869
Gallery 4 3385
Gallery #411/12 2540
Gallery G. Fine Arts 1812
Gallery Gemini 1530
Gallery Henoch 2541
Gallery K 1150, 1445
Gallery Mack 2542
Gallery Mack NW 3422
Gallery NAGA 1929
Gallery Nature Morte 2543
Gallery New World 1446
Gallery 9 2161
Gallery North 2927
Gallery of the 21st Century 2232
Gallery on the Green 1972
Gallery One 1407, 3296
Gallery 106 3037
Gallery 120 2544
Gallery Paule Anglim 1264
Gallery 72 2142
Gallery VI 3442
Gallery 609 1364
Gallery 16 2124
Gallery 10 1447, 2545
Gallery 3 1028
Gallery 306 3226
Gallery 20 1016
Gallery 21 3228
Gallery 22 2014
Gallery II/RSVP 3389
Gallery Wall 1029, 1042, 2233
Gallery West 1151, 2259, 3080
Gallery Yves Arman 2546
The Gallery 3211
Lonny Gans 1336
Anna Gardner Gallery 1331
Isabella Stewart Gardner Museum 1957
Fanny Garver Gallery 3458
David Gary 2194
Gasperi Folk Art Gallery 1870
Gaston County Museum 2955
Dorry Gates Gallery 2084
Gathering, A Collector's Gallery 1021
Gekas-Nicholas Gallery 1071
Gemini G.E.L. 1152
George Washington University, Dimock Gallery 1448
Georgetown College 1826
Georgia Museum of Art, University of Georgia 1563
Georgia State University, Art Gallery 1574
Germans Van Eck 2547
Susan Gersh Gallery 1153
Hilde Gerst Gallery 2548

UMI

Getler/Pall Gallery 2549
J. Paul Getty Museum 1197
Carol Getz Gallery 1513
Gregory Ghent Fine Arts 1265
Ghent Gallery 3397
Gibbes Art Gallery 3198
John Gibson 2885
Gilbert Gallery 1673
Thomas Gilcrease Institute Of American History and Art 3062
Gillary Gallery 2339
Gilliewrinkles 2305
Barbara Gillman Gallery 1514, 1515
Gilman Galleries 1674
Diane Gilson Gallery 3423
Gima's Art Gallery 1604
Adam L. Gimbel 2550
Gimpel & Weitzenhoffer Gallery 2551
Glacier Gallery 2129
Barbara Gladstone Gallery 2552
Glass Gallery 1910, 2553
The Glass Store 2554
GMB Gallery 2001
Charles B. Goddard Center 3046
Goethe House New York 2555
Goethe Institute Chicago 1675
Judy & Alan Goffman 3099
Fay Gold Gallery 1575
Judith Goldberg 2556
Goldfield Galleries 1154
Phyllis A. Goldman Fine Arts 2557
Goldman Kraft Gallery 1676
Lucien Goldschmidt 2558
Foster Goldstrum 3275
Gondeck Gallery and Publisher of Original Graphics 2234
James Goodman Gallery 2559
Marion Goodman Gallery 2657
Martin Gordon 2560
Gore Fine Arts 1677
Governors State University, Nathan Manilow Sculpture Park 1751
Governors State University, Visual Arts Gallery 1752
Grace Gallery Studio Di Modica 2561
Graham Gallery 2562, 3312
Grand Central Art Galleries 2563
Grand Rapids Art Museum 2025
Grants Pass Museum of Art 3073
Grapestake Gallery 1266
Graphic Art Collection 1503
Graphic Eye 2900
Graphic Glass Galleries 1761
Graphics Gallery 1267
Graphics House Gallery 2235
Graphics 1 and Graphics 2 1930
Richard Gray Gallery 1678
Grayson Gallery 1679
Great American Gallery 1576
Greater Lafayette Museum of Art 1771
Green Garden Gallery 1011
Green Hill Center For North Carolina Art 2964
Greenberg Gallery of Contemporary Art 2099
Greene Art Gallery 1397
Greene Space 2564
Greensboro College, Irene Cullis Gallery 2965
Greenville County Museum of Art 3202
Greenville Museum of Art 2968
Greenwich House Pottery/Jane Hartsook Gallery 2565
Greggie Fine Art 1577
C. Grimaldis Gallery 1902
Grommet Gallery 2566
Suzanne Gross Gallery 3126
Daniel B. Grossman 2567
Groveland Gallery 2054
Grover Gallery 1365
Gruenebaum Gallery 2568
Grycner Gallery 2260
Gryphon Galleries 1366
Guarisco Gallery 1449
Shelly Guggenheim Gallery 1450
Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum 2569
Guild Gallery 1846
Guild Hall Museum 2311
Gump's Gallery 1268
Gustafson Gallery 3050

H

Habatat Galleries 2030
Haber Theodore Gallery 2570
Hadler/Rodriguez 3313
Hadler/Rodriguez Galleries 2571
Hahn Gallery 3127
Juliette Halioua Gallery 2572
Hall Galleries 3297
Hallowell Gallery 3104
Hallwalls 2298
Halsted Gallery 2002
Hamilton Gallery 2573
Martina Hamilton Gallery 2574
Hammer Galleries 2575
Carl Hammer Gallery 1646
Hammerquist Gallery 2576
Hampton Institute, College Museum 3392
Hand and the Spirit Crafts Gallery 1043
Hankook Gallery 2577
Hanover Gallery 2939
James M. Hansen 1314
Hanson Galleries 1871
Harbor Gallery 2306
Harcourts Contemporary 1269
Harcourts Gallery 1270
Harcus Gallery 1931
Susan Harder Gallery 2578
Harley-Madigan Gallery 2579
Foster Harmon Galleries of American Art 1544
Harmon-Meek Gallery 1522
Harris Gallery 3314
O.K. Harris West 1053
O.K. Harris Works of Art 2580
Hart & Tagami Gallery 1614
Hartnell College, Art Gallery 1233
Harwood Galleries 2581
Jane Haslem Gallery 1451, 1452
G. Ray Hawkins Gallery 1155
Haymarket Art Gallery 2137
Headlay-Whitney Museum 1828
Heard Museum 1030
Heath Gallery 1578
Heckscher Museum 2333
Patricia Heesy Gallery 2582
Lillian Heidenberg Gallery 2583
Marvin Heiferman 2584
Held Kourpernikoff 1932
Heller Gallery 2585
Henry Street Settlement, Louis Abrons Arts for Living Center 2586
Hensley Gallery 3386
Gertrude Herbert Memorial Institute of Art 1592
Heritage Center, Red Cloud Indian School 3220
Heritage Gallery 1156
Edna Hibel Gallery 2587
Hickory Museum of Art 2969
High Museum of Art 1579
High Point Arts Council, Theatre Galleries 2970
Susanne Hilberry Gallery 2003
Hills Gallery 1367
Louise Himelfarb Gallery 2928
Michael Himovitz Gallery 1101
Richard Hines Gallery 3424
Hirschl & Adler Galleries 2588
Hirschl & Adler Modern 2589
Hirshhorn Museum and Sculpture Garden 1453
Historic New Orleans Collection 1872
Hobe Sound Galleries 1504
Hobe Sound Galleries North 1891
Hockaday Center For The Arts 2130
Nancy Hoffman Gallery 2590
Hofstra University, Emily Lowe Gallery 2331
Hokin Gallery 1477, 1531
Hokin/Kaufman Gallery 1680
B.C. Holland 1681
Holly Daly Herman Palm Beach Art Gallery 1532
Holsten Galleries 1533, 1986
Hom Gallery 1454
Honolulu Academy of Arts 1605
Carol Hooberman 2004
Hooks-Epstein Galleries 3315
Hoover Gallery 1271
Hope College, De Pree Gallery 2027
Hopi Cultural Center Museum 1065
Edward Hopper Landmark Preservation Foundation 2893
Vivian Horan Gallery 2591
Horn Gallery 2592
Joy Horwich Gallery 1682
Elaine Horwitch Galleries Annex 1044
Elaine Horwitch Galleries 1045, 2236
Elaine Horwitch Gallery 1066
Hoshour Gallery 2215
Edwynn Houk Gallery 1683
Housatonic Community College, Housatonic Museum of Art 1386
Hanson Howard Galleries 3067
Oscar Howe Art Center 3218
Hudson Guild Art Gallery 2593
Hudson River Museum 2949
Hull Gallery 1455
HumanArts 3276
Hunsaker-Schlesinger 1157
Hunter Museum of Art 3230
Hunterdon Art Center 2164
Huntington Galleries 3449
The Huntington Library, Art Gallery and Botanical Gardens 1310
Huntington Township Art League 2326
Huntsville Museum of Art 1006
Max Hutchinson Gallery 2594
Leonard Hutton Galleries 2595
Hyde Collection 2322
Hyde Park Art Center 1684

I

Pasquale Iannetti Art Galleries 1098, 1272
Ianuzzi Gallery 1031
Illinois Arts Council Gallery 1685
Illinois State Museum 1758
Illinois Wesleyan University, Merwin and Wakeley Galleries 1627
Image Gallery 3081
Image of Sarasota 1545
Image South Gallery 1580
Images Gallery 2596, 3041
Images International of Hawaii 1606
Impressions Gallery 1933
In The Spirit Gallery 1803
Incorporated Gallery 2597
India Ink Gallery 1323
Indiana University Art Museum 1762
Ingber Gallery 2598
Inkfish Gallery 1368
Inroads Gallery 2599
Institute for Art and Urban Resources, P.S. 1 2909
Institute for Art and Urban Resources, The Clocktower 2600
Institute of American Indian Arts Museum 2237
Institute of Contemporary Art 1934
Institute of Puerto Rican Culture, Museo de Bellas Artes 3191
INTAR Latin American Gallery 2601
Inter-American Art Gallery 2602
Interart Gallery 2603
International Center of Photography 2604
International Connoisseurs 1607
International Sculpture Center 1456
Iolas-Jackson Gallery 2605
Irving Galleries 1534
Lily Iselin Gallery 3194
Isis Gallery 2901
Islip Art Museum 2313
Isselbacher Gallery 2606
Ithaca House Gallery Association 2336
Ivory/Kimpton Gallery 1273

J

Jack Gallery 2607
Jackson Street Gallery 3425
Jacksonville Art Museum 1506
Jacksonville University College of Fine Art, Alexander Brest Museum 1507
Ann Jacob Gallery 1581
Donna Jacobs Gallery 2005
Bernard Jacobson Gallery 2608
Jacobson/Hochman 1582
Bernard Jacobson 1158
Jailhouse Gallery 2974, 3360
Jaipaul Galleries 3128
Jamaica Arts Center 2338

VOL 7 1
ISS 7
AG 1983
UMI

Jamestown Arts Center 2993
Jamison Galleries 2238
Janapa Photography Gallery 2609
Sidney Janis Gallery 2610
Janus Gallery 1159, 2239
Japan House Gallery 2611
Jaro Art Galleries 2612
Jay Gallery 2613
Jeb Gallery 3195
Jentra Fine Art Gallery 2171
Jersey City Museum 2174
Jewish Museum 2614
Joan Hodgell Gallery 1546
Johns Hopkins University, Evergreen House 1903
R.S. Johnson International 1686
Jay Johnson 2615
Joliet Junior College, Laura A. Sprague Art Gallery 1749
Jones Gallery 1115
Bob Jones University, Museum of Sacred Art 3203
Jordan-Volpe Gallery 2616
Jorice Art Glass 2617
Josef Gallery 2618
Joslyn Art Museum 2143
Judaica Museum of the Temple Beth Israel 1032
Patricia Judith Art Gallery 1486
Julie: Artisans' Gallery 2619
C.G. Jung Center 1742
Just Above Midtown/Downtown 2620
Juxtapose Gallery 2207

K

Kaber Gallery 2621
Alexander Kahan Fine Arts 2622
Kahan Gallery of African Art 2623
Jane Kahan Gallery 2624
Kalamazoo Institute of Arts 2028
Kamp Gallery 1687
Kansas City Art Institute, Charlotte Crosby Kemper Gallery 2085
Kansas City Museum 2086
Ulrike Kantor Gallery 1160
Kapalua Gallery 1615
Muriel Karasik 2625
Katonah Gallery 2340
Katsura Gallery 2887
Kauai Museum 1620
Kauffman Galleries 3316
Kean College of New Jersey, College Gallery 2203
Keane Mason Gallery 2664
Kearney State College, Walker Art Gallery 2136
Kellas Gallery 1805
Kelmscott Gallery 1688
Kennedy Galleries 2626
Kent State University, Art Gallery 3032
Kentucky History Museum 1824
Keny and Johnson Gallery 3027
Douglas Kenyon 1689
Coe Kerr Gallery 2627
Reynold C. Kerr Gallery 2628
Ray Ketcham Gallery 1583
Key Gallery 2629
Robert L. Kidd Associates/Galleries 2006
Kimball Art Center 3362
Kimbell Art Museum 3298
Kimmel/Cohn Photography Arts 2630
Phyllis Kind Gallery 1690, 2631
Kingston Gallery 1935
Kirkland Art Center 2304
Kirsten Gallery 3426
The Kitchen 2632
Klein Gallery 1691
Arnold Klein Gallery 2038
Robert Klein Gallery 1936
Klein Museum Art Gallery 3219
Kling Gallery 3129
Knightsbridge Gallery 1813
M. Knoedler & Co 2633
Knowles Gallery 1116
Monique Knowlton Gallery 2634
John Michael Kohler Arts Center 3478
Suzanne Kohn Gallery 2066
Koko Head Gallery 1608
Kona-Mini Gallery 1612
Koplin 1161
Korby Gallery 2160
B.R. Kornblatt Gallery 1457
Kornblee Gallery 2635
Kornbluth Gallery 2168
Lynn Kottler Galleries 2636
Kouros Gallery 2637
Barbara Krakow Gallery 1937
Kraushaar Galleries 2638
Kruger Gallery 2639
Richard Kuhlenschmidt Gallery 1162
Navin Kumar 2640
Ivor Kurland/Summers 1163

L

L'Ibis Gallery 2641
L'Omega Gallery 2087
L.A. Artcore Center 1164
La Boetie 2642
La Fonda de Taos Gallery 2261
La Galeria 2088
La Jolla Museum of Contemporary Art 1117
La Mamelle 1274
La Salle College Art Gallery 3130
LACE (Los Angeles Contemporary Exhibitions) 1165
Lafayette College, Gallery, Morris R. Williams Center For The Arts 3105
Lagerquist Gallery 1584
Laguna Beach Museum of Art 1111
Laguna Gloria Art Museum 3249
Lahaina Gallery 1617
Lake Forest College, Sonnenschein Gallery, Durand Institute 1750
Lake Gallery 1332, 2145
Lakeside Studio 2029
Lakeview Museum Of Arts and Sciences 1753
Laky Incorporated 1099
Lambert-Miller Gallery 1046
Landfall Gallery 1692
Landsman Gallery 2162
Landsman Gallery, Atrium Center 2163
Lane Community College Art Gallery 3070
Lanvin Gallery 1516
Rodger LaPelle Galleries 3151
Lasansky Corporation Gallery 1795
Laumeier International Sculpture Park 2100
Martin Lawrence Galleries 1166, 1326
Lawrence Gallery 2089
Lawrence University, Worcester Art Center 3452
Lawson Galleries 1275
Le Nid 2888
Elizabeth Leach Gallery 3082
Margo Leavin Gallery 1167
Ledel Gallery 2643
Janie C. Lee Gallery 3317
Leeward Community College, Foyer Art Gallery 1622
Lefebre Gallery 2644
Lehigh University, Dubois Gallery 3096
Lehigh University, Hall Gallery 3097
Lehigh University, Ralph Wilson Gallery 3098
Janet Lehr 2645
LeMoyne: Center for the Visual Arts 1554
Karen Lennox Gallery 1693
Lenz Gallery 3468
Jon Leon Gallery 2646
Lever House 2647
Levitan Gallery 2902
Chuck Levitan Gallery 2648
Bernard and S. Dean Levy 2649
Leah Levy Gallery 1276
Leslie Levy Gallery 1047
B. Lewin Galleries 1092, 1215
Lewistown Art Center 2132
Liberty Gallery 1832
L'Ibis 2641
Lido Gallery 3363, 3366
Steven Lieber Gallery 1277
Light Gallery 2650
Lill Street Gallery 1694
Lincoln Gallery 2651
Bjorn Lindgren Gallery 2652
Joan Ling Gallery 1500
Liros Gallery 3387
Live Oak Gallery 1852
Loading Dock 1938
Loch Haven Art Center 1526
Marian Locks Gallery 3131
L'Omega 2087
London Arts 2019
Long Beach Museum Of Art 1125
Long Island University, Hillwood Art Gallery 2327
Long Point Gallery 1979
Meredith Long 3318
Longan Gallery 2116
Longview Museum And Arts Center 3339
Peter S. Loonam Gallery 2286
Lopoukhine Gallery 1939
Loring Art Gallery 2302
Los Angeles County Museum of Art 1168
Los Angeles Institute of Contemporary Art 1169
Los Angeles Municipal Art Gallery 1170
Los Angeles Valley College, Art Gallery 1334
Louisiana Arts and Science Center 1847
Louisiana Gallery 3319
Louisiana State Museum 1873
Louisiana State University, Union Art Gallery 1848
Louisville Art Gallery 1833
Louisville School of Art Gallery 1834
L. A. Louver Galleries 1337
L. A. Louver Gallery 1338
R.H. Love Galleries 1695
Loyola University of Chicago, Martin D'Arcy Gallery of Medieval and Renaissance Art 1696
Gilbert Luber Gallery 3132
Lublin Graphics 1396
Ludeke Gallery 3009
Lufkin Historical and Creative Arts Museum 3341
Jean Lumbard Fine Arts 2653
Lumiere Gallery 3372
Gloria Luria Gallery 1478
Nancy Lurie Gallery 1697
Lyme Historical Society, Florence Griswold Museum 1413
Frank Lyons Collection 1904

M

Mabee-Gerrer Museum of Art 3057
Charles H. MacNider Museum 1798
Madison Art Center 3459
James Madison University, Sawhill Gallery 3393
Magic Mountain Gallery 2262
Judah L. Magnes Museum 1088
Magnuson Gallery 1940
Main Trail Galleries 1048
Maine Coast Artists Gallery 1895
Maine Photographic Workshops 1896
University of Maine, Augusta, Jewitt Hall Gallery 1887
University of Maine, Art Gallery and Art Collection 1890
Makler Gallery 3133
Eric Makler Gallery 3134
Malton Gallery 3010
Mammen Gallery II 1049
Benjamin Mangel Gallery 3135
Manhattan Psychiatric Center's Sculpture Garden 2654
Eve Mannes Gallery 1585
Manolides Gallery 3427
Gracie Mansion Gallery 2655
Marbella Gallery 2656
Marian Goodman Gallery 2657
Frank Marino Gallery 2658
Mariposa Gallery 2216
Kathryn Markel Gallery 2659
James Marks Gallery 1382
Marlborough Gallery 2660
James Maroney 2661
Mars Gallery 1033
Marshall-Myers Gallery 1278
Mary-Anne Martin/Fine Art 2662
Marycrest College, Eberdt Art Gallery 1789
Maryhill Museum of Art 3412
Maryland Institute, College of Art, Decker and Meyerhoff Galleries 1905
Marymount College Gallery 2663
Maryville College, Beaumont Gallery 2101
Keane Mason Gallery 2664

Massachusetts College of Art, Thompson Gallery 1941
Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Hayden Gallery 1962
University of Massachusetts, Herter Art Gallery 1916
Masur Museum of Art 1855
Marsha Mateyka Gallery 1911
Barbara Mathes Gallery 2665
Matignon 2666
Mullaly Matisse Galleries 2007
Pierre Matisse Gallery 2667
Mattatuck Museum 1419
Mattress Factory 3172
Maxwell Galleries 1279, 1280
Ernesto Mayans Gallery 2240
Mayville State College, Gallery 2994
Stephen Mazoh & Co. 2668
Linda McAdoo Galleries 2241
McAllen International Museum 3343
Gross McCleaf Gallery 3136
McIntosh/Drysdale Gallery 3320
McIntosh Gallery 1586
David McKee Gallery 2669
Carrie M. McLain Memorial Museum 1023
McNay Art Institute 3347
Medici-Berenson Gallery 1479
Jack Meier Gallery 3321
Meinhard Galleries 3322
Louis K. Meisel Gallery 2670
Mekler Gallery 1171
Melrose Place Gallery 1172
Memphis Academy of Arts 3236
Memphis Botanical Gardens, Goldsmith Civic Garden Center 1772
Memphis State University 3237
Meredith Contemporary Art Gallery 1906
Merida Galleries 1835
Meridian Gallery 1698, 2217, 2671
Meridian Museum of Art 2074
Merrill's Gallery of Fine Art 2263
Edward H. Merrin Gallery 2672
Metro 1173
Metro Pictures 2673
Metropolitan Museum of Art 2674
Mexican Museum 1281
Meyer Breier Weiss 1282
Elise Meyer Gallery 2675
Kathleen Meyer Gallery 1836
Miami University, Art Museum 3035
Michael's Edition 1699
Joan Michelman 2676
Michigan State University, Kresge Art Gallery 2021
Mickelson Gallery 1458
Middendorf/Lane 1459
Middletown Fine Arts Center 3033
Midland Art Council of the Midland Center for the Arts 2031
Midtown Galleries 2677
Midwest Museum of American Art 1763
Miller Gallery 3011
Peter Miller Gallery 1700
Robert Miller Gallery 2678
Virginia Miller Galleries 1488
Miller/Topaz Gallery 1555
Milliken University, Kirkland Gallery-Studio Gallery 1735
Milliken University, Kirkland Gallery—Main Gallery 1736
Alexander F. Milliken 2679
Mills College Art Gallery 1208
Milwaukee Art Museum 3470
Mindscape Gallery and Studio 1743
Mingei-International Museum of World Folk Art 1118
Mingei Japanese Folk Art Gallery 2680
Minneapolis Institute of Arts 2055
Minnesota Museum of Art 2067
Minnesota Museum of Art Landmark Center 2068
Minot Art Gallery 2996
Minot State College, Hartnett Hall Gallery 2997
Minotaur Fine Arts 2147
Mint Museum of Art 2954
Mirage/Karl Bornstein Gallery 1324
Missal Gallery 1050
Missoula Museum of the Arts 2134
Mobilia Gallery 1963
Museum of Modern Art of Latin America 1460
Modern Master Tapestries 2681
Modern Realism 3277
Modernism 1283
Molliring Gallery, Four Seasons Hotel, Houston Center 3323
MoMing Gallery 1701
Mongerson Gallery 1702
Monroe Gallery/Loop Center YWCA 1703
Monsalve 2682
Montana Historical Society 2127
Montana State University, Fine Arts Gallery 2119
Montana State University, Museum of the Rockies 2120
Montclair Art Museum 2178
Montclair State College, College Art Gallery 2204
Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art 1198
Susan Montezinos Gallery 3137
Montgomery Museum of Fine Arts 1012
Montgomery-Taylor 1051
Monumental Sculptures 1461
Moody Gallery 3324
Moosart Gallery At Studio 38 1517
Thomas More College, T. M. Gallery 1825
More Gallery 3138
More-Rubin Gallery 2299
Morgan Gallery 1808
Morningstar Gallery 2683
Barbara Morris Gallery 1518
Donald Morris Gallery 2008
Morris Museum of Arts & Sciences 2181
Morse Gallery of Art 1560
Moss Gallery 1284
Tobey C. Moss Gallery 1174
Moulton Gallery 1080
Mount Holyoke College Art Museum 1984
Mount St. Mary's College, Fine Arts Gallery 1175
Multiples, Inc 2684
Victoria Munroe 2685
Munson Gallery 1408, 1967, 2242
Munson-Williams-Proctor Institute, Museum of Art 2942
Murray State University, Clara Eagle Art Gallery 1841
Muscatine Art Center 1799
Muse Gallery 3139
Museo De Arte De Ponce 3185
Museo del Barrio 2686
Museo Historico de Puerto Rico 3192
Museo-Italo Americano 1285
Museum of American Folk Art 2687
Museum of Art of Ogunquit 1889
Museum of Art, Fort Lauderdale 1497
Museum of Art, Science & Industry 1387
Museum of Arts and Sciences 1594
Museum of Arts and Sciences, Cuban Museum 1493
Museum of Contemporary Art 1704
Museum of Early Southern Decorative Arts 2982
Museum of Fine Arts, Boston 1942
Museum of Fine Arts, Houston 3325
Museum Of Fine Arts, Santa Fe 2243
Museum of Fine Arts, Springfield, MI 1985
Museum of Fine Arts, St. Petersburg 1552
Museum of Holography 2688
Museum of International Folk Art 2244
Museum of Modern Art 2689
Museum of Northern Arizona 1025
Museum of Oriental Cultures 3260
Museum of Science and Industry 1705
Museum of the American Indian, Heye Foundation 2690
Museum of the City of Mobile 1010
Museum of the City of New York 2691
Museum of the Fine Arts Research & Holographic Center 1706
Museum of the Plains Indian & Crafts Center 2121
Museum of The Southwest 3344
Museums at Stony Brook, Art Gallery 2935
Muskegon Museum of Art 2032

N

NAB Gallery 1707
Nabisco Brands USA Gallery 2167
Nahan Galleries 1874
Eduard Nakhamkin Fine Arts 2692, 2693
N.A.M.E. Gallery 1708
Naples Art Gallery 1523
Nashville Parthenon 3242
Nassau Community College, Firehouse Gallery 2321
Nassau County Museum of Fine Art 2922
National Academy of Design 2694
National Arts Club 2695
National Gallery of Art 1462
National Museum of American Art 1463
National Museum of American Art, Barney Studio House 1464
National Museum of American Art, Renwick Gallery 1465
National Portrait Gallery 1466
Navajo Gallery 2264
Nebraska Wesleyan University, Elder Gallery 2138
Phyllis Needlman Gallery 1709
Nelson-Atkins Museum of Art 2090
Netsky Gallery 1549
Neville Public Museum of Brown County 3455
Neville-Sargent Gallery 1744
New Britain Museum of American Art 1402
New England Center for Contemporary Art 1391
New Gallery of Contemporary Art 3020
New Harmony Gallery of Contemporary Art 1775
New Jersey State Council on the Arts 2201
New Jersey State Museum 2202
New Mexico State University, Art Gallery 2223
New Museum of Contemporary Art 2696
New Orleans Academy of Fine Arts, Academy Gallery 1875
New Orleans Museum of Art 1876
New Structures, Apparative Art 2091
New York Historical Society 2697
New York Public Library Schomburg Center 2698
New York State Museum, Cultural Education Center 2275
New York Studio School Gallery 2699
New York University, Contemporary Arts Gallery, Loeb Student Center 2700
New York University, Grey Art Gallery and Study Center 2701
Newark Museum 2184
Newhouse Galleries 2702
Newman Galleries 3101, 3140
Louis Newman 1093
Newport Harbor Art Museum 1201
Newspace 1176
Nexus Galleries 1587
Ni-Wo-Di-Hi Galleries 3250, 3278
Nicolaysen Art Museum 3480
Le Nid Galerie 2888
Nielsen Gallery 1943
Nikon House 2703
Meredith Niles Gallery 1315
Nimbus 3279
Nippon Club Gallery 2704
No Man's Land Historical Museum 3047
Noho Gallery 2705
Noortman and Brod 2706
North Carolina Central University, Museum of Art 2959
North Carolina Museum of Art 2976
North Country Museum of Arts 2063
North Dakota Museum of Art 2991
North Dakota State University, Memorial Union Art Gallery 2989
North Park College, Carlson Tower Gallery 1710
North Shore Sculpture Centre 2324
North Shore Unitarian Church, Plandome Gallery 2344
Northeast Louisiana University, Bry Gallery 1856
Northern Arizona University Art Gallery 1026
Northern Illinois University Gallery 200 1738
Northern Illinois University, Swen Parson Gallery 1737
Northern Illinois University Photospace 1739

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

Northern State College, Lincoln Hall Gallery 3215
Northport Galleries 2889
Northwest Artists Workshop 3083
Northwest Craft Center and Gallery 3428
Northwestern University, Mary and Leigh Block Gallery 1745
R. W. Norton Art Gallery 1886
Norton Gallery and School of Art 1561
Annina Nosei Gallery 2707
Novo Arts 2708
Now & Then Gallery 2314
Nyangoma's Gallery 1467

O

O'Brien's Art Emporium 1052
Hale O'Kula Gallery 1598
Oakland Museum, Art Division 1209
Oakland University, Meadow Brook Art Gallery 2037
Oates Gallery 3238
Oberlin College, Allen Memorial Art Museum 3034
Objects Gallery 3348
Occupied Space 3084
Ocean County Artists Guild 2173
Ocean Works 1202
Octagon Center for the Arts 1783
Odyssia Gallery 2709
Oehlschlaeger Galleries 1547
Ohio Arts Council, Gund Gallery 3028
Ohio Foundation on the Arts 3029
Ohio State University, Gallery of Fine Art 3030
Ohio University School of Art, Seigfred Gallery 3001
Oil & Steel Gallery 2710
O.K. Harris West 1053
O.K. Harris Works of Art 2580
Oklahoma Art Center 3051
Oklahoma Indian Art Gallery 3052
Oklahoma Museum Of Art 3053
Oklahoma State University, Gardiner Art Gallery 3058
Old Queens Gallery 2186
Old State House 1398
Lawrence Oliver 3141
Olsen Gallery 2711
Olson/Larsen Galleries 1791
Olympia Galleries 1588
124 Limited Arts Editions 2712
Only Originals 2205
Ophelia-Art To Wear 1550
Oranges/Sardines Gallery 1177
Sandra Zahn Oreck Gallery 1877
Oregon School of Arts and Crafts, Hoffman Gallery 3085
Organization of Independent Artists 2713
Oriental Institute Museum 1711
Original Prints Collectors' Group 2714
Orion Editions 2715
Orlando Gallery 1327
Ormond Beach War Memorial Art Gallery and Garden 1527
Oscarsson Hood Gallery 2716
Oshkosh Public Museum 3474
Osuna Gallery 1468
Otis Art Institute of Parsons School of Design 1178
Overland Trail Galleries 1054, 3484
Neil G. Ovsey Gallery 1179
Owensboro Museum of Fine Art 1843
Owl 57 Galleries 2947
Oxford Gallery 2916
Ozark Bazaar 1077

P

Pace Editions 2717
Pace Gallery of New York 2718
Pace Master Prints 2719
Pace Primitive Art 2720
Pace University Gallery 2721
Pacific Asia Museum 1220
Pacific Basin School of Textile Arts 1089
Pacific Lutheran University, Wekell Gallery 3443
Paducah Art Gallery 1844
Paideia Gallery 1180
Paige Gallery 3281
Paine Art Center and Arboretum 3475
Painted Bride Art Center 3142
Painting Space 122 Association Gallery 2722
Lillian Paley Center for the Visual Arts 1210
Palm Springs Desert Museum 1216
Herbert Palmer Gallery 1181
Palo Alto Cultural Center 1217
Paris Gibson Square 2125
Park Gallery 1837
Park West Galleries 2042
R. K. Parker 2723
Parkersburg Art Center 3450
Parrish Art Museum 2932
Pasadena Historical Society 1221
Patrick Gallery 3251
Payson Weisberg 2724
Peabody Museum of Salem 1983
Marilyn Pearl Gallery 2725
Pegasus Mint Gallery 2189
Marie Pellicone Gallery 2726, 2929
John Pence Gallery 1286
William Penn Memorial Museum 3110
Pennsylvania Academy of The Fine Arts 3143
Pennsylvania State University, Museum of Art 3178
Penryn Gallery 3429
Pensacola Museum of Art 1538
Peoria Art Guild 1754
Percival Galleries 1792
Perimeter Gallery 1712
Miriam Perlman 1713
Perls Galleries 2727
Petan Art Gallery 2195
Gerald Peters 2245
Petersburg Press 2728
Petersen Galleries 1094
Greta Peterson Galerie 3012
Anthony Petullo Fine Art 3471
Marcuse Pfeifer Gallery 2729
Philadelphia Art Alliance 3144
Philadelphia College of Art, Edith Rosenwald Gallery 3145
Philadelphia College of Art, Howard A. Wolf Gallery 3146
Philadelphia Museum of Art 3147
Philbrook Art Center 3063
Phillips Collection 1469
Phillips Gallery 3373
Phoenix Art Museum 1034
Phoenix Gallery 2730
Phoenix II 1470
Photo Graphics Workshop 1403
Photogenesis Gallery 2218
Photographers' Gallery 1540
Photography Gallery 1119
Photography Southwest Gallery 1055
Pickens County Art Commission-Art Museum 3208
Pictures of Paradise 1618
Pierce St Gallery 2009
Pierpont Morgan Library 2731
Pietrasanta Fine Arts 2732
Pindar Gallery 2733
Marilyn Pink/Master Prints & Drawings 1182
Pioneer Museum and Art Gallery 3066
Pittsburgh Plan for Art 3173
Pivan Gallery 1346
Plaza Gallery 1611
Pleiades Gallery 2734
Poindexter Gallery 2735
Stella Polaris Gallery 1183
Polk Public Museum 1508
Ponca City Art Association and Art Center 3056
Ponderosa Gallery 2131
Pontiac Art Center 2036
Poole-Wills Gallery 2736
Port of History Museum at Penn's Landing 3148
Port Washington Public Library 2903
Portfolio 3054
Portico 3149
Portland Art Museum 3086
Portland Center For The Visual Arts 3087
Portland Community College, North View Gallery 3088
Portland Museum of Art 1892
Portland State University, Littman Gallery 3089
Portland State University, White Gallery 3090
Theo Portnoy Gallery 2737
Portraits, Inc. 2738
Portsmouth Community Arts Center 3398
Posner Gallery 3472
Post Road Gallery 2341
Poster Originals 2739, 2740
Phyllis Powers Art Gallery 1521
Prakapas Gallery 2741
Pratt Manhattan Center Gallery 2742
Ellen Price Gallery 2743
Priestley Fine Art Gallery 2971
Prince Street Gallery 2744
Princeton Gallery of Fine Art 2192
Princeton University, Art Museum 2193
Print Cabinet 1392
The Print Club 3150
Printed Matter 2745
Printer's Row Galleries 1714
Printmaking Workshop 2746
Project Space Gallery 3071
Max Protetch Gallery 2747
Protetch/McNeil 2748
Provincetown Art Association and Museum 1980
PS Galleries 3282
P.S.D. Fine Arts Corporation 2749
Puccio's Gallery West 2102
Pucker-Safrai Gallery 1944
Purdue University Galleries 1781
Putumayo Folk Art Gallery 2750

Q

Quadrum Gallery 1968
Jill Quasha 2751
Quay Gallery 1287
Queen Emma Gallery 1609
Queens Museum, New York City Building 2319
Quinlin Art Center 1501
Quint Gallery 1235

R

Rahr-West Museum and Civic Center 3462
Ramapo College Art Gallery 2176
Roger Ramsay Gallery 1715
David S. Ramus Gallery 1589
Randall Galleries 2752
Randi's Art Gallery 1096
Randolph-Macon Woman's College, Maier Museum of Art 3395
Randolph Street Gallery 1716
Rauchbach Galleries 1480
Raw Space 1717
Raydon Gallery 2753
Reading Public Museum & Art Gallery 3177
Real Art Ways (RAW) 1399
Red Piano Art Gallery 3206
Redding Museum and Art Center 1223
Reece Galleries 2754
Reed College Art Gallery 3091
Reed Whipple Cultural Center 2148
Rehoboth Art League 1426
Dana Reich Gallery 1288
C. G. Rein Galleries 1369, 2048, 2056, 2246, 3326
C.G. Rein Galleries 1056
Reinhold-Brown Gallery 2755
Reiss-Cohen 2756
Renaissance International Arts 1388
Renaissance Society, At The University of Chicago 1718
Sarah Y. Rentschler Gallery 2287, 2757
Shahin Requicha Gallery 2917
Return 2265
Reynolda House Museum of American Art 2983
Reynolds Minor Gallery 3400
Rhode Island School of Design, Museum of Art 3196
Rhode Island School of Design, Woods-Gerry Gallery 3197
Ricco-Johnson Gallery 2758
Robert Rice Gallery 3327
Rice University, Sewall Art Gallery 3328
Rice University Institute for the Arts, Rice Museum 3329
Barry Richard Gallery 2057
Ann Kendall Richards 2759

Tally Richards Gallery 2266
Sid Richardson Collection of Western Art 3299
Richebourg/McCoy 2760
Richmond Art Gallery 1224
Rider College Art Gallery 2175
John and Mable Ringling Museum of Art 1548
Riverside Art Center and Museum 1225
Rizzoli Gallery 1719, 2761
Roanoke Museum of Fine Arts 3406
Roberson Center for the Arts and Sciences 2281
Robertson Gallery 1226
Robinson Galleries 3330
Esta Robinson Gallery 2762
James Robischon Contemporary Art 1343
Robley Gallery 2923
Abby Aldrich Rockefeller Folk Art Center 3409
Rockland Center for the Arts 2946
Rocky Mount Arts and Crafts Center 2978
Rodger LaPelle Galleries 3151
Rodin Museum 3152
Margarete Roeder Fine Art 2763
Arthur Roger Gallery 1878
Lauren Rogers Library and Museum of Art 2073
Millicent Rogers Museum 2267
Rogue Gallery 3074
Rolly-Michaux Galleries 1945, 2764
Ronin Gallery 2765
Rosco Louie Gallery 3430
Rosenbach Museum and Library 3167
Paul Rosenberg & Co 2766
Alex Rosenberg Gallery/Transworld Art 2767
Rosenberg Library 3301
Rosenfeld Gallery 3153
Betsy Rosenfield Gallery 1720
Rosenstock Arts 1370
Dorothy Rosenthal Gallery 1721
Sheldon Ross Gallery 2010
Rossi Gallery 2182
Roswell Museum and Art Center 2224
Rothko Chapel 3331
Sidney Rothman-The Gallery 2158
Rothschild Fine Arts 2768
Rotunda Gallery 2293
Route 66 3154
Royal Palm Gallery 1535
Rubiner Gallery 2039
Rudolph Galleries 1491, 2948
Jeffrey Ruesch Fine Arts 2769
Running Ridge Gallery 2247
Charles M. Russell Museum 2126
Jack Rutberg Fine Arts 1184
Rutger Gallery 2943
Rutgers University, Jane Zimmerli Art Museum 2187
Ruth Green's Little Art Gallery 2977
Mary Ryan Gallery 2770

S

Serge Sabarsky Gallery 2771
A. M. Sachs Gallery 2772
Sacred Circle Gallery of American Indian Art 3431
Saidenberg Gallery 2773
Saint Mary's College, Moreau Gallery 1776
Salander-O'Reilly Galleries 2774
Salt Lake Art Center 3374
Spencer A. Samuels 2775
San Antonio Museum Association 3349
San Antonio Museum of Art 3350
San Diego Art Institute 1236
San Diego Museum of Art 1237
San Diego State University, Art Gallery 1238
San Francisco Art Institute, Atholl McBean Gallery 1289
San Francisco Art Institute, Emanuel Walter Gallery 1290
San Francisco Museum of Modern Art 1291
San Francisco Museum of Modern Art, Rental Gallery 1292
San Jose Museum of Art 1307
San Jose State University, Gallery I 1308
Fred Sandback Museum 1991
Santa Barbara Museum of Art 1316
Santa Fe Center For Photography 2248
Santa Fe East Gallery 2249
Savage Galleries 1057, 2250
Jim Savage's Western Art Gallery 3227
Savannah College Of Art And Design, Exhibit A Gallery 1595
Savoy Art Investment 1421
William Sawyer Gallery 1293
Saxon Mountain Gallery 1377
William H. Schab Gallery 2776
Martha Schaeffer 2777
Ruth S. Schaffner Gallery 1317
Scharf Gallery 2251
Schenectady Museum 2926
Schlesinger-Boisante 2778
Robert Schoelkopf Gallery 2779
School of the Art Institute of Chicago Gallery 1722
School of Visual Arts, Visual Arts Museum 2780
Frank S. Schwarz & Son 3155
Martin Schweig Gallery 2103
Schweinfurth Art Center 2279
Schweitzer Gallery 2781
Schweyer-Galdo Galleries 2011
Scottsdale Center for the Arts 1058
Sculpture Center 2782
Seattle Art Museum 3432
Sebastian-Moore Gallery 1371
Francine Seders Gallery 3433,
Segal Gallery 2783, 2784
Thomas Segal Gallery 1946
Yvonne Séguy Gallery 2785
Segy Gallery of African Art 2786
Selma Fine Art 1294
Semaphore 2787
Serra-Di Felice 2788
Seth's Canyon Road Art Gallery 2252
David Settles Gallery 3332
Seuferer Chosy Gallery 3460
724 Prints 2789
Seventeen Wendell Street 1964
70th Art Gallery 2790
Tony Shafrazi Gallery 2791
Carol Shapiro Gallery 2104
Sheldon SWOPE Art Gallery 1779
Shephard Gallery 1976
Shepherd Gallery 2792
H. Shickman Gallery 2793
Shidoni Sculpture Gallery 2273
M.M. Shinno Gallery 1185
Helen Shlien Gallery 1947
Shoestring Gallery 2918
Shorney Gallery of Fine Art 3055
Showcase Gallery 1613
Shriver Gallery 2268
Siegel Contemporary Art 2794
Sierra Club Nature Photography Project 1211
Sierra Nevada Museum of Art 2151
Signature Gallery 1948, 1949, 1971
Signatures Gallery 2169
Signet Arts 2105
Sigoloff Gallery 3351
Brent- Sikkema/Vision Gallery 1950
Silver Image Gallery 3434
Silver Vision 3064
Nathan Silberberg Fine Arts 2795
Linda R. Silverman 2796
Silvermine Guild Center For The Arts 1404
Simon Gallery 2179
Norton Simon Museum 1222
Simons Lucet Art Gallery 3283
Merton D. Simpson Gallery 2797
Alice Simsar Gallery 1995
Sindin Galleries 2798
Nancy Singer Gallery 2106
Elizabeth M. Sinnock Gallery, Quincy Art Club 1756
Sioux City Art Center 1800
Sioux Indian Museum and Crafts Center 3223
Ana Sklar Gallery 1481
Skydome Gallery 1829
Slater Memorial Museum and Converse Art Gallery 1412
Smith Andersen Gallery 1218
Smith College, Museum of Art 1977
Smith Gallery 2799
Smith-Girard 1416
Smithtown Township Arts Council 2934
Snow Goose Eskimo Art 3435
Society of the Four Arts 1536
SoHo Center For Visual Artists 2800
SoHo Photo 2801
Soho South Contemporary Gallery of Art 1539
SoHo 20 2802
Soker-Kaseman Gallery 1295
Solomon & Company Fine Art 2803
Holly Solomon Gallery 2804
Carl Solway Gallery 3013
Somerhill Gallery 2960
Sonnabend Gallery 2805, 2806
Sonoma State University, University Art Gallery 1228
Soufer Gallery 2807
Source Gallery 1296
South Arkansas Arts Center 1076
South Carolina State College, I.P. Stanback Museum/Planetarium 3207
South Dakota Memorial Art Center 3216
South Dakota State University, Rita Gallery 3217
South Street Seaport Museum 2808
Southeast Arkansas Arts and Sciences Center 1082
Southeastern Center for Contemporary Art (SECCA) 2984
Southern Alleghenies Museum of Art, Saint Francis College Mall 3113
Southern California Contemporary Art Galleries, Los Angeles Art Association 1186
Southern Exposure Art Gallery 2075
Southern Illinois University, University Museum 1628
Southern Methodist University, Meadows Museum and Meadows Gallery 3284
Southern Ohio Museum and Cultural Center 3038
Southern Plains Indian Museum and Crafts Center 3045
Southern Utah State College, Braithwaite Fine Arts Gallery 3358
Southwest Gallery 3285
Southwest Museum 1187
Southwestern College, Clough-Hansom Gallery 3239
Space Gallery 1188
Spaced Gallery of Architecture 2809
Spaces 3021
Ira Spanierman 2810
Spark Gallery 1372
Sparta Gallery 2197
Spartanburg County Art Association Gallery 3212
Spectrum 15 Art Gallery 2944
Spectrum Gallery 1471
J. B. Speed Art Museum 1838
Sperone Westwater Fischer 2811
Susan Spiritus Gallery 1203
Clare Spitler Works of Art 1996
Spiva Art Center 2080
B.J. Spoke Gallery 2904
Spring Street Enamels Gallery 2812
Springfield Art Museum 2093
Ellen Sragow Gallery 2813
St. Albus Fine Arts 1723
St. Charles Gallery 1879
St. John's Museum of Art 2980
St. Johnsbury Athenaeum 3382
St. Joseph Art Association, Krasl Art Center 2044
St. Joseph's University Gallery 3156
St. Lawrence University, Richard F. Brush Art Gallery 2300
St. Louis Art Museum 2107
St. Mary's College of California, Hearst Art Gallery 1199
St. Tammany Art Association 1849
Stable Gallery 3375
Stables Art Center 2269
Staempfli Gallery 2814
Stanford University, Museum of Art 1330
Stanley and Schenck 1590
Stark Museum of Art 3345
Elaine Starkman 2815
State Historical Society of Missouri 2078

VOL 71
ISS 7
AG 1983
UMI

State University College, Brainerd Art Gallery 2905
State University of New York, Myers Fine Arts Gallery 2898
State University of New York, Rockwell Kent Gallery 2899
State University of New York, Albany, University Art Gallery 2276
State University of New York, Binghamton, University Art Gallery 2282
State University of New York, New Paltz, College Art Gallery 2346
State University of New York, Oswego, Tyler Art Gallery 2896
State University of New York, Purchase, Neuberger Museum 2907
State University of New York, Stony Brook 2936
Staten Island Museum 2933
Station Gallery 1424
Stavaridis Gallery 1951
Stefanotti Gallery 2816
Samuel Stein Fine Arts 1724
Bernice Steinbaum Gallery 2400
Paul Steinhacker 2817
Jane Steinsnyder 3157
Stephan Fine Arts 1017
Stephan Fine Arts Gallery 1018
Stewart Gallery 3286
Stifel Fine Arts Center 3451
Stillwater Gallery 3436
John C. Stoller 2058
Will Stone Collection 1297
Allan Stone Gallery 2818
Jeremy Stone Gallery 1298
Stones Gallery 1621
Storm King Art Center 2345
Stowell Galleries 3448
Strecker Gallery 1807
Stremmel Galleries 2152
David Stuart Galleries 1189
Studio 53 2819
Studio Gallery 2940
Studio Museum in Harlem 2820
Studio Planet Earth 2821
Studio 7 and Gallery 1599
Stux Gallery 1952
Styria Studio 2822
Martin Sumers Graphics 2823
Summa Galleries 1095
Summit 2824
Summit Art Center 2198
Sun Valley Center Gallery 1626
Sunbow Gallery 3092
John H. Surovek Fine Arts 1537
Sutton Gallery 2825
Swan Galleries 3158, 3159
Swearingen Gallery 1839
Sweet Briar College, Babcock/Benedict Galleries 3407
Swope Gallery 1190
Syracuse University, Joe and Emily Lowe Art Gallery 2941
John Szoke Graphics 2826

T

Tacoma Art Museum 3444
Taft Museum 3014
Leila Taghinia-Milani 2827
Tahir Gallery 1880
Amaury Taittinger 2366
Tamar Arts 2828
Tamarind Institute 2219
Tampa Museum 1556
Taos Art Association, Stables Art Center 2270
Tasende Gallery 1120
Joy Tash Gallery 1059
Tate Galleries 1557
Tatistcheff and Company 2829
Tatyana Gallery 2830
Taylor Gallery 2271
Carol Taylor, Art 3287
Telfair Academy of Arts & Science 1596
Temple Museum 3022
Temple University, Tyler School of Art 3160
Ten Arrow 1965
Gallery 10 1060
Tennessee Fine Arts Center, Cheekwood 3243
Martha Tepper Contemporary Fine Arts 1992
Terra Museum of American Art 1746
Terrain Gallery 2831
H. Terry-Engell Gallery 2832
Texas Christian University, Brown-Lupton and Moudy Galleries 3300
Texas Gallery 3333
Texas Tech University, Art Dept Teaching Gallery 3340
Textile Museum 1472
Thackrey and Robertson 1299
A Thing of Beauty—Gallery at Waiohai 1623
Thomas College, Art Gallery 1899
Carol Thornton Gallery 2253
Edward Thorp Gallery 2833
Tilden-Foley Gallery 1881
Timken Art Gallery 1239
Tivoli Gallery 3376
Toledo Museum Of Art 3042
Barbara Toll Fine Arts 2834
Tongass Historical Society Museum 1022
Tortue Gallery 1325
Tossan-Tossan Gallery 2835
Touchstone Gallery 1473, 2836
Tower Park Gallery 1755
Town Center Gallery 2043
Towson State University, Holtzman Art Gallery 1914
Trailside Galleries 1035, 1061, 3483
Transamerica Pyramid Gallery 1300
Traver Sutton Gallery 3437
Tria Gallery 3454
Triangle Gallery 1301
Tribal Arts Gallery 2837
Trisdonn Contemporary Gallery 2894
Trisdonn Gallery 2895
Triton Museum of Art 1319
Helene Trosky 2908
Troy Art Gallery 2045
Tubac Center Of The Arts 1068
Tucson Museum of Art 1072
Tulane University, Newcomb Art Gallery 1882
Tung Yah 1121
David Tunick 2838
Turner Museum 1373
Tweed Arts Group 2190
20th Century Gallery 3161
Twenty-six Horses 2839
22 Wooster 2840
Twining Gallery 2841
Tyler Museum of Art 3354

U

Udinotti Gallery 1062
Ukranian Institute of Modern Art 1725
Union College, Tomasulo Gallery 2165
Union County Public Library 2973
University Art Museum 1090
University of Akron, Emily Davis Gallery 3000
University of Alabama, Gallery of Art 1007
University of Alabama, Moody Gallery of Art 1013
University of Alaska 1020
University of Arizona, Center for Creative Photography 1073
University of Arizona Museum of Art 1074
University of Arkansas, Fine Arts Center Gallery 1078
University of Bridgeport, Carlson Gallery 1389
University of California, California Museum of Photography 1227
University of California, Davis, Richard L. Nelson Gallery 1105
University of California, Irvine, Fine Art Gallery 1109
University of California, Los Angeles, Frederick S Wight Art Gallery 1191
University of California, San Diego, Mandeville Art Gallery 1122
University of California, Santa Barbara, University Art Museum 1318
University of California, Santa Cruz, Sesnon Gallery, Porter College 1321
University of Chicago, David and Alfred Smart Gallery 1726
University of Cincinnati, Tangeman Fine Arts Gallery 3015
University of Colorado, University Memorial Center Gallery 1347
University of Colorado Art Galleries 1348
University of Connecticut, William Benton Museum of Art 1418
University of Delaware, Old College, University Gallery 1425
University of Denver, School of Art Gallery 1374
University of Florida, University Gallery 1502
University of Hawaii, Art Gallery 1610
University of Houston, Sarah Campbell Blaffer Gallery 3334
University of Houston, Downtown College, O'Kane Gallery 3335
University of Illinois, A. Montgomery Ward Gallery 1727
University of Illinois, Krannert Art Museum 1630
University of Illinois, World Heritage Museum 1759
University of Iowa, Museum of Art 1796
University of Kansas, Spencer Museum of Art 1806
University of Kentucky, Art Museum 1830
University of Massachusetts, University Gallery 1917
University of Miami, Lowe Art Museum 1492
University of Michigan, Museum of Art 1997
University of Minnesota, Duluth, Tweed Museum of Art 2047
University of Minnesota, Minneapolis, University Gallery 2059
University of Mississippi, Art Department 2076
University of Mississippi, University Museums 2077
University of Missouri, Gallery 210 2108
University of Missouri, Columbia, Museum of Art and Archaeology 2079
University of Missouri, Kansas City, Gallery of Art 2092
University of Nebraska, Lincoln, Sheldon Memorial Art Gallery 2139
University Of Nevada, Fine Art Gallery 2149
University of Nevada, Reno, Sheppard Fine Arts Gallery 2153
University of New Mexico, Jonson Gallery 2220
University of New Mexico, University Art Museum 2221
University of New Orleans, Fine Arts Gallery 1884
University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, Ackland Art Museum 2953
University of North Carolina, Greensboro, Weatherspoon Art Gallery 2966
University of North Dakota, Hughes Fine Arts Center 2992
University of Northern Iowa, Gallery of Art 1785
University of Notre Dame, Snite Museum of Art 1777
University of Oklahoma, Norman, Museum of Art 3049
University of Oregon, Museum of Art 3072
University of Pennsylvania, Institute of Contemporary Art 3162
University of Pennsylvania, University Museum 3163
University of Pittsburgh, University Art Gallery 3174
University of Portland, Buckley Center Gallery 3093
University of Puerto Rico, Museum of Anthropology, History and Art 3186
University Of Rhode Island, Main Gallery 3193
University of Santa Clara, De Saisset Museum 1320
University of South Carolina, McKissick Museums 3200
University of South Carolina, Spartanburg, Library Art Gallery 3213
University of South Dakota University Art Galleries, Warren M. Lee Center for the Fine Arts 3229

University of the South, Fine Arts Gallery 3245
University of South Florida, USF Galleries, College of Fine Arts 1558
University of Southern California, Los Angeles, University Art Galleries 1192
University of Southern Colorado, University Gallery 1383
University of Southwestern Louisiana, Union Art Gallery 1853
University of Southwestern Louisiana, University Art Center 1854
University of Tampa, Lee Scarfone Gallery 1559
University of Tennessee, Art Department 3233
University of Tennessee, Frank H. McClurg Museum 3234
University of Texas, Arlington, University Art Gallery 3248
University of Texas, Austin, Huntington Art Gallery, Art Building 3253
University of Texas, Austin, Huntington Art Gallery, Ransom Center 3252
University of Texas, San Antonio, College of Fine Arts & Humanities Gallery 3352
University of Tulsa, Alexandre Hogue Gallery 3065
University of Utah, Utah Museum of Fine Arts 3377
University of Vermont, Robert Hull Fleming Museum 3380
University of Virginia 3390
University of Washington, Henry Art Gallery 3438
University of Wisconsin, Green Bay 3456
University of Wisconsin, Madison, Elvehjem Museum of Art 3461
University of Wisconsin, Milwaukee, Art History Gallery 3473
University of Wyoming, Art Museum 3485
Upstairs Gallery 2337
Uptown Gallery 2843
Urban Institute for Contemporary Arts, Race Street Gallery 2026
Bertha Urdang Gallery 2844
Utah Arts Council, Glendinning Gallery 3378
Utah State University, Nora Eccles Harrison Museum of Art 3359

V

V & R Fine Arts 2325
Valand Art Gallery 1524
Valentine Museum 3401
Valhalla Gallery 1814
Valley House Gallery 3288
Valparaiso University, Art Galleries and Collections 1780 van Buren/Brazelton/Cutting Gallery 1966
van Straaten Gallery 1728
Vanderbilt Art Gallery 3244
Vanderwoude/Tananbaum 2845
Vasarely Center 2846
Vassar College Art Gallery 2906
Verbena 2847
Vered Gallery 2312
Vermillion Editions 2060
Verzyl Gallery 2890
Veloy Vigil 2272
Villa Vizcaya Museum and Gardens 1519
Village Galleries 1619
Diane Villani Editions 2848
Virginia Commonwealth University, Anderson Gallery 3403
Virginia Museum Of Fine Arts 3404
Viridian Space 2849
Visconti Gallery 1953
Visual Arts Center of Alaska 1019
Visual Arts Gallery 2850
Visual Studies Workshop 2919
Volcano Art Center 1624
Von Grabill Gallery 1063
Vorpal Gallery 1302, 2851
Vose Galleries of Boston 1954

W

Theo Waddington & Co 2852
Wadle Galleries 2254
Wadsworth Atheneum 1400
Wadsworth Gallery 3102
B. Z. Wagman Gallery 2109
Wailoa Center 1597
Wake Forest University, Fine Arts Gallery 2985
Walker Art Center 2061
Walnut Creek Civic Arts Gallery 1340
Barbara Walter Gallery 2853
Walters Art Gallery 1907
Walton - Gilbert Galleries 1303
Ward-Nasse Gallery 2854
WARM: Women's Art Registry of Minnesota 2062
Washburn Gallery 2855
Washington and Lee University, duPont Gallery 3394
Washington Irving Gallery 2856
Washington Project for the Arts 1474
80 Washington Square East Galleries 2857
Washington Square Outdoor Art Exhibit 2858
Washington State University, Museum of Art 3414
Washington University, Gallery of Art 2110
Washington Women's Arts Center 1475
Waterloo Municipal Galleries 1801
Waterworks Gallery 2979
Watson/de Nagy 3336
Webb & Parsons 1405
Weber Galleries 2891
John Weber Gallery 2859
Webster/Wallnuts Gallery 3164
Phyllis Weil & Co 2860
Daniel Weinberg Gallery 1193, 1304
Jan Weiner Gallery 1809
Weintraub Gallery 2861
Morton B. Weiss Museum of Judaica 1729
Wellesley College Museum, Jewett Arts Center 1988
Wenger Gallery 1240
Wenniger Graphic 1982
Wenniger Graphics 1955
Wesleyan University, Davison Art Center 1401
West Side Gallery 1036
West Virginia Guild Gallery 3446
Westbeth Gallery I 2862
Westbrook College, Joan Whitney Payson Gallery of Art 1893
Westbury Gallery 2863
Western Kentucky University Gallery, Ivan Wilson Center for Fine Arts 1821
Western Montana College, Western Art Gallery 2123
Westlake Gallery 3439
Westminster Gallery 1956
Westmoreland County Museum of Art 3108
Edward Weston Galleries 2864
Weston Gallery 1100
Weston Press and Gallery 2865
Westwood Galleries 3094
Weyhe Gallery 2866
Whatcom Museum of History and Art 3411
Wheelwright Museum of the American Indian 2255
Whichcraft Studio 2196
Whistler's Daughter Gallery 2159
White Columns 2867
Stephen White Gallery of Photography 1195
Martha White Gallery 1840
Whiting Art Center 1003
Whitney Museum of American Art 2868
Whitney Museum of American Art Downtown Branch 2869
Whitney Museum of American Art, Fairfield County 1417
Jon Whittington Gallery 2072
Wichita Art Museum 1815
Wichita Falls Museum and Art Center 3356
Wichita Gallery of Fine Arts 1816
Wichita State University, Edwin A. Ulrich Museum of Art 1817
Wiebe & Bonwell Galleries 3175
Wildenstein & Co. 2870
Wildine Galleries 2222
Wilkes Art Gallery 2975
Wilkes College, Sordoni Art Gallery 3179
Willard Gallery 2871
William Paterson College, Ben Shahn Galleries 2206
Williams College, Museum of Art 1990
Willis Gallery 2020
James Willis Gallery 1305
Gayle Willson Gallery 2930
Wing Luke Memorial Museum 3440
Winterthur Museum and Gardens 1430
Stephen Wirtz Gallery 1306
Ruth Wiseman Gallery 3289
Witkin Gallery 2872
Wofford College, Sandor Teszler Library Gallery 3214
Daniel Wolf 2873
Wood Art Gallery 3381
Woodard's Native American Art Gallery 2256
Woodbridge Township Cultural Arts Commission 2208
Woodmere Art Gallery 3165
Woodside Braseth Gallery 3441
Leigh Yawkey Woodson Art Museum 3479
Worcester Art Museum 1993
The Works Gallery 3166
WORKS San Jose 1309
Works II Gallery 2931
Worthington Gallery 1730
Frank Lloyd Wright Museum 3477
Wunderlich & Company 2874
Gerhard Wurzer Gallery 3337
Charles A. Wustum Museum of Fine Arts 3476
Malinda Wyatt Gallery 1339
Wyckoff Gallery 2209
Wyoming State Museum Art Gallery 3481

X

Xochipilli Art Gallery 2012

Y

Yale Center for British Art 1409
Yale University Art Gallery 1410
Yares Gallery 1064
David C. Yates 2875
Yellowstone Art Center 2117
Yeshiva University Museum 2876
Yolanda Fine Arts 1760
Richard York Gallery 2877
York Institute Museum 1897
Young Hoffman Gallery 1731
Yuma Art Center 1075

Z

Zabriskie 2878, 2880
Zaks Gallery 1732
Zaner Gallery 2920
Zanesville Art Center 3044
Zarick Art Galleries 1394
Andre Zarre Gallery 2881
Zigler Museum 1850
Zim-Lerner 2882
Zolla/Lieberman Gallery 1733
Zoma Gallery 2883
Zona 2884

VOL 71
ISS 7
AG
1983
UMI

Coming in February...

Dorothea Rockburne, Guardian Angel #2, 1982, watercolor on vellum 77 by 42 inches. Collection Museum of Modern Art, NY. Photo courtesy Xavier Fourcade, N.Y.

...Order in Advance!

Art in America's

1983 Full-Color Slide Survey of Contemporary Art

200 four-color slides of outstanding contemporary art works published in Art in America in 1983 . . . as selected by the editors.

This is the second annual edition of the art world's most enlightening slide survey of the state of contemporary art. It is all-new, all-different, and, like the 1982 edition*, will prove an invaluable aid to slide librarians throughout the country. Art in America will deliver this new collection in February, 1984. To be among the first to receive it, please order now. Each slide is shot from the original transparency and filmed on high quality Kodak stock. The result is a superbly reproduced collection, enabling slide librarians to systematically update and strengthen their coverage and review of contemporary art. The cost is the same as last year—$295, slightly less than $1.50 per slide. A separate index accompanies the slides, for ready reference to the issues and pages of Art in America in which they appeared. Slide libraries may send purchase orders or enclose remittance, whichever is more convenient. But be sure to mail the coupon today.

*A small number of the 1982 series is available. If you would like a set, please indicate below. The same remittance ($295) applies.

Art in America's
1983 Slide Survey of Contemporary Art
850 Third Avenue, New York, NY 10022

For additional information call:
(212) 715-2681

☐ Please send us the 1983 Full-Color Slide Survey of Contemporary Art—200 slides for just $295.00.
☐ Please send us the 200-slide 1982 edition @ $295.00.

☐ Send invoice ☐ Purchase Order enclosed ☐ Payment enclosed

Name____________________ Title__________
Institution____________________
Address____________________
City __________ State __________ Zip__________

NB: Non-Institutional orders must be pre-paid

AG

INDEX TO

Catalogs

A

ABBOTT, Berenice: Berenice Abbott: The 20's and the 30's by Barbara Shissler Nosanow (24pp, Free) 1463
ABELES, Sigmund: Sigmund Abeles: The First 20 Years (15pp, $1.00) 3358
ABISH, Cecile: Cecile Abish: From the Marble Works, 1974-1979 by Lawrence Alloway (12pp) 2936
ACCONCI, Vito: Vito Acconci: 60 Minute Cassette ($8.00) 1238
ACHEPOHL, Keith: Keith Achepohl: Images 70-82 (12pp, $1.00) 1801
ADAMS, Ansel: Ansel Adams by M. Alinder 1198
ADAMS, Ansel: An American Place by Andrea Gray (82pp, $15.00) 1291
ADDISON, Robert: Addison Retrospective by D. Steinberg (32pp, Free) 1647
ADORNO, Olga: Olga Adorno (16pp, $5.00) 2566
AKSTON, J. James: Monumental Bronzes & Tapestries (8pp, $1.50) 1561
ALBERS, Josef: Josef Albers: His Art and His Influence (56pp, $12.00) 2178
ALEXANDER, Francesca: Francesca Alexander (16pp, $5.00) 2360
ALI: Ali: Cloth Paintings & Graphics by Nagano (11pp) 1944
AMICO, David: Sonata by David Amico (15pp, $4.00) 1201
ANDERSON, Walter: Walter Anderson: Sea, Earth, Sky (30pp, $5.00) 2073
ANDRESON, Laura: Laura Andreson (95pp, $14.95) 1118
ANISFELD, Boris: Boris Anisfeld 1879-1973 (16pp, $5.00) 1674
ANREUS, Alejandro: Alejandro Anreus by Enrique Labrador Ruiz (4pp, $2.00) 2011
ANTONAKIS, Costa: Costa Antonakis: Smalta (5pp, Free) 1067
ANTONAKOS, Stephen: New Works/1982 by David Shapiro (40pp, $5.00) 2922
ARAKAWA: Arakawa by Nicholas Calas (25pp) 1074
ARISMAN, Marshall: Arisman (48pp, $8.00) 1269
ARITA, Akira: Akira Arita: Drawings and Paintings (4pp) 2814
ARNESON, Robert: Robert Arneson: The Alice House (32pp, $5.00) 1105
ATGET, Eugene: Atget's Vision by Anstiss Drake (42pp, $12.00) 1683
ATGET, Eugene: The Work of Atget: Old France: Vol 1 by John Szarkowski and Maria Morris Hambourg (180pp, $40.00) 2055
ATGET, Eugene: The Work of Atget: The Art of Old Paris, Vol II by John Szarkowski and Maria Morris Hambourg (192pp, $40.00) 2689
AUDUBON, John James: John James Audubon and his Sons by G. A. Reynolds (88pp, $15) 2701
AVERY, Milton: Milton Avery by Barbara Haskell (224pp, $20.00) 2868
AVERY, Milton: Milton Avery on Paper by P. Gruninger (4pp, Free) 1417
AVERY, Milton: Milton Avery-Transcending Years: 1940-41 (16pp, $8.00) 1064
AVERY, Milton: Retrospective (1933-63) by Alice Nash (12pp, $2.50) 1522
AVERY, Milton: Milton Avery (13pp, $4.00) 1763

B

BABER, Alice: Alice Baber by Virginia Pitts Rembert (18pp) 1013
BAENDERECK, Sepp: Sepp Baendereck by Pierre Restany (10pp, Free) 2637
BAEZ, Myrna: Myrna Baez: 10 Years (30pp, $8.00) 2686
BAILEY, Clayton: Robot Sculptures, the Robot Builder's Manual: Metal Works by Clayton Bailey by Clayton Bailey and Joanne Hernandez (20pp, $8.00) 1319
BAILEY, William: William Bailey—Recent Paintings by Mark Strand ($10.00) 2779
BALDESSARI, John: John Baldessari: Art as Riddle ($6.00) 3403
BANKHEAD, Judy: Judy Bankhead: My Town (127pp., $12.50) 3349,3350
BAR, Nelli: Nelli Bar (30pp, $5.00) 1740
BARBER, John: The Artist, The Man by R. H. Love (189pp, $25.00) 1695
BARBOZA, Anthony: Introspect: The Photography of Anthony Barboza (32pp, $8.00) 2820
BARTLETT, Bo: Bo Bartlett (16pp, Free) 1593
BARTLETT, Jennifer: I--80 Series: by Holliday T. Day (4pp, $2.00) 2143
BASHOR, John: John Bashor by Dennis O'Leary (12pp, $2.00) 1625
BASKIN, Leonard: Leonard Baskin (6pp, Free) 1785
BASKIN, Leonard: Sculpture and Watercolors ($10.00) 2626
BATONI, Pompeo: Pompeo Batoni (1708-1787) by Edgar Peters Bowron (55pp, $10) 2446
BEARDEN, Romare: Romare Bearden by Edward Weeks (6pp, $2.00) 1001
BEARDEN, Romare: Romare Bearden—Collages (15pp, $3.00) 3039
BECKMAN, William: William Beckman, Landscape Pastels by John Arthur (16pp, $6.00) 2528
BELL, Larry: Larry Bell: New Work (88pp) 2017
BELL, Larry: On the Eclipse, New Works by Larry Bell (20pp, $4.50) 1201
BENINI, : Benini (8pp, Free) 1509
BENN, Ben: Ben Benn (16pp, $8.00) 1415
BENTON, Thomas Hart: Benton's Bentons by Broun, Hyland and Stokstad (72pp, $8.00) 1006,1081,2093
BENTON, Thomas Hart: Thomas Hart Benton Synchronist Paintings 1915-1920 (23pp, $10.00) 2774
BENTON, Thomas Hart: Thomas Hart Benton: Lithographs (32pp, $5.00) 3011
BENVENUTO, Elio: Elio Benvenuto: A Survey of 50 Years of Sculpture and Drawing (47pp, $4.95) 1224,1285
BERLANT, Tony: Tony Berlant: Recent Work by Cherlyl A. Brutvan (8pp, $2.00) 3305
BERSENTES, Nafsika: Nafsika Bersentes Astron II (5pp, $1.50) 2938
BIERSTADT, Albert: Oil Sketches by Matthew Baigell (16pp, $1.00) 2465
BISCHOFF, Franz A.: Paintings of Franz A. Bischoff by J. Stern (56pp, $15.00) 1094
BLACKBURN, Ed: Focus: Ed Blackburn (20pp, $5.00) 3294
BLAGDEN, Allen: Allen Blagden ($6.00) 2626
BLAKE, William: William Blake: His Art and Times by David Bindman (192pp, $15.00) 1409
BLOCK, Gay: Gay Block: Portraits by Marti Mayo (6pp, $2.00) 3305
BLUEMNER, Oscar: The New Jersey Years: Drawings & Watercolors by J.R. Hayes (20pp, $5.00) 2176
BOGHOSIAN, Varujan: Varujan Boghosian ($5.00) 2454
BONNEY, Anne: Anne Bonney (4pp, $2.00) 3027
BOTKIN, Henry: Henry Botkin: Paintings, Drawings, & Collages, 1929-1981 by Herman Mhire (20pp) 1854
BOURDETTE, Christine: Christine Bourdette by Larry Lunde (4pp) 1691
BOURGEOIS, Louise: Bourgeois Truth by Robert Pincus Witten (60pp, $10.00) 2678
BOURGEOIS, Louise: Louise Bourgeois by Deborah Wye (124pp, $12.50) 2689
BOWERS, Harry: Harry Bowers: Photographs by Thomas H. Garver (4pp, $2.00) 1637
BOWKER, R. G.: Paintings & Sculpture by R. G. Bowker (4pp, Free) 3223
BOXER, Stanley: Stanley Boxer: New Paintings ($4.00) 2494
BRADY, Robert: Ceramic Sculpture by Thomas Garvey (6pp, $.50) 3459
BRADY, Robert: Tapestries: Robert Brady (16pp, $6.00) 1139
BRANCUSI, Constantine: Brancusi Photographer by Ken Sichle (124pp., $17.50) 3349,3350
BRANDT, Warren: Warren Brandt; Three from North Carolina (20pp) 2964
BREMNER, Susan: Susan G. Bremner (6pp., $1.00) 2224

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

BRETON, Jules: Jules Breton and the French Rural Tradition by Hollister Sturges (148pp. $28.50) 2143
BRISSON, Jean: Jean Brisson and His Work (8pp, $2.00) 2031
BROUET, Auguste: Auguste Brouet: A Retrospective (8pp, Free) 1381
BROUWER, Adrian: Adrian Brouwer and David Teniers by M. Klinge ($25) 2706
BROWN, Wayne: Wayne Brown by Mitchell D. Kahan (6pp, Free) 1012
BROWNE, Byron: Byron Browne: A Retrospective (1928-61) by April Paul (12pp, $2.50) 1522
BROWNING, Colleen: Recent Paintings ($6.00) 2626
BUONAGURIO, Edgar: Edgar Buonagurio: Recent Paintings by Douglas Blau, Jerald L. Melberg (16pp, $3.00) 2881
BURCHFIELD, Charles E.: Burchfield Seasons ($15.00) 2626
BURNS, Mark: Mark Burns: Fairy Tales (4pp, $1.00) 3121
BURRI, Alberto: Alberto Burri by Jan Butterfield (32pp, $17.50) 1216
BURROUGHS, Margaret: Margaret Burroughs-Marion Perkins: A Retrospective (20pp, $5.00) 1440
BUTTERFIELD, Deborah: Deborah Butterfield's Horses (24pp, $2.00) 1625

C

CADMUS, Paul: Paul Cadmus: Yesterday and Today by Philip Eliasoph (148pp, $14.00) 1418,3198
CALLAHAN, Harry: Harry Callahan by Hallmark Cards (100pp, $10.00) 1628
CAMPBELL, Craig: Craig Campbell: Studio Glass (14pp., $3.00) 2087
CAPLES, Robert Cole: Robert Cole Caples: The Man and His Work by Growdon (20pp., $2.50) 2151
CARLSON, George: George Carlson: Sculptor's Drawings (4pp, Free) 1381
CARO, Anthony: Anthony Caro: Bronze Screens and Table Sculptures ($4.00) 2494
CARO, Anthony: Paper Sculpture 2494
CARTIER-BRESSON, Henri: Henri Cartier-Bresson 1942
CARTIER-BRESSON, Henri: Henri Cartier-Bresson (155pp, $60.00) 1291
CASSATT, Mary: Mary Cassat: Graphic Art by A. D. Breeskin (66pp, $10.00) 3168
CASTLE, James: James Castle by Sandy Harthorn (8pp, $1.00) 1625
CATLETT, Elizabeth: Sculpture and Graphics (10pp, $2.00) 3039
CHADWICK, William: 1879-1962: An American Impressionist by R. H. Love (110pp, $15.00) 1695
CHEEK, Ronald: Drawings by Ronald Cheek (4pp, Free) 3223
CHEN, Tsing-fang: The Neo-Iconography of Tsing-fang Chen by Lawrence Jeppson (62pp, $6.00) 1446
CHERNOW, Ann: The,Candice Series by Robert Bianchi (8pp, $2.00) 2767
CHIHULY, Dale: Chihuly by Linda Norden (77pp, $25.00) 3166
CHRISTENBERRY, William: William Christenberry: Southern Views 3329
CHRISTENSEN, James: Works of James Christensen (25pp, $5.00) 3363
CHRISTO: Christo by Robert McDonald (141pp) 1117
CHRYSSA: Chryssa by Douglas G. Schultz 2294
CHURCH, Frederic: Cole & Church (4pp, Free) 3327
COHEN GAN, Pinchas: Pinchas Cohen Gan (8pp, $1.00) 1289, 1290
COIGNARD, James: Paintings (6pp, $3.00) 2767
COLE, Thomas: Cole & Church (4pp, Free) 3327
COLESCOTT, Robert: Robert Colescott (16pp, $1.50) 2787
COLON-MORALES, Rafael: Children of Darkness (32pp, $8.00) 2686
CONLON, William: William Conlon: Painting 1969-1981 (16pp, $6.00) 3168
COPE, Louise Todd: Louise Todd Cope (4pp, $1.00) 3121
CORBERO, Xavier: X. Corbero (16pp, $5.00) 1674
CORNELL, Joseph: Joseph Cornell: An Exploration of Sources by Lynda Roscoe Hartigan (48pp, $2.00) 1463
CORNELL, Joseph: Joseph Cornell: Art and Metaphysics by Sandra Starr (92pp, $17.50) 2428
COTTINGHAM, Robert: Robert Cottingham New Works by Frank H. Goodyear, Jr. (30pp, $5.00) 2627
COUPER, James: James Couper Recent Paintings and Drawings (10pp) 1510
COX, John Rogers: John Rogers Cox: Retrospective by Robert D. Kinsman (12pp, $2.00) 1779
CUEVAS, Jose Luis: Cuevas: 3 Exhibitions (50pp, $5.00) 1120
CUEVAS, Jose Luis: Jose Luis Cuevas: Illustrated Letters 1074, 1233
CUEVAS, Jose Luis: Jose Luis Cuevas (60pp, $15.00) 2469
CURTIS, Edward: The Vanishing Race and Other Illusions: A New Look at the Work of Edward Curtis by C. M. Lyman (159pp, $14.95) 2319

D

DA VINCI, Leonardo: Leonardo da Vinci by Richard McLanathan (12pp, Free) 1552
DA VINCI, Leonardo: Leonardo's Return to Vinci by Joanna Snow-Smith (80pp, $7.50) 1192
DALEY, William: William Daley Selected Works, 1952-1982 by John F. Noland and Paul Keto (18pp, $4.00) 1941
DAUMIER, Honore: The Lithographs by Anne Morrissey (30pp, $4.00) 1192
DAUMIER, Honoré: Honoré Daumier, 1808-1879, From the Armand Hammer Collection. (290pp) 1561,1876
DAVENPORT, Patrick Henry: Patrick Henry Davenport: Kentucky Portrait Maker by Charles Pittenger and Elizabeth Perkins (28pp, $2.50) 1824
DAVIDS, Dorothy: Dorothy Davids Memorial Retrospective (16pp, $5.00) 3108
DAVIDSON, Nancy: Nancy Davidson by Debra Balken (6pp, $.50) 1978
DAVIES, Harold Christopher: Harold Christopher Davies, 1891-1976 (24pp, $3.50) 1006
DAVISSON, Zita: Zita Davisson: Portraits. (28pp, $5.00) 2507
DAWSON, John: John Dawson (15pp, Free) 1071
DE CHIRICO, Giorgio: De Chirico by William Rubin (208pp, $17.50) 2689
DE LARGE, Edward: Edward de Large (4pp, $1.00) 3121
DE ZAYAS, Marius: Marius de Zayas: Conjurer of Souls by Douglas Hyland (133pp, $7.25) 2435,3147
DEAN, Jean: Jean Dean: Exotic, Erotic & Never Dull (4pp, Free) 1500
DEANDREA, John: John DeAndrea by Kim Wauson (20pp, $5.00) 1261
DEHN, Adolf: Adolf Dehn: Retrospective (1926-68) by Alice Nash (12pp, $2.50) 1522
DEHN, Adolf: Adolf Dehn (12pp, $3.00) 1763
DEL MARLE, Felix: Felix Del Marle 1889-1952 Retrospective (20pp, $6.00) 2427
DESMAZIÈRES, Erik: Erik Desmazières (60pp, $20.00) 2512
DICKINSON, Edwin: Edwin Dickinson, Draftsman Painter (80pp, $10.00) 2694
DIEBENKORN, Richard: Richard Diebenkorn, Etchings and Drypoints by Mark Stevens (128pp, $25.00) 1796,3168
DILL, Terry Lee: Sculpture/Drawings by Peter Frank (24pp, $5.00) 2922
DIMAS, Marcos: Marcos Dimas: The Voyager (20pp, $5.00) 2686
DOLE, William: William Dole: New Collages (4pp) 2814
DUBUFFET, Jean: Jean Dubuffet: Partitions/Psycho-sites by Carter Ratcliff (36pp, $16.50) 2718
DUNLAP, Loren: Five Years Past by Gene Thorton. (28pp, $5.00) 2507

E

EAKINS, Thomas: Thomas Eakins: Artist of Philadelphia by Darrell Sewell (172pp, $12.95) 1942,3147
EDWARDS, Stephen Dee: Stephen Dee Edwards: North Carolina Glass '82 by Joan Falconer Byrd (20pp, $8.00) 3166
EGUCHI, Yasu: Yasu Eguchi (6pp, Free) 1328
EILSHEMIUS, Louis Michel: Louis Michel Eilshemius by Suki Skidmore (4pp, Free) 2907
EL GRECO: El Greco by J. Brown, W. B. Jordan, R. L. Kagan, A. E. Pérez Sánchez (275pp, $13.95) 3042
ELLIOTT, Anne: Anne Elliott, one-woman show of paper wall sculptures and drawings by John Perreault (14pp, $5.00) 2562,3108
EMERY, Lin: Lin Emery (10pp, $5.00) 2594
ERNST, Max: Max Ernst: Books and Graphics by Werner Spies (162pp, $7.50) 1067,1074
ESPINOSA, Susana: Espinosa (23pp, $3.00) 3185
EVANS, Terry: Photographs from Kansas: Evans and Iversen by Tom Southall (64pp, $6.00) 1806

F

FABERGE, Peter Carl: Treasures by Peter Carl Faberge and Other Master Jewellers by the Matilda Geddings Gray Foundation (94pp, $5.00) 1505
FAHLSTRÖM, Öyvind: Art Now by Thomas M. Messer (120pp, $9.00) 2569
FEITELSON, Lorser: Lorser Feitelson: Four Abstract Classicists (6pp, $1.00) 1174
FERREN, John: John Ferren (1905-1970): Paintings, Watercolors and Engravings of the 1930's by Dore Ashton (6pp) 2772
FERRER, Rafael: Rafael Ferrer: Impassioned Rhythms by Kim Levin (36pp, $6.50) 3249
FERRER, Rafael: Rafael Ferrer (32pp, $2.00) 1669,1737
FERRIS, Albert: Paintings by Albert Ferris (4pp, Free) 3045
FERRIS, Robert: Robert Ferris: Paintings (16pp, $2.50) 2178
FISCHINGER, Oskar: Oskar Fischinger (12pp, $3.00) 1174
FISCHINGER, Oskar: Oskar Fischinger (20pp, $10.00) 1364
FISH, Janet: Janet Fish by B. Yourgrau (60pp, $10.00) 2678
FLEMING, Frank: Frank Fleming: Personal Mythologies by Edward Weeks (14pp, $3.00) 1001,1808
FLICK, Robert: Robert Flick: Selected Works: 1971-1981 (25pp, $6.50) 1170
FLOETER, Kent: Wall-size Works: Kent Floeter and Robert Yasuda by Judith Tannenbaum (24pp, $4.00) 3176
FOLTZ-FOX, Terri Lee: Contemporary Jewelry (4pp, $1.00) 3121
FOSTER, Don: Don Foster: Works With Neon (8pp, Free) 3343
FRANCIS, Sam: Sam Francis: New Monotypes 2494
FRANK, Mary: Mary Frank by Hayden Herrara (8pp, $4.00) 2880
FRANKENTHALER, Helen: Helen Frankenthaler: New Monotypes ($8.00) 2494
FRANZHEIM, Elizabeth: Franzheim (32pp, $3.00) 3310
FREY, Viola: Viola Frey Retrospective by Garth Clark (44pp, $10.00) 1067
FRIEDBERG, Richard: Richard Friedberg by Richard Armstrong (16pp, $5.00) 2679
FRIEDLANDER, Lee: Factory Valleys (70pp, $25.00) 2998

FRIESEKE, F.C.: F. C. Frieseke by N. Kilmer (48pp, $10.00) 1279,1280
FULLER, Buckminster: Buckminster Fuller by Carl Solway (56pp, $10.00) 1974

G

GALLIEN-LALOUE, E.: Belle Epoque: E. Gallien-Laloue (4pp, Free) 3327
GANTNER, Bernard: Bernard Gantner (8pp, $3.00) 1667
GARET, Jedd: Jedd Garet (50pp, $5.00) 2678
GAVALAS, Alexander: Alexander Beary Gavalas; Recent Drawings and Paintings by Alan Garfield (12pp, $1.00) 1789
GENERALIC, Milan: Milan Generalic (8pp, $1.00) 2612
GETZ, Ilse: Keywest Winters, Newtown Summers (4pp, $2.00) 2767
GILLESPIE, Dorothy: Dorothy Gillespie: Sculptured Paintings by George S. Bolge (26pp, $5.00) 1497
GILOT, Francoise: Francoise Gilot by Francoise Gilot (32pp, $3.50) 1216
GIMBLETT, Max: Max Gimblett by Ronny Cohen (40pp, $15.00) 1283
GOLDTHWAITE, Anne: Anne Goldthwaite: Print Retrospective by Adelyn Breeskin (141pp, $12.00) 1012
GOLDYNE, Joseph: Familiar but Unique: The Monoprints Of Joseph Goldyne by Jane Farmer (60pp, $6.00) 1463
GOODMAN, Sidney: Recent Work by P. Hills (20pp, $3.00) 3404
GOODNOUGH, Robert: New Paintings & Canvas Montage Works 2494
GORDON, John: John Gordon: Backyards and Summer Gardens by John Arthur (32pp, $15.00) 2829
GOTTLIEB, Adolph: Adolph Gottlieb A Retrospective by Alloway & MacNaughton (176pp, $17.95) 2294
GRAHAM, Gloria: Gloria Graham (21pp., $6.00) 2228
GRAHAM, Robert: Robert Graham: Bronzes, 1971-1980 by Graham Beal (48pp, $5.95) 1790, 1291
GREENE, Balcomb: Balcomb Greene: 50 Years of Painting (1931-81) by Irving Sandler (12pp, $2.50) 1522
GREINER, Colleen: Colleen Greiner; North Carolina Fiber Exhibition by Cynthia K. Ference (16pp) 2964
GREY, Alex: Bold Headline; Alex Grey (8pp) 2909
GROPPER, William: The Art of William Gropper by Patricia Hills (8pp, $3.50) 1970
GROSS, Chaim: Chaim Gross (22pp, $1.00) 1520
GUERIN, Spence: Spence Guerin (8pp, Free) 1509
GULICK, Eve: Eve Gulick (34pp, $5.00) 1118
GUSTON, Philip: Philip Guston (32pp, $4.00) 3168

H

HACK, Howard: Silverpoint Drawing Series, 1967-1981 by the Fine Arts Museum of San Francisco (46pp, $20.00) 1253
HADDOCK, Arthur: The Shoe Box Paintings: An Exhibition of Miniatures by Eli Levin and Ernesto Mayans (6pp, $.75) 2240
HAGEMEYER, John: John Hagemeyer: The Archive (97pp, $13.00) 1291
HALL, Lee: Lee Hall; Three from North Carolina (20pp) 2964
HALSMAN, Philippe: Philippe Halsman by Philippe Halsman (57pp, $15.00) 1006
HAMMOND, Harmony: Harmonies by Arlene Raven (4pp, $2.50) 1691
HAMWI, Richard: Richard Hamwi-Works on Paper by Pennsylvania State University Museum of Art (6pp, $1.00) 3178
HANSEN, Armin: Biography of Armin Hansen (5pp) 1279
HARDEN, Marvin: Marvin Harden Paintings and Drawings, 1961-1981 (22pp, $6.50) 1170
HARING, Keith: Keith Haring (144pp, $20.00) 2791
HARMER, Alexander: Alexander Harmer (64pp, $17.00) 1314
HARMON, Lily: Lily Harmon: A Fifty Year Retrospective by Howard Wooden (56pp, $6.00) 1815
HARRIES, Mags: Mags Harries by the DeCordova Museum (36pp, $7.00) 1974
HARRIS, Sam Hyde: Paintings of Sam Hyde Harris by R. Westphal, J. Stern (64pp, $10.00) 1094
HEALD, Paul: Paul Heald Selected Works: 1960-1981 by Matthew Kangas (32pp, $5.95) 3410
HEAP OF BIRDS, Edgar: Foreign Bodies --Paintings-Phrases, Edgar Heap of Birds (4pp, Free) 3045
HEAP OF BIRDS, Edgar: I-80 Series: Edgar Heap of Birds by Holliday T. Day (4pp, $2.00) 2143
HEIN, Frank: Frank Hein: The 3-D Drawings by John Cates and Hunter Ingalls (26pp, $5.00) 3247
HELD, Al: Al Held: 1954--1959 by I. Sandler (60pp, $10.00) 2678
HELD, Al: Al Held: New Paintings 2494
HELD, John: The Watercolors of John Held, Jr. by Carl J. Weinhardt (16pp, $3.00) 2562
HENDRICKSON, Ken: Ken Hendrickson by Kathleen Monaghan (12pp, $3.50) 1316
HESSE, Eva: Eva Hesse: A Retrospective of the Drawings by Ellen Johnson (95pp, $15.00) 1718,3034
HEUMAN, Ginette: New Polychrome Aluminum Sculptures (4pp, Free) 2767
HEYDEN, Silvia: Silvia Heyden; North Carolina Fiber Exhibition by Cynthia K. Ference (16pp) 2964
HIGBY, Wayne: Wayne Higby: Recent Work (4pp, $1.00) 3121
HINTERREITER, Hans: Hans Hinterreiter by Rudolf Koella (167pp, $40.00) 2499
HOCKNEY, David: David Hockney: Drawing with a Camera 2494
HOCKNEY, David: Selected Works 2494
HOFMANN, Hans: Hans Hofmann: Small Late Paintings ($12.00) 2494
HOLLOWELL, David: David Hollowell (6pp, $1.00) 2224
HOLMES, Ralph: Ralph Holmes (56pp, $17.00) 1314
HOLZHAUER, Emil: Emil Holzhauer: A Retrospect by Lorna A. Williams (14pp, $2.00) 1538
HOPPER, Edward: Edward Hopper (16pp, $5.00) 3256
HOSOE, Eikoh: Eikoh Hosoe, Photographs: 1960 to 1980 (12pp, $10.00) 1203
HOUSE, Gordon: Gordon House Editions 1961-81 (53pp, $5.00) 3168
HOWARD, James: James Howard; Three from North Carolina (20pp) 2964
HOWE, Oscar: Oscar Howe, Retrospective Exhibition by Frederick Dockstader (72pp, $18.00) 1030,3218
HUDSON, Robert: Robert Hudson (12pp, $10.00) 1263
HUTCHINS, Alice: Alice Hutchins by James W. McManus (40pp, $10.00) 1102

I

IKEBE, Kyo: Kyo Ikebe: Grand Cosmos and Elementary Domain (12pp, $2.00) 2938
IMPIGLIA, Giancarlo: Giancarlo Impiglia (48pp, $5.00) 2761
INDIANA, Robert: Indiana's Indiana by M. Dibner (23pp, $9.50) 1894
INGRAM, Jerry: Paintings by Jerry Ingram (4pp, Free) 3045
ISRAEL, Margaret: Margaret Israel ($5.00) 2454
IVERSEN, Earl: Photographs from Kansas: Evans and Iversen by Tom Southall (64pp, $6.00) 1806

J

JACKSON, Harry: Harry Jackson by Gene Thornton (70pp, $11.95) 2055
JACKSON, Herb: Herb Jackson Drawings (92pp., Free) 2860
JACKSON, Oliver: Oliver Jackson by Jan Butterfield and Thomas Albright (31pp, $10.00) 1287
JACOULET, Paul: The Prints of Paul Jacoulet by Richard Miles (140pp, $26.00) 1220
JAMISON, Philip: Philip Jamison ($2.50) 2159
JANSSEN, Horst: Drawings and Prints by Worthington (20pp, $3.00) 1730
JAVIER, Maximino: Maximino Javier at Klein Gallery by Dennis Adrian (4pp) 1691
JEMISON, Dick: Works of Dick Jemison by Richard Murray (20pp, $5.00) 1001
JESSUP, Fred: Fred Jessup (12pp, $3.00) 1667
JOHNS, Japser: 17 Monotypes by Jasper Johns by Judith Goldman (91pp, $35.00) 2868
JOHNS, Jasper: Jasper Johns, Public and Private by Myers (24pp, $3.00) 3200
JONES, Charles: Charles Jones: Vietnam Suite by James Weaver (5pp, Free) 3354
JORN, Asger: Asger Jorn: The Formative Years by Troels Anderson, Guy Atkins (98pp, $9.00) 2569
JUAREZ, Roberto: Roberto Juarez by Duncan Smith (40pp, $5.00) 2678

K

KAHN, Wolf: Wolf Kahn: 10 Years of Landscape Painting by Martica Sawin (13pp, $2.50) 2926,3243
KAKAS, Chris: Chris Kakas by Margaret Lynne Ausfeld (6pp, Free) 1012
KANDINSKY, Wassily: Kandinsky in Munich: 1896-1914 by Thomas M. Messer, Peg Weiss et al. (312pp, $19.50) 1291,2569
KANE, Bill: Bill Kane by Mark Levy (20pp, $5.00) 1261
KANOVITZ, Howard: Pastels by Jorn Merkert (10pp, $4.00) 2767
KAPLAN, Anatoli: Anatoli Kaplan 1902-1980 (13pp) 1944
KASS, Jacob: The Painted Saws of Jacob Kass (9pp, $5.00) 1492
KATZ, Alex: Alex Katz:1957-59 by I. Sandler (60pp, $10.00) 2678
KATZEN, Lila: Sculpture Returns to the Garden by Louise Averill Svendsen (8pp, $5.00) 2767
KAUFFMAN, Craig: Craig Kauffman by R. McDonald ($10.00) 3403
KELLY, Ellsworth: Ellsworth Kelly: Sculpture by Patterson Sims and Emily Rauh Pulitzer (192pp, $20.00) 2868
KERTESZ, Andre: Andre Kertesz: Still Life Photographs (4pp, Free) 2907
KERTÉSZ, André: André Kertész, Master of Photography by Brooks Johnson (64pp, $7.50) 3396
KEZYS, Algimantas: Chicago Kezys by Algimantas Kezys (78pp, $14.95) 1671
KHUDYAKOV, Henry: Henry Khudyakov: Visionary Non-Wearables: Espionage by Margarita Tupitsyn (16pp, $4.00) 2450
KIRCHNER, Ernst Ludwig: E. L. Kirchner by Worthington (80pp, $20.00) 1730
KLEE, Paul: Paul Klee by Worthington (20pp, $3.00) 1730
KLEIN, Yves: Yves Klein (1928-1962): A Retrospective (351pp, $25.00) 2569,3329
KLINGER, Max: Romance and Imagination: Etchings of Max Klinger (1857-1920) by Lilien Robinson, Lenore Miller, Gail Mishkin (8pp, Free) 1448
KLOTZ-REILLY, Suzanne: Humming Heart Gardens by Suzanne Klotz-Reilly (16pp, $2.50) 1806
KNATHS, Karl: Karl Knaths: Works on Paper by Jim and Jean Young (35pp, $6.00) 2938

KNATHS, Karl: Ornament and Glory (71pp, $10.00) 2278
KNAUSS, Lewis: Lewis Knauss (4pp, $1.00) 3121
KNODEL, Gerhardt: Gerhardt Knodel Makes Places To Be (60pp, $15.00) 2013
KOHL, Jeff: Jeff Kohl: Calendar by Jeff Kohl (24pp) 1793
KOLLIKER, William: William Kolliker: Recent Watercolors and Tapestries (8pp, $3.00) 3290
KOLLWITZ, Käthe: Käthe Kollwitz: Artist as Printmaker (4pp) 2536
KOPAC, Slavko: Kopac (28pp, $3.00) 3310
KOREN, Edward: Edward Koren: Prints and Drawings 1959–1981 by Daniel Robbins (56pp, $5.00) 2155,2276
KOTIN, Albert: Kotin (22pp., Free) 2208
KOULERMOS, Panos: Panos Koulermos: Context and Response (5pp, $2.50) 1170
KOZLOFF, Joyce: I-80 Series: Joyce Kozloff by Holliday T. Day (4pp, $2.00) 2143
KOZLOW, Richard: Richard Kozlow by Norman Lewis (23pp, $4.00) 2011
KRASNER, Lee: Lee Krasner: The Late Fifties (50pp, $10.00) 2678
KRIER, Rob: Rob Krier (120pp, $18.50) 2761
KUEHN, Edmund: Still Lifes by Edmund Kuehn (4pp, $2.00) 3027
KURZEN, Aaron: Sterealities (8pp, $1.50) 2688

L

LA BOBGÄH, Bob: Bob La Bobgäh; Bronze Castings (5pp) 3175
LA MANTIA, Paul: Paul La Mantia: A Review 1967-1982 by Dennis Adrian (28pp, $3.00) 1684,1732
LACHAISE, Gaston: Gaston Lachaise 100th Anniversary Exhibition by Herschel B. Chipp (48pp, $6.95) 1216
LACKOVIĆ, Ivan: Ivan Lacković; Drawings, Paintings & Graphics by Steve Zupčić (16pp, $2.00) 3175
LAHR, Maria: Maria Lahr (24pp, $12.00) 2458
LAMIS, Leroy: Leroy Lamis: New Sculpture by Robert D. Kinsman (8pp, $1.00) 1779
LANDACRE, Paul: Wood Engravings: Paul Landacre by Jeannette Leeper (4pp) 1111
LANDSEER, Sir Edwin: Sir Edwin Landseer by Richard Ormond, Joseph Rischel (240pp, $16.95) 3147
LANIER, Doris: Lanier: An Artist Writing by D. Lanier (10pp, $10.00) 2462
LANING, Edward: Edward Laning; American Realist by Howard E. Wooden (56pp, $6.00) 1815
LARRAZ, Julio: Julio Larraz (12pp, $4.00) 2602
LASANSKY, Leonardo: Leonardo Lasansky: Prints and Drawings (16pp, $2.50) 2059,2154
LASANSKY, Mauricio: A Retrospective Exhibition by the Cedar Rapids Museum of Art (14pp, $2.00) 1786
LAUB, John: John Laub by John Ashbery (8pp, $3.00) 3136
LAVERDURE, Andrew: Paintings & Drawings by Andrew Laverdure (4pp, Free) 3223
LEAR, Edward: Edward Lear: How Pleasant to Know Mr. Lear by L. Candace Pezzera (42pp, $5.00) 3196
LEE, Russell: Russell Lee, Photographer by F. Jack Hurley (207pp., $15.95) 3349,3350
LEGER, Fernand: Fernand Leger by Buck, Kotik, and Fry (160pp, $19.95) 2294
LEIGH, Abby: Abby Leigh, Paintings (16pp, $3.00) 2354
LEIPZIG, Arthur: Arthur Leipzig: Photographs of Jewish Life Around the World by Cornell Capa (32pp, $5.00) 2922
LESLIE, Seaver: Seaver Leslie: Exhibition Watercolors (16pp, $2.00) 2829
LEVIN, Eli: Eli Levin: Landscape Etchings (16pp, $1.50) 2240
LIBERTI, Juan Carlos: Juan Carlos Liberti by Rafael Squirru (78pp, $10.00) 2011
LICHTENSTEIN, Roy: Roy Lichtenstein at Colorado State University (13pp, $6.00) 1376
LICHTENSTEIN, Roy: Roy Lichtenstein (12pp., $5.00) 1375
LIGARE, David: David Ligare (8pp, Free) 3297
LINDERMAN, Earl: Earl Linderman (64pp, $10.00) 2348
LITTLETON, Harvey: Harvey Littleton: North Carolina Glass '82 by Joan Falconer Byrd (20pp, $8.00) 3166
LÖFFLER, Berjold: Berjold Löffler (1874-1960): Designs and Graphics (53pp) 2388
LONGLEY, Bernique: Bernique Longley: A Retrospective by Alma S. King (80pp, $20.00) 2249
LOTZ, Steve: Steve Lotz Retrospective (20pp, $2.00) 1493
LOUIS, Morris: Morris Louis: A Commemorative Exhibition ($12.00) 2494
LOWDER, Dwayne: Dwayne Lowder: In a Southern Tradition (Just Another Paradox) (16pp, $6.00) 2028
LOZOWICK, Louis: The Prints of Louis Lozowick: A Catalogue Raisonné by Janet Flint (223pp, $50.00) 1463
LUCERO, Michael: Lucero, Scanga, Surls by William Zimmer (18pp, $6.00) 3270
LUMIS, Harriet R.: 1870-1953: An American Impressionist by R. H. Love (64pp, $12.00) 1695

M

MABE, Manabu: Manabu Mabe (6pp, Free) 2637
MAGEE, Alan: Alan Magee: Recent Paintings and Drawings 2814
MAKARENKO, Volodymyr: Volodymyr Makarenko: Oils and Watercolors 1725
MANGOLD, Sylvia Plimack: Sylvia Mangold by Thomas Garvey (48pp, $11.95) 3459
MANGRAVITE, Peppino: Peppino Mangravite by Theodore R. Wolff (24pp, $1.00) 2295
MARIN, John: John Marin and The Sea ($15.00) 2626
MARINSKY, Harry: The Sculpture of Harry Marinsky (120pp, $10.00) 3273
MASON, Alice Trumbull: Two Generations of Abstract Painting by Marilyn Brown (47pp, $15.00) 2855
MATINA-MARIKOVIC, Ivka: Ivka Matina-Marikovic (8pp, $1.00) 2612
MAULDIN, Jane: Paintings by Jane McCarty Mauldin (4pp, Free) 3045
MAZUR, Michael: Michael Mazur, 1982 (12pp, $7.00) 1159
MCCOY, Ann: Ann McCoy: Alchemical Myth by Howard Pindell (12pp) 2936
MCEWEN, Rory: Rory McEwen: Recent Paintings and Collages (6pp) 2814
MCKENNA, Rollie: Artists at Large: Photographs by Rollie McKenna by Robert M. Doty (20pp, $2.50) 2906
MCLAUGHLIN, John: John McLaughlin: Paintings 1951-1974 2494
MCNEIL, George: George McNeil: The Past Twenty Years by Carter Ratcliff (36pp, $10.00) 1497
MÉRIDA, Carlos: Carlos Mérida (32pp, $5.00) 3185
MESTEY, Oscar: Mestey (14pp, $3.00) 3185
MILLEA, Tom: Tom Millea (8pp, $1.00) 1100
MILLER, Alfred Jacob: Alfred Jacob Miller, Artist on the Oregon Trail by Ron Tyler (480pp, $45.00) 3292
MILLER, Melissa: Melissa Miller: Recent Paintings by Linda L. Cathcart (6pp, $2.00) 3305
MILNE, David: David Milne: The New York Years 1903-1916 by John O'Brien (88pp, $10.00) 2435
MIRÓ, Joan: Miró in America by Barbara Rose (153pp, $29.95) 3325
MOERS, Denny: Denny Moers Photographic Monoprints (22pp, $4.00) 2009,3417
MOORE, Tom: Tom Moore by Mitchell D. Kahan (6pp, Free) 1012
MORALES, Armando: Armando Morales (6pp) 2434
MORALES, Dario: Dario Morales ($50.00) 2348
MORANDI, Giorgio: Giorgio Morandi (180pp, $15.95) 1790
MOREE, Sam: Flux (20pp, $5.00) 2688
MORRIS, Robert: Robert Morris: Selected Works 1970–1980 by Marti Mayo (60pp, $10.00) 3305
MORRIS, Robert: The Drawings of Robert Morris by Thomas Krens (32pp., $7.50) 1990
MORSE, Samuel F.B.: Samuel F.B. Morse by G.A. Reynolds/P.J. Staiti (96pp, $15) 2701
MUELLER, Louis: Louis Mueller: Recent Work and Drawings (6pp, $1.00) 3121
MUNCH, Edvard: Edvard Munch: Expressionist Paintings 1900-1940 by Arne Eggum (80pp, $14.95) 2068,2537
MUNCH, Edvard: Edvard Munch (40pp, $6.00) 1192
MURAKISHI, Steve: Steve Murakishi (45pp) 2013
MURPHY, Hermann Dudley: Realism Married to Idealism Most Exquisitely by William Coles (40pp, $5.00) 2562
MURPHY, J. Francis: J. Francis Murphy, 1853-1921: The Landscape Within (31pp, $8.00) 2275
MURRAY, Samuel: Samuel Murray: The Hirshhorn Museum and Sculpture Garden Collection by Michael Panhorst (32pp, $2.75) 1453
MYERS, Malcolm: Mr. Possum and Friends: Prints by Malcolm Myers (32pp, $7.50) 2059
MYERS, Martin: Martin Myers by Richard Armstong (28pp, $12.00) 1283

N

NAGANO, Paul: Paul Nagano: Favorite Places (32pp) 1944
NAGAOKA, Kunito: Kunito Nagaoka, Etchings 1971-1981 (132pp, $25.00) 1295
NECHVATEL, Dennis: Dennis Nechvatel by Thomas Garvey (6pp, $.50) 3459
NEMTZOW, Scott: The Clockwork Concerto (4pp, $1.00) 2688
NESBITT, Lowell: Lowell Nesbitt (13pp, $5.00) 3043
NEUTRA, Richard: The Architecture of Richard Neutra: From International Style to California Modern by Arthur Drexler (114pp, $10) 2689
NEWMAN, Howard: Howard Newman ($5.00) 2454
NEWTON, Richard: Bold Headline; Richard Newton (8pp) 2909
NICE, Don: Don Nice (26pp) 2154
NICKSON, Graham: Graham Nickson: Drawing into Color by Jack D. Flam (48pp) 1418,2423
NOBLE, John: The Lengendary Wichita Bill: A Retrospective Exhibition of Paintings by John Noble by Howard DaLee Spencer (44pp, $5.00) 1815
NOLAND, Kenneth: Kenneth Noland: Paperworks 2494
NORDIN, Tim: Tim Nordin by Suzanne Muchnic (48pp, $5.95)
NOVOA, Gustavo: Gustavo Novoa (8pp, $3.00) 1667
NURAI, Ahmet: Ahmet Nurai (4pp, Free) 1328
NUSSBAUM, Jakob: Journey's End in Galilee by Ruth Eis (12pp, $5.00) 1088

O

O'DOWDY, Danny: Danny O'Dowdy (16pp, $5.00) 3256
O'HARA, Eliot: Eliot O'Hara: Retrospective (1912-68) by Carl Schmalz (12pp, $2.50) 1522,1763
OBRIEN-FFRENCH, Conrad: Conrad Obrien-ffrench: Fifty Years of Drawings (6pp, Free) 1381
OHLSON, Doug: Doug Ohlson at Bennington by E. C. Goosen (16pp, $3.00) 2423
OKEKE, Uche: Uche Okeke: A Retrospective (16pp, $1.00) 2059

OMARY, Baha S.: Walls from the Middle East (4pp, Free) 2835

ONE STAR, Lloyd: Rawhide Works by Lloyd One Star (4pp, Free) 3223

OPPENHEIM, Moritz Daniel: Paintings by Moritz Daniel Oppenheim: Jewish Life in 19th-Century Germany (4pp, $.25) 2614

OUTERBRIDGE, Paul: Paul Outerbridge: A Singular Aesthetic by Elaine Dines and Graham Howell (236pp, $25.00) 2055

P

PAIK, Nam June: Nam June Paik by John Hanhardt (144pp, $15.00) 2868

PALEY, Albert: Albert Paley: The Paradox of Iron (8pp, $1.50) 1442

PANDER, Henk: Henk Pander Drawings 1973-1982 by Rachel R. Lafo (13pp, $2.00) 3086

PARKER, Olivia: Olivia Parker (4pp, $.50) 1100

PARKS, Gordon: The Photographs of Gordon Parks by Martin H. Bush (135pp, $12.00) 1817

PASCHKE, Ed: Ed Paschke: Selected Works 1967-1981 by Dennis Adrian, Linda Cathcart, Holliday T. Day, Richard Flood (41pp, $10.00) 1718

PASCHKE, Ed: Ed Paschke: Selected Works 1967–1981 by Linda L. Cathcart (4pp, $2.00) 3305

PASCIN, Jules: Drawings by Jules Pascin (7pp) 2354

PASTO, Tarmo: The Paintings of Tarmo Pasto by Roger D. Clisby (16pp, $3.00) 1231

PEALE, Charles Willson: Charles Willson Peale and His World by Lillian B. Miller, E.P. Richardson, Brooke Hindle (272pp, $25.00) 1466

PEARLSTEIN, Philip: Philip Pearlstein, Paintings by Russell Bowman (12pp, $10.00) 2528

PEARLSTEIN, Philip: Philip Pearlstein: A Painter's Progress by Paul Master-Karnik (16pp, $1.00) 2198

PEARLSTEIN, Philip: The Lithography and Etchings of Philip Pearlstein (66pp, $5.00) 1914

PENA, Amado: Amado Pena: Posters (10pp, $5.00) 3094

PENNIMAN, John Ritto: John Ritto Penniman (1782-1841): An Ingenious New England Artist (13pp) 1993

PEPPER, Beverly: Beverly Pepper: New Sculpture ($7.00) 2494

PERKINS, Marion: Margaret Burroughs-Marion Perkins: A Retrospective (20pp, $5.00) 1440

PERLMAN, Joel: Joel Perlman: New Sculpture (New Large Scale Sculpture) 2494

PETRAVICLUS, Viktoras: V. Petraviclus by Stephen Raul Anaya (16pp, $2.00) 1671

PFAFF, Judy: Pfaff by Susan Krane ($4.00) 2294

PICABIA, Francis: Picabia: Paintings and Drawings (10pp, $9.00) 1678

PICASSO, Pablo: Picasso: Caisse a Remords by Reiss-Cohen (20pp, $15.00) 2756

PICASSO, Pablo: The Sculpture of Picasso by Robert Rosenblum (72pp, $16.00) 2718

PIJOAN, Irene: Irene Pijoan (6pp) 2224

PINTARIC, Josip: Josip Pintaric (16pp, $5.00) 2612

PIPER, Jane: Jane Piper by Larry Day (12pp, $3.50) 3136

PLOSSU, Bernard: Bernard Plossu: Selected Color Photographs 1965-1982 by M.A. Schoen and T.A. Eaton (8pp, $1.50) 1257

POLK SMITH, Leon: Leon Polk Smith: Paintings from 1945-50 by Addison Parks (8pp, $1.00) 2855

PONSOLD, Renate: Renate Ponsold (8pp) 2434

POONS, Larry: Larry Poons by Ken Moffett (32pp, $5.50) 1942

POONS, Lawrence: Lawrence Poons: New Paintings 2494

PRICE, Rosalie: Rosalie Price: Paintings & Drawings (24pp, $3.00) 1001

Q

QUENCE, Raymond: Raymond Quence (8pp, $3.00) 1667

QUINN, Anthony: Anthony Quinn by Irene Dessewffy (50pp, $15.00) 1601

R

RABUZIN, Ivan: Ivan Rabuzin (8pp., $1.00) 2612

RAFFAEL, Joseph: Joseph Raffael, Recent Works: 1980-1981 by Dianne Dorrans Sacks (72pp, $12.50) 1506

RAIMONDI, Marcantonio: The Engravings of Marcantonio Raimondi by Broun and Shoemaker (211pp, $20.00) 1988

RAMSHAW, Wendy: Wendy Ramshaw: Contemporary Jewelry (4pp, $1.00) 3121

RAUSCHENBERG, Robert: Graphics by Robert Rauschenberg by Ron G. Williams ($5.00) 3249

RAYO, Omar: Omar Rayo: Gravid Shadows by Agueda Pizzarro (6pp, Free) 2637

REID, Bill: Bill Reid: Paintings and Drawings by Paul Rogers Harris (6pp., $1.00) 3355

REMINGTON, Frederic: Cast & Recast: The Sculpture of Frederic Remington by Michael E. Shapiro (128pp, $8.00) 3292

RICHARDS, William T.: Tokens of a Friendship: Miniature Watercolors by William Trost Richards by Linda S. Ferber (118pp, $14.95) 2674

RICHARDSON, Sam: Sam Richardson: To Ponder Rather Than To Know by Jan Butterfield (6pp, Free) 1691

ROCKMORE: Recent Rockmores (6pp) 1877

ROGOVIN, Milton: Working People: Photographs by Milton Rogovin by Currier Gallery of Art (6pp,) 2155,3178

ROLLINS, Jo Lutz: Jo Lutz Rollins, Retrospective (16pp.) 2047,2064

ROSA, Gustavo: Gustavo Rosa (4pp, Free) 2637

ROSADO DEL VALLE, Julio: Julio Rosado del Valle (25pp, $3.00) 3185

ROSE, Robin: Robin Rose by Martha Wright (16pp, $4.00) 1459

ROSE, William: William Rose: Metaphysical Australian Structures by Ronald Kuchta (9pp, $1.00) 2938

ROSENQUIST, James: James Rosenquist at Colorado State University (10pp, $6.00) 1375,1376

ROSENQUIST, James: James Rosenquist: High Technology and Mysticism: A Meeting Point 1514

ROTH, Jack: Jack Roth: Drawings & Watercolors by D. Milgrome (12pp, $3.00) 2176

ROTH, Jack: Jack Roth: Recent Paintings (16pp, $4.50) 2178

RUSCHA, Edward: The Works of Edward Ruscha by Dave Hickey and Peter Plagens (182pp, $16.00) 2868

RUSH, William: William Rush: American Sculptor by Richard J. Boyle and Linda Bantel (212pp, $17.95) 3143

RYDER, Chauncey Foster: Chauncey F. Ryder: A Retrospective (8pp, Free) 1381

S

SAMARAS, Lucas: Lucas Samaras: Pastels and Bronzes by Donald Kuspit (44pp, $15.00) 2718

SAMARAS, Lucas: Samaras Pastels by Peter Schjeldahl (112pp, $14.95) 2061

SAMARAS, Lucas: Samaras: Pastels and Bronzes (43pp, $9.00) 1678

SANDBACK, Fred: The Fred Sandback Museum (16pp, $1.50) 1991

SANDER, August: August Sander by the Goethe Institute (36pp, $5.00) 1970

SANDERS, Timothy Greenfield: Timothy Greenfield Sanders (8pp, Free) 1509

SARET, Alan: Alan Saret: Matter Into Aether (108pp, $15.00) 1201

SARNOFF, Lolo: Lolo Sarnoff (24pp, $5.00) 1445

SAWYER, Raphael: Raphael Sawyer: 65 Years of Printmaking by Frank Gettings (80pp, $8.50) 1453

SCANGA, Italo: Lucero, Scanga, Surls by William Zimmer (18pp, $6.00) 3270

SCARLETT, Rolph: Rolph Scarlett: Works on Paper from 1940 (8pp, $1.00) 2855

SCHAMBERG, Morton Livingston: Morton Livingston Schamberg by William Agee ($25.00) 2774

SCHENCK, Bill: Bill Schenck: 1968–1983 (32pp, $6.00) 1058

SCHILLE, Alice: Alice Schille, A.W.S. (20pp, $10.00) 3027

SCHLEY, Reeve III: Reeve Schley III (8pp, Free) 2562

SCHNABEL, Bruce: Bruce Schnabel In Conjunction With Bookworks (4pp, $1.00) 3121

SCHNEEMANN, Carolee: Carolee Schneemann: Early Work 1960-1970 by Ted Castle (28pp, $7.00) 2594

SCHOLDER, Fritz: Scholder/The Other Side (12pp, $5) 2266

SCHONGAUER, Martin: The Gothic Brilliance of Martin Schongauer by Donson, Griepp (40pp, $10.00) 2482

SCHOONHOVEN, Terry: Vapor Dreams in LA: Terry Schoonhoven's Empty Stage By Constance Gleen (40pp, $9.00) 1124

SCHREIBER, Martin S.: Last of a Breed: Photographs by Martin S. Schreiber by Louis Lamour (100pp, $25.00) 3247

SCHWITTERS, Kurt: Kurt Schwitters by Worthington (60pp, $7.50) 1730

SERIZAWA, Keisuke: Keisuke Serizawa (49pp, $7.50) 1118

SERL, Jon: Psychological Paintings: The Personal Vision of Jon Serl (24pp, $4.50) 1201

SERRA-BADUÉ, Daniel: Daniel Serra-Badué Retrospective by Gary Libby (20pp, $2.00) 1493

SHANE, Fred: Fred Shane Paintings 1923-1979 by Sidney Larson (48pp, $7.50) 2079

SHAPIRO, David: David Shapiro (22pp, $2.00) 3043

SHAPIRO, Joel: Joel Shapiro by Roberta Smith (128pp, $14.00) 2868

SHAW, Charles: Charles G. Shaw: Paintings from the 1930s by Charles Carpenter (8pp, $1.00) 2855

SHAW, Richard: Richard Shaw/Ceramic Sculpture by Jan Butterfield (28pp, $4.50) 1625

SHEETS, Millard: The Paintings of Millard Sheets ($10.00) 2626

SHEPP, Alan: Alan Shepp by Robert Atkins (24pp, $8.00) 1306

SHEPPARD, Joseph: Joseph Sheppard, One-man Show of Paintings, Drawings, and Sculpture (6pp, $2.00) 3108

SHIELDS, Alan: Alan Shields: Dimensions of a Cherrystone by Thom Thompson (12pp) 2936

SHIMOMURA, Roger: Roger Shimomura: Diary by John Seto (6pp, $3.00) 1001

SHIRE, Peter: Peter Shire, 1982 (16pp, $7.00) 1159

SHIRK, Helen: Helen Shirk (4pp, $1.00) 3121

SHUBERT, Katherine Schmidt: Katherine Schmidt Shubert Bequest and a Selected View of Her Art by Lloyd Goodrich (24pp, Free) 2868

SIEGEL, Arthur: Arthur Siegel, Retrospective by John Grimes (17pp, $10.00) 1683

SILVERNELL, Kerri: Kerri Silvernell: Studies in Luster and Light (4pp, Free) 1500

SLETTEN, Byron: Byron Sletten (12pp, $1.00) 1489

SLOAN, John: John Sloan by the Hood Museum of Art Dartmouth College (97pp, $8.00) 1974

SLOAN, John: John Sloan in Santa Fe by James Kraft & Helen Farr Sloan (72pp, $7.50) 2224

SMITH, David: David Smith: Painter, Sculptor, Draftsman by Edward F. Fry, Miranda McClintic (144pp, $15.00) 1453

SMITH, Gregory: Gregory Smith; Paintings & Drawings (4pp) 3175

VOL
71
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

SMITH, Ioleta: Fashions by Ioleta Smith (4pp, Free) 3045
SMITH, Michael: Michael A. Smith: Landscapes 1975-1979 (21pp, $2.50) 3243
SMITH, W. Eugene: W. Eugene Smith 3168
SMITHSON, Robert: Robert Smithson: Sculpture by Robert Hobbs (272pp, $29.50) 2868,3249
SOLOMON, Barbara Stauffacher: Design Quarterly 120 Green Architecture: Notes on the Common Ground by Barbara Stauffacher Solomon (32pp, $3.00) 2061
SOSSON, Barbara: Barbara Sosson by Stein and Drutt (8pp, $3.00) 3136
SPAMPINATO, Clemente: Bronzes by Clemente Spampinato (4pp, Free) 1645
ST. CROIX, Mother: The Photographs of Mother St. Croix by Tina Freeman (30pp, $8.95) 1876
STANULIS, Gabrielius: Stanulis by Donald Anderson (16pp, $5.00) 1671
STAPRANS, Raimonds: Raimonds Staprans (8pp) 1279
STEINBERG, Saul: Saul Steinberg: Still Life and Architecture by Italo Calvino (40pp, $15.00) 2718
STEINBERG, Saul: Saul Steinberg (32pp, $9.00) 1678
STEINER, Michael: Michael Steiner: Bronze Sculpture ($8.00) 2494
STEINER, Ralph: Ralph Steiner Photographs—An Affirmation—100 Prints, 60 Years (12pp, $2.00) 2898
STEINLEN, Théophile-Alexandre: Théophile-Alexandre Steinlen by Phillip Dennis Cate and Susan Gill (165pp, $15.00) 2187
STEIR, Pat: Form Illusion Myth: Prints and Drawings of Pat Steir by Elizabeth Broun and Joan Simon (128pp, $12.00) 1806
STELLA, Frank: Frank Stella (12pp, $3.00) 1918
STERNE, Hedda: Hedda Sterne: A Painting Life (6pp) 2434
STEVENS, Walter Hollis: Walter Hollis Stevens by Moffatt (48pp, $5.00) 1006
STEWART, Arthur: Arthur Stewart (16pp) 1001,1593
STEWART, Lizbeth: Lizbeth Stewart: Ceramic Sculpture (4pp, $1.00) 3121
STONE, Don: Don Stone ($3.50) 2159
STONE, Sylvia: Sylvia Stone: New Sculpture 2494
STRAND, Paul: Paul Strand: The Steiglitz Years at 291 by Naomi Rosenblum (8pp, $4.00) 2880
STRAUTMANIS, Edvins: Strautmanis by Herman Cherry (6pp, $3.50) 2818
STRAYER, Paul: Paul Strayer: Western Paintings (10pp, $5.00) 1645
STRIDER, Marjorie: Marjorie Strider, 10 Years:1970-1980 by John Perreault, April Kingsley, Donald Kuspit, Lawrence Alloway (48pp) 2327,2898
SUGARMAN, George: Shape of Space: The Sculpture of George Sugarman by Holliday T. Day (116pp, $20.00) 2143,2278
SURLS, James: Lucero, Scanga, Surls by William Zimmer (18pp, $6.00) 3270
SWAN, Fred: Fred Swan ($5.00) 2159
SWARTZ, Beth Ames: Beth Ames Swartz: Israel Revisited ($6.00) 2614

T

TAPIES, Antoni: Antoni Tapies: Mixed Media (32pp, $10.00) 2469
TARR, William: Bill Tarr—Sculpture and New Work by Judith Wolfe (8pp) 2311
TEED, Douglas Arthur: Douglas Arthur Teed: An American Romantic by Pamela Beecher (53pp, $5.00) 2316
TENIERS, David: Adrian Brouwer and David Teniers by M. Klinge ($25) 2706
THAYER, Abbott: Abbott Henderson Thayer by Ross Anderson (144pp, $13.00) 2694,2938
THOMAS, Alma: A Life in Art: Alma Thomas by Merry A. Foresta (56pp, Free) 1593
THOMPSON, Peter: Peter Thompson: Recent Works (16pp, $2.50) 1806
THOMPSON, Richard Earl: Seasonal Transitions of Richard Earl Thompson (74pp, $10.00) 1886
TISSOT, J. James: J. James Tissot: Biblical Paintings (60pp, $6.00) 2614
TODT: Bold Headline; Todt (8pp) 2909
TOLLIVER, Mose: Mose T by Mitchell D. Kahan (8pp, Free) 1012
TOMKINS, Margaret: Margaret Tomkins: 1975-1981 by Sue Ann Kendall (24pp, $5.00) 3410
TORAL, Tabo: Tabo Toral: Oil paintings (4pp, Free) 1572
TOULGOUAT, Jean-Marie: Jean-Marie Toulgouat (4pp, $2.00) 3027
TOULOUSE-LAUTREC, Henri de: The Graphic Works of Henri Toulouse-Lautrec by the San Diego Museum of Art (120pp, $16.00) 1316
TRAYLOR, Bill: Bill Traylor by Margaret Lynne Ausfeld (6pp, Free) 1012
TURNER, J.M.W.: J.M.W. Turner Watercolors from the British Museum by Lindsay Stainton (90pp, $15.00) 1563
TWO EAGLES, D. Bret: Paintings by D. Bret Two Eagles (4pp, Free) 3223
TWORKOV, Jack: Jack Tworkov: Fifteen Years of Painting (64pp, $12.00) 2569

U

UDINOTTI, Agnese: Udinotti by Rudy Turk (28pp, $5.00) 1062
ULLOA, Alberto: Ulloa (46pp, $5.00) 3185

V

VAN DER ROHE, Mies: Mies van der Rohe: Barcelona Pavilion and Furniture Designs by Franz Schulze (12pp) 1117
VAN DER ROHE, Mies: Mies van der Rohe: Interior Spaces (44pp, $10.00) 1637
VAN DOMMELEN, David B.: David B. Van Dommelen: Twenty-five years of Fiber Art by Pennsylvania State University Museum of Art (8pp, $1.00) 3178
VAN DER ZEE, James: Harlem Heyday: The Photography of James Van Der Zee (22pp, $2.00) 2275
VANRIET, Jan: Jan Vanriet by Edward Lucie-Smith (120pp, $15.00) 1240
VICKREY, Robert: Robert Vickrey: Lyrical Realist (50pp, $7.00) 1081
VLAVIANOS, Nicholas: Nicholas Vlavianos by Walter Zanini (12pp, Free) 2637
VOLLET, Jean: Jean Vollet (8pp, $3.00) 1667
VON DEM BUSSCHE, Wolf: Wolf van dem Bussche: Three Portfolios by Lynne Hockman (26pp, $5.00) 1257
VON WIEGAND, Charmion: Charmion Von Wiegand: Her Life And Art (48pp, $2.00) 1520

W

WALDRUM, Harold Joe: Waldrum by George Schriever (20pp, $15) 2266
WALKER, John: John Walker by Jack B. Flam (16pp, $7.50) 1469
WALKOWITZ, Abraham: Abraham Walkowitz Figuration 1885-1945 by Kent Smith (52pp, $10.00) 1125
WALKOWITZ, Abraham: Abraham Walkowitz: Works on Paper by Dale Mintz (4pp, Free) 2907
WALL, Jeff: Jeff Wall by Ian Wallace (12pp, $5.00) 1718
WARDLAW, George: Wardlaw by Richard Mühlerger (12pp, $3.00) 1952
WARHOL, Andy: Myths (11pp, $6.00) 2504
WEBER, Max: Max Weber-An Exhibition of Works by Alan S. King (24pp, $7.50) 2249
WEBER, Max: Max Weber: American Modern by Percy North (120pp, $13.50) 2614
WEGMAN, William: Wegman's World by Lisa Lyons, Kim Levin (80pp, $10.95) 2061
WELLIVER, Neil: Neil Welliver /Paintings/1966-81 by Robert M. Doty (90pp, $15.00) 1790,2155
WESTON, Edward: Edward Weston-One Hundred Photographs by Keith F. Davis (65pp, $10.00) 2093
WESTON, Edward: Edward Weston: Passion and Precision Made One (8pp, $.50) 1100
WESTON, Edward: Edward Weston: Photographs (4pp, $.75) 3476
WHARTON, Margaret: Chairs Transformed: Margaret Wharton's Sculpture by Mary Jane Jacobs 3249
WHARTON, Margaret: Margaret Wharton 3198
WHISTLER, James McNeill: Whistler and His Contemporaries by Lee Karpiscak (44pp) 1074
WHITE, Charles: Images of Dignity: A Retrospective of the Works of Charles White (51pp, $7.79) 2820
WIENER, Phyllis Ames: A Retrospective; Phyllis Ames Wiener (16pp, $2.50) 2047
WIGGINS, Walt: 40 Years of Photojournalism (4pp., $1.00) 2224
WILEY, William T.: William T. Wiley by Ted Lindberg (28pp, $7.00) 2528
WILEY, William T.: William T. Wiley by William T. Wiley and Myra Morgan (25pp, $7.00) 1808
WILKE, Ulfert: Ulfert Wilke: The Viking Ships by the Cedar Rapids Museum of Art (10pp, $2.00) 1786
WILLIAMS, Guy: Guy Williams: Selected Works, 1976-1982 (35pp, $10.00) 1170
WILLIAMS, Hiram: Hiram Williams: Retrospective Exhibition by the University of Florida ($5.00) 1505
WILLIAMS, Roger: Roger Arrandale Williams: Photographs, 1975–1981 (12pp, $2.00) 2898
WILLIS, Jay: Jay Willis by Michael Smith (4pp, $1.50) 1136
WINOKUR, Paula: Paula Winokur: Recent Work (4pp, $1.00) 3121
WOELFFER, Emerson: Emerson Woelffer: Portrait of the Artist, 1947-1981 (48pp, $10.00) 1107
WOOD, Thomas Waterman: Thomas W. Wood, 1823-1903 by William Lipke (64pp, $3.00) 3381
WORES, Theodore: Theodore Wores, 1859-1939: A Retrospective Exhibition by the Huntsville Museum of Art (58pp) 1505
WYETH, N. C.: N .C. Wyeth in Maine by C. Podmaniczky (9pp, $5.00) 1894

Y

YAO, C. J.: C. J. Yao: Prints, the Reflection Series 4 ($10.00) 2670
YARDE, Richard: Richard Yarde: Savoy (32pp, $6.00) 1984
YASUDA, Robert: Wall-size Works: Kent Floeter and Robert Yasuda by Judith Tannenbaum (24pp, $4.00) 3176
YORK, Albert: Albert York by Fairfield Porter (16pp, $1.00) 2465
YOUNGERMAN, Jack: Jack Youngerman: Relief Paintings and Sculpture 1978-1982 by Jack Youngerman (16pp) 2936
YOUNGERMAN, Jack: Jack Youngerman: Relief Paintings (8pp, $1.00) 2855
YUNKERS, Adja: Adja Yunkers (6pp) 2434

Z

ZABARI, Moshe: Torah Ornaments by Moshe Zabari (4pp, $.25) 2614
ZAPKUS, Kes: Kes Zapkus: Notation/Progression by Katherine Lochridge (6pp, $2.50.) 2333
ZIRKER, Joseph: Joseph Zirker by Jules Heller (22pp, $6.00) 1218
ZISLA, Harold: Zisla (16pp, $4.00) 1763
ZOLLER, Steve: Zoller by Victoria Kogan (24pp, $5.00) 1111
ZUCKER, Joe: The Paintings of Joe Zucker 1969-1982 by Susan Krane (84pp, $14.00) 2294
ZUÑIGA, Francisco: Francisco Zuñiga by Lassaigne (124pp, $25.00) 2416

Art Catalogs OF SPECIAL INTEREST

The Sculpture of Picasso
Essay by Robert Rosenblum, "Notes on Picasso Sculpture" examines the major themes of this 1982 exhibition. 72 pages, 16 color, 75 B/W; $16.00
Pace Gallery Publications,
32 E 57 St, NYC 10022

Still Life and Architecture
1982 exhibit of watercolors and tables by Saul Steinberg. Poetic introduction by Italo Calvino.
40 pages, 16 color, 21 B/W; $15.00
Pace Gallery Publications,
32 E 57 St, NYC 10022

PAUL CADMUS
YESTERDAY AND TODAY

PAUL CADMUS: YESTERDAY AND TODAY
by Philip Eliasoph, foreword by Lloyd Goodrich. 128 pages, paperbound, 127 b/w illus., 14 color plates, color cover. Price $14.50 plus $2.50 postage and handling.
Miami University Art Museum
Patterson Avenue Oxford, Ohio 45056

LIMITED EDITION BOOKS
ANTONI TAPIES: Edition 2,000 92 pages. 46 color reproductions
ANDRE MASSON: Edition 3,000 122 pages. 60 color reproductions
Texts by Carmine Bennicasa.
$1,500, Published by SEAT, Italy.
Marisa del Re Gallery,
41 East 57th St.,
New York 10022. 212-688-1843

CLASSIC WESTERN AMERICAN PAINTING
Biographical information on representative artists and examples of their work $15.00.
B.J.O. NORDFELDT $15.00
HENRIETTE WYETH $7.00. Postage $1.00.
GERALD PETERS P.O. Box 2524
Santa Fe, NM 87501 505-988-8961

THE MODERN DRAWING

The Modern Drawing:
100 Works on Paper from the Museum of Modern Art. A full-color presentation from van Gogh and Cézanne to Rauschenberg and Johns. Cloth $39.00, paper $20.00 postpaid.
MoMA/DRG, 11 W. 53 St., New York 10019.

KRASNER POLLOCK
A WORKING RELATIONSHIP
THOMAS MORAN
Willem de Kooning

GUILD HALL'S
GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY CATALOGUES
Barbara Rose, Krasner/Pollock, $4.00
Phyllis Braff, Thomas Moran, $6.50*
Judith Wolfe, Willem deKooning, $6.50* *color Set of three, $16.00 postpaid
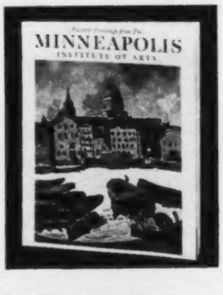
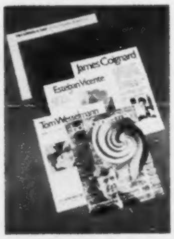
Museum Shop, 158 Main Street,
East Hampton, NY 11937



Favorite Paintings from
The Minneapolis Institute of Arts.
Samuel Sachs II. 104 pages, 48 illustrations (47 in color). Paperback. $12.95. The museum's Director presents fifty of his favorite paintings from the permanent collection. Each is accompanied by a beautifully illustrated color photograph.

Christo.
Definitive catalog: drawings, models, sculpture and wrapped objects. 144 pgs. 26 color, 56 b&w illustrations. AMA Award of Excellence, 1982.
$19.95. $21.95 ppd.
La Jolla Museum of Contemporary Art.
700 Prospect, La Jolla, CA 92037.



TRANSWORLD ART, INC.
Important collector's know the long history of Transworld Art publications. Limited editions of original graphics, multiples and posters include Calder, Coignard, Dali, De Kooning, Miro, Moore, Tobey, Wesselmann, Youngerman, to name a few. Cat. $10 (deduct from first order) Visa, AmEx.
20 W. 57 St. N.Y.C. 10019 (212) 757-2700.

MOORE
James Coignard

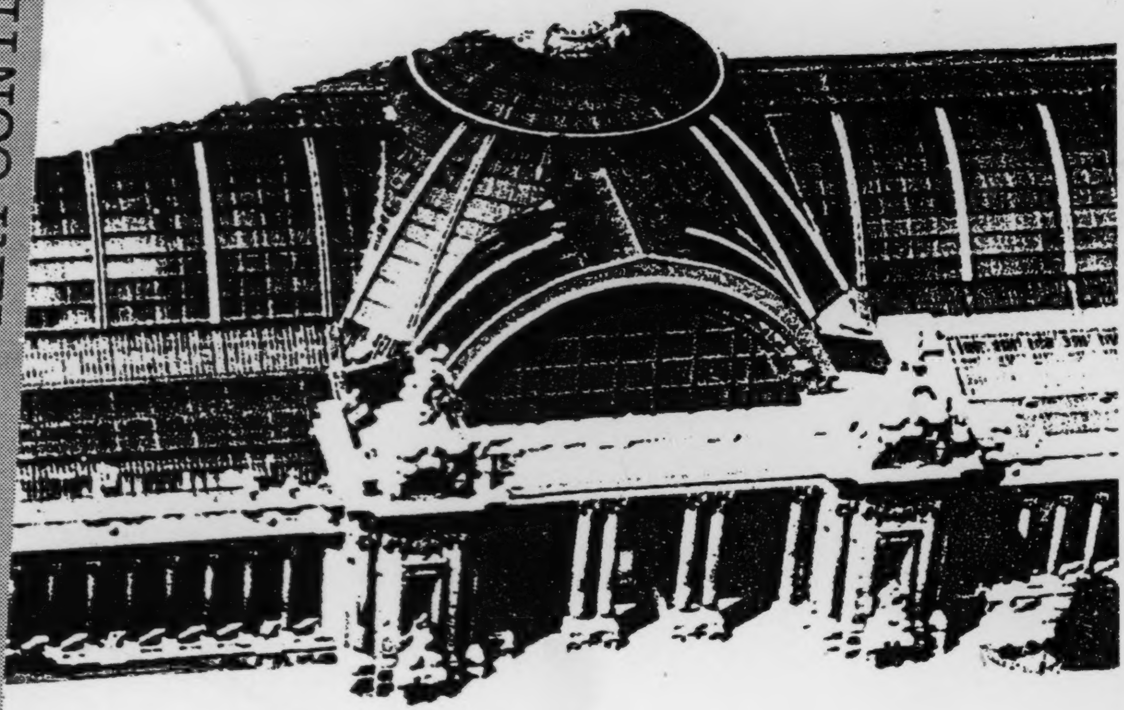
ALEX ROSENBERG GALLERY
Representing dynamic and innovative painters and sculptors of the 20th century.
Catalogs Available: Ann Chernow $2 James Coignard $4. Ilse Gerz $2. Howard Kanovitz $4. Lila Katzen $5. Sven Lukin $2. Conrad Marca-Relli $5. Henry Moore (1981) $7.50 (1983) $10. Gordon Parks $4. Mark Tobey $5. Manoucher Yektai $4.
20 W. 57 St. N.Y.C. 10019 (212) 757-2700.

Irving Penn: Photographs, $14.00
Reuben Nakian: Sculpture, $12.00
Hugh O'Donnell: Paintings & Drawings, $10.00
Stephen Edlich: Collages, $14.00
Neil Welliver: Paintings, $14.00
Alex Katz: Paintings, $14.00
Masters of the 19th & 20th Centuries, $26.00
Charles Ginnever: Sculpture, $12.00
Marlborough
40 West 57 New York 10019 Tel 541-4900

VOL 71
ISS 7
AG 1983
UMI

FIAC 83

PARIS - GRAND PALAIS - ART-CONTEMPORAIN.



24 SEPT. - 2 OCT.

ouvert tous les jours de 12 h à 20 h - samedi et dimanche de 10 h à 20 h - nocturne le jeudi 29 de 12 h à 23 h.

INDEX TO Artists

A

A'DAVILA, Louis 3307
A'HEARN, Yvonne 2857
AACH, Herb 2399
AALTO, Alvar 3233
AARON, John 2012
AASON, J.J. 1086
ABAKANOWICZ, Magdalena 1640, 1650, 1704
ABBEY, Rita 1916
ABBOTT-RYAN, Pat 2840
ABBOTT, Berenice 1463, 1668, 1869, 2090, 2325, 2574, 2604, 2643, 2903
ABBOTT, Carlton 3399
ABBOTT, Dorothy 1458, 2310
ABBOTT, James 3000
ABBOUD, Mara 2947
ABDALLA, Nick 1047
ABDELL, Douglas 2460
ABE, Satoru 1602, 1603
ABELES, Kim 1324, 2631
ABELES, Sigmund 1381, 1933, 2685, 2770, 3358
ABELEW, Bernard 2166
ABELSON, Dorothy 2161
ABEND, Arlene 2937, 2940
ABISH, Cecile 2936
ABLOW, Joseph 1915, 1944
ABLOW, Roselyn Karol 1933, 2685
ABOULAFIA, Eileen 2045
ABRAHAMI, Elie 2825
ABRAHAMS, Ivor 1158, 2608
ABRAITIS, Vivian 2564
ABRAM, Carlyn Fisher 2815
ABRAM, Paul 3484
ABRAMS, Barbara 2844
ABRAMS, Jane 1775, 2271
ABRAMS, Mary 2888
ABRAMS, Michael 2371
ABRAMS, Simon 2157
ABRAMS, Vivian 3020
ABRAMSON, Charles 2620
ABRAMSON, Larry 2844
ABRAMSON, Marjorie 2802
ABRANOWICZ, William 1367, 3263
ABREU, Mauro 2349
ABRONS, Anne 2794
ABULARACH, Rodolfo 1284, 2637
ACCONCI, Vito 1207, 1238, 1285, 1289, 1290, 1399, 1453, 1731, 1917, 2463, 2885, 3087, 3404
ACCORSI, William 2302, 2890
ACERO, Raul 2433
ACHEFF, William 2227
ACHEPOHL, Keith 1135, 1463, 1644, 1801, 3459
ACHUFF, James 2937
ACITELLI, Francesco 1523
ACKER, Perry 3080, 3436
ACKLAND-KOLB, Linda 3226
ACKROYD, Norman 1458, 2038, 3117
ACORN, John 3205
ADAIR, Norman 3268
ADAM 2392
ADAM, S. 1408, 2800
ADAM, Stephanie 1404, 1415
ADAMI, Valerio 1166, 1326, 1676
ADAMS, Allan 1264, 2580
ADAMS, Amzie 1860
ADAMS, Ansel 1097, 1100, 1198, 1291, 1540, 1847, 1869, 3003
ADAMS, Brad 3389
ADAMS, Doug 3033
ADAMS, Duane 2140
ADAMS, Hank Murta 1910
ADAMS, Kevin 1101
ADAMS, Leo 3444
ADAMS, Mac 2885
ADAMS, Margo 1829
ADAMS, Mark 1246, 2712
ADAMS, Pat 2880, 3379, 3403
ADAMS, Peter 3205
ADAMS, Phoebe 2762
ADAMS, Rick 1377
ADAMS, Robert 1262, 2009, 2551, 2584
ADAMS, Shelby Lee 2179
ADAMS, Wayman 2403
ADAMS, Williams 2609
ADAMS, Willis 3374
ADAMS, Yura 2516
ADAMSON, Jim 1287
ADAMSON, Melvin 1819
ADAN, Suzanne 1720
ADDELSBERGER, Dale 1612
ADDINGTON, Aldon 1628, 1835
ADDINGTON, Constance 1702
ADDISON, Lee 2173
ADDISON, Robert 1647, 2147
ADELMAN, Bunny 1480
ADER, Pam 2734
ADKINS, Richard 1327
ADKISON, Kathleen Gemberling 3441
ADLER, Jankel 2354
ADLER, Kenmit 2598
ADLER, Samuel 2481
ADLEY, James 2000
ADORNO, Olga 2566
ADVEDOR 1670
AEBERSOLD, Jane Ford 1137, 1933, 2491, 2685
AFRICANO, Nicholas 1132, 1658, 2804
AGAM, Yaacov 1096, 1151, 1166, 1326, 1484, 1676, 1797, 1874, 1944, 2042, 2314, 2592, 2795, 3180, 3285, 3472
AGAR, Will 2065
AGARD, Jim 2851
AGATI, Joe 1680
AGEE, Sheila 3217
AGNETTI, Vincenzo 2504
AGUADO, Deborah 3348
AGUILAR, Ricardo 3255
AGUILO, Esther 3255
AHARI, Nasser 2827
AHEARN, John 1731, 2362
AHGUPUK, George 3435
AHLBORN, Roxy 2226
AHLGREN, Roy 2916
AHLSTROM, Edwin 1445
AHN, Hyong Nam 1659
AHRENDT, Mary 1659
AHRENS, Hanno 1105
AHVAKANA, Lawrence 1063
AIKEN, Ta-coumba 2049
AIKEN, William 1037
AIRHART, David 1625
AIVASOVSKY, Ivan 2830
AJAY, Abe 2399
AKASHI, Karen 1164
AKAWIE, Thomas 1253
AKERS, Adela 2681, 3348
AKINS, Future 1713
AKSTON, J. James 1561
AL-HILALI, Neda 1157, 1241, 1728, 1995, 2109, 2681
ALAGIA, Jasu 1036
ALBA 2853
ALBEE, Grace 3307
ALBER, Bob 3226
ALBER, Jo Ann 1996
ALBERETTI, Robert 1407
ALBERS, Anni 1404, 1995
ALBERS, John 2523
ALBERS, Josef 1152, 1554, 1930, 2058, 2178, 3111
ALBERS, Margaretha 2657
ALBERT, Calvin 1470
ALBERT, Ernest 1954
ALBERT, Karl 1052
ALBERTI, John 2280
ALBERTS, John 3076
ALBERTS, Stanley 3302
ALBIZU, Olga 3183
ALBRIGHT, Ivan L. 1880, 3168
ALBRIZIO, Conrad 1847
ALBRIZIO, Humbert 2638
ALBUQUERQUE, Lita 1159, 1659, 3306
ALCOSSER, Murray 2670
ALDERETTE, Bob 1188, 1202
ALDERFER, Doug 3131
ALDERFER, Judy 3131
ALDERMAN, Lou 1082
ALDERMAN, Sharon 3373
ALECHINSKY, Pierre 1184, 2019, 2572, 2644
ALEKSANDROV, Michail 2637
ALEXANDER, Alan 1036
ALEXANDER, Ann 2336
ALEXANDER, Bill 1377
ALEXANDER, Connie 1567
ALEXANDER, Francesca 2360
ALEXANDER, John 1654, 3141, 3317
ALEXANDER, John White 2562
ALEXANDER, Leslye 1385
ALEXANDER, Peter 1112, 1136, 1138, 1680, 3418
ALF, Martha 1111, 1112, 1176, 1721
ALFIERIE, Philipe 2194
ALFORD, Dwayne 1011
ALGAZE, Mario 1515
ALI 1944
ALICEA, José 3181, 3182, 3183, 3188
ALINARI, Luca 1529
ALJIAN, Mary 2015
ALKEN, Henry 1714
ALKIRE, Dyann 3076
ALLAN, George 1619
ALLAN, William 1263, 2709
ALLELY, Steve 1382
ALLEMAND, Jean 3283
ALLEN GROFF, Eunice 1516
ALLEN, Bruce 3481
ALLEN, David 1236
ALLEN, Elaine 2705
ALLEN, Harold 3125
ALLEN, Jean 3255
ALLEN, Jesse 1302, 2851
ALLEN, Jo Harvey 1259, 1339
ALLEN, Joan 1608
ALLEN, John 3224
ALLEN, Lloyd 2909
ALLEN, Nena 3198
ALLEN, Terry 1263, 1626, 1808, 2117
ALLENSWORTH, Jane 3336
ALLIGER, Frank 1275
ALLISON, Dan 1343, 3010, 3266, 3296, 3346
ALLSBURG, Chris Van 1298
ALMAGUER, Michael 1697
ALMARAZ, Carlos 1129, 1159, 1298
ALMEIDA, Peter 1609
ALMYDA, Joseph 3332
ALOIA, Mimi 2561
ALPER, Natalie 1947
ALPERS, Joan 2432
ALPERT, Bill 2658
ALPERT, Laura 3070
ALPHA, David 1851
ALPUY, Julio 1284
ALQUILAR, Maria 1286, 1331
ALSOP, Adele 2508
ALSTON, Charles 2752
ALSTON, Rebecca 1807
ALT, Duane 2498
ALTAMIRANO, Pacheco 2785
ALTER, Carole 2018, 2833
ALTERMAN, Johnny 3417
ALTFELD, Merwin 3077
ALTINA 1473
ALTMAN, Edith 1659, 1675
ALTMAN, Harold 1258, 1366, 1755, 1768, 1812, 1955, 2683, 2916, 3041, 3169, 3450, 3458, 3472
ALTOON, John 1249, 1325, 2833
ALTSCHUL, Patricia 1105
ALVAR 1524, 1768, 1797, 2034, 2379, 2819, 3009
ALVAREZ PINEIRO, Emma 2374
ALVAREZ, Elba 1606
ALVARO, Jorge 2530
AMADOR, Joseph 1525
AMADOR, Victor 2433
AMAN, Jane 3399
AMARAL, Antonio 2637
AMAROTICO, Joseph 3118
AMASON, Alvin 1039
AMAT, Frederic 2662
AMATEAU, Michelle 1659, 2105
AMATNIEK, Sara 2305, 2340
AMBROSE, Peter 2412
AMEDEE, Wayne 1867
AMEMIYA, Clayton 1603
AMEND, Richard 1151
AMENOFF, Gregory 1943, 2678
AMERINE, Wayne 3321
AMES-SWARTZ, Beth 1352
AMFT, Bob 1682
AMICO, David 1160, 1201, 1202
AMIT, Amos 3369
AMMONS, Jane 2973
AMODIO, Andres 2705
AMOROTICO, Joseph 3114
AMPE, Mari Lyn 2062
AMSTER, Sally 2744
ANASTASI, William 2499
ANAYA, Stephen 1174
ANDERBOUHR, Paul 2498
ANDERLE, Jiri 1640, 1953, 3417
ANDERSON, Ann Stewart 1832, 1837
ANDERSON, Bruce 2060, 2171
ANDERSON, Carolyn 1427
ANDERSON, Clayton 3151
ANDERSON, Craig 1707
ANDERSON, Dallas 3376
ANDERSON, David 1249, 1532, 1811, 2228, 2273
ANDERSON, Dennis 2268
ANDERSON, Doug 1952
ANDERSON, Gayle 1612
ANDERSON, Gunnar 1254
ANDERSON, Guy 3433
ANDERSON, Harry 1535, 3151
ANDERSON, Jack 2183
ANDERSON, James 1424
ANDERSON, Jeremy 1249
ANDERSON, Jim 2133
ANDERSON, John 2818
ANDERSON, John C. 2523
ANDERSON, Karl 2563
ANDERSON, Ken 2095
ANDERSON, Larry 1584
ANDERSON, Laurie 2804
ANDERSON, Lennart 2465

VOL 71
ISS 7
AG 1983
UMI

ANDERSON, Leon 1678, 2095
ANDERSON, Leslie 2048
ANDERSON, Liz 2216
ANDERSON, Lucy 1327
ANDERSON, Marcel 3101, 3140
ANDERSON, Monte 3376
ANDERSON, Parks 3420
ANDERSON, R. Eric 2984
ANDERSON, Ralph 1254
ANDERSON, Robert 1188, 2169, 2208, 2738
ANDERSON, Ruthadell 1609
ANDERSON, Sally 2048, 2257
ANDERSON, Skippy 3399
ANDERSON, Suzanne Newman 1293
ANDERSON, Troy 2256, 3061
ANDERSON, Walter 1593, 1847, 1870, 2073, 3238
ANDERSON, Walter Inglis 3307
ANDERSON, Warren 1128
ANDERSON-ARMSTRONG, Mary 1933, 2685
ANDRADE, Edna 3131
ANDRAUD, Norma 1036, 1234, 1810, 2050, 2210, 2314
ANDRE, Carl 1335, 1492, 1578, 2423, 2452
ANDREJEVIC, Milet 2779
ANDREOLI, Andre 1328
ANDRES, David 1144
ANDRESON, Laura 1043, 1114, 1118, 2247
ANDREWS, Benny 1082, 1467, 1590, 1595, 1964, 2321, 2472, 2553, 2903
ANDREWS, Gareth 2273
ANDREWS, Susan 2098
ANDREWS, Tim 1079, 1085
ANDRIULLI, Bob 3161
ANDUR, Judy 1992
ANELLO, Julia Buchholz 2344
ANENBERG, Ilene 2904
ANGEL, Felix 1284, 1490, 2011
ANGELINI, John 2161
ANGELL, Tony 3420
ANGELLE, Jean 1852
ANGLE, Warren 2519
ANGUIANO, Raul 1202
ANISFELD, Boris 1674, 1758
ANJAL 1517
ANLIKER, Roger 3153
ANNAN, Bill 1003
ANNESLEY, Robert 2256, 3052, 3059
ANREUS, Alejandro 2011
ANSELL, Michael 1190, 1654
ANSELMO, Giovanni 2358
ANSHUTZ, Thomas 2562
ANTES, Horst 2644
ANTHONISEN, George 2652
ANTHONY, Carol 1496, 2329, 2464, 2502
ANTHONY, Lawrence 3239
ANTHONY, William 2658
ANTIC, Alexandra 1933, 2685
ANTIC, Miroslav 1939
ANTIN, Eleanor 1165, 1169, 2504
ANTONAKIS, Costa 1067
ANTONAKOS, Stephen 2922
ANTONINI, Annapia 1444
ANTONOW, William 2000
ANTREASIAN, Garo 1343, 1995, 2222, 3010, 3316
ANTRIM, Craig 1183
ANUFRIEV, Alexander 1944
ANUSKIEWICZ, Richard 1240, 1267, 1680, 2881, 3026
ANZALONE, William 2550, 3318
APARICIO 2637
APEL, Barbara 1933, 2685
APFELSCHNITT, Carl 2711, 3149
APODACA, Joe 3085
APONOVICH, James 1921
APONTE, Luis 2601
APONTE, Rubin Rivera 3183
APP, Timothy 2220, 2228, 3265
APPALMER, Michael 3282
APPEL, Allen 1441
APPEL, Eric 2319, 2546
APPEL, Karel 1067, 1698, 1945, 2019, 2053, 2391, 2551, 2572, 2592, 2671, 2764, 3310
APPEL, Keith 1021
APPEL, Robert 1682
APPLE, Cecil 3220
APPLE, Karl 1826
APPLEBROOG, Ida 1161, 1639, 2504
APPLEGATE, John 1116
APPLEMAN, Glenn 2332
APRILE, Thomas 2068
APT, Charles 2302
APTEKAR, Elaine 3315
APTER-MCKEVITT, Marjorie 2318, 2436
AQUINO, Edmundo 1256
AQUINO, Humberto 2011
ARAKAWA 1074, 1167, 1478, 1506, 1721, 2058, 2060, 2329, 2504, 2533, 2684, 3107
ARANA, Alfonso Melendez 3181
ARANGO, Ramiro 1490
ARATEN, Harry 2207
ARBUS, Diane 1869, 1936
ARCENEAUX, K. C. 1854
ARCH, Adria 1963
ARCH, Karen 2216
ARCHIPENKO, Alexander 1145, 2727, 2861, 2880
ARCHULETA, Felipe 2404
ARCILESI, Vincent 2468
ARDISSONE, Yolande 1667
ARENA, Ron 2050
ARENDS, Stuart 1177
ARENTZ, Dick 1055
ARENTZEN, Glenda 1965, 3158, 3159
ARGYROPOULOS, Andy 2044
ARIKHA, Avigdor 2660, 3317
ARISMAN, Marshall 1269, 2798
ARITA, Akira 2814, 3168
ARKELL, Ross 2007
ARKHIPOV, Abram 2830
ARLEN, Nancy 2816
ARLT, Paul 1434
ARLU, George 2361
ARMAJANI, Siah 1453, 2747, 3122
ARMAN, 2580, 2885
ARMBRUSTER, Tom 3205
ARMIJO, Richard 2620
ARMLEDER, John 2885
ARMS, Anneli 2730
ARMS, John Taylor 1880
ARMSTRONG, Ann 3302
ARMSTRONG, David 2159, 2575
ARMSTRONG, J. Chester 1115
ARMSTRONG, Jane 1544, 2472, 2960
ARMSTRONG, Kathleen 2505
ARMSTRONG, Martha 3136
ARMSTRONG, Sara 2449
ARMSTRONG, Verna 2987
ARNDT, Linda 1775
ARNDT, Tom 1800, 2065
ARNESON, Robert 1105, 1263, 1319, 1442, 1669, 2528
ARNESON, Wendell 2066, 3460
ARNEST, Bernard 2638
ARNING, Eddie 1646
ARNOLD, Ann 1268
ARNOLD, Bart 1190
ARNOLD, Jane 2489
ARNOLDI, Charles 1112, 1138, 1263, 2492, 3333
ARNOLDI, Per 1513, 1581
ARNTZ, Penny Schuchman 1233
ARO, Mary 1918
ARON, Bill 1944
ARON, Kalman 1322
ARONSON, David 1093, 1944
ARONSON, Jan 3200
ARONSON, Joseph 2809
ARP, Jean 1145, 2861
ARREGUIN, Alfredo 1269, 1281, 1625
ARRIETA, Jorge 3242
ARROW, Holly 1347
ARROYO, Eduardo 2595
ARTHUN, Kim 2217
ARTHUR, Bradley 2732
ARTSCHWAGER, Richard 1148, 1193, 1304, 1731, 1966, 2003, 2429, 2430, 2684
ARUM, Barbara 2158
ARUNS, Jane 2682, 2800
ARVEN, Florence 3273
ARYE, Leonora 2324
ASAKURA-KIMURA, Ann 1609
ASAOKA, Masaki 1301
ASARO, John 2254
ASAY, Roger 2216
ASH, Richard III 1078, 2997
ASHBAUGH, Dennis 2297, 2457, 3317
ASHBY, Steve 1690
ASHCRAFT, Michael 3373
ASHER, Elise 2598
ASHER, James 1056
ASHLEE, Stewart 2004
ASHLEY, Ethel 1085
ASIMINA 2180
ASKEVOLD, David 1162, 2885
ASKEW, Ed 2618
ASKIN, Eliza 3399
ASOMA, Tadashi 2506
ASPENWALL, Al 3369
ASPEVIG, Clyde 1035
ASSEL, Steven 2007
ASTON, Rogers 1035
ATENCIO, Gilbert 2210
ATGET, Eugene 1100, 1575, 1635, 1668, 1683, 1936, 1950, 2055, 2689, 2741, 3119
ATKINS, Charlotte 3388
ATKINS, Janice 2082
ATKINS, Jerry 2638
ATKINS, William 1056
ATKINSON, Conrad 2504
ATL, Dr. 2785
ATLAS, Ann 2207
ATTARD, Paul 1388
ATTIE, Dottie 1561, 2357
ATWILL, Douglas 1357, 1816, 2242, 3309
AUBIN, Barbara 1664
AUDETTE, Anna Held 1408
AUDUBON, John James 1589, 2373, 2701, 3041
AUERBACH, Frank 1158, 2608, 2660
AUFIERO, Tina Marie 1910, 2934
AUGÉ, Philippe 1667, 3273
AUGENBLICK, Kate 2421
AUGER, Stephen 2375
AUGTHUN, Carol 3212
AUGUSTA, George 2738
AULT, Becky 3164
AULT, George 2845
AURAND, Susan 1026
AUSTE 2573
AUSTIN, Carol 1633
AUSTIN, Darrel 1522, 1544
AUSTIN, Gayle 1770
AUSTIN, James 1770
AUSTIN, Phil 1702
AUTH, Tony 1451
AUTHIER, David 1177
AUTIO, Rudy 1137, 1808, 1933, 2685
AUTORINO, Anthony 2171
AVADENKA, Lynne 2020
AVATI, Mario 1444, 2385
AVEDISIAN, Edward 2297
AVEDON, Richard 1306, 1950
AVERY, Eric 3301
AVERY, March 2593, 2824
AVERY, Milton 1064, 1157, 1201, 1264, 1417, 1420, 1491, 1522, 1530, 1544, 1575, 1678, 1763, 1921, 2008, 2052, 2168, 2192, 2411, 2551, 2719, 2803, 2868, 2907, 2948
AVIANO, Michael 2563
AVILES, San 2662
AVISON, David 1367, 1739
AVRETT, Marty 3058
AVRIL, Pam 2618
AXELROD, Miriam 2339
AXTON, John 1349, 1803, 1814, 2050, 2213, 2230, 2314, 2826, 3267, 3316
AY-O 1244, 1267
AYCOCK, Alice 1453, 1691, 2859, 3141, 3320
AYERS, Doug 1039
AYERS, Starr 2972
AYLON, Helene 2353
AYRTON, Michael 1686, 2736
AZACETA, Luis Cruz 1848, 2528
AZCUY, Ray 3454
AZIOS, Rosario 2050
AZOULAY, Guillaume 1332, 1871, 2145
AZUZ, David 2807

B

"B", Oshuituk 2361
BABCOCK, Herbert 1743
BABCOCK, Merrily 2051
BABER, Alice 1013, 1470, 1566, 1748, 2583
BABIOR, Daniel 1172, 2844
BABOCHENKO, Eugene 1522, 1546
BACERRA, Ralph 1137, 1433, 2095, 2737
BACH, Caleb 1342
BACH, Mary 3399
BACHARACH, David 1949, 1971
BACHARDY, Don 2678
BACHER, Tom 2042, 2580, 3004
BACHMAN, Jim 1019
BACHMAN, Sally 2257
BACIK, Susan 2062
BACON, Francis 2146, 2531, 2660
BACON, Peggy 2638, 3307
BACZEK, Peter 1278
BADALAMENTI, Fred 2510
BADDELEY, Ann 1767
BADE, John 1608
BADE, Linda 1608, 1609
BADO, Elli 2194
BADYNSKI, Ernest 2214, 2242
BAECHLER, Donald 2298, 2791
BAECKE, Florent 3351
BAEDER, John 1535, 1808, 1946, 2019, 2580
BAENDERECK, Sepp 2637
BAER, Andrea 2827
BAER, Barbara 1372, 1862
BAER, Ron 1944
BAER, Tim 3082
BAEZ, Myrna 2686, 3181, 3183
BAGBY, Ann 2082
BAGGETT, Michael 3205
BAGGETT, William 1874
BAGGULEY, Richard 1234
BAGLEY, Bill 1619
BAGLEY, Eldridge 3399
BAGLEY, Frances 3271
BAHAR, Bijan 1302, 2851
BAHNMILLER, Cay 2018
BAHUNEK, Branko 2416, 2752
BAILEY-MERSHON, Ed 1703
BAILEY, Barry 1878, 2984
BAILEY, Clayton 1253, 1319, 1331, 1340
BAILEY, Jean 3225
BAILEY, Oscar 1555
BAILEY, Robert E. 2089
BAILEY, Roger 1248
BAILEY, Sallie 2937
BAILEY, Terry 1842
BAILEY, William 1442, 2779
BAILIN, Hella 2161
BAILY, James 2218
BAIM, Richard 2296
BAIN, Elizabeth 1179
BAIN, Monica 1713
BAIRD, Jan Ruby 2915
BAIRD, John 2091
BAIZE, Wayne 1035, 1702
BAJ, Enrico 2375
BAK, Bronislaw 1590
BAK, Samuel 1944
BAKER, Alice 2310
BAKER, Ann ("Mrs. B") 1760
BAKER, Carol 1938
BAKER, Chet 2371
BAKER, Cornelia 2209
BAKER, George 1171, 1240
BAKER, Jack 1523
BAKER, Jill 2854
BAKER, Joby 1140
BAKER, Joe 1030, 1044, 1045, 1371, 1984
BAKER, Joey 1046
BAKER, Leslie 3153
BAKER, Lowell 1077
BAKER, Ruth Ann 1077
BAKER, Terese 3205
BAKHCHANYAN, Vagrich 2450
BAKOS, Josef 2238
BAKSCHEEV, Vassily 2830
BAKSHI, Ralph 1160
BALADI, Roland 1053
BALAGUER, Jiminez 1670
BALASSANIAN, Sonia 2521
BALAZS, Harold 2812, 3080, 3428
BALCAR, Jiří 1640
BALCIAR, Gerald 1362, 1384
BALDERSON, Lance 3101, 3140
BALDESSARI, John 1659, 2805, 3305, 3403
BALDWIN, Douglas 1720
BALDWIN, Gunnar Jr 3383
BALDWIN, H. Huntley 3471
BALDWIN, Nancy 2310, 2332, 2927
BALDWIN, Russell 1188
BALES, Jean 2256
BALET, Jan 1760
BALINK, Henry C. 2238
BALITRAN, Jean-Jacques 2343
BALKIN, Andrew 3460
BALKIN, Steve 2833
BALL, Belva 1523
BALL, Bradly 1085
BALL, Fred 1229, 2812
BALL, Jim 3434
BALL, June 1584
BALL, Lynn 2062
BALL, Ted 2847
BALLA, Giacomo 2642
BALLANTYNE, Catherine 2973
BALLARD, Richard 2589
BALLE, Mogens 1497
BALMAIN, Pierre 1034
BALOSSI, John 3181, 3188
BALSLEY, Diane 3463, 3466
BALSLEY, John 1669, 1808
BALTH, Charles 2726
BALTHUS 2533, 2642, 2667
BALTZ, Lewis 1266, 2431
BALTZELL, Jan C. 3136
BALUSEK, William 3291
BAMA, James 1018, 2627
BAMBERGER, William 2984
BAND, Bob 3251
BANDIRALI, Giuseppe 1635
BANDY, Gary 2658
BANE, McDonald 2960, 2970
BANG, Thomas 2412
BANGERT, Colette 1805, 1809, 2089
BANGS, Constance 3190
BANKHEAD, Judy 3349, 3350
BANKS, David 1181
BANKS, Ian 1247
BANKS, Patricia 1829
BANNARD, Walter Darby 1802, 2443, 2633, 3041, 3336
BANNON, John 3127
BANSEMER, Roger 1480, 1500, 1546
BANYAS, Martha 3078
BAR-AM, Micha 2604
BAR, Nelli 1740
BARAGONA, Rita 2413
BARANOWSKI, Beverly 2059
BARAZANI, Morris 1674
BARBASH, Steven 2550, 2939
BARBE, Michelle 3204
BARBER, Bob 1377

BARBER, Jillian 3164
BARBER, John 1695, 3386
BARBER, Judy 1578
BARBERO, David 1071, 1929, 2240
BARBIERI, Ann 1473
BARBOSA, Santos 1803
BARBOT, Fernand 2290
BARBOUR, Art 2197
BARBOZA, Anthony 2820
BARCHERS, Nelda 1275
BARDARSON, Dot 1021
BAREFORD, David 2205
BARGSTEN, Werner 1512
BARHAM, Doran 1816
BARIBEAU, Robert 2818
BARIL, Tom 2643
BARK, Jared 2804, 3193
BARKER, Al 2194, 2205
BARKIN, Michael 1523
BARKIN, Mike 3011
BARKLEY, Julia 2854
BARLETTA, Joel 1301
BARLOW, Bob 1370
BARLOW, Bonita 2931
BARLOW, Dick 3302
BARLOW, Phil 3376
BARNABÉ, Duilio 1686
BARNARD, Sabine 3060
BARNES, Al 3318
BARNES, Carole 1377
BARNES, Debra 1837
BARNES, Francoise 1920, 2913
BARNES, Michael 1251
BARNES, Robert 1669, 2528
BARNES, Suzanne 1966
BARNET, Will 1258, 1544, 1768, 2168, 2337, 2385, 2444, 2481, 2683, 2822, 2892, 2921, 2928, 3117
BARNETT, Emily 2705
BARNETT, Herbert 1926
BARNETT, Ivan 1760
BARNETT, Jack 3136
BARNETT, Les 3442
BARNETT, Rita 3126
BARNETT, Viveka 3312
BARNETT, Will 3285
BARNETT, William 3135
BARNEY, Marsha 1625
BARNS, Debbie 1079
BARNS, Ted 1079
BARON, Hannelore 1715, 2778
BAROWITZ, Elliott 2405
BARR, Claire 3074
BARR, David 2008, 2081
BARR, Roger 1213
BARR, Victoria 2570
BARRANGER, Miriam 1849
BARRELL, Bill 2917
BARRERA, Antonio 2434
BARRERES, Domingo 1951
BARRETT, Robert 3374
BARRETT, Robert T. 3360
BARRETT, William 2273
BARRETTE, Bill 2827
BARRIE, Don 3436
BARRINGER, Tom 1071
BARRIOS, Raphael 2708
BARRISH, A. J. 1996
BARRON, Barbara 2324
BARRON, Ros 1947
BARROS, Augusto 1670
BARROW, Thomas 1097, 2650
BARRY-WILSON, Colleen 2226
BARRY, Lynda 3430
BARRY, Melissa 1542
BARRY, Robert 1207, 2429, 2430
BARSANO, Ron 1360, 1816
BARSCH, Wulf 3372
BARTH, Frances 2423, 2789
BARTH, Jack 2707, 2833
BARTKO, George 2105
BARTLETT, James W. "Bo" 1593, 3131
BARTLETT, Jennifer 1167, 1478, 1578, 2084, 2143, 2452
BARTLETT, Larry 1877
BARTNICK, Harry 1947, 1992
BARTOL, Teri 2405
BARTON, Dawna 3367, 3369
BARTON, Harry 2799
BARTON, Richard Lee 1079
BARTOS, Mark 3272
BARYE, Antoine-Louis 2792
BAS-COHAIN, Rachel 2357
BASCHET, Bernard/Francois 2814
BASCLE, Andrew 1866
BASCLE, Philip 1866
BASELITZ, Georg 1575, 2518, 2805
BASHOR, John 1625, 2125
BASKIN, Edie 2578
BASKIN, Helen 2332, 2597
BASKIN, Leonard 1785, 2300, 2592, 2626, 3003, 3209
BASKS, Rela 2730
BASQUIAT, Jean-Michel 1148, 1575, 2529, 2707
BASS, Clayton 1590
BASS, David 2970
BASS, David Loren 2962
BASS, Jim 1805, 2089
BASS, Joel 1112
BASS, Kim 1450
BASS, Tony 3285, 3314
BASSLER, James 2491
BASSUK, Jane 2051
BASTIAN, Linda 2802, 2813
BATAN, Martina 2850
BATCHELOR, Anthony 3005
BATCHELOR, Betsey 3125
BATEMAN, Robert 1018, 1061
BATEMAN, Ronald 3131
BATES, Barry 2247
BATES, Bob 1176
BATES, David 2457, 3271
BATES, Robert 1454, 3061
BATES, Tom 2054
BATES, Wayne 1839, 2172, 2597
BATISTA, Kenneth 2920, 3153
BATMAN, Donald 2082
BATMANIS, Cynthia 3335
BATONI, Pompeo 2446
BATSON, Gayle 1083
BATTAGLIA, Carlo 1581, 2377
BATTENBERG, John 1253
BATTENFIELD, Jackie 2777
BATTLE, Carole 2918
BATTLE, Georgette 2483
BATTUT, Michèle 1667
BATUZ 1770
BAUDOIN, Ali 2273, 2394
BAUER, Gretl 2538
BAUER, Marlene 1177
BAUER, Richard 1027, 1172, 1213, 1265
BAUER, Robert 1791
BAUER, Ruth 2659
BAUERMEISTER, Mary 2530
BAUGH, Charles 3343
BAUGH, Rae 2124
BAUGHAN, David 2520
BAUGNET, Julie 1019
BAUINGER, Gene 1354
BAUM, Don 1720
BAUM, Marilyn 1112, 1123, 1276
BAUMAN, Joanne 2139
BAUMANN, Ethel 2889
BAUMANN, Gustave 2872
BAUMGARDNER, Matthew 3205
BAUMGARTNER, Agass 1434
BAVAR, Ann 2733
BAVETTA, Ruth 3214
BAVINGER, Gene 2006, 3060, 3316
BAXTER, Dan 3371, 3375
BAXTER, Iain 1207
BAXTER, Ken 3371, 3375, 3376
BAYALIS, John 1047
BAYER, Arlyne 2006
BAYER, Herbert 1159, 1266, 1317, 1481, 2773
BAYER, Javan 1357
BAYER, Jonathan 1243
BAYNARD, Ed 1323, 1513, 1906, 2684
BAZINET, Jane 3321
BAZIOTES, William 2406
BEACH, Robert 1488
BEADLE, Carole 1089
BEADLE, Peter 2268
BEAL, Gifford 2638
BEAL, Jack 1669, 2528
BEALE, Richard 2918
BEALL, Nina 1720
BEAM, Carl 2251
BEAN, Bennett 1043, 1533, 2098, 2332, 2925, 3166
BEAR, Josh 1085
BEARD, Mary 2849
BEARD, Richard 1744
BEARDEN, Romare 1001, 1586, 1862, 1941, 1964, 2010, 2454, 3039, 3151, 3310
BEARDSALL, Jeffery 2769
BEARNSON, Dorothy 3360
BEASLEY, Bruce 2273
BEASLEY, Phoebe 1595
BEATTIE, Drew 2836
BEATTIE, Paul 1307
BEATTY, Lois 1473
BEAUCHAMP, Robert 1575, 2634
BEAULIEU, Don 3286
BEAUMONT, Arthur J. 1141, 2724
BEAUREGARD, Andree 2653
BECHARA, Tony 2546
BECHER, Bernd 2805, 3287
BECHER, Hilla 2805, 3287
BECHERER, Thelma 2332
BECHTER, Janice 3033
BECHTLE, Robert 1207, 1246, 2463
BECHTOL, Bob 1657
BECK AND JUNG 2777
BECK, Arthello 1008
BECK, Bernard 1674, 2399, 3026
BECK, Clifford 1039, 2050, 3362
BECK, David 1720, 2818
BECK, Helen 2228
BECK, Lawrence J. 3431
BECK, Margit 2350
BECK, Michael 1213, 1694, 3283
BECK, Rosemary 2472, 2598
BECKER, Arlene 1679
BECKER, David 1434, 1918, 2038
BECKER, Jim 2070
BECKER, Jonathan H. 2287, 2757
BECKER, Ruth 2538
BECKER, Wanda 2222
BECKETT, Richard 2834
BECKLEY, Bill 1659, 2885
BECKLEY, Jon 1244
BECKLEY, Keith 3418
BECKMAN, Dale 2996
BECKMAN, Sylvia 3460
BECKMAN, William 2528
BECKMANN, Max 1631, 1730, 2411
BECOTTE, Michael 3125
BEDEL, Walter 3173
BEEBY, Thomas 1731
BEECHAM, Greg 1382
BEECHAM, Tom 1382
BEECHUM, Gary 3205
BEELER, Joe 1061, 1702, 2268
BEER, Ken 3389
BEER, Ruth 3415
BEETHOVEN, Harry 1561
BEGAY, Harrison 2256
BEGAY, Tony 2256
BEHL, Wolfgang 3153
BEHNKE, Leigh 2511, 2848
BEHNKE, Ned 3420
BEHRENDT, Lore 2854
BEHRENS, Peter 2755
BEHRENS, Robert 1368
BEHRLE, Alice Boyd 2962
BEIGNEUX, Arianne 2738
BEILMAN, Patrick 3465
BEJAR, Feliciano 1709
BEK-GRAN, Herman 2209
BEKAERT, Piet 2851
BELCHER, Jim 1021
BELDENGREEN, Paula 2712
BELFIELD, Brenda 1473
BELINDO, Dennis 3052
BELKNAP, Peter II 3080
BELL, Betty 2960
BELL, Charles 2670
BELL, Donald 3296
BELL, Greg 3443
BELL, Harriet 1488
BELL, Judy 2996
BELL, Larry 1201, 1337, 1338, 1371, 2017, 2222, 2243, 2266, 2657, 2684, 3295
BELL, Leland 2779
BELL, Rob 3073
BELL, Sylvia 1085
BELL, Temma 2413
BELL, Trevor 1489
BELLAMY, Sarah Jane 3009
BELLANY, John 2500
BELLEGARDE, Claude 1670, 3310
BELLINGER, Jennifer 1021
BELLMANN, Eric 2918
BELLMER, Hans 2741
BELLOCQ, E.J. 2729
BELLOWS, George 1307, 1458, 1462, 1642, 1665, 1686, 1880, 1908, 2021, 2029, 2067, 2674, 2676
BELLOWS, Harriet 1433, 3158, 3159
BELNICK, Julie 1164
BELSHE, Mirella 1473
BELSON, Al 1111
BELTON, Susan Jane 1946
BEMAN, Harriet 2894
BEN-HAIM, Zigi 2382
BEN TRÉ, Howard 1450, 2030, 2571, 3313, 3420
BENAZZI, Raphael 2494
BENCA, Adolf 2841
BENCOMO, Mario 1490, 1572, 2011
BENDEL, Don 1026
BENDELL, Marilyn 2254
BENDER, Eleanore 1278
BENDER, Hester 3281
BENDIXEN, Virginia 1116
BENEDICT, Ynona 3055
BENEDIT, Luis 2434, 2435
BENES, Barton Lidice 1442, 1796, 2215, 2659, 3287
BENES, Emilie 1468
BENGE, Lynette 2068
BENGELSDORF BROWNE, Rosalind 2824
BENGERT, Elwood 2209
BENGLIS, Lynda 1167, 1263, 1578, 1658, 2003, 2452, 3333
BENGSTON, Billy Al 1112, 1136, 1138, 1246, 2351, 3333, 3418
BENINI, 1494, 1499, 1509, 1527
BENITEZ, Sylvia 1902
BENITEZ, Zuleyka V. 1858, 2363
BENJAMIN, Anthony 2439, 2613
BENJAMIN, Karl 1183, 3433
BENJEY, Jan 3009
BENKHE, John 2020
BENN, Ben 1415, 2059
BENNATON, Cathy 1164
BENNETT, Carol 1621, 1623
BENNETT, Cynthia 1053, 1066
BENNETT, Edward H. 1635
BENNETT, Elton 3442
BENNETT, Garry Knox 3166
BENNETT, Gary 1043
BENNETT, Gary Steele 3442
BENNETT, Jamie 1086
BENNETT, Penny 3383
BENNETT, Philomene 1809, 2083
BENNETT, Rainey 1664
BENNETT, Robert 3375
BENNETT, Ron 1515
BENNION, Douglas Pentleton 1036, 3370
BENNY, Doré 1577
BENSIGNOR, Paulette 3126
BENSON, Barbara Kreft 2057
BENSON, Ben 1678
BENSON, Frank W. 1926
BENSON, Guy 1679, 1735
BENSON, Mavis D. 2153
BENSON, Paul 2068
BENSON, R. H. 3436
BENSON, Richard 2855
BENTON, Fletcher 1246, 1307, 2530
BENTON, Salley 2510
BENTON, Suzanne 1415, 3205
BENTON, Thomas Hart 1006, 1081, 1096, 1184, 1322, 1642, 1798, 1880, 1908, 2093, 2385, 2774, 3011
BENVENUTI, Riccardo 1485
BENVENUTI, Sergio 1485
BENVENUTO, Elio 1224, 1285
BENZLE, Curtis 2004, 3205
BENZLE, Susan 2004, 3205
BERAN, Lenore 1346, 1601
BERBER, Mersad 1953, 2825, 3285
BERESFORD, Michael 2096
BERESNEVICIUS, Linda 1671
BERG, Loren 2242
BERG, Niki 2179
BERG, Peter 2185
BERG, Rosamond 1720, 2818
BERG, Siri 2290, 2502
BERG, Tom 1047, 2229, 3308
BERGE, Dorothy 1578
BERGEN, John Von 2942
BERGER, Arthur 2179
BERGER, Barbara 3429
BERGER, Jane 3020
BERGER, Linda 2310
BERGER, Marian 1612
BERGER, Pat 1517
BERGER, Paul 2650, 3417
BERGER, Richard 1253
BERGER, Ruth 3127
BERGERON, O. J. 1590
BERGMAN, John 2987
BERGSMA, Jody 3426
BERGSTEIN, Gerry 1952
BERGSTROM, Pat 2150
BERGT, Michael 1286
BERGWALL, Lee 1343
BERHANG, Mattie 2580
BERK, Chuck 2209
BERK, Henrietta 1271
BERKE, Alan 2012
BERKLEY, Sheila 2635
BERKOWITZ, Leon 1459, 1488
BERKOWITZ, Michael 2523
BERKOWITZ, Rita Straus 1938
BERKOWITZ, Terry 3403
BERKSHIRE, Robert 3465
BERLAND, John 1368
BERLANT, Tony 1246, 1337, 1338, 2518, 3305, 3333
BERLER, Marie 2344
BERLET, Marc 1516
BERLIN, Ben 1174
BERLIND, Robert 2165, 2679
BERLYN, Sheldon 2916
BERMAN, Arianne 2854
BERMAN, Eugene 1181, 1547
BERMAN, Fred 2021
BERMAN, Judi 1973
BERMAN, Sherry Frawley 2854
BERMAN, Vivian 1972, 3485
BERMAN, Wallace 1337, 1338
BERMÚDEZ, Cundo 1490
BERNARD, Jeffrey 3067
BERNHARD, Lucian 2755
BERNHARD, Ruth 1320, 2002, 3417
BERNIER, Monica 2744
BERNINGHAUS 1672
BERNINI, Gianlorenzo 1770
BERNSTEIN, Ardyth 2815
BERNSTEIN, Ed 1078
BERNSTEIN, Lou 1403, 2643
BERNSTEIN, Martin 1488
BERNSTEIN, Rick 1761, 1924, 1949, 1971, 2030, 2554, 2617, 3158, 3159
BERNSTEIN, Steven J 2900, 2947
BERNSTEIN, Theresa 1416, 2824
BERNSTEIN, William 3276
BERO, Mary 1733, 1963
BEROLZHEIMER, Beth 1716
BERRINGER, Jennifer 1973
BERROCAL, Miguel 1945, 2487, 2488, 2764, 2947
BERRY, Bill 3033
BERRY, Norene 1027
BERRY, Roger 1247
BERSENTES, Nafsika 2938
BERSHAD, Helen 1479, 2570, 3131
BERTHELSEN, Johann 2724, 2753

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

BERTHOLD, Joachim 2506, 2551
BERTHOT, Jake 1943, 2669
BERTOIA, Harry 1031, 1664, 2006, 2814, 3111, 3135, 3143
BERTONI, Christina 1933, 2685
BERTONI, Mae 2563
BERTRAND, Pierre 2343
BESNARD, Albert 2753
BESSANT, Charles 1468
BESSOUET, Norma 2637
BEST, David 1331
BEST, Natalie 2191, 2207
BEST, Rebecca 3271
BEST, Terryl 2890
BETTENCOURT, F.L. 1128
BETTS, Edward 2677, 3282
BETTS, Judy 1076
BEUYS, Joseph 1335, 1578, 2504, 2555, 2885
BEVAN, Tony 2788
BEVINGTON, Mariette 2854
BEYER, Steven 2060
BEZALEL, Aahron 1676
BEZANSON, Thomas 1944
BEZMAN, Michel 3309
BHAVSAR, Natvar 1478, 2185
BIALA 2568
BIALOBRODA, Anna 2725
BIANCHI, Domenico 2358
BIANCHI, Gianpaolo 1485
BIANCHI, Tom 1142, 1273
BIASI, Alberto 2081, 2091
BIASIELLO, Marciano 1717
BICARME, Nereo 1608
BICHLER, Helmut 2609
BICINI, Stefano 2629
BICKEL, Char 1994
BICKHAM, Helen 3330
BICKLEY, Steve 2984
BIDLO, Mike 2655
BIEBER, Lorna 2802
BIEDERMAN, Charles 2411
BIEDERMAN, James 2859, 3287
BIELAT, Robert 2015
BIEN, Ania 2844
BIERLEY, John C. 2897
BIERMAN, Bruce 2930
BIERSTADT, Albert 1180, 2128, 2465, 2877
BIESER, Natalie 1561, 2590
BIG BOW, Woody 3050
BIGELOW, David 1434, 3240, 3243
BIGGER, Michael 1654, 3346
BIGGERS, John 3304
BIGGOOSE, Mars 3050, 3059
BIGGS, Bob 3268
BIGGS, Bonnie 1947
BIGLER, Steve 2992
BIHLER, Barbara 1770
BIJL, Guillaume 2521
BILANDER, Jack 2593
BILANE, Ruth 2197
BILGER, Joseph 2413
BILL, Max 1181
BILLIAN, Cathey 2675
BILLING, Frederick W. 1695
BILLINGS, Craig 2015
BILLINGS, Henry 2774
BILLIS, Mitch 1035
BILLS, Thomas 2018
BILLS, Zelda 3369
BILLUPS, Betty 1382
BINASIEWICZ, Stephen 3149
BINDER, Erwin 1303, 2542, 3422
BINFORD, Julian 2677
BING, Ilse 1668
BINION, Sandra 1716
BINKLEY, Joan 3121
BINNINGS, William H. 1849
BIOLO, Mike 2442
BIONDI, Gio 2851
BIONER, Robert 2541
BIRCH, Thomas 1926
BIRCHMAN, Fred 3433
BIRD, Annette 1127
BIRD, Jim 1676, 2531
BIRD, Stephen 1515
BIRDSALL, Byron 1015, 3426, 3436
BIRDWELL, Lloyd 3287
BIRELINE, George 2980
BIRMELIN, Robert 1442, 2709
BIRMINGHAM, Liz 2436
BIRNBAUM, Diana 2900
BIRO, Ljubo 1542
BISCEGLIA, Therese 1935
BISCHOFF, Elmer 1090, 1246, 2589
BISCHOFF, Franz A. 1094
BISCHOFF, Herman 1003
BISHOP, Isabel 1915, 2677
BISHOP, Jackie 1866
BISHOP, James 1193, 1304
BISHOP, Jeffrey 1324, 3418
BISHOP, Jerrold 1068
BISHOP, Marjorie 2927
BISHOP, Michael 1253, 2919
BISHOP, Sally 3025
BISIGNANO, James 1792
BISIGNANO, John 2158
BISS, Earl 1810, 2210, 2253
BISSIER, Julius 2644
BISTTRAM, Emil James 2245, 2252, 2478
BITNEY, Bye 2131
BITTERMAN, Richard 2924
BITTLEMAN, Arnold 2679
BIVINS, Richard 3058
BJERKE, Carol 2036
BJORKLAND, George 2161
BJORKLUND, Lee 2051
BJORKMAN, Donald 1026
BLACK LANCE, Lorenzo 3224
BLACK, Barbara 3076
BLACK, Cindy 2371
BLACK, John 2051, 2186, 2754, 2890
BLACK, Keith 1077, 1083
BLACK, Richard 2029
BLACKADDER, Elizabeth 2583
BLACKBURN, David 1968
BLACKBURN, Ed 1287, 3294, 3324
BLACKBURN, Linda 3265
BLACKEY, Mary 2169
BLACKHOUSE, David 2736
BLACKMAN, Robert 2081
BLACKOWL, Archie 3061
BLACKWELL, Tom 2670
BLADE, Mary 2462
BLADES, Barbara 1651
BLAGDEN, Allen 2626
BLAGG, Dennis 3267
BLAGG, Woodrow 3267
BLAHOVE, Marcos 2960, 2977
BLAINE, Michael 2800
BLAINE, Nell 2209, 2511, 3400
BLAIR, Barry 2183
BLAIR, Beverly 1405
BLAIR, Carl 3212
BLAIR, Dike 2788, 2816
BLAIR, Jeanette 2299
BLAIR, Miles 1703
BLAIR, P.E. 3043
BLAIR, Robert N. 2115
BLAIR, Violet 1079
BLAKE, Carol Foster 2815
BLAKE, George 2121
BLAKE, James R. 3291
BLAKE, Peter 1569
BLAKE, William 1409, 2482
BLAKELOCK, Ralph Albert 1954, 3327
BLAKENSHIP, Maxine 1973
BLAKER, Michael 2043
BLANCHARD, Antoine 3285
BLANCHARD, Roxanne 2794
BLANCO, Sylvia 3181, 3188, 3190
BLANGSTED, Eleanor 1116
BLANK, Charles 1849, 1866
BLANSIT, Cindy 1819
BLANSIT, Nolan 1819
BLASHFIELD, Edwin 1672
BLASKO, Abe 2609
BLAW, Laura 2064
BLEACH, Bruce 2483
BLECKNER, Ross 2410, 3149
BLEDSOE, John 1471, 1515
BLEIFELD, Stanley 1115, 2152, 2732
BLEIFER, Sandy 1188
BLENDOWSKI, Stephen 1935
BLESSING, Hedrich 1669
BLEVINS, Carol 1754
BLEVINS, Steven 2579
BLISS, Earl 2241
BLISS, Kenneth 2916
BLISS, Mary Beth 2247
BLOCK, Amanda 1768
BLOCK, Gay 3305
BLOCK, Irving 1128
BLOCKSMA, Dewey 2012
BLODGETT, Tom 3081
BLOEDEL, Joan Ross 1324, 3079, 3420
BLONDEAU, Barbara 2919
BLOODGOOD, Dean 3058
BLOOM, Don 2166
BLOOM, Hyman 2481
BLOOM, Joan 1404
BLOOM, Martha 2371
BLOOM, Milton 2897
BLOOMFIELD, Rib 2394
BLOSSOM, Chris 1382
BLOSSOM, Dave 1382
BLOUNT, Brian 1044, 1045, 2236, 2783, 2784, 3308
BLOVITS, Larry 2038
BLUEMNER, Oscar 2176, 2665
BLUHM, Norman 2753
BLUM, Andrea 1659, 2748
BLUM, Judy 2802
BLUM, Zevi 2939
BLUMBERG, Barbara 3397
BLUME, Peter 2481
BLUMENREICH, Julia 2386
BLUMIN, Sergei 2812
BLUNK, J.B. 2991
BLUST, David R. 3064
BLYTHE, Wayne 3309
BOARDMAN, Sy 2399
BOATMAN, Dale 1068
BOATRIGHT, Alice 1079, 1085
BOBST, Tucker 3151
BOCANEGRA, Suzanne 3251
BOCHNER, Mel 1193, 1304, 2805, 3287
BOCK-TOBOLSKI, Marilyn 1776
BOCK, Barbara 2217
BOCKELMAN, Manfred 2851
BODEN, Arthur 2375
BODINE, A. Aubrey 1441, 2643
BODMER, Karl 2373
BODNAR, Peter III 1775, 1832
BODO, Elli 2180
BOEDECKER, Nancy 1501
BOEPPLE, Willard 1946, 2351
BOERS, Marianne 1102, 1246
BOESSER, Kate 1021
BOFILL, Joan Beltran 1667
BOGAEV, Ronni 1476, 2524
BOGARIN, Rafael 2502
BOGART, Richard 2001, 3318
BOGAT, Regina 1240
BOGDANOFF-BIELSKY, Nicolay 2830
BOGDANOVIC, Bogomir 3285, 3322
BOGDOS, Harry 2197
BOGEL, Jon 3135
BOGHOSIAN, Varujan 1966, 1979, 2454
BOGIN, Erica 2496
BOGNER, Rodney 2413
BOGOSIAN, Eric 1165, 1399
BOHLER, Joseph 1035
BÖHM, Hartmut 2081, 2091
BOHNERT, Thom 1663, 2095
BOHROD, Aaron 1522, 1547
BOICE, Bruce 2859
BOILEAU, Lowell 2012
BOIN, Whitney 1450
BOISVERT, Nickolas 1269
BOLANDE, Jennifer 2632
BOLDINI, Giovanni 3327
BOLDMAN, Dan 3004
BOLDUC, Gil 1070
BOLES, David 1063
BOLIN, Gustav 2506
BOLING, Elizabeth 2029
BOLINGER, Truman 2575
BOLL, Michele 1933, 2685
BOLLINGER, Franz Joseph 1486
BOLLINGER, Thomas 1036
BOLLOCK, Margaret Anne 3069
BOLOMEY, Roger 1241, 3433
BOLOTIN, Jay 3013
BOLOTOWSKY, Ilya 1064, 1453, 1530, 2855, 2948, 3374
BOLSEY, Carole 1929, 1973
BOLT, Macyn 2026
BOLT, Sue 1837
BOLTANSKI, Christian 2805
BOLTMAN, Fritz 1980
BOLTON, James 1244
BOLTON, Mimi 1845
BOMAR, Bill 2266, 3291
BOMBECK, David 1458
BOMBERGER, Bruce 2501
BONALUMI, Agostino 1496, 1529
BONART, Bertha 1296
BONCOMPAIN, Pierre 2506
BOND, Howard 1355, 2009, 3263
BONDS, Corliss 2150
BONES, Jim 1367
BONEVARDI, Marcelo 1245, 2530, 2532, 2637
BONGART, Sergei 3421
BONHAM, Grover 1110
BONI, Paolo 1874
BONIC, Mary 1603
BONNARD, Pierre 1184, 2397, 2402, 2560, 2583, 2851
BONNEY, Anne 3027
BONOVITZ, Jill 3124
BONTECOU, Lee 2429, 2430
BOODMAN, Helen C. 3485
BOOGAERTS, Pierre 2514
BOOHER, Kevin 3005
BOOKER, Moe 3118
BOOKMAN, Mary 2471
BOOMER, Bob 1063
BOOSE, Liesel 2738
BOOTH, Glenn 2018
BOOTH, Herb 3318
BOOTH, Robert 2920
BOOTHE, Power 2772
BOPPEL, Todd 3464
BORAH, Nixson 1240
BORAX, Ben 2904
BORCHERDT, Fred 1031
BOREN, James 1035, 3061
BORG, Carl Oscar 1314
BORGE, Martha 1268
BORGES, Jacobo 2434
BORGLUM, Solon 2245
BORMANN, Nick 3058
BORNE, Deborah 2857
BOROFSKY, Jonathan 1152, 1335, 2452
BOROFSKY, Scot 3379
BORREGAARD, Nancy 2888
BORRIS, Marshall 1457
BORSO, Richard 1744
BORSTEIN, Elena 1544, 2659, 3464
BORTHWICK, Donald 2271
BOS, Jan 3388
BOSA, Louis 1547
BOSC, Ron 1268
BOSHIER, Derek 3306, 3333
BOSIN, F. Blackbear 1817
BOSKOVICH, Nick 1183
BOSLEY, Frederick A. 1954
BOSMAN, Richard 1569, 1658, 2362, 3117, 3294
BOSSE, Janet 2705
BOSTICK, Lynn 1273
BOSWELL-MAYER, Nancy 1633, 1709
BOSWORTH, Robert 3067
BOTELLO, Angel 2162, 2163, 3181, 3182, 3188
BOTERO, Fernando 1031, 1245, 1246, 1284, 1531, 2559, 2602, 2660, 3135
BOTKIN, Henry 1854, 2300, 2701
BOTT, John 1775
BOTTINI, David 1135, 1264, 1340, 1644
BOTTMAN, Tom 3362
BOTWINICK, Doris 2538
BOUCHÉ, Louis 2638
BOUD, Tom 2173
BOUDIN, Eugene Louis 2395
BOUGUEREAU, Adolphe William 2676
BOULANGER, Graciela Rodo 1396, 1699, 1797, 2034, 2379, 2819
BOULDIN, Loraine McLaury 2730
BOURASSA, Anne 3124
BOURDELLE, Antoine 2420
BOURDETTE, Christine 1691
BOURDIN, Guy 1534
BOURDON, Robert 1371, 1468, 3168
BOURGAIN, Jean-Yves 1996
BOURGEOIS, Coral 2599
BOURGEOIS, Douglas 1866
BOURGEOIS, Louise 2594, 2678, 2689
BOURRIÉ, André 1667
BOUSKILA, Martyn 2020
BOUSSARD, Dana 2681, 3420
BOUTIS, Tom 2762
BOWDEN, Harry 1251
BOWDEN, Priscilla 1470
BOWEN-MORRIS, Leslie 2901
BOWER, David 1135, 1644, 1736
BOWER, Gary 3020
BOWER, Ron 1437
BOWER, Sylvia 1437, 1949, 1971, 2597
BOWERMAN, Elizabeth Lerma 1033
BOWERS, Cheryl 1142, 1273, 1317
BOWERS, Harry 1263, 1637
BOWES, David 2788
BOWKER, R. G. 3223
BOWLES, Jeanette 2299
BOWLES, Marianne von Recklinghausen 2340
BOWLING, Frank 2467
BOWLING, Gary 2142
BOWMAN, Bob 3341
BOWMAN, Don 2380
BOWMAN, Harold 2310
BOWMAN, Jack 1829
BOWMAN, Ken 2467
BOWMAN, Pamela Firestone 2738
BOWRON, Mary 1433
BOWSER, Kent 3003
BOXER, Stanley 1273, 1477, 1531, 1566, 1680, 1946, 2467, 2494, 3318
BOXLEY, David 3431
BOYCE, Christopher 1657
BOYCE, Fred 3351
BOYCE, Roger 1161
BOYCOTT-BROWN, Hugh 2971
BOYD, Michael 2881
BOYDEN, Frank 2095, 2216, 2491, 2913, 3078, 3085, 3428
BOYDEN, Martha 2448
BOYER, Cynthia 2930
BOYER, Fred 2111
BOYIDDLE, Parker 3052
BOYLE, Kevin 1169, 2867
BOYLE, Mark 1291, 1934, 2457, 3424
BOYLE, Martin 2298
BOYLES, Norman 2242, 2273
BOYNTON, Jack 3296, 3324
BOYVIN, Réne 3042
BRACH, Paul 2095, 2400, 2550, 2715
BRACKEN, William 1407
BRACZYK, Bob 2744
BRADFORD, John 2544
BRADFORD, Martha Jane 1039, 1973
BRADLEY, David 1044, 1045, 1626, 2236
BRADLEY, Dorothy 3463
BRADLEY, Michael 1268
BRADLEY, Peter 2488
BRADSHAW, Barbara 3481
BRADSHAW, Dove 2499

BRADSHAW, Glenn 1744, 1755, 3458
BRADSHAW, Reagan 3341
BRADSHAW-SMITH, Gillian 2454
BRADY, Carolyn 1946, 2590, 2789
BRADY, Joan 2829
BRADY, Richard 2700
BRADY, Robert 1139, 1249, 1808, 1933, 2685, 3459
BRAFMAN, Marcy 2800
BRAGG, Charles 1871, 2921, 3180, 3422
BRAGG, Christopher 1994
BRAIG, Betty 1036
BRAKHAGE, Stan 1399
BRAKKE, Michael 1659
BRAMBLETT, Frank 3125
BRAMHALL, Kib 2627
BRAMHALL, Peter 1437, 2332
BRAMS, Joan 1476, 1517, 1530, 3267
BRAMSON, Phyllis 1658, 2634
BRANBAUM, Bruce 1195, 1441
BRANCH, Kristina 1330
BRANCUSI, Constantin 3349, 3350
BRAND, Bill 2459
BRAND, Bruce 2655, 2777
BRAND, Ginna 3020
BRANDENBURG, Allen 1053
BRANDENBURG, Brian 1036
BRANDFORD, Joanne Segal 2496
BRANDL, M. Staff 1717
BRANDON, Mary Virginia 2082
BRANDON, Sue 3348
BRANDT, Bill 1100, 1712, 1936, 2009, 2660
BRANDT, Helene 2782
BRANDT, May 2305
BRANDT, Warren 1470, 2964, 3464
BRANDY, Robert 2778
BRANHAM-EAST, Jill 1500
BRANOT, Bill 1534
BRANSTETTER, Gwen 3310
BRAQUE, Georges 1184, 1462, 1469, 1665, 2727, 2756
BRASILIER, Andre 2506
BRASSAI 2660
BRATHWAITE, Fred 2529
BRATNOBER, Patricia 2047
BRATT, Byron H. Jr 2826
BRAUCHT, Sandy 3055
BRAUDEY, Paul 2498
BRAUER, Arik 1270, 1435
BRAUER, Bill 1944
BRAUER, Connie 2812
BRAUN 2147
BRAUN, Adolph 1950
BRAUN, Ben Ami 1539
BRAUN, David 2897
BRAUN, Kim 2298
BRAUN, Maurice 1180
BRAUN-REINITZ, Janet 2336, 2815
BRAUNE, Brad 3346
BRAUNER, Victor 2605
BRAUNSTEIN, H. Terry 1474
BRAUNTUCH, Troy 2410
BRAVO, Claudio 2660, 2785, 2814
BRAVO, Manuel Alvarez 1316, 1367, 2009
BRAWER, Wendy 3430
BRAWLEY, Robert 1702
BRAZEAU, Wendell 3433
BRECH, Dwayne 1049
BRECKENRIDGE, Hugh Henry 3288
BRECKNER, Mike 1826
BREEN, Harry 1744
BREGER, Helen 1278
BREHMER, Bethia 3458
BREIDEL, Joe 2859
BREITWEISER, John 1659
BREIVIK, Bård 2370, 2716, 3141
BREJCHA, Sherry S. 1811
BREJCHA, Vernon 1805, 2113, 2471, 2812
BREMER, Tom 2065
BREMNER, Susan 2224
BRENHOLTZ-GIPSON, Laura 1857
BRENKEN, Hanne 2903
BRENNAN, Anne 2980
BRENNAN, Daniel 2089
BRENNAN, Michael 1253
BRENNAN, Tom 3441
BRENNAN, Virginia 1919
BRENNER, Esther 1641
BRENNER, Evelyn 2404
BRENNER, Susan 1347
BRENNO, Vonnie 3282
BRENT, Steven 2550
BRENTANO, Pat 1775, 2399
BRESCACIN, Daniele 1387
BRESCHI, Karen 1249
BRESDIN, Rodolphe 2512
BRESNICK, Marge 2538
BRETON, Jules 2143
BRETT, Nancy 2412
BRETT, Vicki 1918
BREUER, Claire 2854
BREUER, Mala 2571
BREWER, Richard 2057
BREWER, Robert 1580
BREWSTER, John 1897
BREWSTER, Michael 1917
BREWSTER, Riley 1921
BRIANCHON, Maurice 2506
BRIATA, Georges 2888
BRICE, Bruce 1870
BRICE, William 1337, 1338, 2678
BRICHER, Alfred T. 2359, 2360, 2724
BRICHLER, Marge 3321
BRICKMAN, Max 1909
BRIDDELL, Don 1035
BRIDGES, Fidelia 2403
BRIDGES, Marilyn 1936, 2009, 2435
BRIGANTE, Nicholas P. 1174
BRIGGS, Ernest 2568
BRIGGS, Jeffrey 2847
BRIGGS, Lamar 1040, 1484, 1524, 2006, 3039, 3296, 3324
BRIGGS, Pat 3367
BRIGGS, Vicki 1692
BRIGHT, Deborah 1650
BRIGHT, Robin 1112
BRILL, Curt 2226
BRILL, Glenn 1043, 1144, 1241, 2006
BRILLIANTE, Gilberte 1524
BRINDLEY, Charles 3243
BRINGS, Thomas 3454
BRINSFIELD, Jim 1697
BRISCOE, Robert 2995
BRISELLI, Susanna 2659
BRISSON, Jean 2031
BRISSON, Pierre-Marie 2043
BRISTOL, J. B. 3007
BRITO-AVELLANA, Maria 1512, 1553
BRIXNER, Steven 1114
BRO, Rene 1435, 1677
BROCK, Dub 1878
BROCK, Harry 1946
BROCKHAGEN, Kathryn 1116
BROCKMAN, Robert 1087
BRODERICK, Randy 2847
BRODERSON, Morris 1128
BRODERSON, Robert M. 2960, 2984
BRODIE, Agnes Hahn 1067
BRODIE, Regis 2597
BRODIE, Scott 1951
BRODSKY, Bob 2226
BRODSKY, Isaac 2830
BRODSKY, Judith 2815
BRODSKY, Stan 2286, 2321
BRODY, Bill 1021
BRODY, Blanche 3427
BRODY, Don 2241
BRODY, Ellen 1241
BRODY, Harvey 1282
BRODY, Ruth 2538
BRODY, Sally 2386
BROER, Roger 3221
BROFSKY, Miriam 2496
BROGAN, Rick 1362, 1377, 1384
BROKAW, Dotti 2944
BROMLETT, Betty 3212
BROMLEY, Allyn 1609
BROMMER, Gerald 1093
BRONER, Robert 2045
BRONSON, Bonnie 3076
BRONSON, Johna 3376
BROODTHAERS, Marcel 2657, 2684, 2885
BROOK, Alexander 2774
BROOKE, Pegan 1058, 1263
BROOKE, Sandy 3251
BROOKER, Moe 2006, 2794, 3019, 3020
BROOKER, Phillip 1515
BROOKNER, Jackie 2716
BROOKS, Bruce 1405, 2580, 3141
BROOKS, Ellen 2552
BROOKS, James 1453, 2568
BROOKS, Jon 2162
BROOKS, Linda 2065
BROOKSHAW, George 2373
BROOKSHIRE, Jere 1587
BROOM, Joy 1287
BROOME, Luther 1110
BROSEN, Frederick 2814
BROSEN, Rick 2593
BROSK, Jeffrey 2594
BROSS, Al 2197
BROTMAN, Lisa 1445
BROUET, Auguste 1381
BROUILLETTE, Al 3321
BROUWER, Adrian 2706
BROWN, Alice Dalton 2772
BROWN, Andrew 1813
BROWN, Beverly 1951
BROWN, Bob 2153
BROWN, Brian 2006
BROWN, Butler 1595
BROWN, Carol Kapelow 1371, 2872
BROWN, Charley 1366, 3429
BROWN, Charlotte 2321, 2549, 2831, 2901
BROWN, Christopher 1264
BROWN, David Lee 1995, 2411
BROWN, Dean 2872
BROWN, Deborah 2066, 2570
BROWN, Emily 3143
BROWN, Gary 1775
BROWN, George Elmer 2507
BROWN, Harley 1702, 2128, 2268
BROWN, Irby 2254
BROWN, J. G. 1672, 3327
BROWN, James 1148, 2338, 2791
BROWN, James Andrew 2620
BROWN, James Paul 3283
BROWN, Jerome 1570
BROWN, Joan 1161, 1263, 1669, 2528
BROWN, Joe 3135
BROWN, John Gary 3420
BROWN, Joy 2471
BROWN, Judith 2312, 2639, 2883, 3383
BROWN, Ken 2096
BROWN, Larry K. 1808, 2580
BROWN, Lonna 3361
BROWN, Malcolm 3039
BROWN, Marie-Annick 2744
BROWN, Marion 2072
BROWN, Mercedes 2124
BROWN, Merl F. 2091
BROWN, Mozelle 3281
BROWN, Paul 2716
BROWN, Peggy 2014, 3011, 3039
BROWN, Peter 2319, 2412, 2505, 3314
BROWN, Petey Stoloff 1947
BROWN, Ralph 2736
BROWN, Reynold 1035
BROWN, Robert Delford 2631
BROWN, Roger 1690, 2631, 2822
BROWN, Rush 1405
BROWN, Steven 2767
BROWN, Tilda 1819
BROWN, Wayne 1012
BROWN, William C. 3012
BROWN-JOHNSTON, Sharon 3355
BROWNE, Byron 1064, 1522, 1544, 2168, 2302, 2778, 2908, 3318
BROWNE, Turner 1847
BROWNING, Colleen 2626
BROWNING, Emma 2990
BROWNING, Mark 2990
BROWNLEE, Betty 2018
BROZGOLD, Lee 3142
BRUCE, Gail 2314, 2769
BRUCE, Jan 1085
BRUCH, Robin 2635
BRUDER, Harold 2319
BRUEGGEMAN, Margaret 2854
BRUGNONI, Lubi 1542
BRULE, Alfred 1913
BRUMBACH, David 3153
BRUMER, Miriam 2577
BRUMUND, Marie 1276
BRÜN, Herbert 2091
BRUN, Joseph 1480
BRUNER, Dave 3399
BRUNERY, Francois 1051
BRUNGER, Thomas 3173
BRUNI, Bruno 1797, 2314, 2379, 2826, 3285
BRUNING, Les 1354
BRUNK, Harry 3227
BRUNNER, Helen 3125
BRUNNER, Howard 3142
BRUNOVSKÝ, Albín 1640
BRUNS, Mary 2020
BRUNSDON, John 1995, 2034
BRUNSON, Myrna 1767
BRURIA 1109, 1127, 1315
BRUSCA, Jack 2530
BRUSH, Daniel 1442
BRUSH, Shari 1545
BRUSIN, Jacob 2911
BRUSS, Jim 3026
BRYAN, Allen 1423
BRYAN, Tara Tidwell 3055
BRYANS, John 1471
BRYANT, Jack 3285
BRYANT, Laura M. 2915
BRYANT, Linda 1058
BRYANT, Olen 3243
BRYANT, Peter 1003
BRYANT, Tamara 2215, 2218
BRYCE, David 2199
BRYCE, Eileen 1047, 3060
BRYDEN, Lewis 2550
BRYULLOV, Karl 2830
BUBBLES, Woofy 3131
BUBRISKI, Kevin 1257
BUCCI, Andrew 2069
BUCHANAN, Beverly 1578, 2635
BUCHANAN, Deborah Lee 1586
BUCHANAN, Jerry 2794
BUCHER, George 2404
BUCHERER-GODEFFROY, Anita 1434
BUCHMAN, James 2594
BUCHWALD, Howard 2590
BUCK, Chad 3372
BUCK, John 1107, 1122, 1132, 1263, 1733, 1808, 2448, 3459
BUCKING, Ernestine 2944
BUCKLER, Diane 2296
BUCKLEY, Denise 1935
BUCKLEY, Harry 2158
BUCKLEY, R. F. 1516
BUCKLEY, R. S. 1517
BUCKLEY, Stephen 2362
BUCKNAM, Ruth 2889
BUCKNER, Kay 3080
BUCKNER, Paul 3080
BUCY-REED, Teresa 3240
BUDD, David 2594
BUDD, Erik 2990
BUECHLEY, Larry 2226
BUECHLEY, Nancy 2226
BUECHNER, Mathew 2545, 2554, 3205
BUECHNER, Thomas 2545, 2617, 3205, 2554, 2354
BUECHNER, Tom 1437
BUEHNER, Fritz 2570
BUEHR, George 1664
BUELL, Al 1547
BUELL, Alfred 1523
BUENO, Antonio 1529
BUESO, Andy 3181
BUFFET, Guy 1615, 1617, 1621
BUHOT, Felix 2560
BUITRÓN, Robert 1033
BUJAN, Juan 2433
BUJNOWSKI, Joel 1701
BUKOVNIK, Gary 1144, 2892, 2923, 3041
BUKOWSKI, Michael 3071
BUKOWSKI, William 3460
BULKELEY, Morgan 1939
BULL, Fran 1808, 2019, 2670, 3310
BULLATY, Sonja 1896
BULLOCK, Leonard 2378
BULTMAN, Fritz 1979, 2778
BUMBECK, David 1955, 2770, 2777, 3280, 3282
BUMGARDNER, James 1445
BUMPASS, Terry 2226
BUNBURY, W. H. 1714
BUNCAMPER, Richard 2183
BUNCE, Louis 3079
BUNCH, Kyle 2263
BUNDUS, Rudolph 3436
BUNGAY, David 1159
BUNGE, Betty 1794
BUNKALL, Richard 1039
BUNKER, Barry 1116
BUNKER, Carrie 2112
BUNKER, George 3314
BUNN, Ken 1038
BUONAGURIO, Edgar 1733, 2881
BUONAGURIO, Toby 2546, 2938
BUOYS, Jeanick 1269
BURCH-BROWN, Carol 1135, 1644
BURCH, Elaine 1471
BURCH, Leslie Allan 1540
BURCH, S. Riba 1268
BURCHFIELD, Charles 1184, 2249, 2295, 2753, 2942, 2626
BURCHFIELD, Jerry 2914
BURCHMAN, Jerrold 1157, 2000
BURDEN, Chris 1146, 1207, 2504
BURDICK, Zelda 1539
BUREN, Daniel 1207, 2215, 2859
BURFORD, Byron 1792
BURGER, W. Carl 2169, 2170
BURGESS, Linda S. 1002, 2984
BURGGRAF, Ray 1554
BURGIN, Victor 2859
BURK, George 1947
BURKE, Ainslie 2638, 2916, 2937
BURKE, Bill 1515
BURKE, Kathryn 1572
BURKE, William J. 1553, 2999
BURKERT, Bob 3458
BURKERT, Nancy 3458
BURKERT, Robert 2039, 3466
BURKETT, Dorothy 3255
BURKHARDT, Hans 1184, 2779
BURKHARDT, Rudy 2405
BURKHART, Dan 1146
BURKHOLDER, Anne 1805, 2082
BURKHOLDER, Chris 3314
BURKLE, Paul 1852
BURKO, Diane 2816, 3131
BURLEIGH, Kimberly 3374
BURLESON, Trent 1535, 3194
BURLIN, Paul 2411
BURLINGHAM, Vaughn 2226
BURLINI, Joseph A. 1743
BURLIUK, David 2306, 2908
BURMER, Nobu 3442
BURNELL, Robert 1770
BURNETTE, Hilarie 2020
BURNLEY, Gary 2804
BURNS, Ed 1049
BURNS, Esther 1049
BURNS, Harrison 2605
BURNS, Lulu 1567
BURNS, Mark 3121
BURNS, Marsha 1203, 1266, 1655, 2002, 3418
BURNS, Maurice 2232
BURNS, Michael 2002, 2093, 3149, 3434
BURNS, Mike 1968, 3080

VOL
7
1
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

BURNS, Paul 2180
BURNS, Sharon 1700, 1791
BURPEE, Jim 2054
BURRI, Alberto 1216, 1291, 3023
BURRIS, Bruce 3123
BURROUGHS, Margaret 1440
BURROWS, H. D. 2290
BURSTEIN, Joanne 1331
BURSZTYNOWICZ, Henry 1915
BURT, David 2312, 3281
BURTON, Fred 1785
BURTON, John 1623
BURTON, Loret 1794
BURTON, M. Hill 1567
BURTON, Richard 3373
BURTON, Scott 1193, 1304, 2747
BURTON, Sigrid 1273, 1679, 1840, 3019
BURWELL, Virginia 1378
BURY, Claus 1535
BURY, Pol 2644
BUSCH, Michael 2336
BUSCH, Rita 3055
BUSCHKE, Frances 2386
BUSH, Gary 3266
BUSH, Jack 2494
BUSH, Jill 1080
BUSH, Julie 2124
BUSH, Robert B. 1602
BUSH, Susan 1692, 1933, 2105, 2685
BUSHLY, Pat 2124
BUSHMAN, David 1674
BUSHNELL, Kenneth 2653, 3164
BUSKIRK, Mary Balzer 2247
BUSKO, Bruce 2934
BUSZKO, Irene 2829
BUTCHKES, Sydney 1584, 2287, 2836, 2931
BUTERA, Anthony 2310
BUTHE, Michael 2804
BUTLER, Bob 3351
BUTLER, Brad 2769
BUTLER, David 1870
BUTLER, Frances 1140
BUTLER, Howard Russell 2724
BUTLER, James 1458, 1566, 1775, 2066, 2736
BUTLER, Jeanne H. 1996
BUTLER, John 2971
BUTLER, Joseph 2378
BUTLER, Karen 1415
BUTLER, Ken 3082
BUTLER, Peggy 1070
BUTLER, Reg 2667
BUTLER, Tom 2142
BUTRYMOWICZ, Zofia 1640
BUTTER, Thomas 2411, 3141
BUTTERFIELD, Deborah 1132, 1263, 1625, 1733, 1946, 2061, 2580
BUTTON, John 2511
BUXBAUM, Laurence 1629
BUXIN, Stephan 2420
BUZAK, Brian 2183
BUZIO, Lidya 1137, 2443
BYALINITZKY-BIROYLYA, Vitold 2830
BYARS, Donna 2357
BYE, Ranulph 1909, 3101, 3127, 3140
BYERLEY, Gerald 2479
BYNG, Dennis 2916
BYRD, Gibson 3466
BYRD, James 1071, 1144, 1580, 1839, 2006, 2438, 3010
BYRD, Jerry 1157, 1273
BYRN, Charles 1036
BYRNE, James 3168
BYRNE, Mary Gregg 1623
BYRON, Michael 2543, 3141

C

CABALLERO, Luis 1481, 2798
CABLE, Maxine 1447
CABOULI, Diana 2413
CABRAL, Manuel 1622
CADABRA, Thea 1963
CADMUS, Paul 1418, 2677, 3198
CADY, Arthur 2511
CADY, Sam 2804
CAESAR, Doris 1388, 2752
CAESAR, Harry 1388, 2752
CAFFERY, Debbie 1878
CAGE, John 1207, 2061, 2294, 2463, 2763, 2868, 3013, 3125, 3147
CAGLE, Jeanne 2065
CAHOURS, Henry Maurice 2343
CAIN, Charlotte 1183, 1791
CAIN, Michael Peter 1183, 1697, 2550, 3318
CAIRD, Mary 2217
CALABOYAIS, Peter 3169
CALABRESE, Michael 2827
CALAS, Ted 1878
CALAWAY, Loren 2573
CALCAGNO, Lawrence 1736
CALDER, Alexander 1090, 1096, 1511, 1544, 1699, 1748, 1874, 1930, 2100, 2195, 2533, 2559, 2622, 2624, 2633, 2714, 2727, 2764, 2861, 2907, 3180
CALDER, Jay 1877
CALDERARO, Al 2448
CALDERWOOD, Kathy 2916
CALDWELL, Jackie 2173
CALDWELL, Mike 3415
CALEK, Jan 1633
CALHOUN, Dempsey 2951
CALHOUN, Thelma 2150
CALKINS, King 2044
CALLAHAN, Harry 1266, 1330, 1587, 1628, 1655, 1901, 1911, 2650, 2751, 2880
CALLAHAN, Kenneth 2638, 3079, 3420
CALLAHAN, Tim J. 2915
CALLAZO, Carlos 3181
CALLIS, Jo Ann 1896, 2470, 3125, 3270
CALLIS, Tom 3118
CALLOT, Jacques 1098, 3175
CALLUORI-HOLCOMBE, Anna 1735
CALOENESCO, Aurelia 1141
CALS, Joseph 3137
CALUMET, Rita 2889
CALVIN, Jane 1636
CALVO, Maria Del Carmen 1063
CALZADA, Humberto 1490, 1523
CALZETTA, Tony 2006
CAMARATA, Martin 1244
CAMBLIN, Bob 3324
CAMERON, Julia Margaret 1299, 3119
CAMHI, Ethel Brown 2904
CAMHI, Morri 1088
CAMPANELLI, Dan 2159
CAMPANELLI, Pauline Eble 2159
CAMPANI, Francis 2934
CAMPBELL, Ann 2987
CAMPBELL, Annella 2986
CAMPBELL, Betty 1085
CAMPBELL, Bruce 1744
CAMPBELL, Charles 3286
CAMPBELL, Clayton 2564
CAMPBELL, Craig 2087
CAMPBELL, David 1946
CAMPBELL, Gretna 1909, 2598
CAMPBELL, James 1849
CAMPBELL, Jane 2172
CAMPBELL, Joe 1377
CAMPBELL, Kelly 2850
CAMPBELL, Marilee 3375
CAMPBELL, Patricia 3078, 3166
CAMPBELL, Paul 2514
CAMPBELL, Phillip 2015
CAMPBELL, Roger 1230
CAMPBELL, Susan 2015
CAMPBELL, Talitha 3481
CAMPEAU, Keith 2124
CAMPION, Barry 1165
CAMPION, Frank 1973
CAMPOPIANO, Remo 2068
CAMPUS, Peter 2452
CANADE, Vincent 2866
CANADY, Philip 1173
CANARIS, Patti 2115
CANAS, Benjamin 2798
CANDIOTI, Beatriz A. 1819
CANDONE 2471
CANN-CLIFT, Allison 1969
CANNADY, Jill 1512, 2375
CANNON, Gerald 1878
CANNON, Howard Neil 1003
CANNON, T.C. 1677, 2232
CANNY, Tom 1164
CANO, Pablo 1902
CANOGAR, Rafael 1670
CANRIGHT, Sarah 2355
CANSLER, Laura 2082
CANSLER, Martha 2386
CANTALUPO, Patrizia 2788
CANTARELLA, Virginia 2290
CANTASANO, Dominick 2286
CANTINE, David 2638
CANTOR, Anne 2157
CANTOR, Fredrich 2729
CAOLA, James 3129
CAPERTON, Sheri 2020
CAPLES, Robert Cole 2151
CAPOBIANCO, Dominick 2449, 2505
CAPONIGRO, Paul 1345, 1540, 1896, 2643, 3054
CAPPELLETTO, Marina 2355
CAPPS, Kenneth 1235
CAPRARIO, Kathy 3425
CAPRON, Jean-Pierre 1667
CARAMELLE, Ernst 2885
CARBONE, Francesco 1938
CARBONI, Richard 2549
CARCAN, Rene 1444, 2592
CARCHACHE, Juan 1011
CARD, Greg S. 1161
CARDE, Margaret 3373
CARDEN-BEAN, Melissa 2054
CARDILLO, Rimer 2380, 2601
CARDON, Edythe 1471
CARELLA, Peter 2510
CAREY, Altina 2236
CAREY, June 2937
CAREY, Michael 1275, 1340
CARFAGNO, Mary 1912
CARHARTT, Elaine 1132
CARIANI, Varaldo 1774
CARLANO, John 3122
CARLES, Arthur B. 2472
CARLETON, Richard 2449
CARLETTI, Alicia 2530
CARLEY, Denny 1036
CARLIN, James 2166
CARLISLE, Fionna 1813
CARLISLE, Lois 3221
CARLOS, Edward 1011, 1590
CARLSEN, Emil 3327
CARLSON, Cynthia 1240, 1492, 1878, 2104, 2355, 2789, 3193
CARLSON, Dale 3476
CARLSON, Donald 2617, 2940
CARLSON, Edith 3149
CARLSON, George 1038, 1381, 2152, 2563
CARLSON, Joan Tangen 2062
CARLSON, John F. 1954
CARLSON, Ken 1061
CARLSON, Nancy Parks 2052, 2140
CARLSON, Robert 2913
CARLSON, Stuart 1710
CARLSON, William 1720, 1758, 2030, 2109, 2585
CARLSTROM, Lucinda 1495, 1500
CARLYON, Richard 3400
CARMAN, John 2161
CARMAN, Nancy 3121
CARMELITANO, Frank 1296
CARMICHAEL, Dan 3433
CARMICHAEL, Paul 1164
CARNWATH, Squeak 1209, 1263, 2095
CARO, Alex 1530
CARO, Anthony 1147, 1678, 1931, 2351, 2494
CAROL, Sharon 1149
CARON, Sidonie 3075
CARONE, Claude 1496, 2480
CARONE, Nicolas 1496
CAROOMPAS, Carole 1134, 1169, 1334
CARPEAUX, Jean-Baptiste 2420
CARPENTER, Bert 1059, 2772
CARPENTER, Earl 2254
CARPENTER, James 2885, 3420
CARPENTER, Mary Lou 1003, 1584
CARPENTER, Syd 3164
CARPENTIER, Ralph 2310
CARR, Diane 2020
CARR, Jeffery 1687
CARR, Simon 2413
CARRENO, Bernie 3464
CARREÑO, Mario 1490
CARRENO, Omar 2375
CARRICO, Ann 1085
CARRIER-BELLEUSE, Albert 2420
CARRIGG, Jack 1301
CARRILLO, Eduardo 1253
CARRINGTON, Leonora 2416
CARRINO, David 2543
CARROLL, Dickson 2517
CARROLL, Maryrose 1691
CARROLL, Patty 1668
CARRUTHERS, Roy 2350, 3104
CARSMAN, Jon 1144, 2461, 3041
CARSON, Jackie 2815
CARSON, Karen 1146
CARSON, Lew 1244
CARSON, Ronnie 2510
CARSWELL, Rodney 1644
CARTER, Allen 1474
CARTER, Clarence 1522, 1544, 2192, 2551
CARTER, Ethel Ann 2963
CARTER, Eva 3212
CARTER, Gary 2128
CARTER, James 2785
CARTER, John Michael 1835
CARTER, Kate 1896
CARTER, Katharine T. 2417
CARTER, Keith 3254
CARTER, Manette 2499
CARTER, Mary 2593
CARTER, Mel 1353
CARTER, Patrick 1422, 1424
CARTER, Richard 1357, 1489, 1580, 2777, 2851, 3296
CARTIER-BRESSON, Henri 1055, 1291, 1534, 1936, 1942, 2090
CARTMELL, Helen 2035
CARTNELL, Greg 2075
CARULLA, Ramon 1488, 2011
CARVALHO, Josely 2436, 2785
CARVER, Craig 2000
CARVER, Melvin J. 2959
CARY, Nel 1619
CARYL, Naomi 1128
CASAMADA, Rafols 2531
CASASANTA, Domenico 2375
CASAY, Anthony 1616, 1617
CASCELLA, Pietro 2530, 2732
CASE, Carroll 2074
CASEBERE, James 2296, 2805
CASEY, Ben 2962
CASEY, Bernie 1128, 1595
CASH, Sydney 2585
CASHION, Cathey 1849
CASIDA, Kati 1213
CASKEY, Louise 1819
CASPER, Muriel 2323
CASS, Bill 1659
CASS, Pelle 1952
CASSANDRE, A. M. 2755
CASSATT, Chase 2676
CASSATT, Mary 1589, 1686, 2170, 2402, 2719, 2756, 2838, 3168
CASSEL, Jim 3055
CASSELLI, Henri 2152
CASSIGNEUL, Jean-Pierre 2507
CASSOS, Shlomo 2394
CASTAGNACCI, Vincent 1918
CASTAÑEDA, Alfredo 2662
CASTANEDA, Felipe 1092, 1215, 3040
CASTAÑO, Jorge 1515
CASTELLI, Christopher 2831
CASTELLI, Luciano 2707
CASTELLON, Federico 1381, 2778
CASTELLON, Rolando 1244
CASTER, Paul 1712
CASTILLO, Jorge 2531
CASTLE, James 1625
CASTLE, Philip 2548
CASTLE, Wendell 1442, 1565, 1965, 2098, 2303, 2679
CASTNER, Patty 1703
CASTOR, Harold 1388
CASTORO, Rosemarie 1257, 1276, 1659, 2417, 2467
CASTRO-CID, Enrique 1478
CASTRO, Lorraine De 3181
CASWELL, Jim 1137
CATANO, Linda 1916
CATCHI 2903
CATESBY, Mark 1589, 2373
CATHELIN, Bernard 2506
CATLETT, Elizabeth 1174, 1570, 3039
CATLIN, George 2373
CATRON, Steve 2240
CATTEL, Ray 2039
CATTERALL, John 1546
CAUTHEN, Betty 1049
CAVAILLES, Jules 2506
CAVALLI, Guy John 1240, 1293
CAVALLON, Giorgio 2568
CAVAN, Connie 1703
CAVANAGH, Henry 2597
CAVE, Jim 3033
CAVE, Leonard 1454, 3010
CECCOBELLI, Bruno 2358
CECERE, Jennifer 2523
CECULA, Marek 2597, 3169
CEGLIA, Vincent 3127
CELENDER, Don 2580
CELENTANO, Daniel 2790
CELENTANO, Francis 3079, 3423
CELESTINO, Mary 2045
CELMINS, Vija 1148, 1152, 2669
CENCI, Silvana 3446
CENEDELLA, Robert 2240
CERBA, Carlos 2532
CERESE, Irma 2197, 2312
CERIO, Maria 2937
CERLAN, Gayle 1832
CERNIGLIA, Barbara 2072
CERON, Gilberto 1489
CERTO, Bob 1360
CERVONE, Eddie 2392
CESPEDES, Mario 1063
CESSNA, John 3043
CHABOT, Aurore 2047
CHACONA, George 3430
CHADBOURN, Alfred C. 1887, 1967
CHADBOURNE, Danville 3251, 3348
CHADDLESONE, Sherman 3052
CHADWELL, Mary 2150
CHADWICK, Lynn 1120, 1476, 2439, 2660
CHADWICK, Nancy 2287, 2757
CHADWICK, William 1695
CHAET, Bernard 1921, 2725
CHAGALL, Marc 1184, 1270, 1272, 1303, 1329, 1524, 1647, 1698, 1699, 1724, 1812, 1874, 2466, 2533, 2548, 2556, 2622, 2667, 2671, 2727, 2756, 3026, 3285
CHAHBANDOUR, Ann 3134
CHAHINE, Edgar 2419
CHAKI, Yehouda 2375
CHALEFF, Paul 2597
CHALIF, Ronnie 1470
CHALK, Todd 3011
CHAMBERLAIN, David 1944

CHAMBERLAIN, John 1138, 1393, 2429, 2430
CHAMBERLIN, Scott 1282
CHAMBERS, Christopher 2371
CHAMPNEY, Benjamin 2360
CHAN, Tak-Kwong 1121
CHANDLER, Angelyn 1580
CHANDLER, Elaine 3093
CHANDLESS, Michele 2177
CHANEY, Mavis 1996
CHANG, Rodney 1608
CHANG, Susan 2729
CHANG, Wah Ming 1523, 3436
CHANGSTROM, Beth 2940
CHANIN, Carol 1516
CHANNING, Walter 2928
CHAO, Bruce 1259
CHAPEL, Ron 2227
CHAPIN, Francis 1664
CHAPIN, Peter 1539
CHAPIN, Stephen 2448
CHAPLIN, George 1408
CHAPLIN, Kerry 3460
CHAPP, Jeff 1768
CHAPPUIS, Erica 2015
CHARACH, Janice 2012
CHARD, Daniel 1053, 2580
CHARKOW, Natalie 2779
CHARLAND, Robert 1232
CHARLES, Peter 1733, 2836
CHARLESTON, Elizabeth 1254
CHARLESWORTH, Sarah 2296, 2711, 2791
CHARLOT, Jean 1215, 1245, 1603
CHARLTON, Gene 2753
CHARMAN, Montague 2937
CHARNEY, Melvin 2514
CHARPENTIER, Michel 1396
CHARRIERE, Gerard 2629
CHARTOW, Art 2036
CHARVEZE, Ted 3323
CHASE, Jeanne Norman 1480
CHASE, Louisa 1529, 1575, 2678, 2848
CHASE, Richard 1070
CHASE, William 2702, 2877
CHASHNIK, Ilya Grigorevich 2595
CHASMAN, Laura 1939
CHASSEE, Margaret 1849
CHAST, Roz 2659
CHATELAIN, James 2018
CHATELAIN, Thierry 1116
CHATHAM, Ted 1581
CHATMAS, John 3251, 3312
CHATOV, Constantin 1567, 1584
CHATOV, Mark 1584
CHATOV, Roman 1567, 1584
CHATTERTON, C. K. 2350
CHAUCHE, Daniel 1498, 1540
CHAVARRIA, Harvey 2249
CHAVOOSHIAN, Marge 2158
CHAVOUS, Barbara 3021
CHE, Chuang 2035
CHEAVENS, Buck 1079
CHEE, Robert 2256
CHEEK, Alan 2963
CHEEK, Ronald 3223
CHEEK, Vernon 1655
CHEESEMAN, Margaret 1481, 2312, 2825
CHELMINSKI, Michael 2405
CHEMECHE, George 1113, 2583
CHEMIAKIN, Mihail 2692, 2693
CHEN DAN QING 2507
CHEN YI FEI 2507
CHEN, Chi 2152
CHEN, Hilo 1680, 2670
CHEN, Lily 1564
CHEN, Tsing-fang 1446
CHENEY, Dorothea 1357
CHENEY, Fran 3465
CHENEY, J. 3471
CHENG, Carl 1183
CHENG, Martin 1805
CHENG, Mignonette Yin 3011
CHENG, Zhang Cho 2576
CHENOWETH, Ann 3394
CHENOWETH, G. Robert 2140
CHERET, Jules 1871, 2397, 2755
CHERKAS, Constantine 2238
CHERNECK, Myrel 1962
CHERNEY, Lawrence 2856
CHERNEY, Marvin 2626
CHERNOW, Ann 1408, 1420, 1858, 2767
CHERTKOW, Susan 1697
CHESELKA, Kim 1399
CHESLEY, Jacqueline 2173
CHESNUTT, Florence 1849
CHESSHER, Dan E. 3005
CHESTER, Mark 1355
CHEVALIER, Jack 1720, 2355, 3013, 3019, 3079
CHEVALIER, Jean 1654
CHEVES, Martha 2974
CHEVIAN, Carol 2889
CHEW, C.T. 3416
CHHUY, Dorothy 2161
CHI, Chen 2563, 3360
CHI, Tseng Kwong 2409
CHIA, Sandro 1138, 1519, 1940, 2430, 2811
CHIACOS, Stephanie 1135
CHIAPPINELLI, Don 2296
CHIARLONE, Rosemarie 1515
CHIBURIS, Nick 2140
CHICK, Victoria 2082
CHIESA, Wilfredo 3183
CHIHULY, Dale 1034, 1163, 1249, 1357, 1535, 1720, 1946, 2030, 2109, 2457, 3011, 3166, 3420
CHIKANOBU 2553
CHILCUTT, Dorothe M. 1532
CHILDERS, Richard 3283
CHILDRESS, Debora 3212
CHILDRESS, Pat 3268
CHILDRESS, William 2885
CHILDS, Bernard 1605
CHILDS, James 2829
CHILLIDA, Eduardo 1120, 1566, 2531, 2572
CHIMES, Thomas 3131
CHING, Patrick 1622
CHING, Wong 1619
CHINNI, Peter 2340, 3288
CHIORAZZI, Lorraine 2199
CHIPARUS, D.H. 2723
CHIRIACKA, Ernest 2343
CHIRIANI, Richard 2467
CHIRICO, Giorgio De 1953
CHIRINO, Martin 2411
CHMIEL, Len 1038, 2152
CHO, Hyun-Sook 1164
CHO, Kang Yon 1052, 1370
CHODKOWSKI, Henry 1775
CHORAO, Ernesto 2883
CHOTINER, Robert 2705
CHOW, Fong 2565
CHRIST, Jeffrey 1515, 1546
CHRISTAFARO, Chris 1571
CHRISTENBERRY, William 1097, 1459, 1808, 2065, 3329
CHRISTENSEN, Dan 1273, 1357, 1478, 1802, 1840, 1931, 2774, 3318
CHRISTENSEN, James 3363, 3366
CHRISTENSEN, Janice 2205
CHRISTENSEN, Joann 2112
CHRISTENSEN, Larry 3369, 3373, 3374
CHRISTENSEN, R. J. 2502
CHRISTENSEN, Sharlene 3369, 3373, 3374
CHRISTI, Robert 3351
CHRISTIAAN-HAMILTON, Peter 2850
CHRISTIAN, Anthony 2723
CHRISTIAN, Bill 1615
CHRISTIANSEN, Karl 1784
CHRISTIE, Arthur N. 2478
CHRISTIE, Keith 2254
CHRISTO 1117, 1420, 1511, 1676, 1680, 1890, 2185, 2531, 2885, 3459
CHRISTO, Steve 1859
CHRISTOVICH, Kitten 1867
CHRISTY, David 2987, 2991
CHRISTY, Howard C. 3099
CHRYSLER-WHITE, Susan 1700, 3122
CHRYSSA 2294
CHRYSTIE, Edward 2809
CHU, Julie 1164
CHUANG CHE 2006
CHUBBUCK, Joan 2944
CHUMLEY, John 3291
CHUN, Lau 1234, 1619, 1623, 3286
CHUNESTUDEY, Don 2253
CHUNG, Calvin 2305
CHUNG, Kang Lok 1909
CHURCH, Frederic 3327
CHURCH, Michael 1999
CHURCH, Sharon 3158, 3159
CHUTEAU, Jacqueline 1667
CHVOTZKIN, Larry 2160
CHWAST, Seymour 1535
CIABANI, Roberto 1485
CIANCIO, June 2310
CIARLO, Franco 2605
CIARROCHI, Ray 2467
CICCARELLI, Joseph 1532
CICCONE, Antonio 2343
CICERO, Carmen 1979, 2655
CIES, Sandy 2658
CIFOLLELI, Albert 1415
CIGLER, Dennis 1172
CIMIOTTI, Gustave 1034
CINALLI, Ricardo 1572
CINTRÓN, Xander 3190
CIPRIANO, Christine 2535
CIPRIANO, Michael 1394
CISNEROS, Tim 1814
CITRIN, Judy 1732
CITRIN, Maggie 2012
CITRON, Minna 2531
CIUHA, Joze 2012
CIUREJ, Barbara 1636
CIVITICO, Bruno 2165, 2779, 3118
CLAMER, Carol 3139
CLANCY, Tom 2505
CLAPP, Steven Chandler 2984
CLAPSADDLE, Jerry 3320
CLAPSADDLE, Lee 1019
CLARK, Alson Skinner 1094
CLARK, Becky 1803
CLARK, Dane 1063, 1349, 1362, 1384, 1623, 1814, 2252, 3322
CLARK, Edward 2752
CLARK, Eliot 2575
CLARK, Emery 1514, 1867
CLARK, Graham 3454
CLARK, James 3076
CLARK, John 2514
CLARK, Jon 3122
CLARK, Joyce 1619
CLARK, Ken 2996
CLARK, Larry 2523, 3196
CLARK, Lucy 3243
CLARK, Marcia 2510
CLARK, Mark 1674
CLARK, Michael 1992
CLARK, Roberta 1819
CLARK, Rossie 1584
CLARK, Thomas 1976
CLARK, William 2199
CLARKE, David 2847
CLARKE, Graham 1744, 2034, 2439, 2971, 3471
CLARKE, James P. 2545
CLARKE, Janet 2014
CLARKE, John Clem 1808
CLARKE, Mark 3080
CLARKE, Philomena 1049
CLARKE, William 2520
CLAUSEN, Henri 3037
CLAVÉ, Antoni 2795
CLAVE, Antonio 2671
CLAXTON, George 1827
CLAY, Esther 3481
CLAY, Gloria 3481
CLAY, Langdon 2841
CLAYTON, Alexander 3285
CLAYTON, Clara 2963
CLAYTON, Maryan 1308
CLAYTON, Ron 3374
CLEARMAN, Deborah 2510
CLEARMAN, Joe 2617
CLEGG & GUTTMANN 2711
CLEMENT, Alain 3312
CLEMENT, Shirley 2007
CLEMENTE, Francesco 1207, 1519, 1940, 2463, 2684, 2811
CLEMENTS, Stephen jon 1063
CLEMMER, John 1849
CLENDENIN, Paula 2444, 3445
CLERGUE, Lucien 3417
CLERK, Pierre 2653
CLESSINGER, Auguste 2792
CLETÓ, Tony 2800
CLEVELAND, Buster 2655
CLEVELAND, Sally 1006
CLIBANOFF, Lynne 2659
CLIFF, Clarice 2087
CLIFFORD, Susan 1473
CLIFT, Jack 1951, 2571
CLIFT, John Russell 2502
CLIFT, William 1345, 3054, 3195
CLINGER, Shauna Cook 3375
CLINTON, Barry 1268
CLIPSHAM, Jacqueline Ann 2386
CLIVE, Dennis 2818
CLIVE, Richard 2170
CLOAR, Carroll 2515
CLODT, Michail 2830
CLOSE, Chuck 1090, 1227, 1506, 2717, 2718
CLOSE, Frank 2999
CLOSSON, Nanci Blair 1056, 1768, 2014, 2048
CLOUGH, Charles 2104, 2297, 2355, 3418
CLOUSE, Danyel 2226
CLOUTIER, Francois 1542, 2487, 2488
CLOVER, Susan 1327
CLOVIS, John 3451
CLOWER, Joseph 1161, 1235
CLUGSTON, Donald 2191
CLUTZ, William 2058, 2829
CLYMER, John 1061, 3061
COATES, Jane 1994
COBB, Michael 3281
COBB, Ruth 2677
COBB, Virginia 2102, 3321
COBBLE, Brian 3318
COBERO, Xavier 2814
COBO, Chema 1733
COBURN, Alvin Langdon 2645
COBURN, Barbara 1036
COBURN, Ralph 1921
COBURN, Thomas Langdon 1988
COCA, Joyce 1346
COCHRAN, Dale 1590
COCHRAN, David 3399
COCHRAN, Dorothy 1539, 2191
COCKRELL, Jon 1680
COCKRILL, Sherna 1080, 3311
COCTEAU, Jean 2607
CODE, Audrey 2577, 2762
CODIEUX, Michail 1024
COE, Anne 1039
COEN, Don 1368
COEN, Eleanor 1664
COES, Kent Day 2197
COES, Rufus 2310
COFFEE, Dennis 3465
COFFEY, Michael 2847
COFFIN, Barry 2273
COFFIN, Doug 2260
COFRIN, Ann Ward 2636, 3463
COGSWELL, Jim 2217
COHEN GAN, Pinchas 1289, 1290
COHEN-STUART, Victor A. 1298, 1312
COHEN, Adele 2540
COHEN, Alfred 3471
COHEN, Amy 3131
COHEN, Arthur 1967, 2405, 2726
COHEN, Bertha 2011
COHEN, Bruce 1132, 1246
COHEN, Carol 1679, 2520
COHEN, Cora 2594
COHEN, Deborah Vidaver 1717
COHEN, Elaine Lustig 1159, 1478, 2297
COHEN, Florence 1114
COHEN, Harold 1974
COHEN, Henry 2679
COHEN, Larry 1246
COHEN, Marlene 3273
COHEN, Phyllis 1823
COHEN, Ron 2618
COHEN, Selma 1471
COHEN, Sorel 2514
COHEN-GILLESPIE, Frances 2634
COHN, Julie 3271
COHN, Michael 1743, 2585
COIGNARD, James 1143, 1363, 1874, 2011, 2014, 2767, 3127, 3169
COINER, Charles 2677
COKE, Van Deren 1655, 1668
COKER, Larry 2071
COLAO, Rudy 2306
COLBERT, Betty 2216
COLBERT, Tom 1800, 2142
COLBURN, Carol 1028
COLBY, Jeff 1644
COLBY, Sarah 3141
COLBY, Victor 2335
COLE, Bob 3336
COLE, Donald 2658, 3403
COLE, Grover 1519
COLE, Max 1109, 1337, 1338
COLE, Stephanie Kirschen 2297, 2467, 3336
COLE, Thomas 2942, 3327
COLEMAN, Barbara 2800
COLEMAN, Elaine 3078
COLEMAN, Helen 1301
COLEMAN, Michael 1702, 2874
COLEMAN, Page 2217
COLEMAN, Patricia 1761
COLEMAN, Roger 1909
COLEMAN, S. E. 1624
COLEMAN, Tom 3078, 3428
COLEN, Adele 2730
COLESCOTT, Robert 2787, 3079
COLESCOTT, Warrington 1740, 1918, 3458
COLETTE 2414, 2421
COLETTE, Lois 1169
COLFAX, Gregory 3435
COLIN, Carol 1177
COLL-VALLS, Jaime 2380
COLLA, Ettore 2377
COLLAZO, Carlos 3183
COLLERY, Paula 2655
COLLETT, Farrell R. 3361, 3376
COLLETTE, Carol 1999
COLLETTE, John 1999
COLLINGS, Betty 2844
COLLINS, James 2885
COLLINS, Joel 3175
COLLINS, Krista 1302, 2851
COLLINS, Lowell 3304
COLLINS, Michael 3315
COLLINS, Stephen 2091
COLLIS, Jo Ann 1155
COLMAN, James Alan 2165
COLO, Papo 2620
COLOMBO, Paolo 1659, 2707
COLON-MORALES, Rafael 2686
COLPACCI, Viorica 2471
COLT, James 1049
COLT, John 3460, 3466
COLUNGA, Alejandro 1256
COLVERT, Marilyn Starr 2134
COLVILL, Tracy 1130
COLVILLE, Pat 2449, 3336
COLWELL, Larry 1403
COMBAS, Robert 2431
COMBS, Marie 2847
COMPTON, Henry 3255, 3255
COMSTOCK, Chester 1056, 1377
COMSTOCK, Nancy 1837
CONANT, Bill 3436, 3439
CONANT, Howard 1024, 1068
CONARD, Steven 2081
CONAWAY, James 1056, 2048, 3314
CONCHA, Jerry 1241, 1256, 1691
CONDAK, Cliff 2483

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

CONDIT, Cecelia 3021
CONDO, George 1160
CONE-SKELTON, Annette 1578
CONE, Clariebel 1046
CONE, Davis 2580
CONEY, Ran 1590
CONGE, Robert 2916
CONGER, William 1732
CONINE, Robert 2214
CONKLIN, William 1499
CONKLING, Douglas 2940
CONLEY, Stoney 1654, 1966
CONLON, Eugene 1967
CONLON, William 2494, 3168
CONNALLY, Dan 1231, 1264
CONNATSER, Larry 1595
CONNAWAY, Jay 3238
CONNEEN, Mari 1494
CONNELL, Clyde 1845, 2470, 3270, 3300
CONNELL, Jim 2087
CONNELLY, Arch 2529
CONNELY, Carole 1003, 1584
CONNER, Howard 2263
CONNER, Lois 2729
CONNER, Neppie 1078, 1079
CONNIFF, Gregory 2068
CONNOR, Ann 2960
CONNOR, Brenda 1501
CONNOR, Catherine 2098
CONNOR, Elizabeth 1692
CONNOR, Linda 1950, 2650, 2919, 3125
CONNOR, Maureen 2351
CONNORS, Betsy 1946
CONNORS, Carolyn 1837
CONNORS, Richard 3242
CONOVER, Claude 1043, 3158, 3159
CONRAD, Paul 3415
CONROY, Michel 1694
CONRY, Mary Byrne 2082
CONSAGRA, Pietro 2377
CONSTANTINE, Greg 2044
CONSTANTINE, Jay 2026
CONSTANTINOV-WILSON 2853
CONSUEGRA, Hugo 2449
CONTI, Raul 2651
CONTRO, Antonia 1685
CONWAY, Terry 2215
COOGAN, Jay 2634, 3294
COOK, Brian 1039
COOK, Eloise 1003
COOK, Ferris 2854
COOK, Gary 2970
COOK, Gordon 1251
COOK, Howard 1908, 2872
COOK, James Pringle 1811, 2829
COOK, Jim 1669
COOK, John 1301
COOK, Lia 1241, 2681
COOK, Mary Jo 3082
COOK, Michael 1504, 1679
COOKE, Judy 3076
COOKE, S. Tucker 2960
COOLIDGE, David 1792, 3100, 3101, 3140
COOLIDGE, Deborah 1947
COOLING, Janet 1697
COOMEY, Pat 1951
COONEY CRAWFORD, Thom 2467
COOPER, Colin Campbell 1314
COOPER, Dorree 1867
COOPER, Ed 1211
COOPER, Gwen 3020
COOPER, Mark 1947
COOPER, Michael 2736
COOPER, Nellie 1405
COOPER, Rich 3217
COOPER, Ron 1112, 1179, 3306
COOPER, Rose 1186
COOPER, Ruffin, Jr 1129, 1243, 1357, 2516, 3316
COOPER, Stephanie 3004
COOPER, Susan 1368
COOPER, Susie 2087
COOPER, Vicki Teague 3251
COOPER, Walter 2242
COOPERMAN, Rebecca 2593, 2705
COORS, Sophie 3283
COOVER, Pilar 2847
COPE, Louise Todd 3121
COPELAND, Ann 1011
COPENHAVER, Deborah 2131
COPLANS, John 2873
COPLEY, Bill 1690
COPLEY, Noma 1127
COPLEY, Susan 2299, 2915, 3010
COPLEY, William N. 2631
COPPEDGE, Fern 3101, 3140
CORAZZO, Michele 1633
CORBERO, Xavier 1674
CORBETT, Alice 1909
CORBETT, Edward 2411
CORBIN, Tarrence 3237
CORBINO, Jon 1547
CORBUSIER, Le 2694
CORCORAN, Ann 2617
CORDERO, Helen 2255
CORDIER, Pierre 3303
CÓRDOVA, Ralph 1033
COREY, Glenn 2952, 3005
CORITA 2034
CORLEY, Denise 2020
CORLEY, Stella 2904
CORMAN, Linda 2915
CORN, Jack 1821
CORNEILLE 1415, 2019
CORNELISON, Carol 1515
CORNELIUS, Philip 1137, 1282, 2571
CORNELL, Arlene 2754
CORNELL, Deborah 1933, 2685
CORNELL, Joseph 1138, 1463, 1635, 2350, 2428, 2665
CORNELL, Pamela 3127
CORNELL, Thomas 2490
CORNER, Philip 2763
CORNERS, Ralph 1188
CORNETT, Don 2597
CORONEL, Rafael 1092
COROT, J. B. C. 2702
COROZINE, Richard 2472
CORPRON, Carlotta 2729
CORREA, Catherine 2386
CORREALE, Joseph 2539
CORREIA, Steven V. 1602
CORREIA, Steven W. 1770
CORRELL, Leslie 1437
CORRIE, Guy 2617
CORRIGAN, Dennis 3131
CORSAUT, Share 3417
CORSE, Mary 1159
CORTESE, Aurora 2788
CORTESE, Don 2939
CORTEZ, Eduardo Vera 2700
CORTRIGHT, Steven 1188
CORTY, Robert 2263
CORYELL, Andrey 2651
COST, Curtis Wilson 1619
COSTAN, Chris 2762
COSTANZO, Tony 1249
COSTELLO, Cynthia 2744
COSTELLO, Patrick 1797
COTE, Alan 2855
COTTER, Jacqueline 1424, 3127
COTTINGHAM, Robert 1442, 1808, 1946, 2627
COTTON, Walter 3418
COUCH, Jane 2423
COUDRAIN, Brigitte 2592
COUGHLIN, Jack 2916
COULTER, Jerry 3389
COULTER, Lane 1965
COUPER, Jim 1489, 1510
COURTNEY, Barbara 3055
COURTRIGHT, Robert 2460, 2461
COUSE, E. I. 1672
COUSTRY, Therese 2535
COUTTS, Gordon 1314
COUTURE, Christin 2634
COUTURE, Thomas 2792
COVE, Rosemary 2598
COVENEY, Sara 3127
COVERT, Cameron 3433
COVINGTON, Harrison 1544
COWAN, John P. 3318
COWAN, Ralph 3398
COWANS, Adger 2564
COWGILL, Molly 1437, 2847, 2913, 2939
COWIE, Marti 1500
COWIN, Eileen 1155, 2065
COWLES, Russell 2638
COX, Chris 2004
COX, Eleanor 3399
COX, Frances M. 1540
COX, John Rogers 1779
COX, Kris 1268, 1549, 2239, 2491, 3158, 3159
COX, Palmer 3103
COXX, Ralph 2607
COYA, Elvira 3188
COYER, Max 2412
COYLE, Jamie 3005
COZENS, Alexander 1418
CRABB, Patrick 1533
CRABLE, James 1445
CRAGG, Tony 2657
CRAIG, Chris 2175
CRAIG, Dan 2597
CRAIG, Gary 1273
CRAIG, John 1394
CRAIG, Laura 1115
CRAIN, Joyce 2571
CRAIN, Steve 1062
CRAMER-LETTENSTROM, Nancy 2047
CRAMER, Christopher 1590
CRAMER, George 1422
CRAMER, Konrad 2813
CRAMER, Richard 3134
CRAMER, Steven 3441
CRAMPTON, Gladys 1600
CRANE, Barbara 1785, 2729
CRANE, Bruce 1180, 2360
CRANE, David 1433, 2247, 2491
CRANE, Gregory 2544
CRANE, James 3454
CRANE, Jean 3460
CRANE, Paula 1372
CRANENDONK, Betty 2889
CRANMER, Barry 2163
"CRASH" 2298
CRAVEN, David 2794
CRAVEN, Jeff 2144
CRAWFORD, Barbara 1832
CRAWFORD, Garie 1911, 3019
CRAWFORD, James 2016, 2026, 2045
CRAWFORD, Margaret 2915
CRAWFORD, Nancy 1500
CRAWFORD, Ralston 1859, 2678
CRAWFORD, Richard 1323
CRAWFORD, Susan 1385
CREE, Luella 2995
CREE, Rose 2995
CREECH, Walter 2963
CREECY, Herbert 1578, 3240
CREED, Betsy 1539
CREEPINGBEAR, Mirac 3050, 3052
CREEVY, Bill 2510
CREIGHTON, Virginia 2705
CREMEAN, Robert 1171, 1201
CREO, Leonard 2306
CRESCI, Maureen 3067
CRESSMAN, Larry 1994, 2006
CRETARA, Dominic 2510, 2827
CREUS, Alicia 2436, 2637
CRIBBS, KeKe 2216
CRICHTON, Richard 1584
CRILE, Susan 1273, 1357, 1728, 2185, 2297, 2789, 3020
CRIMI, Alfred 2300
CRIMMINS, Gael 1157
CRIMMINS, Jerry 3151
CRISE, Robert 3021, 3217
CRISS, Francis 2877
CRIST, Noche 1447
CRIST, Ron 2105
CRIST, William 2705
CRITES, Gayle 1360
CROCKER, John 3442
CROCKETT, Candace 3433
CROMWELL, Steven 1802
CRONEL, Rafael 1215
CRONEMEYER, Cora Sue 2636
CRONIN, Robert 2001, 2551, 3168
CROOK, Kenneth 2302
CROOK, Tully 2439
CROPSEY, Jasper F. 2877, 2908, 3327
CROSS, Henri-Edmond 2875
CROSS, John 2615
CROSS, Syd 2951
CROUSE, Michael 1564
CROVELLO, William 2168, 2607, 2917
CROW, Nancy 2004
CROWDER, Judy 2124
CROWELL, Frances 1116
CROWELL, Lucius 3127
CROWN, Katie 1071
CROWN, Keith 1074, 1212
CROYDON, Michael 1679
CROZIER, Marvin 1784
CROZIER, Richard 2829
CROZIER, William 2518, 3424
CRUGER, Dick 2038
CRULL, Ford 1183
CRUMP, Walter 1968, 2613
CRUZ, Eliasim 3188
CRUZ, Luis Hernandez 1489, 3181, 3182, 3184, 3188, 3190
CUBB, Phyllis 2147
CUBILES, Miguel 1487
CUCCHI, Enzo 1569, 2611
CUEVAS, Jose Luis 1074, 1120, 1215, 1233, 1267, 2011, 2469, 2531, 2532, 3183
CUGAT, Delia 2662
CUKLA, Cynthia 3457
CULBERT, Alice A. 1632
CULINER, Jack 1530
CULL, Diana Parrish 2609
CULL, Steve 1839
CULL, Todd 2609, 2960
CULLEN, John 2937
CULLING, Richard 2012
CULP, Dudley 2962
CULP, Rusty 1367, 2516
CULVER, Dennis 2242
CUMING, Rebecca 2409
CUMMING, Douglas 1654
CUMMING, Robert 1399, 2885
CUMMING, William 3420
CUMMINGS, David 2917
CUMMINS, Linda 2479
CUNNINGHAM, Dennis 3076
CUNNINGHAM, Imogen 1100, 2118, 2643
CUNNINGHAM, John 2216
CUNNINGHAM, Linda 2802
CUNNINGHAM, Merce 2763
CUNNINGHAM, Mike 3164, 3288
CUNNINGHAM, T. Ned 1761
CURLEE, Lynn 2541
CURRAN, Darryl 3125
CURRAN, Victor 1075
CURRIE, Bruce 2677
CURRIE, Tom 2571
CURRIER & IVES 2373
CURRIER, Anne 1357
CURRIER, Mary Ann 1831
CURRY, John S. 1908
CURRY, John Steuart 1322, 2385, 2626
CURTIS, Art 1323
CURTIS, Dolly 1415
CURTIS, Edward 1055, 1155, 1869, 2248, 2319, 3419
CURTIS, Joan 2999
CURTIS, Mike 1382
CURTIS, Phillip 1034
CURTIS, Robert 3465
CURTIS, Sadie 1060
CURTS, Ilene 1996
CUSACK, Eugene 2306
CUSACK, Margaret 2404, 2847
CUSHING, Barbara 2779
CUSHING, Val 3121
CUSHWA-BLAKE, Nancy 3093
CUSIE, Ray 2615
CUSTODE, Fiore 1547
CUTFORTH, Roger 2417, 2885
CUTHBERT, Amy 3458
CUTLER, Judy 2413
CUTLER, Nancy Youngblood 1060
CUTRONE, Ronnie 2791
CUTTS, Bonnie 2051
CYPHERS, Peggy 2800
CYPIS, Dorit 1165
CYPRYS, Allan 2519
CYRIL, Ruth 2553
CYTRON, Daniel 1133
CZAJKOWSKA, Hanna 1640
CZECHOWSKI, Alicia 2798, 3464
CZOBEL, Bela 1686

D

D'ALESSANDRO, Robert 1899, 2729
D'ALESSIO, Natalie 2166
D'ALLESANDRO, David 2413
D'ALMEIDA, George 1664, 1945, 2764
D'AMBROSI, Jasper 1049, 1814
D'ANDREA, Bernard 3206
D'ANDREA, Rosemary 2312, 2931
D'ANNA, Ann Marie 2015
D'ARCANGELO, Allan 1518, 2052, 2411
D'AVANZO, Suzanne 2854
D'ESOPO, Jan 3184, 3190
D'VORZON, Bernice 1515
DA CONCEICÃO, São-Maria 1550
DA VINCI, Leonardo 1192, 1552, 1847, 2224
DACEY, Doug 3212
DACON, Chebon 3052
DADDARIO, Rick 2336
DADILLA, Cosmo 2004
DAEN, Lindsay 3188
DAGNE 1041
DAGNIJA, Daina 2318
DAHL, Lori 3443
DAHL, Rolf 2257
DAHMEN, K. F. 2826
DAILEY, Dan 1163, 1720, 1924, 2030, 2109, 2737
DAILEY, Michael 1293, 3079, 3433
DAILY, Mark 2152
DAL FABBRO, Mario 1387
DALEY, William 1941, 3121
DALGLEISH, Barry K. 2915
DALGLISH, Jamie 2788
DALI, Salvador 1096, 1166, 1184, 1326, 1484, 1647, 1699, 1797, 1871, 2195, 2391, 2458, 2466, 2502, 2921, 3285, 3386
DALIO, Carl 1377
DALKEY, Fredric 1229
DALLAS-SWANN, Susan 2985
DALLMAN, Daniel 2779, 3131, 3385
DALOU, Jules 2420
DALTON, Ursula 2963
DALVA, Marcia 1275
DALY, Thomas Aquinas 2152, 2563, 3027
DAMAST, Elba 2607
DAMER, Jack 1713
DANCIGER, Joe 3142
DANE, Bill 1262
DANFORTH, Kay 1036
DANGERS, Benham 1080
DANIAL, John 3289
DANIEL, Mike 3059
DANIEL, Sue 1378
DANIELS, Elizabeth 3175
DANIELS, M.R. 3124
DANIN, Barbara 3164
DANISCH, Jim 1313
DANNEFELSER, Susan 1257
DANZ, Doug 3472
DANZIGER, Avery 1097
DANZIGER, Fred 3151
DANZINGER, Joan 1682
DAPHNIS, Nassos 1257, 2430, 2502, 2653, 2881
DAPKINS, Dale 2332
DAR, Dina 1847, 2614
DARAIS, Christina 3372
DARBOVEN, Hanne 2429, 2430
DARBY, Mary Lee 2113
DARDIGNAC, Pierre 1406
DARGER, Henry 1690, 2631
DARLING, Lowell 1133
DARNAT, Fanny 2535
DARNAT, Jean-Pierre 2366
DARRIAU, Jean Paul 1761
DARRO, Tom 1115

DARROW, Paul 1202
DART, Deborah 1542
DARWELL, Randall 1437, 1550, 2332, 2930
DASH, Robert 1113, 1902, 2928
DASHKE, Christopher 1717
DASKALOFF, Georgi 2738
DASS, Dean 1791
DATER, Judy 1055, 1355, 1441, 2002, 2065
DAUB, Joan 2225
DAUB, Matthew 1654
DAUGHTERS, Robert 1061, 1362, 1384, 1816, 2241
DAUMIER, Honore 1192, 1272, 1561, 1876, 2083, 2856, 3086
DAVE, Dave 1232
DAVENNY, Ward 2770
DAVENPORT, Davy 2984
DAVENPORT, Patrick Henry 1824
DAVENPORT, Rebecca 2348
DAVID, Anita 1636
DAVID, Cyril 1909
DAVID, Joe 3435
DAVID, Michael 2573
DAVIDS, Dorothy 3108
DAVIDSON, Bruce 1058, 2604
DAVIDSON, Deborah 1992
DAVIDSON, Jaclyn 1545
DAVIDSON, Jo 2575, 2908
DAVIDSON, Karen 1258
DAVIDSON, Nancy 1659, 1978, 2570
DAVIDSON, Phyllis 1188
DAVIDSON, Raymond 2576
DAVIDSON, Sandra Calder 3133
DAVIDT, Carl Andree 1743, 3205
DAVIE, Alan 2551
DAVIEAU, Ed 1049
DAVIES, Arthur B. 2753, 2971, 3086
DAVIES, Bevan 2805
DAVIES, Bill 2209
DAVIES, Harold Christopher 1006, 1271
DAVIES, John 2660
DAVIES, Ken 2159
DAVIES, Richard 2394
DAVILA, Carlos 2171
DAVILA, Maritza 2433
DAVILA, Tina 2226
DAVIS, Adele 1003
DAVIS, Brad 2804, 2848
DAVIS, Carole 3388
DAVIS, Clarence 2893
DAVIS, Cliff 2011
DAVIS, Cookie 1500
DAVIS, Dave 1379
DAVIS, David 3020
DAVIS, David L. 2172
DAVIS, Donald 1286, 1315, 2239
DAVIS, Dorothy 2957
DAVIS, Douglas 2504
DAVIS, Gary 1036
DAVIS, Gene 1432, 1459, 1477, 1531, 1543, 1680, 1906, 2041, 2041, 2457, 3296, 3310
DAVIS, James G. 1064
DAVIS, Jamie 3166, 3202, 3205
DAVIS, Jeff 3400
DAVIS, Jim 2226
DAVIS, Joann Rae 2004
DAVIS, Keith 3454
DAVIS, Lenore 3202
DAVIS, Marc 2263
DAVIS, Marsha 2131
DAVIS, Maxwell Lyle 2015
DAVIS, Michael 1135, 1644
DAVIS, Nelsie 3078
DAVIS, Paul 3373
DAVIS, Richard 2158
DAVIS, Roger 3369
DAVIS, Ron 1246, 2406, 2582
DAVIS, Ronald 1132, 1152
DAVIS, Scott 2788
DAVIS, Stephen 1259, 1339
DAVIS, Steve 1623, 2065
DAVIS, Stuart 2385, 2411, 2907
DAVIS, Walter 2952
DAVIS, Wayne 2343
DAVIS, William Leon 1819
DAVISSON, Zita 2507
DAVIT, C. Andree 1565
DAVOLI, Joe 1515
DAVY, Susan 2996
DAW, Leila 2096
DAWSON, Anita 3024
DAWSON, Christine 1027
DAWSON, Doug 1352, 1814, 3323
DAWSON, John 1044, 1045, 1071, 2236, 2783, 3135, 3183, 3330
DAWSON, Manierre 2779
DAWSON, Montague 1051
DAWSON, Shirley 2897
DAY, Ann 3373
DAY, James 1368
DAY, John 1530
DAY, Larry 2472, 3136
DAY, Lucien 2405
DAY, RoseAnn 1049
DAYKIN, Susan 2413
DAZA 2636
"DAZE" 2298
DE AMARAL, Olga 2681
DE ARCE, Manuel 3279, 3362
DE ARMOND, Dale 1015
DE BLAS, Mariano 2800
DE BREUVERY, Patricia 2535
DE CALLATAY, Xavier 1875
DE CAMP, Michael 2483
DE CASSIO, Felix 2738
DE CASTRO, Loraine 3188, 3190
DE CHIRICO, Giorgio 2689
DE CLET, Rachel Rolon 2802
DE CONCEICAO, Maria 1442
DE CREEFT, Jose 2249
DE DIEGO, Julio 1547
DE DUNCAN, Gloria 3181
DE FILIPPI, Serge 2535
DE FOREST, Roy 1102, 1263, 1442, 1445, 2528
DE GENARO, Matthew 1657
DE GREGORI, Gayle 3307
DE GROAT, George 1198
DE GUATEMALA, Joyce 1515, 3131
DE HART, Cindy 3255
DE JESUS, Efrain 2433
DE JONG, Thom 1008, 1955, 2444, 2653
DE KOONING, Elaine 1470, 1902, 2568, 2903
DE KOONING, Willem 1152, 1453, 1511, 1678, 2518, 2668, 2803, 3317, 3424
DE KOORNBOLT, William 1275
DE KOSZEGHY, Violetta 2170
DE LA FONTAINE, Helena 3251
DE LA PAZ, Neraldo 1720
DE LA TOUR D'AUVERGNE, Yves 1145
DE LAITTRE, Eleanor 2478
DE LARGE, Edward 3121
DE LEEUW, Leon 2178
DE LEON, Marta 1033
DE LLAMAS, Don 1116
DE LOOPER, Willem 1546, 2757
DE LOYHT-ARENDT, Mary 1049, 2262
DE LUSSANET, Paul 3137
DE MANUELLE, Stephanie 3118
DE MATTEIS, Frank 1052
DE MAYO, Louis 2050
DE MILLE, Kay 2124
DE MONTE, Claudia 1488, 2800
DE NIRO, Robert 2562, 3449
DE PALMA, Brett 2791
DE PANIS, F. 3273
DE PASQUALE, James 2634
DE PENTU, Ronald 2937
DE QUATRO, Richard 1550
DE RECONDO, Felix 1269
DE RIVERA, José 2411
DE ROUX, Ken 1021
DE RUTH, Jan 3273
DE RYK, Jack 3137
DE SAINT-ALBAN, Michel 3310
DE SAINT GERMAIN, Leticia Menendez 3181
DE SAINT PHALLE, Niki 2551, 2605
DE SANA, Jimmy 2483, 2816
DE SANTIS, Grazia 1719, 2761
DE SIGALDI, Emma 3011
DE SILVA, Kauka 1603
DE STAEBLER, Stephen 1246, 1626
DE STEFANI, Massimo 2851
DE SZYSZLO, Fernando 1490
DE VINE, Robert 3069
DE VUONO, Lanny 1489
DE WEESE, Bob 2112
DE WITT, James 2057
DE WOODY, James 1878, 3138
DE ZAYAS, Marius 2435, 3147
DEADERICK, Joseph 2651
DEAL, Georgia 1445
DEAN, Bruce 1324
DEAN, Clark 1650
DEAN, Dorothy 3124
DEAN, Helen 3446
DEAN, James 1544
DEAN, Jean 1500
DEAN, Karen 2544
DEAN, Meredith 1822, 1823
DEAN, Merilyn Beyrer 1234
DEAN, Nat 1257
DEAN, Peter 1578, 1859, 2917
DEANDREA, John 1261, 1342, 2580, 3275
DEAR, David 2216
DEARCANGELIS, Gloria 3437
DEARMOND, Dale 1021
DEARTH, Henry 2575
DEATON, Norman Neal 1523
DEBERDT, Francoise 1797
DEBLOCK, Jennifer 3311
DEBORAH 1909
DEBRE, Olivier 1445
DECELLE, Edmond Carl 1010
DECIL, Del 1049
DECKBAR, Adrian 1878
DECKER, Carol 2197
DECKER, Jean 1123
DECOCK, Liliana 1403
DECREDICO, Alfred 2675
DECUNTO, John 1972
DEDECKER, Tom 1803, 1812, 3376
DEE EDWARDS, Stephen 2585
DEEBLE, Bob 2332
DEEM, George 1835, 2472
DEFEO, Jay 1264
DEFERT, Maxime 2366
DEFFEBACH, Lee 3362, 3373, 3374
DEFILIPPS-BRUSH, Gloria 2068, 3434
DEFOREST, Julie Morrow 3007
DEFOREST, Roy 1040, 1256, 1669, 3427
DEGAN, Diane 2140
DEGAS, Edgar 1589, 2838
DEGENER, Amanda 2095
DEGENER, Patricia 2103, 2104, 2236
DEGNER, Patricia 2236
DEGROOT, Nanno 1980
DEGRUYL, Tom 2889
DEHAAN, Chuck 1328
DEHN, Adolf 1522, 1544, 1763, 2770
DEHNER, Dorothy 2772
DEIBERT, Rob 3226
DEICHLER, Deborah 2464
DEJONG, Constance 2228
DEJUAN, Ronaldo 3309
DEL GROSSO, James 2310
DEL MARLE, Felix 2427
DEL VALLE, Cezar 2290
DELABANO, Martin 3271
DELACROIX, Eugene 2875
DELACROIX, Michel 1396, 2034, 2379, 2819
DELAGI, Westa 2733
DELANO, Jack 2805
DELAP, Tony 1159, 1202, 1246, 2492
DELAPP, Terry 1140
DELARIOS, Dora 1114, 2257
DELAUNAY, Sonia 1945, 2642, 2764, 2881, 3180
DELAURENTIS, Richard 2489
DELESSERT, Etienne 2432
DELGADILLO, Ramón 1033
DELIND, Doug 1743, 2014
DELISLE, Roseline 2571
DELL, Robert 2851
DELLER, Harris 1775, 1842
DELONEY, Jack 2070
DELONG, Paul 3458
DELONGA, Leonard 2638
DELOOPER, Willem 3460
DELORY, Peter 1626, 3125
DELOS, Kate 1257, 1315
DELSON, Elizabeth 2593
DELUDE, Jeff 3141
DELVAUX, Paul 2642
DEMACHY, Robert 2645
DEMANCHE, Michel 3296
DEMANUELLE, Stephanie 2413
DEMAREE, Betty 1346, 2258
DEMAYO, Louis 1048
DEMILLE, Blaine 1814
DEMING, David L. 2273, 3251
DEMIRJIAN, Louise 2931
DEMONG, Phylis 1967
DEMONTE, Claudia 2012, 3131
DEMOSS, Max 1113
DEMPSEY, Richard 1434
DEMUTH, Charles 2665, 2774, 2877, 3111
DEMUTH, Leslie 3458
DENBY, Jillian 2679
DENES, Agnes 2675
DENIS, Maurice 1184
DENISON, Nancy 1524
DENMAN, Pat 2161
DENNARD, Bill 3348
DENNENBERG, Tinka 2449
DENNETT, Lissy 2324
DENNIE, Steve 2298, 3270
DENNING, John 1302
DENNIS, Donna 2804
DENNIS, Jane 2336
DENNIS, Steve 2115
DENNISON, Dorothy Dell 3003
DENNY, Robyn 1158, 1582, 2608
DENNY, Suzann Phelan 2295
DENSLOW, Stephen 2462
DENTON, J.R. 1085
DENTON, Lynn 3124
DENTON, Pat 1377
DENYS, Frederick 3376
DEON, Dorothy 2577
DEPAOLA, Tomie 2432
DEPPE, Marlaina 2708
DEPUY, Tina 1963
DERAIN, Andre 2852
DERMIT, Chris 2421
DERN, Carl 1331
DEROSA, Jean 1919
DERUTH, Jan 2306, 2502
DERVEN, Priscilla 2174
DERVEN, Ralph 2519, 2946
DERWENSKUS, Marilyn 2014
DESATNICK, Mike 1035, 2268
DESCHAMPS, Minnie 2750
DESHAZO, William 1601
DESHUK, Daria 2599
DESMAZIÈRES, Erik 1444, 2512
DESMETT, Ron 3173
DESOTO, Lewis 2997
DESPARD, Clem 2712
DESSNER, Murray 1515, 3131
DESTAEBLER, Stephen 1325
DETHEUX, Jean 2699
DETRICH, Frank N. 2894
DEUTCH, Stephen 1650
DEUTER, Dan 2987
DEUTER, Pat 2987
DEUTSCH, David 1639, 2707, 2848
DEUTSCH, Richard 1268, 1282, 1639
DEUTSCHER, Susan 2538
DEVENYNS, Steve 2144
DEVILLEGAS, Jose Luis Diaz 3181
DEVINE, Dan 1947
DEVINE, Dee Ann 1488
DEVINE, Jed 1896, 2873
DEVIS, Fernando 1489
DEVLIN, Harry 2207
DEVLIN, Richard 3173
DEVOE, Robert 1286, 3067
DEVORE, Jim 1230
DEVORE, Richard 1663
DEWBERRY, Thomas 1567
DEWEY, David 2829
DEWITT, Larry 2265
DEWS, Pat 2305
DEY, Kris 1241
DI BELLA, Jo 1819
DI BIASE, Michael 2643
DI DONNA, Porfirio 1276, 1943
DI MARE, Dominic 1720
DI MODICA, Arturo 2561
DI NARDO, Leonard 3158, 3159
DI NINO, Lynn 3428
DI PAOLO, John 1285
DI ROSA, Hervé 2552
DI SUVERO, Mark 1152, 1263, 1335, 1656, 2100, 2710, 3317
DIAMA, Benjamin 1612
DIAMOND, Connie 2436
DIAMOND, Martha 2362
DIAMOND, Stuart 1658, 2669
DIAZ DE LA PENA, Narcisse Virgile 1091
DIAZ, Angel Rodriguez 2433
DIAZ, Antonio 3183
DIAZ, Ed 1033
DIBBETS, Jan 2429, 2430, 2684
DIBBLE, Jean 2571, 3313
DIBDIN, Thomas C. 1051
DIBERT, Claudette 1198
DIBERT, Rita 2012
DIBRACE, Michael 1403
DICICCO, Gil 1057, 2250
DICK, Carol 2186
DICKERSON, Bill 1816
DICKERSON, Brian 3127
DICKERSON, Naomi 2000, 2620
DICKERSON, Vera 3405
DICKINSON, Edwin 1561, 2589, 2694
DICKINSON, Norman 2738
DICKMAN, Maishe 2332, 2565
DICKSON, Jane 2470
DICKSON, John 3141
DICKSON, Mark 1368, 1641, 2262
DICKSON, Tom 1061, 1346, 1360
DIDIER, Sean 3311
DIEBENKORN, Richard 1207, 1246, 1663, 1796, 1940, 2023, 2146, 2406, 2463, 2582, 2633, 2665, 3117, 3125, 3168
DIEHL, Guy 1244
DIEHL, Randall 1944
DIEHL, Sevilla 2158
DIENES, Sari 2357
DIENSTBIER, Karen 2084
DIETRICH, Maribeth 2123
DIETRICH, Marinae 2115
DIGBY, John 1909, 2344, 2629
DIGGS, Peggy 2521, 2620
DIGIORGIO, Joe 1859, 2794, 3314
DIGIUSTO, Gerald 2939
DILG, John 1135, 1644
DILL, Guy 1147, 1335
DILL, Laddie John 1031, 1112, 1138, 1196, 1263, 1733, 2271, 2457, 3306, 3418
DILL, Terry Lee 2922
DILLARD, Martha 3388
DILLER, Burgoyne 2494
DILLINGHAM, Rick 1043, 1433, 2229, 2257, 2297, 2571, 3270
DILLON, Diane 2432
DILLON, Helen 3381
DILLON, Lee 3362, 3374

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

DILLON, Leo 2432
DILLON, Michael 2001
DILLON, Mike 2215
DILLON, Paul 1132
DILLWYN, Mary 1588
DILON, Lee 3364
DIMAS, Marcos 2686
DINE, Jim 1432, 1506, 1534, 1543, 1569, 1678, 1940, 2105, 2556, 2717, 2718, 2803, 2953, 3026, 3317, 3341
DINEEN, John 1542
DINEEN, Tom 1459
DINES, Bruce E. 3323
DINGUS, Rick 2645
DININNO, Frank 1674
DINIUS, Burt 3369
DINNEN, Gary 1232
DINNERSTEIN, Harvey 2798
DINNERSTEIN, Simon 2814
DINTENFASS, Marylyn 1450
DIONISIS 2499
DIOR, Oscar 1525
DIPERNA, Frank 1441
DIPIERRO, Daniel 1101
DIPPER, Ruth 3126
DIRKS, John 3282
DIRKS, Rudolph 3282
DIRKSEN, Sue 1183
DISABATO, Neal 3142
DISETH, Glen 3071
DISFARMER 2009
DISKO, David 3374
DISLER, Martin 2657
DISNEY, James 1356
DISQUE, Jill 1415
DIVITA, Frank 1035, 2115, 2131
DIVITA, Rose 1700
DIVOLA, John 2523, 2919
DIX, Otto 2771
DIX, Paul 1003
DIX, Robert 1331
DIXON, Ervin 2141
DIXON, Lalia 1813
DIXON, Maurice 2242
DIXON, Maynard 1090, 3376
DIXON, Michael 2237
DIXON, Nofa 1500
DIXON, Randall 1754
DIXON, Tim 3134
DIXON, Willard 1293, 2511, 3314
DOAK, Dan 1626
DOBBS, John 2350, 2856
DOBOS, Eugene 2542
DOBROVIC, Juraj 1640
DODD, Bill 3348
DODD, Jerry 3251
DODD, Jim 1564
DODD, Lamar 1544
DODD, Lois 2511
DODD, Patricia R. 3075
DODGE, Constance 2496
DODGE, Gene 3363
DODSON, Lillian 2332
DOE CO, John 1129
DOERING, Cheryl 1273
DOERNBACH, Marguerite 1539
DOGANCAY, Burhan 1544, 1641
DOI, Douglas M. 1602
DOISNEAU, Robert 1100, 1155, 1203, 1869, 1936
DOLBERG, Garrick 2412
DOLE, Alice 1703
DOLE, William 1171, 1293, 2814
DOLGE, Grant 2937
DOLINGER, Ed 3374
DOLLIN, Lois 3114
DOLNICK, Judith 2001, 2551
DOLNICK, Judy 1535, 2215
DOLNICK, Mimi 1636
DOLPH, Gratia 1319
DOMAREKI, Joe 2180
DOMBEK, George 1293, 1909
DOMECQ, Manuel 2972
DOMJAN, Joseph 3010
DOMMERSEN, Peter C. 1051
DOMMISSE, Durwood 1445
DONAHUE, Alan 1735
DONAHUE, Scott 1105
DONALD, Francis 1035, 2268
DONAT, Albert 1487
DONATI, Enrico 1128, 2551
DONDE, Olga 2682
DONLEY, Robert 1669, 2634
DONNER, Mike 1471
DONOGHUE, John 1740, 2104
DONOHUE, Michael 2726
DONOVAN, Jon 2380
DOOLEY, Mary Lou 2917
DOOLITTLE, Bev 1356
DOOM, Lola 1085
DORAZIO, Piero 1670, 2494
DORELL, David 3164
DOREMUS, Susanne 1733
DORER, Jan 1008
DORFMAN, Bruce 2375
DORGAN, Janice K. 2915
DORMER, Michael 2271
DORNAN, David 1040
DORNY, Bertrand 1444
DOROSH, Daria 2357
DORR, Nell 2729
DORRANCE, Mark 1249
DORSET, Roger 1580
DORSEY, Elizabeth 3127
DOS SANTOS, Bartholomew 3458
DOS SANTOS, Jonas 3143
DOSS, Catherine 1021
DOSTER, Robert 3205, 3212
DOTREMONT, Christian 1497, 2644
DOTY, Neal 3386
DOUGHERTY, Christopher 2183
DOUGHERTY, Ed 1164
DOUGHERTY, Tom 2995
DOUGLAS, Grail 1512
DOUGLAS, L.J. 1659
DOUGLASS, Ronnell 1427, 3127
DOUKE, Daniel 1325, 1654
DOUZIL, Henri 2031
DOVE, Arthur 2481, 2665
DOVE, Michael 1994
DOVE, Toni 1276, 2481, 2848
DOW, Bruce 2459
DOW, Jan Magaret 1468
DOW, Jim 1575, 2523, 2991
DOW, John G. 2893
DOWD, Helen 1116
DOWD, Ken 3426
DOWELL, John 3013
DOWELL, Roy 1135
DOWHIE, Karl 1039
DOWHIE, Leonard 2029
DOWNES, Rackstraw 2589
DOWNTAIN, Barbara 3471
DOYLE, Cherie 2062
DOYLE, Joe 1261, 3154, 3275
DOYLE, John 1352, 1812, 2034
DOYLE, Katherine 2607
DOYLE, Sam 3198, 3206
DOYLE, Tom 2594
DRAEGERT, Joe 1253
DRAGUL, Sandra 2239
DRAKE, Franklin 2513
DRAKE, Kathy 3272
DRAKE, Peter 2618
DRANEY, Sarah 2357
DRAPELL, Joseph 1946, 3318
DRAPER, William 2738
DRAUGHON, Stefan 2854
DREAGER, Jacqueline 1142
DRECHSLER-MARX, Carin 2555
DREHER, Albert 2251
DREHER, Warren 1302, 2851
DREISBACH, Fritz 1313, 1996, 2585, 3166
DREITH, Brian 1374
DRESHER, Paul 1259
DREW, Bill 1535
DREW, Nancy 1719, 1994
DREWES, Werner 1174, 2192, 2478, 3318
DREXLER, Henry 1972
DREYER, Clarice 1257, 2117
DREYFUS, Bernard 2662
DRIESBACH, David F. 1996
DRIGGS, Daniel T. 3481
DRIGGS, Elsie 2478
DRISCH, Russell 2635
DRISCOLL, John 1259
DRISKELL, Lucile 3011
DROBEK, Carol 2919
DROPKIN, Francesca 2883
DROWER, Sara 1743
DRUCKER, Elizabeth 2436
DRUM, Sydney 1651, 2449
DRYER, Wally 3397
DU BOIS, Guy Pene 2562
DU CASSE, Ralph 1268
DUBACK, Charles 3126
DUBASKY, Valentina 2006, 2716
DUBIN, Howard S. 2636
DUBINER, Deborah Nova 2603
DUBOIS, Ron 3058
DUBROFF, Don 1650, 2914
DUBRUCQ, Virginia 1368
DUBUFFET, Jean 1492, 1534, 1678, 1698, 2146, 2395, 2559, 2667, 2668, 2671, 2717, 2718, 2803, 3026
DUCAIRE, Maryse 1667
DUCASSE, Ralph 1275
DUCH, Tim 2298
DUCHAMP-VILLON, Raymond 2518
DUCHAMP, Marcel 2518
DUCHATEAU, Hugo 1240
DUCHEINE, Fritz 3381
DUCIMETIERE, Gérald 1436
DUCK, Adele 2006
DUCKWORTH, Ruth 1663
DUCMANH 2818
DUCOTE, Camrose 3429
DUDASIK, Joe 2962
DUDEK, Stan 1377
DUDLEY, Don 2355
DUDLEY, Jack 1052
DUDOVITCH, Marcello 2755
DUDROW, Dan 1902
DUEBBER, William 3011
DUEBER, Jeannie 1839
DUECKER, Otto 1044, 1045, 2236
DUER, Lynn 1406
DUESBERRY, Joellyn 2829
DUFF, Joan 2173
DUFF, John 1167
DUFF, Pat 2007
DUFO, Jul 2682
DUFTY, JoAnn 1346
DUFY, Jean 2395, 2507, 2548, 2807
DUFY, Raoul 1091, 1181, 1184, 3283
DUILLO, John 1382, 2799
DUKE, Marilyn 1372, 3251
DUKES, Phyllis 2496
DUKESS, Jeanne 2854
DUKIN, Martin 2612
DUKIN, Stepjan 2612
DULAAR, Jean-Louis 2583
DULL, Willy 1319
DULLANTY, Patrick 1229
DUMAN, Neil 1545
DUNBAR, George 1867
DUNBAR, Harold 2360
DUNCAN, Betty 1590
DUNCAN, Gloria 3182
DUNCAN, Lane 1584
DUNCAN, Robert 1061
DUNCAN, Tom 2744
DUNHAM, Katherine 1650
DUNITZ, Dorothy 2471
DUNKELMAN, Loretta 2357
DUNKLE, Joan 1036
DUNLAP, Bill 2070
DUNLAP, Darrel 2783
DUNLAP, Loren 2507
DUNLAP, William 1968, 3385
DUNLOP, David 1405
DUNN, Cal 1816
DUNN, Douglas 2763
DUNN, Harvey 3099, 3224
DUNNIGAN, Neil 1774
DUNOW, Esti 2413
DUNOYER DE SEGONZAC, Andre 2768
DUNOYER, Pierre 2602
DUNSTAN, Bernard 2152
DUNSTON, Cliff 3442
DUPLAT, Claude 1230
DUPREE, James 3164
DUPUY, Jean 2513, 2566
DUQUET, Don 1899
DURAND, Elizabeth 2918
DURANTON, Andre 1760
DUREAU, George 1865, 1866, 1881
DUREN, Stephen 2024
DÜRER, Albrecht 1098, 1272, 1686, 2674, 2838
DURFEE, Susan 2960
DURHAM, Minerva 2103
DUS, Laszlo 2042
DUSARD, Jay 1034
DUSENBERY, Walter 2573
DUSENBURY, Philip 2968
DUTTERER, William 2658
DUTTON, A.A. 1055
DUVAL, Jeanne 2510
DUVALL, Bernice 1909
DUVALL, Michael 1682
DUVENECK, Frank 2360, 3007
DVORTCSAK, Michael 1142
DWASS, Michael 1740
DWIGHT, Allen 3011
DWIGHT, Ed 1063, 1566, 3039
DWIGHT, Mabel 1880
DWORKIN, Elizabeth 1943
DWORKOWITZ, Alan 2670
DWYER, Jayne 3282
DWYER, Nancy 2787
DYAN, Van 2043
DYE, Charlie 1061
DYER, Rex 3248
DYGERT, Audrey 3302
DYKES, Dan 3070
DYMNICK, Natalie 3149
DZUBAS, Friedel 1246, 1476, 1840, 2633, 3318

E

EADES, Luis 1357, 3291
EAKINS, Thomas 1588, 1942, 3147
EANNEL, Pat 2310
EARL, Jack 2095, 2737
EARLE, Eyvind 1254, 2034, 3386
EARLE, Robert 2937
EARNEST, John 3460, 3466
EASLEY, Loyce 2252, 2258
EASSON, Meryl 2923
EASTERDAY, Betsy 1024
EASTMAN, Derald 1008
EASTMAN, Mary 1404
EASTMAN, Michael David 2096, 2496
EASTWOOD, Raymond 1805
EATON, Elliott 2112
EATON, Helen 2157
EATON, Kathleen 1744
EATON, Pauline 1744
EBBESEN, Marie 2343
EBLING, Claudia 1437
EBNER, David 1058
EBOIGBE, Felix 1761
EBY, Corda 1171
ECCLES, Jane 1539
ECHOLS, Doris 1085
ECHOLS, Sam 3055
ECHT, Ted 1327
ECKART, Charles 1251
ECKER, Gladys 3220
ECKER, Robert 1381
ECKERT, Bill 1133
ECKERT, John 3454
ECKERT, Tom 1058
ECKMAN, Stan 1360
ECKSTROM, Cynthia 1407
ED, Mark 3149
EDDY, Don 2590
EDE, Basil 2874
EDELFSEN, David 1019
EDELMAN, Rita 1415, 2733
EDELMANN, Yrjo 2583, 3316
EDELSON, Mary Beth 1654, 1769, 2357, 2594, 2675
EDELSTEIN, Jean 1324
EDELSTEIN, Phil 2371
EDEN, Bronson 2442
EDER, Jim 1036
EDER, Susan 2794
EDERMAN, Michael 1316
EDGAR, Natalie 2598
EDGARTON, Harold 2139
EDGE, Doug 1190
EDGERTON, Harold 1306, 2873
EDGERTON, Perky 3118
EDGREN, Gary 1732
EDIE, Stuart 1801
EDLER, Daniel 2617
EDLICH, Stephen 1477, 1995, 2660, 3332
EDLUND, Janice 1164
EDMISTON, Robert 2984
EDMONDSON, Will 1646
EDWARDS, Ethel 2824
EDWARDS, Garth 3078
EDWARDS, Genevieve 1198
EDWARDS, Ingrid 2849
EDWARDS, John 1257
EDWARDS, Ken 2132
EDWARDS, Melvin 2472, 2782
EDWARDS, Paul 2007
EDWARDS, Stephen Dale 1437, 2098, 3420
EDWARDS, Stephen Dee 1720, 2030, 2925, 3166
EDWARDS, Viki 2216
EDWARDS, Wendy 1658
EEJIMA, M. Hiroko 1315
EFROS, Randy 1055
EGAN, Jane 1730, 2937, 3315
EGAN, Patrick 3126
EGBERT, Louise 2287, 2757
EGEE, Dale 2375
EGELI, Peter 2738
EGGERT, C. W. 3302
EGGLESTON, William 1438, 1459
EGINTON, Robert 1580
EGLESON, Jim 1877
EGNER, John 2003
EGOSI, Lydie 2924
EGUCHI, Yasu 1015, 1037, 1328, 2575
EHLBECK, Michael 2962
EHLE, Michael 3425
EHLING, Katalin 1039, 1068, 1349, 1810, 2050, 3250
EHRENHALT, Amaranth 2438
EHRLICH, Millie 1045
EHRLICH, Robbie 2517
EICHENBERG, Fritz 1955, 3307
EICHENGREEN/GENSBURG 1056, 2048
EICHINGER, Joseph 2173
EICKHOLT, Robert 2171, 2940
EICKMEIER, Valerie 1717
EIDT, Johannes 2502
EIFLER, Margaret 1774
EIGER, Arnold 1524
EIGHMY, Jay 1360, 1381
EIKER, Sharon 2082
EILSHEMIUS, Louis Michel 2907
EINBECK, Robert 3248
EISEMANN, Michael 1676, 3267
EISEN, Susan 1549
EISENBERG, Marc 2813
EISENBERG, Susan E. 1515
EISENDIECK, Suzanne 1547
EISENHARDT, Von 1288, 2096
EISENSTADT, Alfred 1492, 3243
EISENSTADT, Eve 2571
EISENSTAT, Ben 3101, 3135, 3140
EISENSTEIN, Sandra 2357
EISENTRAGER, James 2142
EISLER, Georg 2388
EISLER, Susan 2095
EISOFON, Elin 1848
EITEL, Jacques 1667
EITHARONG, Tony 1498
EKMAN, Stan 1052
EL GRECO 3042
ELAINE, James 1288
ELDER, Marjorie 1567
ELDRED, Dale 1808
ELEINKO, Gary 2020
ELGART, Linda 1761
ELIAS, Michael 1387
ELIAS, Sheila 1183, 1307
ELIAS, Susan 1142
ELINOFF, Linda 1378
ELISOFON, Elin 1249, 1914
ELKINS, Michael 2172
ELKSNIN, James 3346
ELLEN, James 1164
ELLENBOGEN, Marge 3142
ELLENSHAW, Peter 1254, 1328, 2575, 3386
ELLER, Lennee 1033
ELLIOTT, Anne 2562, 3108
ELLIOTT, Beth 3430

ELLIOTT, Dennis 2999
ELLIOTT, Larry 1645
ELLIOTT, Laura 1027, 2438
ELLIOTT, Ronnie 2881
ELLIOTT, Russ 2310
ELLIOTT, Sally 1353, 1372
ELLIS "DAZE", Chris 2298
ELLIS, Deborah 3385
ELLIS, Don 2962
ELLIS, Edie 1325
ELLIS, Fremont 1037
ELLIS, Lou 2226
ELLIS, Marian 2962
ELLIS, Ray 2343
ELLIS, Ray G. 3206, 3323
ELLIS, R.C. 2271
ELLIS, Robert 1366
ELLIS, Robert M. 2222,
ELLIS, Steve 2393
ELLIS, Susan Pennewell 1015
ELLSWORTH, David 1576, 2098, 2162, 2925
ELLSWORTH, Marge 2479
ELLWOOD, Evelyn 2670
ELOUL, Kosso 2375
ELOZUA, Raymon 1053, 1654, 2580
ELROD, Biff 2546, 2999
ELSKY, Herb 1134, 1371
ELSNER, Larry 3373
ELUSTONDO, Enrique 3181
ELY, Don 2144
ELY, Timothy 1257
EMANUEL, Hertzel 1388, 2478
EMANUELLI, Agnes 2535
EMBREY, Carl 3318
EMBROLI, Enrico 1332, 2145, 2918
EMBRY, Norris 1902, 2568
EMERSON, Gordon 1877
EMERSON, Mark 1230
EMERSON, Peter Henry 1299, 1688, 2116
EMERY, Lin 2594
EMILIA 1944
EMMART, Dale 1929
EMMERT, Richard 1814
EMSHWILLER, Ed 2868
ENCINIAS, John O. 1811, 2268
ENDER, Leslie 2340
ENDLEMAN, Sally-Ann 2332, 2940
ENDRES, Steve 3405
ENGEL, Christopher 2298
ENGLAND, Paul 2934
ENGLANDER, Joseph B. 3263
ENGLE, Barbara 1605
ENGLE, Chet 1115
ENGLEBARDT, Jill 1343
ENGLISH, John 1542, 3101, 3140
ENGLISH, Richard 2937
ENNEKING, John J. 1954
ENOCHS, Dale 1761
ENOS, Chris 1946, 1946
ENSOR, James 2482
ENYEART, Elizabeth 3360
EPPENS, Glen 2139
EPPERLY, Wayne 2963
EPPERSON, Tish 3426
EPPING, Ed 1058, 2620
EPSTEIN, Bob 2329
EPSTEIN, Mitch 1950
EPSTEIN, Rachelle 2351
ERBE, Gary 2202
ERDLE, Rob 2920
ERDMAN, Richard 1831, 2408
ERFELDING, Curtis 3085
ERFURTH, Hugo 2604
ERICHSEN, Jorg 2016
ERICKSEN, Judith 2124
ERICKSON, Dorothy Pat 2124
ERICKSON, Eric 2054
ERICKSON, Lou Ann 1710
ERICKSON, Mark 1296
ERICKSON, Nancy 2133
ERICSON, Beatrice 2538
ERICSON, Cathey 3374
ERLA, Karen 2730
ERLEBACHER, Martha Mayer 1658, 2779
ERNI, Hans 1586
ERNST, Jimmy 1470, 1522
ERNST, Max 1067, 1074, 1670, 2466, 2531
ERNST, Randy 1867
ERNST, Rudolph 1051
ERON, Selma 2177
ERSCHELL, Beverly 3011
ERTÉ 2162, 2163, 2314, 2379, 2487, 2488, 2607, 2723, 2819, 3009, 3285, 3445
ERWITT, Elliot 3097
ESAKI, Yasuhiro 1144, 1488
ESCHAUZIER, Pamela 1387
ESCHER, Fred 1697, 3403
ESCHER, M.C. 1302, 1458, 2512, 2851
ESCOTT, Beth 1716
ESKELL, Camille 2510
ESKENAZI, Norma 1471
ESMERELDA 1259
ESPENSCHIED, Clyde 2705
ESPILIT, Jean-Louis 2499
ESPINA, Gilberto Lopez 2433
ESPINOSA, Susana 1549, 3181, 3185, 3188
ESQUEDA, Xavier 2682
ESSNER, Tamara 2014
ESTABROOK, Reed 1626, 1691, 3434
ESTES, Merion 1324
ESTES, Richard 1298, 1992, 2325, 2574, 2818, 2953, 3275
ESTOPINAN, Robert 2011
ESTRADA, David 1232
ESTRUGA, Oscar 2853
ETHE, Solomon 2851
ETHEL, Lee 1080
ETHIER, Linda 3383
ETNIER, Stephen 2677, 3282
ETROG, Sorel 1171, 1174, 1531
ETTENBERG, Frank 3314
ETTING, Emlen 2677, 3125
ETTL, Georg 2018
EUBANKS, Tony 3322
EVANS, Arthur 3142
EVANS, Charlotte 2045
EVANS, Dennis 3418
EVANS, Donald 1034, 1917
EVANS, Edward 1053, 2006, 2142, 2517
EVANS, Frederick 1100, 3119, 3147
EVANS, Garth 2492
EVANS, Henry 1323
EVANS, John 1973, 3266
EVANS, Judith 2405
EVANS, Lyn 2927
EVANS, Mary Page 1424, 1427
EVANS, Ned 1135
EVANS, Richard 3460
EVANS, Robert 1732, 1775
EVANS, Ron 3263
EVANS, Terry 1806
EVANS, Walker 1668, 1936, 1950, 2903
EVARDJULAK, Henry 2361
EVELYN, Leya 2513
EVENSEN, Bjorn 2851
EVERETT, Bruce 1169
EVERGON 3097
EVERHART, Jane 1775
EVERLEY, Cecil 2539
EVERNDEN, Graham 2034
EVETT, Kenneth 2638
EWART, Elizabeth 2514
EWING, Lauren 1453, 2393
EWING, Louie 2235, 2240
EWING, Susan 1778
EXLINE, Gerald 2809
EYERMAN, Linda 2098

F

FABARO, Maria Daniella 2310
FABER, David 1744, 2043, 3451
FABERGE, Peter Carl 1505
FABIEN, Louis 1667, 2507
FABINO 1517
FABRO, Luciano 2358
FACCI, Domenico 2169
FACCIDOMO, John 2169
FACCINTO, Victor 1690, 2631
FACEY, Martin 1273, 1325
FACH, Charles 2901
FADELEY, Ken 2125
FADEN, Lawrence 2490
FAEGENBURG, Bernice 2343
FAHEY, Ewing 1839
FAHEY, Joan 2888
FAHLEN, Charles 3131
FAHLSTRÖM, Öyvind 2569, 2610
FAIRBANKS, Avard 3371
FAIRBANKS, Victoria 2818
FAIRHURST, Ted 1517
FAISING, Chui 1315
FALCO, Mike 2343
FALK, Alan 2607
FALK, Barbara 2615
FALK, Elizabeth 1459
FALK, Joni 2144
FALK, Paul Meredith 2897
FALKENSTEIN, Claire 1218, 1325
FALKMAN, Susan 1682
FALLER, Marion 1785
FALLIER, James R. 1811
FALOTICO, Peter 2920
FALSETTA, Vincent 2800, 3153, 3265
FALSETTI, Joe 2984
FALTER, John 3099
FANCH 2034, 2379, 2819
FANCHER, Genevieve 1083
FANE, Lawrence 2725
FANG 2637
FANNIN, Phyllis 1258, 1641, 1768
FANTIN-LATOUR, Henri 1184
FARB, Adrienne 2675
FARB, Nathan 3021
FARBER, Dennis 1134
FARBER, Manny 2710
FARBER, Michael 1136
FARBER, Robert 2596
FARCO, Raul 2192
FARHI, Jean-Claude 2594
FARIELLO, Maryann 3005, 3243
FARLOWE, Horace 1580, 2960, 2980
FARM, Gerald 2268
FARMANFARMAIAN, Monir 2827
FARMER, Mary 2681
FARNHAM, Alexander 2166
FARNHAM, John 2247
FARNHAM, Ruth 2247
FARNSWORTH, John 2550
FARNY, Henry 2245, 3007
FARR, Charles Griffin 1251
FARRAH, James 3151
FARRELL, Ann 1024
FARRELL, Celine 3463
FARRELL, Patrick 3460
FARRELL, Peggy 3460
FARRELL, Tom 3166
FARRER, Sylvia 2916
FARRERAS, Francisco 1240
FARROW, Al 1265
FASANELLA, Ralph 2539
FASNACHT, Heide 2845, 2857, 3020
FASSBINDER, John 3428
FAUDIE, Fred 1919
FAULCONER, Mary 2408
FAULKNER, Frank 2634
FAULKNER, John 2241
FAUST, James 1768
FAUST, Victoria 1937
FAUTEUX, Andre 2774
FAWCETT, Anne 1619
FAWKES P, Judith 3078
FAWKES, Tom 3079
FAWSON, Steven 3372
FAXON, Russell 3243
FAY, A. Hooker 2128
FAY, Joe 1135, 1644
FAYE, Gary 3308
FEARNLEY, Neill 1943
FEATHERSTON, Rose Ann 3202
FEBLAND, Harriet 2324
FEBRES, George 1881
FECHIN, Nicolai 2245, 3421
FEDDERSEN, Joe 3431
FEDER, Penny 2305
FEDER, Terry 1394
FEDERIGHI, Christine 1512
FEDERIGHI, Greg 3428
FEDERLE, Helmut 2885
FEDORA, Peter 2934
FEDOROV, Michael 2726
FEERICK, Edna 2173
FEERO, Robert 2926
FEESE, Richard 1340
FEHER, Joseph 1605
FEHR, Cynthia 3373, 3374
FEHRENBACHER, Frieda 3151
FEIGENBAUM, Harriet 3131
FEINBERG, Jean 2500
FEINGOLD, Tina 2413
FEININGER, Andreas 2873
FEININGER, Lyonel 1631, 2385, 2771
FEININGER, T. Lux 2741
FEINSTEIN, Rochelle 2483, 2848
FEIST, Kay 2124
FEITELSON, Lorser 1134, 1174
FEJES, Claire 1021
FEKETE, Brian 2016
FEKNER, John 2298
FELDMAN, Bella 1213, 1307, 1340
FELDMAN, Joel 1775
FELDMAN, Lamis 1481
FELDMAN, Lynne 2915
FELDMAN, Marc Allen 1345
FELDMAN, Maxine 2323
FELDMANN, Beverly 1697
FELDSTEIN, Peter 1644, 2068
FELDVEBEL, Tom 2217, 2218
FELIX, Sherry 2194
FELKER, Dave 1019
FELLERMAN, Stephen 2617, 2940
FELLIG, Arthur 2123
FELLMAN, Sandi 2675, 3125
FELLOWS, Alice 1135
FELLOWS, Fred 1360
FELLOWS, Jack 2542, 3422
FELS, Don 1273
FELTER, June 1288
FELTER, Susan 1055
FELTS, Vera 1116
FENCI, Piero 1282, 3348
FENDER, James 2908
FENNEL, Richard 2960
FENNELL, Patricia 3457
FENSTER, Fred 1965
FENSTERMAKER, Bebe 3251
FENSTERMAKER, Martha 3251
FENTON, Roger 1100
FERBER, Herbert 1644, 2633
FERENTZ, Nicole 1636
FERESTEN, Peter 3263
FERGUSON, Catherine 3216
FERGUSON, Frank 2117
FERGUSON, John 1457
FERGUSON, Ken 1137, 1571, 1808, 2571
FERGUSON, Tom 1027
FERIOLA, James 2343
FERNALD, Ellie 3428
FERNANDES, Joyce 1650
FERNANDEZ, Dave 3361
FERNANDEZ, Leo 1819
FERNANDEZ, Lola 1481
FERNANDEZ, Mario 1035
FERNANDEZ, Marjorie Hoffman 2854
FERNANDEZ, Rudy 1044, 1045, 2236
FERNÁNDEZ-MÉNDEZ, Eugenio 3189
FERNANDEZ-MURO, Jose Antonio 2530
FERNENDEZ, Leo 1844
FERNIE, John 2885
FEROLETO, Mia 2576
FERRANDINI, Robert 1933, 1992, 2685
FERRANTE, Lisa 1339
FERRARA, Jackie 1159, 1492, 1659, 2100, 2747
FERRARI, Virginio 1732
FERREN, John 2772
FERREN, Rae 2286
FERRER, Gabriel 1041
FERRER, Rafael 1669, 1737, 2590, 3249
FERRINGTON, Danny 3196
FERRIS, Albert 3045
FERRIS, John 1693, 3123
FERRIS, Patricia 1169
FERRIS, Robert 1933, 2178, 2685
FERRIS, Tom 3122
FERRIS, Walter II 2004
FERRITER, Clare 1434
FERRON, Maurice 2682
FERRONI, Tommasi 2634
FERRUGIA, Jo 1459
FERTIG, David 3131
FETTERMAN, Karen 1819
FETTING, Rainer 2410
FEUERBACH, Amselm 2792
FEUERHERM, Kurt 2916, 3010
FEUERMAN, Carole Jeane 1053, 1476, 2236, 2325, 2798
FEY, Doug 2226
FICHTER, Robert 2523, 2914
FICK, David 2679
FIELD, Charles 3346
FIELD, Isabel 3385
FIELDS, Arlene 2489
FIELDS, Paul 1831
FIENE, Ernest 2350, 2813
FILCER, Luis 1269
FILIACI, Manuela 2386
FILIERES, Dominique 2305
FILIOS, Jan 1935
FILIPE, Sanchez 3184
FILLERUP, Peter 1356, 3371
FILLIOU, Robert 2885
FINCH, Helen 1874
FINCH, Robert 3161
FINCHER, John 1044, 1045, 2236
FINCK, Furman 2738
FINDIKOGLU, Zeki 1434
FINDLEY, Tommie 2217
FINE, Cecile 2538
FINE, Jamie 1994
FINE, Joan 2519
FINE, Jud 1112, 1167, 2504, 3403
FINE, Perle 1470, 2598
FINE, Ruth 3138
FINELL, Hazel 3114
FINGER, Norma 1837
FINHOLT, Ann 2054
FINK, Aaron 1921, 2185
FINK, Donna 3240
FINK, Hannah 3139
FINK, Herbert 1894
FINK, John 2321, 2332
FINK, Larry 2643, 2650, 3125
FINK, Stuart 3004
FINKE, Leonda 2306
FINKELSTEIN, Louis 2598
FINLEY, Donny 2070
FINN, David 2460
FINNEGAN, James Patrick 1275
FINNEGAN, Sharyn 2744
FINSTER, Rev. Howard 1249, 1690, 1870, 2631
FIORAVANTI, Iris 2730
FIORINI, Chiara 1670
FIORINO, Jean 2904
FIRE, Michelle 1636, 1719
FIRESTEIN, Cecily 2730
FIRFIRES, Nicholas 1035, 1328, 2254
FISCHER, Anton 1180
FISCHER, George 2268
FISCHER, J. E. 1807
FISCHER, Mildred 3011
FISCHER, Neva 1377
FISCHER, R. M. 1304, 2816, 3333
FISCHER, Wayne 3460
FISCHINGER, Oskar 1174, 1364
FISCHL, Eric 1348, 2833
FISH, Janet 2678
FISH, Julia 3076
FISH, Richard 1967
FISH, Vinnie 2934
FISHBACK, Kurt 1101
FISHBEIN, Jason 2306
FISHER, Carlyn 1578
FISHER, Craig 2378
FISHER, Harrison 3099
FISHER, James 1865
FISHER, Joan 2800
FISHER, Joel 1207
FISHER, M. Anthony 2790
FISHER, Peter 2180
FISHER, R. 2459
FISHER, Vernon 1962, 2552, 3270
FISHMAN, Beverly 3141
FISHMAN, Katherine 1936, 2516
FISHMAN, Louise 2999
FISHMAN, Richard 2470, 3270
FISHMAN, Susan Hoffman 1385

VOL
71
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

FISKE, Gertrude 2779
FISKIN, Judy 1176
FISTERHOLD, Gerard 2091
FITT, Kate 2930
FITZGERALD, Astrid 2394
FITZGERALD, Diane 2496
FITZGERALD, Edward 2089
FITZGIBBONS, Bill 2096
FITZSIMMONS, Betty 1791
FIUME, Laura 2931
FLACCUS, Peter 1995
FLACK, Audrey 2670
FLAHERTY, Michael 1851
FLANAGAN, Barry 2718
FLANAGAN, Michael J. 2545, 3064
FLANDRIN, Hippolyte 2792
FLANERY, Gail 2715
FLANNAGAN, John B. 2866
FLATTMANN, Alan 2070
FLATZEK, Peter 1643
FLAVIN, Dan 1207, 1335, 2429, 2430, 2569, 2684
FLAX, Serene 1058, 1346
FLECK, Joseph A. 2245
FLECKY, Michael 2140
FLEISCHER, Judith 2166
FLEMING, Frank 1001, 1442, 1533, 1578, 1808, 2679
FLEMING, Hulan 3439
FLEMING, John 3348
FLEMING, Linda 1263, 1371, 1656, 2273
FLEMING, Penelope 1694
FLEMING, Ray Frost 2006
FLEMING, Rod 1079, 1085
FLEMINGER, Irwin 2399
FLETCHER, Milton 1760, 1870
FLETCHER, Miri 2047
FLETCHER, Mollie 1450
FLETCHER, Trudi 1068
FLEXNER, Paul 3161
FLICK, Michael 1516, 1571
FLICK, Robert 1170, 1325, 2919
FLIMM, Kurt 2641
FLINCH, Peter 2392
FLITNER, Dave 1049
FLOCK, Robert 2299
FLOETER, Kent 2743, 3176, 3403
FLOOD, Daro 1048
FLOOD, Suzi 3442
FLORIN, Sharon 2705
FLORIS, Marcel 2825
FLORSHEIM, Lillian 1664
FLORSHEIM, Richard 1522, 1547
FLOWERS, Mark Elliot 1595, 3205
FLOYD, Otis 2263
FLUKE, Pepper 2957
FLUKINGER/HARRAH 3265
FLUKINGER, Larry 1151, 3308
FLY, Tony 1164
FLYNN-MILLER, Karen 1910
FLYNN, Deborah 3125
FLYNN, Pat 1450
FLYNN, William 1933, 2685
FLYR, Diane 1331
FOCKLER, Mark 3425
FODOR, Larry 3061
FOGARTY, Thomas 2656
FOGEL, Jacqueline 3315
FOGEL, Seymour 1415, 2562
FOLCHI, John 2831
FOLCKMER, Marion 3255
FOLEY, Jerry 1736
FOLEY, Kyoko Asana 1327
FOLEY, Ted 2392
FOLK-WILLIAMS, Cathy 2240
FOLON, Jean Michel 1930, 2592, 2644
FOLSOM, Fred 1445
FOLTZ-FOX, Terri Lee 3121
FOLWELL, Jody 1060
FONDA, Henry 1190
FONDAW, Ron 1512
FONG, Chung Ray 1185, 1301
FONG, Freddie 2438
FONSECA, Harry 1044, 2236
FONTAINE, Theodore 1320
FONTANA, Antonia 1485
FONTANA, Bill 2353
FONTANA, Franco 1896
FONTANA, Lucio 2377
FOOLERY, Tom 1127, 1293
FOOSANER, Judith 1240, 1298
FOOSE, Robert James 1835
FORAIN, Jean-Louis 1561, 2875, 3243
FORBES, Robert 1433, 1733, 2096, 2491, 3121
FORBIS, Steve 3250, 3278
FORCADE, Tim 2081, 2091
FORCZEK, Leszek 1059
FORD, Betty Davenport 1115
FORD, Hermine 2834
FORD, Jane 2491
FORD, Linda 1424
FORD, Margaret 2491, 3420
FORD, Susan 2074
FORECKI, Kathy 3465
FOREMAN, Doyle 1321
FOREMAN, Laura 3149
FORESTER, Russell 1181
FORGE, Andrew 1406
FORGIONE, Achille 2918
FORIS, Rick 1743, 3460
FORMAN, Mark 2172, 2471, 3164
FORMAN, Robert 3121
FORMICOLA, John 3131
FORNELL, Robert 3437
FORNEY, Darrell 1229
FORREST, Pat 3271
FORRESTER, Patricia Tobacco 1039, 1293, 1371, 1442, 1546, 1669, 2635
FORS, Jose 1488
FORSBERG, Howard 2268
FORSBERG, Norma 3369
FORSBERG, Patricia 2125
FORSELL, Jack 2800
FORSMAN, Chuck 2467
FORSTER, Lise 2918
FORSYTH, Bryan 2254
FORSYTH, Vaughn 3375
FORT, Liz 2082
FORT, Pascual 2011
FORTE, Max 2530
FORTH, Mark 1697
FORTI, Max 2883
FORTUNA, Pietro 2788
FORTUNY, Mariano 1635, 1677
FOSS, Cornelia 2286, 2403
FOSS, Gloria 1619
FOSSUM, Leighton 1070
FOSTER, Brian 2057
FOSTER, Diana 1636
FOSTER, Don 3330, 3343
FOSTER, Gus 2271
FOSTER, Kate 2757
FOSTER, Steven 1731, 1739
FOTH, Joan 1805, 2089
FOULKES, Llyn 1132
FOUSHEE, Ola Maie 2963
FOUST, John 1011
FOUST, Steve 2018
FOUST, William 2413
FOUTS, Linda 1584
FOWLE, Patz 2934
FOWLER, Jim 1021
FOWLER, Mary Jean 3302
FOX, Bernadine 2112
FOX, Charles L. 1894
FOX, Chris 1112
FOX, Connie 2286
FOX, Eileen Hooker 2131
FOX, Flo 2516
FOX, Frank 3071
FOX, John 1143
FOX, John Gilbert 3383
FOX, Leilani 1609
FOX, Lincoln 1057, 1080, 2250, 2273, 3323
FOX, Pat 1473
FOX, Richard 3074
FOX, Sharon 1896
FOX, Stephen 3399
FOX, Terry 1207, 2504
FOY-TEMPS, Ruenelle 1114
FRADY, Gudrum 2785
FRAGUA, Cliff 2214, 2254, 2783
FRAME, John 1159
FRAME, Robert 1037, 1144
FRANCHINI, Lucille 2150
FRANCIS TUCHMAN, Ellen 2659
FRANCIS, Jean 1422
FRANCIS, Larry 3142
FRANCIS, Sam 1138, 1152, 1153, 1181, 1218, 1246, 1261, 1267, 1317, 1335, 1678, 1911, 2000, 2494, 2622, 3133, 3275, 3424
FRANCIS, Sherron 1802, 2443
FRANCIS, Tom 1007, 1575
FRANCISCO, Richard 1112, 3418
FRANCK, Frederick 2209
FRANK, Alyce 2260
FRANK, Doug 2002
FRANK, Helen 2161, 2186
FRANK, Mary 1911, 1995, 2880, 3133
FRANK, Richard 1253, 1489
FRANK, Robert 1540, 2751
FRANK, Ruth 1545
FRANK, Stephanie 2543
FRANK, Tom 1230, 1231
FRANK, Trudi 1144
FRANKE, Herbert W. 2081, 2091
FRANKE, Kevin 2580
FRANKE, Reimund 1302
FRANKEL-HARRIS, Marcia 1715
FRANKENTHALER, Helen 1064, 1246, 1442, 1534, 1946, 2053, 2099, 2494, 2803, 3317
FRANKLIN, B. J. 1116
FRANKLIN, Frank 2750
FRANKLIN, Gilbert 1535
FRANKLIN, James 3279
FRANKLIN, Ruth 2124
FRANZ, Gina 3005
FRANZHEIM, Elizabeth 1670, 3310
FRASCONI, Antonio 1451, 2481
FRASER, Hamilton 2439
FRASER, Sandra 2124
FRASIER, Debra 2984
FRASSETTA, Joseph 3127
FRASSETTO, Jan 2944
FRATER, Hal 2593
FRAUGHTON, Edward 2874, 3484
FRAYSER, Willa 2963
FRAZER, Jim 1578, 1915
FRAZER, Kathy 3428
FRAZIER, C. James 3261
FRAZIER, Kenneth 3315
FRECHETTE, Jonathan 1394
FRECKELTON, Sondra 2362
FREDENTHAL, David 2626
FREDERICK, Deloras 3055
FREDRICKSON, Lou Lyne 3271
FREE, John 1816, 3322
FREED, David 3399
FREED, Douglass 2081, 2083, 2851
FREED, Hermine 2816
FREEDMAN, Deborah 1739
FREEDMAN, Jill 2903, 2914
FREEDMAN, Louise A. 2553
FREEDMAN, Marjorie 2934
FREEDMAN, Maurice 2677
FREELAND, Betty Hay 1619
FREELAND, Bill 2594
FREEMAN, Ben 3011
FREEMAN, Bill 1035
FREEMAN, Dan 2787
FREEMAN, Don 1908
FREEMAN, Gary 3465
FREEMAN, Jeff 3217
FREEMAN, John 3030
FREEMAN, Kathryn 2510
FREEMAN, Kenneth M. 1049, 1057, 2250
FREEMAN, Marian 1619
FREEMAN, Nancy 1437, 1933, 2172, 2617, 2685
FREEMAN, Paul 1480
FREEMAN, Robert 1964, 3220
FREEMAN, Roland 1901, 3207
FREEMAN, Vida 1169
FREESOUL, John 2261
FREESOUL, River 2261
FREIFELD, Susan 3076
FREILICHER, Jane 2168, 2511, 2592, 2683, 2715, 2789
FREIMARK, Robert 1792
FREMLIN, Carol 1268
FRENCH, Annie 2872
FRENCH, Polly 2158, 2172
FRENCH, Sally 1609
FRENZEL, Mary Pat 2995
FRETS, Barbara 1802
FREUDENTHAL, Peter 2923
FREUND, Giselle 1161
FREUND, Marjorie 1835
FREY, Viola 1067, 1107, 1287, 1808, 1933, 2095, 2685
FRICANO, Tom 1664
FRIDGE, Roy 3324
FRIDSTEIN, Kathy 3417
FRIEBERT, Joseph 3466
FRIED, Howard 1090
FRIED, Leni 2613
FRIED, Lenore 2444
FRIED, Nancy 2659
FRIED, Theo 2593
FRIEDBERG, Richard 2679
FRIEDEBERG, Pedro 1709, 2682
FRIEDENSOHN, Elias 2524
FRIEDLAENDER, Johnny 1444, 1797, 2034, 2592, 2714, 3285
FRIEDLANDER, Harold 2177
FRIEDLANDER, Lee 1262, 1731, 2880, 2998, 3086, 3195
FRIEDLANDER, Nancy 2177
FRIEDMAN, Arnold 2880
FRIEDMAN, Barbara 1288
FRIEDMAN, Benno 1203, 2065, 3082
FRIEDMAN, Donna 1794
FRIEDMAN, Ed 1259
FRIEDMAN, Emil 2538
FRIEDMAN, Hayes 1451
FRIEDMAN, Jackie 2900
FRIEDMAN, Jan 1794
FRIEDMAN, Leah K. 2836
FRIEDMAN, Martin 2824
FRIEDMAN, Sally 2730, 2901
FRIEDMAN, Stanley 2472
FRIEDMAN, Steffi 1388
FRIEDRICH, Marla 2915
FRIEMEL, Helen 3255
FRIEND-JONES, Gretchen 1473
FRIESEKE, Frederick 1279, 1280
FRIGERIO, Ismael 2785
FRIMKESS, Magdelena 1137
FRIMKESS, Michael 1137
FRINGS, Dennis 2754, 3385, 3399
FRINK, Elizabeth 2852
FRITSCH, Robert 1236
FRITZ-HOWARD, Nancy 3226
FRITZ, Dennis 2738
FRITZ, Hilary 2286
FRITZIUS, Harry 1257
FRITZLER, Gerald 1360, 2268
FRIZZELL, Polly 1313
FROIO, Leonard 1532
FROMBOLUTI, Sideo 1979, 3136
FROMBOLUTI, Iona 3136
FROMM, Lilo 2432
FROOMAN, Richard 1149
FROST, Joan 2140
FRUEH, Joanna 1716
FRUMESS, Richard 2290
FRUTCHEY, Jere 1580
FUCHS, Douglas 2491
FUCHS, Ernst 2592
FUCHS, Jessie 2538
FUDGE, John 1372
FUENTE, Larry 2365, 2600
FUENTES, Tina 2217
FUGATE, Joe 2015
FUGATE-WILCOX, Terry 2353
FUJII, Tazuko Tanabe 2849
FUJITA, Kyohei 2030
FUJIWARA, Yoshiko 2432
FUKUDA, Hiroyuki 1121
FUKUHARA, Henry 2887, 2927
FULLER, Betsy 1504
FULLER, Buckminster 1442, 1974, 2504, 2549, 3013, 3125
FULLER, Nancy 1070
FULLER, Susan 1172
FULTON, Hamish 1090, 1207, 1299
FULTON, Jack 3434
FUMAGALLI, Barbara 2047
FUNASAKA, Yoshisuke 1797
FUNCK, Zella 1875
FUNDERBURK, Brent 1590
FUNDINGSLAND, Paul 2995
FUNG, Robert 1600
FUNKHOUSER, Sheryl 3076
FURMAN, David 1127
FURMANSKI, Sarita 2596
FURONES, Claude 1387
FURR, Jim 1578
FURST, Donald 3458
FURTADO, Carol 1994
FUSSINER, Howard 1408
FUSSMANN, Klaus 2644
FUTURA 2000 2529, 2791
FYDRYCK, Walter 1674
FYFE, Joe 2834

G

G, Bobby 2748
GAARD, Frank 2057
GABBARD, Dennis 3296
GABINET-KROO, Kathryn 1921, 3127
GABLE, John 2158, 2724
GABLIK, Suzi 2481
GABOS, Dina 2767
GABRIEL, Judith 2336
GABRIELSON, Walter 1324
GABRYL, Belinda 1701
GABY, Murray 1481
GABY, Nina 2597, 2918
GACH, George 1057, 2306
GAETANO, Nicholas 2363
GAFFEY, John 3067
GAGLIANI, Oliver 3195
GAGNIER, Lou 3255
GAHR, Donald 2057
GAINES, Anne 1998
GAINES, Charles 1167, 2859
GAINSBERG, Sharon 3285
GAINSBOROUGH, Thomas 2702
GAITER, Marcia 1070
GALANIN, Igor 2348, 3316
GALAS, Diamonda 1259
GALDIKAS, Adomas 1671
GALE, Charles 2014
GALE, Denise 1159
GALE, Jim 1332, 2145
GALGIANI, Phillip 1290, 2298, 3270
GALL, Theodore T. 1743
GALLAGHER, Barbara 1011
GALLAGHER, David 3413
GALLAGHER, Dennis 1287
GALLAGHER, Joan 1778
GALLAGHER, Michael 1477, 1680, 2670
GALLANT, Nissan 2166, 2197
GALLATIN, Albert E. 1181, 2879
GALLATIN, Norman 2081
GALLEGOS, David 1278
GALLES, Arie 1053, 2580
GALLIEN-LALOUE, E. 3327
GALLO, Doreen 1405
GALLO, Frank 1674, 1797, 2314, 2607
GALLO, Philip 2055
GALLOWAY, Randy 1378
GALLOWAY, Steve 1169
GALLUP, Joan 3124, 3151
GALLUP, Tracy 1709
GALSTON, Beth 1935
GALUSZKA, Frank 3138
GALVAN, John 1814, 2268
GAMBLE, John 1314
GAMBLE, William 2021
GAMMELL, Linda 1655
GAMOND, Martha 2374
GAMZA, Steve 3166
GANCIE, Ruth 1447
GANEK, Patricia 2160
GANGL, Ott 3003
GANGLER, Tod 3417
GANON, Lanie 3240
GANS, Harriet 2733
GANS, Lucy 3139
GANSO, Emil 1908, 2866
GANTHIERS, Louise 2270
GANTNER, Bernard 1667, 1797, 2507
GANTZ, Ann Cushing 3286
GAPP, Marjorie 3125
GARABEDIAN, Charles 1317, 1337, 1338, 2589

GARBELL, Alexandre 2506
GARBOSKI, Tom 1479
GARCIA, Art 3430
GARCIA, Domingo 3183
GARCIA, Doren 1232
GARCIA, Fernando 2371
GARCIA, Frank 2265
GARCIA, Joaquin Torres 2774
GARCIA, Roland 3256
GARD, Judy Richardson 2102
GARDAIR, Christian 1445
GARDENER, Milton 3460
GARDINER, T. Michael 3427
GARDNER, Grace 2043
GARDNER, Joan 2505
GARDNER, Mark 3175
GARDNER, Norman 1480
GARDNER, Sheila 2829
GARDNER, Susan 1405, 2841
GARDY-ARTIGAS, Joan 1748
GARET, Jedd 1148, 2298, 2678, 3333
GARFIELD, Joshua 3126
GARLAND, Jeanne 1068
GARLAND, Paul 1781, 2813, 2896, 2920, 2991
GARMAN, Ed 2478
GARNER, Gretchen 1650, 1655, 1658
GARNER, Jane 1859
GARNER, Phil 1133
GARNETT, William 2002, 2873
GARNS, Allen 1047
GARON, Len 1814
GAROUSTE, Gerard 2430, 2811
GARRARD, Cynthia 3242
GARRET, Robin 1079
GARRETSON, John 1375
GARRETT, Dana 2543, 2678
GARRETT, John 1571, 2491
GARRETT, Sidney 1848
GARRITY, Michael 3122
GARSTON, Gerald 1944
GARTHWAITE, Ernest 2550
GARVER, Jack 1967
GARWOOD, Galen 3420
GARZIO, Angelo 1078
GASCARD, Cilly 1760
GASH, Gail 3308
GASH, Gayle 1046
GASKINS, Marion 3114
GASOWSKI, Ron 1046
GASPAR, Marta 2535
GASPARD, Dova Kaminsky 2251
GASPARD, Leon 2249, 3421
GASSISI, Joan 2550
GASSNER KAPLOWITZ, Caroline 2324
GASTINI, Marco 2859
GATELY, Steven 3200
GATES, Carol 2012
GATES, Jack 2306
GATES, Jeffrey 3417
GATEWOOD, Charles 1003, 2070
GATEWOOD, Maud 1578, 2960
GATEWOOD, William 1273, 1324
GATHMAN, Tom 1641
GATSKI, Gerald 2170
GAUDNEK, Walter 2484
GAUGHAN, Tom 3135
GAUGHRAN, Phyllis 2733
GAUL, Mitchell 1019
GAUSE, Charles 1017
GAUTHIER, Dominique 1147, 1335
GAVALÁS, Alexander 1765, 1789, 2316
GAVEAU, Claude 1667, 2507
GAVENCHAK, Theodora 1481
GAVIN, Boyd 1229, 1231
GAWNE, Candace 1324
GAYDOS, Tim 2166
GAYER, Doreen 1399
GAŽOVIČ, Vladimir 1640
GDUENCHAK, Theodore 2538
GEARY, Geoffrey 1382
GEBER, Hana 2924
GEBHARDT, Roland 3149
GECHTOFF, Sonia 2568
GEDDES-WOODWARD, Alice 2507
GEE, Norman 1805
GEE, Yun 2845
GEER, Lois 1852
GEESAMAN, Lynn 2057
GEHM, Charles 1382
GEHR, Mary 3454
GEHRY, Frank 3020
GEIBERT, Ron 1627
GEIGER, Michael 2178, 2873
GEIGER, Philip 3138
GEIS, Bill 1253
GEIS, William III 1231
GEISE, Jonn 3441
GEISLER, Paula 2251
GEIST, Del 1515
GEIST, Sidney 2598
GEITCHMAN, Judy 1636
GELBERT, Ron 3003
GELDERSMA, John 1851
GELDMAN, Stephen 1188
GELFMAN, Lynne Golub 1478
GELICK, Ethel 3476
GELICK, Jeffrey 1641, 3476
GELLER, Bunny 2189
GELLIS, Sandy 2353
GELMAN, Nancy 2405
GELPKE, André 3303
GEMMILL, Gloria 1049
GEMMILL, James 1929
GENERALIC, Milan 2612
GENERALLI, Roseanne 2298, 2417
GENESLAW, Ruth 2163
GENN, Nancy 1273, 2297, 3418
GENOVES, Juan 2660
GENSBURG/ EICHENGREEN 1682
GENTILINI, Jorge 2928
GENTILLE, Thomas 1450
GEOFFRION, Moira M. 1732, 3465
GEORGE, Dick 3033
GEORGE, Jean Morgan 1473
GEORGE, JoAnn 1021
GEORGE, Richard 3013
GEORGE, Thomas 2192, 2464
GEORGE, William 1115
GEORGENES, William 1929
GEORGESCO, Christopher 1176
GERARD, Paula 1664
GERBIC, Peter 2897
GERICAULT, Theodore 2792
GERICH, Betty 1385
GERLACH, Christopher S. 1293, 2238
GERMAIN, Jerry Saint 3183
GERMAIN, Paul 3399
GERNHARDT, Henry 2939
GÉRÔME, Jean Leon 1051, 2676, 2792, 2875
GERONIMO 2050
GERRIETTS, Frank 3335
GERSON, Alan 1515
GERSTER, Richard 2189
GERSTL, Richard 2536
GERSTNER, Bernard 2897
GERTJEJANSEN, Doyle 1878
GERTSCH, Franz 2670
GERTZ, Sue 1633
GERZSO, Gunther 1245, 1281, 2662
GESINGER, Michael 3429
GESMAR, Charles 1181
GESSNER, Debbie 1035
GETZ, Ilse 2767
GEWALT, Ruth 1116
GEYER, George 1324
GEYRA, Don 2769
GEZARI, Temima 2924
GHIZ, Ronald 1890
GHOLSON, Sam 3268
GIACOMELLI, Mario 1227
GIACOMETTI, Alberto 1145, 1171, 2497, 2533, 2559, 2667, 2668, 2861
GIACOMINI, Gian Paulo 1387
GIANAKOS, Cristos 1659, 2789
GIANAKOS, Steve 2789, 3333
GIANLORENZI, Nona 2371
GIBBONS, Arthur 2494
GIBBONS, Bud 3173
GIBBONS, Rick 2617
GIBBS, Michael 1379
GIBBS, Tom 1732
GIBERSON, Dudley 2200
GIBNEY, Robert 3071
GIBSON, Catherine 1223
GIBSON, Jon 2763
GIBSON, Philip 1404
GIEGERICH, Jill 1167
GIERSBACH, Marilyn 2505
GIESEN, Loe 2915
GIESMAN, Nancy 2423
GIFFORD, Emmy 2140
GIFFORD, Sandford 3327
GIKOW, Ruth 2626
GILBERT, Ben 1899
GILBERT, Bill 2215
GILBERT, Helen 3164
GILBERT, Herb 1024
GILBERT, James 2036
GILBERT, Lionel 3011
GILBERT, Patsy 1473
GILBERT, Ralph 1182
GILBERT, Ruth 2854
GILBERT, Wilda 1003
GILBERT AND GEORGE 2805
GILBERT-ROLFE, Jeremy 2859, 3424
GILBREATH, Ford 3417
GILCHRIST, Kat 2049
GILES, Ken 2015
GILES, William 2643, 3074
GILHOOLY, David 1282, 1313, 1808, 2236, 2297, 3121, 3418
GILIBERTO, Tony 1678
GILJE, Kathleen 2794
GILL, Andrea 1043, 1437, 2095, 2141, 2491, 3019, 3313
GILL, David 3399
GILL, John 2141, 2571, 3019
GILL, Larry 1110
GILL, Lunda 2575
GILLAM, Ed 2113
GILLARY, Leo 2339
GILLESPIE, Dorothy 1479, 1497, 1906, 2960, 3106, 3296
GILLESPIE, Gregory 2515
GILLESPIE, Vic 2963
GILLETTE, Frank 1605, 3141
GILLIAM, Sam 1442, 1459, 1489, 1658, 2006, 2057, 2060, 2297, 3013, 3237, 3295
GILLIARD, Suzanne 3127
GILLIES, Mary Ann 2802
GILLIS, Paul 1372
GILLMAN, Steve 1301, 2851
GILMOR, Jan 1437
GILMOR, John 1437, 2554
GILMOUR, Lloyd S. 1544
GILOT, Françoise 1216, 1391, 1732, 2343, 2825
GILPIN, Dana 3060
GILROY, William 1967
GILSON, Giles 2545
GIMBLETT, Max 1283
GINGOLD, Madelynn 2543
GINN, Casey 1003, 2074
GINNEVER, Charles 1218, 1656, 2042, 2100, 2594, 2660
GINSBERG, Elizabeth 1911
GINSBURG, Max 2306
GINSBURG, Syd 3286
GINTER, Mary Ann 1810
GINTIS, Marci 1947
GINTNER, Anton 1278
GINZBURG, Yankel 1166, 1326, 3104
GINZEL, Roland 1658
GIOBBI, Edward 1534, 1966, 1979
GIORDANO, Joseph 1035, 2405
GIPSTEIN, Richard 1411
GIRDLER, Cathleen 1586
GIRLING, Sheila 2443
GIRÓN, Andrés 1033
GIRONDA, Ralph 2498
GIROUARD, Tina 2804
GISCHIA, Leon 1670
GISER, Shirley 2216
GISER, Stanley 2216
GISSON, André 1523, 2501, 3101, 3140
GIST, Norma 1849
GITTLER, Wendy 2510
GIUNTINI, Gilles Jean 2827
GIVEN, Gil 1912
GIVON, Yohai 1024
GLABMAN, Thom 1142
GLACKENS, William 2638
GLADSON, Carson 1144
GLANCY, Michael M. 1910, 2585
GLANKOFF, Sam 2562
GLASCO, Joseph 2551
GLASER, Milton 3013
GLASGOW, Ellen 1473, 1822, 1823, 2102
GLASGOW, Robert 3024, 3153
GLASHAUSSER, Suellen 2496
GLASNER, William 2554
GLASS, Bill 3059
GLASS, Cowdy 1956
GLASS, Gibberson 1550
GLASS, Helene 1407
GLASS, Lindean Mill 1956
GLASS, Sylvia 2920
GLASSER, Len 1110
GLASSGOLD, Elissa 3124
GLASSGOLD, Harry 1999
GLASSHOUSE, London 1956
GLASSMAN, Audrey 2068
GLASSMAN, Jean 1276
GLASSNER, William 1949, 1971
GLATT, Linnea 3271
GLAUDER, Edward 1184
GLAZIER, Nancy 1035
GLEASON, Vern 2851
GLEICH, Julia 1994, 1996
GLEIZES, Albert 2402
GLENDINNING, Peter 2516
GLENN, Jerry 3428
GLICK, John 1965
GLICK, Leolla 1471
GLICKMAN, Arthur 1480, 2158, 2209
GLIER, Mike 1731, 2552
GLIKO, Carl 1357
GLINTENKAMP, Henry 2562
GLOECKLER, Ray 3458
GLOWACKI, Martha 3460, 3465
GLÜCK, Heidi 2378
GMELCH, George 2926
GNAZZO, Maxine 1814
GNIEWEK, Robert 1053
GOBBLE, Clyde 2972
GOBBLE, Shirley 2972
GOBILLARD, Paule 2575
GOBIN, Henry 2251
GOBLE, Paul 2115, 2432, 3224
GODARD, Gabriel 2506
GODBEE, Gary 2510
GODET, Pierre 2888
GODFREY, Robert 2405
GODFREY, Winifred 1523, 2881
GODWIN, Barbara 1445
GODWIN, Judith 1286, 2598
GOEBEL, Rod 1061, 1816, 2245, 3322
GOEDIKE, Shirl 1128, 2627
GOEHRING, Ken 1354
GOERTZ, Augustus III 2287, 2757
GOESSLER-SNYDER, Toni 3121
GOETEMANN, Judith 2847
GOETTEE, Michael 1590
GOETZ, Edith 2656
GOETZ, Richard V. 2563
GOETZMAN, Anne 1037
GOFF, Emery 3114
GOFF, James F. 2135
GOHLKE, Frank 2873
GOINES, David 1026, 1299, 1323
GOLA, Anna 1381
GOLD, Betty 1113, 1134, 1566, 2273, 3251
GOLD, Peter 1761
GOLD, Sharon 3403
GOLD, Susan 2045
GOLDBECK, Eugene Omar 1719, 1731, 1869, 2761, 3346
GOLDBERG, Carol 1468
GOLDBERG, Eric 1406
GOLDBERG, Jim 3417
GOLDBERG, Joseph 3420
GOLDBERG, Lenore 2357
GOLDBERG, Leslie Jean 2639
GOLDBERG, Michael 1337, 1338, 1731, 2715, 2805
GOLDBERG, Paul 2302
GOLDBLUM, Martin 2183
GOLDEN, Jacki 1078
GOLDEN, Judith 1287
GOLDEN, Rolland 2458
GOLDEN-LEE, Maryann 3141
GOLDENBERG, Tom 1840, 3336
GOLDER, Stuart 3158, 3159
GOLDES, David 2057
GOLDFADEN, Ruth 2020
GOLDFARB, Kim 1744
GOLDHAGEN, David 1512, 2957
GOLDIN, Nan 2584
GOLDING, Frieda 1075
GOLDMAN, Amy 1296
GOLDMAN, Harvey 1933, 2685
GOLDMAN, Jane E. 3266
GOLDMAN, Ken 1128
GOLDMAN, Robert 1116
GOLDNER, Janet 2730
GOLDSLEGER, Cheryl 1578, 2844
GOLDSMITH, Lloyd 2589
GOLDSTEIN, Daniel Joshua 1144, 2549, 3169
GOLDSTEIN, Gladys 1914
GOLDSTEIN, Jack 1148, 2673
GOLDSTEIN, Malcolm 1259
GOLDSTEIN, Steve 1236
GOLDSTROM, Lee 1641
GOLDTHWAITE, Anne 1012
GOLDYNE, Joseph 1138, 1218, 1246, 1463, 1691, 1933, 2685
GOLESTANEH, Mahmehri 3281
GOLUB, Leon 1731, 2423
GOLUBOV, Maurice 2467
GOLYA, Thomas 1733, 2920
GOMEZ-PULIDO, Ignacio 3204
GOMEZ-QUIROC, Juan 1932
GOMEZ, Glynn 1268
GOMEZ, Victor 1481
GOMPF, Floyd 1694
GONCHER, Dennis 1685
GONG, Nancy 2915
GONGORA, Leonel 1062
GONSKE, Walt 1061, 1115, 1816
GONZALES, Boyer 3301
GONZALES, Robert 1241
GONZALEZ, Arcadio 1487
GONZALEZ, Juan 2590
GONZALEZ, Julio 2531, 2718
GONZALEZ, Kerry 2940
GONZALEZ, Xavier 2824
GOO, Ben 2236
GOODACRE, Glenna 1052, 1115, 1362, 1384, 3322
GOODALE, Chris 2036
GOODALL, Dawn 1035
GOODBRED, Ray 2738
GOODE, Diane 2432
GOODE, Jeff 1842
GOODE, Joe 1129, 1136, 1143, 1152, 2457, 3296, 3333
GOODELL, Kathy 1340
GOODFELLOW, Stephen 2012
GOODING, Maria 2215
GOODING, Sarah Stout 1447
GOODMAN, Brenda 2018
GOODMAN, Eileen 3136
GOODMAN, Howard 2283
GOODMAN, Ken 2362
GOODMAN, Laura 3114
GOODMAN, Lori Ellen 2800
GOODMAN, Neil 1669
GOODMAN, Rima 1190
GOODMAN, Ruth 2191

VOL
71
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

GOODMAN, Sidney 2182, 2481, 3404
GOODNIGHT, Veryl 1061, 1362, 1384
GOODNOUGH, Robert 1478, 1802, 1840, 1931, 2297, 2467, 2494, 3041, 3336
GOODNOW, Frank 2916, 2939
GOODSTEIN, Barbara 2413
GOODWILL, James 2371
GOODWIN, A. C. 1141
GOODY, Michael 1499
GOORMAN, Vicki 1288
GORCHOV, Ron 1731, 2003, 2660
GORDIN, Misha 2938
GORDIN, Sidney 1176, 1264
GORDINIER, Walter 3078
GORDON, Bon 1171, 2215, 2919
GORDON, Coco 2332, 2436
GORDON, Harvey 1744, 1998
GORDON, Jerry 2919
GORDON, John 2829
GORDON, Lenice 1085
GORDON, Lida 1832
GORDON, P.S. 3060
GORDON, Russell 1170, 1249, 2852
GORDON, Ted 1249
GORDY, Robert 1690, 1865, 1867, 2104, 2222, 2631, 2984, 3305
GOREE, Gary 3055
GORELICK, Shirley 2802
GORINI, Dan 1951
GORKY, Arshile 1184, 2518
GORMAN, Jim 1767
GORMAN, R. C. 1068, 1226, 1303, 1810, 2162, 2163, 2210, 2213, 2230, 2232, 2241, 2264, 2314, 2379, 2542, 2819, 3104, 3285, 3316, 3422
GORMAN, William 2161, 2169
GORMLEY, Tom 2371
GORNIK, April 1348, 2833
GORNY, Anthony 3124, 3125
GORODINE, Alexis 2592
GORRITI, Giles 2548
GORSLINE, Douglas 3114
GORTON, Jennie Lee 2077
GORTOWSKI, Kenneth 1657
GOSIESKI, Arlette 1377
GOSSOM, David 1842
GOTH, Marie 1774
GOTO, Joseph 1535
GOTTESMAN, Sally 2339
GOTTFRIED, Margot 1633
GOTTLIEB, Adolph 1770, 2023, 2053, 2294, 2633, 2803
GOTTLIEB, Eva 1938
GOTTLIEB, Harry 2593, 2770, 2813, 2824
GOULANDRIS 3283
GOULD, Dennis 1841
GOULD, John 2373
GOULD, Lucy 2340
GOULD, Mary 1089
GOULD, Nadia 2849
GOULET, Lorrie 2626
GOUREVITCH, Jacqueline 2449
GOURFAIN, Peter 2287, 2757
GOUTHRO, Carol 3433
GOVE, Geoffry 2596
GOVE, Robert 1286
GOWER, Reni 2996
GOWIN, Emmet 1097, 1869, 2650
GOYA, Francisco 1098, 1184, 1272, 1686, 2083, 2482, 2838, 3175
GOYER, George 1058, 1315
GOZDECKI, Frank 1716
GRABACH, John R. 2562
GRABEL, Susan 2744
GRABOSKI, Tom 1488
GRABOWSKI, Jerzy 1640
GRABOWSKI, Robert C. 2247
GRACHEV, Uri 1586
GRADY, John 1739
GRAESE, Judy 1038
GRAETZ, Linda 3314
GRAF, Carl 1774
GRAF, Genevieve 1774
GRAFELMAN, Glenn 2057
GRAFF, Marv 1550
GRAFF, Ron 2082, 2413
GRAFF, Russ 1623
GRAFFAGNINO, Tom 1445
GRAFFIN, Daniel 3173
GRAFTON, Rick 1266, 1307
GRAHAM, Allan 2228
GRAHAM, Dan 1259, 2885
GRAHAM, Gloria 2228
GRAHAM, Jean 1792, 1799
GRAHAM, John 2494, 2818, 2845
GRAHAM, K.M. 2583
GRAHAM, Lois 1142, 2095, 3420
GRAHAM, Robert 1132, 1152, 1291, 1561, 1721, 1790, 2058, 2678, 3309
GRAIG, Jonathan 2924
GRALNICK, Sam 2889
GRANDA, Luiz 2637
GRANGER, Nessa 2180
GRANIZO, G. W. 3362
GRANIZO, Guillermo 1270
GRANLUND, Paul 1998, 2048
GRANT, Adam 1547
GRANT, Dwinell 2478
GRANT, Ford A. 1899
GRANT, Lucchi 2553
GRANT, Noreen 2613
GRANT, Paul 2004
GRANT, Susan 3272
GRANVILLE-SMITH, Walter 2360
GRASHOW, James 1298, 2818
GRASS, Antonio 1041
GRASS, Gunter 2142, 3011
GRASS, Peter 2414, 2788
GRASSI, Andrea 2273, 2732
GRATIOT, Robert 1357
GRAU, Enrique 1481
GRAU-GARRIGA, Josep 2375
GRAUPE-PILLARD, Grace 2400
GRAUSMAN, Philip 2779
GRAVES, Ka 1027
GRAVES, Ken 3111, 3149
GRAVES, Michael 2747
GRAVES, Morris 1251, 2871, 3420
GRAVES, Nancy 1478, 1534, 1678, 2633, 3317
GRAVESON, Oluf 2483
GRAY, Barbara 2854
GRAY, Cleve 1534, 2907
GRAY, David 3282
GRAY, Eileen 2500
GRAY, Elise 2519
GRAY, Henry Percy 1314
GRAY, Jack 2344
GRAY, Jim 1009
GRAY, Larry 1324, 1352, 2549, 3420
GRAY, Ruth 2386
GRAZIANI, Santi 1664
GREACEN, Edmund 3318
GREATHOUSE, Timothy 2655
GREAVES, Burdell 2944
GREAVES, Derrick 2439
GREAVES, Jack 2851
GREAVU, Judith 1512
GREBU, Devis 2432
GRECO, Emilio 2908
GREEN, Albert 2202, 2471
GREEN, Anthony 2814
GREEN, Art 1690
GREEN, Bob 1437, 2332
GREEN, Denise 2185
GREEN, George 1477, 1531, 1680, 2165, 2670
GREEN, James 2117, 2496
GREEN, Kathy 3251
GREEN, Kenneth 2049
GREEN, Laurie 1188
GREEN, Lynn 2071
GREEN, Martin 1093, 1226
GREEN, Mike 1973
GREEN, Mishael 1565
GREEN, Phyllis 1111
GREEN, Shirley 1515
GREEN, Susan 1437
GREENAMYER, George 1939, 2100
GREENBAUM, Dorothea 2192
GREENBERG, Alan 1654
GREENBERG, Gloria 2505
GREENBERG, Joann 1875
GREENBERG, Joseph 3135
GREENBERG, Michael 2596
GREENBERG, Millie 3142
GREENBERG, Sylvia 2854
GREENBLATT, Rodney 2655
GREENE, Balcomb 1522, 1544, 2312, 2350, 2778
GREENE, Daniel 2302, 2738, 3011
GREENE, Ethel 2271
GREENE, Gertrude 2350
GREENE, J. Barry 1141
GREENE, Lois 1805
GREENE, Melanie 3041
GREENE, Robert 1836
GREENE, Stephen 2725
GREENE, Tryna 2404
GREENFIELD, Loreta 1346
GREENFIELD-SANDERS, Timothy 2729
GREENGOLD, Jane 2459, 2517
GREENHALF, Robert 2971
GREENLAND, Eugene 1164
GREENLEAF, Ken 2467
GREENSTEIN, Ilise 1517
GREENSTEIN, Leon 2705
GREENWALD, Caroline 1442, 1995, 2549
GREENWALD, Pat 2161, 2166
GREENWALD, Ted 1259
GREENWOOD, Eileen 3471
GREENWOOD, Joseph 2360
GREENWOOD, Phil 2439
GREER, A. D. 3285, 3338
GREER, Carole 3283
GREER, Charles 1123
GREER, David 3056
GREER, Douglas 3212
GREER, Hugh 1811
GREER, Jane 1517
GREER, John 2514
GREER, Larry 3056
GREEVES, Jackie 2545
GREEVES, Richard 1702
GREGG, David 2854
GREGG, Jan 2957
GREGOR, Harold 1244, 1697, 2467
GREGORY, David 1377
GREGORY, Jo 2158, 2310
GREGORY, John 3129
GREGORY, Robin 3066
GREGORY, Stan 2499
GREINER, Colleen 2964
GREISZ, Elissa 1368
GRESS, Michael 1377
GREVE, Gerrit 2501
GREY, Alex V. 1952, 2909
GREY, Allyson 1952
GREY, Gary 2238
GREYTAK, Don 2132
GRIECO, Hugo 1049
GRIEFEN, John Adams 1840, 2774
GRIEP, Mary 2066, 3460
GRIFF, Paula 3425
GRIFFEATH, Jeff 1293
GRIFFIN, Bob 2151
GRIFFIN, Mitchell 2973
GRIFFIN, Pat 1623
GRIFFIN, Walter 1954
GRIFFITH, Dennison 2999, 3004
GRIFFITH, Kiessoon 2046
GRIFFITH, Mary 3442
GRIGG, Calvin 3248
GRIGORIADIS, Mary 1445, 1947, 2357
GRILLO, Esther 2519
GRILLO, John 2653
GRIM, Thomasin 1241
GRIMES, Emily 1719
GRIMES, Margaret 2405
GRIMORD, Peter 3124
GRINNELL, Roy 2254
GRIS, Juan 2727
GRISI, Laura 2429, 2430
GROAT, Hall 2890
GROCH, Marilyn 1327
GROCH, René 3433
GROEBLI, Rene 2596
GROEDEL, Burt 2404, 2501
GROELL, Theophil 2829
GROFF, Jim 3309
GROGAN, Sylvia 1586
GRONAU, Philip 1128
GRONBORG, Erik 3078
GROOMS, Red 1453, 1569, 2060, 2105, 2660, 3135, 3294
GROOVER, Jan 2065, 2873
GROPPER, William 1156, 1497, 1970, 2350, 3003
GROSCH, Laura 3385
GROSPERRIN, Claude 2498
GROSS, Anthony 1458
GROSS, Chaim 1520, 2089
GROSS, Helen O. 3315
GROSS, Howard 2484
GROSS, Irwin 2538
GROSS, Laurie 1944
GROSS, Michael 2844, 3237
GROSS, Mimi 2382
GROSS, Rainer 2421, 2546
GROSSBERG, Jake 2658
GROSSBLATT, David 2544, 2699
GROSSEN, Francoise 1640, 2571, 2681, 2930
GROSSER, Maurice 2511
GROSSMAN, Barbara 2413
GROSSMAN, J. R. 3205
GROSSMAN, Maurice 1046, 1062
GROSSMAN, Nancy 1578
GROSSMAN, Sidney 1124, 2055
GROSSMAN, Stephen 1134
GROSSMAN, Tatyana 1442
GROSVENOR, Robert 2452
GROSZ, George 1631, 2010, 2771, 2807
GROTE, Mark 1864, 3010
GROTENRATH, Ruth 3460, 3466
GROTH, Jan 2657
GROTH, Jim 3226
GROTH, Mary 2987, 3226
GROUTAGE, Harrison 3376
GROVE, Kathy 2762
GROW, Allan 3151
GROWDEN, Jim 1247
GRUBB, Charles 2609
GRUBB, David 2715
GRUBB, Tom 2968, 2984
GRUBIC, Elizabeth 2744
GRUCHALLA, Richard 2995, 2996
GRUEN, John 2009
GRUENBERG, Hannah 3134
GRUETTER, Richard 3082
GRUMMER, Gerome 1254
GRUNSTEN, Theodore 1740
GRUPPE, Robert 1932
GUADAGMUCCI, Gigi 2917
GUARDUCCI, Mario 2561
GUARDUCCI, Otello 1566, 3283
GUARINO, Glen 2160
GUASTELLA, Sal 1039, 1515
GUAY, Jean 1332, 2145
GUAY, Nancy 2681
GUBERMAN, Sidney 1276, 1575
GUBERNICK, Richard 2299
GUCCIONE, Piero 2709
GUDIOL, Montserat 2795
GUERIN, John 3291
GUERIN, Spence 1509
GUERRERO, David 1281
GUERRERO, Raul 1235, 1312
GUETARY, Helene 2171, 2483, 3429
GUEVARA, Meraud 2774
GUGLIELMI, O. Louis 2460
GUIBAL, Henri 1566, 2736
GUICHET, Melody 1854, 1867
GUILLAUMET, Gustave-Achille 1091
GUILLAUMIN, Armand 3327
GUINOVART, Josep 2531
GUIRAMAND, Paul 1686
GULICK, Eve 1118
GUM, Chris 3070
GUMMELT, Sam 3287, 3317
GUMMER, Don 2811
GUMPERT, Gunter 1434
GUNDELFINGER, John 2772
GUNDERMAN, William 1394
GUNDERSON, Dan 1515, 1571
GUNNING, Simon 1859
GUNTER, Frank 1682
GURA, Kathy 2438
GURY, Al 3142
GUSSOW, Alan 2472
GUSSOW, Roy 2411
GUSTAFSON, Pier 2068
GUSTAVSON, Michael 2141, 2247
GUSTIN, Christopher 2571
GUSTIN, Dan 1921
GUSTIN, Jane 2004
GUSTON, Philip 1064, 1132, 1152, 2117, 2669, 3168
GUTHRIE, Gerald 2068
GUTIERREZ, Geraldine 2210
GUTIERREZ, Raul 3338
GUTMAN, Oscar 2682
GUTMANN, Bernhard 1141
GUTMANN, John 1262, 2431
GUTOWSKI, John 2091
GUTTMAN, Alan 2371
GUTZEIT, Fred 2505
GUY, James 2478
GUY, Joe 3248, 3287, 3348
GUZAK, Karen 3079, 3314, 3416, 3420
GWATHMEY, Robert 2481
GWIRTZMAN, Wendy 2911
GWYN, Woody 2242, 2818, 3308
GWYNN, Hilary 1399

H

HAACKE, Hans 1207, 2463, 2859
HAARDT, Anton 2074
HAAS, Art 3476
HAAS, Bob 1327
HAAS, Ernst 1488
HAAS, George 2173
HAAS, Georgeann 2980
HAAS, Johanna 2045
HAAS, Richard 1719, 1731, 2362, 2761
HAASE, Ruth 2150
HABENICHT, Wenda 2382
HABER, Ira Joel 2355
HABERKORN, Dennis 3360
HABERMANN, Glenn 1623
HABLIG, Beatrice 1257
HACK, Howard 1253
HACKER, Dieter 2660
HACKLIN, Allan 3332
HACKMAN, Vida 3385
HADDAWAY, Ed 2217, 2273
HADDEN, Barbara 2310
HADDOCK, Arthur 2240
HADDOCK, Brent 3361
HADEN, Richard 1127
HADFIELD, Scott 1937
HADZI, Dimitri 1171, 1535, 1678, 1921, 2568
HAEFER, Curtis 3428
HAENDEL, Bill 2375
HAERER, Carol 2716
HAEUSSLER, Gretchen 3181
HAEUSSLER, Rosita 3181
HAFEY, John 2179
HAFFTKA, Michael 2378
HAFIF, Marcia 1247, 2805
HAFNER, Dorothy 2004, 2141, 2597, 3348
HAGARTY, Robert 1002
HAGEDORN, Karl 2399, 2607
HAGEL, Frank 2131
HAGEMEYER, John 1291
HAGEN, Joan 2507
HAGERBAUMER, David 1702
HAGERTY, Richard 1590
HAGHIRI, Bezhad 1327
HAGIN, Nancy 1921, 2511, 2715
HAGIWARA, Brian 2584
HAGMAN, Heidi 2343
HAGOPIAN, Philip 3381
HAGSTRUM, Katherine 1302, 2851
HAGUE, Michael 2432
HAGUE, Raoul 2518
HAHN, Andrea 1530

HAHN, Betty 1203, 1655
HAHN, Cheryl 3465
HAIEN, Gretchen 2072
HAILS, Barbara 1909, 3399
HAIMSON, Jana 1259
HAINES, Evelyn 1035
HAINS, Sue Ellen 2209
HAIRSTON, Lucy 2972
HAJEK-HALKE, Heinz 3303
HAJIAN, Harry 2479
HALABY, Samia A. 2840
HALAHMY, Oded 2165
HALBACH, David 3322
HALBERT, Jacques 2513, 2655
HALBOWER, Kathryn 1132, 2834
HALBROOKS, Darryl 1682, 1775
HALE, Ellen Day 2877
HALE, Ken 1713
HALEGUA, Alfredo 1436, 1460, 1461
HALEM, Henry 2030, 3019
HALEVI, Marilyn 1231, 1293
HALEY, Andrew 1947
HALEY, Sally 3079, 3441
HALIDAY, Nancy 1499
HALKIN, Theodore 1651
HALKO, Joe 2126
HALL, Anthony V. 2049
HALL, D.J. 2580
HALL, Douglas Kent 1169, 2271, 3154
HALL, Fung-Lin 1512
HALL, Gary 1159
HALL, George H. 2360
HALL, Hampton 1142
HALL, James 2373
HALL, Joan 2096
HALL, Kip 1101
HALL, Lee 1470, 1664, 2964
HALL, Maria 1404
HALL, Michael W. 2973
HALL, Nigel 2492
HALL, Richard 2468
HALL, Susan 1179, 1264, 1658, 2573, 2848
HALL-SMITH, Arthur 1434
HALLAHAN, Ed 3025
HALLAM, Beverly 3282
HALLAM, Richard 2777
HALLAS, Caroline 2519
HALLEY, Lynda 3058
HALLMAN, Gary 2065, 2919
HALLOCK, Donald 1608
HALLREN, Marilyn 3055
HALLUM, Helen 1085
HALPER, Lorna 2408
HALPERIN, Sylvia Birch 2000
HALPERN, Bernice 2734
HALPERN, Elaine 3321
HALPERN, Gina 1963
HALPERN, John P. 2609
HALPIN, Bruce 2499
HALPRIN, Lawrence 1248, 1941
HALSBAND, Michael 2767
HALSEY, Brian 1096, 1877, 2034
HALSEY, Yadviga 3427
HALSMAN, Philippe 1006, 1590, 1817
HALSTEAD, Cathy 2849
HALSTEAD, Kathy 2762
HALUS, Siegfried 1399
HALVERSEN, Liza 3420
HALVERSON, Jean 2115
HAMA, Take 3436
HAMAGUCHI, Yozo 1302, 2851
HAMAN, Pegee 2113
HAMANAKA, Paul 3149
HAMANN, Carol 2386
HAMBERG, Gary 2987
HAMBLETON, Richard 2679, 3149
HAMBOURG, André 1667, 2507
HAMBURG, John 3075
HAMBURGER, Sydney 2290
HAMBY, Gene 1360
HAMIL, James R. 1811
HAMIL, John 3085
HAMILL, Tim 1929
HAMILTON, Don 1360
HAMILTON, Ellie 2260, 2314
HAMILTON, Frances 1951
HAMILTON, Helen 1695
HAMILTON, Jim 3056
HAMILTON, Juan 1159, 2678
HAMILTON, Lucy 1331
HAMILTON, Ralph 1946
HAMILTON, Richard 1432, 2684
HAMILTON, Russell 1046, 1343, 3295
HAMILTON, Thomas 2140
HAMLET, Susan 3058, 3121
HAMMAN, Marilyn 1826
HAMMARSKIOLD, Hans 1195
HAMMER, Sid 2593
HAMMERBECK, Wanda 2919, 3270
HAMMERMAN, Carol 1654, 1749
HAMMERMAN, Pat 1514, 2024, 2629, 2777
HAMMERSHOI, Vilhelm 2870
HAMMERSLEY, Frederick 1337, 1338, 2215
HAMMOND, Harmony 1040, 1399, 1691, 2060, 2357
HAMMOND, Judy 2952
HAMMOND, Nancy 1473
HAMMOND, Phyllis 1296, 2733
HAMMOND, Robert 2999
HAMMOND, Thekla Hathaway 1315
HAMPTON, John 2254
HAMPTON, Roy 2144
HAMWI, Richard 2318, 3096, 3178
HAN, H. N. 2580
HAN, Mansook 2577
HAN, Raymond 2779, 2942
HANBURY, Una 1356, 1816, 2242, 2258
HANCOCK, Gretchen 1015
HANDEL, Albert 2254
HANDLER, Audrey 1910, 3166
HANDZEL, Jane 2505
HANENSON, Nina 1694
HANEY, E. "Kelly" 2256, 3061
HANEY, William 2468
HANKS, Steve 1047
HANLEY, Jack 1315, 1331
HANLEY, Joan 1682
HANNAH, Duncan 2787, 2816
HANNAH, Hanna 1249
HANNAY, Jann 2849
HANNEY, Kathleen 2915
HANOR, John 1177
HANSELL, Freya 1659, 3210
HANSEN, Art 3416
HANSEN, Diana 1096, 2050
HANSEN, Diane 3180
HANSEN, Duane 3275
HANSEN, Ed 2394
HANSEN, Ejnar 1174
HANSEN, Gaylen 2634, 3427
HANSEN, Harry 1566
HANSEN, James 1906, 2679, 2790
HANSEN, John & Annie 3428
HANSEN, Ken 1070
HANSEN, Robert 1177
HANSEN, Stephen 1674, 2012
HANSEN, Steve 2044
HANSEN, Whitney 2186, 2927
HANSON, Barbara 1244
HANSON, David 2729
HANSON, Don 2124, 2133
HANSON, Duane 1497
HANSON, Hardy 1171
HANSON, Harriett 1755
HANSON, Philip 1690, 2631
HANSON, Robert 3076
HANSON, Rolf 2370
HANSON, Suzanne 1273
HANTAI, Simon 2667
HAOZOUS, Bob 1060, 3297
HAOZOUS, Phillip 1702
HAPAC, Donna 1633
HARA, Keiko 1712
HARA, Takeshi 2887
HARADER, Andrew 1213
HARARI, Hananiah 2478, 2738
HARBAUGH, Ken 1037, 1346
HARCHARIK, Paul 1933, 2685
HARDEN, Marvin 1170, 1654
HARDEN, Richard 2770
HARDIMON, Ghita 1674
HARDIN, Heidi 1176
HARDIN, Jim 2072
HARDING, Carol 2144
HARDING, Charlotte 3103
HARDING, Goodwin 1936, 3054
HARDING, Noel 2514, 2885
HARDING, Wild Bill 1808
HARDY, Carol 2070
HARDY, Charles 1379
HARDY, DeWitt 1123, 2779
HARDY, Jo 1899
HARDY, John 1590
HARDY, Michelle Devereaux 2072
HARDY, Pat 1123
HARDY, Thomas Bush 1314
HARDY, Tom 2638
HARE, David 1822, 2573, 2701
HARES, David P. 1823, 2102
HARES, Glenda 1822, 1823
HARING, Keith 1575, 2298, 2529, 2791
HARING, Stan 1794
HARJO, Benjamin 3059
HARKINS, George 2829, 3291
HARLAN, Susan 1495
HARLEY, Curtis 3212
HARLEY, Daniel 3018
HARLING, Simon 2607
HARLOW, Pamela 2812
HARLOW, Rick 1966, 1969, 1973
HARMAN, Byron 1499
HARMAN, Mary Ann 1468, 2443, 2570
HARMER, Alexander 1314
HARMON, James 1720
HARMON, Larry 1488, 3273
HARMON, Lily 1815, 2824
HARMONE, James 1535
HARMS, Elizabeth 2449
HARPER, Judith 1069
HARPER, Sharon 1229
HARPER, William 1034, 2984
HARPIGNIES, Henri Joseph 1091, 2875
HARR, Pamela 2263, 3227
HARRAH, Clark 1151, 3308
HARRI 2730
HARRIES, Mags 1966, 1974
HARRILL, James 1047, 2222, 2242
HARRINGTON, Bryan 1293, 2659, 3240
HARRINGTON, Dennis 3004
HARRINGTON, Susan 3267
HARRIS, Alex 2604, 2984
HARRIS, Anita Charney 3135
HARRIS, Anne 1486, 1571, 3445
HARRIS, Cam 1049
HARRIS, Carolyn 2209
HARRIS, Conley 1951
HARRIS, Don 3388
HARRIS, Ed 1798
HARRIS, Harold 2380, 2883
HARRIS, Harvey Sherman 1848
HARRIS, John 1143
HARRIS, Paul 1330, 3202
HARRIS, Penelope 3136
HARRIS, Roberta 3336
HARRIS, Ronna 1181
HARRIS, Sam Hyde 1094
HARRIS, Suzanne 2816
HARRIS, Wil 2299
HARRISON, Allen 1169, 1293, 1325
HARRISON, Bill 1816
HARRISON, Cheryl 2951
HARRISON, Claude 1547
HARRISON, Helen Mayer 1474, 2504
HARRISON, Jan 3004
HARRISON, Margaret 2504
HARRISON, Mick 3219, 3224
HARRISON, Newton 1474, 2504
HARROP, Jo 1473
HARROUN, Jennifer 2096
HARRYMAN, Norma 1819
HART, Frederick 1647
HART, Gordon 1476, 2483, 3313
HART, Jerry Kenison 2082
HART, Jo Ann Hodgson 2303, 2920
HART, Kathleen 1758
HART, Richard 1614, 1716
HART, Robbi 1347
HART, Tom 3481
HARTELL, John 2638
HARTER, Chadwick 3381
HARTIGAN, Grace 1900, 1902, 2041, 2041
HARTINIAN, Linda 2599
HARTL, Leon 2598
HARTLE, Judy 1636
HARTLEY, Marsden 2059, 2389, 2665, 2845
HARTLEY, Scott 1994
HARTMAN, Mark 1223
HARTMAN, Robert 1213, 1223, 1247
HARTMAN, Stephen 1639
HARTMANN, MaryLou 1473
HARTNETT, Sean 2917
HARTRANFT-TEMPLE, Anne 2937
HARTUNG, Hans 2531, 2644
HARTWELL, Janice 1515
HARU, Yoko 3135
HARVEY-ALLEN, Jo 1626
HARVEY, George 3061
HARVEY, Jill 2216
HARVEY, Lucy M. 2101
HARVEY, Michael 2298
HARVEY, Robert 1268, 2163
HARWOOD, June 1127
HASENFLUG, Florence 2323
HASENJAGER, Shirley 1608
HASHMI, Zarini 2715
HASKE, Joseph 2716, 2999
HASKIN, Betty 1823
HASSAM, Childe 1589, 1880, 2389, 2702, 2877, 3168
HASSELBECK, Don 3011
HATCH, David 1309
HATCH, Edward 3399
HATCH, Mary 1650
HATCHETT, Duayne 2297
HATFIELD, David 2207, 2541
HATHAWAY, Paul 2258
HATHAWAY, Sherry 2336
HATHCOCK, Steve 1079
HATKE, Walter 2779
HATOFSKY, Julius 1264
HATTEN, Tom 3141
HAUPTMAN, Susan 1298
HAUSER, Sydney 1547
HAUSEY, Robert 1867
HAÜSSER, Robert 3303
HAVARD, James 1066, 1531, 1680, 1808, 1840, 2236, 2670, 3131
HAVAS, Paul 3441
HAVEL, Joseph 3272
HAVEL, Lynn 3259
HAVEN, Shelley 2785
HAVENS, Jan 2984
HAVERTY, James Joseph 1593
HAVIGHURST, Jay 1935
HAWK, Johnny 3050
HAWKINS, Barbara 1805
HAWLEY, Steve 2679
HAWTHORNE, Charles 1980
HAXTON, David 2805
HAY, Ike 3465
HAYASHI, Chick 1234
HAYASHI, Masume 1489
HAYES, Anne 2173
HAYES, Bill 1371
HAYES, Charles Bill 1343
HAYES, David 1407, 2371
HAYES, Martha 2854
HAYES, Michael 2386
HAYES, Pamela 1619
HAYES, Randy 3418, 3427
HAYLOR, Deborah 2937
HAYMAN, Mur Sherman 3139
HAYS, John 1063
HAYS, Sutton 3139
HAYSLETTE, Max 3281
HAYTER, Stanley William 3111
HAYWARD, Alfred 1141
HAYWARD, James 1283
HAYWARD, Peter 1619
HAYWOOD, Richard 2197
HAZEN, Donald 1524, 1667
HAZEN, Wayne 1654
HAZLEWOOD, Carl 2550, 3314
HAZLITT, Don 2500
HEAD, Marilyn 1011
HEADE, Martin Johnson 1280
HEADLEY, David 1992
HEADLEY, Wendell 2620
HEAGSTEDT, Thelma 1633
HEALD, Charles Laurens 3427
HEALD, Paul 3410, 3437
HEALY, Anne 2357
HEALY, Sherry 1643
HEALY, Sophie 2757
HEAP OF BIRDS, Edgar 2143, 3045
HEARST, Judy 2847
HEARSUM, Timothy 1223
HEATH, Bette 2082
HEBALD, Milton 1156, 1522, 1544, 2752
HECHT, David 2900
HECHT, Marjorie 2039
HECKEL, Erich 1631, 2560, 2771
HECKSCHER, Christian 1202, 1324
HEDGES, Linda 2112
HEDLUND, Grace 2937
HEDMAN, Teri Jo 1015
HEDSTROM, Ana Lisa 1437
HEEBNER, Mary 1241, 3079
HEEKS, Willy 2748
HEFT, Carol 2544
HEGARTY, John 2818
HEGELMAN, Gena 2629
HEIDEMAN, Susan 1921, 2570
HEIKES, Grete 3221, 3226
HEIKKA, Earle 2115
HEIM, Jean-Pierre 1992
HEIMANN, Anne 2620
HEIMDAL, Georg 1244
HEIMSTADT, Leslie 2015
HEIN, Frank 3247
HEINDEL, Robert 1382
HEINDL, Chris 3071
HEINDL, Elsie 2343
HEINDORFF, Michael 1158, 1911, 2608
HEINECKEN, Robert 2650
HEINEMANN, Peter 2544
HEINO, Steve 1134, 1644
HEINRICH, Charles 1709
HEINTZ, Jim 3175
HEINZE, Gus 1128, 1293
HEINZEN, Elga 2635
HEIPP, Richard 3433
HEISCHMAN, Robert 2916
HEISE, Bill 2332, 3307
HEISE, Myron 2343
HEISMAN, Bobbi 3135
HEIZER, Michael 1147, 1152, 1335, 2518, 3424
HEJDUK, John 2747
HELBIG, Bud 2128
HELD, Al 2008, 2494, 2678, 2717, 3287, 3317
HELD, John 2562
HELFGOTT, Myron 3404
HELFRICH, Stan 2006, 2104
HELIKER, John 2638, 2699
HELIOFF, Anne 2730
HELION, Jean 2678
HELLE, Njalle 3242
HELLER, John 1949, 1971
HELLEU, Paul Cesar 1098, 1272
HELLWIG, Bill 3202
HELM, Dennis 1805
HELMAN, Phoebe 2594
HELMICK, Ralph 1952
HELMUTH, Pat 1327
HELMUTH, Suzanne 1474
HELNWEIN, Gottfried 1435
HELSMOORTEL, Robert 1517
HELZER, Richard 1965
HENDERSON, Evelyn 3360
HENDERSON, Ewen 1956
HENDERSON, Harriett 2310, 2890

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

HENDERSON, Mike 1231, 1626
HENDERSON, Paula 1570
HENDERSON, Shirley 1488
HENDERSON, Victor 1160
HENDERSON, Victoria 3266
HENDERSON, William P. 2238
HENDON, Cham 1690, 2631
HENDREY, Sharon 1732
HENDRICK, Linda 1822, 1823
HENDRICKS, Barkley L. 1964, 2350, 3135
HENDRICKS, Don 1909
HENDRICKS, Ed 1053, 2679, 3134
HENDRICKS, Keith 1288
HENDRICKS, K.M. 1035
HENDRICKS, Winona 2161
HENDRICKSON, Ken 1316, 1317
HENDRICKSON, Merrilyne 1912
HENDRICKSON, Ted 1411
HENDRIKSON, Alice 2394
HENDRY, Ken 2471
HENKEL, James 1626, 1654
HENLE, Fritz 3303
HENLE, Jan 2518
HENLE, Maria 2444
HENNES, Joanne 1035
HENNESEY, Timothy 2594
HENNESSEY, James 1921
HENNESSEY, Lois 2297
HENNESSEY, Tom 1899
HENNESSY, Richard 1273, 2573, 3468
HENNINGER, Joseph 1052
HENNINGS, Patricia 1752
HENRI, Florence 2741
HENRI, Robert 2249, 2354, 3209
HENRIKSON, Mary Ida 1021
HENRY, Craig 1273
HENRY, Doug 1774
HENRY, Edward L. 2942
HENRY, Janet 2620
HENRY, John 1656
HENRY, Robert 2405
HENSLEY, Jackson 2252
HENSLEY, Rick 1433
HEPBURN, Tony 1663, 2095, 2141
HEPNER, Rhoda 1512
HEPPER, Carol 2909
HEPWORTH, Barbara 1145, 2345, 2551, 2660, 2861
HERA 2365, 2371
HERBERT, Leonard 1623
HERBERT, Marilynne 2733
HERDER, Addie 2465
HERDLISKA, Helen 1849
HEREFORD, Susan 3076
HERING, David 1264
HERLAND, Jack 2380
HERMAN, Alan 2848
HERMAN, Bruce 1929
HERMAN, Nancy 3166
HERMAN, Roger 1160, 1257
HERMAN, Sam 1956
HERMAN, William 1643
HERMANN, Mildred 2323, 2849
HERMANSADER, Marcy 3123, 3379
HERMANSON, Kristin 2015
HERMES, George 1317
HERMS, George 1337, 1338
HERNANDEZ, Anthony 1227
HERNANDEZ, Gisela 2753
HERNANDEZ, John 2265
HERNANDEZ, Robert 1142, 1243
HERNANDEZ, Sam 1287
HERNDON, Charles 1674
HERNON, Jack 2371
HERR, Margo 2505
HERR, Robert 2960
HERRERA, Larry 2265
HERRIGEL, Jillian 2161
HERRING SR, J. F. 1714
HERRINGTON, Pat 1567
HERRITT, Linda 1733
HERRMANN, Dorrie 1819
HERRMANN, Frank S. 2656
HERROLD, David W. 1770
HERRON, Gaylord O. 3064
HERSCHENSON, Lee 3168
HERSCHLEB, Sidney 1523
HERSCHLER, David 1332, 2145
HERSHBERGER, Philip 1805, 1807, 1809
HERSHEY, Nona 2770
HERSHMAN, Carol Berger 3127
HERSTEIN, Victor 2496
HERTEL, Barbara 1717
HERTEL, Susan 1128
HERTZ, Barbara 3055
HERWECK, Roy 1164
HERZBERG, Paul 1701
HESS, John 3374
HESSE, Eva 1718, 2673, 3034
HESSING, Jeffery 1944
HESSING, Valjean 3059
HESTER, Evelyn 1116
HETTMANSPERGER, Sue 1669
HEUGES, Margaret 3118
HEUMAN, Ginette 2767
HEUSTON, Frank 2812
HEWES, Walt 3388
HEWITT, Charles 2613
HEWSON, James 1519
HEYDEN, Silvia 2964
HEYMAN, Ken 2248
HEYMAN, Steven 1733
HEYNE, Juliana 3433
HIATT, Debbie 1041
HIBBARD, Jim 3076
HIBEL, Edna 1503, 1547, 2162, 2163, 2254
HICKAM, Richard 2818, 3141
HICKEN, Philip 1057, 2250
HICKMAN, Christine 2216
HICKMAN, Evalyn 1347
HICKMAN, Jesse 1731
HICKMAN, Mark 2216
HICKMAN, Pat 2930
HICKS, Carol 2151
HICKS, Laney 3481
HICKS, Sheila 1670, 1740, 1811, 3173
HICKS, Thomas C. 2273
HIERHOLZER, Joan 2730
HIGA, Ed 1603
HIGA, Kaoru 1622
HIGBY, Kristy Lynn 3205
HIGBY, Wayne 2141, 3121
HIGDON, Randall 1755
HIGGINS, Doug 1360, 2214, 2262, 2794, 3407
HIGGINS, E.F. 2655
HIGGINS, Eugene 2753
HIGGINS, Kevin 2579
HIGGINS, Mary Lou 2890, 2960
HIGGINS, Patrick 1761
HIGGINS, Raquel 3124
HIGGINS, Victor 2245
HIGH, Timothy 1488, 1944, 3460
HIGHSTEIN, Jene 1335, 1337, 1338, 1731, 2716
HIGHTON, Anne 2553
HILDER, Roland 1051
HILDREW, Kenneth 2971
HILEMAN, Jane 1693
HILEMAN, Jayne 2068
HILEMAN, Todd 2124, 2131
HILER, Hilaire 2245
HILGER, Charles 1218, 1691
HILGER, Dennis 1170
HILL, Abby Williams 2134
HILL, Bobby "Whitebuffalo" 3052
HILL, Charles Christopher 1136
HILL, Clinton 1733, 2725
HILL, Dale 1564
HILL, Dan 3369
HILL, Darrell 2048
HILL, G. S. 1619
HILL, James 1852, 1867
HILL, Jim 1852
HILL, Julia 1550
HILL, Kay Harris 2316
HILL, Lenore 1919
HILL, Linda 2904
HILL, Lyn 1849
HILL, Nicholas 1805
HILL, Nils 2705
HILL, Pati 2635
HILL, Peter 2514
HILL, Sheila 3050
HILL, Tempe Biddle 1963
HILL, Thomas 1280, 2031
HILL, Tom 1052
HILL, W.P. 1038
HILLIARD, Joan 1567
HILLIARD, John 2885
HILLINGER, Edith 1247
HILLIX, Virginia 2081
HILLSLEY, Nell 2066
HILSON, Douglas 2400
HILTON, John 2144
HILTON, Joseph 1067, 1697, 2634
HILTON, Naomi 2733
HILTS, Ruth 2150
HILTY, Thomas 3040
HIMMELFARB, John 1639, 2481
HINCKLE, Doug 1110
HINCKLEY, Thomas Hewes 1926
HINDES, Chuck 2471
HINES, Jack 1035, 1061, 3061
HINES, Norm 1212
HINMAN, Charles 1479, 1534, 1543, 2008, 2537, 2653, 3041, 3125
HINTER, Charles 2956
HINTERREITER, Hans 2499
HINTON, Al 1998
HIOS, Theo 2593, 2824
HIRAI, Kazuo 2887
HIRONDELLE, Anne 3078, 3428
HIROSADA 2887, 3175
HIROSHIGE 3175
HIROSHIGE, Ando 2553, 2945
HIROSHIGE, Hasui 2045
HIRSCH, Gilah 1109
HIRSCH, Joseph 2158, 2626
HIRSCH, Richard 2491
HIRSCH, Rick 1933, 2685
HIRSCHFELD, Al 1391, 1817, 2539
HIRSCHFELD, Corson 3004
HIRSCHFELD, Jonathan 2192
HIRSCHMAN, Cheryl 1947
HIRT, Donna Rae 2038
HIRTZEL, Sue 1918
HIRUSADA 3132
HITCH, Stewart 2412
HITCHCOCK, Alix 2857
HITCHCOCK, Dorothy 3481
HITCHCOCK, Harold 1051
HITNER, Chuck 1024, 1058
HLAVA, Pavel 2030
HNIZDOVSKY, Jacques 1451, 1880, 2337, 3458
HO, Angela 2711
HO, Ray 3080
HOADLEY, Thomas 1437, 2925, 3158, 3159
HOARD, Curtis 2060, 2491
HOARE, Jeff 2375
HOBBIE, Lucille 2160
HOBERT, Genevieve 1912
HOCEVAR, Marcia 2124
HOCHBERG, Zanne 1809, 3267
HOCHMAN, Kitty 2900
HOCKER, William 3291
HOCKNEY, David 1152, 1153, 1335, 1337, 1338, 1432, 1512, 1569, 1618, 1678, 1719, 2053, 2146, 2431, 2439, 2494, 2582, 2668, 2805, 3020, 3117, 3328
HODES, Fran 2510
HODGE, Christopher 3131
HODGE, John 1849, 1865, 1875
HODGELL, Robert 1546, 3454
HODGES, Charles 1701
HODGKIN, Carter 2543
HODGKIN, Howard 1158, 1569, 1582, 2608, 2633
HODGMAN, Kathryn 3205
HÖDICKE, K. H. 1337, 1338, 2707
HOEFER, Wade 1266
HOEKSEMA, Mary 1377
HOELZER, William 1360
HOEPFFNER, Marta 3303
HOERMAN, Carl 1070
HOESCHEN, Dorothy 1567
HOESCHEN, Louise 3418
HOEY, William 3309
HOFF, Margo 1664, 1776
HOFF, Richard C. 3180
HOFFER, John 2787
HOFFHIEMER, Craig 2020
HOFFMAN, Amalia 2340
HOFFMAN, Armin 2755
HOFFMAN, Burrall F. 1519
HOFFMAN, Eric 1307, 1909, 2841, 2842
HOFFMAN, Frank 2047
HOFFMAN, Kim 3433
HOFFMAN, L. 1008
HOFFMAN, Malvina 2403
HOFFMANN, Arnold 1877, 2309
HOFFNER, Carl 2937, 2937
HOFMANN, Douglas 2607
HOFMANN, Hans 1064, 1246, 1678, 1931, 2008, 2494, 2803, 3243, 3317
HOFMANN, Jewel 2987
HOFMANN, Robert 2939
HOGAN, Bernardo 3181
HOGAN, Fran 2216
HOGAN, John 1039, 2235, 2239
HOGAN, Patrick 1325
HOGAN, Richard 2216, 2228
HOGARTH, William 1272, 1714, 1953, 2034, 2083, 2856, 3175
HOGE, Carole 3388
HOGLE, Ann 1293
HOGLE, Ken 1398
HOGLUND, Eric 2585
HOHLWEIN, Ludwig 2755
HOIE, Claus 1470
HOIE, Helen 1470, 2312
HOKANSON, Hans 2411
HOKUSAI 3175
HOKUSAI, Katsushika 2553, 2945
HOLABIRD, Jean 2287, 2757
HOLBROOK, Hollis 1494
HOLBROOK, Peter 1669, 3316
HOLCOMB, Jan 1933, 2685
HOLDEN, Georgianna 1231
HOLDEN, Jane 1994
HOLDER, Geoffrey 2501
HOLDER, Kenneth 1733
HOLDING, Eileen 2593
HOLEMAN, Pam 1408, 1967
HOLGER, Dirk 1387
HOLLAND, Babette 2378
HOLLAND, Edward 1217
HOLLAND, Fred 1659
HOLLAND, Juliet 1406, 2815
HOLLAND, Ray 2449
HOLLAND, Tom 1138, 1218, 1263, 2457, 3418
HOLLANDER, Roz 2197
HOLLEMAN, Tonia 1085
HOLLERN, Mike 2115
HOLLIDAY, Betty 2436
HOLLIDAY, Frank 2409
HOLLINGSWORTH, Al 1486
HOLLOSY, Gyuri 1864
HOLLOWAY, George 2180
HOLLOWELL, David 2224
HOLLWEG, Alexander 2635
HOLMES, Arlene 2290
HOLMES, David 2507, 3465
HOLMES, Douglas 1301
HOLMES, Greg 2899
HOLMES, James 1692
HOLMES, Ralph 1314
HOLMES, Robert 1302, 2851
HOLMES, Wendy 2179
HOLMQUIST, Rolf 1500
HOLOEIN, Mary 2987
HOLOUN, Hal 1803, 2137
HOLSENBECK, Bryant 3166
HOLSTE, Tom 1176
HOLT, Georgina 1500
HOLT, Nancy 2859, 3107
HOLT, Shirley 2241
HOLTAN, Gene 1323
HOLUB, Leo 1218
HOLZER, Jenny 1731, 2552
HOLZHÄNSER, Karl Martin 2091
HOLZHAUER, Emil 1538
HOMAN, David 3114
HOMAR, Lorenzo 2700, 3182, 3183
HOMER, Jason 2324
HOMER, Jessie 1128
HOMER, Winslow 1589, 1926, 2170
HOMITSKY, Peter 2191, 2472
HOMSHER, Steve 3126
HONDA, Kazuhisa 2826
HONDROGEN, Nicholas 1291
HONIG, Ethelyn 2505
HONIGMAN, Christi 1343
HONSAKER, Mary Ellen 1377
HOOD, Dorothy 3318
HOOD, Gail 1849
HOOG, Klaus 2984
HOOK, Charles 1553
HOOK, Walter 3114
HOOKER FAY, Arlene 2131
HOONE, Jeff 2296
HOOPER "NADO", Skipper 2298
HOOPER, Jack 1302
HOOVEN, Coille 1313
HOOVER, John 3431
HOOVER, Ron 3312
HOOWIJ, Jan 1186
HOPF, Claudia 1972
HOPKINS, Budd 1979, 1980, 2168, 2502
HOPKINS, Claire M. 3209
HOPKINS, Eric 2585
HOPKINS, Gerald 2883
HOPP, Larry 3289
HOPPA, Douglas 1450
HOPPE, Bill 3424
HOPPE, David 3114
HOPPER, Edward 1034, 1593, 1665, 2556, 2560, 2907, 3256
HOPPER, Floyd 1774
HOPPER, Pegge 1612, 1619, 1621
HORA, Richard 2893
HORACEK, Milan 3303
HORAK, Walter 2847
HORAN, Steve 2483
HORIUCHI, Paul 3441
HORN, Rebecca 2358
HORN, Robert 1707
HORNAK, Ian 2511
HORNBACK, Ann 1866
HORNBUCKLE, Marianne 1584, 2239
HORNE, Karen 3372
HORNE, Phyllis 3369, 3375
HORNECKER, Mac 1800
HORNELL, Taffy 2006
HORSLEY, Patrick 3078, 3428
HORST 2805
HORSWILL, Ernest 3436
HORTER, Earl 3127
HORTON, William 1954, 2360, 2575
HORVATH, Anna 1657
HORVITZ, Suzanne 3124
HORWITT, Will 2845
HORWITZ, Channa 1339
HOSHI, Joichi 1603
HOSHINO, Tomoo 2421
HOSKING, Helen 2597
HOSOE, Eikoh 1203, 2650, 2919
HOSTETTLER, David 3003, 3114
HOUGH, Jennie 2634
HOULBERG, Klindt 1709
HOUSE, Conrad 3431
HOUSE, Fred 1530
HOUSE, Gordon 3168
HOUSE, Perry 3312
HOUSE, William 2039
HOUSER, Allan 2233
HOUSER, John Sherrill 1048
HOUSTON, Bruce 1133
HOUSTON, Georgia 3286
HOUSTON, Ian 3322
HOUT, Ronald In't 1169
HOVADIK, Jaroslav 1999
HOVANEC, Jerry 1437
HOVLAND, Charles 2658
HOWARD, Dalton 1809
HOWARD, Dan F. 1682, 2142
HOWARD, Daryl Ann 1039, 1144
HOWARD, James 2964
HOWARD, Jim Ann 1947
HOWARD, Judy 1085, 3067
HOWARD, Kathryn 2091
HOWARD, Linda 1656, 2594

HOWARD, Pauline 3314
HOWARTH, Vicki 3388
HOWATT, Ben 3302, 3335
HOWDLE, Bruce 1026, 1743, 1799
HOWE, Anthony 1972
HOWE, Delmas 2392, 2392
HOWE, Kathy 1327
HOWE, Oscar 1030, 3216, 3218, 3224
HOWE, Patrick 1377
HOWE, Victoria 1450
HOWELL, Bob 2404
HOWELL, Claude 2960
HOWELL, Dean 3003
HOWELL, Ellard 2325
HOWELL, Ellen 2972
HOWELL, Elwood 1470, 1877
HOWELL, Frank 1349, 1814
HOWELL, Jim 1268
HOWELL, Steve 1313
HOWELLS, Elizabeth 3120
HOWER, Bob 2999
HOWLETT, Ray 1110
HOWLING, Freda 1387
HOY, Harold 3071
HOYER, Todd 2226
HOYLAND, John 1158, 1680
HOYLE, Carolyn 1371
HOYLE, James 1080, 1603, 1621
HOYNE, Thomas 3386
HRICKO, Richard 1406
HRICKO, Tom 1406
HRYCUN, George 1674, 2580
HSIA, Yan 2580
HSU, H. Y. Peter 3321
HU, Chi-Chung 1523
HU, Mary Lee 1854, 1965
HU, Sandria 3336
HUBBARD, Harlan 1839
HUBBARD, Kim 1162
HUBBARD, Prudence 2937
HUBBARD, Richard 2937
HUBER-MORRISON, Fritzi 1313
HUBER, Walter 3110
HUCHTHAUSEN, David R. 1163, 2585
HUDSON, Andrew 1438, 2467
HUDSON, Grace C. 2128
HUDSON, Robert 1263, 1669, 2528
HUDSON, Winifred 1609
HUEBLER, Douglas 2429, 2430
HUESER, Jay 2081
HUETTE, Julie 1249
HUEY, Linda 1951
HUFF, Cynthia 1778
HUFF, Diana 1836
HUFF, Robert 1512
HUFFMAN, Layton 2116
HUGGINS, Laurel 1324
HUGGINS, Victor 2960
HUGHES, Ann 3076
HUGHES, Bernadette Thomas 1057
HUGHES, Bill 1057, 2250
HUGHES, Holly 2287
HUGHES, Jinkie 2252
HUGHES, Joseph 1247
HUGHES, Lee 2205
HUGHES, Manuel 2549
HUGHES, Marilyn 2112, 2125
HUGHES, Patrick 2513
HUGHES, Woodleigh 2927
HUGHES, Woody 2141
HUGHEY, Kirk 1041
HUGHTO, Darryl 1476, 1840, 1946, 2039, 2774, 3318
HUGHTO, Margie 1282, 1578, 1906, 1946, 2297
HUJAR, Peter 2584
HULETT, Simonne 1382
HULL, Gregory 1667
HULL, Jeff 1298
HULL, John 1423, 1697, 2172
HULL, Richard 1690, 2631
HULL, Sid 3481
HULLET, Michael Craig 3374
HULTS, Sharon 1377
HUMBLE, Patrick 1288
HUMMEL, Berta 2316
HUMPHREY, Mary Pacios 1275
HUMPHREY, Ralph 1193, 1304, 2871
HUMPTON, Ruth 3142
HUNDERTWASSER, Friedensreich 1270, 1329, 1435, 1677, 1944, 2592, 3151, 3316
HUNN, Lydia 3124
HUNT, Ann 3321
HUNT, Brian 1148
HUNT, Bryan 1167, 1304
HUNT, Catherine 3388
HUNT, Jan 2911
HUNT, Jim 1809
HUNT, Melinda 1633
HUNT, Peter 1980
HUNT, Richard 1570, 2029, 2100, 2484
HUNT, Sue 2241
HUNT-WULKOWICZ, Susan 1755, 2911, 3458
HUNTER-LAYTON, Missy 1049
HUNTER, Alan 1298
HUNTER, Clementine 1870
HUNTER, Dart 1688
HUNTER, David 1500, 3397
HUNTER, Dorothy 1471
HUNTER, Frank 1367
HUNTER, Lissa 1972, 2257
HUNTER, Terry 3207
HUNTINGTON, Jim 1276, 2669
HUNTINGTON, Madge 2930
HUNTRESS, Diane 1343
HUNZIKER, Marion 2930
HUONG 1021
HURD, Michael 3055
HURD, Paul 1076
HURD, Peter 2254, 3291
HURLEY, Richard 2178
HURLEY, Wilson 1035
HURLSTONE, Robert W. 1743, 3276
HURSON, Michael 1658, 2452
HURST, Carol 1878
HURST, Larry 1247
HURST, Lynn 1468
HURST, Ralph 1458, 1522, 1544, 2890
HURTIG, Martin 1655
HURWITZ, Harriet 2815
HUSEBYE, Terry 1097, 1129, 2243
HUSHCHA, Leon 2057
HUSS, Dick 1743
HUTCHINS, Alice 1102
HUTCHINSON, Peter 2885
HUTNER, Eugene 2538
HUTT, Dave 3481
HÜTTE, Axel 2378
HUTTER, Sidney 1163, 1924, 2030
HUTTINGER, Peter 3004
HUYER, Elaine 1404, 2733
HWANG, Kyu-Baik 2826
HYATT, Foster 2238
HYATT, Lisa 2818
HYDE, David 3127
HYDE, Doug 1093, 1702, 1803, 2542, 3422
HYDE, Nick 1269
HYDE, Philip 1211
HYDE, Robert 1593
HYDER, Frank 3138
HYER, Jean 2157
HYLAND, Rebecca 1621
HYLTON, John 2571
HYMAN, Alice 1085
HYMAN, David 2952
HYMAN, Trina 3383
HYNCKES, Raoul 3238
HYNES, Frances 2481
HYPPOLITE, Gabriel 2343

I

IAMS, Richard 3286
IANELLI 2637
ICART, Louis 2088, 2493
ICHIHASHI, Taro 1301, 2887
IDA, Shoichi 1295
IDIGORAS, Luis 2343
IFILL, Elaine 2636
IGALS, Dagmara 2705
IGER, Arnold 2394
IGLESIAS, Eduardo 1744
IHARA, Michio 2814
IHARA, Roy 1603
IKEBE, Kyo 2938
IKEDA, Kanetaka 3076
IKEDA, Masuo 1267
IKEDA, Yoshiro 1807, 2247
IKEMOTO, Howard 1223
ILIE, Marie-Laure 1682, 1996
ILIKA, Margit 3346
IMAI, Toshi 2704
IMBER, Jon 1943
IMES, Birney III 2072
IMLAY, Theron 1049, 2144
IMMENDORFF, Jorg 1575, 2805
IMMERMAN, Marsha 1365
IMPERT, Walt 1327
IMPIGLIA, Giancarlo 1719, 2761, 2931
INBERG, Cheryl 2995
INCANDELA, Gerald 2457
INCE, J. M. 1051
INDIANA, Robert 1826, 1894, 2684, 3355, 3472
INGALLS, Eve 2802
INGEBRAND, Mary 2052
INGHAM, William 3420
INGLE, John Stuart 2829
INGLI, Perry 2052
INGRAM, Jerry 3045
INGRAM, Judith 3153, 3315
INK, Jack 3003
INNEREST, Mark 2632
INNERFIELD, Steven 2850
INOKUMA, Genichiro 1605
INUKPUK, Johnny 2361
IONESCO 3097
IONESCU, George 3238
IPPOLITO, Angelo 2411
IPSEN, Kent 2925
IRELAND, David 1276
IRELAND, Michael 2144
IRELAND, Patrick 2457
IRLAND, Basia 2882
IRONS, Anne 1608
IRVINE, William 3118
IRVING, Roberta 1388
IRWIN, Bill 1624
IRWIN, Don 3314
IRWIN, Lani 1445
IRWIN, Ralph 1079
IRWIN, Robert 1193, 1339, 2718
ISAACS, Ron 2634
ISAACSON, Lynn 2705
ISENBERG, David 1814
ISERMANN, Jim 1162
ISHAM, Sheila 1470, 2297
ISIA 2917
ISLER, Heinz 2335
ISOZAKI, Arata 1248, 2809
ISRAEL, Margaret 2454
ISRUMMER, Miriam 2762
ITAMI, Michi 1295, 1797
ITATANI, Michiko 1659
ITCHKAWICH, David 2089
ITO 2034
ITO, Miyoko 1690, 2631
ITO, Tatsuo 1606
ITTER, Diane 1043, 3121, 3348
ITTER, William 1732
IVERSEN, Earl 1806
IVES, Norman 1995
IVEY, William 3441
IWAMI, Reika 2887
IWATA, Kiyomi 2733
IZQUIERDO, Manuel 3079
IZU, David 1293

J

JACHNA, Joseph 2218, 2919
JACKA, Peter 1606
JACKLIN, Bill 2660
JACKMAN, Sandra 1127, 2628
JACKSON, Billy Morrow 1451
JACKSON, Carolyn Hayward 3164
JACKSON, Charles 3173
JACKSON, Elizabeth 1535
JACKSON, Elsie 2112
JACKSON, Harry 1061, 1226, 2055, 2799, 3483
JACKSON, Herb 1933, 2192, 2685, 2860, 2960, 3019
JACKSON, James 1406
JACKSON, Jessica 1062
JACKSON, John 3149
JACKSON, Mark 1720
JACKSON, Michael 2007
JACKSON, Oliver 1209, 1287
JACKSON, Richard 1146, 1720
JACKSON, Steven 2118
JACKSON, Suzanne 1128
JACKSON, William Henry 2645
JACKSON, Woody 1405
JACKSON-EDWARDS, Hilary 1764
JACOB, Alexandre 3101, 3140
JACOB, Ned 1038
JACOBI, Lotte 1936, 2155, 2276, 2335, 3379
JACOBS, Elliott 2386
JACOBS, Fern 1114
JACOBS, Jim 1478, 1939, 2546, 3082
JACOBS, Joy 3020, 3028
JACOBS, Mimi 2031
JACOBS, Miriam 2371
JACOBSEN, Antonio 2753
JACOBSEN, Kathy 2615
JACOBSEN, Ray 1041
JACOBSHAGEN, Keith 1251, 1715, 2058, 2084, 2779
JACOBSON, D. R. 2371
JACOBSON, Gloria 1226
JACOULET, Paul 1220, 2704
JACOX, Larry 2150
JACQUARD, Jerald 1632
JACQUEMON, Pierre 2349
JACQUES, Jan 2171, 2939
JACQUES, Michael 1919, 1944, 3385, 3397
JACQUES, Russell 3286
JACQUETTE, Yvonne 2362
JAEGER, Tamara 3027
JÄGER, Gottfried 2091
JAHN, Greg 2124
JAHN, Helmut 1731
JAHNKE, William 1332, 2145
JAKESEVIC, Nenad 1481
JALONA 2636
JAMES, Christopher 1896, 1901, 1931, 3417
JAMES, Clayton 3428
JAMES, Dodie 2963
JAMES, Dolores 2963
JAMES, Frederick 1816
JAMES, George 1327
JAMES, Terrell 3312
JAMESON, Lisa 3004
JAMIESON, Gail 2815
JAMIESON, Mitchell 1434
JAMISON, Philip 2159, 3100
JAMPOL, Glenn 1691
JANAK, Alois 2826
JANDA, Charles V. 3417
JANG, Deborah 1353
JANIS, Don 1742
JANNETTI, Tony 2715
JANOWITZ, Joel 1937
JANSEM, Jean 2088
JANSEN-LLEWELYN, Gloria 2171
JANSEN, Angela 2715
JANSEN, Catherine 3125
JANSEN, Muriel 2280
JANSHESKI, David 2239
JANSON, Agnes 2733
JANSONS, Andrew 1478
JANSSEN, Horst 1730
JANZ, Robert 1337, 1338
JARAMILLO, Maria de la Paz 2602
JARAMILLO, Virginia 1802
JARDIN, Eugéne 1151
JARRETT, Lauren 2310
JARVI, Unto 1821
JARVIS, John 3363, 3371, 3376
JARVIS, Margie 1450
JASHINSKY, Judy 1996
JASPER, William 2131
JAUDON, Valerie 1138, 2610
JAVIER, Maximino 1691
JAWLENSKY, Alexej 2595, 2771
JEFFERSON, Jack 1218, 1264
JEFFRESS, Charles 1810, 3281
JEFFRIES, Richard 2158
JEFFY, Dennis 2261
JEHLE, Bill 1327
JELLERSON, Darline 1760
JEMISON, Dick 1001, 1044, 1045, 1357
JENCKS, Penelope 1947
JENDRZEJEWSKI, Andrew 1775
JENKINS, Connie 1161
JENKINS, Jaquelin 1822, 1823
JENKINS, Karen Jean 1331
JENKINS, Keily 2529
JENKINS, Larry 1079
JENKINS, Paul 1066, 1184, 1484, 1496, 1543, 1724, 1797, 1826, 1930, 1999, 2039, 2041, 2041, 2048, 2551, 2921, 3011, 3267
JENKINS, Paul Ripley 3411, 3433
JENKINS, Tom 1324
JENNEY, Neil 1148
JENNINGS, Comer 1572
JENNINGS, William Scott 1057, 2250
JENNIS, Stevan 2834, 2848
JENSEN, Alfred 1240
JENSEN, Arne 3421
JENSEN, Bill 2855
JENSEN, Clay 1213, 1331, 1808
JENSEN, Eric 1041, 2296
JENSEN, Gendron 2054
JENSEN, Leo 1407, 1909
JENSEN, Margot Strand 1761
JENSEN, Marvin 2737
JENSEN, P.G. 2259
JENSHEL, Len 1129, 1896
JENSON, Gendron 2047
JENSON, Mike 2124
JEPSON, Steve 1584
JEREMENKO, Ted 2310, 2726
JERGENS, Robert 3021
JERNBERG, Katherine 1268
JERVIS, Margie 1163
JERZY, Richard 2010
JESS 2709
JESSEL 1213
JESSIMAN, John 2939
JESSUP, Fred 1667
JESSUP, Robert 1047, 1575, 2794
JET, Jimmy 3430
JETER, William 2049
JEYNES, Paul 2169
JIM, Albert 2237
JIMENEZ, Carlie 1302
JIMENEZ, Luis 1343, 1371
JIRKA, Brad 3217
JOACHIM, Katy 3052
JOANEN, Elizabeth B. 1849
JOB, Stefani 3300
JOELSON, Suzanne 2711, 3149
JOFFE-BOUSKA, Marcia 2140
JOHANNINGMEIER, Robert 1052
JOHANSON, Patricia 2500
JOHN HOLLAND, Robert 2295
JOHN, Grace Spaulding 3301
JOHN, Gwen 1330, 2465
JOHN, Jiri 1640
JOHNQUEST, Gilbert 1169
JOHNS, Christopher 1859
JOHNS, David 1026
JOHNS, Jasper 1152, 1167, 1335, 1940, 1946, 2429, 2430, 2431, 2556, 2582, 2684, 2803, 2868, 3200, 3317
JOHNS, Joan 2900
JOHNSON, Andrew 3069
JOHNSON, Bruce 1217
JOHNSON, Buffie 1128
JOHNSON, C. R. 3460
JOHNSON, Cecile 2343
JOHNSON, Cletus 1335, 2430
JOHNSON, Clifford 1087
JOHNSON, d'Elaine 3411
JOHNSON, Daniel 2564
JOHNSON, David 1643, 2047
JOHNSON, Douglas 2044, 2236, 2265
JOHNSON, Elva 1079
JOHNSON, Erick 1372
JOHNSON, Evelyn 1713, 2916
JOHNSON, Gregory 1590
JOHNSON, Guy 2670
JOHNSON, Harvey 2254

VOL
71
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

JOHNSON, Isabelle 2133
JOHNSON, James 2263, 3314
JOHNSON, James N. 1251
JOHNSON, Joe 3295
JOHNSON, Johnny 3397
JOHNSON, Kathie 3004
JOHNSON, Keith 1403
JOHNSON, Larry 2963
JOHNSON, Lester 1921, 2008, 2019, 2551
JOHNSON, Liz 1378
JOHNSON, Lois M. 1026, 1713, 3131
JOHNSON, Lucas 3324
JOHNSON, Mac 1612
JOHNSON, Martin 1690, 2631
JOHNSON, Marylee 1236
JOHNSON, Mel 3439
JOHNSON, Nancy 3420
JOHNSON, Oliver 2539
JOHNSON, Pam 2081
JOHNSON, Patricia Whitty 1867, 2738
JOHNSON, Paul 2332
JOHNSON, Phillip 3134
JOHNSON, Ralph 1229, 1319, 2738
JOHNSON, Richard 3336
JOHNSON, Richard A. 1867
JOHNSON, Robert 2059
JOHNSON, Ruth Oseid 1036
JOHNSON, Sally 2054
JOHNSON, Seard 2163
JOHNSON, Shirley 2098
JOHNSON, Suellen 3082
JOHNSON, Terry 3361
JOHNSON, Whitman 2240
JOHNSON, William H. 1463
JOHNSON-ROSS, Robyn 1700
JOHNSTON, Alda 3066
JOHNSTON, David 2166
JOHNSTON, James 3164
JOHNSTON, Marius 1164
JOHNSTON, Richard 1046
JOHNSTON, Robert 1412
JOHNSTON, Ynez 1171, 1244, 1730
JOINER, Barbara 1545
JOJOLA, Debbie 2237
JOKERST, James 2131
JOKINEN, David 1679
JOLLEY, Donal 1803
JOLLEY, Richard 1545, 1770, 3205
JOLLY, Joanne 1935
JON, Ann 2857
JONAS, Joan 1105, 1207
JONES, Allen 3328
JONES, Benjamin 1820, 2174
JONES, Betsy 2996
JONES, Bradley 2018
JONES, Burl 3445
JONES, Carroll III 2207
JONES, Carroll N. 2159
JONES, Charles 3289, 3354
JONES, Dennis 1674
JONES, Donna 1079
JONES, Earl 3371, 3373, 3374
JONES, Elly 2888
JONES, Fay 3433
JONES, Frank 1693
JONES, Franklin 2343
JONES, James W. 3399
JONES, Jim 3373
JONES, Judy 3212
JONES, Kent 2260
JONES, Liza 3075
JONES, Malcolm 1116
JONES, Marvin 3427
JONES, Mary 1179, 1633
JONES, Myrtle 1584
JONES, Nancy Louise 1112, 1143
JONES, Nathan 3286
JONES, Otis 3320
JONES, Philip 2800
JONES, Robert C. 3433
JONES, Ruthe 3059
JONES, Sandy 1079
JONES, Seitu 2049
JONES, Steve 3066
JONES, Suzanne 2705
JONES, Thomas William 3420
JONES, Tom 3318
JONES, Tony-Ray 2643
JONES, Trevor 2931
JONES, W. Louis 1546, 2635
JONSON, Raymond 2222
JONSSON, Jack 1682
JORDAN, Eve 2815
JORDAN, Harry 2140
JORDAN, Jack 2144
JORDAN, Kevin 3033
JORDAN, Lawrence 3200
JORDAN, Lynne 2144
JORDAN, Pete 3442
JORDAN, Robert 2242, 2524
JORDON, Richard 3164
JORGENSEN, Linda 1735
JORN, Asger 1497, 2569, 2644
JOSEPH, Ben 2186
JOSEPH, Judith 1685
JOSEPH, Nathan Slate 2353, 2646
JOSEPHSON, Kenneth 1731
JOSEPHSON, Laura 1327
JOSHI, Satish 2730
JOSHUA, Lee 3052, 3061
JOST, Barbara 2173
JOY, David 2216, 2257
JOYCE, David 3069, 3093
JOYCE, Kacey 3069
JOYCE, Marshall 1035
JUAREZ, Claudio 2011, 2651, 2700
JUAREZ, Roberto 2678
JUDD, DeForrest 3291
JUDD, Donald 1148, 1304, 1335, 1731, 2429, 2430, 2822, 3317
JUDGE, Mary Frances 2052, 3281, 3330
JUDISH, Ron 1372
JUDSON, George 1027
JUDSON, Jeannette 2629
JUDY, Greg 3066
JUDYCKI, Maggie 1471
JULIAN, Joanne 1134
JULIAN, June 1372
JULIAN, Peter 3265
JULIANO, Louis 1275
JUNG, Dieter 2555, 2772
JUNGA, Hans 2937
JUNGA, Ingrid 2937
JUNGNICKEL, Ludwig Heinrich 2536
JUPA, Gregg 2183
JURINICH, Anna 2726
JURNEY, Donald 1286, 2286
JURYSTA, Gary 2915
JUSTER, Randy 2882
JUSTIS, Gary 1659, 1705, 1749
JUSTUS, Joyce 1837
JUSTUS, Wayne 2144
JUSZCZYK, James 3020
JUVONEN, Peter 3081

K

KABRIEL, Joseph 1909
KACERE, John 2580
KACHADOORIAN, Zubel 1998
KADAJ, Lila 2020
KADAR, Bela 1091
KADISH, Daniel 2174, 2183
KADISH, Reuben 2411
KADISHMAN, Menashe 1476
KADISHMAN, Moshe 3237
KADONAGA, Kazuo 1188
KADOWAKI, Yuriko 1740
KAELIN, Charles 3007
KAFKA, Cestmir 1640
KAFKA, George 3009
KAGAN, Lynne 1473, 3399
KAHLE, Gary 1814
KAHN, Deborah 2413
KAHN, Erika 1713, 2815
KAHN, Gary 2583
KAHN, Jane 2329
KAHN, John 2329
KAHN, Joseph 2593
KAHN, Louis 2500, 3122
KAHN, Max 1664
KAHN, Steve 3306
KAHN, Susan 2350
KAHN, Wolf 1491, 1946, 2152, 2168, 2411, 2926, 2948, 3243, 3318, 3464
KAIMAN, Charles 2405
KAIN, Jay 3389
KAINEN, Jacob 1454, 1840, 2472
KAISER VOGEL, Susan 1312, 1339
KAISER, Ben 1031, 1172, 1261, 3275
KAISER, Guy 3033
KAISERMAN-ROTH, Ghitta 1517
KAISH, Luise 2814
~~KAISH, Morton~~ 2814
KAJITANI, Ban 1301
KAKAS, Chris ~~1012, 1743~~
KAKS, Olle 2370
KAKUDA, Dick 1244
KALDIS, Aristodemos 1902, 2635, 2637
KALICK, Charles 3131
KALINA, Richard 2467
KALISCH, Marco 3098
KALISH, Lionel 2350
KALLAN, Linda 1273
KALLMAN, Curt 1183
KALLWAIT, Richard 2081
KALTENBACH, Steve 1353
KAMERLING, Ellen 1691
KAMIHIRA, Ben 3114
KAMINEN, Marjukka 2800
KAMY, Deborah 1298
KAN, Diana 1504, 1828
KAN, Kit-Keung 1473
KANDINSKY, Wassily 1184, 1291, 1631, 2466, 2497, 2569, 2595, 2642, 3086
KANDO, Ata 1231
KANE, Bill 1031, 1058, 1261, 3275
KANE, Bob 1128
KANE, Jeanne Tamisea 2987, 2995
KANE, Michael 2995
KANE, Paul 3134, 3135
KANE, Peggy 1422, 1912
KANE, Richard 2904
KANEKO, Fumiyo 3121
KANEKO, Jun 1691, 1808, 2141, 3121, 3324
KANESHIRO, Dawn 2153
KANGAS, Gene 3020
KANOVITZ, Howard 2767, 2928
KANSKY, Igor de 3288
KAPATOF, Bob 1102
KAPAUN, Anita L. 2990, 2995
KAPLAN, Anatoli 1944, 3127
KAPLAN, Carol 1633
KAPLAN, Enid 1043
KAPLAN, Iris 2752
KAPLAN, Leo 2329, 2916
KAPLAN, Marilyn 2901
KAPLAN, R.L. 2833
KAPLAN, Sandra 1368, 1791
KAPLINSKI, Buffalo 1035, 1811
KAPLOWITZ, Caroline Gassner 2324
KAPOOR, Anish 2552
KAPP, David 2711
KAPP, Gary 1048, 3363, 3366, 3376
KAPUTOF, Robert 1259
KARANT, Barbara 1896
KARAS 1577
KARASUDA, Setsko 1293
KARDESTUNCER, Sermin 2857
KARDON, Dennis 2834
KARELLA, Marina 2605
KARHU, Clifton 2887
KARINA, Elena 1006
KARLSEN, Anne Marie 1176
KARNES, Karen 2571, 3158, 3159, 3313
KARNOFSKY, Mollyne 2513
KAROL, Diane 2505
KAROLY, Miriam 1174
KARP, Aaron 1047, 1371, 2222, 2224, 2400, 3265, 3308
KARPEL, Eli 1268, 1346, 1542
KARPOWICZ, Terrence 1632, 1733
KARSH, Yousef 1100, 1540, 1869, 3195
KARSHIS, Phil 2214
KARVER, Sherry 1102
KARWELIS, Don 1202
KARWOSKI, Richard 2038, 2310, 2890
KARY, Norman 3268
KASEN, Judith 1633
KASERMAN, Roberta 3093
KASIA 2498
KASPRZYCKI, Jan 2498
KASS, Deborah 2393
KASS, Jacob 1492, 2818
KASS, Ray 2818
KASSEL, Barbara 2659
KASSEL, David 2579
KASSIRER, Norma 2296
KASTEN, Barbara 2335
KASTEN, Karl 1278
KASTEN, Sherry Zvares 1435
KASTNER, Janet 3348
KASZAS, Alexander 2962, 2968
KATANO, Marc 1306
KATAYAMA, Toshi 1973
KATONA, Robert 1814
KATSIAFICAS, Diane 3437
KATZ, Alex 1432, 1477, 1680, 1931, 2003, 2058, 2660, 2678, 2822, 3135, 3333
KATZ, April 2140
KATZ, Barbara 2904
KATZ, Brenda 1864
KATZ, Elaine 1772
KATZ, Leandro 2868, 2885
KATZ, Louis 2020
KATZ, Lynda 1849
KATZ, Mel 3079, 3418
KATZ, Nathan 2901
KATZ, Robin 2489
KATZ, William P. 2752, 3180
KATZEN, Lila 2163, 2767
KATZMAN, Herbert 2481
KATZMAN, Marshall 2104
KAUFFMAN, Craig 1132, 1136, 1263, 2406, 3403
KAUFMAN, Emily 1674
KAUFMAN, Jane 2400
KAUFMAN, Lois 3173
KAUFMAN, Madeleine 2496
KAUFMAN, Stuart 1480
KAUL, Marley 2051
KAULA, William J. 1926, 2360
KAULITZ, Garry 1832
KAUR, Nirmal 3430
KAVANAGH, Brian 1474, 1906
KAVANAGH, Ursala 1633
KAWA, Florence 1791
KAWADA, Kan 2887
KAWAI, Koji 2800
KAWALEROWICZ, Marzena 2883
KAWECKI, Jean 2177
KAY, Andy 3011
KAY, David 1935
KAY, James 1621
KAY, Nancy 1183
KAY, Reed 1921
KAYE, Elroye 2237
KAYE, George 2894
KAYE, Hal 1481
KAYE, Judy 2014
KAYEM, Nina 2800
KAYIGA, Kofi 1941
KAZ, Nat 2732
KAZANJIAN, Milano 1134
KEANE, Margaret 1601
KEARNEY, John 1657
KEARNEY, Kevin 1298
KEATING, Andrew 3418
KEATING, Marilyn 3123
KEATING, Tim 1399
KEATON, Diane 2584
KECK, Hardu 1535
KECK, Pat 1919
KEDEM, Harel 1973
KEE, Henry Wo Yue 1009, 1913, 3007, 3101, 3140, 3322
KEELAN, Margaret 1331
KEELEY, Shelagh 2004
KEENS, David 1086
KEERL, Bayat 2679
KEETER, Russell 2015
KEETMAN, Peter 3303
KEEVER, Kim 1836
KEFALOS, Andromahi P. 2800, 2827
KEHLMANN, Robert 1293
KEIGER, Charles 1590
KEIMIG, Gary 3481
KEISTER, Steven 1148, 2406
KEITH, Jeffrey 1368
KEITH, William 1180
KEIZER, Susan 1331
KELEHER, Murney 3384
KELLAS, Judi Geer 1805
KELLER, Bridgitte 2629
KELLER, Frank 2460
KELLER, Harold 2199
KELLER, Helen 1011
KELLER, Kathe 1319
KELLER, Norman 2984
KELLERS, Michael 3028
KELLEY FAMILY 1623
KELLEY, David 1933, 2685
KELLEY, Frank 2997
KELLEY, Mike 1133, 1146, 2673, 3069
KELLEY, Ramon 1814, 2128, 2252, 3322
KELLEY, Richard 1691
KELLOUGH, Jimmy 3313
KELLY, Cecilia Ann 1778
KELLY, Ellsworth 1148, 1152, 1167, 1335, 2058, 2099, 2406, 2429, 2430, 2431, 2868, 3317, 3400
KELLY, Kent 1784
KELLY, Leo 2026
KELLY, Lynn 2854
KELLY, Mary Anne 1785
KELLY, Michael 3069
KELLY, Patrick 3020
KELLY, Robert 1973
KELLY, Spencer 2007
KELLY, Tim 2916
KELLY, William 3043
KELMENSON, Lita 2904
KELPE, Paul 1182
KELSEY-BAKER, Juanita 1819
KELSEY, Greg 2054
KEMBLE, Richard 2186
KEMENYFFY, Steven 1743, 2196, 2247, 2597, 2925, 3106
KEMENYFFY, Susan 1743, 2196, 2247, 2597, 2925, 3106
KEMP, Flo 2889
KEMP, Tom 3000
KEMPES, James 2242, 2257
KENDALL, Margarida 1468
KENDIS, Maggie 1226
KENDRICK, Mel 2857, 2859, 3287
KENEALY, Mary 1399
KENKNIGHT, Frederick 1619
KENNA, Michael 1101, 1306, 3417
KENNEDY, Barbara 1265
KENNEDY, Greg 2148
KENNEDY, Kate 2557
KENNEDY, Michael 1301
KENNER, Grant F. 1756
KENNEY, Dorothy 2205
KENNEY, Estelle 1732
KENNEY, James 1169
KENNEY, Leo 3420
KENNY, Kay 2516
KENNY, Steve 2784
KENNY, Tom 1643, 2421
KENSETT, John F. 2389, 2877
KENT, Babs 2733, 2904
KENT, Caroline 1327
KENT, Claude 1134, 1266, 1654
KENT, Corita 3041
KENT, Douglas 2483
KENT, Melanie Taylor 2864
KENT, Nigel 2392
KENT, Rockwell 1908, 2866, 2899
KENWORTHY, Jonathan 2627
KENYON, Henry 2038
KEOGH, Denis 1019
KEOGH, Mary 2140
KEPALAS, Elena 2730
KEPES, Gyorgy 1306, 1544, 1921, 2773
KEPETS, Hugh 1715, 2592, 2715, 3240
KEPHART, Jac 1379
KEPLER, Dutch 1854
KEPPLEMAN, John 1151, 1296
KERKAM, Earl 2008
KERKOVIUS, Ruth 3385
KERLAN, Midge 2336
KERLIN, Sherry 2580
KERN, Arthur 1864

KERN, Gail 2310
KERN, Nathan 1877
KERNER, Lurene 2043
KERNS, Ed 2500, 3143
KERRIE, Ted 1136
KERRIGAN, Maurie 3125
KERSLAKE, Ken 1026
KERSTEIN, Vivian 1159
KERSWILL, Roy 2263
KERTESZ, Andre 1203, 1683, 1950, 2002, 2578, 2751, 2907, 3396
KESL, Lennie 1832
KESLER, Scott 1902
KESLING, Lewis 3175
KESSLER, Alan 1654, 1808
KESSLER, Anne 1761
KESSLER, Charles 1134
KESSLER, David 1044, 1045, 1909, 2236
KESTER, Mel 2975
KETARKUS, Karin 3460
KETCHMAN, Nancy 1406
KETTUNEN, Judith Fels 2262
KEUSSES, Anne-Marie 2636
KEVORKIAN, Richard 3385
KEYES, David 3428
KEYSER, Esther 3360
KEYSER, Robert 3131
KEZYS, Algimantas 1671
KHEEL, Constance 2881
KHOURI, Sari 2031
KHUDYAKOV, Henry 2450
KIDD, Richard 2743
KIDD, Robert L. 2006
KIEFER, Anselm 2410, 2657, 2805
KIEFF 1748, 1944, 2752
KIELKOPF, James 2057, 2064
KIELKOPH, Jackie 2062
KIENBUSCH, William 2638
KIENHOLZ, Edward 1152, 1201, 1249, 1337, 1338, 1459
KIENHOLZ, Nancy Reddin 1201, 1249, 1337, 1338
KIERMAIER, Constance 1387
KIESLER, Frederick 2701
KIFF, Ken 2833
KIKUCHI-YNGOJO, Alan 1105, 1319, 2417
KIKUCHI, Makiko 2857
KILAND, Lance 1700
KILB, Jenny 1059
KILBORN, Stephen 2216
KILBY, Tim 2984
KILGORE, Andrew 1079, 1082
KILLEEN, Michael 1680
KILLMASTER, John 2812, 3080
KILPATRICK, Stephen 2072
KILPATRICK, Tobey 3415
KILPER, Dennis 3388
KIM, Leo 2996
KIM, Po 1664
KIM, Tschang-yeul 2814
KIM, Wonsook 2362
KIM, Woong 2857
KIM, Yong-Kyung 2544
KIMBALL, Anton 3084
KIMBALL, Katherine 1316
KIMBALL, Ricki 1213
KIMES, Don 2744
KIMMEL, Edward 2904
KIMMICH, John 1650
KIMURA, Fumiko 3442
KIMURA, Risaburo 2502
KINDERMAN, Helmo 2899
KING, Bruce 2232
KING, David 1244
KING, Dawn 3205
KING, Elizabeth 1116
KING, Erika 1487, 1514
KING, Gary 2265
KING, H. J. Yend 1051
KING, Jay 1655, 1719, 1739
KING, Jeremy 2439
KING, Linda 1629, 1700, 1791
KING, Mark 1524
KING, Myrtle Jones 1595
KING, Nicholas 1236
KING, Paul 2724
KING, Ray 2141
KING, Tony 2580
KING, William 1477, 2100, 2215, 2481, 2928
KING, Wilma 1471
KINGDON, Brent 1998
KINGETSU, Shoko 2800
KINGMAN, Steve 1327
KINGSBURY, Anne 3465
KINGTON, Brent 1674, 1736
KINKADE, Nona 1819
KINKADE, Thomas 1115
KINKADE, W.T. 1458
KINKEL, Joe 1377
KINLEY, Peter 1158
KINNE, Carol 2840
KINNEBREW, Joseph 2024
KINNEE, Sandy 1046, 1234, 1343, 1371, 1809, 1831, 2051, 2715, 3106
KINNEY, Edward 1496
KINSLOW, Paul 2252
KINSTLER, Everett Raymond 2563, 2738
KINTZLER, David 1388
KINZ, Ree 1037
KIPNISS, Robert 1037, 1444, 1647, 1755, 1768, 1807, 2043, 2147, 2592, 2724, 2826, 2892, 3169, 3285, 3450
KIPP, Lyman 1031, 1656, 2297
KIRBY, Amanda 1774
KIRBY, James 3399
KIRBY, Kent 1713
KIRCHNER-MCDONALD, Kristen 1837
KIRCHNER, Eiii 1631
KIRCHNER, Ernst Ludwig 1730
KIRIACON, Dolores 2287
KIRILI, Alain 2805
KIRK, Brian 1473
KIRK, Jerome 1183, 1296, 2236, 2266
KIRKEBY, Per 1575
KIRKLAND, Larry 3166
KIRKLAND, Vance 1368, 1814
KIRKPATRICK, Joey 1163, 1924, 3420
KIRSCHBAUM, Robert 2183
KIRSCHENBAUM, Bernard 2594
KIRSTEN-DAIENSAI, Richard 3426
KIRSTEN, Nicholas 3426, 3436
KIRYLUK, Mark 1366
KISH, Ed 2280
KISH, Eleanor M. 2363
KISHNER, Mel 1068, 1366
KISHPAUGH, Barry 3025
KISLING, Moise 1091
KITAJ, R.B. 2660
KITAOKA, Fumio 2887
KITCHELL, Peter 1144, 1241, 1258, 1768, 2438
KITCHEN, Robert 2409, 2816
KITO, Masando 1301
KITSON, Jack 3190
KITTAY, Harriet 1481, 2825
KITTERLE, Greg 1935
KITTOCK, Muriel 2124
KITTREDGE, Nancy 1027, 1113, 1682
KITTSON, Cookie 2121
KIZIK, Roger 1952
KJAER, Ruth 3460
KLAASSEN, Wil 2444
KLABUNDE, Charles 1434, 2683, 2883, 2892
KLARICK, Dean 2113
KLAUBA, George 1732
KLAUBER, Rick 2716
KLAUCK, Bruce 2915
KLAUSNER, Lisa 1514
KLAVEN, Marvin 1735
KLEBER, John 1047
KLEE, Paul 1631, 1730, 2642, 2771, 2773
KLEEMANN, Ron 2670, 3310
KLEIBER, Hans 2129
KLEID, Tania 1116
KLEIMAN, George 1709
KLEIN, Aart 3303
KLEIN, Doris 2730
KLEIN, Jody 1437, 1966
KLEIN, Karen Anne 2038
KLEIN, Lynn 1241
KLEIN, Margeaux 1275
KLEIN, Pat 1209, 1306
KLEIN, Peyton 3405
KLEIN, Sheila 3430
KLEIN, Stan 1654
KLEIN, Steve 2070
KLEIN, William 2650
KLEIN, Yves 1704, 2428, 2546, 2569, 3329
KLEINBERG, Jack 1130
KLEINHOLZ, Frank 1522, 1544, 2553
KLEINMAN, Alyce Chaikin 1404
KLEINMAN, Art 1639, 2096
KLEINROCK, Sybil 2483
KLEINSCHMIDT, Robert 3361, 3374
KLEINSMITH, Gene 3389
KLEMENT, Vera 1644, 2434
KLENSCH, June 2705
KLEWICKI, Pat 2183
KLEZMER, Michael 1497
KLIMT, Gustav 1631, 2536, 2771
KLINE, Clinton 1343
KLINE, Franz 2099, 2329
KLINE, Hans 2286, 2310
KLINE, James 1435
KLINGER, Max 1448, 2512, 2792
KLINGHOFFER, Lisa 2762
KLINGMAN, Berry 3251
KLINT, Videke 2370
KLIPPER, Stuart 2065
KLIX, Russell 2001
KLOSS, Gene 1038, 2258
KLOTH, Mark A. 2794
KLOTS, Trafford 2343
KLOTZ, Pat 1110
KLOTZ-REILLY, Suzanne 1044, 1045, 1298, 1514, 1626, 1806, 2236, 3256
KLUCK, Kevin L. 1756
KLUGE, Constantin 1667
KLUGMAN, Adolph 1810
KLUSEMANN, George 2555
KLUYTENAAR, Raymond 2934
KNAACK, Don 1334
KNADLER, Jim 3481
KNAPP, Candace 3311
KNAPP, Cynthia 3205
KNAPP, Dina 1516
KNAPP, Richard 2218
KNATHS, Karl 2278, 2938
KNAUSS, Lewis 3121, 3348
KNEE, Ernest 1355
KNEELAND, Tomas 2316
KNELL, Fay Jean Hooker 3246
KNEPPER, Benjamin 3024
KNIAZZAH, Carolyn Refsnes 1929
KNIFFIN, Gus 1028
KNIGHT, Alice 1623
KNIGHT, Gwen 3433
KNIGHT, Ina 1764
KNIGHT, Jack 1935
KNIGHT, Steve 2254
KNIGHT, Val 2124
KNIGHT, Warren 2052
KNIGIN, Michael 2607, 2831
KNIPSCHER, Gerald 2576
KNODEL, Gerhardt 2013
KNOOP, Jan 3033
KNOPF, Lisa 2897
KNOPF, Nellie 1070
KNOTT, Dee 2036
KNOTTER, Paul 1176
KNOWLES, Alison 2031, 2513
KNOWLES, Christopher 2804
KNOWLES, Dorothy 2852
KNOWLES, James 1641
KNOWLTON, Grace 2399, 2578
KNOX-LEET, Wendy 2514, 2546
KNUDSON, Robert 1048
KNUTILA, John 2726
KNUTSON, Joy Flynn 2990
KNUTSON, Larry 2132
KNUTSON, Myke 2990
KNUTSSON, Anders 2042
KOBAYASHI, Masakazu 1241
KOBAYASHI, Milt 1382
KOBERLING, Bernd 2707
KOBLAND, Ken 2909
KOBLISCHEK, Ingo 2189
KOBLITZ, Karen 2004, 2082, 2404
KOCH, Arthur 3267
KOCH, Jeanne 3267
KOCH, John 2638
KOCH, Lewis 2520
KOCH, Phil 1902
KOCHMAN, Alexandra 1725
KOCK, Carl 1700
KODANI, Mia 1114, 1437, 2930
KODET, Kristian 2853
KOEGEL, John 1578
KOEHLER, Henry 1839
KOELZER, Jay 2072
KOENIG, Catherine 2299, 2583, 2916
KOENIG, Emily 3074
KOENIG, Fritz 2814
KOENIG, John Franklin 1286, 1670
KOENIG, Leonard 2139
KOENIGSTEIN, W. 2492
KOERNER, Henry 3169
KOERNER, W.H.D. 3353
KOGAN, Deborah 2483, 3153
KOGAN, Moisey 2692
KOGELNIK, Kiki 2607
KOH-DO, Nippon 2704
KOHL, Barbara 1515, 3464, 3472
KOHL, Jeff 1793
KOHL, Jerome 2980
KOHLEM, Horst 1512
KOHLHOFER, Christof 2748
KOHLMEYER, Ida 1045, 1066, 1293, 1578, 1878, 2236, 2551, 3240, 3324
KOHN, Adolph 1088
KOHN, Beatriz 2601
KOHN, Bill 2096
KOHN, Gabe 1182
KOHN, Merry 1760
KOHN, Misch 1451, 1740
KOHSO, Iwasaburo 2857
KOINIS, Joan 1682
KOKOSCHKA, Oskar 1174, 1631, 2536, 2660
KOLAR, Jiri 1680, 1953, 2533, 2871
KOLARICH, June 2197
KOLB, John 3226
KOLBERG, Kirk 1994
KOLBOWSKI, Sylvia 2296
KOLDA, Helena 2596
KOLDEN, Robert 3433
KOLESNIKOV, Sergey 2830
KOLIBAL, Stanislav 2580
KOLLIKER, William 3290
KOLLOCK, John 1501
KOLLWITZ, Kathe 1184, 1631, 2010, 2536, 2989
KOLNIK, Paul 1719
KOLOK, Bill 1775
KOMAR/MELAMID 2504
KOMARIN, Gary 1181, 1535, 2464, 3296, 3318
KOMER, Gerry 3385
KOMODORE, Bill 3271
KOMOSKI, Bill 2552
KONDO, Tatsuo 1301
KONDOS, Gregory 1229
KONONOV, Igor 2380
KONOPKA, Joseph 1909
KONRAD, Adolph 2169
KONTNY, Mario 1814
KONTNY, Pawel 1814
KONYHA, Suzanna 2015
KOOLE, Thomas 2082
KOONS, Nancy 1792
KOPAC, Slavko 1670, 3310
KOPECEK, Vera 1046
KOPITZKE, David A. 3463
KOPPELMAN, Chaim 2831
KOPPELMAN, Dorothy 2831
KOR, Paul 2416
KORAB, Balthazar 1770, 2006
KORELL, Karen 2124
KORELL, Phil 2124
KOREN, Edward 2155, 2276, 2481
KORIBANICS, Andrei 2160
KORMAN, Harriet 2378, 2871
KORN, Kathy 1079
KORNFELD, Phyllis 2257
KOROLUCK, Jean 2280
KORPI, Neil 2502
KORTEBEIN, Bruce 1244
KORTLANDER, William 2570
KOS, Paul 2153
KOSCIANSKI, Leonard 1324, 2631
KOSH, Neil 3114
KOSLOSKI, Tony 1406
KOSMACHOV, Vadim 1566
KOSS, Allen 3135
KOSS, Gene 1576, 1849, 1878
KOSSOFF, Leon 1337, 1338, 2589, 2608
KOSTABI, Mark 1133, 2788
KOSTELANETZ, Richard 2081, 2091
KOSTER, David 2971
KOSUGE, Michihiro 3076
KOSUTH, Joseph 2429, 2430
KOTCHAR, Ervand 1145
KOTIN, Albert 2208
KOUDELKA, Josef 1257
KOUKLIS, Jean 1232
KOULERMOS, Panos 1170
KOUNELLIS, Jannis 1207, 1285, 2358, 2805
KOURSAROS, Harry 2570
KOUTROULIS, Aris 1053, 1144, 2000
KOVACHEVICH, Thomas 1720
KOVACS, Andrea 2321, 2371
KOVICH, Loren 2124
KOWALSKI, Barbara 1641
KOWALSKI, Dennis 1659
KOWALSKI, Libby 1640
KOWALSKI, Piotr 2504
KOWERKO, Alexandra 1725
KOWERT, Hank 3075
KOZIKOWSKI, Janusz 1026, 2216, 2230
KOZIKOWSKI, Nancy 1026, 2230
KOZLOFF, Joyce 1207, 1514, 2143, 2552
KOZLOFF, Max 3195
KOZLOW, Richard 1070, 1999, 2011
KOZO 2887
KOZO, Inque 3316
KRACHT, Fritz André 2392
KRACZYNA, Swietlan 2960
KRAEMER, Carol Bermel 2197
KRAEMER, Nancy Berger 2177
KRAFFT, Anne 2031
KRAFT, Grace 1533, 2239
KRAFT, Jim 3428
KRAFT, Polly 2928
KRAISLER, David 1142, 1296, 2236
KRAMER, Harry 2505
KRAMER, Judy 1919
KRAMER, Linda 1650, 1655
KRAMER, Louise 2357
KRAMER, Steven 2529
KRAMER, Thomas H. 3082
KRANCE, Mary Jane 2140
KRANICH, Brigitte 1996
KRANKING, Margaret 1471
KRANTZ, Robert 1063, 1115
KRASKIN, Sandra 2062
KRASNER, Lee 2678, 3317
KRASNICAN, Susan 1163, 1450
KRASNY, Yuri 2692
KRATE, Nat 1544
KRATZER, Bill 2258
KRATZER, Billie 2258
KRATZOK, Fran 1775
KRAUS, Charles 3454
KRAUS, Shirley 1415
KRAUSE, George 1367, 1441, 3143
KRAUSE, Judith 1011
KRAUSE, Mary Frances 2082
KRAUSS, Anthony 2052
KRAUSS, Bob 2305
KRAUT, Susan 1659
KRAUTH, Harold 3383
KRAVITZ, Deborah 1944
KRAVJANSKY, M. 1484
KRAYNEK, Fran 1549
KREBS, Patsy 1247, 1325
KREBS, Rockne 3295
KREISWIRTH, Gabe 1327
KREITZER, David 1128
KREJČÍ, Jan 1640
KRELOFF, Martin 1269, 1514
KREMER, Brian 2015

VOL
71
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

KREN, Margo 1805, 1807, 1809, 2089
KRENTZIN, Earl 3474
KREPLIN, Bill 2096
KREPP, Sarah 1135, 1644
KRESGE, Ann 1385
KRESMAN, Jacuelynn 3190
KRESS, Tom 1110
KRESSLEY, Margaret 1447
KRESTENSEN, Ann 2216, 3164
KREUGER, Fred 3114
KREUTZ, Gregg 3458
KREYNEK, Fran 2257
KRIDER, Annoel 2283
KRIEGER, Andrew 1445
KRIEGER, John 1495
KRIEGER, Mark 2836
KRIER, Rob 1719, 2761
KRIESBERG, Irving 2607
KRIGER, Colleen 3076
KRIGSTEIN, Bernard 2593
KRIMOV, Nicolay 2830
KRISTENSEN, Gail 1783
KRITSELIS, Alexander 1183
KROEBER, Jean 2290
KROENING, Mark 1165
KROESE, Robert 1164
KROESEN, Jill 1165, 1259
KROLL, Leon 1496
KRONENGOLD, Adolph 1877
KRONENGOLD, Penny 2510
KRONSNOBLE, Jeffrey 2350
KRONZON, Ziva 2851
KROPNICK, Carol 2847
KROUSE, Millicent 2158
KROUT, Jonathan 2239, 2257
KRUEZER-HAGSTROM, Terry 3481
KRUG, Katherine 2140
KRUGER, Barbara 1148, 1731, 2296, 2707
KRUGER, Louise 2449
KRUKOWSKI, Lucian 2096
KRUMBACH, Kristie Lee 3374
KRUPP, Ann 1423
KRUSCAMP, Janet 1812
KRUSHENICK, Nicholas 2371
KRUSOE, Sana 1114
KRUVANT, Steve 1445
KRYSINSKY, Toni 1864
KRZYZANOWSKI, Michel Szulc 1901
KUBACH-WILMSEN, Anna Maria 2814
KUBACH-WILMSEN, Wolfgang 2814
KUBICEK, Jan 1640
KUBIN, Alfred 2536
KUBOTA, Irene 2631
KUČEROVÁ, Alena 1640
KUDER, Elizabeth 2371
KUDRYASHOV, Oleg 1436
KUEHN, Edmund 3027
KUEHN, Gary 1802, 2378
KUENTZEL, Pete 1515
KUERNER, Karl J. 3101, 3140
KUHLMAN, Walter 1251
KUHN, Audrey Grendahl 1365
KUHN, Heinrich 2604
KUHN, John 1816, 1949, 1971, 3276
KUHN, Jon 1576, 2030, 2585, 3039
KUHN, Margie 1816, 2082
KÜHN, Volker 1807
KUHN, Walt 1908, 2626, 3282
KUHNS, Kristin 1619
KUINJI, Arhip 2830
KUIPER, James 1679, 2024, 2026, 2035
KUKA, King 1049, 1070, 2262, 3220, 3250
KUKUCHI-YNGOJO, Alan 1105
KULAK, Gary 2006, 2635
KULESA, Frank 2202
KULHÁNEK, Oldřich 1640
KULICKE, Robert M. 2465, 3131
KULKA, Lilla 1640
KULMER, Ferdinand 1670
KUMLER, Kipton 2729
KUNC, Karen 1713
KUNC, Milan 1160
KUNGMAN, Dong 1254
KUNICHIKA 2553
KUNISADA 3175
KUNISADA, Utagawa 2553, 3132
KUNISHIMA, Seiji 1188
KUNIYOSHI 3175
KUNIYOSHI, Kunisada 2045
KUNIYOSHI, Utagawa 2945
KUNIYOSHI, Yasuo 2553, 2774
KUNKEL, George 3282
KUNKEL, Jerry 1371
KUNSTADTER, Sally 1603
KUNSTLER, Mort 1035, 2575
KUNZ, Suzan 1639
KUO, James 2299
KUOPUS, Clinton 1918
KUPFERMAN, Moshe 2844
KUPKA, Frantisek 2500
KUPKA, Michael 2364
KUPPERMAN, S. P. 1500
KURAOKA, David 1223, 1623
KURK 2392
KURLAND, Bruce 2152
KURODA, Gary 1293
KURODA, Shigeki 1295, 1797, 3132
KUROSAKI, Akira 1797
KURT, Kay 2635
KURTZ, Elaine 1468, 3131
KURTZ, Ellery 2460
KURTZ, Mary 2318
KURUTZ, Ann 1896
KURZ, Diana 2767
KURZEN, Aaron 2688
KUSAKA, Kenji 2887
KUSAMA, Tetsuo 3078
KUSHNER, Robert 1109, 1132, 1207, 1348, 1658, 2463, 2804
KUSMIERSKI, Jim 1489, 2024, 2200, 3010
KUSTURA, Ivan 1302, 2851
KUTER, Leslie 3295
KUTZER, Michael 3463
KWAK, Hoon 1164
KWAN, Kenneth 1622
KWASNIEWSKI, Peter 2940
KWIATEK, Greg 2378
KWILECKI, Paul 1575
KWOK, Tzu Wen 2962
KYLER, Yudel 2371
KYRA 1488

L

L'HERMITTE, Leon 1280
L'HOTKÁ, Bonnie 1377
LA BARBARA, Joan 1165, 1259
LA BOBGÄH, Bob 3175
LA COM, Wayne 1619
LA DUKE, Betty 2148, 3067, 3073
LA FONTAINE, Glenn 3094
LA FRANCESCA, John 1331
LA LUMIA, Frank 2250
LA MANTIA, Paul 1684, 1732
LA MARR, Jean 2121
LA NOUE, Terence 1476, 2590, 2715, 2789
LA RANCE, Joanna 2250
LA ROSA, Salvatore 1514
LAATSCH, Gary 3000, 3037
LABADIE, Kevin 1902
LABAT, Tony 1259
LABINO, Dominick 3011
LABOUREUR, Jean-Emile 2482
LABRIOLA, Jochen 2607
LABROT, Syl 2919
LABRUM, David 1763
LACAGNINA, Francesca 3434
LACHAISE, Gaston 1145, 1216, 2779, 3282
LACHANCE, Suzanne 2026
LACHER, Johannes 1142
LACKEY, Claire 2157
LACKEY, Jane 2085
LACKEY, Lea 2972
LACKOVIC-CROATA, Ivan 2612
LACKOVIC, Ivan 2752, 3175
LACROIX, Richard 1301
LACRONE, Gwyn 1079
LACY, Ann 1040
LACY, Byron 3289
LADDA, Justen 1259, 2778
LADERMAN, Gabriel 2779
LADOFF, Stephanie 1533
LADOTA, Peter 1259
LAEMMLE, Cheryl 2834, 3333
LAFFOLEY, Paul 1935
LAFON, D. 3046
LAFORD, John 2237
LAGERBERG, Don 1327
LAGO, Susana 1171
LAGODICH, Simeon 2829
LAHIRI, Subrata 1078
LAHNER, Emile 1099
LAHOTAN, Robert 2638
LAHR, Maria 2458
LAKE, Randall 3371
LAKEMAN, Oscar 1938
LALANDE, Jacques 1524
LALIBERTÉ, Norman 1517, 2607
LALOUE, E. Galien 1672
LAM, Wifredo 1245, 2531
LAMB, Adrian 2738
LAMB, Darlis 1378
LAMB, Margaret 2310
LAMBRINOS, Vassili 2825
LAMIS, Leroy 1779
LAMPERT, Nancy 3164
LAMPHERE, Dale 3007, 3224, 3226
LAMUT, Sonja 1481
LANAGER, Craig 1934
LAND-WEBER, Ellen 1124
LAND, Sarah Riley 1805
LANDA, Robin 2399
LANDACRE, Paul 1111
LANDAU, Jacob 2171
LANDAU, Laureen 1229, 1244
LANDAU, Nancy 2324
LANDECK, Armin 1642
LANDER, Robert 2854
LANDERS, Arba 1085
LANDFIELD, Ronnie 1457, 1479, 1587, 2039, 2457, 3418
LANDIS, Geoffrey 2252
LANDIS, Richard 1043
LANDOWNE, Edith 1512
LANDREY, Paul 2977
LANDRY, Robert 1049, 1116, 1857
LANDSBERG, Erik 2899
LANDSBERGER, Rosemary 2987
LANDSEER, Sir Edwin 3147
LANDWEHR, Gita 1234
LANE, Albert 1006
LANE, Christopher 1291
LANE, Lois 2871, 3143
LANE, Maggie 2554
LANE, Miharu 2380
LANEY, Bob 1275
LANG, Daniel 2508, 3318
LANG, Gary 1142, 1235
LANG, James 3114
LANG, Tom 2096
LANGAGER, Craig 2423
LANGAN, Thomas 2332
LANGE, Janvier 1919
LANGENSTEIN, Michael 2465
LANGER, Lizabeth 2006
LANGER, Nancy 2733
LANGERMAN, Elaine 1371
LANGFIELD, Helen 2550, 2705
LANGHAMER, Wilma 1813
LANGLAIS, Bernard 1504, 2724
LANGLAND, Harold 2736
LANGMORE, Bank 1367
LANIER, Doris 2462
LANIGAN-SCHMIDT, Thomas 2804
LANING, Edward 1815, 2593
LANKTON, Greer 2442
LANMAN, Charles 2360
LANSKOY, André 2548
LANSNER, Fay 1470, 2598
LANTERMAN, Margaret 1636
LANTZ, Walter 1601
LANYON, Ellen 1678, 2423
LAPEER, Rich 3430
LAPHAM, Marion 2937
LAPSLEY, John 1011
LAPŠYS, Rimvydas 1638
LARA, Armond 1357, 3261
LARDIERE, Geoffrey 1514, 1553
LAREUSE, Jean 2170
LARISCH, Kurt 1709
LARK, Mary 2045
LARK, Sylvia 1298, 3431
LARMON, Kevin 2543
LAROCHE, Jan 2934
LARRAZ, Julio 1284, 2602, 2892, 3297
LARSEN, Ed 1808
LARSEN, Hal 1517
LARSEN, Linda 1021
LARSEN, Mike 2254
LARSEN, Robert 1546
LARSEN, Tambi 1621
LARSON, Ben 2224
LARSON, Blaine 1438
LARSON, Edward 1733, 1740, 2634
LARSON, Eric 2336
LARSON, Fred 2999
LARSON, Larry 1860
LARSON, Philip 2060
LARSON, William 2650, 3125
LARTIGUE, Jacques Henri 1575, 2604
LASAK, Hilary 1412
LASALLE, Charles-Louis 2785
LASANSKY, Leonardo 1451, 2059, 2154
LASANSKY, Mauricio 1013, 1451, 1786
LASAR, Nancy 1406
LASCARI, Anna 2651
LASCH, Pat 2659
LASKER, Joe 2638
LASKEY, Leslie 2103
LASLEY, Alison 2287
LASSAW, Ibram 1453, 1470, 1522
LASSITER, Woyneve 3059
LASTER, Paul 2800
LASTNAME, Bradley 1679
LASUCHIN, Michael 1539, 2169, 3077, 3153, 3385
LASWORTH, Laura 1169
LATHAM, Barbara 2252, 2258, 2872
LATHROP, William L. 3095
LATIL, Joe 1003
LATTANZI, Luciano 2052
LATVALA, Anneli 2944
LAU CHEN, Ande 2815
LAU, Pok-Chi 1805
LAU, Rex 2794
LAUB, John 3136
LAUCKNER, Christopher 1996
LAUFER, Susan 2757
LAUFMAN, Sidney 1491, 1544, 2948
LAUGHLIN, Clarence John 1854, 1869
LAURENCE, Sydney 3421
LAURENCIN, Marie 2548
LAURENT, John 2724
LAURENT, Robert 2638
LAUVER, David 3077
LAUZON, Virginia 2974
LAVADOUR, James 3074, 3431
LAVARENNE, Pierre 1547
LAVENTHOL, Hank 3127
LAVERDURE, Andrew 3223
LAVILLE, Joy 3279
LAVIN, Robert 3322
LAVITELLI, Mark 3106, 3265
LAW, Bill 2006
LAW, Carolyn 3418
LAW, Margaret M. 3209
LAWLER, Louise 1162, 2673
LAWN, Robert 2903
LAWRENCE, Diane 2082
LAWRENCE, Elezabeth 2944
LAWRENCE, Jacob 1492, 1570, 2481, 2998, 3433
LAWRENCE, Jane 2968
LAWRENCE, Jim 1136, 3087
LAWRENCE, John 1878
LAWRENCE, Lori 2496
LAWSHE, Hank 2131
LAWSON, Ernest 3327
LAWSON, George 2844
LAWSON, Ron 1035
LAWSON, Thomas 2673
LAWTON, Jenny 2609
LAWTON, Nancy 1933, 2685
LAWYER, F. 1008
LAXSON, Ruth 1578
LAY, Doris M. 3291
LAYTIN, Peter 2643
LAZARA, Dorothy 2344
LAZAREVIC, Milo 2798
LAZARUS, Mark 2096
LAZENBY, Dexter 1943
LAZORIK, Wayne R. 2218
LAZZARI, Margaret 2051
LAZZARI, Pietro 1434
LAZZARO, Victor 2809
LAZZELL, Blanche 2478
LE BOFF, Gail 2802
LE CLAIR, Charles 3138
LE GAC, Jean 2885
LE GALL, Jean-Louis 1817
LE KINFF, Linda 2439
LE PHO 1667
LE SIDANER, Henri 1672
LE VA, Barry 1193, 1304, 2805, 2909, 3107
LEA, Laurie 1567
LEA, Tom 3355
LEACH, David 1956
LEACH, James 2365
LEACH, Jim 2296
LEACH-JONES, Alun 2844
LEAF, Bill 2151
LEAF, June 1731
LEAKE, Eugene 1902, 2829
LEAMON, Audrey 1641
LEAR, Edward 3196
LEAR, John 2162, 2163, 3114
LEAR, John B. 2158
LEAR, Tom 1832
LEARY, Dean 2960, 2984
LEATHERDALE, Marcus 2600
LEAVEY, John 2405
LEAVITT, William 1162, 2673
LEAX, Ronald A. 2015
LEBADANG 3009
LEBASQUE, Henri 2548, 2753
LEBBIN, Carol Sue 1434
LEBER, Donn 3434
LEBER, Roberta 2893, 2946
LEBOWITZ, Stephanie 2386
LEBRUN, Rico 1171, 2626
LECHAY, James 2638
LECKMAN, Lori 1162
LECKY, James 2927
LECONTE, Michele 1230
LEDBETTER, Lorraine 3441
LEDERMAN, Stephanie Brody 2659
LEDET, Michael 1878
LEDOUX, Barry 2871
LEE, Alex 2175
LEE, Alfred 1346, 3291
LEE, Christopher 1112
LEE, Clarence 1609
LEE, David 1396, 1601, 1606, 1617
LEE, Gary 1680
LEE, Ida 2987
LEE, Lawrence 1059
LEE, Lillian 3127
LEE, Mao C. 1391
LEE, Richard 2712
LEE, Russell 3063, 3349, 3350
LEE-SMITH, Hughie 2824
LEEDS, Alice Whitman 2436
LEEDS, Ingrid 1471
LEEDY, James 1808
LEEDY, Sherry 1026
LEEK, Tom 3360, 3364, 3373
LEEPER, Doris 1544
LEES, John 2018, 2833
LEESON, Tom 2546
LEET, Richard 1792
LEETE, William 3193
LEEUS, Jesus 2194
LEFEVRE, Gregg 1973
LEFF, Leonard 2889
LEFFEL, David 2152
LEFKOWITZ, Jay 2011, 3315
LÉGER, Fernand 1364, 2053, 2294, 2402, 2533, 2727, 2756, 2773
LEGER, Victor 1399
LEGG, William 1564
LEGGIADRO, Vincent 2302
LEGRADY, George 2470, 3270
LEGRAND, Louis 2512
LEHANO, Leroy 1609

LEHMAN, Anita 1811
LEHMAN, Mary 2144
LEHNER, Nathan 2091
LEHNERT, Frances 3003
LEHR, Irving 2306, 2310
LEHR, Paul 3151
LEHRER, Leonard 1040
LEHRMAN, Stuart 1261, 3275
LEIBOVITZ, Annie 1626
LEIBOWITZ, Leonard 3175
LEIGH, Abby 2354
LEIGH, Harry 2946
LEIGH, Jack 2179
LEIGHTON, Clare 3307
LEIGHTON, Frederick 2676
LEIGHTON, Sara 1486
LEIPZIG, Arthur 2319, 2922
LEIPZIG, Mel 3122
LEITHAUSER, Mark 1454
LEIVICK, Joel 1330
LELAND, Andrea 3465
LEM, Wu Chien 2985
LEMLEY, Craig 3411
LEMLEY, Mary 2378
LEMLY, Sam 1188
LEMON, George 2963
LEMON, Kent 1360
LENCEK, Bibi 2705
LENKER, Marlene 2194
LENKOWSKY, Marilyn 2794
LENNA, Omera 1387
LENNARD, Erica 2805
LENNEY, Annie 2300
LEODAS, Avra 1043, 2257
LEON, Dennis 1263
LEON, Marta de 1033
LEON, Ralph 2240
LEONARD, Lonnie 1567
LEONARD, Rebecca 2386
LEONARDI, Hector 2329, 2931
LEONARDO, Clement 2911
LEONE, Berta 2045
LEONHARD, Linda Foster 1343
LEONTE, Joseph 2571
LEOPOLD, Elisabeth 2937
LEOPOLD, Herb 2593
LEPARC, Julio 3472
LEPE, Manuel 1760
LEPENDORF, Shelly 2496
LEPERE, Les 3427
LEPPLA, David 1910
LEQUIER, William 1549, 2545
LERMA BOWERMAN, Elizabeth 1033
LERMA, Susi 1033
LERMAN, Doris 2538
LERMAN, Richard 1947
LERNER, Robert 1164, 1177
LERNER, Sandra 3131, 3316
LERNER-LEVINE, Marion 2744
LEROY, Harold 2290, 2752
LESCH, Alma 1832
LESHOCK, Edward 3164
LESIEUR, Pierre 2506
LESLIE, Alfred 1669, 2528, 2953
LESLIE, Constance 1535
LESLIE, Kenneth 3136
LESLIE, Seaver 2829
LESSER, Craig 3318
LESSORD, Gary 2897
LESTER, Michelle 1357, 2681
LETENDRE, Rita 2375
LETHEM, Richard 2818
LETTIS, Don 1929
LEVANT, Ginger 2543
LEVASSEUR, Dominie 1996
LEVEE, Michael 1127
LEVER, Janet 1313
LEVERS, Robert 3251, 3336
LEVESON, Margaret 2405
LEVESON-MEARES, Sandra 3296
LEVIER, Charles 1542
LEVIN, Carol 2386
LEVIN, Eli 2240
LEVIN, Robert 1163, 1743, 2200, 2545
LEVINE, Arthur 2744
LEVINE, Daniel 2296
LEVINE, David 2515
LEVINE, Florence 2900
LEVINE, Jack 2592, 2626
LEVINE, Les 1399, 2504, 2857
LEVINE, Marc 1450
LEVINE, Marge 2186
LEVINE, Marilyn 1263, 1808, 2104
LEVINE, Martin 3385
LEVINE, Michael 1324
LEVINE, Phillip 1296
LEVINE, Reuben 2157
LEVINE, Robert 2163
LEVINE, Sherrie 1162
LEVINE, Tom 1644, 2549, 3004
LEVINE, Tomar 2829
LEVINSON, Joan 1450
LEVINSON, Peter 1135
LEVIT, Linda 3004
LEVITAN, Isaak 2830
LEVITT, Helen 1262, 2873
LEVRA, Ray 1024
LEVY, Judy 2778
LEVY, Marge 2004
LEVY, Stu 3434
LEW, Grace 1609
LEW, Weyman 1366
LEWALLEN, Ross 2216, 2235
LEWANDOWSKI, Edmund 2472
LEWANDOWSKI, Lynn 3379
LEWCZUK, Magrit 2999
LEWIS, Anthea 1813
LEWIS, David Barry 1571
LEWIS, Dorothy Swain 3183
LEWIS, Elizabeth 1996, 2036
LEWIS, Ellen 2160, 2972
LEWIS, Gilbert 3118
LEWIS, Jessie 3124
LEWIS, Joe 2371
LEWIS, John 1313, 1743, 2545
LEWIS, Karen 2733
LEWIS, Martin 1642, 1908, 2556
LEWIS, Michael 1966, 2800
LEWIS, Ray 2197, 2570
LEWIS, Rebecca 2984
LEWIS, Ron 2070
LEWIS, Ross 2576
LEWIS, Stanley 2084, 2472
LEWIS, Steve 1535
LEWITT, Sol 1148, 1207, 1304, 1492, 1731, 2452, 2684, 2859, 3296
LEYENDECKER, J. C. 3099
LEYH, Peter 2496
LEYS, Dale 3244
LHOTE, André 2402, 2807
LHOTKA, Bonnie 1357, 3321
LI-LAN 1132
LI, Donna 1121
LIANKO-ROBERTS, Marja 1968
LIASHKOV, Peter 1134
LIBAN, Felicia 2812
LIBERMAN, Alexander 1477, 1578, 2100, 2494, 3317, 3468
LIBERTI, Juan Carlos 2011
LIBERTONE, Andy 1372
LIBHART, Henry 3111
LICATA, Ricardo 1670
LICEA, Eve 2733
LICHT, Evelyn 2553
LICHT, Helen Ann 1213
LICHTEN, Frances 3110
LICHTENBERG, Manes 1057, 1328, 2250, 2302, 2501
LICHTENSTEIN, Gary 1294
LICHTENSTEIN, Judy 1680
LICHTENSTEIN, Roy 1148, 1152, 1375, 1376, 1511, 1678, 1797, 1940, 2329, 2429, 2430, 2556, 2559, 2574, 2684, 2803, 2932, 3104, 3294, 3317
LICHTMAN, Shirley 1116
LICHTNER, Schomer 3460, 3466
LIDOW, Leza 1128
LIDZ, Jane 1217
LIEBER, Tom 1142, 1679
LIEBERMAN, Claire 3464
LIEBERMAN, Harry 1128
LIEBERMAN, Ina 2436
LIEBERMAN, Joyce 3355
LIEBERMAN, Judith 2857
LIEBERMAN, Louis 2743
LIEBERMAN, Marjorie 1772
LIEBERMAN, Philip 2844
LIEBERMAN, Walter 3437
LIEBMANN, Abe 2166
LIEBOWITZ, Harriet 1587
LIEF, Dona Lee 1866, 1875
LIEGEL, Franklyn 1161, 1170
LIEPKE, Skip 1382
LIESEGANG, Thomas 1939
LIFTIN, Leni 1473
LIFTON, Yves 1679
LIGARE, David 1161, 3297
LIGHTFOOT, Jon 1070, 1810, 2050
LIGHTON, Linda 2087
LIGHTSTONE, Vera 2784
LIKARICH, Domjan 2111
LILLIS, Jack 1324
LIM, John 2897
LIM, Kek Tee 1301
LIMA, Hely 2883
LIMA, Jacqueline 2405
LIMONE, Frank 1802
LIND, David 1523
LIND, Jennifer 2216, 2257
LIND, Ted 2911
LINDBERG, Keith 1619
LINDEN, Dorothy 1996
LINDEN, Gudrun 2124
LINDENFELD, Lore 2191
LINDERMAN, Earl 1040, 1343, 2266, 2348
LINDNER, Richard 1677, 1874
LINDQUIST, Mark 1545, 2491, 3166, 3276
LINDQUIST, Melvin 2491, 2925, 3166, 3276
LINDSAY, Jay 2404
LINDSAY, Jo-Anne 1819
LINDSAY, Stephen 2306
LINDSEY, Ron 2071
LINDSTROM, Ann 1839
LINDSTROM, Bart 3322
LINDSTROM, Gaell 3360
LINDZON, Rose 2852
LINER, Carl 2182
LINFANTE, Paul 2635
LINHARES, Judith 1264, 1697, 2448
LINK, John 1749
LINK, Thomas 2960
LINN, Joe 2972
LINN, Judy 2003
LINN, Steven 2165, 2670
LINNELL, Susan 2217, 2228
LINO, Maria 2601
LINTAULT, Joan 2930
LINZ, Joe 3283
LION, Barbara 1866
LIONNI, Leo 2814
LIPCHITZ, Jacques 1181, 1575, 2660
LIPE, Georgeanna 1116
LIPMAN-WULF, Peter 1877
LIPOFSKY, Marvin 1720, 1910
LIPPINCOTT, Janet 1041, 1354
LIPSCOMB, Tallie 3309
LIPSKI, Donald 1257, 1319, 2414, 3013, 3087
LIPTON, Kay 1149
LIPTON, Seymour 2343, 2861
LIPZIN, Janis Crystal 1320
LISHINSKY, Saul 2593
LISIECKI, Denise 1994, 2044
LIST, Larry 2762
LITCHARD, Mary Jane 1023
LITCHMAN, Martin 2177
LITTENBERG, Elyse 1514
LITTENBERG, Sydney 1112
LITTLE, Bruce 1580
LITTLE, Harold 3388
LITTLE, James 3237
LITTLE, John 1470
LITTLE, Ken 1287
LITTLE, Phillip 1314
LITTLE, Polly 3265
LITTLE, William 3481
LITTLEFIELD, Pat 2171
LITTLETON, Harvey 1163, 1533, 1565, 1924, 1986, 2030, 2109, 2585, 3166
LITTLETON, John 3205
LITTO, Frank 1530
LIU, Katherine C. 1093, 3405
LIU, Lucy 3436
LIU, Nina 1794
LIU, Siu-Jane 1703
LIVAICH, Nicholas 1056, 2006, 2048, 3020
LIVERMORE, Cynthia 2121
LIVINGSTON, Laura 3033
LIVINGSTON, Susan 3454
LIZAMA, Sylvia 1514
LIZEMORE, Lanny 2769
LLEWELLYN, Sue 1173
LLEWELYN, James 2171
LLONA, Ramiro 2602
LLOVERAS, Connie 1515
LLOYD, Gary 1160
LLOYD, George 1288
LLOYD, James 1590
LLOYD, Lisa 1629
LLOYD, Martha 1929
LLOYD, Michael 1327
LLOYD, Nancy 2914
LOARCA, Carlos 1269
LOARIE, Philip 1259
LOBDELL, Frank 1218, 2716
LOBE, Robert 2871
LOBEL, Anita 2432
LOBEL, Arnold 3030
LOBEL, Linda 2380
LOBRANO, DeWitt J. 2541
LOCALIO, Donald 2192
LOCHER, Robert E. 3196
LOCHMAN, Lindsay 1636
LOCICERO, Thomas 1909, 2851
LOCK, Stephen 2655
LOCKE, Charmaine 3312
LOCKER, Thomas 1647, 2575
LOCKETZ, Barbara 1354
LOCKHART, Robert 1835, 3037
LOCKMAN, DeWitt McCellan 2753
LOCKSPEISER, Eleanore 2730
LOCKWOOD, John Ward 2245
LOCKWOOD, Scott 1173
LODATO, Peter 1146, 1342, 2438
LODWIG, Dick 3082
LOEB, Fran K. 1011
LOEB, Judith 2404
LOEB, Robert 3333
LOEHLE, Betty Barnes 1564, 1567
LOEHLE, Richard 1584
LOEPER, John 1458, 2541
LOEPP, Thomas 2563
LOEW, Michael 2725
LÖFFLER, Berjold 2388
LOFTIN, Susan 1433, 3166
LOFTUS, Peter 1293, 2511
LOGAN, Gene 1128
LOGAN, Robert Henry 1976
LOGAN, Susan 1322
LOGIS, Niki 2523
LOGRIPPO, Robert 2612
LOIR, Luigi 1672
LOIRE, Gabrielle 1586
LOKOS, Stefan 2168
LOLOMA, Charles 1060, 2249, 3323
LOMAKEMA, Milland 2256
LOMBARDI, John 2963
LOMBARDI, Lisa 1133
LOMEO, Angelo 1896
LOMONACO, Mary Ann 2597
LONABAUGH, Frank 3142
LONCARIC, Draciga 2752
LONDON, Anna 2900
LONDON, Edith 2960
LONDON, Lyle 1027
LONDONO, Armando 2651, 2700
LONEWOLF, Joseph 2262
LONG, Art 1616, 1617
LONG, Ben 2968
LONG, Hubert 2460
LONG, Jeff 1273
LONG, Mary Graham 1998
LONG, Richard 1335, 2811
LONG, Susan 2082
LONG, Ted 3227
LONGE, Brian 1691
LONGELY, Bernique 1059
LONGFISH, George 2400, 3431
LONGHURST, Bob 1839, 2752, 3011
LONGLEY, Bernique 1523, 2249
LONGLEY, Robert 2576
LONGO, Robert 2673, 3333
LONGO, Vincent 2550
LONGOBARDI, Nino 2457
LONGSON, Tony 2091
LOOMIS, Dana 1053
LOOMIS, Michael 2310
LOOS, Diane 3039
LOOS, Ray 3039
LOPEZ DE GUZMAN, Evelyn 2705
LOPEZ-DIRUBE, Rolando 1481
LOPEZ-ESPINA, Gilberto 2183
LOPEZ-GARCIA, Antonio 2660
LÓPEZ, Annie 1033
LOPEZ, Antonio 3183
LOPEZ, George 1281
LOPEZ, Vilma 1525
LOPICCOLO, Don 2286
LORBER, Stephen 1144, 2679
LORD, Andrew 1167, 2406, 3287
LORD, Don 3114
LORDS, Gary R. 1035
LOREE, John 1994
LORENZO, Antonio 2853
LORENZTEN, Ida 2467
LORING, Claryca 1608
LORING, Lee 1009
LORIO, Diane 3308
LORIO, Goerge 3308
LORIO, Tom 1849
LORRAIN, Claude 1462
LORTET, Marie-Rose 2004
LOSHBAUGH, Lynne 3471
LOSSMANN, Robert 1732
LOSTETTER, Al 2242
LOSTUTTER, Robert 1658, 2634
LOTH, Wilhelm 3433
LOTTA, Tom 2897
LOTTON, Charles 2617, 3011
LOTZ, Steve 1493, 1507
LOUGHEED, Robert 1061, 2268, 2563
LOUGHEED, Tom 1702
LOUGHRAN, Patrick 2004, 2141
LOUGHRIDGE, Leon 1360
LOUIS, Liz 1378
LOUIS, Morris 1064, 1900, 2099, 2494, 3317
LOURI, Jod 1952
LOUVIER, Nancy 3056
LOVAK, Branko 2612
LOVATO, Charles 1060, 2256, 3250, 3278
LOVATO, Julian 2249
LOVATO, Manelita 2261
LOVE, Ed 1467
LOVE, Jim 3317
LOVE, Robert 1820
LOVEJOY, Rupert 1695
LOVEJOY, Timothy 2407
LOVELL-COOPER, Roger 1743
LOVELL-COOPER, Sylvia 1743
LOVELL, Tom 1702
LOVERA, James 2247
LOVETT, Peggy 1778
LOVING, Reg 1371, 2239
LOW, Jeff 1045, 2236, 3296
LOWDER, Dwayne 2028
LOWE, Darilyn 2306
LOWE, David 2744
LOWE, Joe Hing 2306
LOWE, Marilyn 1128
LOWE, Marvin 1775, 3465
LOWE, R. Edward 1374
LOWE, Robert 2883
LOWENTHAL, Toni 1437
LOWNEY, Bruce 1044, 1241, 2236
LOWRY, Alfred 2538
LOWRY, Janice 1130
LOWRY, Millie 2111
LOZANO, Margarita 1490
LOZOWICK, Louis 1463, 1908, 2168, 2385, 2556
LUBAROW, Renee 1096
LUBBERS, Leland 2140
LUBELL, Doris 2733
LUBENSKY, Jerry 1481, 1805, 2083
LUBET, Carl 2851
LUBIN, Jack 2498
LUCAS, Craig 2999
LUCAS, Evyln 2889
LUCAS, James 3043

LUCAS, Lark 3362, 3369
LUCAS, Roger 3445
LUCAS, William 2218
LUCCHESI, Bruno 1480, 2163, 2487, 2488, 2732
LUCE, Carol 2150
LUCE, Charles 2675
LUCE, Kenneth 3309
LUCE, Maximilien 3327
LUCE, Molly 1926, 3003
LUCE, Vern 3076
LUCERO-GIACCARDO, Felice 2217, 2783
LUCERO, Harkin 2265
LUCERO, Michael 1680, 2095, 2457, 3270, 3418
LUCET, F. M. 3283
LUCHESSA, Gayle 1243
LUCHS, Michael 2018
LUCHSINGER, William 1792
LUCIA, Scott 2199
LUDLUM, Stephen 1459
LUDWIG, William 1546, 1581, 1881
LUEBTOW, John 1163
LUECKING, Stephen 1644, 3465
LUEDERS, Jim 3131
LUFORD, Cabot 3282
LUGO, Luis 2883, 3164
LUHAN, Pedro 2224
LUHR, L. Zenaide 2140
LUIS, Fernando 1488
LUJAN, Pedro 1785
LUKENS, Loren 2226, 3428
LUKIN, Sven 2767
LUKS, George 1926, 2360, 2856
LUM, M. M. 2920
LUMBERT, Donal 1179
LUMIS, Harriet R. 1695
LUMPKINS, William 2478
LUNA, Antonio Rodriguez 1240
LUNA, Manuel 1160
LUND, David 1518, 1906, 2411
LUND, Nancy 3366, 3376
LUNDBERG, Bill 2868, 2885
LUNDBERG, James 2617
LUNDBERG, Susan 2987
LUNDE, Emilie 2995
LUNDEBERG, Helen 1174
LUNDEEN, George 1052, 1362, 1384, 3322
LUNDEQUIST, Kathy 2889
LUNDGREN, Corinne 2131
LUNDIN, Norman 1123, 1188, 3352, 3433
LUNEY, Richard 1115
LUNGE, Jeffery 1048
LUNOIS, Alexandre 1191
LUNY, Thomas 1314
LUONGO, Aldo 1017, 1166, 1326, 1332, 2145, 3104
LÜPERTZ, Marcus 1575, 2657
LUQUIENS, H. M. 1621
LUSTIG-COHEN, Elaine 1357
LUTTRELL, Bruce 2015
LUTZ, Gil 1024
LUTZ, Winifred 2725
LYBECKER, Kirk 3093
LYKOS, George 1236
LYMAN, Hitch 2635, 3312
LYMAN, Lindy 1343
LYMAN, Marie 3078, 3085
LYMAN, Mela 1946
LYMAN, Susan 2006, 2491
LYNCH, David 3151
LYNCH, Frederick 1123, 1968, 2778
LYNCH, Mike 2054
LYNCH, Rhett 2261
LYON, A. T. 1623
LYON, Danny 3147, 3417, 3459
LYON, Harold 2268
LYON, Joan 1633
LYON, Joyce 2062
LYON, Robert 1867
LYONS, Joan 2917, 2919, 3125
LYONS, Mitch 1424
LYONS, Nathan 2919
LYTLE, Richard 1408, 2725

M

MAAS, Franciscus 1059
MAAS, Mieke 2596
MABE, Manabu 2637
MABERRY, Phillip 1946, 2571, 3270, 3313
MABRY, Jane 2214
MACAIONE, Tommy 2240, 2259
MACARTHUR, Ann 3074
MACAULAY, David 1535, 2809
MACCASH, Doug 1857
MACCEI, Anna Maria 2532
MACCIO, Romulo 2530
MACCONNEL, Kim 1138, 1575, 1658, 2804, 3333
MACDIARMID, Sandra 1823
MACDONALD, Carol E. S. 3381
MACDONALD, David 2939
MACDONALD, Elizabeth 1394
MACDONALD, Ellen 1906
MACDONALD, Kevin 2472
MACDONALD, Phyllis 1674
MACDONALD-WRIGHT, Stanton 1091, 1253, 1544
MACDOUGAL, Marleah Drexler 3302
MACDOUGALL, Anne 1791, 1919, 1944
MACE, Flora 1163, 3420
MACFARLANE, Stewart 2290
MACGREGOR, Greg 3417
MACHADO, Juarez 2883
MACHEEL, Gary 1165
MACHETANZ, Fred 1015, 2152
MACIA, Carlos 1515
MACIEL, Jim 2854
MACIVER, Loren 2667
MACK, Ben 2332, 3166
MACK, Carol 2112
MACK, Roger 2472
MACKENZIE, David 1247
MACKENZIE, Warren 1798, 2098
MACKIE, Peter 2607
MACKINNON, Marcy 2239
MACKINNON, Maryann 3183
MACKINTOSH, Sandra 2454
MACKS, Martha 1902
MACLEAY, Scott 2729, 3417
MACNAMARA, Peggy 1715
MACNEIL, Linda 1163
MACNELLY, Jeff 1451
MACNIELL, Jay 2015
MACON, Joe Elen 1003
MACOUILLARD, Louis 1268
MACRAE, Emma Fordyce 2877
MACRAE, Jock 2209
MACRAE, Margaret 2209
MACRAE, Wendell 2872
MACWITHEY, Doug 3287
MACY, Sharon Roberts 2047
MADDOX, Donna 1593
MADDOX, Roger 3055
MADHOK, Ohm 2997
MADIGAN, Martha 3125
MADSEN, Loren 1337, 1338, 1733, 2669
MADSEN, Steve 2216
MADSEN, Viggo Holm 2900
MADZO, David 2057, 2068
MAFFEI, Nicholas 2550
MAFFIA, Daniel 2517, 2931
MAGAFAN, Ethel 2677
MAGALHAES, Bernardo 2609
MAGDANZ, Andrew 1282, 1924, 2247, 2617
MAGEE, Alan 1123, 1307, 2814
MAGEE, Betty 1003
MAGEE, Brian 2984
MAGENNIS, Beverly Kurtz 2404
MAGENTA, Muriel 2815
MAGGIO, Nino 1488
MAGILOW, Susan 3272
MAGISTRO, Chuck 2467, 2999
MAGLEBY, Frank 3366
MAGLICH, Michael 1044, 1045, 2236
MAGNANI, Alberto 1151, 1479
MAGNATI, Renee 2400
MAGNO, Anne Scheid 3010
MAGNUS, Barbara 1130
MAGRITTE, Rene 2053, 2851
MAGUIRE, Doug 2772
MAGUIRE, Robert 1052
MAHAFFEY, Merrill 1044, 1045, 1066, 1352, 2236, 3314
MAHDAVI, Rafael 2467
MAHIAM, Pier 1257
MAHLER, Maurice 2636
MAHLMANN, Max 2081
MAHMOUD, Ben 1732
MAHNKE 3114
MAHNKE, Gloria 3454
MAHONEY, Barbara 1682
MAHONEY, Mike 2020
MAHONEY, Rosemary 3321
MAHY, Gordon 2960
MAIK, Henri 1667
MAIKUN, Ann 1831
MAILLOL, Aristide 2420, 2727, 2861
MAILMAN, Cynthia 2802
MAINOR, Leonard 2620
MAIONE, Robert 1286, 2306
MAIRWOEGER, Gottfried 1748
MAISNER, Bernard 2659
MAITIN, Sam 3125, 3135
MAITLAND, Richard 2241
MAITLAND, Virginia 1045, 1371
MAJDRAKOFF, Juan 1278
MAJORE, Frank 2584
MAKARENKO, Volodymyr 1725
MAKI, Haku 2887
MAKI, Robert 3424
MAKINS, Jim 1433, 1663, 2565, 2571
MAKK, A. B. 1607, 1615, 1852
MAKK, Americo 1607, 1615, 1617, 1852, 3351
MAKK, Eva 1607, 1615, 1617, 1852, 3351
MAKOFF, Susan 3374
MALAMED, Elly 2889
MALAVAL, Robert 1670
MALCOM, Marlon 1268
MALDONADO, Adal 2516
MALDONADO, Alex 1693
MALE, Flora 1924
MALENDA, James 2812
MALER, Leopoldo 2827
MALEY, Alan 1254
MALIN, Lucinda 2471
MALLARDI, Dominic 2173
MALLIARAKIS, Rallou 2510
MALLINSON, Constance 1179
MALLOY, Thomas 2344
MALO, Teri 1944, 3385, 3397
MALONE, James 1809
MALONEY, Dalton 3312
MALONEY, Dave 2126
MALOOF, Sam 2098
MALPASS, Michael 2881
MALTBIE, Thom 1406
MAMAHAN, Jeanne 2386
MAN RAY 1100, 1152, 1158, 1181, 2741
MANAK-RICKS, Stevie 1744
MANCUSO, Stacey 1514
MANDEL, Dorothy 1603
MANDEL, John 1161, 2594
MANDELBAUM, Stefanie 2290
MANE-KATZ 1091
MANES, Belle 1404, 1415
MANET, Edouard 1098, 1462
MANGAN, Kevin 2068
MANGIARACINA, Bernie 3153
MANGOLD, Robert 1193, 1207, 1304, 1335, 1731, 2610, 2859, 3287, 3333, 3424
MANGOLD, Sylvia Plimack 1731, 2362, 2822, 3459
MANGRAVITE, Peppino 2295
MANGUM, William 2070
MANGUS, Kirk 2141
MANHEIM, Lisa 3139, 3153
MANISTER, Craig 2762
MANLEY, Phyllis 1128, 1542
MANN, David 2939
MANN, Karl 2329
MANN, Katinka 2436
MANN, Lee 2091
MANN, Thomas 1963
MANN, Ward 2897
MANNERS, Paul 2200, 2617, 3158, 3159
MANNHEIMER, Marc 1952
MANNHEIMER, Steven 3465
MANNING, Guy 3363, 3366
MANNO, Angela 2847
MANOLIDES, Jim 3427
MANOLIDES, Theodore 2660
MANOSEVITZ, Carolyn 2051
MANSELL, Gordon 1371, 1374, 2513
MANSER, Albert 2182
MANSFIELD, John 1354
MANSFIELD, Robert 2209
MANSHIP, Paul 2460, 2779
MANSO, Leo 1979, 2209
MANTER, Nancy 2857
MANUAL (HILL/BLOOM) 3324
MANUEL, Kay Lee 1808, 1963
MANUEL, Victor 2790
MANVILLE, Elsie 1535, 2638
MANWARING, Bruce 2939
MANZO, Helene 2286, 2405
MANZU, Giacomo 1120, 2861
MAPES, Lowell 1619
MAPPLETHORPE, Robert 1148, 1262, 1575, 1731, 1862, 1950, 3097, 3333
MARA, Pol 1240
MARAVELL, Nicholas 2888
MARCA-RELLI, Conrad 1031, 1470, 1522, 1566, 1680, 2531, 2660, 3310
MARCALUS, Peter 2496
MARCEL 2195, 3388
MARCH, David 2857
MARCHAND, Anne 1473
MARCHAND, Phillipe 1141
MARCHESCHI, Cork 1283, 1654, 1808, 3430
MARCHIONY, Robert 1002
MARCIULIONIS, Eleanora 1638
MARCOTTE, Tim 3460
MARCOVSKY, Lynne 3173
MARCQ, Valentin 2535
MARCUCCI, Sallie Whistler 1581
MARCUS, Elli 2872
MARCUS, Gerald 2744
MARCUS, Irving 1229, 1253, 3091
MARCUS, Johanna 2177
MARCUS, Lou 1347
MARCUS, Peter 2095
MARCUS, Sharon 3078
MARCUS, Stanley 1368
MARDEN, Brice 1207, 2717, 2718
MARDIROSIAN, Leo 2010
MARELLA, Tete 3183
MARFIA, Marcia 1372
MARGELITH, Lynn 1951
MARGOLIES, John 1847, 2873
MARGOLIS, Richard 2516, 2915
MARGOLIUS, Betsy 1343, 2247, 2757
MARGOLIUS, Laura 2186
MARGRET, Mary 1177
MARGULES-EPPE, Karin 2712
MARGULIS, Martha 2724
MARIA, Alguilar 1101
MARIANI, Carlo Maria 2811
MARIL, Herman 1434
MARIN, John 2249, 2626, 2845
MARINI, Marino 1120, 1698, 1945, 2592, 2622, 2624, 2667, 2671, 2764, 2767, 2861
MARINSKY, Harry 3273
MARIONI, Joseph 2885
MARIONI, Paul 2141
MARIONI, Tom 1207, 1285
MARISOL 2610, 2822, 3133
MARJATTA 1514
MARK, Arleen 2889
MARK, Mary Ellen 1227, 1321, 2431
MARKARIAN, Alexia 1236
MARKHAM, Kyra 2872
MARKMAN, Ronald 1658, 2481, 2934
MARKOFF, Richard 2140
MARKOS, Lajos 3190
MARKOVITZ, Sherry 3418
MARKS, Claude 2553
MARKS, George 2214
MARKS, Graham 2570, 3121
MARKS, Roberta 2491
MARKUSEN, Thomas 1965, 2332
MARKWOOD, Valerie 2800
MARLOWE, Willie 2968
MARNFELDT, Inger Beckman 2636
MARO, Antonio 1481
MAROGER, Jacques 1286
MAROHN, Pat 1068
MARON, Jeffrey 2469
MARQUARDT, Paul 1998
MARQUEZ, Hudson 1190
MARQUEZ, Laura 2433
MARQUIS, David 2051
MARQUIS, Richard 1114
MARQULIS, Martha 2733
MARRA, Paul 1407
MARRA, Tony 1840
MARRATA, Joseph 3374
MARRON, Joan 1360
MARROQUIN, Roza Luz 1709
MARRS, Bonnie 1085
MARSEN, Roxy 2434
MARSH-LUCKHART, Ravae 3221, 3226
MARSH, Bruce 1546
MARSH, Reginald 1418, 1642, 1672, 2360, 2768
MARSH, Robert 1968
MARSHALL, Dan 2467
MARSHALL, Fred 3421
MARSHALL, Jerry 2489
MARSHALL, Kent S. 1278
MARSHALL, Kevin 3295
MARSHALL, Robert 3366
MARSHALL, Stuart 2632
MARSK, Louis 1809
MARTA, Diana 2169
MARTENS, Robert 2471
MARTIN, Agnes 1678, 2718
MARTIN, Anthony 2353
MARTIN, Bernard 1445
MARTIN, Bill 1253, 2590
MARTIN, Dianne 2705
MARTIN, Douglas 2142, 2833
MARTIN, Emily 1794
MARTIN, Evelyn 2066
MARTIN, Fletcher 1547, 2302
MARTIN, Francis Lynn 1500
MARTIN, Fred 1218, 1287
MARTIN, Gary 1201
MARTIN, Henri 1672
MARTIN, Holme 2937
MARTIN, Jay 2378
MARTIN, Jim 2524
MARTIN, Julie Warren 1581, 1831
MARTIN, Keith 1902
MARTIN, Knox 2598
MARTIN, Lisa 2172
MARTIN, Michael 1523
MARTIN, Paul 2897
MARTIN, Percy 1447
MARTIN, Stefan 1539, 2186, 3106
MARTIN, Will 3075
MARTINE, Susan 3055
MARTINEAU, Robert Braithwaite 1051
MARTINELLI, Hedy 2639
MARTINEZ, Ana 1570
MARTINEZ, Benjamin 2544
MARTINEZ, Filomeno 2214
MARTINEZ, John 2363

MARTINEZ, Juan 2644
MARTINEZ, Maria 1067
MARTINEZ, Miguel 1812, 2314
MARTINEZ, Peter 2744
MARTINEZ, Ricardo 1215
MARTINO, Anthony 2413
MARTINO, Antonio 3101, 3140
MARTINO, Babette 3127
MARTINO, John 1528
MARTINSON, Merle 3433
MARTINUS, Else 1530
MARTNEN, Manny 1024
MARTORELL, Antonio 3181, 3182, 3183, 3188
MARTS, Sam 1643
MARTYKA, Paul 1007
MARTYL 1664
MARTYNIUK, Larysa 1394
MARVILLE, Charles 1950
MARX, Evelyn 1546
MARX, Marcia 1566, 3273, 3315
MARX, Margie F. 1768
MARX, Robert 1434, 2920, 2939, 3416
MARXE, Diane 2900
MARYON, Ed 3372, 3373
MARZELL, Lillian 2734
MARZOLLO, Claudio 2670
MARZWELL, Lillian 2973
MAS, Felix 1486
MASBACK, Dennis 2772
MAŠEK, Karel Vitéslav 1640
MASHIKO 2502
MASI, Oliviero 2826
MASIN, William 2937
MASKEY, Edith 1057, 3323
MASKEY, John 1057, 3323
MASLACH, Steven 1114, 1313, 2545
MASON, Alden 1325, 1357, 3079, 3423
MASON, Alice Trumbull 2855
MASON, Concetta 1910, 3169
MASON, Dan 2057
MASON, Diane 1814
MASON, Dick 1811, 2228, 3291
MASON, Emily 2168, 3136
MASON, Frank 1286, 2563
MASON, George 1565
MASON, Harold 1028
MASON, Irene 2738
MASON, Jack 1567
MASON, John 1625
MASON, Karen 3423
MASON, Raymond 2667
MASON, Wally 1433, 2095, 2332, 2925
MASSAD, Dan 1805
MASSARO, Catherine 2082
MASSARO, Karen 3348
MASSEE, John 2273
MASSEY, Charles 3030
MASSEY, Jack 1535
MASSEY, John 3233
MASSIE, Elizabeth 1039
MASSIN, Eugene 1544
MASSON, Andre 1184, 2469, 2773
MASTELLER, Barry 1307
MASTERFIELD, Maxine 1056, 2048, 3039
MASTERSON, Richard 2216
MASTERSON, William 2215, 2220, 3106
MASTRIM, Beverly 3374
MASTROGIACOMO, Michael 1288
MASTROIANI, Umberto 1581
MASTTRANARDI, Michael 1385
MASUDA, Kotaro 2218
MATASSA, John 1424
MATCZAK, Elaine 2915
MATHER, Tim 3450
MATHERS, Petra 2343
MATHEWS, Wanda Miller 1381
MATHIASEN, Eva 2209
MATILLA, Julio 1481
MATINA-MARIKOVIC, Ivka 2612
MATISSE, Henri 1171, 1184, 1270, 1665, 1686, 2402, 2466, 2497, 2507, 2559, 2560, 2668, 2719, 2756, 2838, 2852, 3042
MATLICK, Gerald 1839
MATLICK, Wilda 3445
MATOS "CRASH", Jonny 2298
MATOUSH, Lyle 3067
MATSON, Bob 2854
MATSON, Karl 2051, 2064
MATSON, Todd 1811
MATSUDA, Bokuden 2704
MATSUI, Morio 1484
MATSUMOTO, Masashi 1132
MATSUTANI 3283
MATTA 2605, 2622
MATTA, E. 2548
MATTA, Roberto Echaurren 1120, 1184, 1698, 2464
MATTA, Sebastian 1496, 2671
MATTA-CLARK, Gordon 1731, 2804, 2885
MATTHEWS, Bunny 1866
MATTHEWS, Gene 1144, 1354
MATTHEWS, Harriet 3282
MATTHEWS, Janet 2937
MATTHEWS, Kazuko 1114
MATTHEWS, Martha 2957
MATTHEWS, Prich 2499
MATTHEWS, Susan 2101
MATTHEWS, Wanda Miller 1354, 1451
MATTHIASDOTTIR, Louisa 2779
MATTOS, Cecilia 1572
MATTOX, Charles 1251, 2222
MATTSON, Paul 1356
MATULKA, Jan 2569, 2779 2845, 2866, 2908
MATWOOD, Carole 1057
MAU, Marjorie 3460
MAUER, Alfred H. 2389
MAULDIN, Jane 3045, 3059, 3220
MAULDIN, Larry 3212
MAUNEY-LIPNER, Janet 1554
MAUPIN, Rachel 1829
MAURER, Alfred 2059, 2845
MAURER, Neil 3348
MAURER, Rachel 2436
MAURICE, Alfred 2021
MAURICIO, Manuel 3272
MAURO, Bob 3024
MAURO, Gary 2260, 2273, 2542
MAURY, Richard 1454
MAWBY, Geoffrey 2538
MAX, Peter 2088, 3104
MAXEY, Diane 1036
MAXIM, David 1261, 3275
MAXWELL, Dwayne 2006
MAXWELL, Paul 2014, 2043, 2483
MAXWELL, Rick 3271
MAXWELL, Terry 1811
MAY, Carolyn 1947
MAY, Dan 1323
MAY, Nancy Tuttle 2960
MAY, Therese 1223, 1963
MAYAN, Earl 2576
MAYBERRY, Richard 2972
MAYER, Ed 1654, 3023
MAYER, Gary 2016, 2018, 2042
MAYER, Lisa 3190
MAYER, Ralph 2472
MAYER, Richard 1213
MAYER, Rosemary 2603
MAYER, William 2026
MAYERI, Beverly 1273
MAYERI, John 2639
MAYHEW, Fritz 2039
MAYHEW, Richard 2677
MAYNE, Ned 1423
MAYO, Diane 2794
MAYO, Judy 3190
MAYO, Steve 3411, 3426
MAYOL, Jorge 2874
MAYTUM, Brian 2171
MAZUR, Michael 1159, 1218, 1915, 1937, 2058, 2665, 2717, 3026
MAZZILLI, Roslyn 1213
MAZZINI, Robert 2553
MCADAMS, Alfred 1434
MCADAMS, Heather 1659
MCAFEE, Mara 1382
MCAFEE, Tommy 3335
MCANSLAN, Helen 2133
MCARTHUR, Shannon 1890
MCBAIN, Bette 2937
MCBEE, Richard 2544
MCBRIDE, Bunny 1794
MCBRIDE, Margaret Olney 1469
MCCABE, Maureen 1445
MCCAFFERTY, Jay 1136, 1266
MCCAFFERTY, Michael 3087
MCCAGG, Louise 1411
MCCAIN, James 1056
MCCALL, Gail 3430
MCCALL, Robert 1058
MCCANN, Len 1360
MCCARROLL, Mary Louise 2015
MCCARTHY, Francis 3135
MCCARTHY, Frank 1702
MCCARTHY, Justin 3134
MCCARTHY, Marija 1471
MCCARTHY, Patrick 2867
MCCARTHY, Paul 1165, 3037
MCCARTHY, Rita 3194
MCCARTHY, Tom 1488
MCCARTIN, William 3011
MCCARTNEY, Tom 1530
MCCARTY, John 1902
MCCARTY, Ray 1035
MCCAULEY, Anne Mills 1996
MCCAULEY, Robert 1135, 1644, 1650
MCCAW, Dan 2268
MCCHESNEY, Clifton 2035
MCCLANCY, George 2550
MCCLARD, Michael 2410
MCCLEARY, Dan 1176
MCCLEARY, Mary 3336
MCCLEERY, Katie 2990
MCCLELLAND, John 2738
MCCLEVE, Michael 1046
MCCLIMON, Dyan 2051
MCCLINTOCK, Jane 2496
MCCLOUD, Mark 1288
MCCLURE, Constance 3007
MCCLURE, Mike 3481
MCCLURE, Ron 1343
MCCOLLOCH, Bill 1501
MCCOLLUM, Allan 1802, 2657
MCCOMB, Elaine 2173
MCCOMB, Leonard 2434
MCCOMBS, Bruce 1968, 3285, 3385
MCCONAUGHY, Connie 3004
MCCORD, Jane 1590
MCCORKLE, M. L. 3081
MCCORMACK, Brian 2183
MCCORMACK, Harry 2302
MCCORMICK, Harry 1647, 2416
MCCORMICK, John E. 1301
MCCORMICK, Pamela 2564
MCCORMICK, Patrick 3428
MCCOSH, Edward 1813
MCCOY, Ann 1109, 2362, 2936
MCCOY, Cindy 2148
MCCOY, Frank 1814
MCCOY, James 1877
MCCOY, John 3291
MCCOY, John W. 3103
MCCOY, Robert 3314
MCCRACKEN, John 1317, 1654
MCCRACKEN, Philip 2626, 3420
MCCUISTION, Kathleen 1177
MCCULLOCH, Frank 1352, 2222
MCCULLOCH, James 2987
MCCULLOCH, Jane 3291
MCCULLOUGH, David 1651, 1802, 1809, 1831, 1939, 2052, 2394, 3296, 3346
MCCULLOUGH, Ed 1679
MCCULLOUGH, Frank 3106
MCCULLOUGH, George 1764
MCCURDY, Michael 1955
MCCURDY, Robert 1474
MCCUSKER, Bill 2131
MCCUTCHEON, Gary J. 3444
MCCUTCHEON, Nancy 3428
MCDANEL, Doug 2897
MCDANIEL, Claribel 2257
MCDANIEL, Joyce 1973
MCDANIEL, Keith 1992
MCDANIELS, Martha 1309
MCDERMOTT, Bob 3075
MCDERMOTT, Mo 1133
MCDONALD, Barbara 1068
MCDONALD, John 1011
MCDONALD, Marci 1807, 3399
MCDONALD, Susan 2062
MCDONALD, Thomas 2854
MCDONNELL, Joseph A. 3281
MCDOWELL, Elliott 2903, 3263
MCDOWELL, Joseph 2893
MCDOWELL, Mark 1040, 3154
MCDOWELL, William 2899
MCDUFF, Fred 1667, 2507
MCEACHRON, Ann 1036
MCELHINNEY, James 3138
MCELROY, Hugh 2934
MCELROY, Jackie 2990, 2995
MCENEANEY, Sarah 3118
MCENROE, William 3221
MCEWEN, Rory 2814
MCEWIN, Florence 3481
MCFADDEN, Mark 1626, 2298, 2470, 3125, 3270
MCFARLAND, Joanne 2730
MCFARLAND, Lawrence 3054
MCFARLAND, Pamela 2812
MCFARLANE, Alex 2412
MCFILLIAN, Melinda Antoon 1076
MCGARRELL, James 1064, 1669, 1677, 2105, 2528, 3079
MCGARY, Dave 2227
MCGEEHAN, Betty 2169, 2730
MCGILL, Robert 1244
MCGINLEY, Louise 1293
MCGINNIS, Bob 2159
MCGINNIS, Christine 3151
MCGINNIS, Donna 1123
MCGINNIS, Mark 2991
MCGINNIS, Mark W. 2068
MCGLAUCHLIN, Tom 1043, 1910
MCGLAUGHLIN, Nancy 2128
MCGLYNN, Tom 2183
MCGOWAN, Kenneth 2584
MCGOWAN, Robert 1450, 2571
MCGOWIN, Ed 1348, 1442, 1489, 1659, 1862, 2605, 3131
MCGRATH, Clarence 1052
MCGRATH, Patricia 2937
MCGRAW, Sherrie 2254
MCGRAW, Thomas 1938
MCGREW, Bruce 1046, 3131
MCGREW, Fox Joy 1064, 3131
MCGREW, Joy 1071
MCGREW, R. Brownell 1052, 1061, 3483
MCGUIRE, Dan 1842
MCGUIRE, Frank 1656
MCGUIRE, Richard 2521
MCILROY, Carol 2214
MCILVAIN, Isabel 2779
MCINERNY, Beverly V. 2897
MCINTOSH, Hal 1523
MCINTOSH, Harrison 1093
MCINTOSH, John 1132
MCINTOSH, Ron 3481
MCINTYRE, Chuna 3435
MCINTYRE, Mark 1343
MCIVER, Randolph Lee 3286
MCIVER, Thomas 2636
MCIVOR, John 2299
MCKASSON, Joan 1116
MCKEE, Fred 2133
MCKEEL, Russ 3481
MCKELY, Patrick 3388
MCKENNA, Rollie 2906
MCKENNY, Thomas Lorain 2373
MCKENZIE, Bill 1713
MCKENZIE, Kathy 2150
MCKENZIE, Michael 3151
MCKEOWN, Lee 1545
MCKEOWN, Lin 2140
MCKEOWN, Stephan 1179, 2523
MCKIBBEN, Joe 1567
MCKIBBIN, Robert Harrison 1791
MCKIE, Judy 2491
MCKIE, Judy Kensley 1966
MCKIE, Todd 1680, 1937, 2351
MCKINLEY-HAAS, Mary 2312
MCKINNE, Elizabeth 1371
MCKINNEY, Florentina 2957
MCKINNEY, Tatianna 1546
MCKINNEY, Tom 3039, 3127
MCKINNEY, Val 1085
MCKINNICKINNICK, Margaret 1404, 1415
MCKLINTOCK, Michael 3149
MCKNIGHT, Thomas 1394, 1945, 2195, 2764
MCKOY, Grainger 2627
MCLARTY, Jack 3081
MCLAUGHLIN, Ellen 2629
MCLAUGHLIN, Howard 3373
MCLAUGHLIN, John 2494
MCLAUGHLIN, Joseph 2332
MCLAUGHLIN, K.C. 3433
MCLAUGHLIN, Sean 2394
MCLEAN, Bruce 2410
MCMAHON, Elizabeth 2550
MCMAHON, Franklin 2044
MCMAHON, Hylarie 2096
MCMANAWAY, David 3270
MCMANUS, Patty 2413
MCMANUS, Tanette 2006
MCMAUGH, Alison 2035
MCMICHAELS, Sarah 1079
MCMILLAN, Jerry 1155
MCMILLAN, Stephen 1258, 1768, 2235
MCMILLEN, Michael 1132
MCMURRAY, Bradley 2016
MCMURRY, Beverly 2974
MCMURTRY, Robby 3052, 3059
MCNAIR, Marian 1963
MCNAMARA, John 1951, 1969
MCNAMARA, Joseph 1909
MCNAMARA, Walter 2148
MCNAMARA, William 1080, 2070
MCNARY, Sue 1236
MCNAUGHTON, John 1768, 2004, 2951
MCNEA, Albert Thomas 3442
MCNEA, Judith 3442
MCNEASE, Tom 2520
MCNEES, Rosetta 3033
MCNEIL, George 1497, 2568
MCNEIL, Linda 1924
MCNEIL, Mary Ann 2336
MCNEIL, Willa 2972
MCNEILL, Connie 2972
MCNICKLE, Thomas 3043
MCNULTY, Claudia 2449
MCNULTY, Tom 2827
MCPHERSON, Larry 1731
MCQUEEN, John 2297
MCQUINN, Martin 1831
MCRAE, Colin 2132
MCRAE, Trudye 1823, 1826
MCVAY, Harry 1547
MCVAY, Harve 1602
MCVICKER, Charles 2180
MCVICKER, J. Jay 3307
MCWHORTER, Bill 1258

MCWILLIAMS, Robert H. 1608
MEADER, Jonathan 3385
MEADMORE, Clement 1317, 1478, 1644, 2008, 2215, 3464
MEADOWS, Donna 2916
MEANWELL, Jack 1835
MEARS, Betty 3442
MEARS, Ellen 2930
MEARS, Herb 3309
MEARS, Mary Ann 1902
MEARS, Nels 3442
MEASELLE, Clarence 1528, 1748
MECHANICK-PATTINIAN, Merri 1116
MECKSEPER, Frederic 2512, 2592
MEDAK, Goran 2831
MEDEARIS, Roger 1226, 1322, 1909
MEDICINE FLOWER, Grace 1060, 2249
MEDINA, Ada 1791, 1793
MEDINA, Paul 2230
MEE, Nancy 3418
MEEHAN, Madeleine 2310
MEEKER, Nancee 1437, 2172, 2200, 2913, 3276
MEGHELLI, Fethi 1406
MEHLINGER, Rhoda 2889
MEHTA, Jag 3181, 3184, 3190
MEHTA, Simone 3184
MEI, Chien-Wing 1391
MEIER, Richard 1775
MEIGS, Sandra 2514
MEIGS, Walter 1522, 1544
MEISEL, Susan Pear 2670
MEISSNER, Leo 1926
MEISTER, Marianne 3055
MEITZLER, Neil 3420
MEIZLIK, Jeffrey 1902
MEKELBURG, David 1323
MELAMED, Brad 2620
MELBARDIS, Natalie 1407, 2854
MELBY, David 1811
MELCHERT, Jim 1263
MELE, Juan 2374, 2651
MELENDEZ, Oscar 1515
MELENDY, Anthony 1115
MELIKIAN, Mary 2408
MELL, Ed 1039, 1352, 2050, 2227, 3314
MELNICK, Gregory 2940
MELNICK, Murray 2290
MELVIN, Gwen 1702
MELVIN, Terry 2124
MELZACK, Jeff 1935
MENARD, Lloyd 2066
MENARD, Philip 1229
MENDELSON, Claire 2924
MENDELSON, Haim 2593
MENDELSON, Linda 1550
MENDES, Barbara 1709
MENDES, Guy 1826, 1828, 2999
MENDIETA, Ana 1399, 1492, 2785
MENDLOW, Philip 3175
MENDOZA, John 1811
MENE, Pierre 3353
MENEELEY, Edward 2658
MENGE, Evelyn 1875
MERCADER, Saulo 2601
MERFELD, Gerald 1035, 1360, 3322
MÉRIDA, Carlos 1092, 1215, 1245, 1284, 2435, 3185
MERKIN, Richard 1535, 1693, 2004, 2481, 3134
MERLINE, Robert 3465
MERLIS, Annette 2889
MERRICK, Nick 1735
MERRIFIELD, Edward 2265
MERRIFIELD, Tom 2736
MERRILD, Knud 1174
MERRILL, Arthur 2263
MERRILL, Lawrence 2915
MERRILL, Ross 3291
MERRIM, Louise 2344, 2901
MERRITT, Barry 2939
MERSAD, Berger 3180
MERTIN, Roger 1950, 2523, 2919, 3125
MERTZ, Albert 1690
MERTZ, Sarah 1703
MERZ, Mario 1335, 2811, 2953
MERZ, Stanley 3131
MESA, Julio 1525
MESCHES, Arnold 1324
MESOLOGITES, George 2538
MESSAGIER, Jean 1670
MESSER, Sam 2841
MESTEY, Oscar 3185
METCALF, Bruce 3121
METCALF, Conger 1268
METCALF, Heather 3011
METCALF, Joan 3080
METCALF, Willard 2877
METS, Audrey 2937
METS, Edwin 2937
METZ, Frank 2312
METZ, Gerry 3227
METZ, Jeri 1451
METZ, Mary 3066
METZ, Michael 3075
METZEN, Wendell 1211
METZGER, Fran 1343, 1357
METZGER, Janice 2207
METZGER, Marvin 2191
METZGER, Michael 2166, 2207
METZGER, Steve 2148
METZKER, Ray 2065
METZNER, Sheila 2873
MEUNIER, Brian 1693, 3122
MEYER, Daniel 1528
MEYER, David 1768, 3082
MEYER, Dennis 3000
MEYER, Elspeth 2847
MEYER, Frederick 2677, 2916
MEYER, Howard 3287
MEYER, Ilene 3429
MEYER, Melissa 2199, 3210
MEYER, Seymour 1566, 2324
MEYER, Steve 2216
MEYER, Toby 1378
MEYER-EBERHARDT, Kurt 3360
MEYEROWITZ, Joel 1266, 1931, 2002, 3195
MEYEROWITZ, William 1416, 2824
MEYERS, David 1258
MEYERS, Joel Philip 2109
MEYERS, Michael 1374
MEYERS, Steven 2297, 2723
MEYERS, Susan 1133
MEYERS, Veldonna 3055
MEYERSON, Roberta 2947
MEYNARD, Jean-Claude 2883
MEYROWITZ, Helen 2724
MHIRIPIRI, Rex 2049
MICHAEL, Creighton 2620
MICHALS, Duane 1802, 2610, 3193
MICHAS, Tjelda 2195
MICHEL-HENRY 1667
MICHEL, Delbert 2014
MICHELSON, Philip 1144, 1968, 2438
MICHIE, Mary 3460
MICHOD, Susan 1651, 2423
MICKEY, Stephen 1778
MIDDAUGH, David 2552
MIDDAUGH, Robert 1664, 1740, 1750
MIDDENDORF, Helmut 2409
MIDDLEBROOK, David 1691, 2297
MIDDLEMAN, Raoul 1902, 2818
MIDDLEMAN, Susan 1457
MIDDLETON, Christopher 3249
MIDDLETON, Kathleen 1823
MIDNER, Peggy 2015
MIDWEST ELECTRIC GROUP 2052
MIECZKOWSKI, Ed 3020
MIELSEN, Jack 1230
MIERES 2853
MIERS, Shep 3266
MIESNER, Ron 1700
MIFFLIN, Lloyd 3110
MIGNON, Roger 2386
MIHAESCO, Eugene 2536
MIHAIL 2708
MIHALIK, Jane 1909
MIHALY, Robert 3023
MIHANOVIC, Zvonimir 1667, 2507
MIKESKA, Riko 2484
MIKOLAS, Karel 1910
MILANI, Richard 2543
MILDER, Jay 1859
MILDWOFF, Steve 2545
MILEK, Gary 3379
MILES-BRENDEN, Sheila 2133
MILES, Pamela 3471
MILES, Richard 1374
MILEY, Charles 2462, 2705
MILEY, Douglas 2263
MILHALY, Rob 3021
MILHAM, Marilyn Hurley 1968
MILI, Gjon 1817, 2903
MILICI, Reynard 1944
MILINKOV, Ljubomir 1667, 2501
MILLARES, Manolo 2667
MILLE, Mark 3464
MILLEA, Tom 1100, 1218
MILLEI, John 1327
MILLER-MATHEWS, Wanda 1968
MILLER, Alfred Jacob 3292
MILLER, Algernon 2546
MILLER, Archie 2917
MILLER, Betty Zoe 3397
MILLER, Bob 3226
MILLER, Bradley 1313
MILLER, Carol 1929, 3273
MILLER, Charles 3420
MILLER, Christine B. 3476
MILLER, Constance 2098
MILLER, Dan 3153
MILLER, Dolly 3381
MILLER, Elizabeth 1792
MILLER, Frank 1792
MILLER, Gary 1229
MILLER, Genell 2096
MILLER, George 1161
MILLER, Gustaf 1919, 1946
MILLER, Hub 3288
MILLER, J. Pindyke 2329
MILLER, Jack 1860
MILLER, Jan 1682
MILLER, Joan 2730, 2847
MILLER, John 1862, 1867, 2140, 2380, 2673, 2867
MILLER, Karen Sue 1794
MILLER, Keith 2799
MILLER, Lynette 3268
MILLER, Mariann 2335, 2399, 2816
MILLER, Marilyn 3374
MILLER, Mark 3127
MILLER, Mary Ann 2140
MILLER, Melissa 3251, 3305, 3333
MILLER, Melvin 1286
MILLER, Mike 2131, 2144
MILLER, Nancy 1523
MILLER, Pam 2386
MILLER, Peg 2177
MILLER, Rich 2940
MILLER, Richard 2399
MILLER, Robert 2142
MILLER, Robert "Buck" 3472
MILLER, Sandra 1151
MILLER, Scott 1134
MILLER, Sue 2818
MILLER, Ted 3052, 3059
MILLER, Vel 3484
MILLER, Wayne 2670
MILLET, Jean Francois 2792
MILLETT, Kate 2705
MILLETT, Peter 3418
MILLEVOLTE, Rose 2310
MILLIKAN, Janet 3375
MILLMAN, Lynne 3375
MILLOFF, Mark 2804
MILLS, John W. 1303, 1995
MILLS, Thomas Lyons 2011
MILLSAPPS, Jan 3200
MILMOE, Dolores 1776
MILMON, Lee 1365
MILNE, David 2435
MILNE, William 1909
MILNES, Robert 1906
MILOFF, Mark 1952
MILONADIS, Konstantin 1725
MILONO, Maggie 1500
MILOSEVICH, Deborah 2216, 2239
MILOW, Keith 2707
MILTENBERGER, Charles 1003, 1849
MILTON, George 1554
MILTON, Peter 1258, 1323, 1434, 1921, 1933, 2685, 2851
MIM, A.C. 1470
MIMNAUGH, Terry 2131, 3221
MIN, Mary 1633
MIN, Yong Soon 3005
MINAUX, Andre 2506
MINCH, Barbara 3126
MINER, Alison 1116
MINER, Barbara 1761
MINER, David 2310
MING, Ju 2594
MINGOLLA, Dominic 1484
MINGUS, Charles 2787
MINICK, Scott 1654
MINKIN, Marjorie 1951
MINKKINEN, Arno 1936
MINKOFF, Gérald 3303
MINKOWITZ, Norma 1550
MINNIS, Paul 2977
MINOR, Barbara 2812
MINTHORN, Phillip 3094
MINTZ, Margery 1968
MINTZ, Sybil 2045
MIOTKE, Anne E. 3466
MIOTTE, Jean 3413
MIRANDA-WILSON, Helen 2634
MIRIPOLSKY, Andre 1151
MIRÓ, Joan 1096, 1184, 1270, 1272, 1329, 1484, 1543, 1698, 1699, 1724, 1748, 1797, 1871, 1874, 1930, 1945, 2041, 2041, 2083, 2195, 2391, 2395, 2439, 2466, 2497, 2531, 2533, 2548, 2556, 2560, 2622, 2624, 2667, 2671, 2714, 2727, 2764, 2795, 2921, 3026, 3104, 3180, 3285, 3325
MIRRI, Sabina 2788
MIRTALA 1944
MISCEVIC, Bogdan 2612
MISKE, Tim 2057
MISRACH, Richard 1266
MISS, Mary 1238, 2100
MISSAL, Paul 3076, 3088
MISSAL, Stephen 1050
MITCHEL, Julio 2643
MITCHELL, Bruce 1576
MITCHELL, Dennis 1663
MITCHELL, Freeman 3059
MITCHELL, G. W. 1172
MITCHELL, Jack 3043
MITCHELL, Joan 2518, 3424
MITCHELL, Peter Todd 2498
MITCHELL, Robin 1134
MITCHNICK, Nancy 2003, 2589
MITROPOULOS, Clayton 2499
MITTENDORF, George 2287, 2757
MITTY, Liz 2500
MIYAMOTO, Wayne 1597
MIYASAKI, George 1306
MIYASHIRO, Pattie 1623
MIYAZAKI, Hiroshi 1234
MIZDAL, Richard 2931
MIZELL, Johnnie 2984
MIZELL, Judy 2972
MIZUNO, Mineo 1159, 1433
MOATS, Bill 1819
MOCHIDA, Joel 1608
MOCK, Richard 2362
MODE, Carol 3240
MODEL, Lisette 2009
MODIGLIANI, Amedeo 2402
MOERS, Denny 1441, 1896, 1901, 1946, 2009, 3417
MOFFIT, Beth 2125
MOGAVERO, Michael 2804
MOGENSEN, Lois 3454
MOGENSEN, Paul 1159
MOGUL, Susan 2521
MOHLITZ, Philippe 1444, 2512, 2826
MOHOLY-NAGY, Laszlo 1631, 1668, 2642, 2741
MOHR, Chad 3226
MOHR, Manfred 2081, 2091
MOJE, Klaus 2030, 2585, 3420
MOJICA, Luis 2249
MOL, Janet Morgan 1412
MOLINARO, Ursule 3388
MOLLER, Hans 2677
MÖLLERS, Klaus 2579
MOLLETT, David 1021
MOLTENI, Betty 2150
MOMADY, N. Scott 1626
MOMENT, Barbara 2615
MOMENT, Jack 1405
MOMENT, Joan 1240, 1287, 3427
MOMINEE, John 1654, 3240, 3460
MOMOSE, Keiichiro 2705
MONACO, Clar 1697
MONACO, Theresa 1929
MONAGHAN, Brian Edward 1632
MONAGHAN, Deborah 2597, 2940
MONAS, Susan 2208
MONATH, Elizabeth 2186
MONATIAN, Mike 1102
MONET, Claude 2395, 2402
MONGIELLO, Ginger 2226, 2257
MONK, Nancy 1161
MONNERET, Jean 2498
MONROE, Gary 3272
MONROE, Olivia 2659
MONSEBROTEN, Nancy 2990, 2995
MONSON, Bill 2057
MONSON, Jim 1713
MONSON, Pat 1938, 1946
MONTAGUE, Caroline 1584
MONTANO, Alberto 2376
MONTANO, Linda 1399
MONTANT, Pierre 2836
MONTEITH, Bruce 1654, 2635
MONTEITH, Jerry 2125
MONTGOMERY, Gary 3052
MONTGOMERY, George 2126
MONTGOMERY, William B. 3266
MONTOYA, Gustavo 1092, 1215
MONTOYA, Tommy 2210, 2256
MONTROSSE, Rita 3397
MOON, Jim 2955
MOONAN, Patricia 2937
MOONELIS, Judy 3121
MOOR, Beverly 2109
MOORE, Benjamin 3078, 3158, 3159
MOORE, Bill 3076
MOORE, Carol 3139
MOORE, Charles 1112, 1719
MOORE, Claire 2215, 2371, 2544
MOORE, Cynthia 1819
MOORE, Don 3061
MOORE, G. E. 1343
MOORE, Gordon 1680, 3374
MOORE, Henry 1120, 1158, 1181, 1511, 1524, 1543, 1582, 1676, 1724, 1793, 2041, 2041, 2053, 2395, 2439, 2518, 2531, 2559, 2583, 2592, 2608, 2622, 2624, 2660, 2767, 2795, 2803, 2861, 3026, 3133, 3169, 3285
MOORE, Janet 1703
MOORE, John 2589, 3131
MOORE, Joyce 1387
MOORE, Michael S. 1293
MOORE, Pamela 2857
MOORE, Patricia 1641
MOORE, Richard 1621
MOORE, Robert Eric 3212
MOORE, Sabra 2386
MOORE, Scott 1111
MOORE, Susan 2096, 3122
MOORE, Tim 2247, 2491
MOORE, Tom 1012
MOORE, Tony 3149
MOORE, Wayland 1573, 2539
MOORE, William A. 2150
MOOS, Joy 1517
MOOSE, David 1657
MORA, F. Luis 2360
MORAIS, Edmund 3125
MORALES, Armando 2434, 3285
MORALES, Dario 2348
MORALES, Jesus 3265

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

MORALES, Jose 2851
MORALES-ZENO, Jorge 2592
MORAN, Doug 1478
MORAN, Judy 1275, 1399
MORAN, Malcolm 3194
MORAN, Thomas 1817, 2877
MORANDI, Giorgio 1790
MORANDI, Tom 3420
MORANG, Alfred 2238, 2240
MORARIU, John 1406
MORBY, Velda 2150
MOREE, Sam 2688
MOREH, Mordecai 1944
MOREHEAD, Gary 2632
MOREHEAD, Gerry 2600, 2867
MOREHOUSE, William 1288
MORELLET, Francois 2081, 2091
MORENCY, Ann 1251
MORENO, Amelia 2853
MORENO, Miguel 2736
MORENO, Peter 2726
MORETTI, Henry 1476, 1496
MORGAN, Barbara 1655, 2873, 3125
MORGAN, Clarence 2365
MORGAN, Elmore 1865
MORGAN, Gertrude 1870
MORGAN, Ken 3450
MORGAN, Maud 1966
MORGAN, Robert 2115
MORGAN-BATMANIS, Cynthia 3330
MORGAREIDGE, Joyce 3093
MORGENSTERN, Marilyn 2947
MORI, Yoshitoshi 1603
MORIMOTO, Hiromitsu 2729
MORINOUE, Hiroki 1599, 1603, 1621, 1623
MORITA, John Takami 1602, 1603
MORIWAKI, Glen 1259
MORLEY, Malcolm 1930, 2518, 2998
MORNINGSTAR, William 1580
MORO, Yoko 2014
MOROLES, Jesus Bautista 2239, 2273, 3247, 3265, 3308
MORONI, Aldo 2057, 2068
MOROSAN, Ron 2018
MOROSS, Mary Jane 2324
MORPER, Daniel 2012, 2490
MORPHESIS, Jim 1325, 1659
MORREALE, Frank 1680
MORRELL, Wayne 2263, 3101, 3140
MORRILL, Michael 3168
MORRIS, Carl 1301, 2638, 3079, 3441
MORRIS, George 3169
MORRIS, George L. K. 2589
MORRIS, George N. 2946
MORRIS, Gregg 2800
MORRIS, Hilda 1301, 3079, 3441
MORRIS, Jim 1165
MORRIS, Joe 3436
MORRIS, Robert 1453, 1934, 1990, 2100, 2429, 2430, 2805, 2855, 3305
MORRIS, Roger 2937
MORRIS, Steve 2479
MORRIS, Wayne 3138
MORRIS, William 1163, 1313, 1720, 2030, 2585, 3078, 3166, 3420
MORRIS, William A. 2247
MORRISON, Bob 2112
MORRISON, Boone 1621
MORRISON, Brenda 1063
MORRISON, Brooke 3367
MORRISON, Connie 3251
MORRISON, Elizabeth 1732
MORRISON, Fritz 1234
MORRISON, George 2064
MORRISON, Ivan 1177
MORRISON, Jens 1234, 1313
MORRISON, Keith 1467
MORRISON, Patrick 2378
MORRISON, Sue 1952
MORROW, Allan 1236
MORROW, Andrew 2137
MORROW, Bell Cain 1085
MORROW, Claudine 1052
MORROW, Kathleen 2847
MORROW, Ken 1102, 1296
MORROW, Michael 2242
MORROW, Nicholas 2265
MORSE, Bart 3373
MORSE, Emily Hall 3080, 3420
MORSE, Marcia 1609
MORSE, Pat 1377
MORSE, Samuel F.B. 2701
MORSE, Stephen 2133
MORTENSEN, Gordon 2048, 3010, 3041, 3169, 3385
MORTENSON, Kay 1202
MORTON, Geer 1144, 1251
MORTON, Laka 1623
MOSCOE, Carolyn 1819
MOSCOWITZ, Ira 2416
MOSE, Steve 1679
MOSELEY, Michael 3043
MOSENTHAL, Charlotte 2161
MOSER 2488
MOSER, Barry 1955, 2770
MOSER, Charles 1411, 2508
MOSER, Christine 2036
MOSES, Anna M. Robertson 1788
MOSES, Ed 1158, 1159, 1218, 1721, 2084
MOSES, Forrest 1357, 2222, 2229, 2467, 3336
MOSES, Grandma 2053, 2536, 2575
MOSKOW, Walter 3399
MOSKOWITZ, Carol 2186
MOSKOWITZ, Ira 2807
MOSKOWITZ, Molly 2496
MOSKOWITZ, Robert 1167, 1304, 2406
MOSLER, Henry 3007
MOSLEY, Kim 1682, 2103
MOSS, Ben 2638
MOSS, Joan 1650
MOSS, Joe 1515, 3131
MOSS, June 2599
MOSS, Karen 1276
MOSS, Kay 1085
MOSS, Maurice 2897
MOSS, P. Buckley 1423, 3405
MOSSET, Olivier 2711
MOTHERWELL, Robert 1246, 1432, 1442, 1534, 1543, 1618, 1802, 1911, 1930, 1979, 1980, 2053, 2099, 2105, 2582, 2633, 3041, 3042, 3117, 3317, 3450
MOTHNER, Carol 2235, 2872
MOTI, Kaiko 1396, 2683
MOTY, Joyce 3430
MOTZFELDT, Benny 2370
MOTZKIN, Judith 1949, 1971
MOULDING, Alan 1996
MOULIS, William 1664
MOULTHROP, Ed 1043, 2491
MOULTON, Donn 2635
MOULTON, Jeffrey 1423, 3151
MOUNT, Ann 2977
MOWRER, Lynn 3127
MOY, Jeff 1935
MOY, Seong 1992
MOYA, Robert 3183
MOYER, Roy 1945, 2764
MOYERS, Charles 2214
MOYERS, William 1061, 2128, 2214
MOYNIHAN, Rodrigo 2678
MOZLEY, Loren 3288
MUCHMORE, Maggie 2242
MUDFORD, Grant 1146, 2650
MUELLER, Louis 2991, 3121
MUELLER, Ned 3442
MUELLER, Stephen 2707, 3270
MUENCH, Jack 1894
MUENCH, Tom 3457
MUERER, Charles 3007
MUGNAINI, Joseph 3358
MUHL, Roger 2506
MUHLERT, Christopher 3291
MUIR, Douglas 1058, 2938
MUIR, James N. 1382
MUKAI, Katsumi 2887
MULCAHY, Kathleen 3173
MULDER, Tom 2238, 3373
MULEME, Mathias 2045
MULFORD, Kelly 1623
MULHERN, Mark 3465
MULHERN, Michael 2550
MULKERN, Kevin 1951
MULKINS, William 2371
MULL, Martin 1133
MULLEN, Philip 1144, 1580, 2508
MULLER, Betsy 3266
MULLER, Jan 2500
MULLER, Yvonne 2467
MÜLLER-POHLE, Andreas 3303
MULLICAN, Lee 1181
MULLICAN, Matt 2410, 3333
MULLIGAN, Catherine 2996
MULLIKEN, Maria 2889
MUNCH, Charles 2794
MUNCH, Edvard 1192, 1631, 2068, 2419, 2537
MUNDAY, Charles 2299
MUNGALL, Barbara 3118
MUNGUIA, Roberto 1281, 3265
MUNK, Loren 2421
MUNN, Alice Ballard 1831
MUÑOZ, Aurelia 2847
MUNOZ, Rie 1760
MUNRO, Alan 1269
MUNRO, Betty 2937
MUNRO, Janet 2343, 2615
MUNROE, Antonia 1933, 2685
MUNROE, Enid 1404, 2685
MUNROE, Olivia 1933, 2685, 2826
MUNTADAS, Antonio 1474
MÜNTER, Gabriele 2595
MUNZNER, Aribert 2052
MURABITO, Michael 1445
MURAKISHI, Steve 2013
MURAWSKI, Loretta 2915
MURISON, Peg 1875
MURPHY, Ann Marie 2890
MURPHY, Catherine 2518
MURPHY, Charlie 1701
MURPHY, Christus 1938
MURPHY, Deborah 2140
MURPHY, Hermann Dudley 2562
MURPHY, J. Francis 2275, 2360
MURPHY, Marilyn 3240
MURPHY, Michael 2730
MURPHY, Owen 1862
MURPHY, Susan 1909
MURRAY, Albert 2738
MURRAY, Bob 1288
MURRAY, Clark 2100
MURRAY, Elizabeth 1193, 2452
MURRAY, Jane Nieves 1559
MURRAY, John 1415, 1559, 2312, 2460
MURRAY, Judith 1159
MURRAY, Keith 2087
MURRAY, Mary 2951
MURRAY, Ralph 2304
MURRAY, Richard 3282, 3375
MURRAY, Robert 2573
MURRAY, Samuel 1453
MURRAY, Tim 2951
MURRAY, Virginia 1385
MURRAY, William E. 2066
MURRAY-MEISSINGER, Ellen 3058
MURRELL, Pat Feeney 1539
MURRILL, Gwynn 1111, 1112, 1132, 1170
MURTIC, Edo 1670
MUSLER, Jay 1282, 1313, 2030
MUSLIN, Joseph 2498
MUSSELMAN, David 1831
MUSSOFF, Jody 1445, 2634
MUSTER, Paulus 3312
MUTH, Marcia 1760
MUTTER, Scott 1650, 1682
MUYBRIDGE, Eadweard 1262
MYER, Jo 1008
MYERS, Barbara 3135
MYERS, Edward 3399
MYERS, Forrest 2353
MYERS, Fran 3458
MYERS, Frank 3007
MYERS, Gifford 1170
MYERS, Jan 1580, 2930
MYERS, Jennifer 1278
MYERS, Jerome 2638
MYERS, Joan 1203, 2139, 2228, 2729, 3054, 3417
MYERS, Joel Philip 1533, 1720, 1986, 2030
MYERS, Joyce 2670
MYERS, Kathryn 3457
MYERS, Malcolm 2052, 2059
MYERS, Marcia 3261
MYERS, Mark 3426
MYERS, Martin 1160, 1283
MYERS, Mickey 1664, 3458, 3472
MYERS, Peggy 1278
MYFORD, James 1542
MYRAH, Dagny 3460
MYRAH, Newman 2115
MYRUP, John 1035, 3376

N

NABER, Bernd 2788
NADAL, James 1910, 2545
NADEAU, R. Edward 1899
NADELMAN, Elie 2779, 2845
NADIN, Peter 2362
NADLER, Harry 2000
NADLEY, Abigail 2035
NADOLSKI, Stephanie 3302
NAEGELE, Rosemary 2405
NAFTULIN, Rose 3136
NAGANO, Paul 1944
NAGANO, Shozo 2798
NAGAOKA, Kunito 1058, 1185, 1295, 1444, 1797
NAGARE, Masayuki 2814
NAGASAKI-E 1635
NAGEL, Patrick 2363, 2487
NAGIN, Rice Rice 3121
NAGLE, Ron 1287, 2457
NAGLER, Fred 2677, 3288
NAGLER, Monte 1719
NAHAULAITUQ, Sam 2361
NAHOOM, Paul 2984
NAIMO, Nicola 2800
NAJDZIONEK, Christine 2286
NAKANISHI, Yasuko 2704
NAKANO, Yuzo 1713
NAKASHIMA, George 1043
NAKIAN, Reuben 1995, 2660, 3135, 3332
NALLS, Gayil 1906, 2423, 3320
NAMIKI, Mitsuko 1164
NAMINGHA, Dan 2233
NAMKUNG, Johsel 3420
NAMUTH, Hans 1470
NANAO, Kenjilo 1278, 1797
NAPOLITANO, Mary 2510
NAPONIC, Tony 1733, 1802
NARAHA, Takashi 1188
NARANJO, Michelle 2256
NARAYAN, Badri 2991
NARBUTOVSKIH, Paula 2254
NARDONE, Vincent 2159
NAREHOOD, Vivien 3111
NAREZO, Jose 2024
NARIKAWA, Shigeru 1609, 2826
NARKIEWICZ, Paul 2635, 2715, 2789
NARTKER, John 3242
NARTONIS, Cynthia 3082
NASH, David 2675
NASH, Winfield 1735
NASON, Thomas 1955
NAST, Thomas 1067, 2034
NATAPOFF, Flora 1357, 1937
NATH, Pandit Pran 2477
NATHAN-SINGER, Ellen 2186
NATHANIEL-WALKER, Inez 1646, 1690, 1870, 2631
NATKIN, Robert 1273, 1325, 1478, 1535, 1566, 1724, 1763, 1802, 2001, 2043, 2215, 2551, 2822, 3011, 3125
NATTINI, Amos 3003
NATZLER, Otto 1093, 1434
NAUMAN, Bruce 1136, 1152, 1193, 1335, 1731, 2429, 2430, 2811, 3287, 3424
NAUMOUVSKI, Vangel 2612
NAVA, John 1161
NAVARRO, Josep 2931
NAVON, Dora 1151
NAVONE, Edward 1809
NAWIR, Ferril 2847
NAYINI, Malekeh 2827
NEAL, Cecil 1501
NEAL, Phillip 1867
NEAL, Susan 1437
NEALE, Ann 2800
NEAMAN, Laurie 2599
NEBEKER, Bill 1061
NEBEKER, Royal 3425
NECHAK, David 3437
NECHVATAL, Dennis 1733, 3459
NECHVATAL, Joseph 2632
NEEDHAM, Franciska 1899
NEEDHAM, Joan 2815
NEEDLEMAN, Rhoda 2889
NEEL, Alice 1453, 1489, 1902, 2003, 2501
NEEL, Jim 1002
NEELY, Anne 1933, 2685
NEES, Paula 3460
NEFF, Edith 2550, 3131
NEFF, John 1377, 1407
NEFF, Thomas L. 3243
NEFFSON, Robert 1909, 2510
NEGRET, Edgar 2530
NEGROPONTE, George 2362
NEHER, Ross 2743
NEIDICH, Warren 1878
NEIJNA, Barbara 1515
NEILL, Christine 1902
NEILL, Harmon 1889
NEILL, Joe 2845, 2848
NEIMAN, Leroy 1017, 1503, 1544, 1871, 2147, 2195, 2575, 3422
NEIMANAS, Joyce 1078, 3125
NEIZVESTNY, Ernst 2692, 2732, 2693
NELANDER, Arthur 1608
NELLE, Anthony 2458
NELLES, Lisa 1770
NELLES, Scott 1770
NELSON, Alex 1657
NELSON, Andy 1128
NELSON, Art 1331
NELSON, Barbara 1571
NELSON, Connie 1276, 1500
NELSON, David 1433, 2124
NELSON, Dona. 2573, 2999
NELSON, Frederick 2096
NELSON, James 1232
NELSON, James P. 3173
NELSON, Jon 1331
NELSON, Jud 2670, 3287
NELSON, Judith 2849
NELSON, Karen 1171
NELSON, Larry 2787
NELSON, Leonard 3138
NELSON, Marilyn 1372
NELSON, Pamela 3266
NELSON, Richard 1619, 1623
NELSON, Robert 1601, 1615, 1617, 3153
NELSON, Roger Laux 1457, 2051, 2715, 2772
NELSON, Willis 3426
NEMETHY, Albert 2799
NEMTZOW, Naomi 2413
NEMTZOW, Scott 2688
NENGUDI, Senga 2620
NEPOTE, Alexander 1039
NERI, Giancarlo 2635
NERI, Manuel 1246, 1510, 2457, 2989
NESBITT, Lowell 1680, 1999, 2006, 2019, 2195, 2314, 2460, 2461, 3041, 3043, 3285
NESPOLO, Ugo 2375
NESSI, Marie-Lucie 1667

VOL
7
1
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

NESTERUK, Edward 1043, 1910, 1949, 1971, 3169, 3467
NESTOR, Colleen 2636
NETSCH, Walter 1733
NEUBERGER, Dan 2915
NEUBERT, George 1213
NEUENSCHWANDER, Ronna 3078
NEUMAN, Margret 1372
NEUMANN, Leslie 2544
NEUSTEIN, Joshua 2844
NEUSÜSS, Floris M. 3303
NEUTRA, Richard 2689
NEVAQUAYA, Doc Tate 3050, 3052, 3061
NEVELSON, Louise 1529, 1531, 1543, 1575, 1678, 1680, 1931, 2100, 2146, 2717, 2718, 2928, 3026, 3275
NEVIA (JOSEPH SHEPPARD ROGERS) 1471
NEVILLE, Beth 2705
NEWBORN, Sandy 1811
NEWBOURNE, Edith 2036
NEWBURG, Alan 2113
NEWBURY, Carol 3445
NEWBY, Ben 3064
NEWCOMB, Gerald 3428
NEWCOMB, Howard 1814
NEWCOMB, Jean 1814
NEWELL, Bo 3351
NEWELL, Bruce 2273
NEWELL, Rex 1036
NEWELL, Susan 1058
NEWHALL, Beaumont 1355, 2604
NEWHALL, Edith 2499
NEWHALL, Michael 1654, 3474
NEWHOUSE, Keith 3151
NEWKIRK, Scott 1306
NEWMAN, Barnett 2474, 2518
NEWMAN, David 3279
NEWMAN, Donald 1639, 2707, 2848
NEWMAN, Howard 1145, 2454
NEWMAN, Kirk 2012
NEWMAN, Libby 3135
NEWMAN, Margaret 2228
NEWMAN, Miriam 1590
NEWMAN, Paul 1564
NEWMAN, Sophie 2371
NEWMAN, William 1445
NEWMANN, Eugene 2229
NEWTON, Gordon 2018
NEWTON, Helmut 1155, 1655
NEWTON, Lee 1943
NEWTON, Richard 2909
NEY, Alexander 1566, 1586
NG, Ku-Hung 1121
NIBLACK, Pat 2242
NIBLETT, Gary 1702, 3311
NICASTRI, Joe 2590
NICCOLINI, Dianora 2364
NICE, Don 2154, 2590
NICHOL, Andrew 1051
NICHOL, Betty 2344
NICHOLAS, David 3338
NICHOLAS, Rochelle 1172
NICHOLAS, Thomas 2563
NICHOLS, Annetta 1003
NICHOLS, David 1003
NICHOLS, Frederick 1053, 1468, 2007
NICHOLS, Galen 3055
NICHOLS, Garry 2699
NICHOLS, Janie 3255
NICHOLS, Lisa 3255
NICHOLS, Marcia 1003
NICHOLS, Timothy 1966
NICHOLS, Tom 3348
NICHOLS, Ward 2975
NICHOLSON, Ben 2494
NICHOLSON, Natasha 1132
NICK, George 1678, 1931, 2467
NICKARD, Gary 2296
NICKEL, Jim 2096
NICKEL, Peter 3266
NICKELS, Barbara 1619
NICKERSON, John 2115, 2247, 2617
NICKLE, Robert 1678, 2215
NICKOLIC, Tomislav 1670
NICKSON, Graham 1418, 2423, 2589
NICOLE 2374
NICOLI, C. Pattie 2561
NICOSIA, Nic 2298, 2470, 3270
NIEBAUER, Brian 1360
NIEBOER, James 2026
NIELSEN, Jack 1319
NIELSEN, Margaret 1132
NIELSON, Paul 1887, 2939
NIELSON, Stuart 1639, 2060, 2064
NIEMAN, Leroy 2147
NIEMI, Ries 3430
NIERMAN, Leonardo 1092, 1096, 1215, 1396, 1647, 2088, 2171
NIETFELD, Mary 3433
NIETO, John 2050, 2230
NIEVES MURRAY, Jane 1559
NIHART, John 2920
NII, Yuko 1183
NIIZUMA, Minoru 2551
NILS-UDO 3303
NILSSON, Gladys 1690, 2631
NIMNUAL, Kosol 2851
NININGER, Susan 1151, 3430
NIRENBERG, Lisa 2183
NISAYAPHANTHA, Sonchai 1609
NISBET, P.A. 2238
NISBET, Pete 1052
NISH, Dale 3166
NISHANIAN, Peter 1590
NISHI, Ken 2946
NISHIJIMA, K. 2887
NISHIMURA, Mark R. 3444
NISHIMURA, Stan 1399
NISHIZAWA, Yasuomi 2704
NISSELSON, Linda 2733
NISSEN, Brian 2531, 2532
NISSEN, Cristian 2162, 2163
NIX, Martha 1567
NIX, Patricia 2271, 2825
NIXON, Emily 2496
NIXON, Nicholas 1262, 2751, 2873
NIXON, Plonia Zan Der Hoeven 2824
NOBL, George 2628
NOBLE, David 2218
NOBLE, Helen 1315
NOBLE, John 1407, 1815
NOBLE, Kevin 2298
NODA, Masaaki 1713, 2444
NODINE, Jane 3212
NODJOUMI, Nickzad 2365, 2827
NOE, Jerry 1457
NOE, Luis Felipe 2699
NOE, Mark 1913
NOEL, Fran 1626
NOEL, George 2297
NOEL, Scott 3138
NOERDLINGER, Janau 1347
NOFER, Frank 3101, 3140
NOGUCHI, Isamu 1152, 2533, 2718
NOGUCHI, Mary T. 3000
NOGUEIRA, Ana Regina 2609
NOICE, Karen 2131, 2134
NOLAN, Long 2888
NOLAND, Kenneth 1064, 1457, 1578, 1802, 1946, 2494, 2780, 3275
NOLAND, William 2550
NOLDE, Emil 1631, 2560, 2771
NOLDEN, Mark 2183
NOLET, Didier 1657
NOMECOS, Mary 1515
NONAS, Richard 1574, 1731, 1917, 2215, 2521, 2710, 2857
NOPPER, Mary 1412
NORBERG, Russell 2131, 2987
NORCROSS, Ginger 1772
NORDFELDT, B.J.O. 2059, 2245, 2877
NORDIN, Tim 1216
NORDLINGER, Susan 1994
NORDMAN, Maria 1146
NORGARD, Sam 3122, 3129
NORLING, Barry 1972
NORMAN, Elaine 2658
NORMAN, James 1581, 3164, 3243
NORMAN, Liza Jane 1963
NORQUIST, Elliot 2228
NORRBO, Bennet 3080
NORRIS, Ben 2772
NORRMAN, Gunnar 2512, 2814
NORSWORTHY, Jeanne 3282, 3335
NORTH, Bruce 2563
NORTH, Kenda 3125
NORTHERNER, Will 1733
NORTON, Ann 2594
NORTON, Caroline 1356, 1816
NORTON, David 1471
NORTON, F. Wendel 1079
NORTON, Jane Morton 1828, 1831
NORTON, Jim 3376
NORTON, John 2217
NORTON, Marie 1567
NORVELL, Patsy 2357
NOTHEISEN, Laurin 1820
NOTKIN, Charlee 1692
NOTTEBOHM, Andreas 1149, 2736
NOUROT, Glass Studio 2940
NOUROT, Michael 2226, 2617
NOVAC, Alexandru 2857
NOVACK, Frank T. 1412
NOVAK, Barbara 2403
NOVAK, Bob 1674
NOVAK, Kurt 2026
NOVAK, Ladislav 1436
NOVITOVIC, Darinka 1697
NOVOA, Gustavo 1667, 1797, 2379, 2819
NOWINSKI, Ira 1306
NOWLIN, Gary 3251
NOWLIN, Steve 1190
NOYER, Dennis Paul 3273
NOYER, Philippe 2088
NOZKOWSKI, Thomas 2500, 2505
NUEGO, D. 1864
NUGENT, Bob 1223, 1266, 1549, 1644, 2006
NUMKENA, Dennis 1030, 1063
NUNEZ, Ramiro 2800
NURAI, Ahmet 1328
NUSHAWG, Michael 1451, 1713, 2142
NUSS, Joanne 2083
NUSSBAUM, Jakob 1088
NUTT, Jim 1690, 2631
NUTTING, Wallace 2968
NYBURG, Mary 1437
NYE, Marvin 2250
NYEN, Arne 2057
NYGREN, Bruce 2054
NYGREN, John 1163, 2585
NYSTROM, Helmtrud 1295

O

O'BANION, Nance 1241, 2109
O'BANNON, Mildred 1079
O'BOURKE, Terina 2738
O'BRIEN, Barney 1176
O'BRIEN, E. Baker 3011
O'BRIEN, Edward 1406
O'BRIEN, Jean 1377
O'CAIN, Frank 1713
O'CASEY, Breon 2639
O'CONNELL, George 1713, 2916
O'CONNELL, Jeffrey 1165
O'CONNOR, John 1909
O'CONNOR, Katherine Wengi 3067, 3073, 3080
O'CONNOR, Patrick 3055
O'CONNOR, Thom 2576, 2916
O'DELL, Erin 3114
O'DELL, Lad 3366
O'DELL, Rob 1377
O'DOHERTY, Janet 3071
O'DONNELL, Hugh 2660
O'DONOHUE, Teige 1396
O'DOWDY, Danny 3256
O'GORMAN, Laurel 2064
O'HANLON, Richard 1213
O'HARA, Eliot 1522, 1544, 1547, 1763
O'HARA, Fredrick 1116
O'HARA, Jim 1026
O'HARA, Sheila 2681
O'HARA, Valerie 2915
O'HARE, Tom 2890
O'KEEFFE, Georgia 1329, 2053, 2665, 2877
O'KELLEY, Edith 1079
O'KELLEY, Georgia 1085
O'KELLEY, Mattie Lou 1760, 2615
O'KELLEY, Patsy 1085
O'LEARY, Diane 1038, 1234
O'MALLEY, Ann 1636
O'NEIL, John 1566
O'NEIL, Rooney 1298
O'NEILL, Brian 2378
O'NEILL, George Jr 2561
O'NEILL, Mike 1896
O'NEILL, Tim 3078
O'NEILL, William H. 1415
O'REILLY, Julia 3069
O'SHEA, Mary Lynn 1437
O'STEEN, Kermit 1557
O'SULLIVAN, Daniel 2638
O'SULLIVAN, Mary Louise 1528
O'SULLIVAN, Timothy 1262
O'TOOLE, Kevin 3136
O'TOOLE, Terry 1994
OAKLEY, Violet 3110
OAS, Joel 1244
OBARA, A. J. 1645
OBERBECK, Edwin 3372
OBERING, Mary 1371
OBERLANDER, James 2273
OBERMOELLER, Linda 3314
OBERST, Paul 3020
OBRDA, Olga 2173
OBRIEN-FFRENCH, Conrad 1381
OBUCK, John 1731, 2552
OCEJO, José Garcia 1945, 2764
OCHMAN, Jim 1301
OCHS, James 1792, 1799
OCHSNER, Ernest 2139
OCHTMAN, Leonard 2360
ODA, Hiromi 1571
ODA, Mayumi 1609
ODA, Nami 2704
ODATE, Toshio 1398
ODELL, Lad 1035, 3363
ODIO, Pacho 2615
ODZA, Ted 1217
OEHLERT, Bonnie 3471
OESTREICH, Jeff 2471
OESTREICH, Nels 2444
OGDEN, Jack 1101, 1229, 1230
OGDEN, Sam 1831, 2299
OGILVY, Susan Joy 3075
OGLE, Mark 1070, 2128
OGURA, Kaoru 1295
OHLSON, Doug 2423
OHSTUKA, Hosetsu 2517
OHTAKE, Tomie 2637
OI, Toshiyasu 1301
OIYE, Yasuko 3428
OJEDA, Naul 1572
OJI, Helen 1105, 2634
OKADA, Frank 3441
OKAMOTO, Rikuro 2580
OKAMOTO, Shogo 2887
OKAMURA, Arthur 1249
OKAZAKI, Linda 3433
OKEKE, Uche 2049, 2052, 2059
OKINO, Mimi 2332
OKO, Annette 1992, 2881
OKSTEYN, Shimon 2692
OKU 3101, 3140
OKUDA, Hajime 1619
OKULICK, John 1132, 1246, 1312, 2590
OKUMURA, Lydia 2449
OLANNA, Karen 1021
OLANNA, Melvin 1021, 3431, 3435
OLDENBURG, Claes 1152, 1167, 1267, 1335, 1432, 1511, 1678, 2429, 2430, 2684, 3317
OLEJARZ, Harold 2519
OLENSKA, Chrysta 1725
OLIJNYK, Michael 3172
OLIN, Mark 2544
OLIPHANT, Pat 1451
OLITSKI, Jules 1064, 1159, 1840, 1931, 2494, 2633, 3318
OLIVEIRA, Nathan 1246, 1678, 2457
OLIVER, Jeanette 2956
OLIVER, Kermit 3309
OLIVER, Myron 1198
OLIVERA, Ray 1682
OLIVERAS, Domingo 2433
OLIVERSON, Lawrence 3471
OLLMAN, Arthur 1266, 2903, 3434
OLSEN, Dennis 1933, 2685
OLSEN, Don 3373
OLSEN, John 3309
OLSEN, Paul 2054
OLSON, Audrey 2974
OLSON, Bob 2893
OLSON, Charlene 2977
OLSON, Charles 1433, 3118, 3460
OLSON, Fritzi 1500
OLSON, J. 2057
OLSON, Jack 1732
OLSON, Olaf 2790
OLSON, Paul 3071
OLSZEWSKI, Michael 3121
OLTVEDT, Carl 2038, 2054
OMAN, Sheridan 1038
OMAR, Margit 1159
OMARY, Baha S. 2835
OMINSKI, Steve 3426
ONE STAR, Lloyd 3223
ONGARO, Athos 2707
ONIFRIO, Judy 2051
ONTANI, Luigi 2788
OPAL, Kit 1123
OPALKA, Roman 2859
OPDAHL, Martha 1770
OPIE, John 1867, 3138
OPIE, Susan 3438
OPPENHEIM, Dennis 1453, 1659, 2325, 2788, 2845, 2885, 3030, 3424
OPPENHEIM, Moritz Daniel 2614
OPPENHEIMER, Ed 1357, 2229
OPPENHEIMER, Joel 1733
OPPER, John 2411
ORCUTT, Peg 1703
ORDONEZ, Maria Antonia 3183
ORKIN, Ruth 1719, 2761, 3417
ORLANDO, Philip 1327
ORLINSKY, Elaine 2153
ORNBERG, Kay 3458
OROPALLO, Deborah 1331
OROZCO, Jose Clemente 1215, 1245
ORR, Chris 2613
ORR, Eric 1179, 2271
ORR, Louis 2968
ORTEGA, Martin Rico y 1180
ORTIZ, Fred 1803, 2050
ORTIZ, Oliver 2240
ORTIZ, Patricia 1372
OSBORN, Kevin 1474, 2247
OSBORN, Robert 1418
OSBORNE, Elizabeth 2511, 2592, 2715, 3131
OSBORNE, Pam 1819
OSBORNE, Robert 1547
OSBOURNE, JoAnn McFarlane 2620
OSHERMAN, Dana 3129
OSHIRO, Hyde 2553
OSMER, Jack 1049
OSMOND, Terrence 1327
OSORIO, Pepon 2374, 2433
OSSORIO, Alfonso 1064, 2716
OSTERGREN, Eduardo 1781
OSTERMAN, Barbara 3127
OSTERMILLER, Dan 1360, 3322
OSTHEIMER, Andy 3418
OSTRER, Mort 2726
OSTROW, Saul 2523
OSTROWE, Caryn 2216
OSVER, Arthur 1664, 2096
OSYCZKA, Bohdan D. 2340
OTA, Mark 3418
OTIS, Jeanne 1043
OTSUKA, Hisashi 1606, 1871
OTT, Colleen 3205
OTT, Jerry 2822
OTT, Mary 1761
OTT, Mike 1805
OTTERNESS, Tom 2362
OTTERSON, Joel 2543
OUCHI, Makotu 2887
OUGHTON, Larry 2006
OURSLER, Tony 2298

OUTERBRIDGE, Paul 1155, 2055
OVERCASH, Clyde 2972
OVERFIELD, Richard 1276
OVERSTREET, Richard 1644
OVRECESKI, Ina 2734
OWEN, Bill 3484
OWEN, Frank 1476, 2590
OWEN, Jackie 2171
OWEN, June 1967
OWEN, McHugh 3240
OWEN, Paul 2179
OWEN, Robert Emmett 1954, 2359
OWEN, Roy 2171
OWENBROSK, Jeffrey 2329
OWENS, Nate 3439
OWENS, Robert 3285
OWIDZKA, Jolanta 1640
OWINGS, Cynthia 2118
OXMAN, Laney 2545
OXTOBY, David 1143
OZAKI, Yukio 1603
OZOLS, Auseklis 1875
OZONOFF, Ida 3466

P

PABST, Chuck 1070
PACE, Lorenzo 1399
PACE, Stephen 1775, 2772
PACHECO, Ruby 1525
PACKARD, Betsy 1776
PACKARD, Jeffrey 2399
PACKER, Dean 1057, 2250
PADILLA, Carlos 1188
PADIN, Betsy 3181, 3182
PADOVANO, Anthony 2562
PAEFFGEN, Claes-Otto 2804
PAGAN, Richard 3183
PAGE, Ann 1188, 1218
PAGE, Barbara 3118
PAGE, George 1218
PAGE, John 1792
PAGE, Ken 1839
PAGE, Larry 1963
PAGE, Raymond 3190
PAGE, Wayne 1445
PAGEN, Geoff 3078
PAGES, Bernard 2492
PAGLIARI, Ulisse 1248
PAHSETOPAH, Loren 1814, 3061
PAIGE, Bob 1831
PAIK, Nam June 1704, 2530, 2868
PAINTER, Hal 1075
PAINTER, James 3318
PAISLEY, Larry 2121
PAJECK, Martin 2536
PAJULA-SALVAT, Marjatta 2882
PAL, Fried 3353
PALADIN, David Chethlake 2262
PALADINO, Mimmo 1335, 1519, 1569, 2657, 2684, 2707
PALAIA, Franc 2174, 2183
PALAZZOLO, Carl 3313
PALAZZOLO, Tom 1693
PALCICH, Joseph 3429
PALEC, Milan 2853
PALECEK, Josef 2432
PALEY, Albert 1442
PALFI, Mariano 2872
PALIARD, Olivia 2011
PALLADINI, David 2432
PALLY, Marc 1160, 1169
PALM, Olaf 1070
PALMÉ, Marie 3061
PALMER, Adelaide 2360
PALMER, Amanda 2882
PALMER, Gregory 3330
PALMER, Juliette 3127
PALMER, Kay 3207
PALMER, Marilla 2800
PALMER, Michael 1458
PALMER, Patrick 1027, 1273, 1371
PALMER, Walter Launt 1314
PALMER, William 2677
PALMORE, Tom 1044, 1045, 1720, 2236, 3154
PALOMER, Pilar 2662
PALUMBO, Jacques 2091
PAM, Max 1257
PANDER, Henk 3086
PANG, Tseng Ying 3151
PANISH, Morton 2177
PANNUCCI, Cynthia 2394
PAONE, Peter 3151, 3315
PAPAGEORGE, Tod 1731, 2873, 2998
PAPANICOLAOU, Lilika 2408
PAPARELLI, Janet 1515
PAPART, Max 1874, 2014, 3009
PAPPALARDO, Dean 3021
PAPPAS, John 2035
PAPPAS, Marilyn 1947
PAPPAS, Paul 3071
PAPPAS-PARKS, Katherine 1633
PAPPENHEIMER, Will 1761
PAQUAY, Carol 2405
PAQUETTE, Gregory 2814
PARADA, Esther 1659, 2516, 2919
PARADIS, Jim 1776
PARDEE, Hearne 2413
PARDI, Gianfranco 1306
PARDINGTON, Ralph 2257
PARDON, Earl 1576
PARDUE, Jack 1037
PARFITT, Muriel 1621
PARIS, Robert Frost 2995
PARIS, William 2296, 2919
PARISH, Shirley 2020
PARISH, Tom 1674, 2020
PARK, Darragh 2570
PARKE, Walter 1377, 1774
PARKER, Ann 2248
PARKER, Bart 2065, 2919
PARKER, Carolyn 2815
PARKER, Geoffrey 2613
PARKER, Jo Pat 2620
PARKER, Kingsley 2449
PARKER, Leroy 1269
PARKER, Lucinda 2506, 3079
PARKER, Lyn 2004
PARKER, Mavis K. 1116
PARKER, Oliver 1950
PARKER, Olivia 1100, 2729
PARKER, Ray 3013
PARKER, Robert Andrew 2182, 2481, 2613
PARKER, Wilma 1039
PARKER, Yvonne 3309
PARKINSON, Lee 2263
PARKS, Addison 2460
PARKS, Charles 3206
PARKS, Gordon 1817, 2202, 2767
PARKS, John 2818
PARKS, Paul 1938
PARKS, Robert 3058
PARMER, John 1288
PAROBI, Paquita 1490
PARRA, Catalina 2532
PARRINO, Steven 2543
PARRISH, David 2590
PARRISH, Maxfield 1954, 3099
PARRISH, Stephen 1954
PARROTT, Robert 2172, 3114
PARRY, Amanda 2915
PARSON, Charles 1368
PARSONS, Betty 1176, 1488, 1578, 1664, 2215, 2635, 2928
PARSONS, Neil 2117
PARSONS, Shelia 1079
PARTELOW, David 1553
PARTENHEIMER, Jurgen 2521
PARTIN, Bob 1327
PARTIOT, Bernard 2535
PASCHKE, Ed 1677, 1690, 1718, 2631, 3305
PASCIN, Jules 2354
PASCO, Duane 2542
PASCOE, Estelle 2290
PASCUAL, Macario 1619
PASCUCCI, Richard 2915
PASEK, Doug 3039
PASEK, Mark 1027
PASHGIAN, Helen 1183
PASHKO, Walter 1933, 2685
PASMORE, Victor 2439, 2660
PASS, Deanie 1692
PASSAILAIGUE, Mary 1567
PASSANISE, Gary 2096
PASSANTINO, George 2738
PASSUNTINO, Peter 2785
PASTERNAK, Florence 2318
PASTERNAK, Shirley 3471
PASTO, Tarmo 1231
PASTORE-LANGE, Maria 1775
PATE, Christi 3283, 3339
PATERNOSTO, Cesar 2435, 2662
PATRI, Giacomo 1285
PATRICK, Alan 1767
PATRICK, Joseph 1794
PATRIE, Pam 3078
PATRYJAK, Jer 1996
PATTER, Michael 2439
PATTERSON, Bruce 2523
PATTERSON, Clayton 2658
PATTERSON, David 1144
PATTERSON, Gay 1038
PATTERSON, Milton 2209
PATTERSON, Patricia 1176
PATTI, Joyce 1606
PATTI, Tom 1442, 1533, 2585
PATTISON, Abbott 1664
PATTON, Jo 1003
PAUL, Blanche 2854
PAUL, Gary 1385
PAUL, Helen 3369
PAUL, Joyce 3471
PAUL, Ken 1407
PAUL, Patrick 2827
PAUL, Rick 1775, 3465
PAUL, Suzanne 3333
PAULIK, Michael 2585
PAULINE, Mark 1259
PAULL, Hap 1929
PAULSEN, Brian 2303, 2920, 2990
PAULSEN, Stephen 1114, 1549
PAULSON, James 2113
PAULSON, Robert 1775
PAULY, Patricia J. 2915
PAUSEK, Joe 1332, 2145
PAUTA 2361
PAVIA, Phillip 2747
PAVLATA, H.G. 1302
PAVLIK, Michael 1533, 2925, 3166
PAXSON, E. S. 2128, 2129
PAXTON, William M. 1954
PAYNE, Al 1165, 1275
PAYNE, Edgar 1180, 2059
PAYNE, John 1752
PAYNE, Ken 1057, 2250
PAYNE, Randolph 3385
PAYNE, Steven 1079
PAYNE, Thomas 2296
PAYNE, Woodward 1056, 1269
PAYTON, Greg 2260
PAZMINO, Ramiro 3183
PE, Dara Tse 2261, 2262
PEACOCK, Clifton 1946
PEACOCK, David 3346
PEACOCK, Rubin 3394
PEAK, Elizabeth 1451
PEALE, Charles Willson 1466, 1926
PEARLSTEIN, Philip 1198, 1267, 1432, 1546, 1669, 1914, 1930, 2008, 2198, 2528, 2592, 2789
PEARSON, David 3076, 3434
PEARSON, Henry 2725
PEARSON, John 1678, 3019
PEARSON, Kathleen 2240
PEARSON, Marguerite 1141
PEARSON, Ronald 1949, 1971
PEART, Jerry 1064, 1656
PEASE, David 3135
PEASLEE, Dixie 2386
PEBWORTH, Charles 2239, 3324
PECHÉ, Dale 1254
PECK, Fay 1702, 2287, 2757
PECKAR, Phyllis 2705
PECKINS, Stefanie 1479
PECORARO, Salvatore 1691, 1845
PEDERSEN, Carl-Henning 2644
PEDERSEN, Kirk 1047
PEDERSON, Ron 2026
PEDERSON, Sharleen 1323
PEDERY-HUNT, Dora de 3178
PEDZIWIATR, Michael 1343
PEED, Michael 1287, 1692, 1808, 2117
PEEKEMA, Joanne 3075
PEER, Linda 2405
PEERLESS, Ruth 3397
PEERY, Laura 1968
PEETERS, Hans 1268
PEETS, Wally 2506
PEGLAU, Michael 2378
PEHR 3433
PEICHERT, Herbert 2999
PEIRCE, Gerry 2047
PEISER, Mark 1986, 2030, 2585
PEKARSKY, Mel 1243, 2490
PEKER, Elya 2692
PELAVIN, Cheryl 2613
PELEG, Rina 1571, 2006, 2297, 2312
PELKA, Ken 2296
PELLATON, Ann 2900
PELLETTIERI, Peter 2407
PELLEY, Christopher 1027
PELLICCIA, Dino 1867
PELLICONE, William 2726
PELLIGRINO, Jeanne 1517
PELLÓN, Adela 2175
PELS, Marsha 2716
PELT, Judy 1080
PELTIER, Jean 2498
PEÑA, Amado 1059, 1071, 1332, 1803, 1804, 1810, 2050, 2145, 2171, 2210, 2213, 2314, 2542, 3094, 3311, 3422
PENALBA, Alicia 2917
PENALVER, Alex 1525
PENALVER, Edward 1525
PEÑARETTE, Alvaro 2853
PENCE, Paula 1331
PENCE, Rema 1085
PENCHANSKY, Norma 1496, 2082, 2273
PENCK, A. R. 1575, 2805
PENDELL, David 3374
PENDLETON, Dennis 1360
PENLAND, Jean Wall 3214
PENN, Irving 1950, 2146, 2660
PENNEBAKER, Edward 1807
PENNEY, Jacqueline 2310, 2344
PENNEY, James 2638
PENNIMAN, John Ritto 1993
PENNINGTON, Dave 1024, 1069
PENNINGTON, Lora 2815
PENONE, Giuseppe 2358
PENTAK, Steve 3118
PENTELOVITCH, Bob 2380
PENZNER, Judy 2802
PEPERIS, Nell 1819
PEPPARD, Blaylock 2448
PEPPER, Andrew 2688
PEPPER, Beverly 1064, 2100, 2494, 3317
PERANIO, Vincent 1457
PERAZZONE-KATCHADURIAN, Pamela 2177
PERCY, Sidney Richard 1051
PERDOMO, Ken 1110
PERDUE, Donald 2160, 2169
PERDUE, Sandra K. 1819
PEREHUDOFF, Bill 2852
PEREIRA, Irene Rice 2753, 2881, 2908
PEREZ, Jose 3321
PEREZ, Marta 3189
PEREZ, Pedro 2725
PEREZ, Rudy 1165
PEREZ, Vincent 1271
PERHACS, Les 3322
PERICAUD, Jean-Pierre 2492
PERILLA, Joseph 2762
PERILLI, Achille 1670
PERILLO, Greg 2170
PERKEL, Gregory 2692, 2693
PERKINS, Clarence 3039
PERKINS, Marion 1440
PERKINS, Philip 2752
PERLE, Quimetta 2062
PERLIS, Donald 2468
PERLMAN, Joel 1135, 1478, 2443, 2494
PERLMUTTER, Merle 2613
PERLOFF, Stephen 3097
PERLOW, Sandra 1627
PERLOWSKY, Jonathan 2517
PERNA, Sharon 1010
PERNOTTO, James 1442, 3013
PERRINE, Robert 2158
PERRY, Dora 1360, 2241
PERRY, E. Wood 2360
PERRY, James 1733
PERRY, Judy 1024
PERRY, Lallah 2073
PERRY, Lilla Cabot 2249
PERRY, Lincoln 2829
PERRY, Marianne 2510
PERSHA, Brian 2113
PERTZOFF, Alexander 1972
PERUTI, C.J. 2847
PESCE, Victor 2716
PETERDI, Gabor 1039, 1258, 1420, 1640, 2411, 2553
PETERS, Carl 1141
PETERS, Jurgen 1258, 1768
PETERS, Mary Ann 3418
PETERS, Mike 1451
PETERSEN, Bradley R. 1732, 3251
PETERSEN, Donovan 3080
PETERSEN, Mark 3370, 3371
PETERSEN, Robert 2805, 2822
PETERSEN, Roland 1229
PETERSON, Bernhard 1619
PETERSON, Franklin 2738
PETERSON, Glen 1075
PETERSON, Gosta 2370
PETERSON, Harvey 1906
PETERSON, Jane 2753
PETERSON, Roland 1542
PETERSON, Will 1664
PETHEO, Bela 2054
PETICOV, Antonio 2483
PETLIN, Irving 1658, 2660, 2709
PETLOCK, Bernard 3114
PETLOCK, Ruth 3114
PETRA, Tina 1966
PETRAVICLUS, Viktoras 1671
PETRI, Linn 3465
PETRIDES, Olivia 1636
PETRILLO, Leonard 2510
PETRILLO, Tom 1655
PETROCELLI, Marcello 3030
PETROFF, Alexis 1761
PETROPOULOS, Renee 1169
PETRULIS, Alan 2510
PETRUNAK, Karl 1188
PETTENGILL, Jean 3124
PETTERSON, Cliff 1405
PETTIBONE, Laura 2516
PETTIBONE, Richard 1325, 2523
PETTIBONE, Shirley 1325
PETTIE, Jessie 1003
PETTIGREW, Gary 1909
PETTIT, Caryl 1047, 1352
PETTUS, Peter 1939
PETTY, Kyle 2984
PETTY, Virginia 1819
PEVERALL, Carl 1839, 2597
PEYSSON, Sherry 2015
PEZZI, Edward 1525
PFAFF, Judy 1193, 1917, 2294, 2298, 2804
PFAHL, Charles 2306, 2563, 3184, 3190
PFAHL, John 2065, 2297, 2523, 2919
PFANNERSTILL, Tom 1839
PFEFFER, Tanya 2340
PFEIFFER, Anthony 2047
PFEIFFER, Jacob 3007
PFITZENMEIER, Robert 1019
PHARIS, Mark 2141, 2571
PHELAN, Ellen 1658, 2003, 2834
PHELAN, John 1323
PHELAN-DENNY, Suzann 2299
PHELPS, William P. 2360
PHENIX, Harold 3321
PHILABAUM, Tom 2471
PHILIPON, Philip 3454
PHILIPON, Ruth 3454
PHILIPP, Robert 2381
PHILIPPE, Thomas 1101
PHILIPSON, Sir Robin 1813
PHILLIPS, Alice 1039, 1144, 1479, 1728, 2506
PHILLIPS, Bonnie 3360, 3362, 3373
PHILLIPS, David 1973

VOL
71
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI.

PHILLIPS, Denis 3360, 3362, 3373
PHILLIPS, Dick 1037, 2258
PHILLIPS, Gema 1938
PHILLIPS, Gordon 2874
PHILLIPS, James 1467
PHILLIPS, Jay 1135, 1218, 1644, 2109, 2660
PHILLIPS, Karen 1557
PHILLIPS, Kenneth 3169
PHILLIPS, Linda 2972
PHILLIPS, Lisa 1024
PHILLIPS, Liz 2061
PHILLIPS, Lorraine 3436
PHILLIPS, Marcia 2332
PHILLIPS, Marjorie 3243
PHILLIPS, Matt 1218, 2008, 2052, 2725, 3027
PHILLIPS, Sirkka-Liisa 1024
PHILLIPS, Susie 3271
PHILLIPS, Tony 1659
PHILLIPS, Wilmot 1567
PHIPPEN, George 3353
PHIPPS, Richard 1142, 1273
PHLEGER, Michael 1296
PIATEK, Frank 1678
PIAZZA, Michael 1707
PICABIA, Francis 1678
PICASSO, Pablo 1171, 1184, 1270, 1303, 1329, 1364, 1477, 1484, 1647, 1665, 1686, 1699, 1874, 1969, 2042, 2395, 2466, 2497, 2533, 2548, 2556, 2559, 2560, 2622, 2624, 2668, 2714, 2718, 2719, 2727, 2756, 2773, 2838, 2851, 3026
PICCILLO, Joseph 1371, 1720, 2634
PICCOLO, Ellen 2510
PICCOLO, Richard 2779
PICHLER, Pepo 1188
PICKENS, Susan 2336
PICKENS, Vinton 1473
PICKER, Lionel 1286
PICKERING, Inga 3135
PICKETT, Deborah 2974
PICKETT, Janet Taylor 3030
PICKLE, Helen 1870
PICKMAN, Patricia 2732
PICKNELL, George 3007
PICOT, Pierre 1134
PIDGEON, Byard 3071
PIEHL, Walter 1039, 2996
PIENKOWSKI, Joni 3388, 3405
PIEPENBURG, Robert 1450, 2006
PIERCE, Danny 3466, 3474
PIERCE, Elijah 2631
PIERCE, Judith 1377
PIERCE, Mark 3005
PIERI, Diane 3118
PIERLOT, Gisele 2535
PIERSA, Thaddeus 1909
PIERSOL, Dan 1862
PIERSON, Nancy 2449
PIESER, Jane 2196
PIET, John 2000
PIETRUSZEWSKI, Robert 1576, 2471
PIETSCH, Andrzej 1640
PIETSCH, Gabriele 1717
PIETSCH, Janet 3444
PIJOAN, Irene 2224
PIJUAN, Hernandez 2531
PILATOS, Jim 1816
PILCHER, Don 1433
PILE, James 2400
PILKINGTON, Fred 2900
PILLER, Sally 1811
PINARDI, Brenda 1935
PINARDI, Enrico 1944, 2851
PINCUS, Laurie 1134
PINDAR, Mary Carolyn 1587
PINDELL, Howardena 1578
PIÑEDA, Marianna 1600, 1602
PINEL, Georges 2629
PINES, Suzanne 2546
PINK, James 1357, 1733
PINKNEY, Vernal 2173
PINKOWSKI, Emily 1732
PINNEY, Melissa 1650
PINNEY, Richard 1786
PINRUETHAI, Suthat 1151, 2374
PINSKER, Essie 2408
PINSKY, Joanna 1697
PINTARIC, Josip 2612
PINTER, Donna 1007
PINTO, Biagio 3135
PINTO, James 3330
PINTO, Jody 1348, 2298, 2417, 3131
PINZARRONE, Paul 1682, 1736
PIPER, Gudrun 2081
PIPER, Jane 2408, 3136
PIPPIN, Ron 1024
PIRANESI, Giovanni Battista 1686, 2838, 3175
PISANO, Maria 2900
PISSARRO, Camille 1098, 2402, 2583, 2768, 2875
PISTOLETTO, Michelangelo 2325, 2358
PITCHER, Hank 1315
PITCHER, John 1015
PITKIN, Orleonok 1177, 3079
PITLUCK, Deanne 1608
PITNEY, Duncan 2507
PITOCCO, Mario 3009
PITRE, German 2183
PITSEOLAK 3435
PITSOKES, Eric 1814
PITT, Jim 3055
PITT, Ronnie 2173
PITT, Suzan 2459, 2470, 3270
PITTENGER, Robert 1836
PITTMAN, Doris 3255
PITTMAN, Hobson 3101, 3140
PITTMAN, John 1715
PITTMAN, Lari 1146, 1165, 1201
PITTS, Richard 2508
PITTSLEY, Janice 3058
PITZ, Henry 3114
PIVETTA, Raphaela 2857
PIXLEY, Anne 1043, 2006
PIZZARO, Jorge 1398
PIZZINATO, Armando 1670
PIZZOLLO, Sissy 3139
PLACHY, Jo Ann 1554
PLACHY, Sylvia 2578
PLAGENS, Peter 1134, 2590
PLAMONDON, Peter 1921, 2836
PLANTE, George 3206
PLATKIN, Linda 3450
PLATT-LYNES, George 3119
PLATTNER, Phyllis 2095
PLAZZOTTA, Enzo 2736
PLEET, Lynda 2404
PLESUR, Ann 2889
PLETKA, Paul 1058, 1060, 1817, 2350
PLETOS, Nancy 1659, 2018
PLIEMAN, John 2015
PLIOPLYS, Andy 2052
PLISSON, Henri 1141
PLOCHMANN, Carolyn 2626
PLOEGER, John 1244
PLOGMAN, Bernard 3011
PLOSSU, Bernard 1257, 2228
PLOTKIN, Linda 1919, 2490
PLOTKIN, Nancy 1636
PLOTKIN, Naomi 2386
PLOTT, Paula 1816
PLOUGH, Jean 3142
PLOWDEN, David 1227, 1655
PLUM, Jens 2035
PLUMMER, Anne Scott 1169
POAG, Jim 3141
PODEMSKI, Esther 3076
PODUSKA, T. F. 1234, 1814
POEHLMANN, JoAnna 3460
POGANY, Miklos 1218, 2685
POGZEBA, Wolfgang 2115
POHL, Louis 1619, 1623
POHL, Lydra 1710
POIMBOEUF, Jesse 1867
POIRIER, Anne 2805
POIRIER, Patrick 2805
POLANSKY, Lois 2679
POLCHOW, Augusta 1849
POLENOV, Vassily 2830
POLESELLO, Rogelio 1490
POLI, Jacques 1445
POLIAKOFF, Serge 2644
POLICELLO, R. 2785
POLITES, Peter 1581
POLITZ, Charles 3075
POLK SMITH, Leon 2855
POLK, P. H. 2643
POLK, Randolph 1063
POLKE, Sigmar 2804
POLLACK, Reginald 2824
POLLAK, Theresa 3400
POLLAN, Bob 2888
POLLAND, Don 1035, 3323
POLLARD, Janice 3240, 3321
POLLARO, Paul 1434, 1933, 2685, 3240
POLLOCK, Bruce 1693, 3125
POLLOCK, Charles 1670
POLLOCK, Gene 1003
POLLOCK, Jackson 2668, 2907
POLLOCK, Merlin 2938
POLLOCK, Tim 2519
POLOUKHINE, Olga 2305, 2900
POLSENO, Donna 1433, 2491
POLSKY, Cynthia 2460
POLSTEDT, Lowell 3027
POLT, Allen 1360, 2214
POMATTI, Thomas 1293
POMEROY, Jim 1259, 1626
POMFRET, Margaret 2730
POMODORO, Arnaldo 1267, 1306, 1534, 1581, 2377, 2660
POMODORO, Gio 2377
POMPILI, Lucian Octavius 2737
PONCE DE LEON, Michael 1451
PONCET, Antoine 2861
POND, Clayton 2911
PONS, Daniel 1495
PONSOLD, Renate 2434
PONTE, Al 1382
POOLE, Dan 2070
POOLE, James D. 2015
POOLE, Joyce 1085
POOLE, O. Gail 1080
POONS, Lawrence 1802, 1942, 2494
POOR, Anne 2562, 2946
POPE, Eloise 2974
POPE, Terry 2091
PORCELLA, Yvonne 1550, 2930
PORTA, Sienna 2519
PORTER, Bern 2919
PORTER, Bruce 2684
PORTER, David 1470
PORTER, Dean 2408
PORTER, Eliot 1345, 1488, 1869, 1896, 2248, 2873, 2991, 3054
PORTER, Fairfield 2589
PORTER, George 3101, 3140
PORTER, Katherine 1330, 1921, 2669
PORTER, Kathy 2185
PORTER, Liliana 2834
PORTER, Robert 2505
PORTER, Sharron 1633
PORTLAND, Jack 1264, 3079
PORTNOW, Marjorie 2709
POSADA 2856
POSEL, Edith 2730
POSER, Yvonne 2924
POSKA, Roland 1674, 1812
POSKAS, Peter 2506, 2508, 2524
POSNANSKY, Nina 2538
POSNER, Richard 1259
POST, Helen 1231
POST, Howard 1039, 1803, 2239
POST, Tom 1173
POSTER, Madeline 3010
POSTMA, Robert 3465
POTOFF, Riva 2670
POTTER, Clare 2343
POTTER, Helen 2893
POTTER, John 2112
POTTER, Maurice 2897
POTTER, Michael 2034
POTTHAST, Edward 1280, 2676, 3007
POTTS, C.W. 3093
POULEN, Roland 2514
POULOS, Basilios 1266, 1578
POUSETTE-DART, Joanna 2423
POUSETTE-DART, Richard 2469
POWALICZ, Carol 2113
POWELL, Ace 2128, 2129
POWELL, Dan 1785, 2057
POWELL, Gordon 1135, 1644
POWELL, John 1141
POWELL, Olivia P. 3268
POWELL, Pat 2987
POWELL, Rosalyn Gale 3420
POWER, LaTrelle 3481
POWER, S. Brenda 2290
POWERS, Alex 2960
POWERS, Don 1522, 2209
POWERS, Dorothy 2931
POWERS, Jan 1994
POWERS, Jo Ann 1709
POWERS, Ted 1517
POWLEY, Don 2096
POZZATTI, Rudy 1628, 1775
POZZI, Lucio 1731, 2859, 3287
PRAIRIE, Jo 3255
PRAMUK, Edward 2510
PRANGE, Sally Bowen 1576, 2565, 2960
PRATCHENKO, Paul 1249, 1468
PRATT, Charles 2256, 3052, 3059, 3417
PRATT, Harvey 3059
PRATT, Vernon 2960
PRAUD, Pauline 1374
PREBLE, Pat 1580
PRELLOP, Larry 3338
PRENDERGAST, Maurice 1589, 2676
PRENTICE, Michael 2589
PRENTICE, Phil 1057, 2250
PRENTICE, Tim 2653
PREPSKY, Mike 1041
PRESCOTT, Jane 1500
PRESMAN, José 2496
PRESSER, Elena 1512, 2399
PRESSLY, Tom 3346
PRESTINI, James 1301
PRESTON, Astrid 1169, 1176, 3306
PRESTON, Dik 1024
PRESTON, Mary 2018
PRESTON, William 1458, 3321
PRESTOPINO, Gregorio 2158, 2162, 2163, 2168, 2677, 3106
PRETTO, Rogelio 1517
PRIBIS, Milena 1481
PRICE, Alan 2738
PRICE, Bren 2251
PRICE, Cheryl 2124
PRICE, Janis 2615
PRICE, Joe 1258, 1768
PRICE, Ken 1138, 1283, 1720, 1946, 3295
PRICE, Kenneth 1152, 1316, 2266, 2871
PRICE, Marilyn 1770
PRICE, Michael 2048
PRICE, R. Bret 1111
PRICE, Rosalie 1001
PRICE, Tony 2273
PRICHETT, William 2374
PRICOLI, Joan 3012
PRIDA, Fernando Ramos 1943
PRIDGEON, Jim 3087
PRIEBE, Karl 3463
PRIEDE, Zigmunds 3407
PRIEST, Margaret 2852
PRINCE, Antoinette 1938
PRINCE, Neil 1549, 2257
PRINCE, Richard 1162, 2673
PRINCE, Samuel 2824
PRINDIVILLE, Jim 1070, 2258
PRIOR, Anneke 2166
PRIOR, Freeman Erle 1835
PRIOR, Scott 1921, 2464
PRIZEMAN, John 2290
PROCHASKA, Tom 3075
PROCHOWNIK, Walter 2299
PROCTOR, Alice 2977
PROCTOR, Patrick 2084
PROKOPIOF, Bill 2234
PROKOS, Nicholas 1750
PROMUTICO, Jean 2228, 2635
PROPP, Marilyn 2082
PROSPERI, Warren 1909
PROVAN, David 1240
PROVDER, Carl 1116
PROVISOR, Janis 1263, 2804, 3091
PROWELL, Nancy 3071
PRUISKEN, Annilies 1921
PRUNER, Gary 1101
PRUNER, Jim 1062
PRUNHUBER, Gayle 1626
PRUSINOWSKI, Nancy 2744
PRUSSING, Rosalie 1608
PUCCIO, Madolyn 2102
PUCCLO, Vincent 2890
PUDLO 3435
PUGH, Jim 1382
PUHALLA, Dennis 1768, 3004
PUMMILL, Robert 3061
PURCELL, Ann 1468, 1680
PURCELL, Charles Roy 2444
PURCELL, Rosamond 2729
PURDY, Donald 2170
PURDY, Donald R. 2894
PURIFICATO, Domenico 1285
PURINGTON, Nancy 1794
PURINS, Girts 3169, 3173
PURPURA, John 2854
PURYEAR, Martin 1731, 3270, 3320
PUTHUFF, Hanson D. 1180
PUTMAN, Donald 1048
PUTTERMAN, Florence 1226, 1322, 1458, 1539
PUTZ, Richard 1247
PUVIS DE CHAVANNES, Pierre 2875
PYE, L. H. 1379
PYLE, Howard 3099
PYNE, James Baker 1051

Q

QIN, Shan Bai 1186
QOYAWAYMA, Al 1060, 2249
QUAGLIATA, Narcissus 1287
QUANDELACY, Faye 2261
QUARBERG, Laurel 3398
QUASIUS, Sharron 2580
QUAT, Helen 2890
QUAYTMAN, Harvey 1943, 2669
QUENCE, Raymond 1667
QUERAL, George 1947
QUESENBERRY, Arnold 2972
QUIE, Gretchen 2059
QUIGLEY, Robert 2882
QUIGLEY, Robin 3121
QUIJADA, Robert 2499, 2715
QUILLMAN, Joann 1852
QUIN, Bill 1309
QUIN, Langdon 1921
QUINN, Anthony 1601
QUINN, John 2962
QUINN, Wayne 3429
QUINN, William 2103
QUINONES, Jose 1909
QUINONES, Lee 2529, 2552
QUIÑONEZ, Omar 3181
QUINTANA, Sammy 2265
QUINTERO, Daniel 2660
QUIPER, James 3300
QUIROZ, Juan Gomez 2825
QUISGARD, Liz Whitney 2290, 2847
QUYNH, Ngyen 2705

R

RAAUM, Mike 2064
RABBIN, Herb 1130
RABBIT, William E. 2256, 3050, 3052, 3059, 3061
RABEL, Carol 3251
RABIN, Joan 2904
RABINOVICH, Raquel 2637
RABINOWITCH, David 2710
RABINOWITCH, Royden 2859
RABINOWITZ, Kate 2386
RABKIN, Leo 1113, 2725
RABURN, Michael 1037, 2783

RABUZIN, Ivan 1953, 2612, 3281
RACHOFSKY, Morton 3268
RACKHAM, Arthur 1714
RACZKA, Tony 1235
RADEBAUGH, William 1424, 1427
RADEMACHER, Frank 1017
RADER, Carol 1171
RADOCZY, Albert 2853
RADY, Elsa 1159, 1287, 1933, 2104, 2685
RAEBURN, Henry 2702
RAFFAEL, Joseph 1246, 1442, 1506, 1546, 1561, 1678, 1817, 2142, 2590, 3030, 3041, 3423
RAFFALLI, Jean-Alain 2682
RAFFERTY, Joanne Miller 2180, 3106
RAFFIN, Andre 2888
RAGAN, Connie Seabourn 3052, 3059
RAGINSKY, Nina 2590
RAGONE, Keith 3131
RAGUSA, Giovanni 1251
RAHILLY, Paul 2798
RAIMONDI, John 1489, 2052
RAIMONDI, Marcantonio 1988
RAKE, Jane 1963
RAKOFF, Penny 1488
RALEIGH, Barbara 2812
RALEIGH, Henry 2510
RALPH, Pat 2310, 2705
RALPH, Robert 1909
RAMANAUSKAS, Dalia 1407, 1909
RAMBERG, Christina 1690, 2631
RAMBO, Meredith 1501
RAME, Piry 2323
RAMIREZ, Dan 1135, 1644
RAMIREZ, Martin 1690, 2631
RAMMELLZEE 2409
RAMOS, Leta 1213, 2031
RAMOS, Mel 1267, 1283, 1808, 2271, 2670, 3154
RAMOT, Reuben 1315
RAMSAY, Ian 3370
RAMSDEN, Alma 3283
RAMSEY, Cecil 1570
RAMSEY, Daga 1584
RAMSEY, Jack 1584
RAMSHAW, Wendy 3121
RAMSTEAD, Edward 3436
RANALLI, Daniel 1901
RAND, Archie 2467
RAND, Paul 2755
RAND, Steven 1357
RANDALL, Bonnie Christina 1500
RANDALL, Maggi 2927
RANDALL, Nancy 2061
RANDALL, Ted 2491
RANDLE, Kirk 3370
RANES, Chris 1234, 1273, 1332, 2145
RANGELL, Paul 1323
RANGER, Henry Ward 1314
RANKIN, Ralph 1433
RANKIN, Sloan 1535
RANKINE, V.V. 1470
RANNEFELD, James 2257
RANOCCHI, Augusto 1149
RANSOM, Henry 1590
RANYAK, Marion 2802
RAPHAEL, Michi 2752
RAPHAELSON, Sandra 1480
RAPOPORT, Gail 2812
RAPPE, Eleanor 1278
RAPPOLI, Peter 1929
RAPPOPORT, Janet 3033
RASE, Lori 1101
RASH, Kee 1041
RASHEED, Shams 2996
RASKIN, Evelyn 2045
RASMUSSEN, Keith 3385
RATHBUN, David 1367
RATHER, Herb 3321
RATHSACK, Laurence 3460, 3466
RATNER, Peter 1650
RATTEY, Harvey 2263, 3227
RATTNER, Abraham 2626
RAUCH, John 2747
RAUCHBACH, Gary 2496
RAUCHER, Hava 2096
RAUHAUSER, Bill 2009
RAUSCHENBERG, Christopher 2658, 3417
RAUSCHENBERG, Robert 1034, 1146, 1147, 1148, 1152, 1335, 1442, 1478, 1498, 1511, 1535, 1540, 1543, 1678, 1826, 1940, 1995, 2003, 2041, 2041, 2090, 2243, 2429, 2430, 2431, 2684, 2803, 2805, 2822, 3030, 3249, 3317, 3424
RAUSCHENBUSCH, Stephanie 2705
RAVEY, Terry 1538
RAWDIN, Kim 1041
RAWLINGS, Annette 1489
RAY, David 2386
RAY, Man 1668, 1724
RAY, Robert 1799
RAYBURN, Dale 1584
RAYBURN, Mamie Joe 1584
RAYMOND, David 1919
RAYMOND, Lilo 1896, 2729, 3417
RAYMOND, Marcus 2046
RAYMOND, Susan Grant 1356
RAYNOR, Louis 2035
RAYO, Omar 2637
READ, Dino 2960
READ, Edith 1966
READ, Linda 1437
READ, Susan 2295
REBHUN, Pearl 2323
REBOLI, Beverly Gibson 2310
REBOLI, Joseph 2310, 2541, 2934
REBORA, Joyce 1633
RECCHIA, Louis 1682
RECCHION, Russell 3126
RECKLING, Genevieve 1056, 2048, 2815
RED STAR, Kevin 1093, 1360, 1803, 2210, 2234, 2783, 2784
REDBIRD, Robert 2210, 3052
REDDICLIFFE, Harold 3336
REDDY, Krishna 1713, 3458
REDERER, Franz 2182
REDFIELD, Edmund 1672
REDISKE, Mark 2051
REDMOND, Granville 1180
REDMOND, Jeanee 2984
REDMOND, Russell 2620
REDON, Odilon 2512
REDOUTE, Pierre-Joseph 2373
REECE, Emily K. 2972
REECE, Maynard 1061
REED, Art 2332
REED, Arthur 2200
REED, David 1679
REED, Diane 1837
REED, Dorothy 1340
REED, Jesse 3077
REED, Joseph 1792, 2883
REED, Joyce 1702
REED, Margaret Murphy 2004
REED, Martha 2893
REED, Paul 1064
REED, Robert 1406
REEDER, Greg 1275
REEDER, Thomas 3149
REEDS, Scott 1142
REEP, Richard 1587
REES, Barbara 1218, 1307
REESE, Claudia 3348
REESE, Nancy 1133, 1169
REESE, William F. 1035, 1328, 1816, 2268
REFSNES KNIAZZAH, Carolyn 1929
REGAN, Challis 2166
REGAN, Patricia 3268
REGAZZONI, Ricardo 2748
REGINATO, Peter 1479, 2443, 2774, 3336
REGISTER, John 2506
REHSE, Bill 3033
REICE, Milo 2788, 2834
REICH, Don 1244
REICH, Minna 3240
REICH, Steve 1207
REICHEK, Elaine 2357, 2448
REICHENBACH, Helma 2150
REICHERT, Valerie 1259
REID, Bill 3355
REID, Colin 1163
REID, Dorothy 1090
REID, Patty 3439
REIF, Rubin 1078
REILAND, Lowell 2052, 2757
REILEY, George 1388
REILLAND, Lowel 2449
REILLY, Ed 1382
REILLY, Jack 1040, 1133, 1183, 1261, 1489, 2399
REIMER, Hennie 3041
REINE, Charlotte 1396, 1524
REINERS, Nancy 2101
REINHARDT, Ad 2559, 2668, 2718
REINHARDT, Bob 3164
REINHARDT, Richard 3121
REINHART, Susan 2519
REINHOLDTSEN, Regnor 3428
REINHOUD 2644
REINKE, James 1172
REINKEN, Martha 2733
REISINGER, Dan 1113
REISMAN, Philip 2593, 2770
REISS, Gunther 1415
REISS, Roland 1335
REISTER, Gary 1909
REITER, Wellington 1878
REITH, Pat Wofford 1079
REITZ, Don 1533, 1576, 1986
REKER, Les 2524
REMBRANDT VAN RIJN 1067, 1098, 1272, 1686, 2482, 2838
REMENICK, Seymour 3114
REMFRY, David 1128
REMINGTON, Deborah 1031, 1366, 1423, 3041
REMINGTON, Frederic 3292
RENC, Bill 1500
RENE, Jean-Jacques 2807
RENFROW, Gregg 1266, 1325
RENGER-PATZSCH, Albert 2643
RENNER, Eric 3125
RENNIE-JOHNSON, Keith 2016
RENNINGER, Katharine 3118
RENOIR, Pierre Auguste 1098, 1184, 1272, 2083, 2402, 2466, 2622, 2624, 2756
RENOUF, Edda 1167, 1731, 2406, 3287
RENOUF, Edward 2818
RENSCHLER, William 1775
RENTERIA, Philip 3317
RENTON, Joan 1813
RENZI, Clement 2168
RENZULLI, William 1424
REPIN, Ilya 2830
RÉQUICHOT, Bernard 2403
RESCH, David 1664
RESCH, Lynne 2020
RESEK, Kate 2550
RESER, Maurjo 1116
RESIKA, Paul 1979, 2562
RESNICK, Don 2901
RESNICK, Milton 2568, 2594
RESNIK, Janet 2963
RESNIK, Peter 2332
RESSLER, Susan 2139
RESSLER, William 3101, 3140
RETIVAT, Annie 2535
REUTER, John 1936
REUTERSWÄRD, Carl Fredrik 1161
REVI, Leo 2310
REX 2882
REY, Jim 2268
REYES, Joaquin 3182, 3188
REYES, Lawney 3431
REYES, Stephen 1059
REYNAL, Kay Bell 2872
REYNOLDS/HELLMUTH, Jock/Suzanne 1306
REYNOLDS, Charles B. 1640, 3417
REYNOLDS, Gertraude 1994
REYNOLDS, Jock 1474
REYNOLDS, Patricia 2973
REYNOLDS, Steve 3348
REYNOLDS, Wade 1093
REZAK, Richard 3076
RHOADES, Zandra 1117
RHOADS, Naomi 2593
RHOADS, Paul 2636
RHODEN, John 3116
RHODES, Leah 2399
RHODES, Michael 2972
RHYMES, Judy 2236
RICE, Anthony 1590, 2984
RICE, Dan 1040, 1105, 1124, 1161, 1319, 1406
RICE, Jacquelyn 2571
RICE, John 3430
RICE, Leland 1146
RICE, Nancy Newman 2104
RICE, Ted 3054
RICE PEREIRA, Irene 2753, 2881, 2908
RICH, Carolyn 3361
RICH, Garry 2594
RICH, Homer 3361
RICH, Linda G. 1129
RICHARD, Chris 2597
RICHARD, Didier 2535
RICHARD, Jim 1514, 1867
RICHARDS, Bill 2590
RICHARDS, Bruce 1240, 1247
RICHARDS, Joseph 1053
RICHARDS, Robert W. 2392
RICHARDS, Tim 1716
RICHARDS, William T. 2674, 3209
RICHARDSON, Constance 2626
RICHARDSON, Elizabeth 1164
RICHARDSON, Gary 2072
RICHARDSON, Gordon 3004
RICHARDSON, Harry 1471
RICHARDSON, Jan 2024
RICHARDSON, Jean 1080, 2230
RICHARDSON, John 3242
RICHARDSON, Pat 2957
RICHARDSON, Sam 1263, 1307, 1691
RICHBOURG, Lance 2580
RICHE, Fran 1403
RICHERT, Clark 1344, 1372, 2081
RICHMOND, Colin 2404
RICHMOND, Janet 2371
RICHMOND, Jim 1791
RICHTER, Anne 2519
RICHTER, Gerhard 1659, 2811
RICHTER, Scott 1682
RICKABAUGH, Rene 3079
RICKER, Irene 2214
RICKER, Susan 2217
RICKERS, Thomas 3226
RICKERT, Elizabeth 1968, 3106
RICKERT, Paul 2679
RICKEY, George 1031, 1240, 1246, 1518, 1664, 1808, 1946, 2464
RICKS, Don 2241, 3375, 3376
RICKS, Douglas 1803, 1804, 2241, 2268
RICO Y ORTEGA, Martin 1180
RIDDLE, John 1579
RIDDLES, Leonard 2256
RIDENHOUR, William 2492
RIDLEY, Gregory 3243
RIDLON, Jim 2329, 2916
RIE, Lucie 1956
RIEDENER, Karen 2844
RIEF, Doris 1471
RIEGER, Shay 2924
RIEKE, Gail 2228
RIEKE, Zachariah 1371, 2228
RIES, Christopher 2030
RIESS, Martin 2399
RIESTER, Dorothy 2937
RIFKA, Judy 1304, 2362, 3091, 3141
RIFKIN, Janet 2885
RIGDEN, Cynthia 1035
RIGGS, Frank 3389
RIIS, Betty 1116
RIIS, Jacob 2932
RILEY, Barbara 3348
RILEY, Brent 3004
RILEY, Carol 3067
RILEY, Irvin 2972
RILEY, James 2841
RILEY, Jessie 2857
RILEY, Rebecca 2259
RILOV, Arkady 2830
RIMBERG, Andrea 2894
RINALDI, Carlos Danila 3181
RINCON, Jesus del 2380
RINGEL, Jonathan 2613
RINGER, Charles 2273
RINGGOLD, Faith 2824
RINGI, Kjell 1183, 1719, 2312
RINGNESS, Charles 1709, 3010
RINKE, Klaus 1335
RINKOVSKY, Margaret 1288
RIOPELLE, Jean-Paul 2667, 2753
RIOS, Richard 1281
RIPLEY, Curtis 2834
RIPLEY, Rick 1161
RIPPE, Dan 1816, 2254
RIPPON, Ruth 1229
RIPPON, Tom 1287, 1720, 1933, 2095, 2685
RIPPS, Rodney 2060, 2537, 3013
RISE, John 1293
RISEMAN, Marion 1391
RISOLI, Louis 1952
RISSER, James 1317, 3287
RITCHIE, Connie J. 3417
RITCHIE, Jane 2310
RITTER, Kay 3134
RITTER, Renee 2849
RITZ, Lorna 2405
RIVER, Riene 1105
RIVERA, Alma 3190
RIVERA, Diana 2601
RIVERA, Diego 1215, 1245, 1280, 2785
RIVERA, Elias 2306
RIVERA, Gustavo 1256, 1301
RIVERA, Manuel 2667
RIVERON, Enrique 1516
RIVERS, Larry 1478, 1534, 2592, 2660, 2928
RIVKIN, Jay 1174
RIZK, Romanos 1009, 3011
RIZK, Ron 1179
RIZZI, Al 1951
RIZZI, James 1365, 2043, 2826
RIZZIE, Dan 2470, 3270, 3336
ROARK, Cheryl 1996
ROBBE, Manuel 1647, 2512
ROBBENNOLT, Linda Murphy 1654, 2117
ROBBIE, Peter 2351
ROBBIN, Tony 2467
ROBBINS, Bruce 1478, 2406, 3287, 3424
ROBBINS, Gary 1717
ROBBINS, Martha 3268
ROBBINS, Michael 2813
ROBBINS, Tony 3328
ROBBINS, Whit Harris 1567
ROBERSON, Edith 3372
ROBERT, Francois 1720
ROBERT-FALDA, Natacha 1720
ROBERTS, Amy 2247
ROBERTS, David 1714, 3058
ROBERTS, Della 1254
ROBERTS, Dolona 1803, 1804, 2050, 2239
ROBERTS, Holly 1040, 2222
ROBERTS, Kent 1263
ROBERTS, Linda 1377, 3369
ROBERTS, Mahree 2150
ROBERTS, Marcia 1132
ROBERTS, Michael 1176
ROBERTS, Phillip 2082
ROBERTS, Priscilla 2563
ROBERTS, Sally 1110, 1165
ROBERTS, Stan 3374
ROBERTS, Steve 2140
ROBERTS, Victor 3057
ROBERTSON, Ernest 1021
ROBERTSON, Jack 3242
ROBERTSON, Joan E. 1732

ROBERTSON, Mary Ann 1767, 1770
ROBINETTE, Danny 2972
ROBINS, Joyce 2505
ROBINSON, Abby 3210
ROBINSON, Aminah 3013, 3024, 3028
ROBINSON, Aviva 2039
ROBINSON, Charlotte 3385
ROBINSON, Chris 2984
ROBINSON, Florence 2753
ROBINSON, James B. 3322
ROBINSON, Leo 1327
ROBINSON, Libby 2705
ROBINSON, Margot 2705
ROBINSON, Mary 3428
ROBINSON, Michael 3399
ROBINSON, Priscilla 3175
ROBINSON, Rex 1831, 1832, 2070
ROBINSON, Richard 1918
ROBINSON, Walter 2673
ROBLES, Julian 1035, 1816, 2214, 3353
ROBLES, Ron 2236
ROCCA, Suellen 1690
ROCHE, Arnaldo 1657
ROCHE, Jim 1808, 3324
ROCHELLE, Margaret 3309
ROCHESTER, Jacqueline 1123, 1810, 2050, 3221
ROCHETTE, Anne 2857
ROCHON, Daniel "Pepe" 2265
ROCKBURNE, Dorothea 1152, 1167, 2518, 3333
ROCKMORE 1877
ROCKWELL, Norman 1017, 1763, 1812, 2501, 2819, 3099, 3243, 3290
ROCKWELL, Peter 1831
RODAN, Don 3270
RODAR, Jodi 2609
RODART, George 1160
RODDY, Mike 2867
RODGERS, Marjorie 1803
RODGERS, Susan 2836
RODIN, Auguste 1145, 1184, 2420
RODNER, Rory 2287, 2757
RODNEY, Drewann 2550
RODRIGUES, Hugo 2637
RODRIGUEZ, Cecelia 1619
RODRIGUEZ, Dan 3205
RODRIGUEZ, Jose 1033
RODRIGUEZ, Rocio 3013
RODRIGUEZ-MARUCA, Francisco 1070
ROEHL, Richard Ralph 1327
ROESCH, Robert 2928
ROESLER, Suzy 1372
ROESSIGER, Gissela 2726
ROGAI, Stefano 1485
ROGERS, Barbara 1263
ROGERS, Everett 1003
ROGERS, Joan 2900
ROGERS, John 3078
ROGERS, Joseph Sheppard (Nevia) 1471
ROGERS, Juanita 1870
ROGERS, Kirby 1852
ROGERS, Mark 2183
ROGERS, P. J. 3021
ROGERS, Steve 1146
ROGERS, Susan Zeeman 1929
ROGOVIN, Harold 2202
ROGOVIN, Howard Sand 2085
ROGOVIN, Milton 2155, 2295, 3178
ROHM, Robert 2580
ROHRBOUGH, Claire 1849
ROHRER, Warren 2434, 3143
ROITZ, Charles 1367
ROJAS, Elmar 1490, 1572
ROJAS, Santiago 2750
ROLAND 2392
ROLLER, Toni 2249
ROLLINS, Josephine Lutz 2047, 2064
ROLLINS, Martin 1832
ROLLMAN, Charlotte 1644
ROLOFF, John 1209, 1263, 1290, 2737
ROLSTON, Rick 1003
ROMAN, Shirley 2900
ROMANO, Jaime 3181
ROMANO, Joseph 1301
ROMANO, Sal 2459
ROMANOFF, Maya 1650
ROMAYNE, Helene 1608
ROMBERG, Jim 1626
ROMBERG, Osvaldo 2537
ROME, James 1041, 1500
ROME, Joshua 2887
ROMEIKE-WISNIEWSKI, Helen 1539
ROMER, Shirley 3321
ROMERO, Frank 1177
ROMERO, Jorge 3190
ROMERO, Susan 3059
ROMLEY, Cuca 1096, 1797
ROMMEL, Lee 1057, 2250
ROMNEY, George 2702
ROMOSER, Ruth 1514
ROMULO, Teodulo 1709
RONCHI, Cesare 1485
ROOD, John 2059
ROODE, Judith 2062, 2991
ROOKE, James 1963
ROOSE, Craig 1165
ROOT, Joan 1434, 3240
ROOT, Rhonda 1682
ROPEK, Raphael 1024, 1069
ROS, O'Donohue 2851
ROSA, Gustavo 2637
ROSA, Rafael Rivera 3183
ROSADO DEL VALLE, Julio 3182, 3183, 3185, 3188
ROSAS, Mel 2000
ROSATI, James 2660
ROSBOTHAM, Lyle 1474
ROSCH, Michael 2286
ROSE, Carol 3389
ROSE, Elizabeth 1021
ROSE, Emily 1447
ROSE, George 1445
ROSE, Guy 1180
ROSE, Helen 1034
ROSE, Herman 2511
ROSE, Jean 1128
ROSE, Leatrice 2467
ROSE, Lyn 1288
ROSE, Robert 3485
ROSE, Robin 1459
ROSE, Roslyn 2166, 2169, 2915
ROSE, Stephanie 2549
ROSE, Thomas 1659, 2500
ROSE, Wendy 2700
ROSE, William 2938
ROSEBROOK, Rodney 2758
ROSELAND, Harry 1672
ROSEMAN, Harry 1193, 1304
ROSEN, Carol 2754
ROSEN, Charles 2774
ROSEN, Jane 2298, 2833
ROSEN, Joan 2103
ROSEN, Kay 2844
ROSEN, Michael 2179
ROSEN, Pearl 2510
ROSEN, Sandra 3004
ROSEN, Susan 2934
ROSENBAUM, Harriet 1473
ROSENBAUM, Mark 1864
ROSENBAUM, Susan 3434, 3444
ROSENBERG, Andrea 3247, 3287
ROSENBERG, Samuel 3168
ROSENBERG, Terry 2298, 2417
ROSENBLAT, Marcie 2744
ROSENBLATT, Adolph 1737
ROSENBLUM, Elizabeth 1946
ROSENBLUM, Richard 1817, 1919
ROSENBORG, Ralph 2192, 2778
ROSENFELD, Richard 2392
ROSENMAN, Nonny 2904
ROSENQUIST, James 1152, 1375, 1376, 1432, 1478, 1511, 1514, 1543, 1566, 2041, 2041, 2052, 2060, 2428, 2429, 2430, 2431, 2684
ROSENSTEIN, Yossi 2348
ROSENTHAL, Jerry 1372
ROSENTHAL, Margot 3282
ROSENTHAL, Rachel 1334
ROSENTHAL, Sheldon 2306
ROSENTHAL, Stanley 1918
ROSENTHAL, Stephen 2859
ROSENTHAL, Ted Bauman 3005
ROSENTHAL, Tony 2100
ROSENUS, Linda 1218
ROSER, Ce 2598
ROSIN, Paul 1693
ROSNER, Claire 2752
ROSNER, Jessica 2812
ROSOFSKY, Seymour 1678, 2634
ROSS, Alexander 2339
ROSS, Beatrice Brooks 2339, 2538
ROSS, Charles 2859
ROSS, Clifford 2774
ROSS, Colleen 1037
ROSS, Constantine Ben 2593
ROSS, Cynthia 3381
ROSS, Czashka 2449
ROSS, Georgia 1867
ROSS, Ivy 1450, 2930, 3158, 3159
ROSS, Jack 2987, 3219
ROSS, Johnnie 3270
ROSS, Mary 2186
ROSS, Mike 2787
ROSS, Scott 2081
ROSS, Sue Ellen 1018, 1021
ROSS, Sy 2788
ROSS, Winifred 1867
ROSSANT, James 2809
ROSSER, Warren 1802, 2142
ROSSER, Yvonne 1809, 2142
ROSSHEIM, Emily 2332
ROSSI, Barbara 1690, 2631
ROSSMAN, Val 1514
ROSTEK, Philip 3175
ROSZAK, Sara 2999
ROSZAK, Theodore 2667, 2845, 2880, 2999
ROTH, Charles 2920
ROTH, David 2492
ROTH, David Grant 1486, 1523, 3321
ROTH, Frank 2670
ROTH, Gary 3312
ROTH, Jack 1476, 2176, 2178, 2209, 2633
ROTH, Maggie 1331
ROTH, Susan 1476, 1840, 2039, 2774
ROTH, Wendy Berg 3126
ROTHE, G.H. 1871, 1913, 2034, 2575, 3104, 3386
ROTHEL, Joan 3033
ROTHENBERG, Barbara 1415
ROTHENBERG, Susan 2684, 2871, 2998
ROTHERMEL, Peter F. 3110
ROTHFARB, Ed 1952
ROTHHOLZ, Barbara 2854
ROTHKO, Mark 2668, 2718
ROTHMAN, Jerry 1137
ROTHMAN, Lenke 2675
ROTHOLZ, Rina 1944
ROTHROCK, Jan 2196
ROTHSCHILD, Judith 1979
ROTHSCHILD, Marge 2323
ROTHSCHILD, Sigmund 1391
ROTHSTEIN, Arthur 1552
ROTHSTEIN, Aryn Slutsky 1778
ROTHSTEIN, Barbarie 2324
ROTTENBERG, Reba 2538
ROTTERDAM, Paul 1943, 2060, 2533, 3261, 3332, 3352, 3403
ROUAN, Francois 2667
ROUAULT, Georges 1184, 1969, 2592, 2727, 2756
ROUGELOT, Marilyn C. 1849
ROUNDS, Al 3371, 3375
ROUSE, Mikel 1836
ROUSSEAU, Rodolphe 2535
ROUSSEL, Ker-Xavier 2875
ROUTSON, Robert 1809
ROUX, Barbara 2436
ROVETCH, Gerda 2651
ROWE-LIBIN, Florence 2287, 2757
ROWE, Nellie Mae 1646, 1870
ROWE, Reginald 3330
ROWELL, Janice 1217, 1949, 1971
ROWLAND, Susan 2287, 2757, 2928
ROWLAND, T. & C. 2147
ROWLANDSON, Thomas 1714
ROY, Sally 1062
ROY, Sue 1062
ROYAL, Richard 1313
ROYBOL, James 2262
ROYE, Paladine 3250, 3278
ROYER, Ann 1792, 3307
ROYLANCE, Lyn 1177
ROYO, Josep 1748
ROYO, Mariano 2853
ROZIER, Robert 2015
ROZMAN, Joseph 1682
RRUFF, Joanne 1287
RUBADOUX, Craig 1435, 1512, 1546
RUBBER LADY, The 2273
RUBEL, Sandra 1504
RUBENSTEIN, Barnet 1921
RUBENSTEIN, Meridel 1345, 1371
RUBEY, Tony 1019
RUBIN, Debbie 1968
RUBIN, Fiametta 2812
RUBIN, John 2632
RUBIN, Margot 2510
RUBIN, Mel 1134
RUBIN, Michael 1754, 1758, 2105
RUBIN, Reuvin 1944
RUBIN, Sandra Mendelsohn 1337, 1338
RUBINFIEN, Leo 1262
RUBINS, Nancy 1474, 2580
RUBINSTEIN, Eva 1355, 2105
RUBLE, Ron 3458
RUBY, Claire 1115
RUCH, Lizi 1832, 1837
RUCKER, Harrison 1328, 1382
RUCKER, Janet 1849
RUCKER, Robert 1849
RUCKER, Steve 1878
RUCKLE, Ernest 2399
RUCKRIEM, Ulrich 2811
RUDISILL, A. J. 3101, 3140
RUDOLPH, Bernette 2290
RUDOLPH, Paul 1688, 2809
RUDQUIST, Jerry 2066
RUDZINSKI, Dolores 1819
RUELLAN, Andree 2638
RUETZ, Michael 3303
RUF, Don Louis 2238
RUFFING, A.E. 2170
RUFFNER, James 2218
RUGGERI, Arleen 3360
RUGGERI, Elizabeth 3360
RUHTENBERG, Cornelis 1793
RUIZ, José 3189
RUIZ, Reyes 1033
RULE, Gallagher 3056
RULEAUX, Donald 3220
RUMAYOR, Armand 2609
RUMPH, Charles 1911
RUNDELL, Helen 2502
RUNDQUIST, Marcea 1273
RUNGIUS, Carl 2676
RUNNELS, Vic 3220
RUNQUIST, Albert 3081
RUNQUIST, Arthur 3081
RUNSTADLER, Kurt 1910
RUNSTADLER, Marsha 1910
RUNYEON, Jane 3005
RUPE, Daniel 2082
RUPP, Cora 1473
RUPP, Rebecca 2565
RUPPERSBERG, Allen 1169, 2657
RUPPERT, John 2096
RUSAK, Halina 2802
RUSCHA, Edward 1136, 1147, 1152, 1158, 1181, 1207, 1335, 1659, 1940, 2428, 2429, 2430, 2463, 2608, 2683, 2684, 2822, 2868, 3333, 3424
RUSH, Kent 1130, 1247
RUSH, William 3143
RUSHFELT, Joy 1352, 2004
RUSK, Sue 1363
RUSSELL, Bob 3314
RUSSELL, Charles M. 2128, 2129
RUSSELL, Cobie 3267
RUSSELL, Gladys 2166
RUSSELL, Joan 1743
RUSSELL, Kim 3283
RUSSELL, Larry 1852
RUSSELL, Laura 2571, 3313
RUSSELL, Mark 3276
RUSSELL, Morgan 1253, 3288
RUSSELL, Robert 1809
RUSSELL, Shirley 1603
RUSSELL, William 3129
RUSSIN, Robert 1156
RUSSO, Alexander 1470
RUSSO, Joseph 2937
RUSSO, Michele 3079
RUST, Abby 2889
RUTH, Sura 2609
RUTHERFORD, Randy 1021
RUTHVEN, John 3007
RUTKIN, Adolph 1515
RUTKOWSKI, Casimer 1080
RUTKOWSKI, James 2000
RUTKOWSKI, Mark 2014
RUTLEDGE, Cathy 3052, 3220
RUTLEDGE, Pat 3442
RUTMAN, Robert 2851
RUTNER, Richard 2851, 2851
RUTTAN, Alison 1639
RUTTER, John 2937
RUTTINGER, Jacquelyn 1736
RUTYNOWSKI, Charles 3312
RYAN, Anne 1761, 2494, 2589, 2790
RYAN, Catherine 2960
RYAN, Chris 2889
RYAN, John 3320
RYAN, Lila 2197, 2519
RYAN, Michael 1740
RYAN, Tim 1019
RYAN, Tom 2564, 3061
RYAN, William E. 3422
RYBAK, Taty 2011
RYDER, Chauncey Foster 1381, 3327
RYERSON, Margery 2563
RYMAN, Robert 1193, 1731, 2610
RYOHEI, Tanaka 1185
RYTHER, Martha 2946

S

SAAD-COOK, Janet 1911
SAALBURG, Allen 2408
SAAM, Sibyl 2271
SAAR, Alison 1134
SAAR, Betye 1134, 1287, 1570, 2634
SAARI, Peter 1325
SAARNI, Betty 1057, 2250
SABA, Richard 1064, 1479, 2679
SABAROFF, David 1110
SABATIER, Anne Marie 2535
SABEL, J. 1011
SABIN, Hib 3315
SABO, Betty 2214
SABO, Irving 1387
SABREE, R. 1008
SACERDOTE, Nora 2651
SACHS, Debra 3129
SACHS, Sid 3122, 3125
SACK, Alice 3481
SACKS, Walter 2911
SADIA, Gonzalo 1685
SADLER, Rob 2102
SADOW, Harvey 1533, 1576, 1986, 2925, 3276
SAEGESSER, Marguerite 1218, 2730
SAENGER, Peter 2332
SAFF, Donald 1543, 2549
SAGABAZARIAN, Anita 2516
SAGANIC, Livio 1257, 2417
SAGAR, Beatricia 2442
SAGE, Kay 1181
SAGE, Linn 2729
SAGE, Phillip 1860, 2072
SAGE, Priscilla 2404
SAGER, Ben 1236
SAHULA-DYCKE, Ignatz 2238
SAITO, Kikuo 1476, 1840, 2039, 2443, 2774
SAITO, Seije 2329
SAITO, Sekino 2045
SAITOH, Ryo 2887
SAJBEL, Edward 1383
SAJKOVIC, Olivera 2726
SAKAGUCHI, Susumu 2679
SAKAHAFTEWA, Ishii 2232
SAKAMOTO, Koichi 2887, 2887, 3132
SAKURAI, Eiichi 1635

SAKWA, Hap 1114, 1576, 2172, 2332
SALA, Pierre 3126
SALABERRI 2853
SALAMUN, Vladimir 2818, 2933
SALAUN, Phillipe 1257
SALAZAR, Arthur 2172
SALAZAR, Daniel 1281
SALAZAR, Leo 2240
SALDANA, Andrew 2050
SALE, Carolyn 2216, 2226, 2257
SALEMME, Antonio 2162
SALEMME, Attilio 2411, 2908
SALEMME, Martha 2162
SALINAS, Baruj 1515, 1544, 2011, 2531
SALINGER, Joan 2001
SALLE, David 1148, 1940, 2410, 2430, 2431, 2574
SALLES, Guyer 2449
SALLEY, David 1488
SALLICK, Lucy 2012, 2490, 2802
SALMOIRAGHI, Frank 1603
SALMONES, Victor 1945, 2147, 2764
SALOMON, Dr. Erich 2604
SALOMON, Judith 1433, 3019
SALSTROM, Mary 2744
SALTER, Thomson 1567, 1592
SALTZ, Mark 2834
SALTZMAN, Bob 2260, 2546
SALVADORI, Aldo 2439
SALVADORI, Remo 2358
SALVATORI, Fabio 2386
SALVESON, Douglas 3175
SALZMAN, Marvin 2290
SALZMANN, Lawrence 1488
SAMAHA, Sumayyah 2840
SAMARAS, Lucas 1399, 1477, 1492, 1678, 2061, 2718, 3086, 3459
SAMERJAN, Stephen 1691, 3465
SAMMARCELLI, Kiki 1112
SAMMET, Edwin 1500, 1547
SAMOUR, Michelle 1946
SAMPSON, David A. 1573
SAMPSON, Frank 1354
SAMS, Ann 1516
SAMUELS, Diane 3172, 3173
SAMUELS, Edward 2723
SAMUELS, Fern 1633
SAMUELS, Larry 3314
SAMUELSON, Bruce 3153
SAMUELSON, Frank 3429
SAMUELSON, Rich 2386
SAN FILIPPO, Peter 2800
SAN SOUCIE, Pat 2161
SANCHEZ, Emilio 3041
SANCHEZ, Jorge Noceda 1481
SANCHEZ, Joseph 1033
SANCHEZ, Robert 1172
SANCHEZ, Stephanie 1251, 1319
SANDBACK, Fred 1991
SANDEL, Randye 1188
SANDELL, Scott 1805, 2066, 3281
SANDEN, John Howard 2738
SANDER, August 1950, 1970
SANDER, Ludwig 2633
SANDER, Sherry 1035, 3323
SANDER, Tom 2131
SANDERS, Bob 2439
SANDERS, Christopher 2498
SANDERS, John 1468, 2594, 2778
SANDERS, Mariette 2900
SANDERS, Marshall 1717
SANDERS, Sally 2157
SANDERS, Timothy Greenfield 1509
SANDERSON, Clifford 1356
SANDES, Roger 1405, 1542, 3379
SANDLER, Barbara 2783, 2784
SANDLER, Muriel 2854
SANDMAN, Jo 1952
SANDOR, August 1650
SANDORFI, Etienne 2366
SANDOVAL, Roberto 2732
SANDQUIST, Stormy Anne 1500
SANDSTEAD, Kathryn 2991
SANDSTROM, Donald 1693, 2481
SANDSTROM, Harvey 2047
SANDVIG, Elizabeth 3433
SANDZEN, Birger 1811
SANFORD, Elizabeth 3240
SANFORD, Nancy 1471
SANG, Barbara 2371
SANIN, Fanny 2637
SANJURJO 2853
SANNA, Anthony 3377
SANTA COLOMA, Barbara 2507
SANTAMARIA, Raymond 2290
SANTANDER, Monic 2374
SANTIAGO, Ramon 2736
SANTIAGO, Susan 1327
SANTLOFER, Jonathan 2355
SANTORE, Joseph 2833
SAPECKI, Roman 3025
SAPIR, Ira 2141, 2196, 2332, 2545
SAPPEY, Leigh Ann 1378
SARANGOULIS, Nancy 3139
SARDELIC, Ante 1674
SARET, Alan 1193, 1201, 2457, 3141
SARGEN-SIMON, Rita 2043
SARGENT, John S. 2360
SARGO, Adrian 1232
SARKISIAN, Paul 1342, 1442, 1808, 2590
SARLATTE, Laurent 1246
SARNOFF, Arthur 2302
SARNOFF, Lolo 1445
SARSONY, Robert 3322
SARTORIS, Georgia 1343
SASAKI, Tomiyo 2599
SASKA, Tim 1352
SASSONE, Marco 1524
SATIN, Claire Jeanine 1512, 3296
SATO, Maasaki 1053, 1992
SATO, Norie 2095, 3418
SAUBERT, Tom 2131
SAUBRY, Cellia 2535
SAUDEK, Jan 1640, 1740, 3417
SAUER, Jane 2098
SAUERHOFF, Sharon 1862
SAUL, Peter 1669, 2528
SAULS, Jean 1584
SAUNDERS, David 2411, 3020
SAUNDERS, Larry 1811
SAUNDERS, Raymond 1067, 1157, 1306, 1321
SAUNDERS, Wade 1176, 1693, 1902, 2457, 3125
SAURA, Antonio 2667
SAUVAGEAU, Susan 2336
SAVAGE, Jerry 1732
SAVAGE, Jim 3227
SAVAGE, Juta 1282, 1313
SAVAGE, Lee 1859
SAVAGE, Naomi 2192
SAVAGE, Phil 1232
SAVAGE, W. Lee 2376
SAVAGEAU, Ann 1994
SAVARD, Dean 2442
SAVARY, Robert 2498
SAVASTIO, J. 2057
SAVILLE, Ken 1445, 2216, 2239
SAVITSKY, Jack 1870
SAVLER, David 1011
SAVO, Joan 1213, 1296
SAVOY, Cheryl 1854
SAW, Jim 1116
SAWA, Oi 2849
SAWADA, Ikune 3433
SAWADA, Tetsuro 2887
SAWANO, Mizue 2849
SAWCHENKO, Charles 1473
SAWIN, Sandra 3127
SAWKA, Jan 1128, 1481, 2472
SAWYER, Anne 2235
SAWYER, Janet 2405
SAWYER, Joan 1920
SAWYER, Raphael 1453
SAXE, Adrian 1137, 1433, 2095
SAXON, Dorothy 1609
SAXON, Erik 1276, 1283
SAXTON, Leone 1998, 2044
SAYERS, John 1909, 3466
SAYLES, Janice 1473, 1823
SAYLORS, Jo 3055
SAYRE, Rakel 1378
SAYRE, Tom 3336
SBATH, Linda 2179
SCALISE, Nicholas 1407, 1967
SCANGA, Italo 1207, 1285, 1304, 1535, 1639, 2003, 2457, 2470, 2848, 2907, 3270
SCANLON, Marcia 2058, 2060
SCARBROUGH, Andrea 1735
SCARETTI, Lorenzo 2458
SCARLETT, Rolph 2855
SCARPITTA, Salvatore 2429, 2430
SCHAAF, William 1500
SCHAAFSMA, Polly 2242
SCHAAP, Paul 3070
SCHAEFER, Barbara 1517
SCHAEFER, Carolyn 3055
SCHAEFER, John 3374
SCHAEFFER, Allyn 2173, 2205
SCHAEFFING, Jim 1057, 2250
SCHAFER, Herman 1051
SCHAFFER, Debra 2324
SCHAFFRIN-WILLARD, Gail 2177
SCHAINKER, Millicent 2101
SCHAMBERG, Morton Livingston 2665, 2774
SCHANKER, Louis 1908, 2478
SCHANTZ, Karl 2030
SCHAPIRO, Miriam 1064, 1514, 1658, 1802, 2552
SCHAPIRO, Teddy 2371
SCHARBACH, B.K. 1405, 2802
SCHARF, Amiel 2251
SCHARF, Kenny 2529, 2791
SCHARFENBERG, Bruce 2012
SCHARNBERG, Dennis 3272
SCHATZ, Arleen 2904
SCHATZ, Carrie 2732
SCHATZKY, Sidney 2458, 2923
SCHAUFLER, Paul 3361
SCHAUMANN, Peter 3135
SCHAVERIEN, Pat 2613
SCHECK, Gerald 2484
SCHECTER, Judith Lipman 2436
SCHECTER, Laura 3202
SCHECTER, Robert 2844
SCHEDL, Naomi 1794
SCHEIN, Francoise 2564
SCHEINMAN, Pamela 2930
SCHELKE, Greta 1581
SCHELLHOUSE, Don 3224
SCHEMPP, Gay 1404
SCHENCK, Bill 1044, 1045, 1048, 1058, 1066, 2236, 2784
SCHEPIS, Anthony 2006
SCHEPIS, Richard 2157
SCHER, Susan 2489
SCHERMAN, Tony 2464
SCHICKEL, William 3010
SCHIEFER, Charles 1770
SCHIEFER, Stafford 3389
SCHIELE, Egon 1631, 2536, 2642
SCHIETINGER, Jim 1735
SCHIFANO, Mario 2707
SCHIFF, Jeffrey 1952
SCHIFF, Leslie 2513
SCHIFFER, Ruth 2471
SCHILLE, Alice 1954, 2249, 3027
SCHILLE, Marjett 3426
SCHILTZ, Rand 1172, 1265
SCHIMEL, Bob 3000
SCHIMENTI, Margie 2140
SCHIO, Iren 1354
SCHIPPERT, Elizabeth 3041
SCHIRA, Cynthia 2571, 3121, 3313
SCHIRA, Peter 2433
SCHIRAS, Myrna 1315
SCHIRM, David 1325, 2794
SCHIRMER, Raffaela 1037
SCHISSLER, Janeen 2131
SCHIWETZ, E. M. "Buck" 3318
SCHLECHTER, John 1784
SCHLERETH, John 2209
SCHLESINGER, Mark 2351
SCHLEY, Matt 2183
SCHLEY, Reeve III 2562
SCHLOSS, Alex 2088
SCHLOSS, Edith 2598
SCHLOSS, Richard 1293, 1315
SCHLOSSBERG, Edwin 2504
SCHLOTZHAUER, Harold 1785, 2117, 2133
SCHMID, Lynda 2068
SCHMID, Richard 2563
SCHMID, Robert 2309, 2394, 2444
SCHMID, Ursula 2096
SCHMIDBAUR, Benno 2408
SCHMIDT, Alicia 1515
SCHMIDT, Charles 1566, 3153
SCHMIDT, Edward 2779
SCHMIDT, Jack 2030
SCHMIDT, Julius 1445
SCHMIDT, Karl 2752
SCHMIDT, Mary Jane 1352
SCHMIDT-ROTTLUFF, Karl 1631
SCHMIDT, Walter 1770
SCHMITT, Michael 1315
SCHMITZ, Thomas 1947
SCHMUTZHART, Berthold 1434
SCHNABEL, Bruce 3121
SCHNABEL, Duane 1625
SCHNABEL, Julian 1090, 1167, 1304, 1731, 1940, 2410, 2430, 2431, 2574
SCHNAKENBERG, Henry 2638
SCHNEEMAN, George 2804
SCHNEEMANN, Carolee 2594, 2603
SCHNEIDER, Art 2011
SCHNEIDER, David 3037
SCHNEIDER, Debbie 1478
SCHNEIDER, Doug 3315
SCHNEIDER, Jacquelyn 1709
SCHNEIDER, Janet 2744
SCHNEIDER, Jo Anne 1470
SCHNEIDER, Julie 1664, 1968
SCHNEIDER, Shellie 2900
SCHNELL, Marianne 2408
SCHNELLER, Andrew 3379
SCHNIER, Jacques 1213
SCHNORE, Peter 2312
SCHNURR, A. M. 3169
SCHOEBEL, Henry 3320
SCHOELZEL, Kurt 1360
SCHOENER, Jason 1268, 2677
SCHOENFELD, Billy 2312
SCHOENHERR, John 1356
SCHOETTLE, Marion 1437
SCHOFIELD, Roberta 1909
SCHOLDER, Carole 3267
SCHOLDER, Fritz 1038, 1040, 1058, 1075, 1329, 1719, 2266, 2350, 2531, 2989, 3225, 3316
SCHOLL, William 3166
SCHONEBERG, S.C. 2947
SCHONGAUER, Martin 2482
SCHONZEIT, Ben 1476, 2590
SCHOONHOVEN, Terry 1124, 1161
SCHOPPE, Palmer 1174
SCHOPPERT, Jim 1021, 3431, 3435
SCHORR, Annalee 1354
SCHORRE, Charles 3309, 3333
SCHORY, Karen 1805
SCHRADY, Frederick 2189
SCHRAG, Karl 2638
SCHRAGER, Victor 2751
SCHRANIL, Yoshiko 3271
SCHRECK, Michael 1480, 1523
SCHREIBER, Eileen 2538
SCHREIBER, Frank 2054
SCHREIBER, Fred 1896
SCHREIBER, Martin S. 3247, 3263
SCHREIBER, Sherry 2681, 2847
SCHREPFERMAN, Steven 1549
SCHRIMER, Raffaela 2502
SCHRODER, Albert 1523
SCHRODER, F.L. 2816
SCHRODER, Frank 2524, 2557
SCHROEDER, Heidi 1641
SCHROEDER, Margaret 2014
SCHROOT, Gary 2257
SCHRUT, Sherry 1234, 1244
SCHUBACK, Diana 2593
SCHUBERT, Uta 3118
SCHUCK, Marylou 2413
SCHUCKER, Charles 2192
SCHUELER, Jon 1721, 2058, 2084, 2772
SCHUFFENECKER, Claude E. 2575
SCHULER, Melvin 1128, 1268, 3079
SCHULKIND, Rima 1473
SCHULMAN, Harvey 2857
SCHULMAN, Jean 1003
SCHULTZ, Robert 3460
SCHULTZ, Stephen 2472
SCHULTZ, William 2254
SCHULZ, Cornelia 1263
SCHULZ, Fred 2778
SCHULZ, Jacqueline 1036
SCHUPACK, Vera 2733
SCHUR, Katherine 2157
SCHURR, Jerry 1423, 2043, 2314, 2826, 3386
SCHUSELKA, Elfi 2449, 2505
SCHUSTER, Sherry 2545
SCHUTTE, Terry 1142
SCHUYLER, Minnie Maude May 2077
SCHWAB, Phillip 3444
SCHWAB, Rick 2620
SCHWABLE, Conrad 1202
SCHWAIGER, Frank 2103
SCHWARCZ, June 1576
SCHWARTZ, Barbara 1658, 2323, 2871, 3418
SCHWARTZ, Bella 1447
SCHWARTZ, Carl 1682
SCHWARTZ, Charles 1682
SCHWARTZ, Constance Wain 2436, 2904
SCHWARTZ, Elliot 2805
SCHWARTZ, Henry 1929
SCHWARTZ, Joel A. 2847
SCHWARTZ, Leonard 3315, 3433
SCHWARTZ, Manfred 1485
SCHWARTZ, Mark 2787, 3020
SCHWARTZ, Michael 2924
SCHWARTZ, Rita 2900
SCHWARTZ, Sarah 1720
SCHWARTZ, William S. 1544
SCHWARZ, David 3420
SCHWARZ, Paul 2018
SCHWARZBURG, Peter 2544
SCHWEDER, Mary 3214
SCHWEDLER, William 2467
SCHWEIGER, Todd 3221
SCHWEITZER, Masha 1323
SCHWIEGER, Robert 2996
SCHWIERING, Conrad 3310
SCHWITTERS, Kurt 1730, 2427, 2642, 2660
SCIALLA, Vince 2380
SCIALO, Patricia 2179
SCIAM, Michael 2629
SCILIANO, Gerald 2394
SCLAFONI, Victoria 2340
SCOFIELD, John 2658
SCOPAS, Sam 2253
SCOPPETTONE, James 1601
SCOTT, Ann 1450
SCOTT, Cita 1469
SCOTT, Don 3424
SCOTT, Jack 1142
SCOTT, Jane Wooster 1141, 3221
SCOTT, Jill 1259
SCOTT, John W.A. 2360
SCOTT, Kim 1101
SCOTT, Liese Jean 2050
SCOTT, Michael 3007

VOL 71
ISS 7
AG 1983
UMI

SCOTT, Peter 1929
SCOTT, Robert N. 2629
SCOTT, Sam 1046, 1074, 1075, 1202, 1371
SCOTT, Sandy 1362, 1384, 2115, 2241
SCOTT, Steven O. 3323
SCOTT, Susan 1831
SCOTT, William 2551
SCOTT BROWN, Denise 2747
SCOTT-BROWN, Joan 2150
SCOTTI, Maria 2794
SCOVILLE, Jonathan 2449
SCRAMSTAD, Sharon 1021
SCREATON, Matthew 2380
SCRIVER, Robert 2126, 2128
SCROGGY, Hal 3003
SCUDERI, Franco 1485
SCULLION, Gil 1406
SCULLY, Sean 2395
SCULTHORPE, Peter 1423, 3099
SCURI, Vicki 1213
SCURIS, Stephanie 1902
SEABECK, Bob 3315
SEABOURN, Bert 1080, 3052
SEADOR, Jo Anne 2609
SEALE, Jay 1378
SEALINE, Eric 3153
SEAMAN, Drake 1037
SEAMAN, James 1519
SEARLES, Charles 3164
SEAVER, Norman 2310
SEAWELL, Tom 2916, 2939
SEBASTIAN, Jill 3465
SEBASTIAN, Liane 1641
SEBEK, Miklos 2169
SEBELIST, Margo 3242
SÉBIRE, Gaston 1667, 2507
SECKLER, Serge 2421
SECONDINE, Don 3059
SECUNDA, Arthur 1226, 1322, 2043, 2502, 2947
SEDING, Volker 2602
SEDMAN, Vickie 3121
SEEBACH, Lee 1041
SEEGER, Frances 1473
SEEGERS, Laurence 2597
SEEGMILLER, Don 2254
SEEKINS, S. 2057
SEEKS, Rosie 1794
SEELEY, Bill 1805
SEELEY, J. 2380
SEELIG, Heinz 1676
SEELIG, Warren 2571
SEEMAN, James 2310
SEEMAYER, Stephen 1325
SEERY, John 1680, 2568
SEEWACK, Larry 1149
SEGAL, Charlotte 1633
SEGAL, Connie 1810
SEGAL, George 1113, 1335, 1478, 1506, 2610, 2907
SEGALMAN, Richard 1522, 2168
SEGALOFF, Jean 1938
SEGALOVE, Iline 1129
SEGERBLOM, Cliff 2144
SEGUI, Antonio 1284, 2644
SEHRING, Adolf 1913, 2501, 3104
SEIDELHUBER, Heidi 1636
SEIDEN, Katie 2436
SEIDERMAN, Seth 1026
SEIDL, Claire 2800
SEIGMANN, Naomi 1190
SEITZ, John 3164, 3175
SEKAER, Peter 2872
SEKIMACHE, Kay 2930
SEKINE, Yoshio 2887
SELCHOW, Roger 2753, 2908
SELEY, Jason 3095
SELIGER, Charles 2460
SELIGER, Herbert 2318
SELIGMANN, Kurt 2642
SELLARD, Mickey 2096
SELLARS, Steven 3346
SELLERS, Hazel 2963
SELLERS, Sonja 1003
SELTZER, Ila 1488
SELTZER, Kathleen 2805
SELTZER, O. C. 2129
SELTZER, Phyllis 3020
SELVAGE, Nancy 1947
SELVIN, Nancy 2491
SEMERGIEFF, Chris 2744
SEMIVAN, Douglas K. 2000
SEMON, Jeanine 2251
SENNHAUSER, John 2478
SENSEMANN, Susan 1135, 1644, 1755, 3004
SENSER, Andreas 2655
SENSER, John 1211
SENUNGETUK, Ron 1021
SENUNGETUK, Turid 1021
SEPANSKI, Karen 2015
SEPPA, Heikki 1965
SER, Hedva 2539
SEREIX, Antonio 1039, 1480, 2548
SERGIOU, Loizos 2854
SERIZAWA, Keisuke 1118
SERL, Jon 1201
SERR, Jan 3460, 3476
SERRA, Richard 1152, 1335, 2100, 2429, 2430, 2431, 3287, 3424
SERRA, Rudy 1659
SERRA-BADUÉ, Daniel 1493
SERRANO, Raymond 3436
SERRIER 1326
SERUSIER, Paul 3327
SERVA, Vicki 1612
SERVETAS, John 2593
SESTI, Mary 2889
SESTOK, Robert 2018, 2026
SETIEN, Carlos 1809, 2081
SETZER, Sara Dame 3212
SETZIOL, LeRoy 3075
SETZIOL, Monica 3075
SEVENTY, Sylvia 1223, 1241, 2491
SEVERANCE, Jake 2854
SEVERINO, Bruce 3446
SEWELL, Leo 3134
SEXAUR, Donald 2962
SEXTON, John 1203, 1896
SEYFARTH, Mary 1740
SFERRA, Rik 2065
SHACKELFORD, Shelby 1980
SHADDLE, Alice 1636
SHADRACH, Jean 1015
SHADUR-MAYNARD ATELIER 1944
SHAEFFER, Craig 3149
SHAFER, Orie 1654
SHAFFER, Fern 1636
SHAFFER, Floy 1996
SHAFFER, Mary 2030
SHAFFER, O. V. 1559
SHAFFER, Richard 1337, 1338
SHAFFER, Rosalind 2802
SHAHMIR, Mort 1819
SHAHN, Ben 2186, 2645
SHAHN, Jonathan 2163, 2782
SHAHN, Judith 2186, 2683, 3282
SHAK, Gerald 2889
SHALER, Lynn 2444
SHALOM OF SAFED 1874
SHAMBROOM, Donald 1973
SHAMON, Floyd 2404
SHAMSUD-DIN, Isaac 2133, 3413
SHAN, Li 3281
SHANE, Fred 2079
SHANER, David 2118
SHANKMAN, David 1487
SHANKMAN, Gary 1458
SHANKS, Nelson 2738
SHANLEY, Dick 2310
SHANNON, Catalda 2173
SHANNON, Charles 1009, 2984
SHANNON, Joe 2467
SHANNON, Thomas 2504
SHANNONHOUSE, Sandra 1306
SHANOSKI, Michael P. 3161
SHAPIRO, Babe 2197
SHAPIRO, Carla 2609
SHAPIRO, David 1478, 1728, 1765, 2006, 2549, 2715, 2822, 2845, 2854, 3043
SHAPIRO, Dep 1481, 2715, 2881, 2901
SHAPIRO, Esther 3476
SHAPIRO, Frances 2894
SHAPIRO, Joan 2934
SHAPIRO, Joel 1148, 1304, 1731, 2003, 2452, 2868, 3087
SHAPIRO, Lee 1346
SHAPIRO, Sally 1605
SHAPIRO, Susan 1743, 2617
SHARER, William 1052
SHARIR, David 1944
SHARITS, Paul 1962
SHARK, Bud 2996
SHARLIN, Miriam 1535
SHARMAN, Lane 2150
SHARP, Albert 2498
SHARP, J. H. 2129
SHARP, Jennifer 3362
SHARP, Joseph 1280, 3007
SHARPE, David 1144, 1732, 2355
SHARPE, Sarah 2963
SHARPS, Gayle 3226
SHARRER, Honore 2515
SHARSHAL, Stan 1579
SHATAN, Norma 2744
SHATTER, Susan 2511, 2789, 2848
SHATTUCK, Anne 1313, 2141
SHATZ, Helen 1549
SHAW, A. D. 3369
SHAW, Charles 2855
SHAW, David 3282
SHAW, Dian 3374
SHAW, Don 3324
SHAW, Doyle 3371, 3376
SHAW, Ernest 2329
SHAW, Jimi 2112
SHAW, John 2812, 3374
SHAW, Julie 1437
SHAW, Karen 2844
SHAW, Kenneth 1515
SHAW, Mary Todd 2984
SHAW, Rayford 1878
SHAW, Reesey 1134, 1235
SHAW, Richard 1249, 1625, 2528, 3459
SHAW, Rodney 1566
SHAW, Susan 2584
SHAW, Thom 3010
SHAW-SUTTON, Carol 2491
SHAY, Ed 1644, 3465
SHAY, Robert 1576
SHAYLER, George 3430
SHEA, Judith 2871
SHEAKS, Barclay 3399
SHEAR, Jack 1177
SHECHTER, Ben-Zion 3476
SHECHTER, Laura 3476
SHECTER, Felice N. 2012
SHEDDEN, Edythe 2916
SHEDLETSKY, Stuart 2228, 2423
SHEEHAN, Maura 1235
SHEEHAN, Richard 1298, 1715, 1921
SHEELER, Charles 2665, 2877
SHEESLEY, Joel 1643
SHEETS, Millard 2626
SHEIRR, Olga 2705
SHELDON, James 1919
SHELL, James 2977
SHELLABY, Madelaine 1875
SHELLEY, Mary 2615
SHELLEY, Ward 1516
SHELTON, Doug 1791
SHELTON, Peter 1312, 1339
SHENANDOAH, Rod 2121
SHENG-KOHLER, Amy 1732
SHENKER, Ilya 2692
SHEPHARD, Anne Besse 2171
SHEPHERD, Bill 1357, 3308
SHEPHERD, David 1702
SHEPHERD, Don 2585
SHEPHERD, Sharon 1241, 3362, 3372, 3374
SHEPHERD, Shirley 1619
SHEPHERD, Thomas 2031
SHEPHERD, Tim 2963
SHEPLER, Joseph 3173
SHEPP, Alan 1306
SHEPPARD, Craig 2152
SHEPPARD, Joseph 3108
SHER, Elizabeth 1240
SHER, Jack 2380
SHER, Lewis 2186
SHERBERT, Michael 3397
SHERIFF, John 2226
SHERMAN, Bob 1082
SHERMAN, Charlotte 1156
SHERMAN, Cindy 1148, 1399, 1575, 1731, 2673, 3333
SHERMAN, Robert 1039, 1480
SHERMETA, Margo 2044
SHERROD, Phillip 2818
SHERRY, Lee 1943
SHERTZER, Gerald 1935
SHERWIN, Doretta 2812
SHERWIN, Mark 2824
SHERWOOD, Carol 1027
SHERWOOD, Debra 3437
SHERWOOD, Katherine 2448
SHERWOOD, Robert 2096
SHIBLEY, Gertrude 2593
SHIBUI 2170
SHIELDS, Alan 1578, 2084, 2452, 2907, 2936
SHIELDS, Don 2570
SHIELDS, Jody 2813
SHIKLER, Aaron 2465, 2738
SHILLEA, Tom 2179
SHILLING, Bonnie 1752
SHILLITO, Rev. Edward 1527
SHIMMIN, Linda Lee 3360
SHIMOMURA, Roger 1001, 1045, 1371, 1805, 1808, 3441
SHIMONECK, Mick 1360
SHINN, Everett 2676
SHINODA, Toko 2887
SHIPMAN, David 1643
SHIRAGA, Sharon 2715
SHIRAS, Myrna 1110
SHIRE, Peter 1159, 1196, 1283, 1680, 1808, 2004, 2109, 3437
SHIRK, Helen 3121
SHIRLEY, Karen 3023
SHIRLEY, William 1445
SHISHKIN, Ivan 2830
SHIVELY, Beth 3405
SHIVERS, Clarence 3039
SHIZUME, Mori 3310
SHLIM, Larry 3082, 3434
SHOATS, Soledad Carrillo 2217
SHOCKLEY, Susan 3240
SHOEMAKER, Ben 2256, 3050, 3052, 3059
SHOEMAKER, Brad 2507
SHOEMAKER, Joan 3059
SHOKOFF, Ruth 2920
SHOLINSKY, Stephen 2394
SHORE, Ann 2323, 2436
SHORE, Stephen 1129, 1262, 2223, 2584, 2650
SHORR, Harriet 1273, 1768, 2715
SHORR, Kenneth 1697
SHORT, Richard 1803
SHOSHANNAH 1101
SHOULBERG, Harry 2169, 2593
SHOWALTER, Charles 1909
SHRAGO, Mindy 1478
SHREVE, Anne 3011
SHRIVER, William 2268
SHUB, Bob 1083
SHUBERT, Katherine Schmidt 2868
SHUBIN, Morris 1877
SHUBOW, David 2043
SHUFELT, Robert "Shoofly" 1061, 2254
SHULMAN, Arline 2926
SHUMMER-FANGOR, Magdalena 2535
SHUNSHO, Katsukawa 2945
SHUSTERMAN, Linda 2172
SHWERRIN, Ron 2724
SIANI, Anthony 2544
SIBONY, Judah 1676
SICA 3164
SICELOFF, Jo 2963
SICKLER, Michael 2939
SIEBEL, Heidi 1298
SIEBERT, Franz 2113
SIEFF, Jeanloup 3064
SIEGAL, Gary 1912
SIEGEL, Adam 1669
SIEGEL, Alan 1476, 1720, 2454, 2590
SIEGEL, Arthur 1683
SIEGEL, Barbara 2725
SIEGEL, Beau 1515
SIEGEL, Frances 2744
SIEGEL, Irene 1731
SIEGEL, Isabelle 1877
SIEGEL, Jan 1275
SIEGEL, Nancy 3240
SIEGEL-SMITH, Connie 1123
SIEGRIEST, Louis 1251, 1301, 1340
SIEGRIEST, Lundy 1340
SIERRA, Arlene 2800
SIERRA, Paul 1701
SIEVAN, Maurice 2845
SIFF, Elena Mary 1161
SIGFRIED, William 1269
SIGILLO, Lissi 2827
SIGLER, Hollis 1658, 2060, 2552
SIGLER, Tamara 2404
SIGMUND, Gretchen 1682, 1767
SIGNAC, Paul 2852
SIHVONEN, Jennifer 2265
SIHVONEN, Oli 2215
SIJAN, Marc 1743, 2196
SIKICH, Anthony 1487
SIKORA, Zdzislaw 1590, 1682, 3458
SIKORSKY, Yaffa 1545, 3205
SILBER, Anne 1944, 2161, 2444
SILBERMAN, Jacob 2544
SILER, Patrick 3418
SILER, Todd 2504
SILLIMAN, Chris 2847
SILLMAN, Sewell 1995
SILLS, Joyce 2496
SILLS, Pam Kelly 1864
SILVA, Ernest 1135, 1235, 1644
SILVA, Jerald 1229
SILVA, Julio 2853
SILVER, John 2705
SILVERBERG, June 2413
SILVERMAN, Arthur 1213, 1867
SILVERMAN, Burton 1909, 2798
SILVERMAN, Jack 3279
SILVERMAN, Martin 2833
SILVERMAN, Rosa 2733
SILVERNELL, Kerri 1500
SILVERTHORNE, Jean 3124
SILVERTOOTH, Dennis 2050
SIM-HAMILTON, Isabel 3429
SIMAS, Dan 2020
SIMBARI, Nicola 1484, 1503, 1523, 1524, 1667, 2088, 2379, 2458, 2819, 2828
SIMKIN, Phillips 3131
SIMMONS, Ben 2899
SIMMONS, Jas 2216
SIMMONS, Jim 1052
SIMMONS, Laurie 2673
SIMMONS, Leland 3445
SIMMONS, Roy 2329, 2939
SIMMS, Frank 2268
SIMON, Adam 2836
SIMON, Irene 2014
SIMON, Joan Martley 2900
SIMON, Sidney 1979
SIMONDS, Charles 1034, 1704, 2428, 3294
SIMONDS, Margaret 2489
SIMONE, Robert 1587
SIMONIAN, Judith 1179
SIMONS, David 1733
SIMONS, Vera 1113, 3330
SIMONSEN, Ann 2889
SIMONSON, Doug 1600
SIMOTOVA, Adriena 1640
SIMPSON, David 1283
SIMPSON, Gail 1633
SIMPSON, Janet 2082
SIMPSON, Josh 1437, 2554, 2617, 2939
SIMPSON, Lee 1368, 1814
SIMPSON, Marian 2304, 2937
SIMPSON, Maswell S. 2166
SIMPSON, Mike 1735
SIMPSON, Tommy 2329, 2737
SIMS, Agnes 2242, 3066
SIMS, Mary 3060, 3315
SIMS, Nancy 3285
SIMS, Phil 1247, 2716
SIMS, Raymond 2937
SINAIKO, Suzanne 2854
SINCLAIR, Anthony 2115, 3321
SINCLAIR, Jane 1111
SINCLAIR, John 2186
SINDERSON, Judith 1803
SINGER, Alan 2544
SINGER, Arthur 2575
SINGER, Ed 1059, 2050
SINGER, Hal 2162
SINGER, Michael 2811
SINGER, Steven H. 2635
SINGLETON, Robert 2851

SINGLETON, Stan 1692
SINN, Henry 1580, 3308
SINSABAUGH, Art 2873
SINTON, Neil 1249
SIPE, Staci 3355
SIPORIN, Rachel 2413
SIPPLE, Jeffrey 1202
SIPPRELL, Clara 2729
SIPRESS, David 1946, 1966
SIQUEIROS, David A. 1113
SIRICA, John 1992
SIRLIN, Deanna 2757
SISCO, Gerald 1275
SISKIND, Aaron 1074, 1535, 1901, 1936, 1950, 2578, 2650
SISKO, Paul 1906, 2162, 2705
SISLEY, John B. 2173, 2395
SISSON, Laurence 1052, 1504, 1523, 2254, 2724
SISTER ADELE 1226
SITARCHUK, Leon 3136
S.I.T.E 1731, 2353, 2504
SIU, Monique 3075
SIVARD, Robert 2677
SIWULA, Blaise 2020
SKALNICK, Pavel 2853
SKARDA, Steve 2132
SKAUG, Vern 2996
SKELTON, Brian 1177
SKELTON, Red 1601
SKEMP, Robert 2738
SKIPPER, Katherine 2972
SKLARSKI, Bonnie 2779
SKOFF, Gail 2643, 3417
SKOGLUND, Sandy 2055, 2431
SKOMSKI, Thomas 1709
SKONDOVITCH, Alfred 1021
SKOOGFORS, Olaf 3121
SKOPIC, Cathy 2399
SKUBER, Berty 2635
SKUODAS, Audrey 3019
SKURO, Leonard 1179
SKYNEAR 1044, 1045, 1066, 1363, 3267
SLACK, Connie 3106
SLACK, Pete Jr 2944
SLACK, William 2049
SLADE, Bill 1545
SLADE, Roy 2006
SLADE, Terry 1554
SLATER, Carmon 1374
SLATER, David 2286
SLATER, Gary 1352, 2236
SLATER, Rod 1968
SLAUGHTER, Harriet 1003
SLAUGHTER, Todd 2006
SLAUGHTER, William 3287, 3351
SLAVET, Ruth 1947
SLAVICK, Ann 1643
SLAVICK, Susanne 3125
SLAVICK, Suzanne 1669
SLAVIN, Arlene 2679, 2789
SLAYMAKER, Martha 2258
SLEE, David 1994
SLEIGH, Sylvia 2490, 2802
SLEPAK, Paul 1632
SLEPIAN, Marian 2186
SLETTEN, Byron 1489
SLIMON, Richard 1809
SLINKARD, Rex 1330
SLOAN, Diane 1253
SLOAN, Jeanette Pasin 1432, 1669, 2490
SLOAN, John 1034, 1642, 1880, 1908, 1974, 2029, 2224, 2243, 2638, 2770, 3307
SLOAN, Michael 3405
SLOANE, Eric 2563, 2575, 2890, 3322
SLOANE, Louise 2787
SLOANE, Phyllis 3020
SLOBODKINA, Esphir 2472
SLOMOWITZ, Marcia 3194
SLONE, Sandi 2351, 3318
SLONEM, Hunt 1877, 2931, 3210
SLOSBURG, Jill 1947
SLOTHGRUBER, Jan 2091
SLOTNICK, Jeff A. 2609
SLOWINSKI, Ronald 1802, 1809
SLUSKY, Joseph 1213
SLUTZKY, Robert 1283
SMALL, Edith Lunt 2916
SMALL, Julie Moran 1820
SMIBERT, John 1926
SMIRL, Michael 1809
SMITH-ROWE, Stacie 3074
SMITH SIEGEL, Connie 1293
SMITH, Aileen M. 1321
SMITH, Al 1467, 3314
SMITH, Albert 1859
SMITH, Alexis 1146, 1167, 2600, 2804
SMITH, Andrea 1615, 1617
SMITH, Ann 1946
SMITH, B. J. 3058
SMITH, Barbara 1039
SMITH, Bob 2421
SMITH, Carita 3385
SMITH, Carter 2257
SMITH, Cary 1394
SMITH, Cletus 3056
SMITH, Clyde 2738
SMITH, Colleen 3442
SMITH, Craig 1115
SMITH, David 1171, 1453, 1462, 2510, 2633
SMITH, Dennis 3371, 3373
SMITH, D.G. 2050, 3311
SMITH, Dinah Maxwell 2287, 2757
SMITH, Drew 2545, 2617
SMITH, Elisabeth Munro 2496
SMITH, Emily Guthrie 1080, 3291
SMITH, Emily M. 3209
SMITH, Frank Anthony 1064, 1371, 1468, 1625
SMITH, Gary 1302, 2471, 2851, 3371, 3376
SMITH, George Dee 1057, 2250
SMITH, Gregg 2787
SMITH, Gregory 3175
SMITH, Hamilton 1941
SMITH, Hassel 1264
SMITH, Holly 3151
SMITH, Ioleta 3045
SMITH, Jack 2273
SMITH, Jan 3465
SMITH, Jaune Quick-To-See 1040, 1626, 2095, 2215, 2550, 2700
SMITH, Jefferson 3307
SMITH, Jessie Willcox 3099
SMITH, Jim 1682, 2394
SMITH, Joe 2909
SMITH, John 1101
SMITH, Keith 1474, 2392, 2919, 3125
SMITH, Kimber 2492
SMITH, Lee N. 3271
SMITH, Linda K. 1047, 1273
SMITH, Linda Talbot 1994
SMITH, Lowell E. 1811, 2252, 2268, 3039
SMITH, Margaret 1422
SMITH, Mark 1590
SMITH, Mary Agnes 2543
SMITH, Mavis 2628
SMITH, Michael 1716, 2296, 2868, 3243
SMITH, Michael A. 1561, 3417
SMITH, Mike 3075
SMITH, Nancy 1378, 1623
SMITH, Nelson 2020
SMITH, Neville 3200
SMITH, Philip 1148, 2791
SMITH, Rhonda 1775
SMITH, Richard 1158, 1534, 1543, 1569, 2041, 2041, 2608, 3296
SMITH, Robert 1352, 2103
SMITH, Rupert Jason 1477, 2483
SMITH, Russell 1954, 3120
SMITH, Scott 3416
SMITH, Sheila 2287, 2757
SMITH, Sherri 1640, 1768, 1995, 2681, 3025
SMITH, Shirley Thomson 2050
SMITH, Susan 3314
SMITH, Tony 1678, 2718, 3317
SMITH, Tucker 1356
SMITH, Vern 2854
SMITH, Virginia Jeffrey 2911
SMITH, W. Eugene 1321, 1869, 3168
SMITH, William A. 2738
SMITHSON, Robert 2859, 2868, 3249
SMOLINSKY, Sandy 1740
SMONGESKI, Joseph 3474
SMUKLER, Barbara 2375
SMYERS 1114
SMYTH, Ned 2459, 2804
SNAIR, David 3205
SNEAD, Ric 1515, 1571
SNEDE, Paul 2934
SNELGROVE, Walter 1268
SNELL, Marie 2036
SNELSON, Kenneth 1031, 2880
SNIDOW, Gordon 3061
SNITZER, Joan 2659
SNODGRASS, Cindy 3173
SNOVER, Al 2944
SNOW, Carol 3220
SNOW, David 2015
SNOW, Judy 1377
SNOW, Lila 1447
SNOW, Michael 1335, 2514
SNOW, V. Douglas 3362, 3373
SNOWDEN, Gilda 2016, 2020
SNOWDEN, Mary 1249
SNOWDON, Michael 1813
SNYDER, Alan 1377
SNYDER, Amanda 3075
SNYDER, Bill 1253
SNYDER, Carole 1377
SNYDER, Dan 1240, 1241
SNYDER, Dean 1733
SNYDER, George 3445
SNYDER, Hills 3251
SNYDER, Huck 2442
SNYDER, Joan 1943, 2573
SNYDER, Joe 1368
SNYDER, Kit-Yin 2620
SNYDER, Ruth 3068
SNYDER, Stanley 2570
SNYDER, William 2607
SNYGG, John 3272
SOBELL, Nina 1165
SOBOL, Jonathan 1052
SOBRINO, Carmelo 3182, 3188
SODEIKA, Zita 1671
SODERBERG, John 1063
SODERBERG, Pat 2020
SODERGREN, Evert 3428
SODERQUIST, Ellen 3271
SODERSTEN, Toni 1024
SOFER, Ken 2800
SOHIGIAN, Judy 1188, 1296
SOIHL, Stephan 3076
SOKOL, Ana 2750
SOKOL, Edward 1573, 2539, 2947
SOKOLOV, Joel 2462
SOKOLOW, Isobel Folb 2324
SOKOLOWSKI, Linda 2638
SOLARI, Luis 1302
SOLARI, Paolo 2162, 2163
SOLBERG, Morton 1018, 1356
SOLBERT, Chris 2889
SOLBERT, Ronni 3383
SOLDAKI, Vincent 2036
SOLDNER, Paul 1576, 1946, 2098, 2141, 2491
SOLERI, Paolo 2423
SOLIEN, T.L. 2060, 2549
SOLLA, Beryl 1515
SOLLEY, Elizabeth 2854
SOLMAN, Joseph 2350, 2778, 2890
SOLOMBRE, Jean 1566, 1797, 2777
SOLOMON, Barbara Stauffacher 2061
SOLOMON, D. Jack 2355
SOLOMON, Jack 2999
SOLOMON, Rosalind 2065
SOLOMON, Syd 1470, 1496
SOLOMONT, Chester 2089
SOLONDZ, Lori 2287, 2620, 2757
SOLOW, Peter 2836
SOLSBURG, Mark 2015
SOLTIS, William 1643
SOMERS, Fred 2054
SOMERS, Harry 1566
SOMERS, Stanley 1142
SOMERVILLE, Judith 2854
SOMMER, William 2678
SOMMERS, John 2271
SOMOV, Konstantin 2830
SONFIST, Alan 2319, 2657, 3013
SONGER, Steve 3361
SONGERO, Jay 1679
SONNEMAN, Alan 1445
SONNEMAN, Eve 1136, 1731, 2431, 3333
SONNIER, Keith 1146, 1152, 2429, 2430
SONNIKSEN, Scott 3437
SONNTAG, William 3007
SONSINI, John 3082
SONZ, Susan 2004
SOOK, Hye 1164
SOPPELAND, Mark 3003
SORCE, Anthony 2580
SORENSEN, Jean 2973
SORENSEN, Yens-Flemming 2723
SORENSON, Don 1046, 1135, 1644
SORG, J. M. 3315
SORI, Susana 1512
SORIAK, Harry 1878
SORIANO, Rafael 1515, 2011
SORMAN, Steven 1442, 1639, 1766, 1946, 2000, 2060, 2096, 2549
SOROKA, Margery 2186
SORRELS, George 3153
SOSHANA 1041, 2752
SOSINI, John 1176
SOSSON, Barbara 3136
SOTERIOU, Alexandra 2597
SOTIRAKIS, Lemonia 3175
SOTOLONGO, Mario 2601, 2800
SOUCASSE, Alain 2502
SOULAGES, Pierre 1670, 2551
SOULE, Audrey J. 2894
SOULLIÈRE, John 1504, 1523
SOUTHCOMBE, Anthony J. 2541
SOUTHWICK, Dennis 2082
SOUZA, Al 1053, 1654, 3270
SOVA, Virgil 3101, 3140
SOVIAK, Harry 1715, 1992, 2355, 2715, 3131
SOWA, Helen 1037
SOWELL, Vickie Jo 1275
SOWINSKI, Stanislaus 1052
SOYER, Moses 1156, 2350, 2921, 3111
SOYER, Raphael 1908, 2019, 2385, 2444, 2515, 2921
SPAFFORD, Michael 3433
SPALATIN, Marko 1296, 1641, 1674, 1724, 2530, 2754, 3169, 3460, 3472
SPAMPINATO, Clemente 1645
SPANDORFER, Merle 3131
SPANGANBER, Cliff 2897
SPANOVICH, Chris 2216
SPARKS, Cal 1374
SPARKS, Emmett 2972
SPARLIN, Brent 1629
SPARLING, Lisa 3142
SPARRE, Eric 2510
SPARUHL, Pat 1110
SPAT, Gabriel 2343
SPAULDING, Don 1382
SPEAR, Duston 1836, 2800
SPEARS, Keith 1837
SPECK, George 2754
SPECTOR, Buzz 1135, 1644, 2000, 3125
SPEED, Grant 1048, 1702, 3376
SPEICHER, Eugene 2774
SPELLINGS, Iris 2399
SPENCE, Andrew 2834
SPENCE, Mary Ann 2150
SPENCE, Zeno 2962
SPENCER, Jennifer 3311
SPENCER, Lucy 2960
SPENCER, Marilyn 2007
SPENCER, Niles 2845
SPENCER, Robert 2202
SPENCER, Stanley 2434
SPERA, Stephen 3149
SPERAKIS, Nicholas 1713, 2856
SPERKA, Deanna 2016
SPERO, Nancy 2357, 2378, 2899
SPERRY, Ann 1218
SPERRY, Robert 3441
SPETMAN, Carol Sue 2140
SPEYER, Nora 1979, 3136
SPIES, Marylyn 2897
SPIESS-FERRIS, Eleanor 1709, 1750
SPIGGLE, Gregory 1659
SPILLER, Barbara 2386
SPILMAN, Jamie 1532
SPINAR, Mel 3225
SPINELLI, Mary 3153
SPINNER, Theresa 3184, 3190
SPINSKI, Victor 2737
SPIRA, Bill 2845
SPITZ, Rita 3012
SPITZMILLER, Walt 1382
SPLETH, Tom 1433, 2565
SPOFFORD, Sally 2166, 2507
SPOLDI, Aldo 2804
SPORNY, Stanley 1468
SPRAGUE, Dolores 2158
SPRAGUE, Donald 3078, 3085, 3428
SPRANSY, Celeste 3463
SPRICK, Daniel 1356
SPRING, Barbara 1046, 1058, 1293
SPRINGER, Helen 2036
SPROAT, Christopher 1276, 1680
SPRUANCE, Benton 1955, 3117, 3127
SPRUNG, Sharon 2541
SPRUNGER, Arlo 2579
SPRUNGER, Elmer 2131
SQUIRES, Mac 1967
ST. CROIX, Mother 1876
ST. GERMAIN, Jerry 3181
ST. JOHN, Suzanne 1346
ST. JOHN, Terry 1213, 1340
ST. MAUR, Kirk 1286
ST. PIERRE, Jean 1247
STABILE, Judy 1133
STABILITO, Joe 3164
STACK, Gael 3317
STACK, Michael 1068, 2083, 2268
STACK, Scott 1639, 2057
STACKHOUSE, Robert 1459, 1654, 2018, 2459, 2594, 3087
STACY, Katie 2173
STAEMPFLI, George 1909
STAEPELAERE, Barbara 1385
STAFFEL, Rudolf 3121
STAFFORD, Georgia 3272
STAGGS, Sari 1039, 1071
STAHL, Ben 2268
STAHOVICH, Nadeshda 1554
STAIGER, Paul 1263
STALEY, Earl 1690, 2631, 3328, 3336
STALIN, John 2701
STALKER, Jeff 2854
STALLER, Dorothy 2937
STALLWORTH, Henry 3318
STAMELOS, Electra 2000
STAMM, Ted 1644, 2984, 3004
STAMOS, Theodoros 1840, 2499, 2670
STANCZAK, Julian 1542, 1995, 3020, 3041
STANDEFER, Jim 3052
STANDISH, Luanne 3296
STANEZAK, Julian 2019
STANG, Sam 2103
STANGROOM, Jonathan 1966
STANITZ, Mark 3205
STANKARD, Paul 2585
STANKIEWICZ, Richard 2880
STANKUNAS, Madalena 1671
STANLEY, M. Louise 1287
STANTON, Harriet 2394
STANTON, Tom 1188
STANUGA, Ted 1693
STANULIS, Gabrielius 1671
STANWELL, Ann 2310
STAPRANS, Raimonds 1542
STAR, Brenda 1929
STARBUCK, Judith 3428
STARK, Jean Riest 3206
STARK, Larry 1654, 1798, 1808
STARK, Richard D. 2507
STARK, Robert 2343, 3243
STARKEY, Lane 2082
STARKWEATHER-NELSON, Cynthia 2051, 3308

VOL
71
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

STARR-RUBINS, Carol 2259
STARRELS, Nancy 2831
STATON, Thermon 1450
STATS, Kathryn 3374
STATSINGER, Evelyn 1693
STAUB, Christian 3417
STAUB, Josef 2499
STAUTBERG, Ann Lee 3271
STAVITSKY, Ellen 2052, 3019, 3287
STAVRINOS, George 2829
STAYTON, Janet 1728
STEARNS, Peter 1235
STECKEL, Hilda 2404, 2882
STECKLY, Steve 3084
STECYK, Craig 1110
STEDING, Walter 2787
STEEDMAN, Julie 1994
STEELE, Ben 2112
STEELE, Emily 1128
STEELE, Nancy 1301
STEEN, Carol 2505
STEEN, Marian 2102
STEFAN, Ross 1048, 1115
STEFANCIC, Zarko 3041
STEFANI, Cary 1450
STEFFY, Bill 3324
STEHMAN, Polly 3428
STEICHEN, Edward 1100, 1876, 1936, 1950, 2329
STEIGER-MEISTER, Carla 1489, 1778, 2065
STEIGER, Kate 1515
STEIGER, Katherine 3385
STEIMEL, Brian 2046
STEIN, Ethel 2681
STEIN, Jennifer 2371
STEIN, Linda 1343
STEIN, Ludwig 1515
STEIN, Walter 1519
STEINBACH, Haim 2448
STEINBERG, Robert 2729
STEINBERG, Saul 1081, 1246, 1678, 2533, 2559, 2717, 2718
STEINER, Clara 2815
STEINER, Michael 1476, 1639, 1802, 1931, 2100, 2494, 3318
STEINER, Ralph 2898
STEINFELD, Ellen 1680, 2920
STEINFORT, Henry 2382
STEINHARDT, Alice 1155
STEINHAUER, Andrew 1275
STEINHAUSER, Judith 1640
STEINLEN, Théophile-Alexandre 1184, 1272, 2187
STEINMAN, Steven 2519, 2984
STEINMETZ, Janet 2386
STEINMEYER, Nancy 1682
STEIR, Pat 1207, 1478, 1569, 1806, 1931, 2297, 2463, 2747
STEKETEE, Craig 3033
STELLA, Frank 1148, 1152, 1153, 1267, 1329, 1418, 1534, 1575, 1618, 1676, 1918, 1995, 2099, 2429, 2430, 2431, 2556, 2557, 2633, 2689, 2756, 3104, 3317, 3459
STELLA, Joseph 2008, 2665, 2779, 2877
STENHOUSE, Richard 2960, 2964
STENZLER, Erna 3127
STEPHAN, Gary 1167, 1304, 2410, 3333
STEPHAN, Robert 2171
STEPHANY, Jaromir 1901
STEPHEN, Robert 3405
STEPHENS, Bill 2868, 2920
STEPHENS, Jack 2050
STEPHENS, Jean K. 2920
STEPHENS, Joel 1011
STEPHENS, Marjorie L. 2550
STEPHENS, Michael 2081, 2091
STEPHENS, Thomas Michael 2083
STEPHENSON, Ralph 1994
STEPHENSON, Susanne 1137, 2141
STERLING, Stelly 2900
STERN, Anthony 1956
STERN, Arthur 2847
STERN, Bernard 1486
STERN, Bronka 2339
STERN, Dorothy 3238
STERN, Jewel 1489
STERN, Robert A. M. 2907
STERNBERG, Harry 1113, 3183
STERNBERG, Joe 3321
STERNE, Hedda 2434
STERNFELD, Joel 1119, 1227, 1266, 1950, 2873, 3270
STERRENBURG, Joan 1450
STERRITT, Coleen 1160, 1235
STESIN, Vitali 1586
STEUCKE, Paul 1015
STEVENS, Brian 1944
STEVENS, Craig 1896, 1901
STEVENS, David 1912
STEVENS, James 1580
STEVENS, Ken 3428
STEVENS, Linda 1111, 1327
STEVENS, Michael 1249, 1340, 1720
STEVENS, Nora 2047
STEVENS, Norman 2439
STEVENS, Peter 2738
STEVENS, Randy 2635
STEVENS, Rex 1902
STEVENS, W. Lester 1926
STEVENS, Walt 3070
STEVENS, Walter Hollis 1006
STEVENS, Will Henry 2877
STEVENSON, A. Brockie 1442
STEVENSON, Leanne 1709
STEVOVICH, Andrew 1933, 2627, 2685
STEWART, Alan 2916
STEWART, Allison 1515, 1878
STEWART, Arthur 1001, 1593
STEWART, Bill 2297, 2737, 2916
STEWART, Brenda 3220
STEWART, G.C. (Sonny) 3055
STEWART, Jason 2464
STEWART, John 1468, 2513
STEWART, Lizbeth 3121
STEWART, Mary Lou 1553
STEWART, Muir 1011
STEWART, Peggy 3009
STEWART, Ron 3484
STEWART, Sherry 1275
STICH, Rick 1317, 1337, 1338
STICKLEY, Gustav 1334
STICKLOON, Bob 3126
STICKNEY-GIBSON, Melinda 1744
STIEGLITZ, Alfred 1174, 2942
STIFFLER, Charlie 2296
STIGLICH, Bruce 3272
STIKAS, Marianne 2018, 2393
STILL, Clyfford 1900
STILLMAN, Bruce 1792, 2053
STINE, Ed 2995
STINNETT, Hester 3122
STINSKI, Gerald 1523
STINSMUEHLEN, Susan 1163
STIRNWEIS, Shannon 3322
STIRT, Alan 2939
STITES, Sarah 3312
STIVERS, Mark 3149
STOBART, John 2874
STOBBE, Marie 2343
STOCK, Doug 1740
STOCK, John Alan 3399
STOCK, Mark 2589
STOCKFLETH, J. 3301
STOCKSDALE, Bob 3078
STOCKTON, Bill 2117, 2132
STOCKWELL, Laurinda 3149
STODDARD, Alice Kent 3120
STODDARD, Ann 2016, 3210
STODDARD, Carol 3302
STODDART, Edna 1251
STODDART, Jack 3243
STOHL, Peter 2054
STOKES, Stan 1254
STOKES, Susan Murray 1976
STOKES, Thomas 1317, 2215
STOLIAROFF, Peter 1471
STOLL, Victoria 2012
STOLLER, Karen 1565, 3153
STOLLER, Shelley 2897
STOLTENBERG, Donald 1968
STONE, Judy 2062
STONE, Caroline 1713, 2653
STONE, Cathy 1101
STONE, David E. 1101
STONE, Don 2159
STONE, Gwen 3067
STONE, Henry A. 2158
STONE, John 2386
STONE, Lester 1913
STONE, Marly 3076
STONE, Michelle 1697
STONE, Molly 1743, 1910
STONE, Nancy 3381
STONE, Patricia 2413
STONE, Ruth Andress 1500
STONE, Sheldon 2071
STONE, Sylvia 2494
STONE, Todd 2375, 2483
STONECIPHER, LaDel 2082
STOPPERT, Mary 1690, 2631
STORER, Inez 1112, 1331
STORER, Nell 1844
STOREY, Amy 3012
STOREY, David 2448
STOREY, Lou 1296
STORM, George 3110
STORROW, Nancy 3379
STORRS, John 2779
STORTZ, Tim 1360
STOUGHTON, Michael 1836
STOUMEN, Lou 1191, 3097
STOUT, Myron 1980, 2710
STOUT, Richard 2836, 3318
STOVALL, Susie 1500
STOVER, Angelita 1241
STOVER, Nancy 2730
STOVER-CARR, Michael 1473
STOWE, Michael 1809
STOWELL, Kay 2920
STRAIGHT, Robert 2834
STRAIN, John Paul 1035
STRAND, Paul 1100, 1668, 2116, 2751, 2880
STRANDBERG, Kevin 3454
STRASEVICIUS, Maria 1671
STRATAKOS, Steve 1682
STRATER, Henry 3282
STRAUGHN, Clayburn 2256
STRAUS, Jessica 1947
STRAUTMANIS, Edvins 1641, 2818
STRAWN, John 3279
STRAYER, Paul 1645
STREECH, Wilbur 2653
STREET, William 1008
STREICH, Terry 2051
STREMBICKI, Stan 1403, 2104
STRICKER, Fifo 1436
STRICKLAND, Thomas 2186
STRIDER, Marjorie 2327, 2400, 2898
STRINGER, Terry 1128
STRINI, Robert 1223
STROH, Earl 2252, 3288
STROHBEEN, Karen 1792
STROM, Karen 1367, 2218
STROM, Steve 1367, 2218
STROMMEN, Kim 2006, 2096
STROMSTEN, Amy 2202
STRONG, Charles 1027
STRONG, John 2226
STRONG, Judith 2404
STRONG, Randy 2617
STRONGBOW, Dyanne 2210, 2253
STRONGHILOS, Carol 2400
STROPPEL, Betty 2173, 2197
STROSAHL, William 1407
STROUD, Billie 1877
STROUD, Virginia 3250, 3278
STROUDSBURG, Ty 2286
STRUNCK, Gisela-Heidi 3266
STRUSS, Karl 1195, 3119
STUART, Michelle 1159, 2423
STUART, Shaw 2519
STUART, Signe 3226
STUBBING, Haydn 2287, 2464
STUBBS-ROBERT, Susan 1573
STUCKART, Rosemary 1791
STUDLEY, Richard 1949, 1971
STUECKLEN, Karl 2199
STUIBER, Zsuzsa 3214
STUMPF, Patricia 2847
STUPAR, Marko 2498
STURGEON, Everett 1423
STURGES, Jock 1701
STURGIS, Yvette 2071
STURKEN, Marie 1539
STURMAN, Eugene 1129, 1161, 1266
STURMAN, Sally 2848
STURTEVANT, John 3312
STUTH-WADE, Bob 3291
STYCH, B.J. 1377
STYER, Beth 3415
STYLES, Freddie 1570
SUAREZ, Jaime 1549, 3181, 3183
SUAZO, John 2259
SUBIRACHS, Josep Maria 1481, 2723
SUCEC, Bonnie 3374
SUCEC, David 3374
SUCHANEK, Vladimir 1640
SUDEK, Josef 1640, 2741
SUDLOW, Robert 1805
SUDMEIER, Susan 1785
SUDRAN, Deborah 2883
SUDRE, Jean-Pierre 2729
SUERSTEDT, Cynthia 2800
SUFF, David 2439
SUGA, Lenora 1608
SUGARMAN, George 1218, 2143, 2278, 2678, 2789, 3023
SUGARMAN, Lydia 2734
SUGDEN, Philip 2629
SUGGS, Don 1337, 1338
SUGIMOTO, Hiroshi 2805
SUITT, Mary Ellen 3212
SULLIVAN, Bill 1715, 2508, 2635, 2715
SULLIVAN, David 1919, 2142
SULLIVAN, Jim 2590, 3306
SULLIVAN, Kay 1500
SULLIVAN, Sheila 1229
SULLIVAN, Sherry 3315
SULLIVAN, St. Clair 2635
SULTAN, Altoon 2613, 2660
SULTAN, Donald 1304, 1731, 2406
SULTAN, Larry 1347
SULTZ, Phil 2105
SUMATIMOHAN 2851
SUMIDA, Gregory 2799
SUMMA, Henry 2216, 2617, 2913
SUMMA, Susan 2216
SUMMER, Evan 1434, 1713, 2939
SUMMER, P. M. 3272
SUMMERFORD, Ben 1434, 1469
SUMMERS, Carol 1724, 1768, 1797, 1930, 2000, 2385, 2892, 3010, 3041, 3117, 3316, 3416
SUMMERS, Robert 3061
SUMNER, Roberta 1236
SUNDBERG, Signe 3118
SUNDEL, Leonard 2112
SUNG LIU, Kuo 1185
SUNOL, Alvar 3377
SUOMALAINEN, T. 2959
SUPERIOR, Roy 1576
SUPPLEE, Sarah 2142, 2589
SURBER, Paul 2799
SURFACE, Gale 3126
SURJAN, Valerie 2545
SURLS, James 1304, 2470, 2998, 3270, 3333
SURLS, Linda 3271
SURREY, Milt 1480
SUSSMAN, Wendy 2413
SUSSMAN, Zilla 2161, 2186
SUSTARE, Allan 2940
SUTCLIFFE, Frank Meadow 2645
SUTCLIFFE, Nina 1890
SUTHERLAND, Graham 2531
SUTINEN, Paul 3087
SUTO, Hiroe 1121
SUTPHIN, Kati 1827
SUTTMAN, Paul 1171, 2481, 3330
SUTTON, Carol 2039, 2774
SUTTON, Eileen 2730
SUTTON, Gary 1808
SUYEOKA, George 1740
SUZUKI, Taro 2459, 2816, 3082
SVEHLA, Rudolph 1724
SWAGERLE, Steve 3251
SWAIN, Robert 3004
SWALES, Walter 2174, 2496
SWAN, Barbara 1921
SWAN, Fred 2159
SWANBERG, John 2124
SWANGER, Martha 1500
SWANSON, Joan 1110
SWANSON, Kurt 1910
SWANSON, Ray 3061
SWANSON, William 3114
SWARD, Marilyn 1633
SWARTOUT, Peg 1912
SWARTZ, Beth Ames 1044, 1045, 1066, 1074, 1109, 1234, 2614, 2658, 2724
SWARTZ, Susan 2162, 2163
SWAYHOOVER, Albert 2890, 2923
SWAZO-HINDS, Mark 3431
SWAZO, Patrick 2256
SWEAT, Lynn 1415
SWEENEY, Joe 3136
SWEENEY, Martha 2897
SWEENEY, Robert 1915
SWEET, Doug 3308
SWEET, Mary 1343, 2217
SWEET, Steve 1857
SWENSON, Mike 3272
SWICK, Linda 1415
SWIERKIEWICZ, Robert 3214
SWIFT, Jay 2716
SWIFT, Margie 3221
SWIFT, Nini 1190
SWIHART, Jon 1111
SWITTLINGER, Marianne 1385
SWOPE, Mark 1190
SWORNIK, Hiroko 3240
SYBAL, Phillip 2376
SYBIL 1609
SYLVAIN, Dorian 1703
SYM-YOUNG-YOOK 2577
SYMCZAK, Mark 3169, 3175
SYMONS, George G. 1672
SYPOLSKI, Michael 2442
SYROP, Joanne 2506
SZABO, Steve 1441
SZABO, Zoltan 1346
SZALOWSKA, Zofia 2535
SZÉKESSY, Karin 3303
SZETO, Keung 2580
SZMAGAI, Kenneth 3389

T

TABAK, Chaim 2484
TABARD, Maurice 2751
TABOR, Jeff 3286
TACHA, Athena 3020, 3172
TACLA, Jorge 2602
TADA, Alvin 2845
TAEUBER-ARP, Sophie 1704
TAFFLER, Robin 1947
TAFOYA, Margaret 2255
TAFUR, Edgar 3010
TAGAMI, Hiroshi 1614, 1619, 1623
TAGGART, Bill 2297
TAGGERT, Dan 3397
TAHARA, Keiichi 2729
TAI, Kwok-Yee 2802
TAICHER, Richard 3114, 3127
TAJIMA, Hiroyuki 2887
TAKAEZU, Toshiko 2185
TAKAHASHI, Yoshi 1435
TAKAHATA, Sanae 2883
TAKAKO, Miss 1011
TAKAMORI, Akio 1137
TAKARA, Seikichi 1603, 3104
TAKEHARA, John 2115, 3078, 3080
TAKENAGA, Barbara 2096
TAKIGUCHI, Masaru 3318
TAKIS 2605
TAKVORIAN-HOLMES, Marguritte 2306
TALASNIK, Stephen 3096
TALBOT, Fox 1100
TALBOT, Jonathan 2194, 2197
TALBOT, Susan B. 3055

TALBOT, Tom 1068, 1360, 1382, 2258
TALBOTT, Dorothy 1377
TALLEY, Clarence 3335
TAM, Reuben 1623
TAMARA, Abby 3226
TAMASAUSKAS, Otis 2363
TAMASSO, Ray 2260
TAMAYO, Rufino 1092, 1113, 1215, 1245, 1281, 1284, 1316, 1329, 1543, 1572, 1698, 1709, 1810, 1871, 1874, 2146, 2531, 2592, 2660, 3180, 3285, 3422
TAMMANY, David 2039
TAMOSAITIS, Anastazija 1671
TANAKA, Masaaki 1185, 2887
TANAKA, Ryohei 2887
TANENBAUM, Zelda 2394
TANGUY, Yves 1364
TANIGUCHI, Shigeru 2887
TANIS, Stephen 1452
TANNEHILL, Susan 2226
TANNEN, Robert 1878, 2594
TANNER, Anne 1515
TANNER, Joan 1317
TANNER, Marcia 3125
TANSEY, Mark 2411
TAPER, Geri 2772
TAPIES, Antoni 1184, 1306, 2469, 2531, 2533
TAPLEY, Sylvia 2102
TAPLIN, Patricia 1489
TAPLITZ, Phyllis 1278
TARABELLA 3283
TARACYAN, Sergei 3127
TARADASH, Meryl 2183
TARANTAL, Elsa 3131
TARANTAL, Stephen 3153
TARAZON, Maureen 3351
TARDO, Rodulfo 2753
TARGAN, Judy 2161, 2197
TARIN, Gilberto 3346
TARLOW, Lois 1947
TARLOW, Phillip 1183
TARLOWE, Joel 2734
TARNOWER, Jain 1933, 2685
TARPEY, Christine 2113, 3075
TARR, William 2311
TARRAGO, Leticia 3183
TASSANANCHALES, Kamol 1151
TATAFIORE, Ernesto 1519, 2707
TATE, Bill 2232
TATE, Blair 1946
TATE, George 1814
TATE, Kandy 1811
TAUBES, Frederic 2656
TAVARELLI, Andrew 2570
TAVENNER, Jack 3442
TAVINS, Paula 2778
TAWNEY, Lenore 1664, 2681, 3121
TAXAY-WEINGER, Joan 1732
TAY, Eng 2043
TAYLOR, Andrew W. 1047, 1371
TAYLOR, Ann 1056, 1234, 2048, 2541, 2916
TAYLOR, Barbour 3212
TAYLOR, Barnard 3077, 3225
TAYLOR, Charles 1564
TAYLOR, E.J. 3103
TAYLOR, Evelyn 2408
TAYLOR, Gage 1253
TAYLOR, Hubert 3164
TAYLOR, Jim 1360
TAYLOR, Jo 3286
TAYLOR, Linda Ridgway 3271
TAYLOR, Lucy 2889
TAYLOR, Marshall Davis 1234
TAYLOR, Michele 1619
TAYLOR, Mike 1820
TAYLOR, Peter 1831
TAYLOR, Prentiss 1434, 1908
TAYLOR, Renae 3369
TAYLOR, Robert 2250
TAYLOR, Sandra Menefe 2062
TAYLOR, Theresa 1657
TAYLOR, Wayne 3460
TAZIAN, Kegham 2001
TCHAKALIAN, Sam 1289, 1290, 1306
TEBBETTS, Barbara 1687
TEED, Douglas Arthur 2316
TEETERS, Charlene 3220
TEICHMAN, Mary 1406, 1444, 2240, 2444, 2613
TEIS, Dan 3135
TELL, David 1733
TELL, Lillemor 3012
TELLER, Jane 2192
TEMPLE, Howard 2937
TEMPLER, Joan 1570
TEMPLETON, Fiona 1259
TENEAU, Peter 3088
TENENBAUM, Elisa 1394
TENIERS, David 2706
TENNANT, Jack 1412
TENNANT, Nancy 3010
TENNENT, Jeanne 2039
TEPPER, Irv 1808
TEPPER, Saul 2563
TEPPER, Terry 1650
TEPPICH, John 2854
TERAOKA, Masami 1188
TEREBA, Susan 3471
TERELAK, John 2563
TERLIKOWSKI, W. 3273
TERMES, Dick 3221, 3226
TERNA, Frederick 1416, 2754, 2924
TERRANOVA, Jill 2162, 2163
TERRY, Alice 1512, 1524
TERRY, Jane 1275
TERRY, Robert 2007
TESLER, Diane 1823
TESSEN, Susan 2310
TESSLER, Paul 2937
TESTA, Fulvio 2432
TETHEROV, Michael 2409
TETKOWSKI, Neil 2491
TEVET, Nahum 2844
TEWI 1517
TEWI, Thea 2752
THALER, Maurice 3457
THALINGER, Oscar 2753
THALL, Bob 1701, 1739
THATCHER, Richard 2353
THAUBERGER, David 2514
THAVONSOUK, Thép 1234
THAW, Avie 2147
THAYER, Abbott Henderson 2694, 2938
THAYER, Bing 2918
THAYER, Bruce 1996
THAYER, Caroline 2112
THAYER, Nancy 2039
THEA, Carolee 2550
THEIMER, Ivan 3310
THEIN, John 2142
THEK, Paul 2605
THEROUX, Carol 1049
THERRIEN, Norman 1864
THERRIEN, Robert 1147, 1317, 1335
THIEBAUD, Wayne 1207, 1246, 1251, 1298, 2105, 2463, 2818, 3275
THIEME, Anthony 2752
THIEWES, George 2200, 2545, 2617, 2938
THIEWES, Rachelle 1450
THOGMARTIN, Jon B. 2081, 2091
THOMAS, Adam 2020
THOMAS, Alma 1593, 1964
THOMAS, C. David 1929
THOMAS, David 1713
THOMAS, Dianne Muffett 3075
THOMAS, Gwenn 2859
THOMAS, James 2917
THOMAS, Jinni 1049
THOMAS, John 1603, 1621
THOMAS, Joyce 2124
THOMAS, Kathleen 2552
THOMAS, Larry 1247
THOMAS, Lew 1262
THOMAS, Lynn 2144
THOMAS, Matthew 1177
THOMAS, Morgan 1162
THOMAS, Pat 3267, 3471
THOMAS, Peter 3384
THOMAS, Reed 1195
THOMAS, Reynolds 1423
THOMAS, Richard D. 1349
THOMAS, Robert 1315
THOMAS, Ron 2104
THOMAS, Ted 1372
THOMAS, Wes 1403
THOMAS-HOOKER, Ingrid 1775
THOMAS-HUGHES, B. 2250
THOMASON, Ronald 3283, 3339
THOMAZ 2637
THOMPSEN, Tamara 3210
THOMPSON, Bill 3055
THOMPSON, Bob 2845
THOMPSON, Cher 1564
THOMPSON, Dale 3442
THOMPSON, Esme 1259
THOMPSON, George 1809
THOMPSON, J. B. 1797
THOMPSON, Jean 2163
THOMPSON, Karen 1764
THOMPSON, Ken 2045
THOMPSON, Malcolm 3101, 3140
THOMPSON, Peter 1806
THOMPSON, Rena 3348
THOMPSON, Richard 1188, 3082, 3306, 3312
THOMPSON, Richard Earl 1886
THOMPSON, Seth 3069
THOMPSON, Sylvia 2287, 2757
THOMPSON, William 1501
THOMSON-SMITH, Shirley 1810
THOMSON, Stan 3009
THON, Wendy 2124
THON, William 2677
THONET, Michael 2581
THORESON, Tom 3226
THORLEIFSON, Alex 1059
THORMANN, Otmar 1195
THORN, Mary Etta 1909
THORNE, Joan 1658, 2297, 2871
THORNE-THOMSEN, Ruth 1655, 1668, 1758, 2729, 3125
THORNTON, Carol 2253
THORNTON, Robert John 2373
THORNYCROFT, Ann 1112
THORP, Gregory 3013
THORPE, Hilda 3385
THORSTEN, Lloyd 2263
THORZEAU, Christine 1760, 2750
THRASHER, Virgil 1999
"3 TEENS KILL 4" 2442
THURLBECK, K.N. 2449
TICE, George 1367, 2002, 3263
TICHANSKY, Michael 1809, 3289
TICKNER, Ann 2183
TIDD, Leona 2144
TIDD, Ray 2144
TIEGREEN, Alan 1567
TIERNEY, Hanne 2500
TIETZ, Gladys 2179
TIFFANY, Louis C. 1705
TIFFANY, Louis Comfort 3396
TIGER, Jerome 3050, 3052, 3061
TIGERMAN, Stanley 1719, 1731, 2500, 2761
TILGER, Suzanne 1044, 1045
TILL, Pat 3335
TILLYER, William 1158, 1582, 2608
TILMUS, Michael 2508
TILSON, Joe 2052
TIMBERLAKE, Bob 2575
TIMM, Wayne 1517
TIMOCK, George 1663
TIMPSON, Michael 1947
TING, Walasse 2000, 2019, 2644, 3310
TINGLEY, Michael 3149
TINGUELY, Jean 1335
TINSLEY, Barry 1135, 1477, 1644
TINT, Francine 2287, 2757
TIPPS, Jan 3247
TISSOT, James Jacques 1098, 1272, 2614
TITCHNELL, Michael 3134
TITOLO, Carl Nicholas 1693, 2481
TITONEL, Angelo 2484
TITTLE, Walter 2656
TITUS-CARMEL, Gerard 2533
TITZER, L. 2057
TIVEY, Hap 1109, 2406, 3013, 3082, 3287
TKACHEFF, Peter 1149
TOBEY, Gene 2250
TOBEY, Mark 1184, 1566, 1676, 2767, 2871, 3082, 3420, 3441
TOBIAS, Bunny 2226
TOBIAS, Julius 2505
TOBIAS, Rebecca L. 2087
TOBIAS, Robert 1071
TOBIAS, Willi 1486
TOBIASSE, Theo 1874
TOBIN, Dan 2934
TOBIN, Steve 2617
TOCORA, Antonio 1033
TODD-COPE, Louise 2930, 3205
TODD, Cecilia 3075
TODD, Michael 1264, 1325, 1457, 2457
TODDY, Irving 2256
TODT 2909
TOEPP, Wayne 2006, 3266, 3316
TOFTHAGEN, Yvonne 1641
TOGLIA, Richard 2726
TOKAR-MILLER, Nancy 1044, 1045
TOKITA, Ryo 2836
TOKURIKI, Tomikichiro 2887
TOLAND, Tip 1906
TOLBERT, Frank II 3271
TOLEDO, Francisco 1245, 2662
TOLLIVER, Mose 1012, 1870
TOLSON, Edgar 1646
TOLSTEDT, Lowell 1909
TOM (OF) FINLAND 2392
TOMASELLI, Fred 1177
TOMASSO, Raymond D. 1580, 2239
TOMIOKA, Soichiro 1301
TOMITA, Fumio 2887
TOMITA, Stan 1603
TOMKINS, Margaret 3410
TOMLINSON, John 1836
TOMLINSON, Kerry 2847
TOMMY, Bob 3227
TOMPKINS, Betty 2400, 2715
TOMPKINS, Joyce R. 2158
TOMS, Leslie 1101
TONER, Rochelle 3125
TONEY, Anthony 2340, 2350
TOOGOOD, James 3153
TOOKER, George 2469
TOONKEL, Arlene 2404
TOPALIS, Daniel 3149
TOPELMANN, Tanja 3471
TOPHAM, Pamela 2332
TOPOLSKI, Andrew 2299
TOPOR, Roland 2644
TOPP, Pat Diacca 3454
TOPPI, Bernardino 2498
TORAL, Cristobal 2814
TORAL, Mario 2637
TORAL, Tabo 1572
TORBERT, Stephanie 2065
TORCOLETTI, Enzo 1481
TORLAKSON, James 1144, 1246, 2549, 3168
TORLEN, Michael 2743
TORLEN, Rita Hill 2726
TORMEY, James 1480
TORN, Jerry 1664, 1784
TORONI, Niele 2885
TORR, Helen 2562
TORRE-WHITESELL, Marilyn 1775
TORREANO, John 1731, 2003, 2573
TORRENCE, Vivian 1802
TORRES-GARCIA, Joaquin 2533
TORRES, Francesc 2335, 2675
TORRES, Horacio 2467
TORRI, Erika 1114
TORTORICI, Anita 1296
TOSCANO, Dee 1360, 1362, 1384, 3322
TOSCHIK, Larry 1037
TOTH, John 2299
TOTH, Loraine 2815
TOTTEN, Diane 1378
TOULGOUAT, Jean-Marie 3027
TOULMIN-ROTHE, Ann 1404
TOULOUSE-LAUTREC, Henri de 1184, 1272, 1316, 1665, 1686, 2395, 2397, 2493, 2560, 2622, 2624, 2719, 2756, 2838
TOUROU, Maria 1473
TOVISH, Harold 1921, 2481
TOW, Hildy 2857
TOWLE, Tony 2287
TOWNLEY, Hugh 3194
TOWNSEND, Brian 2197
TOWNSEND, Diane 2829
TOWNSEND, John 1916
TOWNSEND, Pala 1951
TOWNSEND, Stan 1580
TOYNTON, Norman 1952
TOYOKUNI, Utamaro 2553
TRACY, Michael 2410, 3313, 3348
TRAGER, Debra 2471
TRAIN, Elizabeth 1609, 1621
TRANER, Dennis 1803
TRAPP, Wayne 2960
TRASK, Ann 3315
TRAUB, Willard 3020
TRAUERMAN, Marge 2510
TRAUGOTT, Dale 2737, 3465
TRAUTCH, Patrice 1703
TRAUTMAN, Paul 3082
TRAVERS-POULAIN, Denise 2498
TRAYLOR, Bill 1012, 1646, 1870, 2845
TREACY, Priscilla 3385
TREASTER, Richard 3007
TREHUB, Martin 1394
TREIMAN, Joyce 1308, 1325, 1664
TREMEWEN, Ian 1619
TREMONTO, Roxie 1697
TRENCHARD, K. 1858
TRENTHAM, Gary 1740, 2491
TRESFORT, Pierre 2239
TRESSLER, Mary 2323
TREVAN, Corey 1919
TREVELYAN, Julian 2439
TREVOR, Jean Pierre 1035
TRIEFF, Selina 1839, 2744, 2831
TRIGGS, Jim 1382
TRILLING, Jo Ellen 1550
TRIPLETT, Janet 3055
TRIPP, Brian 1309
TRIPP, Stella 1629
TRITTON, Larry 2609
TRIXIE 1232
TRNAVAC-MIĆA, Radovan 2468
TROIANI, Don 1382, 2799
TROPEA, Michael 1639, 1758, 2218
TROSKY, Helene 2753
TROTMAN, Bob 3166, 3202
TROTTER, Joanne 1603
TROTTER, Susan 2974
TROUGHTON, Harry 1229
TROVA, Ernest 1531, 1628, 2100, 2718
TROXLER, Tomi 2972
TROY, Jack 2565
TROYER, Jane 1378
TROYON, Constant 1589
TRUDEAU, Garry 1452, 3243
TRUE, David 1207, 2463, 2833
TRUEBLOOD, L'Deane 3055
TRUITT, Anne 1900, 2494
TRUPIANO, Susan 2020
TRUTH, Daniel 1411
TSA TOKE, Lee 3052
TSAMARDINOS, Dimitri 2570
TSCHACBASOV, Nahum 1890
TSCHICHOLD, Jan 2755
TSE, Stephen 3426
TSE PE, Dara 2261
TSELKOV, Oleg 2692, 2693
TSENG, Mou-Sien 1523
TSUTAKAWA, George 3420
TU, Zhang Houng 2576
TÜBKE, Werner 2778
TUCHMAN, Ellen Francis 1324, 2659
TUCHOLKE, Anthony 3466
TUCHOLKE, Christel 3466
TUCK, Norman 3210
TUCKER, Allen 2381

VOL
71
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

TUCKER, Carlyn 3417
TUCKER, Gwen 2987
TUCKER, James 2598
TUCKER, William 1158, 2377, 2492, 2608
TUCKERMAN, Jane 2009, 3417
TUCULESCU, Razvan 2854
TUDOR, David 2763
TUDOR, Sally 2046
TUEGEL, Michele 1495, 1546, 2471, 3454
TUFT, Sara 1445
TULIPANOV, Igor 2692, 2693
TULL, Jeff 1832
TULLIS, Garner 1946, 2000, 2084
TUMAN, Fred 2520
TUNISON, Ron 1382
TUOZZOLI, Barbara 1403
TUPPER, Dani 3361
TURBAK, Susan 1920
TURBEVILLE, Deborah 2009, 2805
TURGEON, Peter 2310
TURIM, Judith 1473
TURJANSKY, Leonid 2830
TURK, Rudy 1062
TURNBULL, William 2852
TURNER, Alan 1513, 2362
TURNER, Andrew 3164
TURNER, Arthur 3324
TURNER, Bill 1575
TURNER, Bonese 1327
TURNER, Charles 1236
TURNER, J. M. W. 1364, 1563
TURNER, Janet 2973
TURNER, John 3212
TURNER, Lynn Woods 1114, 1293, 3076
TURNER, Robert 1663, 2084, 3121
TURNER, Rogers 2408
TURNER, William 3444
TURNNER, Tom 1043
TURPIN, Anthony 3426
TURYN, Anne 2296, 2599
TUSCHMAN, Richard 2659
TUTENJIAN, Leon 2741
TUTTLE, Carl 2972
TUTTLE, Richard 1193, 1731, 2684
TVEDTEN, Jan 2081
TWACHTMAN, J.H. 2676, 3007
TWARDAWICZ, Stanley 2888
TWIBELL, William 1621
TWINGLEY, Dale 2987
TWITTY, James 1542, 2506, 3281
TWO BULLS, Edward 3220
TWO EAGLES, D. Bret 3223
TWOMBLY, Cy 1148, 1335, 1511, 2429, 2430, 2431, 2574, 2668, 2811, 3317, 3404, 3424
TWORKOV, Jack 1980, 2569, 2590
TYGE, Rosalyn 1770
TYISKA, Stephanie 3124
TYLER, James 1938
TYLER, Valton 3288
TYRANNY, Blue Gene 1259
TYRRELL, Brinsley 2999, 3004, 3020
TYRRELL, Lillian 3021
TYZACK, Michael 1566, 3198
TZANETOPOLIS, Paul 1169

U

UBOGY, Jo 2158
UCHIDA, Masayasu 2887
UCHIYAMA, Akemi 3000
UDINOTTI, Agnese 1062
UEDA, Kaoru 1301
UEHLING, Judy 3458
UELSMANN, Jerry 1100, 1489, 1869, 2872, 3195
UGLOW, Alan 2794
UHLRICH, Marge 2132
ULLBERG, Kent 1061, 1356
ULLMAN, Micha 2844
ULLOA, Alberto 3185
ULMANN, Doris 2872
ULMER, Allen 3445
ULMER, Jim 2987
ULRICH, Charles 1070
ULRICH, James 3069, 3071
UMEDA, Kenji 1064
UMLAUF, Karl A. 3251, 3296
UNGER, Carol 2733
UNTERBERGER, Franz Richard 1051
UNTERSEHER, Chris 1287
UNTHANK, Libby 3075
UPHAM, E.D. 1524
URBAIN, John 2685
URBAITIS, Elena 2730
URBAN, Mychajlo 1725
URBANSKI, Joyce 2173
URE, Maureen O'Hara 1188
URIS, Jill 3485
URQUHART, Shari 2634
USHENKO, Audrey 2849
UTAMARO, Kitagawa 2945
UTLEY, Sally 2934
UTRILLO, Maurice 2548
UTTERBACK, Connie 2681
UTTERBACK, Robert 3336
UTZ, Thornton 1115, 1254, 1542
UZILEVSKY, Marcus 1149, 1797, 1999, 3285

V

VAADIA, Boaz 2675
VACANTI, Samuel 2296
VACCARO, Anne 1580, 3308
VACCARO, Louis 2163
VADALÁ, Angelo 1485
VAGLIANO, Sally 2772
VAIL, Clover 2357
VAIL, Roger 1229, 1587, 2985
VALADON, Suzanne 1181
VALDENEIGE, Monique 2535
VALDEZ, Alice 1332, 2145
VALDEZ, Patty 1041
VALENTIN, Helene 2594
VALENTINE, A. Robbins 2609
VALENTINE, DeWain 1112, 1339, 1478, 2100
VALERIO, James 1442, 1669, 2528
VALESKA, Letta 1174
VALIGURSKY, Ed 1382
VALK, Edward 3137
VALK, Nancy 2332
VALLANCE, Jeffrey 1146
VALLE, Estéban 2150
VALLEDOR, Leo 1283
VALLEY, Andrée 1996
VALLIEN, Bertil 1910
VALTAT, Louis 1181, 3327
VAN ALLSBURG, Chris 1535, 2818
VAN ANHALT, Prince Jurgen 1535
VAN ARSDOL, Robin 1839, 2984
VAN BECK, Linda 1554
VAN BERKOM, Bev 2052
VAN CAMPEN, Susan Headley 1123, 1968, 3010, 3136, 3267
VAN CAMPEN, Tim 3136
VAN DAHL, Don 1813
VAN DAMME, Roger 1408, 1967
VAN DE BOVENKAMP, Hans 2375
VAN DE VOORST, Tony 3137
VAN DER ROHE, Mies 1117, 1637, 2907
VAN DER ZEE, James 2275
VAN DEREN, Nancy 2287, 2757
VAN DEURZEN, James 3205
VAN DEXTER, Kurt 2162
VAN DOMMELEN, David B. 3178
VAN DORT, Willem 3137
VAN DUSEN, Ross 1323
VAN DYKE, Willard 1355
VAN ELK, Ger· 2657, 2684
VAN HAREN, Larry 3283
VAN HARLINGEN, Jean 1805, 2089
VAN HASSELT, Tony 1080, 1816
VAN HOESEN, Beth 1246, 1323
VAN KEUREN, Philip 3265
VAN KRUISELBERGEN, Aart 3135
VAN LAAR, Timothy 1489, 2000, 2026
VAN LIERE, Elizabeth 2035
VAN NIMWEGEN, William B. 1046, 1700
VAN NOORDEN, Katherine 1388
VAN NUYS, Andrée 2118
VAN OMMEN, Joke 3121
VAN OSDEL, Lauren 2140
VAN OSDELL, Barrie 1003
VAN OUYTSEL, Roger 2636
VAN PROYEN, Mark 1257
VAN RIPER, Frank 1473
VAN RUISDAEL, Jacob 1961
VAN SELM, Arie 1008, 3286
VAN SUCHTELEN, Adrian 3372
VAN TONGEREN, Herk 2454
VAN TONGEREN, Susan 1947
VAN TUINEN, Deb 2024
VAN VEEN, Stuyvesant 2770
VAN VELDE, Bram 2518
VAN VLIET, Claire 1458
VAN WAGONER, Richard 3372
VAN WERKHOVEN, Ineke 3127
VAN WERT, Gordon 2241
VAN WYK, Helen 3127
VAN YOUNG, Oscar 1328
VANAMERONGEN, John Jr 2020
VANAPELDORN, Jean 2897
VANCE, Ann 1772
VANDENBERGE, Peter 1287
VANDENDRIES, Vera 1471
VANDER LEE, Jana 3265
VANDERHOES, Jerre 2946
VANDERLAAN, Mary Bliss 1770
VANDERLAAN, Peter 1770, 2216, 2247
VANDERMOLEN, Anne 2044
VANDERSLUIS, George 2939
VANGI, Giuliano 2798
VANN, Donald 3250, 3278
VANN, Samuel 1038, 2316, 2938
VANNOZZI, Kathy 3125
VANONI, Steven 1230, 1232
VANRIET, Jan 1240
VANSEN, Leslie 3460
VAP, Allen 2140
VAREZ, Dietrich 1609
VARGA, Margit 2677
VARGAS, Kathy 3346
VASA 1151, 1240, 1354, 1479, 1748, 1995
VASARELY, Victor 1524, 1698, 1699, 1797, 2031, 2034, 2195, 2375, 2671, 2714, 2846, 3180
VASEY, Jeff 2989
VASQUEZ, Amelia 1819
VASSALOY, Liana 2375
VASULKA, Steina 3168
VATALARO, Michael 2951, 3205
VATER, Regina 2609
VAUGHN, Bob 1360
VAUGHN, Jeff 3266, 3314
VAUGHN, Nick 1111
VAUGHN, Salle Werner 2642
VAUGHN, Vivien 1114
VAUTIER, Ben 2885
VAUX, Richard 2903
VAVREK, Ken 3153
VAZAN, Bill 2514
VAZQUEZ, Isabel 3181, 3182
VAZQUEZ, Paul 2931
VEATCH, Jim 2915
VECENAJ, Ivan 2612
VECSEY, Marianne 2769
VEDDER, Elihu 1463
VEEDER, Larry 2987
VEGA, Alan 2552
VEGA, Ed 2217
VEILANDS, Ragnars 3084
VELARDI, Ernest 1327
VELASCO, Jose Maria 2785
VELAZQUEZ, Juan Ramon 2312, 2825, 3182, 3184, 3188
VELLUCCI, Ron 3311
VENARD, Claude 3288
VENET, Bernar 1339, 1659, 2185
VENEZIA, Michael 3287
VENEZIANO, Gianni 1709
VENITIEN, Jean 2498
VENTI, Carmela 1412
VENTURA, Carol 2173
VENTURI, Robert 2747
VERBALAITIS, Victor 1740, 3296
VERBERG, JoAnn 2065
VERDICK, Walter 2380
VERDUGO, James 1063, 1115
VEREANO, David 1944
VERESHCHAGIN, Vassily 2830
VERESS, Karoly 2042
VERGARA-WILSON, Maria 2225
VERGNE, Jean-Louis 1303
VERKERK, Emo 2657
VERMILLION, Emily Gelman 1794
VERMONT, Jacques 2498
VERNER, Elizabeth O'Neill 2972
VERNIZZI, Lucca 2376
VERSTAS, Henrieta 1671
VERZYL, Kenneth 2890
VESPER, Kerry 1041
VEVERS, Tony 1979
VIA, Margaret 3069
VIALLAT, Claude 1335
VIANELLO, Franco 1115
VICARIO, Janet 2999
VICENTE, Esteban 1064, 2215, 2568
VICK-HALL, Randi 1713, 1767
VICKERS, Robert 2014
VICKERS, Russ 3061
VICKOVICH, Nick 2636
VICKREY, Robert 1081, 1387, 1522, 1817, 1967, 2350, 2677, 3282
VICTORIA, Bismarck 2651
VICTORIA, Ted 1654
VIDAKOVICH, Michael 2020
VIDAL, Hahn 1052
VIEIRA, Jose Vaz 1327
VIGIL, Darren 1626, 2232
VIGIL, Frederico 2267
VIGIL, Veloy 1039, 1202, 1349, 1352, 1811, 2050, 2253, 2783, 2784, 3261
VIGILETTI, Sylvia 1910
VIGNOLES, André 1667, 2507
VIHOS, George 2042
VILADECANS, Joan Peri 2795
VILLA, Mario 1864
VILLA, Theodore B. 1315, 3431
VILLAMOR, Manuel 1213
VILLEGAS, Armando 2408
VILLET, Cynthia 2637
VILLET, Grey 2926
VILLIERS, Charles 1151, 1173
VINCENT, Tom 2502
VINELLA, Ray 1056, 1816
VINEY, Jill 2519
VINLUAN, Federito 1622
VIOLA, Bill 2868
VIRGIL, Carolyn 2413
VIRGONA, Hank 2038, 2484, 2856
VIRKAU, Vytautas 1671
VISSER'T HOOFT, Martha 2299
VISSER, John 1489, 3010
VITALE, Carlo 2042
VITALE, Magda 3124
VITELLI BERTI, Mary 2934
VITORVIČ, Nabežda 2795
VIVO, Michael 2605
VLAMINCK, Maurice de 1091, 1280, 2548
VLAVIANOS, Nicholas 2637
VODICKA, Ruth Chai 2924
VOELKER, Elizabeth 1307, 1316, 2000
VOELZ, Vernon 1546
VOGEL, Donald S. 3288
VOGEL, Douglas 2499
VOGEL, James 1275
VOGEL, Kate 3205
VOGEL, Peter 2375
VOGEL, Susan 1312, 1339
VOGLAND, Judy 3075
VOGT, Christian 3054
VOGT, Judith 1136
VOISINE, Don 1701
VOLKERDING, Laura 1330
VOLKERT, Edward 3007
VOLLET, Jean 1667
VOLLMER, Roy 3129
VON DEM BUSSCHE, Wolf 1257
VON DER LIPPE, Gail 2834
VON EUER, Judy 1334
VON GLOEDEN, Wilhelm 3119
VON KOELNAU, Louis 2053
VON MENGERSHAUSEN, Cornelia 2235
VON MEYER, Michael 1271
VON NEUMANN, Robert 3454
VON RECKLINGHAUSEN BOWLES, Marianne 2340
VON REIS, Sonja 2035
VON ROSENSTIEL, Liza 3416
VON SCHANTZ, Philip 2816
VON SCHLEGELL, David 2100, 2718
VON SCHNEIDAU, Christian 1094
VON SCHWIND, Mauritz 2792
VON WICHT, John 2478
VON WIEGAND, Charmion 1520, 2725
VONNOH, Robert 3353
VOORHEES, Jane 2283
VOORS, Michael 2962
VOOSEN, John 1003
VOPAT, Alan G. 1808
VOSHELL, James 1457, 1914
VOUGHT, Peter 1354
VOULKOS, Peter 1249, 1506, 1663, 1946, 2457
VOZELLA, Michael 1935
VU CAO DAM 1667
VUILLARD, Edouard 2395, 2560, 2583, 3327
VYTLACIL, Vaclav 2478

W

WADA, Warner 2459
WADA, Yoshiko 3085
WADDELL, Theodore J. 2116, 2133
WADE, Kate 3416
WADIA, Judith 2183
WAELDER, Ada 1079
WAGNER, Catherine 3417
WAGNER, Francis 1036
WAGNER, Fred 3101, 3140
WAGNER, Gale 1213, 1217
WAGNER, Kurt 2133
WAGNER, Merrill 2353
WAGNER, Randi 3369
WAGNER, Wes 3451
WAGNON, John 1011
WAGONER, June 3360
WAGONER, Robert 3061
WAGONER, William 3360
WAHL, Kenneth 2743
WAHLBECK, Carlos 2147
WAID, Jim 1064, 1144, 2550
WAID, Mary Jean 2490
WAINSCOTT, Jim 3005
WAISBROT, Ann 3454
WAITE, Malcolm 2944
WAITE, Mary Jo 2944
WAKABAYASHI 2637
WAKEHAM, Duane 1128
WAKITA, Kazu 1605
WAKSBERG, Naomi 2449
WALBURG, Gerald 1101, 1213, 1218, 1230, 1243, 1273
WALCH, John L. 3055
WALDEN, Ginny 2251
WALDEN, Jane Sorrell 2960
WALDMAN, Paul 2429, 2430
WALDROP, Tom 2952
WALDRUM, Harold Joe 2266, 2813, 3295
WALKER, Betty 3212
WALKER, Donald Fleet 2029, 2049

WALKER, Edward D. 1286, 1803
WALKER, Jeff 2115
WALKER, John 1469, 2633, 3330
WALKER, Joy 2881
WALKER, Laurie 3190
WALKER, Lin S. 3374
WALKER, Mary 2064
WALKER, Paul Wesley 1761
WALKER, Petrina L. 1172
WALKER, Robert 1142
WALKER, Sandra 1471
WALKER, Sandy 2411
WALKER, Todd 1026, 1739
WALKINGSTICK, Kay 1240, 2209, 2844
WALKOWITZ, Abraham 1125, 1181, 2068, 2880, 2907
WALL, Brian 1246, 2594
WALL, F.L. 1473
WALL, Frederick 1909
WALL, Jeff 1718
WALL, Rhonda 2800
WALL, Sue 1544
WALLACE, Alexander 2744
WALLACE, Barbara 3242
WALLACE, Jonathan D. 1750
WALLACE, Roscoe 1003
WALLEN, R. T. 1021
WALLER, Cathe 2535
WALLING, Chris 2639
WALLIS, Kitty 3279
WALLMER, Wolfram 2407
WALLOF, Hunter 1209, 1340
WALLOWER, Douglas 3082
WALLSTAB, Kurt 2030
WALROD-FRITH, Linda 3069
WALSH, Alexander DeWitt 1972
WALSH, Alida 2603
WALSH, Jane 1801
WALSH, Marguerite 2508, 3118
WALSH, Mary Sue 2226
WALSH, Mike 1755, 3071, 3093
WALSTON, Jim 2214
WALSTROM, Gregory 1809
WALTER, Allen 2216
WALTER, Martha 3120, 3327
WALTERS, Curt 1061, 2241
WALTZ, Ted 1177
WANDELL, Ann 1412
WANER, Judy McNally 2940
WANG, C. C. 2576
WANG, Shou-Zhi 3098
WANGYAL, Pema 3412
WANSERSKI, Martin 1654
WANSOR, Alice 2332, 2344
WANTZ, Justine 1633
WAPNER, Grace Bakst 2505
WARASHINA, Patti 2095, 3420
WARD, Cheryl 3121
WARD, David 2163
WARD, Donald 1036
WARD, Ed 2241
WARD, Jean 1515
WARD, John 1345, 1367, 2002, 3263
WARD, Lynd 1955
WARD, Lynne Toneri 3369
WARD, Roy Lee 1057, 2250
WARDEN, Shirley 2140
WARDLAW, George 1916, 1952
WAREHAM, William 1213
WARFF, Ann 1163, 1910, 1965, 2109, 2585
WÄRFF, Göran 1910
WARFIELD, Patricia 1404
WARHOL, Andy 1148, 1432, 1477, 1478, 1511, 1578, 1605, 1618, 1659, 1940, 2162, 2163, 2329, 2429, 2430, 2431, 2504, 2684, 3243, 3424
WARN, Graceann 1994
WARNER, Deborah 3348
WARNER, Douglas 2012
WARNER, Jo 2730
WARNER, Lucy Ann 2216
WARNER, Mary 1357, 2670
WARNER, Phillip 1514, 2841, 2842
WARNHOLTZ, Dean 1800
WARNKE, Gary 3055
WARREN, Catharine 2297, 2351, 2759
WARREN, David 1619
WARREN, Ferdinard 1581
WARREN, Kimball 3366, 3371
WARREN, Lin 2332
WARREN, Maureen 1636
WARREN, Peg 2972
WARREN, Russ 1690, 2298, 2631, 2964
WARREN, Terence 2394
WARREN, Tom 2787
WARREN, Verina 1972
WARREN, Wayne 2857
WARRENS, Robert 1867
WARRICK, Michael 1754
WARSHAW, Elaine 2324
WARSHAW, Larry 2762
WARYAN, Brad 1657
WASEY, Jane 2638
WASHBURN, Mona 3442
WASHBURN, Stan 1251, 1323, 1434, 1944, 3397
WASHINGTON, James W. Jr 3420
WASHMON, Gary 1713
WASSEL, Randy 1375
WASSERMAN, Bart 1915
WASSERMAN, Burton 3135
WATANABE, Ryo 3164
WATANAKE, Sadao 2887
WATCHETAKER, G. "Woogie" 2256, 3052, 3061
WATCKE, Thomas 2570
WATEL, Andrew 2438
WATERSTREET, Ken 1229, 1253
WATHEN, Theodore 2999
WATIA, Tarmo 2133
WATKIN, Mel 2125
WATKINS, Carleton E. 1262
WATKINS, David 3121
WATKINS, Gail 1447
WATKINSON, James 1298
WATSON, Albert 1195
WATSON, Betty 3055
WATSON, Fran 1935, 3033
WATSON, Genna 1442
WATSON, Howard 3101, 3140
WATSON, Julie 3255
WATSON, Robert 1115, 1523, 1544
WATSON, Ronald 2026, 3300
WATSON, Steve 1852, 2236
WATTS, Eve 1445
WATTS, Frederick Water (Williams) 1051
WATTS, Joan 2802, 2815
WATTS, John 3425
WATTS, Stan 3056
WATTS, Todd 2871
WAY, Jeff 2355, 3141
WAY, Patricia 1857
WAYDELICH, Raymond 1261
WAYMEYER, Cathy 1629
WAYNE, Alan 1283
WAYNE, June 1191, 1231, 1790, 2614
WAZE-FINK, Florence 2043
WEARE, Shane 1295
WEATHERLEY, Alan 1445
WEAVER, Alan 1027
WEAVER, Ken 1488
WEAVER, Robert 1692
WEAVER, Thomas 2459
WEBB, Boyd 2805
WEBB, Doug 1133, 2546
WEBB, Frank 2897
WEBB, James 1051
WEBB, Susan Hartnett 1819, 1820
WEBER, Don 1935
WEBER, Idelle 2580
WEBER, Jo 2891
WEBER, Joan 2937
WEBER, Mark Christopher 2096, 3341
WEBER, Max 1908, 2249, 2515, 2614
WEBER, Stephanie 1105, 1241, 1340, 3247
WEBER, Theodore 1051
WEBSTER, Don 3055
WEBSTER, Paul 2020
WECHSLER, Arnold 2762, 2800
WECHSLER, Elaine 2577, 2762
WEE, Robert 1115
WEEGE, William 1678, 1995, 2051, 2095, 2813, 3460
WEEKS, Arthur 2977
WEEKS, Edwin Lord 1051
WEEKS, James 1251, 2589
WEESE, Marcia 1659
WEGE, Diana 1405
WEGENER, Harold 1232
WEGMAN, Marcia 1794
WEGMAN, William 1109, 1626, 1658, 2061, 2684, 2804, 2984, 3333
WEGNER, Paul 3445
WEGNER, Peter 1996
WEHR, Janet 2035
WEHREND, Mary Anne 3009
WEIDER, Ellen 2620
WEIDNER, Roswell 3131
WEIER, Debra 1406
WEIGHORST, Olaf 3061
WEIK, Roger 1151
WEIL, Carol 1372
WEIL, Robert 1999
WEIL, Shraga 1944
WEIL, Susan 2340, 2438, 2658, 2822
WEIMER-BELDEN, Nancy 2197
WEIMERSKIRCH, Robert 3309
WEINBAUM, Jean 1488
WEINBERG, Bruce 1258, 1768
WEINBERG, Corrine 2890
WEINBERG, Cynthia Tolka 1378
WEINBERG, Elbert 1921, 2411
WEINBERG, Michelle 2850
WEINBERG, Steven 2030, 2109, 2585
WEINER, Kay 2205
WEINER, Lawrence 2429, 2430
WEINER, Sam 1342
WEININGER, Andreas 2081
WEINRAUB, Kim 2538
WEINREICH, Harvey 3134
WEINSHEL, Jenny 1278
WEINSTEIN 1740
WEINSTEIN, Joyce 2443, 2570
WEINSTOCK, Gloria 2339
WEIS, Betty 1909
WEIS, Richard 2054
WEISBACH, Shaun 1576
WEISBERG, Rebecca 2386
WEISBERG, Ruth 1184, 1805
WEISBUCH, Claude 3464
WEISER, Conrad 2952
WEISER, Kurt 1137, 2095, 3078, 3158, 3159
WEISS, Bettie 2177
WEISS, Harvey 1415
WEISS, John 1901
WEISS, Lee 1093, 1434, 1798, 3458
WEISS, Pearl 2889
WEISS, Ralph 2643
WEISS, Robert 1909, 2831
WEISS, Stephan 2752
WEISSBACH, Margaret 2904
WEISSER, Tom 1071
WEISSMAN, Benjamin 1165
WEISSMAN, Corinne 2007
WEISSMAN, Joan 2216
WEISSMAN, Lawrence 1890
WEISSMAN, Naomi 1058
WEISSMAN, Walter 2519
WEISZ, Florence 2183
WEITZ, Gloria 2924
WELCH, Ann 2847
WELCH, George 1071, 2937
WELCH, Jean 1489
WELCH, Patricia 2102
WELCH, Robin 1761, 2565
WELCH, Roger 2868, 2885
WELCH, William 3122
WELDEN, Dan 2934
WELDEN, Larry 1229
WELDON, Barbara 1112, 1273
WELDON, Terry 1881
WELLING, James 2673
WELLING, Richard 1398
WELLINGTON, Sally 3041
WELLIVER, Neil 1790, 1911, 1930, 1931, 2155, 2660, 3023, 3400, 3404
WELLS, Cady 2245
WELLS, C.J. 1056, 2048
WELLS, Jack J. 3055
WELLS, Judy 1839
WELLS, Lynton 2789, 2804
WELLS, Paula Chandler 1378
WELLS, Ronnie 3341
WELLS, William 2082
WELPOTT, Jack 3417
WELSH, Marie 2161
WELSH, Stan 1331
WELTMAN, Judith 2104
WELTON, Alice 1641
WENDELL, Leilah 2280
WENGENROTH, Stow 1955, 2770
WENGER, Jane 2065
WENIG, Karen 2851
WENNET, Elliott 1516
WENTSCHER, Herbert 2813
WENZEL, Joan 2546
WENZEL, Meredith 1910, 2585
WERFEL, Gina 2744
WERNER, Anna Goth 2510
WERNER, Don 2538
WERNER, Uwe 1080, 1236
WERTHEIMER, Doris 1748
WERTHEIMER, Esther 1480
WESLEY, John 2492
WESLIEN, Katrina 1565
WESNER, Sharon 3074
WESSEL, Bessie 3007
WESSEL, Henry 2457
WESSEL, Herman 3007
WESSELMANN, Tom 1167, 1477, 1566, 1680, 2053, 2610, 2683, 2684
WEST, Bruce 3111
WEST, David 1792
WEST, Jerry R. 1371, 2235
WEST, Rebecca 3142
WEST, Susan 1352, 1368
WESTBY, Laure 2946
WESTBY, Rygh 1356
WESTERCAMP, Patti 1794
WESTERLUND-ROOSEN, Mia 2430, 3287
WESTERMANN, H. C. 2518, 2998
WESTFORD, Gary 3082
WESTGATE, Harold 2944
WESTHEIMER, Bill 1342
WESTIN, Kristin 2140
WESTLAKE, Carol 3071
WESTLAKE, Sarah 1933, 2685
WESTLUND, Harry 3250
WESTMORE, Lynne 1327
WESTON, Brett 1055, 1097, 1100, 1367, 3054
WESTON, Cole 1055, 1367, 1896, 2002
WESTON, Edward 1100, 1630, 1854, 2090, 2093, 2872, 3476
WESTON, Kim 1055
WESTON, Larry 1049
WESTWOOD, Dennis 2736
WETZEL, Richard D. 1732
WEYGANDT, Donald 1251
WEZNIAK, Nan 1973
WHALEN, David 1327
WHANKI, Kim 2481
WHARTON, D. W. 1626
WHARTON, Margaret 1690, 2631, 3198, 3249
WHEDON, Aida 2900
WHEELER, David 1947
WHEELER, Don 2336
WHEELER, Irene 2734
WHEELER, Mary 1912
WHEELER, Steve 2778
WHEELWRIGHT, Joseph 1939, 2287, 2818
WHELAN, Michael 3043
WHIPPLE, Bill 3430
WHIPPLE, Jeff 1498, 1539
WHIPPLE, Judith 1792
WHISTLER, James McNeill 1074, 1098, 1184, 1272, 2023, 2083, 2838
WHITACRE, Steve 1808
WHITAKER, Frederic 3323, 3421
WHITAKER, William 1061
WHITCOMB, Kay 1116
WHITCOMBE, Mark 2799
WHITCOPF, Dennis 1839
WHITE, Bertha 1079
WHITE, Bruce 1135, 1644
WHITE, Charles 1156, 2820
WHITE, Christian 2927
WHITE, Christopher 2499
WHITE, David 2004
WHITE, Dondi 2529
WHITE, Fritz 1115, 1362, 1384
WHITE, Grace 1968
WHITE, Jack 1082
WHITE, James 1046
WHITE, Joan 2629
WHITE, John 1134, 1334, 3082
WHITE, Joseph 1459
WHITE, Ken 2104
WHITE, Linda 2192, 2202
WHITE, Lucy M. 3225
WHITE, Mark 1623
WHITE, Mary 1437
WHITE, Minor 1100, 2645
WHITE, Patricia 1761
WHITE, R. Lee 1044, 1045, 1066, 1269, 1329, 1435, 2236, 2259
WHITE, Richardson 1923
WHITE, Rodney 2386
WHITE, Stephen 2960, 3405
WHITE, Susan 3129
WHITE-SMITH 1621
WHITEHEAD, C. B. 1011
WHITEHEAD, John 3078, 3085
WHITEHORSE, Emmi 1040, 2095, 2700, 3431
WHITEHORSE, Randy Lee 1626
WHITEMAN, Edward 1878, 3168
WHITEMAN, Fred J. 2478
WHITESELL, John 1775
WHITESIDE, Frank Reed 3120
WHITESIDES, Kim 3362
WHITING, Ray 1367
WHITLEY, Chris 2020
WHITLEY, Mikael 3321
WHITMAN, Claudia 2287
WHITMAN, Deborah 2909
WHITMAN, Heidi 1946
WHITMER-FRANCKO, Diana 3058
WHITNEY, Ada 2543
WHITNEY, Carol 1803, 1804, 2254
WHITNEY, Guy 1769
WHITT, Cecil 3064
WHITTINGTON, Jon 2072
WHITTONE, Irene 2514
WHITTREDGE, Worthington 3007
WHITWELL, Helene 2343
WHITWORTH, Barbara 2112
WHORRALL, Bill 1775, 1781, 1844
WHYLAND, John 1608
WHYMAN, Jeff 1296
WHYTE-LEHMAN, Pat 1996, 3457
WHYTE, Raymond 2180
WICASTA, Sanyan Tawa 2050
WICHT, Janelle 1044, 1352
WICK, Robert 1024, 1058
WICKERSHAM, John 2101
WICKISER, Ralph 2762
WICKLER, Charles 3460
WICKMAN, Dick 1712
WIDDICOMBE, Robert A. 1129
WIDMER, Fred 2554
WIEGHARDT, Paul 1740
WIELAND, Marianne 1021
WIENER, Daniel 1209, 1306
WIENER, Phyllis Ames 1709, 2047
WIENER, Sam 1109
WIER, Terry 1173
WIESENFELD, Paul 2779
WIGGINS 1672
WIGGINS, Guy C. 2724, 3007
WIGGINS, Walt 2224
WIGGLESWORTH, Ann Parker 2757

VOL
7
1
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

WIGHT, Frederick 1176
WIGHT, Peter Bonnet 3143
WIKOFF, Naj 1733
WILBERT, Robert 2008
WILCOX, Don 3205
WILCOX, Jarvis 2287, 2757
WILCOX, S. Judson 1805
WILD, Terry 1316
WILDE, John 3458
WILDER, Carol 3266
WILDER, Genie 3212
WILENSKY, Mark 2733
WILENTZ, Jacqueline 2726, 3126
WILEY, William T. 1207, 1263, 1267, 1312, 1432, 1626, 1669, 1808, 2105, 2463, 2528, 3256
WILEY-JONES, Esther 3268
WILHITE, Robert 1132, 1306
WILKE, Hannah 2504
WILKE, Ulfert 1171, 1664, 1786, 1792
WILKERSON, Jerry 2096, 2104
WILKIE, David 1714
WILKIE, Ulfert 1831
WILKIN, Cathy Conway 3450
WILKINS, Thelma 3255
WILKINS, William 2779
WILKINSON, Donald 2439
WILKINSON, Laura 1315
WILKINSON, Liz 1226
WILKINSON, Michael 2723
WILKINSON, Una 2405, 3118
WILKS, Harry 1367, 3263
WILL, John 1626
WILLARD, David 3460
WILLARD, Lucille 3255
WILLENBECHER, John 1658, 2573
WILLEY, Chief 1870
WILLIAMS-CACICEDO, Jean 1963, 2930
WILLIAMS, Andrew 1813
WILLIAMS, Arthur 2273
WILLIAMS, Casey 2298, 3333
WILLIAMS, Christopher 1162
WILLIAMS, Danny 2470, 3270
WILLIAMS, David 3059
WILLIAMS, Don 1123, 1307
WILLIAMS, Franklin 1249
WILLIAMS, Gary 3000
WILLIAMS, Geoffrey 1241
WILLIAMS, George 1859, 1865
WILLIAMS, Guy 1134, 1170
WILLIAMS, Heidi 3136
WILLIAMS, Hiram 1505, 1544
WILLIAMS, J. Arthur 2538
WILLIAMS, Jerry 2670
WILLIAMS, Joanne 1408
WILLIAMS, Judith 3289
WILLIAMS, Larry 1626
WILLIAMS, Manning 3314
WILLIAMS, Mark 1135, 1644
WILLIAMS, Michael 2812
WILLIAMS, Owen 1036
WILLIAMS, Randy 2620
WILLIAMS, Robert 1768, 1775
WILLIAMS, Roger 2898
WILLIAMS, Stuart 1151, 2382
WILLIAMS, Thomas 1544
WILLIAMS, Tony 2015
WILLIAMS, Vircy 1079
WILLIAMS, Yogi 1816
WILLIAMSON, Alexa 3454
WILLIAMSON, Blair 1036
WILLIAMSON, Jason 1346, 1803
WILLIAMSON, Paige 3212
WILLIFORD, Hollis 1356
WILLING, Victor 1158, 2608
WILLIS, Darney 1078
WILLIS, Jay 1136
WILLIS, Stirling 3271
WILLIS, Thornton 1659, 2297, 2716
WILLITS, Robert 2140
WILLMOT, Elizabeth 2081, 2091
WILLOUGHBY, Alan 2163, 2172
WILLOUGHBY, Gary 1273
WILLOUGHBY, Sanae 3118
WILLS, Dan 1966
WILLSON, Valerie 3067
WILMARTH, Christopher 1808, 2589
WILSON, Al 1945, 2168, 2764
WILSON, Ann 2357
WILSON, Blanche 3361
WILSON, Bryan 1268
WILSON, Charles 1659
WILSON, Coleen Barry 1549
WILSON, Donald Roller 1040, 1442, 1489, 2506, 3324
WILSON, Douglas Fenn 1286
WILSON, Emily 1881
WILSON, Gahan 2670
WILSON, Gary 1394
WILSON, Helen 3074
WILSON, Jane 2511
WILSON, Jeff 2113
WILSON, June 2208, 2209
WILSON, Kathy 3376
WILSON, Keith 1248, 3417
WILSON, Lewis 1028, 1490
WILSON, M. J. 1514
WILSON, Mary 3151
WILSON, Mellisa 3033
WILSON, Mortimer 1052
WILSON, Nicolas 1035
WILSON, Paul 1286
WILSON, Richard 1244
WILSON, Robert 2657, 2684
WILSON, Ruby 1819
WILSON, Ruth 2205
WILSON, Sam 3361, 3374
WILSON, Steve 1102
WILSON, Wanda 2082
WILSON, Will 1286
WILTSHIRE, Gail 2940
WIMAN, Bill 3251
WIMBERLEY, Frank 2286
WINBORG, Larry 3376
WINBORN, Bobbi 3281
WIND, Bodhi 2266
WINDEN, William 3436
WINDROW, Patricia 2290
WINFIELD, Rodney 2103
WING, Andy 1302
WINGATE, Arline 1470
WINGATE, George 2938
WINGERTER, John 2705
WINKEL, Nina 3095
WINKELSTEIN, Barbara 1123
WINKLER, Aline 1829
WINKLER, Allen 1808
WINKLER, Joann 1935
WINKLER, John 1909
WINN, James 1669
WINN, Kate 2286, 2927, 2934
WINNETT, Merry Moor 2984
WINNINGHAM, Geoff 3314
WINOGRAND, Garry 1262, 2650
WINOKUR, Paula 1626, 3121
WINOKUR, Robert 1626, 3121
WINSHIP, John 3118
WINSLOW, Brad 2286
WINSLOW, Bruce 2014
WINSLOW, Dana 1471, 1909
WINSLOW, Helen 1037
WINSLOW, John 1451, 3043
WINSOR, Jackie 2452, 2998
WINSRYG, Marian 1190
WINSTON, David 1046
WINTER, Andrew 1894
WINTER, Robert 1057, 2250
WINTERS, Denny 1895
WINTERS, Robin 1162
WINTERS, Terry 1193, 2805, 3270
WIPRUD, Ted 3433
WIRLS, Douglas 3136
WIRSUM, Karl 1690, 2631, 2984
WISDOM, Joyce 1327
WISE, Alice 2730
WISE, Kelly 1919, 3195
WISE, Nathan 1412
WISE, Sue 1377
WISE, Tom 2140
WISNOSKY, John 1623
WISSEMAN, John 2344
WISSEMANN-WIDRIG, Nancy 2467
WISTI-GRAYSON, Nancy 2020
WITHERSPOON, Margaret 1859
WITKIN, Isaac 2589
WITKIN, Jerome 2638
WITKOP, Carl 2226
WITKOP, Mary 2226, 2257
WITT, Nancy 3400
WITTELS, Dan 1902, 3138
WITTGENSTEIN, Louis 2636
WITTKIN, Lynne 2732
WITZ, Daniel 2599
WIZON, Tod 2871
WLERICK, Robert 2420
WLONA, Raniros 2532
WNUK, Daniel 2462
WO YUE KEE, Henry 1009, 1913, 3007, 3101, 3140, 3322
WOELFFER, Emerson 1107, 1244, 2215
WOERLE, Norman 2183
WOFFORD, Philip 2590
WOGNUM, Rosalie 1515
WOHLAUER, Ron 1367
WOIT, Bonnie 2598
WOJNAROWICZ, David 2442, 2679
WOJTKIEWICS, Dennis 1682
WOJTYLA, W. Hasse 1236
WOLCOTT, Marion Post 3417
WOLDROSKY, Shelley 2054
WOLF, Nancy 1911
WOLF, Pat 2239
WOLF, Reinhart 3303
WOLF, Sherry 2376
WOLF, Steven 3399
WOLF, Tom 1169
WOLFE, James 2443, 2472
WOLFE, Joan 3442
WOLFE, Karl 2074
WOLFE, Larry 3366
WOLFE, Mildred 2074
WOLFE, Thom 2052
WOLFE, Wayne 3323
WOLFF, Dee 3336
WOLFF, Julian 2934
WOLFSON, Alan 1127, 2670
WOLFSON, Ricardo 2439
WOLFSON, William 1322
WOLIN, Marty 2899
WOLKOFF, Karen 2554
WOLKOW, Lisa 2565
WOLLIN, Ginnie 1819
WOLOSKA, Alina 2554
WOLPOFF, Sharon 1909
WOLSKY, Jack 2916
WOLSTENHOLME, Dean 1714
WOLTER, Ted 1735
WOLTER, William 1682
WOLTERS, Charles 1258, 1768
WOLZ, Claudia 1058
WONG-LIGDA, Edward 1079, 3058
WONG, Al 1289
WONG, Anna 2462
WONG, Diana Shiu-iu 1185
WONG, Frederick 3010, 3362
WONG, Man-Tat 1121
WONG, Paul 2449
WONG, Tony 2618, 2800
WONNACOTT, John 2660
WONNER, Paul 1138, 1170, 1246, 2589
WOO, Cathy 1234
WOOD, Austine 2148
WOOD, Beatrice 1137, 2247, 2478
WOOD, Don 2432
WOOD, Ed 2963
WOOD, Grant 1322, 1642, 1686, 1880, 1908, 2385
WOOD, John 2919, 3372
WOOD, McCrystie 3004
WOOD, Myron 1367
WOOD, Peggy 2413
WOOD, Richard 2818
WOOD, Robert 1616
WOOD, Steve 2393
WOOD, Theodore 1687
WOOD, Thomas Waterman 3381
WOODARD, Peter 1540
WOODBURN, Stephen 2767
WOODBURY, Charles H. 1954
WOODFORD, Don 1244
WOODMAN, Betty 1137, 2004, 2141, 3313
WOODMAN, George 1371, 1372, 2570
WOODMAN, Patrick 1057, 2250
WOODMAN, Timothy 2880
WOODNER, Andrea 2287, 2757
WOODROW, Bill 2552
WOODRUFF, Hale 1467
WOODRUFF, John 1399
WOODRUFF, Lori 3460
WOODRUFF, Suzan 1027
WOODS, Charlotte 1003
WOODS, Jack 1803
WOODS, Joe 2705
WOODSON, James 3300
WOODWARD, Gary 1807
WOODWARD, Kesler 1021
WOODWARD, Robert 3129
WOODWARD, William 1442, 1839
WOOLARD, Jinja Kim 1608
WOOLDRIDGE, Thomas 1296
WOOLEVER, Scott 1427
WOOLLARD, George 1608
WOPOFF, Harold 2169
WORAWIT 1836
WORDEN, Walter 1935
WORES, Theodore 1505, 1847
WORMLEY, W. C. 2057
WORONOV, Mary 1190
WORSEL, Troels 2362
WORTH, Don 1055, 1100
WORTH, Edith 2177
WORTH, Joan 1133
WORTH, Robert 2177
WORTHEN, Amy N. 1791
WORTHEY, John 3426, 3436
WORTHMAN, Moses 2290
WORTZEL, Adrianne 2400
WORTZEL, Laura 1539
WOSSOCKI, Charles 1254
WOSTREL, Nancy 1116
WOU-KI, Zao 2667
WRAY, Dick 3324
WRAY, Jerry 2082
WREN, Kathy 3425
WREN, Leonard 1382, 181
WRIGHT-FRIERSON, Virginia 2980
WRIGHT, Boyd 1188, 1340
WRIGHT, Don 1553
WRIGHT, Frank 2626
WRIGHT, Frank Lloyd 1688, 2674, 2809, 3154
WRIGHT, Fred 3374
WRIGHT, Inge 1008
WRIGHT, Malcolm 3379
WRIGHT, Mary 2247
WRIGLEY, Brenda 1313
WU, Han-Lien 1640
WU, Swang 2651
WUDL, Tom 1129, 1317, 1337, 1338
WULFF, Victoria 3194
WULLIMANN, Peter 2134
WUNDERLICH, Paul 1031, 2814
WURMER, Carl 2563
WYANT, Alexander 1589, 2360
WYATT, Alfred 2290
WYATT, Richard 1156
WYBENGER, George 2900
WYE, Pamela 2800
WYETH, A. N. 2343
WYETH, Andrew 1606, 1812, 2159, 2379, 2627, 2819, 3202, 3421
WYETH, Henriette 3291
WYETH, Jamie 1423, 2627, 3421
WYETH, N. C. 1894, 3099, 3103, 3353
WYGANT, Bob 3322
WYGONIK, Melanie 2490
WYMAN, William 1933, 2685
WYNNE, Bruce 1056
WYNNE, Jennifer 3287
WYROBA, Tom 1514
WYSOCKI, Charles 1356
WYSOKER, Anne 2705

— X —

XATREC, Christian 2566
XCERON, John 2881

— Y —

YAGER, John 3005
YAGER, William 2897
YAMADA, Shige 1619
YAMAGATA, Hiro 1166, 1326, 3104
YAMAGUCHI, Takako 1134, 1266, 2659
YAMAMOTO, Masamichi 2798
YAMAMOTO, Taro 2753
YAMASHITA, Noboru 2577
YAMAZAKI, Kazuhide 2582
YAMAZAWA, Wilfred 1621, 1623
YAMIN, Steve 2613
YANDELL, Enid 3196
YANG, Chihung 2800
YANKOWITZ, Nina 1276, 2185, 2816, 2909
YANOW, Rhoda 2166, 2197
YAO, C. J. 2165, 2670, 2822
YARBER, Bob 3265
YARBOROUGH, Chris 2972
YARBROUGH, Dan 1659
YARBROUGH, Leila 1564, 1567
YARDE, Richard 1570, 1964, 1984, 3318
YARES, Clare 1043
YARMOLINSKY, Sirpa 2375
YAROSZ, Elizabeth 2920
YAROWSKY, Morris 2984, 3070
YASAMI, Masoud 1044, 1045, 1234, 1352
YASUDA, Robert 1161, 1659, 2215, 3176
YATER, George 1980
YATES, Marvin 1909
YATSKO, Jan 3111
YAU, Jocelyn 2026
YAVIS, Sharon 1011
YAVNO, Max 3417
YAWORSKI, Alex 2047
YAZZ, Beatien 2256
YAZZI, Philomena 1060
YAZZIE, Gary 3052
YEALDHALL, Bob 2380
YEH, Wei 1121
YEISER, Charles W. 2685
YEISER, Mary 1844
YEKTAI, Manoucher 2767
YENA, Donald 3351
YENAWINE, Neisja 1837
YERMAN, Marcia G. 2629
YES, Phyllis 2400
YESS, Mary 3139
YOAKUM, Joseph 1646, 1690, 2631
YODICE, Robert 2400
YOHAI, Joyce 2901
YOHE, Yun James 1546, 1831, 2860
YOKOI, Rita 1259
YOKOI, Tomoe 2826
YONEMOTO, Bruce 1165
YONEMOTO, Norman 1165
YORK, Albert 2465
YORK, Star Liana 2268
YOSHIDA, Ray 1690, 2631
YOSHIDA, Toshi 2887, 3132
YOSHIIKU, Utagawa 3175
YOSHIMURA, Fumio 2590, 3131
YOSHITAKI 3132
YOSHITOME, Sako 2704
YOSHITOSHI, Tsukioka 2553
YOSHITOSHI, Yoshida 2045
YOST, Erma Martin 2705
YOUKELES, Anne 1144, 3135, 3472
YOUKILIS, Edward 2351
YOUNG, Alf 2646
YOUNG, Anne Heiberger 1043
YOUNG, Barbara 1996, 3010
YOUNG, Brent 1313, 1576
YOUNG, Doug 1188
YOUNG, Ed 2432
YOUNG, Elinore 1909
YOUNG, Frank 1257, 2298, 2417, 2748

YOUNG, Janet 2478
YOUNG, John 1605, 2580
YOUNG, Joseph 1027
YOUNG, Kenneth 1445
YOUNG, La Monte 2477
YOUNG, Larry 2752, 3285
YOUNG, Laura 2386
YOUNG, Mahonri 3376
YOUNG, Margery 1036
YOUNG, Nancy 2050, 2262
YOUNG, Patrick 3434
YOUNG, Sally 2018
YOUNG, Scott 1500
YOUNGBLOOD, Daisy 2871
YOUNGBLOOD, Judy 2920
YOUNGBLOOD, Nathan 1060
YOUNGER, Dan 2084
YOUNGER, Robert 2552
YOUNGERMAN, Jack 2855, 2936
YOUNGERMAN, Jim 2583
YOUNGMANN, Gene 1378
YOUNQUEST, Chuck 2046
YOWELL, Suzanne 2972
YUE-KEE, Henry Wo 1009, 1913, 3007, 3101, 3140, 3322
YUN SHENG, Yuan 1785
YUNKERS, Adja 1218, 1241, 1943, 1995, 2060, 2434, 2822
YUNQUE 2620
YUST, Dave 1368

Z

ZABAR, Abbie 2845
ZABARI, Moshe 2614
ZABARSKY, Kalman 1929
ZABINSKI, Susan 1377
ZACH, Jean 2987
ZACHARA, Bernadette 2015, 2043
ZACHERLE, Ruth 1217, 1331
ZACKHEIM, Michele 1109
ZADIKIAN, Zadik 1148, 2791
ZAGALIK, Michael 2091
ZAGAR, Isiah 3151
ZAHN, Albert 1646
ZAHOUREK, Jon 1038, 2152
ZAHRFELD, Sharon 2036
ZAHRFELD, Ted 2036
ZAJAC, Jack 1031, 1340, 1171
ZAKANITCH, Robert S. 1132, 1529, 1931, 2678, 3133, 3468
ZALLINGER, Rudolph 1406, 2484, 2738
ZALLMAN, Toby 1636
ZALUCHA, Peggy 3457
ZAMET, Jonathan 2489
ZAN DER HOEVEN NIXON, Plonia 2824
ZANSKY, Michael 2946
ZAPATA, Julio Herrera 3422
ZAPKUS, Kes 2333, 2859
ZARAGOZA 2883
ZARINA 1323
ZAUSNER, Tobi 2857
ZAVARO, Albert 1686
ZAVATSKY, Jack 1812
ZAVREL, Stepan 2432
ZAY, Jan 2577
ZAZEELA, Marian 2477
ZEAMAN, John 2413
ZEE, Peggy 1471
ZEGVELD, Peter 2844
ZEISLER, Claire 1731, 2998
ZELDIS, Malcah 1760, 1870, 2924
ZELEVANSKY, Paul 2919
ZELIN, Elaine 2849
ZELLER, Barbara 2158
ZELLER, Frederic 2851
ZELLER, Phillip 2241
ZELT, Martha 2659, 3131, 3168
ZEMEK, Yigal 1676
ZEMPEL, Jerilea 2505
ZEMSKY, Jessica 3323
ZENDEROUDI, Hossein 2827
ZENIUK, Jerry 2794
ZENNARO, Giorgio 2312
ZEPHIER, Mitchell 2265, 3224
ZERBE, Jay 1643
ZERBE, Karl 1544, 2701
ZERVAS, Carter 3136
ZESCH, Gene 1035
ZETTLEMOYER, Annamaria 2944
ZETTLER, Vince 3080
ZEVE, Sheila 3308
ZHEUTLIN, Dale 1415, 2324, 2471
ZHU, Qi-Han 1121
ZIDEK, Paul 3033
ZIDER, Jo 3302
ZIEGLER, Eustace P. 3421
ZIEMANN, Richard 1451, 1921
ZIEMBO, Dan 1644
ZIGULIS, Jeffrey 1406, 2247, 2597
ZILKER, Sandra 1965
ZIMBEAUX, Francis 3373
ZIMMER, Bernd 2552
ZIMMERMAN, Arnie 2004
ZIMMERMAN, Elyn 1109, 1659
ZIMMERMAN, Harry 1559
ZIMMERMAN, Paul 1967, 2168
ZIMMERMAN, Rita 3012
ZIMMERMAN, Shellie 2940
ZIMMERMAN, Walter 1259
ZINGALE, Santos 3460
ZINGARO, William 2829
ZINK, Melissa 1268, 3295
ZINKEL, Barbara 2102
ZINNIA 1473
ZINT, Valerie 1890
ZION, Ben 2089
ZION, Marsha 3158, 3159
ZIPPERER, Joyce 1471, 3106
ZIRKER, Joseph 1218, 1691, 1995
ZISES, Susan 2051, 2679
ZISLA, Harold 1763
ZLAMANY, Brenda 2183
ZLOTKIN, Martin 2011
ZMIJEWSKI, Chris 3136
ZMIJEWSKI, Heromin 2016
ZOLLER, Steve 1111, 1273
ZONIES, Abby 1947
ZOOK, Amos 3459
ZOOK, Barbara 1229
ZORACH, Marguerite 2638
ZORACH, William 2880
ZORIO, Gilberto 2805
ZOX, Larry 1273, 1477, 1802, 2039, 2774, 3041, 3310, 3318
ZUCCARELLI, Frank 2170
ZUCCO, Doug 3153
ZUCKER, Barbara 1917, 2355
ZUCKER, Joe 1117, 1575, 1658, 2294, 2297, 2804, 3333
ZUKAS, Pat Megha 2436
ZUKOWSKY, Susan 1512, 1546
ZUNIGA, Francisco 1033, 1056, 1143, 1215, 1329, 1476, 1518, 1605, 1810, 2146, 2416, 2531, 2798, 2861, 3261, 3285, 3422
ZUNK, James 1257
ZUPAN, Bruno 1041
ZUPANC, Terri 1657
ZUPPARDI, Charles 2999
ZURKO, Walter 2096
ZVER, James 2931
ZWACK, Michael 2673
ZWART, Piet 2741
ZWEIFEL, Craig 1021, 2247, 2617
ZWERLING, Lisa 2510
ZWEYGARDT, Glenn 3098
ZWILLINGER, Rhonda 2442, 2655
ZWINGER, Susan 2247
ZYNSKY, Mary Ann Toots 2095, 2737

ACADEMIA · AMERICANA · ROMAE · SITA · MDCCCXCIV

ROME PRIZE FELLOWSHIPS
1984/85

THE AMERICAN ACADEMY IN ROME ANNOUNCES FELLOWSHIPS IN THE FIELDS OF:

• Painting • Sculpture • Musical Composition • Architecture • Landscape Architecture

American citizens compete for one-year fellowships to live and work independently in the Academy's community of artists and scholars.

The Academy program also includes the following special Rome Prize Fellowships in the Fine Arts:

The National Endowment for the Arts Advanced Fellowships in the Design Arts.

Six-month fellowships in: Architecture, Landscape Architecture, Urban Planning, Interior, Industrial, Graphic, Set and Fashion Design. 7+ years professional experience necessary.

The Graham Foundation Advanced Fellowship in Architecture.

Six-month fellowship. 7+ years professional experience necessary.

DEADLINE: NOVEMBER 15, 1983

Please state field of interest when requesting information and application from:

AMERICAN ACADEMY IN ROME
Fellowships Coordinator, 41 East 65th Street, New York, New York 10021

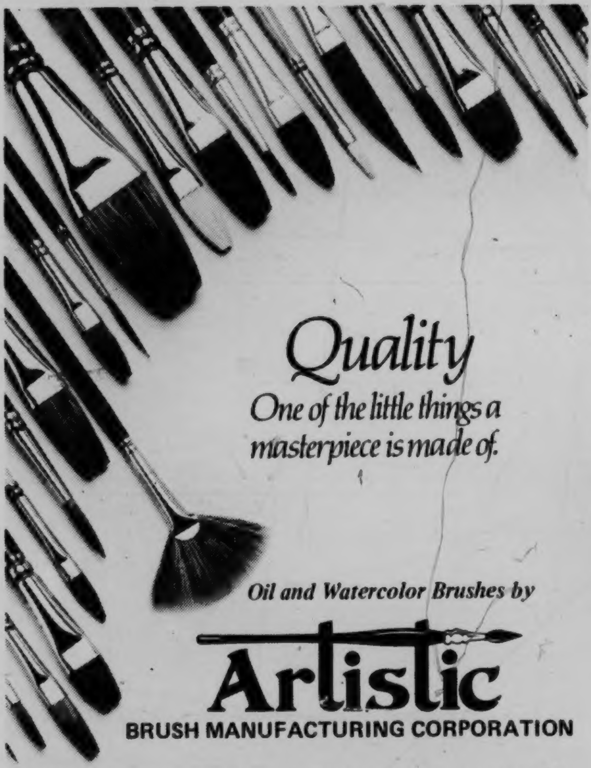
The Art Students League of New York Founded 1875

215 West Fifty-Seventh Street, N.Y.C. 10019 (212) Circle 7-4510
R.A. Florio, Executive Director

The 108th Regular Session begins September 12, 1983. Students may register at any time. Tuition is on a monthly basis. No entrance requirements. Part-time as well full-time registration. All instruction is directed to the individual. Life models in most classes. 60 instructors with national reputations as professional artists. AM., P.M., Late P.M. and Evening classes, Monday through Friday. One and two evening a week classes. Saturday classes for children and adults. The League accepts students of any race, color, religion or national or ethnic origin. Write or phone for free, illustrated catalogue.

Drawing, Painting, Sculpture, Fine Arts Illustration, Mural Painting, Portrait Painting, Landscape, Anatomy for Artists, Perspective, Watercolor, Graphics (Etching, Engraving, Silkscreen, Woodcut, Lithography), Abstract Art (Non-figuration).

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI



Quality
One of the little things a masterpiece is made of.

Oil and Watercolor Brushes by Artistic
BRUSH MANUFACTURING CORPORATION

103 Central Avenue, P.O. Box 1467, Clifton, N.J. 07015
(201) 546-1200

We prepare exhibition catalogues. The artists and institutions for whom we have produced catalogues, as well as the awards we've won, will verify the quality of our work. Larry Bell ▶ Bill Bomar ▶ Emry Kopta Foundation ▶ Hudson River Museum ▶ Doug Hyde ▶ Newport Harbor Art Museum ▶ Nicolai Fechin Institute ▶ Sheldon Memorial Art Gallery ▶ Barrie Tinkler ▶ Harold Joe Waldrum.

Located in Taos, with clients nationwide.

Webb Design Studio
Box 4042 Taos, New Mexico 87571 505-758-3447

PRINTMAKING WORKSHOP FELLOWSHIPS

FOR AFRICAN ASIAN HISPANIC
NATIVE AMERICAN

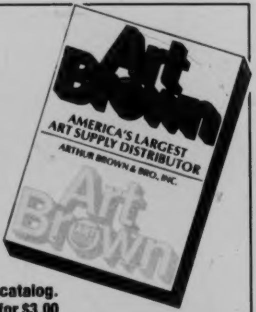
ARTIST PRINTMAKERS
SUBMIT 6-10 SLIDES & RESUME WITH SASE BY OCTOBER 10, 1983
ADDRESS ALL INQUIRIES TO:

PRINTMAKING WORKSHOP/FELLOWSHIPS 83-84
114 WEST 17 STREET NEW YORK, NY 10011 212-989-6125

YOU SHOULD HAVE OUR NEW CATALOG!

ART BROWN

The Art Brown catalog is virtually an "encyclopedia of materials" for everyone interested in any form of artwork. 228-pages and color inserts illustrate and describe over 20,000 products from the world's best sources. It's a one-stop shopping center for art supplies!



Art Brown
AMERICA'S LARGEST ART SUPPLY DISTRIBUTOR
ARTHUR BROWN & BRO., INC.
Art Brown

We'll make it attractive for you to order our catalog. Send in the coupon below with your check for $3.00 to cover mailing and handling costs.

—AND HERE'S WHAT WE'LL DO IN RETURN!

1. We'll send our big 260-page catalog
2. plus we'll give you a $5.00 credit slip towards your first order!

3. plus our 40-page "International Pen Shop" catalog in full color.

4. plus we'll ship your first order prepaid. (That's worth $!)

. . . you'll get back several times the amount you remit for the catalog!

Attached is check for $3.00 for catalogs and credit slips C987

Name__________

Address__________

City/State/Zip__________

ART BROWN
America's Largest Art Supply Distributor
ARTHUR BROWN & BRO., INC.
2 West 46th Street, New York, N.Y. 10036

L.A. Packing And Crating

Fine Art Specialists
Packing, Crating, Installation
Storage, Transportation

(213) 933-5602

5852 W. Adams Boulevard Culver City, CA 90230

Tyler School of Art
TEMPLE UNIVERSITY,
A Commonwealth University

Programs Offered:
Graphic Design,
Painting, Printmaking,
Metals/Jewelry,
Ceramics/Glass,
Weaving/Textiles,
Sculpture,
Photography

Tyler Degrees:
BFA, MFA, MEd.,
Tyler in Rome: Semester/Year,
Teaching Certification

For Information:
Tyler School of Art, Box 2901B
Philadelphia, PA 19126

1982 EDITORIAL INDEX TO

Art in America

Issues Indexed: Art in America, Vol. 70, Nos. 1–11, January–December 1982 (Vol. 70, No. 7 is the 1982 Annual Guide to Galleries, Museums and Artists).

The location of each article is indicated by month, year and page. Dec 82:31 refers to December 1982, page 31.

Author Index (includes authors of articles, exhibition reviews and book reviews.)

Artist and Subject Index (Articles and exhibition reviews are indexed by artist or subject; group shows are listed under exhibition title.)

Book Review Index (arranged by authors of books; reviewer's name follows book title.)

AUTHOR INDEX

ADAMS, Brooks.
  Al Calderaro at Concord Contemporary Art gallery, New York. ER Apr 82:143
  Privileged Portraits: Vigée Le Brun. Nov 82:74-81
  The Progress of Ed Paschke. Oct 82:114-122
  Richard Hennessy at Hamilton gallery, New York. ER Dec 82:125-126
  Romantics and Romanticism by Michel Le Bris. 1981. BR Mar 82:19
  Romanticism by Jean Clay. 1981. BR Mar 82:19
  Stephen Mueller at Nosei gallery, New York. ER Dec 82:123-124
  Walter Robinson at Metro Pictures, New York. ER May 82:144-145
ADAMS, Don and Arlene Goldbard.
  Grass Roots Vanguard. Apr 82:21-25
ADAMS, Robert M.
  Working Notes: Bernini's Drawings: "Drawings by Gianlorenzo Bernini." Oct 82:105-111
ANTIN, David.
  Absorption and Theatricality: Painting and Beholder in the Age of Diderot by Michael Fried. 1980. BR Apr 82:35-41
APGAR, Garry.
  Provincial Roundup: French regional art institutions. Sep 82:124-127
ARMSTRONG, Richard.
  Report from Detroit: Was Cass Corridor a Style? Feb 82:34-39
ASHBERY, John.
  R.B. Kitaj: Hunger and Love. Jan 82:130-135
BAKER, Elizabeth C.
  Editorial: How Expressionist Is It? Dec 82:5
  Editorial: The "Return" of European Art. Sep 82:5
BAKER, John.
  George Greenamyer at Neill gallery, New York. ER Jan 82:145-147
  Report from New Brunswick: "Realism and Realities: The Other Side of American Painting 1940–1960." Nov 82:19-23
BALLERINI, Julia.
  Cy Twombly at Sperone Westwater Fischer gallery, New York. ER Nov 82:124
  Juan Downey at Schlesinger-Boisanté gallery, New York. ER Nov 82:123-124
BELL, David L.
  Margaret Newman at Durham gallery, Santa Fe. ER Nov 82:125
BERLIND, Robert.
  Alex Katz at Marlborough gallery, New York. ER May 82:143-144
  Andrea Blum at Artpark, Lewiston, NY. ER Nov 82:125
  "Focus on the Figure: Twenty Years" at the Whitney Museum of American Art, New York. ER Oct 82:133-134
  Yvonne Jacquette at Alexander gallery, New York. ER Oct 82:135-136
BOIS, Yve-Alain.
  The De Stijl Idea: "De Stijl: 1917–1931, Visions of Utopia." Nov 82:106-117
  Martin Barré: Strategies of Concealment. Apr 82:126-128
  Report from Paris: "Baroques 81": The Old New. Jan 82:34-35
BOIS, Yve-Alain and Carter Ratcliff.
  Report from New York: And Now—A French Wave?: "Statements New York 82". Sep 82:59-63
BONESTEEL, Michael.
  Deven Golden at Lurie gallery, Chicago. ER Sep 82:167
  Joseph E. Yoakum at Hammer & Hammer American Folk Art gallery, Chicago. ER Nov 82:125-126
  L.J. Douglas at N.A.M.E. gallery, Chicago. ER Jan 82:151
  Margaret Wharton at the Museum of Contemporary Art, Chicago. ER Feb 82:145
  Mike Zieve at Lurie gallery, Chicago. ER Apr 82:151
  Yee Jan Bao at N.A.M.E. gallery, Chicago. ER Oct 82:136-137
BOURDON, David.
  American Art Since 1945 by Dore Ashton. 1982. BR Oct 82:17-19
  Art in Our Times: A Pictorial History 1890–1980 by Peter Selz. 1981. BR Oct 82:17-19
  Early American Modernist Painting: 1910–1935 by Abraham A. Davidson. 1981. BR Nov 82:11-13
BOWLT, John E.
  "New Russian Wave" at the Contemporary Russian Art Center, New York. ER Apr 82:139-140
BRACH, Paul.
  Tandem Paint: Krasner/Pollock. Mar 82:92-95
BRENSON, Michael.
  Alain Jacquet at Galerie de France, Paris. ER Feb 82:147
  Report from Paris. Summer 82:27-29
CAMPBELL, Lawrence.
  Al Held at Miller gallery, New York. ER Sep 82:164-165
  "American Figurative Expressionism" at Pearl gallery, New York. ER Dec 82:127
  Andre Masson at del Re gallery, New York. ER Mar 82:150-151
  Arnold Bittleman at Milliken gallery, New York. ER May 82:143
  Arnold Friedman at Zabriskie gallery, New York. ER Mar 82:148
  Balcomb Greene at A.C.A. gallery, New York. ER Oct 82:131-132
  Claire Falkenstein at Neill gallery, New York. ER Mar 82:147
  Cornelia Foss at Berry Hill gallery, New York. ER Feb 82:145
  "Curator's Choice: A Tribute to Dorothy Miller" at Esman gallery, New York. ER May 82:145
  David Milne at the Center for Inter-American Relations, New York. ER Dec 82-127
  Jean Hélion at Miller gallery, New York. ER Jan 82:143-145
  Lester Johnson at Gimpel & Weitzenhoffer gallery, New York. ER Summer 82:144-145
  Lucien Day at Blue Mountain gallery, New York. ER Nov 82:121-122
  Manoucher Yektai at Rosenberg gallery, New York. ER Feb 82:144
  Ora Lerman at P, M & Stein gallery, New York. ER Nov 82:121
  Vaclav Vytlacil at Diamond gallery, New York. ER Mar 82:145
  Willem de Kooning at Fourcade gallery, New York. ER Sep 82:161
  William C. Palmer at Midtown gallery, New York. ER Mar 82:151
CARLSON, Prudence.
  Arch Limner: Michael Hurson. Summer 82:107-109

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

Emo Verkerk at Goodman gallery, New York. ER Apr 82:138
Leo Rubinfien at Castelli Graphics gallery, New York. ER Mar 82:146
Lucas Samaras at Pace gallery, New York. ER Oct 82:129
Vera Klement at CDS gallery, New York. ER Jan 82:142-143

CARMEAN, E.A., Jr.
The Church Project: Pollock's Passion Themes. Summer 82:110-122

CASTLE, Ted.
Nancy Holt, Siteseer. Mar 82:84-91

CLOTHIER, Peter.
Carlos Almaraz at Simard gallery, Los Angeles. ER Mar 82:156
Deborah Butterfield at ARCO Center gallery, Los Angeles. ER Mar 82:155
Jim Morphesis at Traction gallery, Los Angeles. ER Summer 82:149
Leon Kossoff at L.A. Louver gallery, Los Angeles. ER Nov 82:129

COCKCROFT, Eva.
Art for the Freeze: artists mobilized for political action. Oct 82:9-13

COCKCROFT, Eva and David Kunzle.
Report from Nicaragua. May 82:51-59

COOK, Scott.
Michael Smith at the Whitney Museum of American Art, New York. ER May 82:141-142
Space Shots: "The Photography of Space Exploration." Feb 82:129-137

CRARY, Jonathan.
Larry Fuente at The Clocktower, New York. ER Nov 82:122-123

DAVIS, Douglas.
The Avant Garde is Dead! Long Live the Avant Garde! Apr 82:11-19

DEITCHER, David.
Richard Prince at Metro Pictures, New York. ER Summer 82:144

ELDERFIELD, John.
Specific Incidents: Helen Frankenthaler. Feb 82:100-106

ELLENZWEIG, Allen.
Artists 1950–81, A Personal View by Hans Namuth. 1981. BR Nov 82:11
Artists' Portraits by Alex Kayser. 1981. BR Nov 82:11
Fred Korth at Pfeifer gallery, New York. ER Oct 82:126-127
George Platt Lynes at Miller gallery, New York. ER Mar 82:141-142
Paris/Magnum: Photographs 1935–1981 by Irwin Shaw. 1981. BR Oct 82:19
Ruth Orkin at Witkin gallery, New York. ER Apr 82:139
Slave to Beauty: The Eccentric Life and Controversial Career of F. Holland Day, Photographer, Publisher, Aesthete by Estelle Jussim. 1981. BR Feb 82:19

FILLER, Martin.
The Architecture of the United States; Vol. 1: New England and the Mid-Atlantic States, Vol. 2: The South and Midwest, Vol. 3: The Plains States and Far West by G.E. Kidder Smith. 1981. BR Summer 82:21
History Reinvented: Adam and his Heirs: Robert Adam. Summer 82: 86-97
On Corbusier and Corbusiana. Mar 82:120-134
Richard Neutra: Domesticated Modern. Nov 82: 93-105

FINEBERG, Jonathan.
Nine books on Kandinsky. 1976–82. BR Dec 82:11-13+

FOSTER, Hal.
Bernd Koberling at Nosei gallery, New York. ER Summer 82:145
Between Modernism and the Media. Summer 82:13-17
Critical Spaces: "Window Room Furniture." Mar 82:115-119
Frank Stella at Knoedler gallery, New York. ER Feb 82:142
Mel Bochner and James Casebere at Sonnabend gallery, New York. ER Oct 82:132-133
The Problem of Pluralism. Jan 82:9-15
Subversive Signs: Barbara Kruger and Jenny Holzer. Nov 82:88-92

FRANCBLIN, Catherine.
Free French. Sep 82:128-131

FRANK, Elizabeth.
Biala at Gruenebaum gallery, New York. ER Jan 82:141
Dorothea Rockburne at Fourcade gallery, New York. ER Jan 82:138
Hermine Ford at Toll gallery, New York. ER Mar 82:147
Jake Berthot at McKee gallery, New York. ER Nov 82:120-121
Louise Fishman at Oscarsson Hood gallery, New York. ER Nov 82:122
Michael Tetherow at Bonlow gallery, New York. ER Apr 82:144
Miriam Schapiro: Formal Sentiments. May 82:106-111
Pat Steir at Protetch gallery, New York. ER Mar 82:143-144

FRANK, Peter.
A Dialectic of Centuries: Notes towards a Theory of the New Arts by Dick Higgins. 1979. BR Feb 82:19-21

GABLIK, Suzi.
Report from New York: The Graffiti Question. Oct 82:33-39
Report from New Zealand. Mar 82:35-41

GABRIELSON, Walter.
Westward Ha!: "Humor in Art". Jan 82:108-110

GALLOWAY, David.
Kassel Redux: A History of Documenta. Sep 82:7-10

GENDEL, Milton.
Report From Venice: Art as Art: The Persistence of the Biennale. Sep 82:33-39

GINTZ, Claude.
Claude Viallat at Centre Pompidou, Paris. ER Dec 82:129-131

GLOWEN, Ron.
Norman Lundin at Seders gallery, Seattle. ER Nov 82:128
Therman Statom at Rubin/Mardin gallery, Seattle. ER Nov 82:127

GORDON, Donald E.
Content by Contradiction: German Expressionist Art. Dec 82:76-89

HALASZ, Piri.
Figuration in the '40s: The Other Expressionism. Dec 82:110-119+

HENRY, Gerrit.
Altoon Sultan at Marlborough gallery, New York. ER Apr 82:140
Gaylen Hansen at Knowlton gallery, New York. ER Jan 82:145
Gregory Gillespie at Forum gallery, New York. ER Mar 82:151-153
Harry Jackson at Smith gallery, New York. ER Jan 82:147
Jerome Witkin at Kraushaar gallery, New York. ER Apr 82:137
Joan Snyder at Hamilton gallery, New York. ER Summer 82:141-142
Manon Cleary at Iolas/Jackson gallery, New York. ER Summer 82:146-147
Martha Diamond at Alexander gallery, New York. ER Dec 82:124
Robert Graham at Miller gallery, New York. ER Apr 82:137-138
Sherman Drexler, Jim Richmond, and David Rohn at Hutchinson gallery, New York. ER Sep 82:163
William Anastasi at Ericson gallery, New York. ER Sep 82:165-167

HOWARTH, Kathryn.
Dona Nelson at Oscarsson Hood gallery, New York. ER Dec 82:126-127
Roberto Juarez at Miller gallery, New York. ER Summer 82:147

HOWETT, John
Katherine Mitchell at Atlanta College of Art, Atlanta. ER Jan 82:149

JUNKER, Howard.
John Harding at Indian Valley Colleges, San Francisco. ER Nov 82:126

KAHN, Barry.
Sam Hsieh at large in New York City. ER Summer 82:145-146

KALIL, Susie.
Four Painters at the Contemporary Arts Museum, Houston. ER Apr 82:144-145
Tony Berlant at the Contemporary Arts Museum, Houston. ER Dec 82:129

KANGAS, Matthew.
Ann Gardner at Rubin/Mardin gallery, Seattle. ER Oct 82:137
Buster Simpson at Western Front gallery, Vancouver, Canada. ER Jan 82:149-151
Gloria DeArcangelis at Sutton gallery, Seattle. ER Nov 82:127
Marsha Burns at Glover/Hayes gallery, Seattle. ER Dec 82:128-129
Michael Spafford at the Seattle Art Museum, Seattle. ER Nov 82:126-127
Mike Hascall at Rosco Louie gallery, Seattle. ER Oct 82:137-138

KARMEL, Pepe.
American Frontiers: The Photographs of Timothy H. O'Sullivan, 1867–1874 by Joel Snyder. 1981. BR Mar 82:23-25
David Hanson at Pfeifer gallery, New York. ER Oct 82:127
Falkland Road: Prostitutes of Bombay by Mary Ellen Mark. 1981. BR Jan 82:25
Frank Gohlke at Light gallery, New York. ER Dec 82:128
Herlinde Koelbl at New School/Parsons Photography gallery, New York. ER Oct 82:127-128
Joel Sternfeld at Wolf gallery, New York. ER Feb 82:143
Photography: Urban Disjunctions. Mar 82:45-49
Raising a Hue: The New Color. Jan 82:27-31
Rajasthan: India's Enchanted Land by Raghubir Singh. 1981. BR Jan 82:25
Report from Milan: The '30s: Art and Culture in Italy. Oct 82:43-47
Richard Haas: An Architecture of Illusion by Richard Haas. 1981. BR Mar 82:25

KIRILI, Alain.
Lingaistics. May 82:122-127

KNAFO, Robert.
Nicholas Nixon at Light gallery, New York. ER Mar 82:142

KRAUSS, Rosalind.
Contra Carmean: The Abstract Pollock. Summer 82:123-131+

KROETER, Steven W.
An Interview with Jack Tworkov. Nov 82:82-87

KUNZLE, David and Eva Cockcroft.
Report from Nicaragua. May 82:51-59

KURTZ, Bruce.
Robert Smithson at the Whitney Museum of American Art, New York. ER Apr 82:135-136

KUSPIT, Donald B.
A.R. Penck at Sonnabend gallery, New York. ER Feb 82:139
Acts of Aggression: German Painting Today. Sep 82:140-151
Agnes Martin at Pace gallery, New York. ER Jan 82:139
Andy Warhol at Castelli gallery, New York. ER Mar 82:150
Caves and Temples: Michael Singer. Apr 82:129-133
Cecile Abish's Museum of the Absurd. Jan 82:111-115
David Salle at Boone gallery and Castelli gallery, New York. ER Summer 82:142
Georg Baselitz at Fourcade gallery, New York. ER Feb 82:139-140
Ger van Elk at Goodman gallery, New York. ER Feb 82:144-145
John Torreano at Hamilton gallery, New York. ER Jan 82:138-139
Nachume Miller at A&M Artworks gallery, New York. ER Apr 82:136-137
Oyvind Fahlstrom's Political Puzzles. Apr 82:106-111
Pousette-Dart in Black and White. Feb 82:126-128
Report from Berlin: "Bildwechsel": Taking Liberties. Feb 82:43-49
Susan Shatter at Fischbach gallery, New York. ER Oct 82:135

LADERMAN, Gabriel.
Richard Chiriani at de Nagy gallery, New York. ER Oct 82:130
LIEBMANN, Lisa.
Carlo Maria Mariani at Sperone Westwater Fischer gallery, New York. ER Feb 82:143-144
Jean-Michel Basquiat at Nosei gallery, New York. ER Oct 82:131
Rainer Fetting at Boone gallery, New York. ER Feb 82:140-141
LIPPARD, Lucy R.
Art Tranquil, Art Defiant: Kes Zapkus. Summer 82:132-138
Binding/Bonding: Harmony Hammond. Apr 82:112-118
LUBELL, Ellen.
Elyn Zimmerman at Hudson River Museum, Yonkers, NY. ER May 82:139-140
Michelle Stuart at Caldwell gallery, New York. ER May 82:144
Pat Lasch at Lerner-Heller gallery and Markel gallery, New York. ER Apr 82:143-144
Rachel bas-Cohain at A.I.R. gallery, New York. ER Summer 82:147
Rosemarie Castoro at de Nagy gallery, New York. ER Jan 82:140
MCEWEN, John.
Life and Times: Gilbert & George. May 82:128-135
Report from London. Summer 82:43-45
MCFADDEN, Sarah.
Fogg Extension Gets Reprieve. Apr 82:25-33
Mia Westerlund Roosen at Castelli Greene Street gallery, New York. ER Summer 82:143-144
MADOFF, Steven Henry.
Christopher Wilmarth at the Studio for The First Amendment, New York. ER Nov 82:120
David Smith at Knoedler gallery, New York. ER Oct 82:128-129
Edda Renouf at Blum Helman gallery, New York. ER May 82:143
Jeremy Gilbert-Rolfe at Weber gallery, New York. ER Sep 82:165
Kim MacConnel at Solomon gallery, New York. ER Summer 82:144
Sending U.S. Art Abroad: Federal Ways and Means. Sep 82:10-15
William Tucker at Elkon Uptown & Downtown galleries, New York. ER Sep 82:163-164
MALLINSON, Constance.
George Rodart at Kantor gallery, Los Angeles. ER Oct 82:139
MARMER, Nancy.
The New Culture: France '82. Sep 82:115-123+
MORGAN, Robert C.
Howard Kanovitz at Rosenberg gallery, New York. ER Nov 82:124-125
MUNRO, Eleanor.
Shiva: The Armed Vision. May 82:112-121
NEWMAN, Michael.
British Sculpture: The Empirical Object. Apr 82:119-125
New Sculpture in Britain. Sep 82:104-114
Report from Mexico. Nov 82:57-67
OWENS, Craig.
Back to the Studio: exhibition of CalArts alumni. Jan 82:99-107
Bayreuth '82: Documenta 7. Sep 82:132-139+
Michael Uhlenkott and Jeffrey Vallance at LACE gallery, Los Angeles. ER Mar 82:155-156
Phantasmagoria of the Media: Dara Birnbaum. May 82:98-100
Representation, Appropriation, & Power. May 82:9-21
Sarah Charlesworth at 421 West Broadway gallery, New York. ER May 82:141
Sherrie Levine at A&M Artworks gallery, New York. ER Summer 82:148
PEARLSTEIN, Philip.
When Paintings Were Made in Heaven. Feb 82:84-95
PECK, George and Lilly Wei.
Liubov Popova: Interpretations of Space. Oct 82:94-104
PERL, Jed.
Japonisme in Art: An International Symposium by The Society for the Study of Japonisme, eds. 1980. BR Mar 82:17-19
Japonisme: The Japanese Influence on Western Art in the 19th and 20th Centuries by Siegfried Wichmann. 1981. BR Mar 82:17-19
Léger's Modern Man: Fernand Leger. May 82:88-97
Rita Baragona at Bowery gallery, New York. ER Mar 82:148
PERREAULT, John.
The Cultivated Canvas: Robert Zakanitch. Mar 82:96-101
Report from São Paulo: Crossed Signals: The 16th Bienal. May 82:37-43
PINCUS, Robert L.
Edward Kienholz and Nancy Reddin Kienholz at L.A. Louver gallery, Los Angeles. ER Jan 82:151
Jo Harvey Allen at Wyatt gallery, Los Angeles. ER Oct 82:138-139
Joe Fay at Boyd gallery, Los Angeles. ER Summer 82:149-151
PLAGENS, Peter.
Audrey Flack on Painting by Audrey Flack. 1981. BR Feb 82:21-23
King of the Confessors by Thomas Hoving. 1981. BR Apr 82:41-43
Mixed Double: "LeRoy Neiman-Andy Warhol: An Exhibition of Sports Paintings." Mar 82:9-15
The New Severity: An Interview with Hollister Grise. Oct 82:112-113
Pollock Painting by Barbara Rose, ed. 1980. BR Feb 82:21-23
Site Wars: "The Museum as Site." Jan 82:90-98
RATCLIFF, Carter.
Ad Reinhardt by Lucy Lippard. 1981. BR Jan 82:23-25
Alexander Liberman by Barbara Rose. 1981. BR Jan 82:23-25
Art & Resentment. Summer 82:9-13
"Criminal Proceedings" at The Clocktower, New York. ER Mar 82:149-150
Jules Olitski by Kenworth Moffett. 1981. BR Jan 82:23-25
Kandinsky's Book of Revelation. Dec 82:105-109+
On Iconography and Some Italians. Sep 82:152-159
Report from Chicago: The Anti-Hierarchical Dutch: "Contemporary Art from the Netherlands." Sep 82:45-49
Ruisdael's Northern Prospects. Apr 82:92-105
Terence La Noue at Hoffman gallery, New York. ER Mar 82:147-148
RATCLIFF, Carter, Hayden Herrera, Sarah McFadden and Joan Simon.
Expressionism Today: An Artists' Symposium. Dec 82:58-75+
RATCLIFF, Carter and Yve-Alain Bois.
Report from New York: And Now—A French Wave?: "Statements New York 82." Sep 82:59-63
RICKEY, Carrie.
Barry LeDoux at The Clocktower, New York. ER Jan 82:142
Ed Ruscha, Geographer. Oct 82:84-93
Studs and Polish: L.A. in the Sixties. Jan 82:80-89
RIVERS, Larry.
Joseph H. Hirshhorn, 1899–1981. Jan 82:16-17
ROBINSON, Walter.
Peter Grass at Braathen gallery, New York. ER Sep 82:162

The Thing in the South Bronx: Justin Ladda. Mar 82:135-137
ROSE, Howard.
My American Folk Art. Jan 82:116-129
ROSENBLUM, Robert.
The Meanings of Modern Art by John Russell. 1981. BR Jan 82:21-23
ROSKILL, Mark.
Orphism: The Evolution of Non-figurative Painting in Paris, 1910–1914 by Virginia Spate. 1979. BR Mar 82:19-23
Russian Avant-Garde Art: The George Costakis Collection by S. Frederick Star and Angelica Z. Rudenstine. 1981. BR Mar 82:19-23
Towards a New Art, Essays on the Background to Abstract Art 1910–20 by The Tate Gallery. 1980. BR Mar 82:19-23
RUBIN, David S.
Frederick Wight at Newspace, Los Angeles. ER Nov 82:129
Victor Henderson at Kantor gallery, Los Angeles. ER Apr 82:147-149
Vivian Kerstein at Janus gallery, Los Angeles. ER Nov 82:128-129
RUSSELL, John.
John Hay Whitney, 1904–1982. Apr 82:5
SAATCHI, Doris.
Report from Basel: A Fine Messe: Basel Art Fair. Sep 82:42-43
SACHS, Sid.
Christof Kohlhofer at Philadelphia College of Art, Philadelphia. ER May 82:146-147
SAUNDERS, Wade.
Martin Silverman at Hamilton gallery, New York. ER Mar 82:144-145
Touch and Eye: '50s Sculpture. Dec 82:90-104
SCHJELDAHL, Peter.
Postcards From Scandinavia. Sep 82:51-55
Shermanettes: Cindy Sherman. Mar 82:110-111
SCHULZE, Franz.
Collection of Architectural Designs by Karl Friedrich Schinkel. 1981. BR Nov 82:13
SELZ, Peter.
James Melchert at the Art Institute, San Francisco. ER Mar 82:153-155
Knots & Bolts: "The Art Fabric: Mainstream." Feb 82:107-115
SHANNON, Joe.
Proximate Vision: Avigdor Arikha. May 82:101-105
SHEA, Judith.
Design: Beyond Fashion: Mariano Fortuny. Nov 82:25-29
SIMON, Joan.
Neil Jenney: Event and Evidence. Summer 82:98-106
SKOGGARD, Ross.
Artists Space, Group Show at Artists Space, New York. ER Jan 82:139-140
John Seery at Gruenebaum gallery, New York. ER Mar 82:147
Judy Rifka at Alexander gallery, New York. ER Oct 82:130-131
Luis Cruz Azaceta at Frumkin gallery, New York. ER Summer 82:147-148
Lynton Wells at Solomon gallery, New York. ER Jan 82:140
Markus Lüpertz at Goodman gallery, New York. ER Feb 82:141-142,
Moments of Vision by Kenneth Clark, 1982. BR Oct 82:19
Salome at Nosei gallery, New York. ER Feb 82:140
William Anthony at Marino gallery, New York. ER Mar 82:149
SMITH, Roberta.
Multiple Returns: Donald Judd. Mar 82:112-114
SOLOMON-GODEAU, Abigail.
"In and Out of Power" at P.S. 1, New York. ER Mar 82:142-143
STEIN, Judith.
Bruce Pollock at Fuller, Philadelphia. ER Oct 82:136
John Ferris at Fleisher gallery, Philadelphia. ER Apr 82:147
Michael Berkowitz at Freidus gallery, New York. ER Jan 82:145
Red Grooms at ICA, Philadelphia. ER Dec 82:129
STIMSON, Paul.
Fictive Escapades: Douglas Huebler. Feb 82:96-99
Robert Murray at Hamilton gallery, New York. ER Nov 82:119

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

STORR, Robert.
Alice Neel at Miller gallery, New York. ER Oct 82:130
E.J. Bellocq at Freidus gallery, New York. ER Mar 82:141
Hollis Sigler at Gladstone gallery, New York. ER Apr 82:142
Jackie Ferrara at Protetch gallery, New York. ER May 82:140
Keith Haring and Frank Young at Bromm gallery, New York. ER Mar 82:144
Man Ray at Zabriskie gallery, New York. ER May 82:140-141
Manny Farber at Oil & Steel gallery, New York. ER Mar 82:139-140
William Bailey at Schoelkopf gallery, New York. ER Nov 82:124
STUCKEY, Charles F.
The Hundred Headless Woman (La Femme 100 têtes) by Max Ernst. 1981. BR Apr 82:43-47
Man Ray Photographe by Jean-Hubert Martin. 1981. BR Apr 82:43-47
Max Ernst in Köln: Die rheinische Kunstszene bis 1922 by Kolnischer Kunstverein and Rheinland-Verlag. 1980. BR Apr 82:43-47
Scrap Book 1900-1981 by Roland Penrose. 1981. BR Apr 82:43-47
TANNOUS, David.
"American Clay 1981" at The Arts gallery, Baltimore. ER Summer 82:148-149
Christopher James at Dalsheimer gallery, Baltimore. ER Apr 82:149
James Pernotto at Fendrick gallery, Washington, D.C. ER Feb 82:145-147
Michael Smallwood at Addison/Ripley gallery, Washington, D.C. ER May 82:147
Report from Washington,D.C. Summer 82:33-37
Robert McCurdy at Washington Project for the Arts, Washington, D.C. ER Mar 82:153
Scott Kesler at Grimaldis gallery, Baltimore. ER Apr 82:149-151
TARSHIS, Jerome.
"The West as Art" at the Desert Museum, Palm Springs, CA. ER Oct 82:138
TOWLE, Tony.
Adja Junkers at CDS gallery, New York. ER Sep 82:161-162
Group Show at Chinese Chance, New York. ER Jan 82:141-142
Nathan Slate Joseph at Meisel gallery, New York. ER Jan 82:140-141
Robin Bruch at Kornblee gallery, New York. ER May 82:145-146
UPSHAW, Reagan.
Brendt Berger at 55 Mercer gallery, New York. ER Mar 82:140
Charles Clough at Adler gallery, New York. ER Sep 82:164
David Rabinowitch at Oil & Steel gallery, New York. ER Oct 82:125-126
"Figuratively Sculpting" at P.S.1, New York. ER Mar 82:143
Keith Sonnier at Castelli gallery, New York. ER Dec 82:127-128
Robert Delford Brown at Kind gallery, New York. ER Apr 82:142-143
Saul Ostrow at Freidus gallery, New York. ER Jan 82:137-138
Tony DeLap at Elkon gallery, New York. ER Apr 82:141-142
Wade Saunders at Cowles gallery, New York. ER Summer 82:142-143
WEI, Lilly and George Peck.
Liubov Popova: Interpretations of Space. Oct 82:94-104
WELISH, Marjorie.
Vladimir Zakrzewski at Goodman gallery, New York. ER Jan 82:145
WESCHLER, Lawrence.
Lines of Inquiry: Robert Irwin. Mar 82:102-109
WILSON, Judith.
Raymond Saunders at Hunter gallery and Mythology gallery, New York. ER Mar 82:148-149
WOOSTER, Ann-Sargent.
Art Sounds. Feb 82:116-125
Eve Sonneman at Hudson River Museum, Yonkers, NY. ER Oct 82:126
Jackie Winsor at Cooper gallery, New York. ER Oct 82:125
Mary Lucier at the Whitney Museum of American Art, New York. ER Apr 82:138-139
William Dusenbery at the Nassau County Museum, Roslyn, NY. ER Jan 82:147-149
YAU, John.
Alun Leach-Jones at Urdang gallery, New York. ER Apr 82:142
Anna Bialabroda at Pearl gallery, New York. ER Feb 82:142-143
Forrest Bess at Whitney Museum of American Art, New York. ER Mar 82:140-141
George Grant at Parsons gallery, New York. ER Oct 82:134
Jake Grossberg at Marino gallery, New York. ER May 82:142-143
Joseph DiGiorgio at Sachs gallery, New York. ER Mar 82:151
Keith Milow at Nosei gallery, New York. ER Dec 82:124-125
Lawrence Poons at Emmerich gallery, New York. ER Oct 82: 134-135
Maud Morgan at Parsons gallery, New York. ER Sep 82:163
Neill Fearnley at Nielsen gallery, Boston. ER Sep 82:167
Thomas Hart Benton at Salander-O'Reilly gallery, New York. ER Oct 82:133
YOURGRAU, Barry.
Joseph Santore at Thorp gallery, New York. ER Apr 82:141

ARTIST/SUBJECT INDEX

ABISH, Cecile.
Cecile Abish's Museum of the Absurd by D.B. Kuspit. Jan 82:111-115
ADAM, Robert.
History Reinvented: Adam and his Heirs by M. Filler. Summer 82:86-97
ALLEN, Jo Harvey.
Wyatt gallery, Los Angeles. ER by R.L. Pincus. Oct 82:138-139
ALMARAZ, Carlos.
Simard gallery, Los Angeles. ER by P. Clothier. Mar 82:156
"AMERICAN CLAY 1981."
The Arts gallery, Baltimore. ER by D. Tannous. Summer 82:148-149
"AMERICAN FIGURATIVE EXPRESSIONISM."
Pearl gallery, New York. ER by L. Campbell. Dec 82:127
ANASTASI, William.
Ericson gallery, New York. ER by G. Henry. Sep 82:165-167
ANTHONY, William.
Marino gallery, New York. ER by R. Skoggard. Mar 82:149
ARCHITECTURE.
History Reinvented: Adam and his Heirs by M. Filler. Summer 82:86-97
On Corbusier and Corbusiana by M. Filler. Mar 82:120-134
Richard Neutra: Domesticated Modern by M. Filler. Nov. 82:93-105
ARIKHA, Avigdor.
Proximate Vision by J. Shannon. May 82:101-105
"THE ART FABRIC: MAINSTREAM."
Knots & Bolts by P. Selz. Feb 82:107-115
ART FAIRS.
See BASEL ART FAIR
DOCUMENTA
SÃO PAULO BIENAL
VENICE BEINNALE
ARTISTS SPACE, GROUP SHOW.
Artists Space, New York. ER by R. Skoggard. Jan 82:139-140
AZACETA, Luis Cruz.
Frumkin gallery, New York. ER by R. Skoggard. Summer 82:147-148
BAILEY, William.
Schoelkopf gallery, New York. ER by R. Storr. Nov 82:124
BAO, Yee Jan.
N.A.M.E. gallery, Chicago. ER by M. Bonesteel. Oct 82:136-137
BARAGONA, Rita.
Bowery gallery, New York. ER by J. Perl. Mar 82:148
BARRÉ, Martin.
Strategies of Concealment by Y.-A. Bois. Apr 82:126-128
BAS-COHAIN, Rachel.
A.I.R. gallery, New York. ER by E. Lubell. Summer 82:147
BASEL ART FAIR.
Report from Basel: A Fine Messe: Basel Art Fair by D. Saatchi. Sep 82:42-43
BASELITZ, Georg.
Fourcade gallery, New York. ER by D.B. Kuspit. Feb 82:139-140
BASQUIAT, Jean-Michel.
Nosei gallery, New York. ER by L. Liebmann. Oct 82:131
BELLOCQ, E.J.
Freidus gallery, New York. ER by R. Storr. Mar 82:141
BENTON, Thomas Hart.
Salander-O'Reilly gallery, New York. ER by J. Yau. Oct 82:133
BERGER, Brendt.
55 Mercer gallery, New York. ER by R. Upshaw. Mar 82:140
BERKOWITZ, Michael.
Freidus gallery, New York. ER by J. Stein. Jan 82:145
BERLANT, Tony.
Contemporary Arts Museum, Houston. ER by S. Kalil. Dec 82:129
BERNINI, Gianlorenzo.
Working Notes: Bernini's Drawings: "Drawings by Gianlorenzo Bernini" by R.M. Adams. Oct 82:105-111
BERTHOT, Jake.
McKee gallery, New York. ER by E. Frank. Nov 82:120-121
BESS, Forrest.
Whitney Museum of American Art, New York. ER by J. Yau. Mar 82:140-141
BIALA.
Gruenebaum gallery, New York. ER by E. Frank. Jan 82:141
BIALABRODA, Anna.
Pearl gallery, New York. J. Yau. Feb 82:142-143
BIRNBAUM, Dara.
Phantasmagoria of the Media by C. Owens. May 82:98-100
BITTLEMAN, Arnold.
Milliken gallery, New York. ER by L. Campbell. May 82:143
BLUM, Andrea.
Artpark, Lewiston, NY. ER by R. Berlind. Nov 82:125
BOCHNER, Mel and James Casebere.
Sonnabend gallery, New York. ER by H. Foster. Oct 82:132-133
BRITAIN-ART.
New Sculpture in Britain by M. Newman. Sep 82:104-114
BROWN, Robert Delford.
Kind gallery, New York. ER by R. Upshaw. Apr 82:142-143
BRUCH, Robin.
Kornblee gallery, New York. ER by T. Towle. May 82:145-146
BURNS, Marsha.
Glover/Hayes gallery, Seattle. ER by M. Kangas. Dec 82:128-129
BUTTERFIELD, Deborah.
ARCO Center, Los Angeles. ER by P. Clothier. Mar 82:155
CALDERARO, Al.
Concord Contemporary Art gallery, New York. ER by B. Adams. Apr 82:143
CASABERE, James and Mel Bochner.
Sonnabend gallery, New York. ER by H. Foster. Oct 82:132-133

CASTORO, Rosemarie.
De Nagy gallery, New York. ER by E. Lubell. Jan 82:140
CHARLESWORTH, Sarah.
421 West Broadway gallery, New York. ER by C. Owens. May 82:141
CHINA-ART.
When Paintings Were Made in Heaven by P. Pearlstein. Feb 82:84-95
CHINESE CHANCE, GROUP SHOW.
Chinese Chance, New York. ER by T. Towle. Jan 82:141-142
CHIRIANI, Richard.
De Nagy gallery, New York. ER by G. Laderman. Oct 82:130
CLEARY, Manon.
Iolas/Jackson gallery, New York. ER by G. Henry. Summer 82:146-147
CLOUGH, Charles.
Adler gallery, New York. ER by R. Upshaw. Sep 82:164
"CRIMINAL PROCEEDINGS."
The Clocktower, New York. ER by C. Ratcliff. Mar 82:149-150
CRITICISM/THEORY-OVERVIEWS.
Art & Resentment by C. Ratcliff. Summer 82:9-13
The Avant Garde Is Dead! Long Live the Avant Garde! by D. Davis. Apr 82:11-19
Between Modernism and the Media by H. Foster. Summer 82:13-17
The Problem of Pluralism by H. Foster. Jan 82:9-15
Representation, Appropriation and Power by C. Owens. May 82:9-21
"CURATOR'S CHOICE: A TRIBUTE TO DOROTHY MILLER."
Esman gallery, New York. ER by L. Campbell. May 82:145
DAY, Lucien.
Blue Mountain gallery, New York. ER by L. Campbell. Nov 82:121-122
DEARCANGELIS, Gloria.
Sutton gallery, Seattle. ER by M. Kangas. Nov 82:127
DE KOONING, Willem.
Fourcade gallery, New York. ER by L. Campbell. Sep 82:161
DELAP, Tony.
Elkon gallery, New York. ER by R. Upshaw. Apr 82:141-142
"DE STIJL: 1917-1931, VISIONS OF UTOPIA."
The De Stijl Idea by Y.-A. Bois. Nov 82:106-117
DETROIT-ART.
Report from Detroit: Was Cass Corridor a Style? by R. Armstrong. Feb 82:34-39
DIAMOND, Martha.
Alexander gallery, New York. ER by G. Henry. Dec 82:124
DIGIORGIO, Joseph.
Sachs gallery, New York. ER by J. Yau. Mar 82:151
DOCUMENTA.
Bayreuth '82: Documenta 7 by C. Owens. Sep 82:132-139+
Kassel Redux: A History of Documenta by D. Galloway. Sep 82:7-10
DOUGLAS, L.J.
N.A.M.E. gallery, Chicago. ER by M. Bonesteel. Jan 82:151
DOWNEY, Juan.
Schlesinger-Boisanté gallery, New York. ER by J. Ballerini. Nov 82:123-124
DREXLER, Sherman, Jim Richmond and David Rohn.
Hutchinson gallery, New York. ER by G. Henry. Sep 82:163
DUSENBERY, William.
Nassau County Museum, Roslyn, NY. ER by A.-S. Wooster. Jan 82:147-149
EUROPE-ART.
Editorial: The "Return" of European Art by E.C. Baker. Sep 82:5
EXPRESSIONISM.
Content by Contradiction: German Expressionist Art by D.E. Gordon. Dec 82:76-89
Editorial: How Expressionist Is It? by E.C. Baker. Dec 82:5
Expressionism Today: An Artists' Symposium by C. Ratcliff, H. Herrera, S. McFadden and J. Simon. Dec 82:58-75+
Figuration in the '40s: The Other Expressionism by P. Halasz. Dec 82:110-119+
FAHLSTROM, Oyvind.
Oyvind Fahlstrom's Political Puzzles by D.B. Kuspit. Apr 82:106-111
FALKENSTEIN, Claire.
Neill gallery, New York. ER by L. Campbell. Mar 82:147
FARBER, Manny.
Oil & Steel, New York. ER by R. Storr. Mar 82:139-140
FAY, Joe.
Boyd gallery, Los Angeles. ER by R.L. Pincus. Summer 82:149-151
FEARNLEY, Neill.
Nielsen gallery, Boston. ER by J. Yau. Sep 82:167
FERRARA, Jackie.
Protetch gallery, New York. ER by R. Storr. May 82:140
FERRIS, John.
Fleisher gallery, Philadelphia. ER by J. Stein. Apr 82:147
FETTING, Rainer.
Boone gallery, New York. ER by L. Liebmann. Feb 82:140-141
"FIGURATIVELY SCULPTING."
P.S.1, New York. ER by R. Upshaw. Mar 82:143
FISHMAN, Louise.
Oscarsson Hood gallery, New York. ER by E. Frank. Nov 82:122
"FOCUS ON THE FIGURE: TWENTY YEARS."
Whitney Museum of American Art, New York. ER by R. Berlind. Oct 82:133-134
FOLK ART.
My American Folk Art by H. Rose. Jan 82:116-129
FORD, Hermine.
Toll gallery, New York. ER by E. Frank. Mar 82:147
FORTUNY, Mariano.
Design: Beyond Fashion: Mariano Fortuny by J. Shea. Nov 82:25-29
FOSS, Cornelia.
Berry Hill gallery, New York. ER by L. Campbell. Feb 82:145
FOUR PAINTERS.
The Contemporary Arts Museum, Houston. ER by S. Kalil. Apr 82:144-145
FRANCE-ART.
Free French by C. Francblin. Sep 82:128-131
The New Culture: France '82 by N. Marmer. Sep 82:115-123+
Provincial Roundup: French regional art institutions by G. Apgar. Sep 82:124-127
Report from New York: And Now—A French Wave?: "Statements New York 82" by C. Ratcliff and Y.-A. Bois. Sep 82:59-63
Report from Paris by M. Brenson. Summer 82:27-29
Report from Paris: "Baroques 81": The Old New by Y.-A. Bois. Jan 82:34-35
FRANKENTHALER, Helen.
Specific Incidents by J. Elderfield. Feb 82:100-106
FRIEDMAN, Arnold.
Zabriskie gallery, New York. ER by L. Campbell. Mar 82:148
FUENTE, Larry.
The Clocktower, New York. ER by J. Crary. Nov 82:122-123
GARDNER, Ann.
Rubin/Mardin gallery, Seattle. ER by M. Kangas. Oct 82:137
GERMANY-ART.
Acts of Aggression: German Painting Today by D.B. Kuspit. Sep 82:140-151
Content by Contradiction: German Expressionist Art by D.E. Gordon. Dec 82:76-89
Report from Berlin: "Bildwechsel": Taking Liberties by D.B. Kuspit. Feb 82:43-49
GILBERT & GEORGE.
Life and Times: Gilbert & George by J. McEwen. May 82:128-135
GILBERT-ROLFE, Jeremy.
Weber gallery, New York. ER by S.H. Madoff. Sep 82:165
GILLESPIE, Gregory.
Forum gallery, New York. ER by G. Henry. Mar 82:151-153
GOHLKE, Frank.
Light gallery, New York. ER by P. Karmel. Dec 82:128
GOLDEN, Deven.
Lurie gallery, Chicago. ER by M. Bonesteel. Sep 82:167
GOVERNMENT AND ART.
Sending U.S. Art Abroad: Federal Ways and Means by S.H. Madoff. Sep 82:10-15
GRAFFITI.
Report from New York: The Graffiti Question by S. Gablik. Oct 82:33-39
GRAHAM, Robert.
Miller gallery, New York. ER by G. Henry. Apr 82:137-138
GRANT, George.
Parsons gallery, New York. ER by J. Yau. Oct 82:134
GRASS, Peter.
Braathen gallery, New York. ER by W. Robinson. Sept 82:162
GREAT BRITAIN-ART.
British Sculpture: The Empirical Object by M. Newman. Apr 82:119-125
New Sculpture in Britain by M. Newman. Summer 82:104-114
Report from London by J. McEwen. Summer 82:43-45
GREENAMYER, George.
Neill gallery, New York. ER by J. Baker. Jan 82:145-147
GREENE, Balcomb.
A.C.A. gallery, New York. ER by L. Campbell. Oct 82:131-132
GROOMS, Red.
ICA, Philadelphia. ER by J. Stein. Dec 82:129
GROSSBERG, Jake.
Marino gallery, New York. ER by J. Yau. May 82:142-143
HAMMOND, Harmony.
Binding/Bonding by L.R. Lippard. Apr 82:112-118
HANSEN, Gaylen.
Knowlton gallery, New York. ER by G. Henry. Jan 82:145
HANSON, David.
Pfeifer gallery, New York. ER by P. Karmel. Oct 82:127
HARDING, John.
Indian Valley Colleges, San Francisco. ER by H. Junker. Nov 82:126
HARING, Keith.
Bromm gallery, New York. ER by R. Storr. Mar 82:144
HASCALL, Mike.
Rosco Louie gallery, Seattle. ER by M. Kangas. Oct 82:137-138
HELD, Al.
Miller gallery, New York. ER by L. Campbell. Sep 82:164-165
HÉLION, Jean.
Miller gallery, New York. ER by L. Campbell. Jan 82:143-145
HENDERSON, Victor.
Kantor gallery, Los Angeles. ER by D.S. Rubin. Apr 82:147-149
HENNESSY, Richard.
Hamilton gallery, New York. ER by B. Adams. Dec 82:125-126

VOL
71
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

HIRSHHORN, Joseph H.
Joseph H. Hirshhorn, 1899–1981 by L. Rivers. Jan 82:16-17
HOLT, Nancy.
Nancy Holt, Siteseer by T. Castle. Mar 82:84-91
HOLZER, Jenny and Barbara Kruger.
Subversive Signs by H. Foster. Nov 82:88-92
HSIEH, Sam.
At large in New York City. ER by B. Kahn. Summer 82:145-146
HUEBLER, Douglas.
Fictive Escapades by P. Stimson. Feb 82:96-99
HUMOR.
The New Severity: An Interview with Hollister Grise by P. Plagens. Oct 82:112-113
"HUMOR IN ART."
Westward Ha! by W. Gabrielson. Jan 82:108-110
HURSON, Michael.
Arch Limner: Michael Hurson by P. Carlson. Summer 82:107-109
"IN AND OUT OF POWER."
P.S.1, New York. ER by A. Solomon-Godeau. Mar 82:142-143
INDIA-ART.
Lingaistics by A. Kirili. May 82:122-127
Shiva: The Armed Vision by E. Munro. May 82:112-121
IRWIN, Robert.
Lines of Inquiry by L. Weschler. Mar 82:102-109
ITALY-ART.
On Iconography and Some Italians by C. Ratcliff. Sep 82:152-159
Report from Milan: The '30s: Art and Culture in Italy by P. Karmel. Oct 82:43-47
JACKSON, Harry.
Smith gallery, New York. ER by G. Henry. Jan 82:147
JACQUET, Alain.
Galerie de France, Paris. ER by M. Brenson. Feb 82:147
JACQUETTE, Yvonne.
Alexander gallery, New York. ER by R. Berlind. Oct 82:135-136
JAMES, Christopher.
Dalsheimer gallery, Baltimore. ER by D. Tannous. Apr 82:149
JENNEY, Neil.
Neil Jenney: Event and Evidence by J. Simon. Summer 82:98-106
JOHNSON, Lester.
Gimpel & Weitzenhoffer, New York. ER by L. Campbell. Summer 82:144-145
JOSEPH, Nathan Slate.
Meisel gallery, New York. ER by T. Towle. Jan 82:140-141
JUAREZ, Roberto.
Miller gallery, New York. ER by K. Howarth. Summer 82:147
JUDD, Donald.
Multiple Returns by R. Smith. Mar 82:112-114
JUNKERS, Adja.
CDS gallery, New York. ER by T. Towle. Sep 82:161-162
KANDINSKY, Wassily.
Kandinsky's Book of Revelation by C. Ratcliff. Dec 82:105-109+
KANOVITZ, Howard.
Rosenberg gallery, New York. ER by R.C. Morgan. Nov 82:124-125
KATZ, Alex.
Marlborough gallery, New York. ER by R. Berlind. May 82:143-144
KERSTEIN, Vivian.
Janus gallery, Los Angeles. ER by D.S. Rubin. Nov 82:128-129
KESLER, Scott.
Grimaldis gallery, Baltimore. ER by D. Tannous. Apr 82:149-151
KIENHOLZ, Edward and Nancy Reddin Kienholz.
L.A. Louver gallery, Los Angeles. ER by R.L. Pincus. Jan 82:151
KITAJ, R.B.
R.B. Kitaj: Hunger and Love by J. Ashbery. Jan 82:130-135
KLEMENT, Vera.
CDS gallery, New York. ER by P. Carlson. Jan 82:142-143
KOBERLING, Bernd.
Nosei gallery, New York. ER by H. Foster. Summer 82:145
KOELBL, Herlinde.
New School/Parsons Photography gallery, New York. ER by P. Karmel. Oct 82:127-128
KOHLHOFER, Christof.
Philadelphia College of Art, Philadelphia. ER by S. Sachs. May 82:146-147
KORTH, Fred.
Pfeifer gallery, New York. ER by A. Ellenzweig. Oct 82:126-127
KOSSOFF, Leon.
L.A. Louver, Los Angeles. ER by P. Clothier. Nov 82:129
KRASNER, Lee.
Tandem Paint: Krasner/Pollock by P. Brach. Mar 82:92-95
KRUGER, Barbara and Jenny Holzer.
Subversive Signs by H. Foster. Nov 82:88-92
LADDA, Justin.
The Thing in the South Bronx by W. Robinson. Mar 82:135-137
LA NOUE, Terence.
Hoffman gallery, New York. ER by C. Ratcliff. Mar 82:147-148
LASCH, Pat.
Lerner-Heller gallery and Markel gallery, New York. ER by E. Lubell. Apr 82:143-144
LEACH-JONES, Alun.
Urdang gallery, New York. ER by J. Yau. Apr 82:142
LE CORBUSIER.
On Corbusier and Corbusiana by M. Filler. Mar 82:120-134
LEDOUX, Barry.
The Clocktower, New York. ER by C. Rickey. Jan 82:142
LÉGER, Fernand.
Léger's Modern Man by J. Perl. May 82:88-97
LERMAN, Ora.
P, M & Stein gallery, New York. ER by L. Campbell. Nov 82:121
LEVINE, Sherrie.
A&M Artworks, New York. ER by C. Owens. Summer 82:148
LOS ANGELES-ART.
Back to the Studio: exhibition of CalArts alumni by C. Owens. Jan 82:99-107
Site Wars: "The Museum As Site" by P. Plagens. Jan 82:90-98
Studs and Polish: L.A. in the Sixties by C. Rickey. Jan 82:80-89
Westward Ha!: "Humor in Art" by W. Gabrielson. Jan 82:108-110
LUCIER, Mary.
Whitney Museum of American Art, New York. ER by A.-S. Wooster. Apr 82:138-139
LUNDIN, Norman.
Seders gallery, Seattle. ER by R. Glowen. Nov. 82:128
LÜPERTZ, Markus.
Goodman gallery, New York. ER by R. Skoggard. Feb 82:141-142
LYNES, George Platt.
Miller gallery, New York. ER by A. Ellenzweig. Mar 82:141-142
MACCONNEL, Kim.
Solomon gallery, New York. ER by S.H. Madoff. Summer 82:144
MCCURDY, Robert.
Washington Project for the Arts, Washington, D.C. ER by D. Tannous. Mar 82:153
MAN RAY.
Zabriskie gallery, New York. ER by R. Storr. May 82:140-141
MARIANI, Carlo Maria.
Sperone Westwater Fischer gallery, New York. ER by L. Liebmann. Feb 82:143-144
MARTIN, Agnes.
Pace gallery, New York. ER by D.B. Kuspit. Jan 82:139
MASSON, André.
Del Re gallery, New York. ER by L. Campbell. Mar 82:150-151
MELCHERT, James.
Art Institute, San Francisco. ER by P. Selz. Mar 82:153-155
MEXICO-ART.
Report from Mexico by M. Newman. Nov 82:57-67
MILLER, Nachume.
A&M Artworks, New York. ER by D.B. Kuspit. Apr 82:136–137
MILNE, David.
Center for Inter-American Relations, New York. ER by L. Campbell. Dec 82:127
MILOW, Keith.
Nosei gallery, New York. ER by J. Yau. Dec 82:124-125
MITCHELL, Katherine.
Atlanta College of Art, Atlanta. ER by J. Howett. Jan 82:149
MORGAN, Maud.
Parsons gallery, New York. ER by J. Yau. Sep 82:163
MORPHESIS, Jim.
Traction gallery, Los Angeles. ER by P. Clothier. Summer 82:149
MUELLER, Stephen.
Nosei gallery, New York. ER by B. Adams. Dec 82:123-124
MURRAY, Robert.
Hamilton gallery, New York. ER by P. Stimson. Nov 82:119
MUSEUMS.
Fogg Extension Gets Reprieve by S. McFadden. Apr 82:25-33
NEEL, Alice.
Miller gallery, New York. ER by R. Storr. Oct 82:130
NEIGHBORHOOD ART.
Grass Roots Vanguard by D. Adams and A. Goldbard. Apr 82:21-25
NEIMAN, LeRoy.
Mixed Double: "LeRoy Neiman-Andy Warhol: An Exhibition of Sports Paintings" by P. Plagens. Mar 82:9-15
NELSON, Dona.
Oscarsson Hood gallery, New York. ER by K. Howarth. Dec 82:126-127
NETHERLANDS-ART.
Report from Chicago: The Anti-Hierarchical Dutch: "Contemporary Art from the Netherlands" by C. Ratcliff. Sep 82:45-49
NEUTRA, Richard.
Richard Neutra: Domesticated Modern by M. Filler. Nov 82:93-105
"NEW RUSSIAN WAVE."
Contemporary Russian Art Center, New York. ER by J.E. Bowlt. Apr 82:139-140
NEW ZEALAND-ART.
Report from New Zealand by S. Gablik. Mar 82:35-41
NEWMAN, Margaret.
Durham gallery, Santa Fe. ER by D.L. Bell. Nov 82:125
NICARAGUA-ART.
Report from Nicaragua by E. Cockcroft and D. Kunzle. May 82:51-59
NIXON, Nicholas.
Light gallery, New York. ER by R. Knafo. Mar 82:142
ORKIN, Ruth.
Witkin gallery, New York. ER by A. Ellenzweig. Apr 82:139
OSTROW, Saul.
Freidus gallery, New York. ER by R. Upshaw. Jan 82:137-138
PALMER, William C.
Midtown gallery, New York. ER by L. Campbell. Mar 82:151
PASCHKE, Ed.
The Progress of Ed Paschke by B. Adams. Oct 82:114-122
PENCK, A.R.
Sonnabend gallery, New York. ER by D.B. Kuspit. Feb 82:139
PERNOTTO, James.
Fendrick gallery, Washington, D.C. ER by D. Tannous. Feb 82:145-147

PHOTOGRAPHY.
Raising a Hue: The New Color by P. Karmel. Jan 82:27-31
Space Shots: "The Photography of Space Exploration" by S. Cook. Feb 82:129-137
Urban Disjunctions by P. Karmel. Mar 82:45-49

POLITICAL ACTION AND ART.
Art for the Freeze by E. Cockcroft. Oct 82:9-13
Report from Nicaragua by E. Cockcroft and D. Kunzle. May 82:51-59

POLLOCK, Bruce.
Fuller gallery, Philadelphia. ER by J. Stein. Oct 82:136

POLLOCK, Jackson.
The Church Project: Pollock's Passion Themes by E.A. Carmean, Jr. Summer 82:110-122
Contra Carmean: The Abstract Pollock by R. Krauss. Summer 82:123-131+
Tandem Paint: Krasner/Pollock by P. Brach. Mar 82:92-95

POONS, Lawrence.
Emmerich gallery, New York. ER by J. Yau. Oct 82:134-135

POPOVA, Liubov.
Liubov Popova: Interpretations of Space by G. Peck and L. Wei. Oct 82:94-104

POUSETTE-DART, Richard.
Pousette-Dart in Black and White by D.B. Kuspit. Feb 82:126-128

PRINCE, Richard.
Metro Pictures, New York. ER by D. Deitcher. Summer 82:144

RABINOWITCH, David.
Oil & Steel, New York. ER by R. Upshaw. Oct 82:125-126

"REALISM AND REALITIES: THE OTHER SIDE OF AMERICAN PAINTING 1940–1960."
Report from New Brunswick: Representational Painting in the U.S.: 1940-60 by J. Baker. Nov 82:19-23

REGIONAL REPORTS.
See CHINA-ART
DETROIT-ART EUROPE-ART
FRANCE-ART
GERMANY-ART
GREAT BRITAIN-ART
INDIA-ART
ITALY-ART
LOS ANGELES-ART
MEXICO-ART
NEW ZEALAND-ART
NETHERLANDS-ART
NICARAGUA-ART
SCANDINAVIA-ART
WASHINGTON, D.C.-ART

RENOUF, Edda.
Blum Helman gallery, New York. ER by S.H. Madoff. May 82:143

RIFKA, Judy.
Alexander gallery, New York. ER by R. Skoggard. Oct 82:130-131

ROBINSON, Walter.
Metro Pictures, New York. ER by B. Adams. May 82:144-145

ROCKBURNE, Dorothea.
Fourcade gallery, New York. ER by E. Frank. Jan 82:138

RODART, George.
Kantor gallery, Los Angeles. ER by C. Mallinson. Oct 82:139

ROOSEN, Mia Westerlund.
Castelli Greene St., New York. ER by S. McFadden. Summer 82:143-144

RUBINFIEN, Leo.
Castelli Graphics, New York. ER by P. Carlson. Mar 82:146

RUISDAEL, Jacob van.
Ruisdael's Northern Prospects by C. Ratcliff. Apr 82:92-105

RUSCHA, Ed.
Ed Ruscha, Geographer by C. Rickey. Oct 82:84-93

SALLE, David.
Boone gallery and Castelli gallery, New York. ER by D.B. Kuspit. Summer 82:142

SALOME.
Nosei gallery, New York. ER by R. Skoggard. Feb 82:140

SAMARAS, Lucas.
Pace gallery, New York. ER by P. Carlson. Oct 82:129

SANTORE, Joseph.
Thorp gallery, New York. ER by B. Yourgrau. Apr 82:141

SÃO PAULO BIENAL.
Report from Sao Paulo: Crossed Signals: The 16th Bienal by J. Perreault. May 82:37-43

SAUNDERS, Raymond.
Hunter gallery and Mythology gallery, New York. ER by J. Wilson. Mar 82:148-149

SAUNDERS, Wade.
Cowles gallery, New York. ER by R. Upshaw. Summer 82:142-143

SCANDINAVIA-ART.
Postcards From Scandinavia by P. Schjeldahl. Sep 82:51-55

SCHAPIRO, Miriam.
Formal Sentiments by E. Frank. May 82:106-111

SCULPTURE-1950s.
Touch and Eye: '50s Sculpture by W. Saunders. Dec 82:82:90-104

SEERY, John.
Gruenebaum gallery, New York. ER by R. Skoggard. Mar 82:147

SEVERISM.
The New Severity: An Interview with Hollister Grise by P. Plagens. Oct 82:112-113

SHATTER, Susan.
Fischbach gallery, New York. ER by D.B. Kuspit. Oct 82:135

SHERMAN, Cindy.
Shermanettes by P. Schjeldahl. Mar 82:110-111

SIGLER, Hollis.
Gladstone gallery, New York. ER by R. Storr. Apr 82:142

SILVERMAN, Martin.
Hamilton gallery, New York. ER by W. Saunders. Mar 82:144-145

SIMPSON, Buster.
Western Front gallery, Vancouver, Canada. ER by M. Kangas. Jan 82:149-151

SINGER, Michael.
Caves and Temples by D.B. Kuspit. Apr 82:129-133

SITE-SPECIFIC ART.
Site Wars: "The Museum as Site" by P. Plagens. Jan 82:90-98

SMALLWOOD, Michael.
Addison/Ripley, Washington, D.C. ER by D. Tannous. May 82:147

SMITH, David.
Knoedler gallery, New York. ER by S.H. Madoff. Oct 82:128-129

SMITH, Michael.
Whitney Museum of American Art, New York. ER by S. Cook. May 82:141-142

SMITHSON, Robert.
Whitney Museum of American Art, New York. ER by B. Kurtz. Apr 82:135-136

SNYDER, Joan.
Hamilton gallery, New York. ER by G. Henry. Summer 82:141-142

SONNEMAN, Eve.
Hudson River Museum, Yonkers, NY. ER by A.-S. Wooster. Oct 82:126

SONNIER, Keith.
Castelli gallery, New York. ER by R. Upshaw. Dec 82:127-128

SOUND IN ART.
Art Sounds by A.-S. Wooster. Feb 82:116-125

SPAFFORD, Michael.
Seattle Art Museum, Seattle. ER by M. Kangas. Nov 82:126-127

STATOM, Therman.
Rubin/Mardin, Seattle. ER by R. Glowen. Nov 82:127

STEIR, Pat.
Protetch gallery, New York. ER by E. Frank. Mar 82:143-144

STELLA, Frank.
Knoedler gallery, New York. ER by H. Foster. Feb 82:142

STERNFELD, Joel.
Wolf gallery, New York. ER by P. Karmel. Feb 82:143

STUART, Michelle.
Caldwell gallery, New York. ER by E. Lubell. May 82:144

SULTAN, Altoon.
Marlborough gallery, New York. ER by G. Henry. Apr 82:140

TETHEROW, Michael.
Bonlow gallery, New York. ER by E. Frank. Apr 82:144

TORREANO, John.
Hamilton gallery, New York. ER by D.B. Kuspit. Jan 82:138-139

TUCKER, William.
Elkon gallery Uptown & Downtown, New York. ER by S.H. Madoff. Sep 82:163-164

TWOMBLY, Cy.
Sperone Westwater Fischer, New York. ER by J. Ballerini. Nov 82:124

TWORKOV, Jack.
An Interview with Jack Tworkov by S.W. Kroeter. Nov 82:82-87

UHLENKOTT, Michael.
LACE gallery, Los Angeles. ER by C. Owens. Mar 82:155-156

VALLANCE, Jeffrey.
LACE gallery, Los Angeles. ER by C. Owens. Mar 82:155-156

VAN ELK, Ger.
Goodman gallery, New York. ER by D.B. Kuspit. Feb 82:144-145

VENICE BIENNALE 1982.
Report From Venice: Art as Art: The Persistence of the Biennale by M. Gendel. Sep 82:33-39

VERKERK, Emo.
Goodman gallery, New York. ER by P. Carlson. Apr 82:138

VIALLAT, Claude.
Centre Pompidou, Paris. ER by C. Gintz. Dec 82:129-131

VIGÉE LE BRUN, Elisabeth Louise.
Privileged Portraits: Vigée Le Brun by B. Adams. Nov 82:74-81

VYTLACIL, Vaclav.
Diamond gallery, New York. ER by L. Campbell. Mar 82:145

WARHOL, Andy.
Castelli gallery, New York. ER by D.B. Kuspit. Mar 82:150
Mixed Double: "LeRoy Neiman-Andy Warhol: An Exhibition of Sports Paintings" by P. Plagens. Mar 82:9-15

WASHINGTON, D.C.-ART.
Report from Washington, D.C. by D. Tannous. Summer 82:33-37

WELLS, Lynton.
Solomon gallery, New York. ER by R. Skoggard. Jan 82:140

"THE WEST AS ART."
Desert Museum, Palm Springs. ER by J. Tarshis. Oct 82:138

WHARTON, Margaret.
Museum of Contemporary Art, Chicago. ER by M. Bonesteel. Feb 82:145

WHITNEY, John Hay.
John Hay Whitney: 1904–1982 by J. Russell. Apr 82:5

WIGHT, Frederick.
Newspace, Los Angeles. ER by D.S. Rubin. Nov 82:129

WILMARTH, Christopher.
Studio for The First Amendment, New York. ER by S.H. Madoff. Nov 82:120

"WINDOW ROOM FURNITURE."
Critical Spaces by H. Foster. Mar 82:115-119

WINSOR, Jackie.
Cooper gallery, New York. ER by A.-S. Wooster. Oct 82:125

WITKIN, Jerome.
Kraushaar gallery, New York. ER by G. Henry. Apr 82:137

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

YEKTAI, Manoucher.
Rosenberg gallery, New York. ER by L. Campbell. Feb 82:144

YOAKUM, Joseph E.
Hammer & Hammer/American Folk Art gallery, Chicago. ER by M. Bonesteel. Nov 82:125-126

YOUNG, Frank.
Bromm gallery, New York. ER by R. Storr. Mar 82:144

ZAKANITCH, Robert.
The Cultivated Canvas by J. Perreault. Mar 82:96-101

ZAKRZEWSKI, Vladimir.
Goodman gallery, New York. ER by M. We[illegible] Jan 82:145

ZAPKUS, Kes.
Art Tranquil, Art Defiant: Kes Zapkus by L.R. Lippard. Summer 82:132-138

ZIEVE, Mike.
Lurie gallery, Chicago. ER by M. Bonesteel. Apr 82:151

ZIMMERMAN, Elyn.
Hudson River Museum, Yonkers, NY. ER by E. Lubell. May 82:139-140

REVIEW INDEX

ASHTON, Dore.
American Art Since 1945. 1982. D. Bourdon. Oct 82:17-19

BOWLT, John E. and Rose-Carol Washton Long.
The Life of Vasilii Kandinsky in Russian Art: A Study of On the Spiritual in Art. 1980. J. Fineberg. Dec 82:11-13+

CLARK, Kenneth.
Moments of Vision. 1982. R. Skoggard. Oct 82:19

CLAY, Jean.
Romanticism. 1981. B. Adams. Mar 82:19

DAVIDSON, Abraham A.
Early American Modernist Painting: 1910–1935. 1981. D. Bourdon. Nov. 82:11-13

ERNST, Max.
The Hundred Headless Woman (La Femme 100 têtes). 1981. C.F. Stuckey. Apr 82:43-47

FLACK, Audrey.
Audrey Flack on Painting. 1981. P. Plagens. Feb 82:21-23.

FRIED, Michael.
Absorption and Theatricality: Painting and Beholder in the Age of Diderot. 1980. D. Antin. Apr 82:35-41

HAAS, Richard.
Richard Haas: An Architecture of Illusion. 1981. P. Karmel. Mar 82:25

HAHL-KOCH, Jelena, ed.
Arnold Schönberg-Wassily Kandinsky: Briefe, Bilder und Dokumente einer aussergewöhnlichen Begegnung. 1980. J. Fineberg. Dec 82:11-13+

HIGGINS, Dick.
A Dialectic of Centuries: Notes towards a Theory of the New Arts. 1979. P. Frank. Feb 82:19-21

HOVING, Thomas.
King of the Confessors. 1981. P. Plagens. Apr 82:41-43

JUSSIM, Estelle.
Slave to Beauty: The Eccentric Life and Controversial Career of F. Holland Day, Photographer, Publisher, Aesthete. 1981. A. Ellenzweig. Feb 82:19

KANDINSKY, Wassily.
Sounds. 1981. J. Fineberg. Dec 82:11-13+

KANDINSKY, Wassily and Franz Marc, eds.
Der Blaue Reiter (facsimile re-edition of the "luxus Ausgabe", 1912). 1976. J. Fineberg. Dec 82:11-13+

KAYSER, Alex.
Artists' Portraits. 1981. A. Ellenzweig. Nov 82:11

KIDDER SMITH, G.E.
The Architecture of the United States; Vol. 1: New England and the Mid-Atlantic States, Vol. 2: The South and Midwest, Vol. 3: The Plains States and Far West. 1981. M. Filler. Summer 82:21

KOLNISCHER KUNSTVEREIN and Rheinland-Verlag.
Max Ernst in Köln: Die rheinische Kunstszene bis 1922. 1980. C.F. Stuckey. Apr 82:43-47

LE BRIS, Michel.
Romantics and Romanticism. 1981. B. Adams. Mar 82:19

LINDSAY, Kenneth C. and Peter Vergo, eds.
Kandinsky: Complete Writings on Art. 1982. J. Fineberg. Dec 82:11-13+

LIPPARD, Lucy.
Ad Reinhardt. 1981. C. Ratcliff. Jan 82:23-25

MARK, Mary Ellen.
Falkland Road: Prostitutes of Bombay. 1981. P. Karmel. Jan 82:25

MARTIN, Jean-Hupert.
Man Ray Photographe. 1981. C.F. Stuckey. Apr 82:43-47

MOFFETT, Kenworth.
Jules Olitski. 1981. C. Ratcliff. Jan 82:23-25

NAMUTH, Hans.
Artists 1950–81, A Personal View. 1981. A. Ellenzweig. Nov 82:11

PENROSE, Roland.
Scrap Book 1900–1981. 1981. C.F. Stuckey. Apr 82:43-47

ROETHEL, Hans K. and Jean K. Benjamin.
Kandinsky. 1979. J. Fineberg. Dec 82:11-13+

ROETHEL, H.K. and Jelena Hahl-Koch, eds.
Kandinsky, Die Gesammelten Schriften, Band 1, Autobiographische Schriften. 1980. J. Fineberg. Dec 82:11-13+

ROSE, Barbara.
Alexander Liberman. 1981. C. Ratcliff. Jan 82:23-25

ROSE, Barbara, ed.
Pollock Painting. 1980. P. Plagens. Feb 82:21-23

RUSSELL, John.
The Meanings of Modern Art. 1981. R. Rosenblum. Jan 82:21-23

SCHINKEL, Karl Friedrich.
Collection of Architectural Designs. 1981. F. Schulze. Nov 82:13

SELZ, Peter.
Art in Our Times: A Pictorial History 1890-1980. 1981. D. Bourdon. Oct 82:17-19

SHAW, Irwin.
Paris/Magnum: Photographs 1935–1981. 1981. A. Ellenzweig. Oct 82:19

SINGH, Raghubir.
Rajasthan: India's Enchanted Land. 1981. P. Karmel. Jan 82:25

SNYDER, Joel.
American Frontiers: The Photographs of Timothy H. O'Sullivan, 1867–1874. 1981. P. Karmel. Mar 82:23-25

(THE) SOCIETY FOR THE STUDY OF JAPONISME, eds.
Japonisme in Art: An International Symposium. 1980. J. Perl. Mar 82:17-19

SPATE, Virginia.
Orphism: The Evolution of Non-figurative Painting in Paris, 1910–1914. 1979. M. Roskill. Mar 82:19-23

STAR, S. Frederick and Angelica Z. Rudenstine.
Russian Avant-Garde Art: The George Costakis Collection. 1981. M. Roskill. Mar 82:19-23

(THE) TATE GALLERY.
Towards a New Art, Essays on the Background to Abstract Art 1910–20. 1980. M. Roskill. Mar 82:19-23

WASHTON LONG, Rose-Carol.
Kandinsky: The Development of An Abstract Style. 1980. J. Fineberg. Dec 82:11-13+

WEISS, Peg.
Kandinsky in Munich: The Formative Jugendstil Years. 1979. J. Fineberg. Dec 82:11-13+

WICHMANN, Siegfried.
Japonisme: The Japanese Influence on Western Art in the 19th and 20th Centuries. 1981. J. Perl. Mar 82:17-19

Degrees In Art and Design.

United States International University's School of Performing & Visual Arts offers:
- BA Art Teaching
- BA Comprehensive Design
- BFA Television Production
- BFA & MFA Advertising Design
- BFA & MFA Design for Stage, Film and TV (interior design, fashion/costume design, and technical theatre design)

Internships and financial aid available. Write USIU, SPVA, 10455 Pomerado Road, San Diego, CA 92131. Or call (619) 693-4630.

united states international university
USIU
san diego • london • nairobi • mexico city

Accredited by the Western Association of Schools and Colleges and approved for Veterans Benefits.

Dali-Erte-Limited Editions-Sculpture

Noyer, Azoulay, Picasso

Miro-Chagall-Wyeth-Neiman

Buy Art Smart

The Art Brokerage, Inc.
300 S. 4th St., 1503
Las Vegas, Nevada 89101

Listing and Locating Service
Buy Sell or Trade

Save 25 to 50%;
Dealer Inquiries Welcome

$25.00 for computer printout
Applicable toward purchase

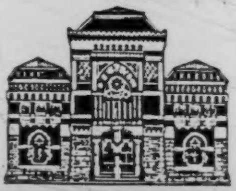
Mexican-European-American-originals

PENNSYLVANIA ACADEMY OF THE FINE ARTS

Oldest art school in America offers majors in Painting, Sculpture & Printmaking. Admission to Day school by Portfolio. Accredited by NASAD. Financial Aid available. Approved for Veterans.

Evening & Summer programs in Painting, Drawing and Sculpture.

Founded 1805



For catalog write:
PAFA, Room M,
Broad & Cherry Sts.,
Phila., PA 19102

Indianapolis Art League

Churchman-Fehsenfeld Gallery
820 E. 67th St.
Indianapolis, IN 46220
317/255-2464

- Emphasis on living Indiana and regional artists
- Regional Competition open to artists within 250 miles of Indianapolis
  Prospectus in January '84
- AAM member

Outdoor Sculpture Exhibit by

SASSON SOFFER

Summer 1983

University of Maine at Augusta

FORUM A

We'll make you work hard so you'll have an easier time getting the job you want. For information about our programs in Graphic Design, Advertising, Illustration, Fine Arts and Photography, call (617) 262-2844.

THE ART INSTITUTE OF BOSTON

700 Beacon St., Boston, MA 02215

We'll put your creativity to work.

AREA

SCULPTURE ON SHORELINE SITES
June/83-Apr/84 Manhattan Psychiatric Center, Ward's Island, NYC
M. GROSS, W. HABENICHT, Z. BEN-HAIM, H. STEINFORT, S. WILLIAMS catalogue available

AREA SCULPTURE-WARD'S ISLAND
(continuing exhibit) C. ANDRE, J. CHIRCHIRILLO, F. FICKERA, R. HARDINGER, B. HOCHHAUSEN, P. KAPLAN, S. KELTNER, J. KIRK, J. NAITO, J. SCOFIELD, B. VAADIA, V. WECHTER

SCULPTURE PARK AT CREEDMOOR
(continuing exhibit) Creedmoor Psychiatric Center, Queens Village, NYC
F. BAGLEY, J. BROSK, W. FINNERAN, R. GEBHARDT, A. GILLEN, HERA, P. JANTO, P. KAPLAN, W. KING, G. KULAK, P. LUJAN, P. MARK, N. OCIPOFF, J. OSTROWITZ, J. WATKINS, R. WHITE, J. YOUNG.

BELLEVUE HOSPITAL CENTER, NYC, CORRIDOR GALLERY
T. WATKINS (through September)
W. KING, Adjacent FDR Drive
P. KAPLAN, Environment, 1st Ave. (between 29th & 30th Sts.)

ARTISTS REPRESENTING ENVIRONMENTAL ARTS, INC.
500 East 83 St. NYC, 10028 212-288-7650

ART RESEARCH & TECHNOLOGY LTD.
Quality Casting for the Discriminating Artist

WELCOMES YOU
To Do Business With Our Firm

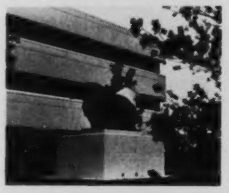
• FREE ESTIMATES •
• TELEPHONE OR MAIL •

Call: (717) 285-3751
Monday - Friday 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. (E.S.T.)
or write:
P.O. Box 4826 • Lancaster, PA 17604

PRICES
- Accurate Billing – No Surprises
- No Hidden Charges – Understandable Prices

CONVENIENT TERMS
- Master Charge or VISA
- C.O.D. Orders Accepted

FOR YOUR PROTECTION
- Foundry Stamp and Certificate with Date Casted
- Unconditional guarantee



QUALITY CASTINGS
- Editions or one-of-a-kind
- High quality materials
- Wide choice in patina
- Editions with no variation from original.

FAST SERVICE TO MEET YOUR NEEDS
Work shipped as soon as possible – time will be given.

DELIVERY – TO YOUR DOOR
For speed and economy – we ship UPS when possible.

VOL
71
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

Hiroshige I (1797–1858)
and
Toyokuni III (1786–1865)
Snowscene
"Tokaido Series"
Oban: 1854–1857

Japanese Ukiyo-e Prints
American Work In All Media
European Graphics
Appraisals
Estates Handled

Exhibition Hours:

Wed.- Sat. 1-6 PM
and by appointment

(212) SU7-4704

GLASS GALLERY
315 Central Park West, Suite 8W
(corner at 91st Street)

49TH PARALLEL
CENTRE FOR CONTEMPORARY CANADIAN ART
49E PARALLÈLE
CENTRE D'ART CONTEMPORAIN CANADIEN
420 WEST BROADWAY NEW YORK 10012
212 925-8349

Magazine and Newspaper Advertising
Books · Catalogues · Brochures · Invitations
Announcements · Posters · Stationery
Exhibition Graphics

Pauline Di Blasi Studio
Advertising and Graphic Design
210 Fifth Avenue, Rm. 801 · N.Y., N.Y. 10010 · (212) 683-2977

For Museums · Art Galleries
Private Dealers · Arts Organizations
Publishers · Corporations

Art Books
999 BOOKSHOP
Unique Collection • In-Print • Out-of-Print • Foreign Monographs • Reference • Price Guides • Oriental Porcelain • Architecture • Furniture • Interiors
Rugs/Textiles • Clocks • Gardening • Silver/Gold
CATALOGUE AVAILABLE $2 POSTPAID
999 Bookshops
999 Madison Avenue New York 10021 Tel (212) 288-9439
468 West Broadway New York 10012 Tel (212) 254-9748

PAINTINGS • SCULPTURE • PRINTS for Discerning Collectors

ARP • BOTERO • CALDER • CHAGALL • CORNELL
DEGAS • ERNST • GIACOMETTI • HEPWORTH
KISLING • KOLBE • LIPTON • MAILLOL
MAN RAY • MANZU • MARINI • MOORE
RAPOPORT • TAMAYO • VLAMINCK
ZADKIN • ZUNIGA & OTHERS

Weintraub gallery
992 Madison Ave • New York 10021
(212) 879-1195/879-1132

Jacob D. Weintraub, Director Iwo Lowy, Manager

CONTEMPORARY ART FROM TEXAS

GALLERY ONE INC
4935 Byers
(817) 737-9566 Fort Worth, Texas 76107

Valerio Adami, Karel Appel,
Theophilus Brown, Roy Carruthers,
Alan Evan Feltus, Gregory Gillespie,
R.C.Gorman, George Tooker,
Paul Wonner.

EDITIONS PRESS
915 Bryant Street, San Francisco
California, 94103 U.S.A.
Telephone: (415) 626-1846

R.C. GORMAN "Woman from South Dakota"

Full Color
Fine Art Posters
by
R.C. GORMAN
AMADO PENA
NORMA ANDRAUD
KATALIN EHLING
HELEN HARDIN
FRANK HOWELL and other artists of the Southwest

NEW Full Color Catalog
$2.00

Dealer inquiries invited.
JOAN CAWLEY GALLERY
1010 N. Main, Suite 1, Wichita, KS 67203
800-835-0075

51

Circle No. 306

GERMANS
VAN ECK
GALLERY

420 WEST BROADWAY, NEW YORK, NY 10012

Major Exhibitions and Collections of 19th and 20th Century Paintings,
Drawings and Watercolors

A.M. ADLER FINE ARTS, INC.
21 East 67th Street • New York 10021 • (212) 249-2450

AMERICAN REALISTS

ADELE ALSOP
MICHAEL FILMUS
JANE IRISH
DANIEL LANG
CHARLES MOSER
PHILIP MULLEN
RICHARD PITTS
BILL SULLIVAN
MARQUERITE WALSH
JOHN WILDE

DAVID FINDLAY JR
CONTEMPORARY
41 East 57 New York 10022 212-486-7660

FORMA
Fine Arts Gallery • Private & Corporate Art Consultants

WIFREDO LAM
FERNANDO BOTERO
JOSE LUIS CUEVAS
FERNANDO DE SZYSZLO
ROGELIO POLESELLO

305 Alcazar Avenue, Coral Gables, Florida 33134 • (305) 442-9430

LATIN AMERICAN AND EUROPEAN MASTERS
&
CONTEMPORARY ARTISTS

MARTA
GUTIERREZ
FINE ARTS,
INCORPORATED
600 Grapetree Drive A-11 ES
Key Biscayne, Florida 33149
(305) 361-2745
By appointment only

GP

MAJOR PRINTS
SUMMER 1983

GETLER/PALL
50 WEST 57 NY 212/581-2724

Public Art Consultants
Commission Management Services
Selected Artists Slide Registry

JOYCE POMEROY SCHWARTZ Ltd.
Fine Art for Architectural and Landscape Sites
17 West 54th Street, New York, N.Y. 10019 212-245-6468

BAUER
BENES
BORSTEIN
BRISELLI
CHAST
CLIBANOFF
FRIED
KASSEL
LASCH
LEDERMAN
MAISNER
YAMAGUCHI

KATHRYN MARKEL GALLERY
50 West 57th Street, New York, NY

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

REPRESENTING THE FINEST IN CONTEMPORARY ART

DBRGALLERY
13225 SHAKER SQUARE
CLEVELAND, OHIO 44120 216/491-8062

SATORI GALLERY
2124 UNION IN THE COURTYARD
SAN FRANCISCO, CA. 94123
415/929-0696

SHINODA-TANIGUCHI-GUPTA-KATAYAMA-ZARINA-LI HUA-
YAMASHITA-LUI SHOU KWAN-
ODA-CHEUNG YEE-SAGARA-
MATSUBARA-OHDERA-FUDEYA-
LIAO-HONDA-KORN-YAMAMOTO

ORCHID ART AND THE ORCHID ISLE

41 paintings and drawings by
JOHN THOMAS
Hawaii's most brilliant colorist featured in an art book about
Hawaii Island and its orchids
29 poems and an essay by HARVEY HESS

award winner, 26th Annual Midwestern Books Competition

hard cover	$19.95
soft cover	$14.95
poster, signed	$30.00

available through the publisher
MĀLAMA ARTS INC.
Post Office Box 1761
Honolulu, Hawaii 96806

David Settles Gallery
1700 Bissonnet
Houston, TX 77005
713 528-1690

20th Century Art

Art in America

Moving?

Please give us 8 weeks notice. For further service, attach your mailing label when you send us the new address.

New Address

Name____________________

Address________________ Apt #________

City, State, Zip____________________

Attach your mailing label below (or fill in information) and mail to: ART IN AMERICA, 542 Pacific Ave., Marion, OH 43305.

Name

Address Apt #

City State Zip

Renewing?

1 year (10 issues) of ART IN AMERICA is still only $34.95. Please attach your label above (or fill in information) and check the appropriate box.

☐ New ☐ Renewal ☐ Payment enclosed ☐ Bill me later

Unlisting Service?

ART IN AMERICA makes available to high quality publications and carefully screened companies the names of its subscribers. If, however, you do not wish your name made available, please check the box below:

☐ Please do not make my name available.

ASW ART SUPPLY WAREHOUSE

Fine Art Supplies at Discount Prices

SEND FOR FREE CATALOG
Call Toll Free 1-800-243-5038
IN CONN. CALL 203-852-0445
ART SUPPLY WAREHOUSE, INC.
29 HAVILAND ST., SOUTH NORWALK, CONN. 06854

E.A.T. BIBLIOGRAPHY 1965-1980
by BILLY KLUVER

Lists 969 publications documenting the evolution of art and technology since 1965

$7.50 plus $1 postage and handling

EXPERIMENTS IN ART AND TECHNOLOGY
49 East 68th Street New York, N.Y. 10021
(212) 285-1690

ART SERVICES

These paid listings of various art services are provided for your convenience. For more information simply circle the appropriate numbers on the reader service postcard in this section or, if you prefer, contact the advertised service directly.

ADVERTISING AGENCIES

PAULINE DI BLASI STUDIO Circle No. 1
Pauline Di Blasi
210 Fifth Avenue, Room 801
New York, NY 10010
Advertising & Graphic Design.

ANTHONY McCALL ASSOCIATES Circle No. 2
Anthony McCall, 11 Jay Street
New York, NY 10013 (212) 925-5821
A complete advertising and graphic design service for Galleries and Museums.

MARCUS RATLIFF, INC. Circle No. 3
Marcus Ratliff
49 East 78th Street
New York, NY 10021 (212) 249-6261
Art World Advertising. Agency and Graphic Design since 1967.

APPRAISERS

APPRAISERS ASSOC. OF AMERICA Circle No. 4
60 East 42nd Street
New York, NY 10165 (212) 867-9775
Professional Appraisers in All Fields of Fine Art and Collectibles.

AUDREY REAL HELFAND Circle No. 5
945 Fifth Avenue
New York, NY 10022 (212) 535-5972
Appraiser of European & American Fine Arts for Insurance, Gift-Tax, Property Division, & Estates. By Appointment.

DAVID BARNETT GALLERY Circle No. 6
David Barnett, Director 2101 West Wisconsin
Milwaukee WI 53233 (414) 344-6070
19th & 20th Century American & European Masters: Paintings, Drawings, Sculpture, Original Prints. Member A.A.A.

ELIZABETH M. BLAGBROUGH Circle No. 7
34 N. Gore, Suite 204, St. Louis MO 63119 (314) 962-4752
Certified Appraiser: Fine Arts, Antiques, Personal Propty. Sr. Member: Amer. Soc. of Appraisers; Member: Appraisers Assoc. of Amer.; Fellow: Soc. of Valuers & Auctioneers.

CROSSON DANNIS FINE ARTS GROUP Circle No. 8
315 East 72nd Street
New York, NY 10021 (212) 570-7027
Curatorial, Advisory, Research, Appraisal Services. Robert B. Simon, Ph.D., Director. See our Display Ad.

ELAYNE ART GALLERIES, INC. Circle No. 9
6111 Excelsior Blvd.
Minneapolis, MN 55416 (612) 926-1511
Appraisals and Fine Art Restoration. Fifteen Years in the Business. Call for an Estimate.

GLASS GALLERY Circle No. 10
Wendy Glass, 315 Central Park West, Suite 8W
New York, NY 10025 (212) SU7-4704
Appraisers in Japanese Ukiyo-e prints and Graphics. Estates handled.

INTERNATIONAL FINE ART APPRAISERS 11
9056 Santa Monica Blvd., Suite 304
Los Angeles, CA 90069 (213) 271-8141
Antique Furniture-Porcelain-China-Glass-Silver-Paintings-Oriental Rugs and Household Furnishings.

MARK KESHISHIAN AND SONS, INC. Circle No. 12
6930 Wisconsin Ave., Chevy Chase, MD 20815 (301) 654-4044
836 Rockville Pike, Chevy Chase, MD 20815 (301) 340-6666
James M. Keshishian, A.S.A., Harold M. Keshishian
Appraisal, Cleaning, Restoration and Sale of Oriental Rugs.

NATIONAL ASSOC. OF CERTIFIED ANTIQUE AND ART APPRAISERS Circle No. 13
18104 W. Dixie Hy. N. Miami Beach, FL 33160 (305) 932-7038
A Professional Corp. Serving the Public by Qualifying & Certifying Appraisers Specializing in Fine Art & Antiques.

NEW ENGLAND APPRAISAL SERVICE Circle No. 14
11 High St., Milton, MA 02186 (617) 698-0606, 698-0617
Estate Appraisals for Probate Reasons.
Fine Arts Appraisals for Insurance Purposes.
Supplemental Video Inventories. Damage/Loss Reports.

OSBORNE MARQUIS, LTD. Circle No. 15
18 West Putnam Ave., Greenwich, CT 06830 (203) 629-1023
Int'l Fine Art Consultants & Appraisers. Appraising by professionals of Art Works & All Household Contents For Insurance, Estates, Donations. Senior Member A.S.A., A.A.A.

PIERCE GALLERIES, INC. Circle No. 16
721 Main St., Route 228
Hingham, MA 02043 (617) 749-6023
Appraise, Buy and Sell 19th and Early 20th Century American Art. By Appointment Only.

PROFESSIONAL ART SERVICES Circle No. 17
17765 Beach Drive NE, Seattle, WA 98155 (206) 587-7214
Serving Pacific NW. PhD., Hist. of Art, Member I.S.A. Appraiser of American & European Art. Advisor for Diversified Art Investors. Experienced in Insurance, legal, I.R.S.

RAYMOND M. SPILLER & ASSOCS. Circle No. 18
1025 Westview St., Philadelphia, PA (215) 849-2888
Residential and Corporate Appraisals: Fine Arts, Antiques and All Appreciating Personal Property. Complete Conservation and Restoration Service.

TELEPRAISAL Circle No. 19
20 Main Street
Roslyn, NY 11576 (800) 645-6002 or (516) 625-0610 (NY State)
Appraisals & evaluations substantiated by a computer data base of art auction results.

C.L. WYSUPH & ASSOCIATES, INC. Circle No. 20
Beverly Hills (213) 275-2707, San Francisco (415) 398-1340
Piedmont, CA (415) 530-1300, Lafayette, CA (415) 284-4610
Appraisers of fine art & personal property of all periods.

ART BOOKS

ARS LIBRI Circle No. 21
286 Summer Street
Boston, Mass. 02210 (617) 357-5212
Rare & scholarly books in the fine arts. Illustrated books. Periodicals & documents in all fields of art history.

ART IN FORM Circle No. 22
P.O. Box 2567
Seattle, WA 98111 (206) 623-6381
Specializing in Contemporary Art Publications; Books, Periodicals, Recordings, Mail Order Catalog & Trade List Available.

VOL
71
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

ART SERVICES

ART BROKERAGES

THE ART BROKERAGE, INC. Circle No. 23
300 S. 4th St. 1503, Valley Bank Bldg.
Las Vegas, NV 98101 (702) 732-3999/385-1296
Listings & Locating service, buy sell or trade, save 25-50%.
Computer printout, dealer inquiry invited. See display ad.

E.M. DONAHUE Circle No. 24
28 East 10th St., #6-H
New York, NY 10003
(212) 477-3442

Art Brokerage and Painting Estates.

E.M.D.L. AMERICAN FOLK ART Circle No. 25
Frederick Taylor House, Wash. Crossing Historic State Pk.
Washington Crossing, PA 18977 (215) 493-8835
Folk Art Estates. Conjunction Shows with the Museum of American Folk Art in New York.

ART CATALOGS

ART CATALOGUES Circle No. 26
625 N. Almont Dr.
Los Angeles, CA 90069 (213) 274-0160
Museum & Gallery Exhibition Catalogues on 20th Century
Art, Photograhy, Architecture, Cinema.

ART COLLECTION MANAGEMENT

DATA MANAGEMENT TECHNOLOGY INC. 27
11582 Fredrick Drive, Garden Grove, CA 92640 (714) 534-3282
Jan Greenberg, Director
On-Going Art Collection Management: Cataloguing Systems,
Computerization, Publications, Appraisals and Maintenance.

ARTIST/CREATIVE SERVICES

RACHEL ROLON DE CLET Circle No. 28
5-34 50th Avenue
Long Island City, NY 11101 (212) 729-9146
Design & Production of Brochures, Catalogs, Posters &
Advertising; Art Consultant.

ART CONSULTANTS

ARTSPACE ENTERPRISES Circle No. 29
2025 Rosemount Ave., NW
Washington, D.C. 20010 (202) 667-6610
Specialists in the Placement of Contemporary Art for Semi-Public Spaces. Also Serving Collectors and Museums.

DAVID BARNETT GALLERY Circle No. 30
2101 West Wisconsin, Milwaukee WI 53233 (414) 344-6070
Fine Art Consultants and Dealers to Corporations,
Architects, Businesses and Private Collectors, American and European Art in All Media, Classic to Contemporary.

ANN H. BISSELL Circle No. 31
2844 Wisconsin Ave., N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20007 (202) 363-2867
Art Installation, Lighting Design and Framing
On a Consulting Basis.

CROSSON DANNIS FINE ARTS GROUP Circle No. 32
315 East 72nd Street
New York, NY 10021 (212) 570-7027
Curatorial, Advisory, Research, Appraisal Services
Robert B. Simon, Ph.D., Director. See our Display Ad.

GALLERY MACK NW Circle No. 33
123 South Jackson, Seattle, WA 98104, (206) 623-1414
Lynn McAllister, Ph.D., Director
Art Advisors to Corporations, Architects, Designers &
Private Investors. Fine Art for Business Spaces.

INTERNATIONAL FINE ART CONSULTANTS, INC. Circle No. 34
25 East 77th Street New York, NY 10021 (212) 737-5180
Consultants to Private Collectors & Corporations.
European & American—Old Masters to Present. Appraisals.

JOYCE POMEROY SCHWARTZ ASSOC. LTD. Circle No. 35
17 West 54th Street, New York, NY 10019 (212) 245-6468
Public Art Consultants/Commission Management Services
Fine Art for Architectural & Landscape Sites/Slide Registry

ORIGINAL PRINT COLLECTORS GROUP, LTD./CORPORATE ART DIVISION Circle No. 36
215 Lexington Ave., New York, NY 10016 (212) 685-9400
Providing a Wide Range of Original Fine Art for Office Surroundings and Renovatons.

MARY LEONHARD RAN Circle No. 37
3330 Erie Avenue
Cincinnati, OH 45208 (513) 871-5604
Fine American & European 19th Century Paintings. Consultant and Appraiser.

JUDITH SELKOWITZ FINE ARTS, INC. Circle No. 38
25 West 56th Street, Suite 504
New York, NY 10019 (212) 586-2602
CORPORATE ART SPECIALISTS: As Consultants or Dealers
Art in All Media.

MR. FRANZ VILA Circle No. 39
24 East 97th Street Apt. 20
New York, NY 10029 (212) 410-1702
Advisory Counseling, Analysis & Critique
For Corporations, Collectors. Research & Art Education.

ART LECTURES & TOURS

ART-IN-ACTION/CONNOISSEURSHIP, INC. 40
45 Griffen Ave., Scarsdale, NY 10583 (914) 725-3480
Art Consultation, Education Coordination for Individuals, Groups, Corporations; Access, Entree, Evaluation, Lectures, Tours, Trips.

ART MARKETING ADVISORS

CALVIN J. GOODMAN Circle No. 41
11901 Sunset Blvd., #102
Los Angeles, CA 90049 (213) 476-2622
Management Consultant to Artists and Art Dealers.
Author and Lecturer.

ART POSTERS

POSTER ORIGINALS LTD. Circle No. 42
924 Madison Ave. New York, NY 10021 (212) 861-0422
158 Spring Street, New York, NY 10012 (212) 226-7720
Major Distributor of American and European Art Posters.

ART SUPPLIES

ARTISTIC BRUSH MANUFACTURING CORP. 43
Steven Reich
P.O. Box 1467, 103 Central Avenue
Clifton, NJ 07015 (201) 546-1200
Mfrs. of a Complete line of High Quality Artist Brushes.

ART SERVICES

ART SUPPLY WAREHOUSE, INC. Circle No. 44
29 Haviland Street
South Norwark, CT 06854 (203) 852-0445
Discounted Fine Art Supplies. Free Catalogue.
Call Toll free: 1-800-243-5038

BEST MOULDING FRAMES Circle No. 45
7134 Jefferson NE, Albuquerque NM 87109 (505) 345-4613
Canvas Stretcher Bars. Solid, Kiln-Dried Ponderosa Pine Means Strength, Warp Resistant Stability. High Lift Profile Assures Fabric Never Drags. Inquire for Dealer Near You.

EASTERN ARTISTS AND DRAFTING MATERIALS Circle No. 46
352 Park Avenue South, New York, N.Y. 10010 (212) 725-5555
Everything for the Artist, Draftsman, Photo-Studio At 20% to 50% Off List.

H.F. ESTERLY CO. Circle No. 47
Industry Road
Brunswick, ME 04011 (207) 729-4340

Speed-Mat Mat Cutting Systems

JERRY'S ARTARAMA, INC. Circle No. 48
248-12X Union Turnpike
Bellerose, NY 11426
Huge savings on art materials and picture frames.

MILLER CARDBOARD CORP. Circle No. 49
75 Wooster Street
New York, NY 10012 (212) 226-0833
Supplies for Conservators, Museums, Galleries and Commercial and Fine Art Materials Dealers.

THE SAINT ARMAND PAPER MILL, INC. Circle No. 50
110 Young
Montreal, Canada H3C 2E7 (514) 935-7526
Finest Linen Watercolor Papers.
22 x 30, 300 lbs., $7.50 per sheet: Samples.

SELWYN TEXTILE COMPANY, INC. Circle No. 51
15 West 38th Street
New York, NY 10018 (212) 921-9355, (800) 223-3032
Direct source linen & cotton PRIMED/UNPRIMED ARTISTS' CANVAS. No minimum requirements. Send for free samples.

SHIVA® INC. Circle No. 52
4320 West 190th Street
Torrance, CA 90509 (213) 542-5583
Artists PAINTSTIK®, Solid Oil Paint in Stick Form.
Call (800) 421-1325.

JOSEPH TORCH ART SUPPLIES, INC. Circle No. 53
36 West 15th Street
New York, NY 10011 (212) 243-3534
Established 1929, Quality Papers, Rare Materials, Large Selection. Knowledgeable Staff.

UTRECHT Circle No. 54
33 35th Street
Brooklyn, NY 11232 (212) 767-2525
Major Manufacturer & Distributor of Art & Drafting Supplies at Impressive Savings. Free Catalog.

ARTISTS WANTED

THE ART COLLECTOR Circle No. 55
4151 Taylor St., San Diego, CA 92110 (619) 299-3232
Large, Established Art Gallery Seeks Artists for Corporate Market & Potential Shows. Designer Clientele. Send Slides and Resume for Review to Above Address.

GALLERY II R.S.V.P. Circle No. 56
ARTISTS! Exhibition Space in New High Quality Fine Arts Sales & Exhibition Gallery. All Media Accepted. Send Slides and S.A.S.E. to: Gallery II R.S.V.P., Director, Colene Later, 218 W. Main, Charlottesville, VA 22901. (804) 977-R.S.V.P.

SHARWOOD GALLERY Circle No. 57
Abby Bliss, Director, 540 West Main
Norman, Oklahoma 73069 (405) 321-6634
Gallery Seeks to Represent & Exhibit Artists in All Media. Send Slides, Resume & Self-Addressed Stamped Envelope.

AUCTION HOUSES

CHRISTIE'S FINE ART AUCTIONEERS Circle No. 58
502 Park Avenue
New York, NY 10022 (212) 546-1000
Christie's Catalog Subscription Brochure. Order from Over 20 Categories.

WILLIAM DOYLE GALLERIES Circle No. 59
178 East 87th Street
New York, NY 10128 (212) 427-2730
The Largest and Most Successful American-owned Auction House in the United States.

DU MOUCHELLE AUCTION GALLERIES Circle No. 60
409 E. Jefferson, Detroit MI 48226 (313) 963-6255
Holds Monthly Estate Auctions, Usually 3rd Weekend of Every Month. Certified Appraisers for Insurance, Probate, Donation & Loss. Serving Michigan, Ohio & Midwest Area.

GILBERT'S Circle No. 61
"Alldone" 97, Garrison, NY 10524
(914) 424-3635 or in New York City (212) 408-7547
4th Generation Estate Auctioneers & Appraisers. We Specialize in On Premise Estate Auctions Throughout the East.

CHASE GILMORE GALLERIES Circle No. 62
724 West Washington Blvd.
Chicago, IL 60606 (312) 648-1690
Auction Gallery Fine Art and Household Appraisers.

HANZEL GALLERIES Circle No. 63
1120 South Michigan Avenue
Chicago, IL 60605 (312) 922-6234
Midwest's foremost auctioneers of fine art properties for over 40 years.

LESLIE HINDMAN AUCTIONEERS Circle No. 64
225 West Ohio St., Chicago, IL 60610
(312) 670-0010 or dial (312) AUCTION
Fine and Decorative Arts Auctions Monthly. Specialized Sales As Announced. Catalogue Subscription: $40 Annually.

SELKIRK GALLERY Circle No. 65
4166 Olive Street
St. Louis, MO 63108
(314) 533-1700
Fine Art Auctioneering and Appraising.

BOXMAKING/BOOKBINDING

DRAGONFLY BINDERY STUDIO Circle No. 66
47 Harrison Ave., Woonsocket, RI 02895 (401)766-8786
Antiquarian Book Restoration, Fine Leather Binding, Artist's Books, Print, Map & Paper Restoration, Archival Storage, Boxes & Portfolios.

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

ART SERVICES

CASTING

ART RESEARCH AND TECHNOLOGY LTD. 67
P.O. Box 4826
Lancaster, PA 17604 (717)285-3751

Quality Casting for the Discriminating Artist.
Specializing in Bronze Casting.

COMPETITIONS

LEHIGH UNIVERSITY ART GALLERIES Circle No. 201
Judith Goldworm, Chandler-Ullman Hall #17
Bethlehem, PA 18015 (215) 861-3615
WCA'84 • Entries & Slides by 11-1-83.—$15.00. Media; All Limit; 3 entries. Jury by slide. Awards: Purchase Awards.

"MICHIGAN—THE PLACE & THE LAKE" 68
For Prospectus Write: Norma Rhoda, Bergsma Gallery
Pearl at Monroe, Grand Rapids, MI 49503 (616) 458-1776
All media, noted jurors, $10 entry fee. Entry card/slides Due: Sept. 6, 1983. $5,000+ cash prizes/purchase awards.

SCULPTURE COMMISSIONS Circle No. 69
Ronald Trojcak, Kings College, 266 Epworth Ave.
London, Ontario, Canada N6A2M3 (519) 433-3491
Lifesize outdoor sculpture. 2 or 3 dimension to express religious (R. Catholic) & educational nature of Kings College.

CONSERVATORS & RESTORERS

JAMES ALKONS Circle No. 70
1930 N Street
Sacramento, CA 95814 (916) 444-3719
Conservator of Oil Paintings on Canvas and Works of Art on Paper.

ANGELES PAINTING LABORATORY Circle No. 71
724 Museum Drive
Los Angeles, CA 90065 (213) 221-5240
Conservation of Fine Paintings. Dir. Robert N. de Cavalieri With Extensive and Scholarly International Research Division.

ART & FRAME SERVICE Circle No. 72
95 Mitchell Boulevard
San Raphael, CA 94903 (415) 472-3800
Specializing in the Care of Fine Art: Conservation, Restoration and Framing.

EDWARD J. BARNEY BROWN Circle No. 73
130 East 67th St., Suite 3A
New York, NY 10021 (212) 249-1713
Conservation and Restoration of Oil Paintings. By Appointment Only.

DAEDALUS Circle No. 74
6020 Adeline Street
Oakland, CA 94608 (415) 658-4566
Conservation of Works of Art on Paper. Conservation Framing. By Appointment Only.

JULIUS LOWY FRAME & RESTORING CO. 75
28 West End Avenue (Corner 61st Street)
New York, NY 10023 (212) 586-2050
Museum Methods of Conservation & Restoration of Paintings and Works of Art on Paper. Joe Battaglia, Chief Restorer.

MICHIGAN ART CONSERVATION STUDIO 76
Susan L. Field, Conservator
139 East Chesterfield, Detroit, MI 48220 (313) 548-3127
Professional Examination & Repair of Antique & Contemporary Paintings, Objects & Frames. By Appointment.

THE TOMSICH ART GALLERIES LTD. Circle No. 77
11916 Manchester Road
St. Louis, MO 63131 (314) 966-6777
Conservation of Oil Paintings, Art on Paper and Framing Conservation. Appraisals.

NATHAN B. ZAKHEIM ASSOCIATES Circle No. 78
P.O. Box 408
Culver City, CA 90230 (213) 936-3299
Full Service Modern Conservation Studio. Museum Quality Treatment of Paintings, Murals, Frescoes and Sculpture.

CUSTOMS BROKERS/FREIGHT FOWARDERS

A.J. MURRAY AND CO., INC. Circle No. 79
111 John St., New York, NY 10038 (212) 632-8576
Customs Brokers, Int'l & Domestic Freight Fowarders, Agents Worldwide. Full Service Fine Arts Specialist. Offices in New York, JFK Airport & Miami.

PKO LTD. Circle No. 80
434 Chelsea Street
East Boston, MA 02128 (617) 569-8460 Telex: 6817184
Door to Door Movements of Art, Antiques and Exhibitions. Forwarders—Brokers—Marine Insurance.

RADIX GROUP INTERNATIONAL Circle No. 81
Cargo Building #80, JFK International Airport
Jamaica, NY 11430 (212) 656-5912
Offices in: New York-Albany-Miami-Chicago-St. Louis-Phoenix-Dallas/Ft. Worth-San Francisco-Los Angeles

DOCUMENTATION/AUTHENTICATION

ARS CERAMICA LTD. Circle No. 82
P.O. Box 7366, Ann Arbor MI 48107 (313) 429-7864
Specialists in Ceramic and Oriental Art. Scientific Analysis, Research, Appraisals and Complete Cataloguing. Consulting, Guidance and Professionally Built Collections.

INT'L FOUND. FOR ART RESEARCH INC. 83
46 E. 70th St., New York, NY 10021 (212) 879-1780
Non-Profit Authentication & Research Services. Lectures & Symposia on Collecting. Publishes: "Stolen Art Alert" and "Art Research News." Membership Brochure Available.

EXHIBITION CATALOGUES

WORLDWIDE BOOKS Circle No. 84
Brian Gold
37 Antwerp Street
Boston, MA 02135 (617) 787-9100
The foremost specialist in Int'l Art Exhibition catalogs since 1960.

ART SERVICES

EXHIBITION CATALOG PRODUCTION

WEBB DESIGN STUDIO Circle No. 85
Janet Webb
Box 4042, Taos, NM 87571
(505) 758-3447
Specializing in catalog design and production.

FINE ART PHOTOGRAPHY

COXE-GOLDBERG PHOTOGRAPHY, INC. 86
17 West 74th Street, #1B
New York, NY 10023 (212) 595-6097
Extensive Museum Experience. Specializing in Sculpture, Paintings, Artifacts and Flat Art Work.

D. JAMES DEE Circle No. 87
12 Wooster Street
New York, NY 10013 (212) 966-7884
"The Soho Photographer"
Photographing Art is Our ONLY Business.

ERIK LANDSBERG Circle No. 88
1018 Garden Street
Hoboken, NJ 07030 (201) 659-7491
Complete Services, All Formats, Studio or Location. Serving New York City and the Metropolitan Area.

DAVID LUBARSKY Circle No. 89
30 East 20th Street
New York, NY 1003 (212) 532-5288
Paintings, Sculpture, and Gallery Installations in 4" x 5" Transparencies, 35mm Slides, and Black & White Prints.

ERIC E. MITCHELL Circle No. 90
223 Wayne Avenue
Narberth, PA 19072 (215) 664-2471
Head Photographer at the Philadelphia Museum of Art. Freelance Fine Arts Photography.

DIANORA NICCOLINI Circle No. 91
356 East 78th St.
New York, NY 10021 (212) 288-1698
Author of Men in Focus, Women of Vision, Pioneered in Male Nude B&W Photography. Experimental Photography.

DOUGLAS M. PARKER STUDIO Circle No. 92
3279 Lowry Road
Los Angeles, CA 90027 (213) 660-6145
Major gallery and Artists references, All formats.

PARLE PORTRAITS Circle No. 93
100 La Salle Street
New York, N.Y. 10027 (212) 663-7361
Museum Quality Portraits in Photography or Oils from A Single Sitting or Any Available Photograph.

PHOTOGRAPHIC SPECIALTIES, INC. Circle No. 94
225 Border Ave. North
Minneapolis, MN 55405 (612) 332-6303
Fine Art Cibachrome, C-Print, Archival B&W Printing & Processing. All Mounting & Framing Services.

FRANK J. THOMAS Circle No. 95
P.O. Box 1929
Minden, NV 89423 (702) 782-4562
Archives of Transparencies, Slides, B&W Prints of Southern California & Western Art, 1950's thru 70's. Brochure.

FINE ART PRINTING

ATELIER ETTINGER Circle No. 96
Director: Eleanor Ettinger, 155 Avenue of the Americas
New York, NY 10013 (212) 807-7607
Fine art limited-edition lithography. Masterprinters & chromiste. Contract printing.

CINDI ETTINGER Circle No. 97
142 Vine Street
Philadelphia, PA 19106 (215) 928-9897
Printing Services, Instruction and Plate Restoration. Will Collaborate With Artist.

CHROMACOMP, INC. Circle No. 98
129 West 29th Street
New York, NY 10001 (212) 564-8677
Atelier for Fine Art Graphics: Serigraphy, Etching, Embossing and Gold Stamping.

HANDWORKS-MAUREL STUDIOS Circle No. 99
236 West 27th St.
New York, NY 10001 (212) 242-7907
Fine Arts Limited Editions, Hand lithography, Screen Printing, Mixed Media and Multiples.

CHERYL PELAVIN PRINTMAKER Circle No. 100
13 Jay St. (in Tribeca)
New York, NY 10013 (212) 925-9424
Etching Facilities, Open Workshops, Classes, Editioning, Plate Collaboration & Publishing. Brochure.

PJ PRINTING CORP. Circle No. 101
12 East 31st St., N.Y., NY 10016 (212) 679-3476, 889-8990
Fine Color Lithography: Posters, Postcards & Catalogs. Double Dot, Doutones & 4 Colors; Fine Embossing & Thermography. Contact: Mr. Jose Medina.

PRINTMAKING WORKSHOP, INC. Circle No. 102
Bob Blackburn, 114 West 17th Street
New York, NY 10011 (212) 989-6125
Printmaking Facilities, Etching, Lithography, Photographics, Woodcuts, Classes, Guest Artist Program, Limited Editions.

SOHO GRAPHICS ARTS WORKSHOP Circle No. 103
433 West Broadway
New York, NY 10012 (212) 966-7292
Lithography, Silkscreen, Etching, Textile Printing; Classes/Workshops. Limited Editions Printed.

STEPHENSON, INC. Circle No. 104
5731 Gen. Washington Dr., Alexandria VA 22313 (713) 642-9000
Washington's Printer of Fine Art Lithography and Color Separation Makes the Ordinary Extraordinary. Art Reproduction Not Left to Chance. Call (800) 336-4637

R.E. TOWNSEND, INC. Circle No. 105
27 Stanhope Street
Boston, MA 02116 (617) 262-3093
Intaglio Printers, Steel Plating and Photo-Gravure Services. Press Sizes Up To 70" x 100"

VOL
71
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

ART SERVICES

FINE ART PUBLISHERS

CONDESO LAWLER, LTD. Circle No. 106
76 Greene Street 2nd Floor
New York, NY 10012
Publishers of Contemporary Prints by Pat Colville, Sydney Drum, Ray Holland, Louise Kruger

GONDECK GALLERY AND PUBLISHER Circle No. 107
211 Old Santa Fe Trail, Santa Fe, NM 87501 (505) 988-3580
Bronzes, One of a Kind Welded Steel Sculpture by Bill Prokopiof. Original Graphics, Lithographs, Serigraphs, Etchings of Contemporary Indian Artists. Kevin Red Star.

LANDFALL PRESS, INC. Circle No. 108
215 West Superior St.
Chicago, IL 60610 (312) 787-6836
Publishers and Distributors of lithographs, etchings and woodcuts.

HOLLY SOLOMON EDITIONS, LTD. Circle No. 109
724 Fifth Avenue, 5th Flr., New York, NY 10019, (212) 757-7777
Editions by Bark, Burnley, Cady, Davis, Dennis, Girouard, Hart, Kushner, MacConnel, Smyth, Wegman. Photographs by Boyle, Burson, Myers. Osinski, Riley, Zeldman.

STRICTLY LIMITED EDITIONS Circle No. 110
3521 Pierce St., San Francisco, CA 94123 (415) 922-8257
Publishers & Distributors of Fine Israeli & Int'l Prints. Printers of Lithographs, Serigraphs, Etchings to be Pulled in Israel. Exclusive Rep. of Schlomo Katz & David Schneuer.

FINE ART TRAVEL

ACADEMIC TRAVEL ABROAD, INC. Circle No. 111
1346 Connecticut Avenue, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20036 (202) 785-3412
Custom designed Art Tours for Museums and Universities Exceptional Quality and Service Since 1950.

ART EXPLORER'S TOURS Circle No. 112
P.O. Box 26689-P, San Francisco, CA 94126 (415) 921-7677
Art Enthusiast Travel with a 'Touch of Culture' to Africa-Bali & Java-China-Egypt-Japan-New Guinea-San Paolo Biennale-Scandinavia-Tibet-Venice Biennale.

FOUNDRIES

ARTWORKS FOUNDRY Circle No. 113
729 Heinz Ave. Space #5
Berkeley, CA 94710 (415) 549-3909
Lost Tax Investment Casting-Mold making-Solid Investment and Ceramic Shell-Small to Monumental Size.

CHIMAYO BRONZE WORKS Circle No. 114
Manzana Center, P.O. Box 693
Chimayo, NM 87522 (505) 351-4011
Fine Art Casting & Sculpture Fabrication, Specializing in the Lost Wax Process and Quality Mold Making Services.

GUILD HALL STUDIOS, INC. Circle No. 115
141 Bridle Way, P.O. Box 174
Paramus, NJ 07652 (201) 843-1393
Designers, Fabricators, Installers of Maquettes and Full Sized Metal Sculptures.

JOHNSON ATELIER TECHNICAL INSTITUTE OF SCULPTURE Circle No. 116
743 Alexander Rd., Princeton, NJ 08540 (609) 452-2661
Bronze, Aluminum, Stainless Steel, Ductile Iron: Sand Molding-Ceramic Shell-Rubber Molds-Bronze Repair & Repatine.

LEMNOS FINE ART CASTING Circle No. 117
James Callahan, 148 East Napa Street
Sonoma, CA 95476 (707) 996-4373
Sculpting, Molding and Casting of Exceptional Quality by Artists for Artists.

MODERN ART FOUNDRY, INC. Circle No. 118
1870 41st Street
Astoria, NY 11105 (212) 728-2030
"The Artist's Foundry": Castings, enlargements, preventive maintenance, restoration, consultants, insurance.

NEW ARTS FOUNDRY Circle No. 119
2006 Clipper Park Road
Baltimore, MD 21211 (301) 243-1465
Professional Bronze Casting for the Artist Via the Lost Wax Process.

NORDHAMMER ART FOUNDRY Circle No. 120
830 East Fifteenth Street
Oakland, CA 94606 (415) 465-5606
Complete Foundry Facility. Small to Monumental Scale in Bronze. Ceramic Shell and Vacuum Casting.

SOUTHERN ILLINOIS UNIV. ART FOUNDRY 121
Southern Illinois University
Carbondale, IL 62901 (618) 453-2029
Tom Walsh, Head of Graduate Sculpture
The Most Complete University Art Foundry in the Country.

FRAMERS

AESTHETIC FRAME DESIGN Circle No. 122
1275 East 6th Street
Los Angeles, CA 90021 (213) 622-3331
Wholesale Custom Framing. Specializing in Archival Presentations for Artists, Galleries, Museums.

ART FRAME, INC. Circle No. 123
7028 Rugby Avenue
Huntington Park, CA 90255 (213) 585-8171
Custom Picture Framing for the Private Collector and to the Wholesale Trade Metal, Plexiglas and Wood.

ARTISTS' FRAME SERVICE INC. Circle No. 124
1919 North Clybourn
Chicago, IL 60614 (312) 248-7713
Wholesale Custom Framing and Supply. 80 Metal, 200 Wood Styles, Mat Board, Museum Board. Fast Professional Service.

JACK BARNETT CUSTOM FRAMES Circle No. 125
144 North Second Street
Philadelphia, PA 19106 (215) 629-1766
Specializing in Molded Plexi Frames, U.F.3 Fully Rounded Leaf Frames, Complete Frame Restoration.

CHARLES FENTON GALLERY Circle No. 126
Woodstock East
Woodstock, VT 05091 (802) 457-3022
Fine Handcrafted Framing: Vermont Hardwoods, Gilt, and Veneers. Restoration and Conservation of Art.

ART SERVICES

FRAME FACTORY/CHICAGO Circle No. 127
760 West Waveland, Chicago, IL 60613
(312) 929-8930 or (800) 621-6570
Wholesale to Artists, Galleries. New Formica, Metal & Imported Frames. Stretched Canvases and Stretcher Bars. Catalog.

GRAND STREET FRAMES LTD. Circle No. 128
32 Grand Street
New York, NY 10013 (212) 334-9354
Custom Framing with Conservation Materials. Hardwoods or Metal. Cutglass, Mats, Painting, Strippings. Fast Service.

GREY GOOSE CUSTOM FRAMING Circle No. 129
5046 West Pico Blvd.
Los Angeles, CA 90019 (213) 938-6795
Plexiglass Fabrication, Cubes, Pedestals and Sculpture Mounting. Framing to Museum Standards. Wholesale & Retail.

J.B. FRAMES Circle No. 130
21829 Barton Road
Coltan, CA 92324 (714) 783-2120
Wholesale Distributor of Picture Frames, Photomount, Matmount, Wedding Albums. Ask about our Catalogue.

JULIUS LOWY FRAME & RESTORING CO. 131
28 West End Avenue (Corner 61st Street)
New York, NY 10023 (212) 586-2050
7500 Frames-All Styles/Periods From 16th to 20th Centuries. Antiques, Reproduction & Modern. Museum Mats & Fittings.

JERRY SOLOMON ENTERPRISES Circle No. 132
8310 West Third Street
Los Angeles, CA 90048
(213) 651-1950

JOSEPH TORCH ART SUPPLIES, INC. Circle No. 133
36 West 15th Street
New York, NY 10011 (212) 243-3534
Custom Framing & Matting. Frames in Wood and Metal One Day Service. Conservation. Experienced Staff.

TURNER FRAMING Circle No. 134
7508 Leesburg Pike, Falls Church, VA 22043
Also Locations in Great Falls, Fairfax.
Excellence in Quality Custom Framing. Private Individual and Commercial Accounts. (703) 893-1263

THE ED WALDMAN COLLECTION, INC. 135
231 East 58 St., New York, NY 10022 (212) 838-2140
Your Total Art Resource: Framing, Mounting, Hanging. Conservation and Restoration, Bases, Pedestals. Expert Presentation.

WALLNUTS FRAME DESIGN Circle No. 136
2018 Locust Street
Philadelphia, PA 19103 (215) 732-8850
Design Consultants to PROFESSIONAL PICTURE FRAMERS ASSOC. Museum Matting, Exotic Woods, Acrylic Boxes, Pedestals.

FRAMING SUPPLIES

ALUMINUM FRAME & EXTRUSION CO. Circle No. 137
1275 Bloomfield Ave., Building 5-29B Fairfield, NJ 07006
Outside N.J.: (800) 631-1166/In N.J.: (201) 575-4814
Sellers of Metal Picture Frames in 59 Colors and 15 Different Styles. Call or Write for Price List.

CORPORATE CUSTOM FRAMING Circle No. 138
9356 Cincinnati Columbus Road
Cincinnati, OH 45241 (513) 779-2875
Metal Framing By the Inch. All Orders Cut to Your Exact Measurement. Discount Price. Call or Write for More Info.

IMPORTERS WANTED

SEITRA, S.A. Circle No. 139
Mr. J. Escarpenter, Lauria, 1-3 5° Barcelona (10) Spain
Distributor of Oils and Aquarele Paintings and Editors of Graphic Works by Spanish Artists Seeks Persons to Serve As Exclusive Representatives in Several U.S. Cities.

INSURANCE

HUNTINGTON T. BLOCK INSURANCE Circle No. 140
2101 L Street, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20037
Call Toll Free: (800) 424-8830 For Competitive Fine Arts Insurance Quotations for Collectors, Dealers and Museums.

NORDSTERN SERVICE INTERNATIONAL (U.S.) INC. Circle No. 141
116 John St., Suite 1004, New York, NY 10038
(212) 227-2224, Theodore C.C. Chu/Thomas R. Genton
Fine Arts Insurance Worldwide

REPUBLIC HOGG ROBINSON OF NEW YORK, INC. Circle No. 142
Jeffery Haber and Michael Fischman
355 Lexington Ave., New York, NY 10017 (212) 682-7500
Galleries-Dealers-Museums-Private & Corp. Collections.

MOVERS AND PACKERS

ARTECH FINE ART SERVICES Circle No. 143
Seattle, WA (206) 284-8822
Packing, Crating & Shipping. Domestic & International. Installations, Collection management & Storage. Fabrication of Custom Exhibit Furniture & Stretcher Bars.

THE BLACK TRUCK LTD. Circle No. 144
Box 743, 1765 No. Highland, Los Angeles, CA 90028
LA: (213) 874-6341, NY: (212) 361-7400 (8:00-5:00, M-F)
Serving Coast to Coast. Cargo Insurance. Two Alarm Systems. I.C.C. #MC 161313

BRUGGER FINE ARTS Circle No. 145
2110 West 20th Street
Los Angeles, CA 90018 (213) 734-2121
Expert Packers and Shippers of Fine Art and Items of Unusual Value. Domestic and International.

CDI ART SERVICES Circle No. 146
1213 West 20th Street, #2
Houston, TX 77008
Crating, Delivery
Installation

CIRKER'S HAYES STORAGE WAREHOUSE 147
305 East 61st Street
New York, NY 10021 (212) 484-0234
Moving, Packing and Storage of Fine Arts and Antiques Since 1873

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

ART SERVICES

COOKE'S CRATING & FINE ART TRANSPORTATION, INC. Circle No. 148
3124 E. 11th St., Los Angeles CA 90023 (213) 268-5101
Fine Arts and Antiques Transportation, Crating, Storage and Installation, Domestic & International. Call For Free Estimates.

D.A.D. TRUCKING INC. Circle No. 149
419 Broome Street
New York, NY 10013 (212) 266-0054
For Gentleness in Transporting Fine Art & Antiques in NYC and across the nation, Call your D.A.D.

L.A. PACKING AND CRATING Circle No. 150
5852 West Adams Blvd.
Culver City, CA 90230 (213) 933-5602
Specialist in Packing, Crating, Installing, Warehousing, Shipping Fine Art and Antiques. Jim Isenson.

MICHAEL DAVIS SHIPPING, INC. Circle No. 151
29 East 61st St.
New York, NY 10021
(212) 832-3655, (800) 227-7212
International & Domestic Fine Art Packing and Shipping

LEYDEN FINE ARTS SERVICES Circle No. 152
99 Hudson St.
New York, NY 10013
(212) 219-4000
Professional Fine Art Moving and Packing

LOUDERBACK NORTH AMER. VAN LINES 153
500 American Avenue
King of Prussia, PA 19406 (215) 265-5500, (800) 523-0246
Experts in Fine Art Packing, Handling and Transporting. Serving Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware.

PAK/SHIP Circle No. 154
900 North Point, Ghirardelli Square
San Francisco, CA 94109 (415) 673-1188
Custom packing, Crating and Forwarding Of Fine Arts and Antiques.

PRO-PAK PROFESSIONAL PACKERS, INC.® 155
527 Dundee Road
Northbrook, IL 60062 (312) 272-0408
Fine Arts Packing, Crating and Shipping Specialists. Pick-up and Delivery Service. Full Insurance Coverage.

REGENCY WORLDWIDE PACKING INC. 156
48-41 Van Dam St.
Long Island City, NY 11101 (212) 729-8877
Customized Packing and Crating for All Types of Fine Arts. Shipping and handling for Domestic and Int'l Transports.

RICHARDSON-HABER FINE ART HANDLERS Circle No. 157
1717 17th St., San Francisco, CA 94103 (415) 431-3828
Serving The Bay Area Since 1980. Packing, Crating, Storage, Installation and Shipping Consultation.

PAUL SIPOS, INC. ART TRANSPORTATION Circle No. 158
181 Duane St., New York, NY 10013 (212) 925-3067
Monthly Trips to Texas, Florida & the Southeast. Custom Crating, Packing and Freight Forwarding.

SOFIA BROTHERS INC. Circle No. 159
475 Amsterdam Ave. (83rd St.)
New York, NY 10024 (212) 541-5600
World-wide Movers Specializing in Traveling Exhibits. Private Room Storage. Agents for North American Van Lines.

VANLINE SERVICES, INC. Circle No. 160
1816 Briarwood Industrial Court NE
Atlanta, GA 30329 (404) 633-1495
Professional packing and Crating of Antiques, Furniture Museum Pieces & Objects d'Art.

PORTFOLIOS/BOXMAKING

MUSEUM BOX COMPANY Circle No. 160
28 Graystone St.
Warwick, RI 02886 (401) 732-0748
Fine Quality Portfolio Boxes for Presentation of Ltd. Edition Photos, Prints. Other Styles For Print Storage.

PUBLICATIONS

"SCULPTWORLD NEWS" Circle No. 161
40 East 19th St., New York, NY 10003 (212) 777-2400
Monthly Newsletter listing sculpture exhibits at galleries, & museums, opportunities for sculptors, demonstrations, lectures, workshops, tools, techniques. One year for $5.00

SCULPTURE SUPPLIES

CUYAMUNGE STONE COMPANY Circle No. 162
Route 5, P.O. Box 360B
Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501 (505) 455-7915
Translucent Italian Alabaster, Oklahoma Alabaster, All types of Marble, African Wonderstone and more. . .

VIDEO SERVICES

VAN GOGH VIDEO Circle No. 163
Star Route 81 A, Rosendale, NY 12472 (914) 338-8943
Video Cassette Art News Magazine Distributed Weekly by Satellite/Cable TV & Cassette Subscription. Production and Distribution Services for the Art World.

These paid listings of various art services are provided for your convenience. For more information simply circle the appropriate numbers on the reader service postcard in this section or, if you prefer, contact the advertised service directly.

ART SERVICES

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO ALL READERS

If you would like to receive material about particular schools or services, simply circle the corresponding numbers on the attached reader service card, print your name and address, then detach and mail.

1983 Art Services/School Directory

Name ____________________

Address ____________________

City ____________________ State ____________ Zip ________

Phone ____________________

For school inquiries please indicate course level: ☐ Graduate ☐ Undergraduate

1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10	11	12	13	14	15	16	17	18	19	20
21	22	23	24	25	26	27	28	29	30	31	32	33	34	35	36	37	38	39	40
41	42	43	44	45	46	47	48	49	50	51	52	53	54	55	56	57	58	59	60
61	62	63	64	65	66	67	68	69	70	71	72	73	74	75	76	77	78	79	80
81	82	83	84	85	86	87	88	89	90	91	92	93	94	95	96	97	98	99	100
101	102	103	104	105	106	107	108	109	110	111	112	113	114	115	116	117	118	119	120
121	122	123	124	125	126	127	128	129	130	131	132	133	134	135	136	137	138	139	140
141	142	143	144	145	146	147	148	149	150	151	152	153	154	155	156	157	158	159	160
161	162	163	164	165	166	167	168	169	170	171	172	173	174	175	176	177	178	179	180
181	182	183	184	185	186	187	188	189	190	191	192	193	194	195	196	197	198	199	200
201	202	203	204	205	206	207	208	209	210	211	212	213	214	215	216	217	218	219	220
221	222	223	224	225	226	227	228	229	230	231	232	233	234	235	236	237	238	239	240
241	242	243	244	245	246	247	248	249	250	251	252	253	254	255	256	257	258	259	260
261	262	263	264	265	266	267	268	269	270	271	272	273	274	275	276	277	278	279	280
281	282	283	284	285	286	287	288	289	290	291	292	293	294	295	296	297	298	299	300
301	302	303	304	305	306	307	308	309	310	311	312	313	314	315	316	317	318	319	320
321	322	323	324	325	326	327	328	329	330	331	332	333	334	335	336	337	338	339	340
341	342	343	344	345	346	347	348	349	350	351	352	353	354	355	356	357	358	359	360
361	362	363	364	365	366	367	368	369	370	371	372	373	374	375	376	377	378	379	380
381	382	383	384	385	386	387	388	389	390	391	392	393	394	395	396	397	398	399	400
401	402	403	404	405	406	407	408	409	410	411	412	413	414	415	416	417	418	419	420
421	422	423	424	425	426	427	428	429	430	431	432	433	434	435	436	437	438	439	440
441	442	443	444	445	446	447	448	449	450	451	452	453	454	455	456	457	458	459	460
461	462	463	464	465	466	467	468	469	470	471	472	473	474	475	476	477	478	479	480
481	482	483	484	485	486	487	488	489	490	491	492	493	494	495	496	497	498	499	500

VOL
71

ISS
7

AG

1983

UMI

NO POSTAGE
NECESSARY
IF MAILED
IN THE
UNITED STATES

BUSINESS REPLY MAIL
FIRST CLASS PERMIT NO. 3891 NEW YORK, N.Y.

POSTAGE WILL BE PAID BY ADDRESSEE

Art In America Guide
850 Third Ave.
New York, N.Y. 10022

Attn: C. Morgan

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO ALL READERS

If you would like to receive material about particular schools or services, simply circle the corresponding numbers on the attached reader service card, print your name and address, then detach and mail.

ART SCHOOLS

These paid listings of schools offering undergraduate and graduate courses in the art field are provided for your convenience. For additional information simply circle the appropriate numbers on the reader service postcard in this section. Be sure to indicate whether you are interested in graduate or undergraduate level studies.

NEW ENGLAND

ART INSTITUTE OF BOSTON Circle No. 164
Cynthia Close, 700 Beacon Street
Boston, MA 02215 (617) 262-2844
Graphic Design, Advertising, Illustration, Fine Arts, Photography, Day and Evening, Saturday and Summer Programs.

BENNINGTON COLLEGE Circle No. 165
John Nissen
Bennington, VT 05201 (802) 442-5401
BA, MFA, Painting, Sculpture, Ceramics, Graphics, Photog.
BA, Drawing, Arch. 9 week off campus work term-Jan. & Feb.

BOSTON MUSEUM SCHOOL Circle No. 166
Eugene C. Ward, Dean of Admissions
Dept. of the Museum of Fine Arts/Aff. with Tufts Univ.
230 The Fenway, Boston, MA 02115/(617) 267-9300
BA BFA BSed MFA 5 yr double degree prog. with Tufts, Studio Arts

BOSTON UNIV. SCHOOL OF VISUAL ARTS 167
Edward Leary, Director
855 Commonwealth Avenue, Boston, MA 02215 (617) 353-3371
MFA, BFA, Painting, Sculpture, Graphic Design, Art Education; MFA Studio Teaching

CHAMBERLAYNE JUNIOR COLLEGE 168
128 Commonwealth Avenue
Boston, MA 02116 (617) 536-4500 ext. 56
Advertising Design, Commercial Art; Interior and Fashion Design. Fashion Illustration.

CLARK UNIVERSITY Circle No. 169
And the Worcester Art Museum
950 Main Street
Worcester, MA 01610 (617) 793-7431
BFA, BA, 3 year Professional Diploma in Studio Art.

CONNECTICUT COLLEGE Circle No. 170
Peter Leibert, Chairman Art Department, Mohegan Avenue
New London, CT 06320 (203) 447-7701
BA Studio Arts, Ceramics, Sculpture, Mixed media, Graphics Printmaking/Drawing, Photography, Art History.

GODDARD COLLEGE Circle No. 171
Diana Tetrault, Art Department
Box No. 710, Plainfield, VT 05667 (802) 454-8311
BA, MA Painting, Drawing, Printmaking Ceramic Sculpture, Photography.

HARTFORD ART SCHOOL Circle No. 172
Steven Keller, Univ. of Hartford, 200 Bloomfield Ave.
West Hartford, CT 06117 (203) 243-4391
BFA, MAED, Ceramics, Design, Printmaking, Painting, Sculpture, Photography, Art Ed., Film Video.

MASSACHUSETTS COLLEGE OF ART Circle No. 173
Kay Ransdell 346 Brookline Avenue,
Boston, MA 02215 (617) 731-2340
BFA, Painting, Sculpture, Crafts, Film, Photo, Arch., Industrial, Graphic, Fashion Design, Art Ed,. MSEd.

MONTSERRAT SCHOOL OF VISUAL ART 174
James Sawyer, Admissions, Dunham Road, P.O. Box 62
Beverly, MA 01915 (617) 922-8222
Fields of study in Drawing, Painting, Printmaking, Graphic Design, Sculpture, Illustration, Photography.

PORTLAND SCHOOL OF ART Circle No. 175
97 Spring Street
Portland, ME 04101 (207) 772-5137
BFA, Ceramics, Graphics, Jewelry & Silversmithing, Photog., Painting, Printmaking & Sculp. Summer pre-college program.

RHODE ISLAND SCHOOL OF DESIGN Circle No. 176
Edward Newhall, Director
2 College Street, Box 1a
Providence, RI 02903 (401) 331-3511
18 Majors in Architecture, Fine Arts and Design.

RISD CONTINUING EDUCATION Circle No. 177
Dana Prescott, 2 College Street Box 1A
Providence, RI 02903 (401) 331-3511, ext. 281
Summer programs in Graphic Design, Architecture, and Fine arts for College or High School Students.

SILVERMINE GUILD SCHOOL OF THE ARTS 178
Margo Bonthuis (Registrar), Michael Costello (Director)
1037 Silvermine Road
New Cannan, CT. 06840 (213) 866-0411
Major disciplines of visual arts. Adult/Children/Day/Eve.

SKOWHEGAN SCHOOL OF PAINTING AND SCULPTURE 179
JoAnn Chuba, 329 East 68, NY, NY 10021 (212) 861-9270
9 week residency program in Maine of painters & sculptors. Applications due February 28.

SOUTHERN CONNECTICUT STATE UNIV. 180
Jack R. Smith, Chairman, 501 Crescent Street
New Haven, CT 06511 (203) 397-4279
BA, BS, Fine Arts, Graphic Design, Glass Blowing, Ceramics Printmaking, BA Art History, BS, MS, Art Ed.

SWAIN SCHOOL OF DESIGN Circle No. 181
A.D. Tinkham, Director of Admissions
19 Hawthorn Street
New Bedford, MA 02740 (617) 997-7831
BFA, Painting, Printmaking, Sculpture, Graphic Design.

TUFTS UNIVERSITY Circle No. 182
Margaret Floyd, Art Dept., 11 Talbot Ave.
Medford, MA 02155 (617) 381-3567
BA in Fine Arts, MA in Art History.
Combined 5 year program: BA, BS-BFA.

UNIVERSITY OF BRIDGEPORT Circle No. 183
Robert Brennan, Chairman, Art Department
Bridgeport, CT 06602 (203) 576-4436
AA/BA/BS/BFA/MS/Studio Arts/Therapy/Graphic Design/Illust./Photog./Pre-Archit./Fine Arts/Painitg./Ceramics/Printmkg., Sculp.

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

ART SCHOOLS

UNIVERSITY OF MASS. AT AMHERST Circle No. 184
George Wardlaw, Chairman, Art Dept., Fine Arts Center
Amherst, MA 01003 (413) 545-1902
BA, BFA, MFA, MAT, MS, MA, Art History, Studio Arts, Art Education, Interior Design, Indicate Grad. or Under-Grad.

UNIVERSITY OF NEW HAVEN Circle No. 185
Michael Kaloyanides, 300 Orange Street
West Haven, CT 06516 (203) 934-6321
BA, AA, MAH Fine Arts, Interior Design, Graphic Design, Fashion Design, Biological Illustration, Photography.

WORCESTER CRAFT CENTER Circle No. 186
Professional Craft Studies. Director, Syrus Lipsitt
25 Sagamore Road, Worcester, MA 01605 (617) 753-8183
Career-oriented 2 year certificate program. College credit available. Majors in Clay, Fiber, Metal, Wood.

YALE UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF ART Circle No. 187
Patricia DeChiara Lubar, Admissions Officer, 180 York St.
New Haven, CT 06520 (203) 436-4380
Graphic Design Summer Program in Brissago, Switzerland. Deadline April 1, 1983. Summer Art Programs in New Haven, CT.

NORTHEAST

AMERICAN ACADEMY IN ROME Circle No. 188
41 East 65th Street
New York, N.Y. 10021
Rome Prize 1984/85. Awards in the fields of fine arts and humanistic studies. Application deadline November 15, 1983.

ANTONELLI INST. OF ART & PHOTOG. Circle No. 189
Harry W. Hollingsworth, 2910 Jolly Road, P.O. Box 570
Plymouth Meeting, PA 19462 (215) 275-3040
Associate Degrees: Commercial & Fine Art, Interior Design, Photog. Additional campuses in Cincinnati, OH, York, PA.

ART INSTITUTE OF PITTSBURGH Circle No. 190
Steve R. Gregg, 526 Penn Avenue
Pittsburgh, PA 15222 (412) 263-6600
Visual Communications, Photography-Multimedia, Fashion Merchandising, Fashion Illustration, Interior Design.

ART STUDENTS LEAGUE OF NEW YORK 191
R.A Florio, Director, 215 West 57th Street
New York, NY 10019 (212) CI7-4510
Drawing, Painting, Sculpture, Watercolor, Graphic Portraiture, Landscape, Lectures.

BEAVER COLLEGE Circle No. 192
T. Edwards Townsley, Dean of Admissions
Glenside, PA 19038 (215) 572-2910
BFA, BA, Graphic & Int. Design, Painting, Printmaking, Photog., Ceramics, Metals & Jewelry, Art Science, Art Ed., NASAD.

CHAUTAUQUA INSTITUTION Circle No. 193
Jean Quinette Art Center, Box 1098
Chautauqua, NY 14722 (716) 357-6200
Summer Progrm Painting & Drawing, Ceramics, Sculp., Fiber, Jewelry & Metals, Photog. College Credit Recommendation.

CHELTENHAM ART CENTRE Circle No. 194
Marie Rennich, 439 Ashbourne Road
Cheltenham, PA 19012 (215) 379-4660
Fine Arts & Crafts, Open juried and Invitational Exhibition, Galleries.

COOPER UNION SCHOOL OF ART & SCHOOL OF ARCHITECTURE Circle No. 195
Director of Admissions, 41 Coope Square
New York, NY 10003 (212) 254-6300
BFA in all areas of Visual Arts & Design. B. Architecture.

CORCORAN SCHOOL OF ART Circle No. 196
Office of Admissions, 17th and New York Avenue NW
Washington, DC 20006 (202) 628-9484
BFA in Fine Arts, Graphic Design & Photog./Private Studios in Sr. Fine Arts/Internships in Sr. Graphics/Dorm. Apts.

CORNELL UNIVERSITY Circle No. 197
Jason Seley, Dean of College
College of Architecture, Art and Planning
Ithaca, NY 14853 (607) 256-4912
BFA, MFA, Painting, Sculpture, Printmaking, Graphics, Photo.

GREENWICH HOUSE POTTERY Circle No. 198
School of Ceramic Art
Susan B. Wood, Director, 16 Jones Street
New York, NY 10014 (212) 242-4106
Pottery, Sculpture, Glaze, Jane Hartsook Gallery

JOHNSON ATELIER TECH. INSTITUTE Circle No. 199
Brooke Barrie, Academic Director
743 Alexander Road, Princeton, NJ 08540 (609) 452-2661
Sculpture: modeling-enlarging, resins, mold, wax, shell, foundry, metal chasing, structures, patination, sand foundry.

KUTZTOWN UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF VISUAL & PERFORMING ARTS Circle No. 200
George E. McKinley, Kutztown, PA 19530 (215) 683-4061
BFA, Communications Design, General Fine Arts, Related Arts, Crafts, BS in Art Education.

LYCOMING COLLEGE Circle No. 202
Marshall Raucci, Director of Admissions
Williamsport, PA 17701 (717) 326-1951
BA, Studio Art, Sculpture, Commercial Design. Co-operative program with Johnson Atelier Tech. Inst.

MARYLAND INSTITUTE COLLEGE OF ART 203
Barbara Miller, 1300 W. Mt. Royal Avenue
Baltimore, MD 21217 (301) 669-9200
BFA, MFA, Fine Arts, Interior Design, Photography, Graphic Design, Crafts.

MILTON AVERY GRADUATE SCHOOL OF THE ARTS - BARD COLLEGE Circle No. 204
Annandale-on Hudson, NY 12504 (914) 758-4105
An interdisciplinary program; MFA granted in: Poetry, Sulp., Intermedia, Music, Film, Photog., Fiction, Painting.

MOORE COLLEGE OF ART Circle No. 205
Dolores Lewis, 20th and the Parkway,
Philadelphia, PA 19103 (215) 568-4515
Advtg., Fashion, Interior Design. Fashion Illustration. Textile, Ceramics, Jewelry, Jewelry, Paintg, Printmakg, Sculp, Photog.

NEW YORK ACADEMY OF ART Circle No. 206
13-15 Laight Street (Canal & 6th Ave.)
New York, NY 10013 (212) 966-9970
The complete academic curriculum: Cast and Life Drawing, Anatomy, Life Size Painting & Sculpture.

NY STUDIO SCHOOL OF DRAWING, PAINTING AND SCULPTURE Circle No. 207
Don Kimes, 8 W 8th St., NYC 10011, (212) 673-6466
Full time Studio Programs; Drawing, Painting, Sculpture. MFA in Sculpture. Summer Programs in New York.

NEW YORK UNIVERSITY, SEHNAP Circle No. 208
31 Press Building, Washington Square
New York, NY 10003 (212) 598-3481
Degree Programs include Studio & Environmental Art; Folk Art; Costume Studies; Arts Admin.; Museums; Art Education.

ART SCHOOLS

PARSONS SCHOOL OF DESIGN Circle No. 209

Vieri Salvadori, Dean
66 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10011 (212) 741-8953
MFA, Studio Workshops with Senior Faculty. New Sculpture program available. Leland Bell, John Heliker, Paul Resika.

PENNSYLVANIA ACADEMY OF FINE ARTS 210

Erika Flory, Room M, Broad & Cherry Streets
Philadelphia, PA 19102 (215) 972-7625
Painting, Sculpture, Printmaking, Drawing, 4 Year Certificate.

PHILADELPHIA COLLEGE OF ART Circle No. 211

Caroline Kelsey, Director, Broad & Spruce Streets
Philadelphia, PA 19102 (215) 893-3174
Crafts, Fine Arts, Design, Liberal Arts, Concentration in Art Therapy, BFA, BS, MA in Art Education.

PRATT INSTITUTE Circle No. 212

Linda Berk, Director 200 Willoughby Avenue
Brooklyn, NY 11205 (215) 636-3670
17 Majors, Graduate and Undergraduate in Art and Design MFA, BFA, AOS, BID, MID, BA and MA in Archilure.

RIDGEWOOD SCHOOL OF ART & DESIGN Circle No. 213

Robert Crawford, Director, 280 Bldg A. Rt. 17 South
Mahwah, NJ 07430 (201) 529-1882
Fine Arts, Advertising-Design, Illustration.

ROCHESTER INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY Circle No. 214

Peter Giopulos, 1 Lomb Memorial Drive
Rochester, NY 14623 (716) 475-6631
School of Art & Design. School for American Craftsmen.

SCHOOL OF VISUAL ARTS Circle No. 215

Stephen Pite, Director of Admissions
209 East 23rd Street
New York, NY 10010 (212) 679-7350
BFA degree and non-degree programs. MFA deg. in Fine Arts.

SKIDMORE COLLEGE Circle No. 216

Peter Baruzzi, Chairman, Department of Art
Saratoga Springs, NY 12866, (518) 584-5000
BS Painting, Drawing, Printmaking, Sculpture, Jewlery, Ceramics, Graphics, Photog., Weaving, Art Ed., BA Art History.

SOUTHAMPTON COLLEGE Circle No. 217

Kevin Coveney,
Southampton, NY 11968 (516) 283-4000, ext. 120
BFA, Graphic Design BS, ArtEd., BA Liberal Arts/Fine Arts Summer workshops in Studio Arts.

SUNY AT PURCHASE Circle No. 218

Edward Colker, Dean
Purchase, NY 10577 (914) 253-5014,5
BFA, Painting, Drawing, 111-D Media, Printmaking, Paper Making, Arts of the Book, Graphic Design, Photography.

SYRACUSE UNIVERSITY Circle No. 219

Roger Mack, College of Visual & Performing Arts
Syracuse, NY 13210 (315) 423-2507
BFA/BS/BID/MFA/Painting, Sculpture, Ceramics, Design, Printmaking, Fibers, Advt., Film-Video, Computer Graphics.

TYLER SCHOOL OF ART Circle No. 220

Margaret Heuges, Beech and Penrose Aves.
Elkins Parks, PA 19126 (215) 224-7575
BFA, MFA, MEd, Design, Fine and Applied Arts. Summer & Saturday High School Programs. On-Campus dormitories.

UNIVERSITY OF MARYLAND Circle No. 221

Dr. David C. Driskell, Department of Art
College Park, MD 20742 (301) 454-3431
BA, MFA Art Studio; Photography, Painting, Drawing, Sculpture, Printmaking. BA, MA, PHD in Art History.

SOUTHEAST

APPALACHIAN CENTER FOR CRAFTS Circle No. 222

Sally Crain, P.O. Box 347A-1 Route 3
Smithville, TN 37166 (615)528-3051
BFA, BS in crafts, with emphasis in Clay, Metals, Glass, Fibers and Wood.

ATLANTA COLLEGE OF ART Circle No. 223

William Linthicum, 1280 Peachtree Street, NE
Atlanta, GA 30309 (404)898-1163
BFA, Drawing, Painting, Printmaking, Sculpture, Photog., Video, Visual Communication-Design-Advertising Graphic.

ATLANTIC CHRISTIAN COLLEGE Circle No. 224

James D. Daniell, Director
Wilson, NC 27893 (919)237-3161
Commercial Art, Fine Arts, Graphics, Sculpture, Art Education.

COKER COLLEGE Circle No. 225

Charles F. Geren, Director of Admissions
East College Avenue, Hartsville, SC 29550 (803)332-1281
BA, Fine Arts, Graphics, Art History, Art Education, Photog., New 17,000 sq. ft. Art Building. Scholarships avail.

COLLEGE OF WILLIAM AND MARY Circle No. 226

James Kornwolf, Robert Andrews Hall
Williamsburg, VA 23185 (804)253-4385
BA in Painting, Drawing/Printmaking, Watercolor, Ceramics Architectural Design, Sculpture, BA Art History.

GREENVILLE COUNTY MUSEUM OF ART 227

"Museum School of Art", Sharon Campbell, 420 College St.
Greenville, SC 29601 (803)271-7570
Painting, Sculpture, Drawing/Printmaking, Advertising & Interior Design, Contemp. Crafts, Fashion Illust., & Pottery.

HARRIS SCHOOL OF ART Circle No. 228

Beth Ions Harris, Director
1109 Battlewood Street
Franklin, TN 37064, (615)794-8544
Fine Arts, Advertising Arts.

INTERNATIONAL FINE ARTS COLLEGE Circle No. 229

1737 N. Bayshore Dr., Miami, FL 33132 (305)373-4684
Associate of Arts Degree Majors in Communication Design, Interior Design, Fashion Merchandising, Fully Accredited. Call or write for free catalog. Co-ed. Waterfront residence.

MEMPHIS ACADEMY OF ARTS Circle No. 230

Carol DeForest, Admissions
Overton Park, Memphis, TN 38112 (901)726-4085
BFA, Fine Arts/Ad. Design/Crafts. Warm, personal college. Scholarships & merit awards. Call collect.

MEMPHIS STATE UNIVERSITY Circle No. 231

Carol Crown, Chairman, Dept. of Art
Memphis, TN 38152 (901)454-2216
MA, BA, Painting, Ceramics, Sculpture, Interior & Graphic Design. BA, MA, Art History. MAT, Art Education.

NEW ORLEANS ACADEMY OF FINE ARTS 231

A. Ozols, Director, 5256 Magazine Street
New Orleans, LA 70115 (504)899-8111
Eight week continuous sessions in Painting, Drawing, Watercolor, Basic Design.

VOL
71
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

ART SCHOOLS

RINGLING SCHOOL OF ART AND DESIGN 232
1191 27th Street
Sarasota, FL 33580 (813) 351-4614
BFA and 3 year Certification in Fine Arts, Graphic Design, Illustration, Interior Design and Space Planning.

THE SAVANNAH COLL. OF ART/DESIGN 233
Paula Rowen, Director 342 Bull Street
Savannah, Georgia 31401 (912) 236-7458
BFA Painting, Graphics Design, Illustration, Interior Design Photography, Historic Preservation.

THE UNIVERSITY OF ALABAMA Circle No. 235
Dr. V.P. Rembert, Chairperson, P.O. Box F
University, AL 35486-9617 (205)348-5967
BA, BFA, MA, MFA Painting, Printmaking, Photography, Graphic Design, Sculpture, Ceramics. BA Art History.

UNIVERSITY OF GEORGIA Circle No. 236
Francis A. Ruzicka, Dept. of Art, Visual Art Bldg.
Athens, GA 30602 (404)542-1511
BFA, MFA Studio Arts; BFA, BSed, MAed, PHD, Art ED; Specialist or Doctorate of Ed, Arted, BA, MA PHD Art History.

UNIVERSITY OF SOUTH CAROLINA Circle No. 237
Dr. John O'Niell, Chairman, Dept. of Art, Sloan College
Columbia, SC 29208 (803-777-4236
BA, MA, BS, MAT, BFA, MFA, Art History, Education, Studio, Blacksmithing, Video as Art.

VIRGINIA COMMONWEALTH UNIV. 237
Thomas DeSmidt, Assistant Dean, School of Arts
325 North Harrison Street
Richmond, VA 23284 (804) 257-1700
BFA, MFA in all Visual Arts Disciplines.

MIDWEST

AMERICAN ACADEMY OF ART Circle No. 238
Mr. I. Shapiro Dept. A-220 S State Street
Chicago, IL 60604 (312)939-3883
Commercial and Fine Arts, Painting, Drawing Illustration, Advertising, Photography.

BRADLEY UNIVERSITY Circle No. 239
Walter Thompson, Director, 1501 West Bradley Avenue
Peoria, IL 61625 (309) 676-7611
MA, MFA Painting, Sculpture, Printmaking, Metals, Jewelry, Ceramics.

CENTER FOR CREATIVE STUDIES COLLEGE OF ART AND DESIGN Circle No. 240
Janice Bergstrom, 245 East Kirby, Detroit, MI 48202
Ceramics, Fiber & Industrial Design, Graphic Communications, Painting, Printmaking, Sculpture, Photog.

CLEVELAND INSTITUTE OF ART Circle No. 241
Ted Sherron, Director, 11141 East Boulevard
Cleveland, OH 44106 (216)421-4322
5-year BFA program offering 15 majors in Fine Arts, Applied Arts, and Crafts.

COLUMBIA COLLEGE Circle No. 242
Dean of Admissions, Department of Art
Columbia, MO 65216 (314)875-7352
BFA, BA, BS, and 90 hour diploma program in Fine Arts and Graphic Design.

COLUMBIA COLLEGE Circle No. 243
John Mulvany, Chairman, 600 S. Michigan Ave.
Chicago, IL 60605 (312)663-1600
MA, Photog., Gallery Management, Arts & Entertainment Management. Film & Video, Commercial & Studio Art.

COLUMBUS COLL. OF ART AND DESIGN 244
Laurie Clements & Patrick Marion, 47 N. Washington Ave.
Columbus, OH 43215 (614)224-9101
BFA, Studio & Fine Arts, Advertising, Illustration, Photography. Interior & Industrial Designs. Non-Profit Prof. College.

DRAKE UNIVERSITY Circle No. 245
Larry M. Landis, 25th & University Avenue
Des Moines, IA 50315 (515)271-3181
BFA, BA, BAE, MFA Studio Arts. Certificate program in Creative Arts Therapy.

HERRON SCHOOL OF ART Circle No. 246 of Indiana University/Purdue University at Indianapolis
1701 N Pennsylvania St., Indianapolis IN 46202 (317)923-3651
BFA in Visual Communications, Painting, Printmaking, Sculpture, Fine Arts, BAE in Certification, MAE.

HOPE COLLEGE Circle No. 247
Delbert Michel, Art Department Chairman
Holland, MI 49423 (616) 392-5111
Liberal arts institution with strong Art program. BA, major in Art. Excellent new teaching facilities.

ILLINOIS STATE UNIVERSITY Circle No. 248
Fred Mills, Chairman, College of Fine Arts
Bloomington/Normal, IL 61761 (309) 438-5621
BA, BS, MA Art History, BFA, BS Studio Art, BS Art Ed, Art Special Ed, MSA, MFA, PHD.

KANSAS CITY ART INSTITUTE Circle No. 249
Willem Volkersz, 4415 Warwick Boulevard
Kansas City, MO 64111 (816) 931-KCAI
BFA, Ceramics, Design, Fiber, Painting, Printmaking, Photography/Video, Sculpture.

KENDALL SCHOOL OF DESIGN Circle No. 250
Douglas E. Klemm, 1110 College NE
Grand Rapids, MI 49503 (616) 451-2787
BFA, AFA; Graphic, Industrial, Advertising, Interior, Environmental, Furniture Designs, Illustration.

MICHIGAN STATE UNIVERSITY Circle No. 251
Paul Deussen, 113 Kresge Art Center
East Lansing, MI 48824-1119 (517) 355-1855
BA Painting/Drawing, Printmaking, Ceramics, Sculp., Photog., Industrial & Graphic Design. BA, MA Art History. BA, MA ART ED.

MILWAUKEE INSTITUTE OF ART & DESIGN 252
Frank Lukasavitz, 207 North Milwaukee Street
Milwaukee, WI 53202 (414) 276-7889
BFA, Graphic, Industrial & Interior Design, Illustration, Painting, Drawing, Printmaking, Sculpture, Photography.

MINNEAPOLIS COLLEGE OF ART & DESIGN Circle No. 253
Minneapolis, MN 55404 (612) 870-3260
BFA, All major areas of Art and Design. Interdisciplinary majors: Open and Honors.

ART SCHOOLS

OHIO WESLEYAN UNIVERSITY Circle No. 254
Marty J. Kalb, Chairman, Humphreys Art Hall
Delaware, OH 43015 (614) 369-4431 ext. 650/27
BFA/BA/Drawing/Painting/Printmaking/Photo/Graphic Design/Jewelry/Metals/Fiber/Sculpt./Ceramics/Art History/Art-Ed.

RAY-VOGUE COLLEGE OF DESIGN Circle No. 255
Jerry Molepske, 644 North Michigan Avenue
Chicago, IL 60611 (312) 280-3500
A.A. Degree: Illustration Design, Advertising Design, Fashion Illustration, Display & Interior Design, Photography.

SCHOOL OF THE ART INST. OF CHICAGO. 256
Jana Wright, Jackson and Columbus Drive
Chicago, IL 60603 (312) 443-3717
BFA, MFA, Professional Certificates in Art History and in Art Therapy.

SCHOOL OF THE ASSOCIATED ARTS Circle No. 257
Virginia Rahja, 344 Summit Avenue
St. Paul, MN 55102 (612) 224-3416
BFA 4 year program and 3 year Certificate program in Advertising Design, Illustration, Fine Arts.

SOUTHERN ILLINOIS UNIVERSITY Circle No. 258
Pat Covington, Department of Art
Carbondale, IL 62901 (618) 452-4315
BA, BFA, MFA, Painting, Drawing/Printmaking, Sculpture, Ceramics, Glass, Metalsmithing, Blacksmithing, Fibers, Weaving.

UNIVERSITY OF CINCINATTI Circle No. 259
Derrick Woodham, School of Fine Art
Cincinatti, OH 45221 (513) 475-2962
BFA, MFA Drawing, Painting, Printmaking, Ceramics, Sculpture. Film, Photog. BFA, BA Art Ed., BA Art History.

UNIVERSITY OF EVANSVILLE Circle No. 260
Les Miley, Head, Department of Art
P.O. Box 329, Evansville, IN 47702 (812) 479-2043
BFA Studio & Commercial; BA, MA, Art Ed., BA Art History; MA Studio; BS Art Therapy, Commercial Arts/Communications.

UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS AT URBANA Circle No. 261
Eugene Wicks
School of Art and Design, 408 East Peabody Drive
Champaign, IL 61820 (217) 333-0855
NASAD Accreditation. BFA, MFA, MA, PHD, DED.

UNIVERSITY OF IOWA Circle No. 262
Wallace J. Tomasini, Director, School of Art & Art History
Iowa City, IA 52242 (319) 353-4550
BFA, MFA Studio Arts; BA, MA, BFA Art Ed; BA, MA, PHD, Art History.

UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN Circle No. 263
School of Art, 2000 Bonisteel Boulevard
Ann Arbor, MI 48109 (313) 764-0397
Professional Art school in a major University offering programs in the priciple fields of Art & Design.

UNIVERSITY OF NOTRE DAME Circle No. 264
Frederick Beckman, Dept. of Art, Art History, Design
Notre Dame, IN 46556 (219) 239-7602
Studio Art, Industrial Design, Sculpture, Painting, Ceramics, Photography, Fibers, Art History.

UNIVERSITY OF TOLEDO/TOLEDO MUSEUM OF ART Circle No. 265
Charles Gunther, Asst. Director for Education
Box 1013, Toledo, OH 43697 (419) 255-8000
BA, BFA, Studio Arts; BA Art History; B.Ed, MAED

XAVIER UNIVERSITY Circle No. 266
Rene Durand, Jr., Victory Parkway and Dana Avenue
Cincinnati, OH 45207 (513) 745-3301
BFA, BA, Art Education, History, Therapy, Fine Arts Hand Crafts.

MOUNTAIN PLAINS

BLACKHAWK MT. SCHOOL OF ART Circle No. 267
Michael Parfenoff, Box 258, 251 Main Street
Blackhawk, CO 80522 (303) 582-5235
Summer program in Drawing, Painting, in all media. Sculpture, Ceramics, Welding, Printmaking.

COLORADO INSTITUTE OF ART Circle No. 268
Eileen Northrop, Director, 200 E 9th Avenue
Denver, CO 80203 (303) 837-0825
Commercial Art, Photography, Interior Design, Fashion Illustration, Fashion Merchandising.

FASHION & ART INSTITUTE OF DALLAS 269
Mrs. Evelyn Keedy
2829 W Northwest Highway, #401
Dallas, TX 75220 (214) 350-8874
Commercial Art, Fashion Merchandising, Interior Design.

TEXAS CHRISTIAN UNIVERSITY Circle No. 270
Ronald Watson, Chairman, Dept. of Art and Art History
Fort Worth, Texas 76129 (817) 921-7643
BFA, Complete visual arts program including graphic design. MFA, painting, printmaking, ceramics, sculp., metals.

TEXAS WOMAN'S UNIVERSITY Circle No. 271
Director of Admissions, Department of Art
P.O. Box 22995, TWU Station, Denton, TX 76204 (817) 382-8923
MA, MFA in all major areas of Visual, Fine, and Applied Arts. Co-educational on graduate level only.

WEST

ACADEMY OF PROFESSIONAL ART CONSERVATION & SCIENCE Circle No. 272
Bill Haney, 165 W Napa, Box 192, Sonoma, CA 95476
(707) 938-3801. A one to one intensive Professional Program in Art Conservation for the serious and dedicated.

ART CENTER COLLEGE OF DESIGN Circle No. 273
1700 Lida St., Pasadena, CA 91103 (213) 577-1700
BFA, BS, MFA, MS, Fine Arts, Advertising Design, Graphic Design/Packaging, Illust., Fashion Illust., Film, Photog., Environmental. Transportation & Product Design.

BRENTWOOD ART CENTER Circle No. 274
Linda Buttwinick, 13031 Montana Avenue
Los Angeles, CA 90049 (213) 451-5657
Private Fine Arts School, Basic and Life Drawing, Watercolor, Oil, Sculpture, Design, Mixed Media.

VOL
71
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

ART SCHOOLS

CALIF COLLEGE OF ARTS & CRAFTS
Circle No. 275

5212 Broadway
Oakland, CA 94618 (415) 653-8118
BFA, MFA, MAEd, 3 year Certificate, Teaching Credentials, Fine Arts, Crafts, Design. 3 five week summer sessions.

CALIFORNIA INSTITUTE OF THE ARTS
Circle No. 276

Kenneth Young, Director of Admissions
24700 McBean Parkway
Valencia, CA 91355 (805) 255-1050
BFA, MFA, Art & Design, Film & Video, Dance, Music, Theater.

HUMBOLDT STATE UNIVERSITY
Circle No. 277

William T. Anderson, Art Department
Arcata, CA 95521 (707) 826-3624
MA, BA, Studio Arts, Photography, Jewelry & Metals, Ceramics, Graphic Design, Gallery Operations, NASAD Accredited.

IDYLLWILD SCHOOL OF MUSIC & THE ARTS
278

Suzanne Sawyer, P.O. Box 38
Idyllwild, CA 92349 (714) 659-2171
Summer Programs: Visual Arts, Music, Dance, Theatre, Studio Arts, Photog., American Indian Art & Ceremonial Workshops.

OTIS/PARSONS ART INSTITUTE
Circle No. 279

Nina Sadek, 2401 Wilshire Blvd.
Los Angeles, CA 90057 (213) 387-5288
BFA, Design-Communication, Environmental, Fashion; Ceramics, Illustration/BFA, MFA, Fine Arts, Photog.

PACIFIC NORTHWEST COLLEGE OF ART
280

Bonnie Malcolmson, Admissions 1219 Southwest Park
Portland, OR 97205 (503) 226-4391
BFA, Ceramics, Printmaking, Drawing, Painting, Sculpture, Graphic Design, Illustration, Photography.

SAN DIEGO STATE UNIVERSITY
Circle No. 281

Frederick Orth, Chairman, Department of Art
San Diego, CA 92182 (619) 265-6811
BA, MA, Painting, Printmaking, Sculpture, Crafts, Graphic Design, Environmental & Interior Design. Art History.

SAN FRANCISCO ART INSTITUTE
Circle No. 282

800 Chestnut St., San Francisco, CA 94133 (415) 771-7020
Filmmaking, Painting, Performance/Video, Photography, Printmaking, Sculpture/Ceramic Sculpture, MFA, BFA, Humanities Program.

RUDOLPH SCHAEFFER SCHL. OF DESIGN
283

Tom Kass, 2255 Mariposa Street
San Francisco, CA 94110 (415) 863-0115
The fundamentals of Design as applied to interiors.

SPHYNX GALLERY & STUDIO WORKSHOP
284

Tom Moxley, P.O. Drawer 1570
Lake Arrowhead, CA 92352 (714) 337-0082
Small classes in Painting, Drawing Life Drawing, Printmaking.

UNIVERSITY OF ARIZONA ART DEPT.
Circle No. 285

Dr. Howard Conant, Head, Tucson, AZ 85721 (602) 621-7570
BFA, MFA Painting, Drawing, Print-processes, Ceramics, Metalwork, Graphic Design, Photog., Fibers, Combined Media. BA, MA Art History. BFA, MA Art Education.

UNITED STATES INTERNATIONAL UNIV.
286

School of Performing & Visual Arts
10455 Pomerado Rd., San Diego, CA 92131 (619) 693-4630
BA in Art Teaching, Comprehensive Design
BFA and MFA in Advertising Design, Stage/Film/TV Design

UNIVERSITY OF HAWAII MANOA
Circle No. 287

John Wisnosky, Chairman, 2535 The Mall
Honolulu, HI 96822 (808) 948-8251
BA, BFA Studio Arts, Art History, MA Art History, (Oriental & Arts of the Pacific) MFA Studio Arts.

UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO
Circle No. 288

Paul L. Blanton, Dean, College of Art & Architecture
Moscow, ID 83843 (208) 885-6272
BA, BFA, MA, MFA, Studio Arts, Art History, Education. Idaho-Rome International Studies-Grad. & Under-grad in Art.

UNIVERSITY OF SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA
289

School of Fine Arts, University Park, Watt Hall 104
Los Angeles, CA 90089-0292 (213) 743-2788
BFA, BFA in Art Ed, BAFA, BA Art History; MFA, MA Art History MA Art History/Museum Studies, PHD Art History

UNIVERSITY OF UTAH
Circle No. 290

Paul Davis, 161 AAC, Salt Lake City, UT 84112 (801) 581-8677
BA, BFA Painting, Printmaking/Drawing, Sculpture, Ceramics, Small Metals, Photography, Graphic Design, Illustration. BA Film. BA, MA Art History.

These paid listings of schools offering undergraduate and graduate courses in the art field are provided for your convenience. For additional information simply circle the appropriate numbers on the reader service postcard in this section. Be sure to indicate whether you are interested in graduate or undergraduate level studies.

ART SCHOOLS

from the Art in America Book Shelf

Outstanding Books. Incomparable Savings.

(Up to $30 on a single volume.)

If high bookstore prices are the obstacle to indulging your love of good art books, then browse through this page right now and discover discounts on books you won't hesitate to enjoy. You may find books here that simply never make it to your local bookstore—and you'll be spared the chore of lugging them home.

This selection of recent books we think you'll want for your library was made from Art in America's own editorial shelf. And by special arrangement with the publishers, you—as a reader of Art in America—can now save from 10% to 25% of the usual bookstore prices.

Order by returning the coupon below. Please indicate the books you want by number—and note the free bonus book to which you may be entitled. Publisher's list price given first, then special reader's discount in bold face type.

20th Century Artists

#010 Shock of the New by Robert Hughes. "Easily the best book to date on 20th century art."—John Canaday. $29.95/$24.95

#012 World of Donald Evans by Willy Eisenhart. Evans gave life to imaginary worlds in an art of exquisite watercolor postage stamps. $29.95/$22.45

#013 Scrapbook: 1900-1981 by Roland Penrose. Memoir and pastiche, an evocation of the modern European art world by an artist at its center. $35.00/$31.50

#014 Robert Smithson: Sculpture by Robert Hobbs. The first book on this influential earth artist, extensively documented with photographs, drawings, commentaries, and essays. $29.50/22.50

Master Artists

#015 Piero della Francesca by Kenneth Clark. A great modern humanist scholar on the most human of Italian masters. $75.00/$60.00

#018 Audubon's Birds of America by Roger Tory Petersen and Virginia Marie Peterson. 470 color plates and a comprehensive new text make this edition the only one to rival Audubon's own. $185.00/$148.00

#017 Great Drawings of All Time: 13th to 19th Centuries. The acclaimed Shorewood edition in a limited reissue of 900 sets. 1120 natural color plates, texts by 17 historians, winner of the Carey-Thomas Award. 4 volumes, boxed, 45 pounds. $500.00/$425.00

#016 Great Drawings of All Time: 20th Century. Latest in the Shorewood Drawings series. Two volumes, boxed, with 528 color plates. $300.00/$250.00

Please Note: All six volumes of the Great Drawings series may be purchased for just $640, instead of the $800 list price: a full 20% saving. Order by #019.

Decorative Arts

#152 Mariano Fortuny: His life and Work by Guillermo de Osma. A portrait of the artist, inventor, and designer best known for his clothing and textiles, prized now by collectors. $37.50/$29.95

#145 the Catalogue of World Antiques by William C. Ketchum, Jr. From traditional antiques to toys, Art Deco objects, and even pre-Columbian artifacts, with 48 color pages. $30.00/$24.95

#156 Rugs as an Investment by Parviz Nemati. The first comprehensive guide to 19th and 20th century Oriental rugs, called "the highest appreciating collectibles in today's market." $60.00/$54.00

Art in America 850 Third Avenue New York, NY 10022

Please send me the books indicated by number below. I pay the special Art in America reader's discount prices, plus $2.00 per book for shipping and handling. (Please add $7.50 for shipping and handling on book #018, $10.05 for #017, and $5.65 for #016.) New York Residents: Please add 8¼% sales tax.

☐ My check in the amount of $________ is enclosed to cover books and shipping and handling.

☐ Please bill my ☐ Visacard # __________

☐ Mastercard # __________

(Expiration Date __________)

Signature __________

Name __________

Address __________

City ______ State ______ Zip ______

A FREE BONUS BOOK ☐ Check here should your order exceed $75.00 in value. We'll send you free of charge your copy of Contemporary Decorative Arts from 1940 to the Present, by Philippe Gardner. (Publisher's Price $27.50)

VOL
71
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

Index of Advertisers

AARG 40
Acquavella Contemp. Art 50
Adler, A.M. 295
Adler, Rachel 56
Allport Associates 42
American Academy in Rome 283
Anderson & Anderson 52
A.R.E.A. 293
The Art Brokerage 292
Arts Focus 31
Art Institute of Boston 293
Artistic Brush 284
Art Research & Technology 293
Art Space/Virginia Miller 44
Art Students League 283
Art Supply Warehouse 296

Bacardi Gallery 30
Barnett Gallery, David 51
Batman, Donald 59
Blum Helman Cov. IV
Boone, Mary 46
Bornstein, Karl 57
Brown Brothers, Inc., Arthur 284
Brown, Diane 55
Butler Gallery, Marilyn 57

Carone Gallery 56
Catalogs 243
Cawley, Joan 294
Chicago Int'l Art Exposition 224
Christie's 220
Cicero, Jan 61
Clark Gallery, Garth 38
Concord 38
Condeso Lawler 54
Crosson-Dannis 57

Davis McClain 63
DBR 296
Del Rey Gallery, Marisa 4
Deson Gallery, Marianne 54
Di Blasi Advertising 294
Doyle, William 223
Drutt, Helen 55
Dubins Gallery 36
Dubose Galleries 51

Editions Press 33, 294
Elkon, Robert 42
Ericson 35
Esterly Company, H.F. 219
Ettinger, Eleanor, Inc. 34

Feingarten Galleries 31
FIAC '83 244
Findlay Jr., David 295
Fiterman, Dolly 6
Forma 295
Fort Worth Gallery 50
49th Parallel 294
Freidenrich Contemporary Art, Inc. 59
Friedman, Anita 52
Friedman, Marvin Ross 57
Frumkin, Allan 47

Galerie Michael 44
Gallery One 294
Gallery Paule Anglim 51
Gallery II/RSVP 62
Gallery Wall 50
Germans-Van Eck 295
Gekas-Nicholas 58
Getler/Pall 295
Gillman, Barbara 52
Glass Gallery 294
Goldman-Kraft 59
Goldstrom, Foster 39
Goodman, James 28
Great Northern Brokerage 38
Grimaldis, C. 34
Grumbacher 26
Gutierrez Fine Arts, Marta 295

Hadler Rodriquez 56
Haime Gallery, Nohra 33
Hallowell Gallery 60
Hamilton, Martina 43
Hammer Gallery 6
Hanover Fine Arts 54
Harcourts Gallery 32
Harris Gallery 54
Herstand, Arnold 2
Hoffman, Nancy 42
Hoffman, Rona 53
Horwitch, Elaine Cov. III
Hutchinson, Max 47

Indianapolis Art League 293
International Fine Art Consultants, Inc. 52
Jerry's Artarama 60

Kind Phyllis 51
Kantor, Ulrike 61

L.A. Packing & Crating 284
Lasansky Corp. 58
LAVA 29
Lewin Galleries, B. 63
Love R.H. 18
Malama Arts 296
Martin Fine Arts, Marianne 55
Markel, Kathryn 295
Maroney & Co., James 8
Matisse, Pierre 1
Mattress Factory 61
Meredith Contemporary Art Gallery 43
Metro Pictures 55
Milliken, Alexander Cov. II
Mixografia Workshop 40
Moss Portfolio 37

Nahan Galleries 53
Nimbus Gallery 58
999 Bookshop 294

Oaksprings Impressions 28
Oscarsson-Hood 46

Pa. Academy of Fine Arts 293
Pace Editions 5
Paige Gallery 60
Park Row Gallery 44
Parle Portraits 63
Perimeter Press 56
Pindar Gallery 53
Poole, Jonathan 43
Printmaking Workshop 284
Printworld Directory 62

Ratliff Advertising, Marcus 24
Rein Gallery, C.G. 39
Richebourg/McCoy 18
Rocklands Gallery 63
Rosa Associates 48
Rosenberg Gallery, Alex 33

Salander-O'Reilly 42
Satori Gallery 296
Sawyer Gallery, William 46
Schwartz, Joyce 295
Sculpture Placement 45
Selkowitz, Judith 30
Serra di Felice 46
Settles Gallery David 296
Steinbaum Gallery, Bernice 36
Stremmel Art Gallery 40
Silberberg, Nathan 60

Taghini-Milani, Leila 47
Tamar Arts 41
Tasende Gallery 7
Taylor Art, Carol 64
Transworld Art 33
Tyler School of Art 284

U.S.I.U. 292
University of Bridgeport 62
University of Maine/Forum A 293

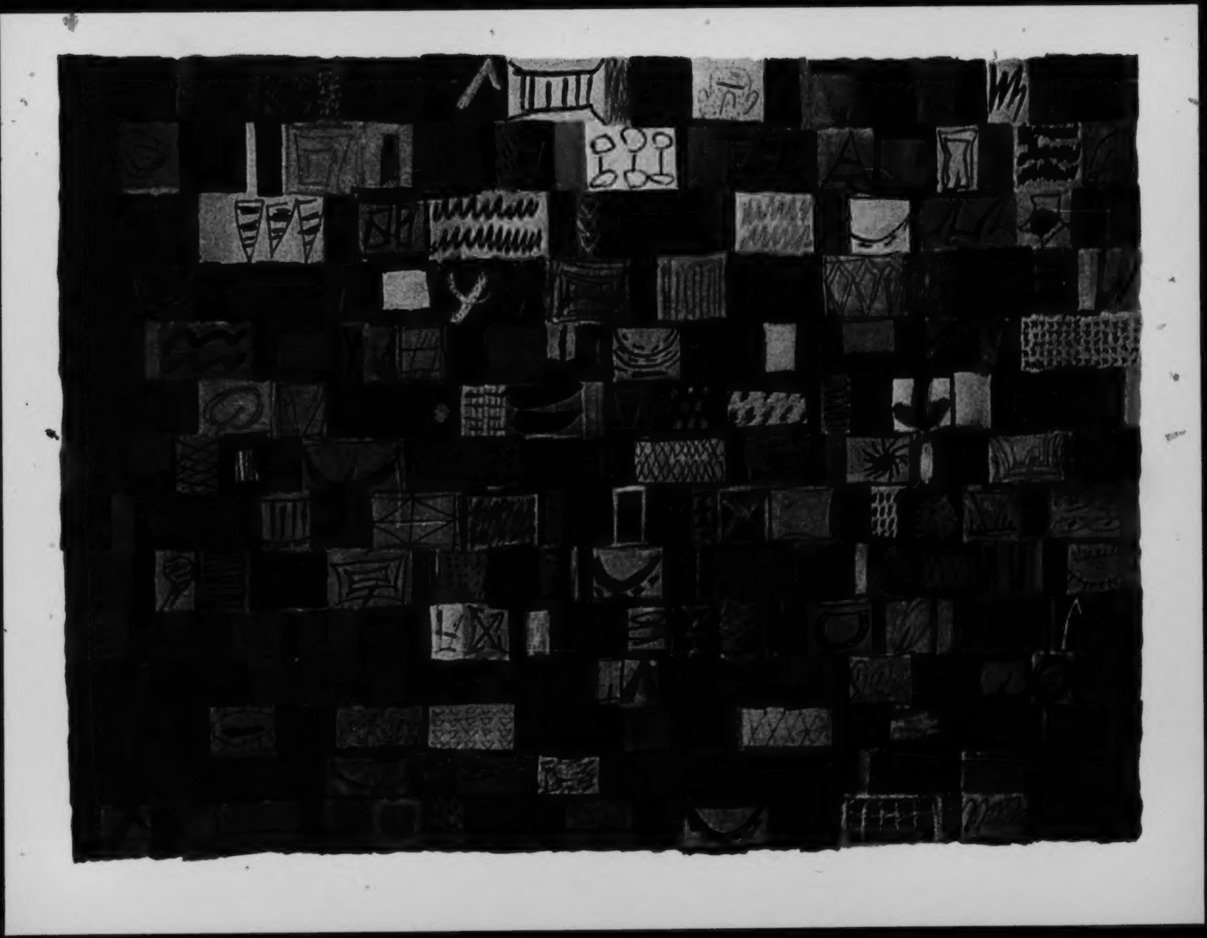
Vasarely Center 34

Walton-Gilbert 59
Webb Design 284
Weiner, Jan 29
Weintraub Gallery 294
Weschler's 222
Westbroadway Gallery 57
Wheelwright Museum 32
Women's Interart Center 62
Words of Art, Inc. 61
Worldwide Books 219
Wunderlich & Co., Inc. 35
Wurzer Gallery, Gerhard 36

Young/Hoffman 53
Young, Donald 53

Zolla-Lieberman 35

IDA KOHLMEYER



"Diminutive Symbols 81-A" mixed media 66" x 86"

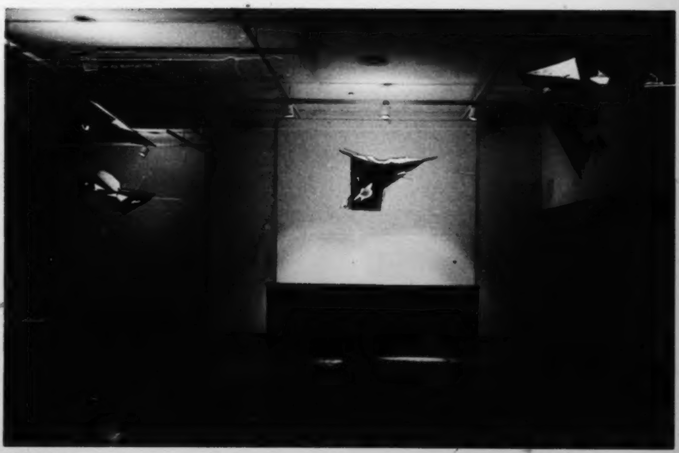
ELAINE HORWITCH GALLERIES

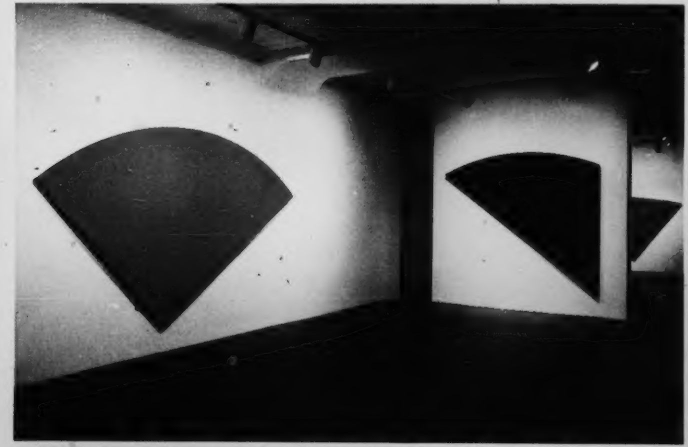
4211 N. Marshall Way
Scottsdale, Arizona 85251
(602)945-0791

129 W. Palace Ave.
Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501
(505) 988-8997

Schnebly Hill Rd & Hwy 179
Sedona, Arizona 86336
(602)282-6290

VOL
71
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI





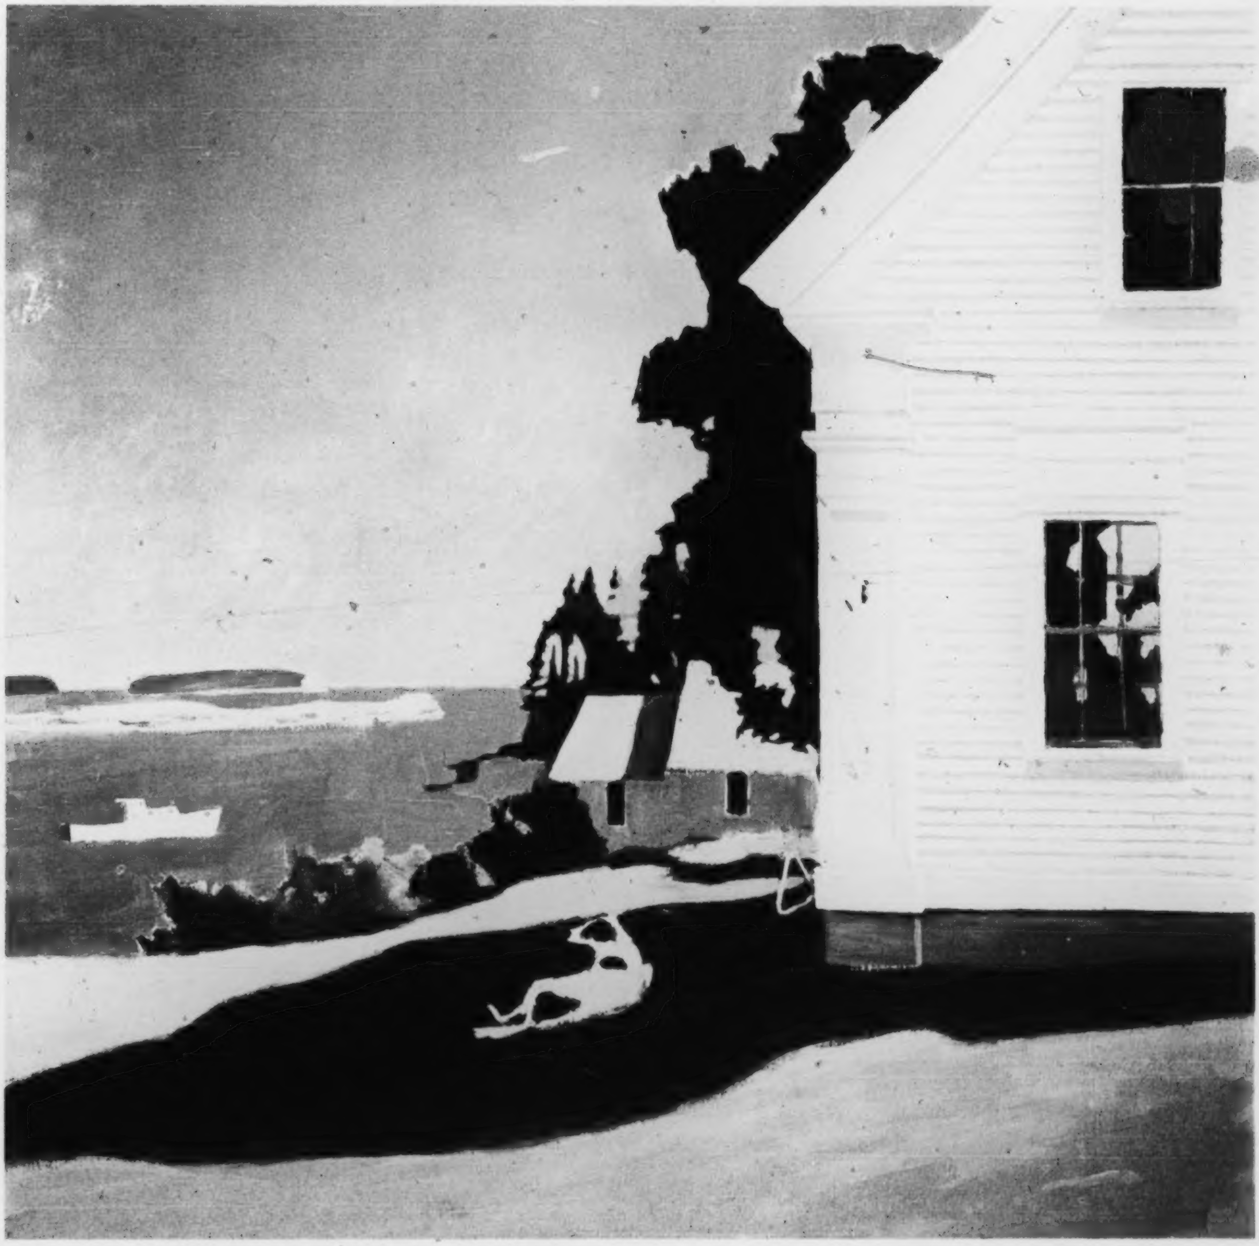
1982-1983
Ryman/Tuttle/Twombly
Steve Keister
Ellsworth Kelly
Richard Serra
Robert Moskowitz
Duff/Mangold/Nauman
Bryan Hunt
BlumHelman
20 West 57th New York

VOL
71
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI

Art in America

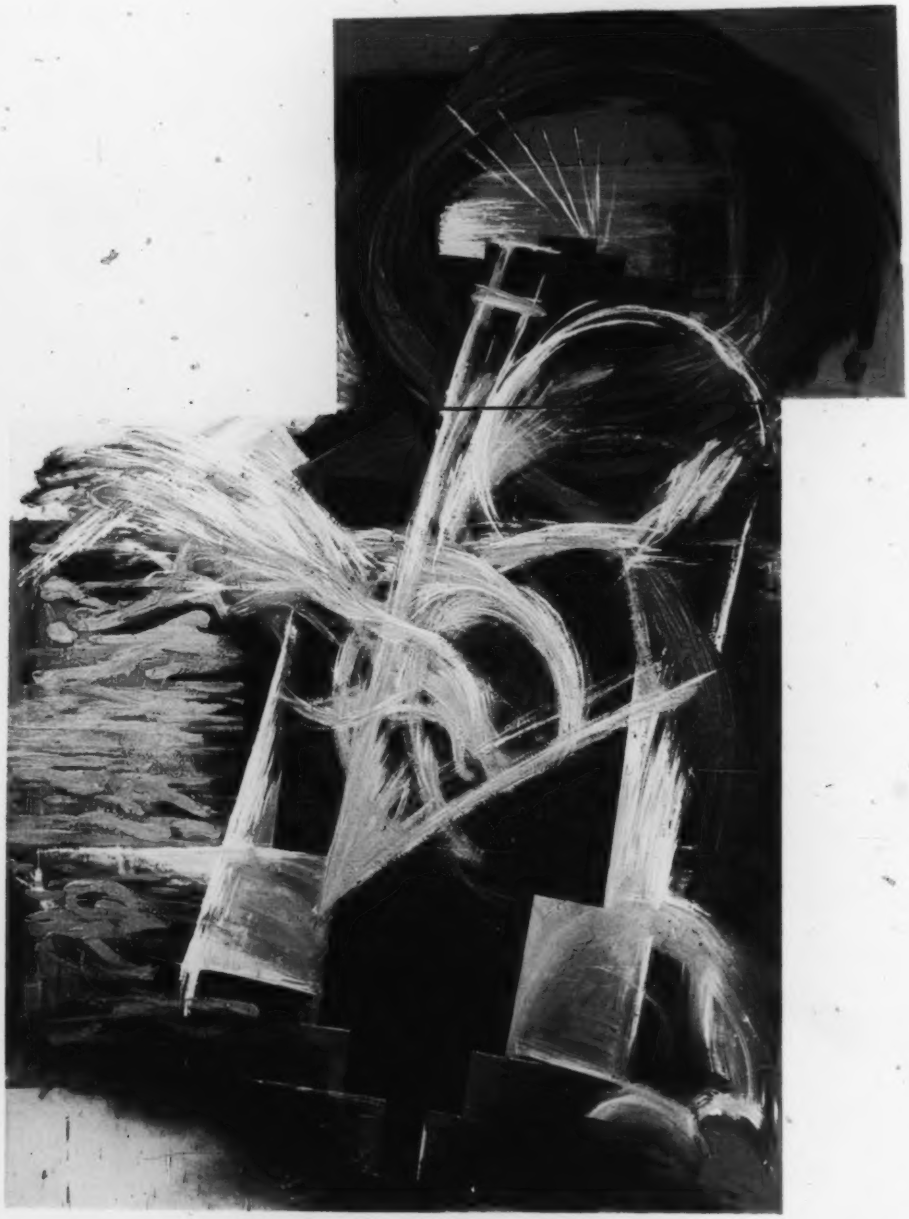
SEPTEMBER 1983/$4.00

Cover: Fairfield Porter's "Island Farmhouse"
Scandinavian Painting/Frank Lloyd Wright's Hollyhock House
New Work: Allan McCollum, Terry Allen/Sugarman/Porter Retrospective
"Big Pictures" at MOMA/German Naives/Review of Exhibitions



VOL 7 1 ISS 8 SE 1983 UMI

RICHARD KIDD / Paintings



September 10 - October 5, 1983

ALEXANDER F. MILLIKEN INC.

98 Prince Street, New York, NY 10012 Telephone: (212) 966-7800

Heroine, 1983, oil on canvas, 126 x 98 inches

The people who buy Art in America...

---

* own nearly $2.5 billion in art works.

* spent more than $330,000,000 in the past 12 months for private purchases of art.

By category:

Paintings	$142,008,700
Prints	42,166,650
Drawings	14,669,650
Sculpture	44,289,800
Antiques	50,053,000
Photographs	10,179,568
Crafts	28,110,000

* 75.6% are active in the market – buying or seeking to acquire additional works.

These figures pertain only to our regular subscribers and their private purchases.

They do not include their participation in art purchases for corporations and museums (last reported at $250,000,000 annually and unquestionably higher today.)

They do not include the art-buying activity of nearly 11,000 additional monthly newsstand purchasers of Art in America – another great source of continuous art collecting.

The subscriber facts alone make the point:

The people who buy Art in America are the people who buy art... in America and around the world.

Paul Shanley

Paul Shanley
– Publisher

---

* Art in America Reader Profile Survey, Beta Research Inc., Syosset, NY, June, 1983. Further findings on subscribers' art interests, activities, and personal data are available from your Art in America sales representative.

VOL
7
1

ISS
8

SE

1983

UMI

Kenneth Noland. Across, 1964. 8 x 10½ feet (2.46 x 3.20 m.)

Early Works by Contemporary Masters

CARO · FRANCIS · FRANKENTHALER · GOTTLIEB
HELD · LOUIS · NOLAND · OLITSKI

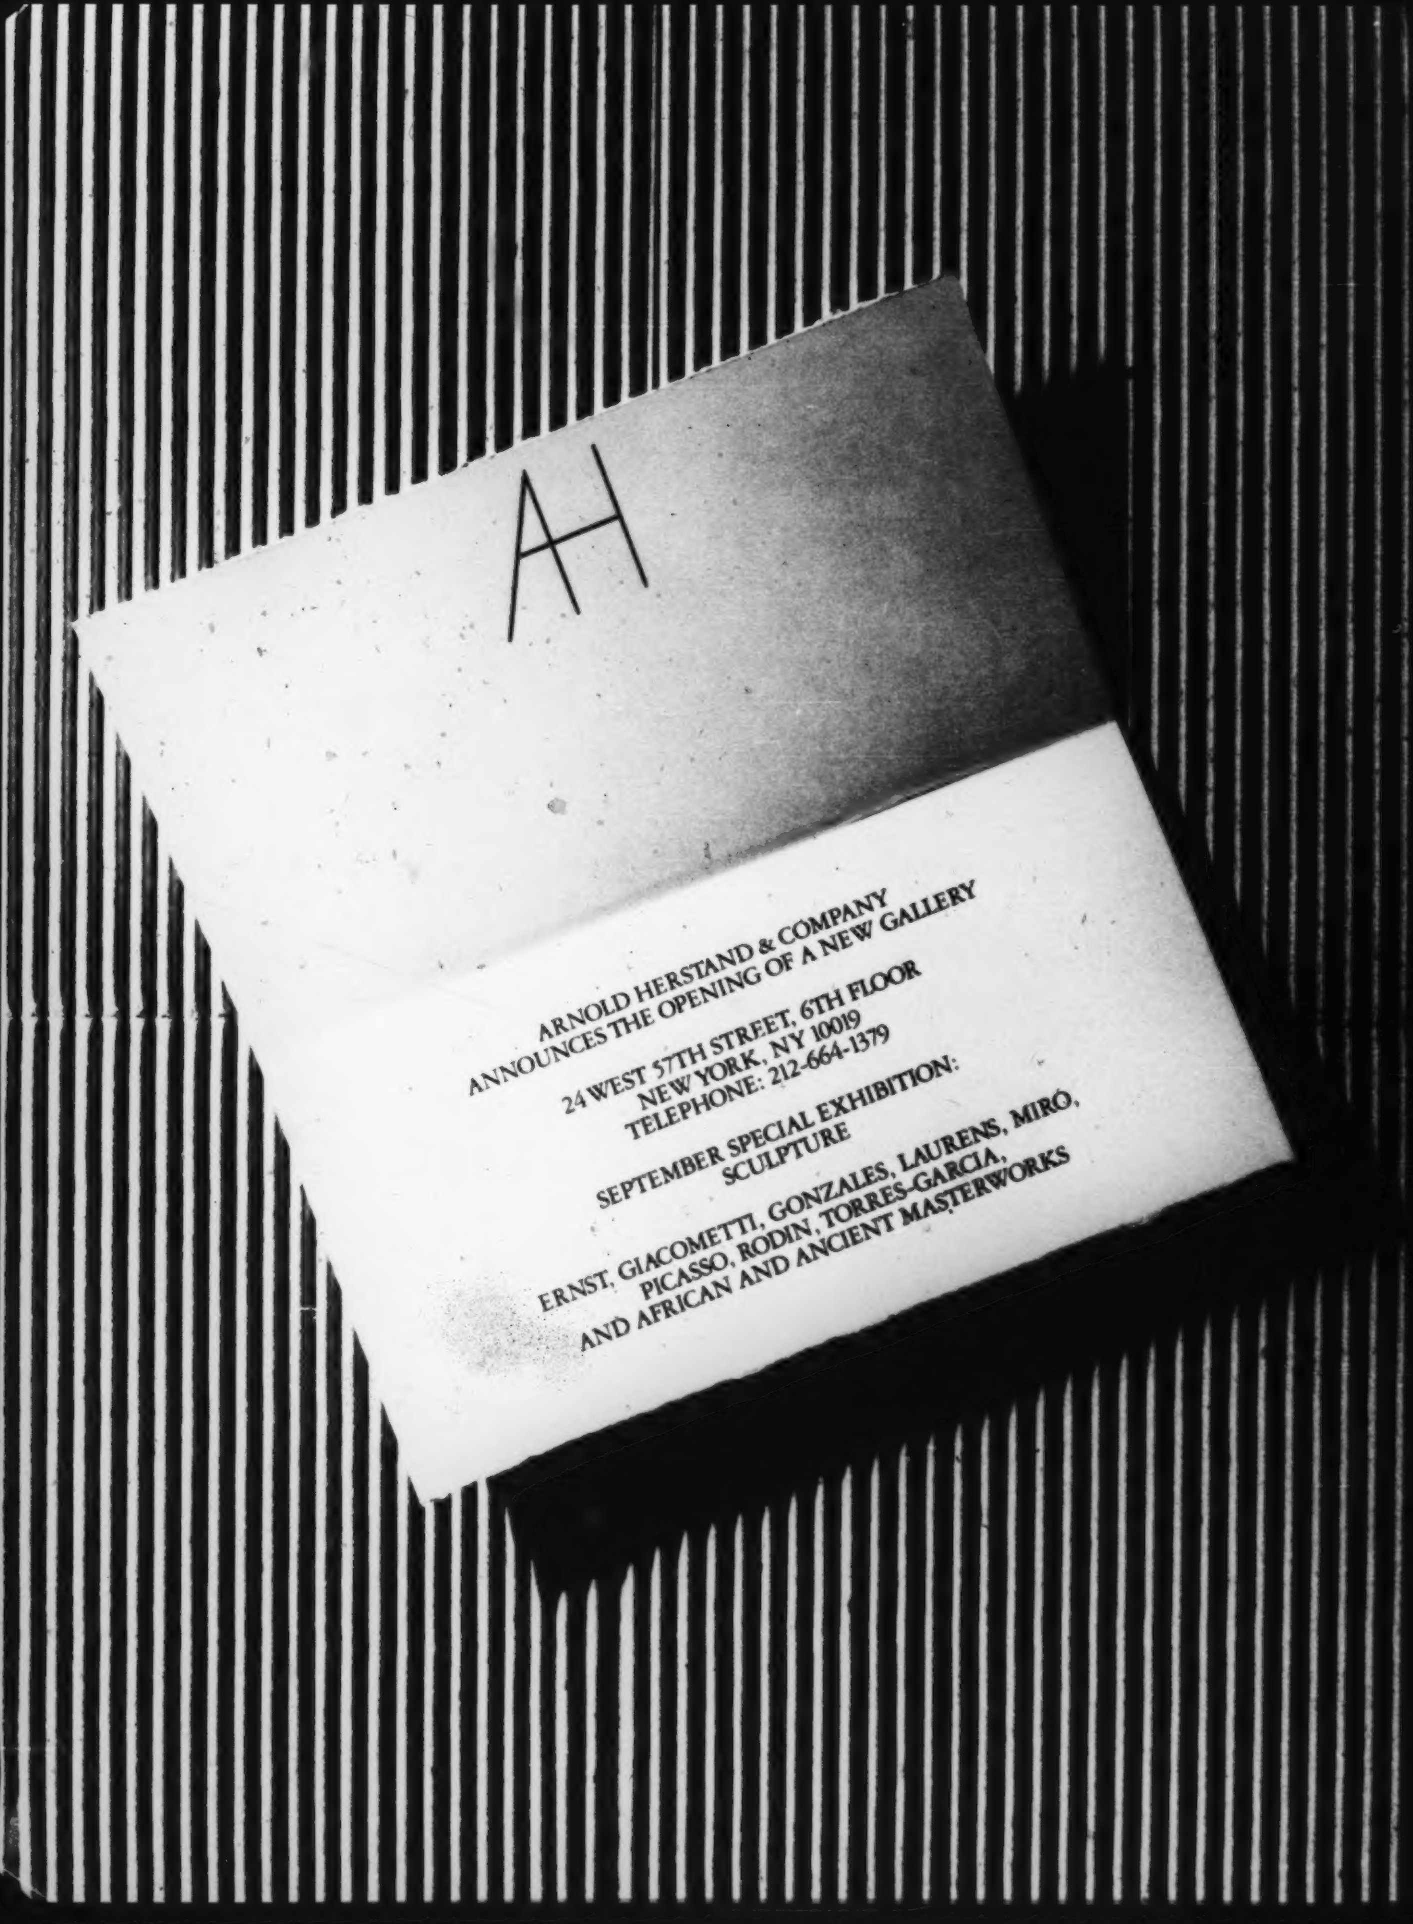
ANDRE EMMERICH GALLERY
September 6 to October 8 at 41 East 57 Street · New York, NY 10022 · Tel (212) 752-0124

VOL
7
1

ISS
8

SE
1983

UMI



ARNOLD HERSTAND & COMPANY
ANNOUNCES THE OPENING OF A NEW GALLERY

24 WEST 57TH STREET, 6TH FLOOR
NEW YORK, NY 10019
TELEPHONE: 212-664-1379

SEPTEMBER SPECIAL EXHIBITION:
SCULPTURE

ERNST, GIACOMETTI, GONZALES, LAURENS, MIRÓ,
PICASSO, RODIN, TORRES-GARCIA, AND AFRICAN AND ANCIENT MASTERWORKS

Art in America

SEPTEMBER 1983

Souls on Ice Marcia E. Vetrocq 116
The recent "Northern Light" exhibition examined turn-of-the-century Scandinavian painting.

On a Hidden Portrait of Marie-Thérèse Pierre Daix 124
A portrait of Marie-Thérèse Walter, concealed in a mid-'20s Picasso still life, celebrates her new role in the artist's life.

Allan McCollum: Repetition & Difference Craig Owens 130
McCollum's "generic paintings" comment obliquely on our repetitive society.

West Texas Dada Jonathan Crary 133
Complex and often startling, Terry Allen's "rooms and stories" are collages of bric-a-brac from the margins of American culture.

Fairfield Porter: Natural Premises Robert Berlind 136
A touring retrospective demonstrated how Porter fused artifice with a fluent painterly realism.

Multiple Disjunctions Elizabeth Frank 144
Eccentric shapes and sensuous colors characterize George Sugarman's highly idiosyncratic, exuberant sculpture.

Hollyhock House and the Romance of Southern California Neil Levine 150
Typically sensitive to its site, Frank Lloyd Wright's Hollyhock House evokes a wide range of exotic architectural styles.

DEPARTMENTS

Review of Books 11

Report from Chicago
The Other Germans: Outsider Art
Michael Bonesteel 29

Photography
Looking at the Big Picture
Pepe Karmel 35

Report from Paris
Jean Arp: Chance and Necessity
Yve-Alain Bois 41

Artworld 216

REVIEW OF EXHIBITIONS

New York, Chicago, Houston,
Los Angeles, San Francisco,
Milwaukee, Toronto 167

Cover: Fairfield Porter's Island Farmhouse, 1969, oil on canvas, 79⅞ by 79½ inches. See article p. 136.

Editor: Elizabeth C. Baker

Managing Editor: Joan Simon / Executive Editor: Nancy Marmer / Senior Editors: Ted Mooney, Craig Owens / Associate Editors: Prudence Carlson, Hal Foster / Assistant Managing Editor: Kathryn Howarth / Assistant Editor: Robert Fisher / Designer: Alberto P. Gavasci / Associate Designer: Louis D'Esposito / Director Manager : Amy Slaton / Consultant: John Peter / Contributing Editors: Donald B. Kuspit, Lucy Lippard, Sarah McFadden, Linda Nochlin, Carter Ratcliff, Bryan Robertson, Irving Sandler, Peter Schjeldahl, Roberta Smith, Charles F. Stuckey / Corresponding Editors: Chicago, Franz Schulze; San Francisco, Peter Selz; Washington D.C., David Tannous; London, Suzi Gablik; Rome, Milton Gendel

Publisher: Paul Shanley

Director of Advertising: Susan B. Anthony / Advertising Sales: Deborah J. Gardner, Karen Niedzielski, Ruth B. Rothseid / Advertising Services: Julia H. Price, Susanne Vorster / Production: Mary Jontry / Production Assistant: Sarah King / Promotion Director: Valerie Green / Circulation Director: Barbara Gutman / Circulation Manager: Susan Blattman / Marketing Services Director: Karen Tubridy / Art in America, 850 Third Ave., N.Y.C., 10022, Tel. (212) 715-2600
Director for International Development: John H. Liesveld Jr. / Administrative Assistant: Grant S. Barker, Art in America, 39 Quai des Grands Augustins, 75006 Paris, France. Tel. (1) 325.26.55.

WHITNEY COMMUNICATIONS CORPORATION MAGAZINE DIVISION
PRESIDENT John S Prescott SENIOR VICE PRESIDENT FINANCE/ADMINISTRATION Gordon H Duncan
VICE PRESIDENT MARKETING William Hitzig VICE PRESIDENT PLANNING Dean Heine
VICE PRESIDENT PRODUCTION James Kearney VICE PRESIDENT PRODUCT DEVELOPMENT Virginia Evans PROMOTION DIRECTOR James Anderson

WHITNEY COMMUNICATIONS CORPORATION
CHAIRMAN Walter N Thayer
PRESIDENT Charles H G Rees

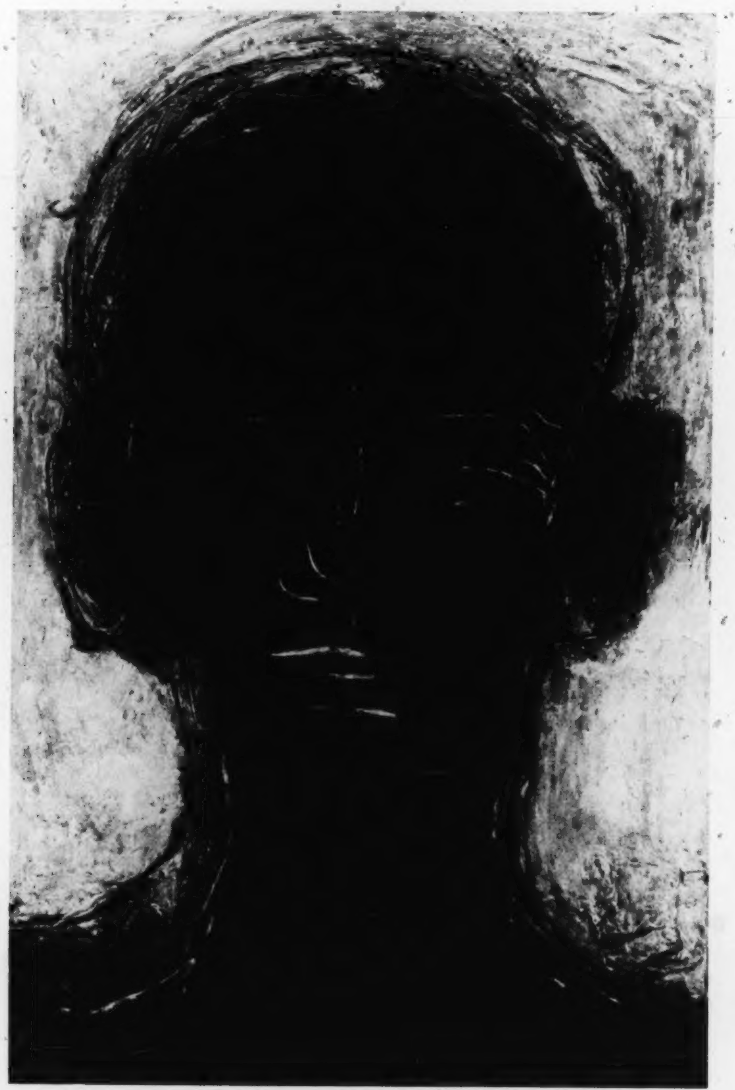
Vol 71, No 8 (September) Art in America is published 11 times a year (monthly except July) by Art in America, Inc., 850 Third Avenue, New York, N Y 10022 Telephone (area code 212) 715-2600 Cable address AMARTMAG A member of the Magazine Division of Whitney Communications Corporation. Contents copyright © 1983 by Art in America, Inc., and may not be reproduced in any manner or form without permission ISSN 0004-3214 The opinions expressed in "Issues and Commentary," apart from the editor's comments, are those of the writers themselves and not necessarily those of this magazine Not responsible for unsolicited manuscripts or photographs Art in America is indexed in the Readers' Guide to Periodical Literature and the Art Index Back volumes of Art in America are available in microfiche from Bell & Howell, Att Periodical Department, Old Mansfield Road, Wooster, Ohio 44691 Microfilm copies are available through Xerox University Microfilm, Ann Arbor, Michigan 48106 Articles appearing in this magazine are abstracted and indexed in Historical Abstracts and/or America: History and Life and RILA Circulation is verified by the Audit Bureau of Circulations Controlled circulation postage paid at Concord, N H and New York, N Y BACK ISSUES AND COMPLETE VOLUMES Lawrence McGilvery, P O Box 852, LaJolla, Calif., 92038 SUBSCRIPTIONS U S 11 issues $34 95, 22 issues $59 95, 33 issues $79 95 Possessions & Canada add $8 00 per year All others add $15 00 per year Single copy $4 00 prepaid Single copy August/Annual $7 45 prepaid (includes $1 50 postage and handling) SUBSCRIPTION OFFICE: Art in America, 542 Pacific Ave., Marion, Ohio 43302. Telephone (area code 614) 383-3141. FOR CHANGE OF ADDRESS send old and new addresses and label from a recent issue POSTMASTER Send Form No 3579 to Art in America, 542 Pacific Avenue, Marion, Ohio 43302

Member of the Audit Bureau of Circulations

VOL
71
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI

LESTER JOHNSON

THE EARLY PAINTINGS 1958-1967

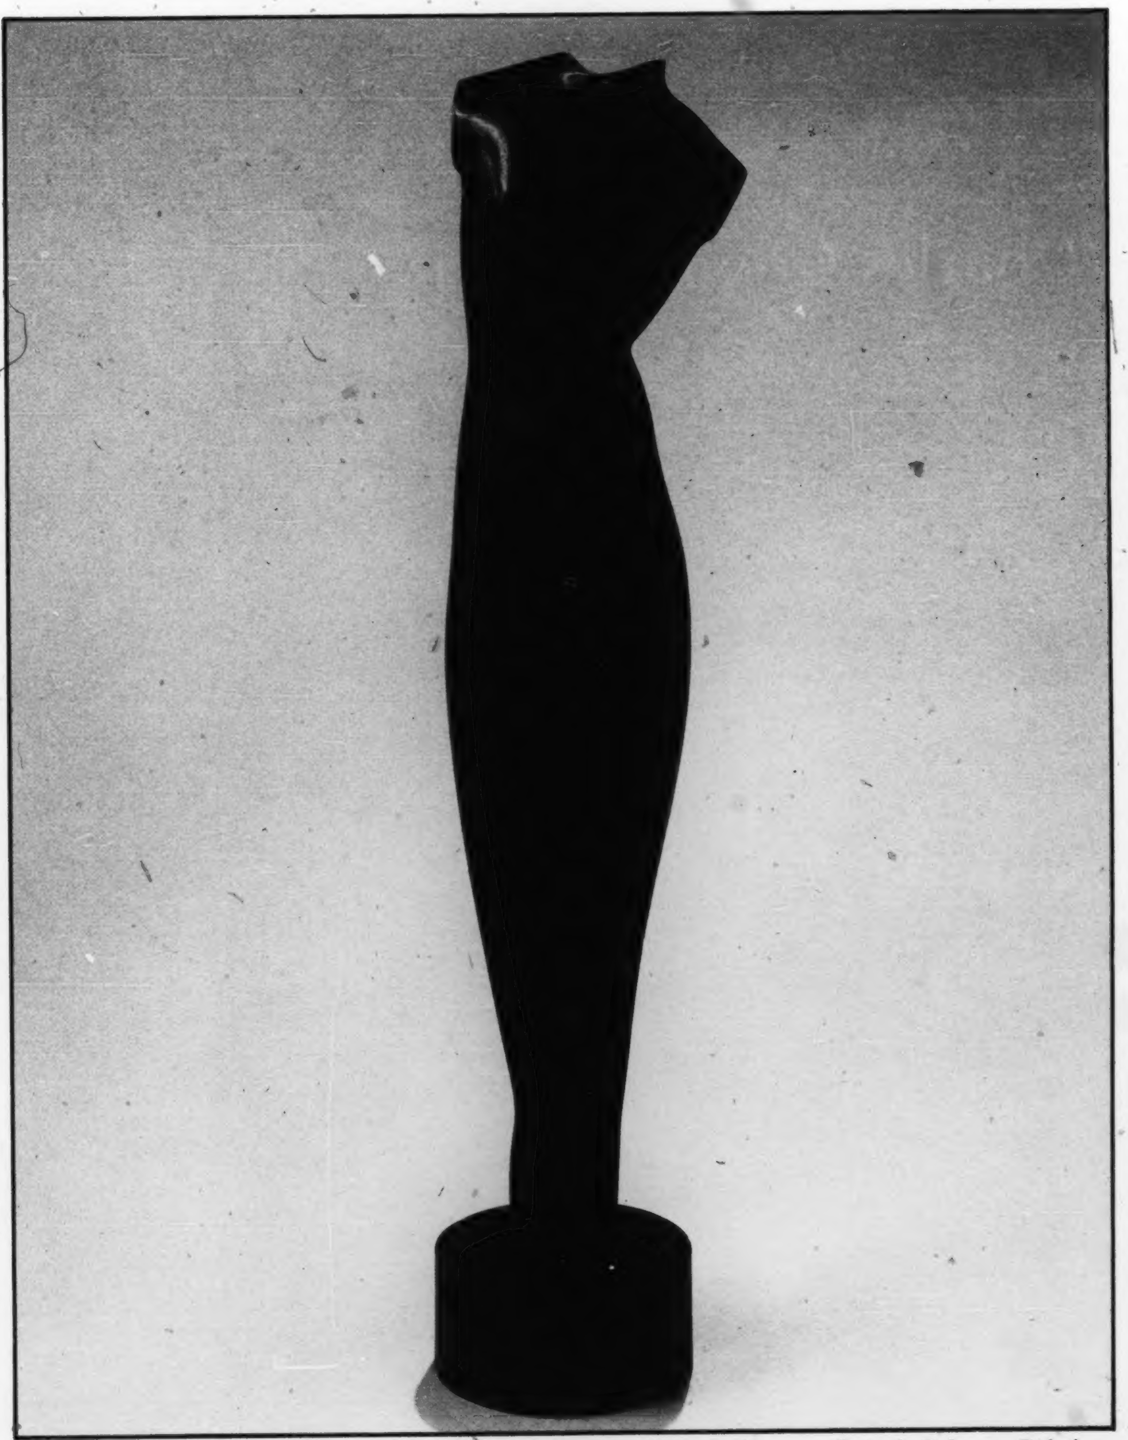


Grey Head, 1964. Oil on canvas, 34 x 22 inches.

SEPTEMBER 14 – OCTOBER 15
Catalogue available upon request

ZABRISKIE
724 FIFTH AVENUE   NEW YORK, NY 10019

THE EARLY DRAWINGS at 521 West 57 Street, Monday to Saturday by appointment (212) 307-7430



Alexander Archipenko, White Torso, 1916, Bronze, dark patina, 18 3/8" high works from our collection by Beckmann, Diebenkorn, Francis, Klee, Klimt, Kokoschka, Léger, Matisse, Pechstein

LAFAYETTE PARKE LTD.

2151 Sacramento Street San Francisco, California 94109
415-922-6777
by appointment only

VOL
7
1
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI

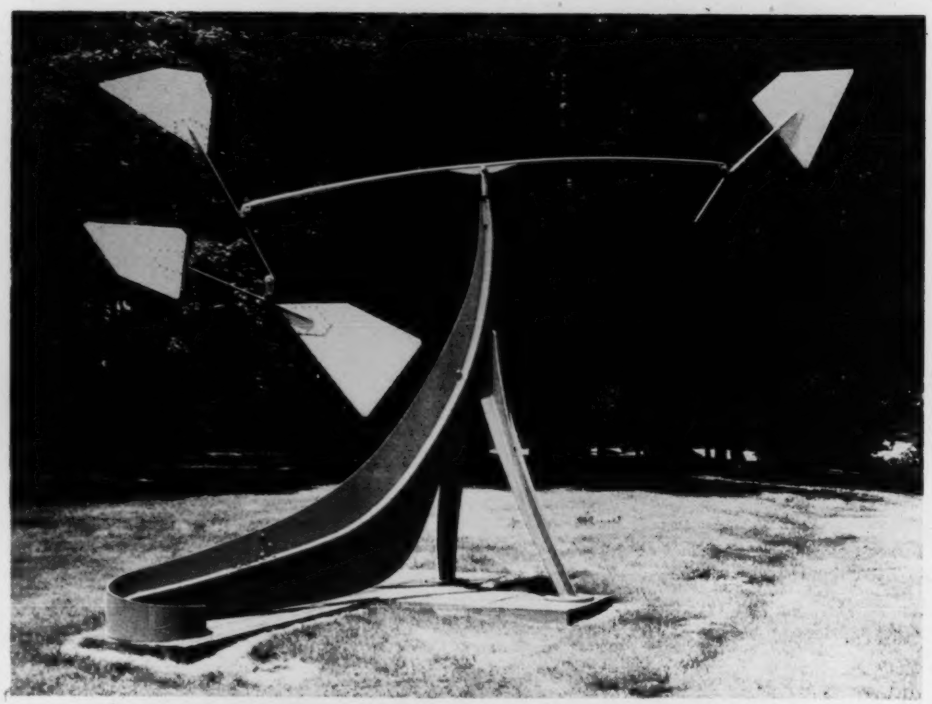
Ron Nagle

Charles Cowles Gallery

September 10-October 1

420 West Broadway New York 10012 (212) 925-3500

David Bates



ALEXANDER CALDER

Red Curley Tail
1970
16 x 23 x 12 feet

Exhibition at the

MISSOURI BOTANICAL GARDEN
St. Louis, MO

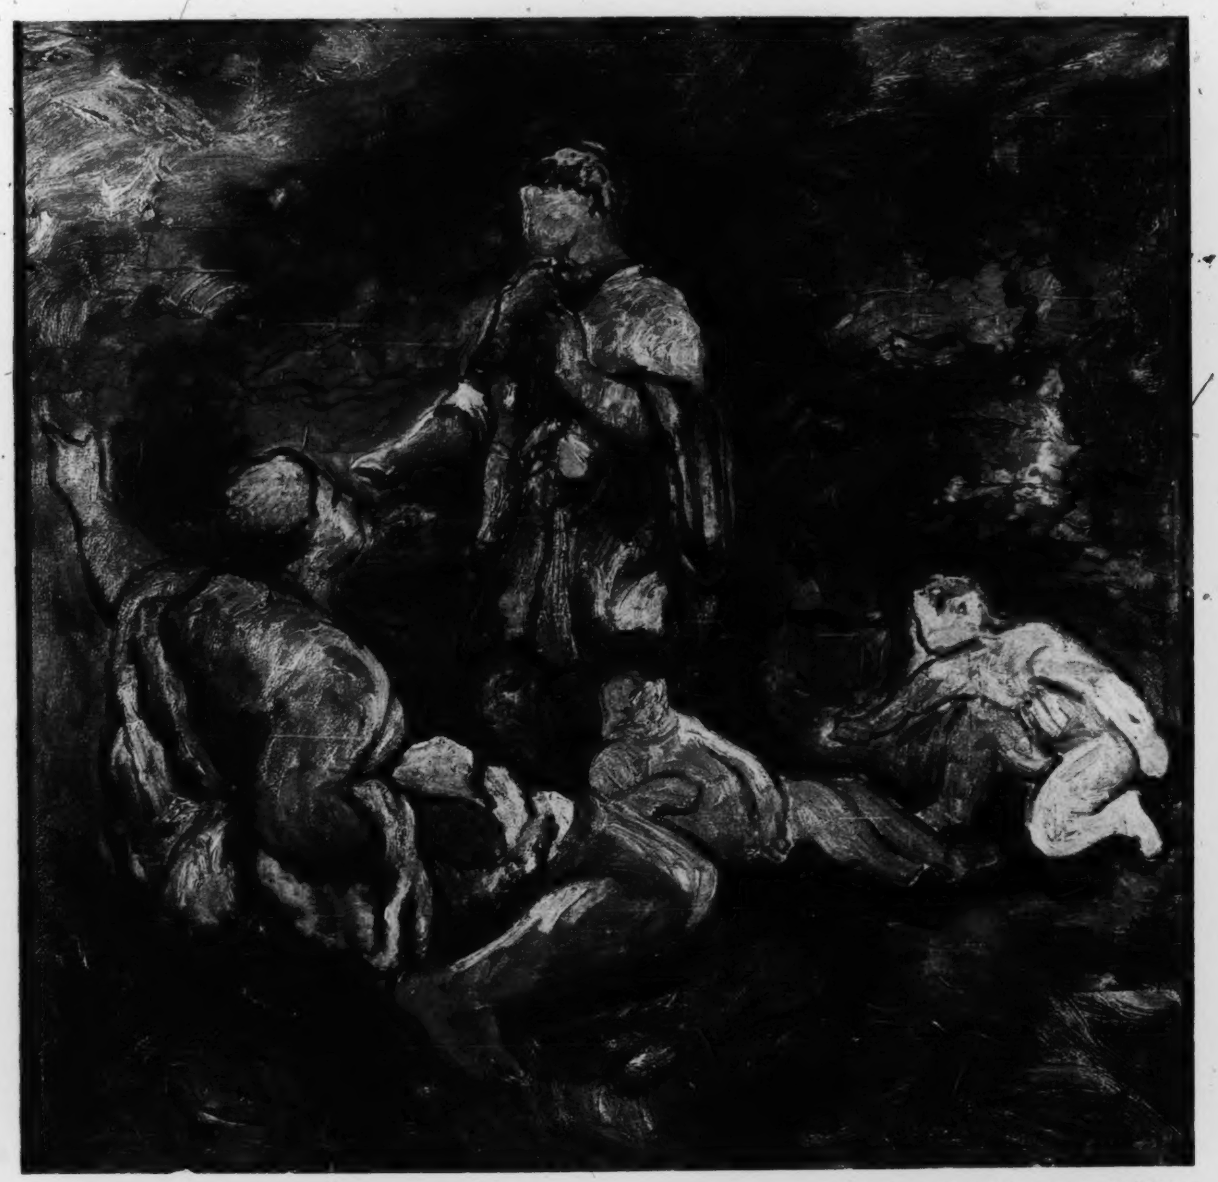
Sept. 1 – Oct. 2

An illustrated brochure and 20 slides are available at $20.00 postpaid.

THE GREENBERG GALLERY

44 MARYLAND PLAZA ST. LOUIS, MO. 63108 (314) 361-7600

SANDRO CHIA

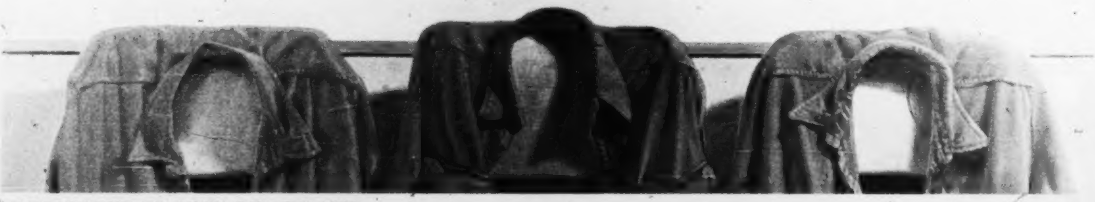


"Four Figures." 1983. Oil on canvas. 188 x 193 cm.

DANIEL TEMPLON GALLERY

Sept. 17 - Oct. 26. 30 rue Beaubourg. Paris. 272 1410

VOL 71
ISS 8
SE 1983
UMI



"THREE SHIRTS", OIL/LINEN, 24" x 72", 1983

JAMES MOORE

August 30 - September 30, 1983

William
Sawyer
Gallery

3045 CLAY STREET, SAN FRANCISCO, CA 94115 • (415) 921-1600 • TUES - SAT 11 to 6

NOCTURNE/

13 September-1 October

Anne Abrons
David Beck
Robert Berlind
Jake Berthot
Jean-Charles Blais
Lee Bontecou
Richard Bosman
Roger Brown
Jerry Buchanan
David Budd
Harrison Burns
Shelagh Cluett
David Craven
Radomir Damnjan
Martha Diamond
Joseph DiGiorgio
Eric Fischl
Gina Gilmour
April Gornik
Jack Haeger
Judith Hudson
Ralph Humphrey
Yvonne Jacquette
Stevan Jennis
Bernard Kirschenbaum
Alan Kleiman
Mark A. Kloth
Craig Langager
Terence LaNoue
Rex Lau
Lisa Lawley
Sylvia Plimack Mangold
Diane Mayo
Robert McCauley
Sam Messer
Claire Moore
Robert Moskowitz
Charles Munch
David Reed
Milton Resnick
Curtis Ripley
Rolf Rose
Paul Rotterdam
Ed Ruscha
Ioanna Sardelis
Sean Scully
Larry Shineman
Susanne Slavick
David True
Günter Umberg
Idelle Weber
Susan Weil
John Willenbecher
Jerry Zeniuk

Organized by Michael Walls, Director

SIEGEL CONTEMPORARY ART
24 WEST 57 STREET, NYC 10019
(212) 586-0605

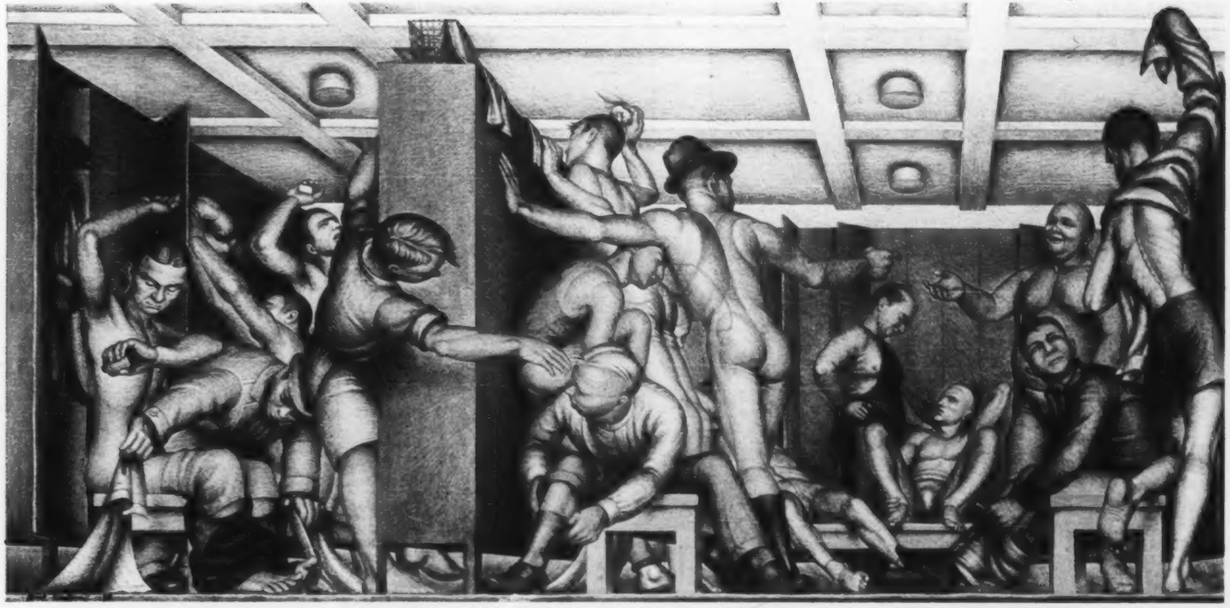
Franz Kline, Untitled, 1957, oil on paper on cardboard, 43 x 55.5 cm

GALERIE RUDOLF ZWIRNER
ALBERTUSSTRASSE 18
5 COLOGNE 1
49 (221) 23 58 37

GALLERIA PAOLO SPROVIERI
3, PIAZZA DEL POPOLO
ROME
39 (6) 361 09 75

ARP BALLA BRAUNER DUBUFFET ERNST FONTANA FAUTRIER YVES KLEIN
LEGER MAGRITTE PICABIA PICASSO SCHWITTERS STELLA TWOMBLY

VOL 71
ISS 8
SE 1983
UMI



Paul Cadmus
Y.M.C.A. Locker Room
Oil on canvas, 19 x 38 inches
Signed and dated Paul Cadmus '33, lower left

JAMES MARONEY incorporated

129a East 74th Street, New York, N.Y. 10021 (212) 879-2252
Church Street, Roxbury, CT 06783 (203) 354-6783

Review of Books

ARTISTS OBSERVED

Imagination's Chamber: Artists and Their Studios, by Alice Bellony-Rewald and Michael Peppiatt, Boston, New York Graphic/Little Brown, 1982; 232 pp., $45.
The Painter Depicted: Painters as a Subject in Painting, by Michael Levey, New York, Thames & Hudson, 1982; 72 pp., $10.95.

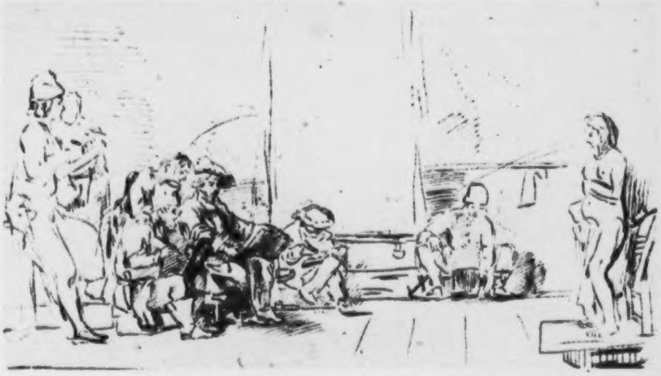
These two very dissimilar books on neighboring subjects should unleash governing prejudices. One is a modest, erudite volume by one of the most distinguished museum men in the world, intended to honor the founder of the house by which it is published, while the other is a coffee-table item at four times the price whose subject negotiates a treacherous path between interior decorating and an art-historical People magazine. I live and work in a converted Jehovah's Witnesses Church in North Carolina (not what you think: it has an acoustic tile ceiling and new carpet), am exceedingly envious of Parisian garrets and New York lofts, and generally banish expensive photographic tomes from my surroundings because I prefer (and can afford) un-illustrated paperbacks and like my art on walls, not pages. But, as a result of one of those warm surprises which gently reorders a mind, I must report that the latter is a dream, a centerpiece that is handsome, witty and thought through. Alas, I must also submit that the former is, in essence, a long lecture by a fellow who obviously knows an awful lot, pretends to tell an awful lot, but fails, in the end, like a honey-voiced tenor tripping on his tangled microphone cord.

The subject of Imagination's Chamber is astutely chosen; the laity likes nothing better than a historically sanctioned peek at that high-brow den of iniquity, the artist's studio ("Old bourgeois suspicions of immorality in the studio were fully corroborated here," says a caption beneath a photograph of Lautrec's nude model known as la môme Fromage—The Cheese Kid—standing amid wine bottles and drawing a caricature on the wall), while artists are interested as much in the profession's real estate as in canvases and welding torches. Artists and Their Studios is also an interesting device by which to subtly reorganize modern art history (Chapter Seven, "Group Ateliers: The Radical Aesthetic," dumps Toulouse-Lautrec in with a bunch of Cubists, and Chapter Eight, "Reality Remade," makes bedfellows of Bonnard and Mondrian) without contravening the facts. And the theme of the artistic workplace makes it possible to devote a whole and wonderful section to those now-neglected "Society Favorites" of the fin de siècle (called, aptly, pompiers, literally "firemen," from the helmets worn by David's models in quest of Classical ambience), who carried to an extreme the showbiz bravado that is the countervalence to the artist's romanticized isolation. All of this is generously seasoned with delicious morsels of information and wit:

- Oscar Wilde sarcastically congratulated W.P. Frith, a prosperous and slavishly realistic English pompier, on having "done so much to elevate painting to the dignity of photography."
- Rosa Bonheur listed her collection of animal models as, "one horse, one he-goat, one otter, seven lapwings, two hoopoes, one monkey, one sheep, one donkey, two dogs, and my neighbor, Madame Foucault."
- "'We will begin by drawing,' he [Ingres] used to say, with the air of someone who is hiding a present behind his back, 'we will go on drawing, and then we will continue to draw.'"
- Géricault, working on The Raft of the Medusa, obtained severed heads and limbs from a local hospital and kept them in his studio in order to observe firsthand the effects of decomposition.

Finally, the book is gracefully written; as indication of the fact that one or both of the authors knows how to put English words together (no specification of the division of labor is given) I offer the following inadequate sample:

> To say that Jacques Louis David formed a whole generation of painters in his rooms at the Louvre would be an understatement. He molded them, eye and soul, to a set of rigorous beliefs. Within a few months, the studio of objets-d'art, courtesans, and erotic banter had been definitively banished; as if to underline the fact, Fragonard's son, who was studying with David, burned his father's collection of engravings in the name of "good taste." A new moral seriousness dominated. The purpose of art was not to please a decayed aristocracy, but to educate and inspire the people. Noble images, according to a tradition that went back to Greece and Rome, bred noble thoughts. As leader of the arts, David was calling for pictures of "heroism and civic virtue," which would "electrify the [people's] soul, and plant the seeds of glory and devotion to the fatherland."



Rembrandt's studio by follower of Rembrandt. Staatliche Kuntsammlungen, Weimar.

(That's about the best summation, in a paragraph, of perennial Apollonian reaction to Dionysian excess I've ever read, and "molded them, eye and soul" is enough to keep me awake nights saying it out loud.)

I have some complaints, all of them minor. There is the usual dearth of women artists, as well as non-whites—Romare Bearden and Siqueiros had interesting shops, I hear. (I relegate this gripe to "minor" since there is a very good argument to be made, without approaching H.W. Janson's pigheadedness, that history simply shakes down this way, for political better or worse.) The sections on current artists (parts of "Studios of America" and all of "The Contemporary Spectrum") start to smell like a new magazine called Atelier Beautiful, or like thank-yous for hospitalities received. While the tepidness of Imagination's Chamber is attractive in its peculiarly British way (someone once said an American film noir called, say, Bomb Squad Attack, would be shown in the U.K. as Dangerous Parcels), a better and more dramatic title, Crucibles of Genius, could have been gleaned from the book's epigram by Delacroix—"The studio has become the crucible in which human genius, at the peak of its development, brings back into question everything that exists." All in all, however, this is, in spite of its never divulging the particulars of "the dramatically horrible suicide in 1821 of Constance Mayer, pupil and mistress of Prud'hon," a wonderful, elegantly juicy book.

Painters painting themselves or other painters painting are the subjects of The Painter Depicted, and the premise that almost all painters partake of an "inherent pride in the painter's descent from great painters of the past" might have made this not only an inevitable but a glorious book. Unfortunately, compared to Imagination's Chamber, this is quite another tube of vermilion. In a fraction of a hundred pages, it wanders all over the place—from François Premier's humiliation of Leonardo to Velázquez's Las Meninas and Vermeer's A Painter at Work to a digression on St. Luke; from a return to Velázquez and Vermeer forward to Fantin-Latour's painting of Manet (doing a painting of the sculptor-critic Astruc) and cohorts, and backward to "the earliest examples of painted records of painters' appearances" [Uccello]; from Vasari to maudlin homages by minor artists to Michelangelo, Raphael and Rubens; from paintings of artistic luminaries on their deathbeds to royalty humbling themselves in the presence of same; from mutations on the general theme (e.g., a 19th-century German bouillon advertisement showing, for God knows what reason, Pope Julius II visiting Michelangelo) to the sonorous and somewhat sudden conclusion, "It might be a better world if those of us who are not artists could at least subscribe to the prime necessity of art." It is simply a case of attempting to cram too much into too little space with too little organization.

The charitable guess as to the cause of this little failure is probably closest to the surface truth: the book is a transcription of a lecture by the director of England's National Gallery in honor of Walter Neurath, founder of Thames & Hudson; and because good reading aloud is not always good writing, and projected slides are not always good illustrations, the lecture does not survive the transformation into print. There is, to be

VOL
7
1
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI

EARLY TWENTIETH CENTURY AMERICAN MASTERS
Exhibition: September 20th through October 29th 1983

MORGAN RUSSELL (1886-1953)
Synchromie en Bleu Violacé (Russian Orchestra)
1913, oil on canvas, 21 3/4 x 15 inches
Initialed: M.R.

BARBARA MATHES GALLERY
851 Madison Avenue New York, NY 10021 212 249-3600

sure, some good stuff in this little book, but such a cursory treatment was in all probability much more palatable aloud.

—Peter Plagens

WPA ART

Wall to Wall America: A Cultural History of Post-Office Murals in the Great Depression, by Karal Ann Marlings, Minneapolis, University of Minnesota Press, 1982; 348 pp., $35 cloth, $14.95 paper.

The WPA Guide to New York City: The Federal Writers Project Guide to 1930's New York, introduction by William H. Whyte, New York, Pantheon Books, 1982; 680 pp., $8.95.

"Poor art for poor people" was Arshile Gorky's opinion of the work produced for the Depression-era Federal arts programs, and it is a judgment widely echoed since. Those who regard the fruits of the Works Project Administration (WPA) and its affiliates rather more charitably are often no less indiscriminate in their own pronouncements, as if willfully allowing their nostalgia for the dreams and manners of the period to cloud their vision. The very fact that each side of this party-line split is still capable of passionate advocacy is, perhaps, proof of just what a watershed the era was for American art, and it is interesting that both sides tend to assume that they know what New Deal art was really all about. The value of Karal Ann Marling's detailed and readable study lies in its questioning of all the assumptions harbored about '30s post-office murals, and, by extension, all the assumptions about populist painting. Marling's point is that there is more to it than the "look." For her, the meaning and formal conventions embedded in these murals are not as obvious as we have come to believe, nor was the process by which they were arrived at as simple as the superficially uniform results suggest.

Marling's is a scholarly account of just how the murals came into being—how the essential compromises among bureaucrats, artists and the public were made. From the outset, she concedes that the paintings she is describing are not "masterpieces." In fact, she is less interested in them as works of art than as artifacts—clues which help one to understand the social realities of a dark moment in American history. Consequently, she has chosen not to elaborate on the role played by the WPA as incubator for a generation of painters whose major breakthrough would occur only after the WPA was dismantled. Adolph Gottlieb and Philip Guston, to name but two, get only passing mention. Instead, Marling focuses on those artists who willingly accepted the basic formal and iconographic tenets of the Project's Mural Section. Specifically, she examines closely one nationwide mural competition held late in the '30s—when the program had been underway awhile, and presumably the rules for "painting Section" were well codified. What is surprising and fascinating about Marling's story is her discovery of how elusive the mural ideal remained even after all the careful negotiation that went into defining it, and how variable and hard to please was the public for which these murals were intended.

Stylistic experimentation, nudity and radical politics were obvious provocations and rarely got past the WPA censors. But in an America still sharply defined along regional lines—and under enormous social, political and economic strain—there were less predictable irritations. For example, though "respect for the facts" was a Section axiom, based on the notion that ordinary people demanded verisimilitude, some "facts" proved intolerable to the very communities they were supposed to reassure. Thus, a painting of an Arkansas farmer standing by a dirt road in a frayed straw hat—a sympathetic painting meant to help confirm that farmer's sense of identity in a time of bitter discontinuity—might also remind him of his permanent status as a Southern peasant, or strike him as a condescending stereotype made up by the sort of Northerners who read Tobacco Road. At the other extreme, unemployed industrial workers were not always comforted by images of a Utopia of machines and monoliths, since such impersonal symbols hinted at a prosperity that might not include them or even require their labor. So the ubiquitous man with rolled sleeves and one meaty hand on a lever was not just a socialist slogan; for many apolitical people he represented the common man's control over automation and promised him a useful part in the coming recovery.

Wall to Wall America is full of such observations and distinctions. Taken together, they remind us that whether or not the public's response to these paintings was articulate, ordinary people were often extremely attentive to what was above the postmaster's window and sensitive to the smallest nuances of clichés that now seem gross and repetitive. No one, not even the most ardent populist, was safe in assuming that his or her likes and dislikes would be shared by the audience whose interests were supposedly being served. By reminding us of this disjunction—and by helping us make sense of it—Karal Ann Marlings has written a valuable book.

The one certain masterpiece created with New Deal sponsorship was a collective one: the American Guide Series, of which the recently re-issued WPA Guide to New York City is a prime example. Those who contributed to this volume include John Cheever, Richard Wright, Louis Lozowick and Raphael Soyer, and the text is as clear and informative as the illustrations are charming and plain. The special delights of these books are the folkloric anecdotes which crop up unexpectedly in the midst of Chamber of Commerce descriptions of buildings and services. However, there are sobering moments also, to be found in the hints of social cruelties which filter through otherwise neutral accounts of the city's history. We are never very far from the world of Jacob Riis, nor can one ignore the shadow cast over this whole enterprise by the Depression itself. It is a shadow made all the more real by Reagan's "Old Deal."

—Robert Storr

PHOTOGRAPHY

Urban Romantic: The Photographs of George Tice, by George Tice, Boston, David R. Godine, 1982; 131 pp., $50.

An American Chronology: The Photographs of David Plowden, Introduction by David McCullough, New York, The Viking Press, 1982; 160 pp., $45.

Pictures from the New World, by Danny Lyon, New York, Aperture, 1981; 142 pp., $39.50.

George Tice's eye is not notably original. If this accomplished photographer surprises you it's in the way that, page after page, he accepts checks for big sums from Beauty, as if she had not gone bankrupt fairly early in the century, when courage and sincerity began to outbid her. It's odd to find a photographer still using the camera as if it were a transcendental instrument somehow left behind on a patchy planet: a benign eye that's happy only when earth is putting her best ferns, or prettiest lighting, forward.

Urban Romantic (in which few of the subjects are urban) reduces "romantic" to "purified and clarified" at best and "picture-pretty" at worst. Tice's photographs are technically admirable and well defined; they're to the eye what gulps of fresh water are to the throat; but I look at his images and wonder what rage, what disappointment, he's denying. The Shaker interior that so determinedly features a chaste white pitcher in a wash bowl, the white wooden Maine porch in white sea air, the astonishingly elegant prongs of a pitchfork leaning against their own precise shadow on a barn door—these and still other of the images are like the reprehensibly perfect clear bowl of pink and white carnations in snow-light in Wallace Stevens's "The Poems of Our Climate": too simple and composed not to awaken the protest of "the evilly compounded, vital I," whose paradise is, precisely, dissatisfaction, the gnawing proof that it is still alive.

Tice's images make of the earth a dead place where only beauty lives. Even when he photographs a men's room, a telephone booth lit up at 3 a. m., a barbershop, a window hat display, a diner, the result is like a Robert Frank sent to finishing school, if not to Plato's Academy—the pictures are antiseptically unpopulated, coldly precise, coldly voluptuous. Truer exceptions to the rule of beauty are the dear-homely images of Mr. and Mrs. Thompson and Artie Van Blarcum, which, however, come off as mere sports. The disturbing photograph of a belly-up corpse of a frog on a lily pad, its legs turned out as in a ballet jump while its fingers protest being partnered by death, is yet queasily like the others: the underside shines like a silver ingot. At the other extreme, in a Vaselined, pictorialist series, a white cat glows magically against her dark natural background, and elsewhere women named Cheri and Deborah get a similarly misty-to-smeary treatment.

What of the nearly irredeemable lack of grace and civilized harmony typical of almost every square mile of settled America? Here and there Tice at least nods to it and at once his work becomes vital. In Car for Sale (Paterson, New Jersey), the automobile proves so polished, so spiffy, so shaped and decorated for appreciation, that it almost warms the winter-bleak, gray-tenemented surround. Shared Closet contains a live mixture of banal shirt- and dress-textiles, which look destined for the Salvation Army. If the resolute rectangle and the handsome printing form a kind of salute, here benignity is perhaps forgotten; with its measure the camera creates eloquence without committing itself to exalting and redeeming what it sees. In Country Road a Volkswagen "Bug" approaches from the distance along a lonely silvery

VOL
7
1
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI

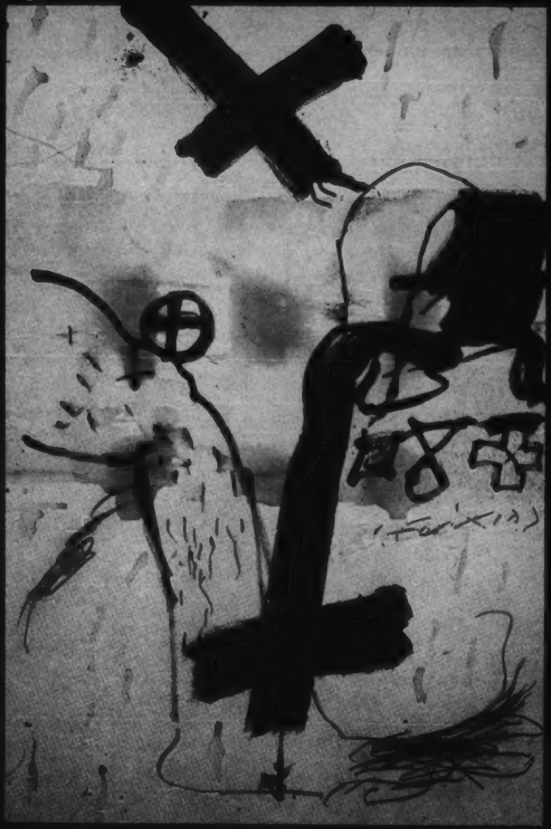
Galerie Maeght - Lelong s.a.

Paris
13 rue de Téhéran 8e
563 13 19
Telex 280 660

Zurich
10-12 Predigerplatz
251 13 87
Telex 58 821

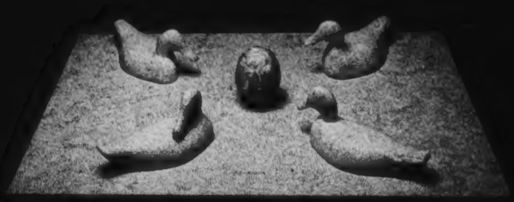
New York Office
9 West 57th Street
New York 10019
212 371 9077
Telex 42 89 31

Tàpies



FIAC Grand Palais Paris
September 23 - October 2 '83
Illustrated catalog $12

Jiři Kolář



Galerie Maeght-Lelong
13 rue de Téhéran 8e
September 27 - November 18
Illustrated catalog $12

road that seems eaten at the edges by total darkness (an effective variant of a shot by Robert Frank). And in From the Chrysler Building, a gray, bleak, and steep Manhattan is unsettlingly overseen by a shiny metal cornice-eagle, which extends out and overhangs the city like a perturbed gargoyle. In such shots as these Tice becomes too telling, too world-remembering to be a scot-free romantic.

David Plowden, in An American Chronology, puts one more in mind of Walt Whitman, whose great gift to America was an idealism without sterile perfection. Like Whitman, Plowden even treats locomotives, ferries, open roads, farms, Americans at their occupations in a spirit that blends documentation with celebration. But he's far more formally elegant than Whitman, and he isolates more than the camera needs to, whereas Whitman, like a ground swell, with his catalogues and the "also" of his every comma, tried to lift and speed everything together toward an as-yet unknown consummation. Between them, formality and frontal documentation grip Plowden's pictures like a pall. As with Tice, you feel that "art" is safe in his hands, with the result that the images themselves, which are often very beautiful, are too safe.

But for Plowden, too, there is both America the Beautiful and America the Eyesore. The problem, always, is how to get to know the latter without joining it, and some of the looser shots feel slack, look dull, lack creative verve. (See the image of the fire department in Pochahontas, Virginia, or the ineloquent row of buildings in Woonsocket, Rhode Island.) If Plowden is plausible in Fort Benton, Montana, Storekeeper, or Dessie Higgenbottem, the proprietress of Dessie's Bar and Grill (the title of this last is almost better than the picture), still the images feel a bit mounted, like fish on plaques. Plowden lacks a happy, trusting relation to vulgar vitality, missing it either through too much or too little art. Perhaps he succeeds best in Steve, in which the youngster with his puffy, pressed mouth gives his character directly to the camera, like some mine kid indifferent to the upper world. (By comparison, Tice's pretty Amish boys are like upgraded Norman Rockwell.) Plowden is fertile enough to be unpredictable, and there are other arresting images—for instance, a battered car side glorious with sun against an aloof backdrop of buildings; two shopping carts like copulating insects backed by a barren concrete wall; and a swerve of highway hesitantly snaking up into dark high country spotted with snow (whose cold breath you can almost feel). But for the most part you could stamp this picture "Beauty," that one "Documentation," or press both stamps in tandem, without any real injustice. You miss the hard-to-categorize, the vitally compounded in-between or other.

Where Tice and Plowden avoid people (with few exceptions) as the not photogenic (that is, the dying), Danny Lyon photographs them in their rooms, their streets, their prisons, their cars, or on their motorcycles. He has something of Whitman's great trust in life, his stamina before dissolution. In Pictures from the New World he includes some of the pretrials of death: urban and rural squalor, a gang-bang, motorcycle racing, a prison shakedown, heat stroke, El-train hypnosis. In El Alto above La Paz, Bolivia, a black-suited and black-hatted man squats in the foreground and, while looking out on a magnificent faded sweep of settled valley and distant mountains, adds his shit to the other lumps deposited on the barren ridge-top. The juxtaposition of biological concentration and spatial sublimity is witty and it took humanity, not satire, to show this man-on-the-heights as but mortal. Lyon is a far from anal-retentive photographer.

Like Whitman, he becomes "any presence or truth of humanity here," but peculiarly without self-consciousness. Prostitutes, tranvestites, bikers, prisoners, the poor—these he doesn't patronize, even by sympathy; instead, he discovers in them, as in himself, an irrepressible vitality and good humor. Because of this his pictures of his own happy family—of which the one on the cover is the most halcyon and exquisite—do not form a discord. His camera is generous to everyone except the middle class, which it rebukes in the gentlest way, through omission.

Like Whitman, too, Lyon combines a broad approach with an easy formality. His frames are hospitable but holding. While somewhat less fresh (largely because less aggressively acute) than his mentor Robert Frank, he can create a clear and almost lyric photograph out of harsh material (see Heat exhaustion, Ramsey unit or Cotton pickers, Ferguson unit) without belying its potency. He succeeds where many others who work in this area fail: he balances emotional warmth and distance, pictorial freedom and concentration, the noise of vitality and the silence of the frame.

If he doesn't "sing" like Whitman, it's because he's too busy seeing. Yet a few of his photographs seem both full of earthen stuff and transcendent, thanks largely to exalting effects of light, backed up on occasion by sweeps of space. The Bolivian prostitute Gloria lying aglow in a white slip on a white bedspread rippled with light; two hard-hatted Mexican men combing the brush near a highway under a sky scooped far back to make room for bright-belted clouds; Lyon's wife and children walking sunpicked in shiny rainslicks along a road in New Mexico, content though the whole sky lowers—these photographs are beautiful yet they exist fully in life, far this side of the Necropolis of the perfection that takes its secret motive from disdain. —Calvin Bedient

BIOGRAPHY

The Inlander: Life and Work of Charles Burchfield, 1883-1967, by John I. Baur, An American Art Journal Book, Newark, University of Delaware Press and Cornwall Books, New York and London, 1982; 280 pp., $50.

Charles Burchfield spent much of his life in the rural landscape of Ohio and New York, and in the small industrial towns of the north. Here was his home, and his natural subject matter. Unlike Grant Wood and Thomas Hart Benton, however, he did not use these locales as the setting for patriotic or folkloric storytelling, nor did he paint down to the imagined taste of Middle America. His popularity owed something to the nationalist esthetics of the Depression years, but Burchfield was neither a proselytizer nor a regionalist.

He was, nonetheless, a provincial—an intensely modest and self-critical man trained in the narrow conventions of illustrative realism. There was very little romance to his life, and no small amount of stoicism. Nevertheless, he had a profound commitment to a spiritual vision of nature and a decidedly romantic idea of the artist's vocation. Burchfield's heroism was in his refusal to let go of his wonderment in the face of his often dreary existence. He struggled to create, out of the meager vocabulary he had been taught, a language large enough and powerful enough to express his deeply emotional response to his surroundings.

Burchfield had an instinctively decorative sensibility, and when it was allowed to flow naturally into his watercolors, the result was a quiet brilliance that is enormously refreshing—as if he had managed to combine the weight of Hopper with the generosity of Fairfield Porter. In his middle years, however, technical discipline and personal depression—to say nothing of the drab realities of the '30s—caused his touch to become dry and his colors morose. From this period come his best-known pictures—overbearing at times, but perfectly descriptive of the private and historical moment.

The true originality of his art, however, is to be found in his experiments with synesthesia and homegrown Surrealism. Based in part on the spooky contortions of Rackham and the cloisonné illuminations of Bilibin, Burchfield's sign system was meant to represent both the hum and flux of nature, and his own presentiments of evil and death. Hollywood animation has mimicked his Gargoyle-like creepers and voracious ground flowers in a way that makes them hard to look at now, but they were conceived in all seriousness—emblems of a truly American Gothic. Yet Burchfield, for all his experimenting, remained largely a captive of his genre notions. Even his most symphonic late works strain against an underlying anecdotal naturalism.

John Baur's writing is careful and respectful—an essentially biographical interpretation of the art that relies heavily on the ideas and musing found in the artist's lengthy diaries. The numerous illustrations closely follow the basic chronology. Unfortunately, they are small, with the effect that some of the work looks more timid than it is.

In the final chapter, Baur argues that Burchfield was the last in a long line of "pantheist" painters and poets stretching back through Stieglitz's circle to the Luminists and the transcendentalists. This rings true; the Canadian artist Emily Carr was Burchfield's only real peer (and a formidable rival). But much as one comes to admire the man, and as pleasing as his work at times may be, and as strange, one cannot escape the feeling that Burchfield was desperately aware that he was the last of his tradition—indeed knew himself to be a lesser figure. All his kooky ecstasy and unrelenting determination cannot hide the fact that his hope of pastoral salvation was fragile, and was kept alive only with great effort. He could not make the transition to a modern world without it. —Robert Storr

Contributors

Calvin Bedient, a literary critic, teaches at UCLA . . . Robert Storr is a painter and critic . . . artist Peter Plagens is chairman of the art department at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill.

VOL
7
1
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI

Blue Thirst, acrylic, 58'' x 60'', 1983

*An exhibition of recent paintings
by*

LEE DEFFEBACH

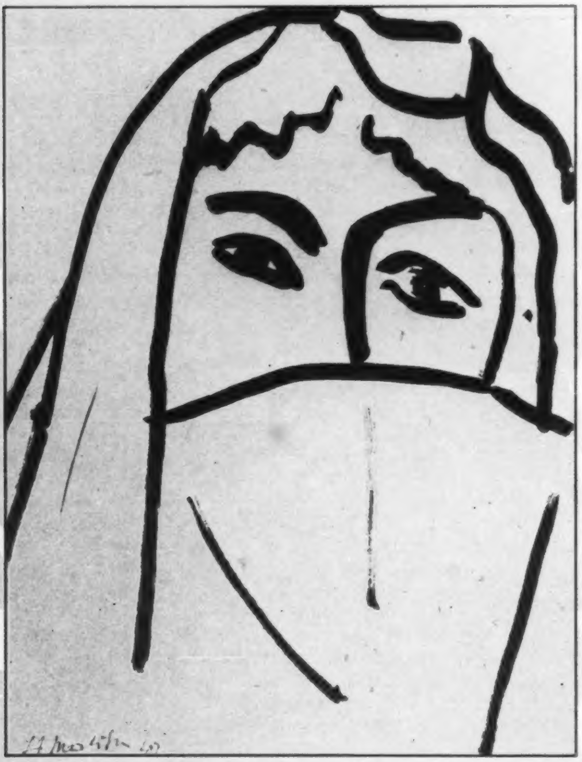
SEPT. 9 - OCT. 1

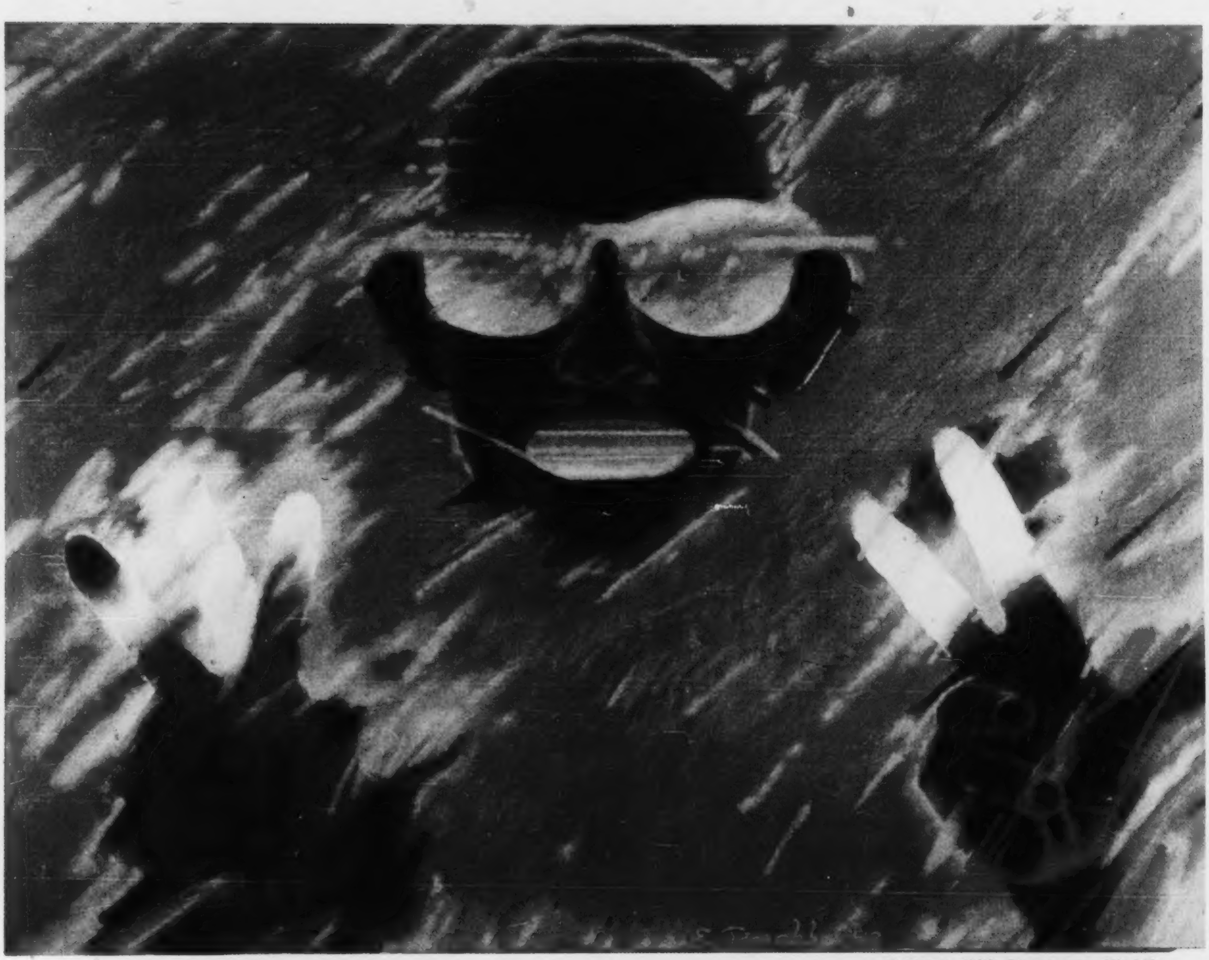
PHILLIPS GALLERY
444 East 2nd South
Salt Lake City, Utah 84111
(801) 364-8284



HENRI MATISSE
Paditcha, 1947
India ink on paper
17 x 13⅛ inches

By appointment

VIVIAN HORAN
40 East 62nd Street
New York, NY 10021
212 935-1682



'Stigmata' 1983 Oil on canvas 48 x 62'

ED PASCHKE

9 September through 1 October 1983

PHYLLIS KIND GALLERY

313 West Superior Chicago (312) 642.6302

VOL
71
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI

oil on canvas: 28 x 46 in. ESTUARY (VIET NAM) signed: lower right

R.H. LOVE 20TH CENTURY GALLERY

PRESENTS

PAINTINGS BY RICHARD HAINES

SEPTEMBER 17 - OCTOBER 21, 1983

108 E. OHIO, CHICAGO, ILLINOIS 60611 (312) 664-9620

---

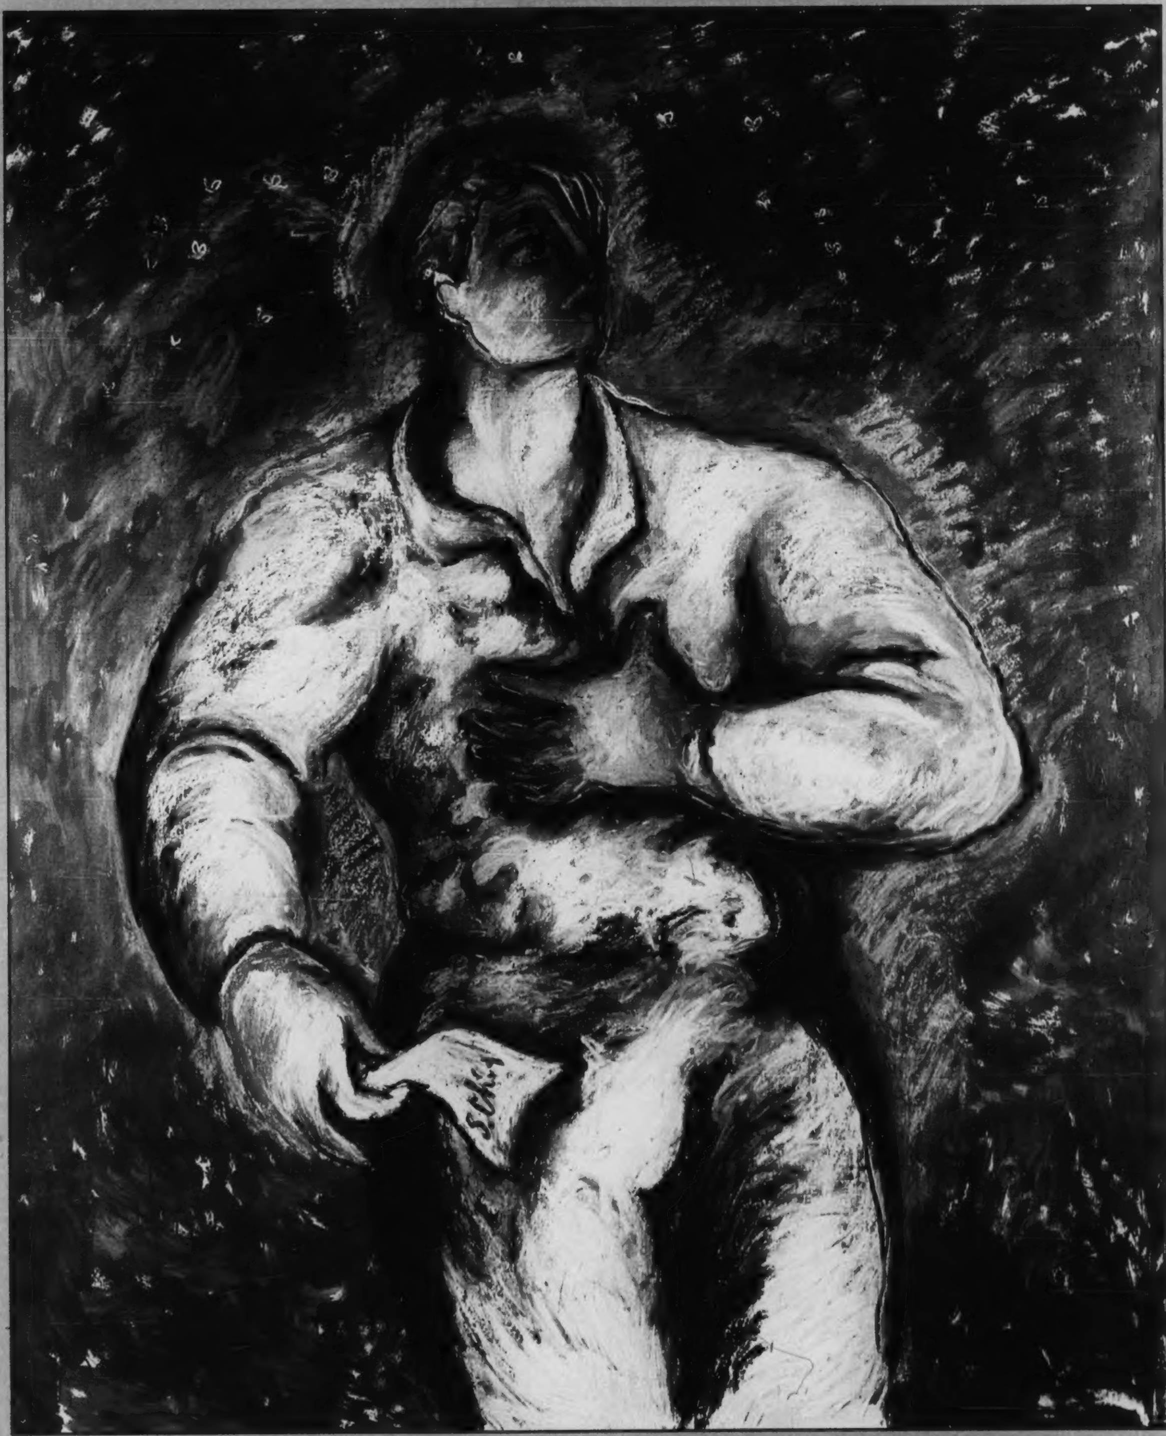
10 SEPTEMBER TO 22 OCTOBER

FRANCIS PICABIA

MARY BOONE
MICHAEL WERNER
GALLERY, 417 WEST BROADWAY, NEW YORK 431-1818

Galerie Natalie Seroussi

34 rue de Seine 75006 PARIS
Tel. 634.05.84



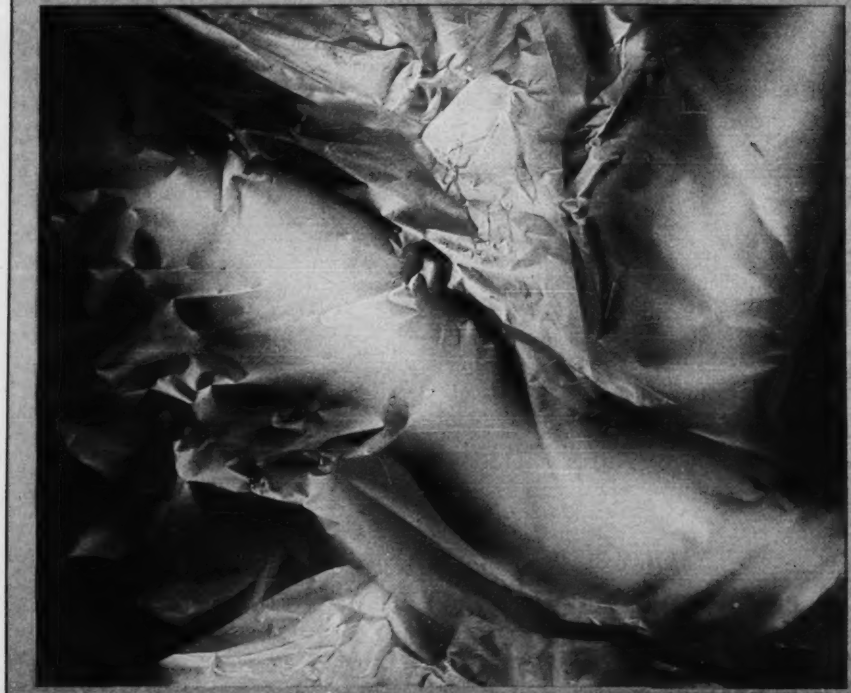
"Dichiarazione di Poetica." 1983. 220 x 180 cm. Mixed media on paper

SANDRO CHIA

Opening September 20, 1983

In collaboration with Paolo Sprovieri, Rome

VOL 71
ISS 8
SE 1983
UMI



DISTANT FORMS 1983 Acrylic 68" x 80" on Canvas

Peter Howard Mackie
Recent
Paintings

Sept. 13
to Oct. 9

Jack Gallery
138 Prince Street
New York, N.Y. 10012

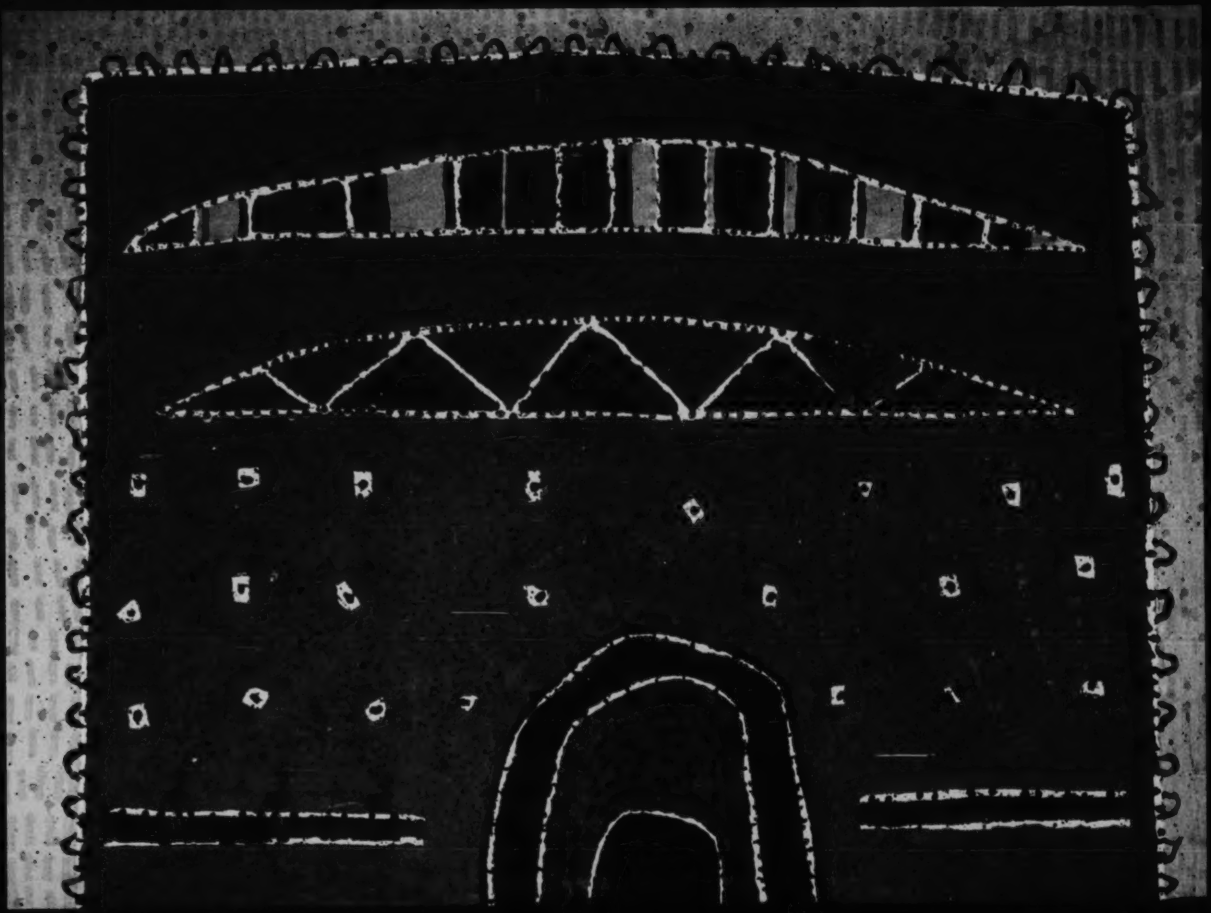
CHRISTOPHER LEBRUN

21 September – 15 October 1983

SPERONE WESTWATER
142 Greene Street New York 212/431.3685

In cooperation with Nigel Greenwood

JANELL WICHT



"Soul Boats" acrylic on canvas 63" x 85"

SANTA FE EXHIBITION:
September 23 - October 6, 1983

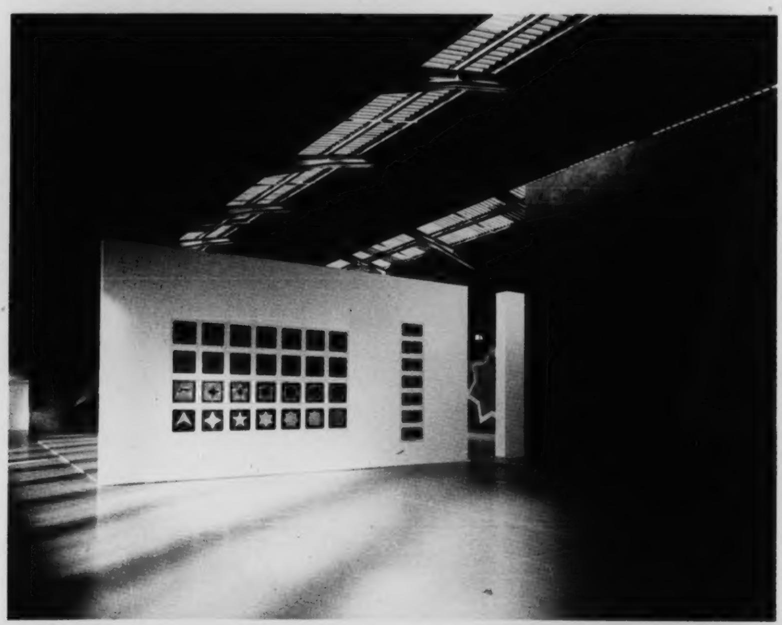
ELAINE HORWITCH GALLERIES

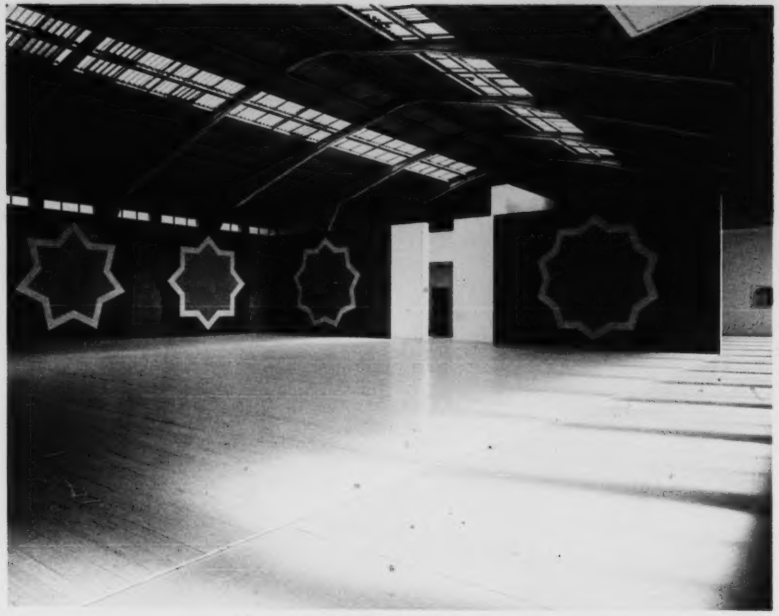
129 W. Palace Ave.
Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501
(505) 988-8997

4211 N. Marshall Way
Scottsdale, Arizona 85251
(602) 945-0791

Schnebly Hill Rd. & Hwy. 179
Sedona, Arizona 86336
(602) 282-6290

VOL
7
1
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI





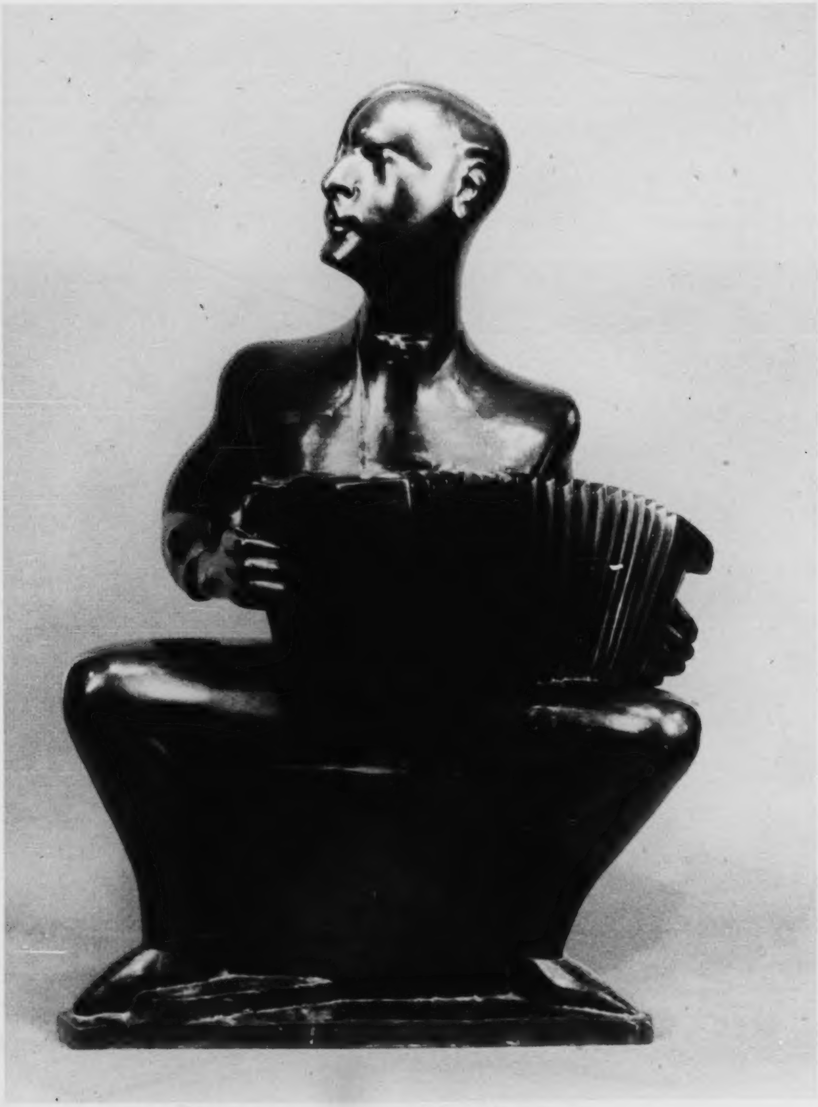
SOL LEWITT
DESSINS MURAUX
ET ESTAMPES
CENTRE D'ART CONTEMPORAIN
ANCIEN PALAIS DES EXPOSITIONS
GENÈVE

CETTE EXPOSITION EST RÉALISÉE GRÂCE À L'APPUI DE Citicorp Bank (Switzerland)

MEUBLES · LUMINAIRES · OBJETS D'ART 1900-1930

GALERIE
1900·1930
1900·1930
VALLOIS

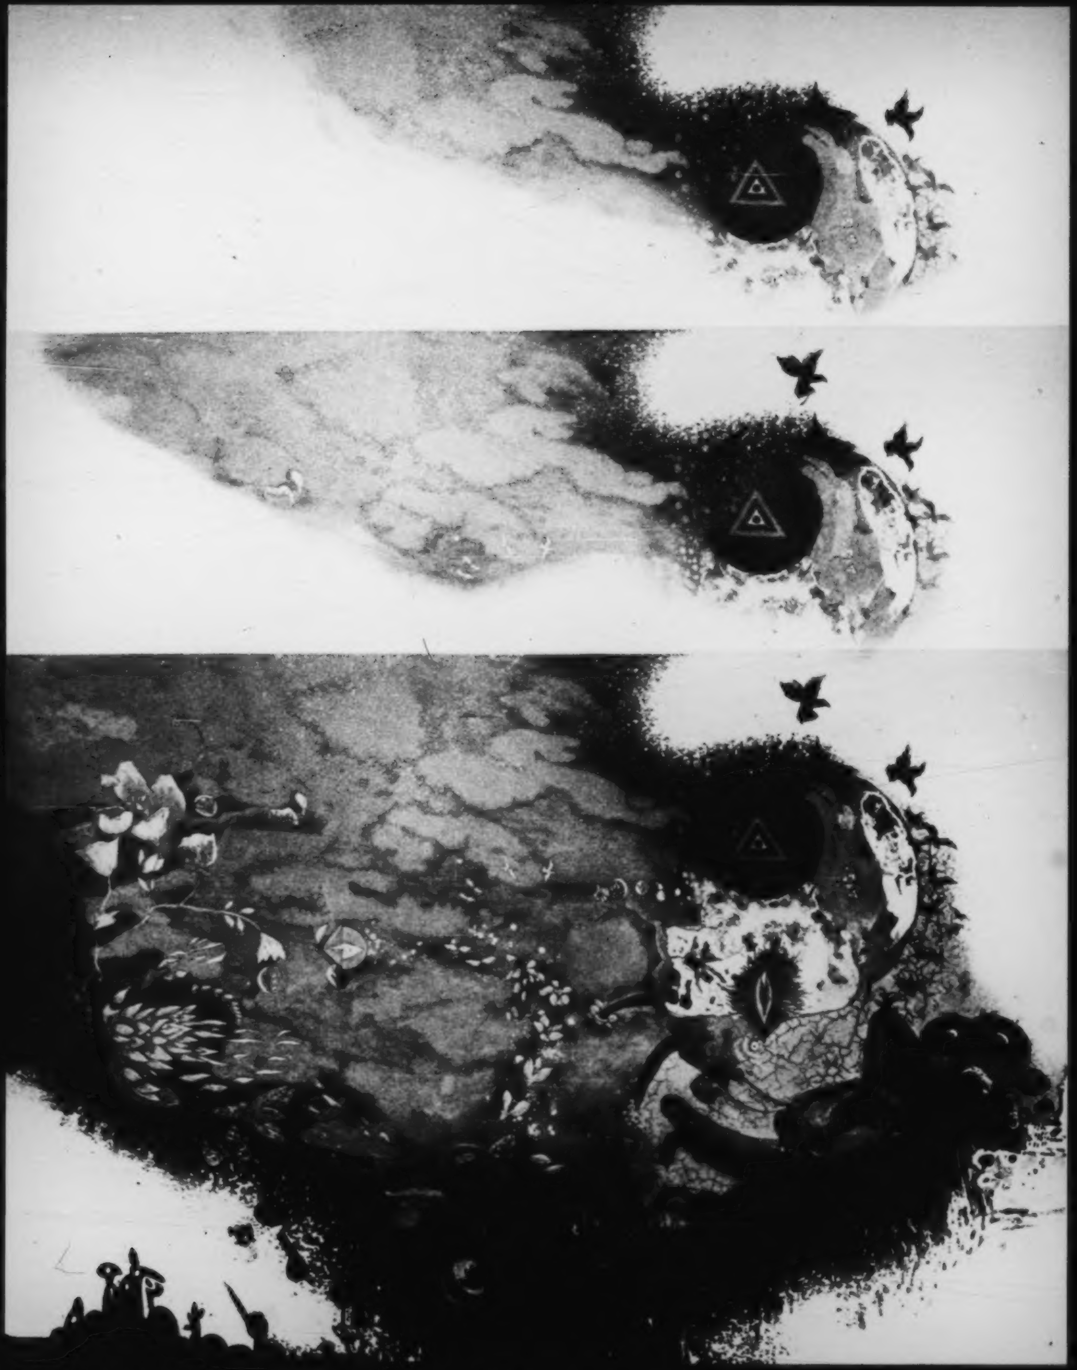
"L'Accordéoniste." Chana Orloff. 1924. Bronze. 91 cm. high.



41 RUE DE SEINE 75006 PARIS TEL. 329 50 84·85

VOL
71
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI

M O N I R



CREATION OF A NATURE   SIZE [illegible]   9 COLOR ETCHING

MONIR
WORKS EXCLUSIVELY WITH HANOVER
FINE ARTS

CREATION OF A NATURE IS A SIGNED
EDITION OF 50

H A N O V E R

Hanover Fine Art   40 S Main Street   Hanover   Massachusetts 02339   617 878 9144

New York
Madrid
Hanover

TAKES HIS TURN, 1983, mixed media and cast paper on canvas, 79½ × 71½ ins.

R. LEE WHITE

Recent Work

September 1 — October 8, 1983

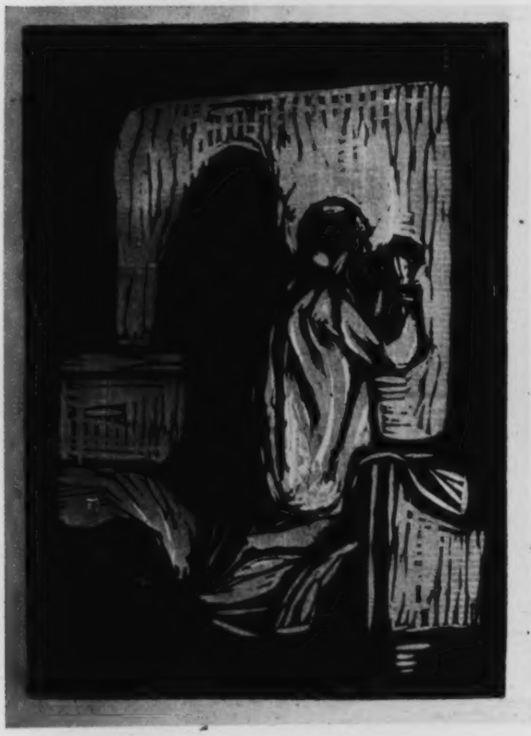
HARCOURTS CONTEMPORARY

415-521-5590
550 Powell Street
San Francisco, CA 94108

EDVARD MUNCH

Major Graphic Work

September 1 — October 8, 1983



THE OLD MAN'S PRAYER,
1902, woodcut printed in colors, signed, 18 1/16 × 12 3/4 ins.

HARCOURTS GALLERY
535 Powell Street, San Francisco, CA 94108
415-421-3428

VOL 71
ISS 8
SE 1983
UMI

ABBIE ZABAR COLLAGED

Drawings

Baselitz · Berlant · Crozier · de Kooning · Giacometti
Gorky · Heizer · Henle · Klee · Le Corbusier · Mitchell
Morley · Murphy · Rockburne · Westermann

Through October 8

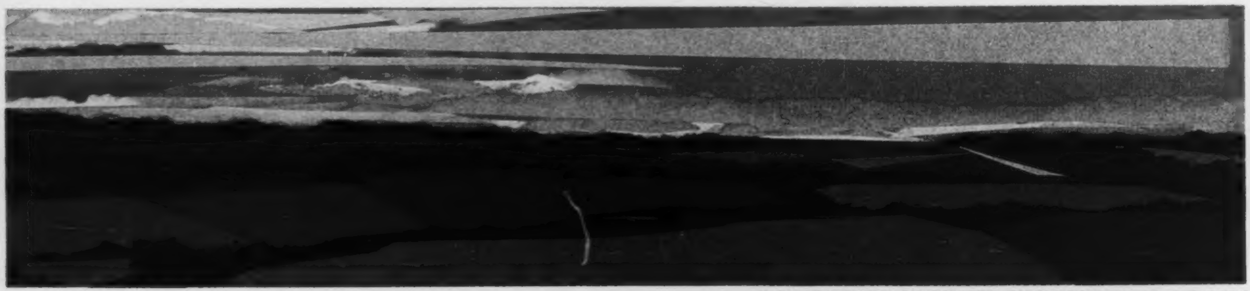
Michael Heizer

New Work

October 15 - November 19

XAVIER FOURCADE INC.
36 East 75th Street New York, New York 10021 212 535-3980

LANDSCAPES SEPT 13·OCT 8 Vanderwoude Tananbaum 24 E 81 NYC



A SLICE OF FRENCH COUNTRYSIDE 1980, PAPER 15" X 32'

SEPTEMBER 8–OCTOBER 1, 1983

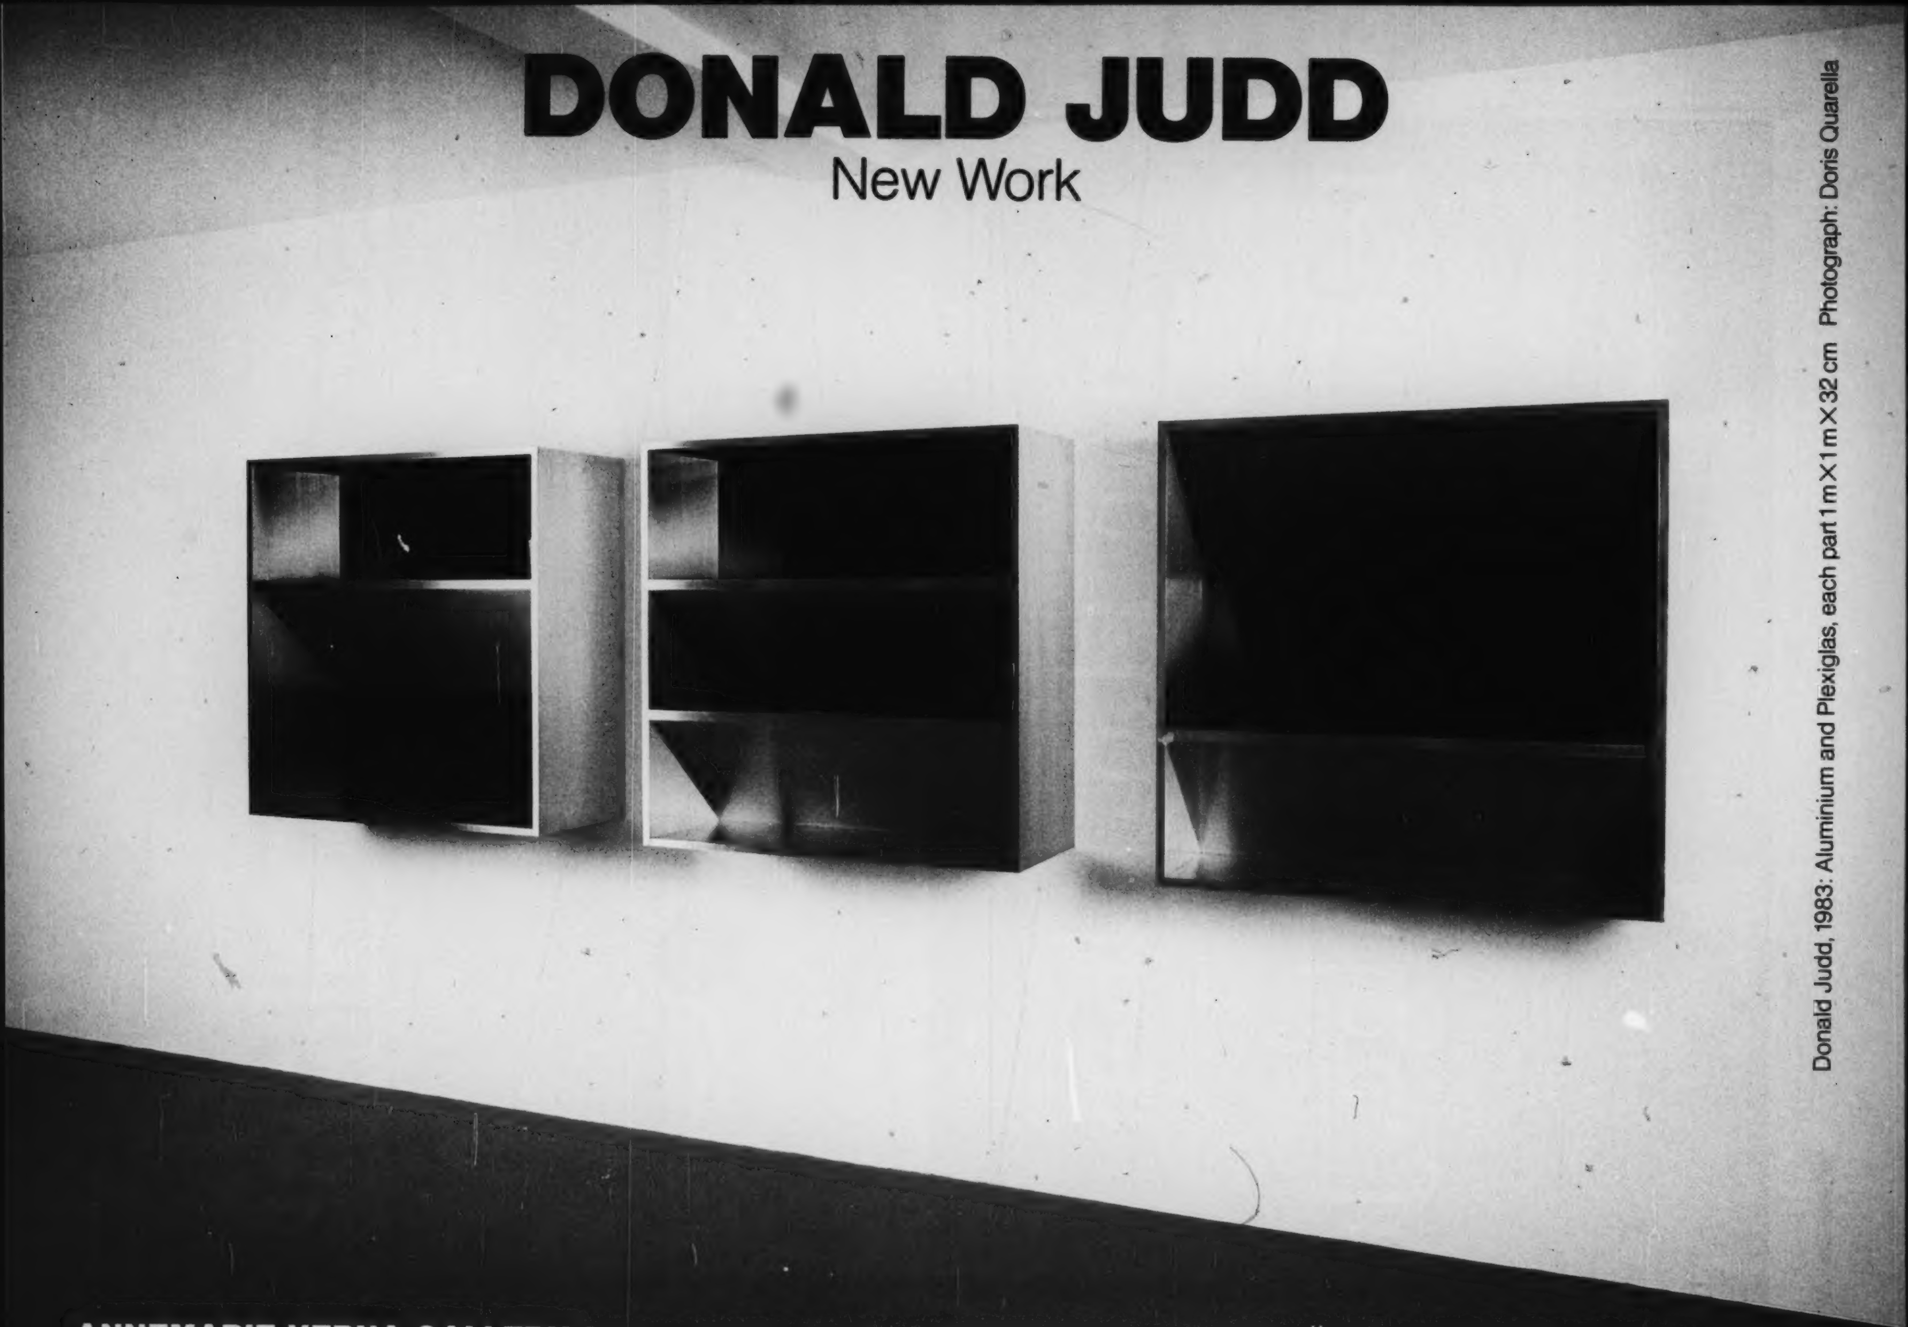
Juan Hamilton

CLAY AND BRONZE SCULPTURE

Paul Outerbridge, Jr.

CARBRO COLOR PHOTOGRAPHS FROM 1930-1941

ROBERT MILLER
724 FIFTH AVENUE NEW YORK
212·246·1625



DONALD JUDD

New Work

Donald Judd, 1983: Aluminium and Plexiglas, each part 1 m × 1 m × 32 cm Photograph: Doris Quarella

ANNEMARIE VERNA GALLERY / New Address: SCHEUCHZERSTRASSE 35 / 8006 ZÜRICH / SWITZERLAND / 01 - 361 90 70

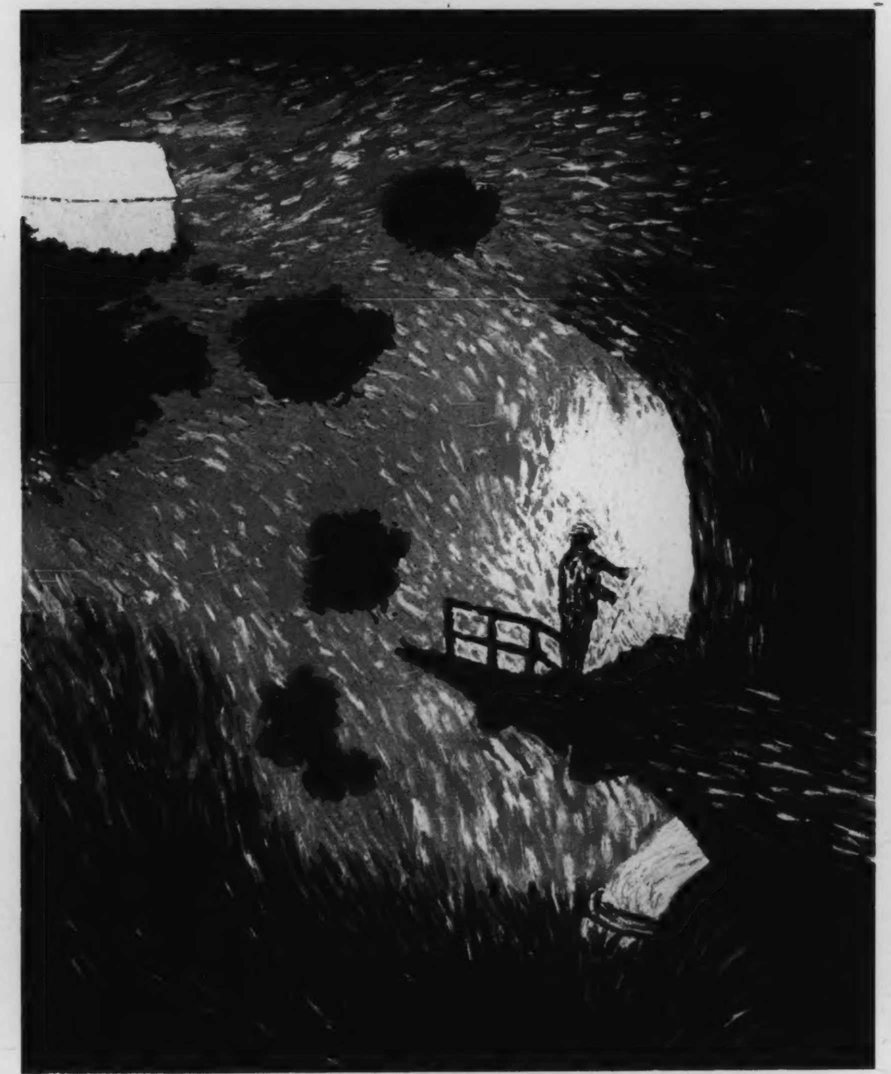
VOL 71 ISS 8 SE 1983 UMI

Report from Chicago
The Other Germans: Outsider Art

BY MICHAEL BONESTEEL

The Museum of Contemporary Art recently exhibited 123 works by 47 German "Sunday painters" culled from the Eisenmann collection—one of the most unusual corporate collections in the world.

Primitive art, or as it is more often called these days, naive art, has played the muse to such modernist schools as Fauvism, German Expressionism and Cubism. More precisely, it has acted as a mistress to respectable, academic art practitioners, been allowed its inspirational, if decidedly secondary status in the scheme of things, while being barred from official honor or even recognition. This is probably just as well. For an art form that owes its identity to innocence and alienation, any rise to fame and fortune, obviously enough, must eventually be the kiss of death. Nevertheless, it should also be said that a little professional help has often gone a long way toward establishing an atmosphere for naive art to grow. Three modern resurgences of naive art—in France, Yugoslavia and Haiti—would probably not have occurred without an introduction by a local liberal art professional. Wilhelm Uhde discovered his Henri Rousseau, Krsto Hegedušić his Ivan Generalić, and DeWitt Peters his Hector Hyppolite; all then went back for more—and found them. Consequently, instead of remaining isolated individuals, Rousseau, Generalić and Hyppolite became the spiritual fathers of their country's emerging naive offspring.



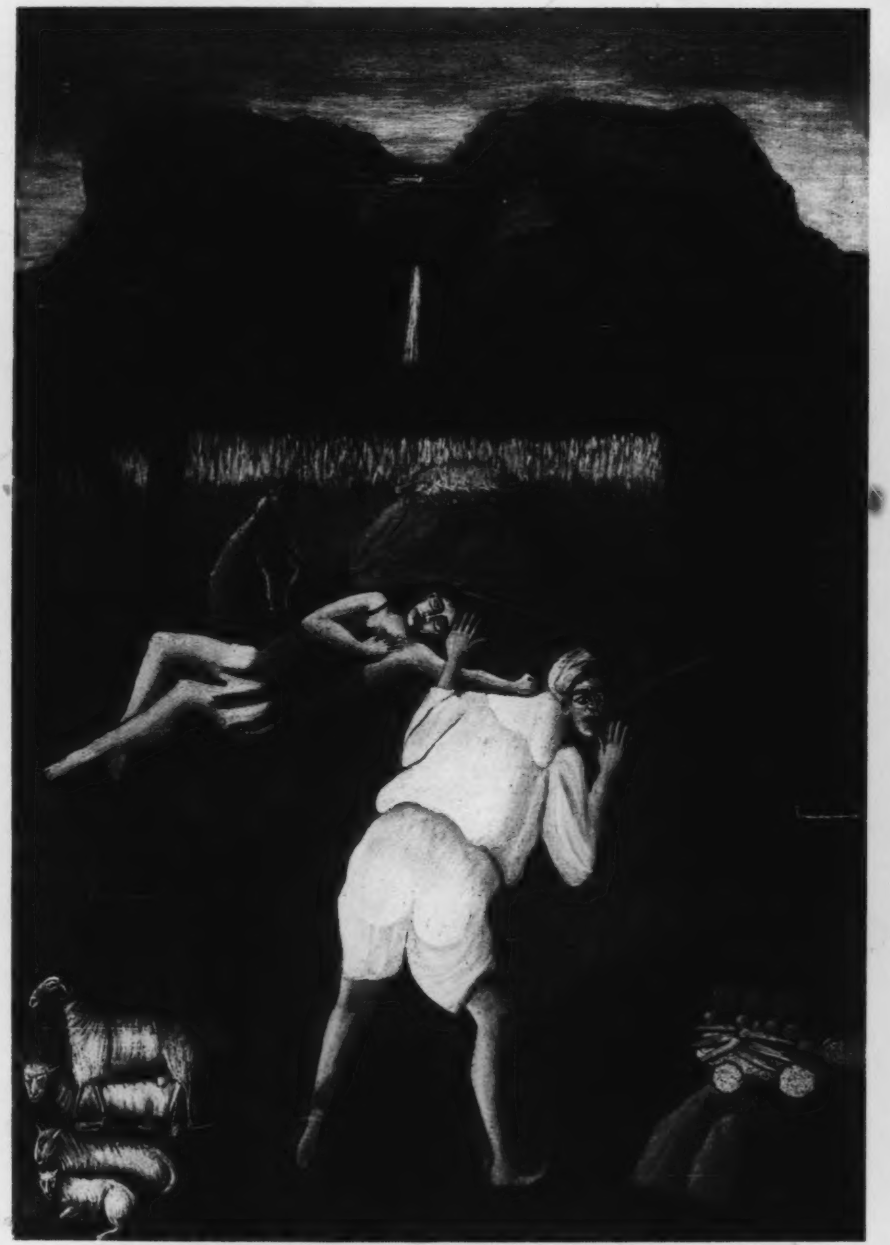
Max Valerius:* Work at the Blast Furnace, *1976, oil on canvas, 31½ by 23½ inches.

The acknowledged father of modern German naive painting is Adalbert Trillhaase. He was labeled a German "Rousseau" by his early admirers and emulators Otto Dix, Max Ernst and Marc Chagall. Just as Rousseau was embraced by his more sophisticated peers, such as Georges Seurat, Robert Delaunay and Pablo Picasso, so Trillhaase exhibited with his avant-garde friends from 1925 to 1932, and along with theirs, his work was labeled "degenerate" by the Nazis. Any opportunity for a more general efflorescence of German naive art was cut short, however, by the rise of National Socialism. Although Trillhaase, as well as such unknowns as Carl-Christian Thegan and Max Raffler, painted secretly during the Third Reich, they have had to wait nearly half a century for their work to be placed in its proper cultural/esthetic context. The man rendering them this service is an unlikely entrepreneur/collector by the name of Eugen Eisenmann.

"Naive and Outsider Painting from Germany," which appeared this spring at the Museum of Contemporary Art in Chicago, featured 123 paintings by 47 artists culled from the Eisenmann collection, certainly among the largest private collections of naive art in Europe—second only, perhaps, to the former Dubuffet collection of Art Brut in Lausanne, Switzerland. Eugen Eisenmann is not an art expert, but the head of a large manufacturing concern located in Böblingen, West Germany. Comprised of about 1,000 paintings by untrained artists from all over Germany, Eisenmann's is without question one of the most unusual corporate collections in the world.

Eisenmann began acquiring works by German Expressionists such as Barlach, Beckmann, Jawlensky, Kandinsky, Kirchner, Macke, Marc and Nolde as they became available in the early 1950s. He was especially fond of the work of Blue Rider artist

VOL
7
1
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI



Adalbert Trillhaase:* Cain and Abel, *n.d., oil on canvas, 40 ½ by 26 ¾ inches.

Gabriele Münter and eventually gathered the largest single collection of Münter's work outside of her own. (Twenty-two examples from his Münter collection were on view simultaneously in a separate exhibition at the MCA.) Eisenmann became so excited by the art he collected, that he took up the brush himself and encouraged his wife, two daughters and son to do likewise. They had family competitions, and he hung the resulting work in his offices. He urged—and in the case of his head executive, Hildegard Auer, even demanded—that his employees take up painting and submit works of art, which were then hung in a special room set aside for ongoing exhibitions. At one point during the early 1960s, nearly everyone working at the Eisenmann plant was painting. Eisenmann held the first Sonntagsmaler-Austellung ("Sunday Painter Exhibition") in 1962, and within ten years 2,000 to 3,000 untrained artists were submitting paintings annually. The exhibitions were curated by professionals, juries awarded purchase prizes, and the Eisenmann collection expanded. By the late 1960s, Eisenmann was buying older paintings by Thegan and Raffler to beef up his holdings, and he acquired his first work by Trillhaase in 1970.

Naive and Outsider Painting from Germany" was America's first glimpse of this body of work, and a rather overwhelming one it was. Although hardly likely to have the effect that their Neo-Expressionist compatriots have had on the international art scene, this loose crew of Sunday painters does amount to something like a secondary blitz in the German invasion. Certainly, they couldn't have picked a better place to make their debut. When the Eisenmann Corporation opened up a branch last year in a Chicago suburb, representatives were sent to the MCA to inquire about the possibility of showing their collection. To a degree unmatched by any other city in the country, Chicago shares Germany's warmth for itinerant naives and bag-lady artists. Three generations of Chicago artists have drawn as much upon the work of local naives and the "primitive" ethnic art at the Field Museum of Natural History as they have upon the classics at the Art Institute of Chicago. One visiting artist from Spain, after having perused the German naive show on opening night, came upon an adjoining room where the MCA's permanent collection was on display. "The MCA's own collection is more naive than the naive art from Germany!" he remarked, referring to works by Chicago's outsider artists Joseph Yoakum, Henry Darger and Lee Godie hanging side by side with the expressionist and Imagist art of Leon Golub, June Leaf and Jim Nutt.

Naive art does not embody a Zeitgeist, a spirit of the times; on the contrary, it reflects a Zeitlosgeist, a spirit of the timeless. A distinguishing characteristic of naive art is that one can compare a work painted at the beginning of a career with one done at the end, and there will be only natural technical refinements, but few major stylistic changes. Of course, many naive artists do not have long careers, since often painting is a pursuit they take up late in life. Friedrich Gerlach and Max Valerius spent their working years in the mines and started painting upon retirement. Others, like Marianne Kirchner, had serious illnesses or lost loved ones, prompting them to paint for therapeutic reasons. To be sure, there are profound stylistic discrepancies among the German naives, yet each remains consistent within boundaries of a set approach. Trillhaase's somber depictions of some of the Bible's more grisly episodes give his works a stereotypically dark, Germanic cast compared to the brighter, more ebullient contemporary works in the exhibition. Despite the charm of his awkwardly proportioned figures, there is a depth and richness to his palette and an ambitiousness to his compositions that mark him as something of a classicist. No doubt Trillhaase's professional associations had some effect on his outlook, as they did on Rousseau. One can also spot this tendency toward painterly sophistication and pseudo-realism in such recent painters as: Friedrich Gerlach, Hildegard Auer, Karl Hurm, Karl Koch and Johanna Pfitzner.

The characteristically crude and childlike

Marianne Kirchner: Never Again War, 1976, poster paint on cardboard, varnished, 37 by 28¼ inches.

Karl Hurm: The Green Bedroom, 1976.

J. Pfitzner: Joseph and His Brothers . . ., 1981.

expressions of Thegan and Raffler dominated the show. Thegan's figures are flat and cartoonish, his colors pale and applied in thin washes. The absolute guilelessness of his cowboys, Indians and animals, and the understated yet assured manner of their arrangements make Thegan's work the epitome of naive genius. Raffler is better-known than Thegan and widely admired. But Thegan's freewheeling style at the same time makes Raffler's works appear stilted and overworked. Less novel and even more primitive are the paintings of Minna Ennulat, Michael Schächl and Vivian Ellis, while the precocious expressionism of Max Valerius is particularly striking for the way it evokes such contemporary mainstream painters as Sandro Chia, Philip Guston, Neil Jenney and others.

The term "naive art" covers a gamut of work to which other labels are applied in more or less patchwork fashion. Terms such as "primitive art" or "Sun-

VOL
71
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI

Study in Blues Oil on Canvas 50" x 40"

Announcing the opening of the

PEMBROKE GALLERY

with a major show of

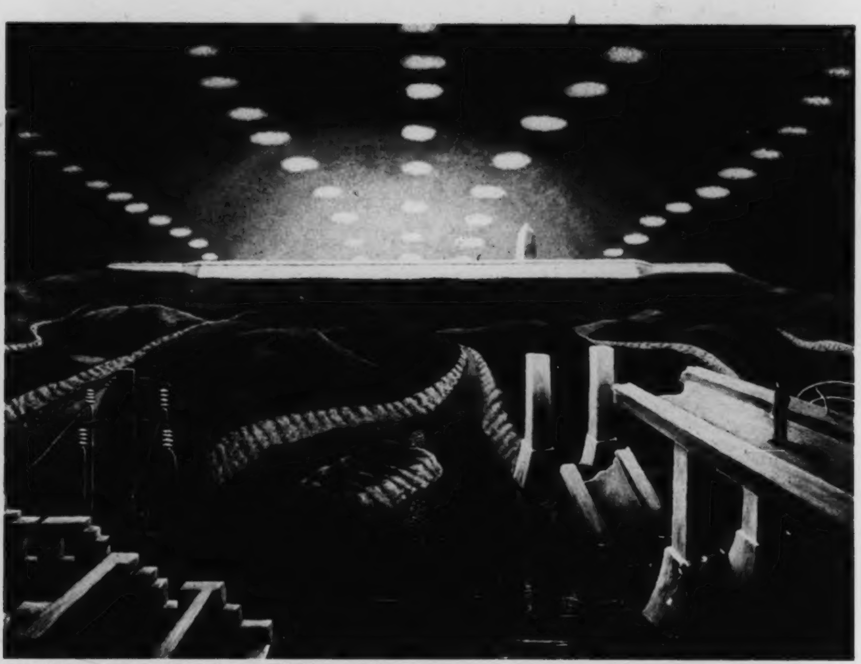
MILTON AVERY

Sept. 15 - Oct. 30, 1983

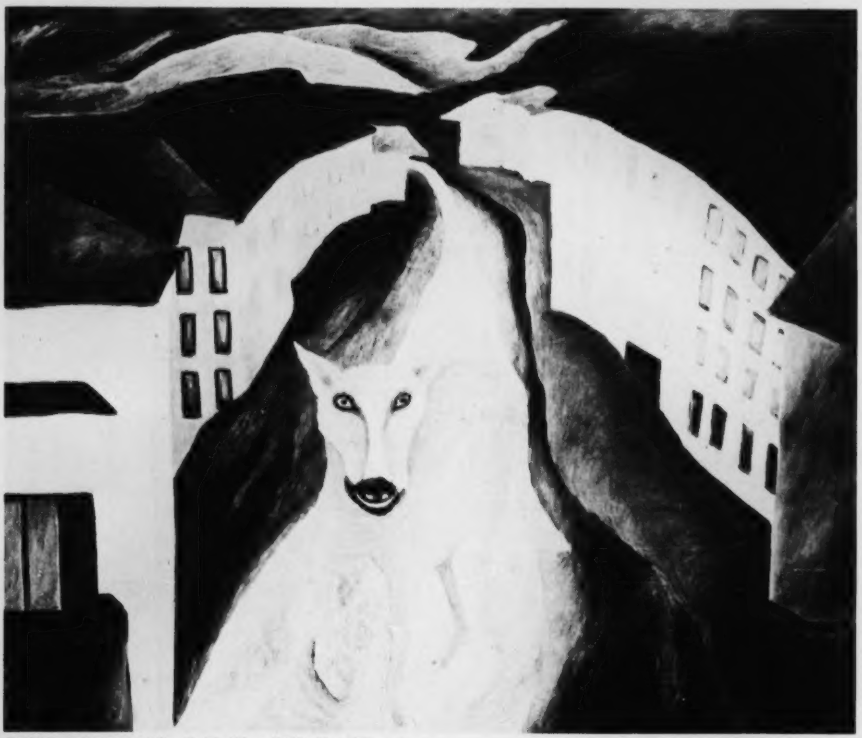
in Houston

PEMBROKE GALLERY

1639 Bissonnet Houston, Texas 77005 (713) 521-1001



Friedrich Gerlach:* The Signal, *1967, oil on masonite, 23 by 30-¾ inches.



Hildegard Auer:* North Railroad Station Street, *1977, oil on canvas, 23½ by 27½ inches.

day painter art," otherwise synonymous with "naive art," have derogatory connotations in America that are less pronounced in Europe. Naive art generally connotes work that is more personal in character than folk art, but less eccentric than the deranged and more abstract visions of Art Brut—to mention two other types of unschooled art. The term "outsider art" has been used to describe both naive and Art Brut work executed by recluses or schizophrenics. Typical of the bizarre "edge" associated with the disquieting work of outsider artists are the paintings of Gerlach, Hurm and Josef Wittlich. Gerlach's polished, surrealistic scenes have been compared to those of Caspar David Friedrich because of their eerie, apocalyptic atmospheres. More whimsically weird is the work of Hurm, whose "Hurm-Worlds" are populated by droll people and animals wandering among textures and patterns of hallucinatory detail. Wittlich's paintings look as if they were traced from other sources and colored in. His World War I battle scenes seem largely an excuse to employ bold colors in fanciful flags and decorative borders. In his portraits of soldiers and stately royalty, meanwhile, he shows a distinct fondness for toothy grins and piercing stares.

There are a number of German naives who can most aptly be described as social realists, at least in subject matter. Franz Klekawka captures dramatic working class activities, demonstrations against automation and industrial accidents. His powerful emotional and graphic detail can only be matched by the work of Marianne Kirchner, whose Never Again War is quite possibly the most gripping piece in the show. The work is divided into a sequential grid of nine panels, each of which presents a different experience from her childhood during the war: huddling with her family in a basement during a bombing raid; watching from a window as Jews are arrested and driven away in trucks; seeing her father appear in the doorway, covered with blood; discovering a neighbor who has slit her wrists because two family members, their portraits draped in black, have been killed.

> Naive art does not embody a "Zeitgeist," a spirit of the times; on the contrary, it reflects a "Zeitlosgeist" a spirit of the timeless.

In recent years some critics have prophesied an end to naive expression in the visual arts, arguing that the widespread use of depressive drugs in mental hospitals may well have blunted the talents of today's potential Adolf Wölflis, just as TV and modern technology in general may sooner or later short-circuit the expressive drive of society's non-institutionalized loners. However, on the evidence provided by the artists in this exhibition, most of whom began painting in the 1960s and 1970s—and half of whom are women, by the way—it would seem that such pronouncements are still, to our great good fortune, premature. ☐

Author: Michael Bonesteel is a freelance critic living in Chicago.

VOL
71
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI

Season's Greetings

OPENING EXHIBITION FOR THE 1983/84 SEASON

a selection of paintings and sculpture by:

Richard Artschwager
Lynda Benglis
Mel Bochner
Jonathan Borofsky
Scott Burton
Ralph Humphrey
Bryan Hunt
Robert Irwin
Alfred Jensen
Bill Jensen
Robert Mangold
Brice Marden
John McLaughlin
Malcom Morley
Robert Moskowitz
Elizabeth Murray
Judy Pfaff
Susan Rothenberg
Robert Ryman
Alan Saret
Julian Schnabel
Richard Serra
Joel Shapiro
Frank Stella
Donald Sultan
Richard Tuttle
Cy Twombly
Terry Winters

DANIEL WEINBERG GALLERY LOS ANGELES
619 north almont drive, los angeles, ca 90069 (213) 271-7101

21 SEPTEMBER
THROUGH
22 OCTOBER

LOUISE BOURGEOIS

2140 BUSH STREET
SAN FRANCISCO 94115
415 563-1620

DANIEL · WEINBERG GALLERY
SAN FRANCISCO

Photography
Looking at the Big Picture

BY PEPE KARMEL

JoAnn Verberg: Untitled (With Michael and John in Minnesota), 1982, three gelatin-silver prints, each 13 ½ by 10 ½ inches. Museum of Modern Art.

The Museum of Modern Art's recent show of large-scale photographs was seen by the curators as a challenge to the "classical" photographic esthetic. Our critic draws a different conclusion.

The border between photography and painting has in recent years been more honored in the breach than in the observance. Artists identified with the world of painting have begun to make photographs, or use them in their work. Photographers have begun to make pictures that display the kind of esthetic self-consciousness—and even the pictorial strategies—characteristic of contemporary painting. And both groups of "painterly photographers" have tended to make photographs closer in size to canvases than to traditional photographic prints. This tendency to work in an unusually large scale was accorded primary importance in an exhibition last spring at New York's Museum of Modern Art, "Big Pictures by Contemporary Photographers."

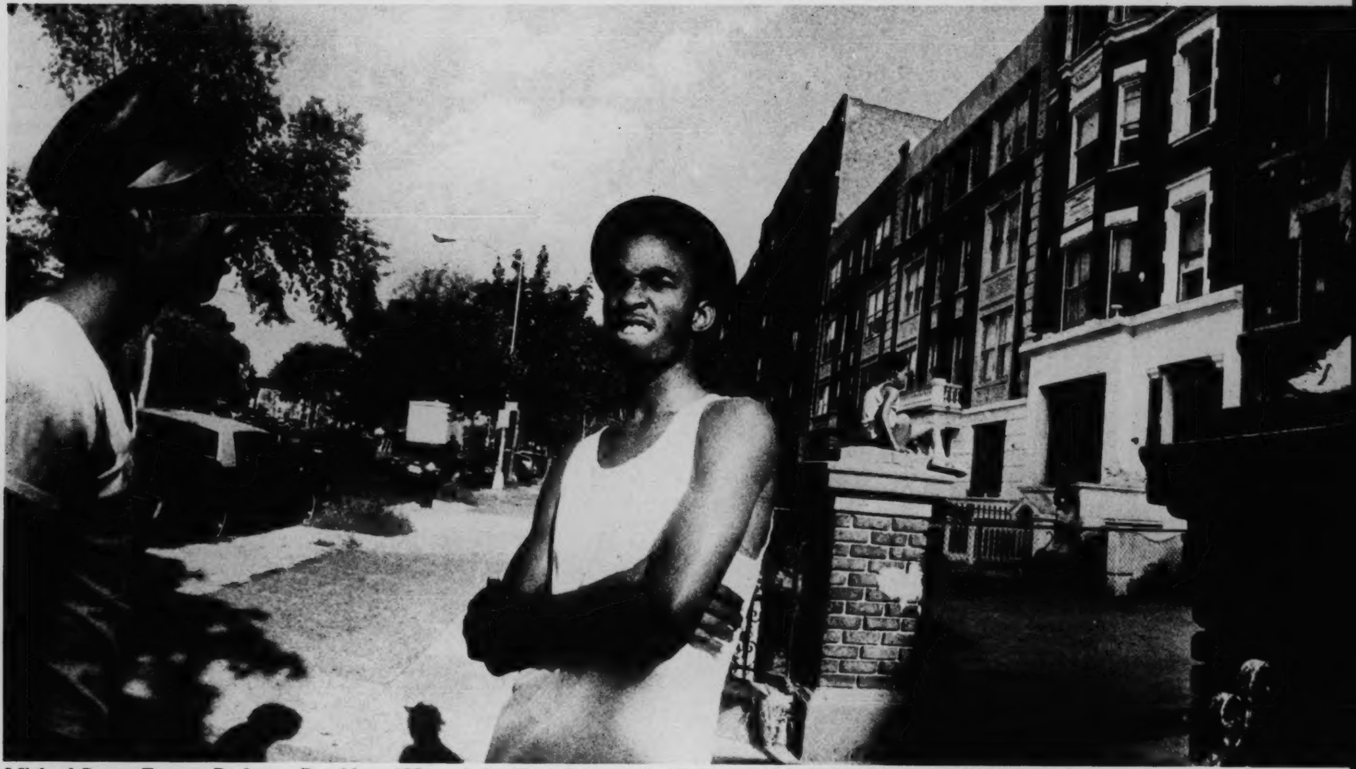
The show was restricted to artists who manipulate their images without drawing or painting upon them, and this criterion of course eliminated the semiphotographic canvases of artists like Andy Warhol, Robert Rauschenberg and Robert Longo. Nonetheless, the show did include purely photographic work by painters such as Rauschenberg and David Hockney, and by the sculptor Kenneth Snelson. In addition, "conceptual" artists like Sol LeWitt, Cindy Sherman, William Wegman, and Hilla and Bernd Becher were cast by the context into the role of crossovers from the world of art, while Jan Groover, Ray Metzker, Barbara Crane, Robert Heinecken and Gerald Incandela represented established photographers already known for working in a conceptual or painterly mode.

This diversity of backgrounds was matched by the diversity of approaches. Some of the works in the show were basically "straight" prints, though of exceptionally large size. Others were rendered more abstract by an emphasis on some mechanical aspect of the photographic process (blurs caused by movement, graininess resulting from excessive enlargement, etc.). And many of the large images had been assembled out of a number of smaller ones. A common denominator among all the pictures was not immediately apparent—not even size, since they ranged from Richard Avedon's more or less "normal" sized (10 by 40 inches) portrait of The Mission Council up to Esther Parada's enormous Past Recovery, 8 feet high and 12 feet wide. (Oddly enough, The Mission Council has in the past been exhibited in a wall-sized version, one on the same scale as Parada's picture. Why the small version was chosen for "Big Pictures" is a mystery.)

"Big Pictures" was curated by John Szarkowski, head of the Modern's photography department, and John Pultz, this year's Newhall Fellow. The wall label at the entrance to the show, written by Pultz, described the works in the show as challenges to the esthetic of "classical" photography—the kind usually shown at the Modern. Well, none of them were small, "straight" prints. But neither was it demonstrated that "bigness" in itself constituted a coherent esthetic category. The very diversity of the work in the show suggested that the dividing line between painting and photography could not be reduced to a simple matter of straight vs. manipulated imagery, small vs. large prints, or single vs. multiple views. The crucial distinction, rather, seemed to be between those works derived from a single image and those built up out of several. The pictures comprised of a variety of disparate elements seemed more "painterly." The more "photographic" works, on the other hand, generally had as their source a single original image or situation, although this image might have undergone severe fragmentations and multiplications in the picture-making process.

The show suggested, in other words, that the realistic evocation of what Pultz referred to as "seamless" space is less fundamental to photography's identity as an art than is the literal confrontation between photographer and subject, of which the photographer's print is merely a record. This proved

VOL 71 ISS 8 SE 1983 UMI



Michael Spano: Eastern Parkway, Brooklyn, 1981, gelatin-silver photograph, 17 15/16 by 44 3/4 inches. Museum of Modern Art.

Robert Mahon: Two Children, 1982, two panels, each with 35 gelatin-silver prints, 60 by 40 inches each. Collection the artist.

as true of the "postmodern" or "Conceptual" work, such as Cindy Sherman's untitled 1981 self-portrait, as of the more "classical" photographs like Michael Spano's panoramic view of kids on a Brooklyn sidewalk.

The fact that Sherman herself poses for her own camera is a logical extension of earlier photographers' experiments in expressing themselves by provoking their subjects and recording their reactions. Emmet Gowin's photographs of his wife, Garry Winogrand's photographs of women on the street, indeed, even Alfred Stieglitz's photographs of Georgia O'Keeffe, all work on this principle. What Cindy Sherman does in her work is to close the circuit, to turn the force of her desire upon her own image. (The feminist implications of her seizing the role of photographer as well as of subject are of course also pertinent.) A natural or "candid" element persists in Sherman's work, despite its artifice. We are aware that she is putting herself on the line, that in acting out and recording her fantasy life she is exposing an authentic personal compulsion, however contrived its expression may be. For Sherman to use another model would be to disclaim her personal engagement in the image, lessening its impact.

In Sherman's self-portrait, her prone body extends across an orange-brown linoleum fake-tile floor. The life-size scale provides the viewer with an uncanny sense of personal engagement, and, indeed, it is in the details made visible by the size and clarity of the print that the picture's real subtlety emerges. A scrap of newspaper clutched in Sherman's hand carries a Club Med ad headed by the bold-lettered interrogation, "Single?" The image evokes a sense of longing and desire, even as it characterizes those feelings in somewhat contradictory ways. Sherman's early-1960s outfit of checkered skirt and sweatshirt suggests "innocent" teenage longing, of the kind celebrated in pop songs of the period. The Club Med ad, on the other hand, suggests the easy promiscuity of the "swinging singles" scene. The unresolved symbolism of Sherman's photograph serves, in its totality, as a strong metaphor for the sexual schizophrenia of our time.

> The works that were strongly "photographic," or based on a single image, seemed more successful than those that were "painterly," or drawn from a variety of sources.

Certainly, Sherman's contribution to "Big Pictures" was just as "directorial" or "manipulative" as Barbara Kasten's, a similarly scaled color "abstraction." And Kasten no doubt chose the triangles, hemispheres and straight-edges in her neo-Constructivist assemblage as carefully as Sherman chose her props and her pose. Had these two pictures been paintings, one would have had no trouble believing both painters' decisions to be of comparable significance. Yet Kasten's photograph in the end seems like a mere pastiche of past painting, while the historical references in Sherman's work are infused with a sense of personal significance and self-confrontation that give them greater resonance.

Though Sherman's picture retains the spatial unity Pultz attributed to "classical" photography, it functions through a multiplication of apparently discordant signifiers. Meaning is produced by the fragmentation of meaning. (In this respect it is not so far from the "straight" photographs of photographers like Lee Friedlander, or even Walker Evans.) Other photographs in "Big Pictures" extended this principle of fragmentation to the formal and spatial aspects of the image as well. Richard Avedon's 1971 group portrait of The Mission Council, for instance, is composed of five separate frames, each 8 by 10 inches, placed side by side so as to cover contiguous areas of the visual field. This procedure, derived from the traditional panorama, hardly seems revolutionary. But David Hockney's portrait of Vera Russell, Pembroke Studios, 1 May 1982 takes the notion a step further, fragmenting the visual field into 128 Polaroid close-ups, assembled into an 8-by-16-unit grid. The composite, built-up character of the view allows Hockney to focus more clearly on a hand here, a Tiffany lamp there, a staircase across the room, thus reminding us that even in "normal" perception we do not actually seize a whole view instantaneously, but build it up out of a multiplicity of glances.

The grid arrangement of Hockney's Polaroids is crucial to his picture's impact. Indeed, the grid provided an important armature for many of the composite pictures in the show. Though an artificial and abstract form of composition, the grid carries for us a connotation of naturalness—perhaps because we live in a Cartesian era, and are taught from an early age to understand physical space as an array of points defined by perpendicular coordinates (lines of longitude and latitude, north–south avenues and east–west streets, etc.). The grid thus mediates between the chaos of reality and the order of art.

The importance of the grid in Hockney's work was suggested by Joyce Neimanas's Untitled #10, also a composite portrait of a woman in a room with art objects. Neimanas's "mosaic" of small instant prints shares Hockney's mobile focus, but her prints are arranged in a helter-skelter pattern roughly following the outlines of her subject. The pattern was no doubt meant to be expressive, but it seems arbitrary and gimmicky instead. In contrast, Hockney's expressive choices of angle and focus, in each Polaroid frame, were contained and disciplined by the regularity of his overall composition (though in recent composite works he has himself frequently abandoned the grid).

JoAnn Verberg's 1982 portrait, Untitled (With Michael and John in Minnesota), extends the process of fragmentation in a different direction. It seems at first glance to be a "simultaneous" composite portrait in the style of Avedon's Mission Council or Hockney's Vera Russell. Each of the three frames composing Verberg's picture appears to be a cropped detail from a larger, complete image denied the viewer. Upon examination, however, it becomes clear that the poses of Verberg and her friends have changed completely from frame to frame. The unity of the three partial images derives from compositional resemblances among them, and from the viewer's sense of their temporal and psychological closeness, rather than from any literal sameness or contiguity.

Robert Mahon's 1982 Two Children takes as its starting point a pair of found or inherited images: two snapshots, perhaps taken by the artist's parents, showing a girl and a boy with a sled standing in front of a snowbound industrial vista. Neither of the original snapshots is reproduced in its entirety, each being broken up, instead, into 35 different blowups of parts of the original image, focusing on a head, a hand, a watertower, a distant stretch of trees or cars—

VOL 71
ISS 8
SE 1983
UMI

Barbara Kasten: Construction XV, 1982, silver-dye bleach photograph, 30 by 40 inches. John Weber Gallery.

Cindy Sherman: Untitled, 1981, color-coupler photograph, 23 7/8 by 48 1/8 inches. Museum of Modern Art, New York.

some printed so lightly that the material objects seemed to melt into the white snow filling the distant earth and sky, others printed so darkly as to disappear into the shadows of the children's heavy winter clothes. But the disparate final images clearly derive from a single significant intersection in time and space. The movement of the viewer's eye, struggling to reconstitute the original images of this moment, becomes an effective symbol for the movement of memory, struggling to bring the past to life.

Esther Parada's Past Recovery, the biggest of the big pictures in this show, resembles Mahon's Two Children in that it is based on a secondhand image, in this case an old photograph of a 1910 anniversary banquet. And like Hockney's Vera Russell, it is divided into a grid. But both devices here function only at the level of gimmick. Though Mahon breaks his inherited images into fragments, he then limits himself to manipulating those fragments.

Esther Parada: Past Recovery, 1979, 100 hand-toned gelatin-silver photographs, 8 13/16 by 13 3/8 inches each. Museum of Fine Arts, Houston.

> None of the works in the show were small, "straight" prints, but neither was it demonstrated that "bigness" in itself constituted a coherent esthetic category.

The process of disintegration and reintegration takes place within the context of his original images; everything leads back to the primal moment of the photographer's encounter with his subject. Parada, however, by adding material from other photographs to the original 1910 image in her picture, erases any real sense of this primal encounter, and so strips her work of much of its tension. The original photograph ceases to be a context or a ground, ending up instead as just one more kind of material.

This is not to say that many artists haven't made effective pictures mixing photographs from different sources. Rauschenberg's "combines" come immediately to mind. But there the various photographs are bound together by the esthetic "glue" of the paint, canvas, fabrics and so on with which Rauschenberg surrounds them. The photographs are not "primary," but they don't need to be. (Ironically, Rauschenberg himself was represented in "Big Pictures" by one of his recent "photems," purely photographic collages that suffer from some of the same weaknesses as Parada's work.)

No doubt Parada here intended the grid which overlaid the entire composite image to serve as a kind of binding agent for the work, but because it fails to contribute anything else, it fails, too, to bind. It does not, for instance, also serve—as it does in Hockney's portrait of Vera Russell—as a metaphor for the form of photographic perception. It is simply—and arbitrarily—added onto the preexisting images.

What one is left with, then, is the "meaning" of the image—a meaning not rooted in any of the real experiences recorded in the photographs, but produced simply by their symbolic juxtapositions. And the progression of these symbols—from tuxedoed and gowned grandparents to tousle-haired, contemporary children—is reminiscent of nothing so much as those cigarette ads that use a similar sequence of pictures to inform the modern woman, "You've come a long way, baby."

Throughout the show, the works that were "photographic" (in the sense of deriving from a single source) in general seemed more successful than those that were "painterly." Perhaps this one-sidedness was simply the result of the decision by curators Szarkowski and Pultz to exclude pictures—like those of Rauschenberg, Warhol or Longo—that make use of paint as an esthetic binder; this stricture may well have left only the weaker examples of the genre to choose from. "Bigness" does not, ultimately, define a photographic category, as this show, rather despite itself, made clear. Indeed, the works gathered together for the exhibition had, in the end, the somewhat paradoxical effect of clarifying what was important in "straight" photographs—big or small. Rather than subverting our idea of "classical" photographic esthetics, "Big Pictures" managed to enlarge it. ☐

Author: Pepe Karmel is a free-lance critic who writes frequently on photography.

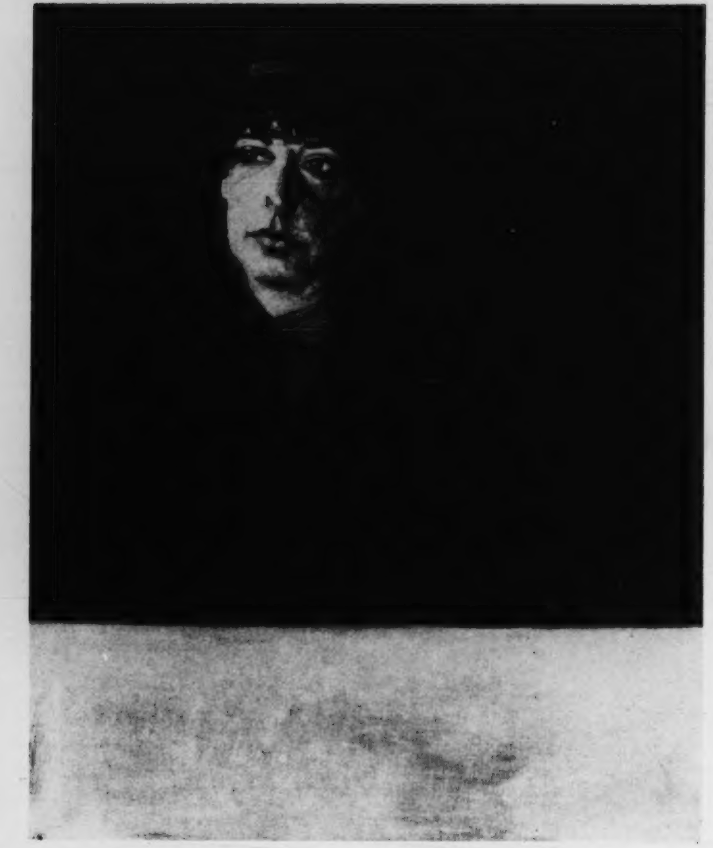
VOL
7 1
ISS
8
S E
1983
UMI



AVIGDOR ARIKHA

Recent Paintings, Drawings and Pastels

September 7–October 4

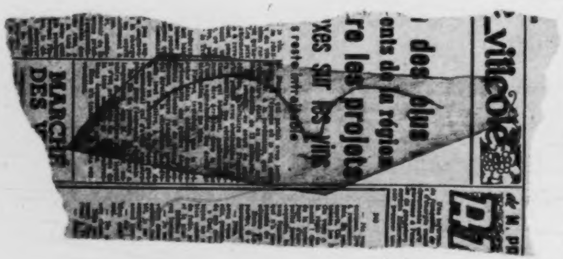
Marlborough

40 West 57 New York 10019 Tel 541-4900

Anne in Winter, 1983. Oil on canvas, 31⅞ x 25 inches

PABLO PICASSO

THE ILLUSTRATED BOOKS



PATRICK CRAMER, PUBLISHER

PABLO PICASSO

The Illustrated Books: Catalogue Raisonné

Compiled by Sebastian and Herma Goeppert and Patrick Cramer.
Patrick Cramer, Editeur, Geneva, 1983.

The complete catalogue of the illustrated books, albums and catalogues, with 156 entries and 804 reproductions (35 in color). Preface, poem by P. A. Benoit, chronological table, etc. 416 pp. Full cloth, illustrated jacket, cloth slipcase. 12⅗ x 9¼ in.

Regular edition
(English or French) Sw. fr. 180.— or $85.

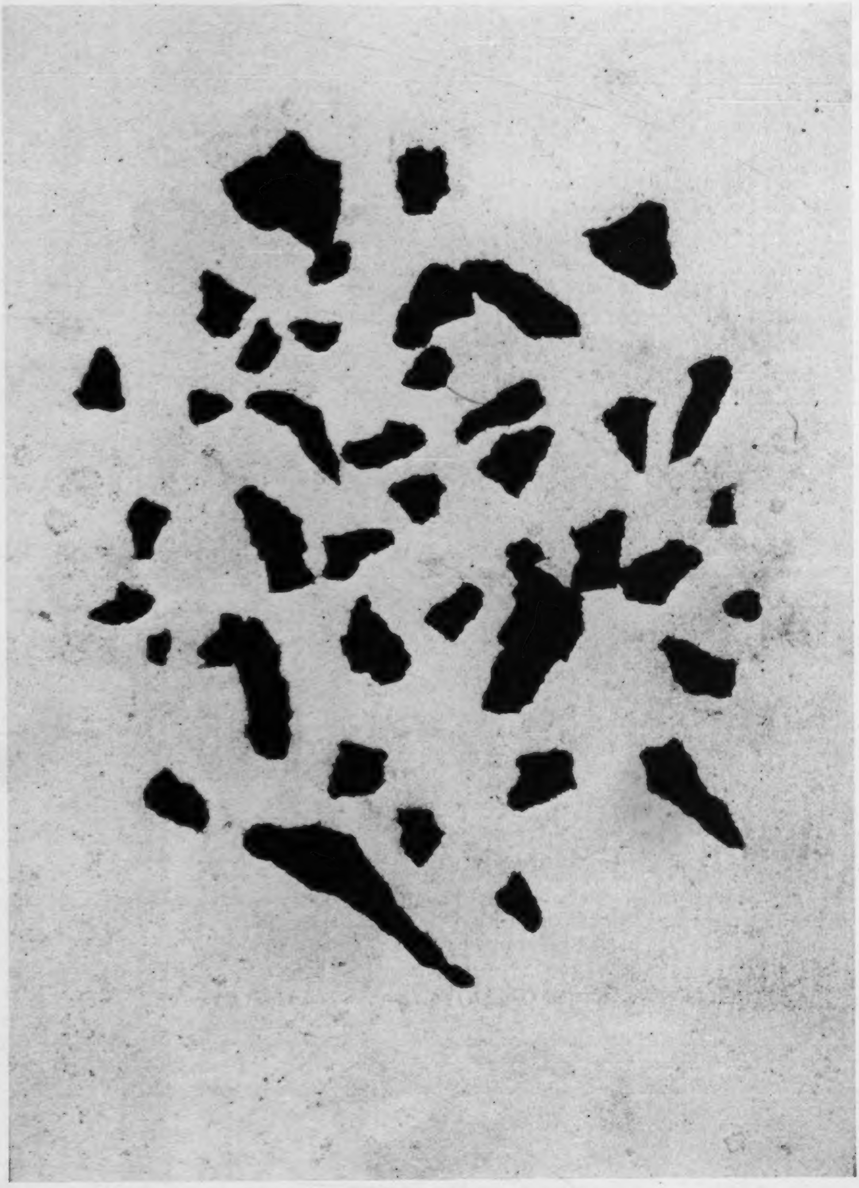
English de luxe edition of 20 copies with an original drypoint etching by Picasso (Bloch 983) from a numbered edition of 40 impressions with the signature stamp Sw. fr. 5800.—

GALERIE PATRICK CRAMER
13, rue Chantepoulet
1201 GENEVE (Suisse) Tel. (22) 32.54.32

Report from Paris
Jean Arp: Chance and Necessity

BY YVE-ALAIN BOIS

At Beaubourg, a small-scale exhibition devoted to Arp's little-known collages exposed some of the contradictions involved in the artist's use of chance procedures.



Jean Arp:* Papier déchiré, *1933, 13 ¾ by 9 ¹³⁄₁₆ inches. Collection Marguerite Arp-Hagenbach.

Uncommon, unpretentious, overshadowed by the hullabaloo which invariably accompanies the large-scale retrospectives that successively invade the fifth floor of the Centre Pompidou (recently, two U.S. imports, the de Chirico and Yves Klein shows)—the small-scale "exhibition-dossiers" mounted at Beaubourg by the Cabinet d'Art Graphique of the Musée National d'Art Moderne are far too understated to attract large crowds. This is unfortunate but necessary: unfortunate, since these exhibitions are always extremely well done; necessary, since their understatement is part of their message. A viewer influenced by media hype could not possibly appreciate their extraordinary subtlety.

Thus, it appears that Beaubourg subscribes, at least in practice, to that unwritten law that the print room of a major museum must remain a sort of inner sanctum reserved for an audience of connoisseurs. The lighting of these exhibitions—dimmed for obvious technical reasons (the fragility of paper)—offers a supplementary sign of their special status: here, the weak glow of the spotlights seems to say, you must spend more time than usual in front of the exhibited works. This kind of optical intimidation is one tactic among others to combat the precipitousness of cultural tourism; and the recent Jean Arp exhibition, titled "The Time of the Papiers Dêchirês," was well worth our prolonged attention.

Jean or Hans Arp (an Alsatian, he used both names) is known to the general public primarily for his sculpture, in which he attempted to revive Baroque organicism for the 20th century ("A heart is beating under this marble skin"). His Dadaist reliefs are somewhat less well known, his poetry even less so (although he produced a considerable amount), while his collages remain in almost total obscurity. The exhibition set out to compensate for this injustice. Not only did Arp's career begin with collage (he began exhibiting them in 1915 in Zürich); he made collages throughout his life (the last work in the exhibition is dated 1964, that is, two years before the artist's death).

Arp's earliest collages, with their Cubist angularity, remain somewhat outside the body of work exhibited at Beaubourg; they seem primarily like a young man's (successful) entrance examination into modernity. (The exhibition included only one of these works, the artist himself having destroyed the majority of them.) It was only with the famous collages arranged "according to the laws of chance," which coincided with the emergence of Dada (1916), that Arp's investigations became more personal—at precisely the moment at which he sought impersonality in his art. By leaving to chance the arrangement of monochromatic geometric surfaces on a neutral ground, Arp

VOL 71 ISS 8 SE 1983 UMI

The Madcap, 1934, torn drawing and collage, 8 ¼ by 7 1/16 inches.

Torn drawing, 1938, collage, 9 13/16 by 7 1/16 inches. Fondation Arp.

Cut-out wood, 1939, collage, 9 7/16 by 7 13/16 inches. Collection Mme. Marguerite Arp-Hagenbach.

Torn Duo-drawing with elements by Sophie Taeuber and Arp, 1947, collage, 11 ⅞ by 9 ⅛ inches. Kunstmuseum, Basel.

attempted to "banish compositional choice." He even used a paper cutter, "since scissors too readily betray the presence of the hand." (Similarly, the elements in his wood reliefs of the period were cut to his specifications by professional carpenters.)

Arp dreamed of an anonymous art and spoke of such things as automatism and the unconscious; his project was to wed an absolute absence of chance in the execution of his works with an absolute invocation of chance in their composition—an ideological contradiction from which he escaped by associating the use of chance with vitalism. ("Art is a fruit," he claimed; chance is the "first cause from which all life springs.") But Arp thereby resurrected the whole metaphysics of art which Dada wanted to overthrow. His chance is not very different from the mystics' divine grace. (This connotation undoubtedly irritated the artist's Surrealist colleagues, which may explain why they never cited his collages as plastic antecedents of automatic writing.)

The exhibition emphasized the torn-paper collages (papiers dèchirès) which the sculptor began making in the early 1930s. Arp's own account of this new technique is somewhat deceptive: he claimed, on the one hand, that an absolute degree of impersonality is impossible to achieve (the paper cutter was only a crutch) and, on the other, that no work of art is immune to wear and tear, to the ravages of time. Arp was obsessed with the material decomposition of his collages, which are extremely fragile. (Was it because they aged so badly that the artist destroyed so many of them?)

The most effective papiers dèchirès in the exhibition were those created out of previous works—drawings, engravings, serigraphs, gouaches—that had been torn up and kaleidoscopically dispersed before congealing into new concretions. (The only comparable works that I know are the collages Lee Krasner recently made out of her own drawings of the '40s.) Those collages in which lines were penciled in after the fact to help the dispersed fragments of earlier works to concatenate are less compelling. However, like the recollages these "corrected" collages reveal that Arp had arrived at the following conclusion: the arbitrariness of chance will never abolish the arbitrariness of composition.

Most of Arp's papiers dèchirès are less problematic, however. In his constellations of black on white (which, in their dispersal, anticipate Mirô's famous "Constellations"), chance intervened only at the moment the paper (which does not always obey the hand's injunction) was torn—whatever the artist may have said to the contrary. Once his stock of fragments had been constituted, Arp could arrange them at will on a neutral support prepared with glue. There are visible alterations in these works, indicating that the positions of certain fragments were changed; compositional choice has hardly been abandoned.

Crumpled paper, n.d., 24 13/16 by 18 7/8 inches. Collection Suzie Magnelli.

Just before executing these works, however, Arp questioned the neutrality of the support itself. In a series of works on crumpled paper, he incorporated the inevitable wear and tear to which his collages were vulnerable into the work itself. The crumpling of the paper causes the pigment (oil or gouache) to flake. Thus, the surface of the paper is no longer an abstract given, but an animated, impenetrable relief which transforms the pigment applied to it into a heterogeneous surface. Arp's discovery, in these works, of heterogeneity, of a fundamental lack of equivalence between the paper and the pigment, was undoubtedly the source of two illusionistic episodes which followed: first, a "crumpled paper" in trompe-l'oeil (a gouache which imitates the effects of crumpling on the application of pigment); second, a series of reliefs inspired by the papiers dèchirès (among them, a 1930 bronze), which imitate the irregular bulges of a crumpled sheet of paper. Here, we witness a complete abandonment of the poetics of chance—what is more composed than a trompe-l'oeil?

A great deal more could be written about this exhibition, especially about those collages which utilize torn-up photographs of Arp's own sculptures and reliefs. In conclusion, however, I will simply mention a series of papiers dèchirès made from his wife Sophie Taeuber's drawings. The iconoclastic allure of these works is reminiscent of the de Kooning drawing erased by Rauschenberg. Still, they also reveal the basically theological nature of Arp's Dadaism: No act of destruction, no matter how voluntary, is irreparable, since art will always guarantee its redemption. Readers or viewers impatient with this philosophy should remember the apocalyptic context in which many of these works were created—the European apocalypse, for which the works of Jean or Hans Arp, torn between two languages and two cultures, stand as one of the most abstract, yet at the same time most direct, testimonies. □ Author: Yve-Alain Bois is currently teaching art history at Johns Hopkins.

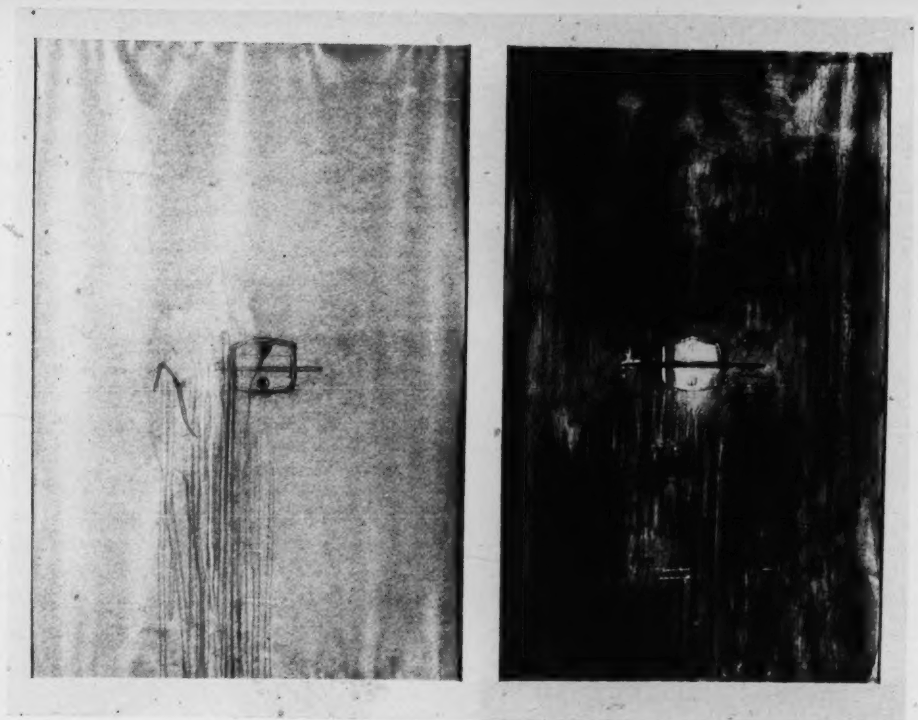
VOL
7
1
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI



Jim Dine, DOUBLE TOOTHBRUSH HOLDER 1962
Drawing in two sections on brown paper. 31¼" x 40"

JOHN C. STOLLER & CO.
400 MARQUETTE AVE MINNEAPOLIS 55401 (612) 339-7060

Clyde Connell

Recent Works
September 10–October 5

Delahunty Dallas
2701 Canton Street, Dallas Texas 75226
214-744-1346

Italo Scanga

Sculpture
September 20–October 29

Delahunty New York
291 Church Street, NY 10013
212-226-2519

Galerie de France
50-52 Rue de la Verrerie
75004 Paris
276.38.00

ANTHONY CARO/Sculptures
21 septembre - 29 octobre

JEAN DEGOTTEX
FIAC 83
Bris-Signes 1957.1983

VOL
7
1
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI

American Realist Works on Paper
September 6th–28th

George Ault
James Daugherty
George Grosz
Marsden Hartley
Jan Matulka
Joseph Stella
John Storrs

Milet Andrejevic
William Bailey
Barbara Cushing
Daniel Dallmann
Martha Mayer Erlebacher
DeWitt Hardy
Walter Hatke
Gabriel Laderman
Louisa Matthiasdottir
Richard Ryan
Kenneth Salins
Paul Wiesenfeld

Robert Schoelkopf Gallery
825 Madison Avenue, New York 10021

PAINTINGS
GP
13 SEPT - 1 OCT

RICHARD CARBONI
SQUEAK CARNWATH
LANCE KILAND
STEPHANIE ROSE
T.L. SOLIEN
STEVEN SORMAN

GETLER/PALL
50 WEST 57TH STREET
NEW YORK, N.Y. 10019
212/581-2724

Davis • McClain Galleries

"Intersection" 1983 Oil on linen 78 × 96 in.

John Wenger

September 15-October 12

2818 Kirby Drive Houston Texas 77098 713 520 9200

JOHN GILL
SEPTEMBER

HADLER · RODRIGUEZ · GALLERIES
38 East 57th Street New York 10022 212 752-7734

1st - 30th September

MIMMO
PALADINO

PAINTINGS

PONOVA ART
GALLERY INC.
191 Gerrard Street East,
Toronto, Ontario, Canada M5A 2E5
Tel. (416) 968-2231/2232

Rosa Esman
Gallery

Grand Opening:
Gallery Artists and Others We Admire

Opening Mid-September
Artschwager, Duff, Humphrey,
Alfred Jensen, Westermann and Gallery Artists

Our new location in Soho
Tel:
212-
722-
1970

BILL
WOODROW

SCULPTURE

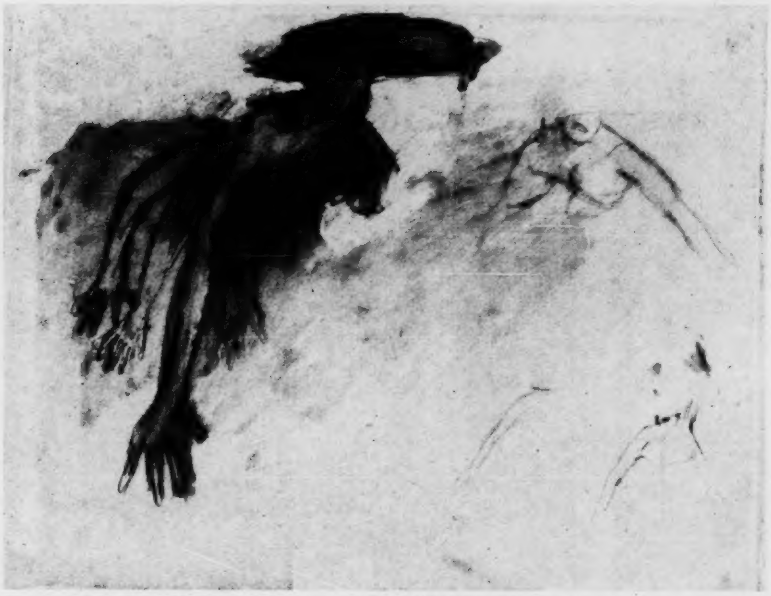
SEPT. 10 – OCT. 6

BARBARA
GLADSTONE GALLERY
152 WOOSTER ST N Y N Y 10012 212-505-8690

JEAN–LUC
VILMOUTH
SCULPTURE
SEPT. 10–OCT. 1

BARBARA TOLL FINE ARTS
146 GREENE ST., N.Y. 10012
212 431-1788

VOL
71
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI



SWIMMER, 1983. GRAPHITE AND OIL ON PAPER, 21 X 26 INCHES.
PHOTO BY DENIS FARLEY, COURTESY OF GALERIE FRANCE MORIN, MONTREAL.

BETTY GOODWIN

RECENT DRAWINGS
SEPTEMBER 24–OCTOBER 15

49TH PARALLEL
CENTRE FOR CONTEMPORARY CANADIAN ART
49E PARALLÈLE
CENTRE D'ART CONTEMPORAIN CANADIEN
420 WEST BROADWAY NEW YORK 10012
212 925-8349

JOHN BERGGRUEN GALLERY

Sam Francis	Joseph Goldyne

September 6 - October 1

228 Grant Avenue, San Francisco 94108 (415) 781-4629

NO POSTAGE
NECESSARY
IF MAILED
IN THE
UNITED STATES

BUSINESS REPLY CARD
FIRST CLASS PERMIT NO. 542 MARION, OHIO

POSTAGE WILL BE PAID BY

Art in America

542 PACIFIC AVENUE
MARION, OHIO 43306

VOL

7
1

ISS

8

SE

1983

UMI

HARMONY IN RED & SILVER

A Very Special Holiday Offer From Art in America

This holiday season ART IN AMERICA is offering extraordinary savings on gift subscriptions.
Each gift order is only $24.95, a 45% savings off the cover price.

FIRST GIFT

☐ Please enter a one year subscription to ART IN AMERICA for my friend. I pay only $24.95 — over 45% off the cover price.

My Name
Address
City State Zip

Recipient's Name
Address
City State Zip
Gift card to read from

ADDITIONAL GIFTS

Recipient's Name
Address
City State Zip
Gift card to read from

Recipient's Name
Address
City State Zip
Gift card to read from

☐ Check/money order enclosed ☐ VISA ☐ Mastercard ☐ Bill me.

Card # Exp. date Signature

EJ303

In US Possessions and Canada, add $8 per subscription; elsewhere, add $15 per subscription. Offer good through 2/28/84.

Editions:

Fall 1983

A Special Advertising Supplement of Recently Published
Print and Multiples.

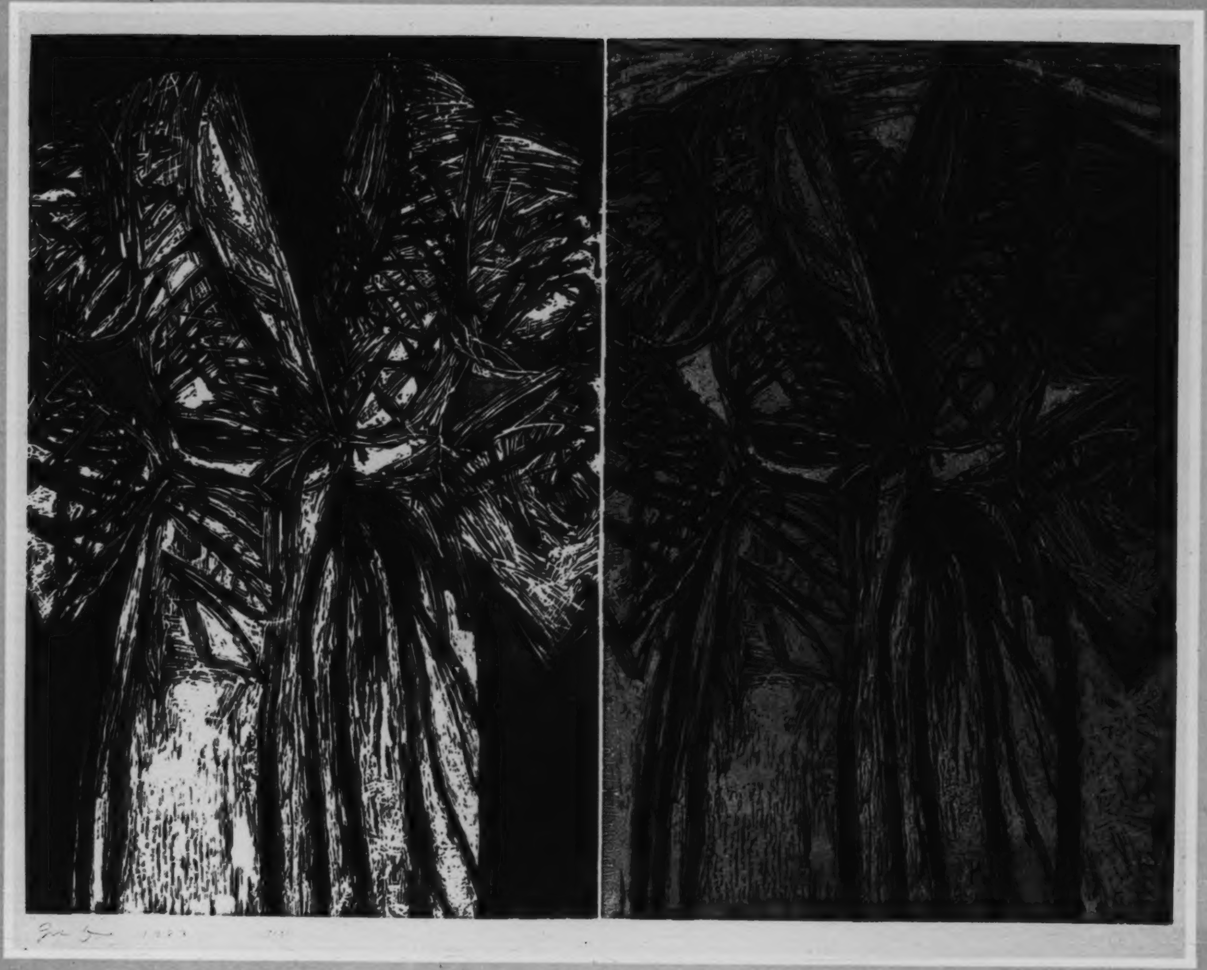
Art in America

September '83

THE ARTISTS • CHARLES ARNOLDI • FRANCIS BACON • JOHN BAEDER • CAROLYN BRADY
JOHN CAGE • JAMES COIGNARD • BRAD DAVIS • JIM DINE • JOSEPH GOLDYNE
NANCY HAGIN • KEITH HARING • PETER JULIAN • FRANCOIS-XAVIER LALANNE • JULIO LARRAZ
SOL LEWITT • LOIS LONG • ROBERT MAPPLETHORPE • JOAN MIRO • ROBERT MOTHERWELL
ISAMU NOGUCHI • CHARLEMAGNE PALESTINE • HOLLIS SIGLER • RICHARD SHAFFER • SUSAN SHATTER • T. L. SOLIEN
GEORGE SUGARMAN • WILLIAM TILLYER • VASARELY • ANDY WARHOL • PAUL WONNER

THE GALLERIES • ARTCURIAL • CALLAWAY EDITIONS, INC. • CROWN POINT PRESS • EDITIONS PRESS
RONALD FELDMAN FINE ARTS • GALERIE ERIC FRANCK • GEMINI G.E.L. • BARBARA GLADSTONE GALLERY
DAVID GROB LTD. • NOHRA HAIME GALLERY • PATRICIA HEESY GALLERY • I.C.A. • BERNARD JACOBSON GALLERY
GALERIE ET EDITIONS LAHUMIERE • L. A. LOUVER • MAGNOLIA EDITIONS • MAEGHT EDITEUR
MORGAN GALLERY • NEW CITY EDITIONS • ORION EDITIONS • PACE EDITIONS
PEREGRINE PRESS • EDICIONES POLIGRAFA • GALERIA JOAN PRATS • 724 PRINTS
TONY SHAFRAZI GALLERY • TOPAZ EDITIONS • TRANSWORLD ART/ALEX ROSENBERG GALLERY
TYLER GRAPHICS • VERMILLION • DIANE VILLANI

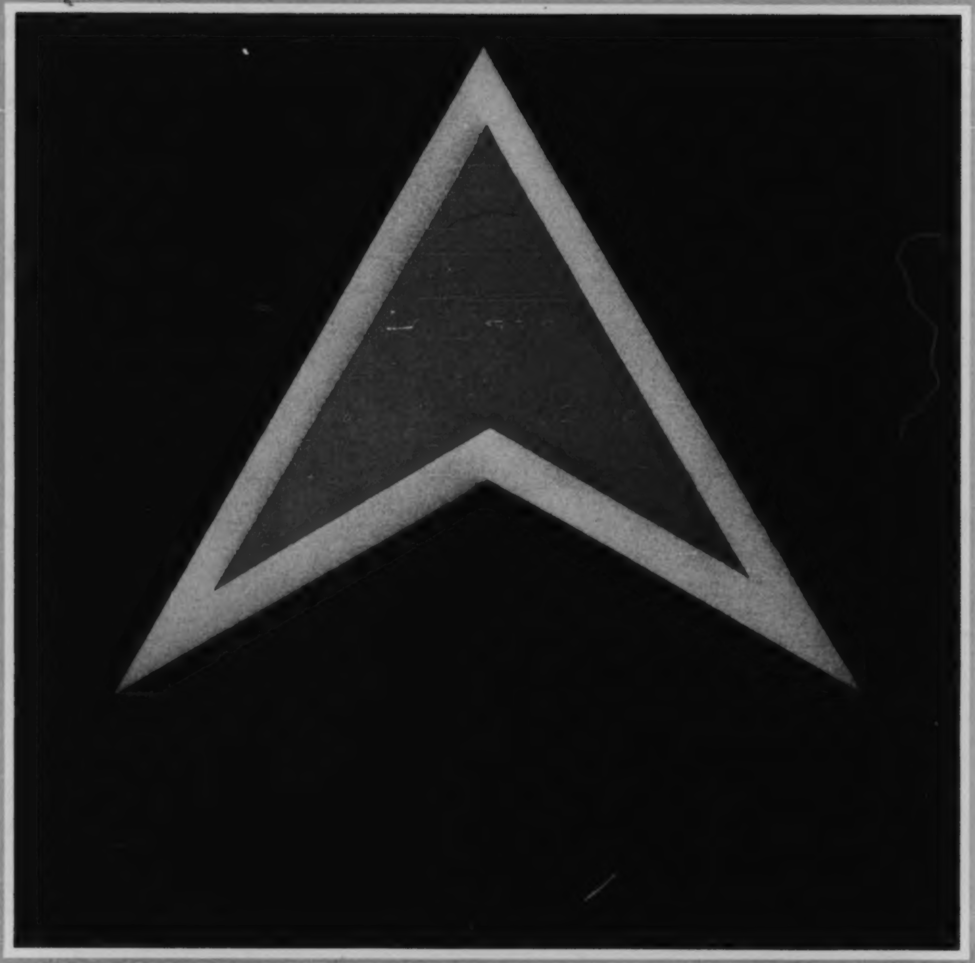
VOL
71
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI



JIM DINE

"The Kindergarten Robes"
Color Woodcut, 60" x 70". Published by Pace Editions Inc. 1983.
An edition of 70 with 10 artist proofs.

PACE EDITIONS INC.
32 EAST 57TH STREET/NEW YORK, NEW YORK 10022/TEL: (212) 421-3237



SOL LEWITT

"Star - Red Center," 1983. Color Aquatint. Edition of 10. 21 x 21 inches. One of 35 new editions of Stars by Sol Le Witt

CROWN POINT PRESS

1555 SAN PABLO AVENUE, OAKLAND, CALIFORNIA, 94642 TEL: (415) 835-5121
545 BROADWAY, NEW YORK, NY 10012 TEL: (212) 226-5476

VOL
71
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI

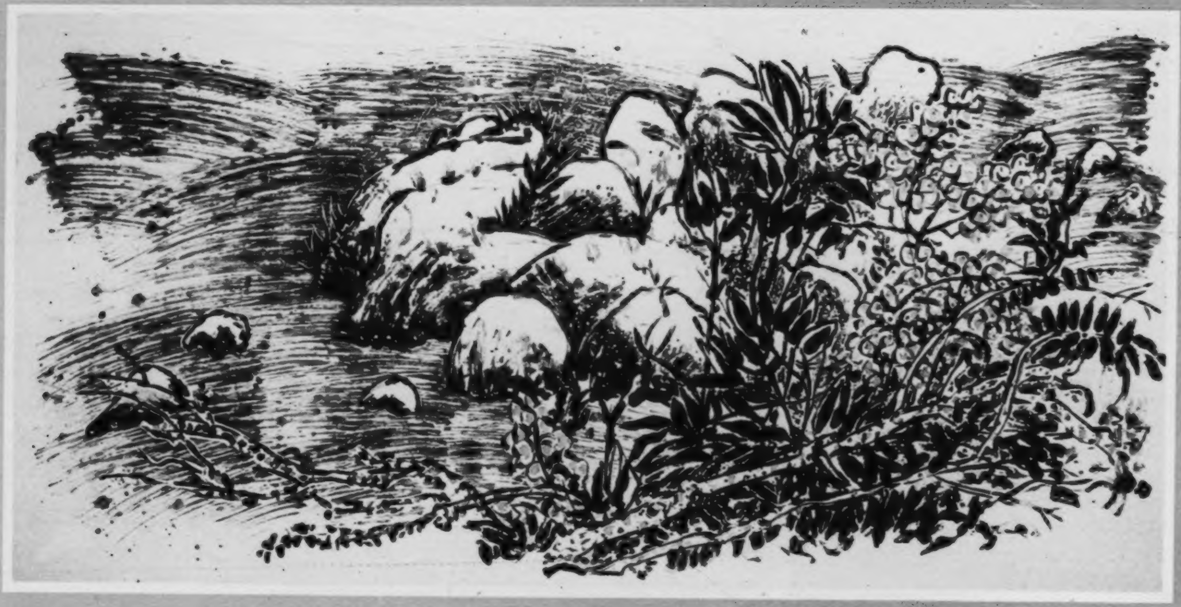

Photo : John Garbarini

BRAD DAVIS

Study for LONGBRANCH, 1983. Woodcut and Silkscreen. Sekishu White paper. 36" x 72". Edition size 40. Printed by Chip Elwell. Publication date October 1983

DIANE VILLANI

271 MULBERRY STREET, NEW YORK, NY 10012 TEL: (212) 925-1075

ISAMU NOGUCHI

Galvanized Steel Sculpture Editions

GEMINI G.E.L.

8365 MELROSE AVENUE, LOS ANGELES, CA 90069 TEL: (213) 651 0513

VOL
71
1
ISS
8
S E
1983
UMI

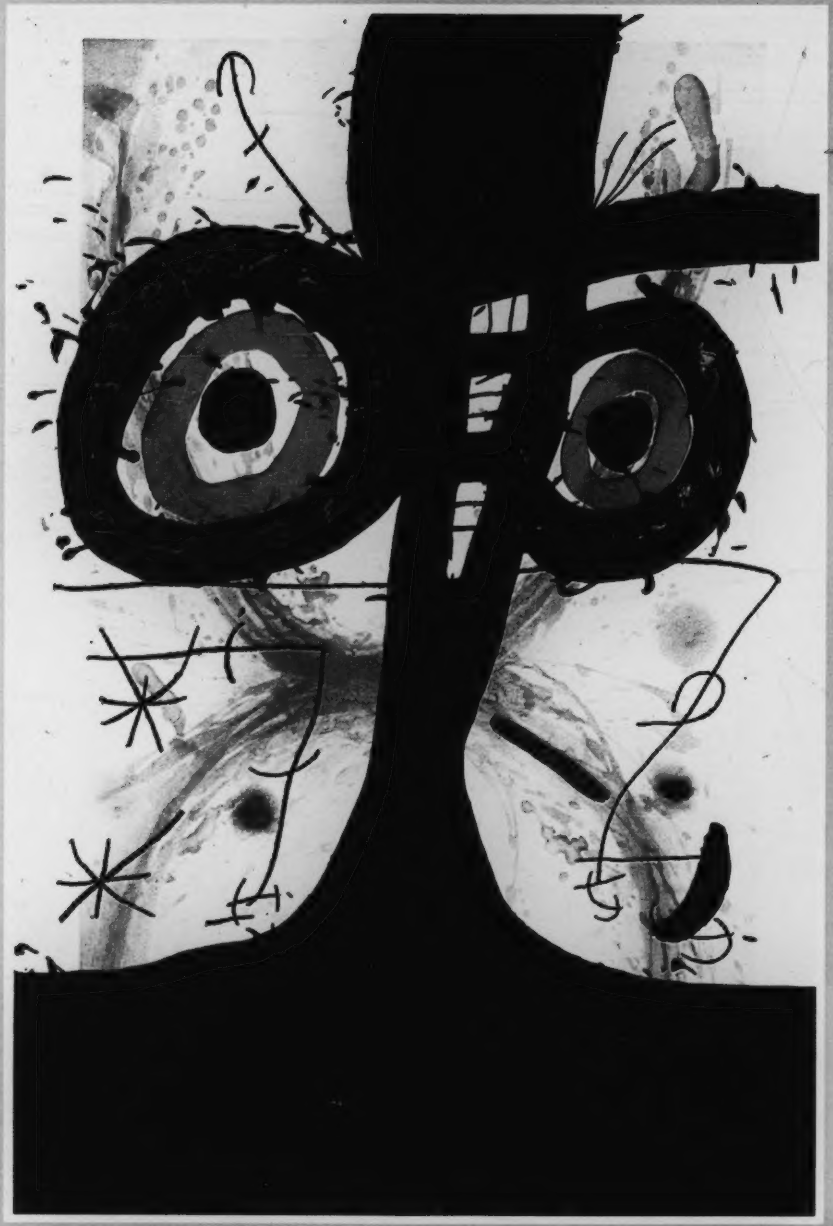

Photo: André Morain

JOAN MIRO

"Le Vieil Irlandais." 1969.
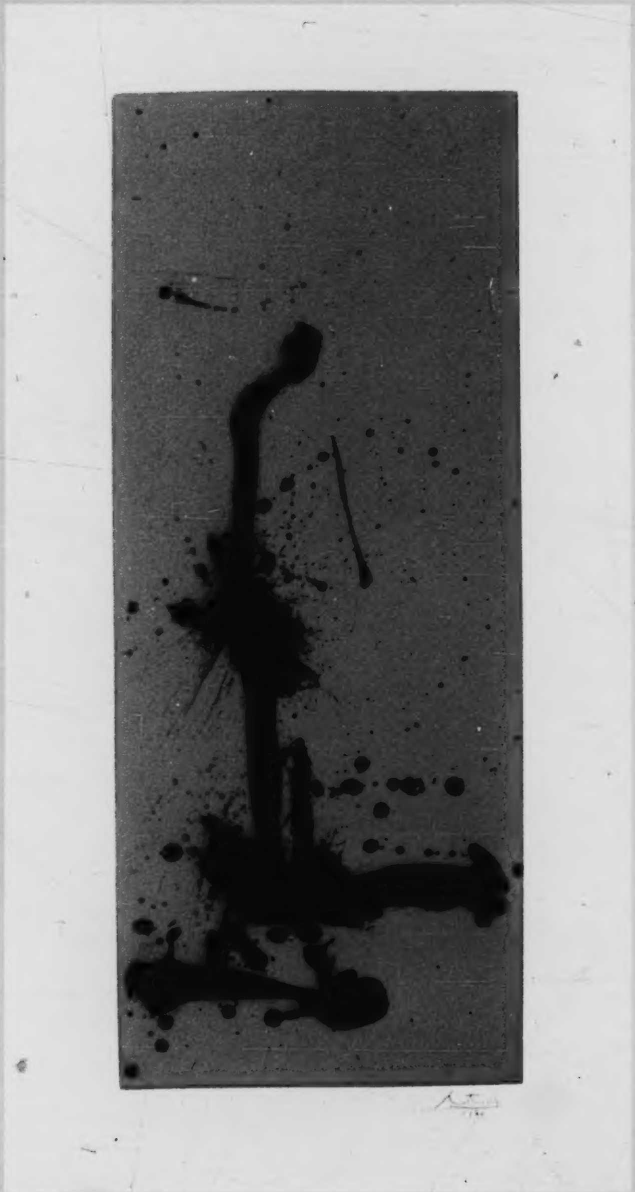
Eau-forte originale, edition of 75. 105 x 70 cm.

MAEGHT EDITEUR
42, RUE DE BAC, 75007 PARIS. TEL: 548 45 15

GALERIE ADRIEN MAEGHT
46, RUE DE BAC, 75007 PARIS. TEL: 222 12 59



©Copyright Robert Motherwell, 1983

ROBERT MOTHERWELL

"Red Sea III" 35¾ x 18½ in. Edition: 70.
From a series of new etchings.
The graphic work of Robert Motherwell is exclusively distributed by TYLER GRAPHICS LTD.

PO BOX 294/BEDFORD VILLAGE, NY 10506/TEL: (914) 234-9446

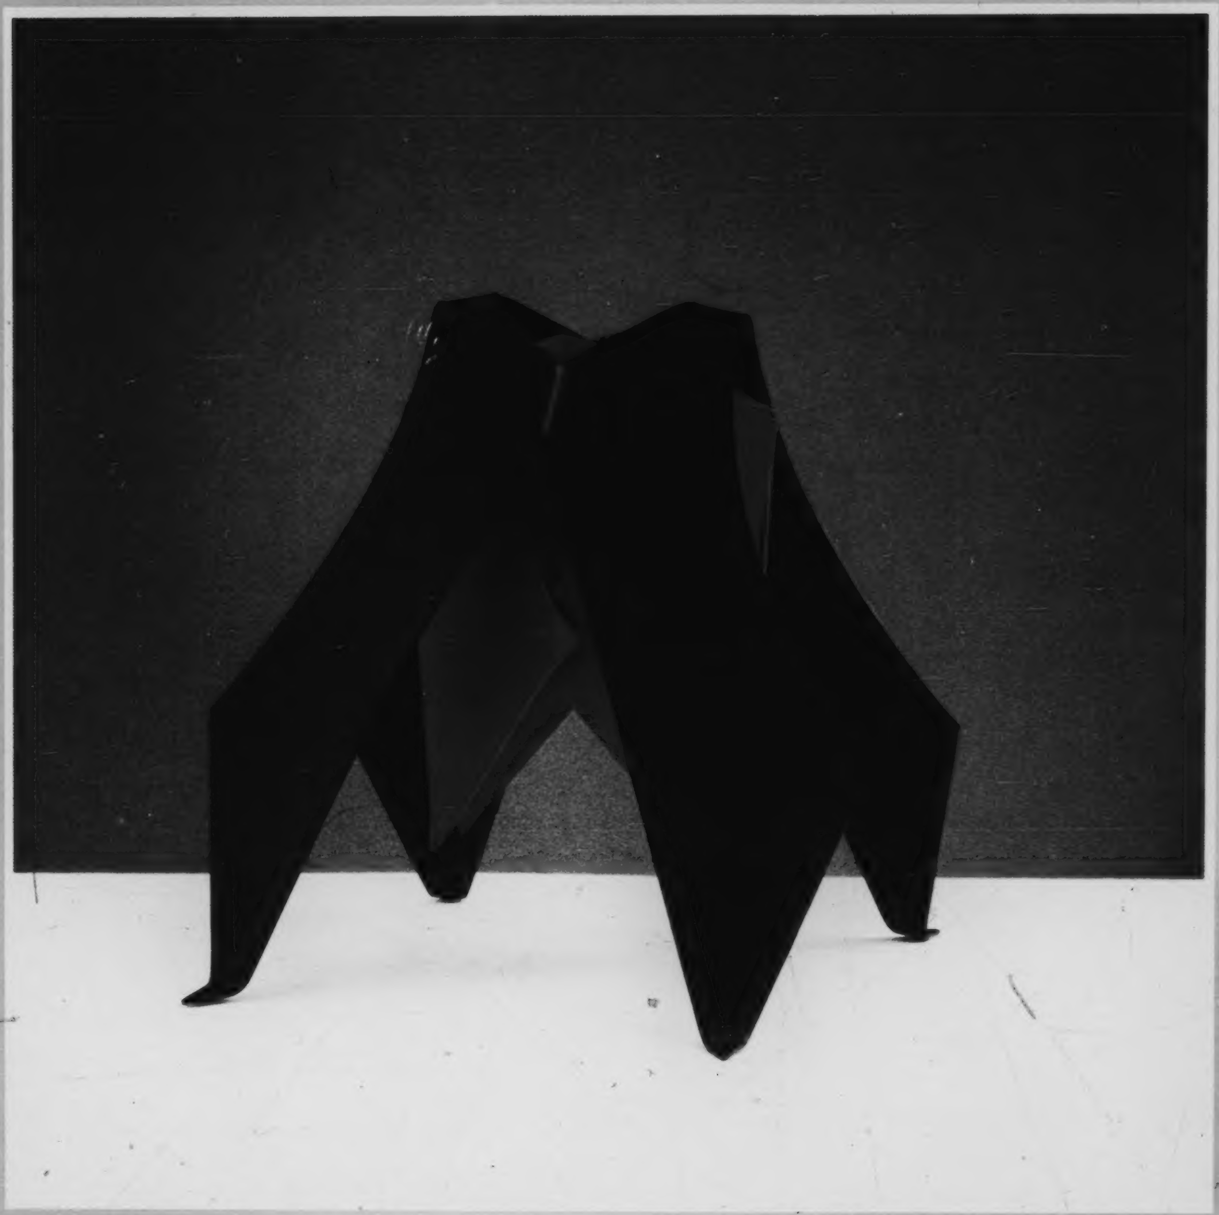
VOL
7
1

ISS
8

SE

1983

UMI



GEORGE SUGARMAN

"Black and Green," 1983
Steel, free standing sculpture painted black and green 6½" x 7½" x 5½"
Signed edition of 100. Sugarman's only sculpture edition. Price $950

INSTITUTE OF CONTEMPORARY ART
UNIVERSITY OF PENNSYLVANIA 34th & WALNUT STREETS, PHILADELPHIA, PA 19104 TEL: 215-898-7108

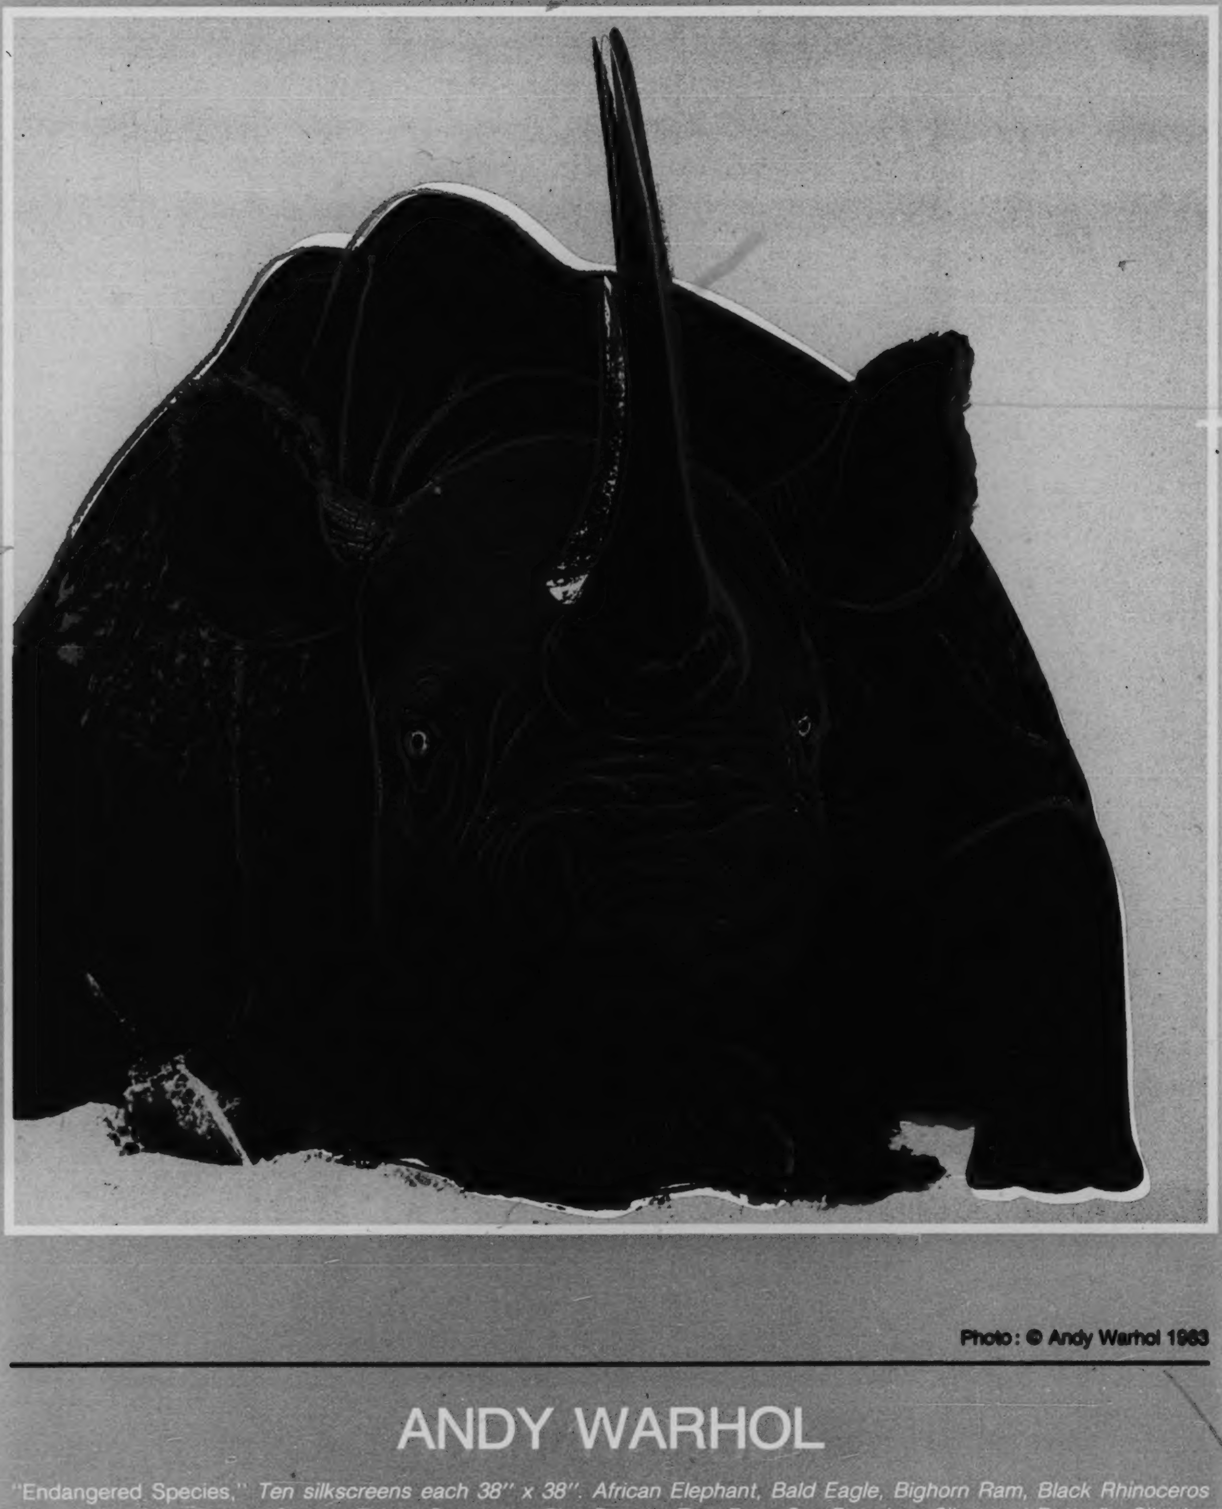


Photo: © Andy Warhol 1983

ANDY WARHOL

"Endangered Species," Ten silkscreens each 38" x 38". African Elephant, Bald Eagle, Bighorn Ram, Black Rhinoceros (illustrated), Giant Panda, Grevy's Zebra, Orangutan, Pine Barrens Tree Frog, San Francisco Silverspot Butterfly, Siberian Tiger. Catalog $6 ppd, NY residents add sales tax. Published by Ronald Feldman Fine Arts, 1983. Edition of 150 Portfolios.

RONALD FELDMAN FINE ARTS

31 MERCER STREET, NEW YORK, NY 10013 TEL: (212) 226-3232

VOL
71
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI

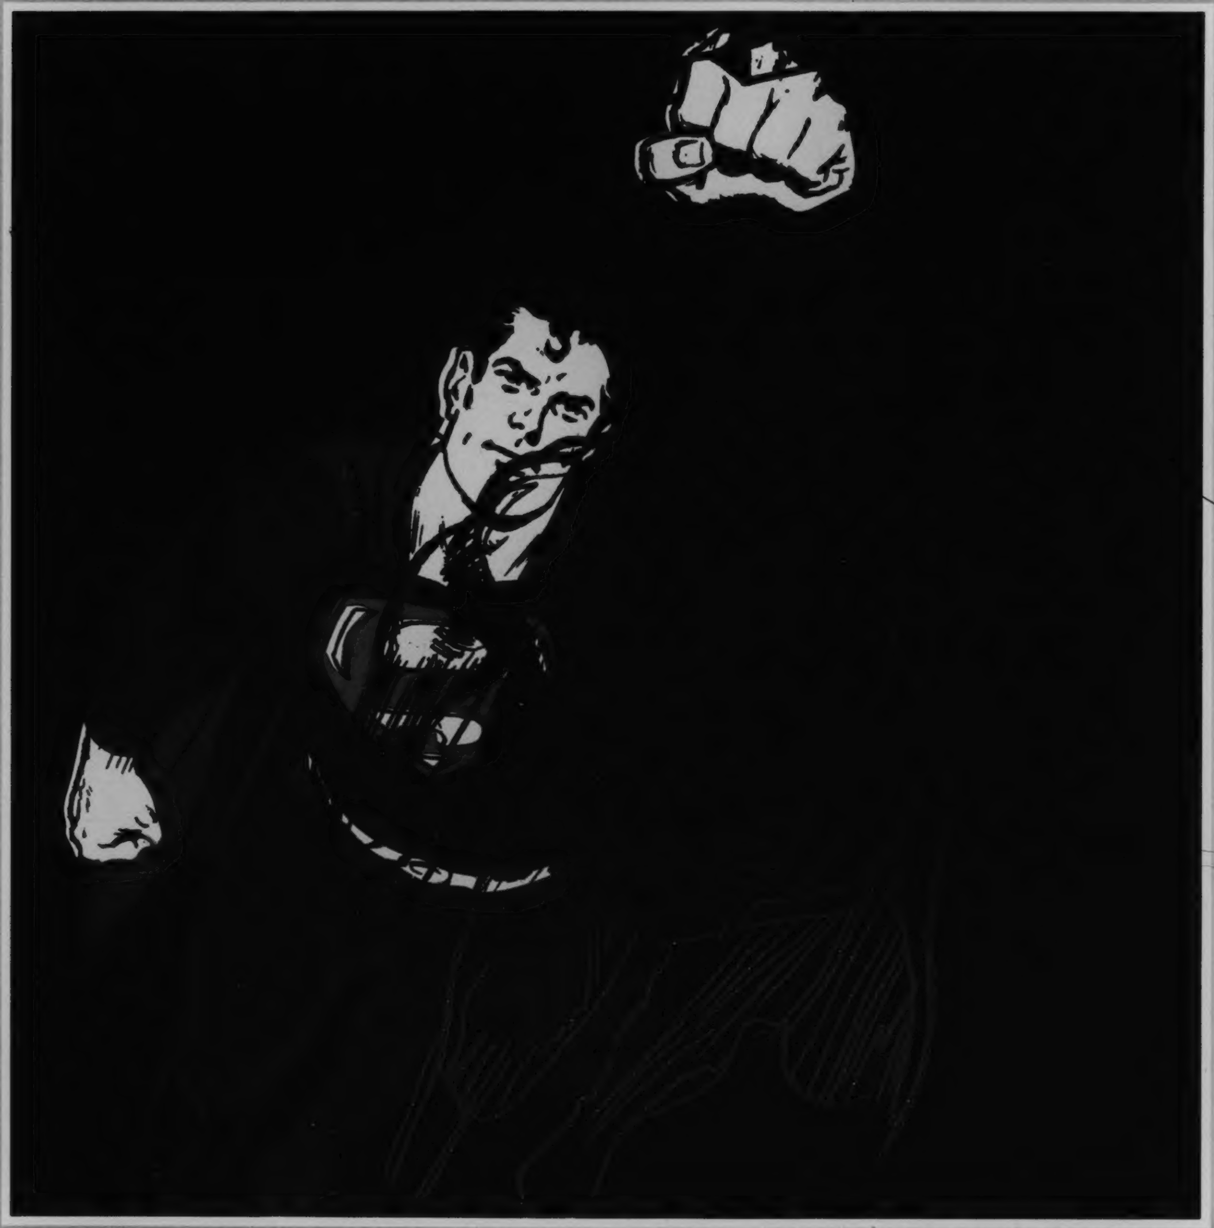

Photo: © Andy Warhol 1981

ANDY WARHOL

"Myths," Ten silkscreens each 38" x 38". Dracula, Howdy Doody, Mammy, Mickey Mouse, Santa Claus, Superman (illustrated), The Shadow, The Star, The Witch, Uncle Sam. Published by Ronald Feldman Fine Arts, 1981. Edition of 200 Portfolios.* This interpretation created by Andy Warhol is copyrighted © D.C. COMICS, INC. 1981*

RONALD FELDMAN FINE ARTS

31 MERCER STREET, NEW YORK, NY 10013 TEL: (212) 226-3232

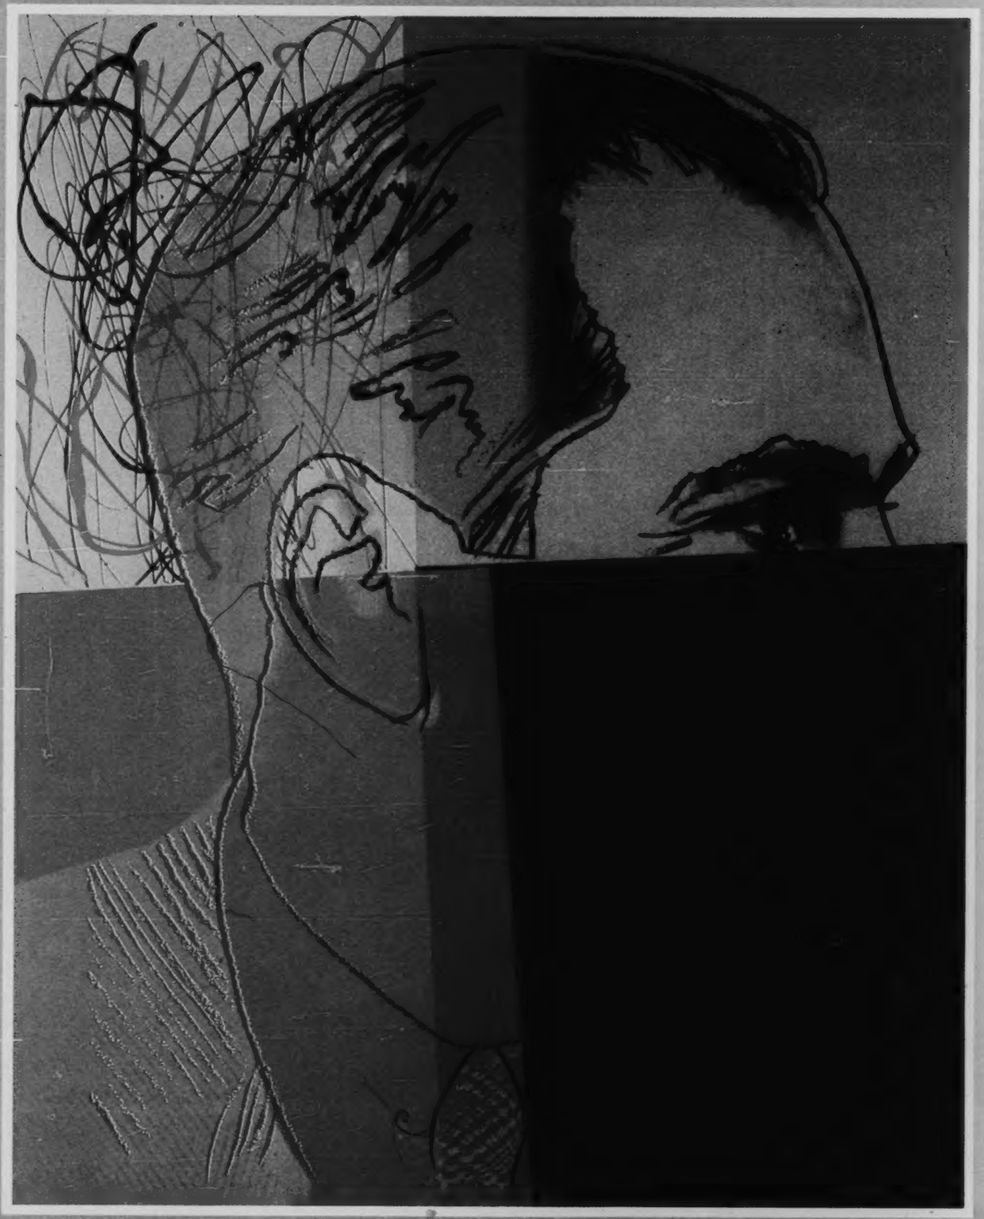

Photo: © Andy Warhol 1980

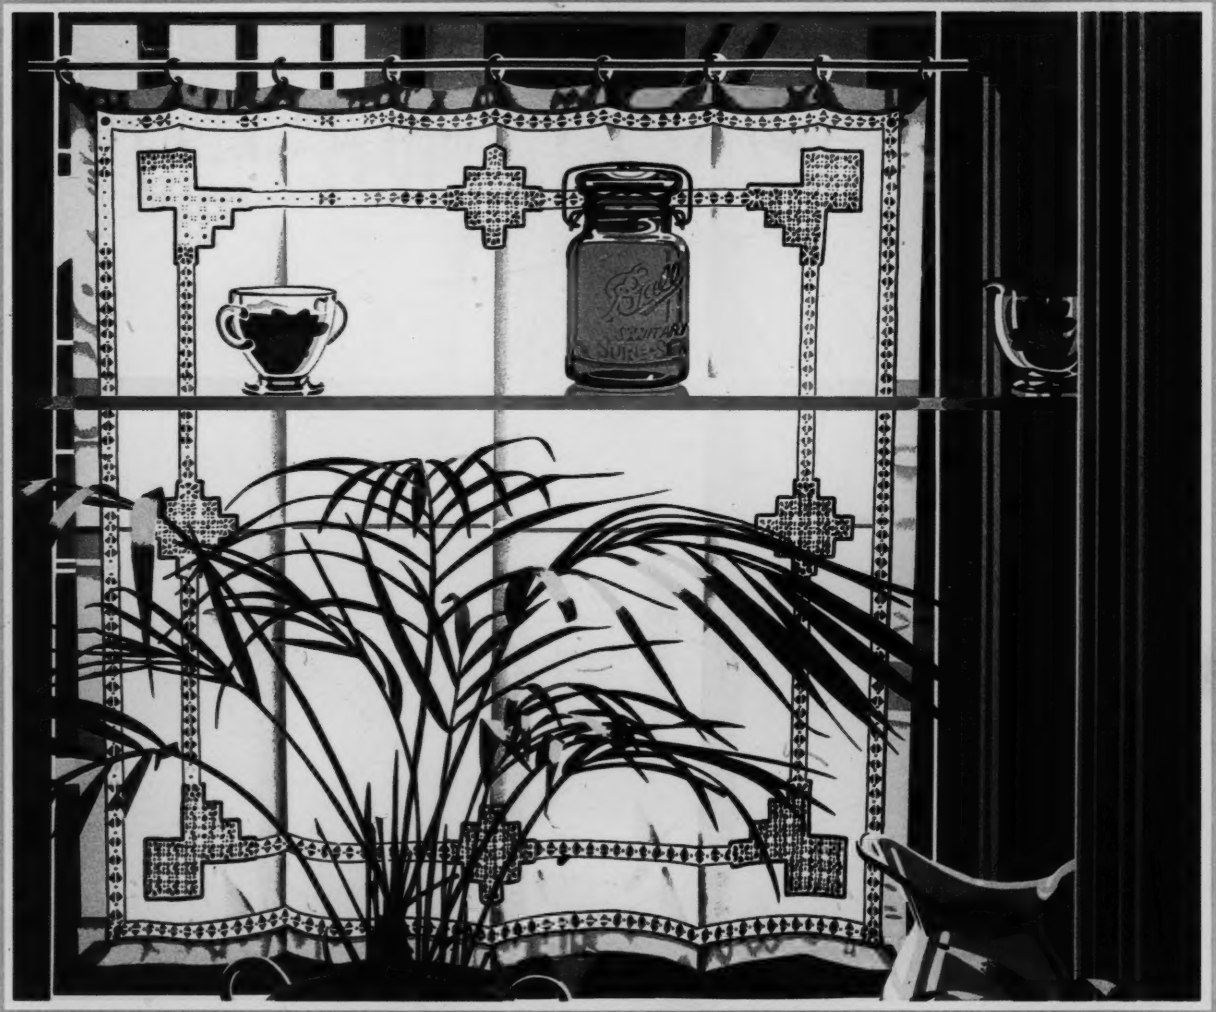
ANDY WARHOL

"Ten Portraits of Jews of the Twentieth Century," Ten silkscreens each 40" x 32". Sarah Bernhardt, Louis Brandeis, Martin Buber, Albert Einstein, Sigmund Freud, George Gershwin (illustrated), Franz Kafka, The Marx Brothers, Golda Meir, Gertrude Stein. Published by Ronald Feldman Fine Arts and Jonathan A Editions, Tel-Aviv, Israel, 1980. Edition of 200 Portfolios.

RONALD FELDMAN FINE ARTS

31 MERCER STREET, NEW YORK, NY 10013 TEL: (212) 226-3232

VOL
7
1
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI



NANCY HAGIN

"Lace Curtain" 1983, 18 color screenprint
(27½" x 33½") on Lenox 100 paper (34½" x 40½"), edition of 125
Printed by Roni Henning at N.Y.I.T. Screenprint Workshop

ORION EDITIONS
835 MADISON AVENUE, NEW YORK, NY 10021 TEL: 212-535-3006

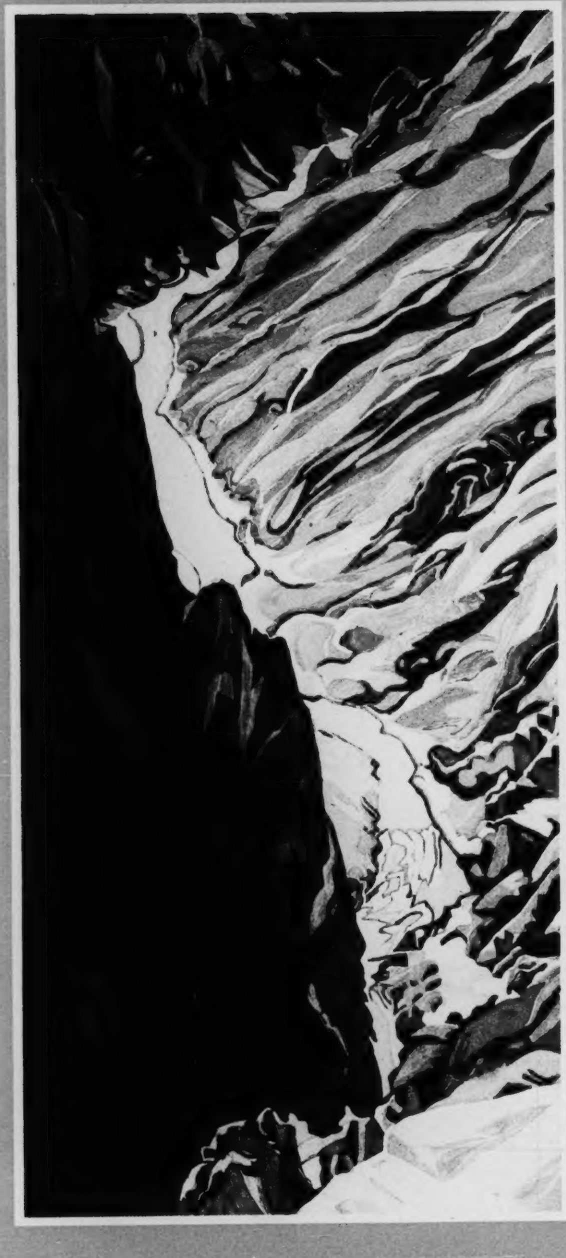

Photo : Adam Reich

SUSAN SHATTER

"Vertigo" 1983 Etching, Aquatint, Roulette / Five Colors, Rives BFK
Paper Size: 18 ½" x 41 ¼" Plate Size: 19" X 42", Edition of 40

724 PRINTS INC.

93 MERCER STREET, NEW YORK, NY 10012 TEL: (212) 431-1890

VOL
7
1

ISS
8

SE

1983

UMI

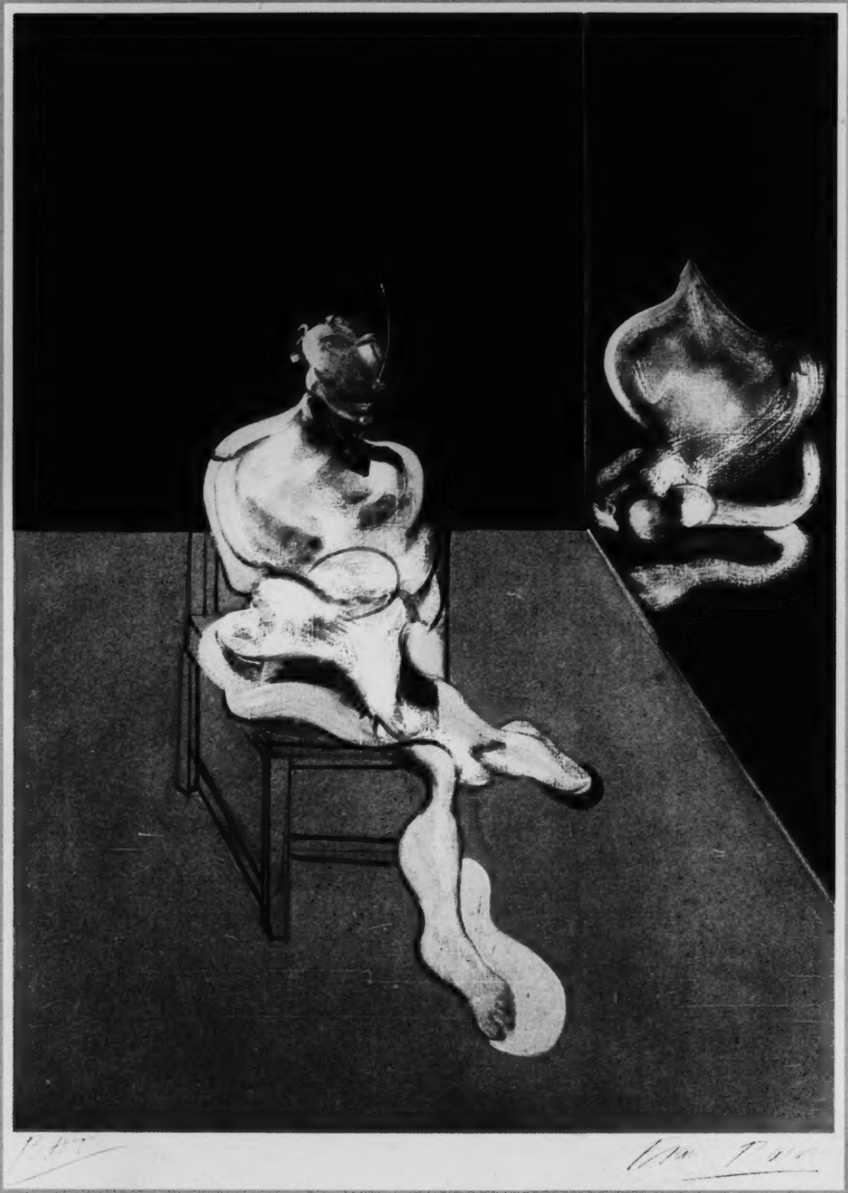

Photo: Ph. Guerin

FRANCIS BACON

"Seated Figure" Mixed-media with Carborundum.
Paper size 40 x 28 in. Plate 28 ¼ x 21 ¼ in.
Edition on Guarro and Arches papers, both numbered on 99, plus 15 HC and 15 AP.

EDICIONES POLIGRAFA
BALMES 54. BARCELONA-7 SPAIN, TEL: 301-9100. TELEX 97041
GALERIA JOAN PRATS
29 WEST 57TH STREET. NEW YORK, NY 10019, TEL: (212) 486-6770

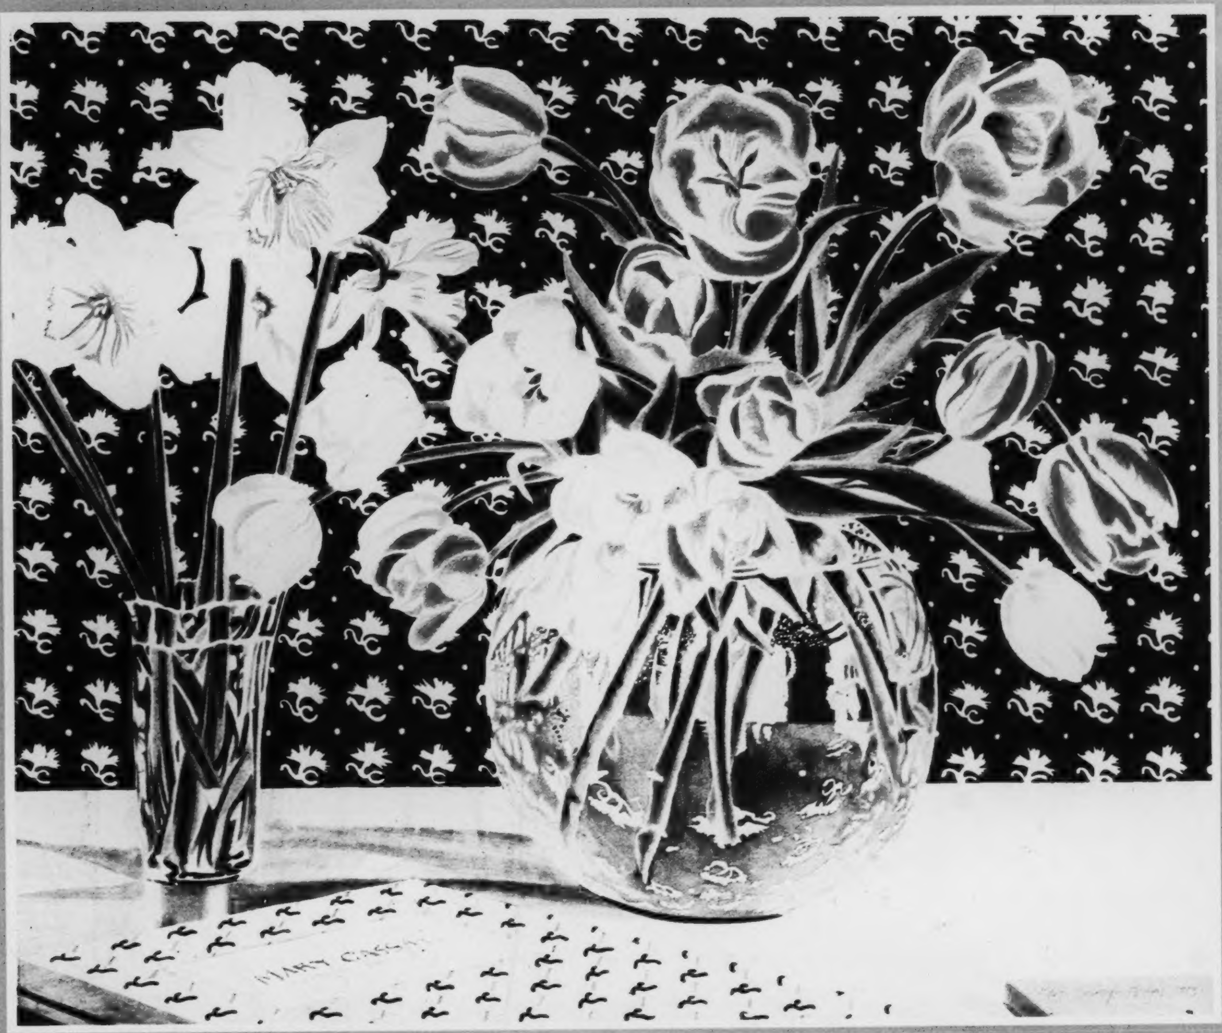

Photo: By Adam Reich

CAROLYN BRADY

"Green Wallpaper, Tulips and Daffodils," 1983 Etching, Aquatint/ Nine Colors/ Rives BFK Paper size: 29 ¼" x 34 ¾"
2 Printer's Proofs, 2 Publisher's Proofs, 4 Artist's Proofs, edition of 45

724 PRINTS INC.

93 MERCER STREET, NEW YORK, NY, 10012 TEL: (212) 431-1890

VOL
7
1
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI

ROBERT MAPPLETHORPE

"Flowers" 1983. Portfolio of ten photogravures.
Printed on Arches paper with chine collé in an edition of forty.
Paper size: 32" x 36" Image size: 22" x 17¾" Copublished by Deli Sacilotto

BARBARA GLADSTONE GALLERY
152 WOOSTER STREET, NEW YORK, NEW YORK 10012. TEL: (212) 505-8690

Photo: Bailhache

FRANCOIS-XAVIER LALANNE

"Rhinocéros," 1981, enameled iron, an edition of 150 (25 x 55 cm.)

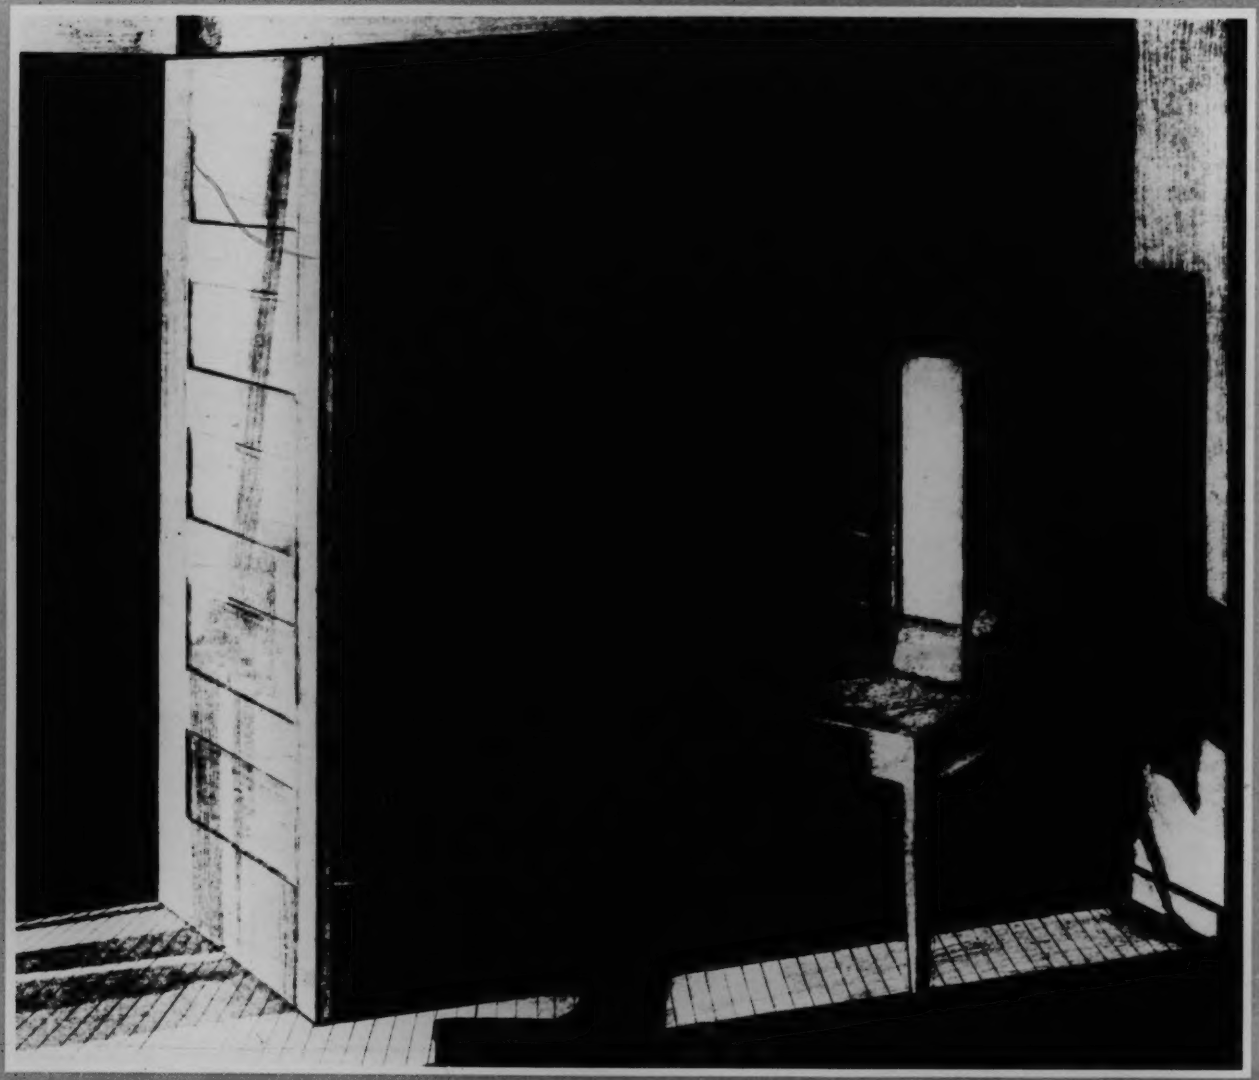
ARTCURIAL

9 AVENUE MATIGNON, PARIS 8. TEL. 256 32 90
and "Fête de France" at Bloomingdale's. New York, Washington, Dallas

VOL
7
1
ISS
8
S E
1983
UMI



RICHARD SHAFFER

"Rooms", 1982, etching, edition 60, 29 ¾"x 35 ½" From a series of eight black and white etchings titled "Andenken: Spaces of Dwelling".

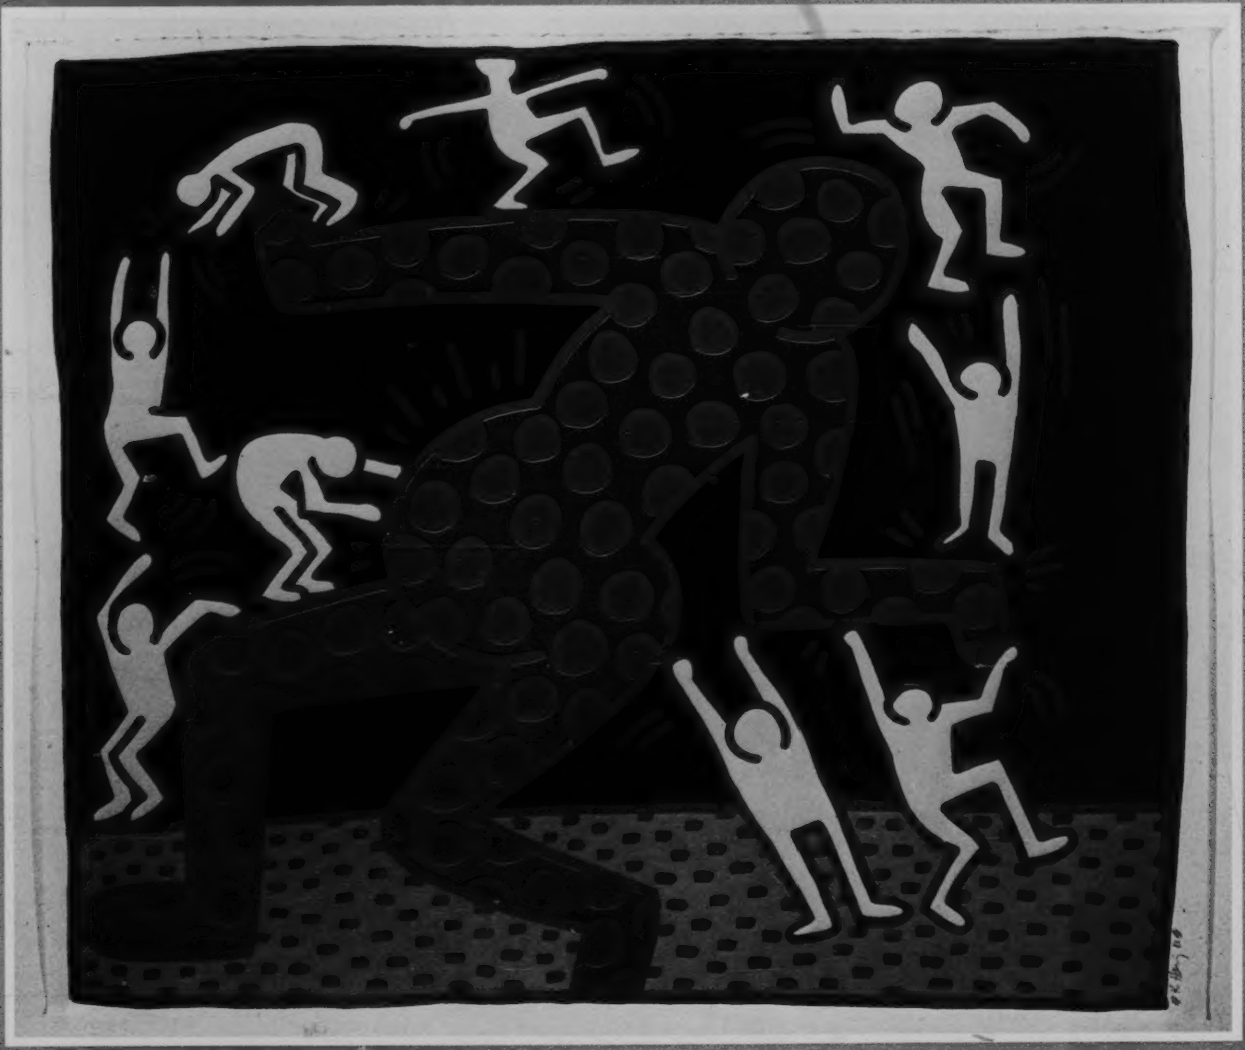
L.A. LOUVER GALLERY

55 NORTH VENICE BOULEVARD, VENICE, CALIFORNIA 90291 TEL: (213) 392-8695



KEITH HARING

A portfolio of 5 Silkscreen Prints, 6 to 8 colors; on Rives BFK Paper, Size 42" x 50" Edition 100.

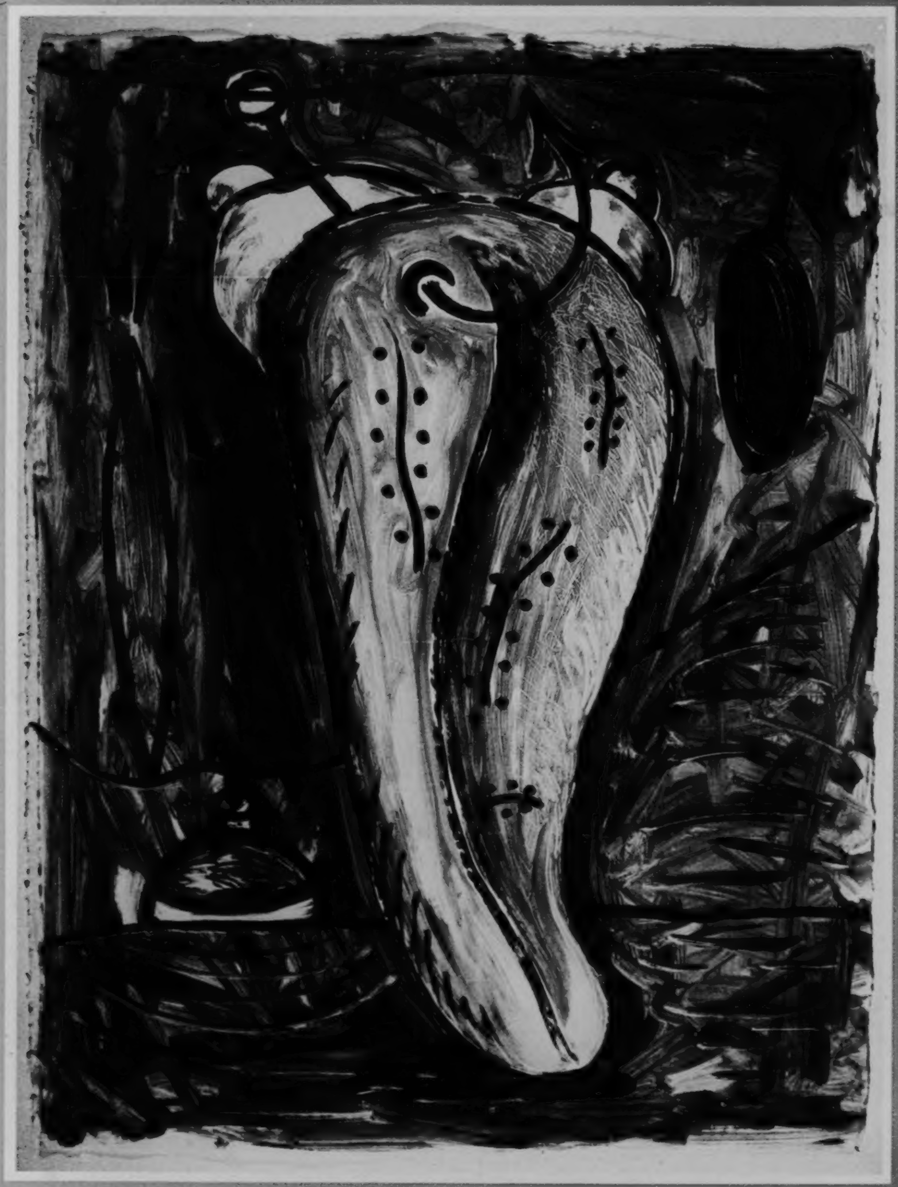
TONY SHAFRAZI GALLERY

163 MERCER STREET, NY, NY 10012 TEL: (212) 925-8732

VOL
7
1
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI



T.L. SOLIEN

"The Tongue" 1983. Monotype on HMP Paper. 30½" x 41".

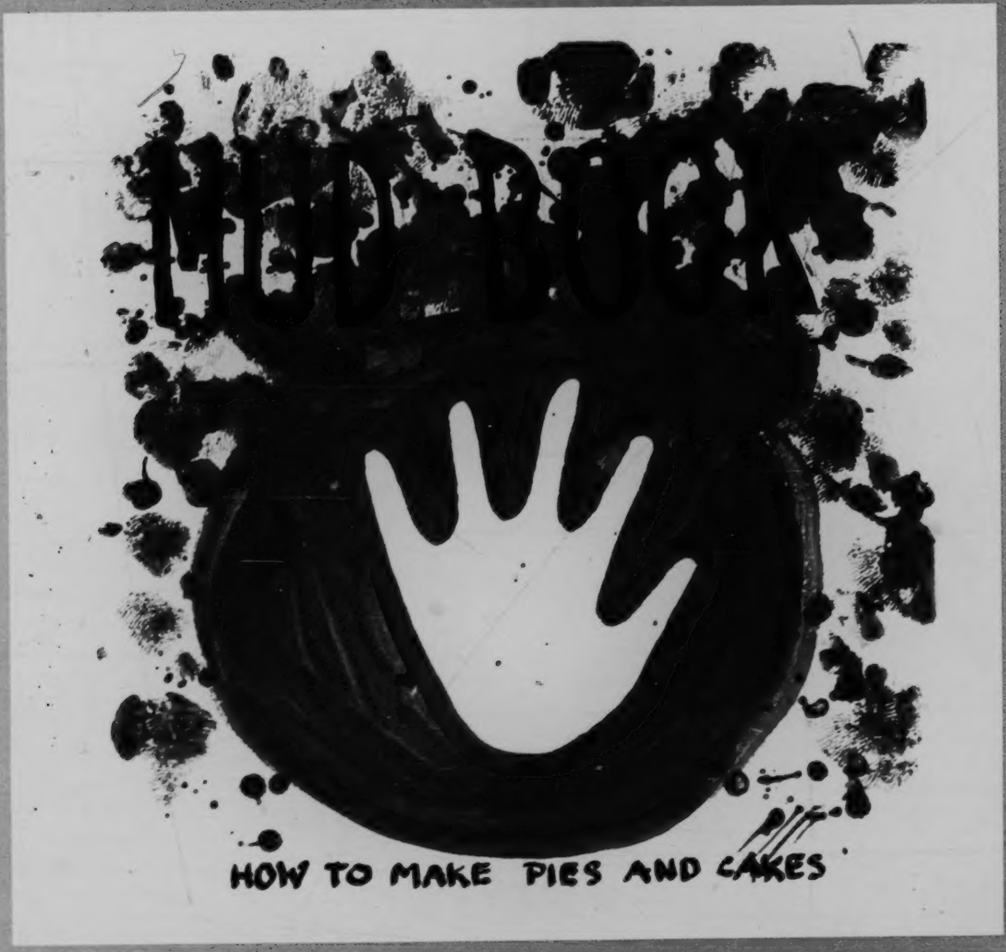
VERMILLION
400 FIRST AVENUE NORTH, MINNEAPOLIS, MN 55401 TEL: (612) 338-6808

1015 SOUTH 6TH STREET, MINNEAPOLIS, MN 55415 TEL: (612) 338-6808



MUD BOOK
HOW TO MAKE PIES AND CAKES

JOHN CAGE / LOIS LONG

"Mud Book." 42 pages. 5" x 5" unfolding to 5" x . Hardbound in Japanese manner.
Up to 61 colors silkscreen printed by Hiroshi Kawanishi of Simca Print Artists. Edition 500 signed and numbered.

CALLAWAY EDITIONS, INC.
421 HUDSON STREET, NEW YORK 10014 TEL. (212) 929-5212

DAVID GROB LTD.
6 ST. ALBANS GROVE, KENSINGTON, LONDON W8 TEL. (011) 441 937-3663

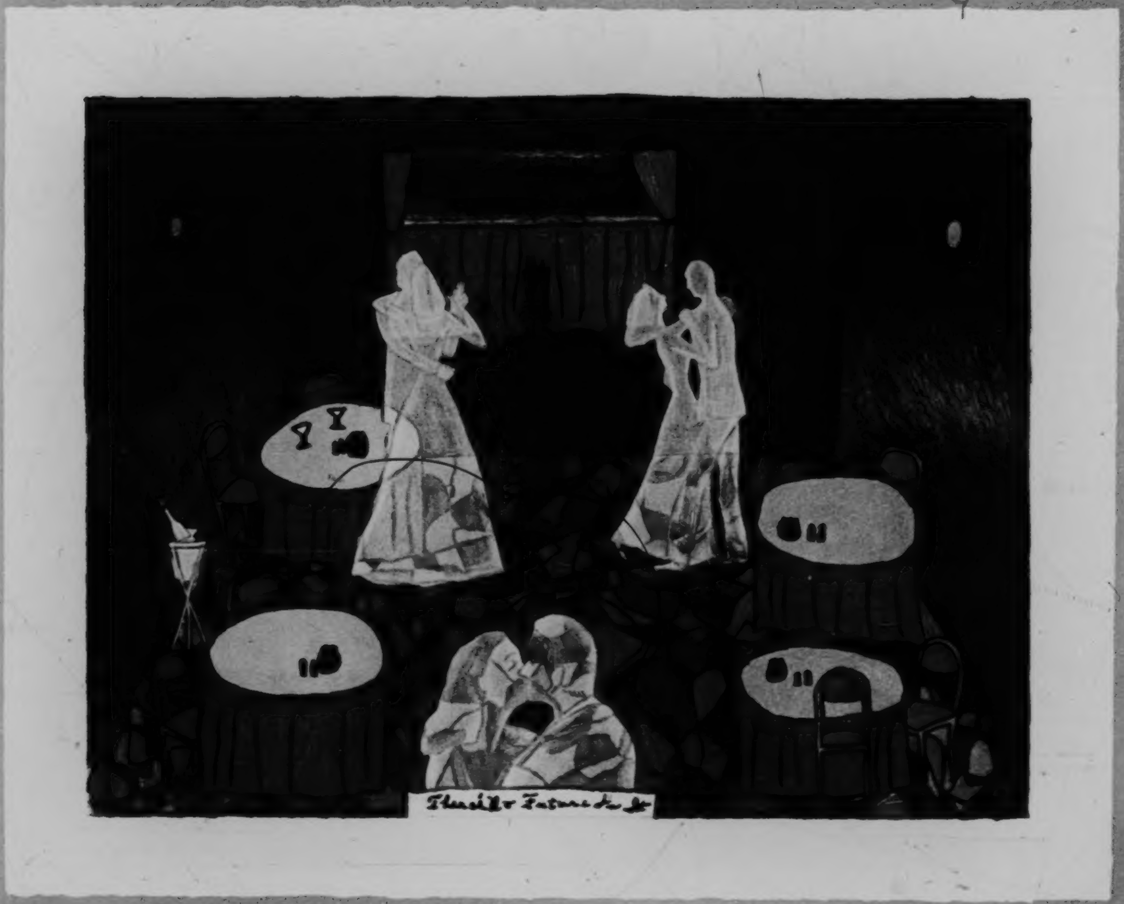
VOL
7
1

ISS
8

SE

1983

UMI



There's No Future In It

HOLLIS SIGLER

"There's No Future In It," 1983
A nine run, hand colored lithograph on Arjomari Arches Blanc
Paper size: 22½" x 28" Numbered edition of 65

TOPAZ EDITIONS INC.
13305 CAIN ROAD, TAMPA, FLORIDA 33624 TEL: (813) 961-3137

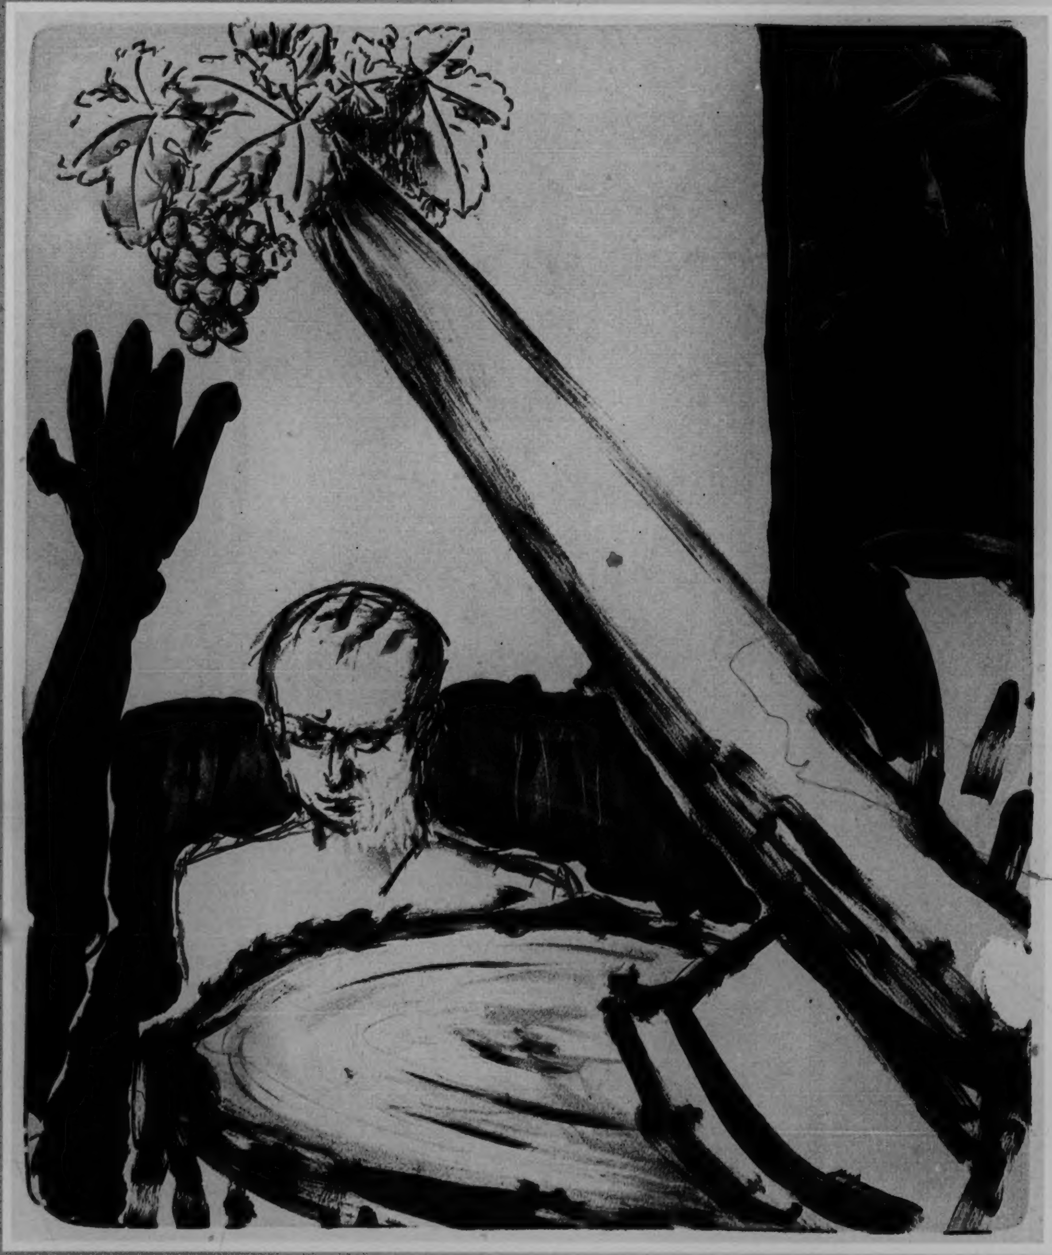


Photo: Rynda White

PETER JULIAN

"Broad Axe." Two color lithograph in edition of 50, with 5 artist proofs, 5 printers proofs, 1 B.A.T. all on Rives BFK. Image 29 ¼" x 24 ⅜". Paper torn to 36 ¼" x 30 ⅛". Summer 1983. Dealer inquiries welcome.

PEREGRINE PRESS, INC.

1617 NORTH PEAK, DALLAS, TEXAS 75204 TEL: (214) 821-5202

VOL
7
1

ISS
8

SE

1983

UMI

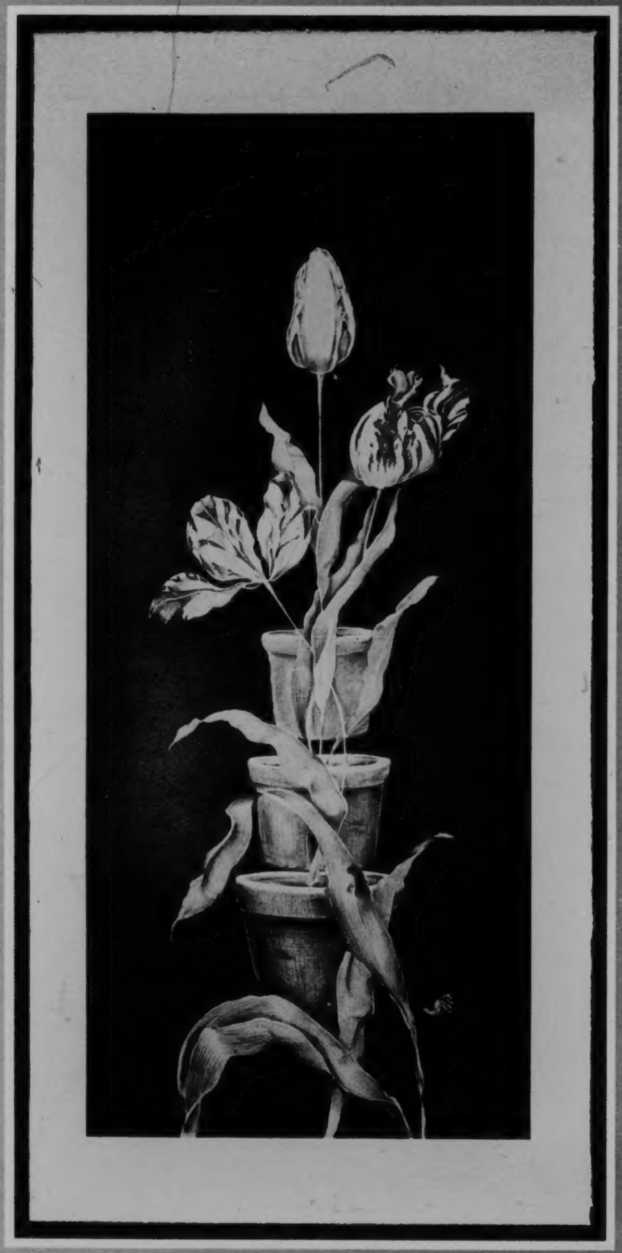

Photo: Richard Blair

JOSEPH GOLDYNE

"Three Tulips, Three Pots." Lithograph, 40"x19". Image 34 ½"x15", Edition: 50 on Arches Buff, 15 on Stonehenge White. 1983

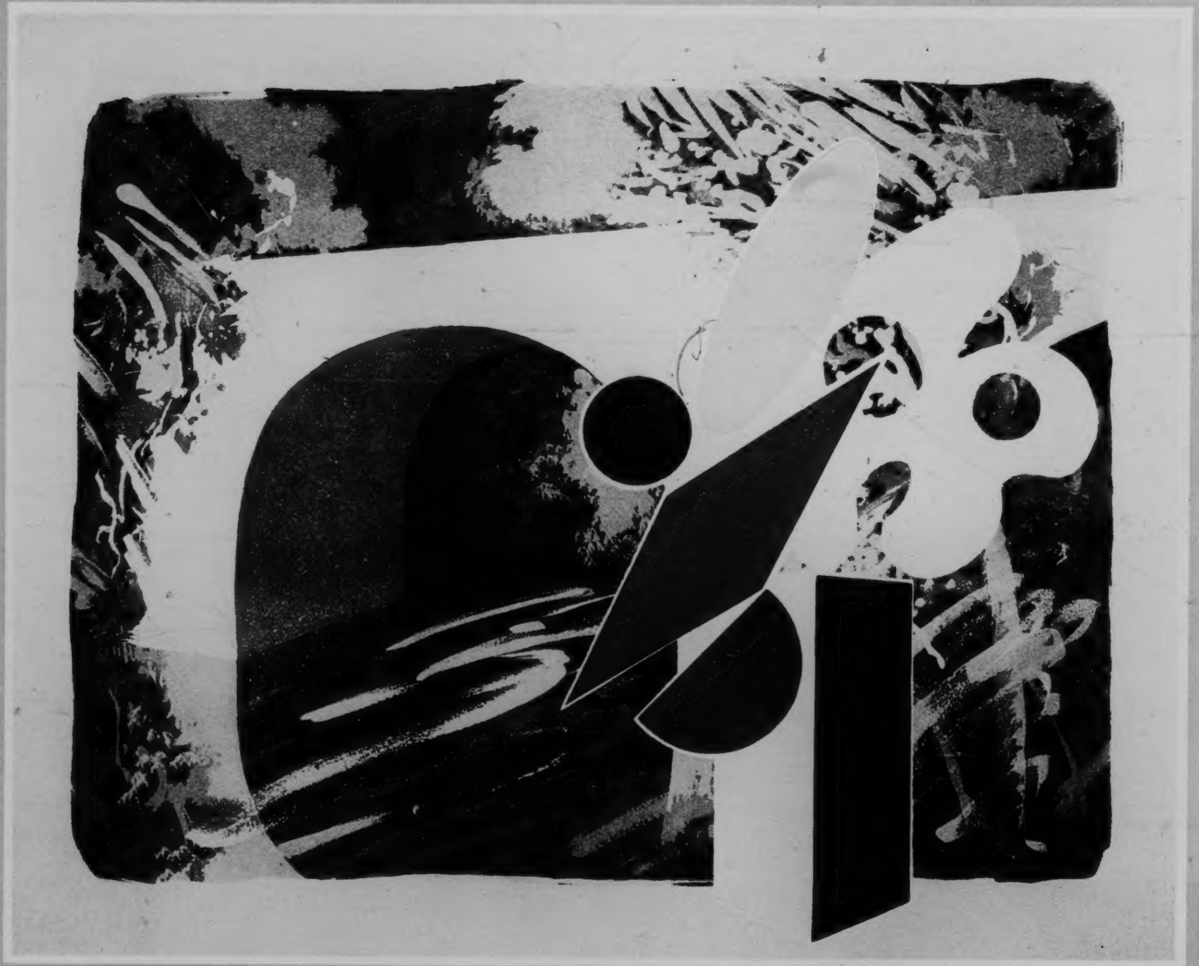
MAGNOLIA EDITIONS

2527 MAGNOLIA STREET, OAKLAND, CALIFORNIA 94607 TEL: (415) 839-5463



WILLIAM TILLYER

Etching from the series: "Living by the Esk" 1983 Edition of 50, 28 x 33" Book on the series available in the fall.

BERNARD JACOBSON GALLERY

2A CORK ST LONDON W1 TEL: 01 439 8355
8364 MELROSE AVE., LOS ANGELES, CA 90069 TEL: (213) 655-5719
New location in New York in September.

VOL
7
1

ISS
8

SE

1983

UMI

MORGAN'S SOCONY
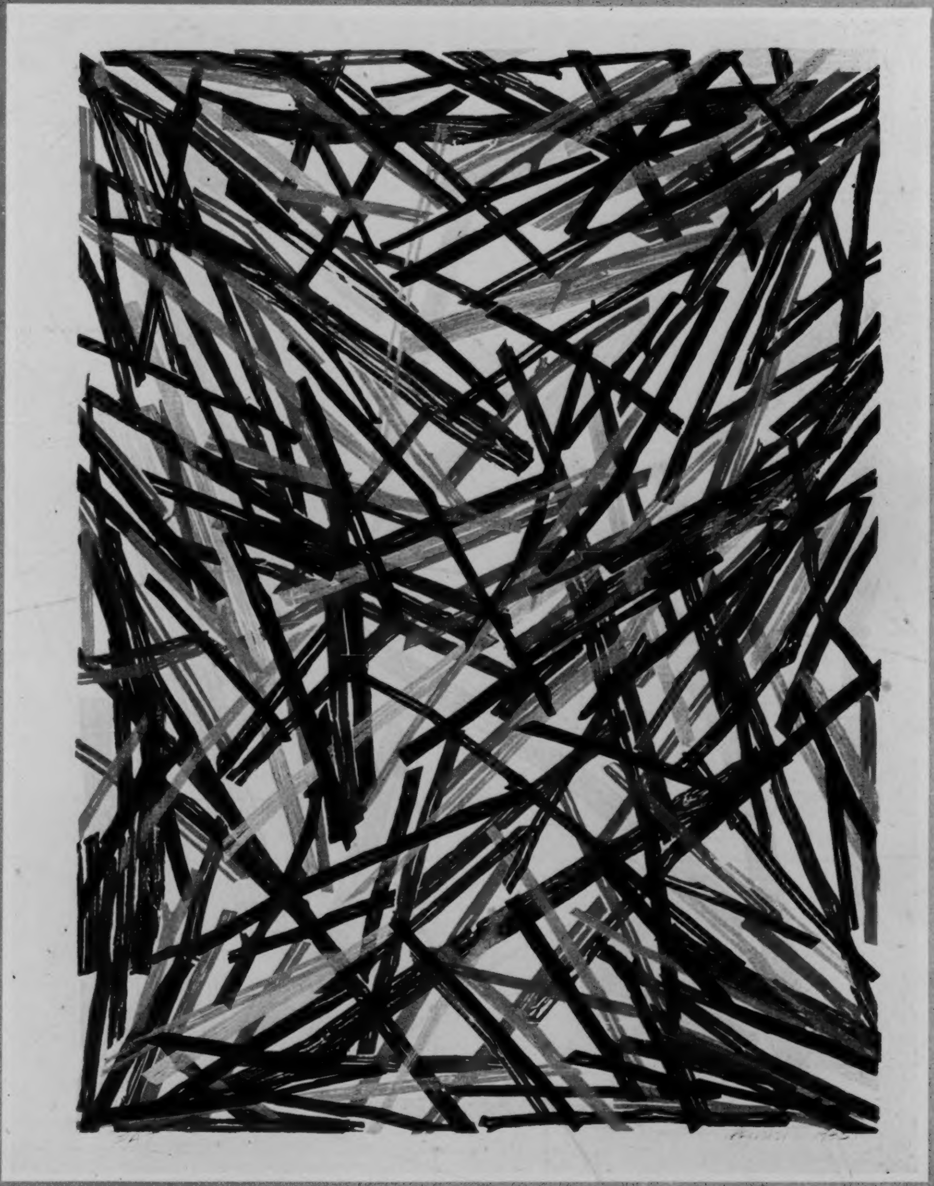
J.R. MORGAN
HALLCO ICE CREAM
Mobilon
GENERAL
GENERAL TIRE

JOHN BAEDER

"Morgan's," soft ground and aquatint etching, 1983. Image size is 12¼" x 19¼" on 22" x 30" Rives BFK Paper. Edition size is 50. $600 prior to September 30th, 1983, and $700 thereafter.

MORGAN GALLERY

1616 WESTPORT ROAD, KANSAS CITY, MISSOURI 64111 TEL: (816) 561-7799



CHARLES ARNOLDI

"Untitled", #4 1983, From a Series of Five Wood Relief Prints, 48" x 37", Edition of 70

PATRICIA HEESY GALLERY
50 WEST 57TH STREET
NEW YORK, NEW YORK 10019
TEL: (212) 245-1420

NEW CITY EDITIONS
1331 WEST WASHINGTON BOULEVARD
VENICE, CALIFORNIA 90291
TEL: (213) 396-7525

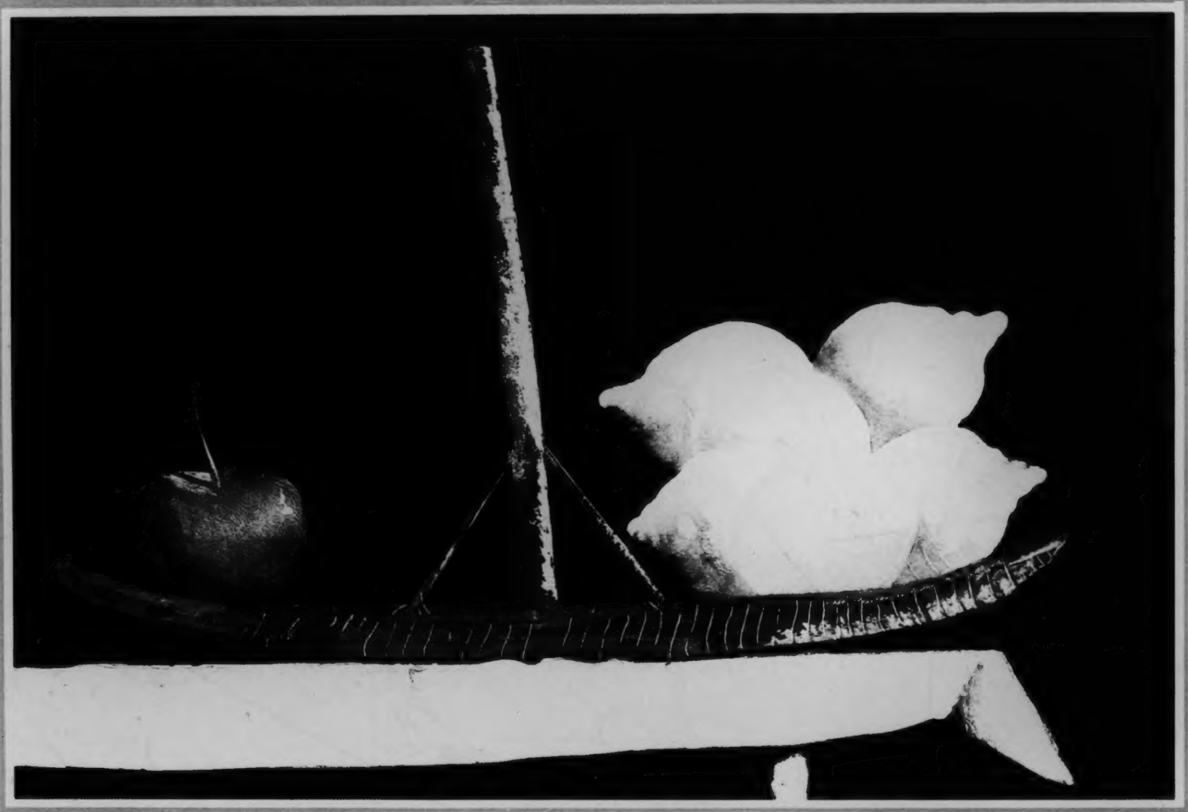
VOL
7
1

ISS
8

SE

1983

UMI



JULIO LARRAZ

"First Class," Aquatint-etching, 1983
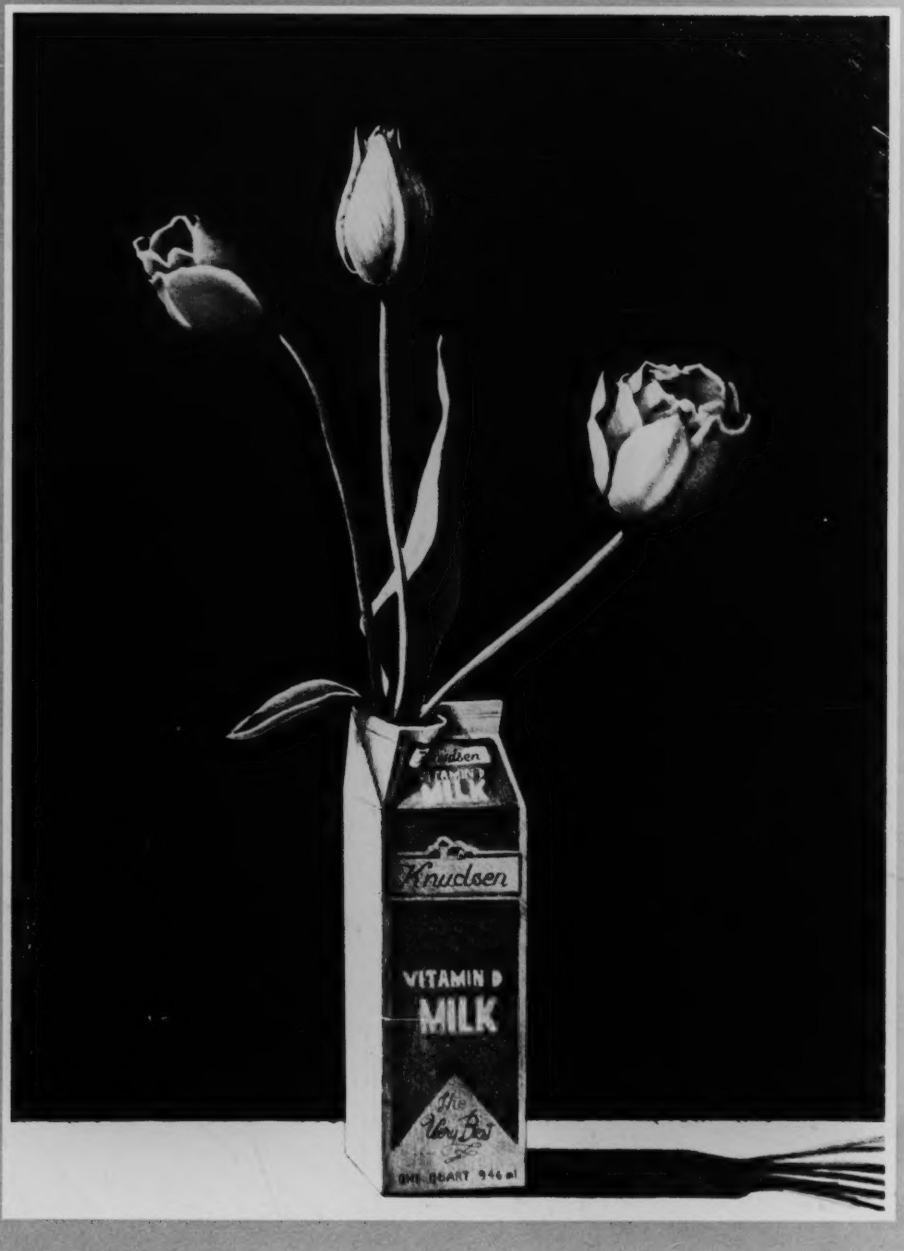
Edition of 50, Arches paper, 23 ¾ x 35 ½" (image size), 29 x 40 ½" (paper size)

NOHRA HAIME GALLERY
1000 MADISON AVENUE/NEW YORK, N.Y. 10021/TEL: (212) 772-7760



Knudsen
VITAMIN D
MILK
Knudsen
VITAMIN D
MILK
The Very Best
ONE QUART 946 ml

PAUL WONNER

"Tulips in a Milk Carton". Printed in eleven colors on buff Arches Cover paper using two stones and seven aluminum plates. 25" x 18 3/8": An edition of sixty Arabic numbered impressions.

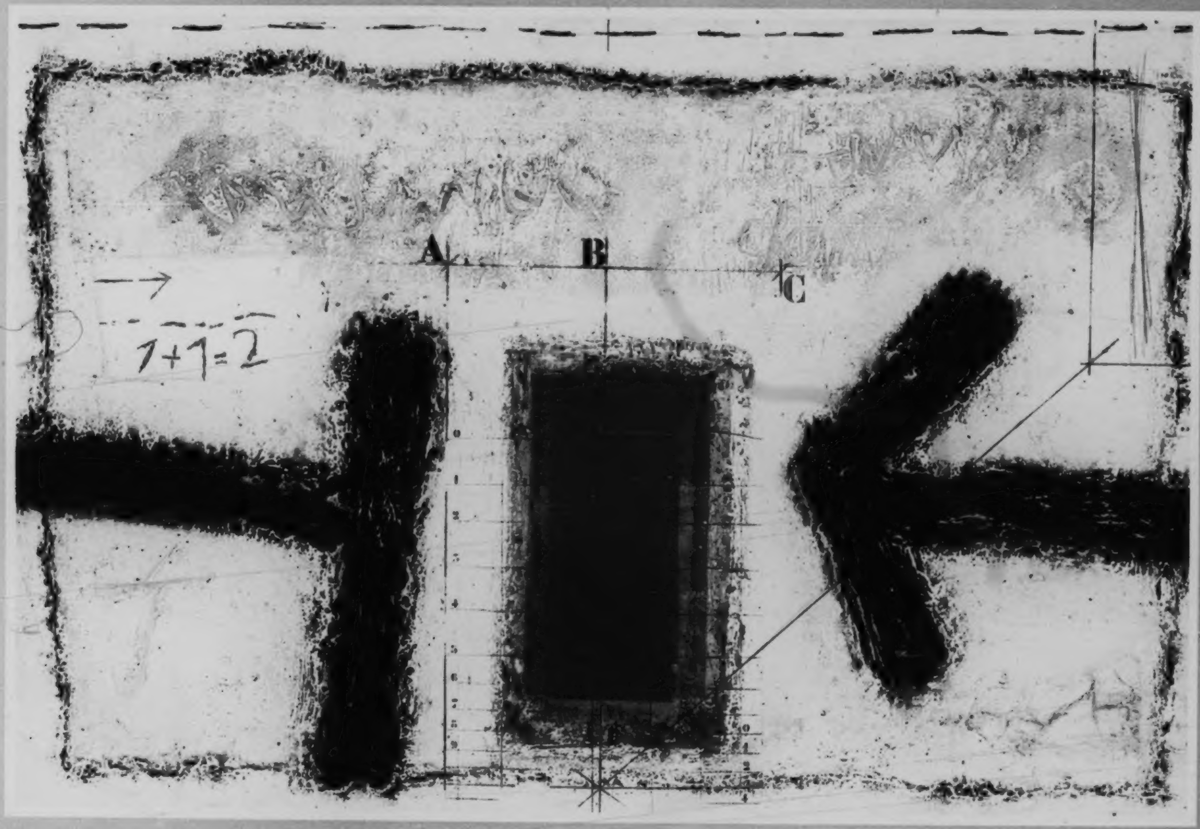
EDITIONS PRESS

915 BRYANT STREET, SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA, 94103 TEL: (415) 626-1846

VOL
7
1
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI

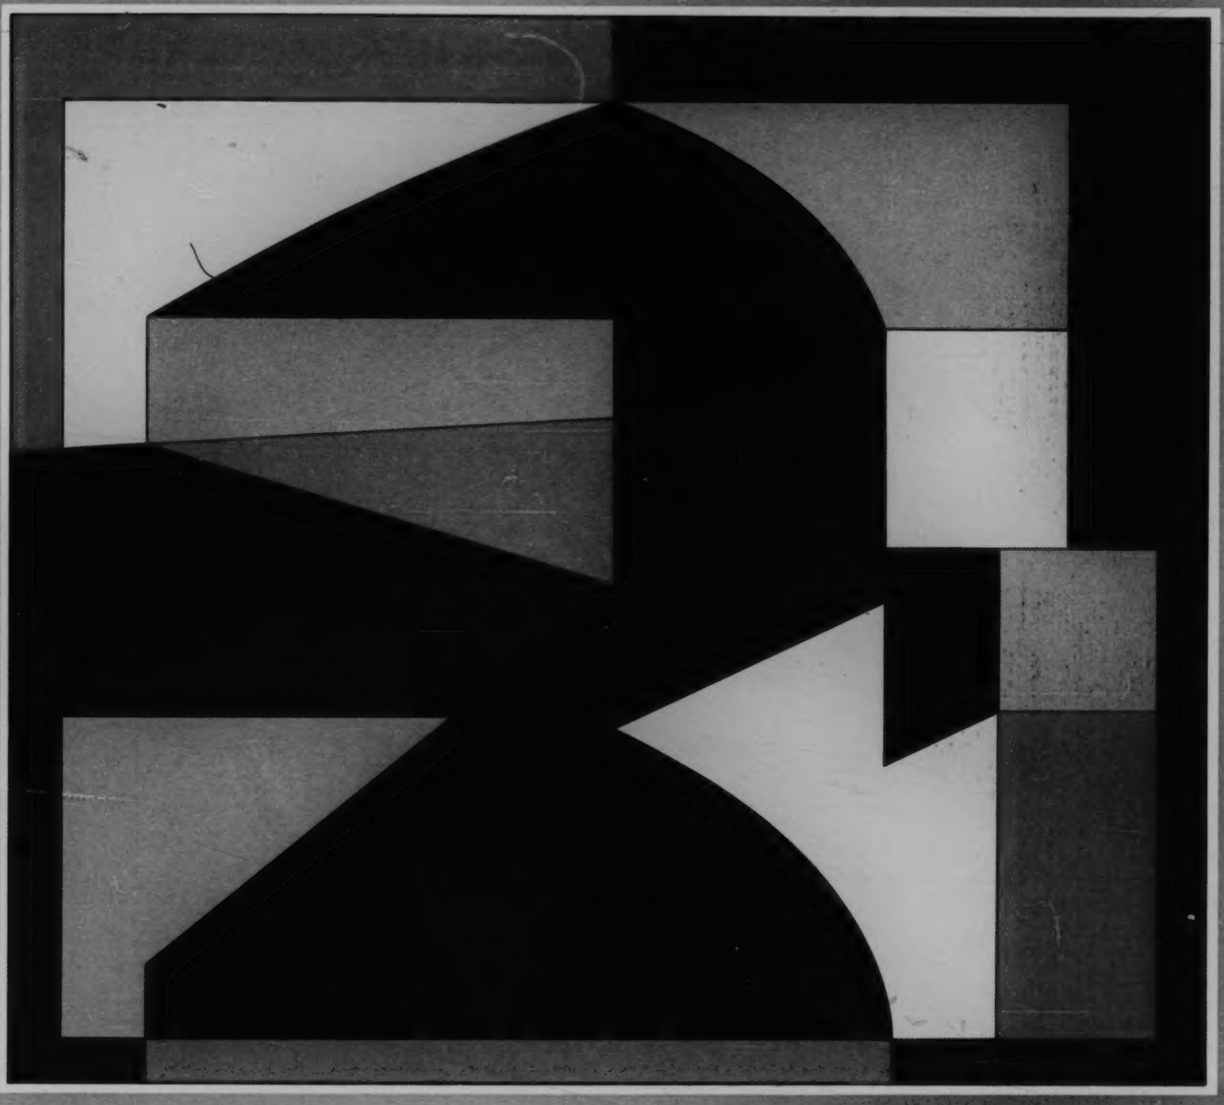


JAMES COIGNARD

"Blocage du Bleu, 1983"
Hand colored etching (carborundum and aquatint with collage on hand made paper) 40" x 60"
Edition: 40 $1250. Coignard color brochures on request. Dealer inquiries invited.

TRANSWORLD ART/ALEX ROSENBERG GALLERY

20 W. 57 STREET, NEW YORK, N.Y. 10019 TEL: (212) 757-2700



VASARELY

"The Constructif Portfolio"

5 pieces, edition of 150 on Arches 88, 300 gms. 56 x 76 cm.

GALERIE ET EDITIONS LAHUMIERE

88, BD. DE COURCELLES, 75017 PARIS. TEL: 763 03 95

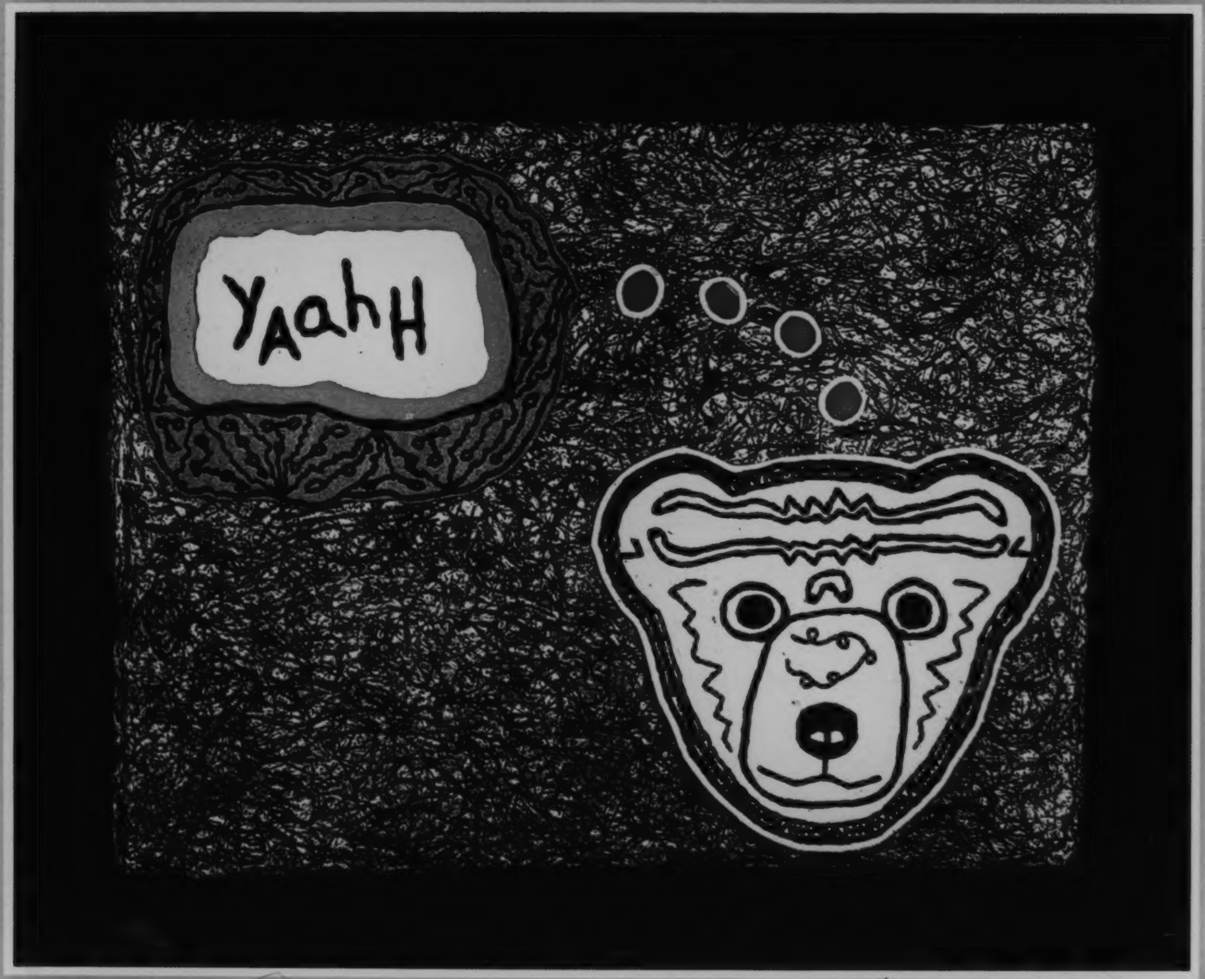
VOL
7
1

ISS
8

SE

1983

UMI



CHARLEMAGNE PALESTINE

"4 Beastral Icons" (Bear, Cat, Sheep, Goat). 15 Colour Etching. Aquatint on copper, silkscreen on plexiglass mirror, hand-tinted, textured, and sewn Japanese papers. Editions of 25 each plus 5 artist's proofs.

GALERIE ERIC FRANCK

15 ROUTE DE FLORISSANT, GENEVA. TEL. 47.08.09

important works by butler
chagall
dubuffet
giacometti
lam mac iver mason millares miró riopelle rouan saura tanguy
zao wou-ki

pierre matisse
gallery
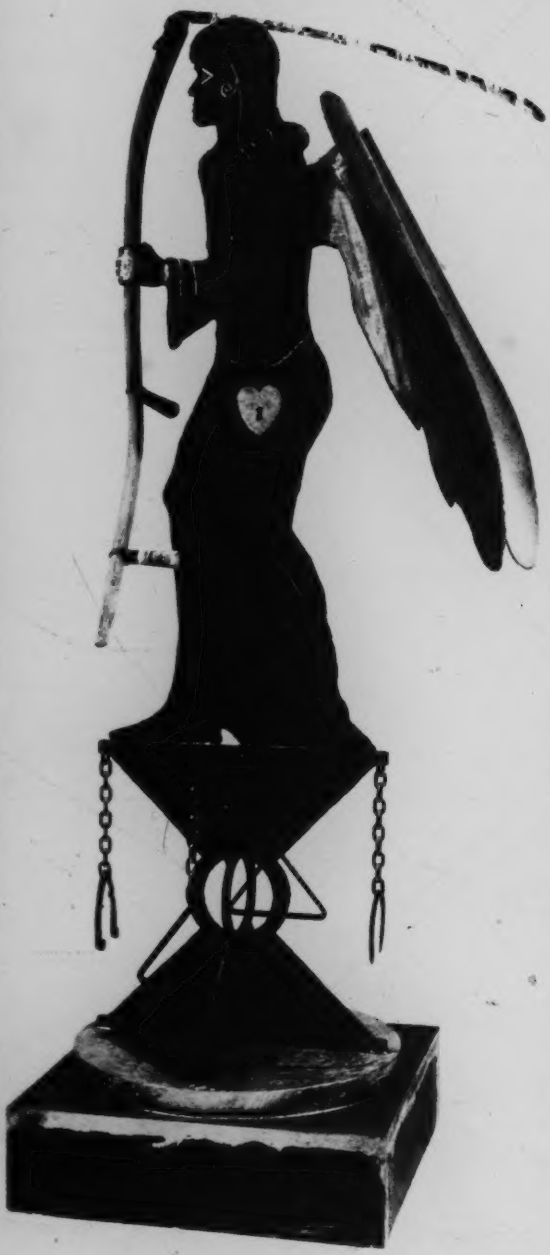
41 east 57th street
new york 10022



William T. Wiley

NEW SCULPTURE

ALLAN FRUMKIN GALLERY
50 WEST 57TH STREET NEW YORK

VOL 71
ISS 8
SE 1983
UMI

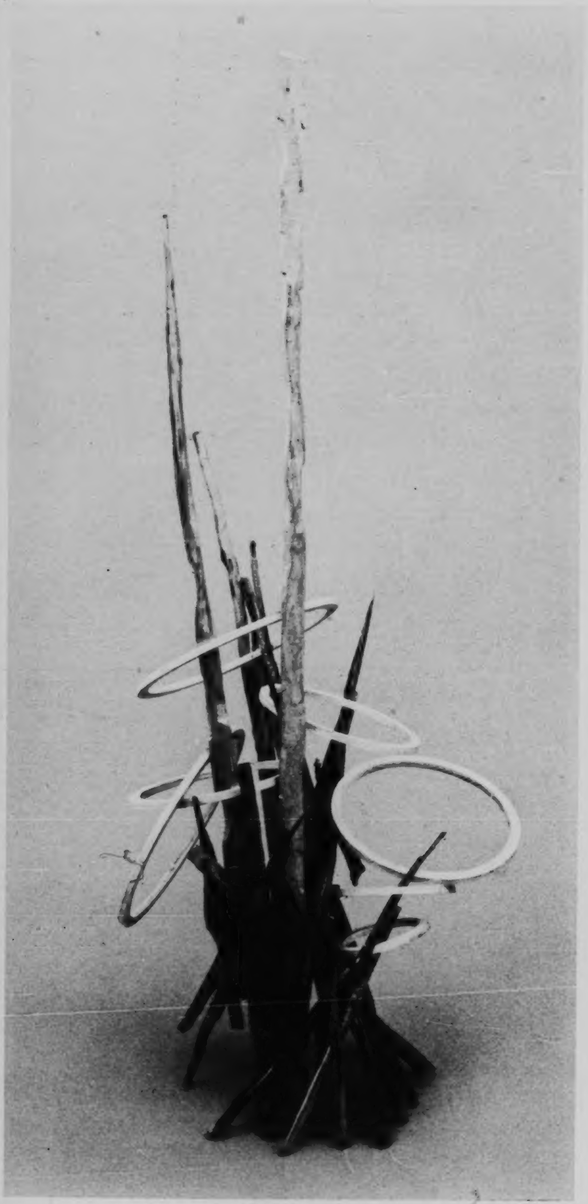
M. Knoedler & Co.

Estate of Alexander Calder
Adolph and Esther Gottlieb Foundation, Inc.
Estate of Ludwig Sander
Estate of David Smith
Walter Darby Bannard
Richard Diebenkorn
Friedel Dzubas
Herbert Ferber
Nancy Graves
Howard Hodgkin
Robert Motherwell
Jules Olitski
Jack Roth
Frank Stella
John Walker

19 East 70 Street, New York 10021
Telephone (212) 794-0550

ALLAN HACKLIN

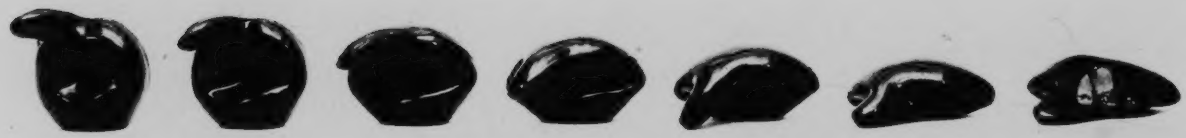


Bouquet, Painted Wood, Ht. 60"

SEPTEMBER 15–OCTOBER 15

DAVID SETTLES GALLERY
1700 BISSONNET HOUSTON 77005
(713) 528-1690

CLAES OLDENBURG



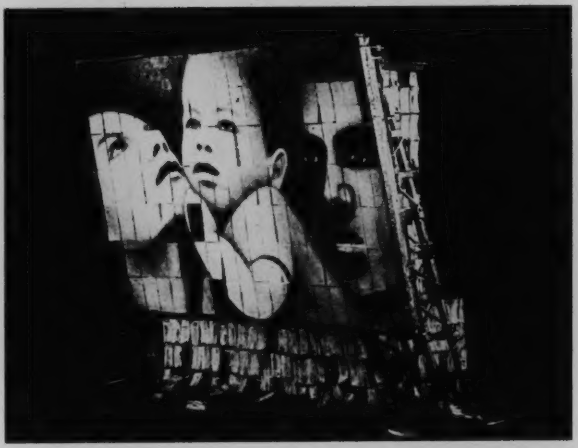
"SOFT INVERTED QS IN STAGES OF DEFLATION" 1974 PAINTED CERAMIC

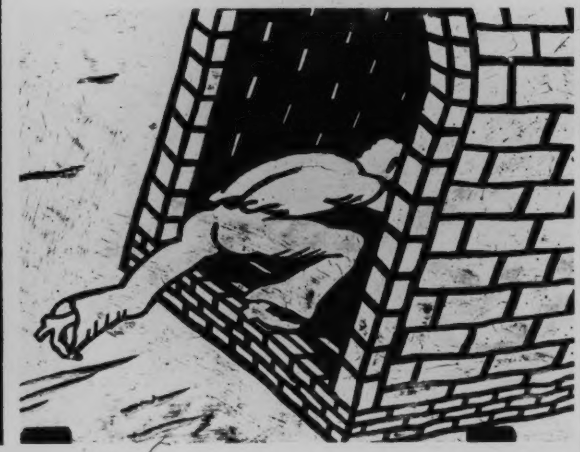
MARGO LEAVIN GALLERY

812 NO ROBERTSON BOULEVARD LOS ANGELES, CA 90069 213/273 0603

RAYMON ELOZUA
Ceramic Sculpture

PATRICK SILER
Recent Work





September 1983
Braunstein Gallery
(415) 392-5532
Quay Gallery
(415) 982-3292
254 Sutter Street, San Francisco, CA 94108

VOL 71
ISSUE 8
SEP 1983
UMI

13 SEPTEMBER THROUGH 1 OCTOBER

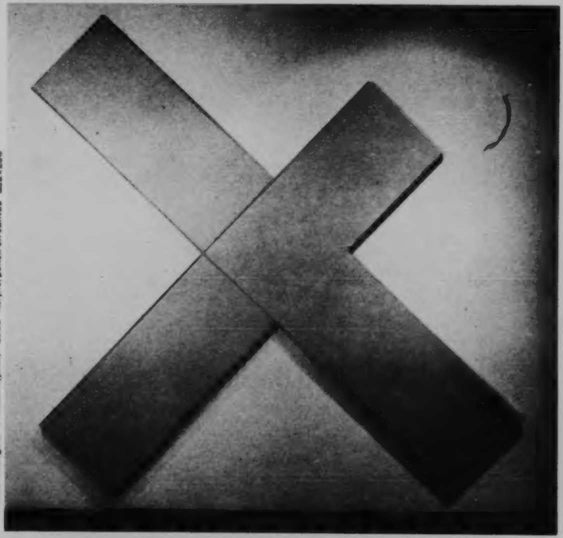
'THE NEXT WAVE' BAM

IN COOPERATION WITH THE BROOKLYN ACADEMY OF MUSIC

SMALL GALLERY

THREE PAINTINGS

MANGOLD, MARDEN, RYMAN



Robert Mangold X within X (pink) 1980 Acrylic, pencil on canvas 112x136

PAULA COOPER GALLERY

155 WOOSTER STREET NEW YORK 212 674.0766

---

13 White
Street
New York City
10013
212
966 5090

BETTE STOLER GALLERY

Paintings and Drawings
September 23 to
October 29
Through September 22
by appointment only

METRO PICTURES

JACK GOLDSTEIN
24 SEPTEMBER-22 OCTOBER
METRO PICTURES
NEW LOCATION:
150 GREENE STREET, NY 10012
212/925.8335

Art Books and Illustrated Books

Ars Libri, Ltd. specializes in rare and scholarly books in the fine arts and in illustrated books from the fifteenth to the twentieth century. Our stock of art reference material includes monographs, catalogues raisonné, periodicals and documents relevant to all periods and all fields of art history.

We issue catalogues regularly and provide quotations upon request. We make periodic offerings as well of scholarly libraries and collections, and of original prints and photographs.

Currently available:

Catalogue 39:	German Art Before 1800
Catalogue 38:	European Art of the 19th Century
Catalogue 37:	American Art
Catalogue 36:	British Art
Catalogue 35:	Photography

ars libri, ltd.

286 Summer Street, Boston, MA 02210 U.S.A.
tel. (617) 357-5212 / telex: 95 1075 (Ars Libri, BSN)
cable: Ars Libri, BSN

YONG–JIN HAN
Recent Stone Sculptures

WHANKI
Paintings 1972

POINDEXTER
GALLERY
at
FIAC
Grand Palais, Paris
24 September to 2 October

FALL
EXHIBITION SCHEDULE

SEPTEMBER OCTOBER
JILL GIEGERICH
RECENT WORK

ART FOR A NUCLEAR WEAPONS FREEZE
BENEFIT EXHIBITION

NOVEMBER
GARY STEPHAN
RECENT PAINTINGS

NOVEMBER DECEMBER
MEL KENDRICK
NEW SCULPTURE

MARGO LEAVIN
GALLERY
[illegible] N ROBERTSON BLVD LOS ANGELES CA 90069 213 273 [illegible]
GALLERY HOURS TUESDAY THROUGH SATURDAY 11AM TO 5PM

Billy Copley

Gary Hall

John Mendelsohn

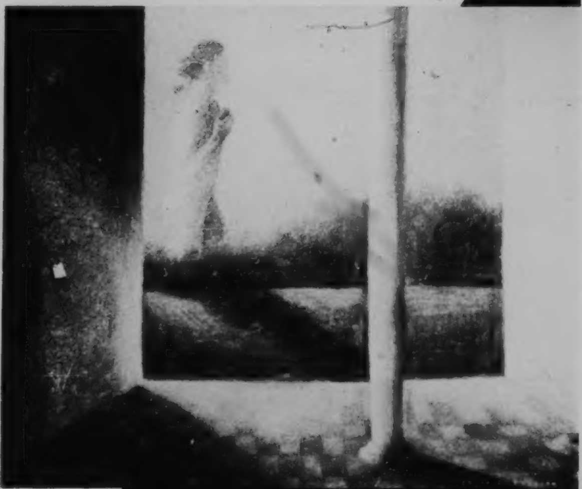
Jeffrey Wasserman

Paintings
September 16
through
October 8

451 Broome, New York NY 10013. 212/925-2984

CONCORD

Carol Anthony
"Private Rooms, Private Light"
Recent Paintings Sept 20-Oct 15



Maxwell Davidson Gallery
43 East 78 Street, New York
Tel 212 734-6702

VOL
7
1
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI

ALTERNATIVE GALLERIES

AMOS ENO 101 WOOSTER ST
Phyllis Dukes September 17-October 6

ATLANTIC 458 W BROADWAY
Members and Friends Group Show
September 7-September 25

BOWERY 121 WOOSTER
Self-Portraits by Gallery Artists
September 9-September 28

CENTRAL HALL 386 W. BROADWAY
Constance Schwartz September 13-October 2

FIRST STREET 386 W. BROADWAY
Dominic Cretara September 9-September 28

GALLERY 84 30 W 57 ST
New Members September 6-September 17
Gallery Artists September 20-October 1

NOHO 168 MERCER ST
Libby Robinson September 6-September 25

PHOENIX 30 W 57 ST
Rissa Berlin Oliver Rodums
September 6-September 24

PINDAR 127 GREENE ST
Invitational September 6-September 25

PLEIADES 164 MERCER ST
M. Helsenrott Hochhauser
Michael Ackerman Ulick September 9-25

SOHO 20 469 BROOME ST
Women's Group Exhibition
September 10-October 5
Carol Hartman (Invitational Space)

22 WOOSTER 22 WOOSTER
Kathy Stark Joan Giordano
September 6-October 1

VIRIDIAN 52 W 57 ST
Selected Group Exhibition curated by Elaine Weschler September 6-September 24

WARD-NASSE 178 PRINCE ST
Theodore August P.J.L. Brown
Kathleen Ledda Christopher Moser
September 3-September 22

AARG IS A NON-PROFIT MEMBERSHIP ASSOCIATION

JOSEPH CRAIG ENGLISH
Seriagraphs

BURL JONES
Bronze Sculpture

MARCI McDONALD
Woodcuts

LELAND
SIMMONDS
Paintings, Prints

ALLEN ULMER
Paintings, Prints

Artexpo
DALLAS MARKET CENTER • SEPT 30-OCT 3, 1983
Booth 604

GRAPHICALLY
SPEAKING...

912½ Bridge Road Charleston, WV 25314
(304) 345-4781

DAVID BOWES
CHUCK CONNELLY
AURORA W. CORTESE
PETER GRASS
MARK KOSTABI
LUIGI ONTANI
MILO REICE
SY ROSS
7 SEPTEMBER – 1 OCTOBER

SERRA · DI · FELICE
THE PUCK BUILDING, 295 LAFAYETTE ST NEW YORK
TELEPHONE: 212 334.8192

DOROTHEA TANNING
Recent Paintings

27 September through 29 October
Tue-Sat 10-6
Catalogue: eight dollars

STEPHEN MAZOH GALLERY
13 E 76 Street New York 10021
212 737 2203

GOING BEYOND COLOR ETCHING

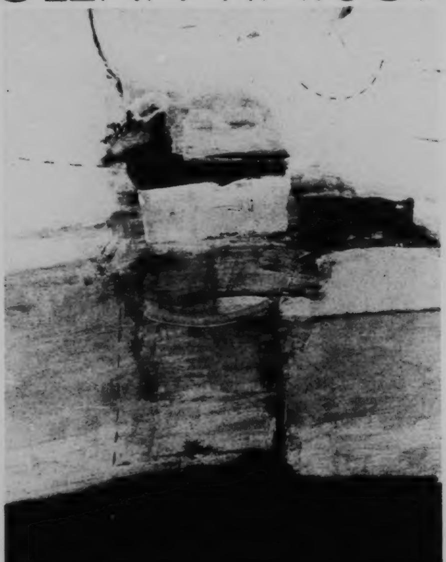
ELEANOR RAPPE
PETER BACZEK
ESTHER BARAN
NORMA ERIKSON
THADD EVANS
RUDI GRAETER
THEODORA VARNAY JONES
CHRIS KNIPP
MIREILLE MORENCY-LAY
ROBERT LeROY SMITH
RAY NEHER
PHYLLIS TAPLITZ
ANITA TONEY
XAVIER VIRAMONTES
KAZUKO WATANABE

MIRIAM PERLMAN
Lake Point Tower 505 N. Lake Shore Drive Chicago

GLENN WATSON



PAINTINGS
SEPTEMBER/OCTOBER

BROOK HOUSE
BOX 1177, ORINDA, CA 94563, 415/254-1525

VOL
7
1
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI

MAJOR NEW WORKS

NANCY HOFFMAN GALLERY
429 WEST BROADWAY NEW YORK CITY NEW YORK 10012 TELEPHONE 212/966-6676

Rauschenberg

ROBERT RAUSCHENBERG · PHOTOGRAVURES · CASTELLI GRAPHICS · 4E77 NEW YORK

John Batho
Harry Callahan
Arnold Newman

September 14–October 8, 1983

"Edward Hopper, Truro, Massachusetts, (1960)" by Arnold Newman

Addison/Ripley Gallery, Ltd.
9 Hillyer Court, N.W. Washington, D.C. 20008 (202) 328-2332

Roy Boyd Los Angeles

Joe Fay
Paintings

170 S. La Brea
Los Angeles 90036

Roy Boyd Chicago

John Dilg
Paintings

Gordon Powell
Vessels

215 W. Superior
Chicago 60610

ROGER BROWN

NEW PAINTINGS

ASHER/FAURE

SEPTEMBER 17 - OCTOBER 16

612 N ALMONT DR LOS ANGELES, CA 90069 213/271-3665

WE ARE PLEASED TO ANNOUNCE THAT

TERENCE LANOUE

IS REPRESENTED
BY

SIEGEL
CONTEMPORARY ART

24 WEST 57 STREET, NYC 10019 (212) 586-0605

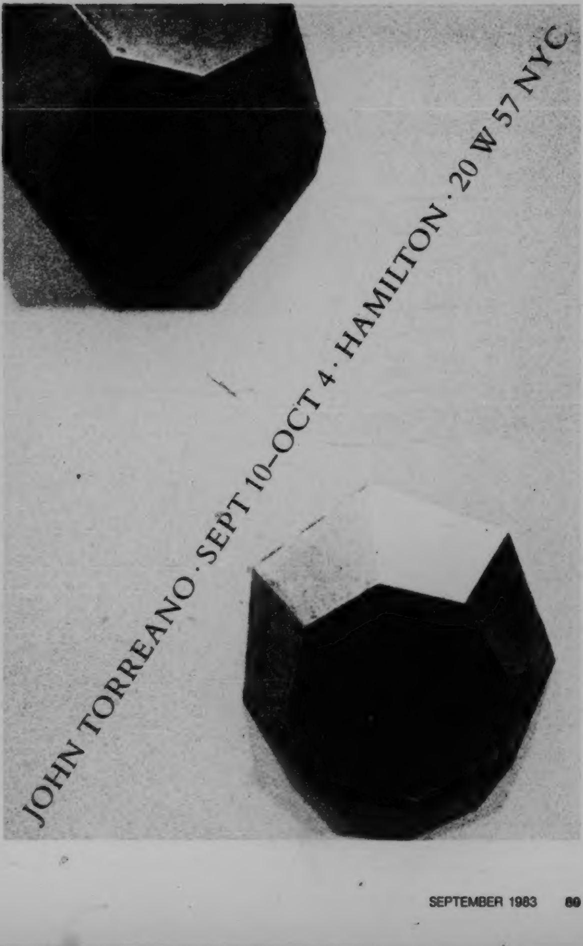
DAVID
PARK

Paintings and Drawings 1948-1960

Catalog with essay by Carl Belz available

September 13 to October 29

Salander-O'Reilly Galleries, Inc.
22 East 80 Street New York (212) 879-6606
Gallery hours: Tuesday-Saturday, 10 to 5:30



VOL 71 ISS 8 SE 1983 UMI

BARBARA KRAKOW GALLERY
10 Newbury Street Boston, MA 02116 617 262-4490

Michael Heizer

Monotypes
and Drawings

September 10–
October 8, 1983

GALERIE MAX HETZLER

WILL BE LOCATED IN SEPTEMBER
AT

KAMEKESTR. 21
5000 KÖLN 1
TEL. (02 21) 52 78 53

DEALING IN WORKS BY

WERNER BÜTTNER
GÜNTHER FÖRG
HUBERT KIECOL
MARTIN KIPPENBERGER
REINHARD MUCHA
ALBERT OEHLEN
MARKUS OEHLEN

SEAN SCULLY

NEW PAINTINGS
SEPT 13–OCT 5

DAVID MCKEE GALLERY
41 EAST 57 STREET
NEW YORK, NY 10022
TEL 212/688-5951

Ed Baynard

"The New Salem Windows"
New Paintings
September 20–October 15

Pam Adler Gallery
37 West 57th Street
New York, NY 10019
Tel. 212/980.9696

THOMAS GOLYA

TOTEMIC SCULPTURE

and

"TENNIS ON THE EDGE"

an installation by

MING MURRAY

in collaboration with

CLOUD DEFLECTED AIR

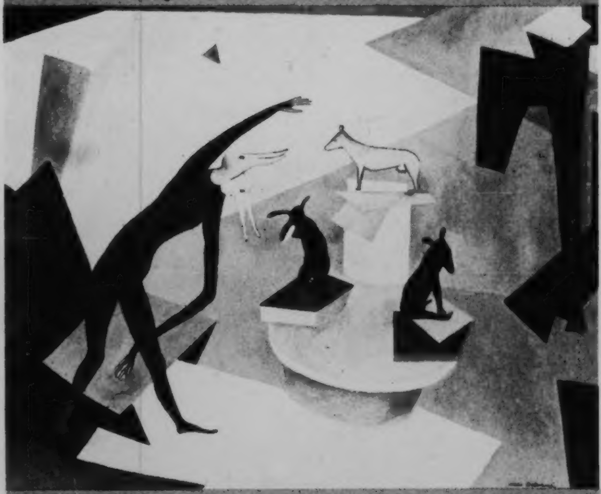
September 10-October 10, 1983

ZOLLA/LIEBERMAN GALLERY
356 W. Huron Chicago 60610 312/944-1990

ATTILIO SALEMME

paintings

September 13–October 6



Oratorical Dementia, 1945, oil on canvas, 25 × 30 inches.

Grace Borgenicht Gallery
724 Fifth Avenue New York 10019
212/247–2111

10th Anniversary Exhibition of Major Paintings, Drawings and Sculpture

Biala
Ernest Briggs
James Brooks
Gaudier-Brzeska
Giorgio Cavallon
Elaine deKooning
Norris Embry
Dimitri Hadzi
Grace Hartigan
George McNeil
Reuben Nakian
Milton Resnick
Emerson Woelffer
Esteban Vicente

Part I Sept. 10-24
Part II Sept. 27 - Oct. 15

50 pg. catalog, 32 color prints - $15.00

GRUENEBAUM 38 E 57 212-838-8245

GALLERY ARTISTS

SEPTEMBER–OCTOBER

EDWARD THORP
GALLERY

419 WEST BROADWAY, NEW YORK, NY 10012
TELEPHONE 212/431-6880

VOL
71
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI

Milton Avery
Sept. 20—Oct. 21

Dolly Fiterman Gallery
Suite 238, Plymouth Bldg., Mpls., MN (612) 370-8722

Kenneth Price

Opening September 24 Leo Castelli 420 West Broadway, New York

RONALD C. BATEMAN
RECENT PAINTINGS
SEPTEMBER 6-31, 1983

Marian Locks Gallery
1524 Walnut Street
Philadelphia, Pennsylvania 19102
215 546-0322

OIL ON CANVAS, "YUCCA & PLUMS," 40" x 60" 1983

BASELITZ IMMENDORFF
KIRKEBY LÜPERTZ A.R. PENCK
WORKS ON PAPER

FAY GOLD GALLERY 3221 CAINS HILL PLACE ATLANTA GA 404 233 3843
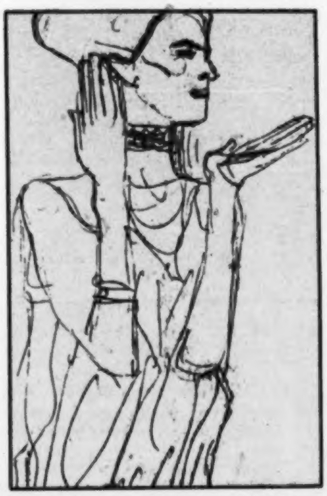
SEPTEMBER 13 THROUGH OCTOBER 12, 1983

JOEL PETER WITKIN
PHOTOGRAPHS

September 20–November 5, 1983

Gustav Klimt

Drawings and Selected Paintings by an Art-Nouveau Master



Study for the "Stoclet Frieze." Circa 1906. Pencil.

Detailed checklist available on request

We also stock a large selection of Klimt reproductions and posters

Galerie St. Etienne

24 W. 57th St. NYC 10019 245-6734 Tues.-Sat. 11-5

BÅRD BREIVIK

PHIL SIMS

THORNTON WILLIS

SEPTEMBER 14
THRU OCTOBER 8

OSCARSSON HOOD
GALLERY 41 W 57 NYC
10019 (212) 750 8640

CAROLEE SCHNEEMANN

NEW WORK: PAINTINGS, DRAWINGS, CONSTRUCTIONS

PRINTS

SEPTEMBER 10 – OCTOBER 8

MAX HUTCHINSON GALLERY

138 GREENE STREET NEW YORK, NY 10012 212-966-3066

ALLPORT ASSOCIATES GALLERY

wishes to announce its new location

126 Post Street, Fourth Floor

San Francisco, California, 94108

415/398/2787

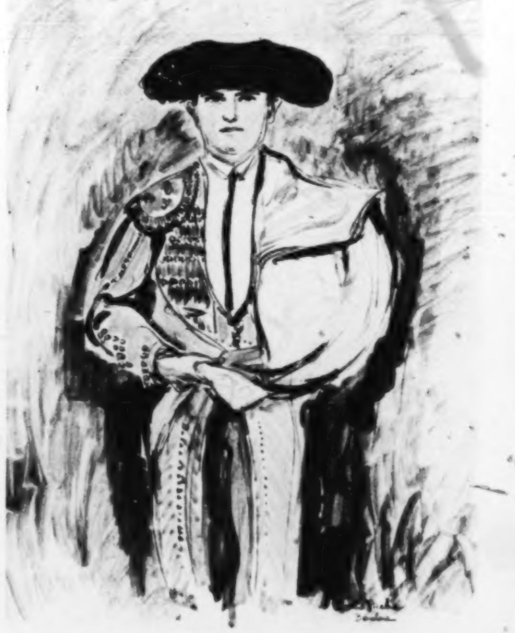
VOL
7
1

ISS
8

SE

1983

UMI



FRANCIS PICABIA, 1878-1953
"THE MATADOR" 1917
GOUACHE AND WATER COLOUR, 24½ x 18⅛ INCHES

DOMINION GALLERY
1438 Sherbrooke St. West, Montreal H3G 1K4
514-845-7471 and 7833

DONAL LUMBERT

CONTINENTAL CAR
SERIES

NEW PAINTINGS ON ALUMINUM

SEPTEMBER 10 - OCTOBER 8

NEIL G. OVSEY
GALLERY
705 East Third Street, 3rd Floor
Los Angeles, California 90013
Telephone (213)617-1351

ANNA MARIA SANTOLINI
First U.S.A. Exhibition of Her Recent Paintings.

September 20 –
October 12

Nathan Silberberg Fine Arts
16 East 79th Street, New York, NY 10021 • 212-861-6192

KRAUSHAAR
GALLERIES

724 Fifth Avenue, New York
(Bet. 57th & 56th Sts. • Tel. 307-5730)

PAINTINGS
DRAWINGS
SCULPTURE
by 20th CENTURY
AMERICAN ARTISTS

ContemporaryLight
A GROUP SHOW
SEPTEMBER 13 – OCTOBER 9

RUTH BAUER
ROSS BLECKNER
ELENA BORSTEIN
LYNNE CLIBANOFF
RICHARD DIEBENKORN
R. M. FISCHER
STEPHANIE FRANK
APRIL GORNIK
ALAN HERMAN
MARK INNERST
YVONNE JACQUETTE
BARBARA KASSEL
STEVE KEISTER
HOLLIS SIGLER
HAP TIVEY
LYNTON WELLS
MADGE WILLNER

KathrynMarkelGallery
50 WEST 57 • NEW YORK

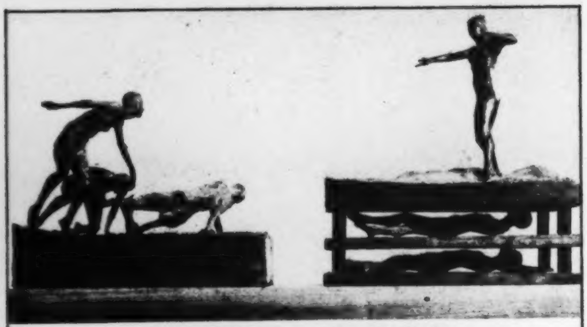
Morris Graves
RECENT STILL LIFES
SEPTEMBER 13 THROUGH OCTOBER 19

Willard Gallery
29 EAST 72 STREET NEW YORK 744-2925

SCHEDULED SHOWS
1983-84 SEASON

MARCEL BROODTHAERS
TONY CRAGG
MARTIN DISLER
GER VAN ELK
ANSELM KIEFER
MARKUS LÜPERTZ
EMO VERKERK

MARIAN GOODMAN GALLERY
24 WEST 57TH STREET NEW YORK NY 10019 (212) 977-7160



MAX DeMOSS
SCULPTURE

BETH AMES SWARTZ
PAPER WORKS

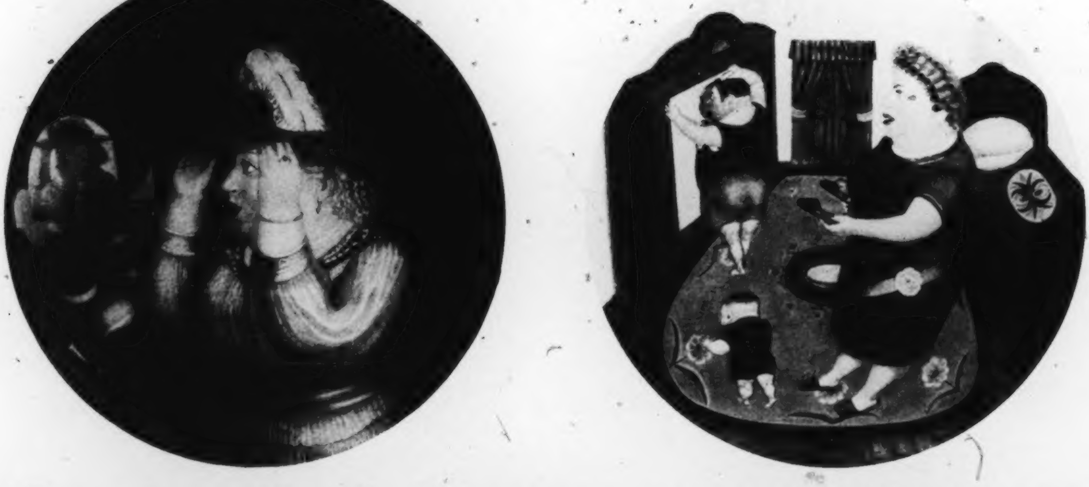
August 5 -
September 16, 1983

deicas art
1224 prospect street • la jolla, california 92037
(619) 456-1555 • 459-3651

VOL
71
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI

First One-man Show in New York September 14th through October 7th

David Miretsky



Mary-Anne Martin / Fine Art

Left: Woman at a Dressing Table, 1982. Oil on panel, 16¾ in.
Right: Family #5, 1982. Oil on panel, 16¾ in.

213 East 49th Street New York, NY 10017 Telephone: (212) 980-8104

LOUISE NEVELSON, Royal Tide V, 1960. Wood-gold finish, 77 x 100 x 13¾".

Icons of Contemporary Art

OPENING IN DALLAS LATE SEPTEMBER

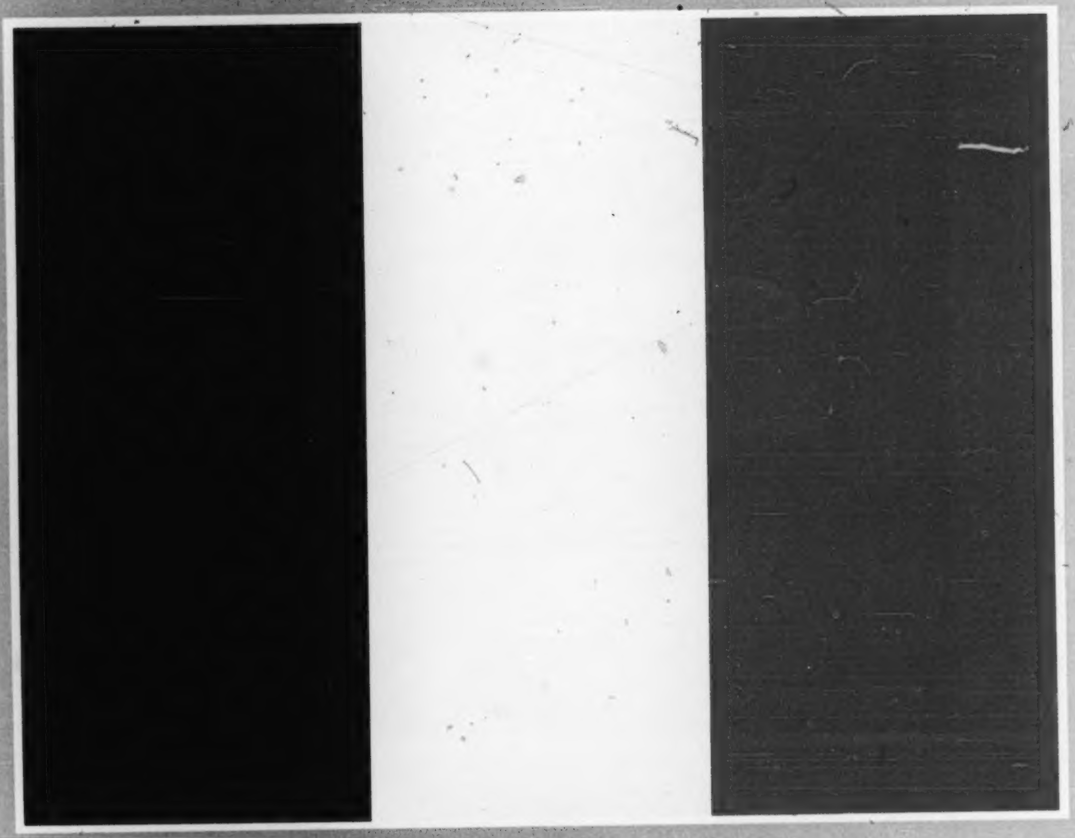
FOSTER
GOLDSTROM

2722 FAIRMONT STREET
DALLAS, TX 75201
214/744-0711

228 GRANT AVENUE
SIXTH FLOOR
SAN FRANCISCO, CA 94108
415/788-5060

Art in Belgium

THE ARTISTS • PIERRE ALECHINSKY • BERND AND HILLA BECHER • LYNDA BENGLIS • DANIEL BUREN
POL BURY • PIERRE CULOT • ENSOR • HUGO HEYRMAN • JOSEPH HOFFMANN • STEFAN DE JAEGER
PIERRE KLOSSOWSKI • RENE MAGRITTE • PANAMARENKO • DIDIER VERMEIREN



THE GALLERIES • ALBERT BARONIAN • DEWEER ART GALLERY
ESPACE PHOTOGRAPHIQUE CONTRETYPE • GALUCHAT • GALERIE MAURICE KEITELMAN
M. KNOEDLER ZURICH • MICHELE LACHOWSKY • LENS FINE ART • MASSIMO MININI
MINETA MOVE • 1900-2000 GALLERY • POST-SCRIPTUM • MICHELINE SZWAJCER • GALERIE VEGA

Art in America

A Special Advertising Supplement: September '83

VOL
7
1

ISS
8

S E

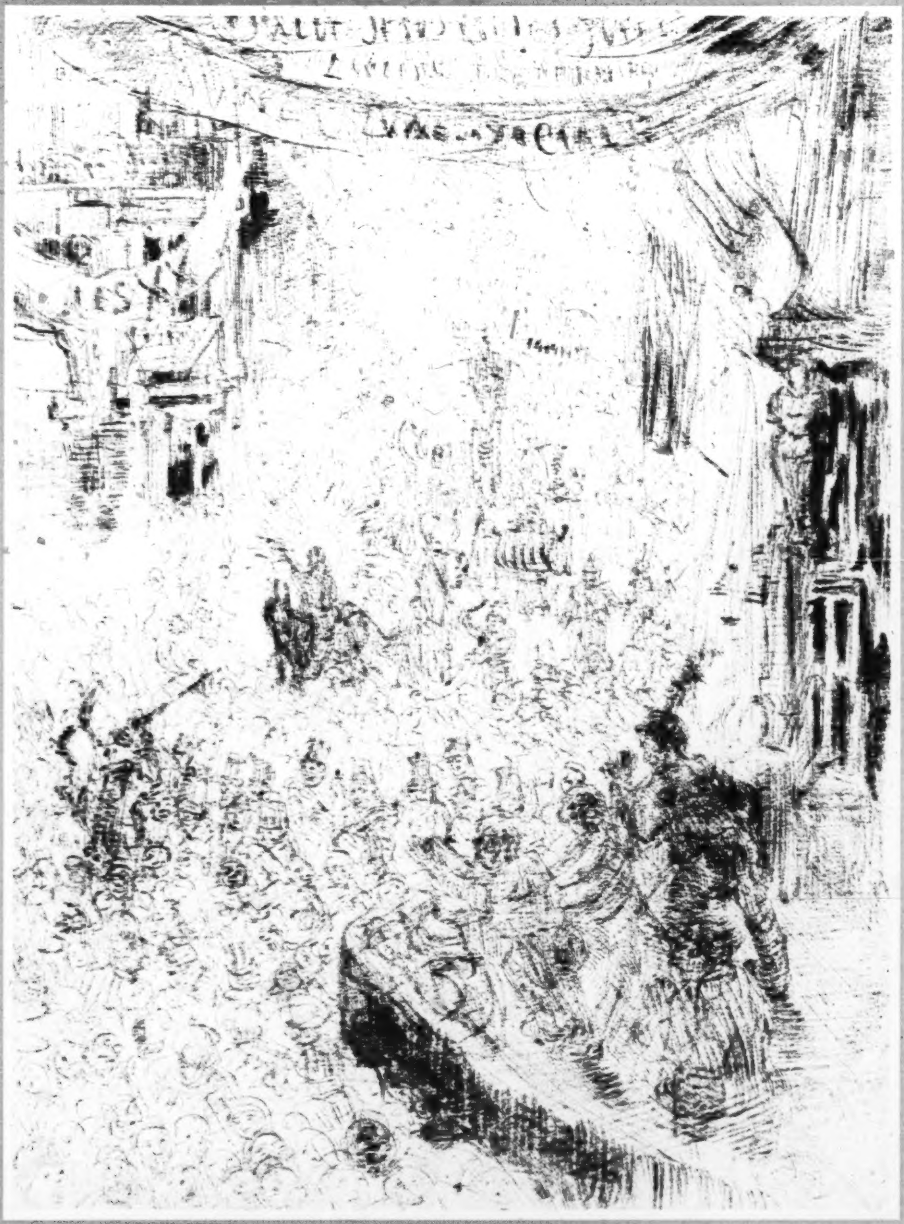
1983

UMI

PIERRE CULOT

Ceramics 1982, Belgium

GALUCHAT
NELE HAAS STOCLET. ART NOUVEAU - ART DECO - ART CONTEMPORAIN
182 AVENUE LOUISE, 1050 BRUSSELS. TEL: (2) 647 45 40



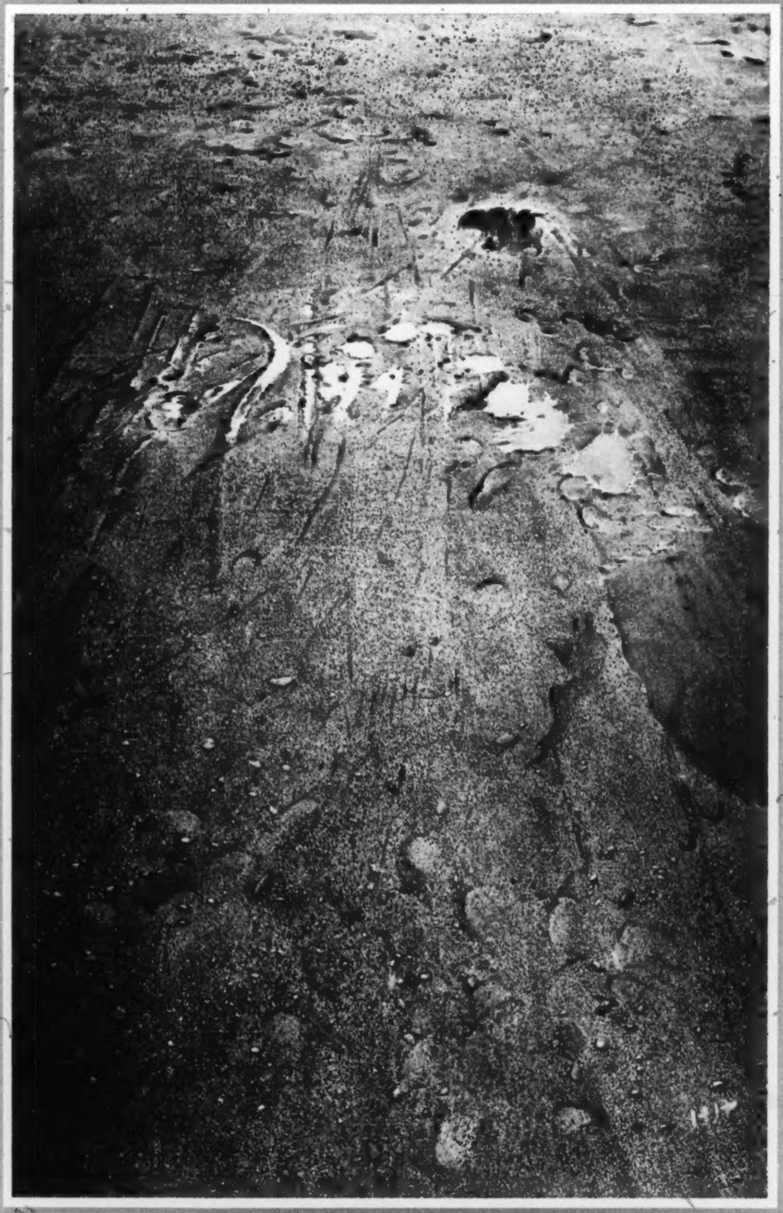
JAMES ENSOR

"L'Entrée du Christ à Bruxelles" 1884/85. Pencil, oil on paper, lined on copperplate paper. 22.7 x 16.7 cm.
Klimpt, Schiele, Ensor, Kubin from 24 September to 3 December.
Detailed Catalogue Available.

M. KNOEDLER ZURICH AG

KIRCHGASSE 24, 8001 ZURICH TEL: (01) 69 35 00

VOL
7
1
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI



HUGO HEYRMAN

"Limit." 1978. Acrylic on canvas. 200 x 130 cm.

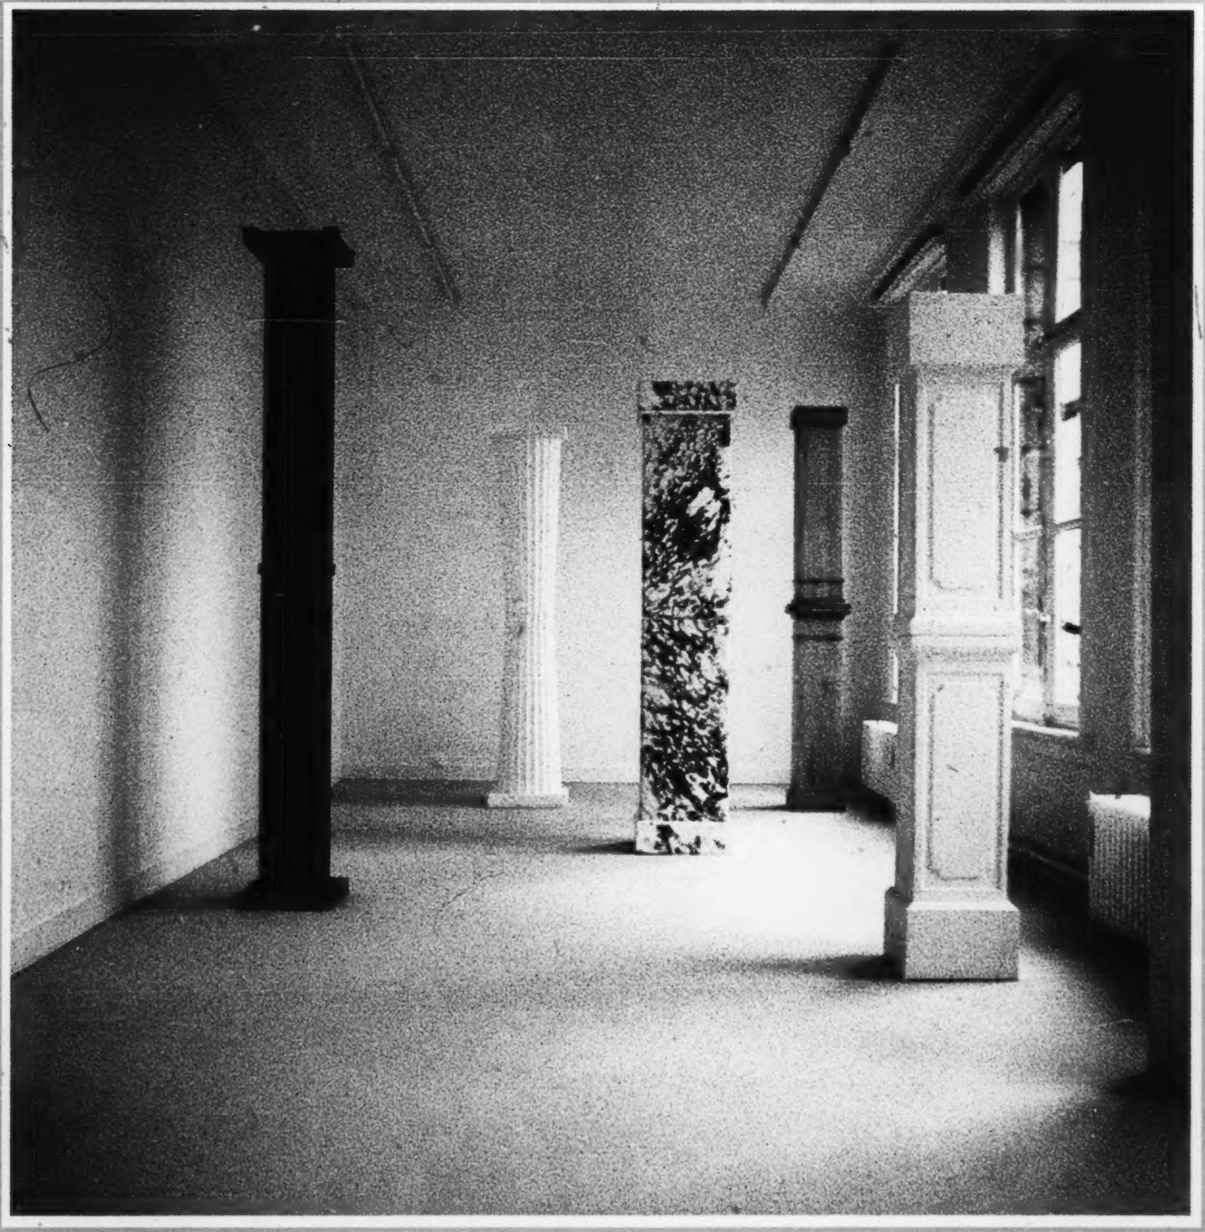
MINETA MOVE

43, RUE ERNEST ALLARD, 1000 BRUSSELS, TEL: (2) 513.03.60



DIDIER VERMEIREN

Sculptures, 1982, wood, marble, plaster.

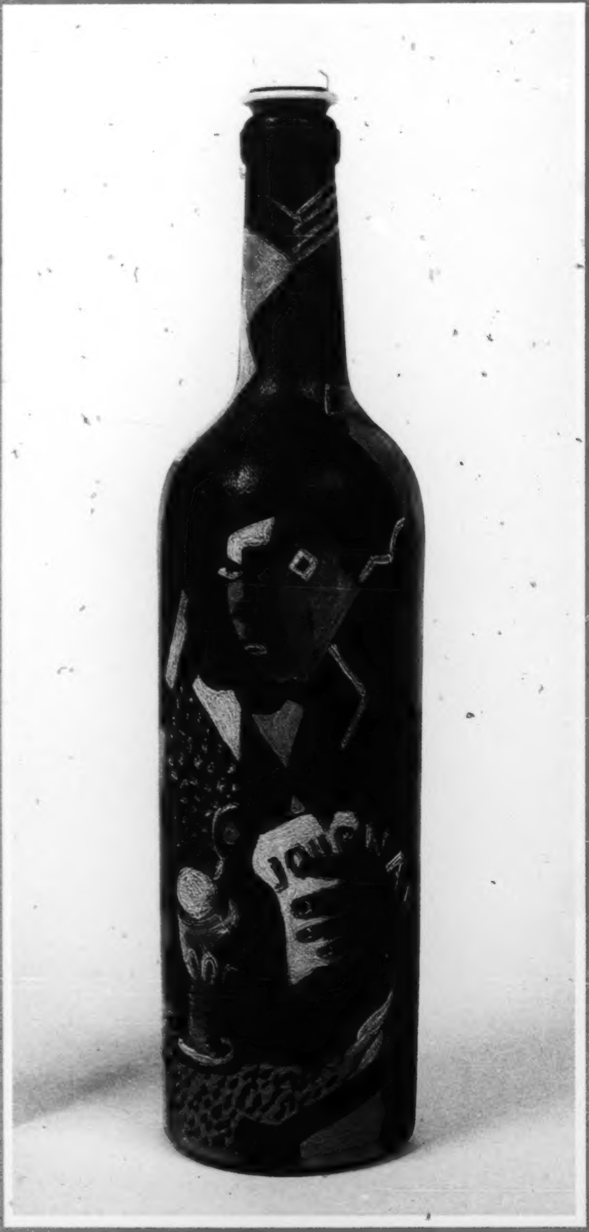
MASSIMO MININI
VIA CAVALIERI DEL S. SEPOLCRO 10, 20100 MILAN. TEL. 2 867 130

MICHELINE SZWAJCER
VENUSTRAAT 17, ANTWERP. TEL. 3 232 7185

VOL
71
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI



RENE MAGRITTE

Scène de café, composition cubiste, painted bottle, signed, height 12 in., 30.5 cms, painted circa 1943 provenance: Lou Cosyn, Brussels, Mme Lakowski, Brussels, Sothebys, London June 29th 1978. to be included in the Margritte Catalogue raisonnê being prepared by David Sylvester.

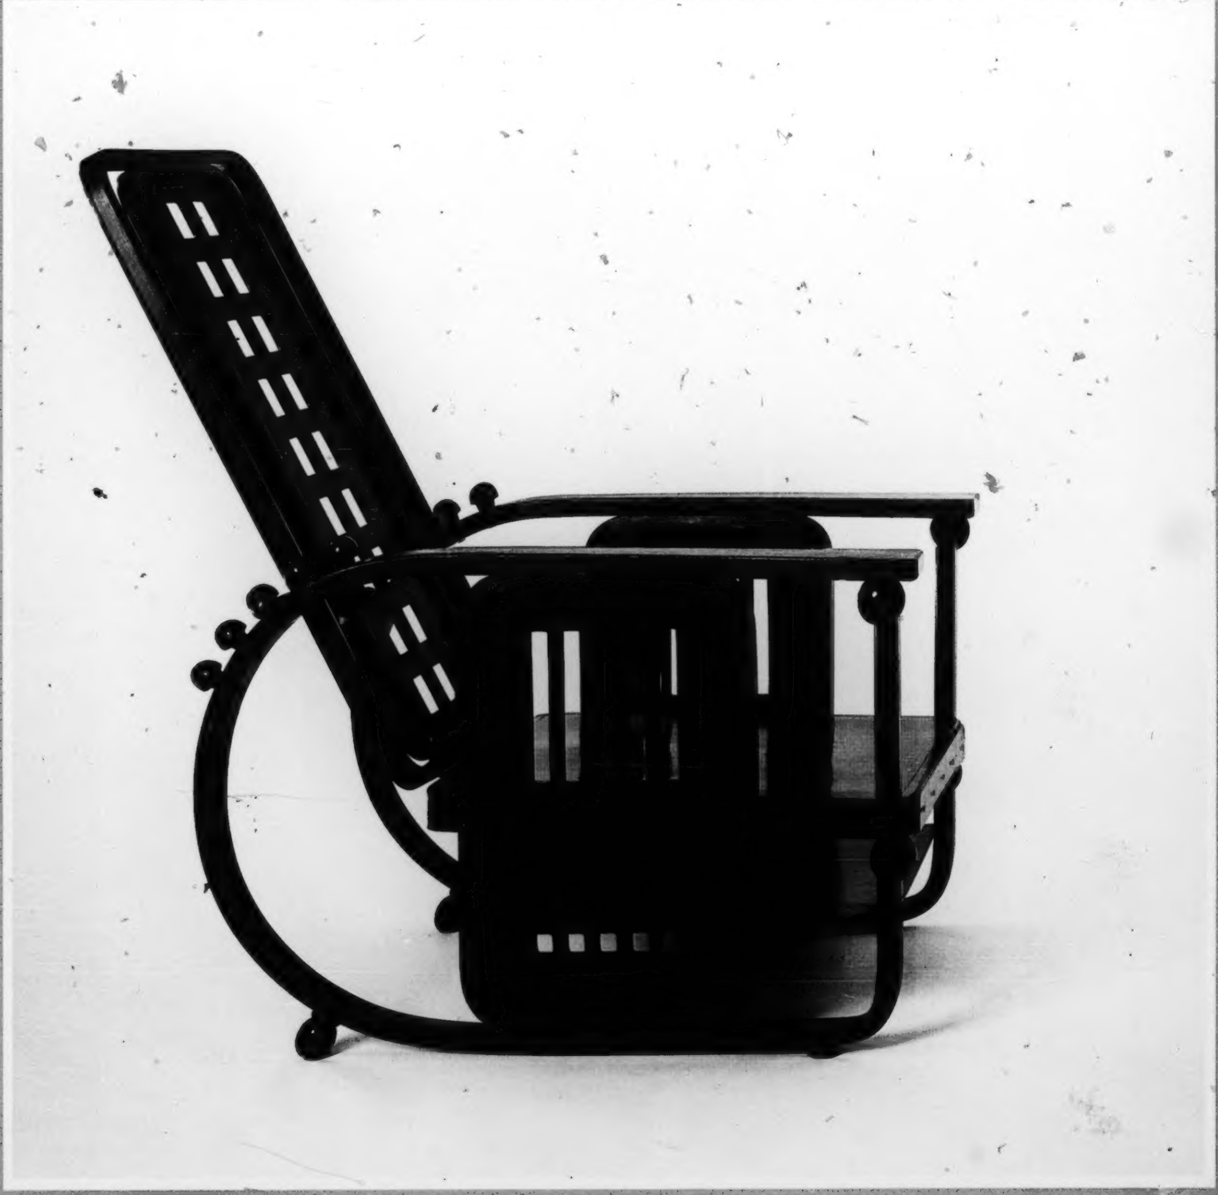
1900-2000 GALLERY

8, RUE BONAPARTE, 75006 PARIS. TEL: 325 84 20



JOSEPH HOFFMANN

"Sitzmaschine." 1905, Vienna, Austria. Rare example of period bent-wood furniture.

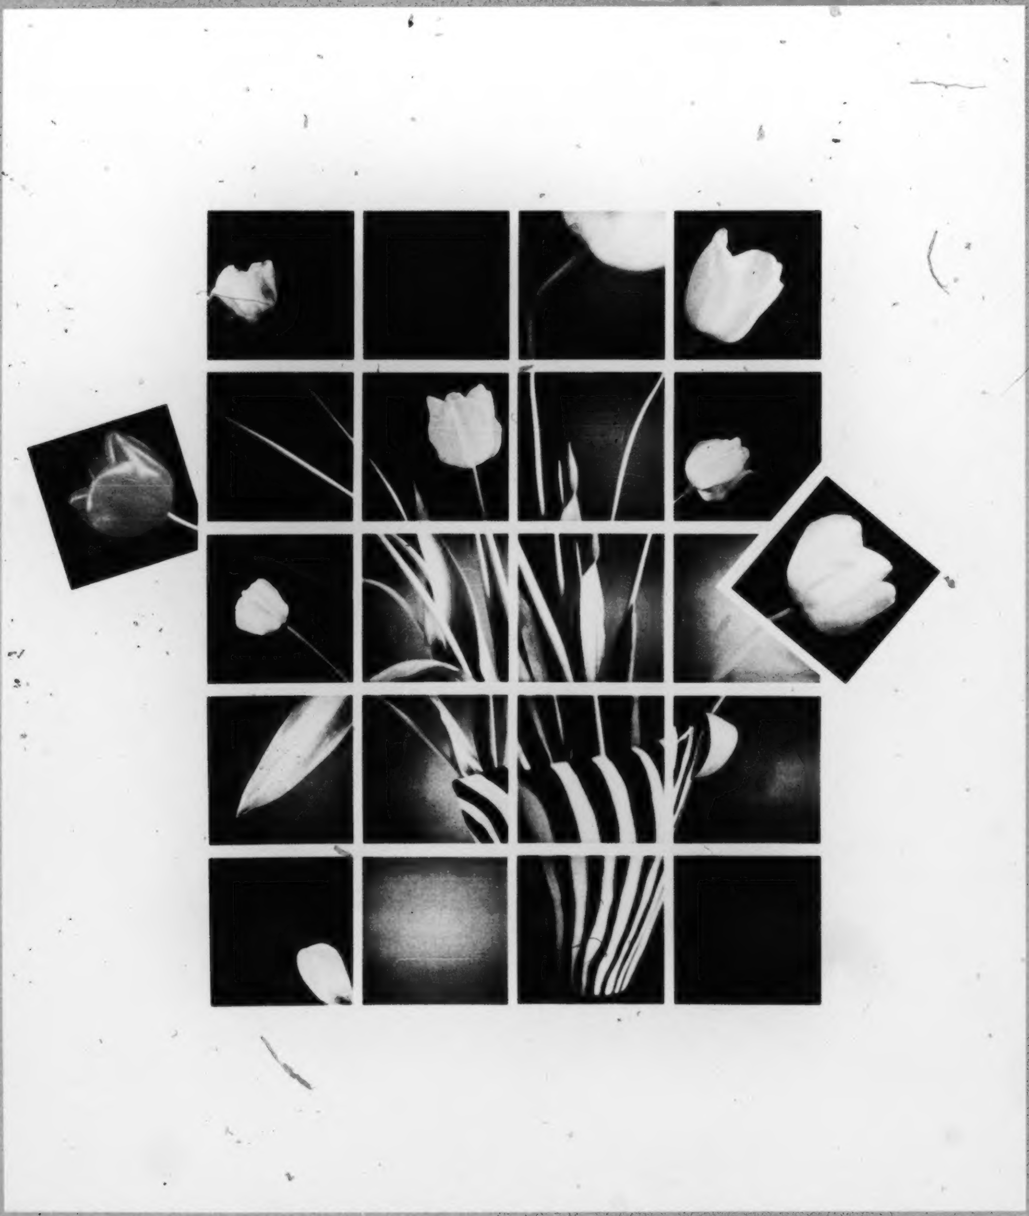
GALUCHAT

NELE HAAS STOCLET. ART NOUVEAU - ART DECO - ART CONTEMPORAIN
182 AVENUE LOUISE, 1050 BRUSSELS. TEL: (2) 647 45 40

VOL
7
1
ISS
8
S E
1983
UMI

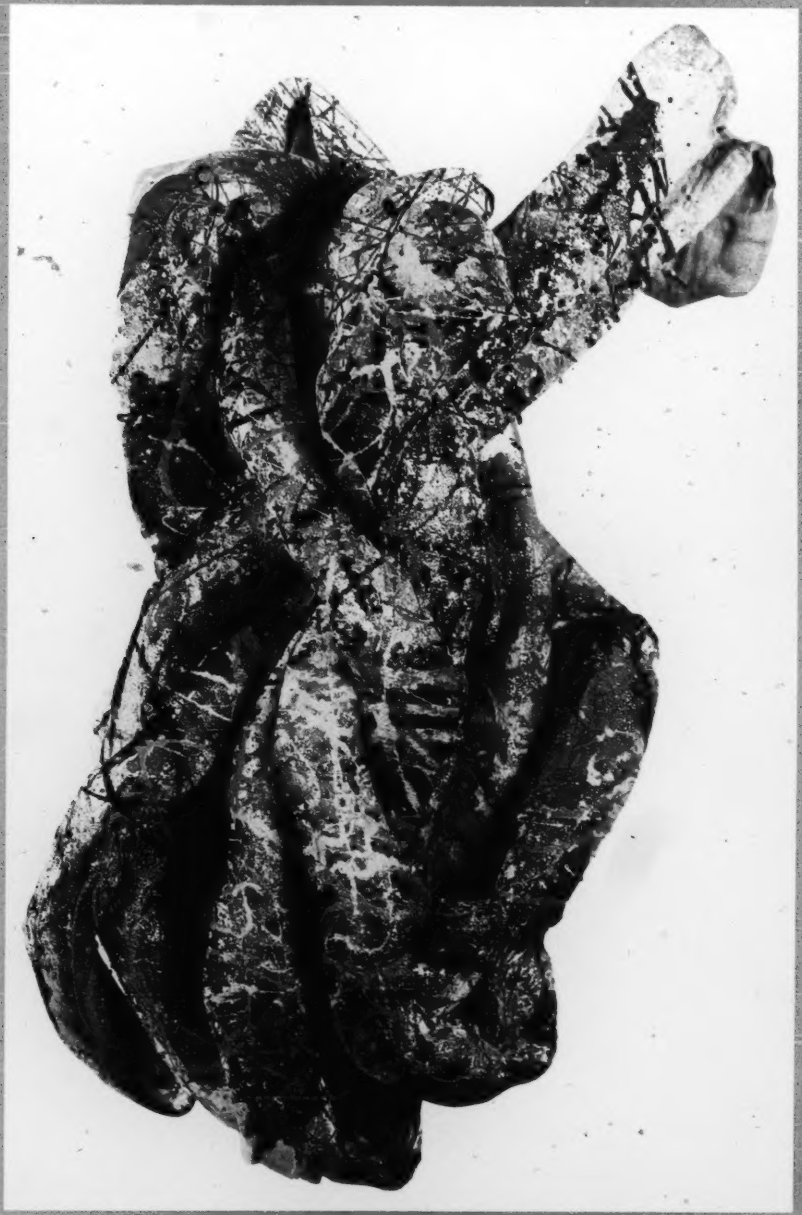


STEFAN DE JAEGER

"Tulipes" taken from the portfolio "Fleurs Coupées" - 4 cibachrome prints, 56 x 56 cm., edition of 20, hand signed, inquiries invited. Published by Contretype, Brussels 1983. "Stefan De Jaeger" a monography illustrated in full-color, published by Créatis (96 p., 39 ill.) available for $25 from Post-Scriptum.

103, RUE D'ESPAGNE, 1060 BRUSSELS

ESPACE PHOTOGRAPHIQUE CONTRETYPE/
POST-SCRIPTUM
37, RUE DES EPERONNIERS, 1000 BRUSSELS



LYNDA BENGLIS

Omega. 1973. Sparkle, enamel and silver paint on plaster, cotton bunting and aluminum screen.
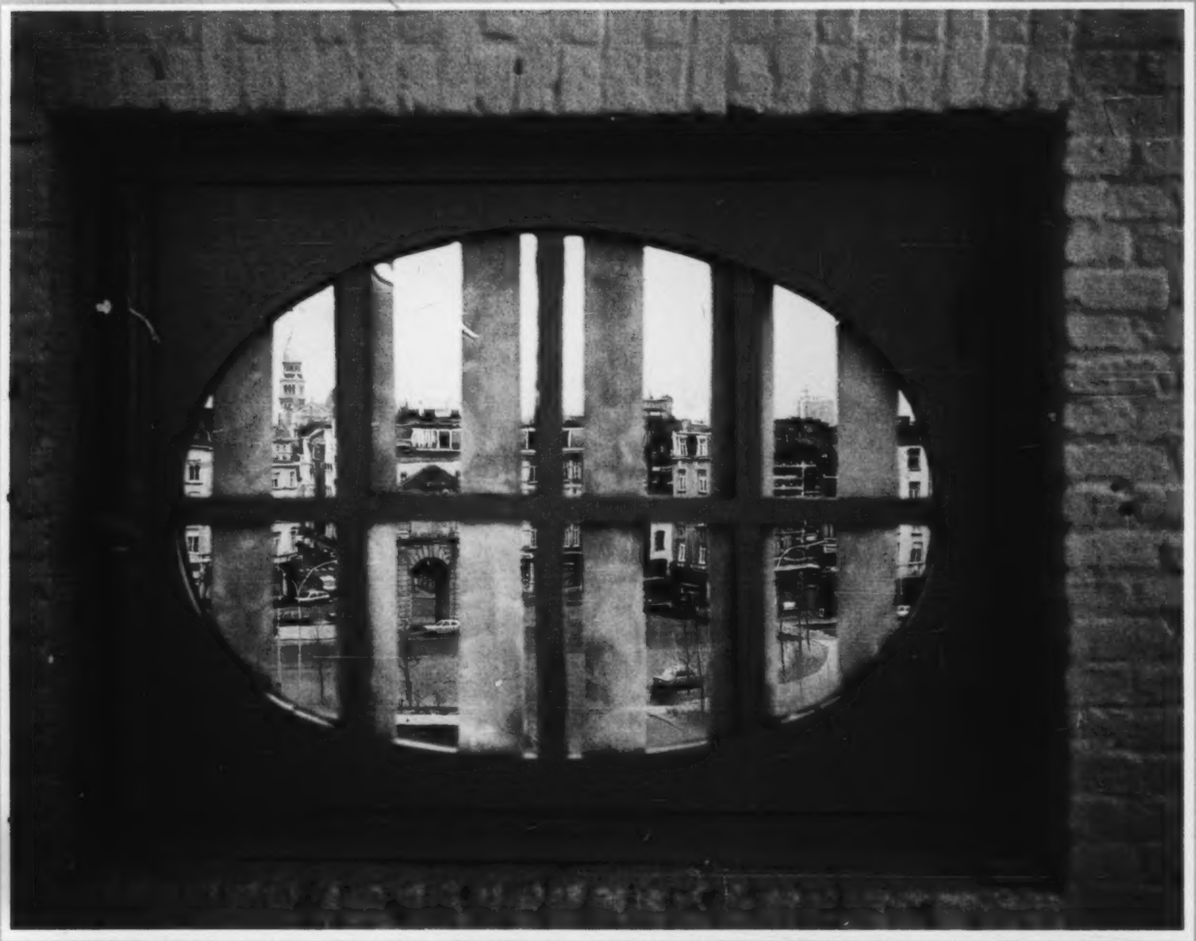
36 x 11 x 14½'' (91.5 x 28 x 37 cm.)

ALBERT BARONIAN

89 AV. EMILE DE BECO, 1050 BRUSSELS. TEL: (2) 647 34 14

VOL
7
1
ISS
8
S E
1983
UMI



DANIEL BUREN

"Eclats-Miroitements" (detail). January 1983. 86 x 120 cm.

MICHELE LACHOWSKY
47 WAALSE KAAI, B-2000 ANTWERP. TEL: (3) 237 23 93

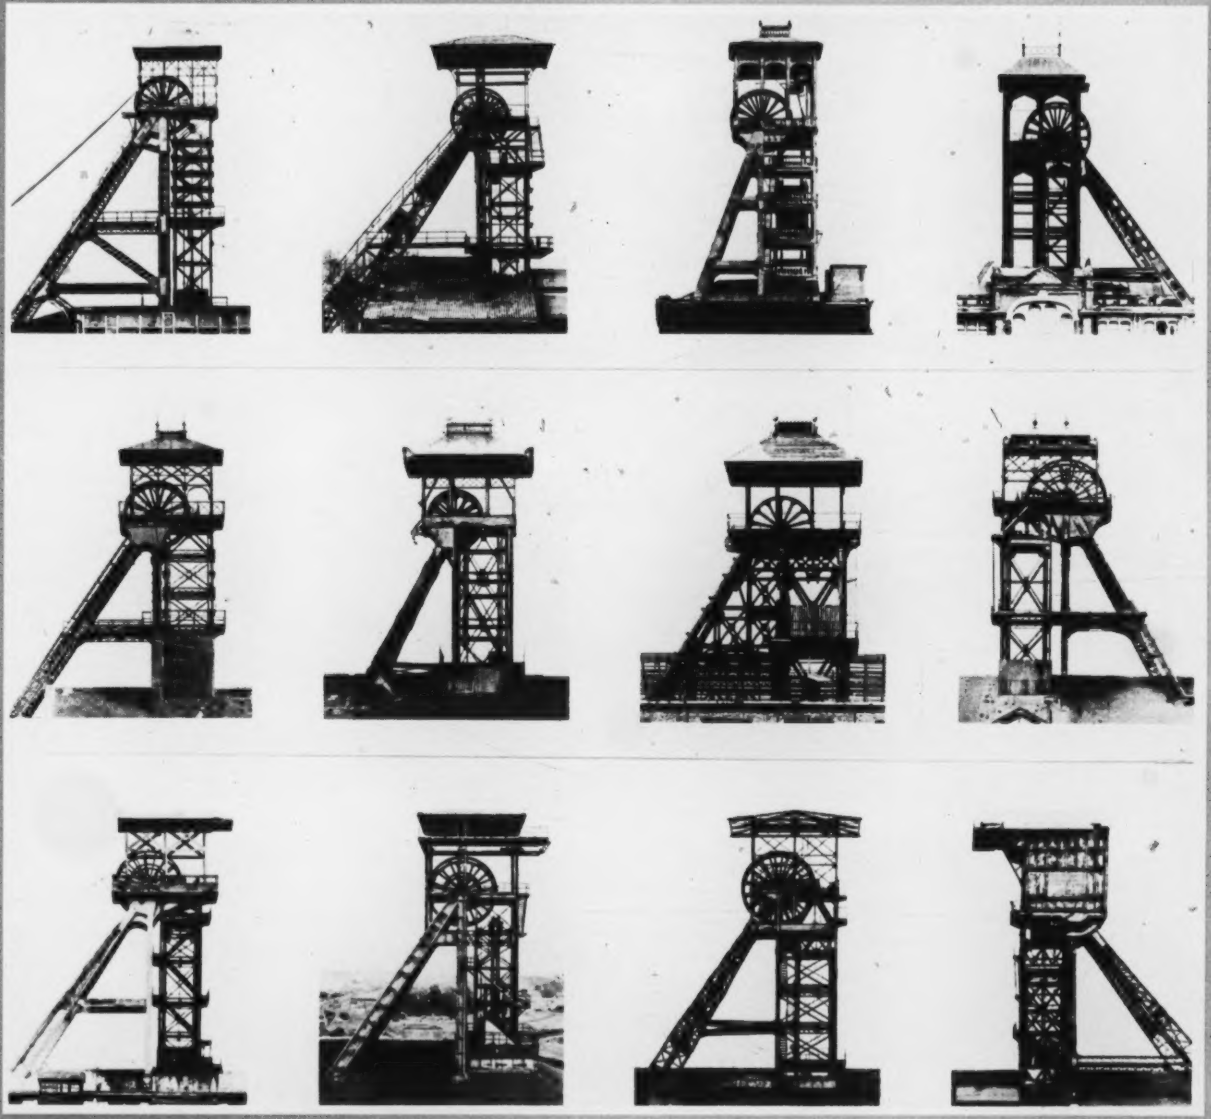

Photo credit: Herté

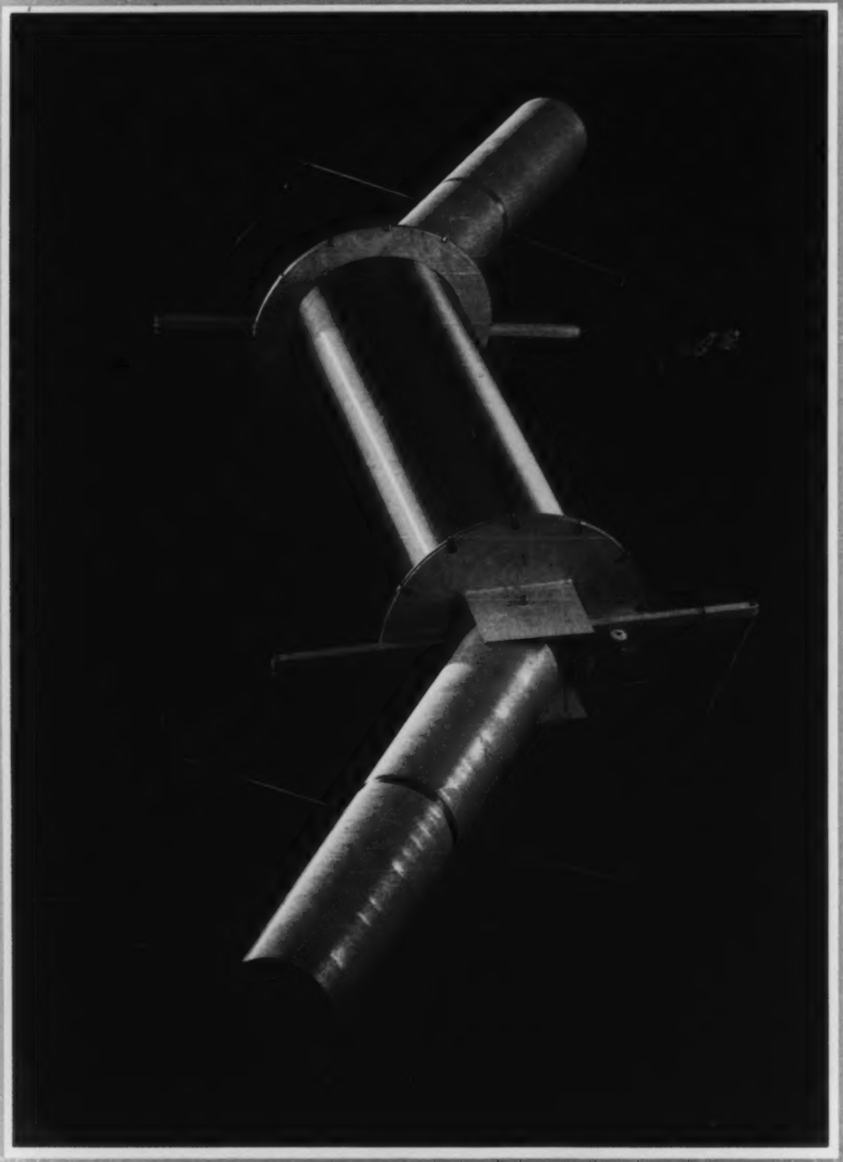
BERND AND HILLA BECHER

Windingtowers 1978-1980 Belgium and France

GALERIE VEGA

5 RUE DE STRIVAY, 4051 NEUPRE (LIEGE) TEL: (041) 80.22.70

VOL
7
1
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI



PANAMARENKO

Maquette Flying Tiger · Object, mixed media, 150 x 60 x 40 cm. Exhibition, October 1983, catalogue on request

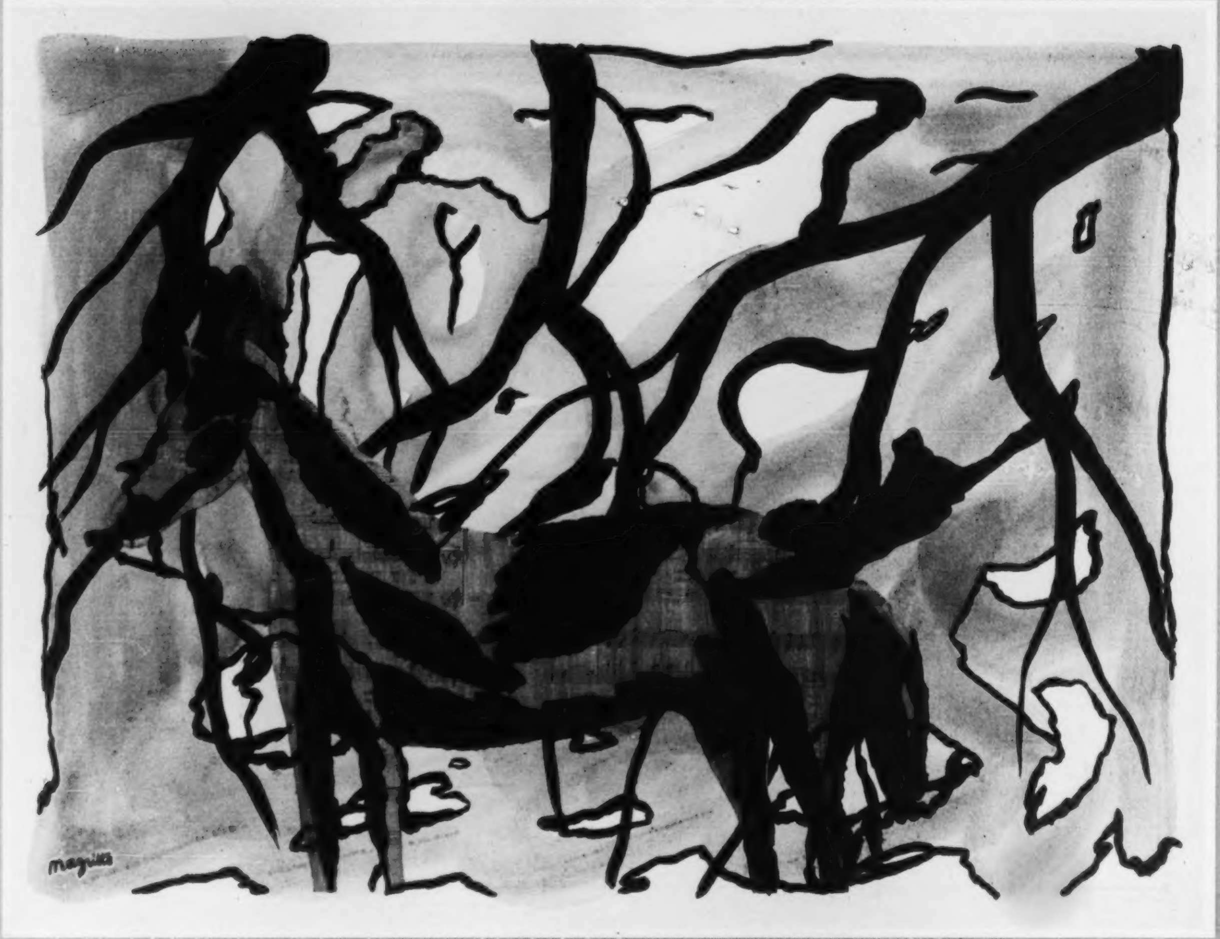
DEWEER ART GALLERY
TIEGEMSTRAAT 9 B8562 ZWEVEGEM-OTEGEM TEL: (56) 64 42 86 / 64 41 13



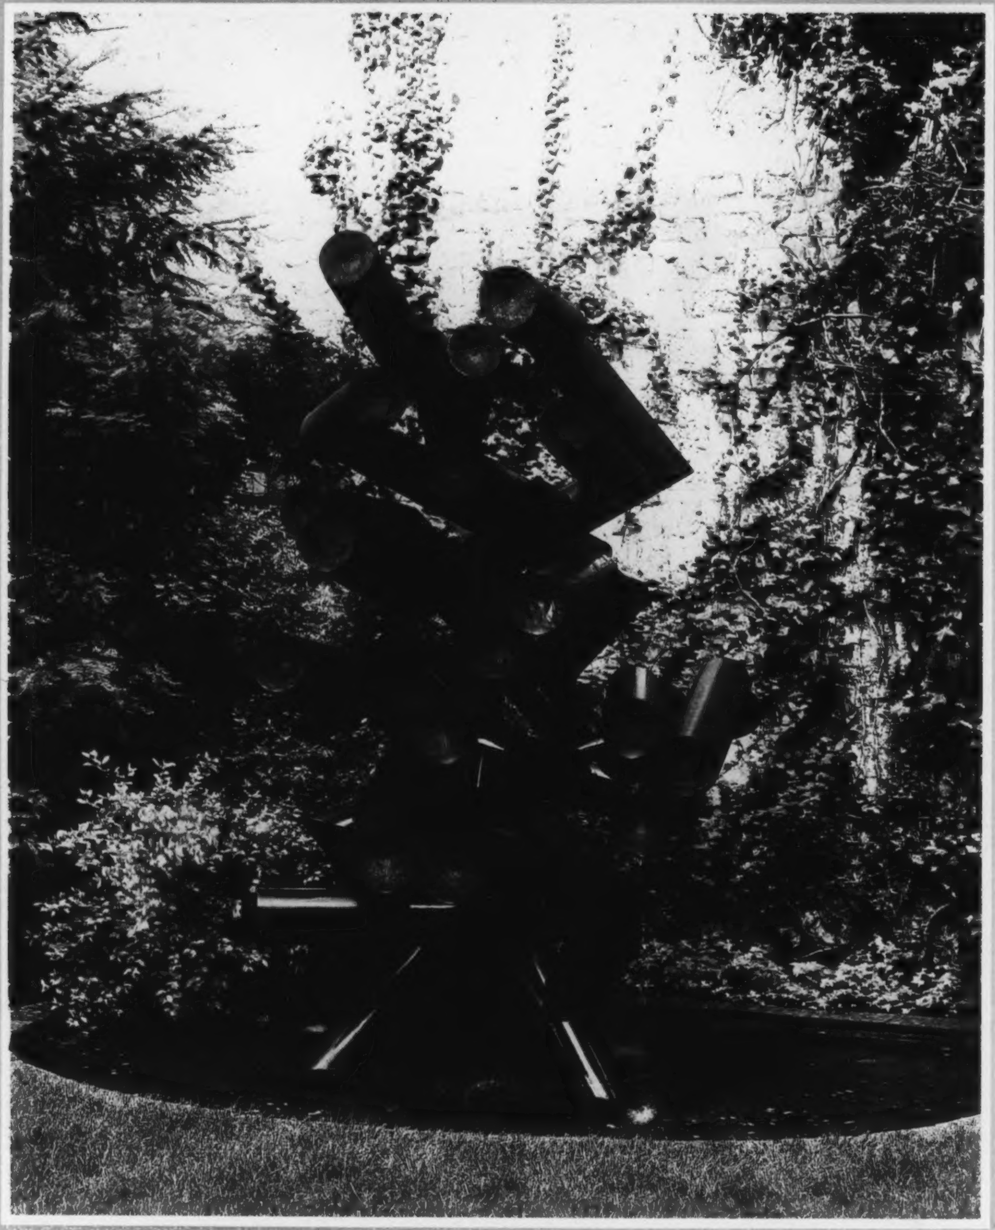
MAGRITTE

"Untitled," 1927. Gouache, lavis and collage. 47 x 56 cm. Provenance: E.L.T. Messens, Exposition, Galerie Le Centaure, 1927; Galerie L'Epoque. In Sylvester's catalogue raisonné.

GALERIE MAURICE KEITELMAN

CREARTE, 9 RUE DE LA PAILLE, SABLON, 1000 BRUSSELS. TEL: (2) 511 36 80

VOL
71
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI



POL BURY

"Fontaine." Corten steel. 2 m 60 x 1 m 60 x 2 m. Private collection, Paris

LENS FINE ART
MECHELSESTEENWEG 146, B-2018 ANTWERP. TEL: (3) 237 58 57 / 237 13 06

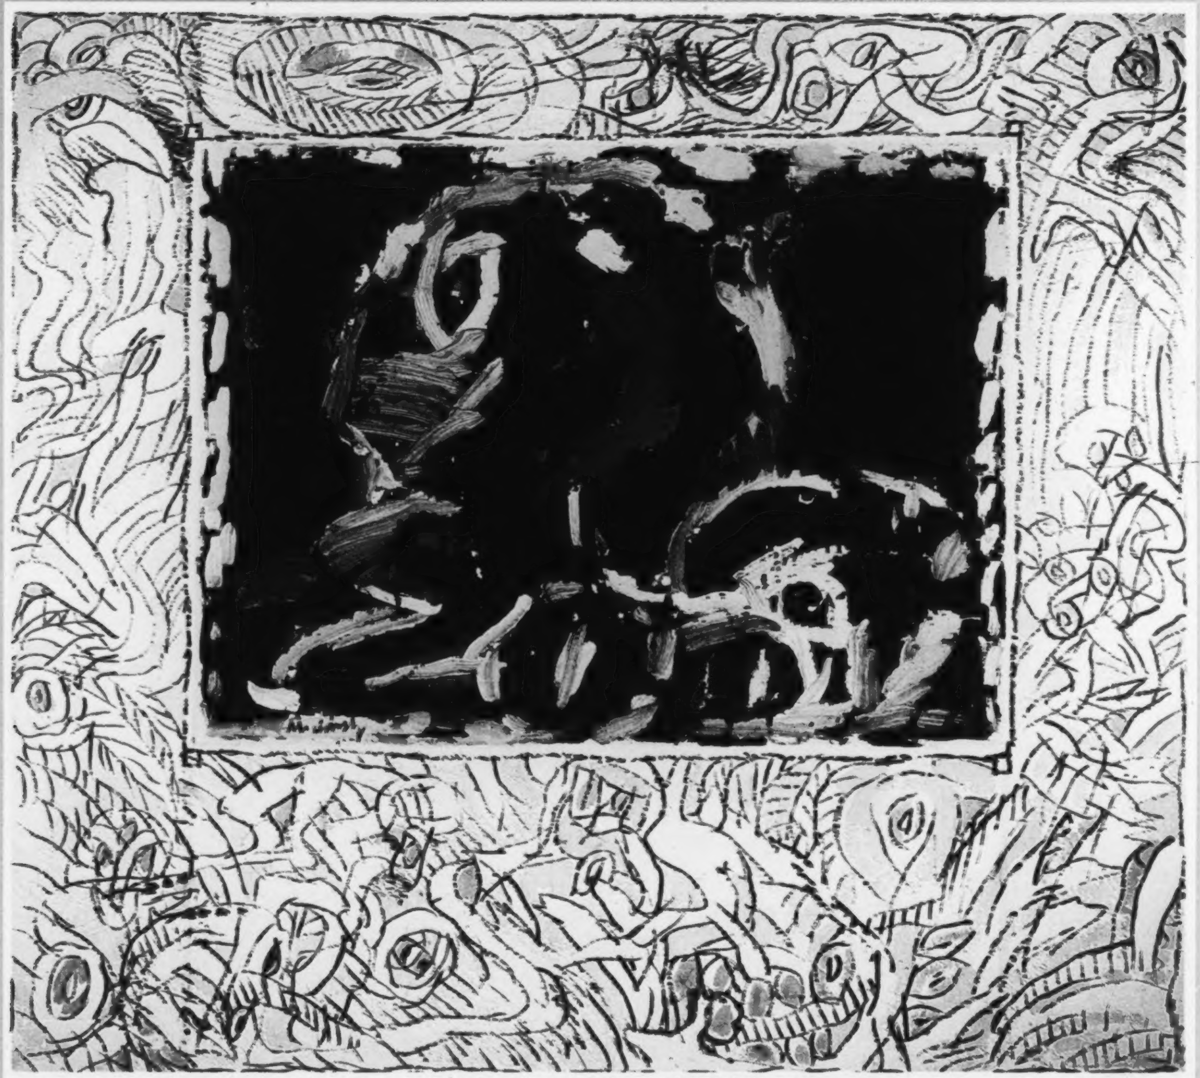


Photo Credit: Bernd Urban

PIERRE ALECHINSKY

"The Whole Man Must Move At Once." 1980. Acrylic on canvas 205 x 228 cm

LENS FINE ART

MECHELSESTEENWEG 146, B-2018 ANTWERP. TEL: (3) 237 68 57 / 237 13 06

VOL
71
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI

Photo Credit: Andre Morain

PIERRE KLOSSOWSKI

"L'Effraction du Tabernacle," 1982. Colored pencil on paper mounted on canvas. 210 × 150 cm.

LENS FINE ART

MECHELSESTEENWEG 146, B-2018 ANTWERP. TEL: (3) 237 68 57 / 237 13 06

FOUNDATION VERANNEMAN

9770 Kruishoutem (Belgium) 91-83.52.87

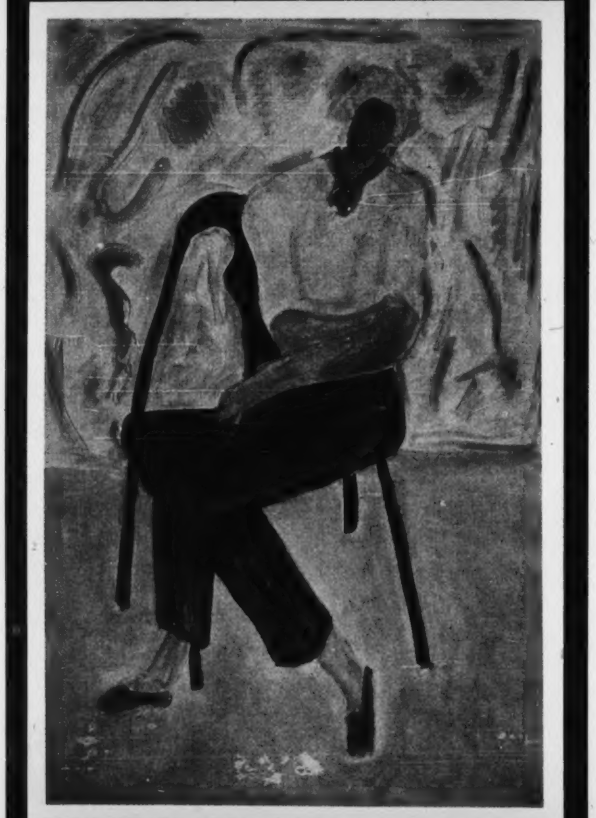
representing

Botero • Bram Bogart • Dodeigne • Vic Gentils
Gilioli • Hamaguchi • Lindstrom • Ljuba
Mara • Raveel • Vasarely • Wunderlich

Tuesday-Saturday 2 - 6 p.m.

VOL
71
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI

MILTON AVERY

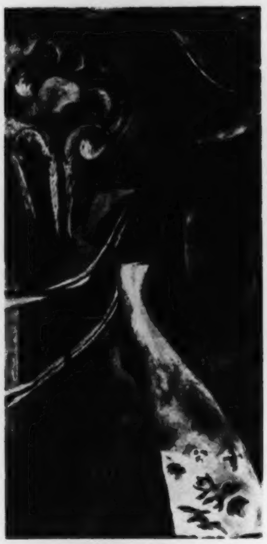


ARTIST'S WIFE OIL 50" x 36" 1960

KORNBLUTH GALLERY
7-21 FAIR LAWN AVENUE
FAIR LAWN, NEW JERSEY
201-791-3374

Also showing works by Will Barnet, Byron Browne, Wolf Kahn, Louis Lozowick, Georgia O'Keeffe.

ALEXANDRA ANTIC
Paintings



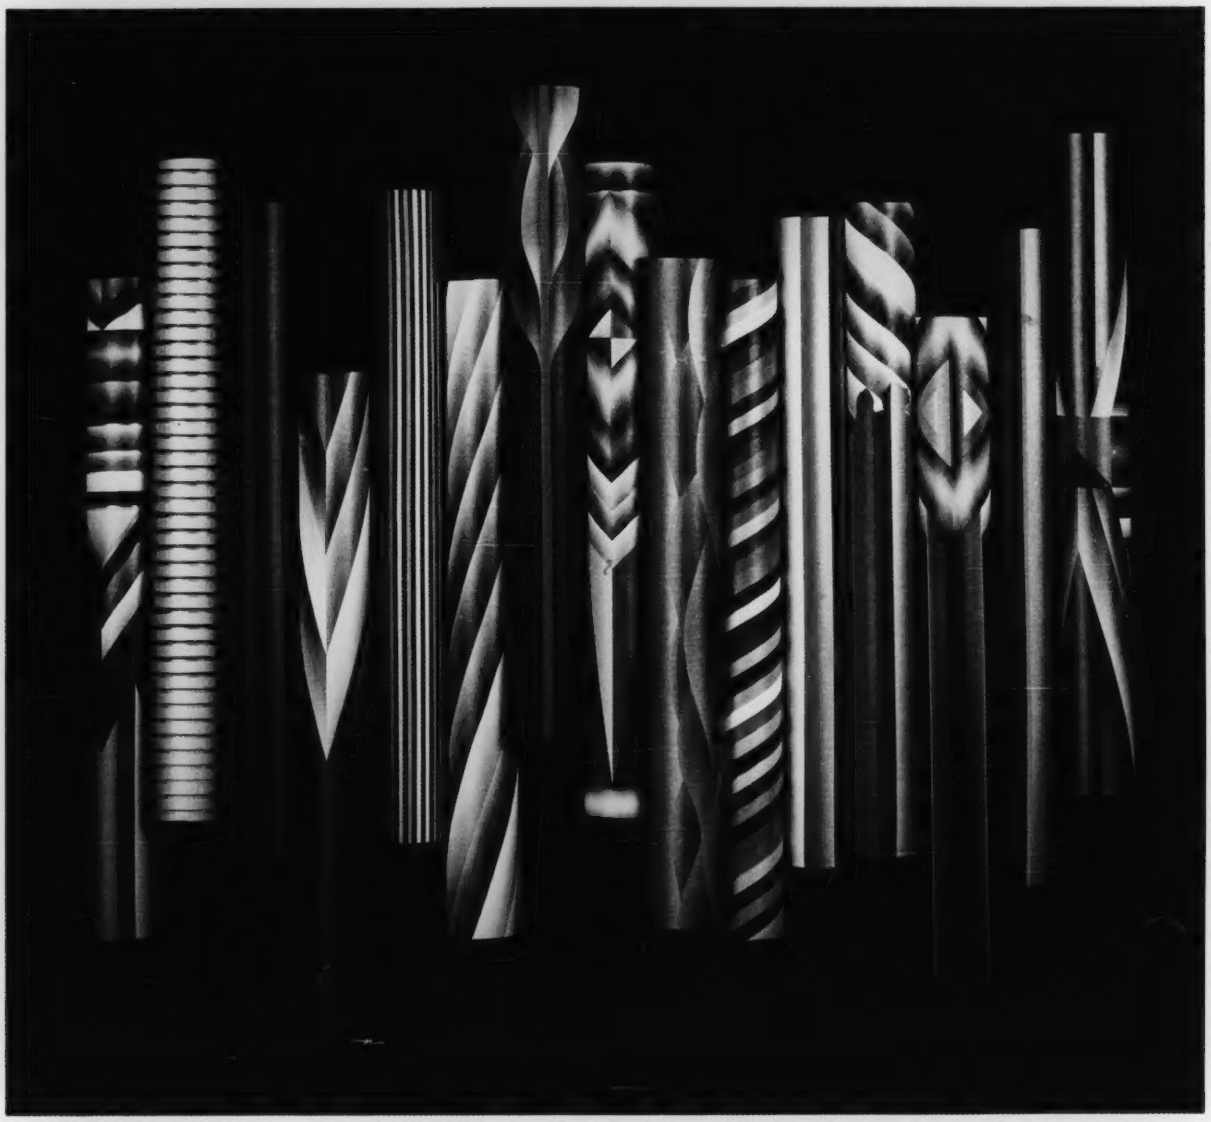
'The Longest Day',
1983, acrylic on paper, 30" x 60"

IMPRESSIONS GALLERY
275 Dartmouth Street, Boston MA 02116 (617) 262-0783

ANDREA
ROSENBERG

Sept. 10 — Oct. 4, 1983

CAROL TAYLOR, Art
2508 cedar springs dallas, texas 75201 (214) 745-1923



The Cocktail Party acrylic, canvas, pvc H-55" L-60" D-7"

George Snyder

Sept. 17 Los Llanos Gallery Sante Fe, New Mexico
Sept. 30 Art Expo — Texas Dallas, Texas
Oct. City Art Gallery Grand Rapids, Michigan
Dec. Eva Cohon Gallery Highland Park, Illinois

Exclusive Representation:

Arts Focus, Inc.

401 Capitol St., Charleston, WV 25301 (304) 345-9059
San Francisco Bay Area: 3708 Mt. Diablo Blvd., Suite 210, Lafayette, CA 94549 (415)284-7703

VOL
71
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI

Harald Sohlberg:* Night, *1904, oil on canvas, 44 ½ by 52 ¾ inches. Trøndelag Kunstgalleri, Trondheim, Norway.

Souls on Ice

The exhibition "Northern Light" successfully traced the emergence of Symbolism in turn-of-the-century Scandinavian painting, but it also raised serious questions about the adequacy of the art-historical notion of an instinctive national style.

BY MARCIA E. VETROCQ

The show "Northern Light: Realism and Symbolism in Scandinavian Painting 1880-1910," which concluded its tour in Minneapolis last April, more than fulfilled its promise of introducing the American audience to largely unfamiliar artists and to paintings of superlative quality and profoundly compelling imagery.[1] Ninety-four works by 36 painters spanned three critical decades in the development of modern European art in general, and Scandinavian national art in particular. The fortunate visitors to the exhibition found the experience nothing short of a revelation. For their more enduring effect on art history, the issues raised—and occasionally sidestepped—by the show and its catalogue are serious, challenging and deeply consequential.

As an exhibition and an idea, "Northern Light" was shaped by curator Kirk Varnedoe, associate professor of art history at New York University's Institute of Fine Arts. Varnedoe (who worked with Sarah Faunce of the Brooklyn museum) skipped the conventional encyclopedic survey of the period and proceeded directly to the selective and focused approach acknowledged in the exhibition's subtitle and articulated in his catalogue essay:

> Despite the varying local conditions of the Scandinavian nations, there is at least one common pattern in the development of their painting . . . . First, around 1880, the relative isolation of Scandinavian art was broken by an incursion of modern European Realism and Naturalism . . . . Then, around 1890, a second major change occurred, as Scandinavia's international orientation of the 1880s was replaced by a strong resurgence of nationalist, isolationist sentiment that brought Scandinavian painters back to their homelands. Turning to native-Nordic themes, these painters generally abandoned the French Realism that had marked their earlier work and adopted a variety of styles distinguished by the deepened subjectivity, unnatural color, and more obtrusive formal patterning associated with Symbolism.[2]

The exhibition diagrammed a transformation of sensibility and style from the sober and arrestingly sincere Realism of the 1880s to the more self-conscious but no less earnest Symbolism of the following decades. Interiors and landscapes became the vehicles for conveying and arousing states of feeling whose signature qualities of individual isolation and silent communion with the land were understood to be native in origin. Since the attentive Naturalism of the Scandinavians had admitted little of Impressionism's concern with ephemeral visual phenomena, it was uniquely disposed toward conversion into a fixed and ardent inner vision.

This development did not take place in artistic isolation. Firsthand knowledge of the advanced painting of France, Germany and England was forged into a new and distinct expression by the heat of nationalism, and cooled to tolerance by fin-de-siècle disillusionment with materialism and positivism. Nearly all of the artists in Peder S. Krøyer: Summer Evening on the South Beach at Skagan, 1893, oil on canvas, 39 ⅜ by 59 inches. Skagens Museum, Denmark.

VOL 7 1 ISS 8 SE 1983 UMI

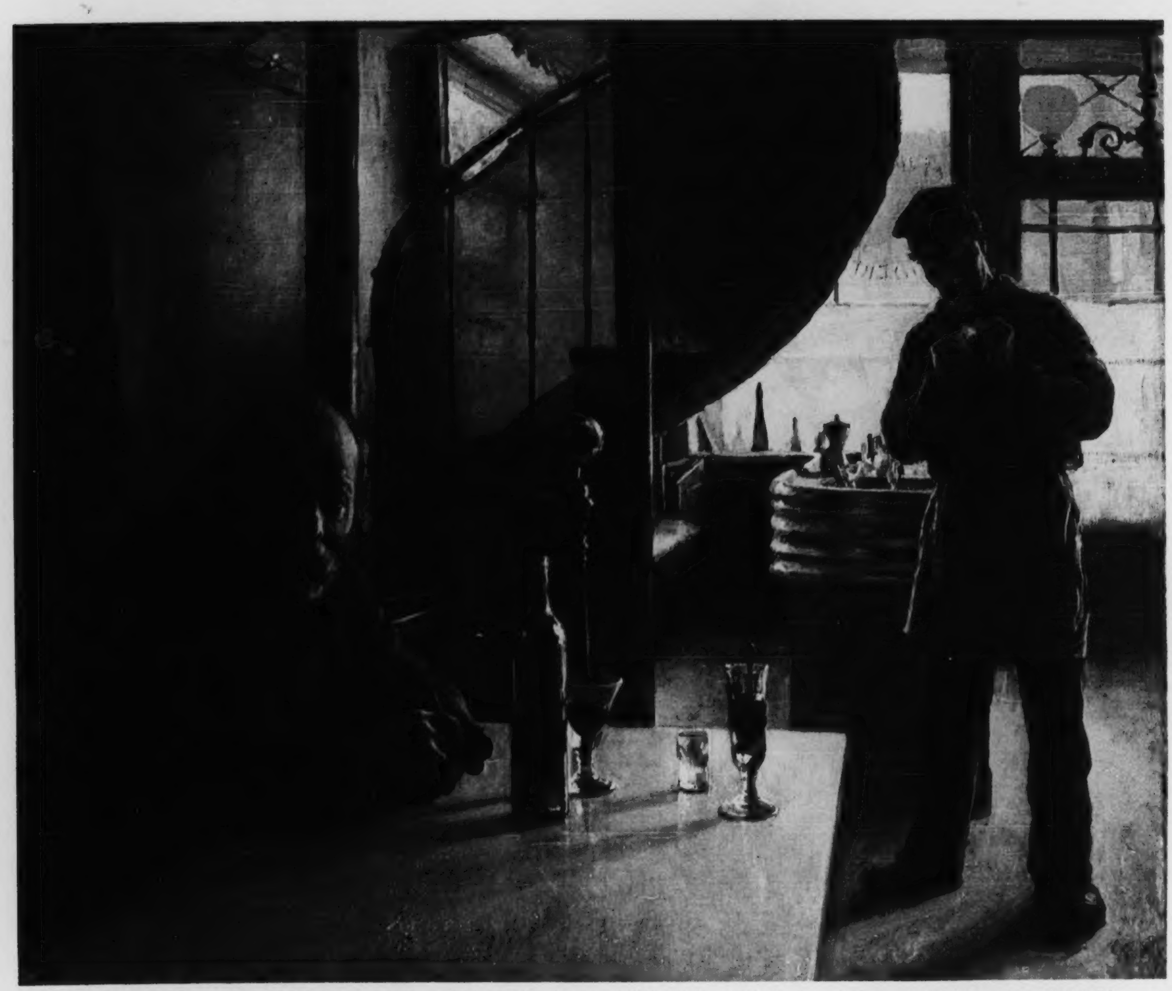
"Northern Light" had traveled widely, many studying in Paris with Bonnat, Bastien-Lepage, Bouguereau, Puvis de Chavannes and Robert-Fleury. Works by Harriet Backer, Albert Edelfelt and Peder Severin Krøyer were accepted into the Paris Salon, while Akseli Gallen-Kallela became the first Finn to join the Société Nationale des Beaux Arts. Returning to their native countries, cleansed of provincial insecurities, the Scandinavian painters consolidated their ideas in the art schools and bohemian circles of Stockholm and Christiania (Oslo), and confirmed their sense of a separate, valid Nordic identity in remote artists' colonies at Skagen (Denmark), Karelia (Finland), and Varmland and Varberg (Sweden). Awareness of the international Arts and Crafts Movement led some to explore folk art and tapestry design, while Finnish resentment of Russian dominion and Norway's resistance to its union with Sweden lent pride and urgency to the illustration of native medieval sagas and to the representation of the Nordic landscape as patrimony and destiny.

The selection of works dramatized this change of content and intent, and permitted abbreviated surveys of individual careers along with comparisons of interpretations and of salient themes. Eero Järnefelt was represented by a work from his Paris years, Lefranc, Wine Merchant (1888), a garnet and amber tour de force of captured light, as well as by a Finnish lakeside view of attenuated autumnal melancholy done some 17 years later. Of the Skagen works by the cosmopolitan Dane Peder Severin Krøyer, The Artists' Luncheon (1883) invites comparison with the painterly verve of Renoir's Luncheon of the Boating Party, while the Summer Evening on the South Beach at Skagen (1893) displays the tender blues, the Jugendstil-inflected line, and the preoccupation with the light and mood of the Scandinavian summer night which characterized the Symbolism of the 1890s.

If any one artist presided over the exhibition, it was Akseli Gallen-Kallela. In a lengthy career which touched every artistic base from Paris to Taos, Gallen-Kallela abandoned his initial Naturalism for an assured and untroubled Symbolism largely devoted to themes of Finnish nationhood, a textbook case for the exhibition's thesis. His Waterfall at Mäntykoski assumed the stature of an altarpiece by virtue of its commanding size, insistent verticality and central installation among the exhibition's landscapes. Released from the constraints of illusionism by its decoratively patterned frame and by the five golden harpstrings painted across its surface, the crystalline portrayal of rockface and cascade celebrates the irresistible lure of the land.

Of the themes which could be followed across time and careers, perhaps none so well exemplified the intensification of vision as the two-character dramas enacted by the solitary human figure and the window. In Harriet Backer's Blue Interior (1883), a coloristic meditation on domestic diligence and intimacy, the obliquely placed window provides not an exterior view but an aperture to admit the silvery light which permeates the room as a breathing, lingering presence. For Karl Gustav Jensen-Hjell's At the Window (1887), the blanched and chilly window scene serves as the foil to the warmly colored interior where the model, painter Kalle Løchen, reads amid a collection of Orientalia and a copy of Puvis de Chavannes's The Sacred Grove. In the manner of Manet's Portrait of Zola and Degas's Portrait of Tissot, Jensen-Hjell constructed a painter's manifesto which renounces illusionism—the painting-as-window—for a synthetic vision. The silhouetted figure in Edvard Munch's Night (1890) stares unseeingly from the shadowy interior to the glow of twilight reflected on the Seine, an image of painful reverie and the privacy of the self. With Eugene Janssen's Self-Portrait (1901) arrives the total assertion of the individual. The artist stands before four windows framing suggestive views of a light-ringed bay, views easily interpreted as a quadripartite screen of Janssen's own landscape paintings: the very view outside has become a projection of artistic subjectivity.

Karl G. Jensen-Hjell:* At the Window, *1887, oil on canvas, 29 by 39 ⅛ inches. Nasjonalgalleriet, Oslo.



Eero Järnefelt:* Lefranc, Wine Merchant, Boulevard de Clichy, Paris, *1888, 24 by 29 ⅛ inches. Ateneumin Taidemuseo, Helsinki.

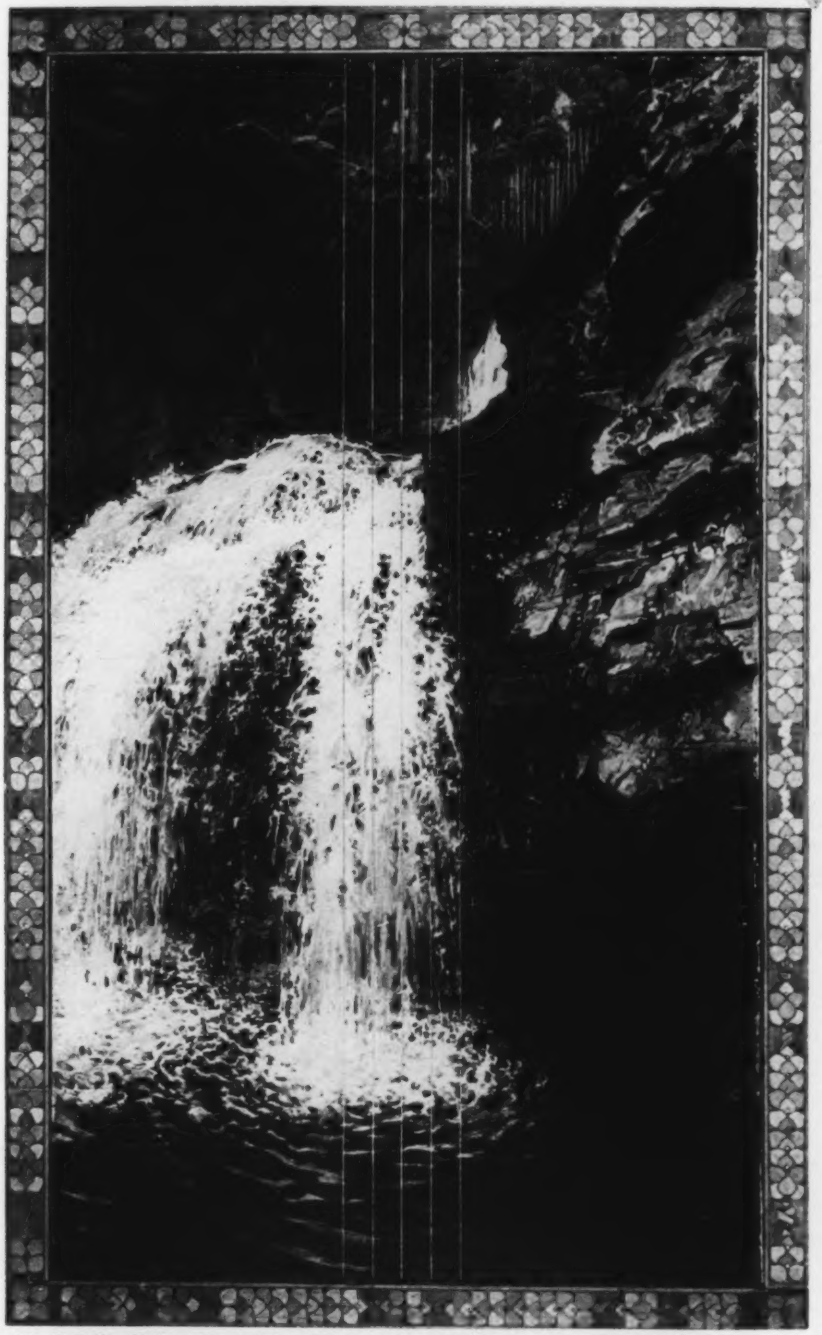
Northern Light" opened up fresh territory for art historical thought, introducing personalities worthy of further research, suggesting spiritual parallels to Gauguin in Brittany and the German landscape painters at Worpswede, enlarging the context in which to understand Kandinsky's study of folklore, testifying to the inexhaustible expressive power of Symbolism's blue palette in the years between the art of Whistler and the young Picasso. Regrettably, the insistent chronological format of the exhibition (the catalogue is alphabetically organized) so strongly asserted a progress toward the goal of an "authentic" Scandinavian art as to imply a kind of inevitability of Symbolism, as well as to encourage an undervaluation of the originality of earlier "impure" works. The good news is that the emphasis on the broad embrace of Symbolism by Scandinavian painters may spur a reconsideration of the star status of Edvard Munch. Seen among his contemporaries, Munch appears neither preeminent nor more authentic, but as a flawed and gifted purveyor of febrile anxiety rooted in a nasty misogyny.

A strong antidote to Munch fever is the work of fellow Norwegian Harald Sohlberg, who is a master of a mesmerizing blend of spatial infinity and miniaturistic execution. His glowing Summer Night (1899) suggests the abrupt departure of aroused lovers from a terrace supper. By embedding the moment in the more traditional imagery of the interrupted meal which signifies the arrival of Death, Sohlberg endowed the association between sexuality and death with a gentle fatalism which makes Munch's death-dealing vampiresses seem a bit overwrought. Even more impressive is Sohlberg's Night (1904), a radically centralized painting of a mining town and its church. The work brings to mind van Gogh's paintings of the chapel at Neunen but bereft of the consolation of faith. Sohlberg's church turns its blank face and imprisoned light to the cemetery, separates—but cannot protect—the houses from the temporality of the smelter's smokestack, promises not salvation but only brief mortality and then a falling away.

The puzzle at the heart of the exhibition is how and why Symbolism's landscapes and lovers came to supplant Naturalism's sardine canneries and net menders as the authentic imagery of Scandinavian life. Without specifying the mechanism, Varnedoe observes that "Symbolism's general concentration on

VOL
71
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI



Akseli Gallen-Kallela:* Waterfall at Mäntykoski, *1892–94, 106 ¼ by 61 ½ inches.

nature mysticism and the inner life of pre-civilized man received a special impetus by linkage to a collective mythologizing of Nordic national identities." A suggestive comparison might be made between the Scandinavian situation and that of the United States in the 20th century, where neither Regionalism nor Social Realism but Abstract Expressionism was hailed as the "triumph of American painting."[3] Neither Curry's Kansas baptisms nor Shahn's heroic welders qualified as the distinctive and pure American statement. To borrow Varnedoe's formulation, it could be said that the aggressive individuality of Action Painting received a special impetus by its linkage to a collective mythologizing about the American national identity: big canvases for a big country, risk-taking gestures for a broad-shouldered people too forthright for the practice of a prissy European abstraction. In both Scandinavia and the United States, the general premises of style—and not the specificity of truly local and humanistically oriented subject matter—presented the nation as an instinctual, not a political, entity.

Curator Varnedoe bravely suggests that the predominance of Symbolism be seen as part of a European-wide reactionary moment, even as the co-authors of his catalogue herald the "triumph of Scandinavian painting."

It is generally accepted that post-war cultural pride (imperialism?), collector confidence and advocacy criticism were essential for the success of American abstraction. Likewise in Scandinavia, patronage and the art market were key factors in the ascendance of Symbolism. Of the nine patrons discussed in the catalogue, all but Prins Eugen of Sweden were members of the financial-manufacturing class.[4] Two were even owners of major pulp and paper mills—industrial consumers of the natural patrimony. Furthermore, most of the patron-collectors offered extraordinary financial support to their artists. For the upper bourgeois collector, to encourage an eternal and generalizing view of culture—in place of one which documents the historical particularities of labor and poverty—is to neutralize the potentially critical position of the artist. For their part, the painters returning from abroad in the 1880s had to contend with their nations' traditional patterns of buying conservative, often German, art. Those artists who participated in occasional left-wing associations and collective agitation achieved not social revolution but access to the academies, exhibitions and collections. The success of Symbolist painting in the 1890s represents a rapprochement between artist and society concluded in the name of antiprogressive and isolationist nationalism. Varnedoe twice bravely suggests that the predominance of Symbolism be understood as part of a European-wide reactionary moment,[5] even as his co-authors, one from each of the five nations represented, herald the "triumph of Scandinavian painting."

The foregoing reconstruction, based on the catalogue's data, suggests the wealth of new questions and problems which should be addressed in the wake of "Northern Light." That the inquiry has been postponed so long may be attributed to a formally oriented mainstream art history which achieved what Napoleon had only dreamt of—the centralization of attention on Paris as the bellwether of modern artistic progress. The breakthrough for the discipline was Robert Rosenblum's Modern Painting and the Northern Romantic Tradition (1975), which brilliantly described a wholly other, non-Parisian tradition of "subject, feeling, and structure."[6] What remains unresolved is the delicate issue of the source of the separate Nordic sensibility. Ineluctable atavistic current? Environmental determinism? Cultural aspirations in search of an instrument? Avoidance of this issue may be explained in part by the fear of descent into the kind of rhetoric so chillingly exemplified by the aging Wölfflin in a work of 1931:

> Dürer had never intended to sacrifice German art to Italian art; he took whatever he needed, without letting himself be driven from the native soil in which his imagination was rooted . . . the various styles of a country do contain a common element that stems from the soil, from the race . . . Dürer's problems are imposed on the German people as if by destiny and will knock at their doors again and again.[7]

Harriet Backer: Blue Interior, 1883, oil on canvas, 33 by 26 inches. Nasjonalgalleriet, Oslo.

VOL
7
1

ISS
8

SE

1983

UMI

Scandinavian Symbolism was a pact between artist and society concluded in the name of isolationist nationalism.

That a recent Expressionism exhibition could be subtitled "A German Intuition," and that its catalogue could assert a special view of the world as a Nordic characteristic, simply serves to illustrate the extent to which art history is capable of chasing its own tail.[8] The prior concept of a national-instinctive style governs the format of an exhibition whose works then argue for the adequacy of the idea of a national-instinctive style. More light, northern and southern, is needed for an understanding of the fundamental connections between historical conditions and artistic careers, national style and individual expression. Now that the paintings have been returned to their Scandinavian collections, the lasting effect of "Northern Light" will be to test the terms of the historical discussion thus far and to broaden the perspective for all future debates. ☐

---

1. The exhibition was shown at the Corcoran Gallery of Art, Washington, D. C., the Brooklyn Museum, the Minneapolis Institute of Fine Arts and the Gothenburg Art Gallery, Sweden. Convenience and geopolitics rather than standard usage explain the inclusion of Finland with Sweden, Norway, Denmark and Iceland under the rubric "Scandinavia."
2. Kirk Varnedoe, "Nationalism, Internationalism, and the Progress of Scandinavian Art," pp. 13 and 15, in the exhibition catalogue, published by the Brooklyn Museum.
3. The phrase is from the title of Irving Sandler's well-known study The Triumph of American Painting: A History of Abstract Expressionism, New York, 1970.
4. Tone Skedsmo, "Patronage and Patrimony," pp. 43-51, exhibition catalogue.
5. Varnedoe, op. cit., pp. 18 and 19.
6. Robert Rosenblum, Modern Painting and the Northern Romantic Tradition: Friedrich to Rothko, New York, 1975, pp. 7-8.
7. Heinrich Wölfflin, The Sense of Form in Art, New York, 1958 (first published Munich, 1931), pp. 17, 18, and 230.
8. "Expressionism: A German Intuition, 1905-1920," organized by the Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum, New York, 1980. See introduction to the catalogue by Paul Vogt, p. 16.

Author: Marcia E. Vetrocq is assistant professor of art history at the University of New Orleans.

Harald Sohlberg: Summer Night, *1899, oil on canvas, 44⅞ by 53¼ inches. Nasjonalgalleriet, Oslo. Detail at left.

VOL
7
1
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI

Pablo Picasso:* Still Life with Musical Instruments, *1925–26, oil on canvas, 63 ¾ by 80 ½ inches. Galerie Beyeler, Basel.

On a Hidden Portrait of Marie-Thérèse

Embedded in a large-scale still life executed in the mid-1920s—one of a series of works in which Picasso returned to Cubism only to transform it into a curvilinear style—there is a hidden portrait of Marie-Thérèse Walter which commemorates her introduction into Picasso's life and art.

BY PIERRE DAIX

Detail of Still Life with Musical Instruments (left), showing the incision of Marie-Thérèse's distinctive profile.

Picasso was so discreet about his romance with Marie-Thérèse Walter that it was only at the end of his life that we learned that it had begun in early 1927. Among the works from this period there is an important series of still lifes to which little attention was paid until the 1955 retrospective organized by Maurice Jardot for the Musée des arts décoratifs in Paris. These still lifes are distinguished by an obvious break with the geometric rendering of form in the Cubist still lifes which immediately preceded them; instead, Picasso employed extremely free, curved forms, giving objects aleatory contours reminiscent of living, organic forms. Noting this transformation, Alfred Barr spoke of "free form, a form generated neither by compass and ruler, nor by the direct imitation of natural forms, but rather by the freely curving movement of the Musical Instruments on a Table, 1926, 66 1/8 by 80 3/4 inches. Galerie Beyeler.

VOL 71 ISS 8 SE 1983 UMI

Still Life with a Cake, 1924, oil on canvas, 38 1/2 by 51 1/2 inches. Private collection.

Mandolin and Guitar, 1924, oil and sand on canvas, 55 3/8 by 78 7/8 inches. Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum.

hand which creates half-accidental shapes like those of lakes and clouds, or like certain organic forms such as a liver or an amoeba."[1]

This description is completely accurate, as is Barr's argument that this break with geometry hardly represents a jettisoning of Cubism, but rather marks its transformation into a "curvilinear" style. In fact, these still lifes remain entirely within a Cubist syntax; we find in them the same flattened space, the same combination and recombination of formal elements and the same optical contrast of material effects that characterize so-called Synthetic Cubism, which developed out of the collages of 1913–14.[2]

These observations allow us not only to locate these still lifes in the history of Picasso's art, but also to explain why they have been studied so little before. In 1923, when Picasso began making this new kind of still life, the so-called return to order was triumphant in France. The rebirth of French culture, in the wake of a horrible war from which France had emerged victorious, would have to proceed—or so it was widely believed—under the aegis of classicism, conceived as a specifically Gallic virtue. So that a Cubist like André Lhote could attempt "to reintegrate into the classical tradition those aspects of the work of the last generation of painters which are compatible with the eternal truth of painting." And what aspect of Cubism was thus compatible if not its geometric rendering, its formal order? Indeed, upon his return to Paris after his forced exile during the war, Daniel-Henry Kahnweiler would stress the "classical realization of Cubism" in the work of Gris.

It must be borne in mind that, at the time, both Picasso's collages and his Synthetic Cubist works were either unknown or underestimated. In fact, since 1914 the majority of these works had disappeared, thanks to the government's sequestration of Kahnweiler's gallery, which was treated as an enemy outpost. They were dumped on the market, along with 900 other avant-garde works, in a series of public sales held between 1921 and '23. Cubism had fallen into disrepute, and Picasso's return to it signifies a refusal of the "return to order"—a refusal made even more explicit by the facts that his return to Cubism effectively brought to an end his "classical" or "Ingresque" period (the female "Giants") and, moreover, that this return seemed to be aligned with the cultural break known as Surrealism.

Picasso, of course, upon reading the reviews of his 1955 exhibition at the Musée des arts décoratifs, denied that he had been influenced by Surrealism; according to Jardot, he admitted to "having given in to it, primarily in his drawings, only in 1933."[3] However, this blatant contradiction of fact can be resolved, I believe, if we observe that Picasso's drawings, collages and paintings prior to 1914 had for all intents and purposes anticipated by ten years the Surrealist problem of an "automatic" writing (or painting). Moreover, Picasso returned to aleatory procedures in 1923–24—that is, before the publication of the Surrealist Manifesto at the end of '24, in fact, before Breton had written anything at all on the subject. Thus, we cannot speak of "influence." Still, Picasso's return to a quasi-automatic drawing style coincides too closely with his meetings with Breton (coming as it did after his portrait of the poet, made in Cap d'Antibes in 1923) for there to be no connection. Proof that such a connection existed is provided by the irruption of fluid forms and "curvilinear" Cubism in the 1924 ballet Mercure, for which Picasso executed the drop curtain and décor—which played no small part in the scandal which this performance provoked, earning Picasso the Surrealists' undying support—as well as by the famous sketchbook from Juan-les-Pins, executed during the summer and published in the Révolution surréaliste in January 1925.[4]

Painter and Model, 1926, oil on canvas, 54⅛ by 101⅛ inches. Musée Picasso, Paris.

This historical digression has been necessary if we are to understand the problem posed by one of the largest works in the series—the green and blue still life with "musical instruments" (Zervos V.416)—which until quite recently has been either partially or totally misunderstood. While examining this work in the Picasso centenary exhibition mounted by the Galerie Beyeler in Basel, I discovered a hidden portrait of Marie-Thérèse. This discovery poses a number of problems, however, especially since Zervos dates this canvas to 1925, and Marie-Thérèse did not enter Picasso's life until January 1927.

Zervos's information about this work, however, was incomplete. He didn't even know its dimensions—63¾ by 80½ inches—which makes this still life much "larger than life" and links it with another still life "with musical instruments" (Z.VII.3), executed in earth tones and on the same scale, to which I will return. Zervos's date is possible, however, for there are two other still lifes securely dated to 1925 which treat the same set of formal problems. One of these (Z.V.462), considerably smaller than the two works mentioned above and dated on the stretcher "Juan-les-Pins 1925," also depicts musical instruments and a compote on a table; in this work, the forms are also completely free, having been incised into a thick impasto of oil mixed with sand.[5] There is also the Still Life with Bust and Palette (Z.V.380), about which Zervos also knew very little: he was wrong about both its title and its dimensions. In this work, dated "25" in the signature, the fluid curves of the tablecloth are contrasted with the geometry of the table itself—a contrast which helps us to read the two gigantic still lifes "with musical instruments."[6]

> The fact that Picasso carefully concealed his portrait of Marie-Thérèse corresponds to the nature of their affair, which was hidden from everyone—even after her presence in his art was openly revealed.

The chronological problem posed by these works is inadvertently raised by a note which Zervos gives for the large brown still life, which he dates precisely: Juan-les-Pins (La Vigie) 1926. Given the structural, compositional and formal similarities between this still life and the green and blue one, it is tempting to shift the latter to the summer of 1926 as well—which would account for its presence in Picasso's studio in 1927, when he added a portrait of Marie-Thérèse. Unfortunately, we know from both archival documents and the inscription on a sketchbook now in the Musée Picasso that Picasso resided at La Vigie in Juan-les-Pins in 1924, not in 1926, when he lived in a villa called La Haye Blanche. The information "Juan-les-Pins (La Vigie)" can only have been given to Zervos by Picasso himself, since it does not appear on the canvas itself, which suggests that Picasso remembered having worked on this still life at La Vigie, hence in 1924. This is confirmed by a comparison of a sketch for the window in the background with the open windows of such 1924 still lifes as Mandolin and Guitar in the Guggenheim Museum (Z.V.220) and Still Life with a Cake, formerly in the Museum of Modern Art (Z.V.185). In both works, the open window is half-filled by a circular form which recurs in the large brown still life in maroon on a brown ground; but in the last, the reflections of the right-hand window in Still Life with a Cake have been reduced to a set of four parallel white strokes, and the undulating tablecloth of the earlier work has been stylized into a series of fluid curves.

Does this mean that we must dismiss the date of 1926 entirely? I do not think so. In fact, while the large still life confronts the same formal problems as the works from 1924, it is also very different from them: not only has the stylization, abstraction and fluidity of form been pushed much further; Picasso has also moved on to a semi-monochromatic palette and acquired a much greater interpretive freedom. This is true of the green and blue version as well. The gigantism of both works effectively detaches them from the kinds of realist suggestions that persist in the 1924 canvases. In 1926, Picasso was deeply engaged in the exploration of fluid forms, as such large canvases as the Milliner's Workshop and Painter and Model testify. Thus, the hypothesis that the gigantic still lifes were completed in 1926 is entirely plausible and suggests an alternate reading of Zervos's note, one which adds a temporal dimension: [from] Juan-les-Pins (La Vigie) [to] 1926. Moreover, the green and blue still life appears to have remained in Picasso's studio for a considerable length of time before going directly to a famous Milanese collection.[7]

VOL 71 ISS 8 SE 1983 UMI

Whether this still life was completed in 1926 or not, we must admit that Picasso had it at hand when he met Marie-Thérèse early in 1927. Inspired, no doubt, by the free form of the green tablecloth, which evokes a reclining figure—perhaps this is why Zervos placed the reproduction of this work under that of the Reclining Dancer with Tambourine—Picasso inscribed in white a portrait of the nude, semirecumbent Marie-Thérèse. He concealed both her facial features and the curve of her breast in the flat white of the stylized guitar or mandolin to the right; then, he exploited the right-hand part of the green tablecloth to indicate her bent arm. A very light line traces the leg down to the foot, passing through both green and black sections of the table.

This portrait of Marie-Thérèse is very similar to the profile that appears in the upper-left-hand corner of a sheet of drawings in the collection of Maya Ruiz-Picasso, exhibited as "number 2" in "Picasso Intime" mounted in 1981 at the Musée de l'Athenée in Geneva and the Seibu Museum of Art in Japan.[8] In the Geneva catalogue, Maya Ruiz-Picasso gives the following information: "Marie-Thérèse at 17 (papa's very first portraits of mama), spring 1927." Thus, there is every reason to believe that the hidden portrait in the still life represents the introduction of Marie-Thérèse into Picasso's art, that it commemorates their meeting. The fact that he concealed it so carefully corresponds to the nature of their affair, which was hidden from everyone, even after the 1932 retrospective at the Galerie Georges Petit openly revealed the presence of the young woman in Picasso's most recent works.

Guitar with White Hand, 1927, 10 5/8 by 13 3/4 inches. Collection Maya Ruiz-Picasso.

Large Still Life with Pedestal Table, 1931, oil on canvas, 76 3/8 by 51 1/4 inches. Musée Picasso, Paris.

In greeting Marie-Thérèse, Picasso already had in mind forms dating from the previous year; perhaps it was this connection that led him to return to the green and blue still life to inscribe her image there as well.

At the same time, Picasso was moved to rhapsodize his new love, as he had with Eva, who appears as Ma Jolie in his Cubist works. The 1927 Guitar with White Hand is more direct, but in an entirely allusive fashion: here, Picasso contrived to inscribe the monogram "MT" in a painting of a guitar that has itself been reduced to a collection of abstract signs. This work also belongs to Maya Ruiz-Picasso, who enumerates its contents: "Marie-Thérèse, MT and the silhouette of papa's hand." The fact that this guitar appears to be a stylization of the large Guitar made out of sackcloth is not insignificant, since this latter work also dates to the spring of 1926. Thus we see that Picasso, in greeting Marie-Thérèse, already had in mind forms dating from the previous year. Perhaps it was this connection that led him to return to the green and blue still life to inscribe Marie-Thérèse there as well.

At any rate, Marie-Thérèse's features appear in many of Picasso's etchings—a medium to which he returned in 1927—especially the seated female figure in the Painter at Work (G.130b), as well as the profile of the left-hand model dressed as a boy in the Painter between Two Models (G.124b). The 1928 lithograph titled The Face undoubtedly proves that Marie-Thérèse was already in clandestine residence at Dinard, near the family villa. By contrast, she is completely disguised in the Large Still Life with Pedestal Table of March 11, 1931,[9] after which Picasso's painting would be openly dedicated to her.

In the final analysis, what is so striking about this hidden portrait is the fact that Picasso was willing to part with it. Was he simply allowing the green and blue still life to seek its own fortune? (Picasso once told me that in abandoning The Dance—a work which is also deeply embedded in his personal life[10]—to the Tate Gallery he was letting it "seek its own fortune.") Such questions must remain in suspense. However, the confrontation, in a single canvas, of free, aleatory forms and a portrait of Marie-Thérèse reveals that, for Picasso, the experimentation with "automatic" painting in 1923–24 had nothing whatsoever to do with esthetic dogma. If, in this hidden portrait, we see Picasso chafing at the social bit of his marriage, we can also appreciate the freedoms which his art allowed him—freedoms against which convention was powerless. □

Four Portraits of Marie-Thérèse at 17, 1927, 15 ½ by 10 13/16 inches. Coll. Maya Ruiz-Picasso.

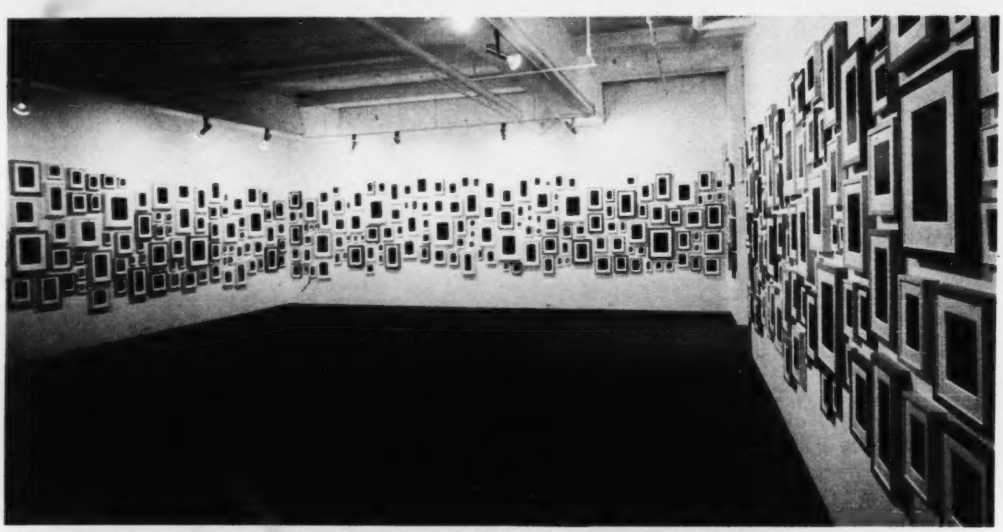
1. Alfred H. Barr, Jr., Picasso: Fifty Years of His Art, New York, Museum of Modern Art, 1946, pp. 132–33. Barr had access to Musical Instruments (1923) in the Mrs. Patrick C. Hill collection, Still Life with a Cake (May 16, 1924), The Red Tablecloth (Dec. 1924), among others. He does not seem to have been aware of the two large still lifes with which this article is concerned.
2. Again, it was Barr who recognized the importance of drawings, executed at Avignon in the spring of 1914, which represent a clean break with the geometric sobriety of Cubism. The formal extravagance of such drawings as the Nude with Guitar Player anticipates Surrealism. See Barr, p. 89. I have expanded on Barr's treatment of these drawings in chapter 11 ("The Avignon Period") of my Picasso: The Cubist Years, Boston, New York Graphic Society, 1979, where I relate them to paintings of the same period.
3. Maurice Jardot, Picasso, peintures 1900–1955, Paris, Musée des arts décoratifs, postscript to no. 40. Jardot observes: "The signs which Picasso created after 1925 are distinguished from those created before only by their greater freedom. There is no essential difference between them, only a difference of degree. The extent to which Surrealist activity contributed to Picasso's breakthrough remains uncertain." This is exactly the position that I take in my Vie de peintre Pablo Picasso (Paris, 1977), and which I reiterate here.
4. This sketchbook dates to the same period of Picasso's career as some of the curvilinear still lifes.
5. The history of Picasso's technique of mixing sand with pigment—discovered under Braque's influence at Sorgues in 1912—remains to be written, since most collectors and even some curators are not particularly interested in this kind of addition to the works in their possession. At this point in my own investigation, it seems that the sand-paintings of 1923 begin with Seated Woman in Blue and Pink (Z.V.2, which Zervos describes as "oil on canvas"), currently in the Justin Thannhauser collection. Here, the sand is used as both color and optical effect. Only later was it used for aleatory purposes, in conjunction with the scraping away of paint with a stylus or brush handle. This technique seems to begin in the still life Mandolin and Music-Stand (Z.V.89), which also attracted Barr's attention. Between these works, there is a series of little still lifes in which sand is utilized as color and relief in the manner of the still lifes of 1915–16. Cf. Z.V.60, 63, 64, 67, 68, 69, 75 ff.
6. The corrections and the first study are Jardot's, no. 64.
7. This information was provided by M. Beyeler.
8. The existence of these drawings was revealed by the exhibition "Picasso Intime" at the Musée de l'Athenée in Geneva (July 4–Sept. 6, 1981), catalogue no. 1. The unpublished portraits of Marie-Thérèse are numbered 2, 3 and 4. In Zervos, vol. VII, there are other guitars with the monogram "MT" (cf. 54, 55, 56, 58, as well as the musical instruments in no. 110).
9. See my Vie de peintre Pablo Picasso, p. 231, for Picasso's remarks on this "still life."
10. We know that The Dance could be called "The Death of Pichot." Ramón Pichot had been a childhood friend of Picasso. His marriage to Germaine precipitated Casagemas's suicide in 1901. Picasso, who had once had an affair with Germaine (she is still his companion in Au Lapin agile, 1905), believed that this destroyed Pichot.

Author: Pierre Daix is co-author, with Joan Rosselet, of Picasso, The Cubist Years: A Catalogue Raisonné of the Paintings and Related Works.

VOL 71 ISS 8 SE 1983 UMI



Allan McCollum: "From the Permanent Collection," installation at Marian Goodman/Multiples.

Allan McCollum: Repetition & Difference

A recent installation of hundreds of McCollum's "generic paintings" reflected the advent of a repetitive society—a society in which difference is artificially recreated through the proliferation of quasi-identical objects.

BY CRAIG OWENS

> Each art has its own imbricated techniques of repetition, the critical and revolutionary potential of which must reach the highest possible degree, to lead us from the dreary repetitions of habit to the profound repetitions of memory, and ultimately to the [symbolic] repetitions of death, through which we make sport of our own mortality.
>
> —Gilles Deleuze, Répétition et différence

Since 1975, when he stopped painting the large, repetitive decorative abstractions, often on unstretched canvas, for which he first achieved recognition in his native California, Allan McCollum has been manufacturing generic paintings: small, anonymous, more or less identical objects, always exhibited in series and composed entirely of frame, mat and, where the image is supposed to appear, a blank. The artist describes these works as decoys: "False pictures, pseudo–artifacts which beckon me into the desire to look at a picture, but which are complete in doing that, and that alone." In them, painting is reduced beyond its essentials to utter conventionality, banality. It is ironic, then, that as recently as 1979 McCollum's work could still be cited as proof of the continuing viability of modernist abstraction[1]—as if, as Jean Baudrillard has written, "Only the forgery can still satisfy our thirst for authenticity."

Minimalist in their monochromism, their investigation of framing and their repetitiveness, the generic paintings employ only the vocabulary of Minimalism; for what McCollum has devised is, in fact, an effective, all-purpose strategy of esthetic infiltration—reminiscent in this respect of Daniel Buren's deployment of striped fabric—with which to expose the contradictions of cultural production in a market economy: the inescapable fact that, in exchange, all works of art are reduced to equivalence. Clusters of the generic paintings have been exhibited in group shows, where they have served as mirrors reflecting the interchangeability—the in-difference—of the other works on display. More recently, for his first solo exhibition in New York (mounted last March at Marian Goodman), McCollum doubled and then redoubled the stakes: 551 cast "plaster surrogates" swarmed across the gallery's walls in a continuous, undulating band, while in a second room photographs taken directly from television depicted (found) McCollums "on location"—pictures in the world re-presented as generic paintings.

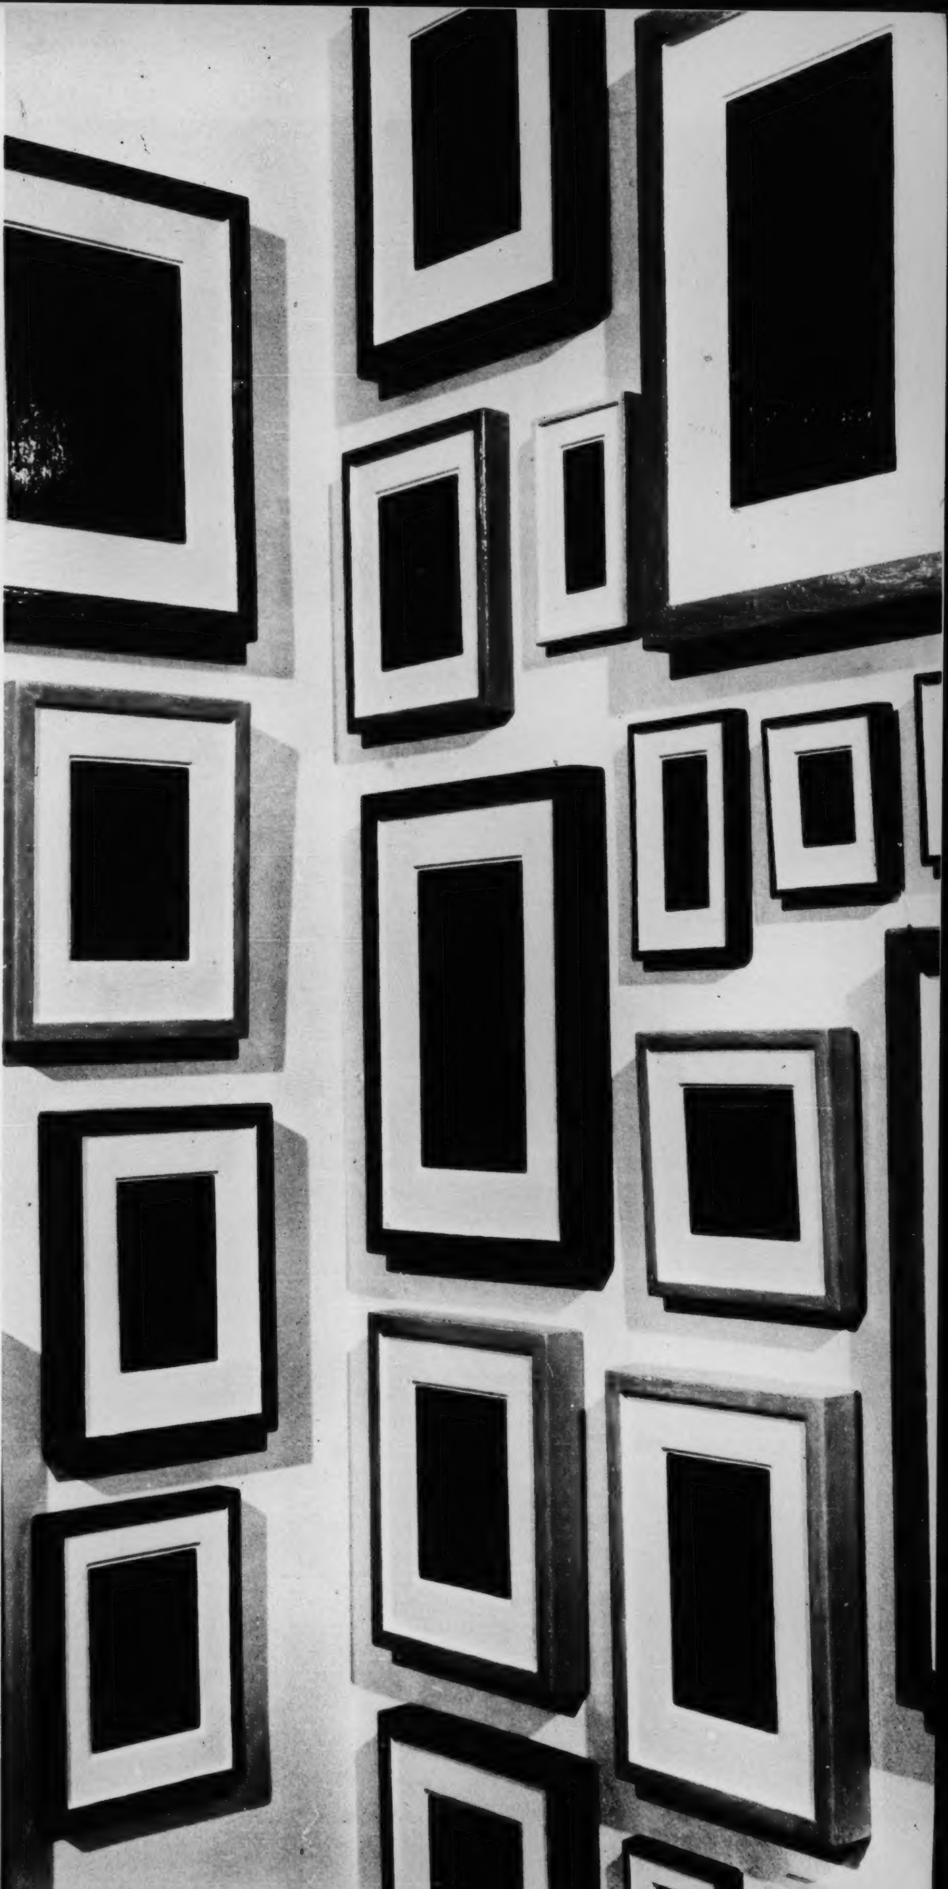
Each of the surrogates was derived from the same model (frame, mat and, where the image is supposed to appear, a blank). The only differences admitted were entirely marginal: insubstantial variations in size, proportion and the color of the frame (mostly within a narrow range of golds and browns). While the specific combination of these three variables seemed to constitute each surrogate as singular, the potentially endless repetition of essentially identical objects prevented us from mistaking difference for uniqueness. For although it was possible to view each work as a mirror reflecting all the others, at the same time it was impossible to forget that each was merely a reflection of all the others.

Neither the wit nor the sheer visual beauty of the installation can be discounted; but these, too, seemed to function as decoys, as lures—as if to compensate for the muteness of each individual component. For while repetition inaugurated an indefinite play of substitutions, classifications, reversals and repetitions, this textual game seemed to suspend any reference outside the series itself, as well as any subjective relation between artist and viewer. Instead, the surrogates functioned as an opaque screen interposed between the two, rendering them mutually absent one to the other—an absence described, perhaps, by the blank at the center of each work.

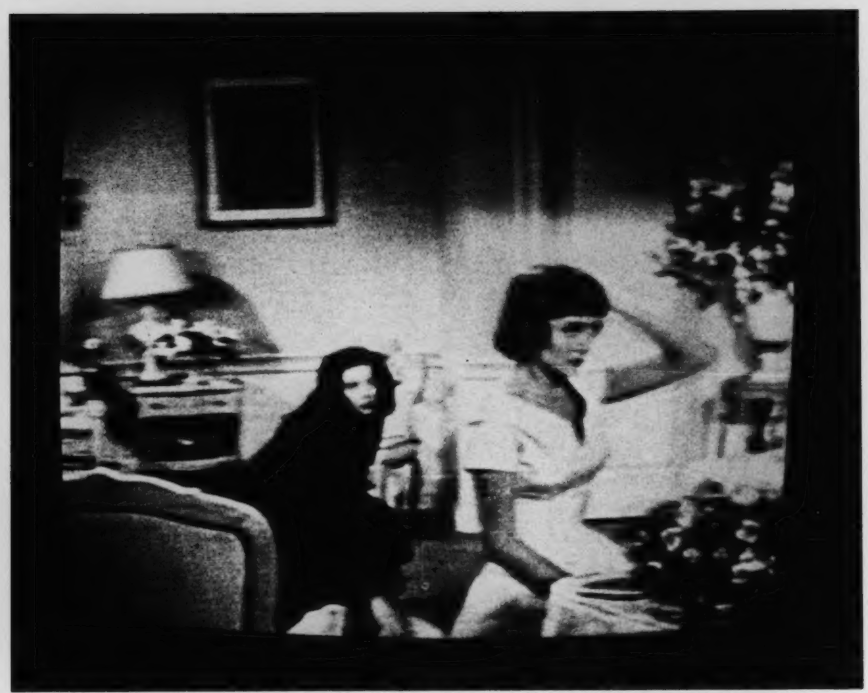
Still, taken as a whole, McCollum's installation did have an unmistakable external referent: the marketplace. Viewing it was less like gallery-going and more like window-shopping—or, rather, gallery-going as shopping. For what McCollum's work ultimately reflects is the recent infiltration into cultural production of what political economists identify as the "serial mode of production." Serialized production is both the definitive mode of late-capitalist consumer society and, since Warhol at least, the dominant model for art—and not only visual art, as Jacques Attali's diagnosis, in his book Bruits, of the situation of contemporary music confirms:

> No organized society can exist without structuring a place within itself for differences. No exchange economy develops without reducing such differences to the form of mass production or the serial . . . .Music lives [this contradiction] in deafening fashion: an instrument of differentiation, it has become the very locus of repetition. It indifferentiates itself in commodities and masks itself in the star system. Music can therefore allow us to hear the essentials of the contradictions in developed societies: an anxious search for lost differences within a logic from which difference itself has been excluded.[2]

This contradiction between differ-



VOL
71
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI



"Paintings on location—incidental to the action," black-and-white photograph, 11 by 14 inches.

ence and repetition is intrinsic to the serial mode of production itself—a mode which proceeds from, but is not identical with, the mass production of commodities. For while mass production and the social logic of homogenization which it entails work to eliminate difference (standardization), serial production reintroduces a limited gamut of differences into the mass-produced object. As Baudrillard observes in Le système des objets (1968), no object appears on the market today in a single type, but with a range of strictly marginal differences—of color, accessory, detail—which create the illusion of choice. Consequently, what we consume is the object not in its materiality, but in its difference—the object as sign. Thus, difference itself becomes an object of consumption, and the agenda of serial production becomes apparent: to carefully engineer and control the production of difference in our society.

If music allows us to hear these contradictions, visual art allows us to see them. Few works of art exist today as single, isolated examples; rather, the majority appear in series, and their significance resides primarily in the position they occupy within the series to which they belong.[3] To cite only the most obvious example: it makes no sense to exhibit one Cindy Sherman photograph by itself (although her work is often presented this way). To do so is to render it meaningless, for the significance of Sherman's work resides in the artist's permutations of identity from one photo to the next. Thus, Sherman has borrowed from the media not only a stock of feminine stereotypes, but also its serialized format.

In fact, serial production does not recognize the fine art/mass culture distinction (and is partially responsible for its dissolution). So that when McCollum exhibits his own series of black-and-white photographs of interiors, themselves taken from TV series, he moves us out of the gallery and into mass culture, demonstrating the pervasiveness of serial production. In McCollum's photographs of everyday life as represented in the mass media, framed pictures in the background become illegible—these are, after all, pictures of pictures of pictures—and are thereby transformed into "McCollums"—frame, mat and, where the image is supposed to appear, a blank. Collectively captioned "Paintings on location—incidental to the action," these photographs reinsert McCollum's work back into the culture at large, where its greatest subversive potential resides.

If McCollum represents the advent of a repetitive culture—both within the art gallery and without—a culture in which difference is "artificially recreated by means of the repetition of quasi-identical objects" (Attali), still, we cannot immediately assimilate him to that tradition of melancholic artists, from Duchamp to Sherrie Levine, who insist upon the diminished possibilities for creativity in an image-saturated world (or so it has been claimed).[4] For the automatic, mechanical repetition that characterizes consumption is only one—the most superficial—type of repetition. Art invokes other, more profound types—those of memory and ultimately (following Freud's formulation of a compulsion to repeat) of death. The significance of McCollum's work resides in its superimposition of all three types, a superimposition which restores to repetition its critical—even revolutionary—power. For, as Deleuze writes at the conclusion of Répétition et différence:

> Repetition—even in its most mechanical, quotidian, habitual, stereotypical forms—has a place within art . . . For the only esthetic problem is how to insert art into everyday life. The more our daily life appears standardized, stereotyped, submitted to the accelerated reproduction of consumer goods, the more art must become part of life and rescue from it that small difference which operates between levels of repetition, making habitual consumption reverberate with destruction and death; linking cruelty to inanity; discovering, beneath consumption, the chattering of the schizophrenic; and reproducing esthetically, beneath the most ignoble destructions of war (which are still processes of consumption), the illusions and mystifications which are the real essence of this civilization—so that, in the end, Difference can express itself . . . even if it's only in the form of a contradiction here or there, thereby liberating the forces needed to destroy this world. ☐

---

1. Joseph Masheck, "Iconicity," Artforum, January 1979, pp. 30–41.
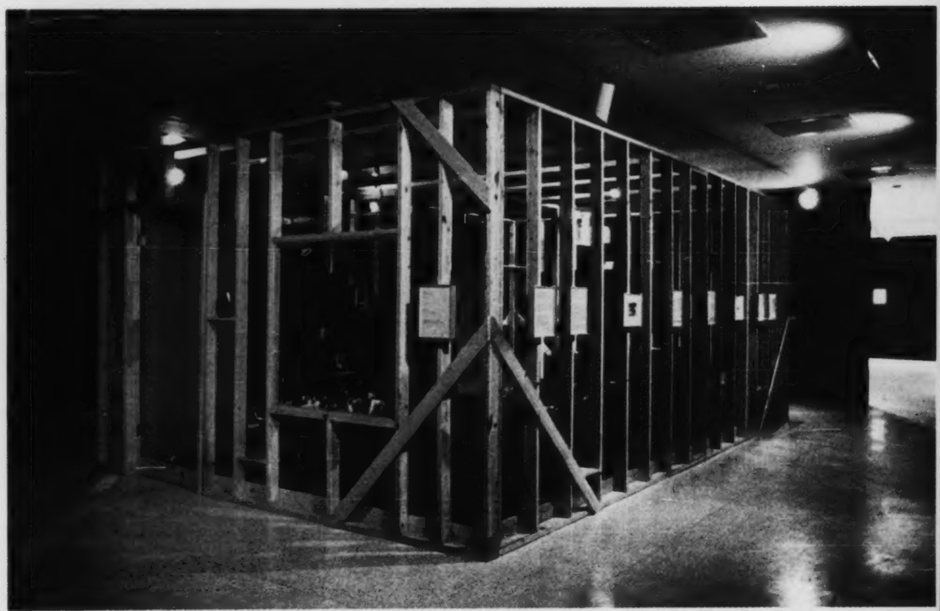
2. Jacques Attali, "Introduction to Bruits," Social Text, 7 (Spring/Summer 1983), p. 7, italics added.
3. A more detailed account of the serial mode of production in art would have to distinguish between contemporary artists' use of the series and the role that it played in both Impressionism (Monet's "Rouen Cathedrals," for example) and modernism (Mondrian's serial production, for example). These questions are too complex to be tackled here; however, I would argue that while, in Impressionism, the series works to claim the absolute uniqueness of each single moment of perception, and while, in modernism, it represents an evolutionary or developmental process, in contemporary art it is used to deny both uniqueness and development. Obviously, serial production in art must be linked to the stages of development of capitalism.
4. In a recent text, I dispute this interpretation of the Duchamp-Levine tradition. See "The Discourse of Others: Feminists and Postmodernism," The Anti-Aesthetic: Essays on Postmodern Culture, Hal Foster, ed., Port Townsend (Wash.), Bay Press, 1983.

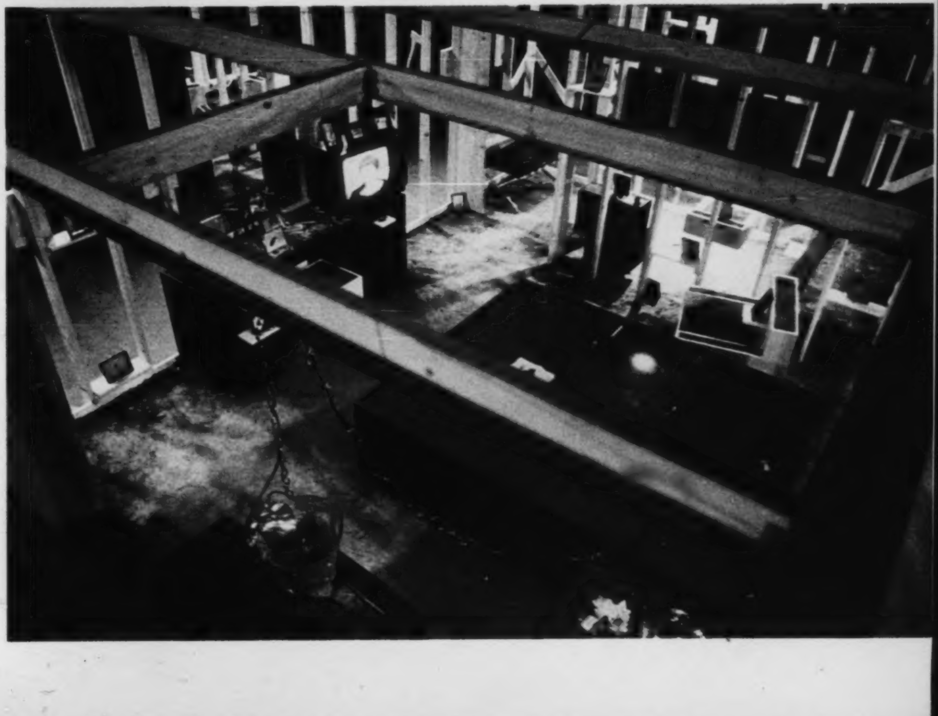
West Texas Dada

In his "rooms and stories," Texas-born, California-based Terry Allen offers a complex collage of biography and bric-a-brac from the margins of American culture. Below, however, the author questions the authenticity of regional vernaculars today and the efficacy of Allen's strategy of shock.

BY JONATHAN CRARY



Terry Allen:* Billingsgate (A Motel), *1982, mixed mediums, 8½ by 12 by 20 feet. Detail below.



Terry Allen can do it all—or so a show at the La Jolla Museum of Contemporary Art featuring a wide range of Allen's work would indicate ("Rooms and Stories: Recent Work by Terry Allen," curated by Lynda Forsha, April 16–May 29). Included were major environmental installations, drawings, sculpture, video, texts, audio works, a theatrical performance, and a musical performance by the 40-year-old artist and his Panhandle Mystery Band. The California-based Allen, for whom "talking about art is like trying to French kiss over the phone," would seem to favor actionist forms of production, but curiously much of his work is exhaustively talky, discursive, overloaded with words, symbols and texts that reflect on his own art activity.

The works that revealed Allen's concerns most sharply were his big environmental pieces. Billingsgate (A Motel) was a full-scale replica and transformation of a single motel room, furnished with a dirt floor, and a double bed, toilet and sink all filled with dirt. Real everyday items such as a TV, an open suitcase and cosmetic articles stood side by side with photographic "substitutes" for other things: framed photos of pillows, sheets and lamps occupied the usual places of those objects. Around the outside of the environment were pages of dense typescript filled with rambling meditations of the artist and found texts all relating to Allen's visit to Billings, Montana. The motel became a sounding board off which Allen bounced a multitude of references to that city, to American history, political corruption, his own life, and Custer's Last Stand. It is as if by attaching an excess of information to the walls of the motel, by opening up its floor to the ground beneath, there was an effort to make its bland surfaces speak, to spill forth some testimony about its own genesis, its place within a history.

VOL 71 ISS 8 SE 1983 UMI

Ornithopera (The Devil's Condo), 1981, mixed mediums, 15½ by 19⅔ by 22 feet. Photos courtesy the La Jolla Museum of Contemporary Art.

The other major work was Ornithopera (The Devil's Condo), a large room-size cage covered with chicken wire located in a darkened museum gallery. Inside it Allen placed live crows and chickens. Each group of squawking birds, one white, one black, staked out their territory, ignoring or eyeing each other warily over an ornate bird bath. One side of the cage compound was filled with a composite structure of black crates, embedded with bric-a-brac-like religious figurines, false teeth, dice, light bulbs in the shape of a cross, and a TV screen. The piece and its many accompanying drawings, all in red, black and white, alluded on various levels to the South, the Confederacy, tar and feathering, religious superstition, country music, the Klan, and to almost every possible use of bird symbolism.

Much of Allen's identity as an artist seems bound up in an experience of nonurban America, the South and the West in particular, drawing on a youth spent in Lubbock, Texas. His art, in part, is a chaotic, sometimes Buñuelian vision of red neck, Bible Belt, cowboy country and the languages and textures of those zones. It is the America of tent-meeting revivalism, truck-driver wisdom, trailer-park life, and circus sideshows. There is something nostalgic about Allen's evocation of an alternate U.S.A., its banality and its dark side. He is a regionalist in an era when regions and subcultures have less and less integrity to them. Like the earlier fictions of Thomas Hart Benton and Grant Wood, Allen's art attempts to ascribe a viability and distinctiveness to a composite folk America at the very moment when the saturation of prime-time monoculture is homogenizing a once variegated social geography.

Allen practices a kind of West Texas Dada. The dislocations of collage run through most of his work, but the questions thus raised have to do with what it means for any artist today to opt for Dadalike gestures. One of the prominent pieces in this show (part of a work titled Anterabbit/Bleeder) was another chicken-wire cage structure containing a number of bright green parakeets and a red wheelchair, covered with their droppings, on which they perched. It is a familiar formula: the collision of remote realities, supposedly generating an experience of shock. But Allen, who assumes a fuzzily "oppositional" stance, seems to be unaware of how easily the appearances of shock are consumed today. Writers like Fredric Jameson and Manfredo Tafuri have piercingly described how certain modernist strategies of fragmentation and collage simply parallel and become undifferentiated from the dominant modes of experience in contemporary Western society, how the formal disjunctions of some art and the glorification of "the multi-media" can function to reconcile us with the fragmented, media-suffused misery of daily life.

Much of Allen's work is charged with the exuberance of an artist swimming in the disorder of a disintegrating culture and, especially in his performances, forging a hybrid, decentered subjectivity that speaks through the recombinations of the floating debris around him. But Allen's milieu and audience are no longer those before which Rauschenberg's Monogram appeared nearly three decades ago. Art like Allen's, produced from the pose of an outsider as if to shock the center from the margins, does not recognize that no one is seriously upholding the values that it presumes to oppose. ☐ Author: Jonathan Crary was recently a visiting lecturer in the Visual Arts department of the University of California, San Diego.

Anterabbit/Bleeder (A Biography), detail, 1983, wheelchair, 33 parakeets, wood, acrylic, screen and sand, 4 by 3 by 10 feet.

Anterabbit/Bleeder, a performance piece about a hemophiliac, with Jo Harvey Allen (above) as "Woman."

VOL
7
1
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI

Fairfield Porter: Natural Premises

Committed to the idea of painting as a record of empirical experience, Fairfield Porter learned to conceal the artifice of his work beneath a fluent, seemingly artless form of realism. The artist's current retrospective prompted the following reassessment of his oeuvre.

BY ROBERT BERLIND

> I think that all happiness depends on the energy to assume the mask of some other self; that all joyous or creative life is a re-birth as something not oneself, something which has no memory and is created in a moment and perpetually renewed.
> —W. B. Yeats

To experience one of Fairfield Porter's better pictures is to feel simultaneously the sudden reality of a specific place and time and, no less emphatically, the presence of a painting that has a life altogether its own, distinct from the circumstances it depicts. Consider Island Farmhouse, a major work of 1969, just over 6½ feet square. It has that all-atonceness, that particular plenitude of sensation and association we recognize as his. It's hard to say just what we notice first. There is the clear, sharp, exhilarating light of a northern summer day. There is the image of house, trees, lawn and coastal water, with a wonderfully doggy dog occupying the near domestic space in the same way that a white fishing boat in profile occupies the distant harbor. There is the generously sealed, painted surface, so disarmingly casual in its technique. Every element has its precise weight and degree of descriptive articulation.

We hardly notice Porter's audacity in making the house's shadows cadmium yellow. (He used the color to underpaint the entire form of the house.) But we definitely do notice the peculiar intensity of that wall's reflected light, as well as its sensation of nearness and its contrast to the lucid, sunlit space of distant trees, sea and sky that fairly crackles with clarity. The house's two windows reflect just what we need to know of the space behind us, and they are also abstract reiterations of the palette that makes the distant view. The irregular, green foreground shadow that harbors the dog seems entirely unpremeditated and relaxed in execution; a lesser painter would have overplayed both his hand and faculty for design. The interactions of architectural and natural forms are unstressed yet cannily deployed; the sky-blue shape of reflected light where the middleground building's roof is in shadow might be one of many keystones in the painting's subtle structure. The whole is, at once, completely familiar and utterly new.

Porter's idea about painting was not to paint ideas. He had a great many ideas about painting, but in his painting practice he maintained a firm distinction between seeing and intellection, between experience and conceptualization. This distinction, it should be understood, was never put at the service of denial. It is not that there are no ideas to be discerned within his art or to be discussed in relation to it, but that he came to view painting and, for that matter, art criticism as functions of percepts rather than concepts. What he said about writing applies equally to his practice of painting: "I would try as much as possible, when looking at something that I had to review, to cease to exist myself and simply identify with it, so that I could say something about it."[1] In the same conversation he said, "the whole question in art is to be wide awake, to be as attentive as possible, for the artist and for the person who looks at it or listens to it."[2]

Considering this viewpoint, which pervades his writings, and looking at the fluent, light-filled paintings in his retrospective at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, one could easily come to the conclusion that Porter was a "natural" the same way a sportswriter might identify a rookie pitcher as one. Naturalness was his constant theme. He disliked painterly performance that seemed forced, and he disliked art and esthetic positions that were ideologically motivated. His attitude toward subject matter was essentially receptive to whatever or whoever happened to be on hand. His best paintings have an air of having simply happened.

But Porter was not a "natural" if by that we mean one who develops spontaneously from the outset. The ability to "cease to exist [himself] and simply identify with" what he was looking at, be it a backyard on an autumn afternoon, the canvas on his easel or the work of another artist, was hard won and never to be taken for granted. To Fairfield Porter:* View from a High Ledge, No. 2, *1972–75, oil on canvas, 44 by 32 inches. Private collection, Louisville.

VOL
7
1
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI

Jimmy and John, 1957–58, oil on canvas, 36 ¼ by 45 ½ inches. Collection Dr. and Mrs. Sidney Goldman.

become "natural" Porter had to teach himself much about painting and sustain a commitment that did not, it would seem, come naturally to him.

> Porter's naturalness grew out of a deliberate intention to transform himself, to create a self that would experience and paint "naturally."

Developing a way of painting that would locate its content in the act of looking meant doing away with those norms of descriptive drawing that explain the form rather than record what is seen. It also meant doing away with traditional modes of composition based on seeking out the motif's underlying abstraction of geometric forms, rhyming schemes and the like. It meant developing a radical attentiveness to visual experience—both of the subject and the painting in progress—that little in his art education prepared him for. Porter's compositional syntax has been tellingly probed by Louis Finkelstein, who noted the arbitrary areas of emphasis in the mature work: a patch of light or sharp contrast here, a sudden and unexpectedly forceful articulation there. "On the expressive level," he wrote, "they have the role of naturalizing the observer: participation in the life situation, presenting the unanticipated and arbitrary character of the immediately factual as the object of interest and even of evocation. . . . The success of these is in the discretion with which the various kinds of weighting of attention create a content."[3] By not allowing a single, conclusive focus to predominate, Porter is able to keep the situation open, as "non-objective" in its way as any abstraction by de Kooning.

To some extent, then, Porter's naturalness is contrived, and one might look further for those strategies of picture-making that enabled him to create such an effect.[4] We know that Porter often revised paintings years after working on them, as, for example, in the portrait of his son Jerry, which he painted in 1955 and returned to in 1975. Landscapes were often worked on in the studio, away from the motif. One need only look closely at his surfaces to find evidence of underpainting, either as part of a deliberate process of layering colors or as indications of a method that did not depend on the final result being altogether foreseen.

Realist though he was, he considered

Iced Coffee, 1966, oil on canvas, 79 ⅛ inches square. Private collection.

the painting as an autonomous entity, the experience of which was not dependent on the way the world looked at any given moment. This shouldn't surprise us: wouldn't it be literally shortsighted for anyone using painting as a means of investigating appearances to take the photographic instance as a model of how the world looks?

If Porter came late to the radical empiricism of his mature paintings, it is clear he did not simply settle into that premise. One can settle into what one knows, that is, holds intellectually to be the case. But it would be a contradiction in terms to settle into any premise predicated on experience. Experience, being a fundamentally different domain from knowledge, is always in the present; we can never know our experience before the fact. We realize once we really begin looking that we don't know, that what knowledge we took for granted is irrelevant. Hence, an experiential premise must renew itself continually, keeping always beyond the grip of settled knowledge. Surely the truth of this circumstance has application to all art, but not all art is predicated so directly upon it. What Porter loved most in art, the communication of concrete experience, is indicated in a review of Edwin Dickinson's work where he points in one painting to "a few heartbreakingly accurate patches of dark seaweed."[5]

There are moments throughout Porter's career when the deliberate focus on pure visualness gives way to other considerations, and anomalous works are the result. His 1957–58 double portrait of poets James Schuyler and John Ashbery (Jimmy and John) is a masterpiece of offhand psychological inflection, so "heartbreakingly accurate" that the moment it re-creates would take paragraphs (or a poem) to describe. But its psychology depends on painterly articulations that are not like the more evenly dispersed attention that is typical of Porter's work. In other ways the portrait of his wife, Anne, reclining pensively in bed at midday (July Interior, 1964) is atypical. Its reduced, tonal palette yields a precise, cool, pinkish light that brings attention to familiar details of domestic life in a psychologically rich and soberly poetic picture. The 1966–67 Nyack shows two figures out-of-doors, one of them painting. It's a very awkward work that would seem to reveal unassimilated influence from the more schematic compositions of Alex Katz. (At 82 by 110 inches, it is one of the larger paintings, and so dramatically does it fail that one must ask why it was included in the exhibition at all.) The Whitney's 1972

VOL 71 ISS 8 SE 1983 UMI

Blue Sunrise, 1974, oil on board, 21 ½ by 17 ½ inches. Collection Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Gordon.

The Screen Porch, with its three interior figures and one exterior figure of Anne, combines passages of fluently rendered foliage with a certain static awkardness in the figures that suggests some drama is being depicted, although such drama is outside the usual scope of his work.

I mention these particular works—and there are passages in many others one could point to—in order to stress that Porter's stated esthetic did not entirely account for his practice. Perhaps for it to do so would have constituted an ultimate denial of itself.

Certain late works, notably the seascapes of the '70s, extend his empirical premise, developing new rhythms and more emphatic, even rhapsodic, declarations of sensation that border on the visionary. Waves seen against the light, sunlight glinting off "the sky white water" (as he put it in his poem "To the Mainland"), play on that threshhold where sensory experience and a feeling of transcendence over everyday reality are contiguous.

The central paradox in Porter's art is that, for all its naturalness and immediacy of experience, this point of view did not come naturally to him. There is, in fact, every evidence that he was by temperament a cerebral type. His reading, by reports, covered a large range of material, some of it arcane. He was given, outside painting, to various ideological causes throughout his life. (These included socialism in his youth—he visited Moscow in 1927—and in his later years strong environmentalist and antinuclear positions, along with a somewhat cranky stand against technology, which he regarded as inherently dehumanizing.)

He was, of course, an intellectual, one of the most valuable art critics of his time, a considerable prose stylist as well as a poet. More than one writer has pointed to Porter's 1959 monograph on Thomas Eakins for the clues it inadvertently provides about the author. Porter focused on Eakins's "puritanical belief in truth as an extra-human value" and "inorganic conscience,"[6] which he, Porter, believed to be fundamentally and nearly fatally antiartistic. John Bernard Myers, who as director of the Tibor de Nagy Gallery was Porter's dealer and friend for some 20 years, writes: "But, like Eakins, Porter himself tended to be cerebral and prone to highly conscious decision making. The drama of his art resides in his struggle to defeat a strenuous intellect in pursuit of sensuous and living experience, the experience of painting itself, the means and ends of painting as a single, marvellous entity."[7] According to the painter Robert Dash, "He said he was a learned painter, that he didn't have a natural gift. . . ."[8]

Porter disliked painterly performance that seemed forced, and he disliked art and esthetic positions that were ideologically motivated.

Although Porter was born in 1907, the retrospective begins as late as 1938 with a small study and then goes to a 1945 work, First Avenue, that we would not identify as his but for the label. It is really not until the '50s that we begin to recognize the paintings as "Porters." He was, then, a late bloomer in spite of having begun his studies early and reached his intellectual maturity years before. He did not begin to produce first-rate work with consistency until he was in his 50s. By 1938 he had seen the Chicago exhibition of Vuillard and Bonnard, which had a decisive effect on his intentions as a painter, and within a few years of this he had met Willem de Kooning, the other major influence on him. How then, to account for the emergence of his mature painting style so late in his life? No doubt there are explanations of a private sort,[9] but we can also point to his reciprocally influential association with a group of painters younger than himself. Walking through the Boston show I was reminded, variously, of the work of Katz, Welliver, Freilicher, Georges, Dodd, Button, Dash, and others of that generation, as well as those of the following generation, such as Harriet Shorr, Darragh Park and Rackstraw Downes (whose introduction to Porter's Art in its Own Terms: Selected Criticism 1935–1975 is perhaps the best general essay on him to date). What is striking about this net of influences is the realization that despite the seemingly casual and informal manner of his procedures, Porter should have articulated, en passant, so many ideas that were to become dominant themes for other, more deliberately consistent artists. If Porter was not necessarily the decisive influence on these painters, it was surely he who opened up the space for many younger artists to develop their various styles of painterly realism. They, in turn, must have provided Porter with some measure of needed acknowledgment in a largely unfavorable critical climate. The verve with which Katz, Freilicher and others defied the coalescing critical establishment during the '50s must have encouraged Porter in ways that even de Kooning's support could not.

A Sudden Change of Wind, 1973, oil on canvas, 24 by 30 inches. Private collection.

In a time given to extremes of personal style and position-taking, the value Porter placed on naturalness, along with his seeming conservatism, have relegated him to what some critics see as a marginal position. I have been attempting here to show that this naturalness grew out of a deliberate intention to transform himself, to create a self, one might say, that would experience and paint "naturally." To mistake the quality that resulted for something facile is fatal to an appreciation of his art.

The negative view of Porter crops up even in the context of this retrospective. Curator Kenworth Moffett's catalogue essay contains much that is judicious and sensitive to the work, but he is at pains to keep Porter in his place. He cites Porter's "provincial sense of finish in his oils, which . . . is never wholly overcome."[10]

While this criticism applies to a number of early paintings, it hardly fits the mature work. In an odd footnote Moffett delivers, quite gratuitously, some tendentious assertions: de Kooning and Franz Kline were "two of the weakest members" of the Abstract Expressionists; Porter's attack on Clement Greenberg's essay "American Type Painting"

VOL 7 1 ISS 8 SE 1983 UMI

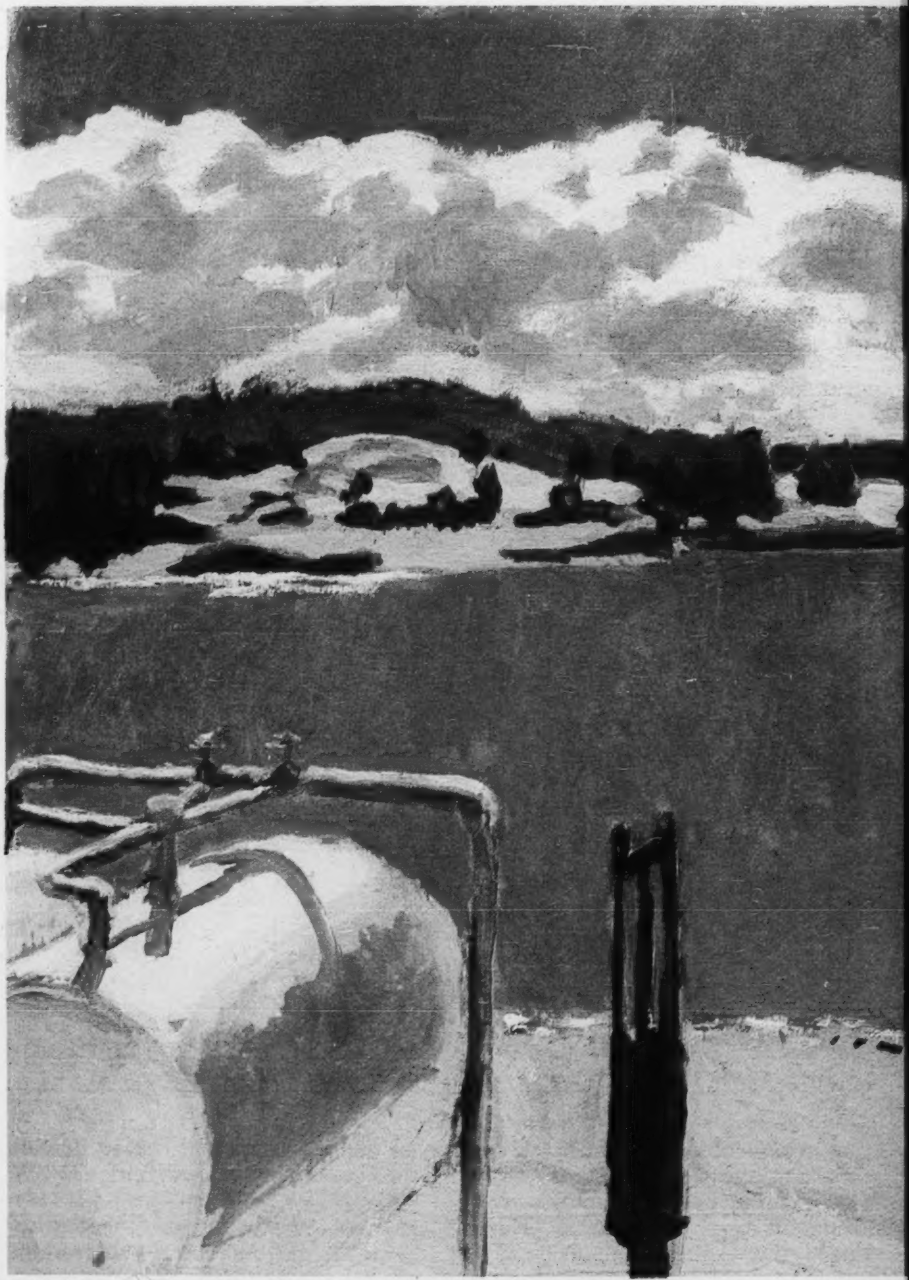
may have been the result of factionalism on Porter's part (because "the 10th Street group that had taken up Porter" disliked Greenberg); Porter's body of writing "remains an artist's criticism," i.e, is of limited importance.[11] In a footnote to a statement that Porter was "the best realist of his generation and one of the finest we have had since the war,"[12] Moffett names, with an arbitrariness that is stunning, "the other contenders, Horacio Torres and John Graham."[13] Care is being taken not to open those floodgates that would admit the group of figurative artists whose work Porter himself spoke for with such sensitivity and conviction.

Like a number of recent retrospectives, Hopper at the Whitney for example, this one suffers from being too large.

One detects in all this the outlines of an art-political position, especially once the consideration of factionalism has been broached. We are familiar with Greenberg's early quarrel with de Kooning's work and his wholesale dismissal of ambitious nature-based painting (along with Pop and Minimal art). Now that Porter is, with apparent guardedness, to be recognized, the terms of that recognition are carefully drawn up: "his taste, his intelligence, and his traditional pictorial instincts."[14] Acceptance into the canon is contingent upon Porter's relegation to minor status: "He never overdid it."[15]

It is appropriate for a retrospective to entail a reappraisal, but one might wish a stronger case had been made by someone more sympathetic. Enormously pleasurable though it was, the exhibition had its problems. Certain great paintings were missing, possibly unavailable, such as the portrait of Frank O'Hara (on that couch Porter so often used), and a fuller selection of drawings and watercolors would have been welcome. More important, since there was so much first-rate work to be seen anyway, was the problem of lesser and occasionally failed paintings that were included. Why the above-mentioned Nyack? Why that very unsatisfactory Jane and Elizabeth of 1967 (which is even reproduced in color in the catalogue)? Why the various weaker paintings throughout that lessen the overall impact of the show? Like a number of retrospectives of recent years, Hopper at the Whitney for example, this one suffers from being too large.[16]

My complaints aside, one can only be grateful that a gross oversight on the part of our museums has been corrected and that Porter's work will finally be able to attract the large audience that will find nourishment in it. ☐



Fairfield Porter:* The Harbor—Great Spruce Head, *1974, oil on canvas, 20 by 36 inches. Collection Linda

---

1. "Conversation with Fairfield Porter," conducted by Paul Cummings, included in the exhibition catalogue: Fairfield Porter (1907–1975), Realist Painter in an Age of Abstraction, Boston, Museum of Fine Arts, 1982, p. 53. This generous document also provides essays by John Ashbery, curator Kenworth Moffett and John Bernard Myers, five poems by Porter, a chronology, bibliography, checklist and 59 reproductions, 30 of them in color.
2. Ibid., p. 51.
3. Louis Finkelstein, "The Naturalness of Fairfield Porter," Arts, May 1976, p. 102.
4. The issue here is one of exploring the artifice that accounts for apparent naturalness. An exemplary instance of such study is Kirk Varnedoe's "The Artifice of Candor: Impressionism and Photography Reconsidered," Art in America, Jan. 1980. In proving that Degas did not simply use photography to arrive at the snapshot-nd Ross Rapaport.

like characteristics of his work, the author uncovers the rich complexity of Degas's intentions and methods. Similarly, to understand that Porter was not simply a spontaneous painter is an inducement to explore more fully the role of deliberation and consciousness in his art.

5. Fairfield Porter, Art in its Own Terms, New York, Taplinger, 1979, p. 118.
6. As quoted in Kenworth Moffett's catalogue essay for Realist Painter in an Age of Abstraction, p. 28.
7. John Bernard Myers, "Fairfield Porter, Poet of the Commonplace," Portfolio, Jan.–Feb. 1983, p. 58.
8. Quoted by Whitney Balliett, "The Art World: An Akimbo Quality," The New Yorker, Mar. 14, 1983, p. 147.
9. Kenworth Moffett quotes a letter of Porter's in which the artist recounts being held up in his work by caring for his impaired son: "I really did nothing for the first ten years of his life but try to somehow help him. This was a most frustrating experience, because I was trying to solve something for which there was no solution." Realist Painter in an Age of Abstraction, p. 24.
10. Ibid., p. 24.
11. Ibid., p. 29.
12. Ibid., p. 32.
13. Ibid.
14. Ibid.
15. Ibid.
16. The fact that 66 of the 144 works shown in Boston were withdrawn from the show thereafter hardly alleviated the problem, since many of the works removed were among the stronger ones.

The Fairfield Porter exhibition, which opened at the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston, went on to the Greenville (S.C.) County Museum of Art, where it remained until June 19. Further stops include the Cleveland Museum (Nov. 9–Dec. 31); Museum of Art, Carnegie Institute, Pittsburgh (Feb. 18–Apr. 22, '84); Whitney Museum, New York (May 31-July 22, '84).

Author: Robert Berlind is an artist who writes about art.

VOL
71
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI

Orange Around, 1977, polychromed aluminum, 54 by 60 by 48 inches. Robert Miller Gallery.

Multiple Disjunctions: George Sugarman

Attempting both to energize space and to structure what he calls the "existential disorder of life," George Sugarman builds exuberant, untidy sculptures in which eccentric shapes are joined to sensuous colors in a quirky form of order.

BY ELIZABETH FRANK

Over the past 30 years, George Sugarman has asked so many questions of sculpture, and moved so decisively from one investigation of form to the next, that charting his development is a little like trying to watch a steeplechase. In his recent retrospective, "Shape of Space: The Sculpture of George Sugarman," we were given a long overdue survey that clearly established him as one of our most vigorous and inventive artists.

Sugarman made a late start as an artist. In 1951, when he went to Paris to study sculpture with Ossip Zadkine, he was 39—but he knew what he wanted to do. From Picasso, Archipenko and Lipchitz he had already arrived at a conception of sculpture as dynamic, space-generating structure, and, increasingly drawn toward an idiom that would include unexpected juxtapositions, disjunctions and internal volumes, he traveled around Europe looking at art, equally enthralled by the clarity of Michelangelo and the complexity of Bernini.

From the beginning, Sugarman's own pieces directly addressed the problem of multiple forms. In Untitled Terra Cotta Group (1953), four distinct units, each a mix of biomorphic and geometric elements, stand independent of each other (though three forms rest inside grooves in a wood base), at the same time establishing a semiarchitectural enclosure. To a great extent his later work grows out of this piece, for it embodied his as yet unrefined but instinctive dislike of the idea of sculpture as fixed, unitary structure. The whole thrust of his subsequent work can be seen as a struggle to find alternatives to that old paradigm.

After Sugarman returned to New York in 1955—when Abstract Expressionism was, of course, at its peak—his advances in defining his own sense of sculptural form were largely keyed by contemporaneous painting, although he was also intensely interested in both Léger and Stuart Davis. Working in wood (it was cheap and readily available), he made West of the Mississippi (1956–57), a slanting tier of openwork shapes in laminated pine that reflects a close reading of both Surrealist sources and the allover composition of painting of the period, chiefly Pollock's. The shapes, quirky in their unexpected shifts from soft to sharp definition, nevertheless carve out an energetic flow of abstract form.

More and more taken with the idea of sculpture made of individual parts that could be indefinitely extended, Sugarman went on to make Six Forms in Pine (1959), the piece which won him a second prize in the 1961 Carnegie International. Situated on two nonsymmetrical and somewhat obtrusive white bases, the piece consists of a single mass of laminated pine carved into contiguous but decidedly irregular shapes, each of which marks out its own independent orientation while also functioning as a segment in the piece's primarily horizontal continuum. The extent of the piece is finally determined only by its relatively small scale, since the proliferation of segments provides no formal or thematic limit or closure. Six Forms was thus radical, for Sugarman, in its resolute integration of disjunction and continuity.

In Sugarman's sprightly sculptures of the early '60s, he incorporated what he had recently discovered about segmental composition in a variety of vertical works which throw the conventional axial orientation of sculpture off-center. Contrary forms (curved vs. straight, biomorphic vs. geometric, multiple vs. unitary) are piled on top of each other in abrupt, alogical transitions: sometimes a group of forms spills downwards off the sculpture's base or rises upward in balance-and-gravity-defying acrobatics.

Sugarman applied bright, saturated hues to separate parts of these pieces, leaving carving marks and ragged wooden edges visible under thick coats of paint. Not only is the individuation of parts thus enhanced, but the color also adds to the formal clarity of the work, turning the apparent arbitrariness of Sugarman's conception into an esthetic virtue. For example, the rising stack of forms in One For Ornette Coleman (1961) breaks down into separate parts even as it ascends in a single upward thrust, and the top-heavy black "box" shape jutting out over the nest of downward-curling red forms in Black and a Garland (1964) disrupts the verticality of the piece in a way that is both awkward and elegant.

With this use of color and accretive composition, Sugarman had a principle for the generation of virtually unlimited sets of independent sculptural forms. In 1964 he made Inscape, his riskiest sculpture yet. Eschewing such conventions as vertical orientation and the use of a base, he put a ring of concatenated painted wood units on the floor. Moving counterclockwise, a freestanding white

VOL
7
1
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI

Six Forms in Pine, 1959, laminated pine, 59 by 143 by 59 inches. Photos courtesy Robert Miller Gallery.

Untitled Terra Cotta Group, 1953, terra cotta with wood base, 24 by 36 by 12 inches.

squiggle walls off a cluster of gray wedges leaning against a bed of green slats; these slats in turn support the initial unit in a chain of yellow forms which sneak around a beige block of laminated wood, a strange, black conical wedge and a horizontal shape in red. With their separate, discrepant colors and frequent abutments, the units act out a tension of autonomy-within-contiguity.

On the whole, Inscape is confined in scale: it is an unambiguous indoor piece, perceivable at a glance. But with Two In One (1966), Sugarman took the idea of indoor scale to its limit, demanding the viewer's total physical participation. The piece's configuration is actually simple: a large, acute V consisting of two lines of independent shapes. But the shapes are so large and eccentric, so utterly dissociated from each other, that the viewer, as he walks through and around the work, gets a sense of the whole only occasionally. The individual shapes themselves obey no law: some are simple, others complex, some massive and dense, others open and light; and in some we see Sugarman's now familiar transitions between biomorphic and geometric form.

Two in One remains a difficult piece. The individual color shapes, at once bulbous and sinuous, are masterful, but their outsize scale makes it difficult for the viewer to grasp the general composition of the sculpture. The V-configuration, moving outward in widening increments, gets lost at certain angles, so that no one viewpoint seems more compelling than another. Thus the piece oscillates between functioning as a collection of interesting objects and resolving itself into a set of formal relationships.

In his subsequent sculptures, Sugarman confronted the problem of objecthood directly, opting for even more dissociation and irresolution. Yellow to White to Blue to Black (1967) is a polychromed wood indoor piece (an outdoor steel version was commissioned by Xerox in El Segundo, Calif.). Its four shapes are, in the Minimalist vocabulary of the time, emphatically "literal," though not "primary" objects—specific without being geometrically pure. The individual shapes resemble one another only insofar as each embodies an internal transformation of geometric and curving forms and defines a see-through internal volume. Unlike Two in One, the piece is graspable by the viewer who "completes" the sculpture by reading each object as one part in a variable whole.

The logic of dissociation and extension in Inscape and Two In One suggests an ambition to break down sculptural boundaries and to occupy lateral space in a way that, at the appropriate scale, can only be accommodated outdoors. And indeed, by the late '60s, Sugarman began to make outdoor sculpture, which not only served intrinsically formal ends (as in the steel version of Yellow to White to Blue to Black), but permitted Sugarman to create his own rendition of public sculpture—decidedly not aloof monuments, but warm, inviting social ensembles.

St. Paul Commission (1968) was an installation of widely separated, polychromed steel forms affixed to the ceiling of a bank's entrance and projecting outward from its building's columnar supports toward the street, virtually hailing passers-by and at the same time breaking up the monolithic immobility of the surrounding architecture. And People's Sculpture (1976) in the Baltimore Federal Center situates two steel "bowers" for sitting and resting and a number of smaller forms for play and contemplation in the midst of an otherwise rather stark, flat city plaza.

Sugarman, who remains enthusiastic about public sculpture, has continued to use multipartite compositions and enclosures in his public works: the Detroit Commission (1979) and the Will's Eye Hospital Commission (1981) are both based upon these principles. His insistence upon integrating interior volumes into his public work has carried over to his more "formalist" sculptures. Since the early '70s, in fact, he has been producing freestanding indoor polychromed aluminum pieces which, although they return to a basically single-site, if not single-unit structure, encompass a good deal of disjunction in their internal relations.

One for Ornette Coleman, 1961, polychromed wood, 60 by 30 by 24 inches.

VOL 71 ISS 8 SE 1983 UMI

Inscape, 1964, polychromed wood, 9 parts, 28 by 158 by 97 inches. Robert Miller Gallery.

Sugarman continues to use abundant organic forms and references. In Concord (1974), for example, a dark blue "gate" is implanted in a "cloud" of red cut-out overlapping forms; and in Boundaries (1977), which is a fragile and seemingly weightless array of aluminum, two blue cut-out "fences" are set against a pile of red and yellow shapes. The leaf and flame references in this latter piece give it a dematerialized lightness that couldn't have less in common with Sugarman's earlier blocky wood forms.

In their lightness and openness, these later aluminum works almost read as translations of the three-dimensional cardboard sketches and broadly gestural paintings on paper that Sugarman started making in the early '70s. Painting cell-like and scalloped configurations, and layering purples, greens and grays on bright blues, pinks, reds and oranges, Sugarman in these works makes the density and intensity of his color bring out the tactile qualities of his brushstrokes; in a collage like Sanctuary (1979), he pushes the ambiguity between painting and sculpture about as far as it can go. While these seemingly decorative works appeared to situate Sugarman within the ranks of the then prominent Pattern movement, they are actually attempts to bring into focus the sculptural possibilities of the painterly gesture, whose language Sugarman had first absorbed with Abstract Expressionism.

Throughout his career, Sugarman has been persistent in his investigations of the role of color in sculpture, pioneering in his uses of the floor as site, and innovative in his attitude to the dissociation of forms. His ceaseless experimentation has occasionally resulted in works whose greatest virtue lies simply in their embodying one stage or another of Sugarman's critical process. But his best pieces go beyond conjecture and conjure instead a sculptural world as inviting, witty and effusive as any we have had in our time.

"O to realize space! The plenteousness of all, that there are no bounds. . . .," Walt Whitman wrote, in "A Song of Joys." Sugarman shares Whitman's aggregating and cataloguing impulses, just as he shares his exuberance and humanity. In an era of var-

Sanctuary, 1979, acrylic on paper mounted on board with fiberglass, 61 by 85 inches.

Yellow to White to Blue to Black, 1967, polychromed steel, 7 ½ by 35 by 35 feet. Xerox Corporation, El Segundo, California ious sculptural orthodoxies, Sugarman's disregard of dogma has made him not so much a maverick as an esthetic democrat—an artist who seeks, both formally and thematically, to make his sculptures accessible to all, just as he literally creates equality amongst the parts of his pieces. Again like Whitman, Sugarman celebrates the freedom of the many-in-one. ☐

Curated by Holliday T. Day, "Shape of Space: The Sculpture of George Sugarman" originated at the Joslyn Art Museum, Omaha (Dec. 6, 1981–Jan. 31, 1982) before moving to the Institute of Contemporary Art in Philadelphia (Mar. 15–Apr. 24, '82), Bard College, Annandale-on-Hudson, N.Y. (May 23–July 31, '82), and the Columbus (Ohio) Museum of Art (Aug. 28–Oct. 10, '82). A retrospective of works on paper and small sculptures from 1950 to 1982 was held at the Robert Miller Gallery (Oct. 5–23, '82).

Author: Elizabeth Frank is a free-lance critic living in New York.

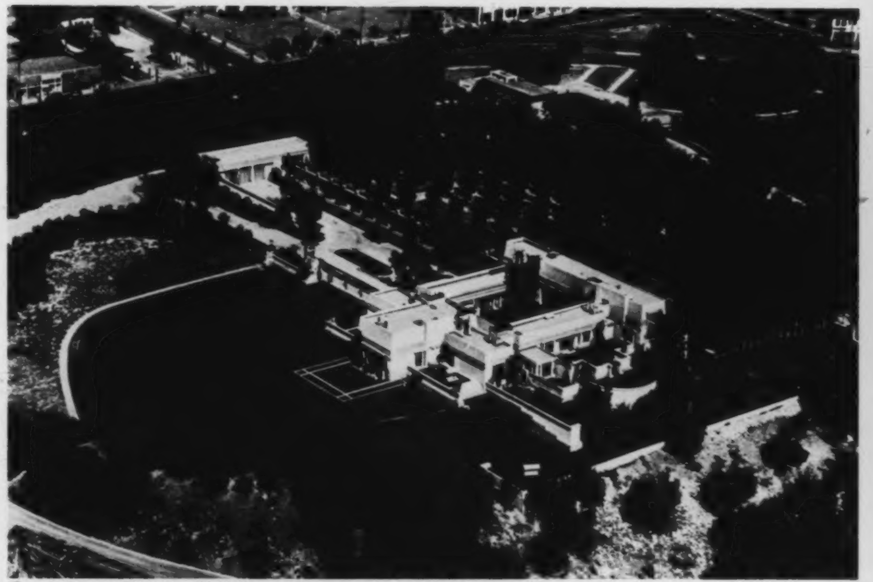
VOL 71 ISS 8 SE 1983 UMI

Hollyhock House and the Romance of Southern California

Designed for a patron of the arts, Frank Lloyd Wright's Hollyhock House evokes architecture of all sorts—Greek, Neoclassical, Mayan, Spanish-Colonial—and even exotic film sets; yet, like all Wright houses, it is sensitive to its site and region, standing as a "microcosm of L.A. itself."

BY NEIL LEVINE



Frank Lloyd Wright: Hollyhock House, aerial view from southwest. Security Pacific National Bank Photographic Collection, Los Angeles Public Library.

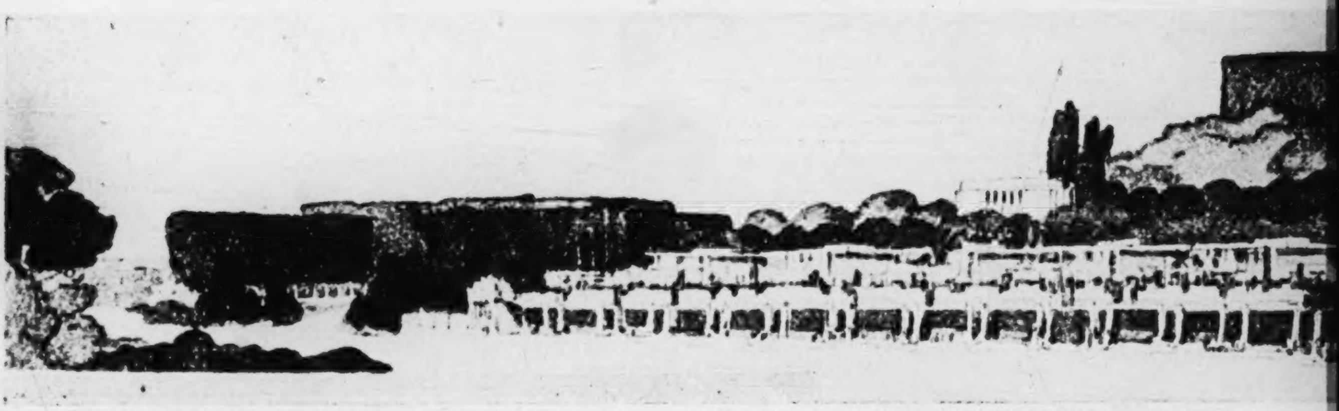
Few private houses in the 20th century have been designed with such monumental purpose as Frank Lloyd Wright's Hollyhock House.[1] Fewer still have been invested with the degree of symbolic expression normally reserved for buildings of a more public nature. Once dismissed as turgid, decorative and imitative, Hollyhock House may now be seen, in light of postmodernism's rejection of the reductive machine esthetic, as one of Wright's most significant works and modern architecture's most splendid achievements.

Hollyhock House was built for the wealthy oil heiress Aline Barnsdall in Hollywood between 1919 and 1921, during the fabulous postwar boom in Los Angeles and at the first peak of excitement over Hollywood's role in the fast-growing motion-picture industry.[2] The house, which was intended to be the nucleus of a cultural center devoted mainly to the dramatic arts, is located on a hilltop at the edge of the Los Angeles basin, just before the Hollywood foothills begin to rise. With the city downtown below to the southeast, the San Gabriel Mountains in the background to the north, the San Bernardino Mountains in the distance to the east, and the Pacific Ocean sweeping across the horizon from west to south, the house is perched on the acropolis of Olive Hill like an ancient palace or citadel, isolated from the real world by a surrounding moat of boulevards and streets.[3] Wright called it Aline Barnsdall's "little queendom" and said it was conceived as "a holiday adventure in Romanza."[4]

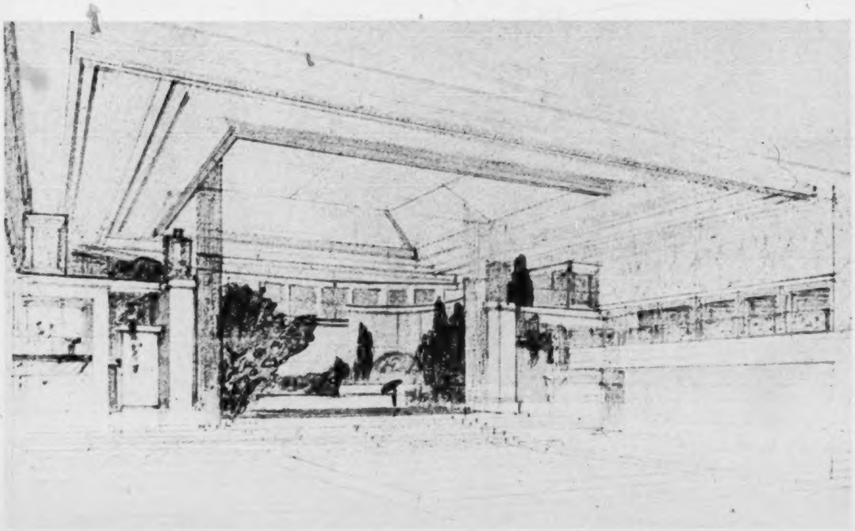
"You'll want when you see it to call it Egyptian," wrote a reporter for the Hollywood Citizen News in September 1921, until "you realize that in the Nile Country, in all the stretches of the north African plains, there is no building that could truly be called parent of this one." Then, he continued, "The 'Aztec!' you exclaim; and you are closer to the truth, when your eyes equate it with the charm of the courts and the patios and the bowers, and the gardens and the siesta spots and the flat roof lines. But you are still wrong." Rather, he concluded, you should "think of a good size pueblo on one of New Mexico's mesas or low clean bluffs seen in some parts of the foothills of the Sierras. Refine the outline somewhat, . . . tint it . . . and bower it

Two west views of Hollyhock House, designed by F.L. Wright for Aline Barnsdall, 1919–21, Los Angeles. Photos Neil Levine.

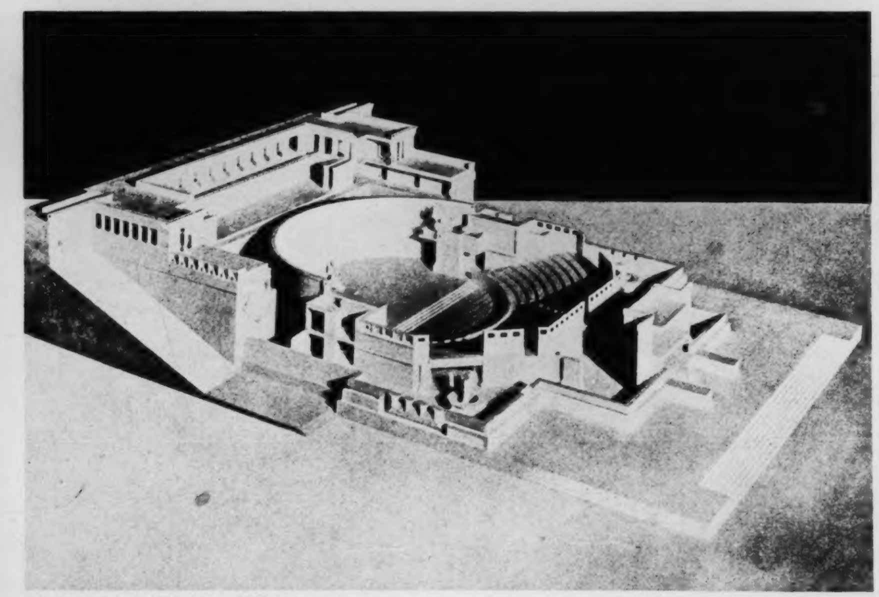
VOL 71 ISS 8 SE 1983 UMI



Wright: Overall project for Olive Hill, perspective from north. Left to right: theater; artist residences and shops with Hollyhock House above; cinema.



Wright: Interior perspective of Barnsdall Theater (not built).



Wright: Model for Barnsdall Theater.

with verdure and you will approach the conception of the exterior of Miss Barnsdall's home."[5]

Hollywood, of course, had already become the land of make-believe in that "desert of shallow effects" Wright called Los Angeles. Soon after Colonel William Selig sent some of his staff out there in 1907 to shoot The Count of Monte Cristo, the movie industry began establishing permanent studios to take advantage of the perpetual sunshine and extraordinary natural scenery, ranging from snow-capped mountains and arid desert to semitropical valleys and ocean as far as the eye could see. Lots began springing up all over Los Angeles, but especially in Hollywood, with sets resembling the rock-cut temples of Abu Simbel for Cecil B. DeMille's Ten Commandments (1923) or a Near Eastern bazaar for Douglas Fairbanks's Thief of Baghdad (1925). The first and greatest of these spectacular outdoor dream worlds was D.W. Griffith's Babylonian palace for Intolerance, built in 1916 on Sunset Boulevard, just a few blocks to the east of Olive Hill, and left standing for a number of years afterward as a kind of memorial to that failed epic.[6] As the palaces in which the movies were shown, as well as those in which the stars such as Chaplin, Fairbanks or Pickford lived, were becoming as exotic as the sets themselves, a context was established Wright could hardly ignore, especially when Nebuchadnezzar was the next-door neighbor.

Located on the crown of Olive Hill and enclosing a central courtyard, Hollyhock House steps down to the south in a series of platforms and terraces which terminate in a low semicircular bastion, making the southern flank of the building seem impregnable from Sunset Boulevard below. The entrance on the north, from Hollywood Boulevard, is protected by a deep forecourt which reaches out to a private driveway and is bordered by animal pens on one side and an extended porte-cochère on the other. This covered passage turns into a corbelled tunnel ending in double, solid concrete doors, like a ceremonial causeway opening into the shaft of a manmade mountainside.

Project studies from The Life-Work of the American Architect Frank Lloyd Wright.

Inside, the verdant, sun-drenched courtyard, surrounded and shaded by loggias and pergolas and cooled by a stream of water, provides a sanctuary of peace and serenity. Outside, the monolithic appearance of the smooth, tawny-colored walls, roofs and parapets, layered and canted as they rise and almost completely unpunctured by windows or doors, makes the house seem like part of the hill itself, at once reinforcing the templelike character of the precinct and calling to mind the ancient monuments of Mesoamerica and the Near East. But, finally, the luxuriousness of the setting, the sleek beauty of the forms and the sense of enchantment within provide a visual experience that, perhaps more than any other serious work of architecture, speaks of the modern world of romance represented by Hollywood in the late teens and '20s.

Nothing could be further removed from the middle-class, suburban atmosphere of turn-of-the-century Oak Park, Illinois, where Wright lived from 1889 to 1909 and produced a body of work which gave such fundamental expression to the values of family and home that it literally changed the course of architectural history. Hollyhock House was built at the end of a decade of turmoil and disaster in Wright's personal life, beginning with his flight to Europe with Mamah Cheney, the wife of a former client, in 1909, climaxing in the fire at Taliesin and the savage murder there of Mrs. Cheney and her children in 1914, and finally reaching an anguished denouement in his relationship with the mentally disturbed Miriam Noel. During this period Wright moved from Chicago to Taliesin to Tokyo and then on to California, seeing himself for the first time in his life as an artist "in exile." What more appropriate place to find oneself than Hollywood? "Now," wrote Wright, "with a radical client like Aline Barnsdall, a site like Olive Hill, a climate like California, an architect himself head on for Freedom, something had to happen. . . . This 'Romance' of California had to 'come out.' "

It was soon after the tragedy at Taliesin that Wright met Aline Barnsdall in Chicago, where she was involved in the Little Theater movement. After a trip to California in 1915, however, she decided that the future of experimental theater lay out west and, according to Kathryn Smith, commissioned Wright in late 1915 or early 1916 to design a theater to be located in the Los Angeles area.[7] Wright apparently did preliminary designs for the theater as well as a residence, but there was no definite site and nothing immediately came of the project.[8] Barnsdall rented an existing facility for the 1916–17 season but closed the company at the end of the season.[9]

VOL 71 ISS 8 SE 1983 UMI

In the meantime, Wright left for Tokyo to supervise the construction of the Imperial Hotel, for which he had done the preliminary designs in 1913–14. Between December 1916 and November 1922, he made as many as a dozen Pacific crossings, spending most of his time in Japan. Finally, in June 1919, Aline Barnsdall bought the 36-acre Olive Hill site. The site got its name from the olive trees planted on its slopes in the 1890s, and the hollyhocks growing wild there gave Barnsdall the idea of naming her house after "her favorite flower." Rising to a height of 490 feet above sea level, and at least 100 feet above the surrounding streets, Olive Hill was an extremely prominent spot. Located at the northeastern corner of Hollywood, where the tracks of the Pacific Electric streetcars coming from downtown Los Angeles turned west from Vermont Avenue onto Hollywood Boulevard, Olive Hill made with Mount Hollywood to the north a kind of natural gateway to Hollywood itself.[10]

Wright turned the site into an outdoor sanctuary for the arts "under," as he put it, "the serene canopy of California blue." The Barnsdall house was to command the hill like a temple, with the buildings for cultural activities set around its base. Among these were a 1250-seat theater on Vermont, an apartment house at the corner of Vermont and Hollywood, a row of combined shops and artists' residences along Hollywood, a cinema at the corner of Hollywood and Edgemont, as well as several subsidiary dwellings for the various people who would run the art center and manage the estate Wright referred to as Aline Barnsdall's "little principality." The theater, originally planned to be top-lit, with a clerestory rising above a laylight covering both auditorium and stage, was conceived as an indoor, outdoor space.[11] According to Norman Bel Geddes, who was hired by Barnsdall as stage designer, Wright said his project was based on "the classic Greek stages [which] were without equipment for lighting and scenery."[12]

In this, Wright seems to have been completely in tune with developments in Los Angeles. Already in 1916, one of the natural amphitheaters in the Hollywood Hills had been used for an open-air production of Julius Caesar and this led to the creation of both the Hollywood Bowl in 1919–22 and the Greek Theater in Griffith Park, just north of Olive Hill, also proposed in 1919 but only built a decade later.[13] In Wright's theater, the bowl of seats would have made a continuous circle with the rear wall of the stage, designed as a cyclorama; and with low freestanding piers separating the two areas, rather than a proscenium arch, the space would have formed a single arena under the continuous skylight.

Despite the importance of the theater to the project, Hollyhock House was built first. Since Wright was in Japan almost all the time, he said "it had mostly to be built by telegraph" and thought the result was a "miracle." Even before the house was finished, however, the scope of the project was greatly curtailed and eventually only two of the subsidiary buildings were completed, called Residences A and B. Perhaps as a result, Hollyhock House itself came to bear the full expressive charge of the overall scheme, even taking over some of its dramatic functions.

With four main wings around a lush court, Hollyhock House has a local Spanish-Colonial flavor, but its symmetry of design is classically formal.

But it was always in Wright's mind much more than just a house, for "Miss Barnsdall wanted no ordinary home." Although "she was," according to Wright, "as near American as any Indian," she was about "as domestic as a shooting star." As for the final product, Wright felt "there was nothing like it anywhere in the world." It had "an atmosphere rare as 'poetic.' "

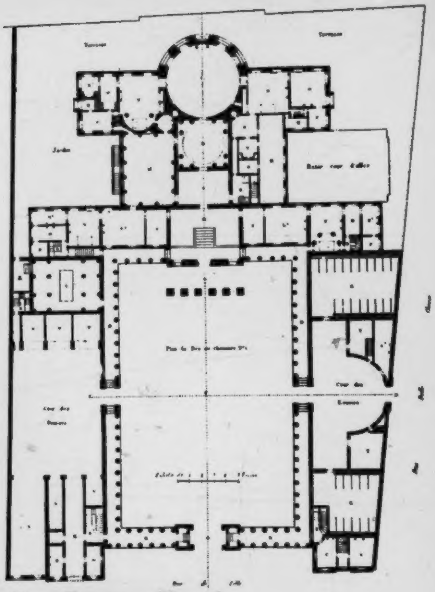
Hollyhock House was one of the very few opportunities Wright had in domestic design to develop a program of such scope. It was preceded by the Avery Coonley Estate in Riverside, Illinois, begun in 1907–08 and completed in the early teens. With the loss of the commission for the Harold McCormick mansion of 1907, the Coonley House represents the culmination of Wright's Prairie Style, being, as Wright later said, "the best I could then do in the way of a house." The other major undertaking before Hollyhock House was Wright's own home in Spring Green, Wisconsin, called Taliesin. It was begun in 1911 but rebuilt after fires in 1914 and 1925. After Hollyhock, there was Fallingwater, the weekend house built for Edgar Kaufmann at Mill Run, Pennsylvania, from 1936 to 1939, and Wright's second home, the desert compound of Taliesin West, at Scottsdale, Arizona, begun in 1938.

Hollyhock House is different from all of these. It has the formality of the early Prairie Style but none of its domesticity. It is more explicitly regional and more specifically oriented to the natural forms of the landscape, yet is nowhere nearly as naturalistic and integral to its site as the two Taliesins or Fallingwater. Hollyhock House is transitional and prophetic. Its subject matter is nature, and the relation between building and landscape is expressed in a symbolic language that announces the major themes of Wright's later work.

Drawn to Southern California by the Barnsdall commission, Wright soon opened up an office in Hollywood. For the first time in his life, he had left the Middle West to practice elsewhere and was forced to confront the issue of American regionalism as an outsider. Never before had Wright to deal with a landscape of such elemental power and presence. "Hollyhock House was to be a natural house in the changed circumstances," he wrote, "native to the region of California as the house in the Middle West had been native to the Middle West."[14] Wright was hardly alone in this effort, as the growth of explicitly regional styles was just beginning to alter the course of modern architecture in America.

Nowhere was this more apparent than in California, where the progressive work of Greene and Greene, Irving Gill and Bernard Maybeck had almost completely come to a halt by 1916 and the Spanish Colonial style of the early missions had been accepted as the most logical expression of local conditions (especially after it was highlighted at the Panama-California Exhibition held in San Diego in 1915). While Wright despised such "sentimental bosh,"[15] he also felt that the style of the mission buildings "just happened to be more in keeping with California." In searching for an "imaginative California 'Form,'" something "romantic" and "beautiful in California in the way that California herself is beautiful," he naturally found inspiration in their "cool patios" enclosed by "plain, white-plastered walls," acting as "a refreshing foil for exotic foliage" in "oases kept green by great mountain reservoirs." But Wright realized his program called for something monumental and "not so domestic as the popular neo-Spanish of the region." By reference to the elemental, native Indian forms of the American Southwest and pre-Columbian Mexico, he sought to achieve, through a process of abstraction, a more universal expression of the powerful forces of nature that define the landscape of Southern California.

Claude-Nicolas Ledoux: Hôtel de Thélusson, Paris, 1778–83.



Pierre Rousseau: Plan of Hôtel de Salm, Paris, 1782–85.

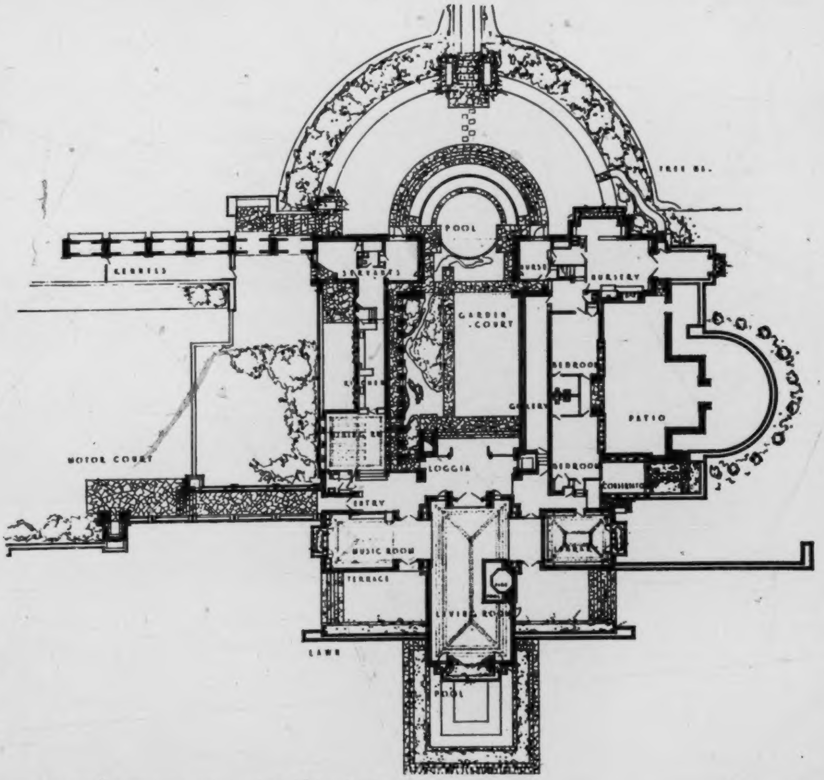
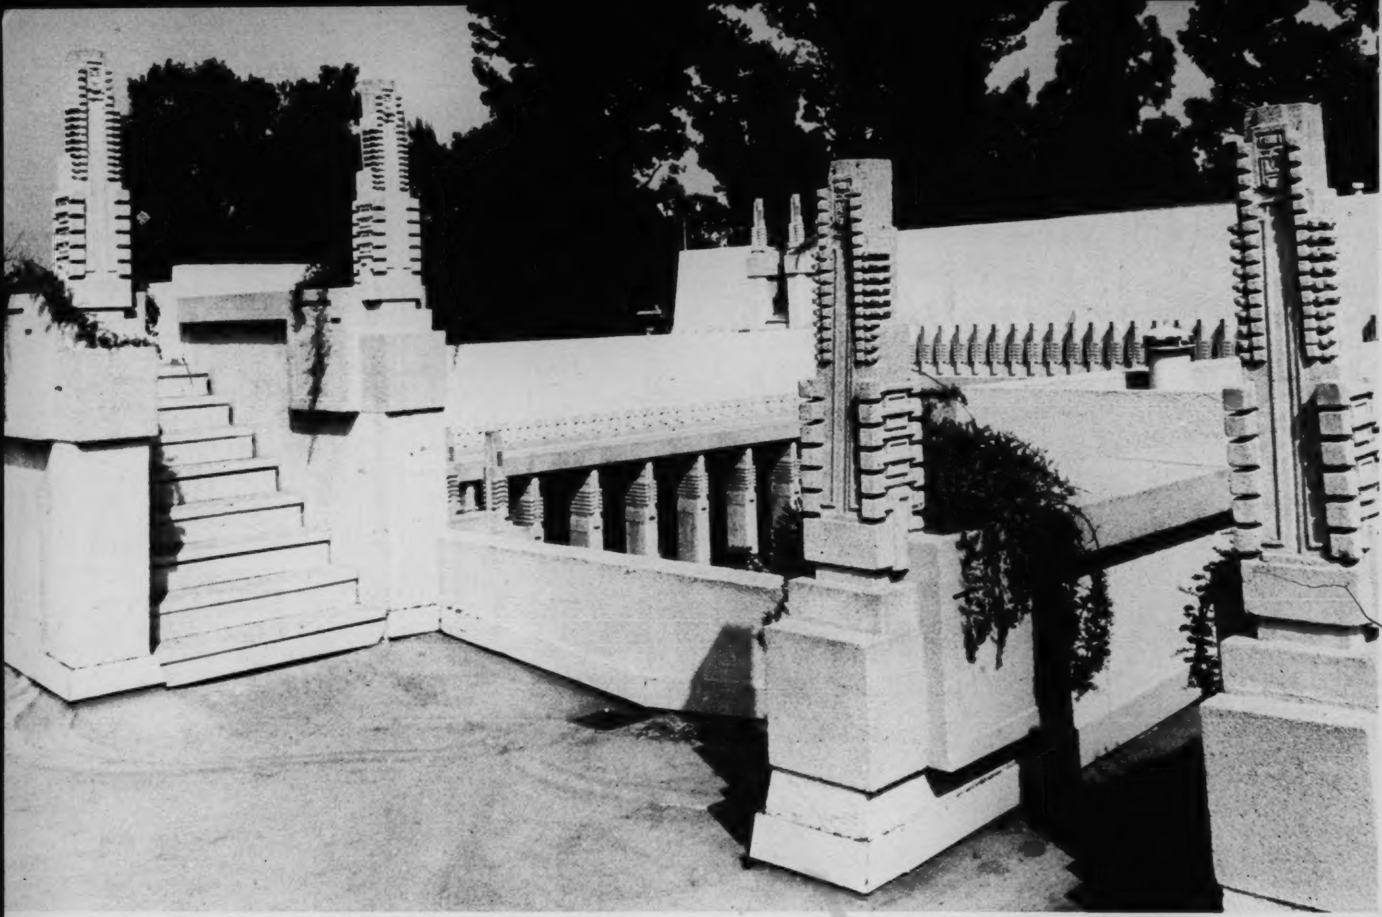
For the plan of Hollyhock House, Wright returned to the "zoned plan" he had developed for the main house of the Coonley Estate and later used in modified form at Taliesin. As adapted for the Olive Hill site, it became the most classically balanced and self-contained composition Wright ever produced for a house. In the Coonley House, each major function (living, dining, kitchen and servants' quarters, bedrooms, guest rooms) is placed in a separate wing. These wings are raised above the driveway to form a piano nobile and are loosely linked in a broad, open U to take advantage of the view down to the Des Plaines River, which curls around the property to the south and west. At Taliesin, the separate wings are set around three sides of the hill, just below the crown, forming, as Wright said, "a brow for the hill itself."[16] The views out over his "beloved ancestral Valley" are commanding, and the rough-quarried stone, laid in strata, makes Taliesin appear like an outcrop, an idea Wright got from "the hills of the region where the rock comes cropping out in strata to suggest buildings."[17]



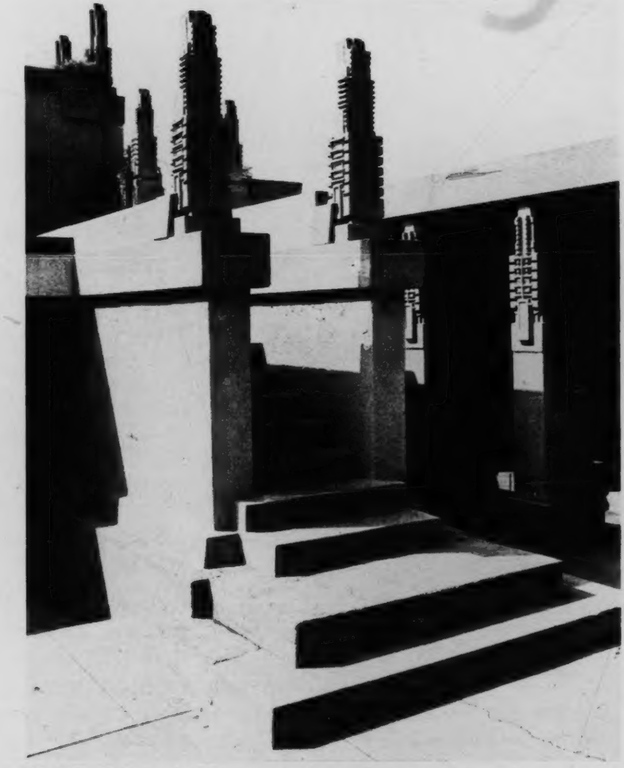
Frank Lloyd Wright: Plan of Hollyhock House.

By contrast, the four main wings of Hollyhock House enclose a patio-court, following the local Spanish-Colonial tradition, but the axiality and symmetry of the design give it a specifically classical formality. Wright had just previously used the classical courtyard plan for the large public buildings of Midway Gardens in Chicago, of 1913–14, and the Imperial Hotel, both of which had stages terminating the central axis. The plan of Hollyhock House, however, is somewhat more domestic than both of these. It recalls the 18th-century French hôtel plan as exemplified by the Hôtel de Salm (an exact replica of which was built in San Francisco in 1915 to serve as the French pavilion for the Panama-Pacific Exhibition and then rebuilt in 1919–24, on a site in Lincoln Park overlooking the Pacific Ocean, as the permanent home of the California Palace of the Legion of Honor).

VOL 71 ISS 8 SE 1983 UMI



Wright: Hollyhock House, detail of roof terrace. Photo N. Levine.



Wright: Hollyhock House, stairs to roof. Photo N. Levine.

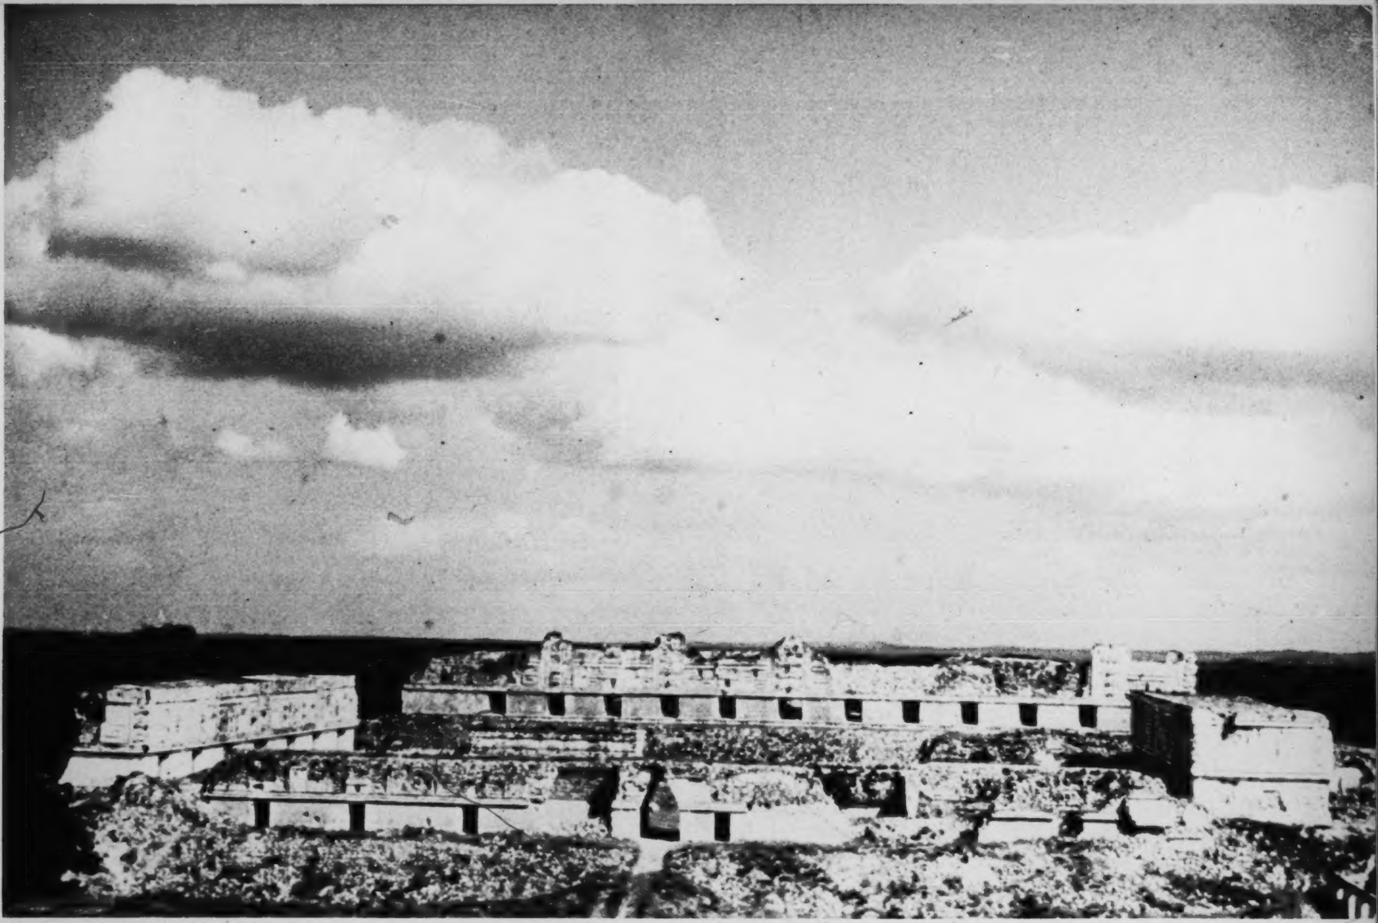
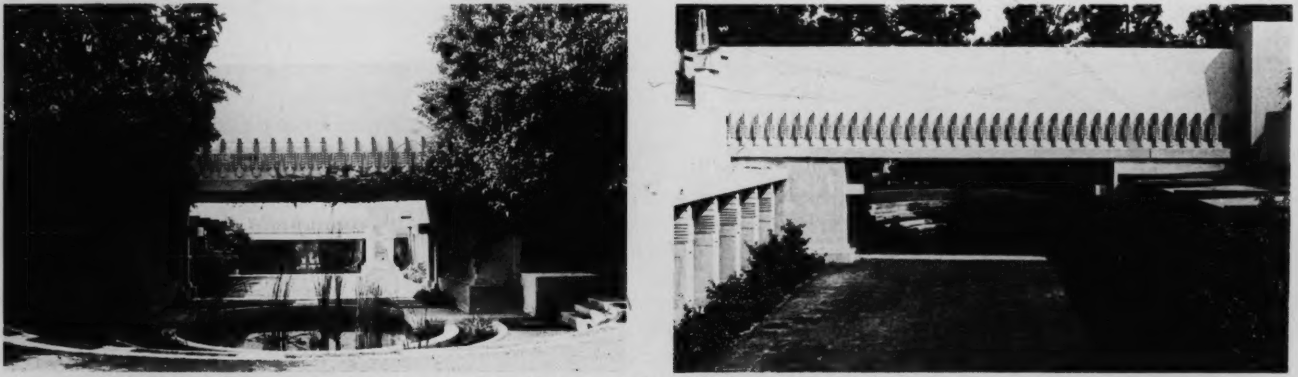
Hollyhock House is organized around two major axes, the central one running east-west through the patio or garden court, the other north-south through the entrance or motor court. Each terminates in a semicircle, as in the Hôtel de Salm. There is a central opening into the patio on the east (along what would have been an almost ritually formal path through the woods from the theater below); but the main entrance to the house, from the motor court, is shifted off axis.[18] It slides in the northwest corner, thus producing one of the many distortions which give the plan a characteristic pinwheeling effect.

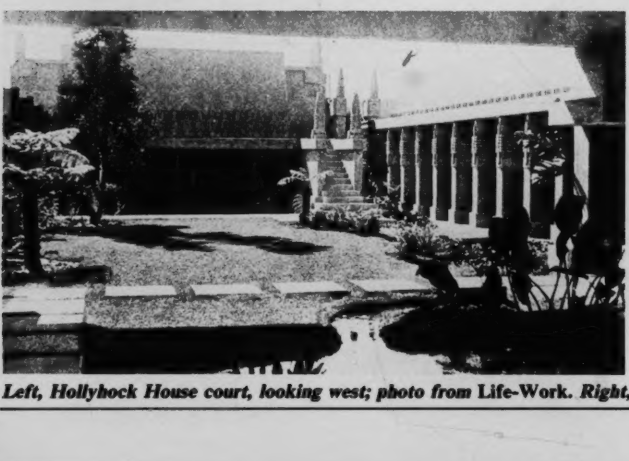
The long sides of the patio are bounded by the dining-kitchen-servants wing on the north and the guest bedroom wing on the south. The former closes the house from the motor court, and the latter opens onto a walled garden, which in turn is ringed by the semicircular retaining wall. The central axis of the house, running east-west,

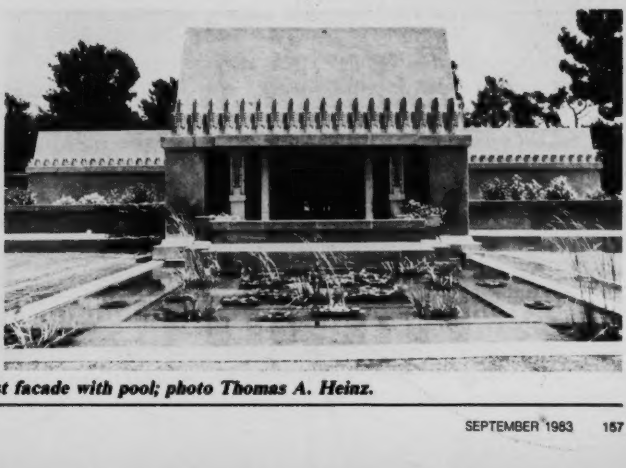


The Nunnery, 10th century A.D. (Maya), Uxmal (Yucatan), Mexico.



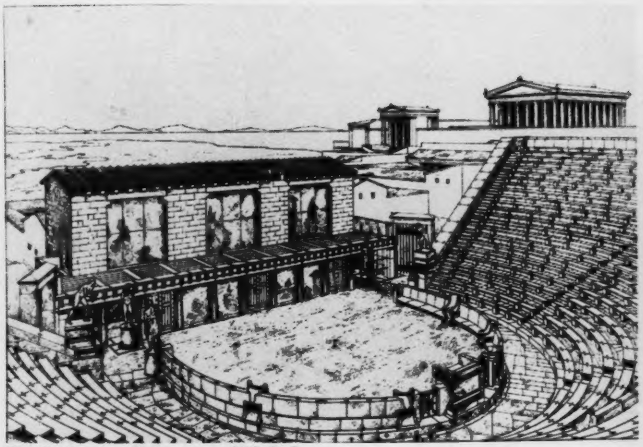
Two views of Hollyhock House east pool and court. Left, looking west; right, looking east. Photos N. Levine.



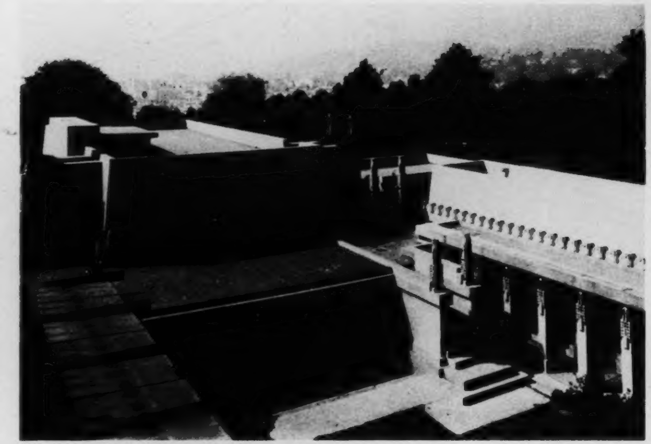


Left, Hollyhock House court, looking west; photo from Life-Work. Right, west facade with pool; photo Thomas A. Heinz.

VOL 71 ISS 8 SE 1983 UMI



Greek theater, Priene, ca. 300 B.C.; restoration by Armin von Gerkan in 1921.



Wright: Hollyhock House court and roof, reflecting contemporary taste for Greek-style theaters.

parallels the mountains to the north and connects two reflecting pools, one at each end of the house. To the east, the axis passes under the family bedroom wing, which forms a bridge over the circular pool marking the upper end of the patio. A stand of pine trees backed by a taller one of eucalyptus was to have formed a silvery green screen between the pale stucco walls of the house and the sandy-colored mountain slopes beyond.[19] To the west, the axis passes through the loggia and living room, opening out toward the Pacific Ocean. The square reflecting pool in front of the living room balances the circular one to the east.

Unlike almost all Wright's earlier houses, Hollyhock House is a closed composition turning inward on itself. Despite its elevated site, the views out are limited and highly controlled. All the spaces, however, open generously into the central patio, making the house seem "half house and half garden," as Wright told Aline Barnsdall "a California house should be."[20] The patio was originally designed to be part formal and manicured, part informal and wild, reminding one again of such 18th-century prototypes as the romantic jardin anglais set within the classical framework of Ledoux's Hôtel de Thélusson.

At Hollyhock House, a stream meandering through lush foliage and connecting the circular and square reflecting pools was originally separated from the rest of the garden by a stone path. The secluded oasis thus became an idealized landscape and the fitting location for the dramatic productions that were to be staged there. When used as an outdoor theater, the bedroom bridge could function, as pointed out by Kathryn Smith, as the proscenium arch, separating the raised stage beyond the circular pool from the orchestra occupying the manicured garden, while the flat roofs of the surrounding wings could be used as balconies for overflow crowds.[21] More in keeping with the antique source of Wright's design for the main theater, however, the whole arrangement could be reversed. Then the stepped, semicircular cavea around the pool would define the perimeter of the auditorium. The action would take place, as in a Greek theater of the Hellenistic period, on top of the flat roof of the loggia, now functioning as a true proscenium, and in front of the episcenium formed by the canted roof of the living room.

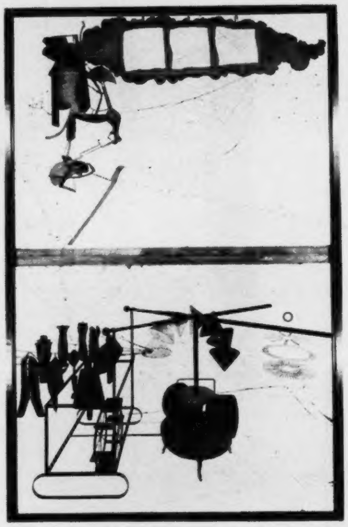
Wright felt in Mayan architecture "the purest kinship to nature" and borrowed from its long, low forms to express the sunlit vistas of California.

Whichever way it was used, it is clear that the design of this arena was more than a literal response to the program. The stylized, freestanding hollyhocks, looking like pre-Columbian sentinels, define a processional way, reinforcing the ceremonial air. The roof terraces, like temple platforms, are linked to one another by stairways and bridges and seem to have been designed for some symbolic purpose other than just the viewing of contemporary drama or dance. As in an ancient observatory, one mounts from one platform to the next, until the panorama of Los Angeles unfolds below and one has the impression of being suspended between the mountains and the sea "under the serene canopy of California blue."[22]

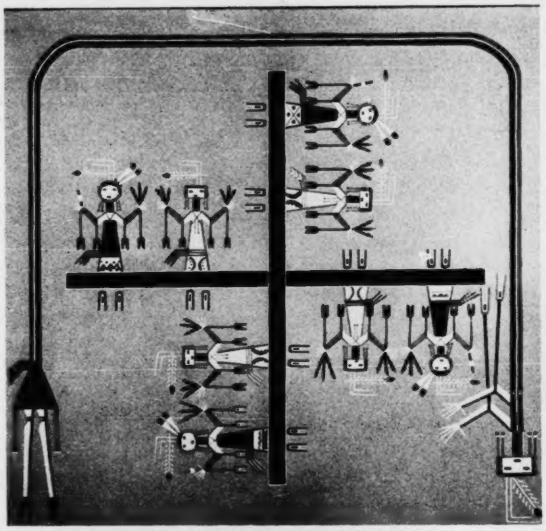
The exterior of Hollyhock House reflects the surrounding mountain shapes Wright described as "curious tan-gold foothills ris[ing] from tattooed sand-stretches." Hollyhock House is the one building Wright placed on a hill (not "of" it) and made the profile of the roof the most conspicuous feature of the design. After first trying a conventional hip and then a tall tepeelike shape, Wright chose a truncated talus form, banded by a ridge or frieze of conventionalized hollyhocks, to "adorn the hill crown." Instead of relating house to ground through the extended horizontal line of the eaves, the truncated shape, floating above the line of hollyhocks, relates the building to the sky and allows for the effect of aerial perspective in a landscape where, as Wright noted, "foreground spreads to distances so vast" that "all features recede, turn blue, recede and become bluer still to merge their blue mountain shapes, snow capped, with the azure of the skies." Wright thus felt he had expressed "in the silhouette of the Olive Hill house a sense of the breadth and romance of the region."[23]

As observers have pointed out from the very beginning, the high canted attic with its decorative frieze recalls both the shapes of Mayan architecture and the adobe forms of the Pueblo architecture of the American Southwest.[24] Although Hollyhock House was built of stuccoed hollow tile and wood-frame construction, Wright turned to the solid, layered and earthy forms of the indigenous architecture of pre-Colonial times for their direct expression of nature. Wright felt in the architecture of the Maya "the purest kinship to elemental nature" and used "the extended plateaux his terraces made and . . . the mighty scale of his horizontal stone constructions"[25] as the natural expression of the "vast perspectives" afforded by the "arid, sunlit strand" of California.

Francis Picabia:* Parade Amoureuse, *1917, oil on canvas, 38 by 29 inches. Collection Morton G. Neumann.



Marcel Duchamp:* The Bride Stripped Bare by Her Bachelors, Even, *1915–23, Philadelphia Museum.



Navaho sand painting ("Whirling Logs"), 1968, 24 by 24 inches. The bars represent the four elements. Photo Museum of the American Indian.

The four wings of Hollyhock House create a man-made crown for Olive Hill, and the patio-court in its center forms a crater of space where the images of mountain and water are brought together in a metaphor that is a microcosm of Los Angeles itself. Like the basin of Los Angeles, it is surrounded by mountains protecting it from the desert and is "kept green" by the water from "great mountain reservoirs" channeled through the plain out to the Pacific basin. In the patio of Hollyhock House, the stream of water was to be fed by an underground source pumped to the surface in the circular pool under the bridge, located at the highest point of the site.[26] From here, the water flows out into the open to irrigate and refresh, and then passes underground again to reappear in the square reflecting pool just beyond the living room. On the way it emerges into view in an open trough around the hearth of the fireplace. The fireplace is set under a skylight, and thus at the core of the house (the homestead, so to speak) the four natural elements of earth, air, fire and water are combined in a mythical union ultimately defining the meaning of the house.[27]

The main iconographical weight of Wright's houses was almost always carried by the fireplace he liked to see "burning deep in the solid masonry of the house itself" and expressed on the exterior by "a broad generous" chimney.[28] Hollyhock is no exception, and even though the chimney is inconspicuous on the outside, the fireplace, after the one designed for the Winslow House of 1893, is the most iconographically charged of any Wright produced. Its placement and design are unique. The living room is a self-contained volume, a perfectly symmetrical double square in plan covered by a tentlike hip ceiling. The fireplace is set in the middle of the long side diagonally opposite the entrance, at the juncture of the central axis and the secondary north-south axis linking the library and music room. It is constructed of blocks of decorative cast concrete and projects a third of the way into the room. Set between the opening to the library and a floor-to-ceiling door leading to a terrace on the right, it appears almost to be freestanding.

The placement of the fireplace in the center of the long side of the room gives it a special significance. Wright almost invariably set his fireplace on the short side, thinking of it as the backbone or core of a space emanating from it. Beginning with the Ward Willits House, of 1901–02, one usually enters the living room of a Wright house around the fireplace and senses it in the background as a three-dimensional, sculptural presence. At Hollyhock House, it is a pictorial element designed to be read narratively and to be the visual link between the secluded oasis of the patio to the left and the view beyond the Hollywood Hills to the Pacific Ocean on the right. Dramatically lit by the skylight above, its great sculptured mantel projects well out into space. It presents an asymmetrical, abstract, geometric composition that is totally different from the typically decorative and symmetrical designs of Wright's earlier work, such as the pattern of hanging wisteria in the Darwin D. Martin House in Buffalo, of 1904, or the frieze of ferns and birch trees on each side of the brick mantel in the living room of the Coonley House.[29] containing a grid of vertical striations continuing across the top like a sky in the background. The whole design is locked in place and held in suspension by the notched square shapes on the left and right overlapping the two deep-cut vertical channels. The channel on the left is taller than the one on the right and is chamfered on its outside edge, causing an illusion of perspectival diminution and reinforcing the reading from left to right.

The asymmetry of the Hollyhock composition derives from the narrative and figurative content of the imagery. The scene reads from left to right, or east to west, following the direction of the sun through the southern sky and the geometric progression from one reflecting pool to the other. Against the background of a large circular shape on the left is superimposed a fretted, vertical element recalling the conventionalized hollyhocks outside. Both forms are then reproduced at two smaller scales, as if mirrored on the surface of water. The resulting dynamic shape opens on the lower right into an inset panel containing a series of horizontal stripes which are first deflected down and then out into diamond shapes, expanding like water seeping into the ground. The composition then turns counterclockwise into another inset panel, this one

VOL 71 ISS 8 SE 1983 UMI

The geometric forms seem part mechanical, part organic, and the rhythmic action described by the big ratchet wheel on the left immediately recalls the mechanomorphic imagery of Picabia's contemporary paintings, such as his Parade Amoureuse, of 1917, or Duchamp's Bride Stripped Bare by Her Bachelors, Even (The Large Glass), of 1915–23.[30] The figurative content of Wright's design becomes all the more obvious when the mantel is seen obliquely as is normal when entering the room. Then, the tall, abstracted hollyhock takes on the stature of a figure in three-quarter profile and the whole scene is thrown into deep perspective. One has the impression of looking out over a vast landscape from some high seat or throne. Indeed, this reading coincides with Wright's son Lloyd's explanation of the scene as depicting Aline Barnsdall herself, as an Indian princess, seated on her throne looking out over her desert mesas.[31]

Poised in mid-air and hovering gravely between the hearth and the skylight, the mantel presents man and nature in a turbulent world of cyclical change. The circular forms on the left describe a rhythmic and recurrent action moving through the composition to the right always to return back on itself. The constant stream of water around the hearth underscores the ebb and flow of existence while the skylight opening literally enforces the natural cycle of night and day. Again, one is reminded of the alternating energies of Duchamp's Large Glass but, perhaps even more, of the synthesis of cosmic forces presented in Navajo sandpaintings, which Wright surely knew by that time.

The purpose of such ceremonial sandpaintings was perhaps not so far removed from Wright's. They were drawn on the ground in the middle of the hogan beneath the smoke hole, under the direction of the singer or medicine man, and the person to be brought back into equilibrium with the world was placed within the painting.[32] Wright himself described Aline Barnsdall's purpose in commissioning the house as an attempt to give stability and focus to her life. He saw her as "a restless spirit—disinclined to stay long at any time in any one place," and therefore could not understand "what she wanted a beautiful home for—anyhow or anywhere" until he "came to see that that was just why she wanted one."

The mantel is just one part of the larger composition of the fireplace. It is set midway between the octagonal hearth and the skylight. Originally, two couches were placed diagonally in front of it, paralleling the hearth and thus setting the fireplace apart from the rest of the space. Appearing to rise freestanding out of the earth and into the sky, with water around its base and light and air on all sides, the fireplace becomes an axis mundi, bringing to mind Brancusi's contemporary columnar sculptures, such as the King of Kings of 1920 or the first Endless Column.of two years before.[33] Again, like Duchamp's Large Glass, Wright's fireplace connects a lower, earth-bound, watery world to a higher, airy, light-filled plane. The shape of the hearth is a median term between the circular and square reflecting pools, and is set within a rectangular basin mirroring the overhead skylight. At night, the stream of water would reflect both the starry sky, seen through the skylight, and the flickering flames of the fire. In the daytime, it would catch the glint of the sun's rays filtering down from above.[34]

The fireplace, with pool and skylight, brings the four elements together in a way that suggests the ultimate meaning of Hollyhock House.

The central feature of Hollyhock House is at once a fireplace, a waterplace and a lightplace. Fire and water emerge from the cracks and crevices of the earthy stone floor under the blistering sun of California sky to condense in one complex form Wright's perception of the violent forces of nature:

> Stone is the basic material of our planet. It is continually changed by cosmic forces, themselves a form of change. Contrasted with these great mineral masses of earth structure—this titanic wreckage—are placid depths and planes of mutable water or the vast depth-plane of the immutable sky hung with evanescent clouds. And this creeping ground-cover of vegetable life, more inexorable than death, is rising from it all, over all, against all, texturing with pattern, infinite in resource, and inexhaustible in variety of effect. This is the earthly abode of the buildings man has built to work, dwell, worship, dance and breed in.[35]

As a young architect in Oak Park, Wright had always worked to achieve a harmony between architecture and nature. Whether it was the flat expanse of the prairie or the soft, rolling hills of his family's farmland in southern Wisconsin, nature was a benign foil or background that gave character to his architectural conceptions. Set off against a tree or a hillside, his houses might glow with the burnish of autumnal colors or blossom with the growth of spring. But things began to change around 1915, right after the fire at Taliesin and while he was preparing the final designs for the Imperial Hotel.[36] The commission for Hollyhock House and the experience of Southern California ultimately gave form to a new, less naive understanding of nature and its relation to architecture.

Wright's elemental expression of California should thus be contrasted not only with the image of domestic tranquility in his own early work but also with the casual Japanese-inspired bungalows of the Greene brothers, the simplicity of Irving Gill's stripped-down Mission Style, and the more explicit revivalism of Goodhue's Spanish Colonial. Wright thought all that was either "sentimental," "antiseptic," or just "fashionable" for the Californian "née Iowan, Wisconsinian, Ohioan." His vision of Los Angeles, the "poetic thing this land was before this homely mid-west invasion," derived from a cataclysmic interpretation of a landscape described by Southern California's poet laureate John Steven McGroarty in 1921 as "a city where it seemed that neither God nor man ever intended a city should be"—a "place in the sun," as Frank Fenton later wrote, that "rested on a crust of earth at the edge of a sea that ended a world."[37]

Water, of course, was one major problem for Los Angeles. "Water is all that enables them to have their being there," wrote Wright. "Water comes, but comes as a deluge once a year to surprise the roofs, sweep the sands into ripples and roll boulders along in the gashes combed by sudden streams in the sands of the desert. Then—all dry as before." But if the flow of water could be controlled, earthquakes could not. An abiding fear of earthquakes reaches back in Los Angeles history to the account by Father Crespí in 1769 of the first Spanish settlement, when the missionaries were welcomed by three severe quakes the night they arrived in the valley. While staying at the Barnsdall Estate in 1923, Wright wrote a brochure entitled Experimenting with Human Lives in which he described the drama of the Southern California landscape in terms of its violent history:

Wright: Hollyhock House living room with fireplace and pool, 48 by 24 feet overall. Photo Thomas A. Heinz.

> This great basin of the Pacific is overloaded,—overloaded with gigantic waters. Occasionally, as faults and fissures occur in its floor owing to the strains of this overload, water rushes down with enormous pressure > to internal fires—creating steam and gasses of incalculable power, seeking escape through other internal crevices leading to the upper air and convulse and alter the conformation of the earth-crust in doing so. If this, as a theory of seismic convulsion is too simple to be scientific, . . . the fact remains that the red line of seismic convulsion clings to the rim of the basin.[38]

Detail of fireplace and mantel designed by Wright, 124 inches long, 63 inches high. Photo Virginia Ernst Kazor.

VOL 71 ISS 8 SE 1983 UMI

Wright noted that "Los Angeles, San Francisco, Tokyo [are] all on the rim of this great basin."[39] His mythic interpretation of California, however, did not grow out of the San Francisco earthquake of 1906 but rather from his experience of "building against doomsday" in Tokyo, right after the fire at Taliesin.[40] As Wright never tired of repeating, the Imperial Hotel was designed with the express purpose of withstanding an earthquake. The floating foundations, the cantilevered construction, the surrounding pools of water and the splayed base of the building were all arrived at in an effort to combat its devastating effects. In Wright's mind the form of the hotel, though not Japanese in any of its details, came to represent that land in response to its most prominent physical feature, the volcanic Fujiyama rising out of the Pacific Ocean:

> From infancy . . . the minds and hearts of the Japanese are fixed upon the great calm mountain God of their nation—the sacred Fujiyama brooding in majesty and eternal calm over all. They deeply worship as the mountain continually changes moods, combining with sun and moon, clouds and mist in a vast expression of elemental beauty the like of which in dignity and repose exists nowhere else on earth. . . .
>
> And yet the dreaded force that made the great mountain continually takes its toll of life from this devoted people, as the enormous weight of the deep sea beside their tenuous island . . . strains the earth-crust opening fissures in the bottom of the great valley in which it rests and the sea rushes down to internal fires that betray the life on the green surface.
>
> . . . Shores are reversed as mountains are laid low and valleys lifted up. And always flames! The terror of it all faces conflagration at the end.

The Imperial Hotel has always been an enigma. Wright thought it was one of his most significant buildings, while historians have tended to dismiss it as retardataire. Although many of the details were worked out on the site, the hotel was basically designed in Chicago before Wright got to Japan. Its importance for Wright lay in the confrontation with the irrational force of nature and the transcendence of its destructive power. The experience, as he described it ten years later in his Autobiography, remained as present as ever:

> The terror of the temblor never left me while I planned the building nor while, for more than four years, I worked upon it. Nor is anyone allowed to forget it—sometimes awakened at night by strange sensations as at sea, strange unearthly and yet rumbling earth-noises. Sudden shocks, subsidence—and swinging. Again shock after shock and upheaval, jolting back, and swinging. A sense of the bottom falling from beneath the building, terror of the coming moments as cracking plaster and groaning timbers indicate the whole structure may come crashing and tumbling down. There may be more awful threat to human happiness than earthquake—I do not know what it can be.

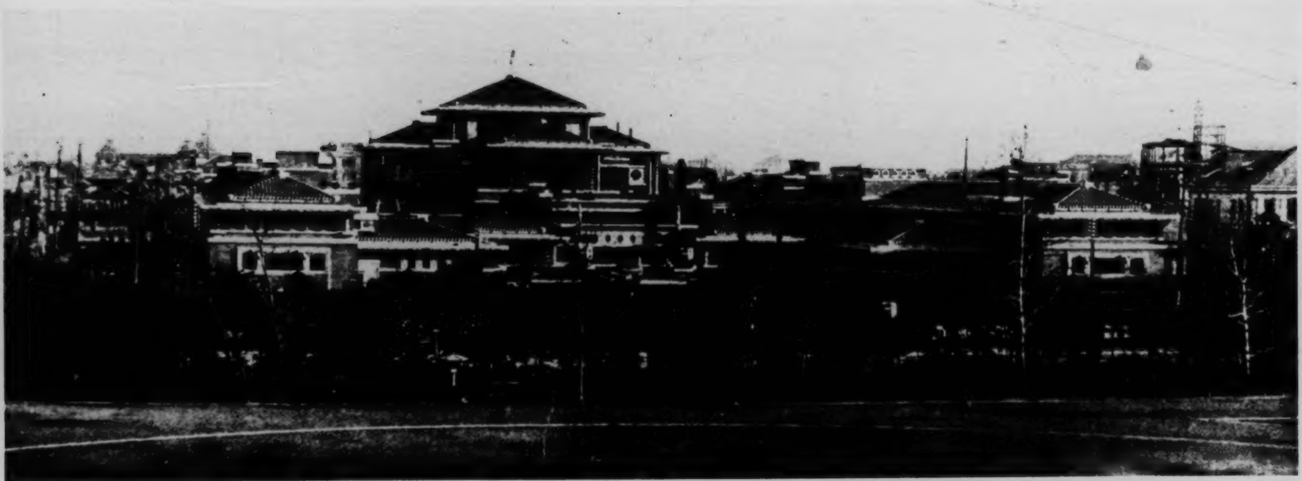
In Hollyhock House and the Imperial Hotel, Wright seems to regard landscape less as a benign foil for architecture than as a cataclysmic event.

Hollyhock House was planned for the other "rim of the great basin of the Pacific" with the "sacred mountain" of Fuji in mind. (Indeed, its great conical shape is seen looming in the background of almost all the published studies for the house.) Hollyhock House was mainly designed while Wright was in Japan working on the hotel and must therefore be seen as his first formal response to the elemental forces of nature he encountered in the Pacific. Its weighty, protective form, echoing the surrounding mountain shapes and recalling the architecture of pre-Colonial times, relates it to the development of a self-conscious regionalism in American art while at the same time reflecting Wright's own desire to get down new roots after a decade of instability in his private life.

But the meaning of Hollyhock House rises above the local or personal to the universal and elemental. It represents an abstraction and an idealization of the forces of nature through a form of expression that helped release Wright's architecture from the limits imposed on modernism by the machine esthetic. Wright called the freedom "romantic" and chose the musical term "romanza" to describe the sense of "freedom to make one's own form" in a composition of such abstraction as "to lose all evidence of how it was made." Indeed, unconstrained by the exigencies of program or materials, considering "living rooms, bedrooms, kitchens and bathrooms no more poetry-crushers in this connection," Wright designed what most critics would consider a sham construction, imitating reinforced concrete to give form to his vision of the landscape of Southern California.

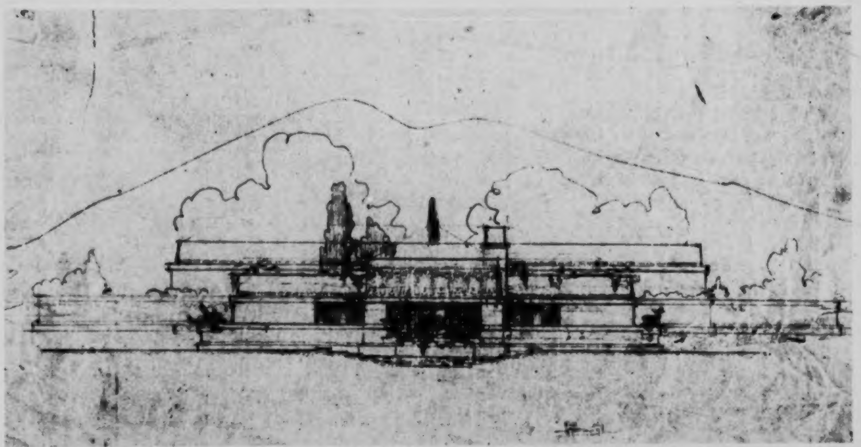
In his Autobiography, Wright acknowledged that the beginnings of this romantic search for freedom from the machine esthetic, which immediately reminds one of his much earlier infatuation with the teachings of Ruskin and Morris, could be traced to his sojourn in Japan. There, faced with traditional handicraft methods of building, Wright said he was "captured by Romance" and diverted from the goal he had set himself "years ago" of "getting buildings built by machine and true to modern mechanical processes." If the feeling of romance "captured" Wright in Japan, he went "head for Freedom" in designing Hollyhock House. But even before the house was finished, Wright realized how close he had come to "make believe" and admitted that "conscience troubled [him] a little," asking, "What about the machine crying for recognition as the normal tool of our age?"

Wright's own answer may still seem like an about-face. In the reinforced concrete textile-block houses and projects of 1921–30, he sought a "system of building construction as a basis for architecture," and thus, from a certain point of view at least, Wright regained his place in the history of modern architecture.[41] While the cubic volumes and flat roofs of these houses, most notably the one for Alice Millard in Pasadena, of 1921–22, seem similar to contemporary European examples of the International Style, the more elaborate projects for the Edward Doheny Ranch Development, the Lake Tahoe Summer Colony, the Gordon Strong Planetarium and Automobile Objective, and San Marcos-in-the-Desert all show, in their extraordinary fusion of natural and man-made forms, the romantic legacy of Hollyhock House. But it was only in the mid-1930s, with the design of Fallingwater, followed by Taliesin West at the end of the decade and the Guggenheim Museum soon after, that Wright achieved a new and more profound synthesis of form and construction, one which now reveals how powerful was the strain of romantic expression stemming from Hollyhock House.



Wright: Imperial Hotel, Tokyo, 1916–22.

There, under the shelter of the mountains and looking out to the sea, in the cool living room with its waterplace, lightplace and fireplace beside the sundrenched patio, Wright's vision gave mythopoeic expression to the California landscape. In that challenge and the freedom it inspired, Wright found for the first time the architectural forms of nature's elements that were to be the basis for the buildings of his own renaissance. □



Wright: Hollyhock House, west facade. Collection of City of Los Angeles.

Katsushika Hokusai: Sketch of Togonoura Bay at Eljiri on the Tokaido Road, ca. 1828–32.

1. I am extremely grateful to Virginia Ernst Kazor, Bruce Brooke Pfeiffer and the Frank Lloyd Wright Memorial Foundation, Kathryn Smith, Kinshasha and Houston Conwill, Monnie Adams, Anne Higonnet, Gillian Levine, and Jim Guichard for their advice and assistance and to Vincent Scully for providing a framework and methodology for understanding Wright's architecture.

2. Kathryn Smith's "Frank Lloyd Wright, Hollyhock House, and Olive Hill, 1919–1924," Journal of the Society of Architectural Historians 38 (March 1979), pp. 15–33, is the most complete study to date of the entire commission and serves as the basis for my analysis. For an early publication of drawings and photographs, see The Life-Work of the American Architect Frank Lloyd Wright (Wendingen), ed. H. Th. Wijdeveld, Santpoort, Holland, 1925, pp. 131–163.

3. The openings in the covered walkway connecting the garage to the house were described as "apertures in great moat walls" in the Hollywood Citizen News, July 8, 1921. The citadellike appearance of the design relates to Wright's contemporary Imperial Hotel in Japan, which was situated opposite the imposing medieval Imperial Palace, itself surrounded by a moat.

4. Frank Lloyd Wright, An Autobiography, New York, Longmans, Green and Company, 1932, pp. 233, 228. Except where otherwise noted, all other quotations will be from this first edition of Wright's autobiography.

5. Anon., "New Home for Aline Barnsdall Crowning Olive Hill," Hollywood Citizen News, September 2, 1921. The author noted, however,

VOL
7
1
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI

that Wright described the style of the house as "simply Californian."

6. The exact location was opposite the Griffith lot, formerly the old Fine Arts Studio, at 4500 Sunset Boulevard, just before Hillhurst Avenue. Art Ronnie claims that Wright visited the Olive Hill site in 1917, two years before Barnsdall purchased it ("Hollyhock—The Wright House," Westways 66 [November 1974], p. 19).

7. Smith, "Frank Lloyd Wright," pp. 15–19. See also Norman Bel Geddes, Miracle in the Evening, ed. William Kelley, New York, Doubleday and Company, 1960, pp. 152–71, 268–69.

8. Bel Geddes claims that both the house and the theater were preliminarily designed in 1916 (Ibid., pp. 155, 161).

9. Constance D'Arcy Mackay, The Little Theatre in the United States, New York, Henry Holt and Company, 1917, pp. 156–58; and Sheldon Cheney, The Art Theatre, New York, Alfred A. Knopf, 1917, pp. 197–98. Among the numerous luminaries of the movie world who attended the opening night of Barnsdall's Little Theatre of Los Angeles on October 31, 1916 were Charlie Chaplin, D.W. Griffith, Cecil B. DeMille, Erich von Stroheim, Douglas Fairbanks, Francis X. Bushman, Theda Bara, Jesse Lasky, Samuel Goldfish (later Goldwyn), Thomas Ince and Harold Lloyd (Bel Geddes, Miracle, p. 167).

10. Griffith J. Griffith, who gave the city of Los Angeles in 1896 the 3000-acre park that bears his name and is located just to the north of Olive Hill, on the slopes of the Hollywood Hills, had intended to build a "tourist hotel" on the Olive Hill site.

11. Cf. Wendell Cole, "The Theatre Projects of Frank Lloyd Wright," Educational Theatre Journal 12 (May 1960), pp. 86–93.

12. Bel Geddes, Miracle, p. 162.

13. Wendell Cole noted that "possibly Wright's Barnsdall Theatre shows the influence of the contemporary interest in California in so-called 'Greek' theatres" and pointed to the fact that, by 1918, "at least five outdoor 'Greek' theatres had been built in California since the first had been constructed at Point Loma in 1901" ("Theatre Projects," pp. 88–89).

14. F.L. Wright, An Autobiography, 2nd ed., New York, Duell, Sloan and Pearce, 1943, p. 226. The phrase "in the changed circumstances" was added in the second edition.

15. Ibid., p. 226.

16. Ibid., p. 171.

17. Ibid., pp. 167–68.

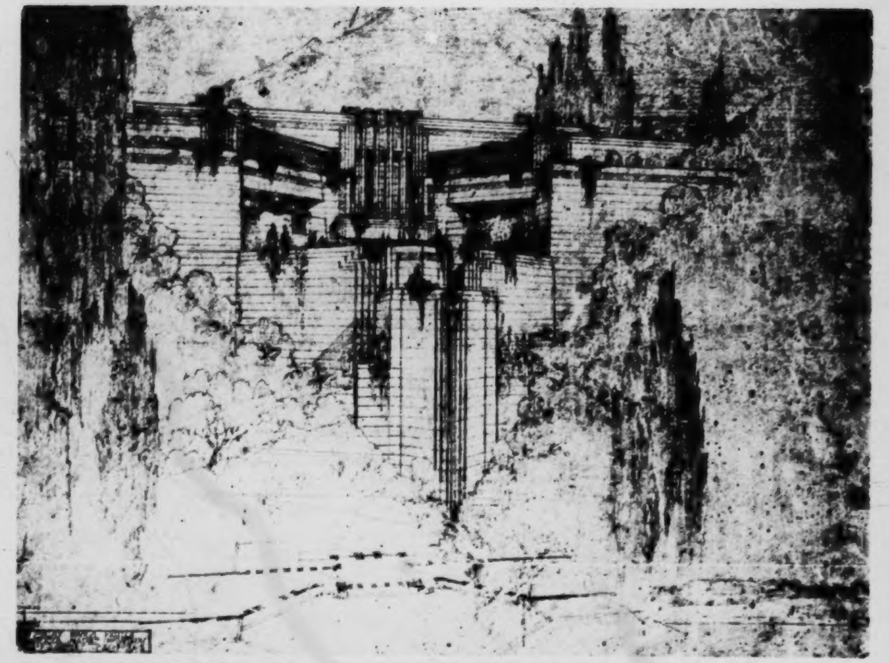
18. The reporter for the Hollywood Citizen News on September 2, 1921, described the patio from the "courtyard entrance" under the "bedrooms . . . built across the east end of the house."

19. While the color of the stucco is now beige, it was described by the Citizen News reporter as tinted "as near an approach as possible to the silver green slopes" of the "foothills of the Sierras." In an article in the Los Angeles Examiner, which appeared right after she purchased the site, Aline Barnsdall was quoted as saying that "Mr. Wright and I have differed on only one point. He wants my house to be white, and I think a white house is too glaring for Southern California. So no matter what he says my house will not be white" (Florence Lawrence, "Eminence to be Made Rare Beauty Spot," Los Angeles Examiner, July 6, 1919).

20. Ibid.

21. Smith, "Frank Lloyd Wright," pp. 27–28.

22. The Citizen News reporter referred to the upper-level terrace as a "roof observatory." It should be noted that the roof of Wright's first "Mayan" design, the A.D. German Warehouse in Richland Center, Wisconsin, of 1915, also has a roof garden.



Frank Lloyd Wright: Perspective and partial plan for Edward L. Doheny Ranch Development, Beverly Hills, California, ca. 1921. The Frank Lloyd Wright Foundation © 1955.

23. F. L. Wright, "In the Cause of Architecture: The Third Dimension," Los Angeles, February 9, 1923, TS. 8, III/2, p. 12, John Lloyd Wright Collection, Avery Library, Columbia.

24. For the Mayan influence, see Dimitri Tselos, "Exotic Influences in the Architecture of Frank Lloyd Wright," Magazine of Art 47 (April 1953), pp. 160–69, 184; D. Tselos, "Frank Lloyd Wright and World Architecture," Journal of the Society of Architectural Historians 28 (March 1969), pp. 58–72; Vincent Scully, Frank Lloyd Wright, New York, George Braziller, 1960, pp. 24–25.

Wright's son Lloyd, who helped supervise the building of Hollyhock House along with Rudolph Schindler, always claimed that the Pueblo influence was paramount. According to him, Hollyhock House "was called modern and Mayan; but no one realized what father was giving them. He had submerged himself into the area in spirit and developed a true expression or architectural characteristic of the Southwest—his Romanza. What he had built was a mesa silhouette, terrace on terrace, characterized and developed by Pueblo Indians" (quoted in Ronnie, "Hollyhock," p. 20). In an interview with Lloyd Wright in August 1976, he repeated the same idea to me. See also Smith, "Frank Lloyd Wright," p. 27 (n. 35); D. Gebhard and Hariette von Breton, Lloyd Wright, Architect: 20th Century Architecture in an Organic Exhibition, Santa Barbara, Art Galleries, University of California, 1971, pp. 30–32, 72 (n. 17); and Reyner Banham, "The Wilderness Years of Frank Lloyd Wright," Journal of the Royal Institute of British Architects 75 (December 1969), p. 515.

25. Baker Brownell and F. L. Wright, Architecture and Modern Life, New York and London, Harper and Brothers, 1937, pp. 33–34 (Chap. 2, "Some Aspects of the Past and Present of Architecture," by Wright).

26. The idea of pumping water through a series of pools on a hill and then having it collect in a lake below clearly comes from Wright's own house, Taliesin, at Spring Green. One is tempted to relate the idea to the formal gardens he visited in Italy and France during the year 1909–10 when he was in Europe. The waterworks of Marly, with its famous machine, which of course no longer existed, seems to be the closest to the design of Hollyhock.

27. In the earlier Susan L. Dana House in Springfield, Illinois, of 1901–03, there is a pool of water set diagonally opposite the fireplace in the entrance hall, along the wall leading to the garden; and in the F.C. Bogk House in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, of 1916, Wright again placed a pool inside the house near the fireplace, this time creating a kind of conservatory separating the dining room from the living room; but Hollyhock House is the first time he set the fireplace itself within a pool of water. Just after that, in one of the houses for the Doheny Ranch Development project of 1921, the one designated House C, Wright set the two-sided fireplace within a pool giving onto the rear courtyard and allowed the stream of water coming down the hillside to run under the front court and reappear as a waterfall through the prow below. This idea obviously culminated in the combined images of water and fire in Fallingwater, of 1935–36. After that, Wright sometimes returned to the trough idea of Hollyhock with less symbolic purpose as, for example, in the Eric Brown House in Kalamazoo, Michigan, of 1950.

28. Wright, Autobiography (1943), p. 141.

29. Although the painted mantels in the lounges of the Imperial Hotel were asymmetrical, they nonetheless remained purely decorative, like those in Midway Gardens.

30. It is fascinating to recall that Louise and Walter Arensberg, whose collection included major works by Duchamp, Picabia and Brancusi, moved to Los Angeles in 1920 and lived at Residence A on the Barnsdall Estate soon after it was finished. They were apparently living there, with their collection, at the time Wright was staying at Residence B (Smith, "Frank Lloyd Wright," p. 31). It should also be noted that Wright would have had a chance to see much of this new European art in the Armory Show exhibition which travelled to Chicago in 1913 and which Wright referred to obliquely in his Autobiography.

Wright: Aerial perspective of Hollyhock House, 1919–21. The Frank Lloyd Wright Foundation © 1962.

31. This was described to me in an interview with Lloyd Wright in Los Angeles in August 1976 and is repeated in Smith, "Frank Lloyd Wright," p. 27 (n. 5).

32. Sometimes in radial sandpaintings, the center of the composition, marking the place of action, is identified with a body of water, such as a pool or lake, by an actual bowl or cup of water sunk in the ground flush with the surface of the painting and thus occupying the spot where the fire would normally be.

33. The "modern primitivism" of Brancusi's work, with its references both to contemporary streamlining and organic nature, bears a powerful resemblance to Wright's work from this time on. In the five levels of the totemlike King of Kings, Brancusi intended to symbolize the realms of earth, water, fire, air and ether.

34. Originally, the tile in the trough was gold and the pool was apparently supposed to contain goldfish. The sunlight during the day must have been quite strong, since the shed-roof over the skylight was added later. This surely explains the heavy curtain in early photographs, as well as the bleached-out appearance of the grid containing the glass. Edgar Tafel, who visited the house as a Taliesin apprentice in the 1930s, wrote that the skylight over the fireplace allowed one to "see the stars and the moon reflected in the water" and this was "the romanza element." Edgar Tafel, Apprentice to Genius: Years with Frank Lloyd Wright, New York, McGraw-Hill Book Company, 1979, p. 122.

35. Brownell and Wright, Architecture and Modern Life, p. 19 (ch. 2, by Wright).

36. It is interesting that the first Mayan-inspired design, the A. D. German Warehouse, dates from 1915, and the second, the Bogk house, from the following year.

37. Wright, Autobiography (1943), p. 239 (the word "mid-west" was added in the second edition); John Steven McGroarty, Los Angeles from the Mountains to the Sea, 3 vols., Chicago and New York, The American Historical Society, 1921, vol. 1, p. 228; and Frank Fenton, A Place in the Sun.

38. F. L. Wright, Experimenting with Human Lives, Hollywood, The Fine Art Society, Olive Hill, 1923, p.1.

39. Ibid.

40. "Building against Doomsday" was the new title Wright gave the chapter "Why the Great Earthquake Did Not Destroy the Imperial Hotel" in the second edition of the Autobiography, p. 213.

41. Wright noted that in this case he would not ask himself "What form?" but would "let the form come. Form would come in time if a sensible, feasible system of building-construction would only come first" (Autobiography, p. 235). Wright's concern for materials and methods of construction during the '20s found an outlet in his series of articles entitled "In the Cause of Architecture," published in Architectural Record in 1927 and 1928. Henry-Russell Hitchcock early made the connection between Wright's textile-block houses and Le Corbusier's contemporary projects in his essay on Wright in the catalogue Modern Architecture: International Exhibition (New York, Museum of Modern Art, 1932), pp. 35–37.

[In addition to the Frank Lloyd Wright room from the Francis W. Little House now permanently installed at New York's Metropolitan Museum, there will be two Wright exhibitions in New York this fall: "Frank Lloyd Wright and the Prairie School," at the Cooper Hewitt Museum (to Dec. 31), and "Frank Lloyd Wright Drawings, 1895-1959: For the Preservaton of Taliesin" (Sept. 13-Oct. 16), at the Max Protetch Gallery.]

Author: Neil Levine is professor of fine arts at Harvard and is currently writing a book on Frank Lloyd Wright.

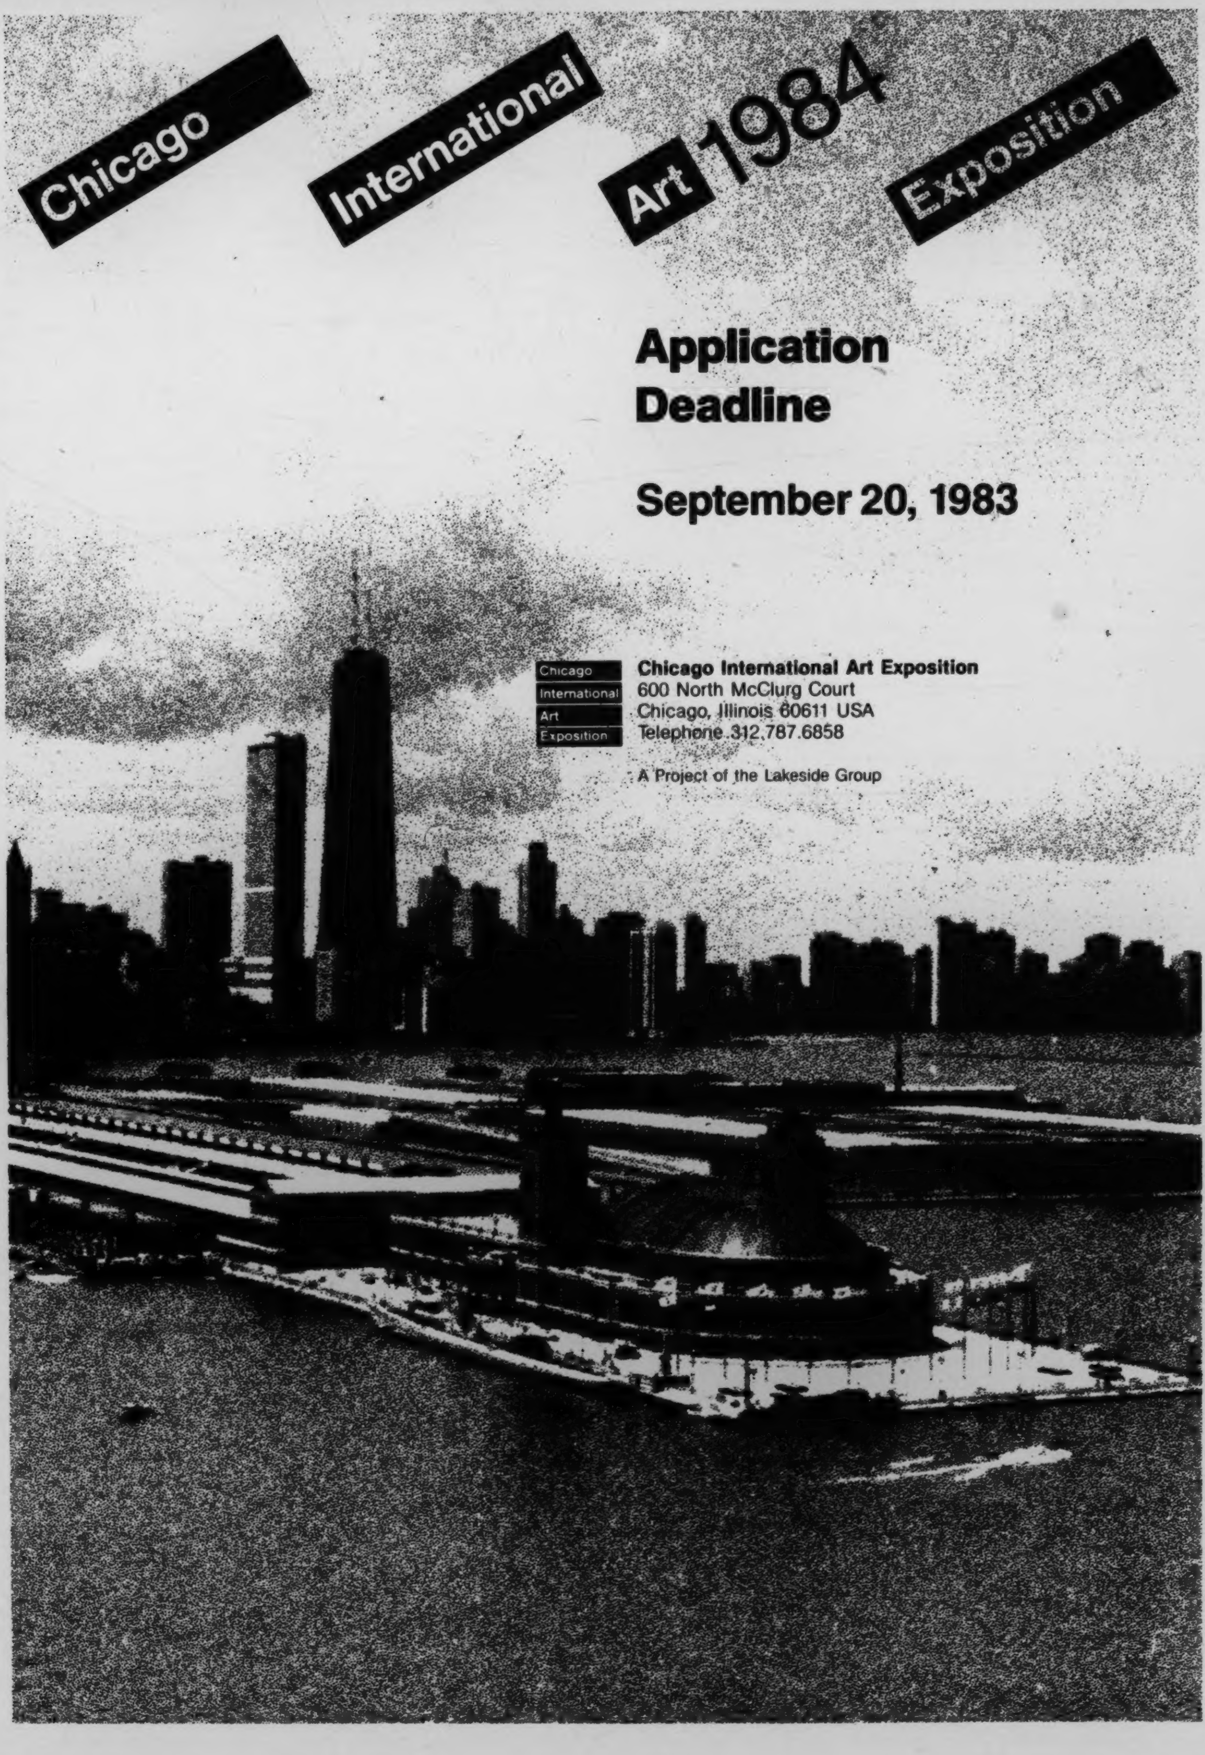
VOL
7
1
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI



Chicago International Art 1984 Exposition

Application Deadline

September 20, 1983

Chicago
International
Art
Exposition

Chicago International Art Exposition
600 North McClurg Court
Chicago, Illinois 60611 USA
Telephone 312.787.6858

A Project of the Lakeside Group

Review of Exhibitions

NEW YORK

April Gornik at Edward Thorp

Looking at a painting or photograph of a landscape, I scan the scene for signs of man, for some trace of craft or ingenuity, not because I am uninterested in depictions of natural form, but because I picture landscapes as settings for human activity. Now, these words—were they faithful to my actual beliefs—might imply that my principal interest in landscape art would rest in its ability to transport me into fictive worlds, to provide imaginary retreats. One who holds this view requires little of a Claude save that it be the backdrop for narrative and allegorical play. Cézanne's calculations would be overlooked by such a mind. And try as he may, such a viewer will find it impossible to roam within April Gornik's inviolate realms, for everything about her paintings seems designed to keep him aloof, at bay.

April Gornik: Pulling Moon, 1983, oil on canvas, 76 by 80 inches; at Edward Thorp.

Desolate formal gardens, the places depicted in these pretty dreamscapes are uncharted and composed. Whether moonlit pastorals or silent, sheltered coves, Gornik's primordial sanctuaries do not invite entry—these windows are clean but closed. This straight-arm effect is the product of numerous formal devices: there are no frames, and therefore no thresholds to cross; the point of view from which these landscapes are seen leaves the viewer hovering with no solid ground at his feet; images are often lit by several sources, and in many cases the light is neither consistent nor explained; nor can logic justify the focus of the painter's eye, which seems to shift at random, confusing any attempt to understand the actual relation of spatial planes; and, perhaps most irrational of all, Gornik's natural worlds conform to the unnatural laws of geometry: waterspouts align, clouds file by in in formation, dust storms abide by cadenced rhythms, rhyming with disconcerting precision.

Richard Bosman: A Job to Do, 1983, oil on canvas, 96 inches square; at Brooke Alexander.

Everything here seems to be a product of subtle deceit: an iceberg resembles a Christo or a couch covered for the summer months with a sheet; lakes appear to be made of crêpe, seas of polyethylene; clouds are skywritten; trees and grass can be likened to those seen through the windows of model trains. Gornik's supposedly naive nature is as artificial as a studio still life, schematic like a background in a cartoon. It is to her work's credit that this contradiction is displayed in countless ways.

It is possible that Gornik has used these devices as a means of creating a look of storybook innocence in the hope of making dreamy sentimentalists of us all. But it seems that these works' primary concern is to undermine the notion of "nature in the raw" by polluting it with cynicism and calculated cliché. Duplicity pervades these lands of inauthenticity and ruse: through sleight of hand, serenity is made unnerving, the vast, compact. But, more importantly, the anticipation of transcendence—that romantic desire for the sort of spiritual enlightenment we have come to expect from luminous American landscape paintings—is frustrated and fades, once again reminding us that even our views of Nature are man-made.

—Douglas Blau

Richard Bosman at Brooke Alexander

Richard Bosman has developed his own genre of what might be called detective fiction painting. It is a world of male melodrama populated by men in white shirts and red ties—a film or television world of chases, murders and catastrophes which lives on inference and innuendo and in which the creases in suits and shiny shoes are as threatening as any action. In this sense, the paintings have much in common with soap operas and cartoons such as Dick Tracy, where a single frame can provide sufficient dramatic impetus to clarify the entire plot.

The 12 paintings in Bosman's recent exhibition could be broken down into two basic categories: action scenes and mysteries. In Panic a man and woman in the foreground flee a catastrophic scene with looks of horror frozen on their faces. Flames and smoke spew forth from cars scattered helter-skelter behind them, and the skewed perspective of the apartment building windows in the background suggests a bomb or some other explosion. In The Chase a heavy, blood-red sky exerts a diagonal pull as if trying to unbalance the whole painting. A corporate-suited man in the foreground, his splayed, unnatural stance conveying speed and panic, runs from his double, who charges up from the barren horizon. Bosman knows how to produce the sensation of frantic, vertiginous movement swiftly and effectively. Loose, fluid brushwork activates the very air around the figures, rushing them to their doom.

Bosman often uses the canvas like a telephoto lens specially devised for the quick cuts, telling crops and close-ups of horror films and mystery thrillers. He never gives away the entire scene, preferring to home in on the details like a detective looking for clues. Several of the "mystery" paintings involve corny puns in their titles. In Rubbed Out a man, presumably dead, lies on the floor in front of a curtain. Blood drips from the corner of his mouth. The tense pose of a figure in the background (seen only from the shoulders down) suggests that the murderers are about to take flight. In contrast, an ominous black pant leg and shoe are calmly posed in the foreground, about to rub out a cigarette. A Job to Do exploits cartoon/detective techniques more explicitly. The four-section painting reads in two horizontal strips: in the top left corner a man is shaving, his head turned away from the viewer; in the next quadrant we see his back as he puts on his shirt; in the third section, Bosman has moved in close, cropping the man's face so that we see only his mouth, jaw and disproportionately large hands as he adjusts the knot of his tie; in the fourth section a schematic left hand draws a glove on the right hand. The threatening density of the black glove makes it clear that whatever the job to be done may be, you wouldn't want to hang around to find out.

VOL 71 ISS 8 SE 1983 UMI

Bar Talk and The Card Players are more intriguing than the other paintings in this show because they come closer to transcending the close-up-detail-of-the-bad-guy-before-his-identity-is-revealed syndrome that limits the others. These two works are more pictorial tableaux than mystery or action scenes; they hint at a way of seeing that draws on the modus operandi of popular entertainment genres, but that also makes use of the abstract qualities of painterly perception to suggest the alienation underlying those genres' emotional and visual stereotypes.

This world of gangsters and corporate anxiety offers no real sense of character. Bosman's people live in a disturbing anonymity—they are as narrowly codified as the standard shirts, ties and trench coats of detective fare. But in the end, their anonymity is not disturbing enough. The paintings are entertaining and well executed within their self-imposed idiom. They would make wonderfully incisive illustrations to, say, an edition of Dashiell Hammett, but on their own, their plots are not sufficiently thickened to hold our attention for long. —Jamey Gambrell

Alan Vega: Marilyn I, mixed mediums, 77 by 75 by 9 inches; at Barbara Gladstone.

Les Levine: Race, (left) 1979, model for billboard, crayon on canvas, 84 by 112 inches, (right) billboard, 1981-83, 10 by 22 feet; at Ronald Feldman.

Duncan Hannah at Semaphore

Duncan Hannah seems to be emerging as the Barry Manilow of the New Wave. No Neo-Expressionist plumbing of the depths of the collective unconscious for him—"If this is the Age of Anxiety," Hannah has said, "I'll paint the opposite, the Age of Harmony and Serenity."

In other words, the Age of Valium. It may be the new consciousness, and Hannah may be its new prophet. For here, "everything is beautiful, in its own way," as the song lyrics of a decade ago had it. There's a little de Chirico, a little Hopper, and a lot of Hannah. There's Red Bridge, in which a sleek black train blowing a cloud of white smoke whisks over red arcades over yellow and green landscape and blue water. Ghost Town features a white high-rise rising over smaller red buildings and little houses, the streets glassy with rain, a blue and pink, dead-of-winter sky hung overhead. Tender Shepherd is an on-the-spot reminiscence of an indefinite classical past, with lambs and shepherd in an Arcadian setting complete with Greek columns and earthen earth.

Perhaps it can be fairly said that Hannah exhibits a certain radicalism of the imagination, a gift for evoking dream states and dream places. Yet relative to much new Italian and German and even American Neo-Expressionist painting, he looks conservative, dulled-out. Indeed, Hannah's paintings are, to paraphrase Wordsworth, dreams recollected in tranquility, nightmares with their edges softened by a sleeping pill or, due to the pill, only barely recollected the next morning.

Hannah's most interesting work is his most American. Afternoon of an Author is a picture of a Scott Fitzgerald or Thomas Wolfe type, sitting, with hands clasped, on a split-log fence near a summer house—nostalgia made visible. Haunted Hearts is a nighttime scene in a graveyard, with a Washington Memorial-like obelisk at its center—it seems to honor America's countless war dead in a very nationalistic, if generalized sort of homage.

Then there's a self-portrait, in which the good-looking, 30-year-old old master looks serenely out at the viewer. At this point, the viewer may cast caution to the winds, and enjoy. Because, let's face it, the guy is "cute": his paintings are "dreamy." New Wave is just up to the old tricks. And that—more than any expressionist influence or American heritage—is the final fascination. Painterly energies be damned. Narcosis—and Narcissus—can be revealing, too. —Gerrit Henry

Alan Vega at Barbara Gladstone

In the early 1970s Alan Suicide Vega, as he was then known, showed sculptures consisting of tangles of dark wires and small colored lights heaped on the floor of the O.K. Harris Gallery. He hasn't shown sculpture publicly since 1975, the year he became involved in his rock group, Suicide, a two-man collaboration that lasted until 1980. This show marked Vega's return to exhibiting, and coincided with the release of his new album on a commercial label.

Each piece here consisted of a cruciform assemblage of flashing colored lights and a variety of cultural/commercial artifacts relating to the themes of entertainment, religion and Americana. The crosses are based on found pieces of wood, subsequently adorned with skulls, souvenir pennants, a variety of photos and illustrations, Disney icons, advertisements, toys, and odds and ends ranging from plastic rainbows to plaster religious figures and model jet planes. Biker and drug references surface here and there, but detritus of a more popular type predominates. Several of the works carry the cruciform motif beyond the crucifix itself—e.g., to airplanes or kimonos with their sleeves extended.

Two of the works are more totemic in nature, invoking Clint Eastwood and Marilyn Monroe respectively. The center of the cross titled Ultra Clint (1983) is a movie poster of Eastwood in "Firefox," and the left arm bears a photo of the actor in his signature Italian Western garb. This cross comprises a vertical column of cultural references: a Winston Ultra ad, Eastwood's poster, a flag-and-eagle license plate and a postcard of a bathing beauty in illusionistic 3-D. A 6-foot black-and-white photo of Monroe in a bathing suit forms the entire bottom vertical half of Marilyn II (1983); Christ and a snarling black panther complete her totem. Vega displays a simultaneous disdain for and fascination with American popular culture and its products. He sets up these items so we may contemplate their extreme silliness and purposelessness, but they are so iconic, so thoroughly bred into the American consciousness, that one is hopelessly taken with them; and they are, as a result, simultaneously elevated to a status considerably higher than that implicit in their commercial function.

Vega's organization of these cultural castoffs into a quasi-religious format is based on the familiar American theme of capitalism as religion, but these works function better as conglomerations of fragmentary memories, influences and experiences, successfully ordered by an esthetic that is as much formal as cultural. In fact, it is precisely because these recent works are more carefully ordered that they deliver a message his sculptures of the 1970s could not, effective though those earlier works were as funky alternatives to the high gloss of the decade.

—Ellen Lubell

Duncan Hannah: Red Bridge, 1981, oil on canvas, 50 by 30 inches; at Semaphore.

Nancy Mitchnick: Ornamental, 1981-82, oil on canvas, 40 by 66 inches; at Hirschl & Adler Modern (review on p. 172).

Les Levine at Feldman

Les Levine used to be an advertising man. He moved into art in the '60s as a sort of Pop-Conceptualist and made the art game look easy—a matter of manipulating signs and contexts, of programming audience response.

His recent show, "New Media Projects," consisted of large crayon drawings, billboards and a video installation. These works are all confident, assertive-looking packages, but their content is hard to fathom. Most of the drawings and billboards combine words and images: for example, a crayon drawing of a red tractor is captioned "PULL"; "STEAL" is lettered in red in front of an institutional building of some sort; a horse in a stall stands next to the word "WIN" written in blue.

With his pitchman's eye for fitting messages to mediums, Levine has taken verbal-visual combinations to a logical conclusion in the billboard format, where word and image have traditionally fused in a sort of hybrid linguistic unit. In one 22-foot-long billboard, the word "RACE" accompanies an image of a horse in a field; in another, "AIM" is positioned next to a moose head.

Words such as "race" and "aim" can, of course, be either verbs or nouns. Next to images of a horse and a moose, however, we tend to read them as verbs, with the images as "object" and either the viewer or the artist as "subject." But while the billboard format makes sense, the images are not compelling, and the messages the artist intends to convey are relatively undeveloped. Levine doesn't seem to know what he wants to say.

"Pull," for instance, describes one of the actions of which a tractor is capable, but does not refer to any action in the picture. The tractor is at rest. It seems as if the word were chosen by a somewhat arbitrary process of free-association. In such pairings as "GROW" with a landscape, "STEAL" with a building, "HIDE" with a house in the woods and "LEAVE" with an image of a small town, there is no consistent syntactic relationship between image and word. Levine has adopted a provocative format but has not pursued any of the issues that it is uniquely positioned to explore.

His recent campaign featuring subway posters showing an Oriental couple with the caption "We Are Not Afraid" was a far more evocative use of the advertising-inspired format. The caption directed our response to the picture and linked the picture with the environment. It made one reflect, among other things, that not being afraid in the subway might indeed be a fact worthy of public proclamation. The word-image combinations in this show, however, do not encourage such emotional responses.

Levine's video installation, Visions from the God World (1979-81), offers a veritable hula of Hawaiian images. Five stacked video monitors are flanked by mirrors that make each image seem a triptych. They are set in among screenlike panels of photographs of the scenes shown on the video screens. Levine's restless camera pans across shoppers on an escalator and women on the beach, tilts up at high-rise apartment buildings and down on swimming pools. A falsetto male voice repeating on a two-second delay sings a Hawaiian song on the soundtrack. The sirenlike music is exotic and seductive at first, but ultimately tiresome. I kept waiting for the images on the tape to wax ironic about paradise in the South Seas, but there was no respite from blue skies, green water and pink sand.

VOL 71 ISS 8 SE 1983 UMI

Levine usually shows an astute understanding of the mass media and of art, and of the area where the two can overlap. But sometimes examining his slick, bright packages can be a bit of a disappointment. —Ross Skoggard

Adele Alsop at David Findlay, Jr.

Whatever painting's equivalent of bel canto is, Adele Alsop attains it. In her first solo show in New York, Alsop exhibited canvases of New England and Utah landscapes that took the breath away.

A good example was a big canvas called Passing Thunderstorm—a semicircular meadow with cow, surmounted by billowing white and gray storm clouds, with the intense blue of the sky jumping out at us here and there—a landscape to make Ruisdael proud. Alsop has learned the lesson of (Post) Impressionists and painterly realists well: light is color, and color is light.

In Portrait of a Juniper Tree, for example, sunny tans and lime greens appear on the side of the tree facing the sun, darker greens and browns at the juniper's extremities, and gray and green scrubs shoot up along the foreground. Alpen Glow is a painterly tour de force: hills of birches and firs hit squarely by early morning (or late afternoon) sun, a little white globe of a moon hanging in the brilliant blue sky above.

We usually associate this kind of bravura facility with musical interpretation, not realist art. The key word here is interpretation: as a painterly realist, Alsop is involved in interpreting reality, fashioning it according to the dictates of pigment and brushstroke—dictates that are just as "real" to the artist as the scene before her. Alsop "plays" reality just as a jazz musician plays music: reality is her "score."

The danger is that Alsop may veer off into painting that is about its metaphysics, not its nature, and so put the viewer at a remove. This happens more often in her intimate scenes than in her epic ones. For example, Staghorn Sumac in the Snow becomes, as if in reaction to its close-up focus, a little too broad in execution, too painterly and generalized.

Usually, though, Alsop remains, even in small scale, the realist of the mind and heart. The finest example of Alsop's fidelity to both nature and art is Wildflowers in the Canadian Zone. At the center of a forest clearing, with green and brown trees and slate blue sky in the mid- and background, sits a bouquet of wildflowers, lovingly arranged atop some hunks of dead wood. A beautiful scene is made more beautiful—not more tame, but even wilder—by human intervention, provoking the question of just what is "human" and what "natural." Wildflowers . . . nearly breathes painterly truth and beauty—and, by sheer aptitude, holds the note. —Gerrit Henry Adele Alsop: Alpen Glow, 1982, oil on canvas, 66 by 54 inches; at David Findlay, Jr. Contemporary.

Carol Brown: Tucson Mountains, 1981–82, colored pencil on paper, each drawing 2 by 4 inches; at Witkin.

Carol Brown at Witkin

This exhibition of 150 small colored pencil drawings made over the last five years reveals Brown's preoccupation with the American landscape, most specifically the Southwest. Like O'Keeffe and Hartley, Brown is drawn to the canyons and mountains of the Southwest for the raw, massive forms saturated with color and imbued with the spiritual presence of a lost and ancient culture. Brown strives to capture the physical "presence" of this haunted landscape—what Sanford Schwartz, writing in another context, calls its "living deadness." Though seemingly unconcerned with "mainstream" issues of current art, her conceptual and serial approach to a nature-based abstraction informed by photographic framing and filmic time, makes these drawings more contemporary than one would initially expect.

Each work is made up of two, three or six small drawings grouped together sequentially but without a specified order and without transition. These groupings range from drawings of the same site done at different times on the same day, to drawings of the same motif done over several years, to more filmic sequences incorporating close-ups and long-distance views. The multiple views, labeled as to time, date and location, reinforce the impression of a particular place and give the exhibition the feeling of a visual diary. Plant forms are often juxtaposed with landscapes. Cacti dominate, like the tall phallic Saguaro seen in detail or punctuating the landscape, or the Organ Pipe cactus and the prickly, octopus like Ocotillo. The delicate cactus blooms are drawn in sensuous detail, as are less exotic flowers like lilies and amaryllis.

Brown works quickly on 2-by-4-inch pieces of paper; the elongated format is of course necessitated by the panoramic landscapes. She strives to catch such "fleeting moments" as sunsets and sunrises, and she records changing cloud formations in a way that recalls Stieglitz's "Equivalents." Indeed, it is the American modernist landscape tradition formulated by the Stieglitz group from which Brown has evolved. In her stylization of the landscape, which incorporates the specific into the general and juxtaposes the distant with the close up, one feels the influence of Italian quattrocento painting. But unlike the Italian primitives' mountains, which sometimes look like a sheet thrown over a pile of stacked furniture, Brown's clouds and canyons are round and organic.

Her color works by contrast: red hot mesas are starkly isolated by icy cobalt skies; smoky blue mountains are defined by a blazing orange sunrise; cool green cacti jump out from their complementary red or fuchsia backgrounds. Paradoxically, this keyed-up color heightens the reality of her abstraction, and her small formats accentuate the monumentality of her subject matter. Perhaps because she works outdoors, directly from life, these small drawings possess a startling intensity and clarity of vision.

—Lizbeth Marano

Richard Artschwager: Eight Rat Holes (detail), 1967, acrylic/celotex, 20 by 200 inches; at Mary Boone.

Donna Dennis at Holly Solomon

Reading through the essays concerned with the work of Donna Dennis, I was not surprised to find the name Edward Hopper mentioned almost as often as Dennis's own. A short leap of the imagination connects the two. To see this sculptor's oddly scaled architectural models and facades, her fragments of way stations and checkpoints for transients—be they tollbooths, tourist cabins, variations on the theme of White Castle or boardinghouses—is to think of those isolating urban and rural scenes for which the painter is known.

But unlike Hopper, Dennis does not picture those who inhabit her train stations and waiting rooms. Here, inanimate objects—faded wallpaper, neon signs, tiles, porches, exposed lightbulbs, picture frames veiled by curtains and frosted glass, a roof—structure states of mind and give character to our thoughts. Here, stage-sets act as cast, providing mood.

Wandering about her imaginary architectural settings, I thought of Gaston Bachelard and wondered why his name appears so infrequently in those aforementioned essays. For this self-styled "anthropocosmologist" wrote often of the reveries that houses and other constructions inspire within the minds of those who are willing to sit in corners, pondering memories that hang like paper or paintings on the walls of a room.

Donna Dennis: Subway with Silver Girders, 1982-83, mixed mediums with electric lights, 144½ by 146½ by 162 inches; at Holly Solomon.

Picture Bachelard sitting transfixed before Dennis's Subway with Silver Girders, open-eyed but cast a-dream. Tunneling, he sees countless corridors, a network of passages, chambers, cells, signs marking entries, exits, stairways and padlocked gates. Deep beneath the street, cozy in a niche, the smell of urine and buttered popcorn fills his head as he schemes labyrinthine schemes. Perhaps the tangle of electrical wires has caught his attention. Perhaps he is content to stare at the patterns cast by colored lights, reminding him of places he visited as a child. Or perhaps the girders' complicated geometry has offered him an occasion to read characters into this scene. What type of man drives cars along these tracks? What cares distract that derelict waiting for a train to Queens?

Or picture Bachelard looking around Dennis's Skowhegan Stairway, a work which places him in a rural fantasy. He is speechless: sentences from mid-20th-century midwestern gothic novels flood the brain. Though nothing in his past resembles this house, he makes himself at home and assumes a relative's right to search the drawers, closets, cupboards and chests of the recently deceased. Peeping Toms prefer to peer through glass, and the detail that catches his eye is the view through the door in back: an intimate moment, an atmospheric shrine dedicated to the notion of privacy. What he sees I cannot say.

Creep around and settle in. Burrow, nest, nestle, dwell. Become intimate with spaces through which you cannot crawl. Be Alice at the keyhole, imagining the pleasures afforded the small. We can no more enter Dennis's constructions than a child can squeeze through a rodent's hole. But our thoughts, Bachelard suggests, always manage to find their way in every nook and crevice; through imaginary places they stroll. Here, the idea of architecture is altered to suit the dreamer's needs. These forms do not shelter the body so much as house reveries.

—Douglas Blau

Richard Artschwager at Mary Boone

Richard Artschwager, like Marcel Duchamp, is one of the great masters of meaning—a modern meaning that does not quite know if it exists or not, that is always in the process of collapsing and then resurrecting, unstably. Form, in this context of unhappiness with meaning, becomes the stable element in the work. For Artschwager's painting, form is given by the photograph, which becomes the anchor for the work, preventing the drift of meaning too far from appearances. The photograph becomes the substratum. The "cancelling" of it by the artist's artificial-looking hand-execution does not restore our sense of the reality which was the point of departure, but rather gives a glimpse of void.

This forces us back upon the "furniture" of the piece—the frame, which is always carefully crafted by Artschwager, and becomes an independent point of focus (especially when, as in Left

VOL 71 ISS 8 SE 1983 UMI

Pinch, 1980, part of it is a mirror, repeating the blue of the rest of the frame, but also throwing us back into the space in which we stand). Sometimes, as in City of Man (1981), part of the canvas itself becomes as abstractly neutral as the frame—i.e., assertively outside the illusion, the fiction, of any image. The moment this afictionality within the image itself is experienced, the acceptance of the photograph as an illusion breaks down. Further, we lose all belief in the world it "represents." The picture becomes a triumph of non-representation, if not of non-objectivity—for the objective continues to haunt Artschwager's works, even if it is totally distrusted—through its masterful lack of expression, its articulate expressionlessness.

This exhibition was a mini-retrospective dominated by Artschwager's grisaille paintings; a tour de force as a whole, it was also one in certain details such as the Eight Rat Holes series (1967). The rat holes suggest the sense of menace that lurks in Artschwager's pictures and objects. Reality photographed, then further purified by mechanical hand-execution, becomes a rat hole in which our worst fears may lurk, or else nothing at all (which is our very worst fear). Later on, the half-ellipse which depicts the rat hole is doubled and elongated, thus becoming the ubiquitous Artschwager "blip". Positioned on walls, ceilings, floors, like black holes punched in everyday appearances, these small, uniform objects impart an unexpected concentration to ordinary situations. With the blips, Artschwager transfers the density of the rat holes to real space, giving it an abstract objectivity.

Artschwager is magician of sorts: now his works refer to reality, now they don't, and in the paranoid gap between we discover our critical relationship to the meanings we give it. Artschwager's work is one relentless purge of meaning in the name of objectness. —Donald B. Kuspit

John McEwen: installation view of Interior, 1983, steel; at 49th Parallel.

Erwin Blumenfeld: Jill with Broken Statue, 1939, photograph; at Staley-Wise.

Nancy Mitchnick at Hirschl & Adler Modern

Sophisticated naiveté, the late poet Frank O'Hara called it, and painter Nancy Mitchnick's got it. It's there in Red Tulip Painting—a white vase holding pell-mell green stems and orderly, oval-shaped flowers, the background composed of terse, zany brushstrokes of flesh, pink and gray. It's there in Autumn Screen/Winter Screen, a three-panel rendering of, on the front, dizzily off-color woods and, on the back, a landscape in the chilly gray and white of winter. It's more an attitude than a manner that Mitchnick displays, but she's never attitudinizing or mannered. How does she do it?

Take the front of Autumn Screen/Winter Screen, for example. Across three sections she places thin, wavering trees in bright reds and blues, a couple of black trees, and all around, colors we associate with autumn (plus some we don't)—deep greens, hot yellows and oranges, along with luscious touches of lavender, ocher and pink. Coloristically, Mitchnick's work brings the Fauves to mind. Her stroke matches the colors—short, sweet, unhurried, sometimes frenzied, above all painterly.

Both her brushstrokes and her hues are alive and awake. There's consciousness without self-consciousness in these works. The consciousness applies to what's being painted as it's being painted. The surfaces are sometimes worked to a fever pitch—but never delirious. Mitchnick leaves the deliriums for the young European Neo-Expressionists who have traumas to relive and relieve. This is painting about the joy of painting, of perceiving through color and style.

There's almost no one else as young as Mitchnick working like this—if some of the pattern painters come to mind, it's more as an oblique reference than as a direct influence. But she does take aspects of the decorative for her own use: consider a painting titled Ornamental. Here, Mitchnick paints two ornate gold candelabra with red candles against a deep, splashy blue-black ground. The three-pronged candelabra twist elegantly and tortuously upward from elaborate bases, their gold scraped and rescraped. In the face of Mitchnick's painting style, the elegance of the objects doesn't stand a chance. It's a send-up of the contemporary notion of the decorative, yet it is also a felt tribute to the whole idea of artisanry—of objects being imbued with esthetic qualities of their own. Mitchnick seems to have a kind of animistic power—the ability to make mute things come to life, even speak. Wise enough to know that things—trees, flowers, candelabra—are subjects too, Mitchnick is innocent and talented enough to let them have their say. —Gerrit Henry

John McEwen at the 49th Parallel

Although he has exhibited extensively in Canada and abroad, this was McEwen's first show in New York. The four pieces seen at the 49th Parallel, along with photo documentation of a major installation at the University of Lethbridge in Alberta, made for a good introduction to the work of this complex and, in certain respects, very Canadian artist. Part of the interest—and power—of McEwen's work lies in the contrast between the insistent physicality of his animal silhouettes, flame-cut from thick plates of steel, and the ambiguous abstractions and complex of contextual references that they imply. His sculptures conflate the directness of blacksmithing (which McEwen is skilled in), the deliberate materiality of a Serra or a Nonas sculpture, plays on language, and the fictive resonances of suggested narrative.

Buck, 1979–82, consists of two steel tables with plate steel tops, one holding a 19-inch-high figure of a deer. Cut from two-inch plate steel in a two-dimensional silhouette, its antlers have been "pulled" and forged from the intractable metal into a three-dimensional representation—an effective analogy for the actual growth of antlers. The animal figure displays the unabashed ingeniousness of certain folk sculpture both in its technical inventiveness and the acuity with which it captures its subject. The buck stands on a table, gazing at an identical table about 25 feet away on which is gouged the word "buck." This signifier/signified business is a bit heavy-handed, but more than a demonstration of linguistic theory is involved. From the second table, looking back at the deer, is a curious totemic figure—the body of the deer reduced to a vertical bar topped by the eloquent, three-dimensional antlers. This figure has great presence and authority despite its small size and distance from the viewer.

Louis Lozowick: Interior, 1973, lithograph, 15 by 8½ inches; at Summit (review on p. 174).

Roy DeCarava: Coltrane #24, New York, 1963, black and white photograph; at Studio Museum (review on p. 174).

Brian Eno: still from "Mistaken Memories." 1981–82; at Concord (review on p. 174).

Interior consists of a steel rabbit ten inches high and four inches thick, a steel plate rug with a raised, welded pattern, and a nine-step staircase drawn on the gallery wall with a one-half-inch thick steel bar placed next to it. A simple, if enigmatic domestic situation is evoked with each element described in different physical terms. The very thick and heavy rabbit figure seems remarkably soft, the cutting having been done from both sides of the plate irregularly enough so as to suggest fur. The figure is also thick enough in relation to the dimensions of the silhouette to establish something close to the actual volume of a rabbit. All this combines with the rounded forms of the "drawing" to suggest an incongruously cuddly creature without sacrificing any of the matter-of-fact density of the original steel block. Our recognition of the rabbit—through texture, volume and emblematic outline—is made to rely on different aspects of sculptural language and corresponding aspects of perception. Extending further his lexicon of metal-working in this piece, McEwen has made a "painterly" rendition of a small throw rug; this, plus the diagrammatic staircase with its literal establishment of vertical scale, completes our sense of Interior as a particular ambience as well as an actual space.

The structuralist disquisition implied by McEwen's formal variations is balanced neatly by his way of cajoling a sense of delicacy, even vulnerability out of obdurate steel. In Model, a dead bird six-and-one-half inches long is rendered as a cut-out in a steel disc two feet in diameter and two inches thick; the material absence of the figure becomes a poignant metaphor for death. At play, then, in this and other works by McEwen, is not only a Conceptualist esthetic that stresses linguistic and contextual considerations, but also an unsentimental, sometimes dark poetry of pastoral North American life. —Robert Berlind

Erwin Blumenfeld at Staley-Wise

Erwin Blumenfeld is best known as a 1940s fashion photographer whose work provides a bridge from the Surrealist style of the '30s to the more lighthearted, plain-white-backdrop approach developed by Avedon and Penn in the 1950s. This exhibition sought to claim a serious place for Blumenfeld in the history of art as well. Though the gallery wisely chose to present Blumenfeld's art photographs and his fashion work as a single, continuous oeuvre, the show, titled "Experiments in Perception," was weighted toward the lesser-known "art" images.

Blumenfeld's avant-garde credentials seem impeccable. During the 1920s, when he was still in Berlin, working in a ladies' wear company, he was friends with the Dadaists. In the '30s, when he moved to Paris and launched his career as a professional photographer, he was associated with the fashionable avant-garde magazines Minotaure and Verve. In 1938 he began doing fashion work, while continuing his artistic experiments.

Of the "experiments" here, the most successful were those that drew on the literary content of Surrealism. For instance, Blumenfeld's 1939 Portrait of Jill with Broken Statue (also known as Broken Venus) combines a statue out of de Chirico with drapes and lighting derived from the films of Cocteau. Despite the air of calculated contrivance, the truncated limbs of the marble statues cast strangely animated shadows on the backdrop, evoking a mixture of desire and anxiety. The comparison between time's mutilations of antique art and human injuries is not novel, but it is nonetheless effective.

Unfortunately, the derivativeness of Blumenfeld's work frequently detracts from its power. His 1943 Nude with Pattern too closely recalls Maurice Tabard's 1931 photograph of a crisscross pattern of shadows falling across the beautiful face of a certain Mrs. Hubbell, much photographed at the time. The use of grids and overlays goes back, in any case, to Edward Steichen's and Man Ray's work of the 1920. Blumenfeld's solarized portraits and still lifes rework Man Ray; his distorted nudes, Kertész.

The show also included several more original images in which faces or bodies were posed behind scrims. Light was thrown from behind, so that the actual silhouettes of the subjects contrast with the exaggerated shapes of their shadows. These pictures seemed at first to represent a studio variation on the shadow images produced in the '20s and '30s by both European and American photographers (usually under the influence of de Chirico). However, the real key to these light experiments was provided by an image of a face photographed frontally but lit from the side, so that the shadows falling across it define the outline of a profile. This work made it clear that Blumenfeld's major inspiration was Picasso's post-Cubist experiments in combining frontal and profile views in a single image. Once recognized as attempts to imitate painting, Blumenfeld's devices of unusual lighting and theatrical scrims are much less interesting than initial viewing might suggest.

Blumenfeld later seems to have found in high contrast printing a more purely photographic—and more successful—way of reducing the human face or figure to flat, outlined shapes. He used this technique several times for covers of Vogue and Harper's Bazaar— covers which are justly famous. These high contrast images—of women's faces reduced to eyes and mouth or encircled by the spiraling lines of a straw hat—retain their impact today thanks to the graphic simplicity of their conception. Ultimately, Blumenfeld's reputation, even as an art photographer, will probably rest on such "fashion" images rather than on the pictures he created as pure "art." —Pepe Karmel

VOL 71 ISS 8 SE 1983 UMI

Roy DeCarava at the Studio Museum in Harlem

Coauthor with the poet Langston Hughes of The Sweet Flypaper of Life, the single best photo-essay on Harlem ever produced, Roy DeCarava, in this exhibition, "The Sound I Saw," is represented by a selection from the hundreds of pictures he took of the jazz scene in the 1940s and '50s. Cursed by racist attitudes on the part of its public and alternating neglect and exploitation, jazz and the myths surrounding it were often fed by anger, frenetic energy and self-destructive impulses. The photographs in this show, without contradicting the complex social reality, offer a privileged view of the period and its legendary personalities.

More a participant/observer of the jazz scene than a photojournalist, DeCarava gives us a series of intense glimpses of life within the tight circle of musicians. But while he unflinchingly records the wasted beauty of Billie Holliday and the furiously driven performances of Coltrane, he also manages to provide an extensive and almost tender study of the intimacy that existed among the members of this enclave. He does so in formal and graphic terms which evoke jazz's inherent grace as much as its sharp edges.

For the most part candid portraits of one or two individuals, DeCarava's photographs give us very few details about the settings of these encounters. Whenever we do see interiors of clubs and studios, they are presented with an absolute economy (as in the classically composed Ellington Session Break), where each element of the picture—the central silhouetted coatrack, the floating discs of the overhead lights, the distant and solitary figures of the sitting players—contributes directly to a total image of disconcerting stasis and absolute musical concentration.

Most of the work, however, is enveloped in rich and yielding shadow, and it is within this shadow that DeCarava's artistry takes shape. Setting aside the hard-contrast conventions of much documentary photography, DeCarava prints his images as if he were starting in darkness and bringing them toward the light—though only so far as is necessary to define his forms. Within this seemingly narrow range, he is able to find an extraordinary variety of nuances.

His mastery of tone reminds one of early Camera Work photographers, and, to an extent, even of Vermeer; yet there's no straining after a poeticized or painterly look. The poetry here begins with craft, not intentions, and is quite real. Like some poetry, however, it is delicate, and that delicacy can be somewhat diminished in book reproductions—one last argument, if any is needed, for making the effort to see this unusually evocative exhibition. —Robert Storr

Louis Lozowick at Summit

This small but well-selected survey spanning Lozowick's entire career served as a timely reintroduction to one of America's pioneer printmakers. Coming as it did just after the issuing of a Lozowick catalogue raisonné by Janet Flint, the exhibition provided an opportunity to see his accomplishments up close.

Lozowick was born in Russia of Jewish parents in 1892, attended the Kiev Art School for two years, and emigrated to America in 1906. By 1919, he was in Paris, where he met Gris and Léger, and a year later in Berlin, where he met El Lissitzky and other Russian Constructivists. Back in America in 1924, he lectured on modern Russian art for the Société Anonyme and wrote about European art for The Nation.

Although Lozowick made some lithographs between 1923 and '28, he devoted most of his energy during this time to his paintings. But in the late '20s, Lozowick began working on lithographs in earnest; between 1928 and '30, he produced more than 70—nearly one-third of his entire output in this medium. Largely self-taught, he was an innovator at a time when most American artists still scorned lithography, and only begrudgingly accepted etching.

Almost half of the 32 lithographs in the show were from Lozowick's early, intensely productive period. Yet the later prints show that over the years he lost none of his vision or power. Lozowick's main subjects were industrial landscapes, cityscapes with and without people, and austere, contemporary still-lifes. In all cases, he was able to use his familiarity with the strong diagonals of Russian Constructivism to give a new vitality to the usually straight-on, rather static views typical of Precisionism.

Lozowick's strength was his ability to make an ordinary moment or familiar part of the industrial landscape memorable. The real gem of the show was Interior (1973), one of the last prints Lozowick finished before he died. Interior depicts a commuter train station in South Orange, N.J. A staircase forms strong horizontals, a glass-paned door forms a pair of gridded rectangles, and the slanting late-afternoon sunlight on the floor forms both verticals and diagonals. Yet Lozowick's use of abstraction, far from intruding upon his figurative imagery, unfailingly complements it. In Interior, the raked light and severe diagonals remind us that both shadows and sunlight, like the couple entering the station, and the man descending the stairs, are by nature transitory. The strength of the geometric abstraction lies in the way it helps lend the whole scene its austere authority, which is part of its emotional power.

Throughout his career Lozowick repeatedly zeroed in on the dramatic possibilities of an ordinary moment—and he did so without ever becoming heavy-handed or theatrical. He also chronicled the changing landscape of New York—the building of its subways, skyscrapers and bridges. Lozowick was a minor master, a modest artist with a humanist vision. The exhibition, like the catalogue raisonné, has contributed considerably to our understanding of his accomplishments. —John Yau

Brian Eno at Concord

Since 1975, when a taxi struck and nearly killed him, Brian Eno has withdrawn from the world of art-rock that he did so much to create. A graduate of England's Winchester School of Art, Eno is best known for his tape and synthesizer playing for Roxy Music in the early '70s, as well as for his production work on records by David Bowie, Robert Fripp, John Cale and the Talking Heads. Since his accident, however, Eno has turned away from rock-and-roll, which he now finds jarring and abrasive, and begun making lush, sonorous compositions he calls "ambient music."

Designed to function as soothing, anonymous background music for both public spaces and films, Eno's ambient music uses random arrangements of tonality, as did his earlier work, but in a much less radical way. In rejecting pop theatricality for a more idiosyncratic and personal form of art-making, Eno appears to have abandoned many of the more interesting theoretical concerns of his earlier work, such as his introduction of John Cage's experiments with noise-as-music and chance operations into a pop-song format. (Thus, many of the decisions regarding the arrangement of the songs on Eno's early solo records—themselves the definitive use of recording-studio equipment as an instrument in itself—were made by consulting a deck of Tarot cards of his own design.)

Eno's videotapes are continuations of his attempt to find a calm, meditative outlet for creative energies left unfulfilled by rock-and-roll. At Concord he showed Mistaken Memories of the Medieval City, a 45-minute tape divided into seven visually seductive sections, each accompanied by a rich score of ambient music. The monitor, turned on its side, occupied the center of a darkened room; it displayed color-treated images of the lower-Manhattan skyline. While the tape's seven sections appear remarkably similar, subtle changes can be discerned over time: slowly moving pans over a static cityscape are interspersed with static shots of changes in the sky (the movement of clouds, for example).

Eno's images have the stately, imposing air of landscape painting. Using color-image transferring techniques, he has achieved a rich and varied palette; bathed in the colors of dusk and twilight—orange, purple, silver—the city's uncompromising architecture is softened and becomes dramatic, even mystical. However, these kaleidoscopic patterns of light are virtually the only source of visual stimulation.

Nothing is allowed to disturb the seamless elegance of these urban tableaux; despite short pauses between sections, the tape is continuous. Image and sound are correlated throughout, each section beginning and ending with a pulsing score of electronic sound, treated piano and occasional gonglike clanging. Intended as a visual equivalent of ambient music—that is, music designed to be ignored—Mistaken Memories seems to equate ambience with uninterrupted continuity, thereby coming dangerously close to the seductive blandness of commercial television. Thus, the lack of separation between elements suggests that this tape is less a rigorous investigation into the conditions of ambience, and more an introduction of the devices of the popular media into an art-gallery context. —Craig Bromberg

Joel Peter Witkin at Hardison Fine Arts

It would be ingenuous to describe Joel Peter Witkin's photographs in terms of technique, without first mentioning their content. Testicle Stretch With Possibility of Crushed Face, Woman About To Castrate A Man, and Androgyny Breastfeeding A Fetus are some of the titles, and Witkin is nothing if not literal-minded. While he often presents allegorical figures posed in loose parodies of classical art (The Birth of Venus, Diadoumenos, Pygmalion and Galatea), these invariably have something stridently contemporary about them, of a piece with the less sublime-sounding Transvestite Masturbating or Arm Fuck. Pygmalion, for instance, a little dead infant with twisted limbs balanced on its plinth by wires, has torn pieces of Picasso's Guernica and Girl in a Mirror obscuring its tiny face.

Witkin shares a variety of preoccupations with his contemporaries; however, he goes considerably further than any of them in contriving queasy little shocks for the viewer and laboriously straining for the look of Art. Part of this lofty striving entails doctoring pictures in the lab, tricking out his subjects with butterfly wings, amputating their limbs, puncturing their nipples with bone fragments and covering the print surface with patterned veils of mottled scum. Many of the prints have been made to look like daguerreotypes salvaged from partial decomposition; in many cases the edges are scored with black lines and smudges suggestive of Action Painting, the images streaked with pencil-thin dodging lines and smeared with burnt-in blotches. Space around the figure is often marked off in irregular ovoid and triangular shadings; the figures are typically posed against torn or creased cloth backdrops. Certain pictures are collaged from several negatives, allowing the figure or the figure's clothing to sprout appendages and eyes.

Witkin occasionally reverts to more conventional rendering. Twenty-Six Year Old, O.D., for instance, features the usual fuzz around the edges, but the handsome cadaver, sliced open on the autopsy table with its breast curled back from the ellipsis of the scalpel line, reveals a deadpan blob of piquant viscera, so Witkin left it alone. This is High Catholicism at its best, overwrought with adolescent hatred of the body and fraught with passionate necrophilia.

Certain motifs reek of the gimmick: the omnipresent fetuses being clutched and squeezed by hermaphrodites and fat ladies look authentic, and one becomes absorbed in the question of how Witkin might have acquired actual fetuses. (A similar problem occurs in the corpse photos.) This species of photographic novelty translates into banality on second viewing, as do most of Witkin's leatherette fantasies, familiar from the fashion-plate treatment Robert Mapplethorpe gave the tit-torture crowd several years ago. Granted, Witkin approaches this material with much greater emotional urgency; but the ironic detachment of Mapplethrope's S&M pictures is far more interesting. For the general viewer, sincerity is the least endearing quality of the leather scene.

The most effective images in Witkin's show operate on several levels; their formal properties don't appear as excuses for tritely exhibited fetishism. Saviour of the Primates does ample justice to Witkin's obsessions; so do Torture of the Pope in Exile, and the cryptic, disturbing, formally perfect Capitulation of France. Each of these pictures conveys thicknesses of sensation and thought battling for legibility in an oblivious universe; at the same time, Witkin has respected the secret of these images, preserving their ambiguity in a way that justifies the darkroom tamperings, blotches and blurs. The Conversion of Venus With Pearls To Swine presents a truly stupendous miniature hell as perfect in its hermeticism as many of Sandy Skoglund's magically possessed rooms. —Gary Indiana

Bram van Velde: Le Bonheur de Matisse, 1981, lithograph, 25½ by 38 inches; at Lefebre.

Edgar Buonagurio: Aura, 1982, acrylic on canvas, 60 by 48 inches; at Andre Zarre (review on p. 176).

Bram van Velde At Lefebre

It is particularly apropos that Bram van Velde's abstract paintings and graphics are being seen in the U.S. once again at a time when Expressionist fervor has reached something of a crescendo in the art world. Although praised by European intellectuals, critics and literary figures (including Samuel Beckett and Georges Duthuit) for several decades, van Velde, who died in 1981, remained throughout his life a rather solitary, aloof and enigmatic painter. Unlike those of his compatriots involved in De Stijl, van Velde was able, over the years, both to keep his imagery free of didacticism and to remain amazingly prolific, as this energetic display of recent lithographs amply demonstrated. (A memorial exhibition of van Velde's paintings was shown at the same gallery a year earlier.)

Although such titles as Exuberance and Embrasement (Conflagration) may recall those Hans Hofmann gave to his colorful explorations—and indeed there is a shared joie de vivre clearly evident in the paintings of both artists—the stylistic differences between the two are considerable. The psychological component seems much stronger in van Velde's work than in Hofmann's, and he will not hesitate to allow it a darker turn from time to time, as in works like Sadistic Act or North (with its probable reference to Céline's novel of the same name); herein lies van Velde's strongest link to the current group of German Neo-Expressionists. Unlike the latter group, however, van Velde has little to do with politics in an explicit sense and almost nothing to do with the historicity attributed to postmodernism. At the same time, his peculiarly detached childlike method of execution is totally unrelated to most American abstract painting of the late '40s and '50s; nor does his preference for small scale and his refusal to hinge content upon stylistic innovation do anything but widen that gulf.

VOL 71 ISS 8 SE 1983 UMI

Van Velde's lithographs, as represented here, hold forth in a way that is more sinewy, cerebral and incongruous than is typical of the major Abstract Expressionists. Indeed, it is these qualities, along with his lack of stylistic pretension and his clear indifference to notions of formal cohesion, that are in large part responsible for the "underground" nature of his reputation. Whereas de Kooning, for all his obvious fluidity, generally relies on the gradual attenuation of bold gesture to achieve formal resolution, van Velde has no comparable apparatus. Works like Le Bonheur de Matisse (1981) show the startling degree to which each of van Velde's gestures remains independent of the others. What's more, of course, in lithography each of the colors requires a separate plate, and the final composition is the product of their repeated layering. In van Velde's case the medium thus adds to the consciously indeterminate appearance of the shapes, which collide and intertwine in weird configurations, never quite matching one another. They neither float in the manner of Gorky's shapes, nor ever entirely hold their ground. The surface shifts continuously, confounding our conceptions both of form and of composition.

—Robert C. Morgan

Chuck Magistro: For Wm. S: Midnight Dancer, 1982, acrylic on canvas, 60 by 48 inches; at Tibor de Nagy.

Jody Mussoff: Three-Headed Figure with Hats, 1982, 26 by 40½ inches, colored pencil on paper; at Monique Knowlton

Jerome Johnson at Stephen Rosenberg

Born in 1933, Jerome Johnson has exhibited his sculpture since 1960, mostly in California. Countering the self-referentiality of much '60s sculpture, Johnson explored various ways to engage the viewer physically. In the late '60s and early '70s, many of his welded aluminum pieces were elevated footpaths that the viewer was invited to walk on. Other pieces from this period include welded aluminum tracks on which flat cars could be pushed back and forth.

Since the mid-'70s, Johnson has spray-painted the sanded surfaces of his aluminum sculptures. In each of the wall pieces in this, his first solo show in New York, he has placed aluminum cubes and rods on an open, square frame, also made of aluminum. These painted, open squares often frame aluminum sheets, as well, that are cut and painted so as to resemble a mountain peak at sunset. On one level, then, these sculptures are straightforward in their reference to the picture frame as a window onto a landscape. On another level, however, the painted surfaces of each sculpture suggest some larger design or unknown compositional whole of which the sculpture is a part. Finally, the cubes and rods balanced on the frame point to another realm entirely (perhaps one of ideal forms). Clearly, Johnson is playing with the various historical conventions of illusionism, three-dimensionality and part-to-whole relationships. In combining these various modes of representation, he is, in effect, mixing metaphors.

This mixing of modes is pushed by Johnson even further in his large, freestanding painted pieces. Consisting of cubes, columns, open rectangles and cut sheets of aluminum, these sculptures wittily explore the relationship between two- and three-dimensional representation. In one work, for example, a column rises at an awkward angle from a painted cube, thrusting through a precariously balanced rectangular frame; extending from the sculpture's base is a cut, open sheet which resembles a shadow cast by these vertical pieces. Here, Johnson is poking fun at the idea of both illusionism and self-referentiality, but his humor is generous rather than caustic. His ability to embrace various conventions is part of his personal sculptural language, not an art-historical mannerism or an art-world stylistic game. The ease with which he manipulates these conventions suggests the level of his accomplishment.

—John Yau

Edgar Buonagurio at Andre Zarre

Buonagurio's paintings are marriages of process and imagery in which the mystery of the former yields the complexity of the latter. His works look like agates that have been sliced through: the colors swirl, the surfaces are slightly pitted, and one has the sense of liquid matter flowing, then petrified forever.

Buonagurio first designs his ornate compositions, then extrudes swirling color mixtures onto the canvas. Using a variety of implements and following a predetermined color program, he layers a great deal more paint on the initial stratum. Finally, he sands the painting with a disk sander, selectively revealing underlying colors, and smoothing down the uneven surface. But the surface remains almost relieflike, rising and falling with his grindings. The dominant colors in Buonagurio's work are earth tones and blues, though his palette is now somewhat more lively and saturated; two new paintings, for example, include metallic gold.

Symmetrical combinations of arcs, curves, triangles and rectangles, most filled in with concentric patterns, Buonagurio's compositions refer to medieval architecture and stained glass. They contain no distinct lines: shapes are defined by borders that resemble strings of beads, and there is hardly a square millimeter of solid color anywhere. The images, however, do stand out, delineated as they are by color value. Their references to art and architecture are also indirect and imprecise—snippets of visual memories and impressions that conjure up a rose window here, a Gothic typanum there, or the feel of Oriental carpets and Persian decoration.

Potion (1983) epitomizes Buonagurio's style. Evoking images of relief-encrusted tympana, this work is a combination of ornate arches broken by radiating lines; diamonds, squares and horizontal striations complete the composition. Eastern Shadows (1982) is like a close-up of Potion, now with violet and yellow arches and patterns. Tavolino (1982) is a small gem—a single floral shape bordered by a crisscrossing pattern. Its simplicity sets it apart.

With Nomad (1983), a large horizontal procession of arches and triangles with two gridded squares (windows?) in the background, Buonagurio's notions of density and pattern are stretched to the limit. Perhaps in the future he might open up his tight, swirling beads of color and create a looser, more expressionist work. While these paintings celebrate the synchrony of form and technique, there seem to be more daring realms to be explored with the process.

—Ellen Lubell

Chuck Magistro at Tibor de Nagy

In the mid-'70s, Chuck Magistro's wall reliefs, made of acrylic, Rhoplex, plaster and wire mesh, reminded me of badly damaged Renaissance portals and columns. The thick, impastoed surfaces of these reliefs were scarred and scratched, and sections of paint were peeled back to reveal the wire mesh underneath. Though process-oriented, this work explored the formal relationship of arc to rectangle (as found in a doorway) with the same intensity as the Cubists explored still life.

In this recent show, however, Magistro exhibited paintings in acrylic and oil on canvas. No longer inspired by architecture, Magistro attempts in these works to transform some unspecified tropical landscape into a personal and abstract vision. In his reliefs, the wire mesh provided the structure; in these paintings, this function is performed by vertical, horizontal and diagonal lines. Over this grid Magistro paints swirling, leaflike and floral forms that clash and overlap. His colors, rich in deep reds, yellows and greens, suggest the thick, almost poisonous atmosphere of the jungle.

In these paintings, an almost ritual obsessiveness has occluded the formal subtleties found in Magistro's reliefs. Perhaps the architectual references in those works became too objective, too restrictive for Magistro. In any case, a new desire is evident in these paintings—a desire to transform the natural world into a personal one. The problem is that the transformation is not complete: Magistro's invented forms are not personal enough. There is too much restraint, too much balance in the compositions (for example, a swirling shape almost always occupies the center of the canvas). The wildness suggested by the subject matter is only apparent, and as a direct consequence of this restraint, the paintings lack an emotional edge.

This criticism is meant to suggest that Magistro, so obsessive in his methods, has not yet gained full command of his new medium. However, given the accomplishment of his reliefs, that moment cannot be far off. These paintings simmer with possibilities; one only wants their tropical heat turned on full.

—John Yau

Jody Mussoff at Monique Knowlton

Jody Mussoff's energetic colored-pencil drawings of women and dogs (and an occasional body) depict a race apart—feisty but gentle new wavers, with spiky hair and glittering, jewellike eyes, carrying out the odd routines of their daily round. Their apparel has a thrift-shop style (obviously, these art "rats" choose to exist at the edges of the cultural scene), and their movements are theatrical and mimelike, stiffened by a bizarre self-awareness.

Characteristically the works are composed with Ukiyo-e simplicity. Mussoff's drawing style is mannered rather than objective. Although she invents the figures and situations, they are based on her determined effort to distill some sort of essence from the behavior of her friends: out of her responses comes this stylized world of her art.

Mussoff is immensely influenced by Egon Schiele. Some of her backgrounds recall the simple linear treatment of backgrounds in the watercolors Schiele did in prison (where he was sent in 1912 for "immorality" and "seduction"). And yet where Schiele conveyed a spastic eroticism and anguish by wiry lines and colored washes, Mussoff's work portrays defiance and brazen asexuality.

What Mussoff has taken from Schiele she has certainly absorbed and transformed. Though composed in a Schiele manner with much white paper around the half-figure of a woman, her Woman with a Dog (1982) is unlike any subject conceived by the Austrian artist: the figure, turned in profile, is leaning forward under the weight of a snouty pooch that rests its head absently on the woman's. She carries the dog like a pack—and is probably looking in a mirror. A narcissism prevails in Schiele as well, but it has none of this '80s-race-unto-itself tone. The androgyny of Mussoff's figures implies self-sufficiency: a world without men (at least adult men), a world without jobs to go to. No one gets old; no one even gets middle-aged.

Mussoff's is contour drawing, not particularly volumetric; it is, however, alive with multicolored hatching that provides an unreal light consistent with the Prismacolor rendering of reflections. This hatching has the zany effect of light thrown by theatrical gels; again, the artificial, the theatrical, is stressed. This distances reality as it emphasizes it.

Mussoff has introduced in her drawing new linear divisions that lead the eye from section to section. These montagelike breaks serve to vary her images and to layer their meanings. At the same time, they formally abstract the images by fragmenting and recombining them.

The most successful of these drawings is Three-Headed Figure with Hats, a centered, cruciform work. In the lower part of the horizontal section Mussoff depicts a woman in a transparent slip and belted lower garment. She is drawn with an open line; only her upper body, cut off at the collar bone, is hatched with color. A head fragment, nodding in a Christ-like way, is centered over the torso; a blazing pink completes the background above. Flanking this head are two more head fragments wearing Tom Wolfe Panamas—an intimation of chic that denies the potential solemnity of this "martrydom."

So far, Mussoff's public oeuvre has consisted only of works on paper; recently, however, she has taken up oil painting. Certainly, Mussoff's strong design sense, punchy draftsmanship and gritty, rebellious social attitude make her one of the more interesting representational artists to come down the pike in recent years.

—Joe Shannon

Martin Johnson at Phyllis Kind

Martin Johnson's sculptures belong in the sideshow of a traveling circus. They have the aura of freaks on a holiday, exhibiting themselves disdainfully for our astonishment, yet denying their own abnormality—pushing us back on our own. We are as much observed and commented on by these works as observing and commenting on them. The self-recognition they force on us makes our curiosity about them as pathological—freakish—as they are. The whole effect is of the slipperiness of relationship between knower and known in modern art, a sardonic demonstration of the evasiveness of even the most ordinary meaningfulness in the art context. Johnson's sculptures are all the more sardonic because they present themselves to us as commonplace objects, masquerading as monsters by reason of their profound cosmetic ornamentalization. An atmosphere of deception is crucial to the work; it shows us the power of ornament as comment. As with Kurt Schwitters—and with a similar formal rigor—Johnson gives us objects with an intriguing autonomy, strange hybrids of the colloquial (folk and funk), which are simultaneously irrational, perverse acknowledgements of the nightmarishness of the familiar. The conversion of an ordinary object into an obscene ornament is the key to this work; the pieces demonstrate ornament's power to be revelatory of the uncanny, and thus of ornamentalization's peculiar independence as an artistic process.

Beginning usually with a found object—chairs are common—Johnson wittily adumbrates it into a perverse idea. He cocoons his object in a Rhoplex web—a dense matrix the object seems spontaneously to secrete. The object's transformation is completed by bright color, confirming the effect of uncontrollable fiercely kaleidescopic proliferation. It is this run-riot effect—the result of a construction principle applied relentlessly—that gives the pieces their predatory look. Johnson's sculptures are like old-fortune-telling machines in a penny arcade, grimacing their routine truths at us. Indeed, the grimace, like that of the Joker in the old Batman comic strip, is a favorite expressive form for Johnson, reminding us that it is the malleable root underlying both tragic and comic masks. Here we see Johnson's "fundamentalism," his pursuit of archetypal origins. The slipperiness of surface meaning is the sign of that pursuit.

Johnson is a 20th-century E.T.A. Hoffmann, offering a collection of quirky dolls, seemingly trivial yet like all personal junk subtly erotic and constituting a semi-independent dream world—a world of almost indecipherable moods, for all the brazenness of its contents. He carries forward H. C. Westermann's project of sardonically revealing the double meanings of a seemingly straight reality, although with more artificial, less organic means. At the same time, Johnson has clearly understood the anatomy lesson of Cubism; he mingles planes, creating an effect of ornamental excess, which not only dissects space but disperses its parts in a seemingly random way. The total effect is of an arbitrary mingling of the purist ("engineered") and surrealist ("literary") sides of modernism, creating a sense of organized irrationality.

Johnson's sculptures are gargoyles in search of a secular cathedral on which to roost, reminding us of the macabre character of everyday life, the profanity that engulfs us all. They are household gods come alive while we sleep and grown possessive of our private space. Their collective effect—the studio vista Johnson used for his exhibition announcement shows its importance—is of a bizarre world built on a precise logic, mockingly shadowing our waking world. These works are the products of the same critical paranoia which Dali experienced as one of the basic sources of creativity in the modern world. This paranoia produces hallucinatory visions of the known which show just how unknown it really is, because it is so encrusted with our half-known intentions.

—Donald B. Kuspit

Self-Portraits at Allan Frumkin

This two-part invitational show of contemporary self-portraits repre-

VOL 71 ISS 8 SE 1983 UMI

Gary Roth: S-4, 1982, mixed mediums, 34 by 29 by 9½ inches; at Graham (review on p. 183).

Jerome Johnson: State of Independence, 1981-82, painted aluminum, 62 by 56 by 76 inches; at Stephen Rosenberg (review on p. 176).

sented what amounts to the yin and yang of contemporary approaches to portraiture. Part one, "From the Mirror," offered up a cross section of those artists who choose to go head-to-head with the camera. The work of Jack Beal, William Beckman, James Valerio, Philip Pearlstein, Paul Wiesenfeld and others suggests that the crux of "truth in portraiture" lies in rendering a convincing play of light and shadow on middle-aged jowls. The sullen expression their faces assume while concentrating on achieving a likeness makes these artists look as though they've all just been sent to their rooms—which, in a way, is where the abstract-oriented New York art world did send them in the decades following World War II. These paintings of uncomfortable-looking men and women who don't seem to know what to do with their hands effectively illustrate the difficulty and loneliness of being an artist.

Few paintings in this section attempt to be more than faithful renderings of what the mirror showed the artist. An exception is James Valerio's Self-Portrait (1981), in which the artist evokes the nuclear threat by including, on a coffee table in front of the figure, an alarm clock set at four minutes to midnight (like the doomsday clock of the Committee of Concerned Scientists), a telephone with a glowing red light on it, and a model submarine. It is a subtle and effective attempt to portray the degree to which the artist feels this abstract but nonethless omnipresent peril has incorporated itself into his own notion of himself.

This exhibition's second installment, "The Antic Vision," was a glossary of popular stereotypes of the artist. Old Bob with Itch, Robert Arneson's ceramic head on the body of a ceramic dog scratching himself, is a portrait of the artist as a young dog. Joan Brown's two-panel half-woman, half-cat image is a portrait of the artist as a split personality. And on and on: Peter Dean holding a trowel and a hammer—the artist as builder; Robert Colescott buried to his neck in rocks while teased by nude women—the artist with sublimated libido; Dan Freeman giving the finger—the artist as iconoclast; Red Grooms in a crookedly hung portrait with a highball glass—the artist as drinker. This section is a loft party from Central Casting.

Some artists successfully found a middle ground between sullen privacy and wild exhibitionism. Azaceta, Grooms, Neel, Pearlstein and Rafael Ferrer, especially, made pictures that were balanced between reflection and provocation. But even here the germ of a great portrait was missing. It appears that a generation not at all shy about exposing the body is coy indeed about exposing the soul. —Ross Skoggard

MILWAUKEE

"New Figuration in America" at the Milwaukee Art Museum

The cumulative effect of this exhibition was greater than the sum of any of its parts. The artists are not new but their togetherness is, inviting comparisons, which are evil, but essential. First, what they all have in common: fascination with the figure, but a sense of it as unappetizing or alien or both—above all, as a vehicle for moods or attitudes customarily censored. It is not the figure in itself that has for so long been censored, but the figure as a vehicle for nausea—the figure as a way of holding one's fingers to one's nose at the smell society gives off. The best of these artists tell us about the horror of being human these days. In an art-historical perspective, they are anti-humanistic, anti-heroic, anti-procreative. These figures they present are the deadends of existence, discarded butts of being, crushed out by artistic manhandling.

By these standards, Malcolm Morley's works are the weakest, Eric Fischl's the strongest. Morley simply uses a figural bit of nature—horses, parrots—as an excuse to paint "naturally," "expressively." The "unclear" results have the same—no doubt intentional, being "Pop"—forced, fraudulent look as his earlier crisp picture-postcard pictures. Morley understands nothing about the figure as a (negative) force in itself. Fischl, clearly one of the great young masters of the exhibition, works in just the opposite way: the stroke is kept under tight control, its intensity feeding into that of the figure and its scene, to rich psychosocial effect. Fischl's paintings—as painting as well as narrative—convey a greater sense of ominous power, of dreadful foreboding, than any of Morley's paint-butchered scenes.

Longo and Salle also emerge as masters of the impacted, imploded "memento mori" effect, as does John Ahearn, who, for all his tendencies to heroicize the figure, presents it as a negative, truncated presence, on the order of funereal Roman realism. One thinks, for example, of the Pompeii wall painting of a baker and his wife. Schnabel's works—Understanding Self-Hate (1981) is a major piece that was in the show—forces this negativity to Hellenistic disproportion, grossness. However, his overstatement, to the point of bombast, is appropriate, for it forcefully brings out the death-obsession of this art.

Africano's Jekyll and Hyde images, Amico's Common Match (1981), Bosman's falling figure in The Red Curtain (1981), Troy Brauntuch's "absent" figures in their Nazi-black voids, the morbid figures in Earl Staley's garish retelling of the story of Actaeon (1977) and Joseph and Potiphar's Wife (1980), and the "canceled" figures in Mark Mulhern's Suicide, Sexual Preference, Longing (1982) all have the same suffering of being-towards-death. For all their differences, Borofsky's blanked-out dream self, Jimmy de Sana's sadomasochistically bound-together figures canceled into anonymity, Jedd Garet's anonymous athletic torsos, Mike Glier's photo-stale figures "expressified" through a stale expressive handling, Barry Ledoux's hollow metal figural remnants, Richard Prince's blurred ordinary people, Susan Rothenberg's

William Beckman: Self-Portrait, 1981-82, oil on oak panel, 50 by 36½ inches; at Frumkin (review on p. 177).

Martin Johnson: Close Dirty Heir, 1982, mixed mediums, 44 by 20 by 21 inches; at Phyllis Kind (review on p. 177).

Peter Liashkov: Woman: 70, 1982, mixed mediums, 67 by 32 inches; at Jan Baum.

ghostly figures, and Cindy Sherman's isolated persona in search of a role she can act and identify with (here in scruffy early pieces), all have the same anxious air of doomed beings—of the walking wounded defeated by existence.

The weakest works presented in the show (each artist was allowed three) are those by Austé, Jim Brinsfield, Thomas Lawson, and Martin Silverman. The first makes catchy pseudo-Surrealist landscapes, the second splashy figure-scapes, the third turns good newspaper photographs into bad paintings (paint becomes cheap perfume on a corpse decked out for viewing before burial); the fourth carves plaintive wooden figures. They are all too busy learning a craft to be as crafty as they think they are. It would have been better to replace all four by Leon Golub, whose new figural works are among the most proudly negative that exist today.

—Donald B. Kuspit

SAN FRANCISCO

Jay DeFeo at Paule Anglim

In DeFeo's Trial by Fire, 1983, the color sonorities are rich and romantic: there are purple browns, brown grays, and a winedark field which is smooth and soft, but graduates into rougher painterliness. The adjoining field is mainly gray impasto, the colors having been mixed in the act of applying the brush, with a flash of brilliant red reverberating against the violet at center stage. The action is provided by sharp black lines, edges taped for clarity; in a painting that otherwise goes from soft to crusty, the black lines form fast, diagonal thrusts in a triangulating abstract pattern. The fast action of these black lines is mellowed by the dark hues. The picture is dramatic. There is a sense of action rather than a sense of place, or of things; but this is not exactly Action Painting (in the meaning of Abstract Expressionism), for these works are fabricated from parts that are very different in technique.

Five years ago, DeFeo was making drawings that were abstract, though they proceeded from representational elements—tripods, for example. A complete drawing was made in one medium, then partially erased, or effaced with a succeeding drawing in a different medium and technique; this in turn was eroded and then replaced; the final work was made up of fragments which somehow coalesced. These works have a vignette quality—they are centered on a partly vacant page.

Some of the paintings in this recent show have that same vignette aspect, and they further resemble the earlier drawings in that they are painted mostly in black and white. The contrasts are so great that the works are dramatic, despite their lack of color. Baja, 1983, is a painting-drawing in which the image comes out to the edge; thus it has the feeling of a full-blown painting, although color remains residual and some pencil and grease-crayon marks remain. These are in essence drawings in paint. Drawing and painting are no longer separate entities. But these works "feel" transitional. The show culminated in two fully colored and compositionally realized pieces. These took on the sense of an apotheosis, seen next to the laboratory experiments from which they proceed.

An obsession with process has always been a characteristic of DeFeo's work. The paintings in the present show have a monumental quality that seems sculptural, though the artist works in two dimensions. Thickness and atmosphere are elements in these romantic abstractions, where process is wedded to illusion once more.

—Knute Stiles

LOS ANGELES

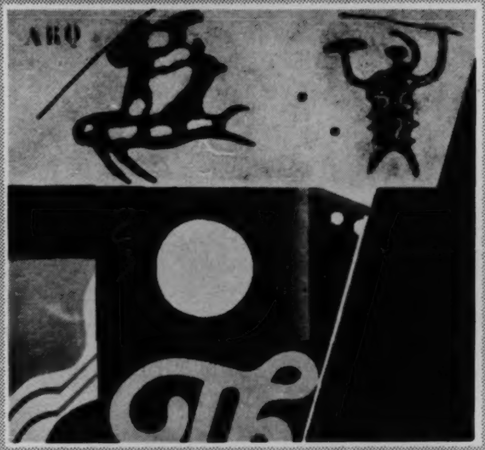
Peter Liashkov at Jan Baum

For the past seven years, Peter Liashkov has worked steadily at learning to manipulate a most difficult medium—glass. He has produced wall constructions that explore the nature of architectural decay; he has also done portraits—images in which his sitters' psyches are externalized as Jawlensky-style masks and compressed between glass slabs. He has examined the purely formal as well as the expressive properties of his medium, using geometric fragments suspended from skeletal metal supports. More recently, Liashkov applied the knowledge gained from such endeavors to an extensive series of glass torsos, works based loosely on the New Mexican crucifix format and varied in mood from the tormented to the sublime.

Liashkov's latest exhibition indicates that his struggles with a potentially dangerous medium have been of value. His new glass paintings and accompanying drawings are remarkably consistent in quality. Liashkov is an impeccable draftsman, as evidenced by the elegant linearity of form in both his paintings and

VOL
7
1
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI

MAX
PAPART

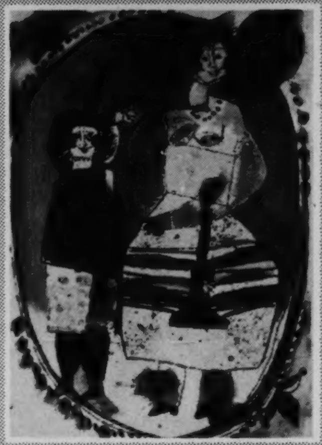


"Combatant Nocturne" 40" x 38"
Etching with carborundum Edition of 75

NAHAN
GALLERIES
540 ROYAL ST. • NEW ORLEANS, LA. 70130
(504) 524-8696

World Agents for Max Papart - Graphics, Oils & Gouaches

THEO
TOBIASSE



"Lorsque le jour entier devant fruit"
Aquatint with carborundum and collage
37¼" x 53¼" Edition of 60

NAHAN
GALLERIES
540 ROYAL ST. • NEW ORLEANS, LA. 70130
(504) 524-8696

World Agents for Theo Tobiasse - Graphics, Oil, Pastels & Gouaches

Modern Art from 1900-1983

The best of everything

Internationaler
Kunstmarkt
Köln 1983
12.-17.11.

International
Art Fair
Cologne '83
12.-17.11.

Ranging from classical modern art to the present, the world's finest galleries with expertise that assures quality and reduces risk for investors – offering investment quality artwork.

We invite you to a fascinating tour of the world of art– avantgarde up today and old masters of tomorrow.

Art collectors – come to buy.
Art lovers – come to look around.
Your attendance at the International Art Fair Cologne is worth the trip.

International Art Fair Cologne · November 12-17, 1983

For further information contact:
Mr. Hans J. Teetz
German American
Chamber of Commerce, Inc.
666 Fifth Avenue
New York, N.Y. 10103
Tel.: (212) 974-8836

KölnMesse

drawings. In addition, his colors are vivid and his textures sensuous, qualities which combine well with the inherent glisten of glass surfaces, and which together produce an expressive sense of serenity and timelessness.

Liashkov's new subjects, lifesize nude figures devoid of heads, arms and feet, are studied from the model. Nevertheless, they are not intended to be lifelike representations, but rather to function as icons, each signifying a stilled moment in the aging process. As in his earlier portraits, the artist continues to be concerned with emotional and psychological aspects of his subjects. Youth, for example, is portrayed in Girl: 4 (1982). This image of a four-year-old is extremely delicate. Painted between two glass sheets, the child's flesh is natural in color and seemingly untouched by life's pressures. The glass field surrounding the youngster is left symbolically transparent.

By contrast, in Woman: 70 (1982), physical decline is indicated by the figure's sagging contours, and age is represented somewhat as Oscar Wilde envisaged it in his description of Dorian Gray's portrait. Liashkov uses agitated brushwork and a wide range of colors to suggest the cumulative effects of experience. A dark but sumptuous field of powdered pigments, applied over the glass in slight relief, also envelops his figure, perhaps implying that the dark mysteries of death are something to be accepted rather than feared. Liashkov's fatalism manages to seem both eloquent and reverent. —David Rubin

THE ONE THAT STICKS OUT✧THE BUG EYE✧
ATTENTION IS DRAWN TO IT BY THE VERY FACT THAT IT STICKS
OUT✧ IT IS NOT REPRESENTATIVE ✧

Michael Kelley: The Bug-Eye, 1982–83, acrylic on paper, 13⅛ by 53⅛ inches; at Rosamund Felsen.

Michael Kelley at Beyond Baroque and Rosamund Felsen

Michael Kelley creates projects rather than exhibitions. His most recent undertaking, "Monkey Island," consisted of a performance piece and a subsequent show of related drawings and props. Both involved a dark, hellish world populated by insect colonies and baboons with lust-swollen posteriors.

The scene for Kelley's performance was set primarily by verbal description. Acting as a storyteller, the artist delivered a monologue—a fantastic tale about humankind in a grotesque world. His narrative—occasionally accompanied by a saxophonist and a percussionist—proceeded according to the "logic" of psychological assocation, rather than the conventions of realistic fiction.

Angus Trudeau: M. Anderson Mackinac Bridge, 1977, mixed mediums on cards, 30¾ by 40 inches; at Isaacs.

Having established an infernolike setting, Kelley shifted his identity quickly, characterizing himself at different moments as a Dante with "a false Beatrice," or as a creature with bug eyes—the latter suggesting some variation on a Kafkaesque theme of horrific metamorphosis.

On Monkey Island, "the dreadful center of hell" and the geographical heart of Kelley's fictional universe, everything is determined by the existence of tormenting lust. Kelley dramatized this theme in comic fashion by performing a dionysian dance, using a red-wigged tree branch as partner. What became clear in the course of the performance was that Kelley's fantastic world—like that of Kafka's Metamorphosis or Swift's Gulliver's Travels—was meant to parallel our own. Kelley's baboons, like Swift's Yahoos, represent human beings in a debased state; with their raw, red posteriors, they have "an itch that couldn't be scratched"—the itch of insatiable lust. Yet Kelley is less a moralist that an anthropologist. He attempts to understand rather than to judge, to analyze human drives and desires, to dissect our foibles.

Kelley's installation projected a similarly clinical attitude. His drawings were hung at varying heights on the four walls of the largest room in the gallery. Their placement seemed designed to make the viewer stand at the center of the room, which was also the midpoint of a diagram of an hourglass laid out in marking tape on the floor. (The hourglass was identified in Kelley's performance as a symbolic figure for man-and-woman.) The drawings themselves are executed in magic marker on poster board, and look like a cross between bad book illustrations and distorted comic strip frames. Kelley juxtaposes images and texts derived from the performance. Some of the drawings, such as a rendition of a baboon with an immense rear end, recreate specific images from the performance; others—for example, a drawing of a phallus with an eye at its tip—literalize the symbolism of Kelley's performance text.

Kelley's images and words tend to linger with the viewer, providing an illuminating, if uncomfortably distorting, mirror of the limitations and idiosyncrasies of the human animal. As the black humor of his "Monkey Island" project demonstrates, Kelley is part satirist and part visionary. He works with equal effectiveness as a performance and a plastic artist. Precedents for his work can be found in Pop and Conceptual sources, but Kelley is decidedly original.

—Robert L. Pincus

TORONTO

Angus Trudeau at Isaacs

Since the '50s two kinds of naive artists have been particularly prized. For studio-art brutes from Dubuffet to the Chicago Imagists, the most valued kind of primitive artist has been the obsessive recluse practicing an instinctual and often pathological Surrealism. The general public, on the other hand, has thrived on the sentimental balm of Grandma Moses and her kin. Though Angus Trudeau's drawings are based on memory and incorporate bits of delightfully eccentric efficiency, his work falls into neither of these categories, and if it has any direct ties to other art, it would be to the matter-of-fact industrial landscapes of John Kane and the clear descriptiveness of the best New Realism.

Trudeau has been a cook and logger in the Georgian Bay region of northern Ontario for most of his life. His subjects are the lumber boats on which he worked, and the towns along the coast of the Great Lakes. Working from personal recollection and, one suspects, from old company photographs of steamers in service, Trudeau has created portraits of these boats and places from materials at hand—scrap masonite, shirt cardboard, house enamel, Magic Marker and pencil. Rather than go to the trouble of drawing in a particular detail, such as a local church, he will sometimes clip grainy images from newspapers, and work on top of them. Trudeau also makes objects,

VOL
71
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI

FRANCESCO
CLEMENTE

SEPTEMBER 1983

AKIRA IKEDA GALLERY
17-30, NISHIKI 2-CHOME, NAKA-KU, NAGOYA
8-18, KYOBASHI 2-CHOME, CHUO-KU, TOKYO

GALERIE MICHAEL WERNER
BASELITZ
BYARS
IMMENDORFF
KIRKEBY
LÜPERTZ
A.R.PENCK
D—5000 KÖLN—1—
GERTRUDENSTR. 24/28 T.210661

september

RICK DILLINGHAM
JAY PHILLIPS

the eason gallery
338 east de vargas
santa fe, nm 87501
(505) 982-9573

JANIS
PROVISOR

MARILYN LEVINE

SEPTEMBER

FULLER GOLDEEN GALLERY
228 Grant Avenue San Francisco CA 94108
(415) 982-6177

models of maple-sap sledges and skiffs and, in one particularly happy shortcut, he has given a baby-blue birdhouse bright orange and pink Chiclet siding.

As charming and inventive as all this is, however, it is never oppressively quaint, nor are his images burdened with too much nostalgia. The scenes may belong to Trudeau's past, but one has the sense that the life they depict has not changed so much that they do not in some measure also belong to the present. But the immediacy of these drawings is less a matter of contemporaneity than of Trudeau's artistry. As near as he can make them, these pictures are a faithful mirror to his world. But they go beyond preferred memory and fact, vividly conveying a feel for the spaciousness and blue-gray atmosphere of the North, with an unmannered painterliness as effective and legible as the carefully incised contour drawings of buildings and ships. In a word, these drawings are wonderful.

One last detail: Trudeau is an Odawa Indian, and with his mixed Scotch and French names and north-woods background, he would seem an almost impossibly complete exemplar of "Canadian content." Fine, but the work itself has no need of "home-team support." It may echo issues raised in the present climate of cultural nationalism, but the reason for looking at it is and should remain its plain and individual beauty.

—Robert Storr

Jay DeFeo: Apex, 1982, oil on canvas, 84 by 60 inches; at Paule Anglim (review on p. 180).

HOUSTON

Gary Roth at Graham

Like many artists who over the past decade have worked to extend traditional notions of painting and sculpture, Houston artist Gary Roth has sought to fuse surface color with its material support, thereby encouraging both tactile and visual experience. His early sculptures, made of tar paper and covered with obsessively applied layers of cobalt blue and yellow paint, were heavy, lumpy and a little frightening. In later work, Roth added shiny metal to these vaguely figurative pieces, effecting an animated, if not elegant way of skirting the painting/sculpture issue.

For this exhibition, Roth placed his new foam sculptures on the wall, successfully pushing a baroque exuberance of texture, color and form toward a more intricate study of light and reflection. If his former pieces seem a bit heavy-handed, these new works invite one to inspect them carefully. Roth takes sheets of plastic (he uses an average of 15,000 per sculpture) which he spreads out, cuts, staples and doubles over to create pockets. To these sheets he adds pieces of canvas, drawings, paper, sheet metal and poured polyurethane foam containing pigment (it solidifies upon air contact). Wherever color isn't needed, Roth flattens and wrinkles the clear plastic, making it look like a deflated balloon. In some areas, he exposes the adjoining canvas to soften the reflective vertical and horizontal angles created by the aluminum. The resulting juxtapositions of texture and material, gesture and form generate an extraordinary energy.

Roth's color is crisper in this series than in his previous work. The cobalt blue is stronger, as is the use of black. His drawing too has become thicker. The quirky scribbles which activate the surface also point to the artist's interest in process and materials: a nail may crease and scratch the metal or, dipped in ink, hatch the paper.

Much of this work's potency hinges on the fine line between conscious artistic manipulation and allowing the material to create form on its own. Although the drawings stand as individual works before they are integrated into the sculpture, Roth tries to obscure them once they are assimilated. Thus, his doodles and expressionistic washes serve not only as elements that soften the industrial materials, but also as lures for examining the deep interior spaces formed by the creases and folds of plastic, canvas and metal. In this way, the sculptures both explode and implode: space does not exist so much through the work, as in the work itself.

While the physicality of this work puts one in mind of John Chamberlain's sculpture composed of discarded automobile parts, Roth's pieces tend to be more imagistically oriented. Viewing a work from different vantage points yields new shapes: a patch of swollen pigment looks like a glove in one sculpture, an angular piece of metal resembles an arm jutting out in another.

For all their lumpiness and apparent weight, they are put together deftly; their parts gravitate toward a particular balance. LA 3 is positioned on a diagonal and is almost friezelike in its configuration. IC 1 is circular and more confined, its gestural component limited to subtle undulations. In CJ 7 Roth has stapled the plastic folds over and over, not only exposing gaping holes in the plastic where yellow pigment has burst through, but also leaving a stalagmite drip of pigment perched on its surface.

In the past, Roth's art may have been too juicy for Houston viewers. This exhibition seemed to catch him in a propitious change, producing work that remains true to its materials, yet newly graceful in its visual complexity.

—Susie Kalil

CHICAGO

Janet Cooling at Nancy Lurie

There are three crucial aspects to Janet Cooling's work: catastrophic vision, high-keyed emotion, and a rough dynamism that is not perceived as "feminine."

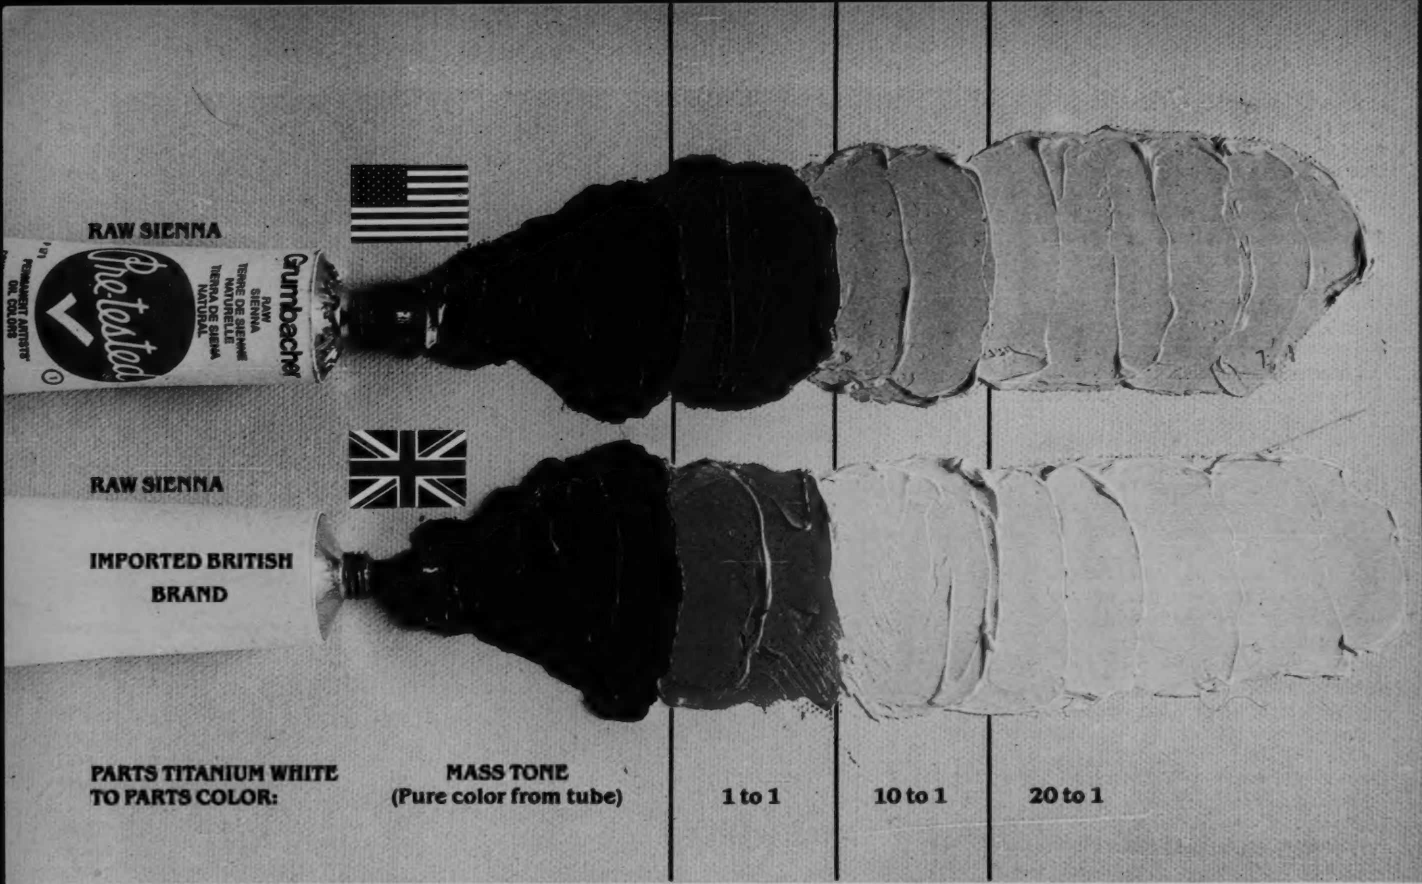
In 1980 these qualities emerged strongly in her Prismacolor drawings and acrylic paintings of lovers in interiors, suburban settings and wilderness landscapes. These works were filled with resonant and sometimes equivocal imagery: serpents (primal sexuality, evil and protective forces); skyscrapers (representative of modern Western culture); deer shot by hunters (the brutal treatment of nature and of a wild and innocent freedom in ourselves); and cooling towers of nuclear plants (representative of power that can be both destructive and beneficial).

Cooling drew on black paper and executed many of her paintings on black grounds, juxtaposing dry, transparent sections with thick, lustrous passages. Some of her forms were clearly delineated and modeled, while others were flat and abstracted. As a result, Cooling suffered from some unfair criticism: to some critics, her imagery was trite and her application of pigment unskillful. She was regarded as a bad painter, clumsy and corny.

But, in fact, Cooling has a complex love-hate relationship with the rules of sophisticated painting. This ambivalence impels her to a rash, untamed technique and to a symbolism that pointedly uses elements of esthetic and mythical clichés. In her latest paintings this tension between the tough and the sentimental is intensified.

The paintings are large. The lovers are gone, but the black grounds remain. And Cooling produces both matte and juicy sur-

VOL 71 ISS 8 SE 1983 UMI



RAW SIENNA
Grumbacher
Pre-tested
RAW SIENNA
IMPORTED BRITISH BRAND
PARTS TITANIUM WHITE TO PARTS COLOR:
MASS TONE (Pure color from tube)
1 to 1
10 to 1
20 to 1

NEXT TO PRE-TESTED® OILS... SOME OF THE BEST PALE BY COMPARISON

If you think "the best" comes from Britain, you're in for a surprise.

Pre-Tested Raw Sienna actually has over THREE TIMES the color strength when compared to the Professional Grade of the well-known British imported brand.

This difference in color strength becomes increasingly obvious as you mix the two with white. (See chart above).

And it's a difference that translates to your pocketbook. Because not only do Grumbacher Pre-Tested Oils cost less per tube when you buy them—their greater color intensity makes them far more economical in actual use.

So it's up to you. You can continue to pay more for the British import and pretend you're getting the best. Or you can buy Grumbacher Pre-Tested Oils and get richer, professional color at a better price.

Grumbacher
Pre-tested

TM

THE RICHER COLORS OF GRUMBACHER

Ask your local artists' material dealers for these products, or write:
M. GRUMBACHER, INC., 460 West 34th Street, New York, N.Y. 10001.
In Canada: M. GRUMBACHER (CANADA) Inc., 460 Finchdene Square, Scarborough, Ontario M1X 1C4 faces with even greater facility than before. She is a consummate colorist: hues flash against the black, and greens, blues and purples stand out with an unearthly, almost sickening beauty.

Cooling has also expanded her imagery to include dinosaurs, explosions, fireworks, bridges, automobiles, an aborted fetus, cannisters of nuclear waste, heads of gorgeous women and men who seem to represent both horrific aliens and prophetic spirits. These heads may oversee a city of flaming skyscrapers here, or rise and fall in eddying pools there. In any case, it appears Cooling is creating epics of death and resurrection. Hers is a hot and painful art, but at the same time it is hopeful, even idealistic—beyond the merely contemporary, beyond the pale. —Joanna Frueh

Janet Cooling: Atomic Birth, 1982, acrylic on canvas, 78 by 44 inches; at Nancy Lurie (review on p. 183).

Susanne Doremus At Zolla/Lieberman

The ideographic graffiti and haphazard markings that fill the paintings of Susanne Doremus suggest a hypnotic regression into childhood memory as much as yet another safari into the jungles of primitive expression. Her scuffs and scrawls seem the product of many casual hands, as if generation upon generation of schoolchildren had doodled their way across the soft grain of an ancient school desk. As such, they are likewise the hieroglyphics of a lost language, whether personal or cultural, and, taken collectively, they amount to a kind of Altamira of the modern mind.

Doremus, 40, grew up in Jersey City and studied at the Art Students League in New York. Trained as a figure painter, she turned to more abstract, geometric forms during graduate school in Madison, Wisconsin. In the early '70s she experimented with various printmaking processes—engraving, etching and intaglio—and their effects are still evident in the way she scratches and etches into the underpainting of her canvases. Her return to painting in the mid-'70s was accompanied by an interest in pictographic writing on bark from New Guinea, which she saw at the University of Kansas art museum. The artist's latest work also owes a good deal to Abstract Expressionists de Kooning, Pollock and, particularly, Twombly. Moreover, the combination of abstract and primitive-figurative elements in her compositions harks back to the work of Klee, Dubuffet and Giacometti.

Her new paintings are predominantly white or black and occasionally blue, minimally highlighted with red, green or yellow. The flat, thinly applied surfaces betray brushstrokes worked or smoothed in various directions, or they have crustier, more gritty textures which are nevertheless quite flat in appearance. Images are drawn with crayon and enamel or scratched through the oil surface to the red or black underpaints. Despite this self-conscious two-dimensionality an illusion of perspective is created via images that seem to fade into the background, erased by layers of thick mist, while others stand more boldly in the foreground.

There is little doubt that Doremus is a highly skilled formal technician, but sheer proficiency aside, these paintings exist in a realm of uncertainty so complete that the whole nature of her project is thrown into question. How much meaning are we meant to look for—let alone find—in these floating lexicons of grids, stick figures, houses, hands, coffee cups, cones, hearts, eyes and arrows? Titles such as Egypt, New Jersey, Mosquito and Blue No. 2 are not enlightening. Are the paintings just a hodgepodge of collected information presented cooly in the most contrivedly uncontrived-looking manner possible? If so, as seems likely, then these works must rely for their strength on the sparks struck by the juxtaposition of the independently evocative elements that make them up. Here, the ambiguity of Doremus's project may work against her, since her figurative elements quickly shed their identities in her schemas to become, in most cases, forms whose impact is purely decorative. Thus, though the appetite is whetted, one is apt to come away feeling slightly underfed.

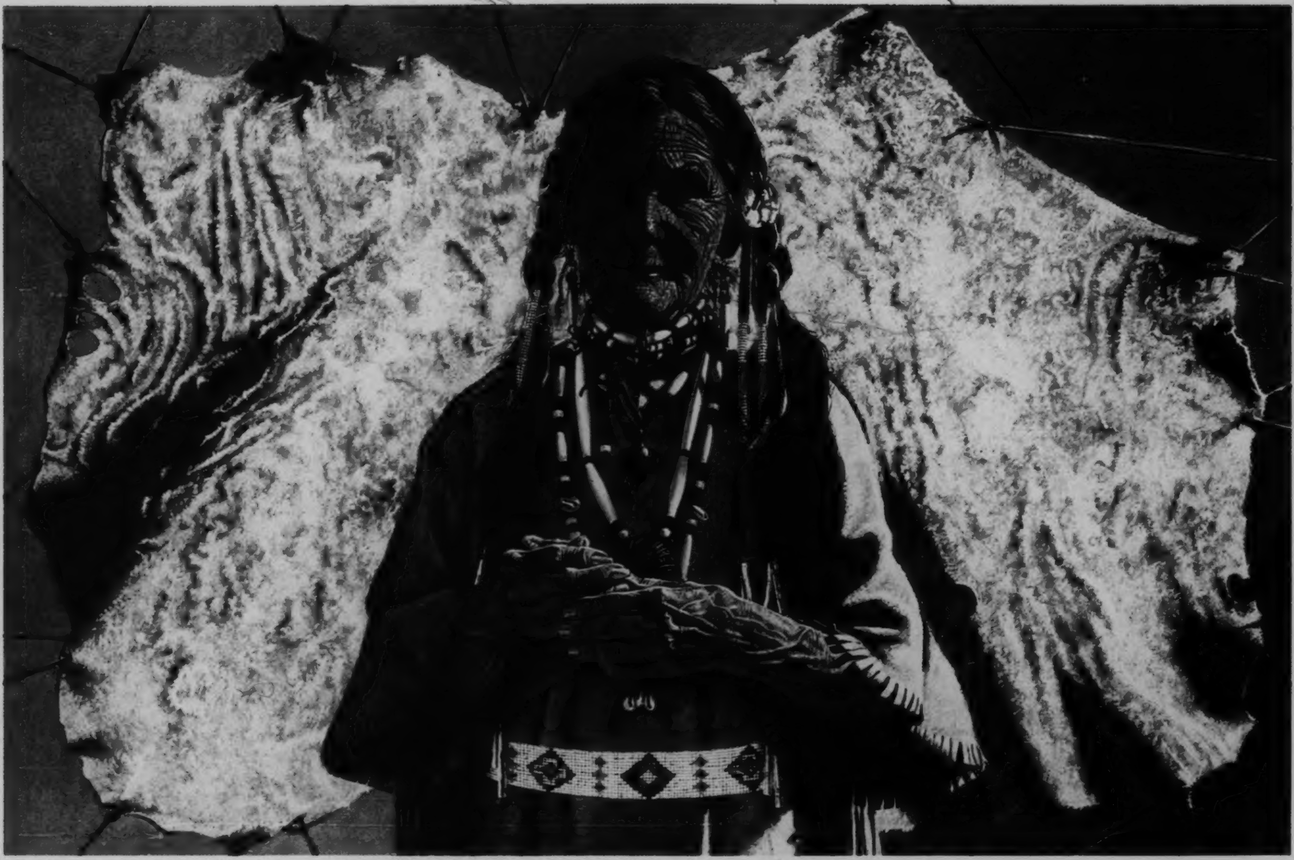
—Michael Bonesteel

Susanne Doremus: Blue #2, 1982, oil, enamel and crayon on canvas, 53 by 62 inches; at Zolla/Lieberman.

Review Contributors

Robert Berlind, Lizbeth Marano, Ross Skoggard and Robert Storr are artists who write on art . . . Douglas Blau is a travel writer . . . Michael Bonesteel is a Chicago free-lance writer . . . Craig Bromberg is a performance artist who writes on dance and art . . . Joanna Frueh, Jamey Gambrell, Gerrit Henry, Pepe Karmel and Ellen Lubell are free-lance critics . . . Gary Indiana is a writer of fiction and film criticism . . . Susie Kalil is a Houston-based free-lance critic . . . Donald B. Kuspit's new book, A Wing of Death, will be published this fall . . . Robert C. Morgan teaches at the College of Fine Arts, Rochester Institute of Technology . . . Robert L. Pincus reviews art for the Los Angeles Times and teaches at the University of Southern California . . . David S. Rubin is director of the Santa Monica College Art Gallery . . . Joe Shannon is a painter and chief of exhibitions and design at the Hirshhorn Museum . . . Knute Stiles writes on art from San Francisco . . . John Yau is a poet and art critic.

VOL 7 1 ISS 8 SE 1983 UMI



"Tortoise Lady" 20"x30" Shiva Casein on Masonite – Robert Tanenbaum.

CASEIN PAINTS FROM SHIVA® ARE ALIVE AND WELL, THANK YOU.

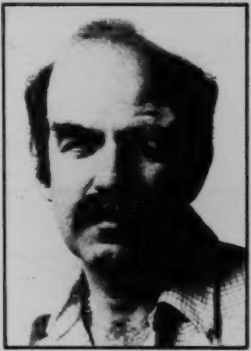
"Casein Paints, outdated," some say, because of acrylics. The quality and clarity of the above painting says that they are wrong.

When you choose Shiva Caseins you are getting a versatile medium that has an almost limitless scope. Caseins can be used to produce paintings with the smooth opaqueness of tempera and acrylics, the transparency of watercolors, and the texture of an oil impasto. Few, if any, paints are as easy to handle or allow you, the artist, to experience such a variety of techniques.

Permanency and versatility are but two of Shiva's Caseins' attributes. The quality maintained through meticulous manufacturing and the color spectrum offered give you one of the best paints available.

This water soluble paint has a more obvious edge when it comes to glazing. Shiva Caseins dry rapidly and become impervious to moisture. Its natural finish is a soft matte, but it can be glazed to produce a high gloss or polished with cotton to create a subtle sheen without having the Casein bleed through.

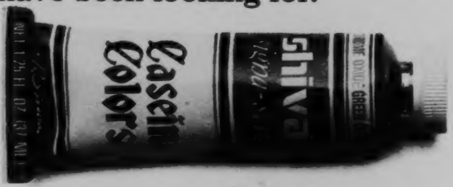
When you choose Shiva Caseins, you will have selected one of the most versatile, quality paints available. Shiva Caseins may be the paint you have been looking for.



I almost exclusively use Shiva Caseins. They are a permanent and versatile paint for opaque, pastel or wash paintings. When sprayed with any type of varnish they will dry to the exact color and not change value.
Robert Tanenbaum,
Illustrator/Fine Artist

"Tortoise Lady" from the collection of Mr. and Mrs. Gene H. Kinman

El Prado Galleries
P.O. Box 1849
Sedona, Arizona 86336
(602) 282-7390



Shiva—a name you can trust.

shiva

4320 West 190th Street
Torrance, CA 90509
(800) 421-1325/(213) 542-5583

Hokin/Kaufman Gallery
210 West Superior Street, Chicago, Illinois 60610
Telephone 312/266 1211

James HAVARD

September 10 - October 5, 1983

James Havard is also represented by Hokin Gallery Inc.
245 Worth Avenue, Palm Beach, Florida 33480
Telephone 305/655 5177

1086 Kane Concourse, Bay Harbor Island, Florida 33154
Telephone 305/861 5700

Dexter Lazenby

SCULPTURE / SEPTEMBER

NIELSEN
GALLERY

179 NEWBURY STREET, BOSTON, MA 02116 (617) 266-4835

Matthews Hamilton Gallery
262 South 16 Street
Philadelphia PA 19102 Telephone 215/545-5308

Inaugural Exhibition
September 1983

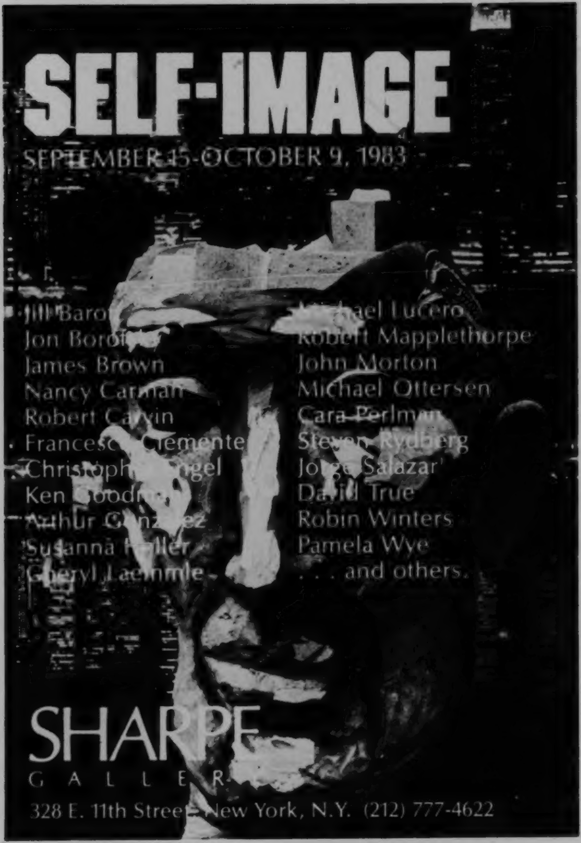
FRANK LLOYD WRIGHT
Drawings: 1893-1959

For the Benefit of Taliesin, Spring Green

Sept. 16—Oct. 16

Max Protetch 37 West 57th NYC 838-7436

VOL
71
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI



SELF-IMAGE
SEPTEMBER 15-OCTOBER 9, 1983

Jill Baron
Jon Borofsky
James Brown
Nancy Carman
Robert Calvin
Francesco Clemente
Christopher Engel
Ken Goodman
Arthur Gonzalez
Susanna Heller
Cheryl Laemmle

Michael Lucero
Robert Mapplethorpe
John Morton
Michael Ottersen
Cara Perlman
Steven Rydberg
Jorge Salazar
David True
Robin Winters
Pamela Wye
. . . and others.

SHARPE
GALLERY
328 E. 11th Street New York, N.Y. (212) 777-4622

A WORD TO MUSEUMS AND WOULD-BE DONORS:

The Right Kind Of Financing From Twelve To Thirty-Six Months Can Make The Wish For The Gift Of An Art Treasure A Reality

If You Have The Will, We Can Ease The Way

Please Contact:
ROSENTHAL ART EQUITIES
Gideon Strauss, Managing Director
1451 Broadway
New York, NY 10036
Telephone: (212) 790-1466

eight russian-american artists george bobritsky sergei bongart constantine cherkas serge hollerbach michael lasuchin victor lasuchin vladimir odinokov vladimir shatalow sep 17–oct 15 1983
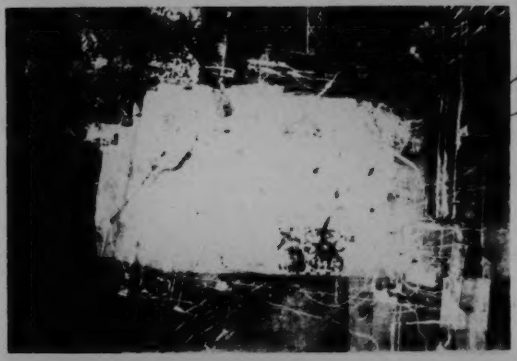
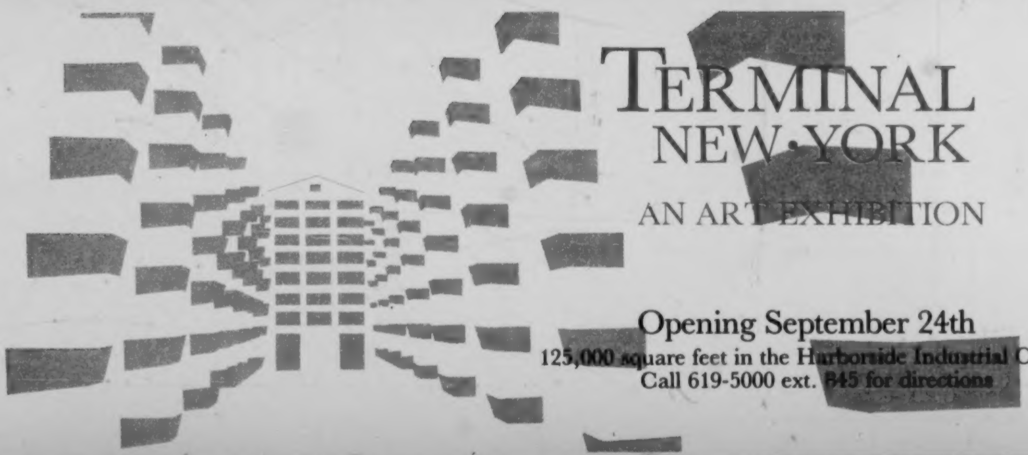
newman & saunders galleries located on philadelphia's historic main line
120 bloomingdale ave wayne pa 19087
215-293-1280 catalog available: $3.00

SAN DIEGO



CHRIS RANES
with
James Lovera & David Herschler
SEPTEMBER
A.R.T./BEASLEY GALLERY
2802 Juan St. San Diego, CA (619) 295-0075



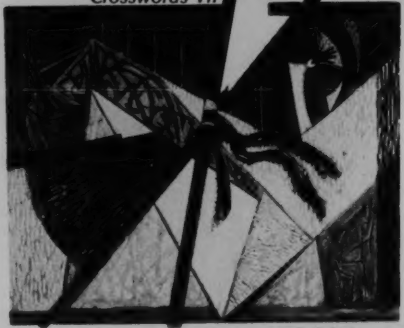
TERMINAL
NEW·YORK
AN ART EXHIBITION

Opening September 24th
125,000 square feet in the Harborside Industrial Center
Call 619-5000 ext. 845 for directions

TODD McKIE
September 29–October 29

ACQUAVELLA CONTEMPORARY ART, INC.
18 East 79th Street, New York, N.Y. 10021 (212) 734-6300

Crosswords VII



Acrylic paint on canvas, wood, fabric, feathers and shells. 6′ x 8′.

Charlotte Robinson
NEW PAINTINGS AND PRINTS

SEPTEMBER 26 TO OCTOBER 22

Fendrick Gallery
3059 M Street N.W., Washington, DC 20007
(202) 338-4544

RHONA
HOFFMAN
GALLERY

VITO ACCONCI
DARA BIRNBAUM
HANS HAACKE
JENNY HOLZER
JOSEPH KOSUTH
SOL LEWITT
BRUCE NAUMAN
LAWRENCE WEINER

215 WEST SUPERIOR
CHICAGO, ILLINOIS 60610
TEL 312.951.8828

VOL
7
1
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI

SEPT. 13 THROUGH OCT. 13, 1983
GARIE CRAWFORD* COLOR XEROGRAPHY
CERAMIC SCULPTURE GARY SCHLAPPAL
13225 SHAKER SQUARE CLEVELAND, OHIO 44120 216/491-8062
DBR GALLERY
*CONCURRENT WITH SOLO EXHIBITION AT THE COLUMBUS MUSEUM OF ART

photo by David Caras

© JUDY KENSLEY McKIE Fish Cabinet 1983
Lacewood, Maple, Wenge 5' x 4' x 18"

JUDY KENSLEY McKIE
September 10-October 8, 1983
90 Hudson Street New York, NY 10013
(212) 226-5910
ELEMENTS GALLERY

DAVID HOWARD
SAN FRANCISCO SEPTEMBER '83
544 NATOMA GALLERY HANK BAUM GALLERY
:FOUND PAINTINGS: :ALTERED OBJECTS:
FREE POSTER WRITE
VISUAL STUDIES,49 RIVOLI,S.F. CA. 94117 U.S.A.

Refracción como premisa, 40" x 80", Acrylic on canvas, 1982

Rogelio Polesello
September 20 - October 16, 1983
Yvonne Séguy Gallery
61 West 62 Street • Harkness Plaza • New York, New York 10023
(212) 265-3314

A spray for all reasons.

shiva
SPRAY COATING

For the artists, Shiva offers a spray for every particular need. Choose from: Crystal Clear Acrylic, Workable "no-odor" Matte Fixative, Matte Varnish, Genuine Damar Varnish, Repositionable Adhesive and Retouch Varnish.

These quality sprays, for all reasons, are available in the popular 4-3/4 and 13 ounce sizes. The makeup, physical properties and the manufacturing of these products will assure you of the finest results.

Spark your creative fires with Shiva charcoals.

We don't want to set the world on fire.
We just want to spark a flame in your art.

ARTISTS TOP QUALITY
SOFT CHARCOAL
FOR DRAWING & SKETCHING
shiva inc.
ARTISTS TOP QUALITY
SOFT CHARCOAL
FOR DRAWING & SKETCHING
shiva inc.
CHARCOAL FOR DRAWING & SKETCHING
shiva
SPRAY COATING
NO ODOR WORKABLE

shiva®

4300 West 190th St., Torrance, CA 90509-2908 (213) 542-5583 / Outside CA (800) 421-1325

VOL
71
ISS
8
SE
1983

"The Great Outdoors" Currently on display at the Wave Hill
Sculpture Park, the Bronx, New York

Lifesize Bronze Sculpture

J. Seward Johnson, Jr.

For information contact:
Sculpture Placement Suite 304 2828 Pennsylvania Ave NW Wash. DC 202-362-9310

WHITNEY MUSEUM OF AMERICAN ART INDEPENDENT STUDY PROGRAM

PAINTING, SCULPTURE, FILM, AND VIDEO: 15 students are accepted each semester. These students have unlimited access to individual studios. The Program's instructors David Diao, Yvonne Rainer, and Ron Clark, are present for discussion and criticism throughout the semester.

ART HISTORY AND MUSEUM STUDIES: 10 students are accepted each year as Helena Rubinstein Fellows. The Fellows develop and implement exhibitions for the Whitney's branch museums under the supervision of Richard Armstrong, the Program's art history instructor. Fellows also engage in individual research projects.

Both studio and art history students participate in weekly seminars with artists and critics.

Application deadline: Spring semester 1984, November 1, 1983

For information: Whitney Museum Independent Study Program, 384 Broadway, New York, New York 10013, (212) 431-1737

PRINTWORLD

☐ 12,000 print listings
☐ 825 top artists profiles
☐ 600 photos ☐ 512 pages

1983/84 PRINTWORLD DIRECTORY

PRINTWORLD DIRECTORY is unique! It is the only print/price catalog with complete documentation of limited edition prints and current retail prices. PRINTWORLD DIRECTORY quotes the market price of current & sold out editions. It also lists awards, exhibits, publishers, etc. for each artist. It provides complete addresses of Print Workshops, publishers and galleries.

PRINTWORLD DIRECTORY is a "must" reference for anyone actively involved in the print marketplace . . . an invaluable guide for galleries, collectors, appraisers, collectors, libraries, etc. Send for your copy today! The Complete International Print/Price Reference Guide!

1982 EDITION $35.00
1983 EDITION $49.95

Postage/Handling: $5. USA—$10. Outside USA
NAME ______
ADDRESS ______
______
VISA/MC # ______ EXP ______

P.O. Box 785 • Bala Cynwyd, PA 19004 (215) 649-5140

UMI

ART IN AMERICA
PRESENTS THE
FIRST POST-MODERN
CHRISTMAS GIFT:

Art in America

COLUMN NOT INCLUDED.

BUSINESS REPLY CARD
FIRST CLASS PERMIT NO. 542 MARION, OHIO

POSTAGE WILL BE PAID BY

Art in America
542 PACIFIC AVENUE
MARION, OHIO 43306

NO POSTAGE
NECESSARY
IF MAILED
IN THE
UNITED STATES

BUSINESS REPLY CARD
FIRST CLASS PERMIT NO. 542 MARION, OHIO

POSTAGE WILL BE PAID BY

Art in America
542 PACIFIC AVENUE
MARION, OHIO 43306

NO POSTAGE
NECESSARY
IF MAILED
IN THE
UNITED STATES

VOL 71 ISS 8 SE 1983 UMI

This holiday season ART IN AMERICA is offering extraordinary savings on gift subscriptions. Each gift order is only $24.95 – 28% off the regular one year rate of $34.95!

FIRST GIFT

☐ Please send a one year gift subscription to the person(s) listed. I pay only $24.95 for each subscription, more than 45% off the cover price.

My Name
Address
City State Zip
Recipient's Name
Address
City State Zip
Gift card to read from

ADDITIONAL GIFTS

Recipient's Name
Address
City State Zip
Gift card to read from
Recipient's Name
Address
City State Zip
Gift card to read from

☐ Check/money order enclosed ☐ VISA ☐ Mastercard ☐ Bill me.

Card # ______ Exp. date ______ Signature ______

EJ301

In US Possessions and Canada, add $8 per subscription; elsewhere, add $15 per subscription. Offer good through 2/28/84

This holiday season ART IN AMERICA is offering extraordinary savings on gift subscriptions. Each gift order is only $24.95 – 28% off the regular one year rate of $34.95!

FIRST GIFT

☐ Please send a one year gift subscription to the person(s) listed. I pay only $24.95 for each subscription, more than 45% off the cover price.

My Name
Address
City State Zip
Recipient's Name
Address
City State Zip
Gift card to read from

ADDITIONAL GIFTS

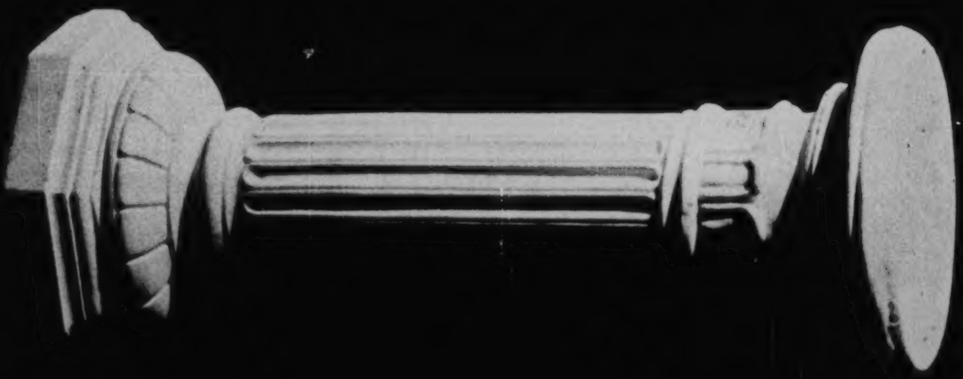
Recipient's Name
Address
City State Zip
Gift card to read from
Recipient's Name
Address
City State Zip
Gift card to read from

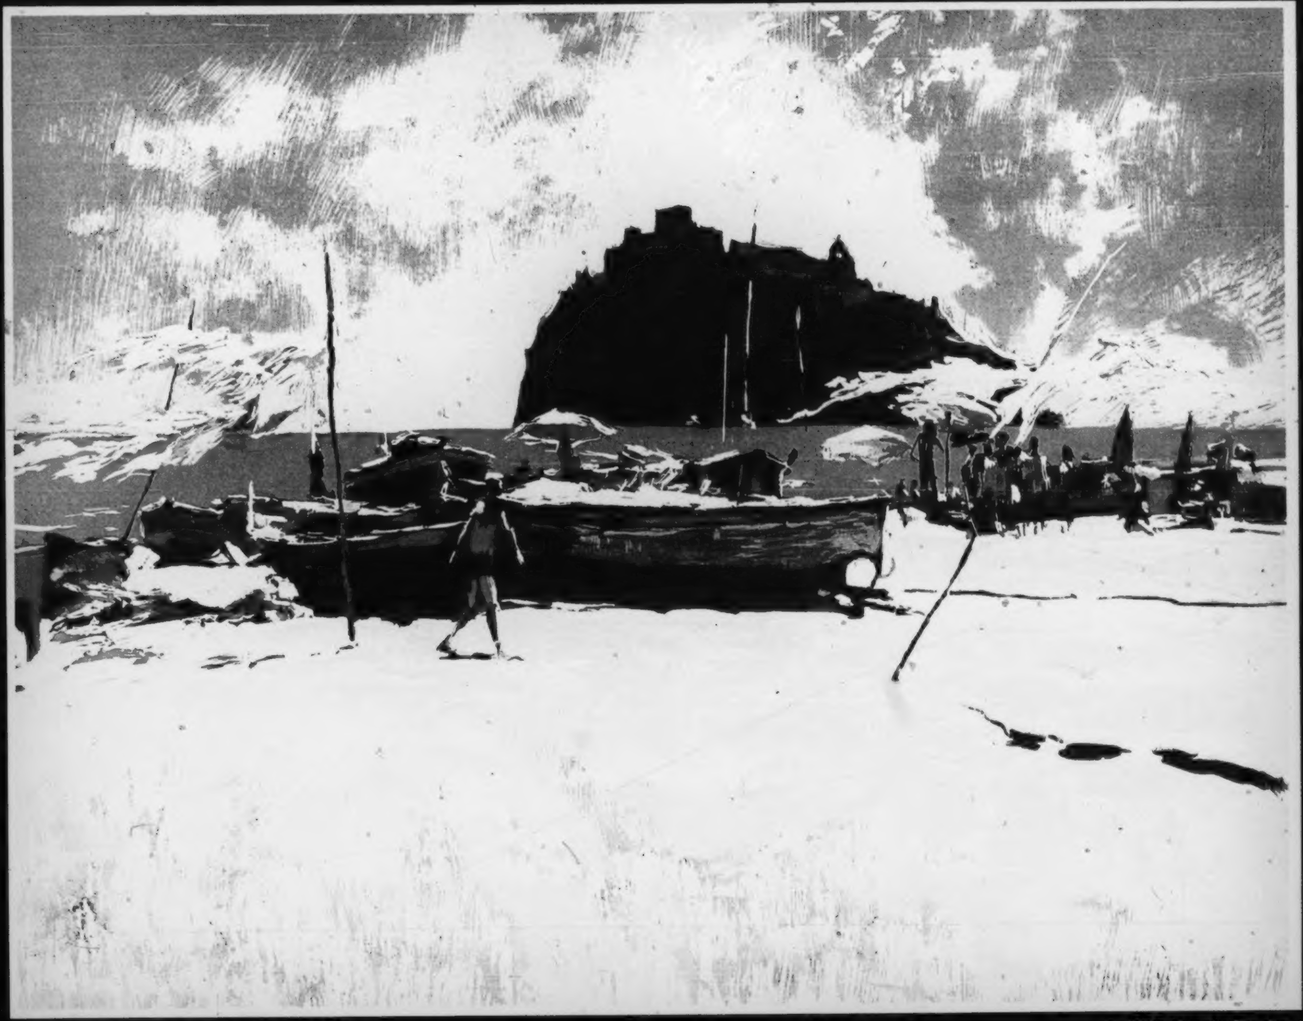
☐ Check/money order enclosed ☐ VISA ☐ Mastercard ☐ Bill me.

Card # ______ Exp. date ______ Signature ______

EJ301

In US Possessions and Canada, add $8 per subscription; elsewhere, add $15 per subscription. Offer good through 2/28/84





© 1983 Nicola Simbari

NEW RELEASE ISCHIA Retablo in silkscreen.
Pre-publication list price $1450 Size: 80x100 cm 31½ x 39½ in

SIMBARI

Retablos in silkscreen, Lithographs and Etchings.

PUBLISHER
SELENE™
P.O. Box 75, Normandy House,
St. Helier, Jersey, Channel Islands.

CURRENT CATALOGUE AVAILABLE — $5
For authorised Simbari Galleries in your area contact
U.S. DISTRIBUTORS
TamarArts LTD
60 EAST 54TH ST, SUITE 1201, NEW YORK,
N.Y. 10022 TEL: (212) 308-2161

VOL
71
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI

Audrey Flack . . .

Interviewed in the

September/October

Airbrush Digest

An Important Interview

Audrey Flack was the first Photo-Realist to have a work purchased by New York's Museum of Modern Art for its permanent collection. She is the only Photo-Realist to have works included in New York's four major museums. This is an important interview, because Audrey Flack is an important Post-Modern artist. It is as open, candid, and enlightening an interview with a major artist as you will ever read.

You'll want to read this interview all the way through. You'll need to view the accompanying full-color portfolio of her works.

And you can get this issue FREE if you subscribe now to 12 or more additional issues of Airbrush Digest. Order before October 14, 1983, and your subscription will start with the September/October 1983 issue and will run for 12, 24 or 36 issues in addition to this initial issue.

Yes! ☐ Send me the September/October 1983 issue of Airbrush Digest FREE as a premium for ordering a regular subscription. I understand I will receive the September/October 1983 issue in addition to my regular subscription.

Name ____________________

Address ____________________

City ____________ State ________ ZIP ________

12 Issues Bi-Monthly $28.00 ☐ 24 Issues Bi-Monthly $48.00 ☐ 36 Issues Bi-Monthly $68.00 ☐

Check Enclosed ☐ Bill Me Later ☐ Charge: VISA ☐ MasterCard ☐

Card No. ____________ Exp. Date ________

Signature ____________________

Canada and Mexico: 12 issues, $36; 24 issues, $65; 36 issues, $86.
Other international rates: 12 issues, $40; 24 issues, $75; 36 issues, $105.

Send to: Airbrush Digest, 521 S.W. 11th Avenue,
Portland, OR 97205-2691

or Call Toll Free To Order 1-800-547-9759 Ext. 49
In Alaska, Hawaii and Oregon, 1-800-[illegible]

GRANTS FOR ARTISTS

The Adolph & Esther Gottlieb Foundation is now accepting applications for its annual grant program. General support grants are available to creative visual artists who have been involved with a mature phase of their work for a period of at least 20 years and need financial assistance to continue this commitment. To receive application materials, please write to Adolph & Esther Gottlieb Fdn.

380 West Broadway
New York, N.Y. 10012

Completed applications and all supporting materials must be postmarked no later than December 31, 1983.

Kansas City Art Institute

A visit to our campus . . . will show you a 4-year college with spacious facilities. BFA programs in ceramics, design, fiber, painting, printmaking, photography and sculpture. In 1982-83, we granted $1,500,000 in aid and scholarships. Financial aid deadline Feb. 15. Apply now for Spring or Fall Semester admission.

Free Poster, Transfer Brochure

For more information write:
Admissions, Dept. 008,
KCAI, 4415 Warwick Blvd.,
KCMO, 64111 816.561.4852

Alkyd Colours? We wrote the book.

Winsor & Newton devoted over twenty years to the research and development of alkyd colours before introducing them to the U.S.A. in 1977. The results of this painstaking effort? Winsor & Newton Artists' Alkyd Colours and London Alkyd Colours. Both highly durable, versatile and brilliant colours that offer you all the advantages of oils, without the disadvantages.

Although compatible with oils, alkyds dry much faster, so you can overpaint with them in just a few hours. They're completely dry to the touch in 24 hours and you can apply final varnish in just 30 days. Thanks to their alkyd resins, they're highly resistant to cracking and yellowing, as well.

Our unique alkyds, while not compatible with acrylics, offer advantages over this popular medium, too. Because they don't dry as quickly, you have more latitude for changing and more time for subtle blending of colours.

Yes, we wrote the book on this exciting new medium. Now Wendon Blake has written Painting in Alkyd, the definitive 96-page, soft cover book on the techniques of painting with alkyds. Illustrated in full color it provides step-by-step demonstrations of alkyd techniques; explains how to mix alkyd colours and mediums; how to create special effects and more.

Ask for Painting in Alkyd wherever Winsor & Newton artists' materials are sold. Find out for yourself how this extraordinary new medium has revolutionized the working methods of many artists and opened exciting new vistas for creative expression.

Winsor & Newton Inc., 555 Winsor Drive, Secaucus, New Jersey 07094.

WINSOR & NEWTON

1832 150th ANNIVERSARY 1982

Time and expense aren't our main concern. Quality is.

PAINTING IN ALKYD
BY WENDON BLAKE/Paintings by Ferdinand Petrie ALKYD alkyd colour
LONDON

VOL
7
1
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI

B. LEWIN GALLERIES
ARE PROUD TO ANNOUNCE OUR
25th ANNIVERSARY OF
MEXICAN MASTERS

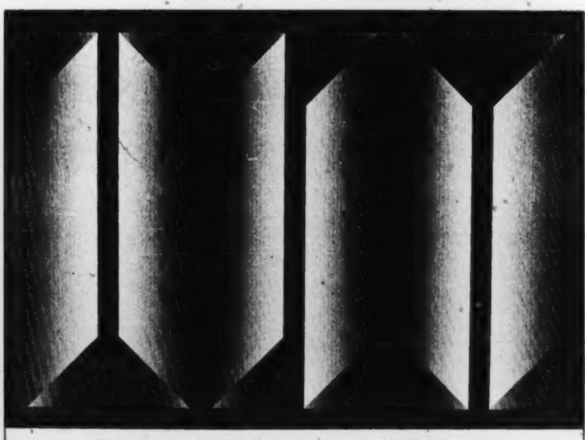
SELECTED WORKS ON EXHIBITION BY

RUFINO TAMAYO
CARLOS MERIDA
RAFAEL CORONEL
JEAN CHARLOT
DIEGO RIVERA
FELIPE CASTANEDA
FRANCISCO ZUNIGA
GUSTAVO MONTOYA ETC

The B. Lewin Galleries

266 North Beverly Drive 213-278-5769
Beverly Hills, California 90210 213-550-1825

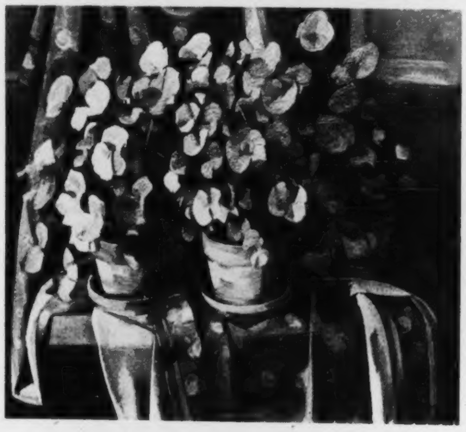
210 South Palm Canyon Drive
Palm Springs, California 92262 619-325-7611



"Structured" acrylic on canvas 1980 50 x 70"

Julian Stanczak

The New Gallery of Contemporary Art
11427 Bellflower Road Cleveland Ohio 44106



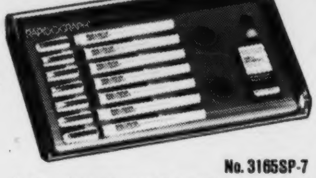
WILBUR NIEWALD

PAINTINGS
SEPTEMBER 20 – OCTOBER 8

Ingber Gallery
460 WEST BROADWAY, NYC
(212) 674-0101

JERRY'S ARTARAMA INC.
RAPIDOGRAPH RIOT

KOH-I-NOOR RAPIDOGRAPH 7 PEN SLIM SET



SPECIAL
$31.95
POSTPAID

No. 3165SP-7

An incredible savings on this popular 7-pen set of famous Rapidographs. This new model combines all the features of the past pen with an innovative double seal cap assuring fast start up. This set includes sizes 3x0, 2x0, 0, 1, 2, 3 and 4. A very complete set for the fine artist, illustrator, or engineer. (Mfr's List Price 78.50.)

AN ART STORE FOR $1.00 OR FREE WITH ANY ORDER
THE JERRY'S CATALOG

You can receive our all new 120-page Art Supply Catalog of Savings #9A. It contains everything that the professional or student artist may need, from fine colors to economically priced picture frames. A fabulous array of art papers and canvas, and much, much more!! All at the greatest savings. Discounts from 15-66% off mfr's list prices and it's FREE with any order or available separately for only $1.00. Get yours and start saving on Art Supplies. (Sorry no calls for this item).

THE JERRY'S CATALOG

JERRY'S ARTARAMA, INC.
248-12Z Union Turnpike, Bellerose, NY 11426
TO ORDER BY PHONE CALL TOLL-FREE 1-800-221-2323
Please have your MasterCard or Visa ready (No COD's, Min Phone Order $25.00)
From NY, Alaska, Hawaii, Canada Call 212-343-0777
This sale expires on Nov. 10, 1983.

Gallery Paule Anglim

SIGHT/VISION/THE URBAN MILIEU

Wallace Berman
Bruce Conner
Jay DeFeo
Wally Hedrick
George Herms

curated by Fred Hoffman -
5 October - 29 October 1983

Gallery Paule Anglim
14 Geary St. San Francisco California 94108
(415) 433-2710 Tues.-Fri. 10:30-5:30 Sat. 11-5

Brentwood Gallery

Jack Earl Then and Now	September
New New York Haring, Scharf, DePalma, Futura 2000	October
Joe Zucker Paintings and Drawings Bill Stewart Ceramic Kingdoms	November
Thom Bohnert Expanded Vessels Art to Wear	December

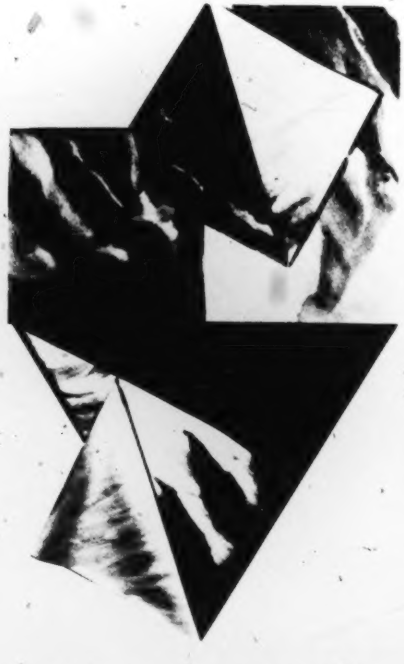
1221 South Brentwood Boulevard
Saint Louis, Missouri 63117
(314) 863-0808



Dorothea Rockburne Guardian Angel #2, 1982, watercolor on vellum 77 by 42 inches Collection Museum of Modern Art, NY. Photo courtesy Xavier Fourcade, N.Y.

Art in America's

1983 Full-Color Slide Survey of Contemporary Art

200 four-color slides of outstanding contemporary art works published in Art in America in 1983 . . . as selected by the editors.

Coming in February . . . Order in Advance!

This is the second annual edition of the art world's most enlightening slide survey of the state of contemporary art. It is all-new, all-different, and, like the 1982 edition*, will prove an invaluable aid to slide librarians throughout the country. Art in America will deliver this new collection in February, 1984. To be among the first to receive it, please order now. Each slide is shot from the original transparency and filmed on high quality Kodak stock. The result is a superbly reproduced collection, enabling slide librarians to systematically update and strengthen their coverage and review of contemporary art. The cost is the same as last year—$295, slightly less than $1.50 per slide. A separate index accompanies the slides, for ready reference to the issues and pages of Art in America in which they appeared. Slide libraries may send purchase orders or enclose remittance, whichever is more convenient. But be sure to mail the coupon today.

*A small number of the 1982 series is available. If you would like a set, please indicate below. The same remittance ($295) applies.

Art in America's
1983 Slide Survey of Contemporary Art
850 Third Avenue, New York, NY 10022

For additional information call:
(212) 715-2681

☐ Please send us the 1983 Full-Color Slide Survey of Contemporary Art—200 slides for just $295.00.
☐ Please send us the 200-slide 1982 edition @ $295.00.
☐ Send invoice ☐ Purchase Order enclosed ☐ Payment enclosed

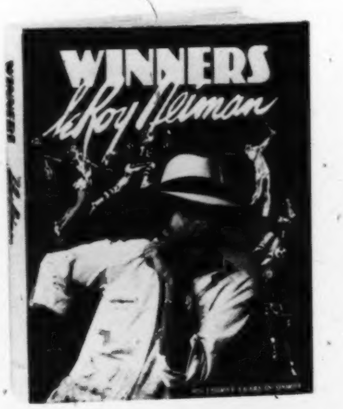
Name__________ Title__________
Institution__________
Address__________
City__________ State__________ Zip__________

NB: Non-Institutional orders must be pre-paid 9/83

VOL 71
ISS 8
SE 1983
UMI

LEROY NEIMAN

PAINTINGS, DRAWINGS AND WATERCOLORS FROM THE BOOK
LEROY NEIMAN: WINNERS



SEPTEMBER 13 — OCTOBER 1

HAMMER GALLERIES

33 WEST 57th STREET, NEW YORK, N.Y. 10019
(212) 644-4400

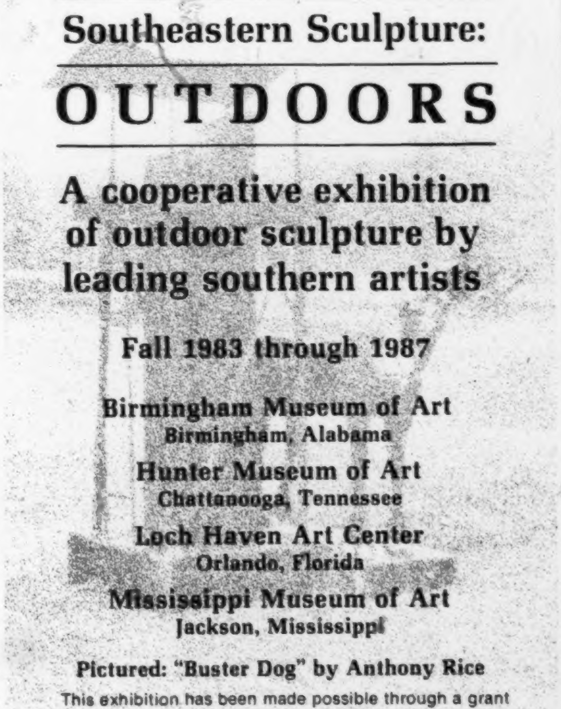
The Art Students League of New York

Founded 1875

215 West Fifty-Seventh Street, N.Y.C. 10019 (212) CIrcle 7-4510
R.A. Florio, Executive Director

The 108th Regular Session begins September 12, 1983. Students may register at any time. Tuition is on a monthly basis. No entrance requirements. Part-time as well full-time registration. All instruction is directed to the individual. Life models in most classes. 60 instructors with national reputations as professional artists. AM., P.M., Late P.M. and Evening classes, Monday through Friday. One and two evening a week classes. Saturday classes for children and adults. The League accepts students of any race, color, religion or national or ethnic origin. Write or phone for free, illustrated catalogue.

Drawing, Painting, Sculpture, Fine Arts Illustration, Mural Painting, Portrait Painting, Landscape, Anatomy for Artists, Perspective, Watercolor, Graphics (Etching, Engraving, Silkscreen, Woodcut, Lithography), Abstract Art (Non-figuration).



Southeastern Sculpture:

OUTDOORS

A cooperative exhibition of outdoor sculpture by leading southern artists

Fall 1983 through 1987

Birmingham Museum of Art
Birmingham, Alabama

Hunter Museum of Art
Chattanooga, Tennessee

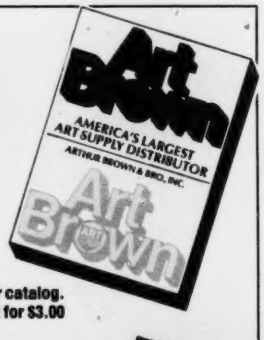
Loch Haven Art Center
Orlando, Florida

Mississippi Museum of Art
Jackson, Mississippi

Pictured: "Buster Dog" by Anthony Rice

This exhibition has been made possible through a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts, a federal agency.

YOU SHOULD HAVE OUR NEW CATALOG!



Art Brown
AMERICA'S LARGEST ART SUPPLY DISTRIBUTOR
ARTHUR BROWN & BRO., INC.
Art Brown

The Art Brown catalog is virtually an "encyclopedia of materials" for everyone interested in any form of artwork. 228-pages and color inserts illustrate and describe over 20,000 products from the world's best sources. It's a one-stop shopping center for art supplies!

We'll make it attractive for you to order our catalog. Send in the coupon below with your check for $3.00 to cover mailing and handling costs.

—AND HERE'S WHAT WE'LL DO IN RETURN!

1. We'll send our big 260-page catalog
2. plus we'll give you a $5.00 credit slip towards your first order!

3. plus our 40-page "International Pen Shop" catalog in full color.
4. plus we'll ship your first order prepaid. (That's worth $!)

. . . you'll get back several times the amount you remit for the catalog!

C987

Attached is check for $3.00 for catalogs and credit slips

Name____________________

Address____________________

City/State/Zip____________________

America's Largest Art Supply Distributor
ARTHUR BROWN & BRO., INC.
2 West 46th Street, New York, N.Y. 10036

ART SERVICES

These paid listings of various art services are provided for your convenience. For more information simply circle the appropriate numbers on the reader service postcard in this section or, if you prefer, contact the advertised service directly.

APPRAISERS

AUDREY REAL HELFAND Circle No. 1
945 Fifth Avenue Member: I.S.A.
New York, NY 10021 (212) 535-5972
Appraiser of European & American Fine Arts for Insurance, Gift-Tax, Property Division, & Estates. By Appointment

MARK KESHISHIAN AND SONS, INC. Circle No. 2
6930 Wisconsin Avenue, Chevy Chase, MD 20815 (301) 654-4044
836 Rockville Pike, Rockville, MD 20852 (301) 340-6666
James M. Keshishian, A.S.A., Harold M. Keshishian, Appraisal, Cleaning, Restoration and Sale of Oriental Rugs.

KELVYN G. LILLEY AND ASSOCIATES, INC. 3
620 North Michigan Ave., Suite 520
Chicago, IL 60611 (312) 787-0985
Fine and Decorative Arts, Appraisals and Consultations. Over 15 yrs Exp. Recognized by Major Insurance Companies.

L. McADOO PROFESSIONAL APPRAISERS 4
503 Canyon Road
Santa Fe, NM 87501 (505) 984-0152
Fine Art and personal property appraisals. Member of Int'l Society of Appraisers.

PIERCE GALLERIES, INC. Circle No. 5
721 Main St. Route 228
Hingham, MA 02043 (617) 749-6023
19th and Early 20th Century American Art. By Appointment Only.

PROFESSIONAL ART SERVICES Circle No. 6
17765 Beach Drive, NE, Seattle, WA 98155 (206) 587-7214
Serving Pacific NW. Phd., History of Art, Member I.S.A. Appraiser of American & European Art. Advisor for diversified art investors. Experienced in Insurance, Legal, I.R.S.

ART BOOKS

ARS LIBRI Circle No. 7
286 Summer Street
Boston, Mass. 02210 (617) 357-5212
Rare & scholarly books in the fine arts. Illustrated books. Periodicals & documents in all fields of art history.

ART IN FORM Circle No. 8
P.O. Box 2567
Seattle, WA 98111 (206) 623-6381
Specializing in Contemporary Art Publications; Books, Periodicals, Recordings, Mail Order Catalog & Trade List Available.

ART BROKERAGES

THE ART BROKERAGE INC. Circle No. 9
300 S. 4th St. 1503, Valley Bank Bldg.
Las Vegas, NV 98101 (702) 732-3999/385-1296
Listings & Locating service, buy sell or trade, save 25-50%. Computer printout, dealer inquiry invited. See display ad.

ART CONSULTANTS

COLSON SCULPTURE SERVICE INT'L Circle No. 10
1375 5th Street
Sarasota, FL 33579 (813) 365-3818, 953-5892
Ceramics Shell Sculpture Casting Set-up and Related Information.

CONTEMPORARY ART CONSULTANTS Circle No. 11
393 North Euclid Avenue
St. Louis, MO 63108 (314) 361-5110
Consultants to Corporations, Designers, Architects and Private Collectors.

MR. FRANZ VILA Circle No. 12
24 East 97th Street, Apt. 20
New York, NY 10029 (212) 410-1702
Advisory Counseling, Analysis & Critique For Corporations, Collectors. Research & Art Education.

ART POSTERS

PACE POSTERS Circle No. 13
115 East 23rd Street, New York, NY 10010 (212) 673-8240
Publisher & Exclusive Distributor of Fine Art Posters including List Art Posters, Save Our Planet, America: The Third Century Bicentennial Posters, Pace Gallery & Museum Posters.

POSTER ORIGINALS LTD. Circle No. 14
924 Madison Ave. New York, NY 10021 (212) 861-0422
158 Spring Street, New York, NY 10012 (212) 226-7720
Major Distributor of American and European Art Posters.

ART SUPPLIES

THE ART STORE Circle No. 15
7200 West Beverly Blvd.
Los Angeles, CA 90036 (213) 933-9284
Quality artist material; save 10% to 30% off manufacturer's list.

EASTERN ARTISTS & DRAFTING MATERIALS 16
352 Park Avenue South
New York, NY 10010 (212) 725-5555
Everything for the Artist, Draftsman, Photo-Studio at 20% to 50% off list.

GRUMBACHER Circle No. 17
460 West 34th Street
New York, NY 10001 (212) 279-6400
Fine quality art materials since 1905. See what our art can do for yours.

JERRY'S ARTARAMA, INC. Circle No. 18
248-12X Union Turnpike
Bellerose, NY 11426
Huge savings on art materials and picture frames.

KENNETH LYNCH & SONS Circle No. 19
Box 488, Wilton, CT 06897 (203) 762-8363
Picture hanging rods, mouldings, security devices, stanchions, vitrines, art storage racks, gallery carts, tablets, and plaques. FREE CATALOG.

THE SAINT ARMAND PAPER MILL, INC. Circle No. 20
110 Young
Montreal, Canada H3C 2E7 (514) 935-7526
Finest Linen Watercolor Papers. 22x30, 300 lbs., $7.50 per sheet: Samples.

SELWYN TEXTILE COMPANY INC. Circle No. 21
15 West 38th Street
New York, NY 10018 (212) 921-9355, (800) 223-3032
Direct source linen & cotton PRIMED/UNPRIMED ARTISTS' CANVAS. No minimum yardage requirements. Send for free samples.

SHIVA® INC. Circle No. 22
4320 West 190th Street
Torrance, CA 90509 (213) 542-5583
Artists PAINTSTIK®, Solid Oil Paint in Stick Form. Call (800) 421-1325

VOL 71 ISS 8 SE 1983 UMI

ART SERVICES

UTRECHT Circle No. 23
33 Thirty-Fifth Street
Brooklyn, NY 11232 (212) 768-2525
Major Manufacturer & Distributor of Art & Drafting Supplies at Impressive Savings. Free Catalog.

WINSOR & NEWTON Circle No. 24
555 Winsor Drive
Secaucus, NJ 07094
Manufacturers of the world's finest artists' materials since 1832.

COMPETITIONS

NATIONAL SCULPTURE COMPETITION Circle No. 25
$75,000 commission for a public monument suitable to honor the writer O. Henry. Deadline for submitting sketch and vitae: Dec. 1, 1983. For information write: O. Henry Festival Committee, 1907 Rosecrest Dr., Greensboro, NC 27408.

CONSERVATORS & RESTORERS

THE TOMSICH ART GALLERIES LTD. Circle No. 26
11916 Manchester Road
St. Louis, MO 63131 (314) 966-6777
Conservation of Oil Paintings, Art on Paper and Framing Conservation. Appraisals.

EXHIBITION CATALOGUES

WORLDWIDE BOOKS Circle No. 27
Brian Gold, 37 Antwerp Street
Boston, MA 02135 (617) 787-9100
The foremost specialist in Int'l Art Exhibition catalogs since 1960.

EXHIBITION CATALOG PRODUCTION

WEBB DESIGN STUDIO Circle No. 28
Janet Webb
Box 4042, Taos, NM 87571
(505) 758-3447
Specializing in catalog design and production.

FINE ART PHOTOGRAPHY

THOMAS MOON PHOTOGRAPHY Circle No. 29
1 Holden Street
Brookline, MA 02146 (617) 232-8044
Photography Services for the Fine Arts, Black & White, Color, INFRARED. Print or Transparency. All formats.

PHOTOGRAPHIC SPECIALTIES, INC. Circle No. 30
225 Border Ave. North
Minneapolis, MN 55405 (612) 332-6303
Fine Art Cibachrome, C-Print, Archival B&W Printing & Processing. All Mounting & Framing Services.

FINE ART PRINTING

COLOR Q Circle No. 31
AFFORDABLE FINE ART REPRODUCTIONS
2835 Springboro West, Dayton OH 45439 (513) 294-0406
Get your FREE booklet: "How to gain wider recognition for your artistry, and make more money, too."

CHERYL PELAVIN PRINTMAKER Circle No. 32
13 Jay St. (in Tribeca)
New York, NY 10013 (212) 925-9424
Etching Facilities, Open Workshops, Classes, Editioning, Plate Collaboration & Publishing. Brochure.

STUDIO HEINRICI, LTD. Circle No. 33
430 Washington Street
New York, NY 10013 (212) 925-0788
Fine Art Limited Editions in: Silkscreen, Etching Press Available and Contract Printing.

FINE ART PUBLISHERS

GONDECK GALLERY AND PUBLISHER Circle No. 34
211 Old Santa Fe Trail, Santa Fe, NM 87501 (505) 988-3580
Bronzes, One of a Kind Welded Steel Sculpture by Bill Prokopiof. Original Graphics, Lithographs, Serigraphs, Etchings of Contemporary Indian Artists. Kevin Red Star.

FINE ART TRAVEL

ART EXPLORER'S TOURS Circle No. 35
P.O. Box 26689-P, San Francisco, CA 94126 (415) 921-7677
1983: Sao Paulo Biennale-Oct./1984: New Guinea-March, China-May, Scandinavia-June, Venice Biennale-September, Africa-October/1985: China-Japan-Bali & Java, West Africa.

FOUNDRIES

JOHNSON ATELIER TECHNICAL INSTITUTE OF SCULPTURE Circle No. 36
743 Alexander Rd., Princeton, NJ 08540 (609) 452-2661
Bronze, Aluminum, Stainless Steel, Ductile Iron: Sand Molding-Ceramic Shell-Rubber Molds-Bronze Repair & Repatine

KENNETH LYNCH & SONS Circle No. 37
Box 488, Wilton, CT 06897
(203) 762-8363
Casting in bronze, lead, or stone, also fabricating large art work of copper or bronze sheets repousse.

MATTHEWS CLASSIC BRONZE DIVISION 38
2230 North Chico Avenue
South El Monte, CA 91733 (213) 444-0468
Our lost wax casting capabilities assure the quality and fidelity of your art. Contact Mel Scheibauer.

Dali-Erte-Limited Editions-Sculpture
Miro-Chagall-Wyeth-Neiman
Buy Art Smart
The Art Brokerage, Inc.
300 S. 4th St., 1503
Las Vegas, Nevada 89101
(702) 732-3999/3851296
Listing and Locating Service
Buy Sell or Trade
Save 25 to 50%;
Dealer Inquiries Welcome
$25.00 for computer printout
Applicable toward purchase
Noyer, Azoulay, Picasso
Mexican-European-American-originals

L.A. Packing And Crating
Fine Art Specialists
Packing, Crating, Installation
Storage, Transportation
(213) 933-5602
5852 W. Adams Boulevard Culver City, CA 90230

ART SERVICES

JOEL MEISNER FOUNDRY & GALLERY Circle No. 39
120 Fairchild Avenue
Plainview, NY 11803 (516) 349-0260, (212) 895-1472
THE COMPLETE CENTER FOR BRONZE SCULPTURE: for the Sculptor . . . for the Collector . . . for the Art Dealer & Publisher.

NORDHAMMER ART FOUNDRY Circle No. 40
830 East Fifteenth Street
Oakland, CA 94606 (415) 465-5606
Complete Foundry Facility. Small to Monumental Scale in Bronze. Ceramic Shell and Vacuum Casting.

FRAMERS

AESTHETIC FRAME DESIGN Circle No. 41
1275 East 6th Street
Los Angeles, CA 90021 (213) 622-3331
Wholesale Custom Framing. Specializing in Archival Presentation for Artists, Galleries, Museums.

ARTISTS' FRAME SERVICE INC. Circle No. 42
1919 North Clybourn
Chicago, IL 60614 (312) 248-7713
Wholesale Custom Framing and Supply. 80 Metal, 200 Wood Styles, Mat Board, Museum Board. Fast Professional Service.

GRAND STREET FRAMES LTD. Circle No. 43
32 Grand Street
New York, NY 10013 (212) 334-9354
Custom Framing with Conservation Materials. Hardwoods or Metal. Cutglass, Mats, Painting, Strippings. Fast Service.

GREY GOOSE CUSTOM FRAMING Circle No. 44
5046 West Pico Blvd.
Los Angeles, CA 90019 (213) 938-6795
Plexiglass Fabrication, Cubes, Pedestals and Sculpture Mounting. Framing to Museum Standards. Wholesale and Retail.

TURNER FRAMING Circle No. 45
7508 Leesburg Pike, Falls Church, VA 22043
Also locations in Great Falls, Fairfax.
Excellence in Quality Custom Framing. Private Individual and Commercial Accounts. (703) 893-1263

WALLNUTS FRAME DESIGN Circle No. 46
2018 Locust Street
Philadelphia, PA 19103 (215) 732-8850
Design Consultants to PROFESSIONAL PICTURE FRAMERS ASSOC. Museum Matting, Exotic Woods, Acrylic Boxes, Pedestals.

HANGING & DISPLAY EQUIPMENT

KENNETH LYNCH & SONS Circle No. 47
Box 488, Wilton, CT 06897
(203) 762-8363
The famous Lynch picture rods made of stainless steel have been the standard in galleries for 100 years. Send for FREE CATALOG.

WALKER SYSTEMS, INC. Circle No. 48
530 South 21 Avenue East
Duluth, MN 55812 (218) 728-4434
Picture Hanging Devices (Rails, Rods, Hooks, Holders)
Panel Hardware for freestanding displays & exhibits.

INSURANCE

FLATHER & HAYES COMPANY, INC. Circle No. 49
888 Seventeenth Street, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20006
(202) 466-8888
Fine arts insurance for collectors and dealers.

GREAT NORTHERN BROKERAGE CORP. 50
Norman Newman or Larry Morreale
950 Third Ave
New York, NY 10022 (212) 371-2800
Insurance Specialists to the Art World.

MOVERS AND PACKERS

L.A. PACKING AND CRATING Circle No. 51
5852 West Adams Blvd.
Culver City, CA 90230 (213) 933-5602
Specialist in Packing, Crating, Installing, Warehousing, Shipping Fine Art and Antiques. Jim Isenson.

PRO-PAK PROFESSIONAL PACKERS, INC.® 52
527 Dundee Road
Northbrook, IL 60062 (312) 272-0408
Fine Arts Packing, Crating and Shipping Specialists. Pick-up and Delivery Service. Full Insurance Coverage.

VIDEO SERVICES

VAN GOGH VIDEO Circle No. 53
Star Route 81 A, Rosendale, NY 12472 (914) 338-8943
Video Cassette Art News Magazine Distributed Weekly by Satellite/Cable TV & Cassette Subscription. Production and Distribution Services for the Art World.

To receive information from the companies listed, circle the corresponding number on the REPLY COUPON below, and drop it in an envelope. You will receive information directly from them.

Art in America REPLY COUPON
Reader Service Dept., 850 Third Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10022

SEPTEMBER 1983
THIS COUPON EXPIRES
December 30, 1983

NAME (PLEASE PRINT) TELEPHONE
ADDRESS
CITY STATE ZIP

Art Services & Schools

▽ Please send information circled.

1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10	11	12	13	14	15	16	17	18	19	20	21	22	23	24	25	26	27	28	29	30
31	32	33	34	35	36	37	38	39	40	41	42	43	44	45	46	47	48	49	50	51	52	53	54	55	56	57	58	59	60
61	62	63	64	65	66	67	68	69	70	71	72	73	74	75	76	77	78	79	80	81	82	83	84	85	86	87	88	89	90
91	92	93	94	95	96	97	98	99	100	101	102	103	104	105	106	107	108	109	110	111	112	113	114	115	116	117	118	119	120

ALLOW 6-8 WEEKS FOR DELIVERY

VOL 71
ISS 8
SE 1983
UMI

NEW PRINTS

Rosenquist

Warhol

Barbara Gillman Gallery

270 N.E. 39th Street
Miami, Florida 33137
(305) 573-4898

3886 Biscayne Blvd.
Miami, Florida 33137
(305) 573-4898

HELENE STEPHENSON

PAINTINGS

SEPTEMBER 23 — OCTOBER 12

GALLERY 500
(215) 572-1203
Church & Old York Rds. Elkins Park, Pa. 19117

Spanish Painting from Goya to Picasso

Roberto White & Associates
NEW YORK

by appointment only

212 / 580 . 2416

Lynn Chadwick
Eduardo Chillida
Jose Luis Cuevas
Giacomo Manzù
Marino Marini
Roberto Matta
Henry Moore

Tasende Gallery
820 Prospect Street, La Jolla, California 92037
(619) 454-3691

THE TWINING GALLERY INC

13 BLEECKER ST. NYC 10012 (212) 674-2070

THUNDERSHEAR

CAROLINE MONTAGUE
September 6 - September 24, 1983

14 SCULPTORS GALLERY
164 Mercer Street
New York, NY 10012
212/966-5790

Thundershear Solar Series 1983 Caroline Montague 312 N. Highland Avenue NE Atlanta, Georgia 30307

PENNSYLVANIA ACADEMY OF THE FINE ARTS

Oldest art school in America offers majors in Painting, Sculpture & Printmaking. Admission to Day school by Portfolio. Accredited by NASAD. Financial Aid available. Approved for Veterans.

Evening & Summer programs in Painting, Drawing and Sculpture.

Founded 1805

For catalog write:
PAFA, Room M,
Broad & Cherry Sts.,
Phila., PA 19102

A FINE SELECTION OF CONTEMPORARY AMERICAN ART

JEAN COHEN
JANE HEAVEN
SUSAN LANGE
KAETE BRITTINSHAW
LISA WATERS

SEPTEMBER 15 - OCTOBER 15

incorporated gallery

1200 MADISON AVE. (87th ST.) NYC 10028 • (212) 831-4466

INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION DIRECTORY

A guide to current exhibitions abroad

ARGENTINA

BUENOS AIRES ☎ 54 (1)

RUTH BENZACAR
Talcahuano 1216-1° • Tel. 41-8549, 42-5614/5568

Audivert, Bedel, Benedit, Benguria, Cáceres, Castilla, De Monte, Iommi, Kemble, Marotta, Michel, Minujin, Robirosa, Smoje, Vegezzi.

DEL RETIRO
Florida 943 • Tel. 32.5850

Gallery artists: Pablo Bobbi, Marcello Bonevardi, Sergio Camporalle, Dalla Cujat, Lea Lublin, Aldo Parella, Daniel Selaga.

AUSTRIA

INNSBRUCK ☎ 43 (522)

KRINZINGER
Adolf Pichlerplatz 8 • Tel. 32,131

"Symbol Tier," drawings, paintings, performance, photography: 17 artists

KLAGENFURT ☎ 43 (4222)

CARINTHIA KLAGENFURT
Volermarkter Ring 25 • Tel. 57.377

Until September 20, group show of gallery artists
From Sept. 22, Franz Petschounig-Moro

VIENNA ☎ 43 (222)

ARIADNE
Bäckerstrasse 6 • Tel. 52.94.79

September 13-October 8, Claude Sandoz, new work

GRITA INSAM
Köllnerhofg. 6 • Tel. 52.53.30

Through September, Martha Jungwirth, new work
Humanic artist in residence: Shirazeh Houshiary

PAKESCH
Ballgasse 6 • Tel. 52.48.14

Markus Oehlen

NÄCHST ST. STEPHAN
Grunangergasse 1/11 II • Tel. 52.12.66

September 6-24, Franz Mölk, new paintings by the Austrian artist

ULYSSES
Opernring 21 • Tel. 57.12.26.

Accrochage

GALERIE HUBERT WINTER
Sonnenfelsgasse 8 • tel. 52.92.85

September 12-October 8, Eugene Leroy, drawings and paintings

BELGIUM

ANTWERP ☎ 32 (31)

AVANTGRADE
Volkstraat 60 • Tel. 216.04.81

MICHELE LACHOWSKY
27 Waalse Kaai • Tel. 237.23.93

September, gallery closed
October, Bertrand Lavier

LENS FINE ART
Mechelsesteenweg 146 • Tel. 237.68.57

As of September 29, Pierre Klossowski

"121"
Mechelsesteenweg 121 • Tel. 218.68.73

Until Sept. 20, "Sculptura 83," international group show
As of Sept. 22, Keith Haring, drawings

VOL
7
1
ISS
8
S E
1983
UMI

INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION DIRECTORY

ANTWERP ☎ 32 (2)

MICHELINE SZWAJCER
17 Venusstraat • Tel. 32.71.85
September, gallery closed
October, Mark Ruyten

BRUSSELS ☎ 32 (2)

ALBERT BARONIAN
89, Avenue Emile de Beco • Tel. 647.3414
10th anniversary of the gallery
FIAC '83

ISY BRACHOT
62a, Avenue Louise • Tel. 511.05.25
Felix Labisse

PALAIS DES BEAUX ARTS
10, Rue Royale • Tel. 512.04.03
Until September 25: "Un Musée, Trois Continents," ethnographic art from Stuttgart's Linden-Museum; Sept. 8-18, Prix Jeune Peinture Belge

POST-SCRIPTUM
37, Rue des Eperonniers • Tel. 511.96.43
Books and catalogues on contemporary art and photography, records.

GHENT ☎ 32 (91)

BARONIAN/LAMBERT
Oudburg 22 • Tel. 254.057
Piet Dieleman

RICHARD FONCKE
18 St. Janvest • Tel. 23.81.28

GEWAD
23 Gewad • Tel. 25.56.16
September, Peter Downsborough

MUSEUM HEDENDAAGSE K'NST.
Citadelpark • Tel. 21.17.03
Ettore Spalletti; works from the museum's collection

KNOKKE ☎ 32 (50)

ELISABETH FRANCK
124 Kustlaan • Tel. 606.881
September, at the gallery and FIAC '83: Jörgen Brodwolf, Titus-Carmel

GALLERY TRIADE
Res. St. James, Kustlann 130 • Tel. 610.087/601.925

Zwevegem-Otegem 32 (56)

DEWEER ART GALLERY
Tiegemstraat 9 • Tel. 644.113
Works on paper: Dimitryevic, Elias, Hockney, Hofkunst, Jones, Kiefer, Lennep
Panamarenko, Pearlstein, Schlee, Waydelich, Wesselmann, Willaert

COLOMBIA

BARRANQUILLA

GALERIA QUINTERO
CRA 51 B N° 80-65 • Tel. 359.210

BOGOTA ☎ 57

GARCES Y VELASQUEZ
CRA 5 N° 26-92 - AA 28936 • Tel. 284.5593
FIAC '83: Becky Mayer, Bernardo Salcedo (stand-38)

QUINTANA
Carrera 11 N° 85-62 • Tel. 236.8226
XIXth and XXth Century paintings: Botero, Degas, Gauguin, Hockney, Matisse, Moore, Picasso, Rodin, Vuillard

ENGLAND

CAMBRIDGE ☎ 44 (223)

KETTLE'S YARD GALLERY
Northampton Street • Tel. 352.124
September 7-October 2, "Cambridgeshire Open Exhibition," works by contemporary artists living in Cambridgeshire

LONDON ☎ 44 (1)

ANNE BERTHOUD GALLERY
1 Langley Court • Tel. 836.73.57
Through September, "Drawings by 17 Contemporary British Artists"

ART HOUSE
213 South Lambeth Road • Tel. 735.2192
Representing contemporary British artists, including John Bellany. Also collection of Outsider Art—by appointment

ANTHONY d'OFFAY
23 Dering Street • Tel. 499.4695
Until October 12, Joseph Beuys, "9 Vitrines"

12 DUKE STREET GALLERY
Duke Street, St. James • Tel. 930.52.47
The gallery is closed

FISCHER FINE ART
30 King Street, SW1 • Tel. 839.3942
September 29-October 21, Michael Leonard, new paintings and drawings

GIMPEL FILS
30 Davies Street • Tel. 493.2488
Through September, Alan Davie, "Village Myths," and other works

ROBERT FRASER GALLERY
21 Cork Street • Tel. 434 1911
September 13-mid-October, Nick Danziger, painted wood reliefs

LONDON (CONT'D)	☎ 44 (1)
NIGEL GREENWOOD, INC. 41 Sloane Gardens • Tel. 730.8824	As of mid-September, Ian McKeever, traditional landscapes of 1983
I.C.A. The Mall, SW1. • Tel. 930.0493	Until Sept. 18, "Consuming Visions - Advertising" As of Sept. 24, "New Contemporaries": a selection from national art schools
NICOLA JACOBS 9 Cork Street • Tel. 437.3868	John Carter, constructions Anthony Whishaw, drawings (downstairs gallery)
BERNARD JACOBSON, LTD. 2A Cork Street • Tel. 439.8355	From Gonzalez to Tara, 100 drawings and watercolors
LEWIS JOHNSTONE GALLERY 7 Bolton Gardens (Old Brompton Rd.) • Tel. 373.1192
ANNELY JUDA/JUDA ROWAN 11 Tottenham Mews • Tel. 637.5517/8	"First Russian Exhibition," Berlin 1922 - A Commemoration Mixed show of gallery artists: Alan Green, Nigel Hall, Bridget Riley, etc.
KNOEDLER GALLERY (Kasmin, Director) 22 Cork Street • Tel. 439.1096	Mixed Exhibition: Ashbaugh, Ayres, Buckley, Caro, Frankenthaler, Hockney, Khakhar, Matisse, Motherwell, F. Owen, Prangenberg, R. Smith, Stella
LEINSTER FINE ART 9 Hereford Road • Tel. 229.99.85	As of September 24, German Impressionist and Expressionist paintings from Saarbrücken's Moderne Galerie. Works by Purrman, Slevogt and Weisgerber
LISSON GALLERY (Nicholas Logsdail) 66/68 Bell Street • Tel. 262.1539	September 6-October 6, Julian Opie
MAYOR GALLERY 22A Cork Street • Tel. 734.3558	As of September 14, Richard Bosman
PICCADILLY GALLERY 16 Cork Street • Tel. 499.4632	"20th Century Drawings and Watercolors"; British figurative painters: Arnold Lee, Ovenden, Tindle, Unsworth, etc.
REDFERN GALLERY 20 Cork Street • Tel. 734.17.32 734.05.78
GALERIE 39 96 George Street • Tel. 487 5038	September 13-October 7, young Japanese artists: Abe, Amano, Kawachi, Kubo, Kuroda
EDWARD TOTAH GALLERY 39 Floral Street • Tel. 379.6241	Until September 30, group show: Louise Blair, Alex Booker, Maurice Cockrill and Mikey Cuddihy
WADDINGTON GALLERIES 2, 4 & 34 Cork St. • Tel. 439.1866	Red Grooms
SOUTHAMPTON	☎ 44 (703)
JOHN HANSARD GALLERY The University, Southampton • Tel. 559.122	Until September 10, "Attitudes Towards Tapestry" As of Sept. 22, "Still Life Photography"

FRANCE

BORDEAUX	☎ 33 (56)
C.A.P.C. ENTREPOT LAINE Rue Ferrère • Tel. 44.16.35	Galleries will be closed during construction of the new museum
CANNES	☎ 33 (9)
GALERIE HERBAGE 17, Rue des Etats-Unis • Tel. 39.19.15	September, Lynn Chadwick, sculpture retrospective (1971-1983)
LYONS	☎ 33 (7)
LE NOUVEAU MUSEE 11, r. Dr. Dolard-69100 Villeurbanne • Tel. 884.55.10	Until September 25, Salvo As of Sept. 29, Carl Andre, Bertrand Lavier
NICE	☎ 33 (93)
GALERIE PAUL HERVIEU 26, Rue Pastorelli • Tel. 80.02.10	Paintings and gouaches by Atlan, Clavé, Coignard, Goetz, Hélénon, Marchand des Raux, Papart and Key Sato.
PARIS	☎ 33 (1)
ANTIOPE-FRANCE 10, Rue Budé • Tel. 354.61.02	Until September 18, Trans-Avant-Garde, group show As of Sept. 21, Mario Schifano, selected works 1959-1983
ARTCURIAL 9, Av. Matignon • Tel. 256.32.90	Until October 6, "L'Avant-Garde russe au féminin: Moscou, St. Petersburg & Paris 1907-1930"
BAMA 40, Rue Quincampoix • Tel. 277.38.87
BEAUBOURG 23, Rue du Renard • Tel. 271.20.50	As of September 17, Arman, "Wall pieces." FIAC '83: Arman's Orchestra
GALERIE ALAIN BLONDEL 4, Rue Aubry-le-Boucher • Tel. 278.66.67	Illusion Réalité: Trompe-L'Oeil 1

VOL
71
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI

PARIS (CONT'D)	☎ 33 (1)
CLAUDE BERNARD 5-7-9, Rue des Beaux-Arts • Tel. 326.9707	Through September, Piero Guccione, oils and pastels
ISY BRACHOT 35, Rue Guénégaud • Tel. 354.22.40	September 14-October 22, Stefan de Jaeger
GALERIE JEANNE BUCHER 53, Rue de Seine • Tel: 326.22.32. 326.75.23	Accrochage
FARIDEH CADOT 77, Rue des Archives • Tel. 278.0836	As of September 17, Philippe Favier; FIAC '83
LOUIS CARRE ET CIE. 10, Avenue de Messine • Tel. 562.57.07	Accrochage
GALERIE CAROLINE CORRE 14, Rue Guenegaud 75006 • Tel. 354-5767	Group show and books of artists
CHANTAL CROUSEL 80, Rue Quincampoix • Tel. 887.6081	Until September 17, Boyd Webb September 17-October 20, Gilbert & George
JACQUES DAMASE Galerie de Varenne, 61 Rue de Varenne, • Tel. 705.55.04	As of September 15, Valentine Hugo (1887-1968), drawings engravings, oils, pastels (period: Ballets Russes, Cocteau, Eluard, Surrealists)
DURAND-DESSERT 3, Rue des Haudriettes • Tel. 277.6360	As of September 17, Jannis Kounellis
LE DESSIN 27, Rue Guenegaud • Tel. 633.04.66	September 15-October 5, accrochage of gallery artists FIAC '83: "figures, déplacements"; artists of the gallery
ERIC FABRE 6, Rue du Pont de Lodi • Tel. 325.42.63	Alexandre Gherban FIAC '83: France Sculpture
PAUL FACCHETTI 20, Avenue de Friedland • Tel. 563.80.26	By Appointment
KARL FLINKER 25, Rue de Tournon • Tel. 325.18.73	September, accrochage of gallery artists FIAC '83: Kupka, works from 1900-1910; Aillaud, Arroyo, Hélion, Raysse
GALERIE FARIS 50, Rue de l'Université • Tel. 544.29.48	As of September 27, Attardi FIAC '83: Shasic Abboud, Adam Henein
JEAN FOURNIER 44, Rue Quincampoix • Tel. 277.3231	As of September 17, Kim FIAC '83: "Peintures Fraiches" (stand C35)
GALERIE DE FRANCE 50-52, Rue de la Verrerie • Tel. 274.38.00	AS of September 21, Anthony Caro, sculptures FIAC '83: Degottex: Bris-Signes 1957-1983
LILIANE FRANCOIS 15, Rue de Seine • Tel. 326.94.32	Through September 23, Group show of gallery artists FIAC '83: Bir, sculpture; Le Rochais, drawings; Sendin; paintings (stand A47)
MAURICE GARNIER 6, Avenue Matignon • Tel. 225.61.65.	Bernard Buffet, permanently,
DANIEL GERVIS GALLERY 14, Rue du Bac • Tel. 544.41.90	Benrath, Constant, Dubuffet, Eterovic, Gerzo, Ghertman, Malaval, Montyn, Mutal, Nevelson, Olson, Pan, Pasotti, Sonderborg, Toledo, others.
GILLESPIE/LAAGE/SALOMON 24, Rue Beaubourg • Tel. 278.1171	September 15-October 15, Hervé Di Rosa
GALERIE MARWAN HOSS 12, Rue D'Alger • Tel. 296.39.45	"Important Works: Masters of the 19th and 20th Centuries," paintings, drawings and sculpture.
SAMY KINGE 54, Rue de Verneuil • Tel. 261.1907	FIAC '83: drawings, paintings and sculptures by Arthur, Victor Brauner, Matta, Niki de Saint Phalle and Watchi
LAHUMIERE 88, Bd de Courcelles • Tel. 763.03.96	Bauduin, De Waene, Dorny, Masson, Vasarely; Imbleval, sculptures FIAC '83
LA HUNE GALERIE EDITIONS 14, Rue de l'Abbaye • Tel. 325.54.06	Until October 13, S. Delaunay, Max Ernst, Hayter, Lalanne, etc. FIAC '83: A. Francois, paintings; J. Gérardin, textile sculptures (stand B7)
LA HUNE-LIBRAIRIE 170, Boulevard St. Germain • Tel. 548.35.85	Books, catalogues and magazines: Fine arts, literature, architecture, graphics, photography and fashion.
YVON LAMBERT 5, Rue de Grenier St. Lazare • Tel. 271.09.33	As of September 17, Miguel Barceló
GALERIE JEAN-PIERRE LAVIGNES 15, Rue St. Louis en l'Isle Paris • Tel. 633.5602	Accrochage As of September 27, John Kacere, paintings

PARIS (CONT'D)	☎ 33 (1)
BAUDOIN LEBON 36, Rue des Archives • Tel. 272.09.10	As of September 20, Jean Dubuffet FIAC '83: Jean Dubuffet
ADRIEN MAEGHT 46, Rue du Bac • Tel. 222.12.59	September, group show FIAC '83: Peter Klasen, "gestes et effacements"
GALERIE MAEGHT 13 & 14, Rue de Téhéran • Tel. 563.13.19	As of September 27, Jiři Kolář FIAC '83: Tàpies
1900-2000 GALLERY 8, Rue Bonaparte • Tel. 325.84.20	September 27-October 29, exhibition: "Trajectoires 1905-1983" Catalogue, "Half Stock Almanac," 60 F.F.
DENISE RENE 196, Blvd. St. Germain • Tel. 222.77.57	Through September, abstract Constructive art FIAC '83: Hommage à Jean Arp
GALERIE NATALIE SEROUSSI 34, Rue de Seine • Tel. 634.05.84	Opening at gallery September 20: Sandro Chia. FIAC '83: "The Fifties." In collaboration with Paolo Sprovieri
DARTHEA SPEYER 6, Rue Jacques Callot • Tel. 354.78.41	As of September 22, Ed Paschke
STADLER 51, Rue de Seine • Tel. 326.91.10	Until September 18, Antonio Saura; From Sept. 22, Ernst Friedrich FIAC '83: Saura, Jean-Paul Huftier
NANE STERN 25, Ave. de Tourville • Tel. 705.08.46	September 13-October 2, Hommage à Cosme De Scoraille FIAC '83: Les 10 ans de la galerie (stand C40)
DANIEL TEMPLON 30, Rue Beaubourg • Tel. 272.14.10	As of September 17, Sandro Chia FIAC '83: artists of the gallery
TEXBRAUN 12, Rue Mazarine • Tel. 633.47.84/633.14.57	As of September 28, Bettina Rheims, photographs of animals FIAC '83: photographic works
TRANS/FORM 22, Ave de la Bourdonnais • Tel. 550.40.32	September 20-October 15, "Les Nouveaux Peintres Français"
PATRICE TRIGANO 4 bis Rue des Beaux-Arts • Tel. 634.15.01	As of September 6, Tal-Coat, oil paintings FIAC '83: Tal-Coat, drawings; Schneider, paintings
GALERIE VALLOIS 41, Rue de Seine • Tel. 329.50.84/85	Csaky, Biegas, Rodin, Dunand, Ruhlman, Franck, Cheret. Fine furniture of the Thirties.
ZABRISKIE 37, Rue Quincampoix • Tel. 272.35.47	As of September 17, Tony Long, recent sculpture FIAC '83: Callahan, Friedlander, Strand
LES SABLES D'OLONNE	☎ 33 (51)
MUSEE DE L'ABBAYE STE. CROIX Rue de Verdun • Tel. 32.01.16	Through Sept., Donation Sorlier: "Lithography at the turn of the century" Salle Jean Launois (1898-1942)
ST. PAUL DE VENCE	☎ 33 (93)
FONDATION MAEGHT Saint Paul de Vence • Tel. 32.81.63	Until October 5, Max Ernst, retrospective: drawings, paintings, sculptures
GALERIE CATHERINE ISSERT Saint Paul de Vence • Tel. 32.96.92	Through September, Mariella Simoni, recent work FIAC '83: artists of the gallery
TOULON	☎ 33 (94)
MUSEE DE TOULON 20, Boulevard Leclerc • Tel. 93.15.54	Through September, "La Peinture Réligieuse": works from the museum's collection by Louis Chacallis and Jean Lamouroux
TOULOUSE	☎ 33 (61)
AXE-SUD 11, Place de la Daurade • Tel. 25.37.17	September, new Spanish photography

GERMANY

BERLIN	☎ 49 (30)
GALERIE AKMAK Hohenzollerndamm 7 • Tel. 883.53.12	September 9-October 4, Randy Lee White, mixed media, modern native American Art.
GALERIE LEITZOW Knesebeckstrasse 32 • Tel. 881.28.95	September 3-October 8, Marwan, new still life paintings and watercolors
R. ONNASCH AUSTELLUNGEN Niebuhrstr. 5 • Tel. 882.77.18	September 20-October 21, Richard Serra: "Sculptures and Drawings"
GALERIE POLL Lützowplatz 7 • Tel. 261.70.91	September 5-20, "Gallery Poll: 15 Years" September 26-October 9, Renate von Mangold
HANS REDMANN Fasanenstrasse 30 • Tel. 881.11.35	September 15-October 15, Janusz Haka, paintings.

VOL 71
ISS 8
SE 1983
UMI

INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION DIRECTORY

BERLIN (CONT'D) ☎ 49 (30)

GALERIE FOLKER SKULIMA Niebuhrstrasse 2 • Tel. 881.8280	Through September, Georg Baselitz

BONN ☎ 49 (228)

GALERIE LINSSEN Prinz-Albert-Strasse 47 • Tel. 21.89.09	German Expressionists. Russian Avant Garde. International classics. Osvaldo Romberg and Jan Voss.

COLOGNE ☎ 49 (221)

GALERIE GMURZYNSKA Obenmarspforten 21 • Tel. 23.66.21/2	Robert Delaunay
GALERIE KARSTEN GREVE Wallrafplatz 3 • Tel. 21.39.21	September, new acquisitions: Fontana, Rothko, Twombly
GALERIE MAX HETZLER Kamekestrasse 21 • Tel. 52.78.53	As of September 16, Werner Büttner, paintings.
GALERIE HOLTMANN Richartzstr. 10 • Tel. 21.51.50	Through September, Andre Thomkins
GALERIE JOLLENBECK Maastrichter Strasse 53 • Tel. 51.58.52	Gallery relocating (please note our change of address) September 16, opening exhibition: Ben Vautier, works from the 60's and 70's
RUDOLF KICKEN Albertusstrasse 47/49 • Tel. 21.02.34	As of September 22, Andre Gelpke: Fluchtgedanken
KÖLNISCHER KUNSTVEREIN Josef-Haubrich-Hof 1 • Tel. 21.70.21/221.3740	Through September, "Swiss Scene"; "Four Swiss Artists"; "Spoerri and the young Swiss."
PAUL MAENZ Bismarckstr. 50 • Tel. 51.50.88	September, gallery moving (please note our change of address) Inaugural exhibition (October): "Master Works of Conceptual Art"
GALERIE ORANGERIE REINZ Helenstrasse 2 • Tel. 23.46.84	Accrochage
GALERIE RECKERMANN Albertusstr. 16 • Tel. 21.20.64	Through September 26, Thomas Virnich, "Alles": airplanes, automobiles, etc. As of Sept. 30, Antonio Violetto
GALERIE ROLF RICKE Volksgartenstrasse 10 • Tel. 31.57.17	September, Ulrike Nattermüller, paintings
GALERIE WENTZEL St. Apernstrasse 26 • Tel. 24.24.00	As of September 3, Julio Gonzales, drawings and sculptures; Claude Viallat, "Leinwände"
MICHAEL WERNER Gertrudenstrasse. 24/28 • Tel. 21.06.61	September, Per Kirkeby, paintings and sculpture; Markus Lüpertz
GALERIE RUDOLF ZWIRNER Albertusstrasse 18 • Tel. 23.58.37/8	September 5-15, Felix Droese

DUSSELDORF ☎ 49 (211)

KONRAD FISCHER Platanenstrasse 7 • Tel. 685.908	October, Bruce Nauman
GALERIE GMYREK Mutter-Ey-Strasse 5. • Tel. 32.77.70	Helmut Middendorf
DENISE RENE HANS MAYER Grabbeplatz 2 • Tel. 13.21.35	Gallery artists
KUNSTVEREIN RHEINLANDE/WESTFALEN Grabbeplatz 4 • Tel. 327.023	Until September 4, "New York Now" As of Sept. 23, Georg Klusemann, collages, drawings, graphics, paintings
ESSEN 49 (201)
GALERIE NEHER Rüttenscheiderstr. 75 • Tel. 78.20.71	Works by Dix, I. & J. Generalic, Grieshaber, Heckel, Kirchner, Kokoschka, Modersohn, Müller, Nay, Nolde, Pechstein, Rohlfs, Schmidt-Rottluff

HAMBURG ☎ 49 (40)

ASCAN CRONE Isestrasse 121 • Tel. 040/47.42.94	Through September 17, Eugene Leroy, paintings 1960-1982 (catalogue) As of Sept. 22, David Salle, new paintings, watercolors (catalogue)
THOMAS LEVY GALERIE Tesdorpfstrasse 18 • Tel. 45.91.88.	Claudio Bravo, Domenico Gnoli, Igor Mitoraj, Meret Oppenheim, Christobal Toral; German Expressionists
GALERIE MUNRO Barmbeker Str. 138 • Tel. 48.45.52.	AS of September 15, works on paper by Chia, Cucchi, De Maria, Kounellis

MUNICH ☎ 49 (89)

GALERIE + EDITION A Amalienstrasse 81 & 87 • Tel: 28.13.64/28.84.45	K.F. Dahmen

MUNICH (CONT'D) ☎ 49 (89)

GALERIE SIX FRIEDRICH Maximilianstrasse. 15 • Tel. 29.50.21 & 29.61.10	Until September 22, artists of the gallery As of Sept. 22, Siegfried Anzinger, new paintings and drawings
TANIT Maximilianstr. 36 • Tel. 29.22.33	June 23 through July, Michael von Biel, drawings, paintings
GALERIE THOMAS Maximilianstrasse 25 • Tel. 22.27.41	Sept. 1 through Oct. For the 100th birthday of Erich Heckel, paintings, water colors, graphics. Sept. 8-Oct. 6, Wolfram Kastner, acrylics.

NUREMBERG ☎ 49 (911)

GALERIE JOHANNA RICARD Königstrasse 33/37 • Tel. 22.50.20	Russian Avant-Garde

GREECE

ATHENS ☎ 30 (1)

KAREN & JEAN BERNIER Marasli 51 • Tel. 723.5657

HOLLAND

AMSTERDAM ☎ 31 (20)

AMERICAN GRAFFITI Berenstraat 20 • Tel. 27 63 43	September, Lee Quinones, paintings; Alan Vega, sculptures.
GALERIE KRIKHAAR Spuistraat 330 • Tel. 26.71.66	As of September 29, Jörg Remé, recent paintings
STEDELIJK MUSEUM Paulus Potterstraat 13 • Tel. 73 21 66	Through September, A. Kertész; Ferdinand Kramer, industrial designer; Total Design, retrospective. As of Sept. 16, J.P. Goude; Video in the '80s.

EINDHOVEN ☎ 31 (40)

STEDELIJK VAN ABBEMUSEUM Bilderdijklaan 10 • Tel. 38.97.30	Through September, Heinz Cibulka; Hermann Nitsch As of October 7, Young artists; Boyd Webb

ITALY

BARI ☎ 39 (80)

MARILENA BONOMO Via Nicoló dell' Arca 19 • Tel. 21.01.45	Boetti, De Gennaro, Kounellis, Lewitt, Lunanova, De Maria, Merz, Paladino, Tremlett

BOLOGNA ☎ 39 (51)

DE FOSCHERARI Via Goidanich 1 • Tel. 27.52.26.
GALLERIA FORNI Via Farini 26 • Tel. 27.07.60
STUDIO G7, G. GRIGOLO Via Val d'Aposa 7C • Tel. 26.64.97.

BRESCIA ☎ 39 (30)

PIERO CAVELLINI F.lli Bandiera 18A • Tel. 57.401

FLORENCE ☎ 39 (55)

GALLERIA SCHEMA Via della vigna nuova 17. • Tel. 28.40.90.	By appointment, American Contemporary Art, Acconci, Baldessari, Bochner, Burden Fox, Graham, Huebler, Kaprow, Kosuth, Levine, Oppenheim, Ripps, Rockburne

MILAN ☎ 39 (2)

SALVATORE ALA Via Mameli 3 • Tel. 716-500
ARIETE GRAFICA Via S. Andrea, 5 • Tel. 79.55.73	September, Davide Benati; Giuseppe Maraniello
ARTRA/STUDIO Via Fiori Chiari 8 • Tel. 861.190	Carlo Maria Mariani
STUDIO CANNAVIELLO Piazza Beccaria 10 • Tel. 805.2148	Rainer Fetting
DIAGRAMMA (Luciano Inga Pin) Via Pontaccio 12a • Tel. 874.237	October, new show room: "Padiglione Italia," "Glienfatisti," "Fashion Moda"
DISEGNI DI ARCHITETTURA Antonia Jannone Via del Carmine 5 • Tel. 878.384	Arduino Cantafora, "Quindici stanze per una casa"
STUDIO CARLO GROSSETTI Via dei Piatti 9 • Tel. 805.3532	Giuseppe Spagnulo: "Self-portrait"
FRANCOISE LAMBERT Bastioni di Porta Nuova 11 • Tel. 650.087	Ackling, Anselmo, Barry, Bartolini, Garutti, Toni Grand, Kienholz, Kosuth, M. Nannucci, Oppenheim, Paolini, Ruscha, Toroni, Tuttle

VOL 7 1
ISS 8
SE 1983
UMI

INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION DIRECTORY

MILAN (CONT'D)	☎ 39 (2)
STUDIO MARCONI Via Tadino 15 • Tel. 225.543	FIAC '83: Man Ray, works on paper
GALLERIA DEL MILIONE Via Bigli 21 • Tel. 760.879
MASSIMO MININI Via Cavalieri des S. Sepolcro • Tel. 86.71.30	Luciano Fabro, "L'Italia vota" (la zattera Italia), a new sculpture
FRANCO TOSELLI Via del Carmine 9 • Tel. 805.0434	Tony Cragg

MODENA	☎ 39 (59)
GALLERIA EMILIO MAZZOLI Via Nazario Sauro 58a • Tel. 357.605/243.455	Agnetti, Boetti, Calzolari, Chia, Clemente, Cucchi, de Maria, Germanà, Paladino, Schifano, Turcato.

NAPLES	☎ 39 (81)
LUCIO AMELIO Piazza del Martiri 58. • Tel. 42.20.23/769.0521

ROME	☎ 39 (6)
IL COLLEZIONISTA Via Gregoriana 36 • Tel. 678.45.85	This gallery will be closed through September, reopening October 1st
GALLERIA ANNA D'ASCANIO Via del Babuino, 29 • Tel. 678.5920	Maria Schifano
UGO FERRANTI Via di Tor Millina 26 • Tel. 654.2146	September, group show
L'ISOLA Via Gregoriana 5 • Tel. 679.00.29./678.54.77	As of September 15, Adja Yunkers, "Windows are Blind at Night": 26 collages from 1983
GALLERIA IL PONTE Via S. Ignazio 6 • Tel. 679.6114	September, Francesco Maselli, polaroids
PRIMO PIANO Via Panisperna 203. • Tel. 460.309	This gallery will be closed through September, reopening October 1st
IL SEGNO Via Capolecase • Tel. 679.1387	International contemporary graphics permanently: Afro, Arp, Braque, Burri, Capogrossi, de Chirico, Ernst, Fontana, Le Corbusier, Miró, Morandi, Savinio
SPROVIERI 3 Piazzi del Popolo • Tel. 360.8918/361.0975	Futurism Dada Surrealism.
TONINELLI 86 Piazza di Spagna • Tel. 679.34.88	Important sculpture by: Bodini, Fontana, Marini, Arturo Martini, Melotti, Moore, Medardo Rosso. Schmettau, Vangi.

TURIN	☎ 39 (11)
GIORGIO PERSANO Via dei Mille 29 • Tel. 835.527
TUCCI RUSSO Corso Tassoni 56 • Tel. 779.304
CHRISTIAN STEIN Piazza San Carlo 206 • Tel. 535.574	Anselmo, Kounellis, Mario Merz

JAPAN

TOKYO	☎ 170
RYU INTERNATIONAL GALLERY P.O.B. 1383 Sunshine-City, Toshima-Ku • Tel. 987.6160	September Show: Ay-O, Tetsuo Araki, Kei Hiraga, Margaret Johnson, Marion Korn, Tetsuya Noda, Guston Petit, Ryo Saito, T. Shinagawa, Y. Sekine

SPAIN

BARCELONA	☎ 34 (3)
GALERIA CIENTO Consejo de Ciento 347 • Tel. 215.63 65	Until September 23, J. Bestard, A. Fingerhut, J.LL. Jubany, R. Rabassa, A. Rosello, A. Tornabell. As of Sept. 28, C. Alcolea
SALA GASPAR Consejo de Ciento, 323 • Tel. 318.87.401.318.87.36	Antonio Clavé, graphics
GALERIA MAEGHT Calle Montcada 25 • Tel. 310.42.45
CAJA DE PENSIONES (Centro Cultural) Passeig Sant Joan 108 • Tel. 258.89.07	September, World Press Photo; Fotopress

	BARCELONA (CONT'D)	☎ 34 (3)
	GALERIA JOAN PRATS Rambla Catalunya 54 • Tel. 216.02.84	September, works on paper
	IBIZA BALEARES	☎ 34 (71)
	GALERIA ES MOLI Carretera San Miguel Sta Gertrudis	Azocar, Bechtold, Calbet, Faber, Galbraith, Hedrich, Kugler, Monreal, Segul, Tomlin, Villanueva, Zush.
	MADRID	☎ 34 (1)
	CAJA DE PENSIONES (Centro Cultural) Paseo Castellana 51 • Tel. 419.0440	"New Sculpture in Spain"
	GALERIA KREISLER DOS Hermosilla 8 • Tel. 431.42.64	Until September 17, group show of gallery artists As of Sept. 20, Castrortega
	EGAM Villanueva 29 • Tel. 435 3161	Celia Sanchez
	GALERIA HEINRICH EHRHARDT Barquillo 44 • Tel. 419.52.86	September, Hans-Peter Adamski
	GALERIA JUANA MORDO Villanueva 7 • Tel. 435.84.42	Marti Quinto
	GALERIA DE ARTE MUN Hermosilla 26 • Tel. 401.01.92	Gallery Artists
	GALERIA THEO Marqués de la Ensenada, 2 • Tel. 410.26.51	Hernando Viñes, retrospective
	GALERIA FERNANDO VIJANDE Nuñez de Balboa 65 • Tel. 435 8025	"New Figuration": Cobo, Gordillo, Navarro, Sicilia and Zush
	GALERIA YNGUANZO Antonio Maura 12 • Tel. 231 54 10	Japanese Contemporary Painters
	SEVILLE	☎ 34 (54)
	GALERIA JUANA DE AIZPURU Calle Canalejaz, 10 • Tel. 22.85.01	September, "Basilea, Stand Number 15.365"
SWEDEN	MALMO	☎ 46 (40)
	GALERIE NORDENHAKE Ostra Ronneholmsvagen 5 • Tel. 23.15.33	September, Bard Breivik, sculpture
	STOCKHOLM	☎ 46 (8)
	KONSTRUKTIV TENDENS Nybrogatan 69 • Tel. 61.16.65/61.50.65
SWITZERLAND	BASEL	☎ 41 (61)
	KUNSTHALLE BASEL Steinenberg 7 • Tel. 23.48.33	Until September 11, 50 Jahre "Gruppe 30" As of October 2, Nicola De Maria; Max Neuhaus, sound installation
	GALERIE BEYELER Baumleingasse 9 • Tel. 23.54.12	As of mid-Sept., "Expressionist Painting Beyond Picasso": Appel, Bacon, Baselitz Basquiat, Cucchi, Dubuffet, Jorn, de Kooning, Penck, Paladino
	BERNE	☎ 41 (31)
	MARBACH Wasserwerkgasse 37 • Tel. 22.42.05/22.38.25	Contemporary art. By appointment only.
	GENEVA	☎ 41 (22)
	GALERIE BONNIER 4, Rue Saint-Laurent • Tel. 35.87.35	September, Mexican dance masks
	CENTRE D'ART CONTEMPORAIN Bd. du Pont d'Arve et Bd Karl Vogt • Tel. 28.88.03	September, Sol LeWitt, wall drawings and prints
	GALERIE ERIC FRANCK 15 Route de Florissant • Tel. 47.08.09	David Bowes
	MARIE-LOUISE JEANNERET 59, Avenue de Champel • Tel. 46.34.57	Hommage à Fontana
	GALERIE MARIKA MALACORDA 1, Rue de l'Evêché • Tel. 28.64.50	September, Jon M. Armleder, Ernst Caramelle, Nam June Paik, drawings.
	DANIEL VARENNE Galerie Clos de Sierne 15, Chemin de Sierne • 84.15.93	Impressionist and 20th-century masters—by appointment only

VOL
7
1
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI

GENEVA (CONT'D) ☎ 41 (22)

WEBER
13, Rue de Monthoux • Tel. 32.64.50

ZURICH ☎ 41 (1)

THOMAS AMMANN FINE ART
Restelbergstrasse 97 • Tel. 362.62.31
Impressionist & 20th-century masters—by appointment only.

GALERIE BISCHOFBERGER
Utoquai 29 • Tel. 910.43.62
September, Jean-Michel Basquiat; Representing: Chia, Clemente, Cucchi, Salle, Salome, Schnabel, Tinguely, Warhol

KONRAD FISCHER
Ackerstrasse 44 • Tel. 42.71.61
Anselm Stalder

GIMPEL • HANOVER • EMMERICH
Tödistrasse 40 • Tel. 202.03.00
Swiss Art: Altherr, Baviera, Bechtler, Fessler, C. Fontana, Glattfelder, W. Jaeger, U. Michel, de Montaigu, Vital

M. KNOEDLER
Kirchgasse 24 • Tel. 69 35 00
As of September 24, Ensor, Klimt, Kubin, Schiele (catalogue available)

GALERIE MAEGHT
Predigerplatz 10-12 • Tel. 251.11.20
Markus Lüpertz

MAURER
Münstergasse 14-18 • Tel. 47.85.00
Bucher, Kuan, Moser, Signer

PETER NOSER
Schulhausstrasse 73 • Tel. 202.65.81
Bernhard Johannes Blume

GALERIE SCHLEGL
Minervastrasse 119 • Tel. 251.4963
Hans Joachim Albrecht, sculptures; works by M. Golubov, Kandinsky, Kassak, Kljun, Lissitzky, Moholy-Nagy

ANNEMARIE VERNA
Scheuchzerstrasse 35 • Tel. 361.90.70
Donald Judd, sculptures 1977-1983

JAMILEH WEBER
Schanzengasse 10 • Tel. 47.79.89
Paul Uwe Dreyer

RENÉE ZIEGLER
Rämistrasse 34 • Tel. 251.23.22
Meret Oppenheim

VENEZUELA

CARACAS ☎ 58 (2)

GALERIA MINOTAURO
Calle Madrid-Entre Mucuchies y Monterrey • Tel. 92 27 40

ART IN AMERICA
IS AVAILABLE IN EUROPE AT:

Amsterdam
Athenaeum Boekhandel, B.V.
Spui 14-16
Art Something Co.
Herengrächt 259
Robert Premsela Boekhandel
van Baerlestrasse 78
Antwerp
Boekhandel Ban Den Bosch
St. Jacobsmarkt 1-B
Basel
Stampa
Saplenberg 2
Berlin
Galerie 2000
Knesebeckstrasse 56
Bern
Hans Huber
Länggasstrasse 76 und
Marktgasse 9
Brussels
Librairie Post Scriptum
Rue des Eperonniers, 37
Cologne
Walther König
Breite Str. 93
Erlangen
Buchhandling Redmann
Bohlemplatz 6/12
Florence
Centro Di
l/r Piazza de' Mozzi
Geneva
Ecart
16 rue d'Italie
Hamburg
Sautter & Lackmann
Klosterstern 8
London
Arts Bibliographic
37 Great Russell Street
Arts Council Shop
8 Long Acre
Covent Gardens, WC2E 9LG
Lyon
L'Ollave
58, rue Tramassac
Madrid
Torculo Graphics & Books
Claudio Coello 17
Milan
PAC - La Libreria
via Palestro 14
Idea Books Bookstore
Via Cappuccio, 21
Paris
Artcurial
9 Avenue Matignon
Flammarion 4
Librairie du Centre Georges Pompidou
Plateau Beaubourg
Galerie Jean Fournier
44 rue Quincampoix
Librairie La Hune
170, boulevard Saint-Germain
Librairie Musee d'Art Moderne
de la Ville de Paris
11, Avenue du President Wilson
Rome
Galleria Nazionale d'Arte Moderna
Viale delle Belle Arti, 131
Strasbourg
Librairie Les Idees et Les Arts
Place Brant
The Hague
Artline
Toussaintkade 67-68
Toulouse
Ombres Blanches
Librairie/48
rue Gambetta
Turin
OOLP
Via Principe Amedeo
Vienna
Buchhandlung am Hafnersteig
Hafnersteig 10

COMMISSION PROPOSALS SOUGHT FOR OUTDOOR SCULPTURE

In the past five years, the Reading Redevelopment Authority's Fine Arts Program has spent over $250,000 on works of art. The Authority is now seeking additional pieces of outdoor sculpture; that is, work suitable for public outdoor installation.

Please submit a letter describing your work, a resume, slides, and other supporting material. Please identify existing works that are for sale. All materials must be received by October 31, 1983. Owners of art who wish to sell are also encouraged to reply.

RRA
READING REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY
501 PENN SQUARE CENTER 601 PENN STREET
READING, PA 19601 (215) 375-4291

KNOT & SPIRAL SHOW

SEPTEMBER 1983

SUELLEN HABER GALLERY
133 GREENE ST. NYC 10012
(212) 505-7800

Ruth Weisberg
Paintings

September 10–October 22

Jack Rutberg Fine Arts, Inc.
357 N. La Brea Ave. Los Angeles, CA 90036
Tel: 213 938-5222

FOURTEENTH NATIONAL PRINT EXHIBITION

$1000 Purchase Prizes
Juror: Michael Ponce de Leon
Entries: September 14, 1983

Prospectus
Exhibition Secretary

SILVERMINE GUILD CENTER FOR THE ARTS
1037 Silvermine Road
New Canaan, CT 06840

203 966 5617

E.A.T. BIBLIOGRAPHY 1965-1980
by BILLY KLUVER

Lists 969 publications documenting the evolution of art and technology since 1965

$7.50 plus $1 postage and handling

EXPERIMENTS IN ART AND TECHNOLOGY
49 East 68th Street New York, N.Y. 10021
(212) 285-1690

JON LEON GALLERY
"SCENE ON SATURDAYS"
SEPTEMBER 10 THROUGH OCTOBER 8

ARTSCHWAGER, AYMON, BELL, CHAMBERLAIN, GOLDSTEIN, HART, JOSEPH, LANDFIELD, MARDEN, MARISOL, MILLER, MOCK, MYERS, MORLEY, NOVROS, POUSETTE-DART, RAUSCHENBERG, REGINATO, RIVERS, ROSENQUIST, SCHNABEL, SERRA, STELLA, YOUNG, ZOX, AND OTHERS.

JON LEON GALLERY
31 DESBROSSES STREET
NEW YORK, N.Y. 10013
212-226-7789
Gallery Hours:
Saturdays 12 to 6 P.M. or by appointment

Yoseido Gallery

Contemporary Japanese prints

5-5-15, Ginza, Chuo-ku, Tokyo,
Japan phone 571-1312, 2471

100 page catalog upon request— $8.00

7th International Fine Art Fair
Artexpo
TEXAS
DALLAS MARKET CENTER • SEPT. 30-OCT. 3, 1983

Dealer Day—
Open to the trade only:
Friday, Sept. 30, 10-7pm
Open to the general public:
Saturday, Oct. 1, 11-8pm
Sunday, Oct. 2, 12-7pm
Monday, Oct. 3, 10-4pm
Admission: $5.00

For information contact:
International
Art Exposition, Inc.
509 Madison Avenue
Suite 702
New York, N.Y. 10022
(212) 935-7607

VOL 71
ISSUE 8
SE
1983
UMI

GIACOMO MANZU
"Fleur sur la Chaise"
Bronze. 14½ x 9¾ x 9¾ inches

ARP BOTERO CALDER GIACOMETTI MANZU MOORE

james goodman gallery

1020 Madison Avenue
New York 10021
(212) 772-2288

JULES OLITSKI

SEPTEMBER

THE HARCUS GALLERY

7 NEWBURY ST. BOSTON 617 • 262 • 4445

GALERIE 39

Specializing in Contemporary Works by Japanese Artists

96 GEORGE STREET, LONDON W1H 5RI Tel: 01-487 5038

LTM

LEILA TAGHINIA-MILANI, INC.

1080 MADISON AVE., N.Y. N.Y. 10028 (212) 570-6173

Representing:
Nasser Ahari
Bill Barrette
Tom Beverley
Thom Cooney-Crawford
Alessandro Durini Di Monza
Monir Farmanfarmaian
Gilles Jean Giuntini
Leopoldo Maler
Tom McNulty
Nickzad Nodjoumi
Farhad Ostovani
Hossein Zenderoudi

OCTOBER:
Leopoldo Maler
NOVEMBER:
Bill Barrette
DECEMBER:
Hossein Zenderoudi

STAN GREGORY

ERICSON GALLERY
23 East 74th Street New York, N. Y.

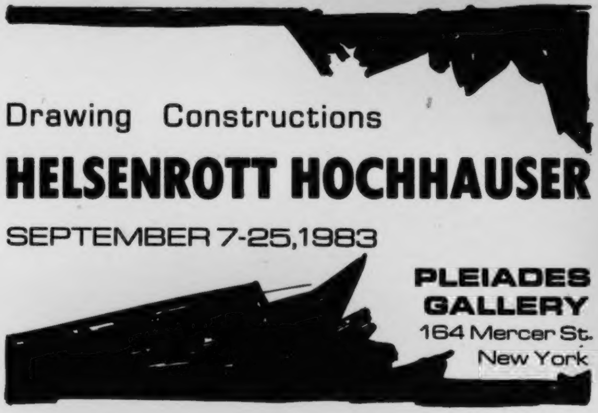
THE BEST IN AMERICAN REALISM

FORUM GALLERY

Representing

CARROLL CLOAR • ALAN FELTUS • GREGORY GILLESPIE
CHAIM GROSS • JULES KIRSCHENBAUM • DAVID LEVINE
BRUNO LUCCHESI • HERMAN MARIL • WILLIAM McELCHERAN
ELLIOT OFFNER • CAROLE ROBB • CORNELIS RUHTENBERG
HONORE SHARRER • RAPHAEL SOYER
MARINA STERN • JACK ZAJAC • LAURA ZIEGLER
ESTATES: JOSEPH FLOCH • BERNARD KARFIOL
HUGO ROBUS • MAX WEBER

1018 MADISON AVENUE • NEW YORK, N.Y. 10021



Drawing Constructions

HELSENROTT HOCHHAUSER

SEPTEMBER 7-25, 1983

PLEIADES GALLERY
164 Mercer St.
New York

MARTI QUINTO

Galeria Juana Mordo — Villanueva 7 — Madrid

Index of Advertisers

Acquavella Contemp. Art 189
Addison Ripley 88
Adler Gallery Pam 90
Airbrush Digest 194
Akira Ikeda Gallery 182
Allport Associates 93
Ars Libri 84
A.R.T./Beasley Gallery 188
Art Brokerage, Inc. 200
Artexpo, Texas 213
Art Services Listings 199-201
Art Students League 198
Arts Focus 86, 115
Asher/Faure 89
Asso. Artist-Run Galleries 86

Berggruen Gallery, John 48
Blum Helman Cov. IV
Boone Gallery, Mary 18
Borgenicht Gallery 91
Boyd Gallery, Roy 88
Braunstein Gallery 83
Brentwood Gallery 197
Brook House 87
Brown & Bro., Inc., Arthur 198

Castelli Gallery, Leo 92
Castelli Graphics 88
Centre D'Art Contemporain 22
Chicago Int'l Art Exposition 166
Cologne Art Fair 180
Concord Contemporary Art 85
Cooper Gallery, Paula 84
Cowles Gallery, Charles 6

Davidson Gallery, Maxwell 85
Davis McClain 46
DBR Gallery 190
Deicas Gallery 95
Delahunty 44
Dominion Gallery 94

Eason Gallery 182
Elements Gallery 190
Emmerich Galley, Andre 1
Ericson Gallery 214
Esman Gallery, Rosa 47

Fendrick Gallery 189
Fiterman Gallery, Dolly 92
544 Natoma Performance Gallery 190
Fondation Veranneman 113
49th Parallel 48
Forum Gallery 214
Fourcade, Xavier 26
14 Sculptors 202
Frumkin Gallery, Allan 81
Fuller Goldeen 182

Galeria Juana Mordo 214
Galerie Patrick Cramer 40
Galerie de France 45
Galerie Max Hetzler 90
Galerie Maeght Lelong S.A. 14
Galerie Natalie Seroussi 19
Galerie St. Etienne 93
Galerie 39 214
Galerie Vallois 23
Galerie Rudolf Zwirner 9
Gallery Paule Anglim 197
Gallery 500 202
Getler/Pall 46
Gillman Gallery, Barbara 202
Gladstone Gallery, Barbara 47
Gold Gallery, Fay 92
Goldstrom Fine Arts, Foster 96
Goodman Gallery, James 214
Gottlieb Foundation 194
Greenberg Gallery 6
Gruenebaum 91
Grumbacher 184

Haber Gallery, Suellen 213
Hadler-Rodriquez 46
Hamilton Gallery 89
Hammer Gallery 198
Hanover Fine Arts 24
Harcourts Contemporary 25
Harcus Gallery 214
Herstand Gallery, Arnold 2
Hoffman Gallery, Nancy 88
Hoffman Gallery, Rhona 189
Hokin Gallery 187
Hokin/Kauffman Gallery 187
Horan Gallery, Vivian 16
Horwitch Gallery, Elaine 21
Hutchinson Gallery, Max 93

Impressions Gallery 114
Incorporated Gallery 202
Ingber Gallery 196
International Art Exposition, Inc. 166

Jack Gallery 20
Jerry's Artarama 196

Kansas City Art Institute 194
Kind Gallery, Phyllis 17
Knoedler & Co., M. 82
Kornbluth Gallery, Lillian 114
Krakow Gallery, Barbara 90
Kraushaar Gallery 94

Lafayette Parke Gallery 5
L.A. Packing & Crating 200
Leavin Gallery, Margo 83, 85
Lewin Galleries, B. 196
Lock Haven Art Center 198
Locks Gallery, Marion 92
Love Gallery, R.H. 18

Markel Gallery, Kathryn 95
Marlborough Gallery 40
Maroney & Co., James 10
Martin Gallery, Marianne 96
Mathes Gallery, Barbara 12
Matisse Gallery, Pierre 81
Matthews Hamilton Gallery 187
Mazoh Gallery, Steven 87
Metro Pictures 84
Miller Gallery, Robert 27
Milliken, Alexander Cov. II
Multiples/Marian Goodman 95
McKee Gallery, David 90

Nahan Galleries 180
Newman & Saunders 188
New Gallery Contemporary Art 196
Nielson Gallery 187

Oscarsson-Hood Gallery 93
Ovsey Gallery, Neil C. 94

PA Academy of Fine Art 202
Pembroke Gallery 32
Perlman, Miriam 87
Phillips Gallery 16
Pleiades Gallery 214
Poindexter Gallery 85
Ponova Art Gallery 47
Printworld Directory 192
Protetch Gallery, Max 187
Public Art Fund 189

Quay Gallery 83

Reading Authority Redevelopment 213
Rosenthal Art Equities 188
Rutberg Gallery, Jack 213

Salander-O'Reilly 89
Sawyer Gallery, William 8
Schoelkopf Gallery, Robert 46
Sculpture Placement 192
Seguy Gallery, Yvonne 190
Serra di Felice 87
Settles Gallery, David 82
Sharpe Gallery 188
Shiva 186, 191
Siegel Contemporary Art 8, 89
Silberberg Gallery, Nathan 94
Silvermine Guild for the Arts 213
Solomon Gallery, Holly Cov. III
Sperone Westwater 20
Stoler Gallery, Bette 84
Stoller Gallery, John 44

Taghinia-Milani, Leila 214
Tamar Arts 193
Tasende Gallery 202
Taylor Art, Carol 114
Templon Gallery, Daniel 7
Thorp Gallery, Edward 91
Toll Gallery, Barbara 47
Twining Gallery 202

Vanderwoude Tananbaum 26, 27
Verna, Annemarie 28

Weinberg Gallery, Daniel 34
Werner, Michael 182
White Gallery, Roberto 202
Whitney Museum 192
Willard Gallery 95
Winsor & Newton 195

Yoseido Gallery 213

Zabriskie Gallery 4
Zolla Lieberman 91

ART IN BELGIUM
Albert Baronian 105
Deweer Art Gallery 108
Espace Photographique Contretype 104
Galuchat 98, 103
Galerie Maurice Keitelman 109
M. Knoedler Zurich 99
Michele Lachowsky 106
Lens Fine Art 110, 111, 112
Massimo Minini 101
Mineta Move 100
1900-2000 Gallery 102
Post-Scriptum 104
Micheline Szwajcer 101
Galerie Vega 107

EDITIONS: FALL '83
Artcurial 65
Callaway Editions, Inc. 69
Crown Point Press 51
Ediciones Poligrafa 62
Editions Press 77
Feldman Fine Arts, Ronald 57, 58, 59
Galeria Joan Prats 62
Galeria Eric Franck 80
Galeria Et Editions Lahumiere 79
Gemini, G.E.L. 53
Gladstone Gallery, Barbara 64
Grob Ltd., David 69
Haime Gallery, Nohra 76
Heesy Gallery, Patricia 75
I.C.A. 56
Jacobson Gallery, Bernard 73
L.A. Louver 66
Maeght Editeur 54
Magnolia Editions 72
Morgan Gallery 74
New City Editions 75
Orion Editions 60
Pace Editions 50
Peregrine Press, Inc. 71
724 Prints 61, 63
Shafrazi Gallery, Tony 67
Topaz Editions 70
Transworld Art 78
Tyler Graphics 55
Vermillion Editions 68
Villani Editions, Diane 52

VOL
7
1
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI

Artworld

City Won't Tax Museums . . .

In July, New York Mayor Ed Koch dropped plans to collect property taxes from private cultural and other non-profit organizations—a policy which would have forced many institutions to reduce or even abandon their activities. The city also dropped a related 1981 lawsuit against Asia Society challenging its status as a tax-exempt educational institution and claiming $1.8 million in taxes. According to city counsel F.A.O. Schwartz, Jr., if the suit had succeeded the city would have begun taxing other cultural institutions.

Predictably, widespread protest was heard from already hard-pressed cultural institutions; public hearings in June produced virtually unanimous opposition; in addition, a Koch-appointed task force expressed disapproval, declaring the projected revenue gain of ca. $15 million to be "an insubstantial amount" within an overall city budget of $16 billion.

A footnote to the new situation: tax-exempt organizations will now be required to register publicly the amount of their tax exemptions and the services they offer.

. . . But Limits Cultural Funding

Searching for a way to make cultural institutions more fiscally accountable to the city, in July Koch also announced a plan to limit New York's support of cultural institutions to 50 percent of an organization's entire budget. The 50 percent limit was recommended by a policy study committee whose report outlined stricter guidelines. The ceiling will be phased in over three years. In 1982, eight of 30 organizations granted municipal assistance received over half of their funds from the city; in the visual arts, the Jamaica Arts Center (50.3 percent), Brooklyn Children's Museum (64.8 percent), Staten Island Institute of Arts and Sciences (68.9 percent) and Queen's Storefront Museum (88 percent).

Under the new limited-support plan, these institutions will be under increasing pressure to develop and maintain supplementary sources of support—one of the objectives of the policy. The report also recommended that the city provide development and fund-raising training to arts organizations and increase funding for special programs.

Obituaries

Kenneth Clark, 79, English art historian widely celebrated for his television series "Civilisation," which won unprecedented popular acclaim for a program of its type in the U.S. and Great Britain in the early '70s. Clark worked under Bernard Berenson in Florence, was named Keeper of Fine Art at the Ashmolean Museum at the age of 28, and at 30 became the youngest director of London's National Gallery. During the period of his directorship (1934–45), he also served as Surveyor of the King's Pictures. Later, Clark was Slade Professor of Fine Art at Oxford (1946–50), chairman of the Arts Council of Great Britain (1953–60) and of England's Independent Television Authority (1954–57).

An authority on Leonardo and Piero della Francesca, Clark was the author of monographs on those two artists that are considered classics in their field. His other books include The Gothic Revival (1929), Landscape into Art (1949), The Nude (1955), and Rembrandt and the Italian Renaissance (1966). Clark was knighted for his contributions to art in 1938, and made a life peer in '69.

Charmion von Wiegand, abstract printer and collagist who was an early champion of the American Abstract Artists. Von Wiegand's association with Mondrian—she served as his editor and translator from 1940 until his death in '44—inspired her career change from art critic to artist. She subscribed to the formal principles of Neo-Plasticism, adapting them over the years to harmonize with her interest in mysticism and Eastern philosophy. Beginning in 1947 at New York's Rose Fried gallery, von Wiegand showed regularly in the U.S. and Europe. A retrospective of her work was organized by Miami's Bass Museum in 1982.

Charmion von Wiegand, 1978.

Edwin Denby, 80, poet, dance critic and New York art world denizen since the '30s. Most noted for his lively, penetrating writings on the dance which appeared in newspapers, cultural reviews, dance and art magazines, Denby was equally at home in the literary, performing and visual arts. His published works include Looking at the Dance (1949), Dancers, Buildings and People in the Street ('65), several volumes of poetry and a novel, Mrs. W.'s Last Sandwich ('72).

Alberto Raurell, 34, director of Mexico's Tamayo Museum, was killed in June during an armed robbery in a Mexico City restaurant. Born in Cuba, Raurell was educated in the U.S. and became a naturalized citizen. Before going to the Tamayo Museum one year ago, he had worked at New York's Wildenstein and Knoedler galleries, with Wayne Anderson Assoc., and had been curator to Cristophe de Menil.

Alberto Raurell, 1983.

Abby Weed Grey, 80, founder of New York University's Grey Art Gallery in 1975, to which she donated some 1,500 works from her personal collection of contemporary Asian and Middle Eastern art.

Betty Chamberlain, 75, formerly managing editor of Art News and art columnist for the Saturday Review, was founding director of the Art Information Center.

Howard Katzander, 72, founding editor of International Art Market and author of Antiques and Art.

Robert Elkon, the New York dealer, died of cancer June 9 at Mt. Sinai hospital. He was 55. For five years Bob fought his illness with courage and determination, coming back to the gallery time and again after periods of painful hospital treatment, but still possessing apparently insuperable energy and optimism.

Bob opened his gallery at 1063 Madison Ave. in 1961. Over the years he showed a wide variety of work by modern European masters, such as Picasso, Magritte, Kandinsky and Dubuffet; by established Americans like Pollock, Kline, Rothko; and by both American and European contemporaries. This unusual commitment to American and European art no doubt derived from the circumstances of his early life; born in Belgium, Bob came to America with his family in 1939, and he was equally at home in New York, Paris or London—the latter a city which he made a point of visiting each year at the time of the Wimbledon championships. During these trips he made contact with many of the younger British artists who were starting to show in London in the early '60s. John Hoyland, Robyn Denny, Isaac Witkin, Patrick Caulfield and Nigel Hall all had their first New York shows at the Elkon Gallery. At the same time Bob was also showing younger artists from the West Coast, like Tom Holland, John McCracken and Tony Delap. Elkon was probably unique in showing more contemporary artist from outside New York than from the city itself. Bob's taste in contemporary work was personal but catholic; it included Minimal (Agnes Martin) and Color Field painting (Dzubas, Bush), as well as Pop (Wesley). In spite of the ill-health of his last years, Bob retained an active interest in the work of artists little-known in New York, such as Koenigstein from Austria and Garth Evans from England, both of whom had first solo U.S. shows at his gallery during the last two seasons.

Robert Elkon.

I was associated with Bob for 15 years, from 1967 to 1982, and during that time came to understand his qualities as a dealer. I feel that Bob was especially remarkable in two ways—in his loyalty to the living artists he represented, and in his care for, and appreciation of, his "Modern Masters." He would continue to show the work of an artist who had joined his gallery whatever the vagaries of fashion, and however his work developed.

His commitment to an artist, once made, was complete; it was a matter of personal belief, not of business. Thus he could continue to enjoy the friendship of those artists he had once represented who had moved to other galleries.

Bob's other outstanding quality was his love of, and eye for, the art of the first half of this century. There was always a new treasure he delighted to unveil for the visitor to his back room, where one might see a Matisse bronze, an Ensor painting, a Motherwell collage. Each year he presented a selection of his work in an exhibition that became something of an annual event. His own collection contained many beautiful things—I remember especially fine drawings by Giacometti, Balthus and Pollock.

He will be missed—by his family, by artists, by collectors and by his fellow dealers. —William Tucker

THE HOLLY SOLOMON GALLERY
ANNOUNCES ITS INAUGURAL EXHIBITION
AT 724 FIFTH AVENUE

PART I

An Historical Overview
September 16–October 8, 1983

PART II

New Works
October 12–November 2, 1983

Richard Armstrong, guest curator
Illustrated catalogue available

HOLLY SOLOMON GALLERY
724 Fifth Avenue New York NY 10019 (212) 757-7777

VOL
71
ISS
8
SE
1983
UMI

Jan Groover
Photographs
Bryan Hunt
Drawings
Mel Kendrick
Sculpture
14 September–8 October

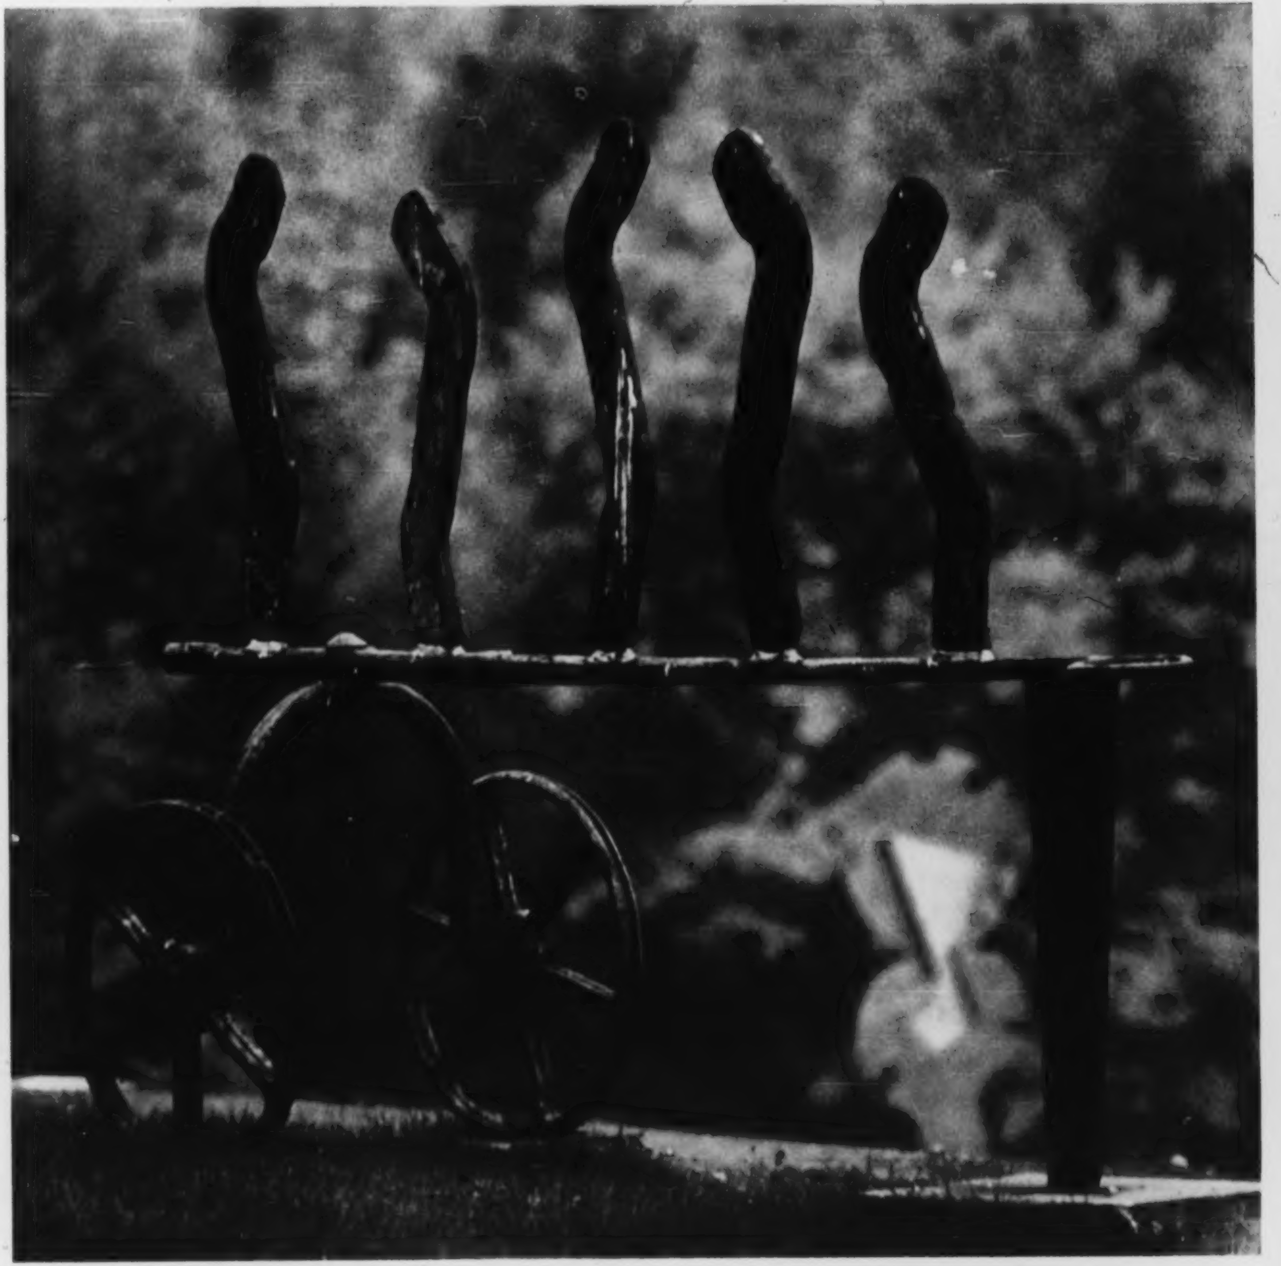
BlumHelman 20 West 57th Street, New York

VOL
71
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

Art in America

OCTOBER 1983/$4.00

Cover: David Smith's "Voltri VII," 1962
The '60s Revisited: 14 Artists Comment/New York's "Moral Rights" Law
David Smith/Julio Gonzalez/The Forum Show/Valerie Jaudon
Report from London/Black Photography/Review of Exhibitions



VOL
7
1

ISS
9

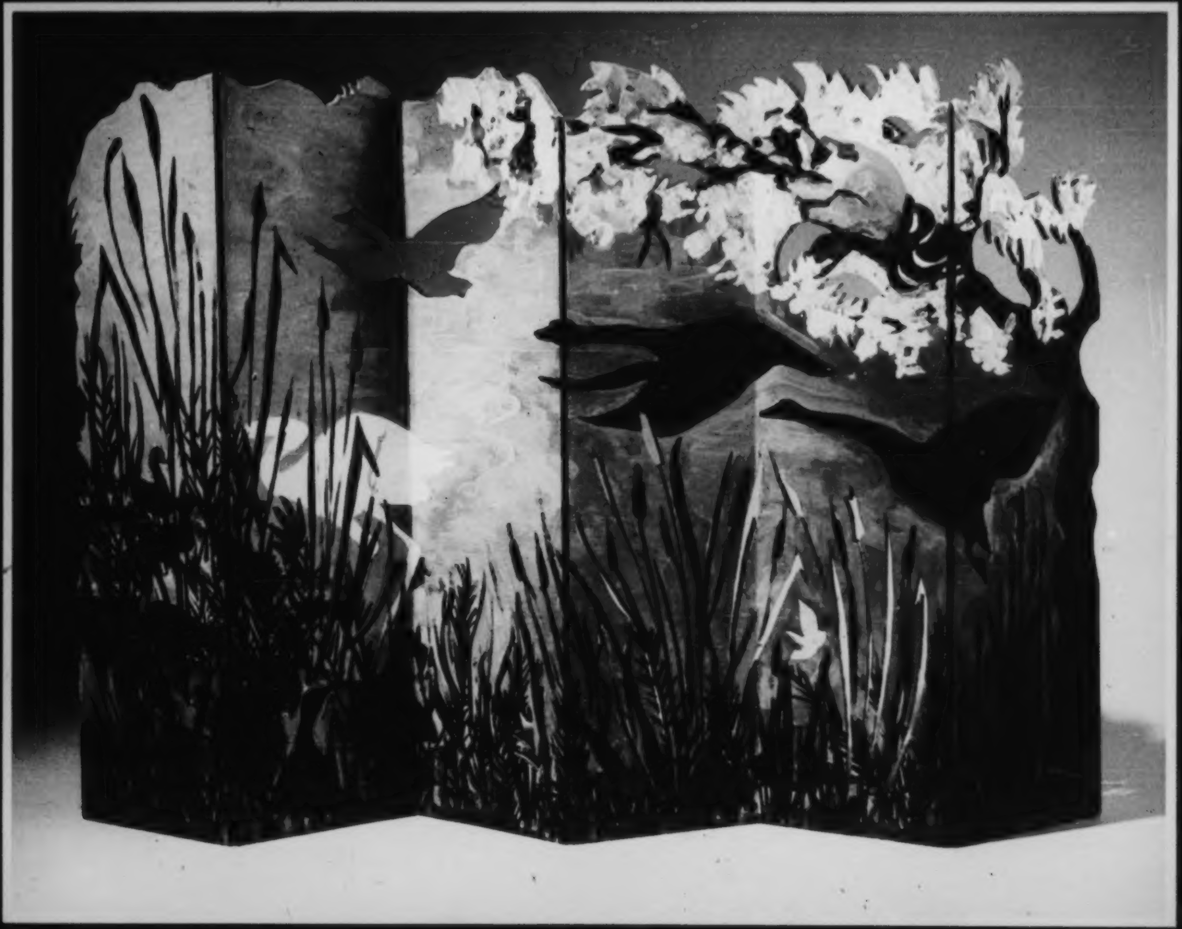
OC

1983

UMI

ARLENE SLAVIN

Recent Commissions, Murals and Screens



October 8 - November 9, 1983

ALEXANDER F. MILLIKEN INC.
98 Prince Street, New York, NY 10012
Telephone: (212) 966-7800

Hudson River Museum commission, Hudson River Trilogy, Part I, 1983, 8 x 12 feet

Essential to your business growth: new visitors who actively buy art.

Overwhelmingly, this is the Art in America audience.

Not only do our subscribers regularly make the rounds of galleries familiar to them. You'd expect that.

But this may surprise you:

▶ Over the past year, most of our subscribers visited an average of *eleven galleries they had never visited before.

That's why your advertising is so important, and why the vast majority of Art in America's subscribers say it's important. It helps them find and buy the art they want – which is considerable:

▶ Last year, Art in America subscribers spent more than $330,000,000 in private purchases of art. They now own nearly $2.5 billion in art works.

They'll keep visiting, buying, building their collections – and in the process, they'll be building the business of art galleries from coast to coast.
Attract their patronage. Keep advertising to them in Art in America.

They're essential to your business growth.

Paul Shanley

Paul Shanley
Publisher

▶ Art in America Reader Profile Survey, Beta Research Inc., Syosset, NY, June, 1983. Further findings on subscribers' art interests, activities, and personal data are available from your Art in America sales representative.

VOL

7
1

ISS

9

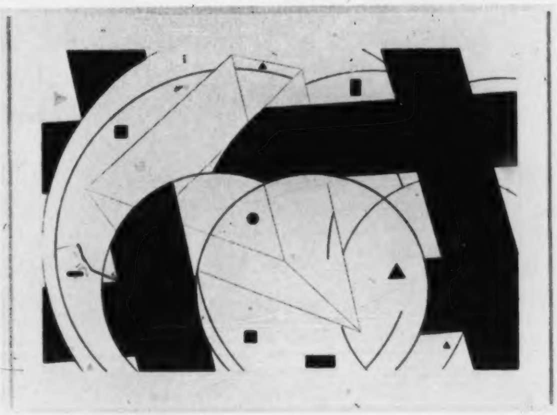
OC

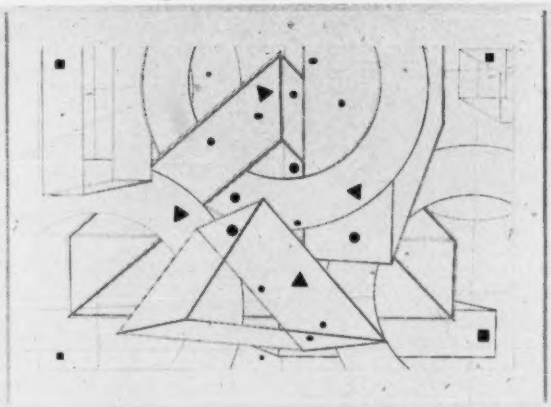
1983

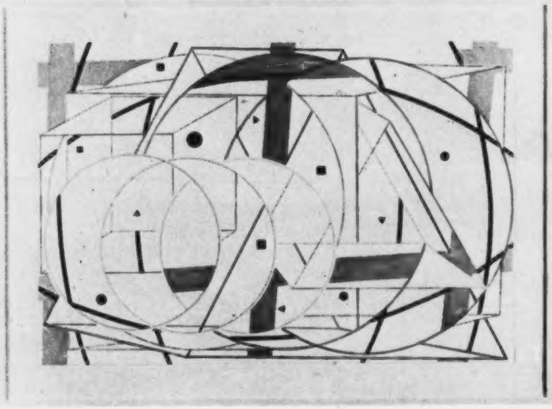
UMI

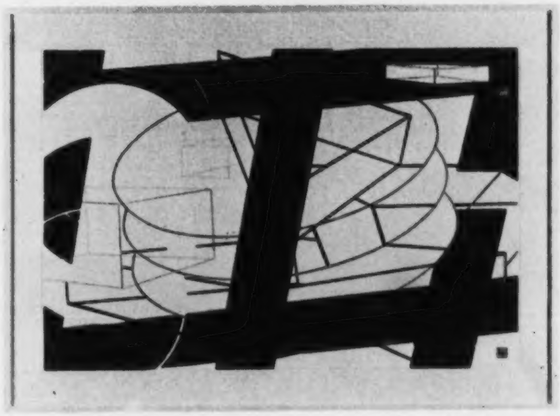
New Etchings

Al Held









PACE EDITIONS 32 EAST 57 NEW YORK

VOL
71
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

Galerie Maeght - Lelong*

Paris
13 rue de Téhéran
75008 Paris
Tel 563 13 19
Telex 280 660

Zurich
Predigerplatz 10/12
8001 Zürich
Tel 251 13 87
Telex 58 821

New York
9 West 57 Street, 41st floor
New York, NY 10019
Tel 212 371 9077
Telex 42 89 31

Works by: Adami, Alechinsky, Arakawa, Balthus, Bury, Calder, Chagall, Chillida, de Kooning, Dibbets, Garache, Gardy-Artigas, Giacometti, Kienholz, Klapheck, Kline, Jiri Kolar, Léger, Lindner, Miró, Moore, Monory, Noguchi, Palazuelo, Rebeyrolle, Riopelle, Rotterdam, Douanier Rousseau, Steinberg, Takis, Tàpies, Titus-Carmel, Torrès-Garcia, Bram van Velde

*Formerly Galerie Maeght

Art in America

OCTOBER 1983

The '60s in Abstract: 13 statements and an essay Interviews by Maurice Poirier and Jane Necol 122
The artists included in last spring's "Abstract Painting: 1960–69" at P.S. 1 look back at that decade.

The Modest Greatness of Julio Gonzalez Sidney Tillim 138
Produced during a brief 12-year period, Gonzalez's innovative forged iron sculptures were the highlights of the artist's recent retrospective.

David Smith: Heroic or Protean? Robert Storr 145
Two concurrent exhibitions treated Smith's work as, on the one hand, distinctly formalist and, on the other, as creatively eclectic.

Virgins & Totems Alain Kirili 156
Though related in many ways, Gonzalez's and David Smith's works embody radically divergent attitudes toward woman, institutional religion and modernist art practice.

Allusive Depths: Valerie Jaudon John Perreault 162
The flatness and symmetry of Jaudon's earlier work has given way to a complex spatial illusionism.

On Native Ground Christopher Knight 166
Recently reconstructed, the 1916 "Forum Exhibition of Modern American Painting" was inspired, but also marred, by the period's nationalism.

ISSUES & COMMENTARY
[illegible] in New York [illegible] 9

DEPARTMENTS
Review of Books 19
Report from London John McEwen 31
Photography
Terra Incognita Pepe Karmel 37

Artworld 111

REVIEW OF EXHIBITIONS
New York, Los Angeles, [illegible]
Williamstown, Mass., Brattleboro, Vt. 177

Cover: David Smith's Voltri VII, 1962, steel, 85 by 122⅜ by 43⅛ inches. National Gallery of Art, Washington, D.C. Photo Dan Budnik/Woodfin Camp and Associates. See article on p. 145.

Editor: Elizabeth C. Baker

Managing Editor: Nancy Marmer / Senior Editors: Hal Foster, Ted Mooney, Craig Owens / Senior Editor in Charge of Pictures: Prudence Carlson / Assistant Managing Editor: Kathryn Howarth / Assistant Editor: Robert Fisher / Designer: Alberto P. Gavasci / Associate Designer: Louis D'Esposito / Directory Manager: Amy Simon / Consultant: John Peter / Contributing Editors: Donald B. Kuspit, Lucy Lippard, Sarah McFadden, Linda Nochlin, Carter Ratcliff, Irving Sandler, Peter Schjeldahl, Roberta Smith, Charles F. Stuckey / Corresponding Editors: Chicago, Franz Schulze; San Francisco, Peter Selz; Washington D.C., David Tannous; London, Saul Gallik, John McEwen; Rome, Milton Gendel; Germany, David Galloway

Publisher: Paul Shanley

Director of Advertising: Susan R. Anthony / Advertising Sales: Deborah J. Gardner, Karen Niedzielski, Ruth B. Rothseid / Advertising Services: Julia H. Price, Cathy McKay / Production: Mary [illegible] / Production Assistant: Sarah King / Promotion Director: Valerie Green / Circulation Director: Barbara [illegible] / Circulation Manager: Susan [illegible] / Marketing Services Director: Karen [illegible] / Art in America, 850 Third Ave., N.Y.C., 10022. Tel. (212) 715-2600
Director for International Development: John H. [illegible], Jr. / Administrative Assistant: Grant Barker / Art in America, 39 Quai des Grands Augustins, 75006 Paris, France. Tel. (1) 325.26.55.

WHITNEY COMMUNICATIONS CORPORATION MAGAZINE DIVISION
PRESIDENT: [illegible] SENIOR VICE PRESIDENT, FINANCE-ADMINISTRATION: [illegible]
VICE PRESIDENT MARKETING: [illegible] VICE PRESIDENT PLANNING: [illegible]
VICE PRESIDENT PRODUCTION: [illegible] VICE PRESIDENT PRODUCT DEVELOPMENT: [illegible]

WHITNEY COMMUNICATIONS CORPORATION
CHAIRMAN: Walter N. Thayer
PRESIDENT: [illegible]

[illegible] 850 Third Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10022. Telephone (area code 212) 715-2600. Cable address: AMARTMAG. [illegible]

Member of the Audit Bureau of Circulations

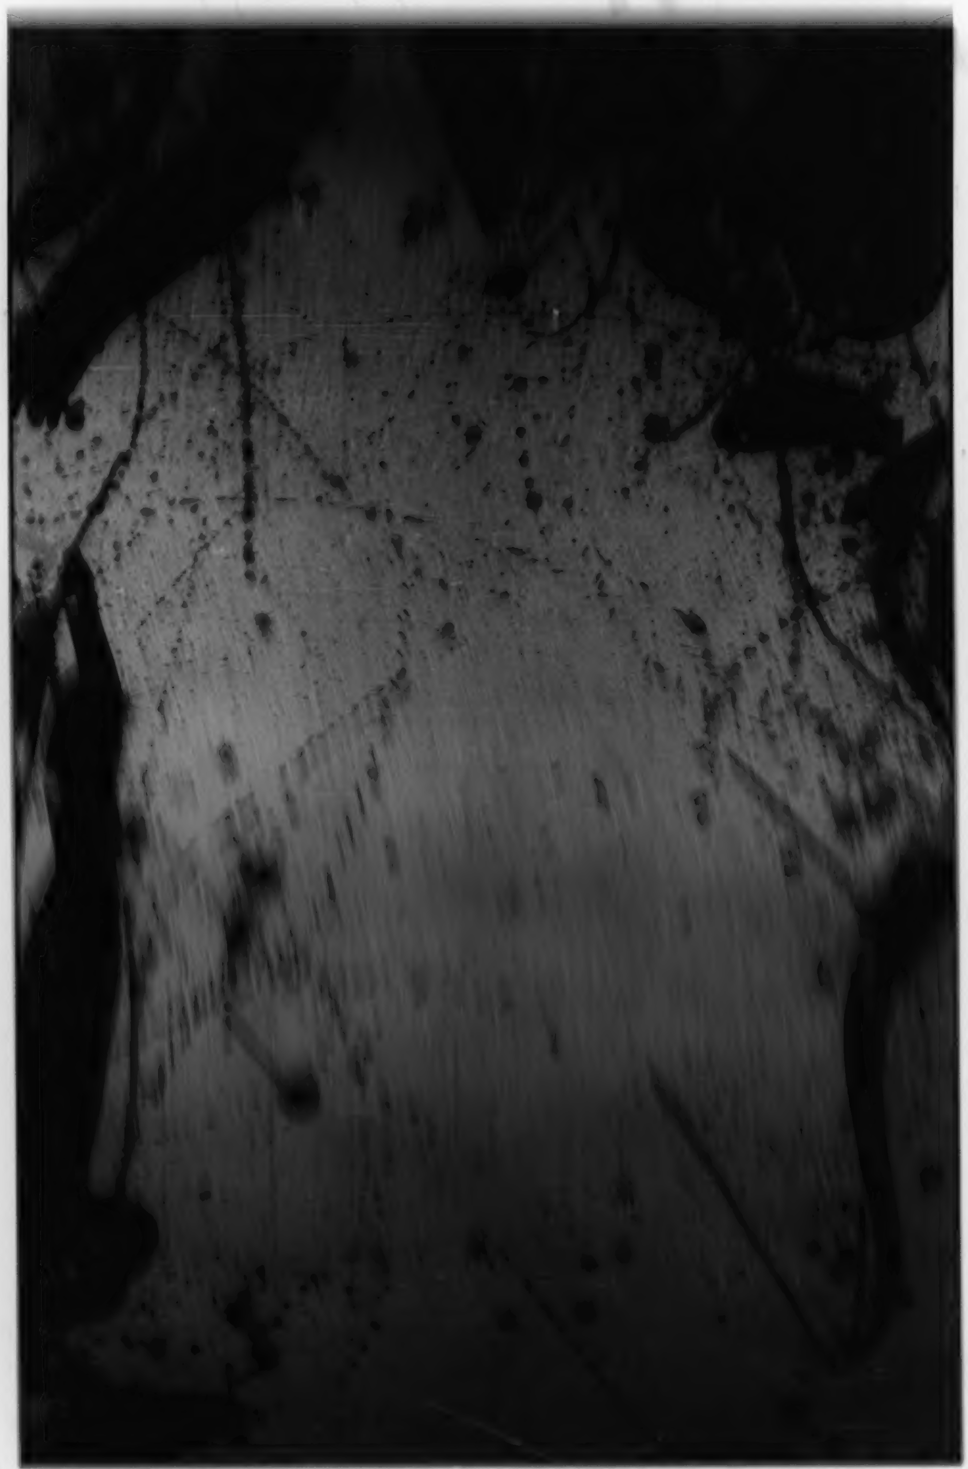
VOL 71
ISS 9
OC
1983
UMI

Arco

CONTEMPORARY ART
INTERNATIONAL FAIR OF MADRID
PALACIO DE CRISTAL. RECINTO FERIAL DE LA CASA DE CAMPO
[illegible] DE PORTUGAL, S/N. MADRID. TELEFONOS [illegible] TELEX [illegible]

[illegible] by IFEMA [illegible] TRADE FAIR ORGANIZATION OF MADRID

MADRID
84
17-22 F



Sam Francis, Untitled, 1964, acrylic on paper, 26¾" x 40" works from our collection by Archipenko, Beckmann, Diebenkorn, Klee, Klimt, Kokoschka, Leger, Matisse, Pechstein

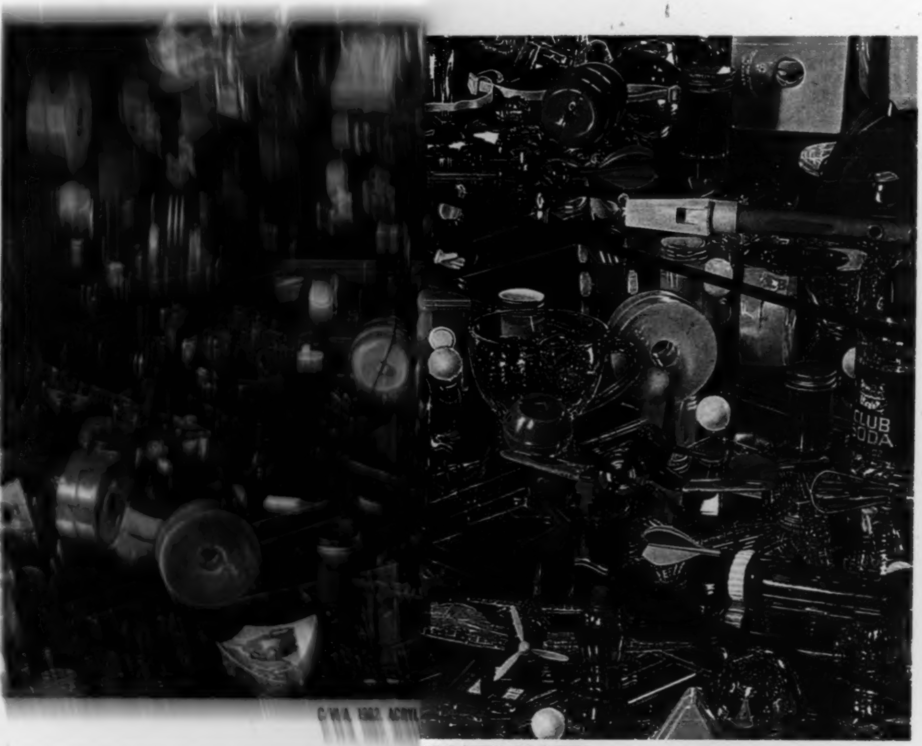
LAFAYETTE PARKE LTD.
2151 Sacramento St. San Francisco, CA 94109
415-922-8777
by appointment only

VOL
ISS
9
UMI

DON EDDY



C.W.A. 1982. ACRYLIC ON CANVAS: 30 X 40 INCHES.

NANCY HOFFMAN GALLERY
429 WEST BROADWAY
NEW YORK 10012

John Chamberlain

is now represented by

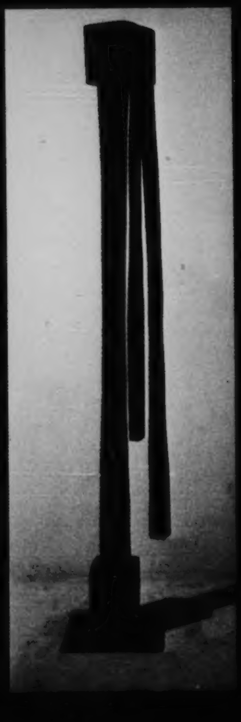
XAVIER FOURCADE INC.
36 East 75th Street New York, New York 10021 212 535-3980

ARNOLD HERSTAND & COMPANY
24 WEST 57TH STREET, SIXTH FLOOR
NEW YORK, NEW YORK 10019
212-664-1379

SCULPTURE
ERNST, GIACOMETTI, GONZALEZ
LAURENS, LEGER, NOGUCHI, PICASSO
RODIN, TORRES-GARCIA
ANCIENT AND AFRICAN ART

ISAMU NOGUCHI
"SOLITUDE" 1962, BRONZE
75¾ x 11¾ x 11¾"

AH



VOL
71
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

Nine Contemporary American Masters:

de Kooning, Diebenkorn,
Frankenthaler, Kline,
Motherwell,
Pousette-Dart,
Rothko,
Stella,
Twombly

Sept 29 – Oct 22

FRANZ KLINE Black Sienna, 1960. Oil on canvas, 92¼ x 68 inches

Marisa del Re Gallery

41 East 57th Street New York, NY 10022 Tel (212) 688-1843

Issues & Commentary

Art & the Law: "Moral Rights" Comes to New York

Should the law protect an art work's integrity? European legal doctrine has long said yes; with its brand new "Artists' Authorship Rights Act," New York State now concurs.

BY WALTER ROBINSON

On May Day in 1933, Diego Rivera painted a portrait of Lenin near the center of a 63-by-17-foot fresco he had been commissioned to do in Rockefeller Center. The painting also included depictions of venereal disease germs and a crowd of people marching with red flags past Lenin's tomb, all elements absent from his original proposals. Rivera uncompromisingly refused young Nelson Rockefeller's request to replace the head of Lenin with that of another person, or even to balance it with a portrait of Lincoln. The fresco was covered by tarpaper and a wooden screen, Rivera was paid his fee and sent packing, and eventually the work was destroyed and replaced by another mural.

This story has come to epitomize the unavoidable culture gap between artists and their patrons, as personified by the Communist artist-provocateur and the scion of capitalism's first family; the anecdote recounts the martyrdom of a single work, while at the same time celebrating the idea of the autonomy of the artist and his inspiration. Rivera reportedly considered bringing suit to force exhibition of the work, but was advised that as Rockefeller had paid for it, he effectively owned it outright; if he wished to destroy it, that was his legal right. Though the fresco is lost, the episode, in a sense, turned out well for all: Rivera made both a scandal and an esthetic sacrifice (and got paid for it); Rockefeller made a magnanimous gesture and got a second, noncontroversial picture; and, of course, we have a story with a rich cultural flavor. If New York State had had a moral rights law, perhaps the fresco could have been saved; but what would have happened to the story?

After three years of hearings and other efforts in the state legislature, New York State this summer passed an "Artists' Authorship Rights Act," thus becoming the second state in the country (after California) to adopt a "moral rights" law for artists. The term "moral rights" is shorthand for a type of legal control that artists have sought to retain over their work after it is sold, notably the right to protect its physical integrity; prior to the passage of the law, artists had no such right unless it was specified in a contract.

The New York State law, which takes effect on Jan. 1, 1984, is brief and to the point. It prohibits the display or reproduction of art work in "altered, defaced, mutilated or modified form" without the consent of the artist who made it, and allows an artist to sue for damages (and to disclaim authorship) if the alteration is likely to detract from the artist's reputation. The law also provides artists with the right to require notice of authorship whenever their work is displayed or reproduced.

Three types of "alteration" are specifically exempted from the provisions of the New York State act: ordinary efforts of conservation (except when shown to be negligent); ordinary changes that occur when an art work is reproduced in another medium (such as in a magazine); and normal changes due to the passage of time or the inherent nature of the materials. Fine art covered by the law includes painting, sculpture, graphics, and photographs and multiples in editions up to 300 copies. Not included are commercial art created under contract for advertising or other trade use and "sequential imagery such as that in motion pictures," which presumably includes video art as well. As a state law, the new act applies only to artworks actually in New York State, and allows only artists themselves to bring suit, not their heirs or estates.

Moral rights has been a leading issue for artist-activists in the U.S. for some time—and an area in which they lag well behind their European and other foreign counterparts. More than 60 nations recognize varying versions of the moral rights principle; in France, droit moral was formally encoded in statute in 1957, though court cases dealing with moral rights issues go back at least to the 19th century; Italy encoded its moral rights laws in 1941 and Germany in 1965. The principle is also recognized in international agreements and conventions, notably the 1928 revision of the Berne Copyright Convention—to which the U.S. is not a signatory. No. U.S. moral rights law exists on the federal level, though bills have been regularly introduced; at the state level, California's Art Preservation Act was passed in 1979 [see A.i.A., Nov. '79] and has some slight but notable differences from the new New York State law (e.g., the California law does not include prints or photographs in its purview and forbids the 'actual destruction, as well as the alteration and defacement, of works of art).

The California moral rights law has been in effect for three years and has inspired no legal actions—which could imply either that it is extraordinarily effective or that it is only rarely needed. But transgressions against artists' moral rights, though infrequent, have occurred. A brief look at the New York State law in relation to some of the better known controversies of the past may help to delineate its advantages and limitations.

A case tailor-made for the act was the 1960 alteration of a David Smith sculpture, 17 h's, which was stripped of its original red paint by its owner. Smith was unable to force the owner to restore the work and publicly disavowed authorship of it. Assuming that the sculpture was in New York State, Smith could have invoked the new law, which was designed precisely to protect the artist in such a situation.

A similar case involved a black and white mobile by Alexander Calder installed from 1958 to 1978 in the rotunda of the Greater Pittsburgh International Airport. This unfortunate work was repainted the county's colors (green and yellow), had weights added to raise its lower elements higher from the floor and was motorized to turn with mechanical regularity; furthermore, it was not lit, it was allowed to become grimy, and a large kiosk with advertisements was placed in the open space beneath it. Calder could not compel changes in the work then, nor could he do so now, even if he were alive, since the mobile is outside of New York State, and thus not subject to the provisions of the new law.

David Smith's work was again subjected to alteration more than a decade after the first incident, when six sculptures in his estate were repainted or stripped to bare metal and then varnished [see A.i.A., Sept.-Oct. '74]. In this case, the New York moral rights law would have provided no remedy, since it can only be exercised by artists themselves, and not their heirs.

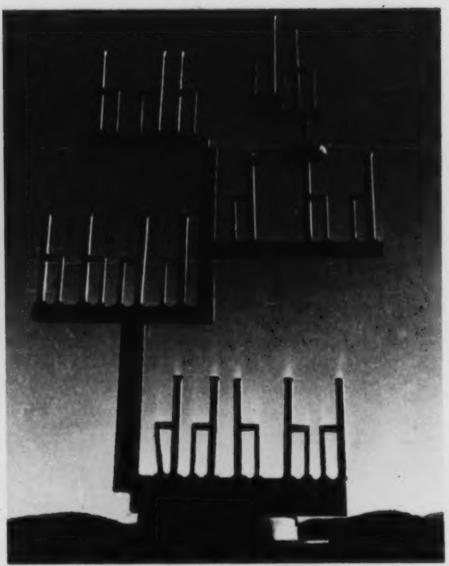
An earlier incident involved the painter

VOL
7
1
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

Beverly Pepper at André Emmerich Gallery
New Sculpture · October 6th to 29th · 41 East 57th Street · New York, NY 10022

Alexander Calder's* Pittsburgh, *1958, as it was installed at the Greater Pittsburgh International Airport until 1978. Photo Elton Schnellbacher.

Isamu Noguchi's* Shinto, *1976, as it was installed by the Bank of Tokyo Trust Company, New York, before being removed and cut up. Photo Ezra Stoller,© Esto.



David Smith's* 17 h's, *1950, as it appeared at Bolton Landing before it was sold and stripped of its orginal red paint. Photo courtesy the Archives of American Art.

Alfred Crimi, who painted a 26-by-33-foot mural for Rutgers Presbyterian Church in Manhattan in 1938. The congregation, apparently because the "portrayal of Christ with so much of His chest bare placed more emphasis on His physical attributes than on His spiritual qualities," painted the mural over in 1946. Crimi sued, seeking to have the church either restore the mural, allow him to remove it at the church's expense, or pay him damages of $150,000. The judge found no precedent in U.S. law or court decisions that supported the concept of artists' moral rights. For Crimi to retain such an interest in his work, he would have to have spelled out his intention in the original commission contract. Again, the New York State moral rights act would not have helped Crimi protect his work, since it does not forbid the destruction of an art work, but only its display in mutilated form.

In a 1980 incident, a sculpture by Isamu Noguchi designed in 1975 for the lobby of the New York headquarters of the Bank of Tokyo Trust Company was taken down and cut into pieces for storage (and eventually destroyed) without the artist's knowledge or consent [see A.i.A., Summer, '80]. The work, Shinto, weighed 1,600 pounds and was suspended from the ceiling; it was removed, according to the bank, because of its threatening appearance and because it frightened customers and employees. Since the bank owned the sculpture, Noguchi had no legal redress; under the new moral rights law, he would still have no legal case, since the work was destroyed, and not displayed in mutilated form.

Carl Andre's contretemps with the Whitney Museum in 1976 over the museum's unresponsiveness to his directions concerning the proper exhibition of one of his works [see A.i.A., Sept.-Oct. '76] raises more complicated questions. While it may seem as if artists should be able to control the context in which their work is displayed, particularly if a work's installation and its relationship to surrounding space are of esthetic significance, how should this right be balanced against the museum's right to curate exhibitions as it sees fit? This is a question the New York moral rights law does not address—one which would be open to the interpretation of the judge in any court case—and it seems unlikely that a court would find in favor of the artist. In this instance, Andre was able to withdraw the work he had originally lent to the exhibition, but the museum replaced it with one from its own collection. The artist could not prohibit the museum's action, even though he offered to buy the work back at cost plus ten percent. The "right to withdraw" (even after an unconditional sale) is sometimes considered as an artist's moral right, but it is not one that is legally recognized in New York State—or anywhere else.

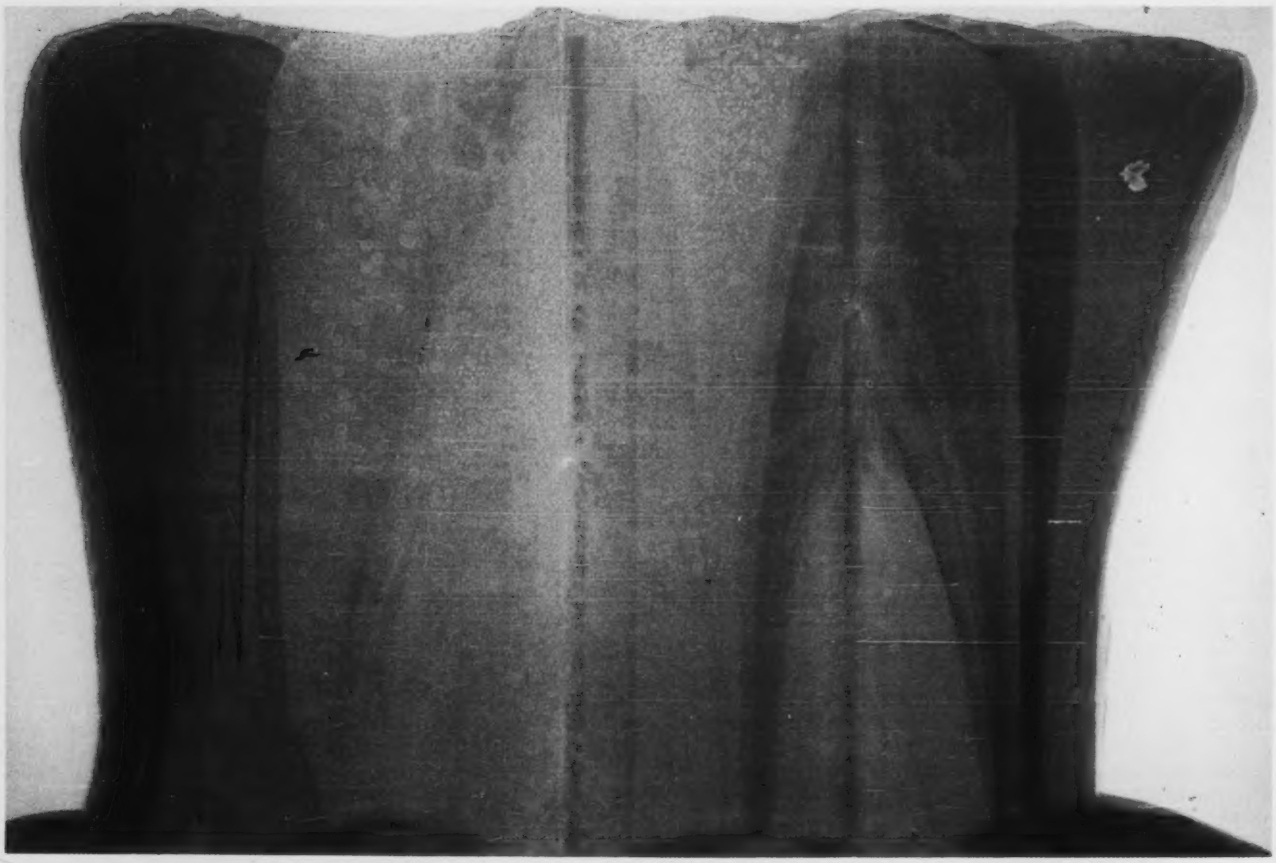
Yet another, related moral right which is not included in the New York law is known as the "right to create," a right illustrated by an 1898 French case involving a portrait commission given by Lord Eden to James McNeill Whistler. After Whistler's portrait of Eden's wife, Brown and Gold, Portrait of Lady E..., was exhibited and accepted, but not delivered, the two had a disagreement over the price. Whistler painted out Lady Eden's face and painted in another; Lord Eden sued to compel restoration and delivery of the portrait under the original agreement. On appeal, the French court ordered Whistler to pay damages, but refused to compel the artist to create, noting that until delivery was made, "the painter remains master of his work."

The New York State legislation has not been universally welcomed. It was opposed by the Art Dealers Association as well as by a number of New York City museums, who feared that the law would encourage litigation over issues of conservation or display. This viewpoint may seem odd, since museums are presumably dedicated to the preservation and presentation of artists' works; but it does suggest an institutional memory of those occasions—not necessarily restricted to situations involving artists' moral rights—when museums have found themselves in confrontation with and in opposition to artists' positions.

Ashton Hawkins, counsel to the Metropolitan, noted that the museum community supported the concept of moral rights but considered the N.Y. State law to be too broadly drawn. "The problem is," he said, "that none of the terms the statute uses—alter, deface, mutilate or modify—are defined by it. We're concerned about how an artist might interpret these terms, particularly modify," which could conceivably cover how a work was framed or mounted, in what context it was reproduced, or how a work was installed. From this point of view, Hawkins said, the law reads like an invitation to litigate. A letter sent to the governor by counsel to the Whitney Museum made similar arguments. On the other hand, a spokesman for the Museum of Modern Art said, "Our official position is that we don't wish to comment; we're waiting to see what impact the law actually has."

How do artists themselves feel about the law? It is not that easy to find any who are aware of its passage. Nancy Spero said, "It's probably all to the good, but it's a matter of enforcement. Mostly artists just send their works out into the world and hope they

VOL
71
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI



Dawn, 1958. Acrylic on canvas, 7′7½″ x 11′6″ (2.32 x 3.51 m.)

The Estate of

MORRIS LOUIS

is represented by

ANDRE EMMERICH GALLERY
41 East 57th Street, New York 10022
Telephone: (212) 752-0124

end up in sympathetic hands." Jackie Winsor, who in the past has included moral rights provisions—prohibitions against using her work as furniture, for example—in her sales contracts, said, "Museums will probably end up suffering from it; like most laws dealing with art, they inhibit the well-intentioned but don't correct the ignorant."

Jon Hendricks, a veteran of the Art Workers Coalition in the '60s who works with Jean Toche, said, "It's long overdue that artists have a way to protect the original intentions of their work. . . . A lot of us who do verbal, conceptual pieces have had problems with people who will take part of a piece and represent it as the whole piece—which can substantially distort it."

Bert Diener, president of New York Artists Equity, a 36-year-old association with some 1,600 members, was also very pleased with the law. "Many of our members have had problems of this sort, and we've felt for a long time that artists should have the right to litigate to protect their work and have some legislation to back them up." He also said he understood the museums' fear of frivolous lawsuits, and agreed that the moral rights act could have been more carefully drawn. "I don't think galleries and museums should be concerned that they'll be sued because of something that happens in a brochure," he said. "We're only interested in protecting against mutilations or changes in the artist's work."

Rubin Gorewitz, an artists' accountant who has long been involved with artists' rights issues, said he thought the law was "important and very vital, but it needs a lot of clarification, definition and penalty impositions." He thinks protection against the destruction of art works should have been included in the law, and says, "A work should be offered back to the artist for $1 before it's destroyed." He also saw a possibility that the law might provoke conflict between artists, noting the tendency of some artists to use the work of others in collage—a practice which, under the new legislation, could invite a lawsuit. "Now that we have the law," Gorewitz said, "let's clean it up."

Some of the uncertainties surrounding the moral rights issue are due to the difficulty of encoding artistic behavior in legal terms, a translation problem that characteristically haunts "art law." And such legal matters are hardly central concerns to most artists; the issues belong, rather, to art-lobbyists and politicians. The final passage of the New York moral rights law, which was sponsored by Assemblyman Richard Gottfried (D-N.Y.), was one result of the formation in March, 1979 of the state assembly's Committee on Tourism, the Arts and Sports Development—a leisure-activity grouping that handles legislation ranging from appropriations for the New York State Council on the Arts to bills promoting bicycle safety. Though the linkage between the arts and tourism is familiar from its frequent invocation in support of arts funding during times of budget cuts, the odds-and-ends sound of the committee's name underlines the fact that certain stretches of the imagination are required when art and politicians meet.

The new law implies that fine art is not ordinary property and that it requires special protection. The law also promises, if the museums' worst fears are realized, to spur all manner of controversy. Perhaps New York State's law could have gone further—for example, by protecting art works from destruction and by allowing artists' heirs to take action to protect their works, or alternately, by exempting museums from its provisions. As it stands, the Artists' Authorship Rights Act is a first attempt to bridge a gap in current law—that is, to balance owners' property rights against artists' continuing interest in their works after they have been sold. Whether the new law will promote unending litigation, or be cited only once every decade, remains to be seen. □

Author: Walter Robinson is an artist who also writes on art.

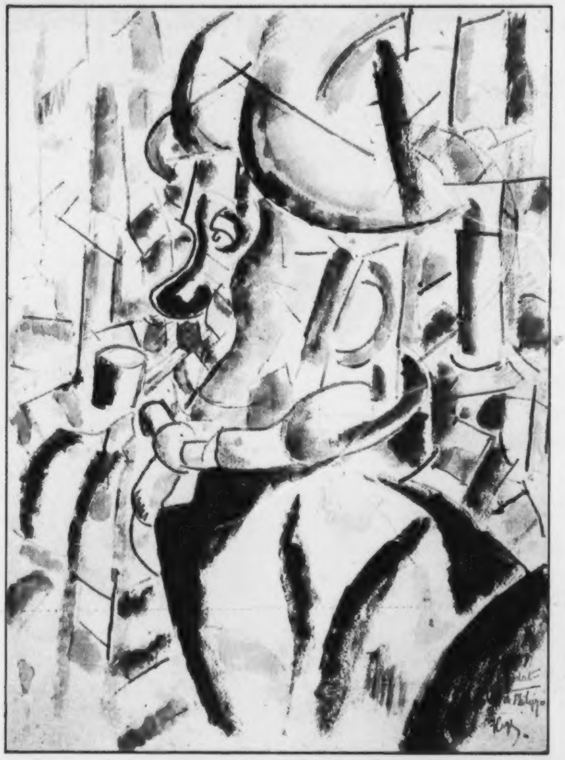
Gregory Amenoff

OCTOBER 4 - OCTOBER 22

ROBERT MILLER
724 FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK
212·246·1625

Color catalogue with text by Kenneth Baker: $8 postpaid.

VOL
71
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI



FERNAND LEGER
Portrait de Philippon, 1917
Watercolor
14 x 10½ inches

Other works by
CHIA, KIEFER, MATISSE,
NOLAND, PALADINO, ROTHKO

By appointment

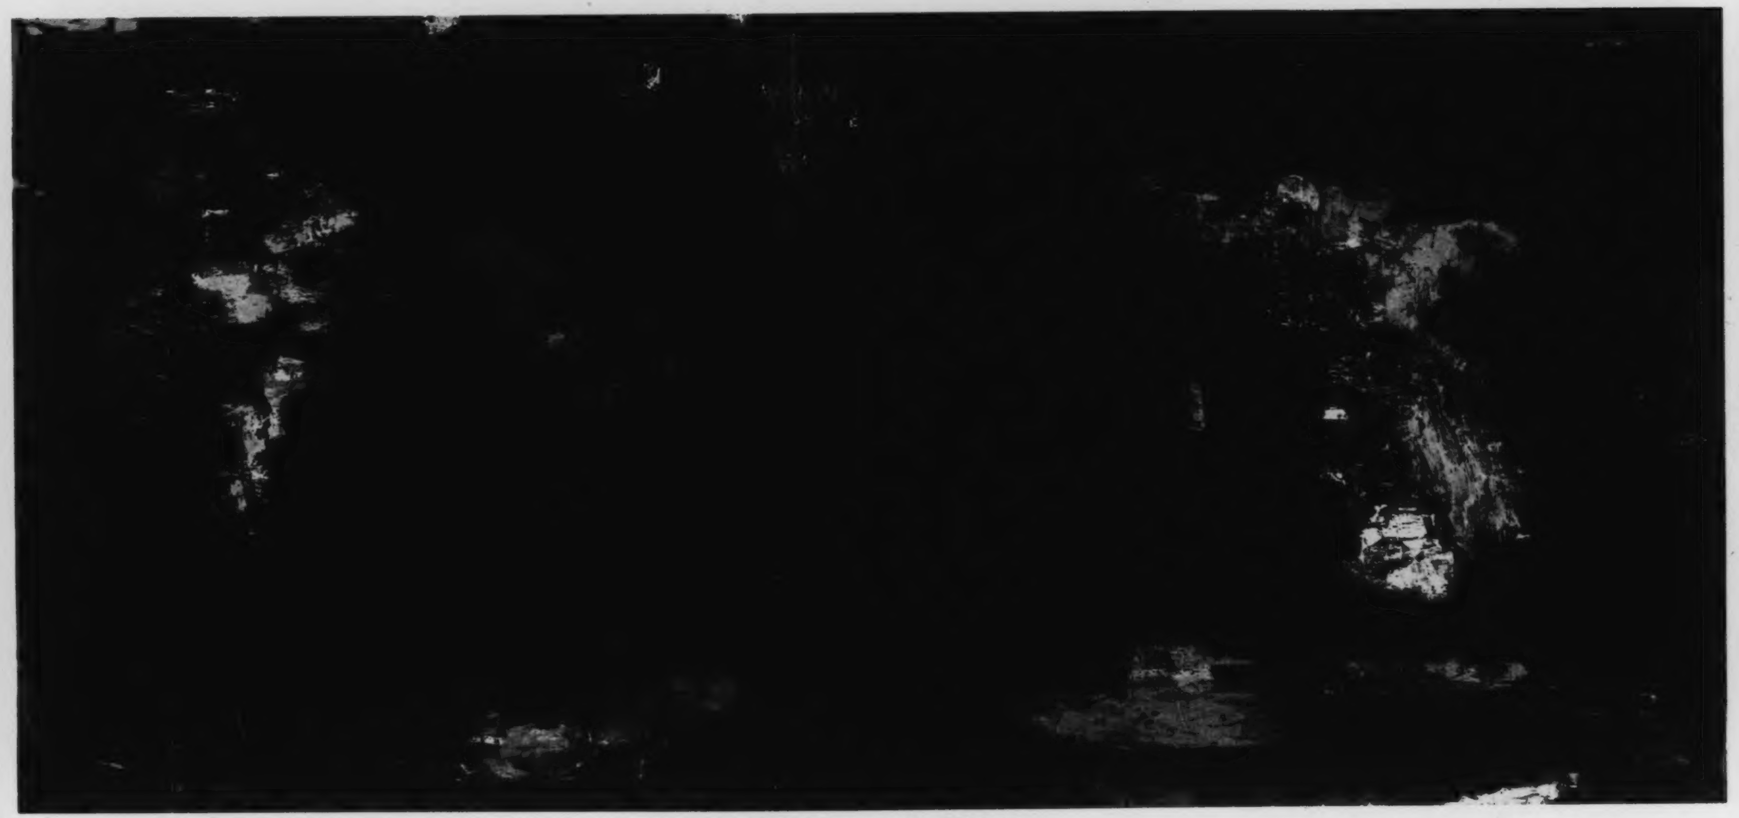
VIVIAN HORAN
40 East 62nd Street
New York, NY 10021
212 935-1682

MORRIS LOUIS
VEILS

October 5 - November 3

M. Knoedler & Co.
19 East 70 Street. New York 10021. Telephone (212) 794-0550

TOM GOLDENBERG



"River," 1983. Oil on canvas, 60 x 127½ inches

Recent Paintings · October 1 to 29

Salander-O'Reilly Galleries, Inc.

22 East 80 Street New York, NY 10021 Telephone (212) 879-6606

Gallery hours: Monday-Saturday, 10 to 5:30

VOL
7
1
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

ALAN FELTUS
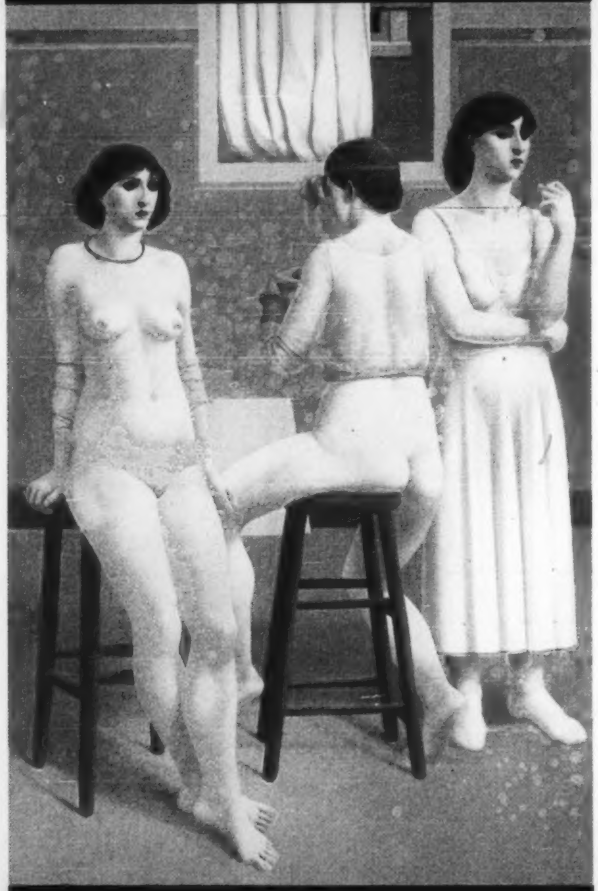
RECENT PAINTINGS



"Roman Window," oil on canvas, 70 x 48", 1983

OPENS OCTOBER 1ST

FORUM
GALLERY
1018 MADISON AVENUE • NEW YORK, N.Y. 10021
(212) 772-7666

Gene
Davis

Solo Exhibitions
1983-84 Season

Delaware Art Museum
Wilmington
October 14–November 27

Muscarelle Museum of Art
College of William and Mary
Williamsburg, Virginia
Solar Installation
Opening October 21

Washington Project for the Arts
Washington, D.C.
Child and Man: A Collaboration
November 18–December 10

Charles Cowles Gallery
New York, New York
January 14–February 4

University of Missouri Art Museum
Kansas City
January 27–February 26

Gene Davis is represented by
Charles Cowles Gallery
420 West Broadway, New York
212 925-3500

MARK DI SUVERO

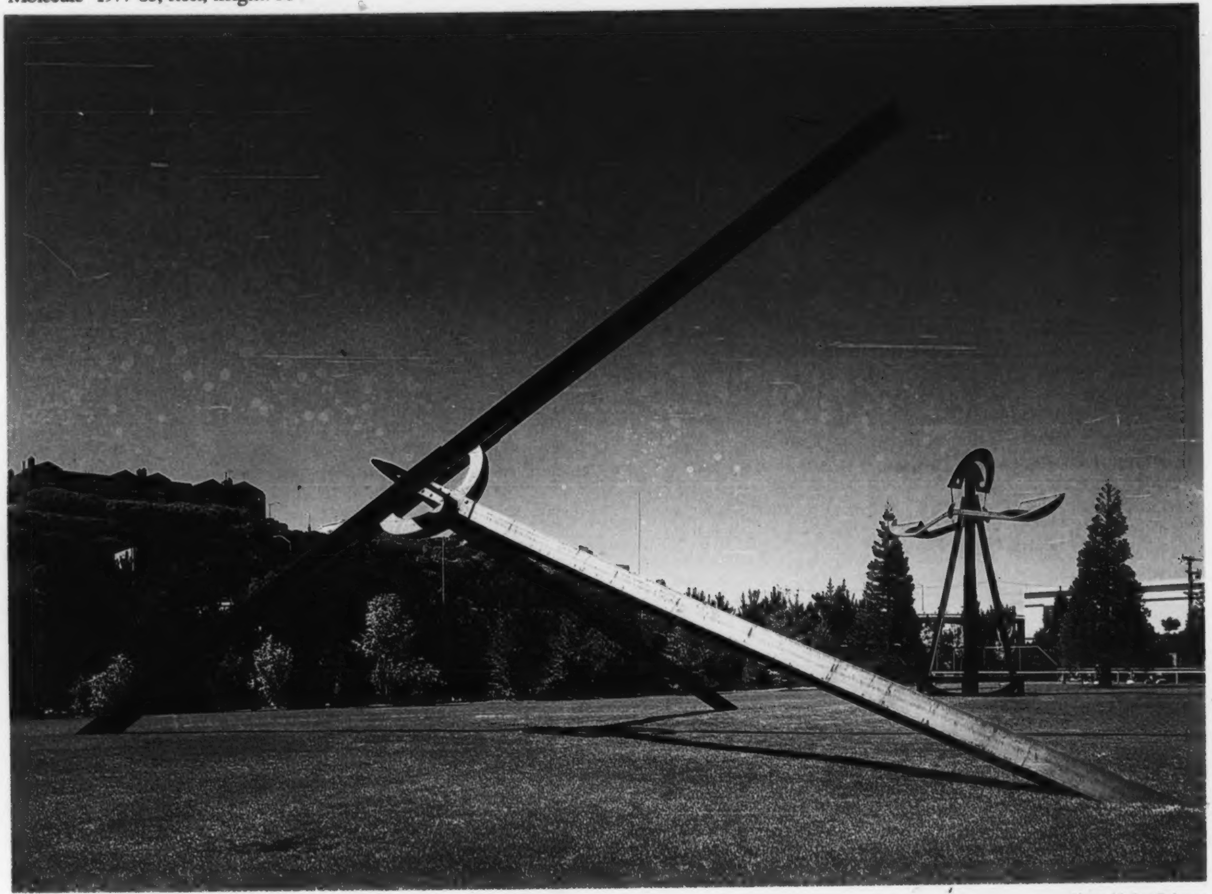
Major Outdoor Sculpture

October-November

Presented at Esprit Park, San Francisco

"Molecule" 1977-83, steel, height: 38'

"Miwok" 1981-82, steel, height: 28' 9"



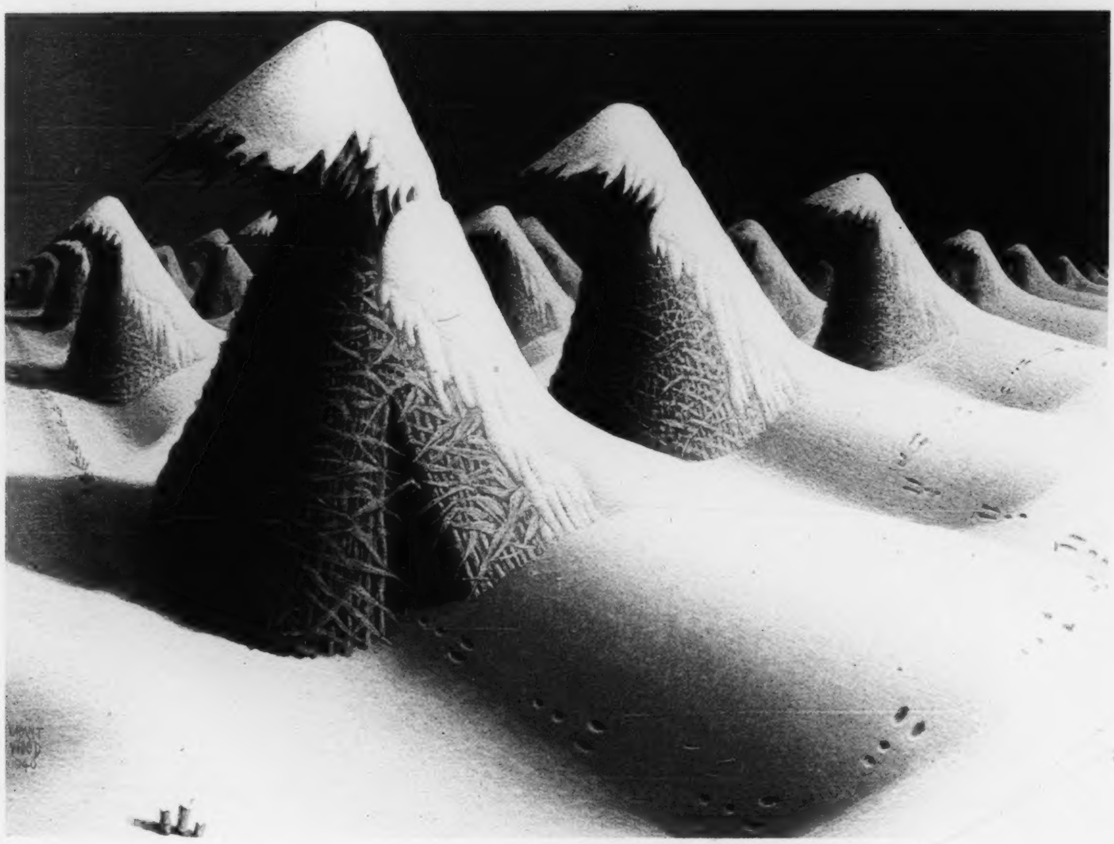
Illustrated catalogue: $8

Photo: M. Lee Fatherree

John Berggruen Gallery

228 Grant, San Francisco, 94108 (415) 781-4629

VOL
7
1
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI



Grant Wood (1892-1942)
January
Oil on masonite, 18 x 24 inches
Signed and dated Grant Wood 1940, lower left

JAMES MARONEY incorporated

129a East 74th Street, New York, N.Y. 10021 (212) 879-2252
Church Street, Roxbury, CT 06783 (203) 354-6783

Review of Books

ART & MUSIC

Paul Klee: Art & Music, by Andrew Kagan, Ithaca and London, Cornell University Press, 1983; 176 pp., $24.50.

Paul Klee, concertmaster. One can only speculate on who would have filled the vacuum in 20th-century art had these words appeared, as they might well have, on the roster of the Bern symphony during the 1920s and '30s. In the first few pages of virtually every book written on Klee, mention is made of the fact that Klee's parents were musicians, and that he himself was an accomplished violinist who revered Bach, Beethoven and above all Mozart. Andrew Kagan's Paul Klee: Art & Music is unique in that it is the first major study devoted exclusively to the profound effect that Klee's involvement with music had on his art.

"For Klee, a synthesis of music and art was tantamount to a full integration of his personality." This is the premise on which Kagan bases his analysis of the relationship between the evolution of Klee's theoretical ideas and the development of his art. Kagan's probing analysis of Klee's esthetic draws on the principle of 18th-century polyphonic music not simply as an occasional point of reference, but as a fundamental ideological framework. Focusing on the unique pictorial meanings that Klee gave to the concepts of polyphony and counterpoint, Kagan examines three categories of Klee's work: the transparent color compositions and "operatic paintings" of his mid-career and the brush drawings of his last years.

Despite Klee's training as a musician, he was initially reluctant to draw parallels between music and the visual arts. His skepticism about the usefulness of such analogies was allayed by exposure to the theories and paintings of his contemporaries. Kagan discusses, for example, how Delaunay's ideas about contrapuntal structures and simultaneous color themes encouraged Klee's tentative use of musical terminology to verbalize his own ideas about the expressive possibilities of autonomous line and color. Although Kagan considers the multiple, confluent influences on Klee's thought, he convincingly argues that Johann Josef Fux's Gradus ad Parnassum was the principal source of Klee's theories on pictorial polyphony, which the artist defined as "the simultaneity of several independent themes." According to Kagan, Fux's treatise on polyphonic compositon served as Klee's conceptual model for an art which, like late 18th-century music, would communicate "absolute" content by synthesizing structure and expression.

It is, of course, one thing to postulate a theoretical blueprint for such an art, and quite another to realize its potential. That Klee did so is a tribute to his persistence as well as his genius. Using judiciously chosen examples, Kagan traces Klee's experimental essays in the dynamics of linear movement, color harmony and tonal organization. Emphasis is given to Alter Klang (1925), its counterpart, New Harmony (1936), and Ad Parnassum (1932), Klee's quintessential polyphonic work. Kagan's interpretations of these pictures seem so indisputably right, in part because of the impeccable clarity with which he explains such elusive concepts as thematic color content, and in part because he so brilliantly resolves the provocative questions posed by Klee's visual and verbal puns.

Klee's "operatic paintings" are defined by Kagan as "narrow-line drawings superimposed on absolute color compositions." The definition is broad enough to embrace Polyphonic Architecture (1930) and the more cryptic and personal Mortality Wagon (1922), as well as works which refer directly or obliquely to specific operas. Kagan observes that Klee, by inclination a graphic artist, recognized in opera a model for lifting his poetic calligraphy above the level of whimsical and satirical illustration. Kagan's conventional view that operas are rarely more than purple poetry elevated by sublime music would be questioned by Joseph Kerman and Gary Schmidgall, who have written studies on opera as drama and literature as opera respectively. And this reviewer, who is admittedly an apologist for opera, also finds his attitude questionable. If such a quibble in no way disputes the acuity and validity of Kagan's thesis, it is also true that a view of opera that discovers greater complexity and sublety in the relationship between libretto and score makes a picture like The Bavarian Don Giovanni (1919) something much more than a witty self-portrait in the guise of an operatic persona.

The reader who is looking for omissions will find them. Kagan analyzes the influence of Cubism on Klee's concept of pictorial rhythm, yet he does not mention the paintings by Braque that make allusions to 18th-century music. He refers to, but does not quote from, Klee's reviews of concerts and operas. These are omissions of intention rather than error. Kagan's purpose in this book is not to demonstrate Klee's indebtedness to specific visual or musical sources. His goal, which is far more ambitious, is to plumb the depths of Klee's thought processes.

Kagan masterfully achieves this goal. His skill at elucidating the multileveled meanings of major works such as Ad Parnassum and Kettledrummer (1940) is unparalleled in Klee scholarship. Ad Parnassum is presented as a pictorial manifesto in which title and formal components eloquently express a complex matrix of ideas; the analogies drawn between Kettledrummer and Mozart's unfinished Requiem are at once deeply moving and illuminating. Kagan is equally successful at evoking color with language, thereby compensating for the absence of color reproductions other than the one on the dust jacket.

Kagan's book elaborates on his own previously published studies on Klee and music. Both the scholar and the general reader will be gratified to find that Kagan's formidable scholarly apparatus is abundantly evident in the weight and cogency of his arguments rather than in weighty prose. Digressions on peripheral topics like Klee's pictorial signs and the history of musical-pictorial analogies are contained in footnotes, which also serve as a rich source of bibliographical material. The measure of the book's importance for scholars lies in the fact that no serious work on Klee can be written in the future without taking Kagan's contributions into account. After reading Klee's own writings and Will Grohmann's monograph, the student of Klee should read Andrew Kagan's Paul Klee: Art & Music. —K. Porter Aichele

AMERICAN ART

John Singer Sargent, by Carter Ratcliff, New York, Abbeville Press, 1982; 254 pp., $85.

Thomas Eakins, by Lloyd Goodrich, Cambridge, Harvard University Press, 1982; vol. I, 336 pp.; vol. II, 357 pp.; $90.

Eakins's Portrait of Louis N. Kenton reveals the sitter in "an utterly private mood," not as he might wish to present himself to others.

There continues to be such a paucity of well-illustrated, generally reliable monographs about 19th-century American artists, that these new, expensive biographies of Eakins by Lloyd Goodrich and of Sargent by Carter Ratcliff are welcome. While they contain little new in terms of information or interpretation, both books are indispensable compilations of commentaries scattered throughout old magazines and out-of-print books. Curiously, though, the significance of the documents cited is sometimes ignored, and these lapses are indicative of a more general tendency on the part of both authors to leave too many questions unasked.

Goodrich, for example, includes Eakins's Jan. 30, 1875 letter describing his efforts to see the collection of A.T. Stewart in New York, which contained Pollice Verso, a history painting by Eakins's French teacher, Gérôme. The American painter's controversial Portrait of Dr. Gross, in which the subject is represented with scalpel in hand during a demonstration for medical students, was begun no more than two months later. Yet Goodrich does not mention how closely in concept Eakin's portrait follows Gérôme's picture, which depicts a gladiator appealing to spectators in the Colosseum to decide whether or not to spare his

VOL
7
1
ISS
9
OC
1983

EARLY TWENTIETH CENTURY
AMERICAN MASTERS
Exhibition: September 20th through October 29th, 1983

ARTHUR G. DOVE
(1880-1946)
Two Brown Trees
1932
Oil on canvas
20 × 28 inches
Signed l.r.: Dove

BARBARA MATHES GALLERY
851 Madison Avenue New York NY 10021 212/249-3600

UMI

defeated opponent the final blow of his sword. Stewart also owned a work by Gérôme's close associate Fortuny, The Selection of the Model, 1873, that evidently helped to inspire Eakins's next major painting, William Rush Carving his Allegorical Figure of the Schuylkill River. Considering such documentary evidence, the notion that Eakins was entirely independent-minded and immune to outside influence should have been more fully reconsidered.

Instead of using Eakins's original title for his Portrait of Dr. Gross, as Gordon Hendricks urged scholars to do, Goodrich refers to the painting as "The Gross Clinic." It is fundamentally important that Eakins conceived of the work as a portrait. Like Sargent, he was under no obligation to specialize in portraiture. Both painters were part of an important group of artists—including Degas (who was apparently never commissioned to do a portrait and never sold one), Whistler and Toulouse-Lautrec—all determined to transform portraiture and elevate it to the more serious status then associated with history painting. Writing in 1846, Baudelaire took Ingres as his benchmark of excellence and applauded those artists who tried to make "paintings" of mere "portraits." During the second half of the 19th century, portraiture became one of the most provocative formats for painters committed to realist art based on modern life. Manet regretted the fact that no painter had captured the essence of the Second Empire in portraits of its greatest female beauties to the same extent that Ingres had captured the soul of the entire bourgeoisie under Louis Philippe in his Portrait of M. Bertin, 1832. But van Gogh predicted that portraiture would be the preeminent art form of the future. The three important exhibitions of the history of portraiture held in Paris in 1878, 1883 and 1885 are a gauge of the intense interest then focused on that genre. Like Degas's The Orchestra of the Opera, 1868–69, which represents a bassoonist in his workaday role, Eakins's Portrait of Dr. Gross was intended as a redefinition of what a portrait might be.

The 20-year-old Sargent could have seen Eakins's portrait on display at the U.S. Army Post Hospital in the Centennial Exhibition during his family's visit to Philadelphia in 1876. A jury had refused to place it in the art pavilion. Although Dr. Gross had never bought the picture, which was undertaken at Eakins's request, he was designated as its owner in the exhibition catalogue. As Goodrich points out, only about two dozen of the nearly 250 portraits that Eakins produced were commissioned by the sitters. In effect, Eakins "commissioned" sitters, as Sargent often did, presumably to avoid any obligation to produce a straightforward likeness—that is, a mere "portrait." This system had the added advantage of leaving the artist free to choose his sitters and thus to portray, for history's sake, the most prominent individuals in his community.

Eakins's portraits often go beyond portraiture. For example, Professor Benjamin H. Rand, ostensibly a candid record of a chemist working at his desk, cluttered with scientific instruments, includes bizarre details: a rose (Goodrich wonders if it indicates the sitter's birthday), a pink scarf and a black cat. Was this last addition Rand's own pet, or did Eakins borrow the idea for the attribute from Manet (who was in contact with Gérôme during Eakins's student days, as Gerald Ackermann has pointed out) because it befitted a modern day sorcerer? And why is Rand's desk turned away from him? To understand Eakins's attitude toward portraiture, such questions should be taken into consideration. "The Thinker," 1900, which Eakins called Portrait of Louis N. Kenton, challenges the notion that sitters should be presented as they might present themselves to others. Here Eakins revealed an utterly private mood, one foreign to traditional portraiture. Whether or not Kenton ever bought this archly modern portrait is unclear, although he is identified as the owner in several exhibition catalogues from the period. Evidently Eakins looked upon his relationship to a sitter as a full partnership. After taking Walt Whitman's portrait, the painter explained to the poet, "Somehow I feel as if the picture was half yours, so I'm going to let it be regarded in that light."

Ratcliff, who maintains the longstanding bias that Sargent was generally a "reserved, gentlemanly purveyor of high-style portraiture," likewise disregards the bold departures from tradition in the works that he discusses. Yet Sargent's Dr. Pozzi at Home is as shocking as Eakins's Portrait of Dr. Gross. Did Pozzi want to be immortalized in the informality of a scarlet dressing robe tossed over an elegant ruffled shirt, as if he were a model for a Balzacian genre painting? Or did Sargent choose the costume and pose? If he did not consider it more than an ordinary likeness, why did Sargent decide to send this work to Brussels in 1884 for the avant-garde exhibition organized by Les Vingt? Should not Dr. Pozzi, and many other figure paintings by Sargent, be compared with Whistler's "portraits," which were conceived foremost as abstract decorative harmonies? (Unfortunately, both Ratcliff and Goodrich mostly ignore the enormous influence of Whistler upon their subjects.)

Is it at all likely that the painter Edward Boit commissioned Sargent to make a group portrait of his four daughters in which the features of one of them are entirely hidden in shadow? The other three stare out of the picture disconcertingly. The uneasy mood is heightened by the gigantic vases set on the threshold of a mysteriously dark room that Sargent selected as a background. Indeed, The Daughters of Edward D. Boit seems to prefigure "The Turn of the Screw," 1898, by Henry James, who admired Sargent's picture for "the sense it gives of instinct and knowledge playing together." Several of the sitters who agreed to pose for Sargent, including Mme. Gautreau and Robert Louis Stevenson, requested in vain that the finished works not be exhibited in public. Under the circumstances, the notion that Sargent was a facile technician who profited from subordinating his integrity to the wishes of clients should be abandoned.

The common view, maintained by Ratcliff, that Sargent "was never, strictly speaking, an Impressionist" also needs to be reconsidered. There are simply no grounds for placing Sargent's undated out-of-doors figure paintings several years after similar works by his friend Monet. Although exactly when they met is unknown, Monet and Sargent were coexhibitors at the Galerie Georges Petit in Paris in the spring of 1885 (not, as Ratcliff's text would have it, 1884). Around that time Sargent visited Giverny and started no fewer than four portraits of Monet. In one of them Monet is seated in his studio before a landscape that was painted in Monaco in the spring of 1884. In another Monet sits in a field working at an easel on which one of his earliest "Haystacks" (dated 1885 and today in the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston) can be recognized. Thus it is incorrect to suppose that Sargent painted this portrait around 1887–89. And although Ratcliff contends that Reapers in a Wheatfield, 1885, "is not simply a transcription of what Sargent saw," Monet's Haystacks, painted at the same Giverny locale, on a canvas of the same dimensions, indicates otherwise.

In Dr. Pozzi at Home, Sargent immortalizes his sitter in a costume appropriate for the model of a Balzacian genre painting

Working in England during the summer of 1885, Sargent surprised his friends by dedicating himself to experiments with Monet's manner or by making rapid oil sketches of randomly selected out-of-doors motifs. The most important result of these attempts to render instantaneous effects is an elaborate figure subject, Carnation, Lily, Lily, Rose, which took two years to finish because work sessions could last only a few minutes, while a particular gloaming light lasted. Sargent was never more Monet. Could Monet, who began to paint figures out-of-doors around 1886, have been challenged in turn by Sargent's undated Impressionist canvases of girls in boats and women with parasols? If, for Ratcliff, Sargent's pictures from this period are too tonal in structure to be called Impressionist, should Monet's corresponding works be disqualified on the same grounds?

Despite uncanny similarities of subject matter, composition and date, there seems to have been no significant exchange between Eakins and the Impressionists. But the controversial teaching methods employed by Eakins during his decade on the faculty of the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts indicate an awareness of pedagogical innovations endorsed by the likes of Courbet and Manet. The former presided in 1861 over a short-lived realist art school to which he brought a live bull for a model; Eakins had horses and cows pose for his students starting in 1880. Manet's Le déjeuner sur l'herbe, 1863, was,

VOL
7
1

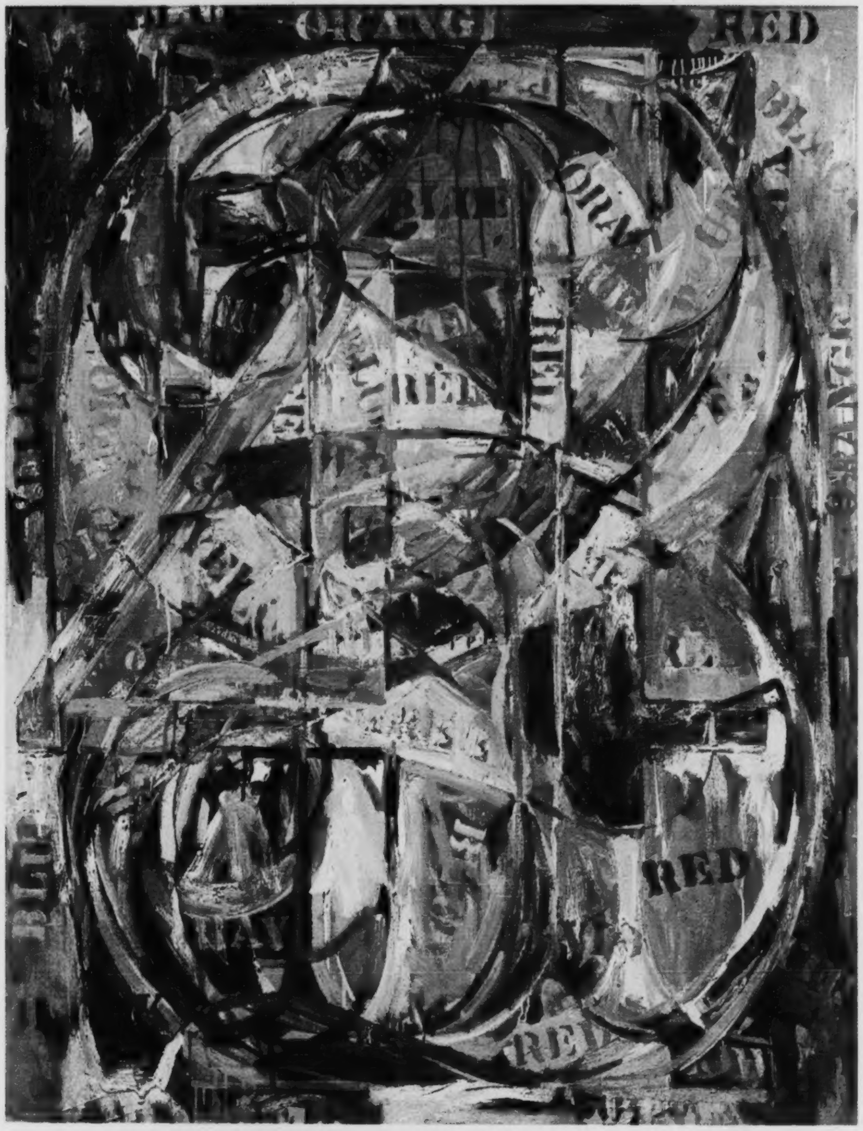
ISS
9

OC

1983

UMI

JASPER JOHNS



ORANGE
RED BLUE
RED
RED

Zero through Nine, 1961. Oil on canvas, 54 x 41½ in. (137 x 105 cm.)

james goodman gallery

1020 Madison Avenue New York, NY 10021
Tel (212) 772-2288

according to Judith Wechsler, in part a response to Lecoq de Boisbaudran's treatise on modern art instruction, L'Education de la mémoire pittoresque, 1862. Lecoq argued that students should work out-of-doors from models who would move about like antique fauns and suggest scenes depicted in old master paintings. Is it simply coincidence that Eakins adopted similar methods for paintings such as Arcadia and The Swimming Hole?

Although neither of these new monographs is a fully revealing portrait, they should draw wider attention to the extraordinary achievements of Eakins and Sargent. Ratcliff's text is a pleasure to read, and the 113 color plates—integrated with his text in exemplary fashion—comprise by far the most generous visual tribute to Sargent's genius ever published. It is nonetheless to be regretted that many of the plates were printed without borders so that the book's binding crops them. Moreover, two masterpieces (El Jaleo, 1882, and Gassed, 1918–19) were disfigured by the designers, who took the liberty of printing them across the gutter. As for Goodrich's impressive monograph, there seems little doubt it will be the standard account of Eakins from now on. Yet the wealth of reference information is very badly organized. No footnote numbers appear in the text (nor any keys to help refer to illustrations), although there are copious notes at the back of each volume, where each note is keyed with two numbers, that of the text page and that of the line on the page. A more confusing system is difficult to imagine. Equally frustrating is the decision to arrange the extensive bibliography according to the titles of journals rather than the names of authors. It is to be hoped that the publishers can compensate for these shortcomings in the third volume, slated as a catalogue raisonné.

—Charles F. Stuckey

PHOTOGRAPHY

Photography and Architecture: 1839–1939, by Richard Pare, introduction by Phyllis Lambert, catalogue by Catherine Evans Inbusch and Marjorie Munsterberg, Callaway Editions, 1982; 282 pp., $65.

Once the architectural drawing was rediscovered as an eminently collectible artifact, it was inevitable that the architectural photograph would not be far behind. The static nature of architecture has made it a favorite subject of photographers ever since the early days of Talbot and Daguerre. In 1974, a systematic assemblage of architectural photographs was begun by Phyllis Lambert for her Canadian Center for Architecture, whose collection now numbers some 25,000 photographic images. Lambert (née Bronfman) is an architect and the Seagram's whiskey heiress who was responsible for her father's commissioning Mies van der Rohe to design the company's famous Park Avenue headquarters. Her founding and directing of the Montreal-based architecture center—which also collects architectural drawings and books, and preserves architectural archives—may turn out to be an endeavor of no less historical significance.

The 148 photographs published in this ravishingly produced volume (handsomely designed by Eleanor Caponigro) provide a survey not only of the center's holdings but of the history of the genre as well. Arranged geographically (and, within each section, chronologically), the selection contains many well-known works by well-established figures. But there are also plates by more obscure artists (such as the photographer with the positively W.C. Fieldsian name of Captain Linnaeus Tripe), and a few images that are as illuminating as they are unfamiliar.

Roger Fenton's shimmeringly atmospheric view of the Houses of Parliament under construction in 1858, for example, falls halfway between Turner and Whistler not only in time but in style. August Sander's Rooftops with Cologne Cathedral sets the squat roof forms of a small medieval church against the graceful spires of the Gothic cathedral—imbuing the former with all the bürgerlich stolidity of his rivetingly impassive human portraits. And Walker Evans's 1935 photograph of an interior at Belle Grove Plantation in Louisiana is as eloquent and haunting a reflection of architecture's fragility as the Sander photo is an emblem of its endurance.

The book's 55-page catalogue raises Photography and Architecture far above the level of a coffee-table volume. Each artist is represented by a brief but comprehensive biographical sketch, and each photograph is discussed in equally pithy and informative entries. Compiled and written by Catherine Evans Inbusch and Marjorie Munsterberg, this valuable effort is the result of intensive archival research and contains much new information not otherwise available in print; it is a scholarly achievement of the highest order.

Unfortunately, some of the photographs selected for the volume are of only tangential architectural content, and the specific choices from some large and important oeuvres—especially that of Eugène Atget—have not been very well made. Atget's great 1924 photograph Montmartre, rue du Mont-Cenis is an infinitely more important artistic and architectural document than the three Atgets reproduced. Moreover, the arbitrary cut-off point of 1939 deprives us of significant work both by major figures already established and by currently active photographers—such as Yukio Futagawa, Serge Hambourg, Cervin Robinson, Stephen Shore and Tim Street-Porter—whose ultimate inclusion in future histories of this sort seems assured. A truly vital collection must face the risk of the contemporary, and the lack of that, more than anything, gives this otherwise admirable book the somewhat musty air of a Victorian parlor album.

—Martin Filler

Aaron Siskind: Pleasures and Terrors, by Carl Chiarenza, foreward by James L. Enyeart, Boston, Little, Brown and Co. in association with the Center for Creative Photography (a New York Graphic Society Book), 1982; 283 pp., $60.

Since the late 1940s Aaron Siskind has limited the subjects of his photographs to graffiti, walls, stones, seaweed and statues cropped so that their identity is barely recognizable. The viewer is compelled to regard Siskind's photographs not as representations, but as abstract compositions resembling the paintings of Franz Kline, Willem de Kooning or Cy Twombly. Siskind was in fact friendly with these and other painters. Not surprisingly, his work has often been attacked as nothing more than a photographic imitation of Abstract Expressionism, or as an updated version of a long-discredited Pictorialism.

In his new critical biography of Siskind, Carl Chiarenza responds to such attacks. He argues that Siskind couldn't have imitated his friends' work because his own abstractions predated theirs by several years. Indeed, on the basis of Chiarenza's documentation it seems unquestionable that Siskind's photographs belong in any future history of Abstract Expressionism. Siskind was the only photographer to show with them at the landmark 9th Street show in 1951; he assiduously promoted their work when he moved to Chicago to teach at the Institute of Design. Sadly, Siskind's confreres never returned his respect; for instance, his close friend Mark Rothko rarely bothered even to look at his photographs.

The real question about Siskind's work is not one of influence but of esthetic coherence. Does a photograph that looks like a painting mean the same thing as a painting? Both Siskind, in his work, and Chiarenza seem to assume that it does. Ironically, Chiarenza, writing about photography, deploys a formalism far narrower than that of the critics who championed Abstract Expressionism. Critics like Harold Rosenberg justified abstract painting not just as formal compositions but as visible records of the painter's labor—as representations, in effect, of the creative process. Siskind's photographs, however, don't contain any traces of the labor that went into their making. Although they often reveal a process of creation—the way an abstract pattern has been created by the workings of wind or water or by a hand scrawling graffiti—the creative process Siskind records is not his own. Chiarenza justifies the photographs as pure formal compositions, or as Stieglitzian "equivalents" of inner feeling, thereby missing the point about serious abstract art.

But if Chiarenza misunderstands such critical issues, he does provide as comprehensive a view of Siskind's life and career as we are likely to get, along with a well-chosen and well-printed selection of his work. Chiarenza, who published a brief and pithy account of Siskind's early career in a 1978 issue of the Massachusetts Review, here draws on extensive interviews with Siskind, friends and family to give a remarkably detailed picture of the photographer's upbringing, education, political involvements, marriages and sex life, as well as his art. If Chiarenza has any one thesis about Siskind's pictures, it is that, beneath their apparently impersonal abstraction, they are charged with the anguish and desire of the photographer's inner life. This seems plausible, but Chiarenza's generalized and archetypal interpretations don't really draw the specific connections to Siskind's life that would prove his point.

—Pepe Karmel

Contributors

K. Porter Aichele, who has previously written and lectured on Klee, is on the administrative staff of Bryn Mawr College . . . Martin Filler is editor of House & Garden and frequently writes on architecture and design . . . Pepe Karmel is a New York free-lance critic who writes on photography . . . Charles F. Stuckey, art historian and curator, was a member of the exhibition staff for the current show, "Manet."

VOL
71
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

Fine American Indian Art

Classic Navajo man's shoulder blanket, Serape style, 1850–1860, indigo handspun and bayeta, 79 x 49¼ inches.

Auction: Saturday, October 22 at 10:15 am and 2 pm.

Exhibition opens Saturday, October 15.

Highlights include five Classic Saltillo Serapes, formerly in the New World Arts Collection; a 17th/18th century Iroquois burden strap, a Tlingit copper rattle, Pre-Historic and Historic Eskimo wood and ivory sculpture from the Collection of Jay C. Leff, Uniontown, Pennsylvania; and an 18th/19th century Eastern Woodlands burl wood bowl from an Illinois Private Collection.

Illustrated catalogue available for $14 by mail. Order by sale no. 5096 and send your check to Sotheby's Subscriptions, Dept. AO96ME, P.O. Box 4020, Woburn, MA 01801.

Inquiries: Ellen Napiura, (212) 472-3521. Sotheby Parke Bernet Inc., 1334 York Avenue at 72nd Street, New York, N.Y. 10021.

SOTHEBY'S
Founded 1744

---

10 SEPTEMBER TO 22 OCTOBER

FRANCIS PICABIA

MARY BOONE
MICHAEL WERNER
GALLERY, 417 WEST BROADWAY, NEW YORK 431-1818

LAURENCE DREIBAND
DOG DRAWINGS
November 4-26
JANUS GALLERY
8000 Melrose Avenue Los Angeles

VOL 71 ISS 9 OC 1983 UMI

Jeffrey Hoffeld & Company, Inc.
1020 Madison Avenue New York, NY 10021 Tel (212) 734-5505

JOSEPH STELLA Still Life with Apples and Shell, c. 1912. Oil on canvas, 12¾ x 17¾ inches

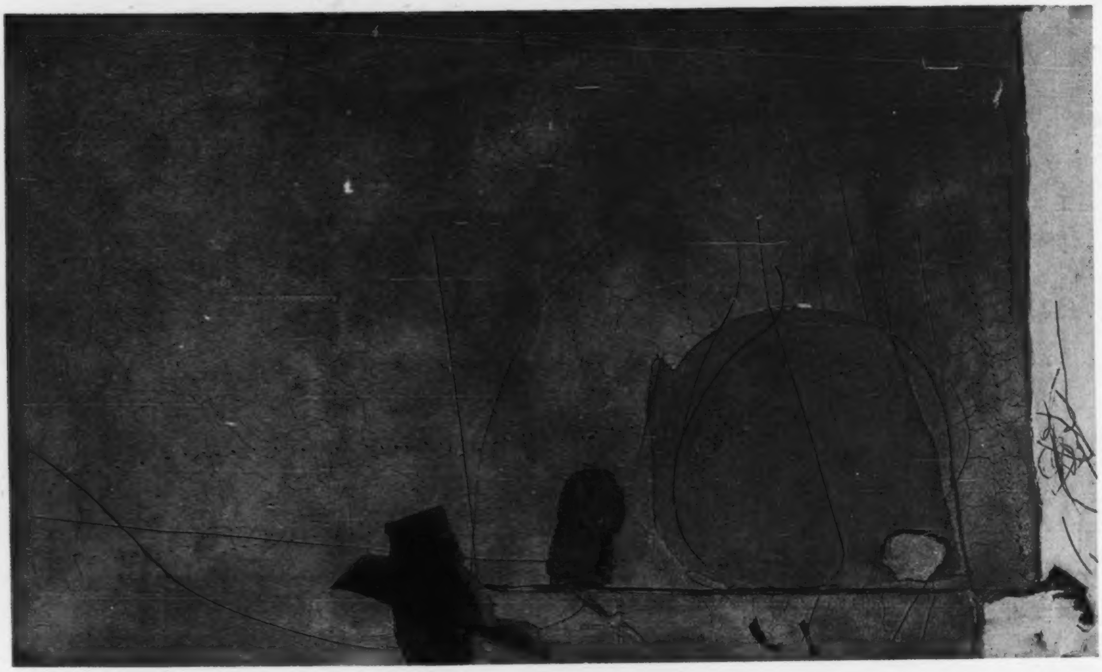
Etchings
& Woodblocks

Vito Acconci
Robert Barry
Iain Baxter
Robert Bechtle
Günter Brus
Chris Burden
Daniel Buren
John Cage
Francesco Clemente
Richard Diebenkorn
Joel Fisher
Dan Flavin
Terry Fox
Hamish Fulton
Hans Haacke
Joan Jonas
Jannis Kounellis
Joyce Kozloff
Robert Kushner
Sol LeWitt
Robert Mangold
Brice Marden
Tom Marioni
Steve Reich
Edward Ruscha
Italo Scanga
Pat Steir
Wayne Thiebaud
David True
William T Wiley

Crown Point Press

1555 San Pablo
Oakland CA 94612
415-835-5121

545 Broadway
New York NY 10012
212-226-5476



Antoni Tapies, "Peinture bleue-gris", mixed media, 1956, 97 x 162 cm.

GALERIE RUDOLF ZWIRNER
ALBERTUSSTRASSE 18
5 COLOGNE 1
49 (221) 23 58 37

GALLERIA PAOLO SPROVIERI
3, PIAZZA DEL POPOLO
ROME
39 (6) 361 09 75

ARP BALLA BRAUNER DUBUFFET ERNST FONTANA FAUTRIER YVES KLEIN
LEGER MAGRITTE PICABIA PICASSO SCHWITTERS STELLA TWOMBLY

VOL
7
1
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

Michael Heizer

New Work

October 15–November 26

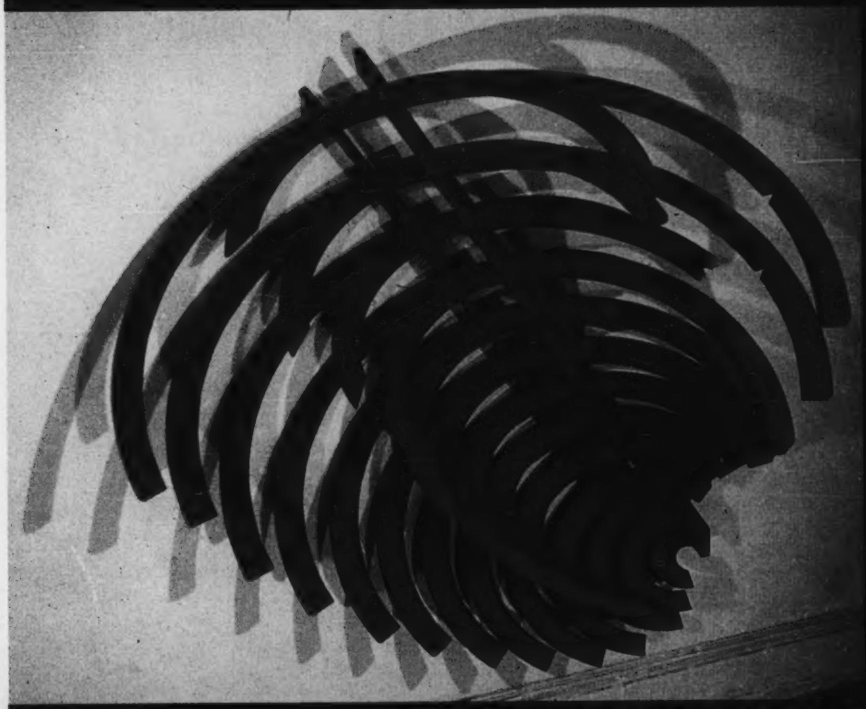
XAVIER FOURCADE INC.

36 East 75th Street New York, New York 10021 212 535-3980

"Pompidou Trois" mixed media, acrylic and oil 120" × 192" (poster available)

SHEILA ELIAS

OCTOBER 11 – NOVEMBER 11 ALLPORT GALLERY 126 POST STREET SAN FRANCISCO 94108 (415) 398-2787



D-RED II, 1983, PAINTED WOOD, 56"H. x 56"W. x 44"D.

HEIDE FASNACHT

RECENT SCULPTURES
MAQUETTES
AND DRAWINGS

OCT 11–NOV 5

VANDERWOUDE TANANBAUM
24 E 81 STREET, NEW YORK
212.879.8200

SHIRLEY WIITASALO: THE DREAM GOES ON (1981).
OIL ON CANVAS, 153 x 183 CM. PHOTO COURTESY OF ART GALLERY OF ONTARIO.

FICTION

AN EXHIBITION OF RECENT WORKS BY

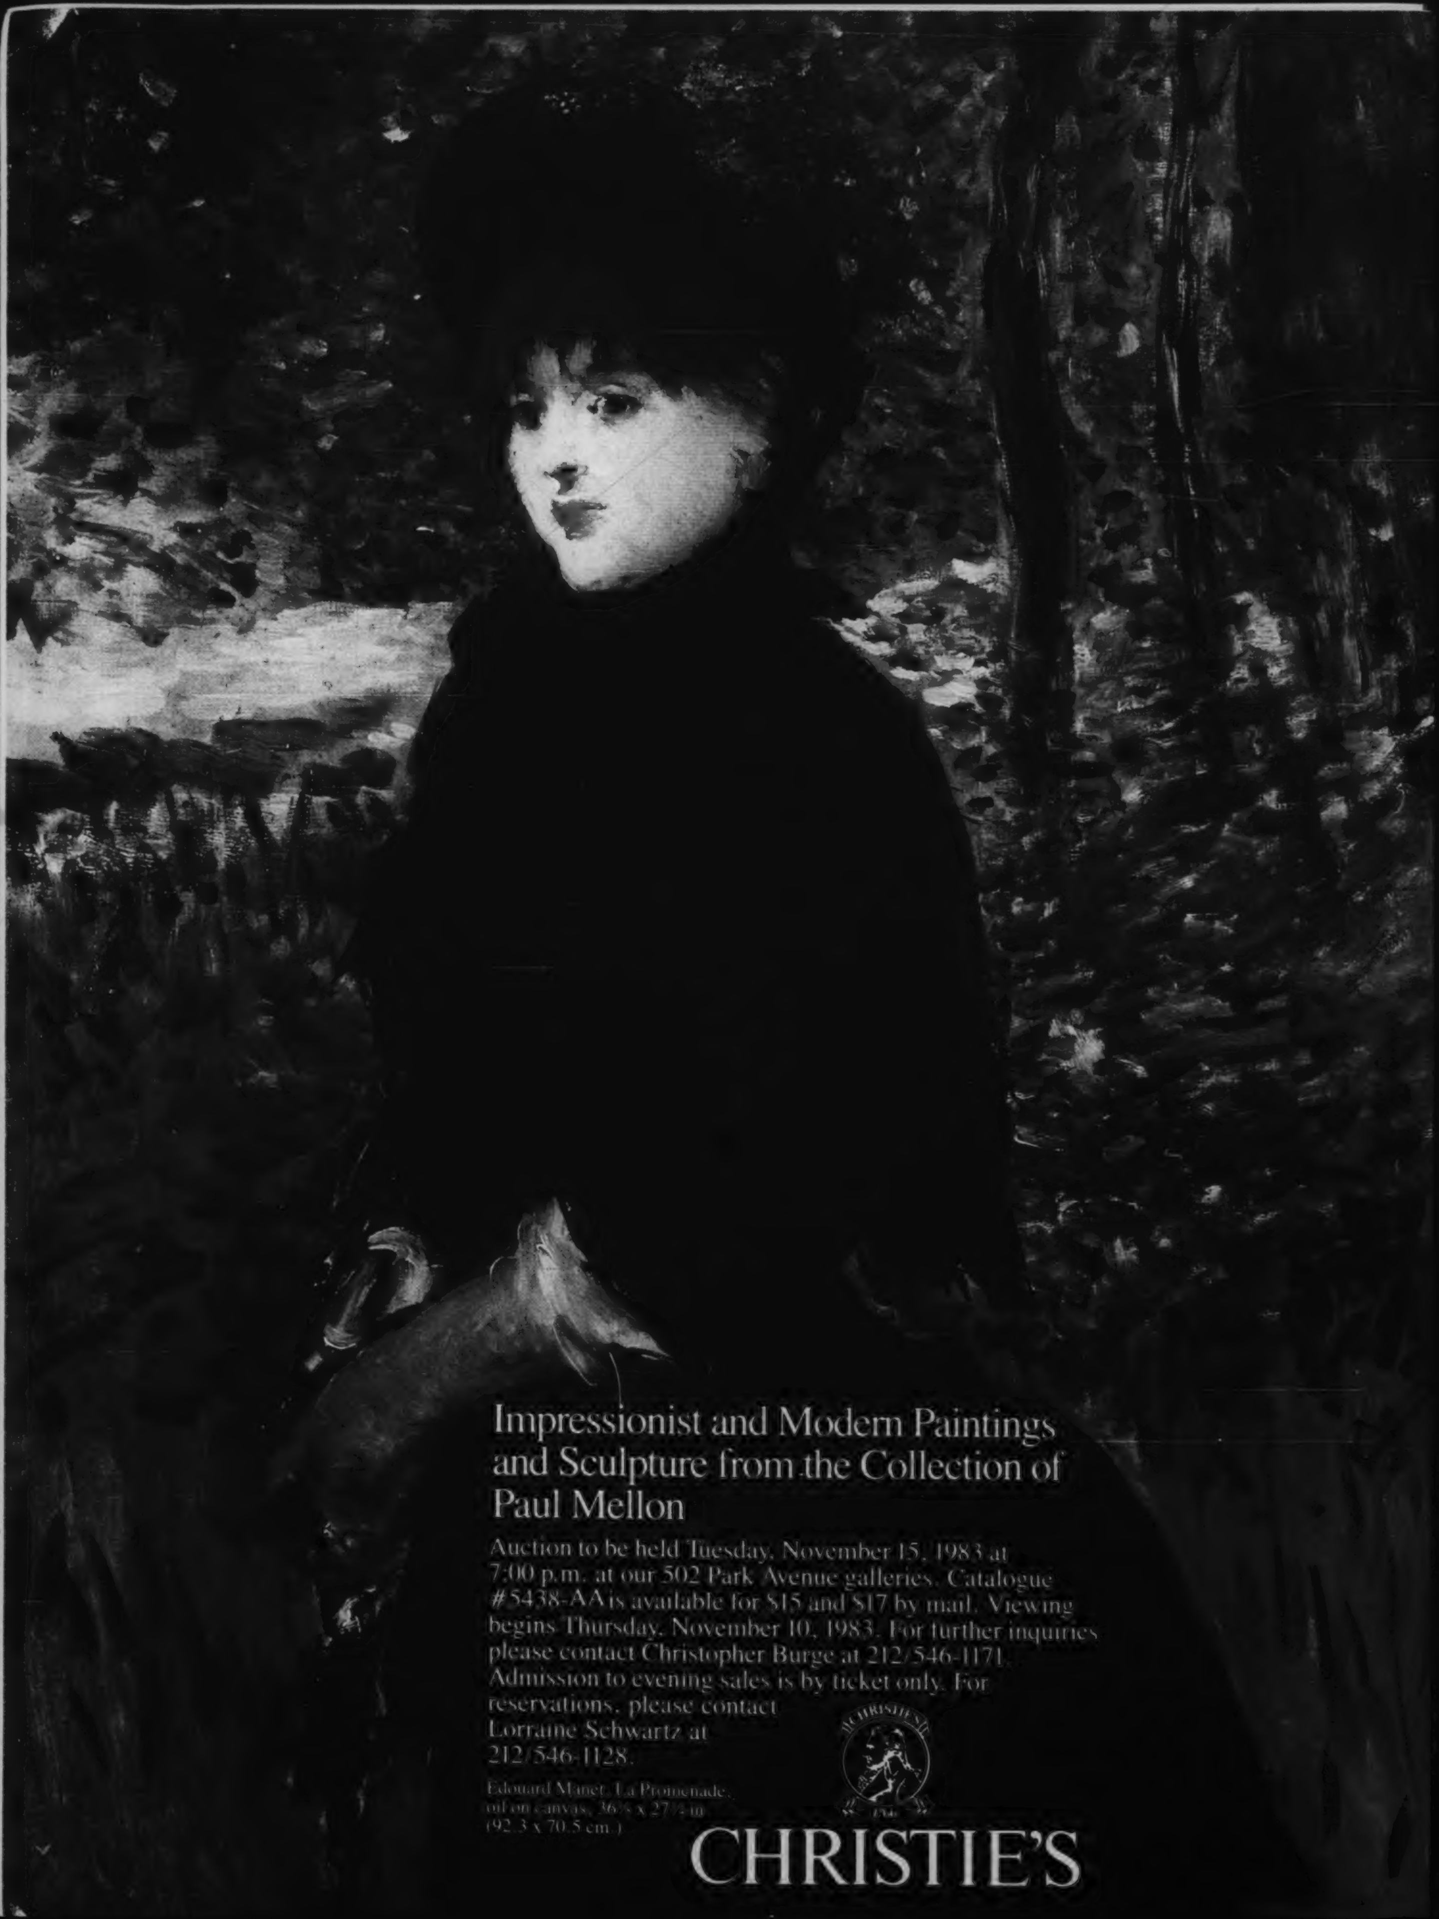
IAN CARR-HARRIS
GENERAL IDEA
MARY JANITCH
SHIRLEY WIITASALO

CURATED BY ELKE TOWN
FOR THE ART GALLERY OF ONTARIO, TORONTO

OCTOBER 22–NOVEMBER 19

49TH PARALLEL
CENTRE FOR CONTEMPORARY CANADIAN ART
49E PARALLELE
CENTRE D'ART CONTEMPORAIN CANADIEN
420 WEST BROADWAY NEW YORK 10012
212 925-8349

VOL
7
1
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI



Impressionist and Modern Paintings and Sculpture from the Collection of Paul Mellon

Auction to be held Tuesday, November 15, 1983 at 7:00 p.m. at our 502 Park Avenue galleries. Catalogue #5438-AA is available for $15 and $17 by mail. Viewing begins Thursday, November 10, 1983. For further inquiries please contact Christopher Burge at 212/546-1171. Admission to evening sales is by ticket only. For reservations, please contact Lorraine Schwartz at 212/546-1128.

Edouard Manet, La Promenade, oil on canvas, 36⅜ x 27¾ in (92.3 x 70.5 cm.)

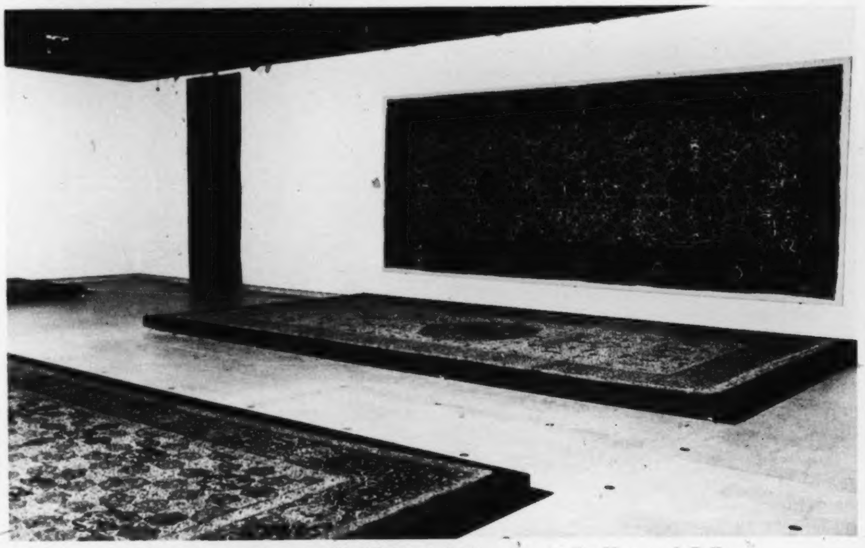
CHRISTIE'S

Report from London

BY JOHN McEWEN

Highlights of last season: carpets, Cubists, a new wing for the V & A, as well as a number of impressive solo exhibitions by some important British painters.

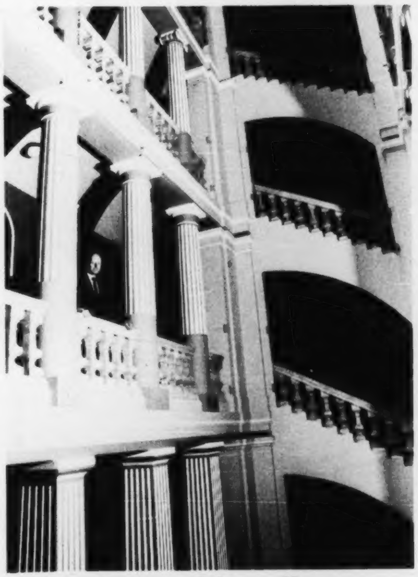


"The Eastern Carpet in the Western World," installation view at the Hayward Gallery.

The most important recent addition to exhibition space in London was the opening, in March, of the Victoria and Albert Museum's Henry Cole Wing: an addition of one acre of ground to an existing 12, the largest extension of the museum since before World War I. The new wing is a £1.5-million conversion of a quite idiosyncratic Victorian building—whose somewhat unfunctional grand staircase has been retained as a feature in itself—rather than the £2.5-million new building that was originally planned. It is a compromise, but nevertheless has afforded much useful new space. It has allowed for a new print room, a special top-lit gallery for the display of the museum's famous collection of Constable's paintings, a small but permanent gallery for photographic exhibitions (the first of its kind in Britain) and in general much more room for the museum's picture collections, which have been stored or ill-displayed until now. The wing is named after the museum's first director, an energetic man who also devised penny postage, the Public Records Office and was a prime mover of the Great Exhibition of 1851—an enterprise whose proceeds allowed the Victoria and Albert Museum to be built.

Museum Highlights

The first six months of the year provided several exhibitions of art-historical importance. Tour stops were made at the Royal Academy by "Murillo," better received than many had anticipated, and "Treasures of Ancient Nigeria," a case of the shock of the old. The Tate successfully upgraded the reputations of two 18th-century British artists (by birth Welsh and Irish): Richard Wilson, the "father" of English landscape painting; and James Barry, the "mad" history painter. Barry's reputation particularly benefited from reassessment, not least because further attention was drawn to his overlooked masterpiece, the heroic mural cycle illustrating "The Progress of Human Culture" in the Great Room of the Royal Society of Arts. This little-advertised London showpiece places him in the first rank of Western painters of the late 18th century. Though Barry's latter days were passed in a London house regularly festooned with dead cats and pelted with stones by the local urchins, he was granted the noble privilege of burial in St. Paul's. Of art-historical exhibitions which did not travel, the most outstanding were the Arts Council's "The Eastern Carpet in the Western World, from the 15th to the 17th Century" at the Hayward Gallery, and the Tate's summer spectacular "Essential Cubism."



The Great Staircase of the new Henry Cole Wing, Victoria and Albert Museum.

"The Eastern Carpet in the Western World"

The installation of the carpet masterpieces at the Hayward was itself a work of art—only Ellsworth Kelly's retrospective managed to exploit the awkward spaces of this building so successfully. The exhibition constituted the centerpiece of numerous auctions and shows heralding the first Conference on Oriental Carpets to be held in Britain. It was complemented by two other public exhibitions: "Carpets in Paintings" at the National Gallery and "Carpet Magic" at the Barbican Art Gallery. Both were excellent—the first devoted more attention to historical matters, the second to the practical questions raised at the Hayward. At the Hayward itself, spectacle was, quite rightly, the first consideration of curators David Sylvester and Donald King. Screens and a low light level (for the preservation of the dyes) turned the gallery into an Aladdin's cave of spotlit corners and tunnel vistas. When carpets were first introduced into Europe they were usually draped for show on tables or hung from windowsills and balconies, so to hang them as "paintings" for modern display—as was done in numerous cases at the Hayward—made historical as well as visual sense. Two carpets made for the Medici 400 years ago—and discovered rolled up and perfectly preserved in a storeroom of the Pitti Palace earlier this year—were on display for the first time and naturally attracted public and scholarly attention. However, these were carpets created mainly to advertise the wealth of their owners, and they were consequently not in the same imaginative class as the contemplative masterpieces from Persia or the subtly inventive ones from Moorish Spain.

VOL 7 1 ISS 9 OC 1983 UMI

Peter Phillips: Entanglement Series: Poseidon, 1982-83, mixed mediums, 100 by 71 by 11 inches.

"Essential Cubism"

"Essential Cubism 1907–1920," selected by Douglas Cooper, one of the great authorities on this art, and Gary Tinterow, now on the staff of the Metropolitan Museum, was the first survey of Cubism ever shown in England and undoubtedly the most important anywhere since Cooper's U.S. traveling exhibition "The Cubist Epoch" in 1970–71. Much narrower in its selection than "The Cubist Epoch," it was for some too much a question of taste, for others too educational in its comparisons. In any case, the overwhelming emphasis was on Picasso and Braque, with a fairly obvious edge frequently given to the latter. Above all, the show proved to be about collecting—as might have been expected, overseen as it was by a famous collector. Fifty percent of the exhibition consisted of private loans and the catalogue introduction on the subject of the early collectors is a pioneer study. Frenchmen were not among these collectors, and Cooper rubs salt in this wound by downplaying the "Cubist" artists the French supported at the time. Gleizes, Marcoussis, Villon and Delaunay were allotted a combined total of 14 works (and were included only to demonstrate that they were not Cubists) as against, for instance, 75 by Picasso. Picasso, Gris, Braque and, to a lesser extent, Léger, Laurens and Lipchitz were offered as the "true" Cubists. However, only the superb roomful of Analytic Cubist masterpieces by Picasso and Braque seemed to bear the hallmark of the essential Cubist vision.The pictorial and sculptural evidence of the rest of the exhibition, even if one accepted the selectors' conclusion that Cubism was "not a manner" but "a state of mind," ended by mitigating the certainty of the title. Both Picasso and Braque were shown to have retreated from the brink of the abstract, the one into sculpture and the other into trompe l'oeil, leaving Gris to popularize Cubism as design—he is surely the father of Art Deco—and leaving Léger untouched.

Contemporary Highlights; Peter Phillips

Contemporary art continued to be most interestingly sustained at the Whitechapel Art Gallery, which the energetic direction of Nicholas Serota has established once again as a venue of international reputation. Barry Flanagan's Venice Biennale show, Bruce McLean's post-Berlin sculptures and paintings, Terry Atkinson's post-Art-&-Language satirical pictures and Malcolm Morley's retrospective (on its way to America for late 1983–84)—all proved strong contributions by homebased or homebred artists. The most popular London show by a contemporary artist of any nationality was undoubtedly Peter Blake's retrospective at the Tate, attended by nearly 60,000 visitors in six weeks. However, the most interesting exhibition in terms of novelty and evolution was the retrospective of Peter Phillips's paintings, titled "retroVISION, 1960–1983," which ended up at the Barbican Art Gallery in July and August after traveling throughout Britain. As with the recent retrospectives of Phillips's contemporaries Allen Jones and Patrick Caulfield, the exhibition was initiated by the Walker Art Gallery (director, Timothy Stevens) in Liverpool and overseen and catalogued by Marco Livingstone, an American who is currently deputy director of the Museum of Modern Art, Oxford. At 43 Phillips has long been included in the histories and dictionaries of contemporary art as one of the most significant contributors to British Pop. Always the most technically experimental of painters, he has chosen, perhaps not surprisingly, to live in that most technologically advanced of European countries, Switzerland, for the greater part of his career, with the result that much of the work in the exhibition had not been previously seen in England. His cosmopolitanism was revealed to have served him well, sustaining the intercultural and interdisciplinary freedom of his work—that very curiosity and lack of snobbish retrenchment that the "Pop" label is meant to symbolize. No waywardness or provincialism interferes; Phillips can now arguably boast the most determined evolution of any English painter of his generation or, for that matter, of any painter of his artistic persuasion internationally. But while he has investigated the assumptions of Pop more rigorously than most, the label proves inadequate as a description of his work. It would be more accurate to describe him as a collagist, that most playful of artistic beings, because a certain playfulness—a taste for games, irony and the paradox of puns—has constantly enlivened his formal inquiries. Images stripped of context are matched by juxtapositions of separate materials or elements, most radically in the constructed paintings that brought his Barbican exhibition to its up-to-date climax. These really are constructed paintings—as opposed to painted constructions—and they add a new dimension to the Picassoesque tradition of three-dimensional picture making, showing Phillips's historical awareness to new and potent advantage.

Deanna Petherbridge and Chris Baker

Nicholas Serota's most distinguished postwar predecessor as director of the Whitechapel was Bryan Robertson, who since 1980 has been responsible for the visual arts program of the Warwick Arts Trust—a privately financed, nonprofit cultural center in Pimlico. Here Robertson has arranged exhibitions to the benefit of some of the most deserving of British artists, who, for various reasons, have been frustrated by London's chronic shortage of decent exhibition space. Large enough—three rooms and a hallway—to encourage an expansive view, the Warwick Arts Trust has largely devoted itself to mini-retrospectives for mid-career artists. The shows have been documented by a series of expertly produced catalogues—an archive of information in themselves. Two artists that Robertson has brought to particularly timely attention over the past six months are Deanna Petherbridge and Chris Baker.

> The Warwick Arts Trust in Pimlico arranges shows of artists who, for various reasons, are frustrated by London's chronic shortage of decent exhibitions space.

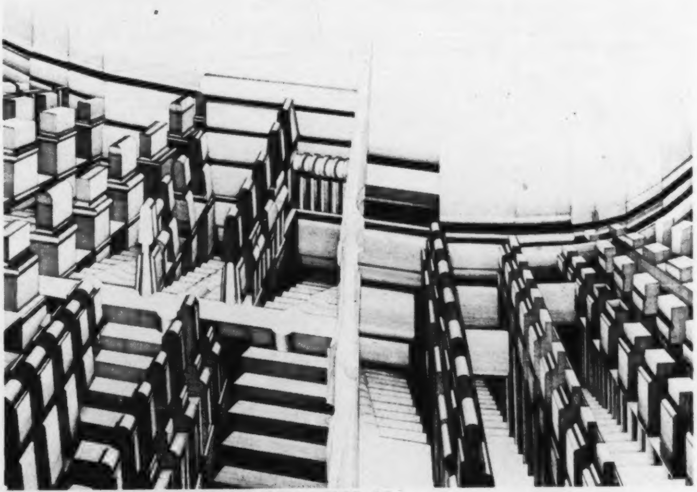
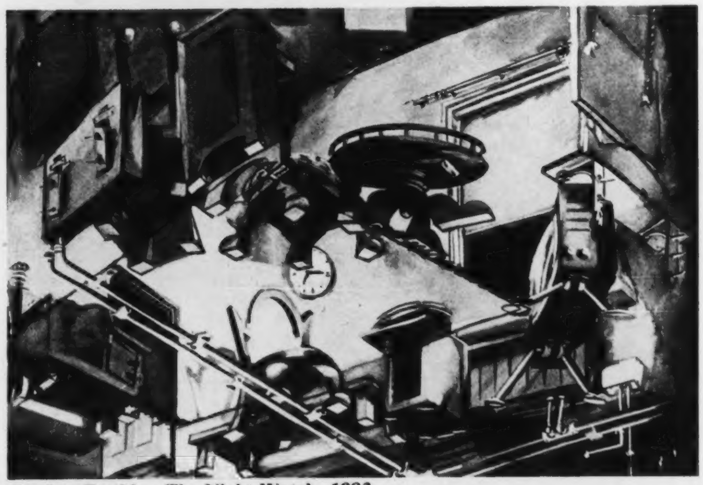
Chris Baker:* Vent II, *1982, charcoal and acrylic on paper, 40 by 54 inches.



Deanna Petherbridge:* Step Sinister, *1982–83, pen and ink on paper, 19 11/16 by 27 9/16 inches.



Stephen Farthing:* The Night Watch, *1983, encaustic on cotton duck, 6 by 9 feet.

Deanna Petherbridge's exhibition began in Manchester at the Athenaeum (Gallery of Modern Art) to mark the end of her three month stint as artist-in-residence there. It was a retrospective, the first of her 20-year career, with a particular accent on recent work (the normal bias of Warwick Arts Trust shows). Petherbridge's mature work—she began as a painter—has been in ink on paper. It is often on a large scale—some of her serial pieces on epic themes have been several yards in length—and, until recently, it has been drawn with mathematical instruments. In the most recent work this hard mechanical quality has been softened in many instances by the use of wash and sepia. Petherbridge is both a good

VOL 71 ISS 9 OC 1983 UMI

AUCTION CALENDAR:

OCTOBER

SATURDAY 1	Art Noveau and Art Deco
WEDNESDAY 5	Important English and Continental Silver, Objects of Vertu and Russian Works of Art
THURSDAY 13	Important American Furniture, Silver and Decorative Arts
FRI 14 & SAT 15	The Contents of Benjamin Ginsburg, Antiquary
MONDAY 24	Fine Watches, Clocks and Scientific Instruments
TUES 25 & WED 26	Important Jewels
THURSDAY 27	19th Century Paintings
SATURDAY 29	Fine English and Continental Furniture

CHRISTIE'S 1766

CHRISTIE'S

502 Park Avenue, New York, New York, 10022 212-546-1000

amateur harpsichord player and a lecturer on architecture, and the "frozen music" of buildings is the most constant theme of her drawing. This affords a rich variation of linear rhythms and a pronounced emotional range in the metaphorical tradition of Piranesi. Her structures invariably show the influence of buildings she has seen on her many travels—the stepped temples of India, for example, or the dilapidated Victorian relics of Manchester's former grandeur—but they are fantasized increasingly into metaphors of combat between the ordered and the disordered, and by implication the intellect and intuition, the rational and emotional, male and female. There is wit in Petherbridge's work, as well as considerable dramatic force, and much is lost in reproduction. In her early 40s, yet not all that well known, Petherbridge could not have been more deserving of this exhibition.

> The installation of carpet masterpieces at the Hayward was itself a work of art—screens and a low light level turned the gallery into an Aladdin's cave.

Chris Baker is also something of a monochromatic artist, but in a more painterly and abstract vein. Though Baker—who is 38—has won scholarships and prizes, he was overdue for a larger show. The Warwick Arts Trust exhibition "Paintings and Drawings 1975–1982" was his first solo exhibition in London. Baker's art hovers on the verge of depiction. Many of his paintings are musings on the ambiguous nature of solids and shadows in the observable world, echoing familiar forms as well as rhyming shapes. He likes the drama implicit in facades and props, and his urban sympathies find expression in a taste for weathered textures. Winter has always intrigued him visually more than summer, because things seem more condensed and puzzling in that season. He has tended to work on paper in charcoal washed with white; but the latest works at Warwick introduced color and canvas—a trend confirmed in his small exhibition at the Paton Gallery, Covent Garden, in July. Slap-and-bash painting is much in evidence these days, and Baker's calculated use of space and surface came as a welcome corrective.

Stephen Farthing

Stephen Farthing shared the Paton Gallery show with Baker, presenting older work. He exhibited new work, however, during the winter, at the Museum of Modern Art, Oxford. At 32 Farthing is one of the most prize-laden of younger English painters. Abbey Major Scholar at the British School in Rome, 1976–77, he has won lesser prizes in three out of the four most recent John Moores Liverpool Exhibitions (the most prestigious competitive open exhibition for British painters) and was one of the three painters chosen to represent Britain at the last Paris Biennale. A description of a room in Balzac's novel Eugénie Grandet led to an impressive series of large paintings in a severely limited palette. We view Mrs. G.'s Chair as if from the wings of a stage or from behind a glass wall. The drama of the subject derives from the contrast between the restfulness of the scene and the implicit activity that surrounds it, including as this does the voyeurism of the artist/viewer. Farthing's 1983 paintings drop the Balzac reference and intensify the dreamlike quality of the subject. In a painting called The Night Watch a room is viewed from below through a transparent floor. Again, the room is unpeopled, but pregnant with human occupation. There is robust graphic certainty, and color in abundance—yellow curtains, blue TV, pink cupboards. Farthing has already contrived a personal subject, with a style to match. ☐

Author: John McEwen is the art critic for* The Spectator.

LEE FRIEDLANDER
PORTRAITS 1958-1983

Tony Dipolito, 1983. Gelatin silver print, 7½ x 11 inches

NEW YORK
OCTOBER 18–NOVEMBER 12
724 FIFTH AVENUE

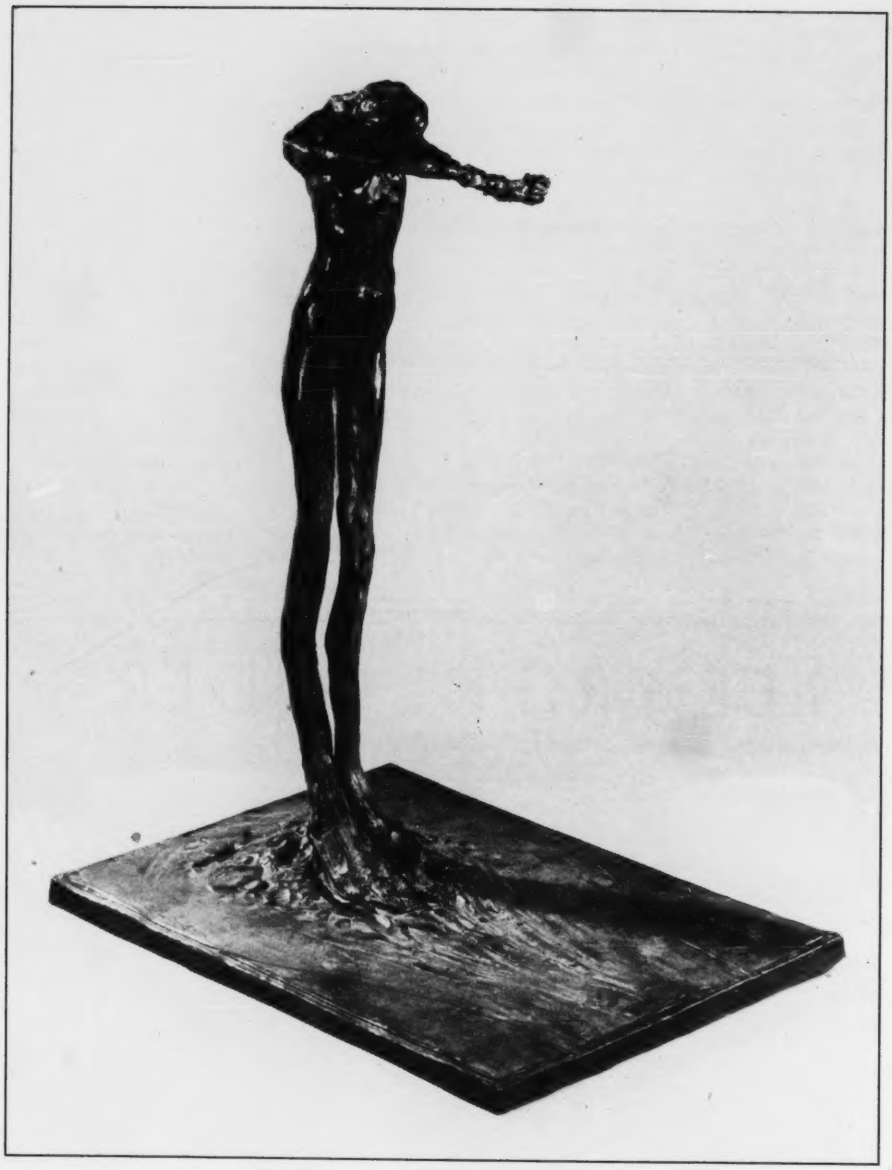
ZABRISKIE
LEE FRIEDLANDER IS REPRESENTED BY ZABRISKIE

PARIS
JANUARY 17–FEBRUARY 18
37 RUE QUINCAMPOIX

VOL 71 ISS 9 OC 1983 UMI

NATHAN OLIVEIRA

BRONZE SCULPTURE



October

JOHN BERGGRUEN GALLERY
228 Grant Avenue, San Francisco
(415) 781-4629

CHARLES COWLES GALLERY
420 West Broadway, New York
(212) 925-3500

This series of sculpture is presented in cooperation with Houston Fine Arts Press and Hine Incorporated.
"Figure" 1983 bronze, 39½" × 21¾" × 28¾" Photo — M. Lee Fatherree

Photography Terra Incognita

BY PEPE KARMEL

Harry Shepherd: Mattie McGhee, *1890s, albumen (?) print, 4⅞ by 3½ inches. Minnesota Historical Society, St. Paul.

Ball & Thomas: Untitled Portrait, *1870s, albumen print, 3⅝ by 2¼ inches. Collection Valencia Hollins Coar.

J.P. Ball & Son: Unidentified Black Youth, *1890s, albumen (?) print, 5½ by 4 inches. Montana Historical Society, Helena.

The history of black photography has until recently been a virtual terra incognita. As Angela Davis points out in the catalogue of "A Century of Black Photographers," a traveling exhibition organized by the Museum of Art of the Rhode Island School of Design, not one black photographer is mentioned in the 1982 edition of Beaumont Newhall's The History of Photography—the standard text in the field. Well, the history books will have to be rewritten. The 150 pictures by 27 photographers or photographic studios in the RISD exhibition not only provide a deeply affecting view of black life over the last century; they also prove that the black contribution to American photography has been substantial.

The RISD Museum seems to have approached this show with a certain degree of trepidation. No one wanted to repeat the fiasco that occurred at New York's Metropolitan Museum in 1969, when Thomas Hoving hired a white curator, Allon Schoener, to mount "Harlem on My Mind," a controversial show of photographs about black life in Harlem between 1900 and 1968. Black leaders and liberal intellectuals, whom Hoving had hoped to impress, were outraged, and the Metropolitan was lambasted for its arrogance in presuming to speak for blacks about their culture.

> "A Century of Black Photographers" provides a deeply moving view of black life over the last hundred years; it also proves that the black contribution to American photography has been substantial.

The RISD Museum invited a black scholar, Valencia Hollins Coar, to be guest curator. She has done a superb job in researching and organizing both exhibition and catalogue, which together provide a valuable corrective to the prevalent tendency to promote photographs as art by divorcing them from their historical contexts. Coar's selection embraces both "commercial" and "art" photographers, and although the pictures were clearly chosen for their intrinsic esthetic value rather than the historical importance of their subjects, the catalogue basically eschews formal analysis in favor of a patient detailing of the photographers' professional activities. This choice proves to be crucial, since the artistic as well as the historical understanding of photography demands that we consider the social role of the photographer.

Although black photographers were at work in the United States as early as 1840,[1] the exhibition picks up the story with the years 1870–1910—the earliest period from which a substantial body of black photography survives. This period would not, on the face of it, seem promising for black photographers. In fact, black historians refer to it as the "Nadir." Whatever optimism may have flourished during the brief years of Reconstruction was ground into dust; southern states denied blacks the vote and excluded them from jobs, and the "Jim Crow" system of comprehensive segregation was instituted.

One would expect the photographs of this period to reflect its bitter reality, but they don't. On the contrary, they depict a prosperous and self-assured black community. What strikes the contemporary viewer in the portraits of this period is the absence of that sense of social marginality and alienation which is so evident in more recent black photographs.

During the Nadir, a multitude of national

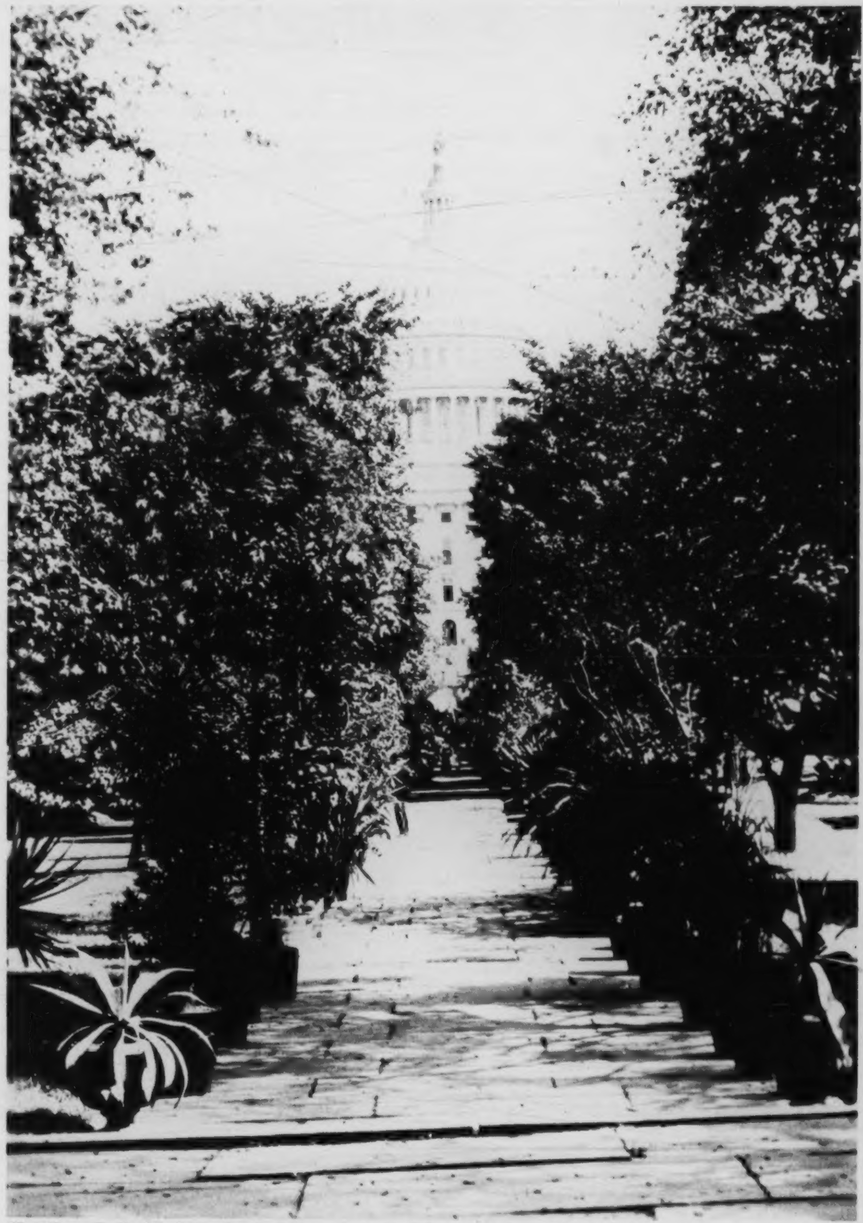
VOL
71
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

religious, professional and social black organizations appeared. According to black historian Michael R. Winston, these organizations "created the basis for the emergence of a significant middle class":

> Thwarted by the barriers of segregation, this group provided the critical mass of leadership among black Americans, and offered the professional services of teachers, physicians, dentists, lawyers and clergymen that were otherwise denied them by white institutions and professionals.[2]

It was this group of educated professionals who employed photographers to make portraits or records of social events. If the late-19th-century black photographer projected an image of his community as affluent and contented, it was because his professional role was defined by the black middle-class elite. There was little social or economic incentive to record the wider suffering that coexisted with blacks' limited prosperity.

The 19th-century black photographer's clients were not limited, however, to the black middle class. "A Century of Black Photographers" included quite a few portraits of whites, ranging from a cart-driver to a pair of brothers with a thriving hardware business in Michigan. (There were also portraits of a Dakota Indian woman and a Chinese cook.) These photographs suggest that the black and white middle classes shared many cultural values. Compare, for instance, Harry Shepherd's portrait of a black woman named Mattie McGhee (taken sometimes between 1887 and 1904) with a portrait of an anonymous white woman by the black firm of Ball and Thomas (probably taken in the late 1870s). The similarities are striking: both photographs utilize the popular oval format and a three-quarter profile pose. Both were taken in an extremely "straight," factual style, using undramatic, "natural" lighting. Both women look discreetly to their left, away from the lens.



Hamilton S. Smith:* U.S. Capitol from Botanical Gardens, *ca. 1900, gelatin silver print, 7 by 5 inches. Museum of Afro-American History, Boston.

In her catalogue essay Angela Davis observes that, whereas black writings of the period are full of bitterly honest accounts of the black struggle, "the works and careers of the few early photographers appear entirely removed from the situations and aspirations of the masses of Afro-Americans."

> In 1890 [Davis continues] there were 85 reported lynchings, 112 in 1891 and 160 in 1892 . . . . This was the socio-historical background against which the lives and careers evolved of such artists as Harry Shepherd and Hamilton S. Smith. As they worked with their cameras, selecting their subjects, composing their images, how were they affected by the raging violence of racist mobs . . . ?[3]

Our modern assumption is that the photographer's role is—or should be—to represent his people's or nation's experience. In 19th-century society, however, a professional photographer like Harry Shepherd was expected to convey the ideas and experiences of a more limited audience of clients. Pictures like Shepherd's portrait of Mattie McGhee may evade the reality of racism and its violence. But when we learn from the catalogue that Mattie McGhee had attended college and was married to a successful young black lawyer, Frederick McGhee, who was prominent in the fight for civil and political rights, we must also admit that Shepherd and the McGhees might well have seen this photograph as a riposte to the slanders of racism. White society may have allowed the McGhees only marginal status, but they clearly saw themselves as central to the relatively autonomous black community. They may even have believed that their mastery of "white" culture would compel whites' recognition of blacks as equals, and that such recognition might spell an end to violence.

Perhaps a 19th-century amateur like Hamilton S. Smith could have assumed the "public" responsibilities Davis demands of the black photographer. For while Smith's outwardly "formalist" pictures of historical buildings and sites might seem to have nothing to do with the problems of black life in his epoch, they can also be interpreted as extremely subtle metaphors for the black situation.

We learn from the catalogue that Smith was the first black graduate of Boston University Law School, and also a graduate of Howard University Dental School. His educational record notwithstanding, he ended up a clerk in the U.S. Pension Bureau in Washington, D.C. Between 1890 and 1920, he photographed the Pension Building where he worked, numerous other Washington buildings and parks, and other sites up and down the East Coast. His pictures thrive on the tension between his historically meaningful subject matter and his fascination with purely formal problems. In his view of the U.S. Capitol from Botanical Gardens, for instance, the nominal subject, the Capitol, is subordinated to the abstract composition formed by an "X" of foliage in the foreground. The perspectival narrowing of the path leading toward the Capitol functions simultaneously as an indicator of distance and as a compositional element.

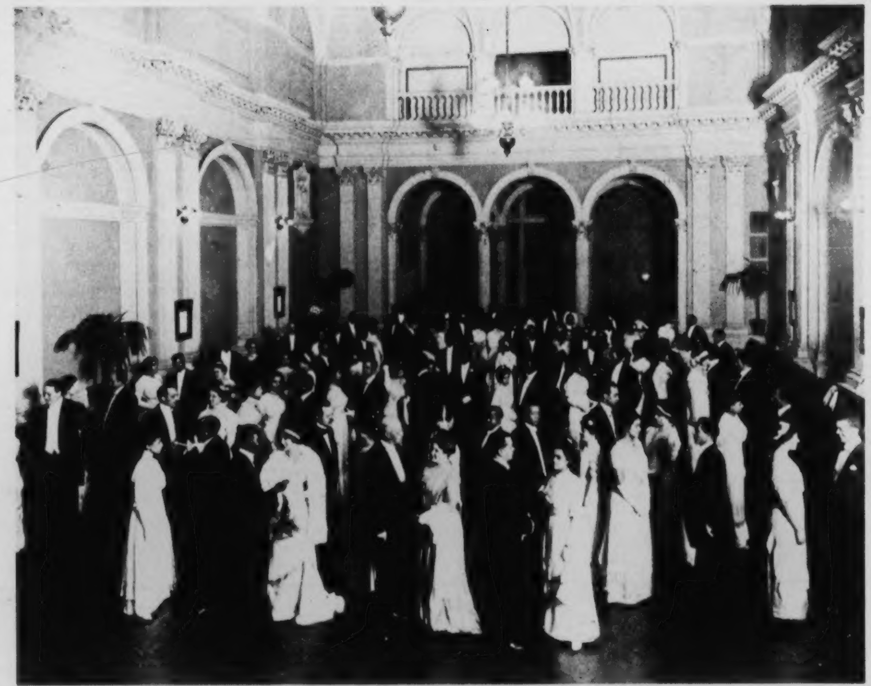
Was the deliberate distancing of the Capitol in Smith's picture nothing more than a formal decision? Or is it a metaphor for a well-educated but isolated man's view of American ideals: inspiring, but personally unattainable? Since we know that Smith was black, it is tempting to interpret the endless path stretching towards the Capitol, bordered by spiky leaves, as a representation of the via dolorosa that blacks have had to follow in pursuit of their rights.

In another Smith photograph in the show, the "subject"—Niagara Falls—is again pushed into the background. The picture is dominated by a blindingly white snow-covered landscape, across which struggle the tiny figures of tourists. We have here an image of humanity surrounded by icy white barrenness. Once again, it is tempting to read a political statement beneath the picture's "touristic" surface.

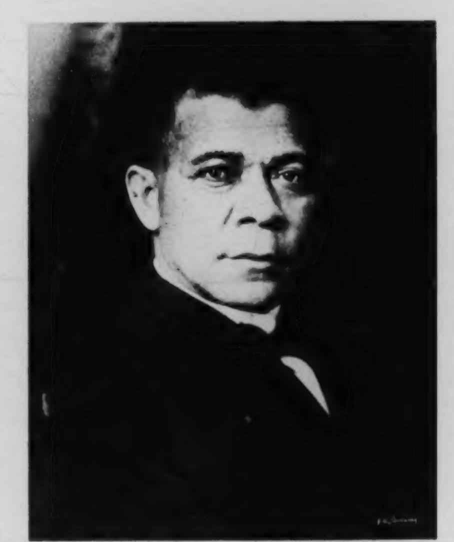
"A Century of Black Photographers" did not include enough Smith material on which to base a conclusive judgment, but it seems possible that Smith was a major American photographer. Only a few 19th-century American photographers—such as Timothy O'Sullivan—made pictures which invite such allegorical readings. Hamilton Smith may well deserve to be added to this list. The elusive artistry of his work makes him the most intriguing "discovery" of "A Century of Black Photographers." One hopes that Boston's Museum of Afro-American History, which possesses a large archive of Smith's work, will be able to research and publish more of it in the near future.

During the Nadir even noncommercial photographers like Smith shared the unornamented "realist" esthetic of the portrait photographers. With the conclusion of the Nadir, however, there was a gradual but significant shift in the black photographer's subject matter, esthetic approach and social function. As Winston notes in the catalogue, World War I sparked a "protracted struggle against segregation."[4] The black photographer had a new, polemical role to play in this struggle. His pictures were no longer personal mementos or private portraits, but public portraits of a people's heroes, designed for reproduction and dissemination.

Addison N. Scurlock, who lived and photographed in Washington from 1911 until his death in 1964, appears as a transitional figure in "A Century of Black Photographers." About half of his pictures here are straightforward scenes of social life in the Washington black community—a formal dance, a casual outing in a rowboat, a group of high school girls at a beach picnic. These are the most appealing to a contemporary sensibility. The other half consists of formal portraits of important blacks such as writer and sociologist W.E. B. DuBois and Booker T. Washington, founder of the Tuskegee Institute.



Addison N. Scurlock:* Formal Dance at Whitelaw Hotel, *ca. 1923, silver bromide print, 10 by 19¾ inches. Scurlock Studio, Washington, D.C.



Addison N. Scurlock:* Booker T. Washington, *1910, chloro-bromide silver print, 14 by 11 inches. Scurlock Studio, Washington, D.C.

These portraits illustrate the way in which photography's new, more political role required new, more expressive styles to elevate individuals to the status of symbols. Scurlock was clearly influenced by Pictorialism and the then nascent "glamor" style, with its soft focus and artificial lighting. The backgrounds of his pictures are either blurred or eliminated, and the deliberately shallow depth of field isolates his subjects' eyes, emphasizing the spiritual power of the gaze.

The same elevation of the subject can be observed in the work of other black photographers of this period, such as Cornelius Marion Battey's portrait of the poet Paul Dunbar or Arthur P. Bedou's self-portrait. (In the catalogue, Susan Dodge Peters aptly describes Bedou's self-portrait as "Byronic.")[5] Both Battey and Bedou took series of pictures illustrating vocational classes at the Tuskegee Institute. These photographs are not personal observations of a place or an activity; rather, they are meant to serve the same polemical or political purposes as their glamorized portraits.

The black photographer's new role as spokesman for the black community was problematic from the outset, precisely because it required that individuals be treated as political symbols. The esthetic drawbacks of this approach are evident in the work of P.H. Polk, who adapted glamor portraiture to the depiction of "typical" Southern blacks. (Polk, who studied photography at Tuskegee, has taught there from 1927 until the present.) As Deborah J. Johnson, associate curator at the RISD Museum, writes in the catalogue, "It is difficult to explain or

VOL
7
1
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

excuse certain of Polk's disconcertingly stereotypical images such as The Boss"[6]—a 1932 portrait of a tough old "mammy" glaring at the camera, with threadbare clothes and hands aggressively clamped on her hips. The esthetic problem with Polk's photograph is that the ethnographic stereotype obscures our sense of a particular human being; we see a cliché, not a person.

The evolution of black photography in the 1920s and '30s reflects the immense social changes overtaking the black community, especially the migration from the rural South to the urban North. The center of gravity of black society shifted from the relatively autonomous black communities depicted in earlier photographs to the new urban ghettoes, in particular to Harlem, which was the setting for a significant black cultural efflorescence.

The best known of the photographers who witnessed this change is undoubtedly James Van Der Zee, who maintained a studio in Harlem from 1916 until his retirement in 1968. (Van Der Zee was "discovered" in the year following his retirement, when "Harlem on My Mind" featured his pictures.) The photographer's role as interpreter and publicist of mass society is evident both in Van Der Zee's commercial work, represented here by an "artistic" calendar nude from 1920 and a 1925 hair-cream advertisement, and in his photographs of political subjects, such as Marcus Garvey (leader of the "Back to Africa" movement) reviewing his militia in 1924, or a 1938 double portrait of the religious leader Daddy Grace. The examples of Van Der Zee's work that seem strongest today, however, are those that do not appear to have served any obvious publicity purpose—for instance, a splendid "straight" portrait from 1932 of a wealthy young couple, both of them in fur coats, posing with their shiny new roadster against a backdrop of drab brownstone facades.

James Van Der Zee: Daddy Grace (Harlem), 1938, gelatin silver print, 9⅛ by 7⅛ inches. New Orleans Museum of Art.

Van Der Zee's flamboyantly staged portrait of Daddy Grace seems, however, more typical of his work, in terms of both its idiosyncratic composition and its historical significance. The picture shows the religious leader draped in Arabic robes, posing amidst his young followers. Floating in the air to his left is a double-printed view of Jesus suffering the little children to come unto him. The picture reveals Van Der Zee's "Victorian" tendency to overload his photographs with detail, often to the point of subverting the perspectival coherence of the image.[7] Although Van Der Zee's recent popularity may be due in part to the "camp" sensibility of the late 1960s and the antirealistic tendencies of some 1970s photography, the historical importance of his portraits exceeds such superficial appeal. For whether or not they accomplished their stated ends, religious or political movements like those of Daddy Grace and Marcus Garvey represented an attempt to reconstitute the black community that had largely been lost with the migration north.

As "A Century of Black Photographers" enters the 1940s, the photographic encounter itself becomes charged with tension. In Reverend Lonzie Odie Taylor's portrait of a Watkins Man (a familiar brand of traveling salesmen in the '40s), the salesman evinces surprise and resentment at being photographed. We tend to identify the photographer as master of the photographic scene; his "subject" must either submit to the camera's interrogation or revolt against it. So that when studio photographer Harvey James Lewis took a group portrait of the white McDonald Hunt Club at the conclusion of one of their hunts, the resulting image was "brutal and disturbing"[8]—in part because it implies that the hunters' ferocity might be directed against the photographer as well.

Gordon Parks's work also thrives on a similar confrontational tension, only here it takes place within the photograph itself. In Welfare Office, Mother and Children, which was taken for an article on the woes of a Harlem family that appeared in the March 8, 1968 issue of Life magazine, we see the article's main subject, Mrs. Fontenelle, surrounded by her children, confronting a faceless bureaucrat who says he can do nothing to help her with "the rats and roaches and the garbage and the broken windows and the heat going off" in her apartment.[9]

The composition ranges the photographer, and hence the viewer, on the side of the bureaucrat. Parks no doubt learned this kind of "over-the-shoulder" composition from Cartier-Bresson, Eugene Smith and the movies. But this convention, deriving ultimately from Degas and the Impressionists, tells the viewer to identify with the personage over whose shoulder he is seeing, not with the person seen. In other words, the setup of Parks's photograph is ambiguous—do

NO POSTAGE
NECESSARY
IF MAILED
IN THE
UNITED STATES

BUSINESS REPLY CARD
FIRST CLASS PERMIT NO. 542 MARION, OHIO

POSTAGE WILL BE PAID BY

Art in America

542 PACIFIC AVENUE
MARION, OHIO 43306

VOL

7
1

ISS

9

OC

1983

UMI

HARMONY IN RED & SILVER

A Very Special Holiday Offer From Art in America

This holiday season ART IN AMERICA is offering extraordinary savings on gift subscriptions.
Each gift order is only $24.95, a 45% savings off the cover price.

FIRST GIFT

☐ Please enter a one year subscription to ART IN AMERICA for my friend. I pay only $24.95 — over 45% off the cover price.

My Name
Address
City State Zip

Recipient's Name
Address
City State Zip
Gift card to read from

ADDITIONAL GIFTS

Recipient's Name
Address
City State Zip
Gift card to read from

Recipient's Name
Address
City State Zip
Gift card to read from

☐ Check/money order enclosed ☐ VISA ☐ Mastercard ☐ Bill me.

Card # Exp. date Signature

EK303

In US Possessions and Canada, add $8 per subscription; elsewhere, add $15 per subscription. Offer good through 2/28/84.

James Van Der Zee: Couple (Harlem), 1932, gelatin silver print, 7⅞ by 9⅜ inches. Museum of Art, Rhode Island School of Design.

we identify with Mrs. Fontenelle or with the bureaucrat?

Perhaps this ambiguity was a function of Parks's position as a staff photographer at Life, a position which inescapably cast the photographer in the role of interpreter. His job was to explain unfamiliar realities to a large, middle-class (and mostly white) audience, to lead this audience to understand and empathize with realities they might otherwise have feared and rejected. Thus the Life photographer's success was measured by his ability to make his subject seem simultaneously strange and ordinary, exciting but unthreatening.

In 1949, Parks submitted a photographic feature on the "ordinary" blacks with whom he had gone to high school, including pictures such as Sunday Morning, Detroit, which showed his thoroughly middle-class classmate, Pauline Terry, on the way to church with her husband. But the story, intended as a cover feature, never ran. According to the catalogue, it was "preempted by one on Eisenhower"[10]—which does not explain why Life did not run it in a later issue. It is hard to avoid the conclusion that middle-class blacks did not strike the editors as sufficiently exotic to be "interesting."

If Parks has at times seemed like the "token" black working within the white establishment, Roy DeCarava's image has been that of the rebel insisting on his artistic integrity at the cost of his potential public success—for instance, by withdrawing in protest from "Harlem on My Mind." In his pictures as well as his action, DeCarava has tried to avoid the compromises and esthetic limitations of photojournalism. His 1960 shot of Coltrane and Elvin, for instance, goes beyond factual reporting to create a visual equivalent of the act of music-making. The crisp, flamelike contour of the saxophone dominates the image like a searing solo, while the cool, dark outline of John Coltrane's profile and Elvin Bishop's blurred form in the background provide the accompaniment.

The special character of DeCarava's approach was made apparent by the juxtaposition, in "A Century of Black Photographers," of his mystical vision of jazz with Milton Hinton's matter-of-fact, even mundane view of it. The difference in styles—"art" vs. "snapshot"—was self-evident. But it was not self-evident which style is actually more successful.

Hinton is a professional bass player, and his 1951 portrait of Panama Francis and Mort Herbert, New York stresses the special relationship between black and white within the jazz world. In Hinton's photograph, Mort Herbert—the white musician—drapes himself in mock helplessness over his bass, while Panama Francis—the black—stands upright, one hand cocked on his waist, and the other draped patronizingly across Mort Herbert's shoulders. In effect, the two men are humorously acting out the reversal of cultural primacy between white and black in American music.

Despite the sociological commentary that can be read from Hinton's image, Panama

VOL
71
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

Gordon Parks: Welfare Office, Mother and Children, 1967, gelatin silver print, 19¾ by 29 inches. Collection the photographer.

Francis and Mort Herbert remain individuals; they are not reduced to symbols. In DeCarava's work, on the other hand, individuals are often sacrificed to symbolic effect. His treatment of light and dark constantly reminds us that we are looking at Art. Scene after scene is draped in Rembrandtesque darkness, allowing details to glimmer on the threshold of perceptibility. For instance, in DeCarava's 1964 image of Four Men, New York (used as the cover illustration for the exhibition catalogue) only the faces of the two nearest men are clearly visible; the others fade into the darkness of the background. One is reminded of Ralph Ellison's novel, Invisible Man, and the bitter discovery that to be black in America is to be invisible.[11] Indeed, although the relation of black and white in America is not necessarily the subject of every picture in DeCarava's oeuvre, it is a ubiquitous theme, seemingly inherent in his formal approach.

Gordon Parks: Emerging Man, 1952, gelatin silver print, 19½ by 29¼ inches. Collection the photographer.

Most photography is, of course, based on the opposition of light and dark; DeCarava charges this formal opposition with symbolic significance. His symbolism works precisely because it calls on deeply felt associations with blackness and whiteness, darkness and light—associations that are as much literary as visual. What is troubling in DeCarava's pictures is that he leans so heavily on this conventional symbolism.[12]

Thus, DeCarava's work seems to exemplify the dilemma defined by "A Century of Black Photographers" as a whole. On one hand, political exigencies can overpower the imperatives of art; on the other, the desire to be accepted as an artist can lead the black photographer to betray his own experience. It is a painful dilemma, but it offers an opportunity: to use the "raised consciousness" of politics to alter and enrich the received language of art. ☐

Roy DeCarava: Coltrane and Elvin, 1960, gelatin silver print, 11 by 13⅞ inches. Collection the photographer.

Milton Hinton: Panama Francis and Mort Herbert, ca. 1951, 14 by 11 inches.

---

1. Valencia Hollins Coar, A Century of Black Photographers: 1840–1960, Providence, Rhode Island School of Design, 1983, p. 9.
2. Michael R. Winston, "Historical Consciousness and the Photographic Moment," in Coar, p. 23.
3. Angela Davis, "Photography and Afro-American History," in Coar, pp. 25, 27.
4. Winston, p. 23.
5. Susan Dodge Peters, catalogue entry, in Coar, p. 83. Peters's catalogue entries are excellent.
6. Deborah J. Johnson, "Black Photography: Contexts for Evolution," in Coar, p. 17.
7. This tendency is also noted by Johnson, p. 18.
8. Peters, p. 111.
9. Quoted from the original Life article by Peters, p. 134.
10. Peters, p. 130.
11. The exhibition also included Gordon Parks's 1952 Emerging Man, which was taken specifically as a "response" to Ellison's novel. Parks's photograph, which shows a face emerging from a manhole in the street, seizes on the novel's narrative—the protagonist "lives under the streets of New York City"—rather than the idea of invisibility per se. See Peters, p. 131.
12. This issue is also raised by Angela Davis in her discussion of a painting by 19th-century black artist Robert Scott Duncanson, Uncle Tom and Little Eva, which depicts "a large, but obviously helpless black man who looks to an angelic little white girl for light and direction." Traditional artistic symbolism, Davis points out, can grant creative force to darkness, but darkness is always depicted as requiring the guiding constraint of "light" intelligence to turn it to a good end. Davis does not extend her point to DeCarava's work, but her warning that the blandishments of "art" carry a hidden risk for the black photographer may be more applicable to 20th-century photographers than to the 19th-century ones about whom she writes. The same clichés that dominated Duncanson's painting inevitably influence the way we see a picture like Coltrane and Elvin.

After its run at the Museum of Art, Rhode Island School of Design (Mar. 31–May 8, '83), "A Century of Black Photographers" traveled to the Baltimore Museum of Art (June 12–Aug. 7) and then to the Studio Museum in Harlem, where it is currently on view (through Oct. 31). It will also be seen at Moorland-Spingarn Research Center, Howard University, Washington, D.C. (Nov. 19–Jan. 15, '84), The Newark Museum of Art (Feb. 4–Apr. 1), the Museum of Fine Arts, Houston (Apr. 20–June 10) and the High Museum, Atlanta (June 29–Aug. 26).

Author: Pepe Karmel is a free-lance critic living in Manhattan.

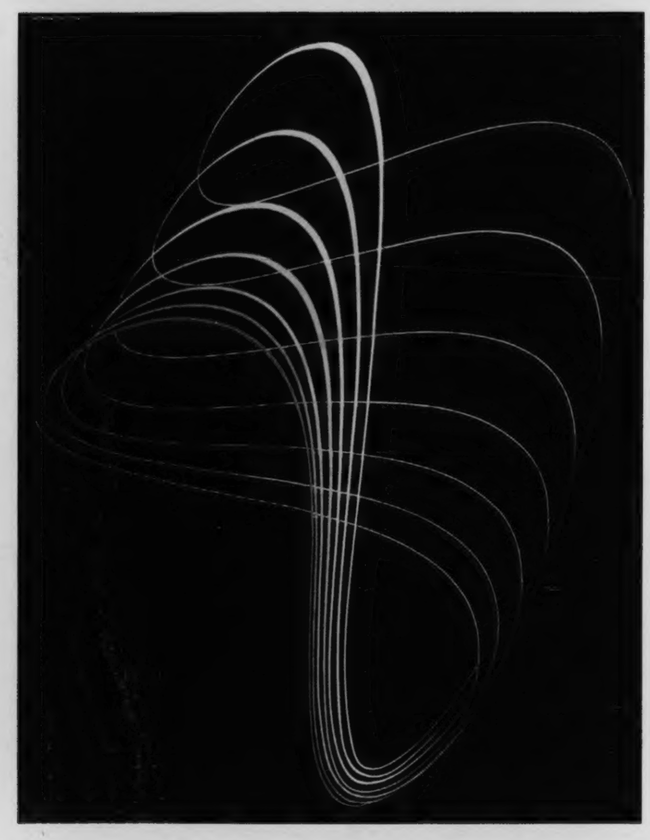
VOL 71
ISS 9
OC
1983
UMI



Science into Art:
The Abstract Sculpture and Drawings of Rutherford Boyd
October 8–November 5

Seven Distorted Ellipses #3, gouache, 25 x 19 inches
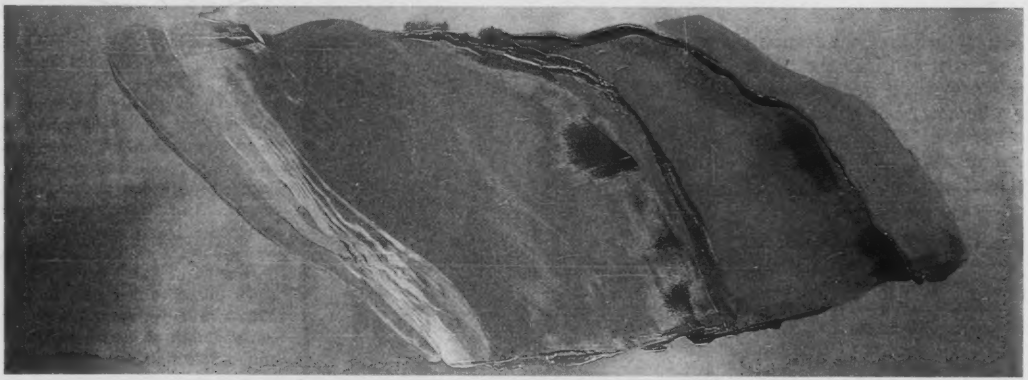
Estate stamp, upper left:
Rutherford Boyd

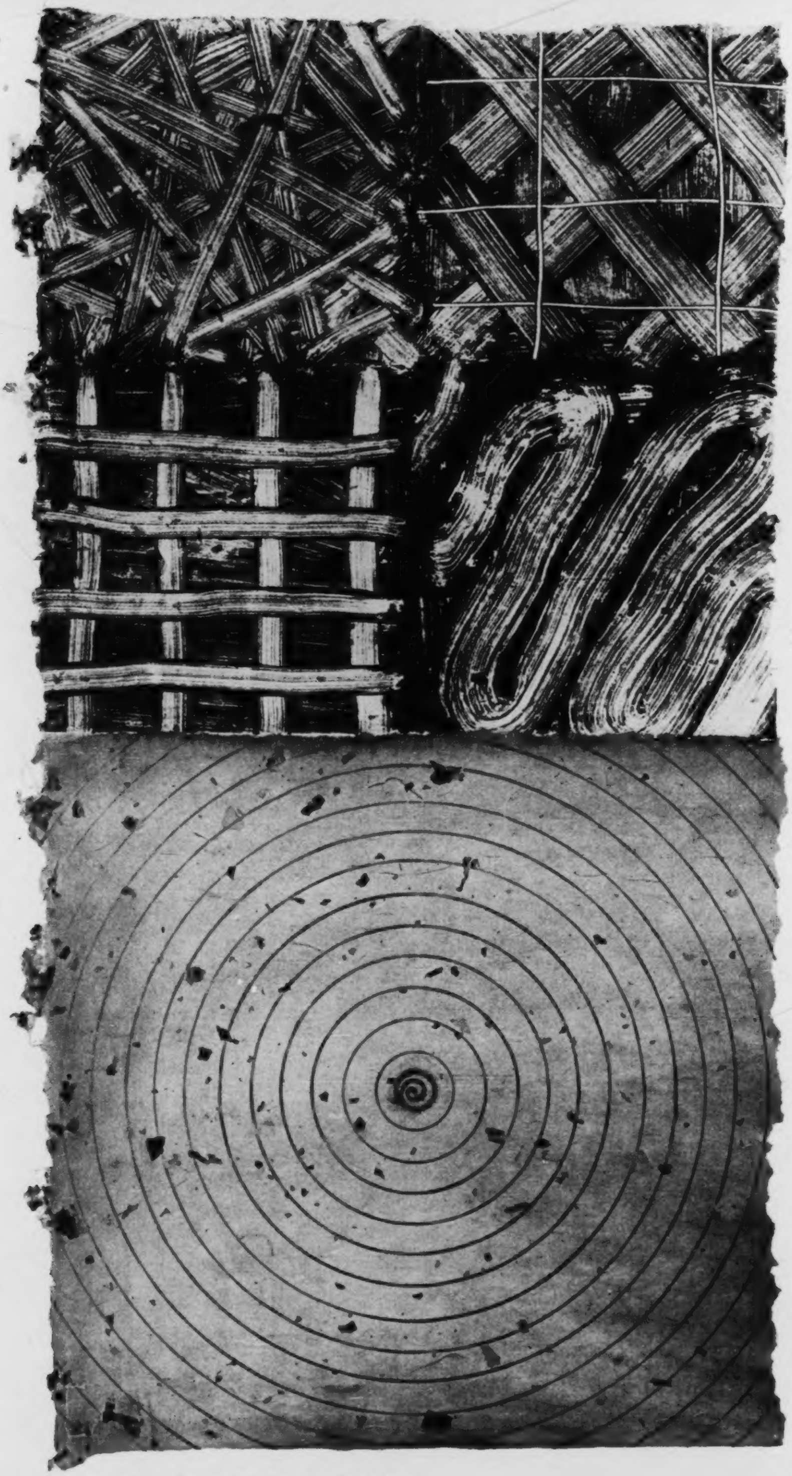
Hirschl & Adler
Galleries Inc.
21 East 70th Street, New York 10021 • (212) 535-8810
Tuesday–Friday: 9:30 to 5:15, Saturday: 9:30 to 4:45



"VICTORIA ROUGE" Acrylic on Canvas 56" x 144"

MARJORIE MINKIN
Paintings October 4 - October 29

stavaridis gallery
73 newbury street • boston, ma • 02116 • 617-353-1681



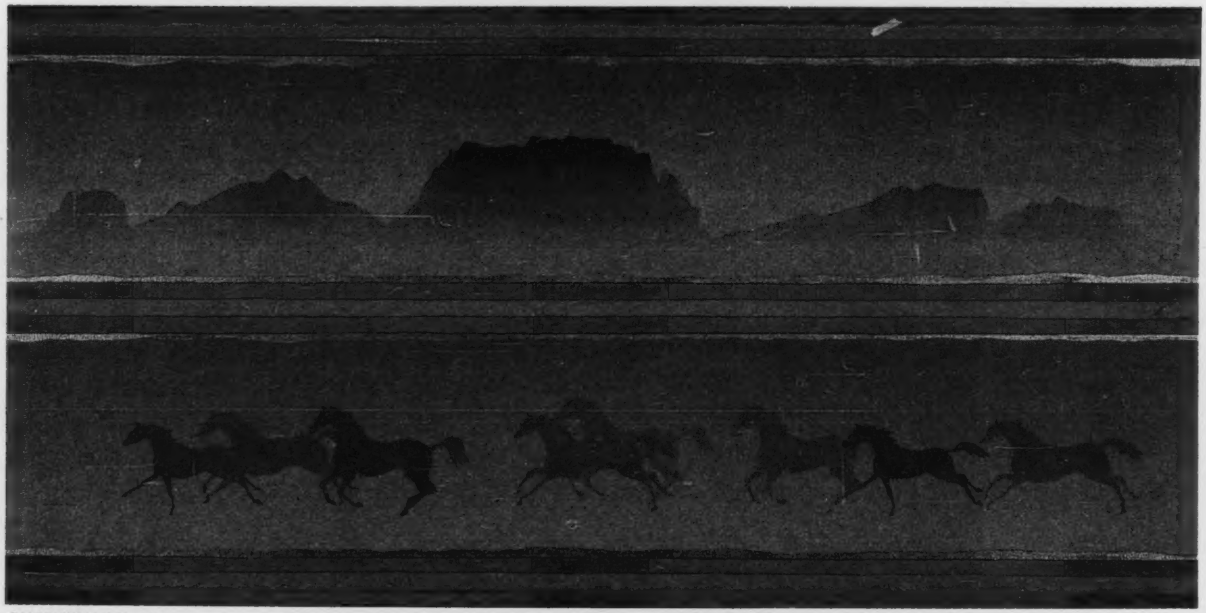
Twice Told Tales, 1983. Monotype, 29″ × 14¾.″

NEW WORKS ON PAPER BY DAVID SHAPIRO
OCTOBER 22 TO NOVEMBER 30

Styria Studio inc.
Publishers of Fine Art
426 BROOME STREET, NEW YORK, N.Y. 10013 • (212) 226-1373

VOL
7
1
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

PAUL BRACH



[illegible]

Oil on Canvas
[illegible]

OCTOBER 16 — NOVEMBER 19, 1983

BERNICE STEINBAUM GALLERY, LTD.

903 madison avenue, new york, new york 10021 / (212) 734-3373

RON GORCHOV

Recent Paintings

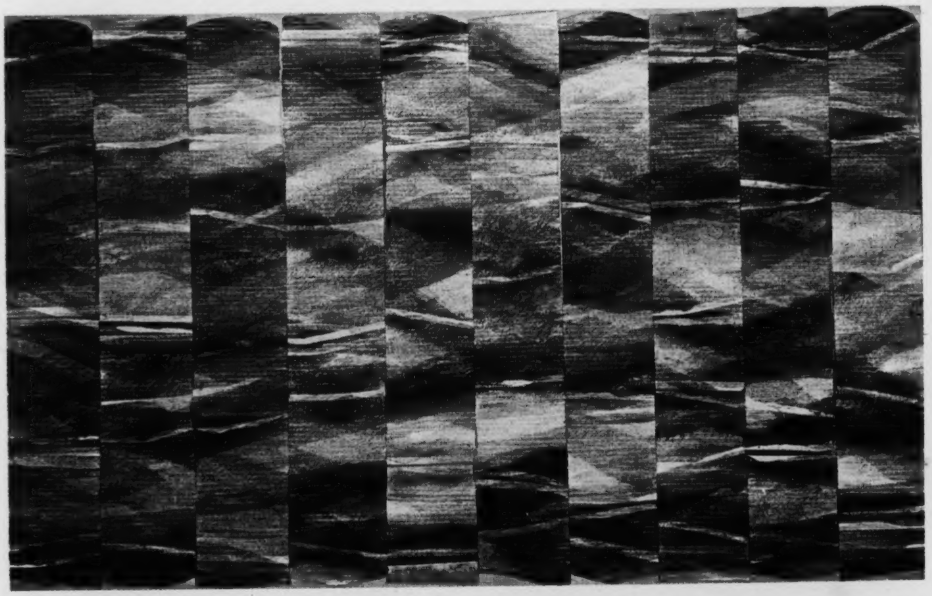
October 8–November 1

Marlborough

40 West 57 New York 10019 Tel 541-4900

PHILIP MULLEN

Recent Paintings
October 5 - 29



DAVID FINDLAY JR
CONTEMPORARY 41 East 57 Street New York 10022 212-486-7660

MARCUSE PFEIFER GALLERY
PHOTOGRAPHY

839-10 • F - BG—2—4
CIBACHROME 16 × 20 1983

ALLAN CHASANOFF

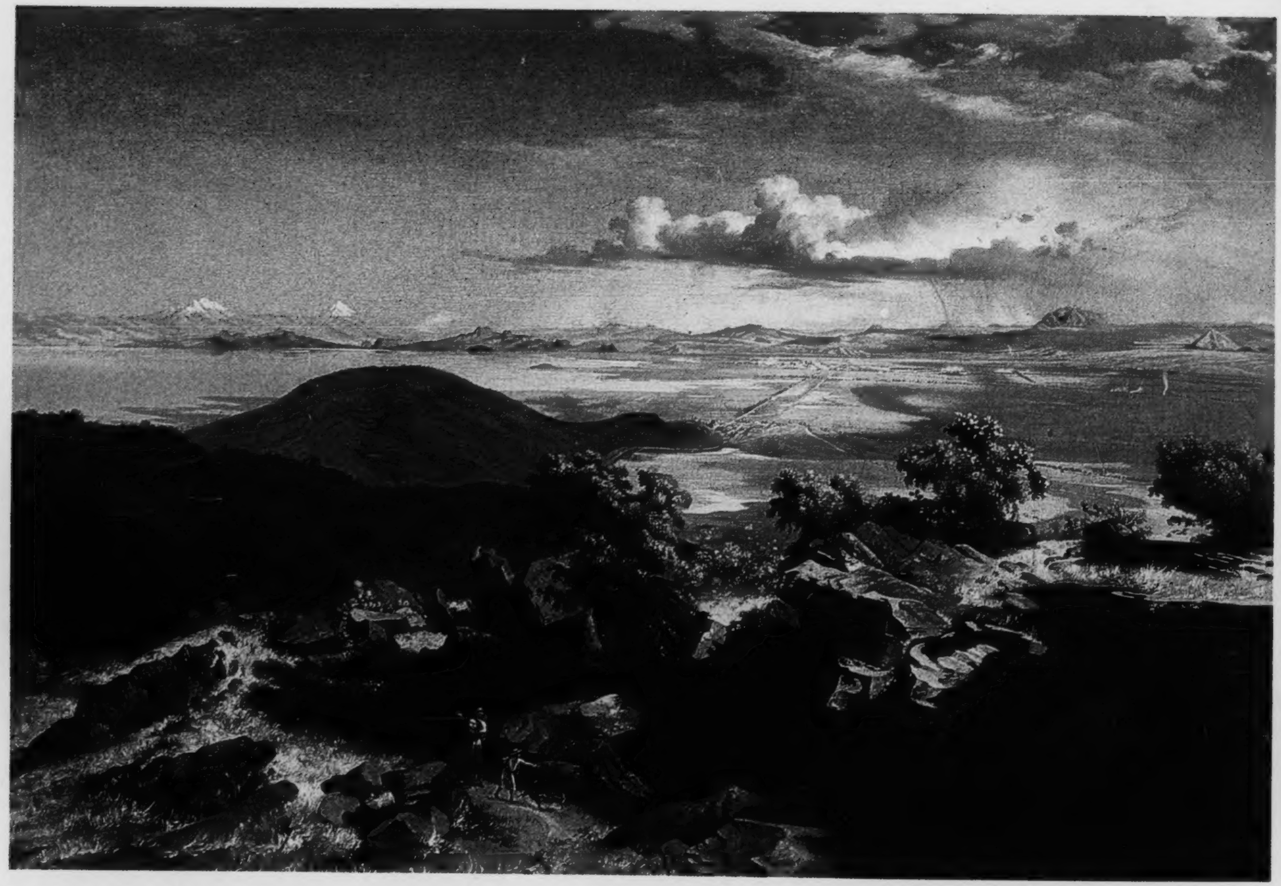
Situate, Lying & Being

Still Life Photographs

October 22–
November 25, 1983

825 MADISON AVENUE, NEW YORK CITY 10021 · (212) 737-2055

VOL 71
ISS 9
OC 1983
UMI



José María Velasco (1840-1912)
El Valle de México, 1883
Oil on canvas, 17¼ x 25 inches

GEORGE BELCHER GALLERY
500 Sutter Street San Francisco, California 94102 (415) 981-3178

Mexican and Latin American Paintings

JU MING

BRONZE, WOOD & CERAMIC SCULPTURE

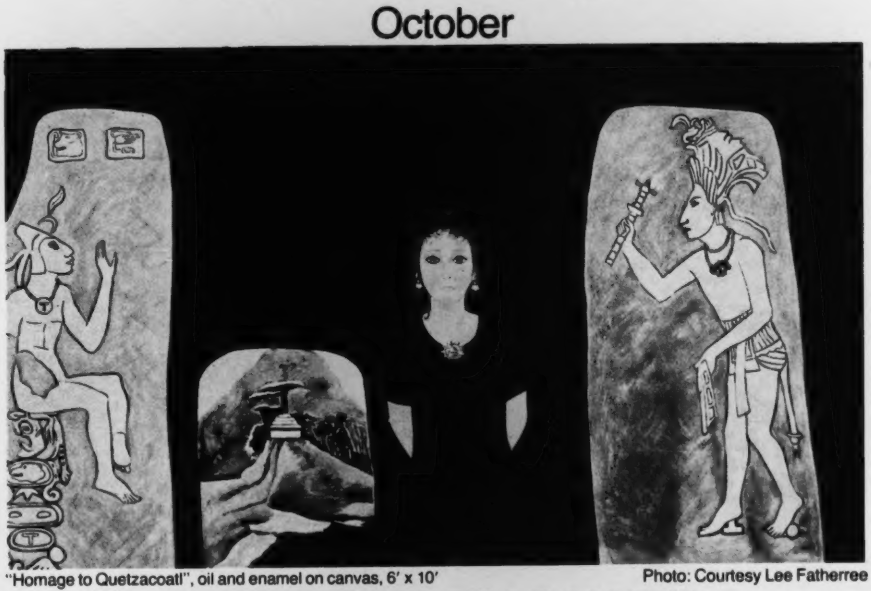
OCTOBER 13 – NOVEMBER 12

MAX HUTCHINSON GALLERY

138 GREENE STREET NEW YORK, NY 10012
212-966-3066

SPLIT TAI CHI, 1982. BRONZE, 9½ FEET HIGH

JOAN BROWN
October



"Homage to Quetzacoatl", oil and enamel on canvas, 6' x 10' Photo: Courtesy Lee Fatherree

FULLER GOLDEEN GALLERY
228 Grant Avenue
San Francisco, California 94108
(415) 982-6177

VOL
7
1
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

important works by butler
chagall
dubuffet
giacometti
lam mac iver mason millares
miró riopelle rouan saura tanguy
zao wou-ki

pierre matisse
gallery
41 east 57th street
new york 10022

STOCKHOLM
ART FAIR

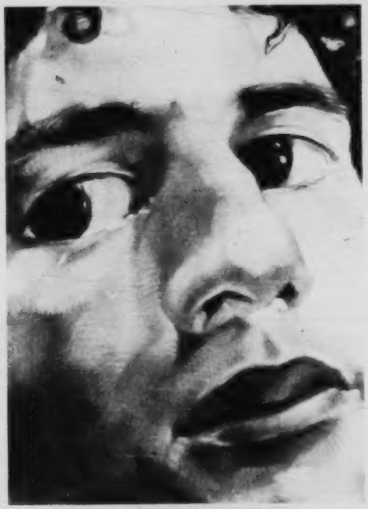
4-9 APRIL 1984

Head Office:
Leif Ståhle
MÄSSBOLAGEN AB
Box 174
S-191 23 Sollentuna
Sweden
Tel. 08/96 00 60

Representative in USA:
Jan Eric Löwenadler
799 Park Avenue
New York, N.Y. 10021
USA
Tel. (212)737-6835

emer publicité

MARY JOAN WAID
Paintings and Pastels



David, 1982. Pastel, 42 x 29¾ in.

September 27 to October 22
G.W. Einstein
243 East 82 St NY 10028 (212) 628-8782

Paul Wonner
Recent Paintings
1 October - 29 October
HIRSCHL & ADLER Modern
851 Madison Avenue New York 212 744-6700

13
White
Street
New York
City 10013
212 966 5090
BETTE STOLER GALLERY
Paintings and Drawings
September 23 to
October 22
–
Tim
Duch
–
Carl
Palazzolo
–
George
Peck
–
Terry
Rosenberg

VOL
71
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

THE FOUR SEASONS PHOTOGRAPHS & DRAWINGS 14 OCT-5 NOV 1983

DON RODAN

CASTELLI GRAPHICS 4 EAST 77TH STREET NEW YORK CITY NEW YORK

JOHN C. STOLLER & CO.
400 MARQUETTE AVE MINNEAPOLIS 55401 (612) 339-7060

Matthews Hamilton Gallery
262 South 16 Street
Philadelphia PA 19102 Telephone 215/545-5308

Inaugural Exhibition

Major Recent Acquisitions:

Balthus, Bomberg, Francis, Miro, Pissarro, Vlaminck, Vuillard and others*

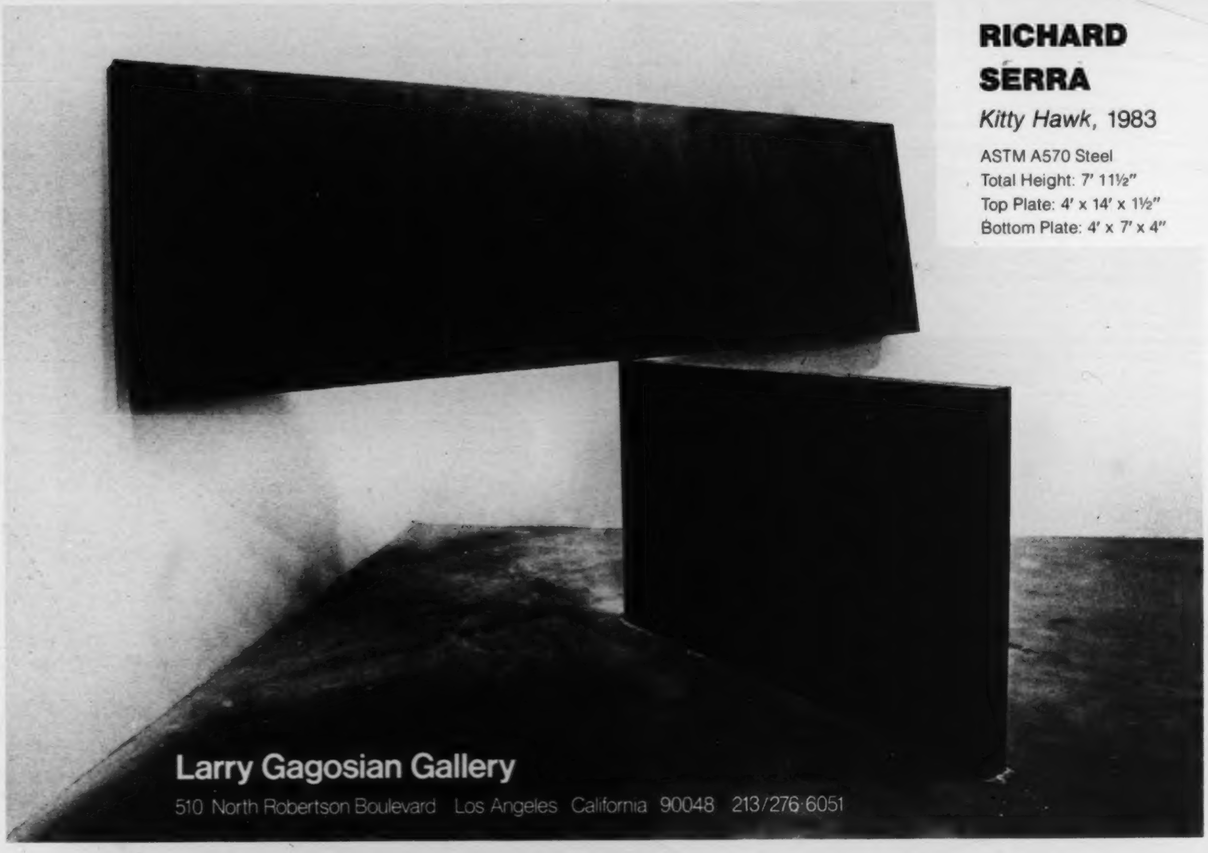
October 18–November 12

Maxwell Davidson Gallery
43 East 78 Street New York 212 734-6702



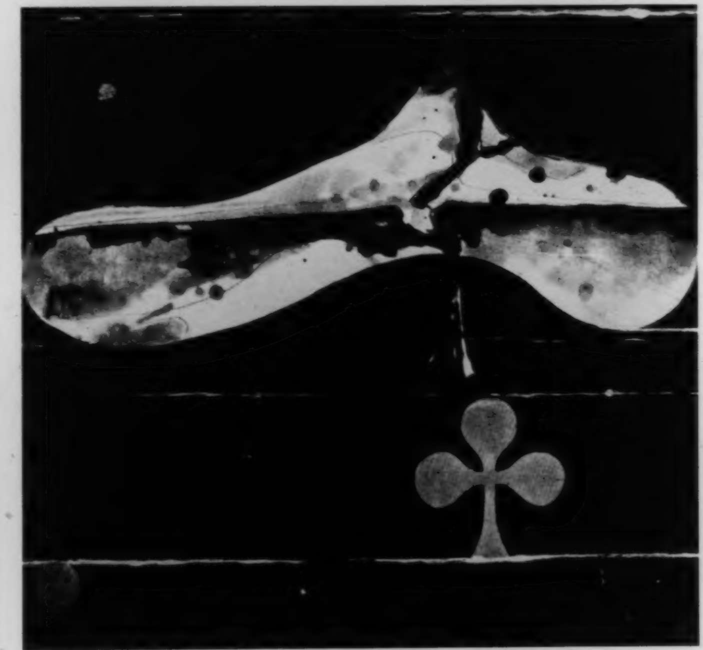
RICHARD SERRA

Kitty Hawk, 1983

ASTM A570 Steel
Total Height: 7′ 11½″
Top Plate: 4′ x 14′ x 1½″
Bottom Plate: 4′ x 7′ x 4″

Larry Gagosian Gallery
510 North Robertson Boulevard Los Angeles California 90048 213/276-6051

Richard Diebenkorn / Etchings



Spreading Spade. Drypoint and aquatint, 18X19 on 36X30½ sheet. Ed. 35

SEPTEMBER 30 -
NOVEMBER 15, 1983

Published by Crown Point Press

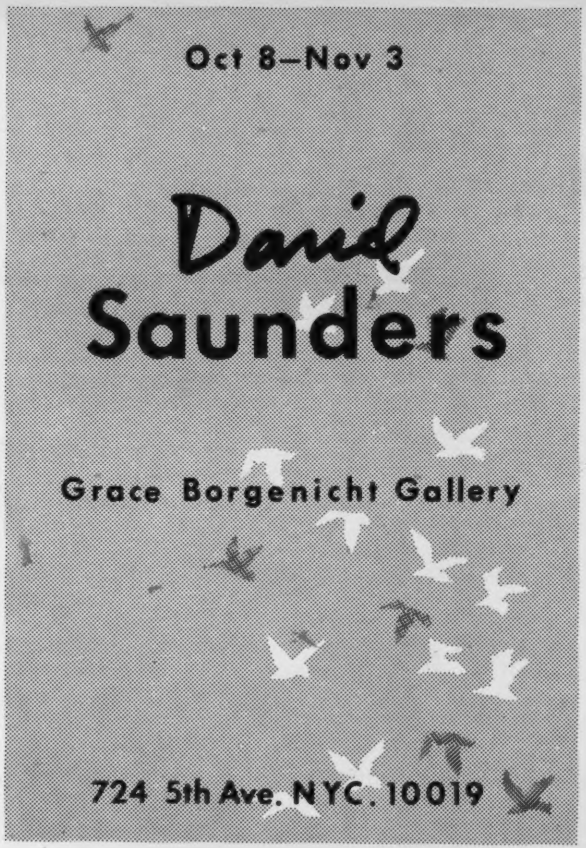
Ronnie Goldfield
Hours Tues. - Sat. 11a.m.-5:30p.m.
GALLERY 30
30 East 3rd Avenue
San Mateo, California 94401
Telephone (415) 342-3271

VOL 71 ISS 9 OC 1983 UMI



Oct 8—Nov 3

David Saunders

Grace Borgenicht Gallery

724 5th Ave. NYC. 10019

Davis • McClain Galleries

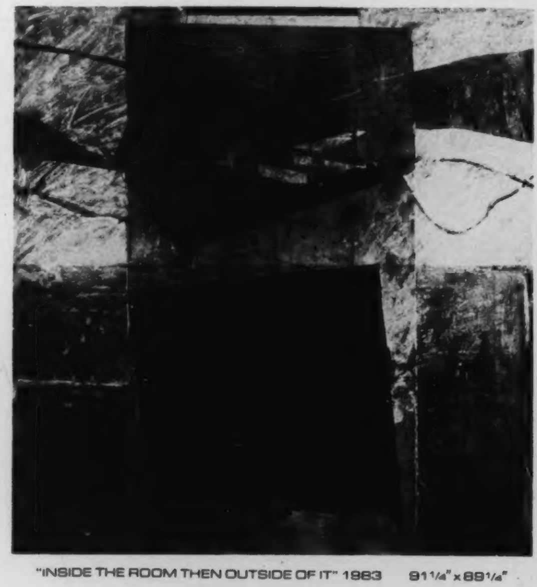
"Celtic Torque" 1983 Acrylic on canvas 60 × 60 in.

Frank Faulkner

October 20-November 24

Courtesy Monique Knowlton Gallery

2818 Kirby Drive Houston Texas 77098 713 520 9200



"INSIDE THE ROOM THEN OUTSIDE OF IT" 1983 91¼"x 88¼"

STEVEN SORMAN

PAINTINGS

4 OCT—5 NOV

GETLER/PALL

50 WEST 57 NY 212/581-2724

OCTOBER 15 – NOVEMBER 10

CONSTRUCTED PAINTINGS

LUIS CRUZ AZACETA

JO ANNE CARSON

ROY DE FOREST

STUART DIAMOND

DAVID HUMPHREY

ELIOT LABLE

MICHAEL MULHERN

ARTHUR NATALE

CAROLEE THEA

ALLAN FRUMKIN GALLERY
50 WEST 57TH STREET NEW YORK

GALLERY
ARTISTS
SEPTEMBER–OCTOBER

EDWARD THORP
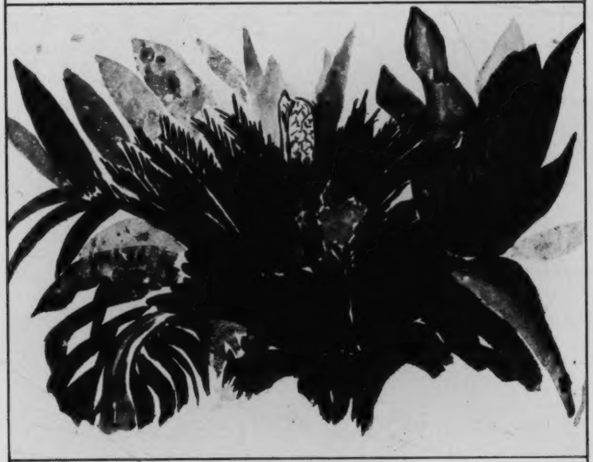
GALLERY

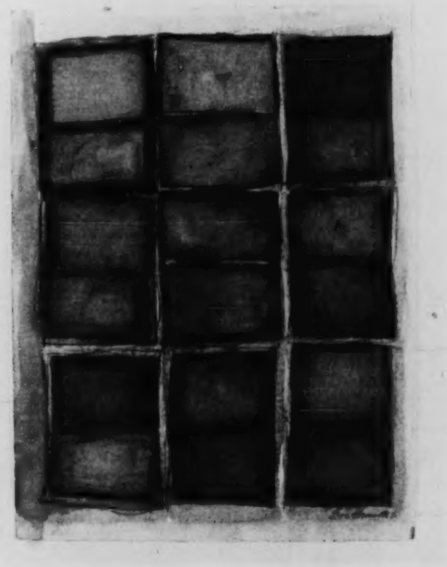
419 WEST BROADWAY, NEW YORK, NY 10012
TELEPHONE 212/431-6880

Joseph Stella



Tropical Flowers, Gouache on paper; 18⅞ x 24¾"

Robert Schoelkopf Gallery
825 Madison Avenue, New York 10021



Eva Hesse, untitled, 1968, gouache and pencil on paper, 15"x 11"

THE GREENBERG GALLERY
44 MARYLAND PLAZA ST. LOUIS, MO. 63108 (314) 361-7600

HARRY ROSEMAN

IS NOW REPRESENTED BY

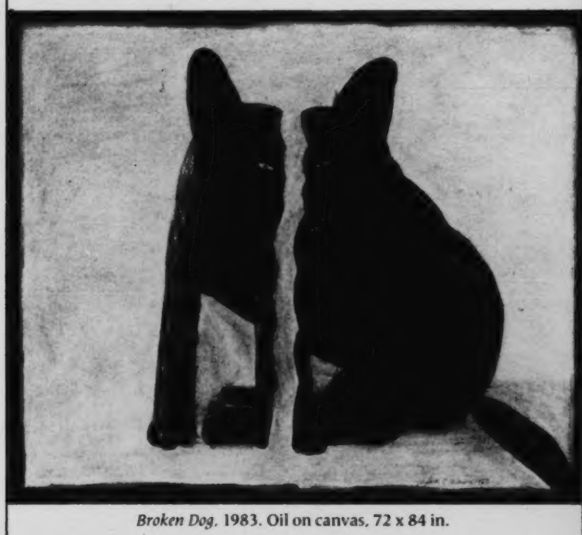
BARBARA
MATHES
GALLERY
851 Madison Avenue
New York, New York 10021
212/249-3600

VOL 71
ISS 9
OC 1983
UMI

Gaylen Hansen

New Paintings / October 8-November 3



Broken Dog, 1983. Oil on canvas, 72 x 84 in.

Monique Knowlton

153 Mercer, New York, N.Y. 10012·(212)431-8808

PHILIP GUSTON

PAINTINGS
OCT 8–NOV 5

DAVID MCKEE GALLERY

41 EAST 57 STREET
NEW YORK, NY 10022
TEL 212/688-5951

HOLLY SOLOMON GALLERY

AND

HOLLY SOLOMON EDITIONS

ARE NOW LOCATED
AT

724 FIFTH AVENUE
NEW YORK 10019
(212) 757-7777

---

5 THROUGH 29 OCTOBER 1983

JENNIFER BARTLETT

RECENT PAINTINGS

SMALL GALLERY

JACKIE WINSOR

NEW SCULPTURE

PAULA COOPER GALLERY

155 WOOSTER STREET NEW YORK 212 674.0766

DONALDYOUNGGALLERY
212 WEST SUPERIOR STREET CHICAGO ILLINOIS 60610 312-664-2151

BRUCE NAUMAN
MARTIN PURYEAR
Recent Outdoor Projects

ROBERT MANGOLD
RECENT PAINTINGS/15 OCTOBER—19 NOVEMBER 1983

DANIEL WEINBERG GALLERY LOS ANGELES
619 NORTH ALMONT DRIVE 213/271-7101

NEW TALENT
PRINTMAKING
CASTELLI GRAPHICS 43 WEST 61ST STREET NEW YORK CITY

DAVID IZU
PAINTINGS OCT. 4–NOV. 4
William
Sawyer
Gallery 3045 CLAY STREET • SAN FRANCISCO • (415) 921-1600

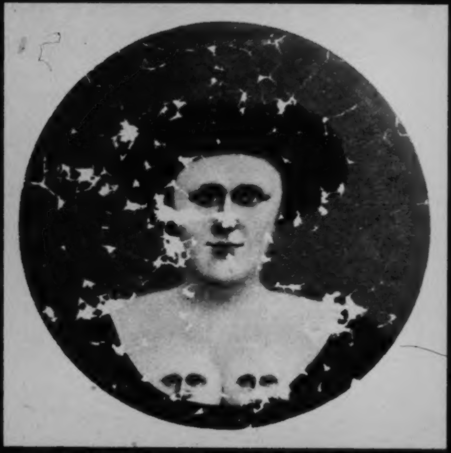
VOL
71
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

HOLLIS SIGLER
OCT. 8 - NOV. 3

BARBARA
GLADSTONE GALLERY
152 WOOSTER ST. N.Y. N.Y. 10012 212-505-8690

October 12 through November 18

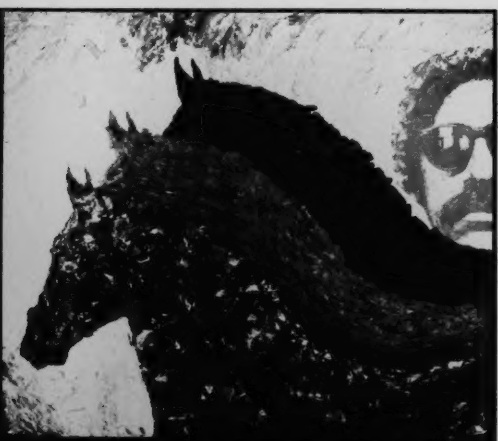
Alfredo Castañeda



With Her Double Egoism. Oil on board, 8⅝ x 8⅝ inches.

Mary-Anne Martin / Fine Art
213 E 49 Street NY 10017 Tel 212 980-8104

Illustrated catalogue $6 postpaid



LEOPOLDO
MALER
OCT 4–29

LTM
LEILA TAGHINIA-MILANI
1080 MADISON AVE. N.Y. N.Y. 10028 (212) 570-8173

MARINA CAPPELLETTO

October 18 - November 12

Pam Adler Gallery
37 West 57 New York 10019 212/980.9696

Contemporary Drawings

Jennifer Bartlett
Donna Dennis
David Deutsch
Jim Dine
Ken Goodman
Yvonne Jacquette
Sol Lewitt
Michael Mazur
Joseph Nechvatal
Donald Newman
Susan Rothenberg
Donald Sultan

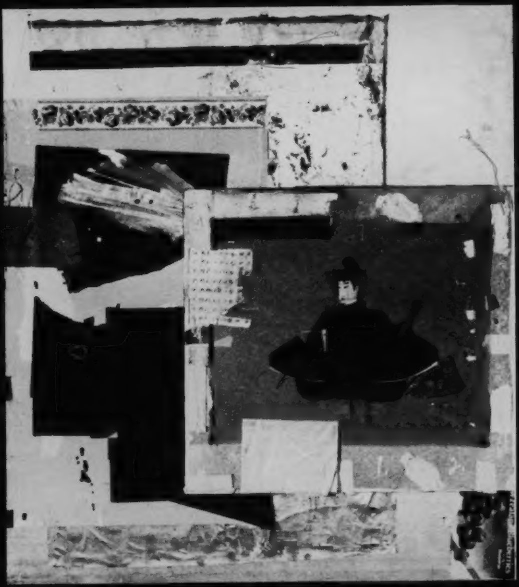
BARBARA KRAKOW GALLERY
10 Newbury Street
5th Floor
Boston.
Massachusetts 02116
Telephone
617 262-4490

REX LAU
Paintings, 1981–1983
4–22 October 1983

MARIA SCOTTI
Paintings, 1982–1983
4–22 October 1983

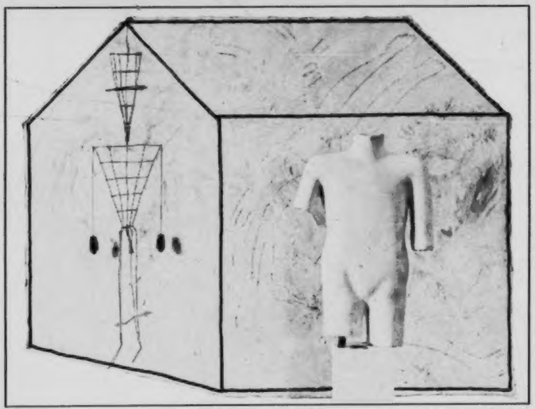
SIEGEL
CONTEMPORARY ART
24 WEST 57 STREET, NYC 10019 (212) 586-0605

RAYMOND SAUNDERS
Oct. 21 - Nov. 26



EAST WEST 1983, Mixed Media on Canvas Masonite 60" x 54"

HUNSAKER/SCHLESINGER GALLERY
812 No. La Cienega Blvd., Los Angeles, CA 90069
(213) 657-2557



Avenue of the Americas, 1983
Acrylic on Canvas, Plaster, Wood, Wire, 30 Pesos, 7'x 9'

JOHN BUCK
October 14-November 16, 1983

ZOLLA/LIEBERMAN GALLERY
356 W. Huron Chicago 60610 312/944-1990

VOL
7
1
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

RICHEBOURG/McCOY
19 East 71 Street, New York 10021
Telephone: 212/570.2131

20th Century Masters
and Contemporary Artists

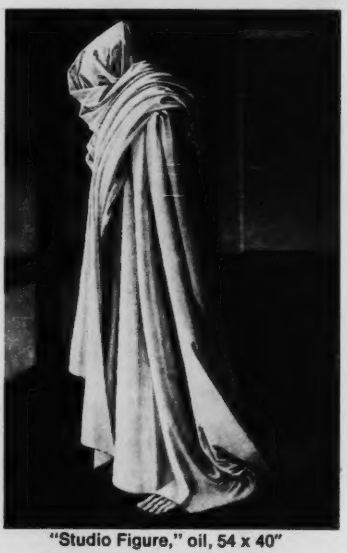
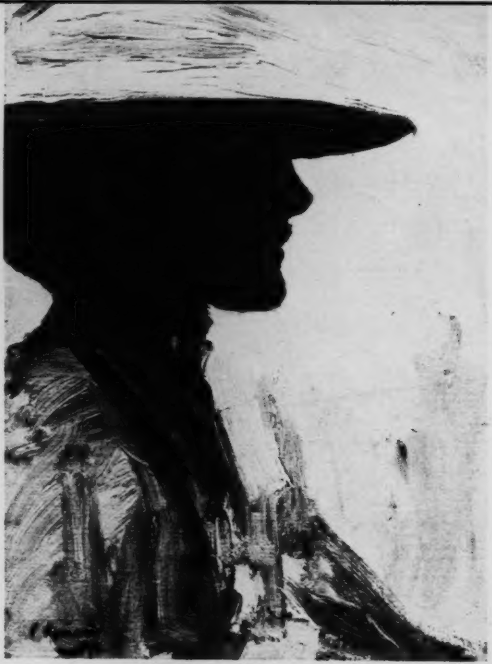
By appointment
Elizabeth Richebourg · Jason McCoy

INAUGURAL EXHIBITION
BERNARDA BRYSON SHAHN
PAINTINGS · DRAWINGS · PRINTS
October 4-29



"Studio Figure," oil, 54 x 40"

MIDTOWN
GALLERIES EST. 1932 11 East 57 St., N.Y. (212) 758-1900



SIR JOHN LAVERY, 1856 - 1941
"STUDY FOR THE AMAZON"
OIL ON CANVAS, 11½ x 9¾ INCHES BOARD

DOMINION GALLERY
1438 Sherbrooke St. West, Montreal H3G 1K4
514-845-7471 and 7833

Morris Graves
THROUGH OCTOBER 19

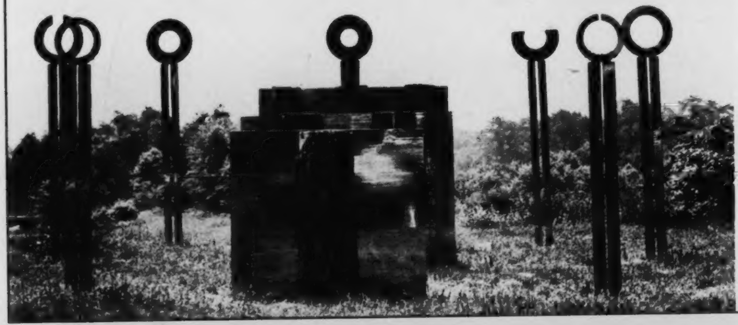
Nancy Spero
OCTOBER 22 THROUGH NOVEMBER 17

Willard Gallery
29 EAST 72 STREET, NEW YORK 744-2925

RUTH VOLLMER
October 18 – November 12, 1983

Jack Tilton
Gallery

24 West 57 Street • New York N.Y. 10019 • 212-247-7480



JOYCE DE GUATEMALA
at the XVII Bienal do Sao Paulo, Brasil
October - December 1983
TRIBUTE TO THE MOON
Joyce De Guatemala is represented by:

Marian Locks Gallery
1524 Walnut Street
Philadelphia, Pennsylvania 19102
215 546-0322

Barbara
Gillman
Gallery 270 N.E. 39 ST./3886 Biscayne Blvd.
Miami, Fla. 33137/(305) 573-4666

STAINLESS STEEL & WOOD. 300 METER ENVIRONMENT

RHONA
HOFFMAN
GALLERY

NANCY
SPERO
1974 – 1983

215 WEST SUPERIOR
CHICAGO, ILLINOIS 60610
TEL 312.951.8828

PAUL WONG Paintings & Sculpture Oct. 4 - Oct. 29
DAVID FREELANDER Drawings Oct. 18 - Nov. 12
PAT COLVILLE Paintings & Drawings Nov. 1 - Nov. 26

condeso/lawler gallery
New Location:
76 Greene St., 2nd Fl., New York, NY 10012 212 219-1283

VOL
7
1
ISS
9
OC
1983

Kenneth Price

24 September-15 October Leo Castelli 420 West Broadway, New York

GALLERY II
RSVP

Now accepting slides for future shows

Gallery Director, Colleen Later
218 West Main Street
Charlottesville, Virginia 22901
804 977-RSVP

JUXTAPOSITION JUXTAPOSITION

Robert O. Andrews
Sushila Bales
Michael Bedard
James Blair
John Sidney Blair
Leone Blooston
Jasper Burns
Scott Burridge
Hung Kwai Chan
Budd Egger
Arthur Evans
Alice C. Flynn
Arthur Hillman
Gary Kahle
Lisa Kaslow
Marlene Kennedy
Pontella Mason
Reini Maters
Jince McCurdy
Christoph Michael
Gayle Middlebrook
Jo Mullen
Manuel Soto Munoz
Conny Van Dijk Nichols
Cassandra Ogzewalla
Edward S. Palubinskas
Susan Patrick
Cynthia Piper
Donna Manfredi Redmond
Jeffrey Scott Robinson
Francie Rozycki
Jeanne Sauders
Johanna Schaftenaar
Mitchell Slater
Jennifer Small
Meredith Springler III
Kathryn Steel
Lynn Sterba
Mary Stiller
Susan Jaworski Stranc
Ileana Szasz
Vera Vandendries
Vicki Vergalis
Laddie Waters
Jan White
Andrew Younger
Sandra Bartels
Anne R. Ciccone
Hannah Hirsch Cohen
Conchita B. Elliott
Jeanne Sanders
Robert Snider

Gallery II/RSVP on the Mall in Historic Downtown Charlottesville, Virginia.

Watch for future locations in: N.Y., CA., FLA., Washington, D.C., Denver, CO., and Paris, France.

Hokin/Kaufman Gallery
210 West Superior Street, Chicago, Illinois 60610
Telephone 312/266 1211

John SEERY

Frank MORREALE

Oct 8 - Nov 2

also represented by
Hokin Gallery Inc.
245 Worth Avenue, Palm Beach, Florida 33480
Telephone 305/655 5177
1086 Kane Concourse, Bay Harbor Island, Florida 33154
Telephone 305/861 5700

PRINTS AND MULTI MEDIA

Marcel Achard, Jocelyne Aird-Bélanger,
Francine Beauvais, Bonnie Baxter,
Jocelyne Benoit, Gilles Boisvert,
Louis-Pierre Bougie, Peter Braune,
Catherine Bouruet-Aubertot, Marcel Carrier,
Bernard Chaudron, Louise Cloutier,
André Fournelle, Jacques Giraldeau,
Adriano Lambe, Gilles Lauzé,
Pierre Leblanc, Guy Montpetit,
Indira Nair, Jeff Stellick,
Alain-Marie Tremblay,
Michel-Thomas Tremblay.

OCTOBER 20 TO NOVEMBER 10, 1983

at Quebec House Gallery
Rockefeller Center,
17 West 50th street,
New-York.
(212) 397-0200

ATELIER DE L'ÎLE
VAL-DAVID, QUÉBEC
CANADA

UMI

DOROTHEA TANNING

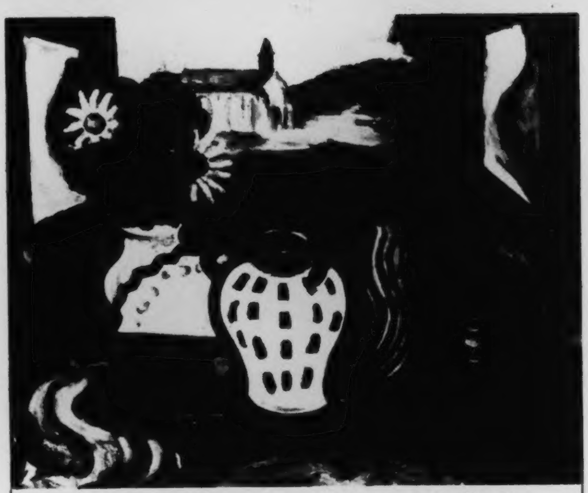
Works on Paper

September 29 - October 29

GALLERY SCHLESINGER-BOISANTÉ
822 Madison Ave. (68th St.), New York 10021 (212) 734-3600



Morgan Russell, Circa 1925, oil on canvas.

Painted Object Painted

The Changing Concept of Twentieth Century Still Life

Through November 5, 1983

HERBERT
PALMER
GALLERY

802 North La Cienega Blvd. Los Angeles, California 90069 213-854-0096

"...the best"
IRVING
GALLERIES
PALM BEACH

ANDY SPENCE

NEW PAINTINGS
OCTOBER 8-29

BARBARA TOLL FINE ARTS
146 GREENE ST., N.Y. 10012
212 431-1788

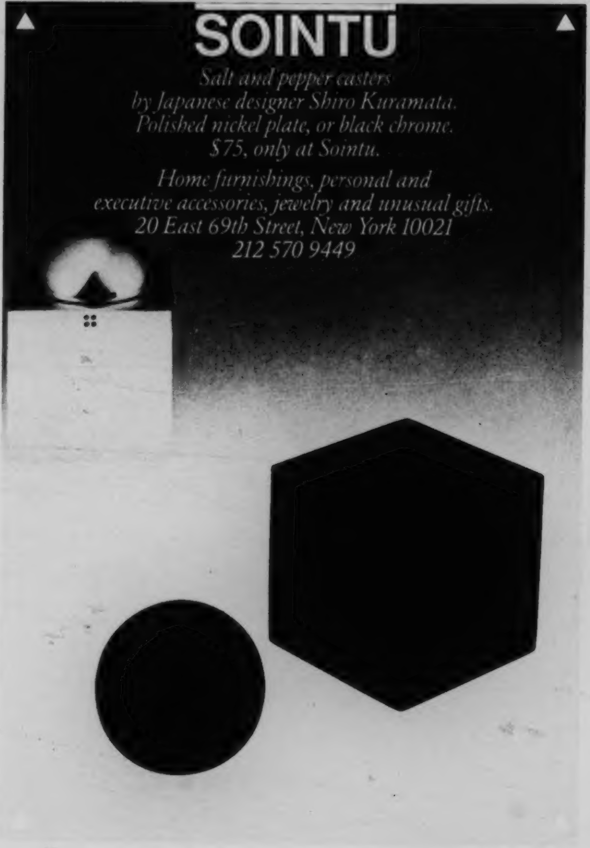
VOL
7
1
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

NICOLA JACOBS GALLERY

JUDY RIFKA

NEW WORK
OCTOBER 1983

9 Cork Street, London W.1.
Telephone (1) 437-3868



SOINTU

Salt and pepper casters
by Japanese designer Shiro Kuramata.
Polished nickel plate, or black chrome.
$75, only at Sointu.

Home furnishings, personal and executive accessories, jewelry and unusual gifts.
20 East 69th Street, New York 10021
212 570 9449

AGNEW

Arab Stallion, 20 inches long, Silver.

DAVID WYNNE
Sculpture

20 October - 18 November

Illustrated catalogue available

43 OLD BOND STREET, LONDON, W1
Cables: Resemble London W1
Tel: 01-629 6176
Mon.-Fri. 9:30-5:30
Thurs. until 7 pm

LEFEBRE GALLERY

October 4 to November 5, 1983
JUAN MARTINEZ

November 8 to December 10, 1983
Paris as seen by
ANTONIO SEGUI

January 10 to February 11, 1984 new sculpture by
REINHOUD

February 14 to March 17, 1984 recent paintings by
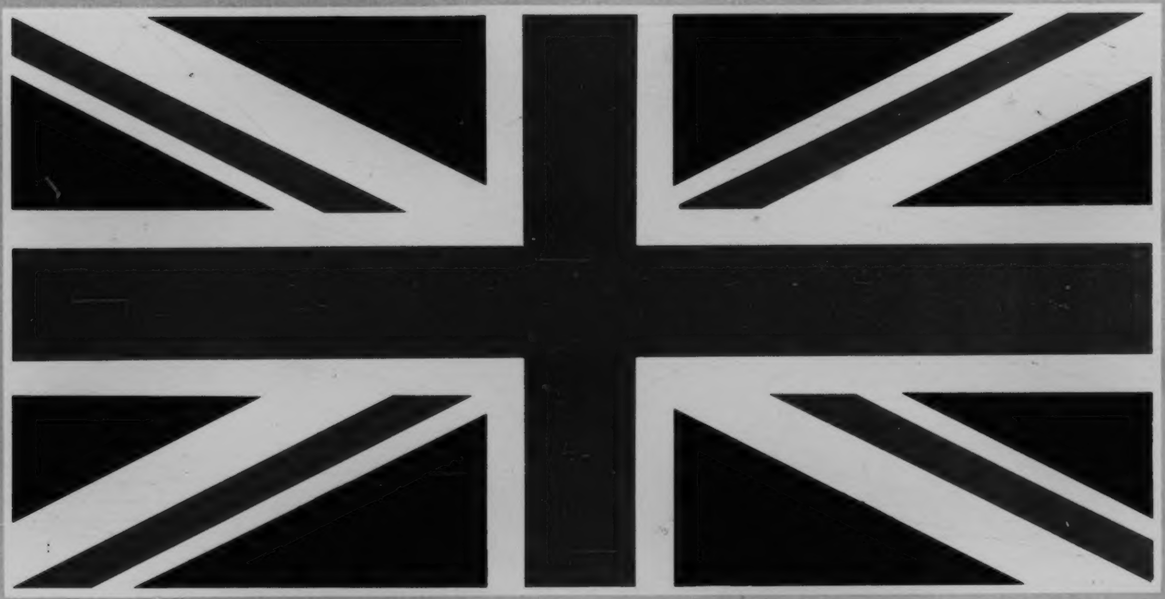
PIERRE ALECHINSKY

47 EAST 77 NYC • (212) 744-3384

Art in England

ARTISTS • IVOR ABRAHAMS • CRAIGIE AITCHISON • FRANCIS BACON
GLEN BAXTER • DEREK BOSHIER • ANTHONY CARO • BRIAN CLARKE
TONY CRAGG • ALAN DAVIE • THE GENIUS OF VENICE 1500-1600
GILBERT & GEORGE • DAVID HOCKNEY • KEN KIFF • LEON KOSSOFF
RICHARD LONG • IAN MCKEEVER • BRUCE MCLEAN
JEAN-FRANCOIS MILLET • JULIAN OPIE • FRANK ROSEN
SIR STANLEY SPENCER, R.A. • SUETIN • EMILIO TADINI
YOKO TERAUCHI • JEAN-LUC VILMOUTH • JOHN WALKER

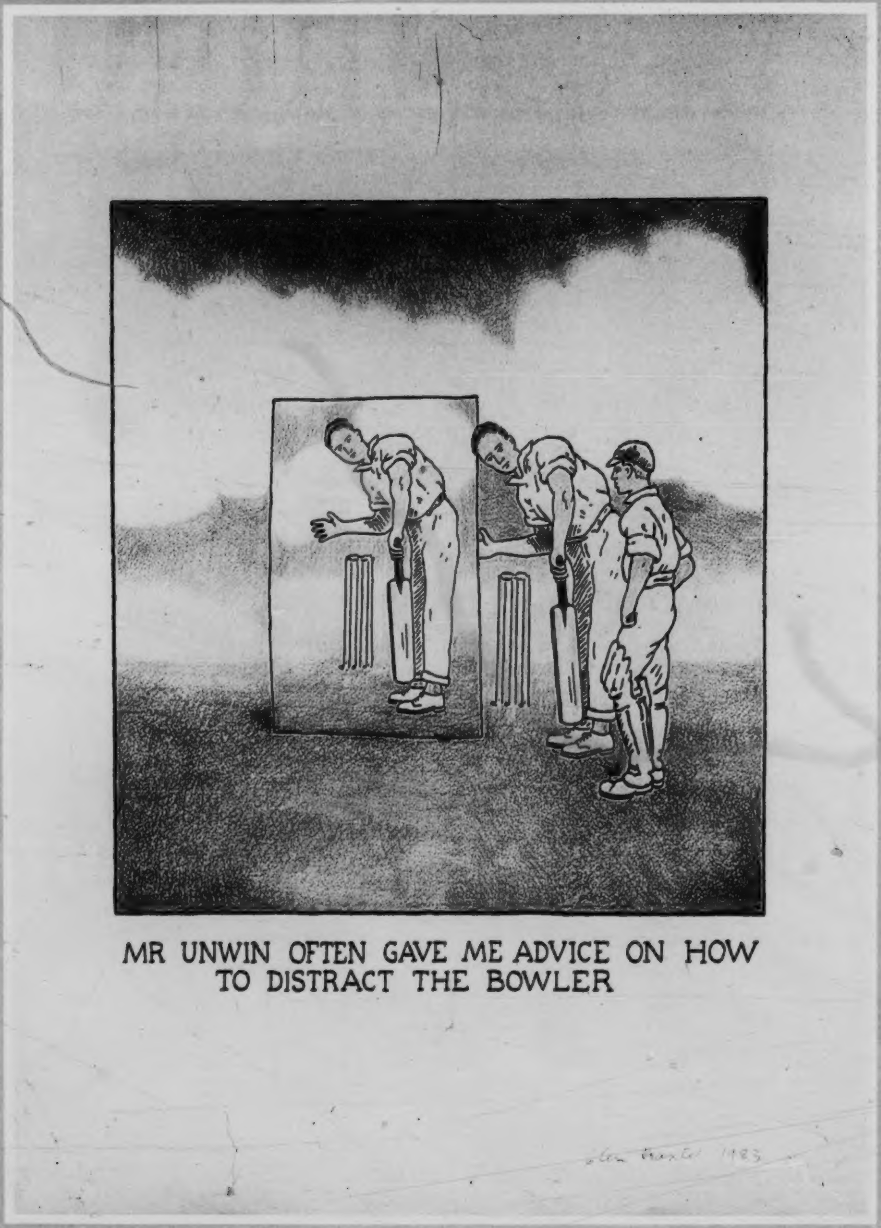


GALLERIES • GALERIE BEYELER • ANTHONY d'OFFAY
CORACLE PRESS GALLERY • CHRISTIE'S LONDON • FISCHER FINE ART LTD.
ROBERT FRASER GALLERY • GALERIE DE FRANCE • GALERIE TANIT
GIMPEL FILS • GIMPEL WEITZENHOFFER LTD. • BARBARA GLADSTONE
MARIAN GOODMAN GALLERY • NIGEL GREENWOOD • DAVID GROB LTD.
NICOLA JACOBS GALLERY • BERNARD JACOBSON PRINTS • ANNELY JUDA FINE ART
KENDALE GALLERY • KNOEDLER GALLERY • LENS FINE ART • LISSON GALLERY LONDON
NICHOLAS LOGSDAIL • STUDIO MARCONI • MARLBOROUGH FINE ART LTD. • THE MAYOR GALLERY • ACHIM MOELLER LTD.
ROYAL ACADEMY OF ARTS • SPERONE WESTWATER • SOTHEBY'S • BARBARA TOLL FINE ARTS • EDWARD TOTAH GALLERY

Art in America

A Special Advertising Supplement, October '83

VOL 71
ISS 9
OC 1983
UMI



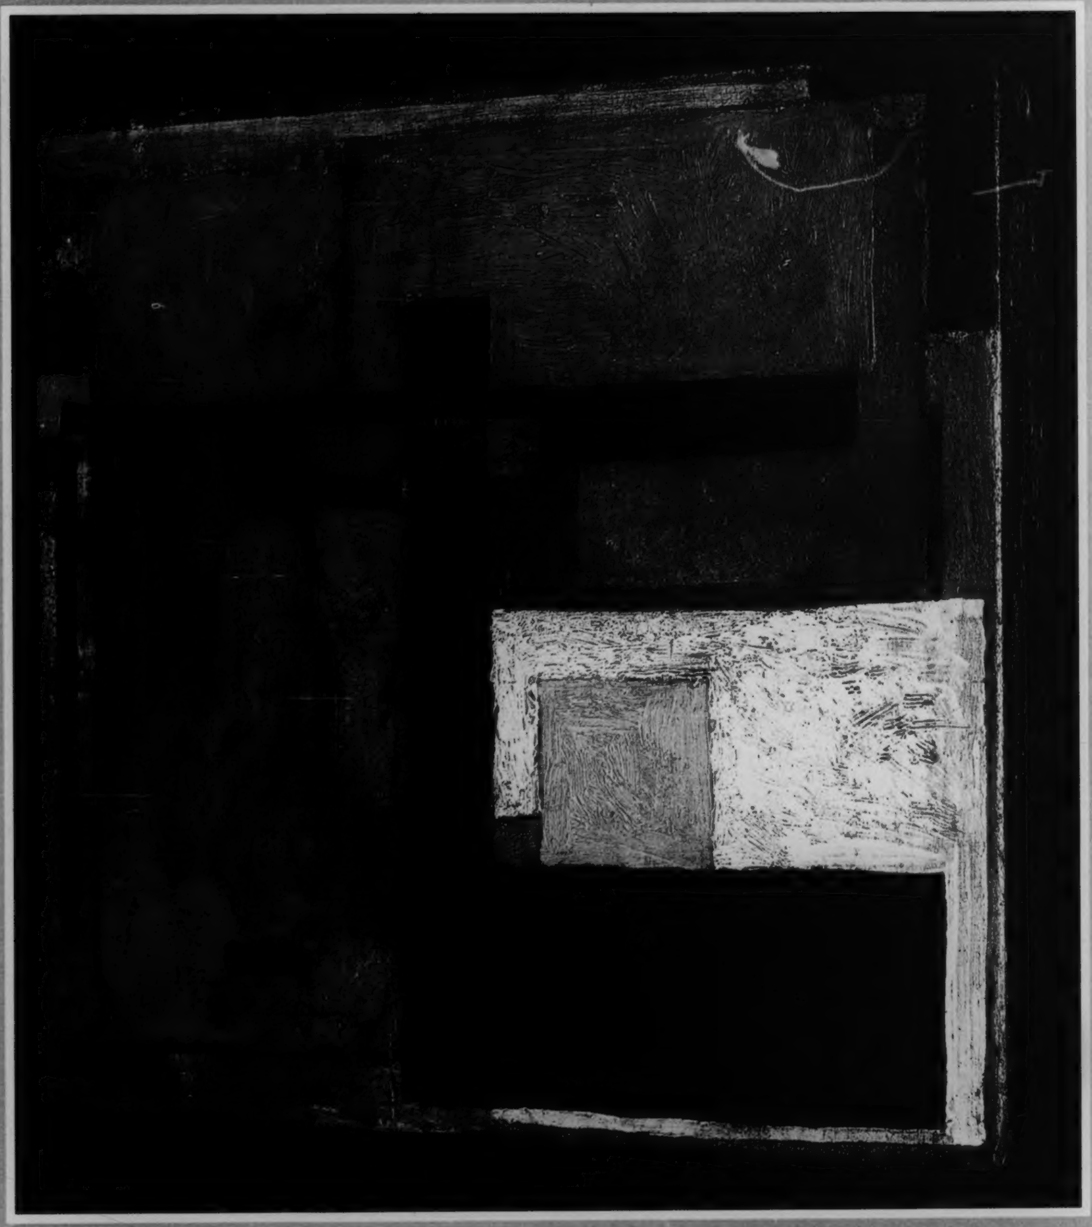
MR UNWIN OFTEN GAVE ME ADVICE ON HOW TO DISTRACT THE BOWLER
Glen Baxter 1983

GLEN BAXTER

1983. Ink and pastel. 80 x 58 cm.
Exhibition, November - December, 1983.

NIGEL GREENWOOD

41 SLOANE GARDENS, LONDON S.W.1. W.8 E.B. TEL: (1) 730 8824



SUETIN

Untitled c. 1924. Oil on wood. 30.5 x 30.8 cm.
"FIRST RUSSIAN EXHIBITION, Berlin 1922—A COMMEMORATION." 15 September - 3 December, 1983.
Fully illustrated 180 page Catalogue available on request.

ANNELY JUDA FINE ART
11 TOTTENHAM MEWS (OFF TOTTENHAM STREET), LONDON W.1 TEL: (1) 637 5517/8

VOL
71
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

in truth in very truth
I am door

JOHN WALKER

"Oceania X" Oil on canvas, 7 x 5 feet.

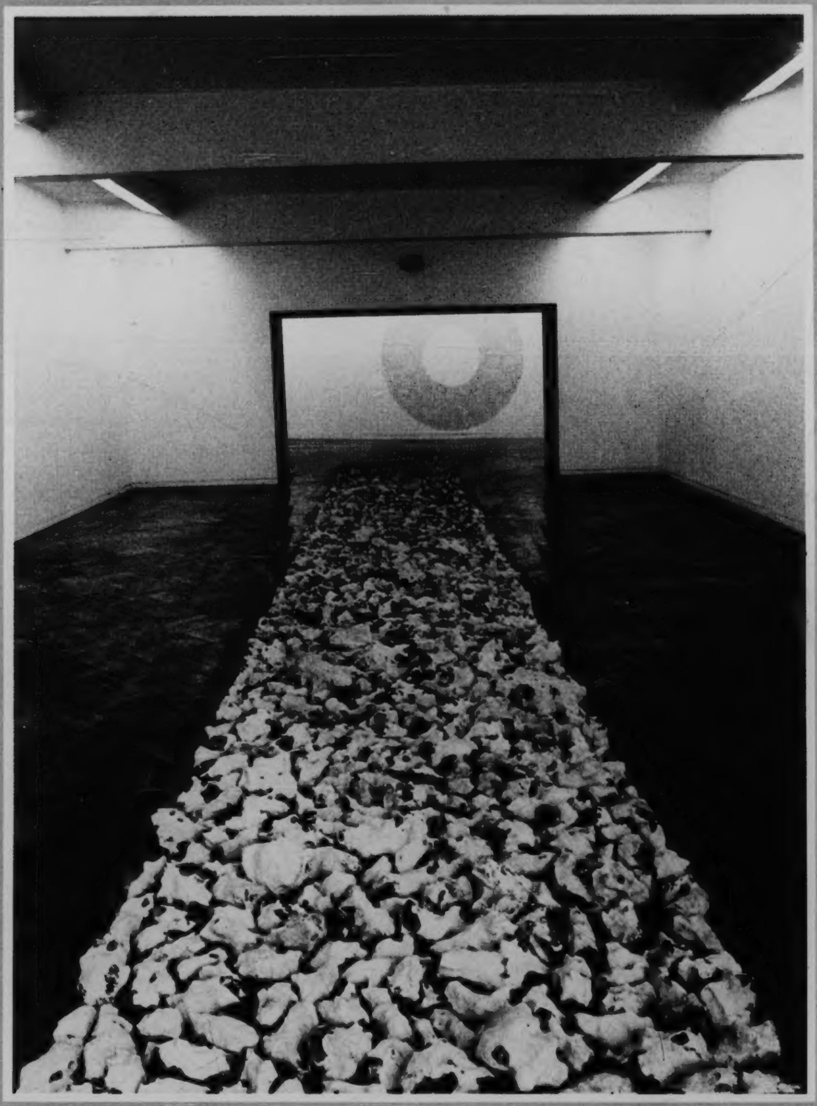
NIGEL GREENWOOD
41 SLOANE GARDENS, LONDON SW1. W.8.E.B. TEL: (01) 730 8824



RICHARD LONG

"A Line of Flint" 1983. (About) 1,500 stones
"White Earth and Water Circle" 1983. Diameter 280 cm.

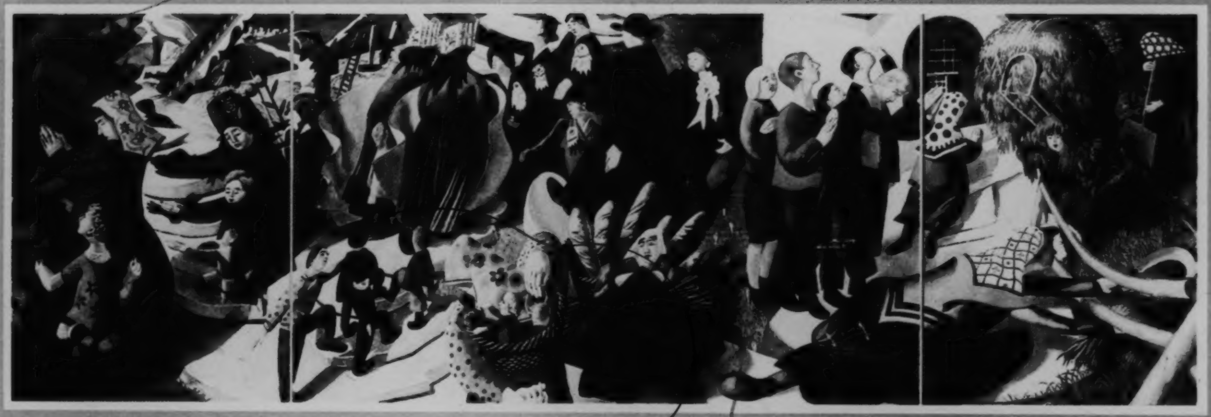
ANTHONY d'OFFAY

9 & 23 DERING STREET. NEW BOND STREET. LONDON W1. TEL: (01) 499 4695

VOL
7
1
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

9

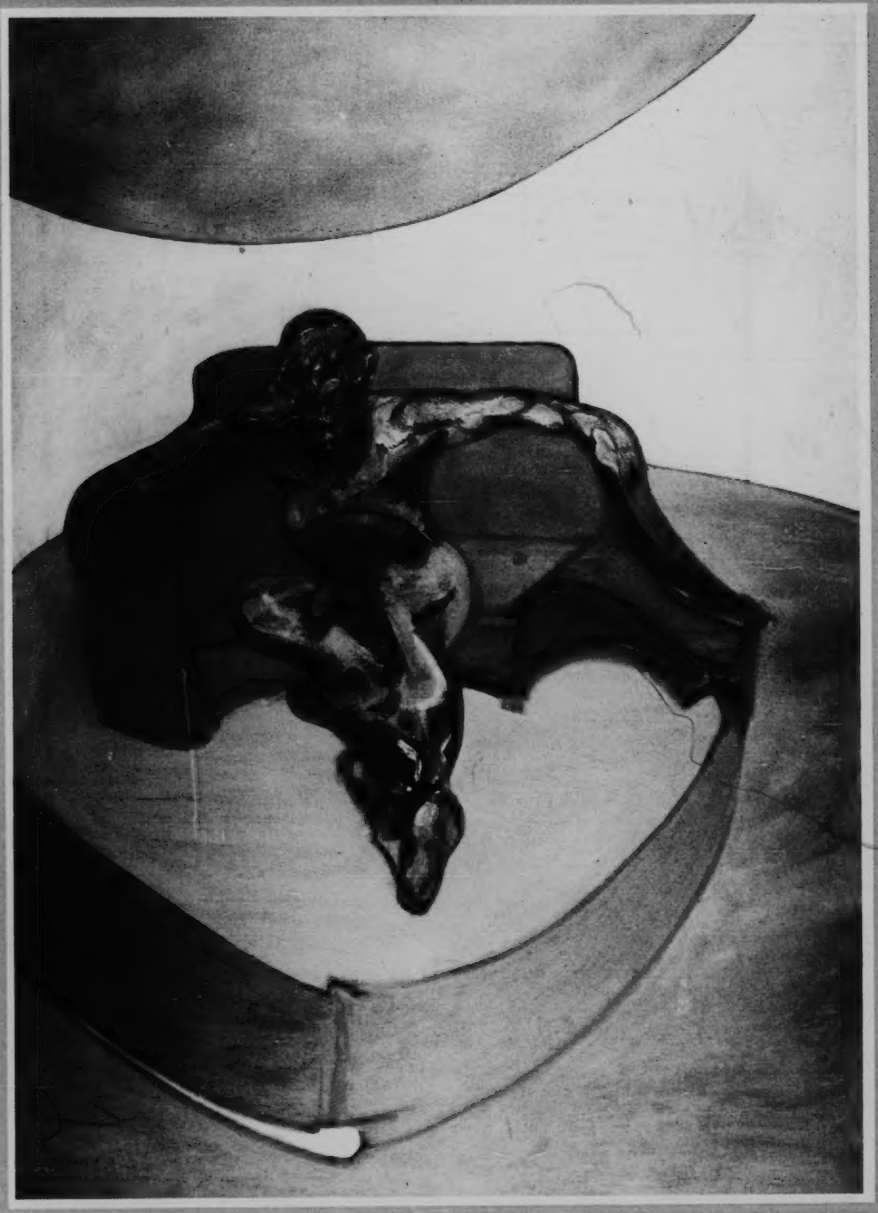


SIR STANLEY SPENCER, R.A.

"Swiss Souvenir" 1934. A triptych in one frame.
42x30, 42x66, 42x30 in. 107x76, 107x167.5, 107x76 cm.

SOTHEBY'S LONDON SALE
MODERN BRITISH PAINTINGS DRAWINGS AND SCULPTURE

WEDNESDAY 2ND NOVEMBER 1983
34-35 NEW BOND STREET, LONDON W1A 2AA TEL: (01) 493 80 80



FRANCIS BACON

"Portait (Man on grey couch)" 1962. Oil on canvas, 78 x 56 in. 198 x 142 cm. Exhibition October-November: "Expressionist Painting Beyond Picasso"
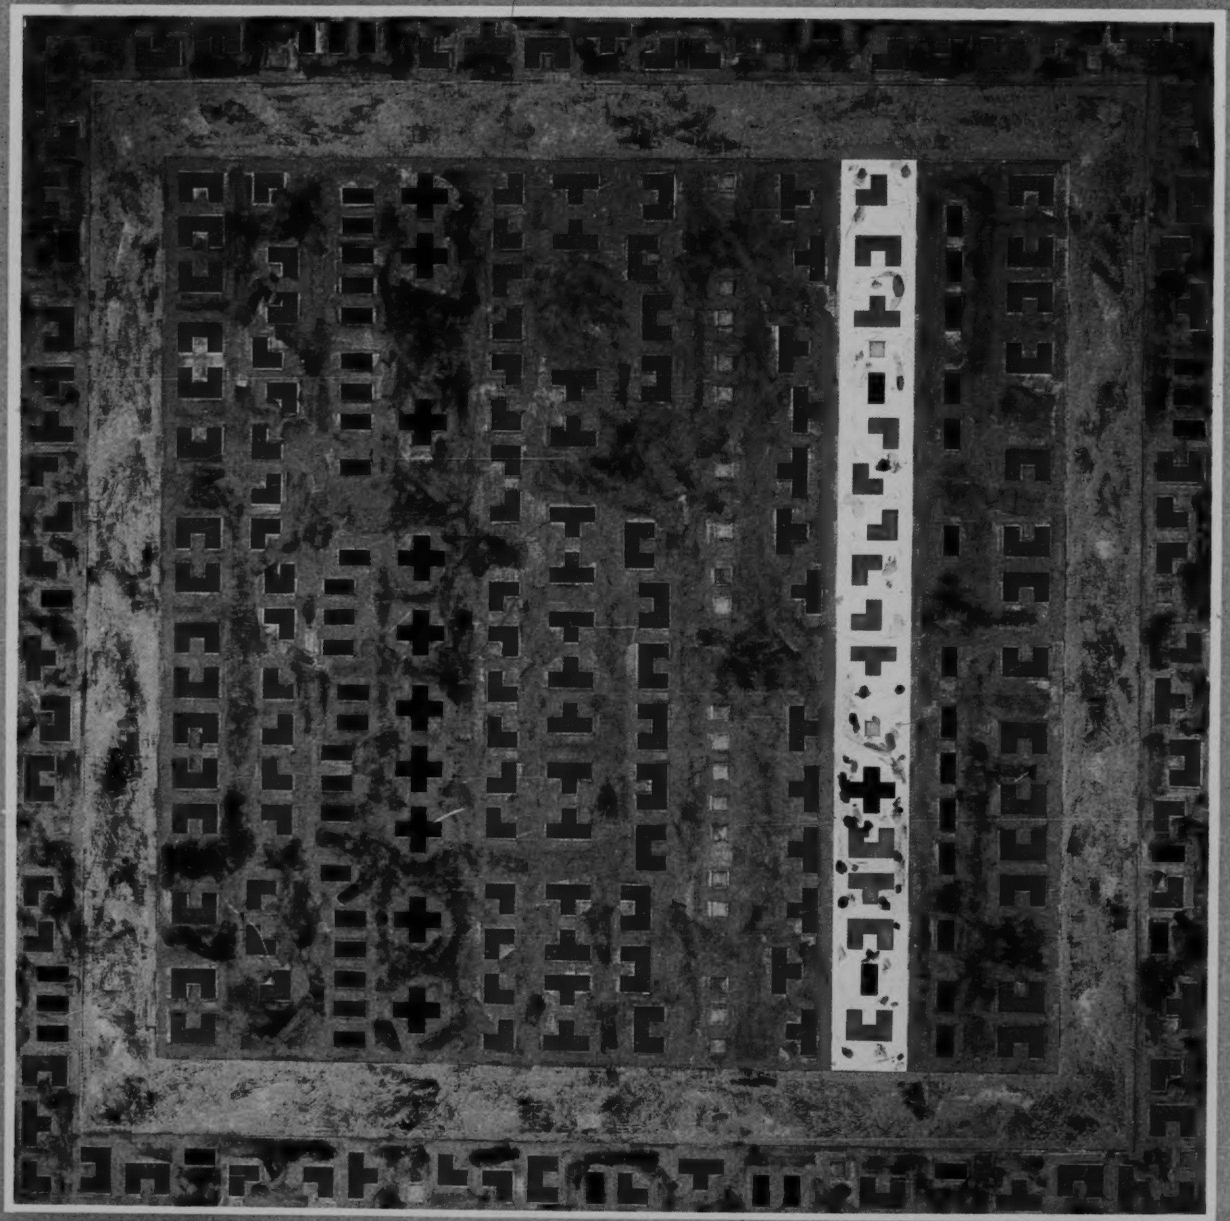
Dubuffet, Bacon, Jorn, Appel, De Kooning, Baselitz, Penck, Chia, Cucchi, Paladino, Basquiat.

GALERIE BEYELER

BAUMLEINGASSE 9, 4001 BASEL. TEL: 23 54 12

VOL
7
1
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI



BRIAN CLARKE

"The Last Seven Words." Düsseldorf 1982. Oil on canvas. 200 x 200 cm.

ROBERT FRASER GALLERY

21 CORK STREET, LONDON W1. TEL: (1) 434 1911

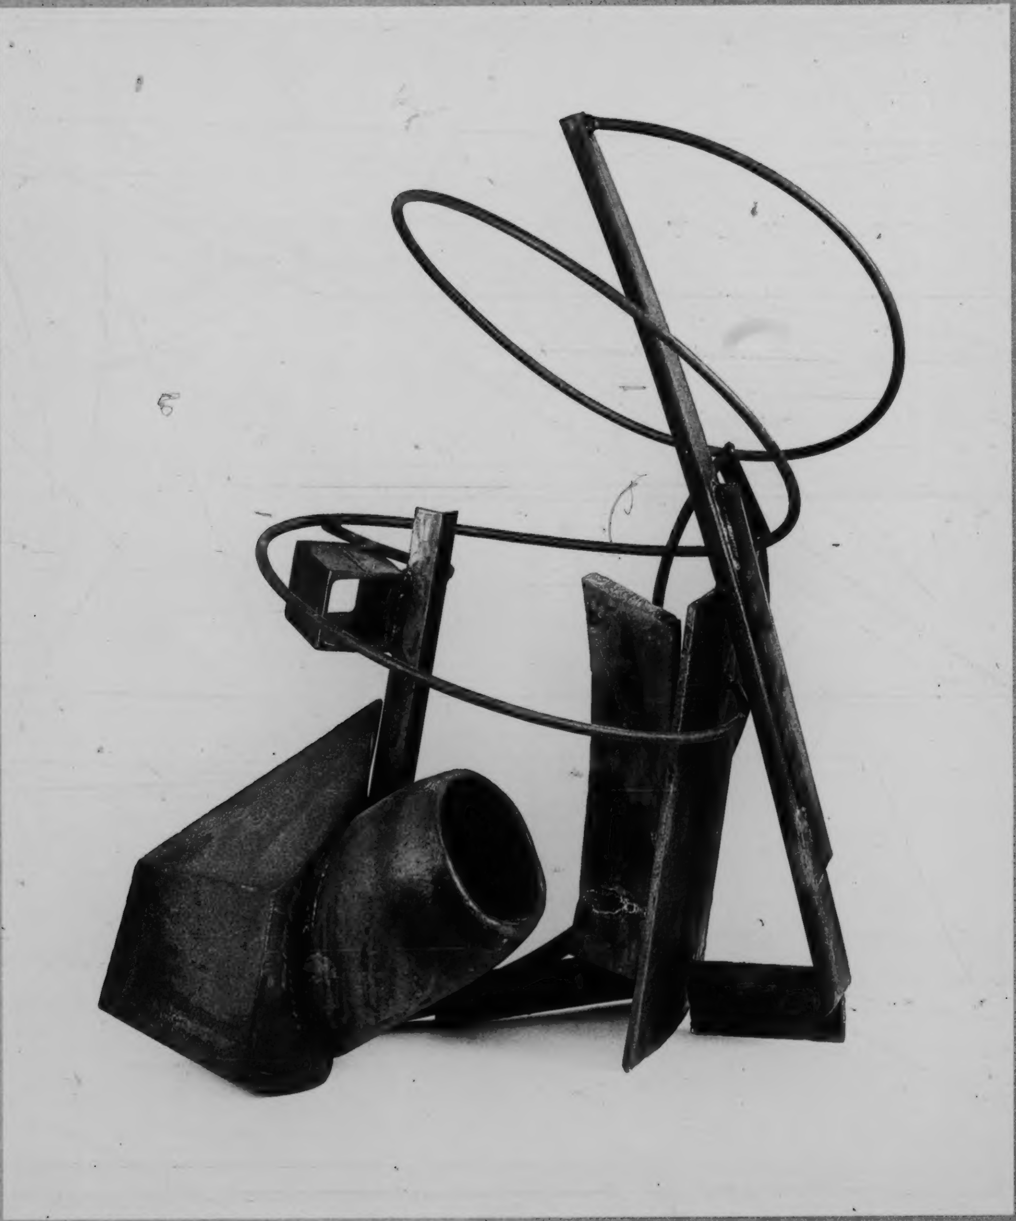


Photo: E. Kossakowski

ANTHONY CARO

"Table Piece Y16," 1983. Steel. 85 x 74 x 51 cm.
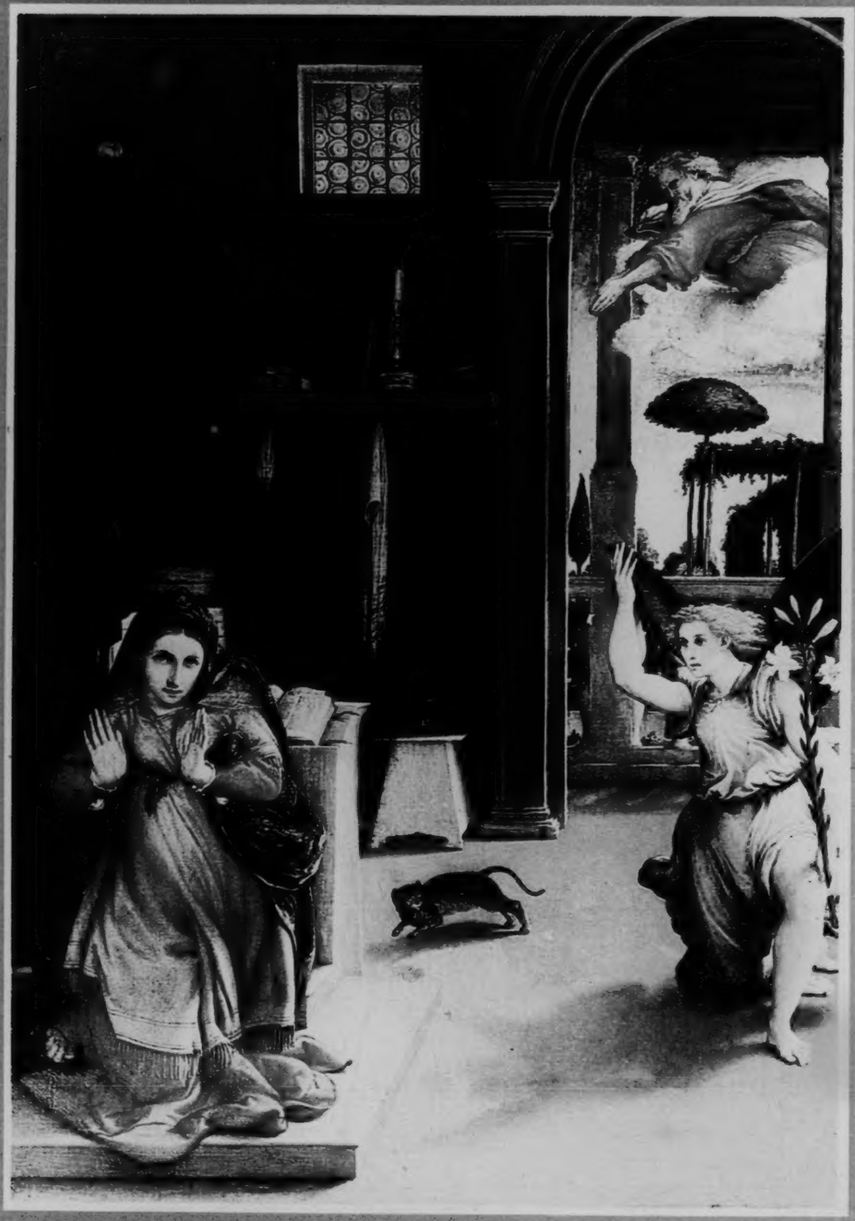
Exhibition: 22 September-29 October 1983.

GALERIE DE FRANCE

52, RUE DE LA VERRERIE, 75004 PARIS. TEL: 274 38 00

VOL
71
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI



THE GENIUS OF VENICE 1500-1600

25 November 1983 to 11 March 1984
"The Annunciation" Lotto. Loaned by the Pinacoteca Civica, Recanati.

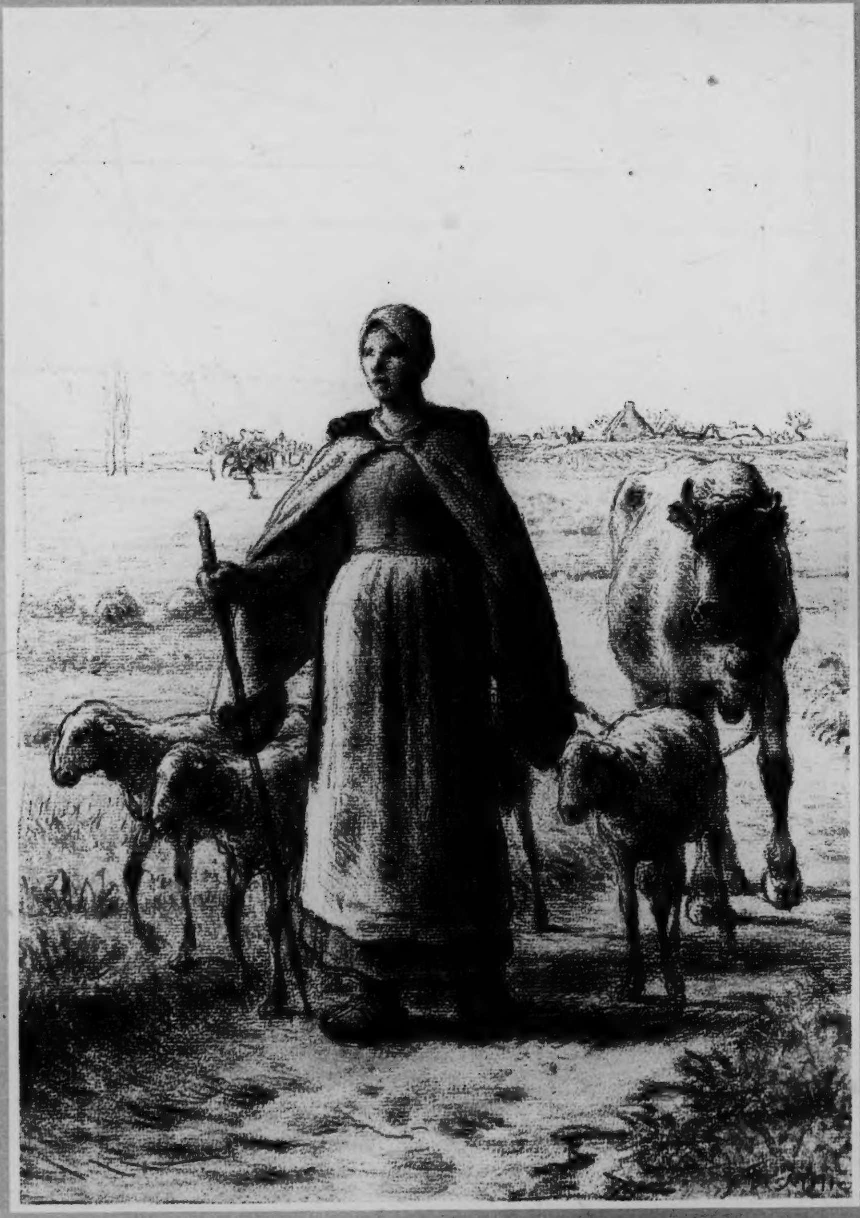
ROYAL ACADEMY OF ARTS
BURLINGTON HOUSE, PICCADILLY, LONDON W1V ODS



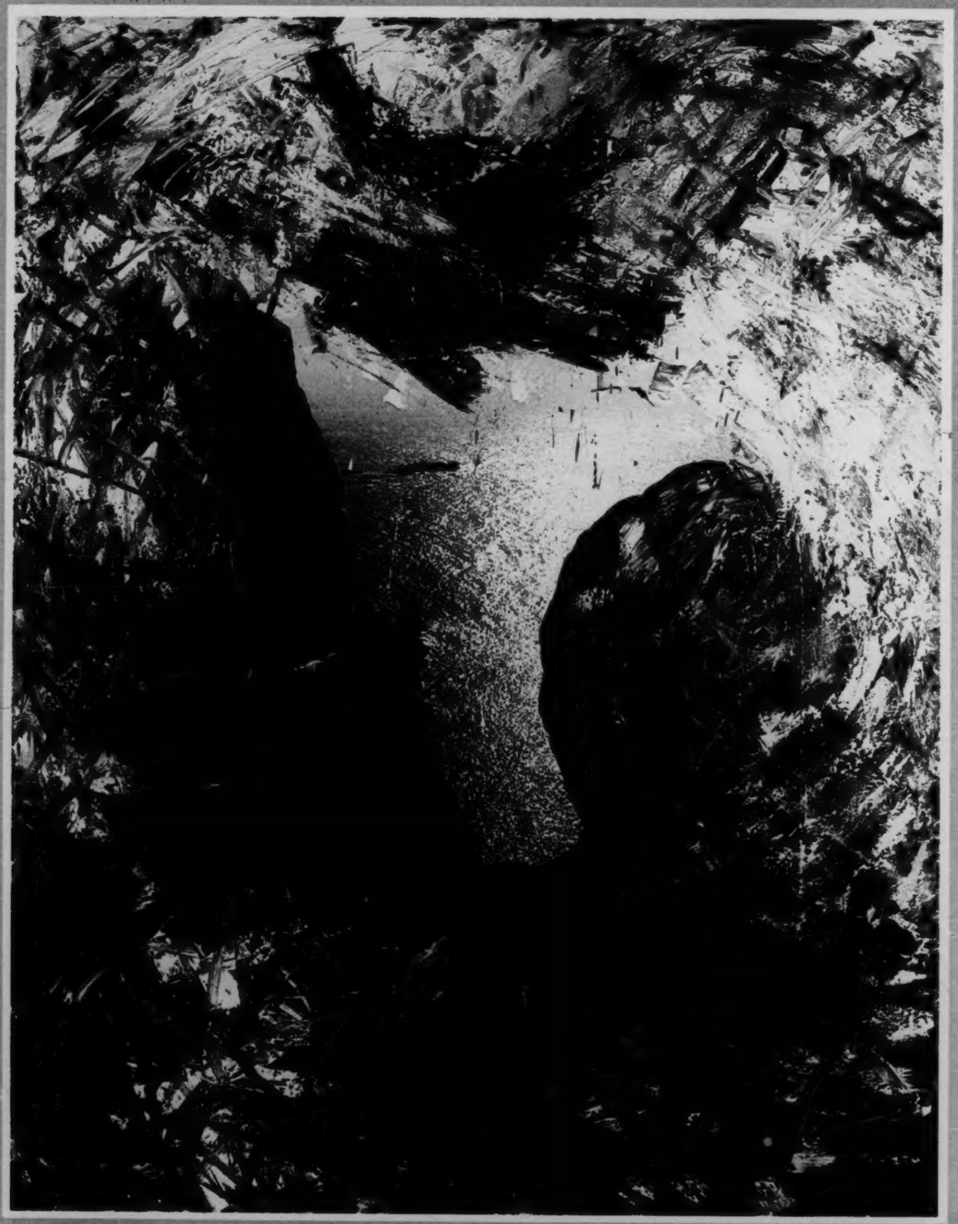
JEAN-FRANÇOIS MILLET

"Paysanne conduisant aux champs sa vache et ses moutons." May 1863.
Pastel and charcoal on paper.
15 ¾ x 11 inches (40 x 28 cm.) Signed lower right. The sketch for this work is at the Louvre, Paris, Inv. No. 10620.

ACHIM MOELLER LTD.

8 GROSVENOR STREET, BOND STREET, LONDON W1. TEL: (01) 493 7611
NEW YORK OFFICE (BY APPOINTMENT ONLY) TEL: (212) 988 8483

VOL
7
1
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

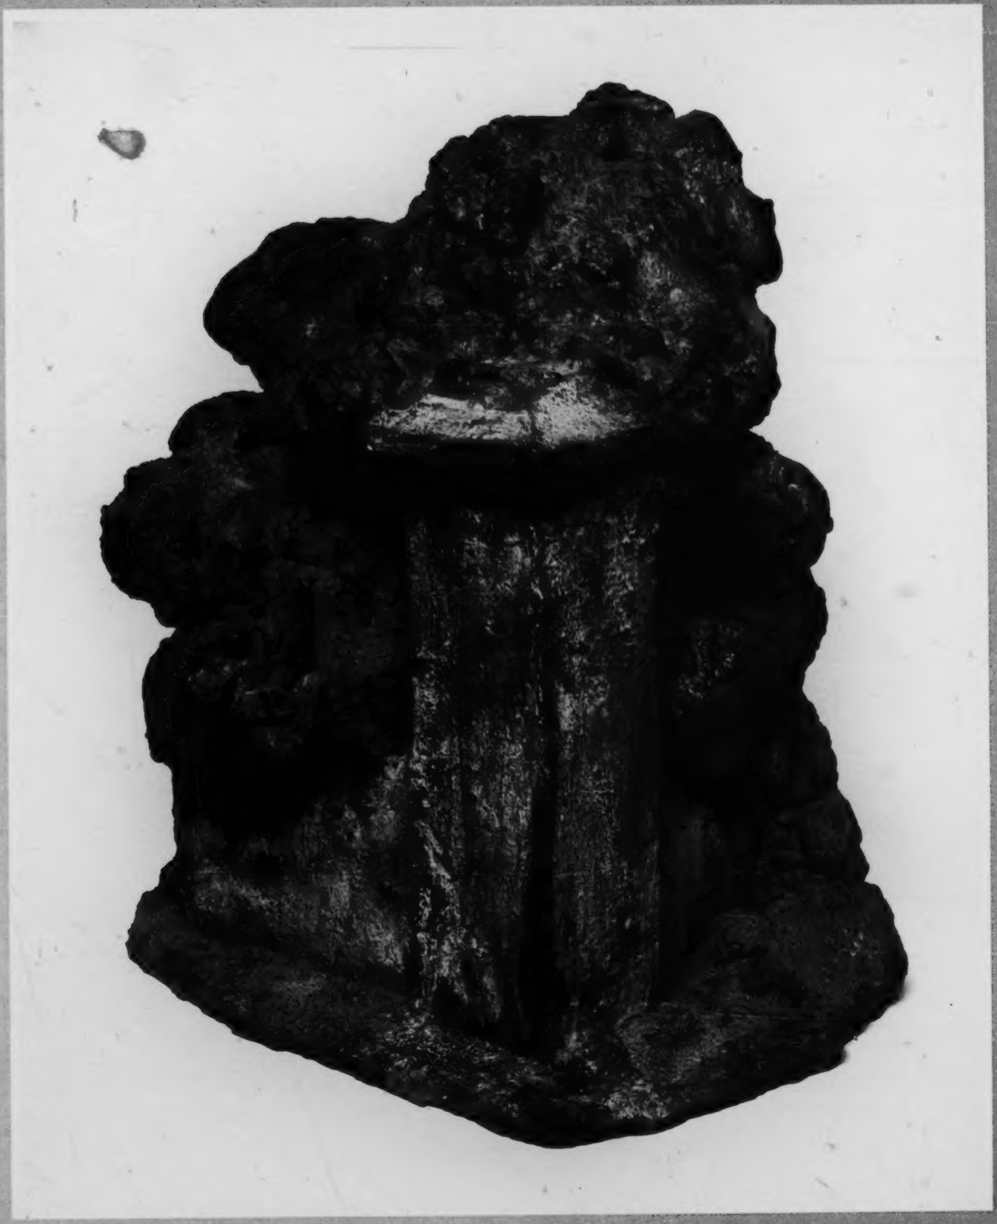


IAN McKEEVER

"Shade and Darkness - Evening." From a series of "Traditional Landscapes," 1983. Oil and photograph on canvas. 253 x 200 cm. Exhibition, October 1983 London; March 1984 Munich.

NIGEL GREENWOOD
41 SLOANE GARDENS, LONDON S.W.1 W.8 E.B. TEL: (1) 730 8824

GALERIE TANIT
MAXIMILIANSTRASSE 36, 8000 MUNICH 22. TEL: (89) 29 22 23



IVOR ABRAHAMS

"Gate Post" 1979. 59 x 40 x 50 cms. Bronze, edition of four.

THE MAYOR GALLERY

22A CORK STREET, LONDON W1 TEL: (01) 734 3558

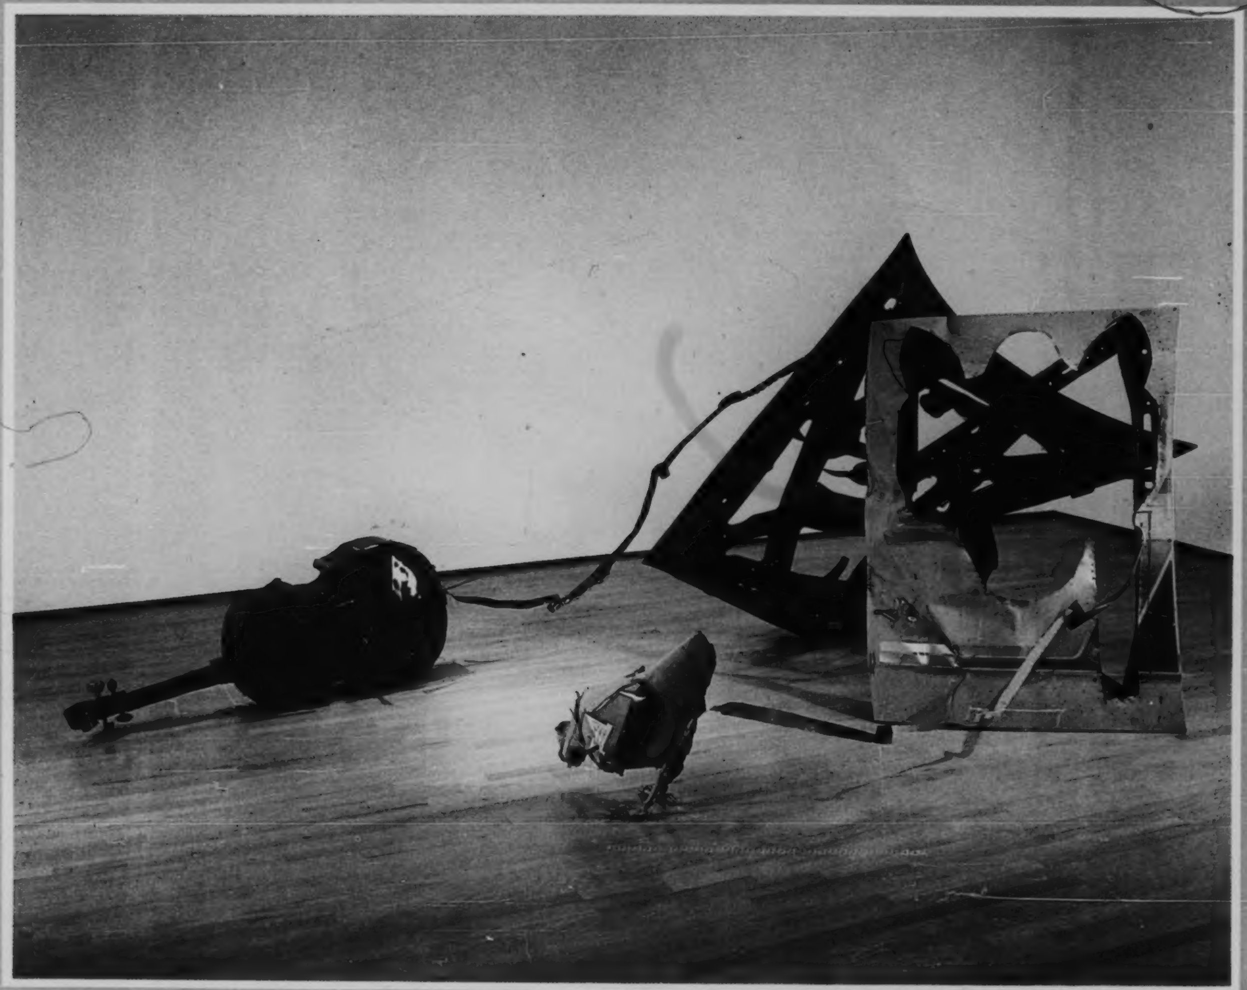
VOL
7
1

ISS
9

OC

1983

UMI



BILL WOODROW

"Cello/Chicken/Two Car Hoods" 1983. Approximately 61" x 66" x 151"

BARBARA GLADSTONE GALLERY
152 WOOSTER STREET, NEW YORK, NEW YORK 10012 TEL: (212) 505-5690

LISSON GALLERY LONDON
66-68 BELL STREET LONDON, N.W.1, TEL: (01) 262-1539

GOOD NIGHT
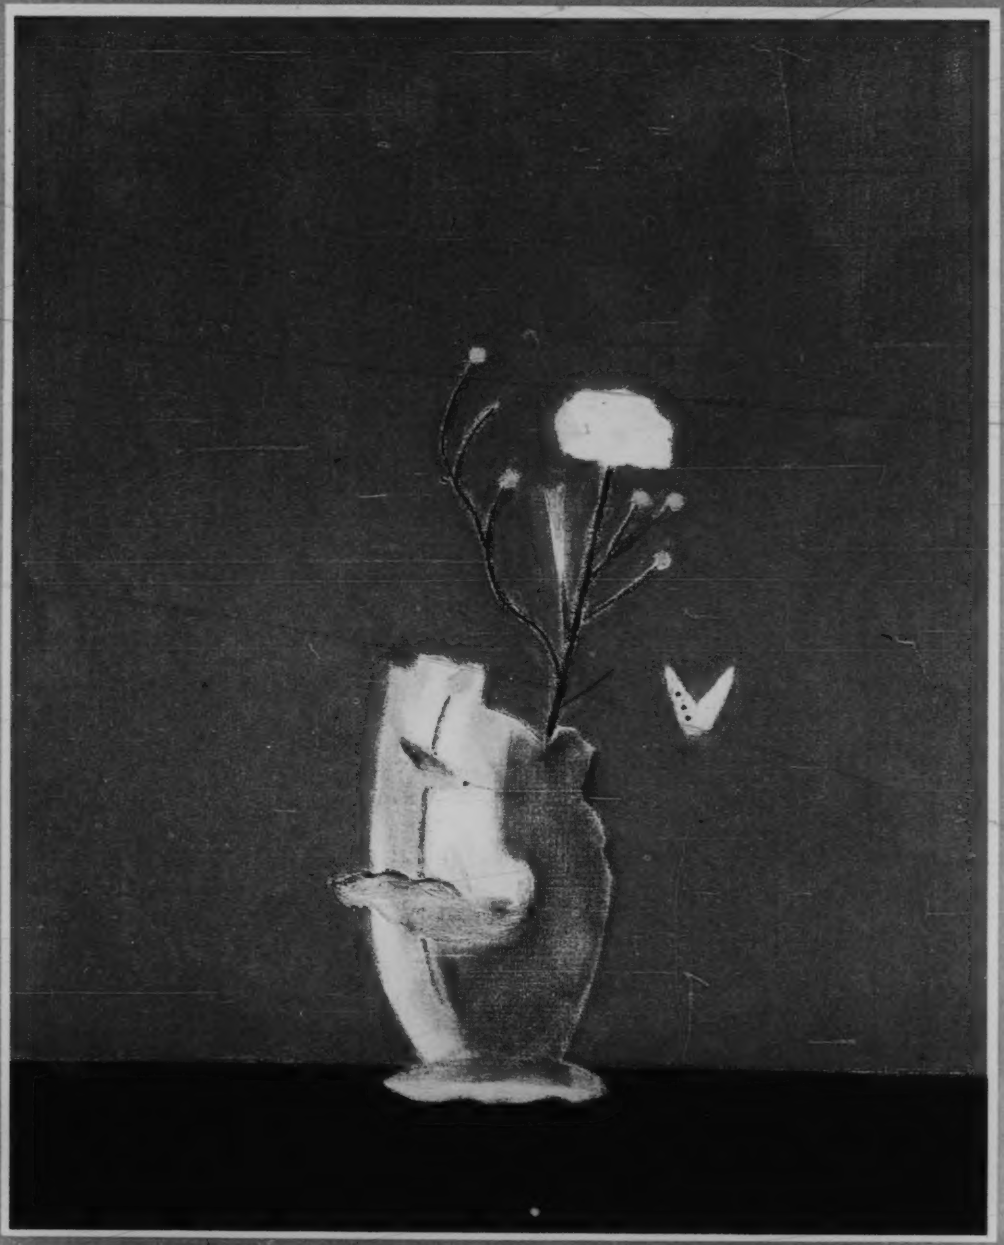
Gilbert AND George
1982

GILBERT & GEORGE

"Good Night" 1982. Photopiece (56 part) 423.5 x 404 cm (166 ¾ x 159 ins.)
Exhibited: "New Art at the Tate Gallery" 14 September to 23 October 1983

ANTHONY d'OFFAY
9 & 23 DERING STREET. NEW BOND STREET. LONDON W1. TEL: (01) 499 4695

VOL
71
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI



CRAIGIE AITCHISON

"Chinese Vase with Butterfly" 1981. Oil on Canvas 21 ¾ x 18 ¾ ins.
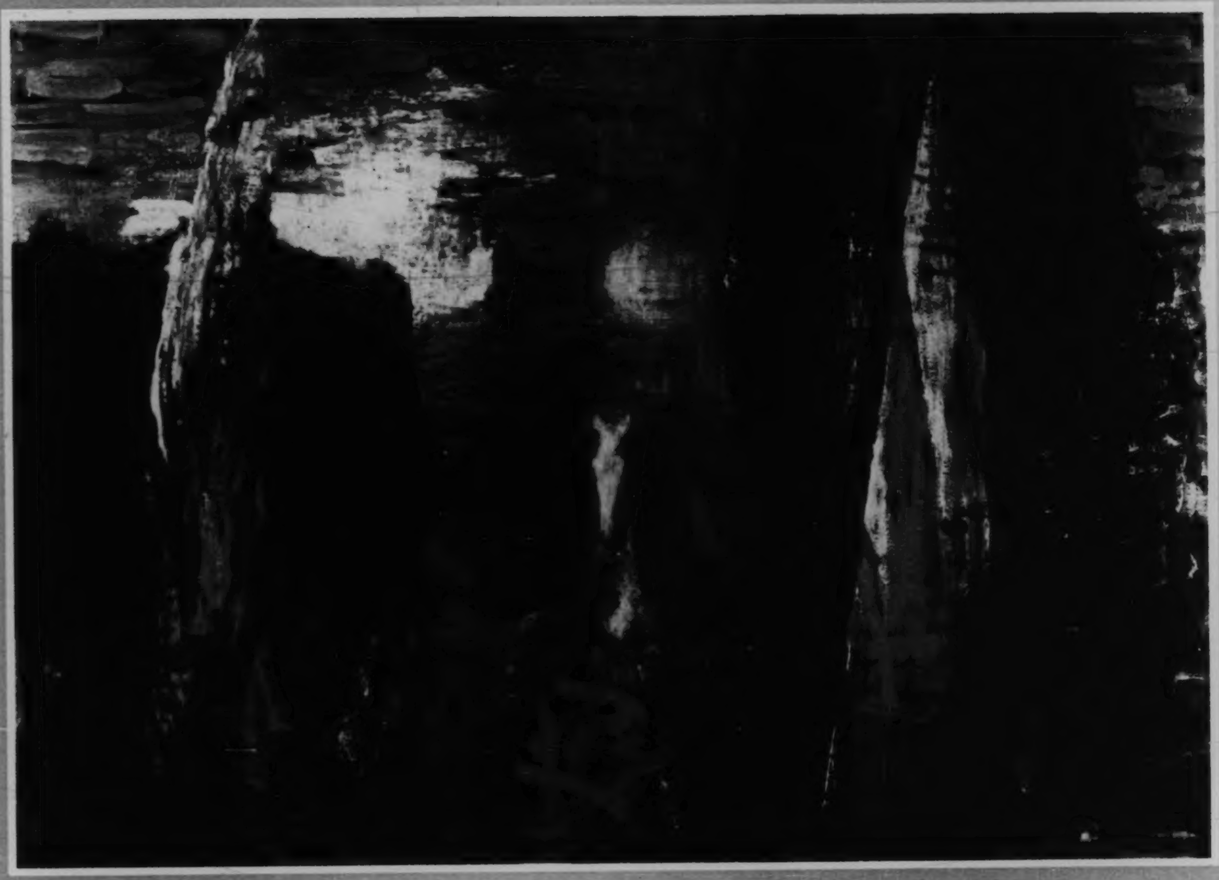
Exhibitions: 12 Duke Street Gallery, London:
"Craigie Aitchison: Recent Paintings" December-February 1981-82

DAVID GROB LTD.
BY APPOINTMENT ONLY, 6 ST ALBANS GROVE, LONDON W8 TEL: (01) 937 3683



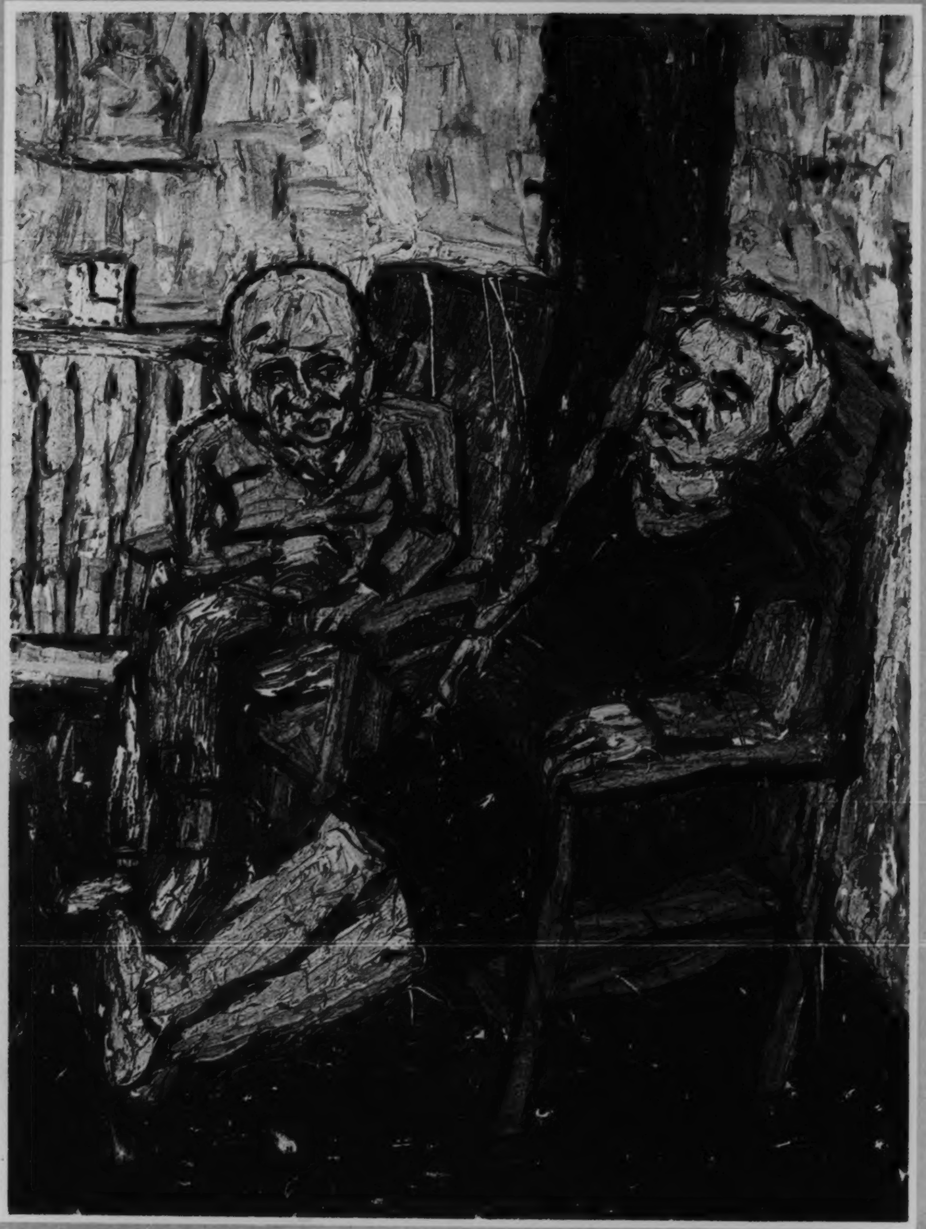
CHRISTOPHER LE BRUN

First New York Exhibition 21 September–22 October

NIGEL GREENWOOD
41 SLOANE GARDENS
LONDON S.W. 1
TEL: (01) 730-8824

SPERONE WESTWATER
142 GREENE STREET
NEW YORK, NEW YORK 10012
TEL: 212/431-3685

VOL
71
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI



LEON KOSSOFF

"Two Seated Figures No. 2" 1980. Oil on board 96 x 72 ins. Collection: The Tate Gallery, London. Represented by:

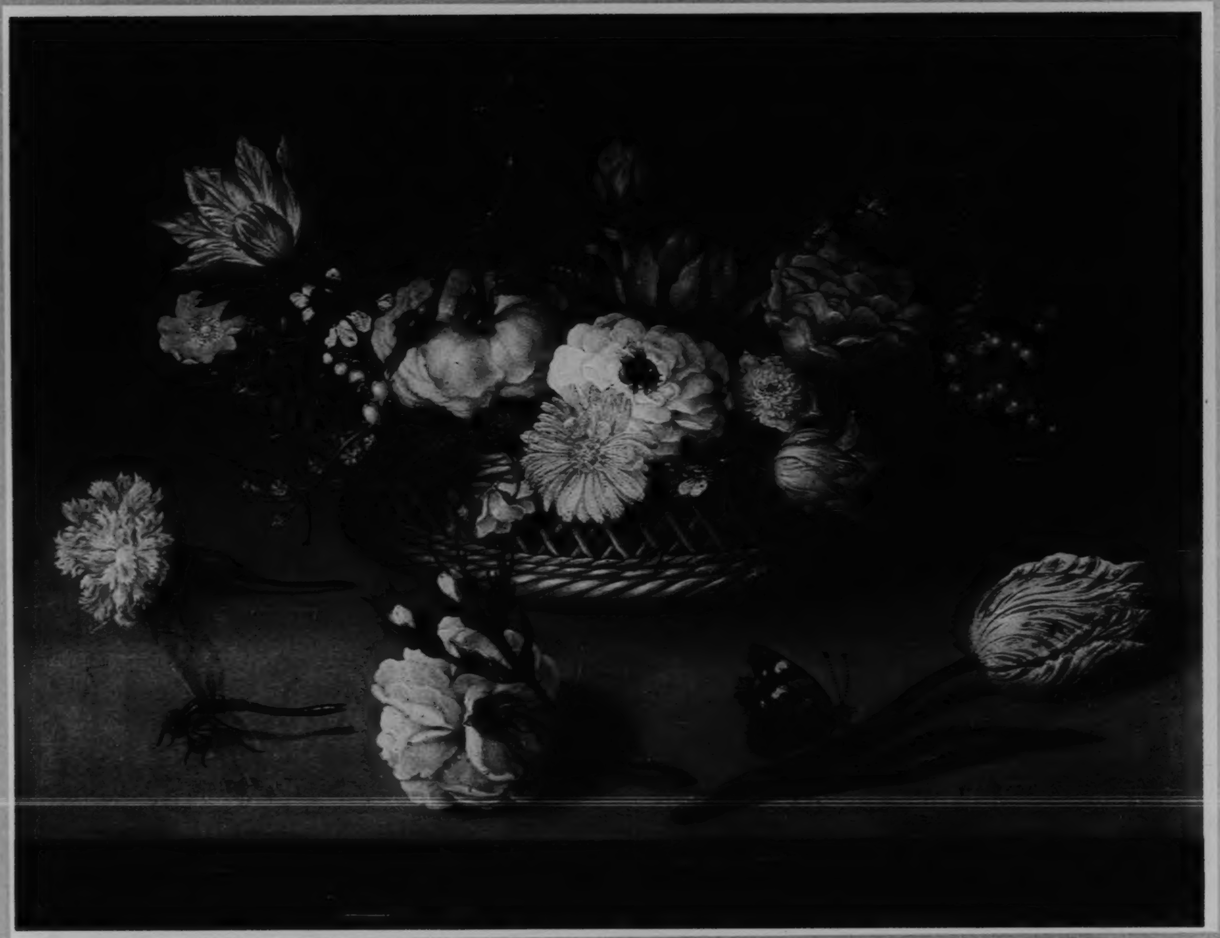
FISCHER FINE ART LIMITED

30 KING STREET LONDON SW1. TEL: (01) 839 3942



AMBROSIUS BOSSCHAERT THE ELDER

Still Life of Flowers and Insects on a Ledge. Signed with monogram and dated 1614.
Oil on copper. 29.5 x 38 cm. To be published by Professor Ingvar Bergström.
To be included in a sale of Important Old Master Pictures on 2nd December, 1983 at Christie's London.

CHRISTIE'S LONDON

8 KING STREET, ST. JAMES'S, LONDON SW1Y 6QT. Tel: (01) 839 9060

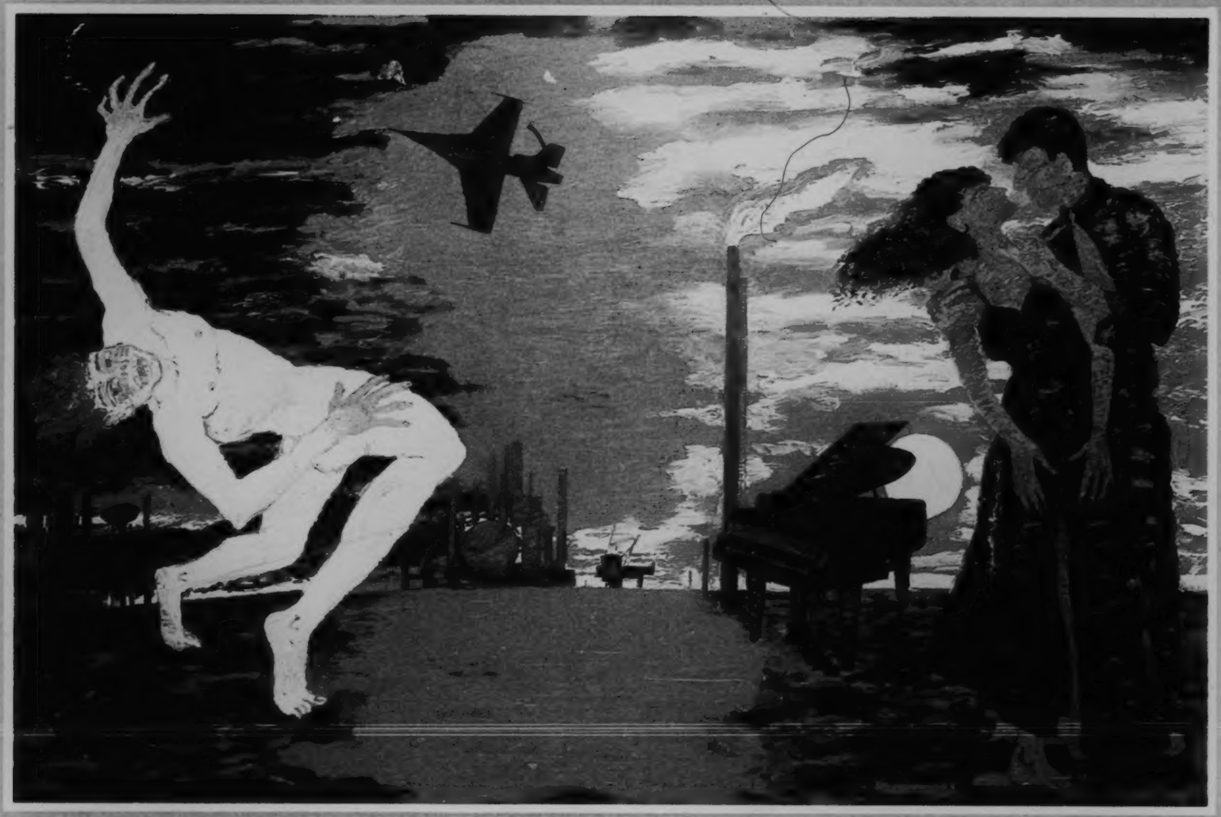
VOL
7
1

ISS
9

OC

1983

UMI



DEREK BOSHIER

"Everyday Opera." 1983. Oil on canvas. 88 x 132 inches (223 x 335 cm.)

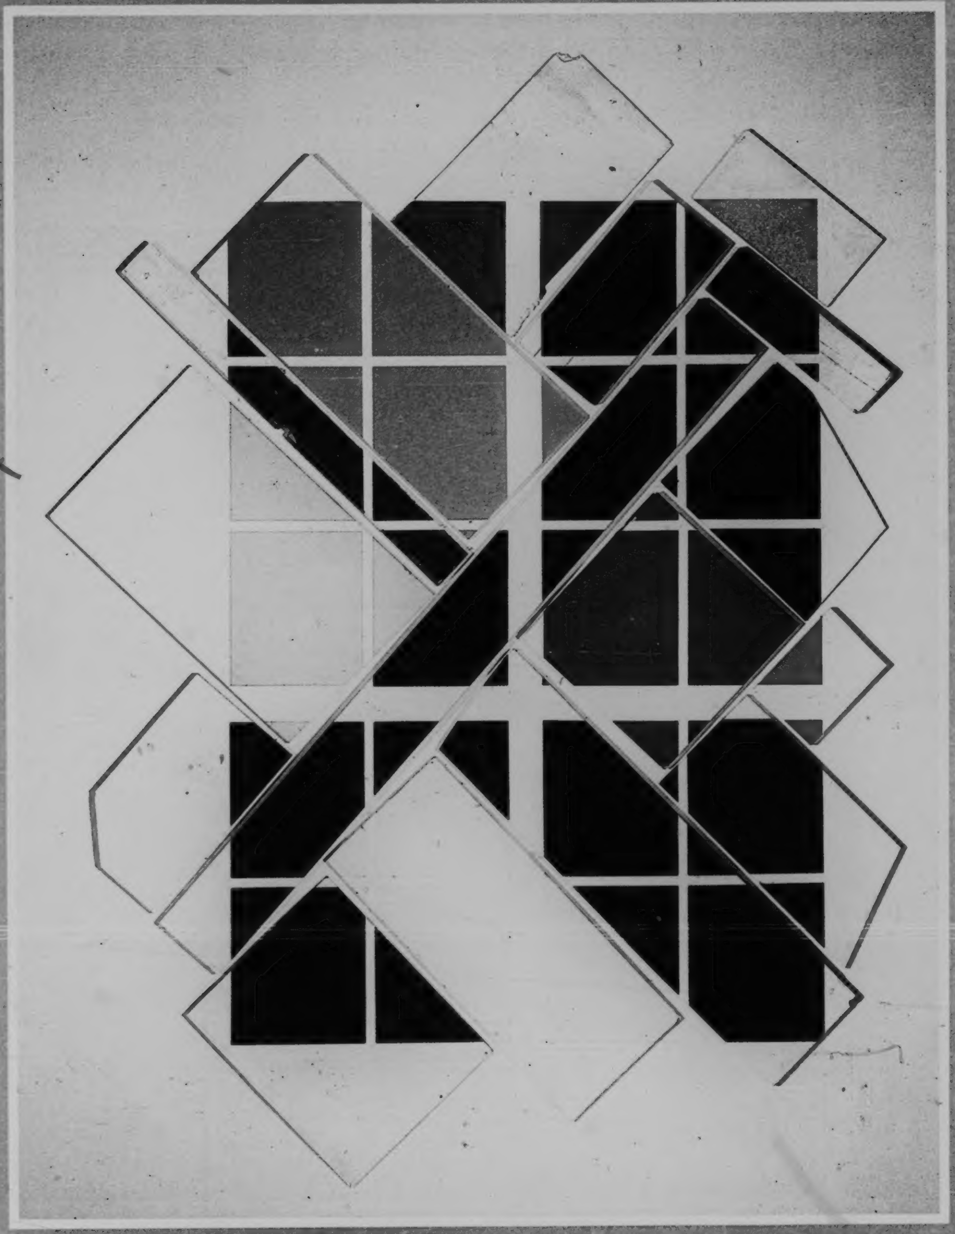
EDWARD TOTAH GALLERY
39 FLORAL STREET, LONDON WC2. TEL: (1) 379 6241/836 5791



TONY CRAGG

"Large Window" 1983. Painted wood.

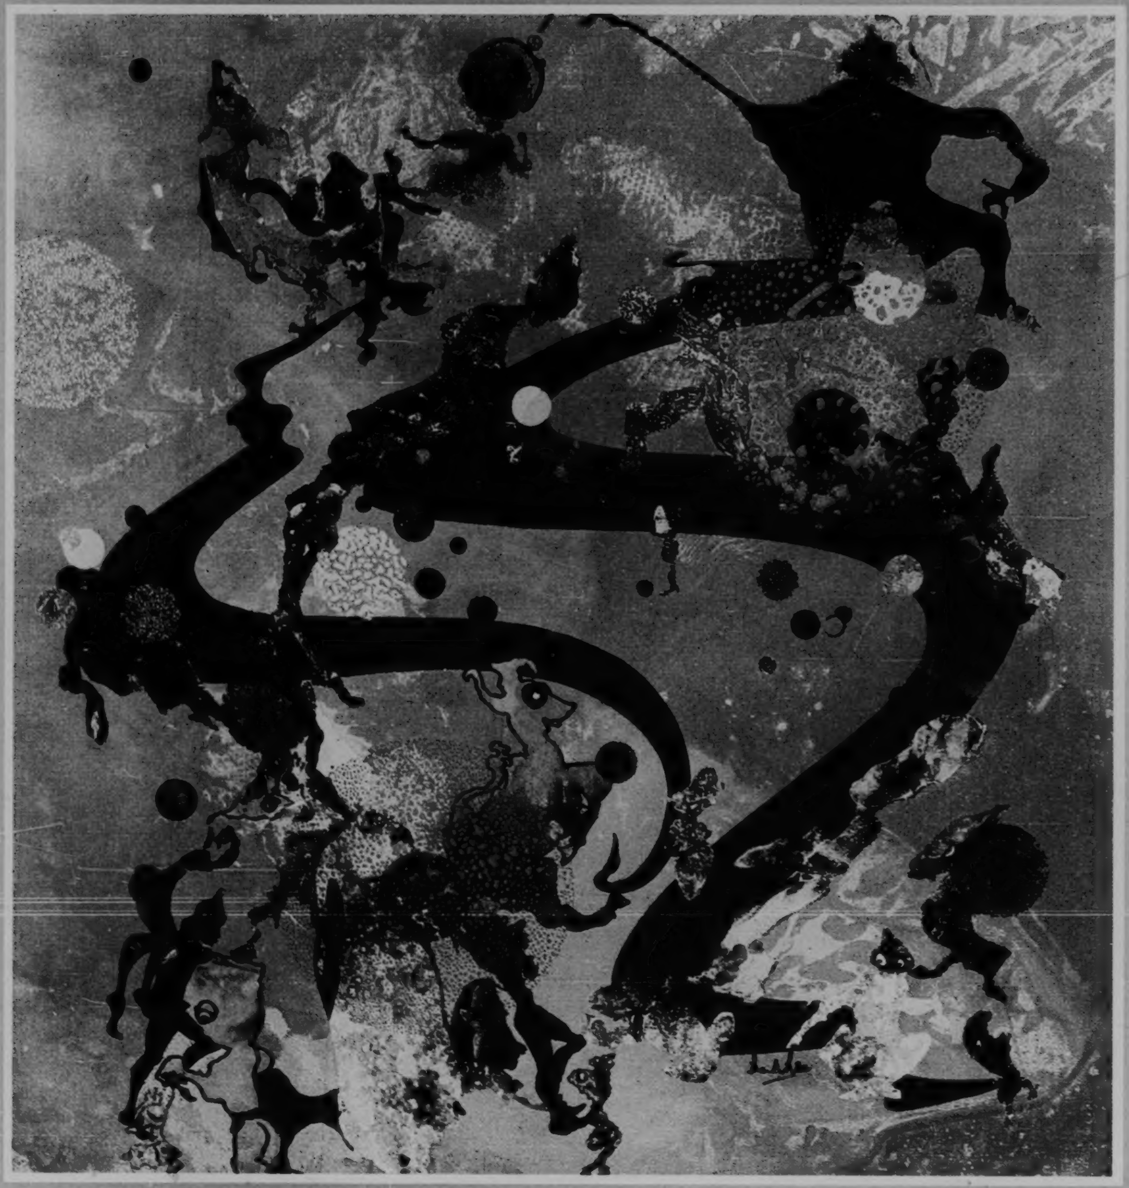
MARIAN GOODMAN GALLERY
24 WEST 57TH ST. NEW YORK 10019 TEL: (212) 977-7160

LISSON GALLERY LONDON
66-68 BELL STREET LONDON W1 TEL: (01) 262 1539

VOL
7
1
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI



FRANK ROSEN

"Holiday." Oil on canvas.

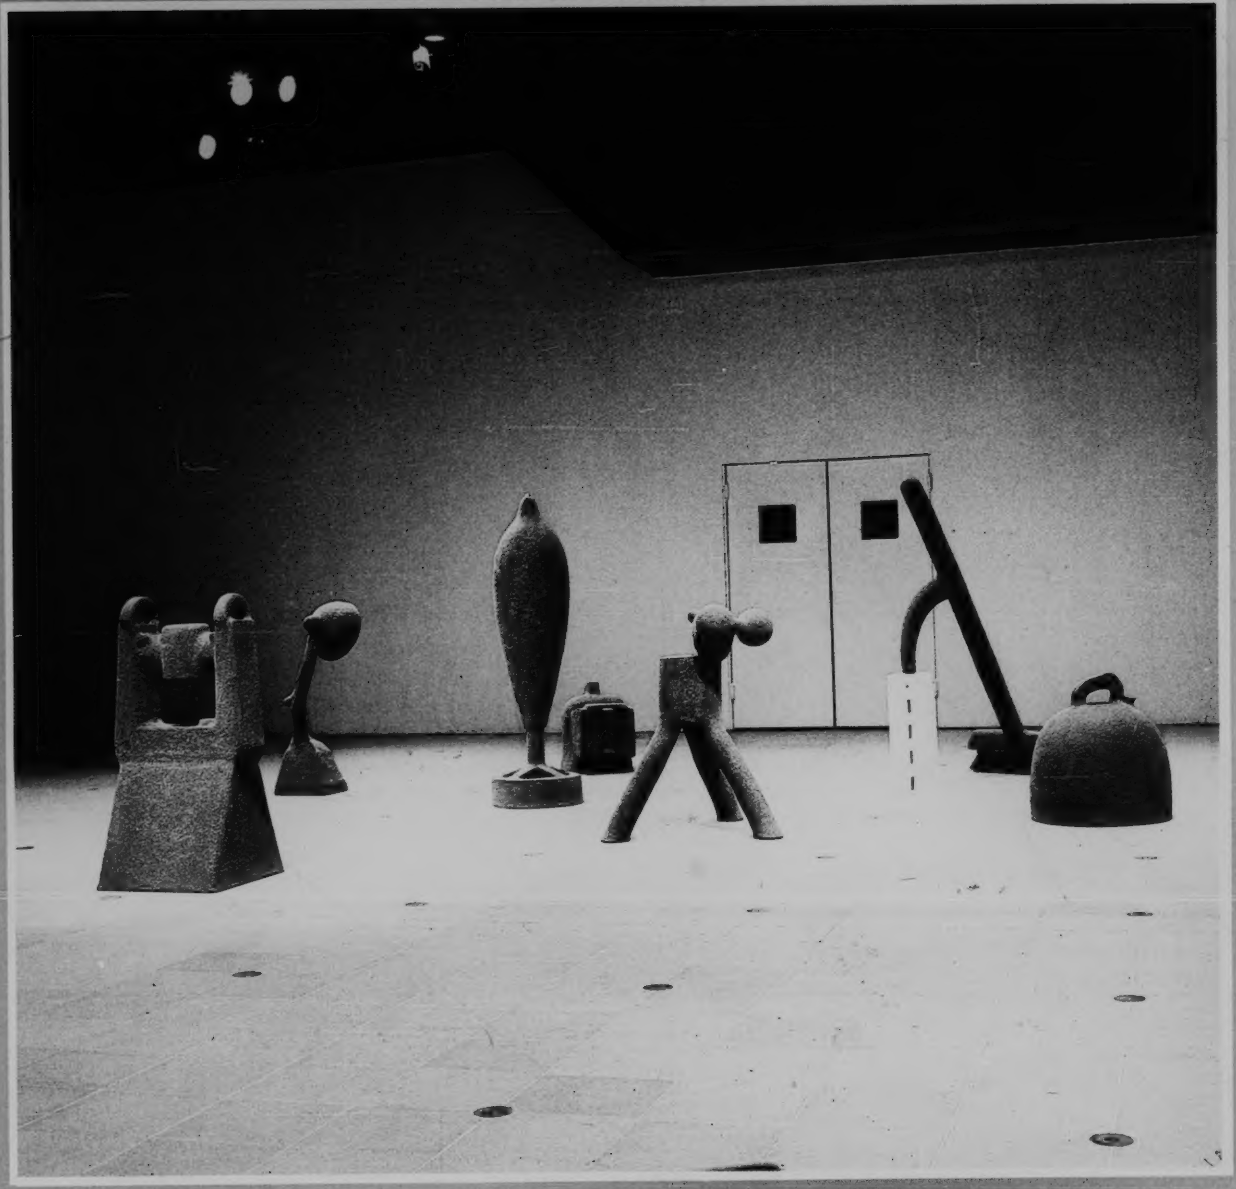
KENDALE GALLERY

HAMPSTEAD LANE (COR. WINNINGTON), LONDON NW3 7JP. TEL: (1) 455 2097



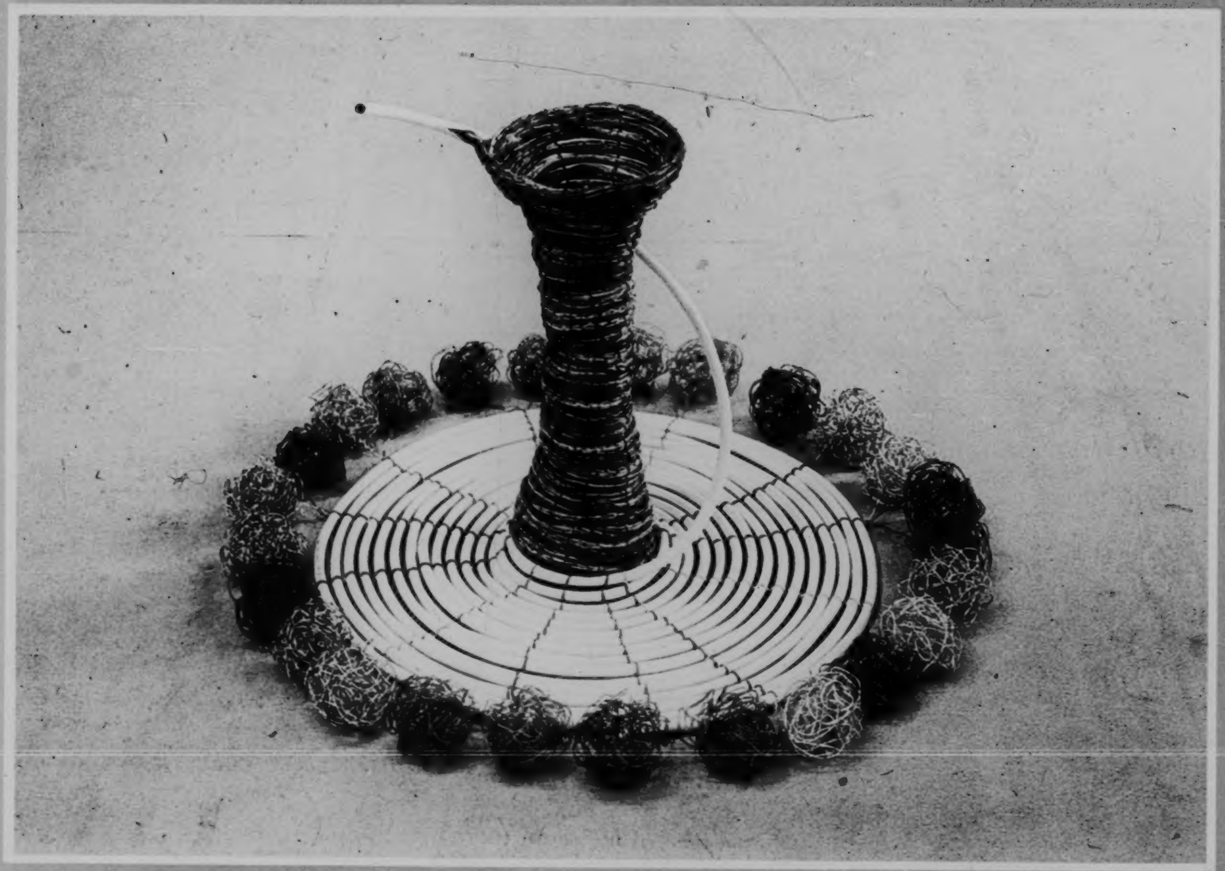
JEAN-LUC VILMOUTH

Celebration 1983 papier maché and various objects c. 20′ square
Exhibited at the Hayward Gallery, London in "The Sculpture Show"

BARBARA TOLL FINE ARTS
146 GREEN STREET NEW YORK, NEW YORK 10012 TEL: (212) 431-1788

LISSON GALLERY LONDON
66-68 BELL STREET LONDON, N.W.1 TEL: (01) 262-1539

VOL
7
1
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI



YOKO TERAUCHI

"Hot-Line 3" Telephone cable. November 11-December 5th, 1983

CORACLE PRESS GALLERY

233-235 CAMBERWELL NEW ROAD, LONDON SE5, TEL: (01) 701 5762
PUCK BUILDING, 295 LAFAYETTE ST., NEW YORK 10012, TEL: (212) 966-6789

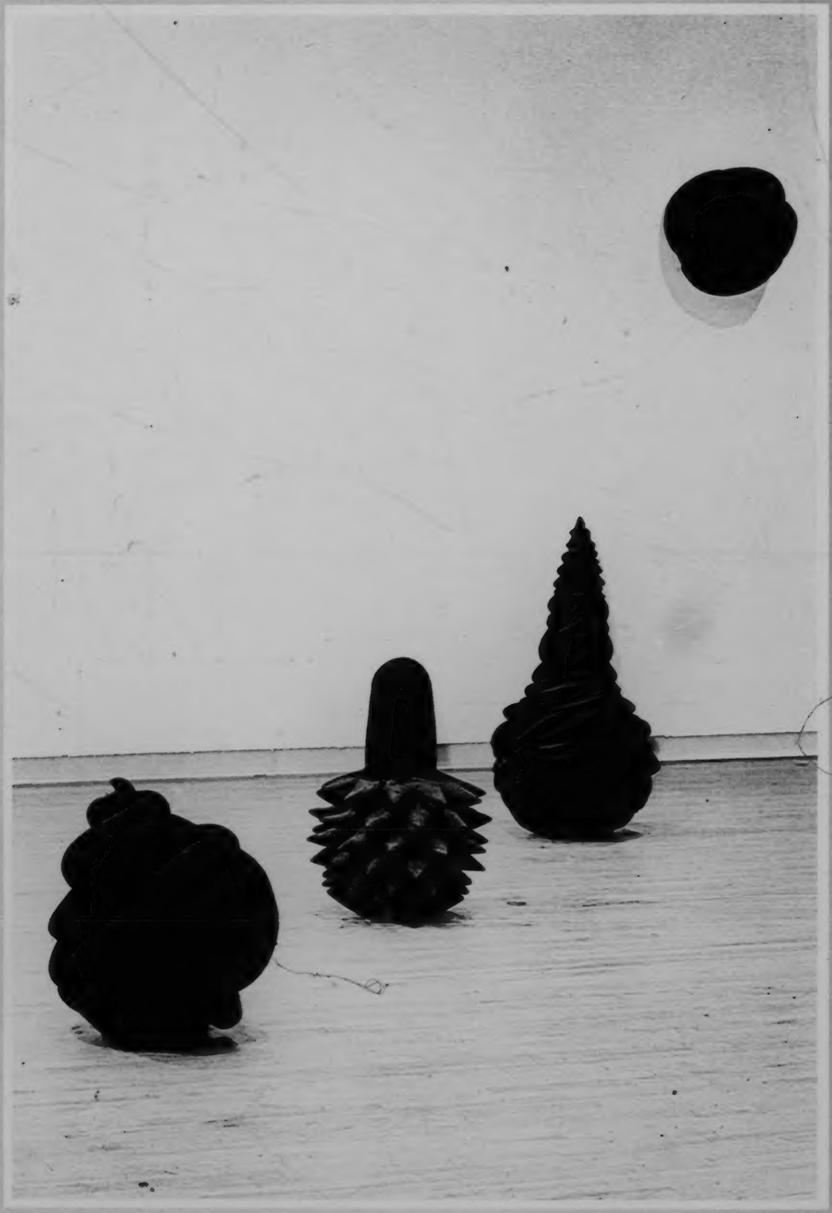
BRUCE MCLEAN

"Contained (Historically, Politically, Physically)" 1982.
Chalk and Acrylic on canvas 400 x 300 cm. (157½ x 118 ins.)

ANTHONY d'OFFAY PAINTINGS
9 & 23 DERING ST. NEW BOND STREET LONDON W1. TEL: (01) 499-4695

BERNARD JACOBSON PRINTS
2A CORK STREET LONDON W1. TEL: (01) 439 8355

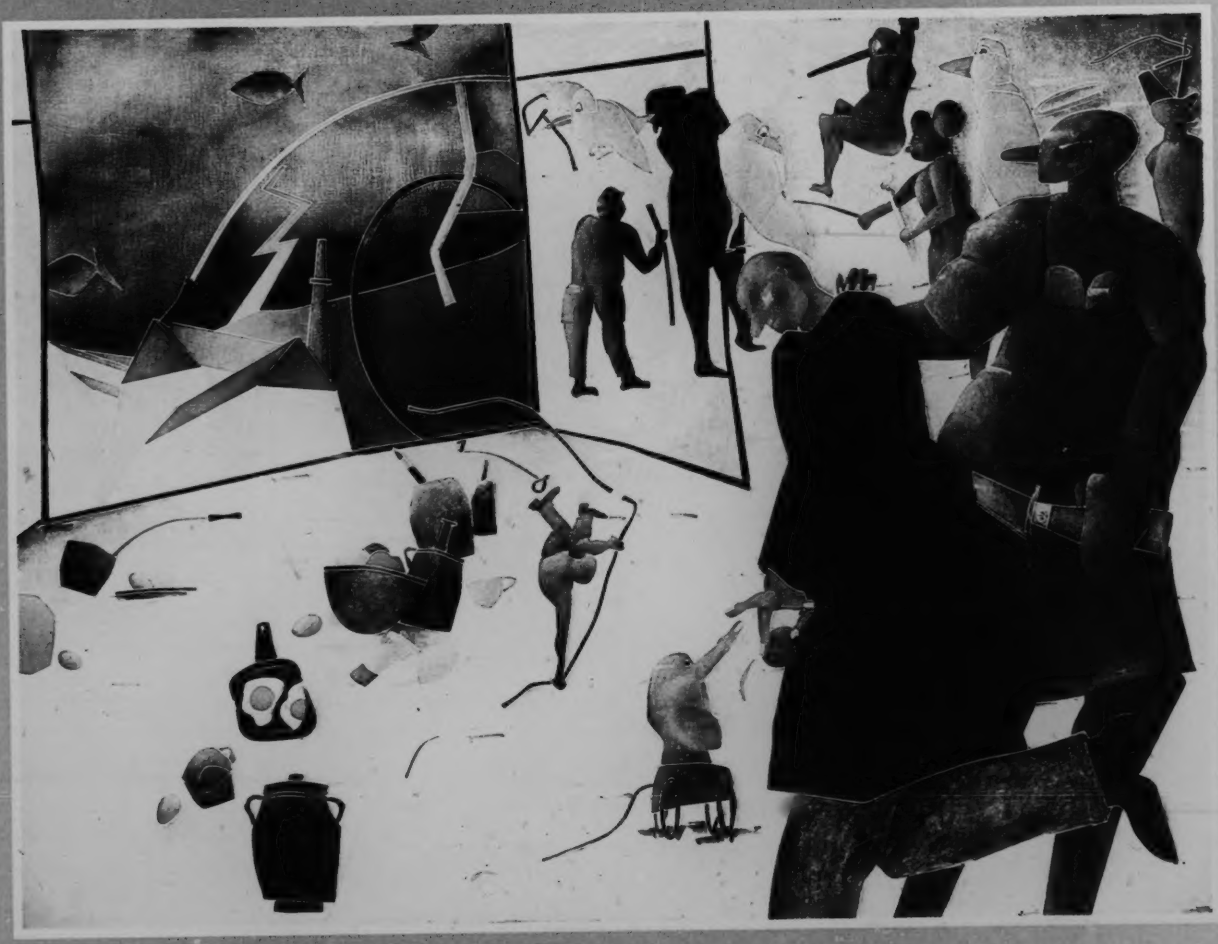
VOL
71
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI



ANISH KAPOOR

Untitled, 1983

BARBARA GLADSTONE GALLERY
Exhibiting in New York March 3-April 5, 1984.
152 WOOSTER STREET, NEW YORK, NEW YORK TEL: (212) 505-8690
LISSON GALLERY LONDON
Exhibiting in London October 22- November 19, 1983.
66-68 BELL STREET LONDON, N.W.1, TEL: (01) 262-1539



EMILIO TADINI

"Il processo," 1983. Acrylic on canvas. 150 x 200 cm

EDWARD TOTAH GALLERY

39 FLORAL STREET, LONDON W.C.2. TEL: (1) 379 6241/836 5791

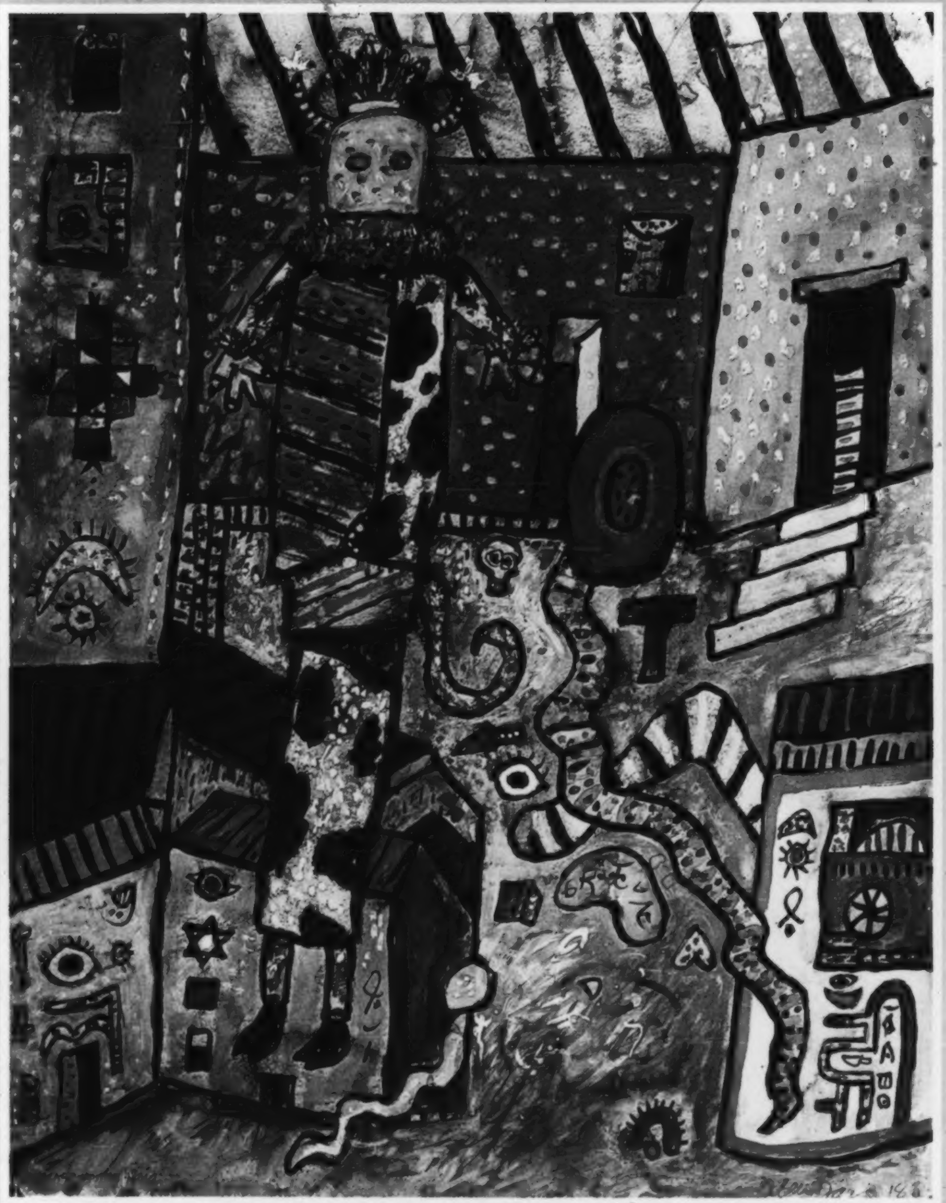
STUDIO MARCONI

VIA TADINO 15 20124 MILAN

LENS FINE ART

MECHELSESTEENWEG 121 2018 ANTWERP

VOL
7
1
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI



ALAN DAVIE

"Village Myths No. 12" 1983 gouache/paper 29 ¼ x 23 ½ ins.

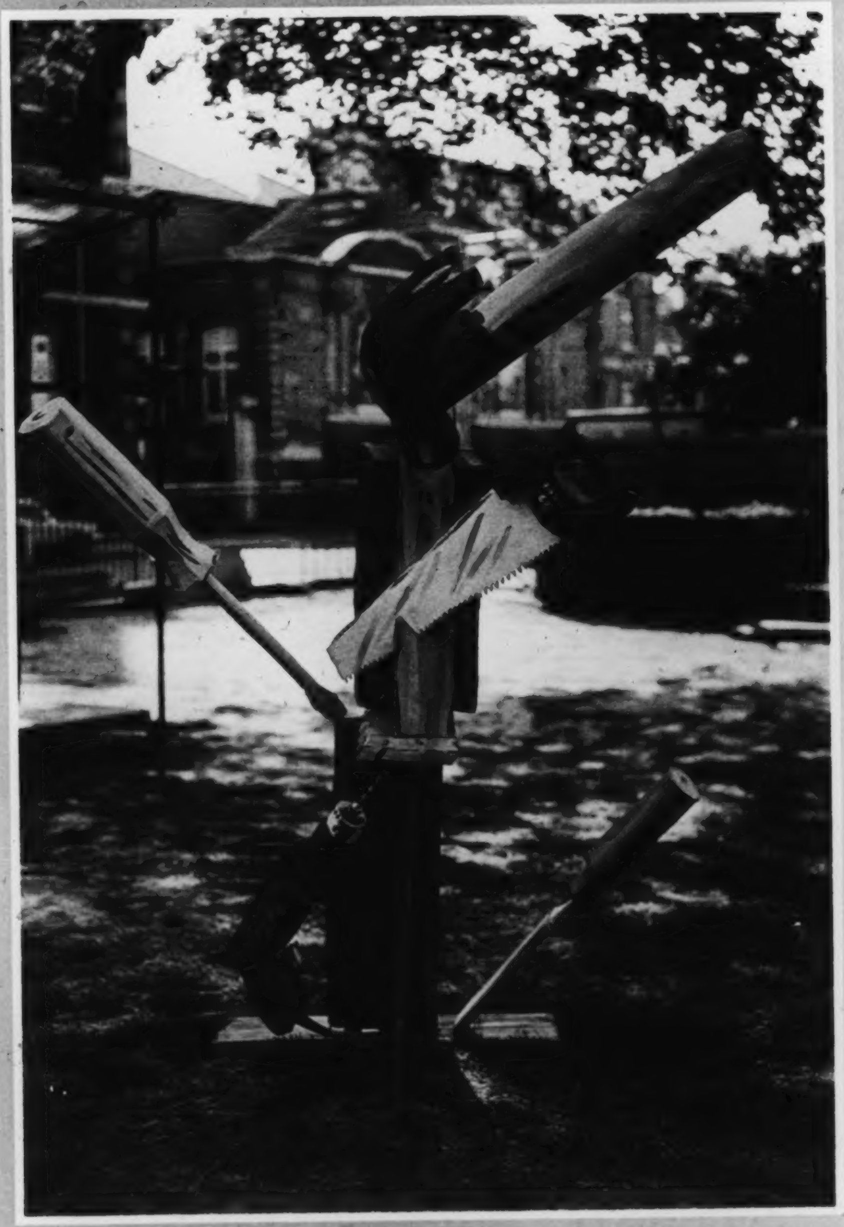
GIMPEL FILS
30 DAVIES STREET LONDON W1. TEL: (01) 493 2488

GIMPEL WEITZENHOFFER LTD.
1041 MADISON AVENUE, NEW YORK 10021. TEL: (212) 628-1897



JULIAN OPIE

"Making It" 1983. Oil paint on steel.

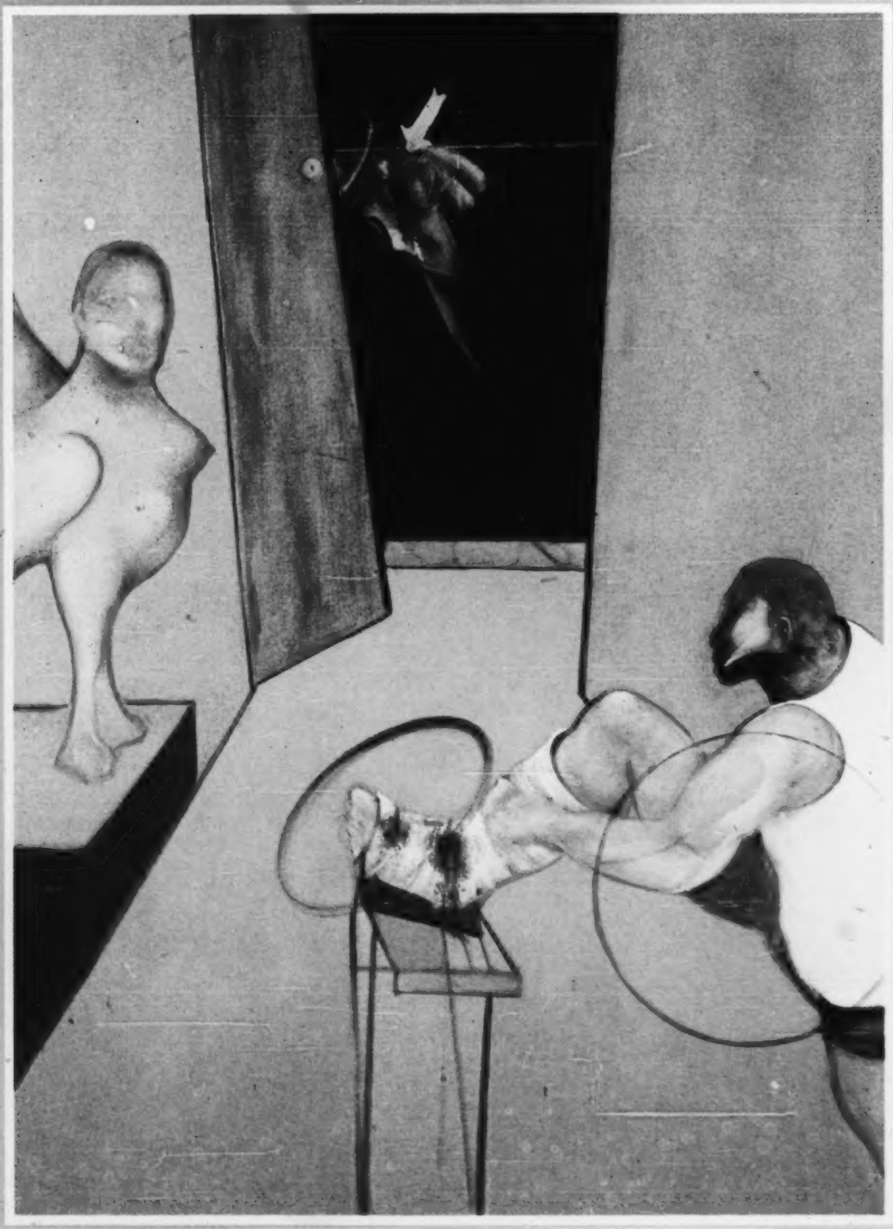
LISSON GALLERY/NICHOLAS LOGSDAIL

66-68 BELL STREET, LONDON NW1, TEL: (01) 262 1539

VOL
7
1
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI



FRANCIS BACON

Oedipus and the Sphinx after Ingres. 1983. Oil on canvas. 78 × 58 in./198 × 147.5 cm.

MARLBOROUGH FINE ART LTD.

6 ALBEMARLE STREET, LONDON W1X 3HF. TEL: (01) 629-5161

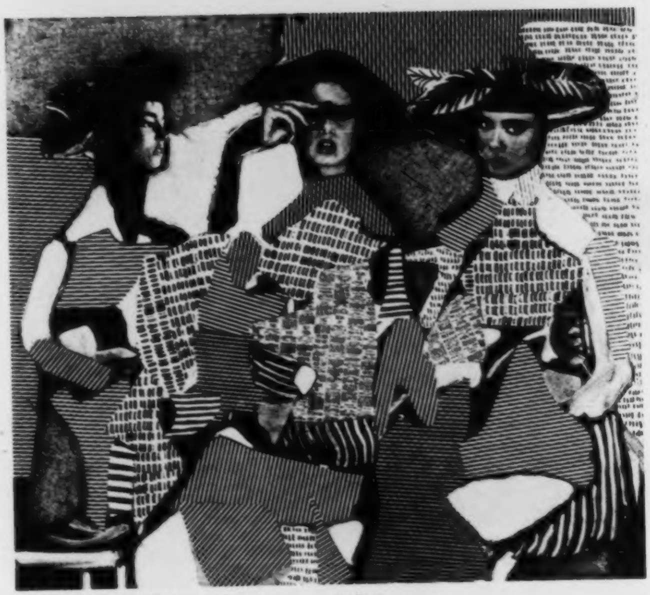
JOHN OKULICK

NEW WORKS

ASHER / FAURE

OCTOBER 22 NOVEMBER 19

[illegible]



At the Races 1982; 48" x 53" oil on canvas/collage

Conrad Marca-Relli

Homage to La Belle Epoque

New Works October 5–31
Catalog $7.50

ALEX ROSENBERG GALLERY TRANSWORLD ART
20 West 57 Street, New York, NY 10019 Telephone (212) 757-2700

VOL 71 ISS 9 OC 1983 UMI

Robert Barry

24 September-15 October Leo Castelli 420 West Broadway, New York

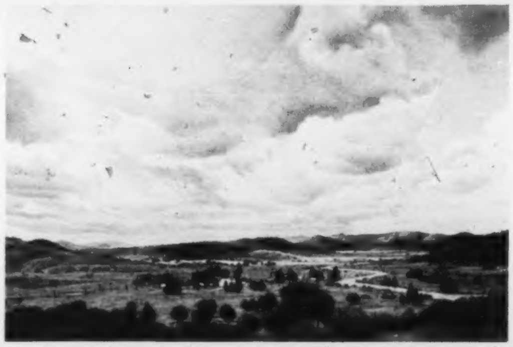
---



California Spring o/c 6'×9'

WILLARD DIXON

Paintings
October 1-19

FISCHBACH GALLERY
29 WEST 57 STREET
NEW YORK 10019

Roy Boyd Los Angeles

Joel Perlman
Sculpture

Bob Nugent
New Work

170 S. La Brea
Los Angeles 90036

Roy Boyd Chicago

Susan Sensemann
Paintings

Richard Loving
Paintings

215 W. Superior
Chicago 60610

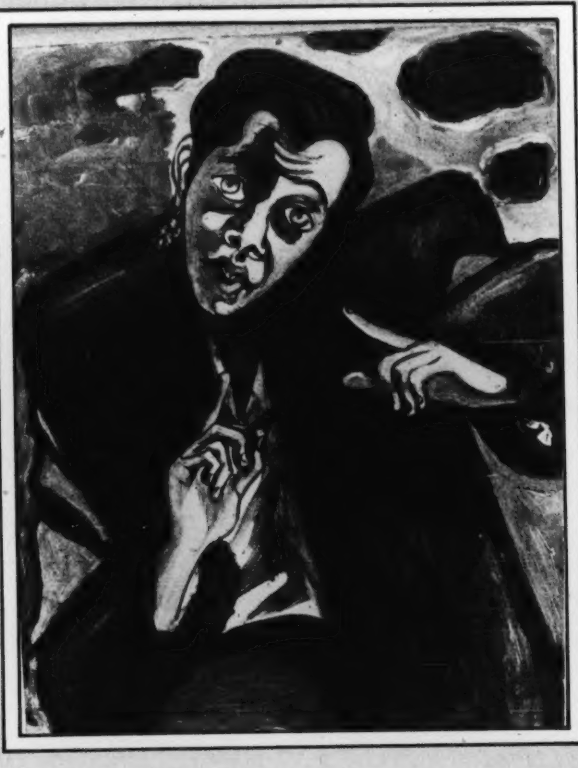
MILTON AVERY

through October 29

10-4 Tues.-Sat.

PEMBROKE GALLERY

1639 Bissonnet Houston, Texas 77005 (713) 521-1001



ALICE NEEL

Five Decades of Painting

September 29 – October 30, 1983

Catalogue Available

"Bessie Boris" 1940
Oil on Canvas, 23" x 18"

C. GRIMALDIS GALLERY

928 n. charles, balto., md. 21201 301/539-1080

Architecture In Silver

Tea and Coffee Services

by

Michael Graves
Hans Hollein
Charles Jencks
Richard Meier
Alessandro Mendini
Paolo Portoghesi
Aldo Rossi
Stanley Tigerman
Oscar Tusquets
Robert Venturi
Kazumasa Yamashita

October 20–November 26

Max Protetch 37 W. 57th Street N.Y.C. 838-2340

Andrea Blum

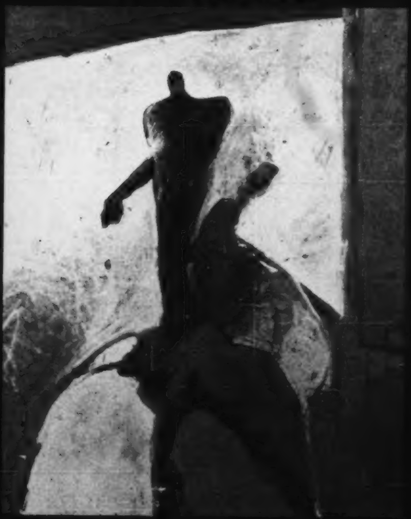
October 13–November 18

Protetch McNeil 214 Lafayette Street N.Y.C. 226-8957

VOL
7
1
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

Fritz Scholder

October 8 to 29



Portrait with Wall #2, oil on canvas, 80 x 68 inches

ACA Galleries

21 E 67 New York 10021 212/628-2440

TIBOR DE NAGY GALLERY
29 WEST 57 STREET NEW YORK 10019 (212) 421-3780

ROSEMARIE CASTORO

SHRINES
THIRD FLOOR

SELECTED CONTEMPORARY PRINTS

FOURTH FLOOR

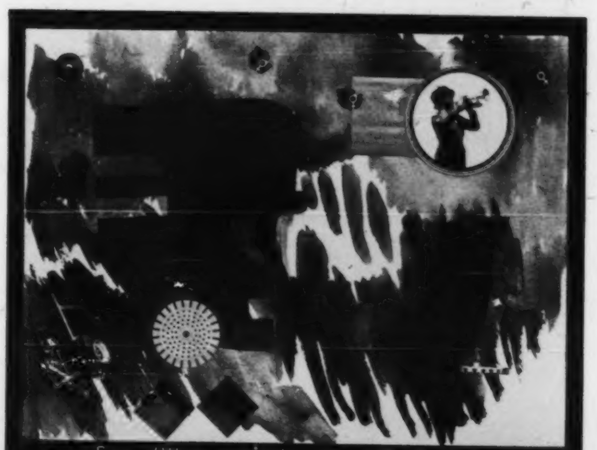
1 OCTOBER–26 OCTOBER 1983

VALENTINA DUBASKY

PAINTINGS AND DRAWINGS
FROM "THE STAG SERIES"

OCTOBER

OSCARSSON HOOD
GALLERY 41 W 57 NYC
10019 (212) 750-8640



Second Wave, watercolor-collage, 18 x 24 inches

CE ROSER

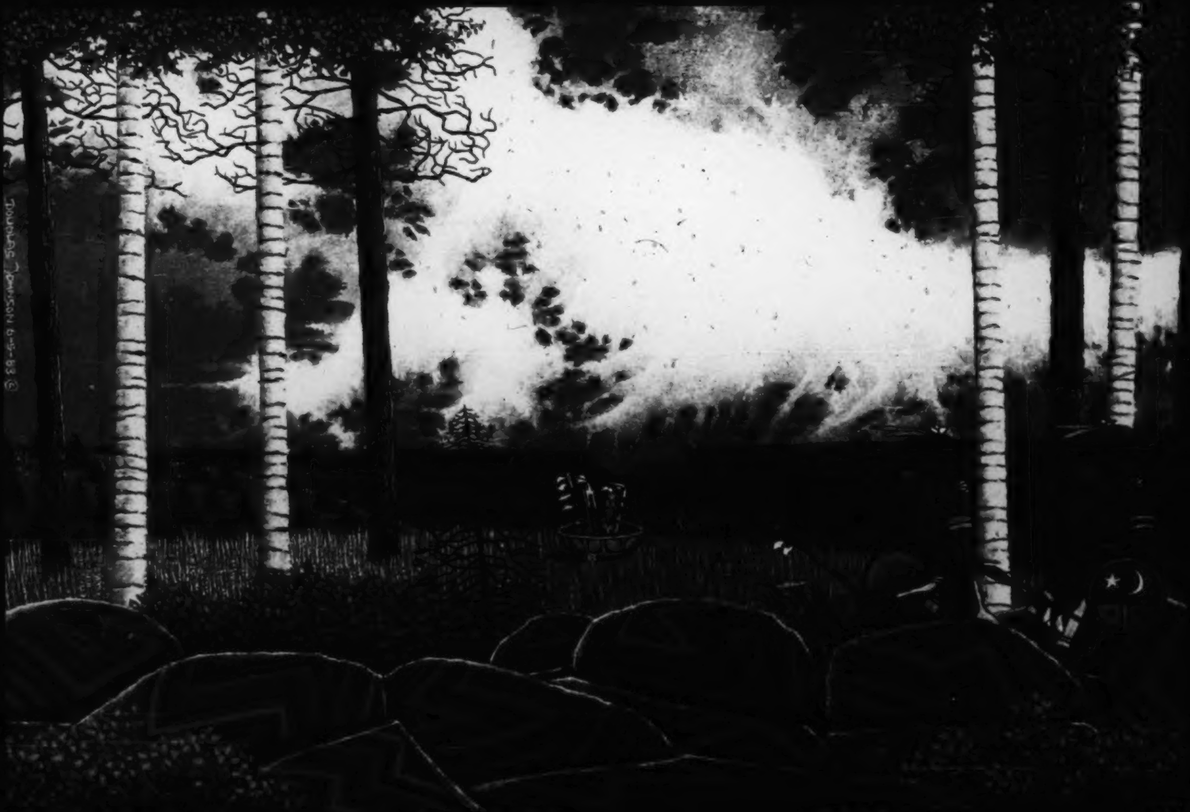
TAPESTRY and COLLAGE

October 11 - October 29

ingber gallery

460 West Broadway, NYC (212) 674-0101

DOUGLAS JOHNSON



"Summer Solstice" casein on paper 5" x 7½" 1983

SANTA FE EXHIBITION:

October 21 - November 10, 1983

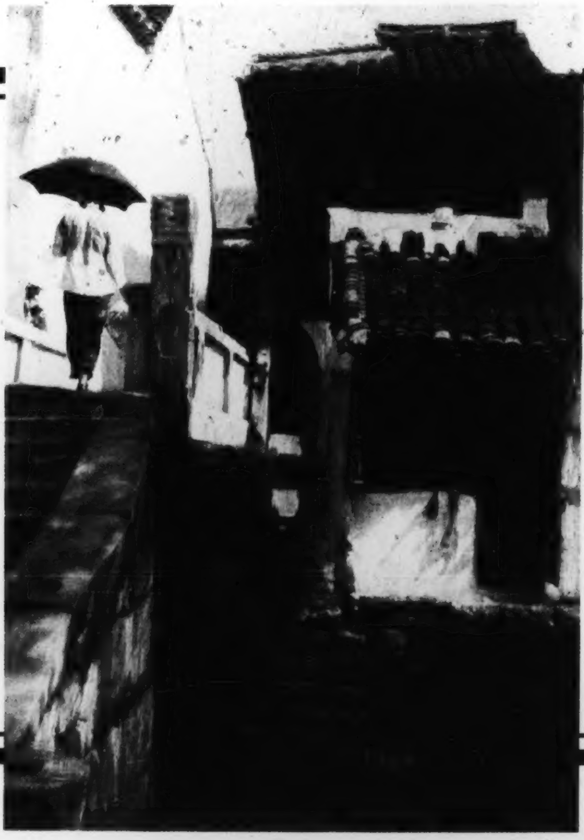
ELAINE HORWITCH GALLERIES

129 W. Palace Ave
Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501
(505) 988-8997

4211 N. Marshall Way
Scottsdale, Arizona 85251
(602) 945-0791

Schnebly Hill Rd & Hwy 179
Sedona, Arizona 86336
(602) 282-6290

VOL
7
1
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI



CHEN YIFEI

IMAGES OF CHINA
EXHIBITION:
OCTOBER 3 thru 22

Hammer Galleries
SINCE 1928
33 West 57th Street, N.Y.C. 10019
(212) 644-4400

Approaching Stone Bridge, Suzhou, Jiangsu Province
Oil on canvas, 42 x 30 inches.

McINTOSH/DRYSDALE GALLERY

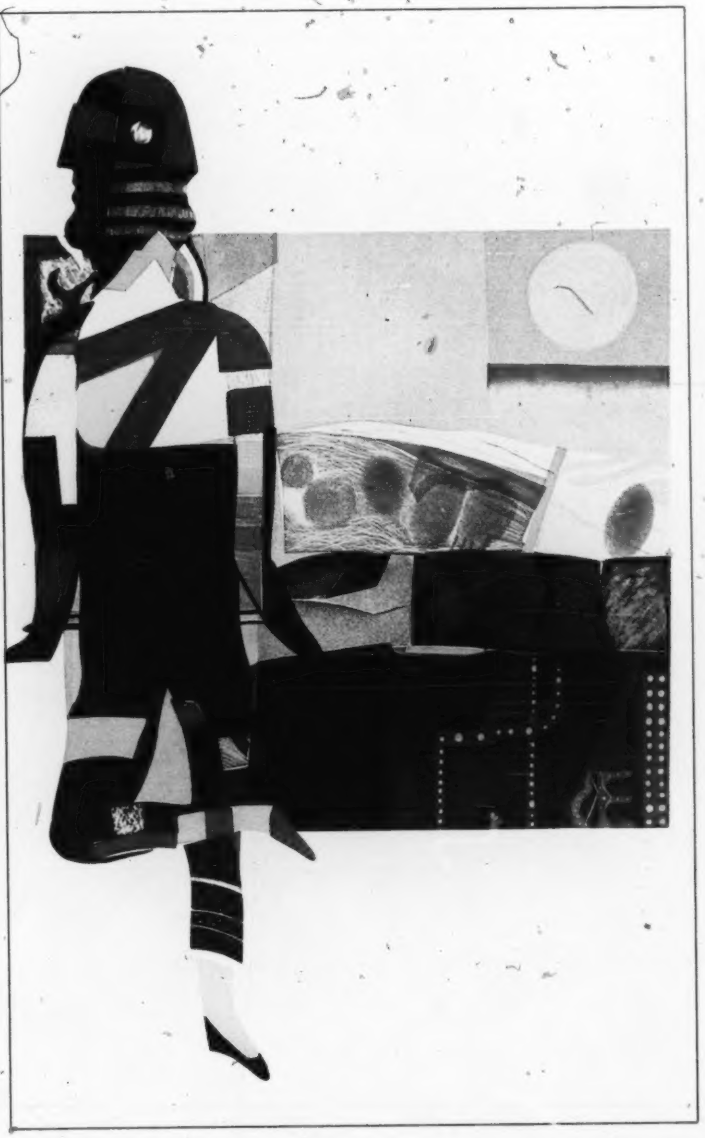
Otis Jones	September
Pat Steir	October
Robert S. Zakanitch	November
Sam Gilliam	December
John Tweddle	January
Brad Davis	February
Scott Burton	March
Robert Kushner	April
Alice Aycock	May
Brian Wood	June

2008 PEDEN HOUSTON, TEXAS 77019 713/520-1888

MAX PAPART

"MAN of VENUS"

AN ORIGINAL ETCHING WITH THE USE OF AQUATINT & CARBORUNDUM



Hand printed on special heavy weight 100% rag paper bearing both the Arches and Nahan watermarks in an edition of 60 signed and numbered pieces

Max Papart, at 71, has just created one of his most beautiful works on paper, after over a year's effort: a master-print etching of unusual scope and size, utilizing aquatint and carborundum, demanding his skills and experience which are perhaps unique in the world today.

Always contemporary in his thinking, Papart's intrigue with the potential of space travel brought him to this semi-abstract "Man of Venus." Exhibiting the form and grace of Papart's dancers and acrobats, this "astronaut" none-the-less evokes a sense of serious awe, without diminishing the suggested Venutian "landscape," including a typical Papart sun as a reminder that we are all part of the same solar system. A composition departure for Papart projects the "man" of Venus beyond the limitations of the background while maintaining an unexpected overall balance. This, along with the juxtaposition of geometric shapes in both strong and muted colors, represent the best of the Papart genius.

Paper Size 38¼" x 59½"

World agents and publishers for Max Papart (dealers inquire)

NAHAN GALLERIES • 540 ROYAL ST. • NEW ORLEANS, LA. 70130
(504) 524-8696

VOL 71 ISS 9 OC 1983 UMI

ROGER HERMAN

WOODCUTS
AND PAINTINGS

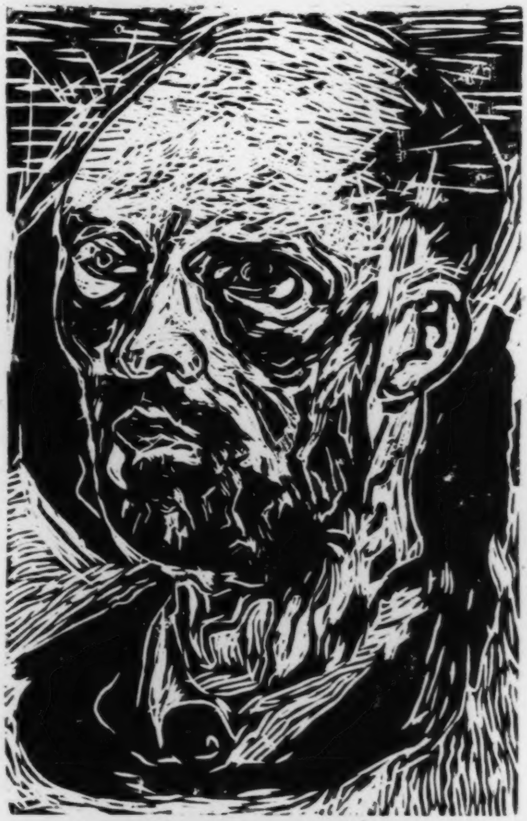
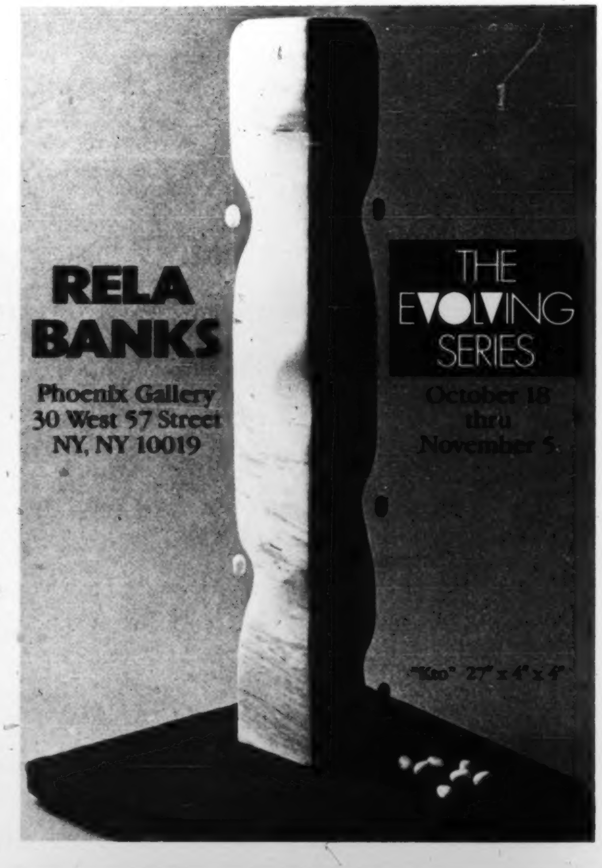
OCTOBER - NOVEMBER 1983



Linoleum Cut 84" x 60"

ULRIKE
KANTOR
GALLERY
800 N. LA CIENEGA BLVD.
LOS ANGELES, CA 90069
213/273-5650



RELA
BANKS

Phoenix Gallery
30 West 57 Street
NY, NY 10019

THE EVOLVING SERIES

October 18
thru
November 5

"Kao" 27" x 4" x 4"

Brentwood Gallery

Jack Earl — September
Then and Now

New New York — October
Haring, Scharf, DePalma, Futura 2000

Joe Zucker — November
Paintings and Drawings

Bill Stewart
Ceramic Kingdoms

Thom Bohnert — December
Expanded Vessels

Art to Wear

1221 South Brentwood Boulevard
Saint Louis, Missouri 63117
(314) 863-0808

41 RUE DE SEINE 75006 PARIS TÉL. 329 50 84/329 50 55

GALERIE
1900·1930
VALLOIS
1900·1930

MEUBLES·LUMINAIRES·OBJETS D'ART 1920·1930

SCULPTURE·PEINTURE·ANNEES 1800·1930

Chana Orloff 1924 - Sculpture en marbre hauteur : 0,46 m x 0,37 m.

VOL
7
1
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

FLORENCE PUTTERMAN

BRIEF NARRATIONS

NEW INTAGLIOS WITH POCHOIR AND HAND COLORING
IMAGE SIZE 8 × 12 INCHES PAPER SIZE 21 × 30 INCHES
PRINTED AT: FLATSTONE STUDIO • TAMPA, FLORIDA

FOR INFORMATION: AMBUR ART • BOX 317 • MILTON, PA 17847 (717) 743-8432

ROBERT INDIANA
LARRY RIVERS
ROBERT RAUSCHENBERG
R.B. KITAJ
JAMES ROSENQUIST
ALEX KATZ
ROBERT MOTHERWELL
RED GROOMS

EIGHT CONTEMPORARY ARTISTS CELEBRATE THEIR CITY

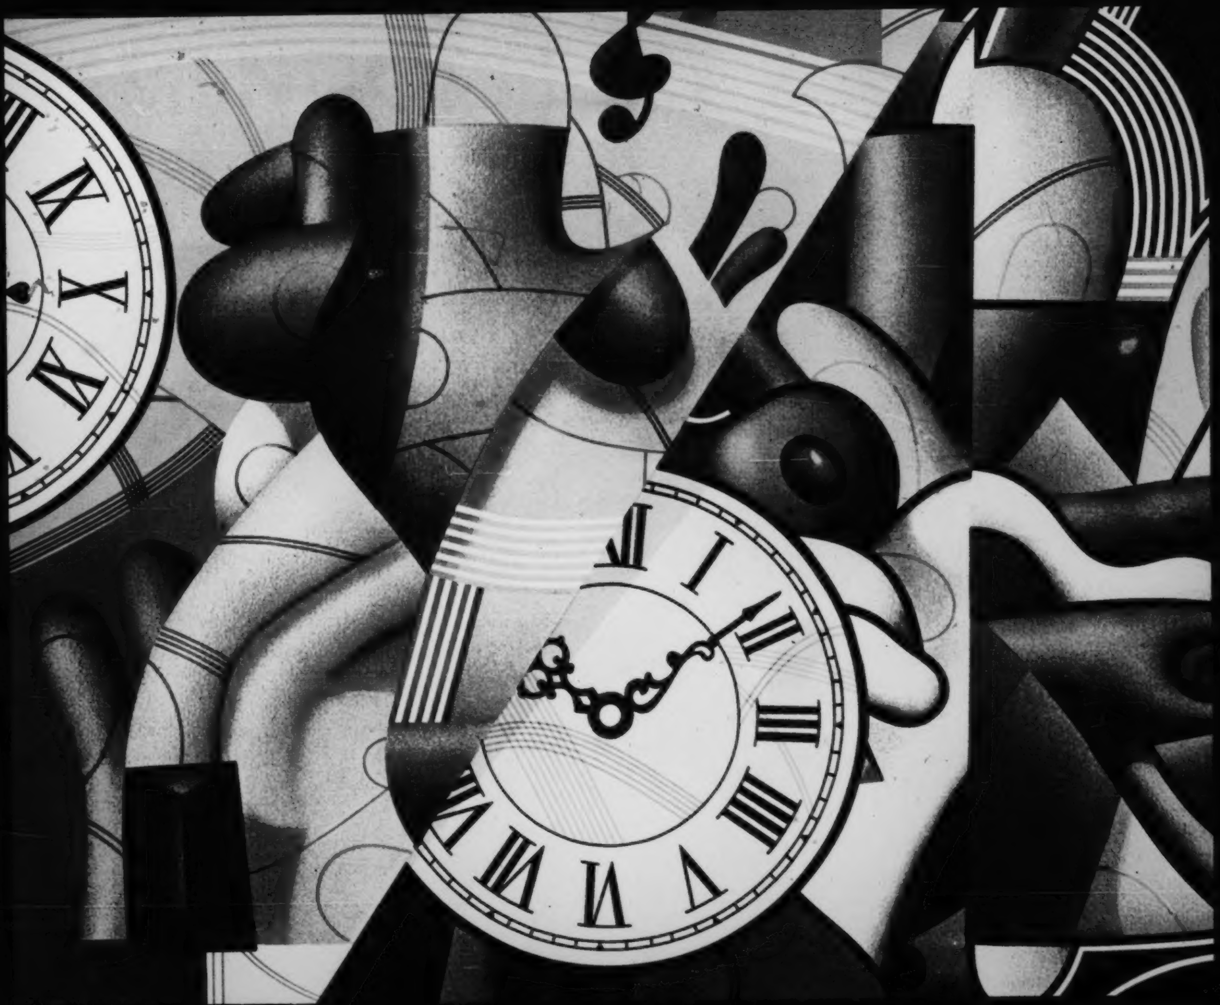
Introducing New York, New York. A portfolio of eight images representing the essence of a city in which these artists have lived and worked. Their unique interpretation of subway riders, the Brooklyn Bridge, bicycling in Central Park, cultural institutions, the Bronx Zoo, New York communications, the Statue of Liberty, and the performing arts is the New York, New York portfolio.

Limited edition of 250 standard and 35 deluxe portfolios now available at a pre-publication price.

Advance reservations are recommended. Telephone or write for prospectus.

Published by: NEW YORK GRAPHIC SOCIETY™
140 Greenwich Avenue, Greenwich, Connecticut 06830 (800) 243-4494
A Chartwell Company

YANKEL GINZBURG



"TIME CHANGE" 26"x31" SILKSCREEN

"TIME CHANGE", THE LATEST SERIGRAPH BY INTERNATIONALLY RENOWNED ARTIST YANKEL GINZBURG, IS PRINTED IN A LIMITED EDITION OF 200 ON ARCHES PAPER. EACH PRINT IS INDIVIDUALLY NUMBERED AND HANDSIGNED BY THE ARTIST. AVAILABLE NOW THROUGH DELTA EDITIONS, LTD.

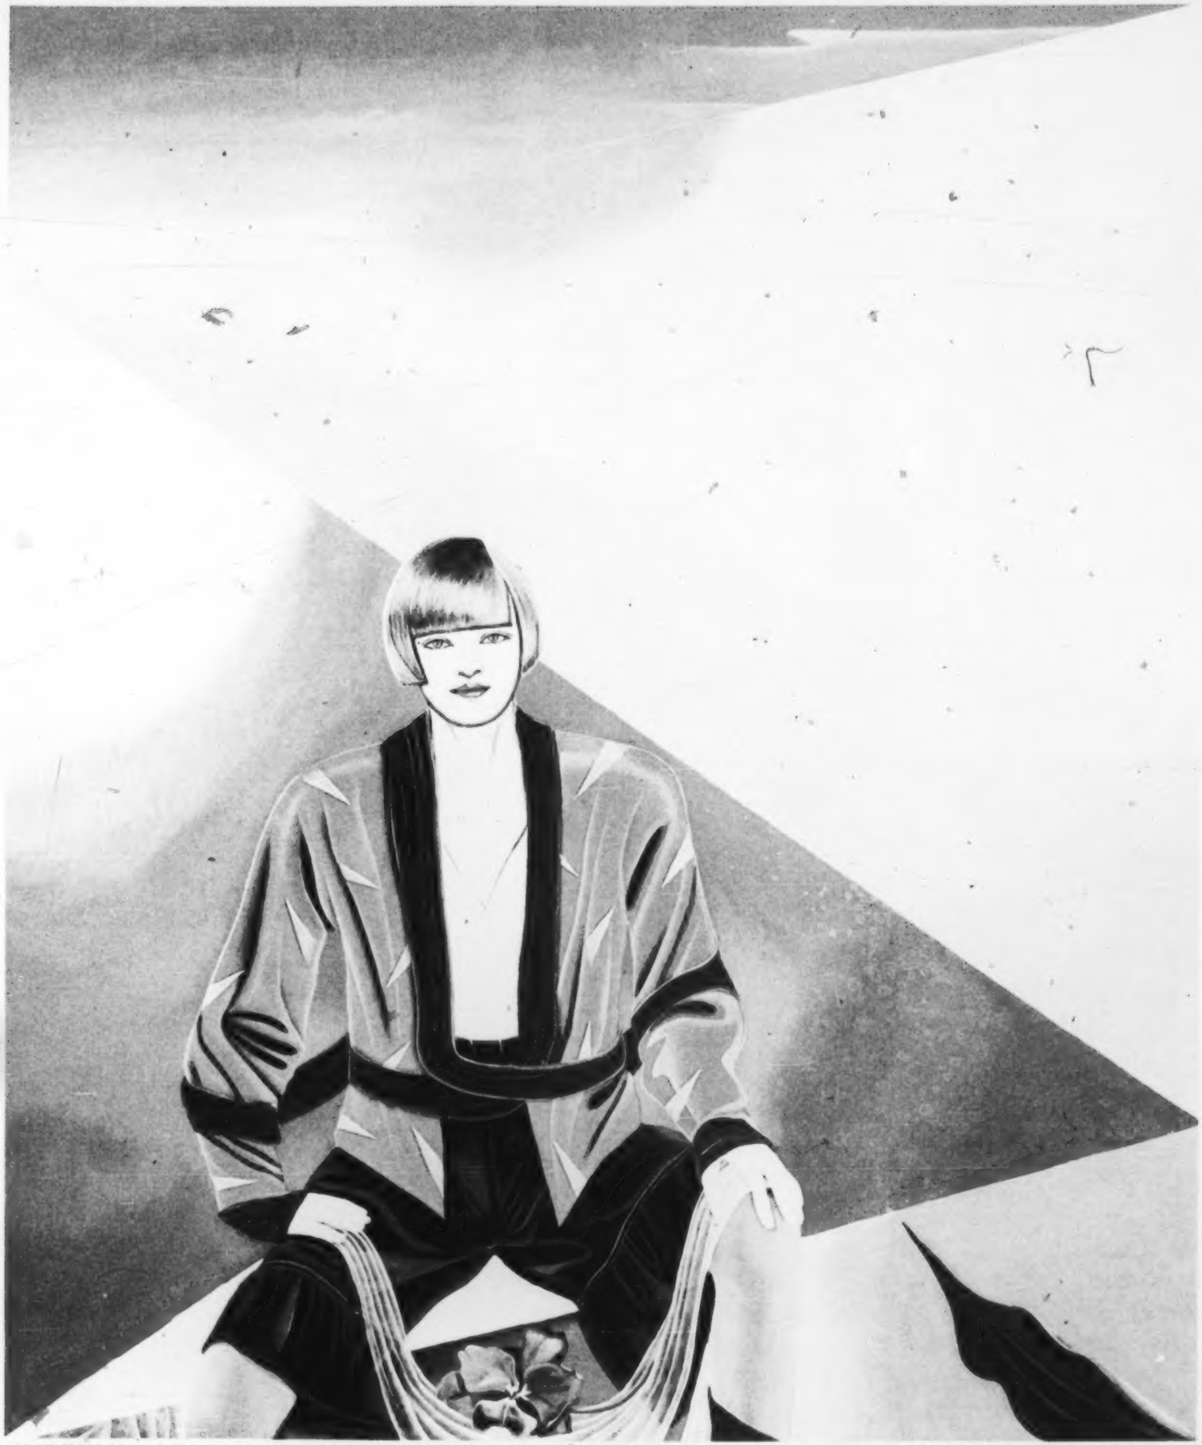
DEALER INQUIRIES WELCOME

DELTA EDITIONS LTD

1011 East Park Drive
St. Louis, Missouri 63130
Telephone (314) 727-2444

dedicated to fine art

VOL
7
1
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI



AUDREY SKUODAS "GIRL WITH BLUE SCARF" ACRYLIC ON CANVAS: 5'6" × 6'

13225 SHAKER SQUARE CLEVELAND, OHIO 44120 216/491-8062

DBRGALLERY

GALERIE MICHAEL WERNER

BASELITZ
BYARS
IMMENDORFF
KIRKEBY
LÜPERTZ
A.R.PENCK

D — 5000 KÖLN — 1 —
GERTRUDENSTR. 24/28 T.210661

PAUL GARLAND

WATERCOLORS

MIRIAM
PERLMAN

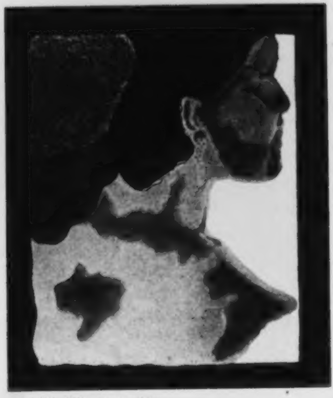
Lake Point Tower 505 N. Lake Shore Drive Chicago

Michael
Tracy

Elegia A América Latina
October 8–November 9, 1983

Delahunty Dallas
2701 Canton Street, Dallas Texas 75226
214-744-1346

MARIA DE LA PAZ JARAMILLO

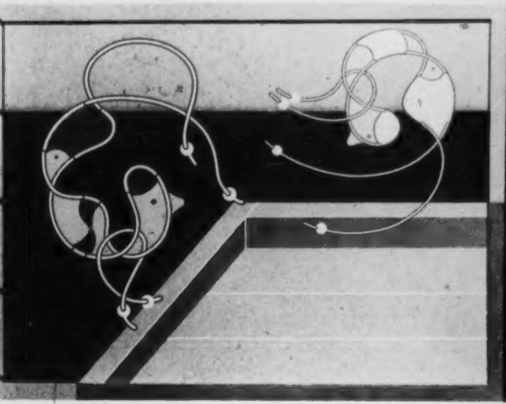


YOU WILL STAY silkscreen 1980

NOHRA HAIME GALLERY
1000 MADISON AVENUE
NEW YORK, N.Y. 10021 (212) 772-7760

MUSEO DE MONTERREY
MONTERREY, MEXICO

VOL
71
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI



'Day for Divers' 1982 Acrylic on masonite 31⅝ x 41⅝"

BARBARA ROSSI
7 OCTOBER THROUGH 2 NOVEMBER 1983

PHYLLIS KIND GALLERY
313 WEST SUPERIOR CHICAGO 312 642.6302

MICHAEL DAVID
OCTOBER 8 – NOVEMBER 5

HAMILTON
20 WEST 57TH STREET NEW YORK 10019 (212) 765-5915

WOONG KIM
RECENT PAINTINGS

OCTOBER 12—29, 1983

S. J. STANISKI
COLOR PHOTOGRAPHS

ADDISON/ RIPLEY GALLERY LTD.
9 Hillyer Court, Washington, D.C. 20008 • (202) 328-2332

November 3-26 new paintings
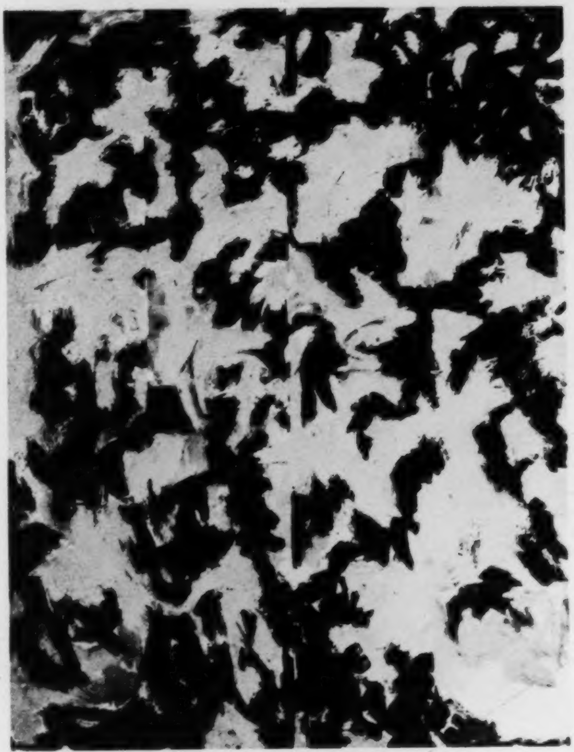
TOM WESSELMANN
SIDNEY JANIS 110 W. 57



Web, 1983 72 × 54 inches

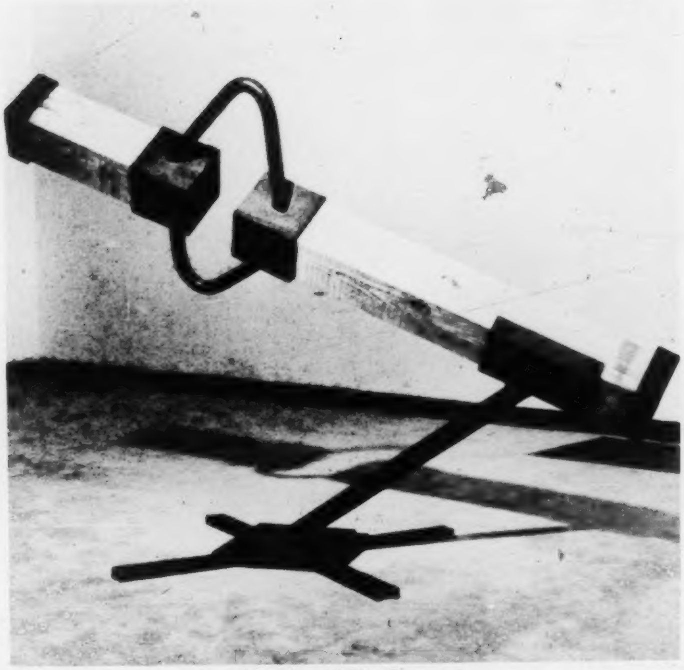
MALA BREUER

OCTOBER

An Exhibition of
New Work
at Two Locations

CRAIG CORNELIUS
170 Fifth Avenue New York 10010 212 243-7171
Large Paintings · By Appointment

HADLER · RODRIGUEZ · GALLERIES
38 East 57th Street New York 10022 212 752-7734



wood & steel Sunrise With Sunset

An Exhibition of Sculpture
by

JOHN CUNNINGHAM

October 28th-December 17th
1983

R.H. LOVE
20th CENTURY GALLERY
100 E. OHIO STREET CHICAGO IL 60611 312/664-9620

VOL 7 1 ISS 9 OC 1983 UMI

ALTERNATIVE GALLERIES

AMOS ENO 101 WOOSTER ST
Peter Leyh October 8-25
Jane McClintock October 29-November 17

ATLANTIC 458 W BROADWAY
Frances Buschke Jeanne McMahan
September 27-October 16
Stephanie Lebowitz Lucy Sikes
October 18-November 6

BOWERY 121 WOOSTER
Landscape Show of Gallery Artists
September 30-October 19
Rita Baragona October 21-November 9

CENTRAL HALL 386 W BROADWAY
Marjorie Apter-McKevitt October 4-October 23
Elizabeth Drucker October 25-November 13

FIRST STREET 386 W BROADWAY
Fran Hodes Eva Papadopulos
September 30-October 19
Bill Creevy October 21-November 9

GALLERY 84 30 W 57 ST
B. Ericson October 4-October 15
F. Jacobson October 18-October 29

NOHO 168 MERCER ST
Sharon Florin Elaine Allen
September 27-October 16
Quynh Nguyen John Wingerter
October 18-November 6

PHOENIX 30 W 57 ST
Joan Miller September 27-October 15
Rela Banks October 18-November 5

PINDAR 127 GREENE ST
Agnes Janson Ann Bavar
September 27-October 16
Carol Unger Eve Licea
October 18-November 6

PLEIADES 164 MERCER ST
Bob MacDonald Geoff Homan
September 27-October 16
Sheryl Iva Greenberg
October 18-November 6

SOHO 20 469 BROOME ST
Linda Bastian October 8-November 2
Rita Genecin (Invitational Space)

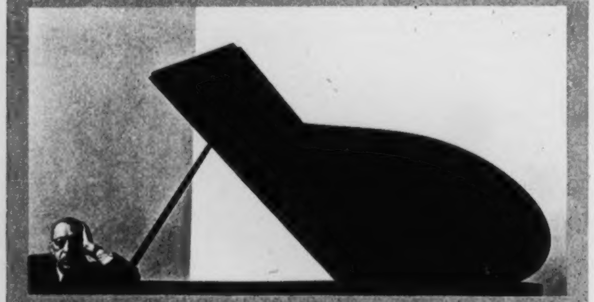
22 WOOSTER 22 WOOSTER
Alison McMaugh Mary Long Graham
October 4-October 29

VIRIDIAN 52 W 57 ST
Barbara Schaefer September 27-October 15
David Raab October 18-November 5

WARD-NASSE 178 PRINCE ST
David Gregg Joan Mubayi Doris Litz
Judy Thomas September 24-October 13
Marjorie Miller Phyllis Kent Seidelman
Geoff Stalker Florence Zager
October 15-November 3

CRITIC'S CHOICE: LAWRENCE ALLOWAY
THE ARSENAL GALLERY 830 5TH AVE
October 4-October 28

AARG IS A NON-PROFIT MEMBERSHIP ASSOCIATION



Igor Stravinsky, 1946

We are very pleased to announce that we represent

Arnold Newman

Daniel Wolf, Inc.
30 West 57th St.
New York, N.Y. 10019
212-586-8432

INAUGURAL EXHIBITION

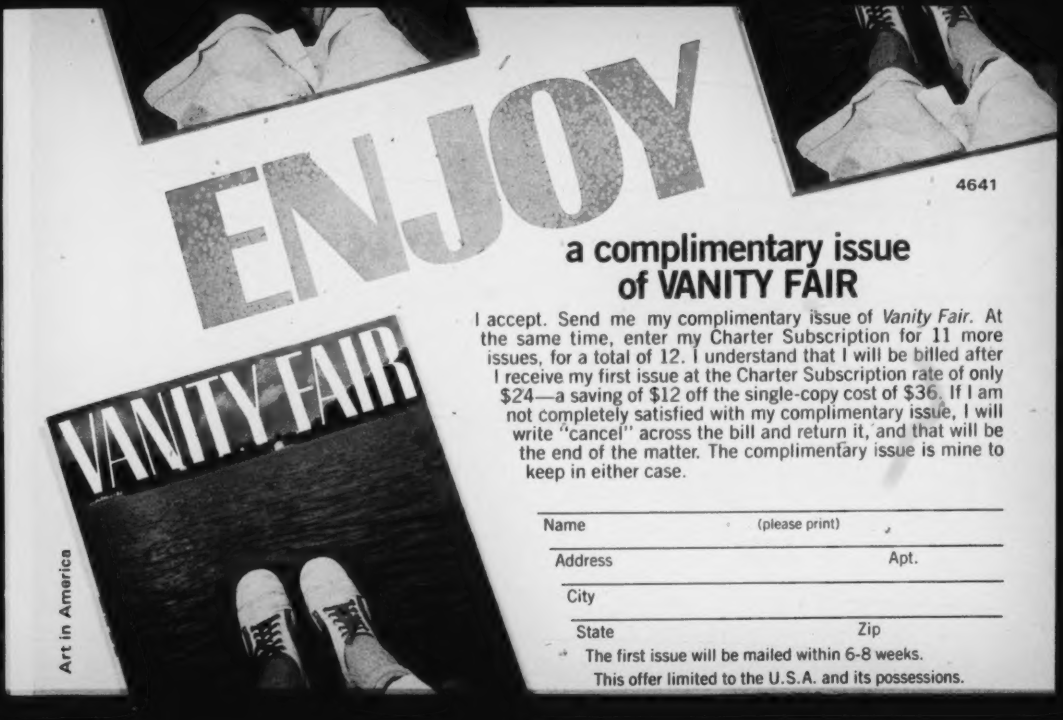
September 20 to
October 29, 1983

Mary Armstrong
Christina Bertoni
Elizabeth Dworkin
Nan Freeman
Dennis Gallagher
Christopher Hewat
Chuck Holtzman
Joel Janowitz
David Kelley
Miklos Pogany
Barnet Rubenstein
Lee Tribe

VICTORIA MUNROE
GALLERY

56 West 57 Street
4th floor
New York 10019
212 246-9616

Tues-Fri 10-5:30 pm
Sat 11-5 pm



ENJOY

4641 a complimentary issue of VANITY FAIR

I accept. Send me my complimentary issue of Vanity Fair. At the same time, enter my Charter Subscription for 11 more issues, for a total of 12. I understand that I will be billed after I receive my first issue at the Charter Subscription rate of only $24—a saving of $12 off the single-copy cost of $36. If I am not completely satisfied with my complimentary issue, I will write "cancel" across the bill and return it, and that will be the end of the matter. The complimentary issue is mine to keep in either case.

Name (please print)

Address Apt.

City

State Zip

The first issue will be mailed within 6-8 weeks.
This offer limited to the U.S.A. and its possessions.

VOL
71

ISS
9

OC

1983

UMI

NO POSTAGE
NECESSARY
IF MAILED
IN THE
UNITED STATES

BUSINESS REPLY CARD
FIRST CLASS PERMIT NO. 365 BOULDER, COLORADO

POSTAGE WILL BE PAID BY ADDRESSEE

VANITY FAIR
P.O. Box 5228
Boulder, Colorado 80321

The return of a legendary magazine

VANITY FAIR

Please accept a complimentary issue.

From 1914 to 1936, a most memorable magazine called Vanity Fair epitomized the elegance and style, artistry and wit of a now-vanished age.

In March of 1983, Condé Nast Publications presented the premiere issue of the new Vanity Fair. A magazine that captures the sparkle and excitement of the '80s as no other magazine today.

Literary and liberated. Adventurous, skeptical, irreverent. As complex and contradictory as the times in which we live. A magazine of literature and the arts. Politics and popular culture. Private lives and public events. Films and theater. Music and dance. Art and photography. TV and travel. Books and economics. Poetry. Food. Sports. Just about everything worth doing, seeing, talking about, knowing about.

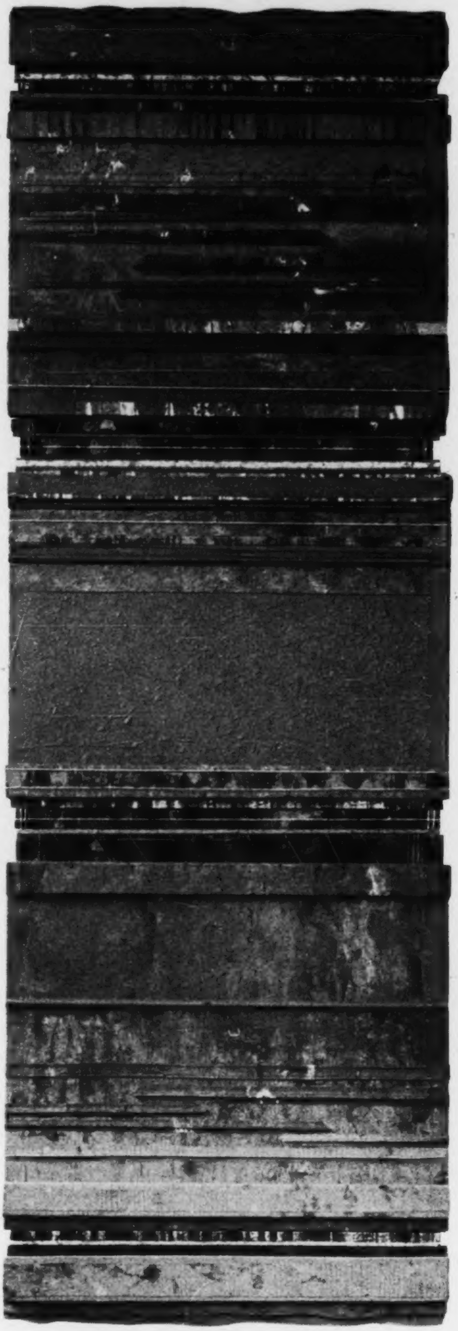
Our contributors include some of today's most original novelists, journalists, poets, artists, photographers, critics. We offer them a unique freedom and breadth of expression. They, in turn, offer us their wit, new perceptions, provocative points of view. From its essays, reviews and profiles to its photography, paintings and cartoons, the new Vanity Fair is a magazine of excellence and innovation. A magazine whose time has come...again.

To receive a complimentary issue of Vanity Fair, simply mail the accompanying card. (If card is missing, write to: Vanity Fair, P.O. Box 5228, Boulder, Colorado 80322.) This limited offer may be withdrawn at any time.

©The Condé Nast Publications Inc. 1983

VANITY FAIR

VOL 71
ISS 9
OC
1983
UMI



TERRA-COTTA CONSTRUCTION #4
ACRYLIC WOOD ON CANVAS 73" × 24"

ROBERT QUIJADA

NEW WALL AND STANDING CONSTRUCTIONS

ERICSON GALLERY
23 E. 74th ST., N.Y.C. 10021 • 737-6155

SAM MESSER

Paintings / October

NIELSEN
GALLERY
179 NEWBURY ST., BOSTON, MA
02116 (617) 266-4835

James Ford

U.C. Irvine
October 4-
October 29, 1983

Kirk deGooyer Gallery
October 20-
November 23, 1983

Bette Stoler Gallery
March 16-
April 14, 1984

13 White Street
New York City 10013
212 966 5090

BETTE STOLER GALLERY

incorporated
gallery

David Bacharach 10w × 16h

Susan/Steven Kemenyffy 25w × 43h × 10d

Chris Richard 13 × 31

A GROUP SHOW

Chris Richard
Pit Fired

David Bacharach
Metals

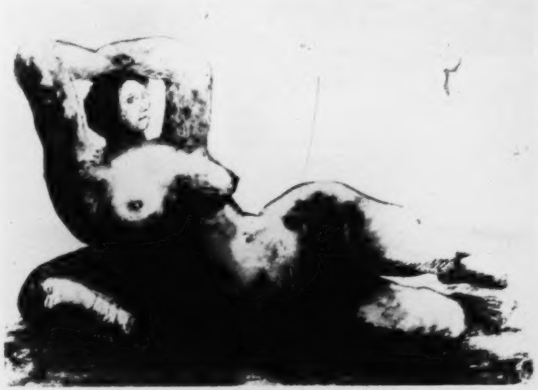
Susan/Steven Kemenyffy
Raku

Oct. 23-Nov. 23, 1983

1200 Madison Avenue
New York City 10028
212/831-4466

VOL
71
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

HENRY MOORE
Oct. 27—Nov. 30



SMALL SCULPTURE / DRAWINGS / PRINTS

Dolly Fiterman Gallery
Suite 238, Plymouth Bldg., Mpls., MN
(612) 370-8722

MARKUS LÜPERTZ

11 OCTOBER – 8 NOVEMBER

MARIAN GOODMAN GALLERY
24 WEST 57TH STREET NEW YORK NY 10019 (212) 977-7160

GIULIO TURCATO
First Major Exhibition of His Recent Paintings.
Leading Italian
Colorist.
October 12 –
November 1

Monday thru Saturday
10 a.m. – 5 p.m.

Nathan Silberberg Fine Arts
16 East 79th Street, New York, NY 10021 • 212-861-6192

ANDREW HARADER

RECENT OUTDOOR & INDOOR SCULPTURE

SEPTEMBER/OCTOBER

BROOK HOUSE

BOX 1177, ORINDA, CA 94563, 415/254-1525

AMERICANS IN VENICE 1879-1913

A loan exhibition of works by Robert Blum, Ralph Curtis, Childe Hassam, Maurice Prendergast, John Singer Sargent and James McNeill Whistler for the benefit of SAVE VENICE, INC.

October 19-November 16

COE KERR GALLERY

49 East 82 Street New York, NY 10028 Tel 212 628-1340 Mon-Sat 9-5

$2 admission for the benefit of SAVE VENICE, INC.

A fully illustrated 88-page catalogue is available for $15, postpaid

November 23-December 18 at the Boston Athenaeum, Boston

INAUGURAL EXHIBITION:

RECENT SCULPTURE IN GLASS/ARTISTS AND DESIGNERS IN WOOD
OPENING RECEPTION SUNDAY OCTOBER 16, 2:00-5:00pm.

GALLERY HOURS TUESDAY-SATURDAY 11:00-7:00

RECENT SCULPTURE IN GLASS

BONNIE BIGGS
KEN BUTTERFIELD
WILLIAM CARLSON
SYDNEY CASH
MICHAEL COHN
JON CLARK
ANDREE DAVIDT
STEPHEN DEE EDWARDS
SIDNEY HUTTER
ALAN KLEIN
JOEY KIRKPATRICK
FLORA MACE
ANDREW MAGDANZ
KAREL MIKOLAS
NARCISSUS QUAGLIATA
SUSAN SHAPIRO
MOLLY STONE
STEVEN WEINBERG
THERMON STATOM

THROUGH NOVEMBER 30

THROUGH FEB. 28. 1984

ARTISTS AND DESIGNERS IN WOOD

J. DAVID ELLSWORTH
KURT HOLSAPPLE
MICHELLE HOLZAPFEL
SILAS KOPF
STEVE MADSEN
RONALD PUCKETT
JAMES SCHRIBNER
BOB STOCKSDALE
HOWARD WERNER
MICHAEL HURWITZ
WENDY MARUYAMA
THOMAS HUCKER

ALSO REPRESENTING WORK BY.
PETER ADAMS
BRUCE BEEKEN
BILL KEYSER
ED ZUCCA

SNYDERMAN GALLERY

317 SOUTH STREET, PHILADELPHIA, PENNSYLVANIA 19147 (215) 922-7775

VOL 71 ISS 9 OC 1983 UMI

The Public Art Trust is pleased to announce an exhibition of recent bronze sculpture by Bourgeois, Hadzi, Johnson, Meadmore, Pavia, Pepper, Steiner, Van Tongeren and Witkin, in the atrium of the Washington Square complex, 1050 Connecticut Ave. at L St. NW, Washington DC. Curated by the Public Art Trust for the Washington Square partners. On public view Oct. 6, 1983 through Feb. 3, 1984.

Herk Van Tongeren - Serie Metafisica XVII - cast bronze, 1981 Photo by Edward Owen

LOUISA CHASE
"Red Sea", 1983
Color woodcut/watercolor additions
28½ X 33 inches
Edition size: 25

Diane Villani EDITIONS
271 Mulberry Street, New York 10012
telephone: (212) 925-1075

STANLEY BOXER

SEPTEMBER – OCTOBER
RECENT CANVASES

IVORY/KIMPTON GALLERY
55 GRANT · SAN FRANCISCO
415/956-6661

GALLERY SELECTIONS–
CONTEMPORARY WORKS OF ART

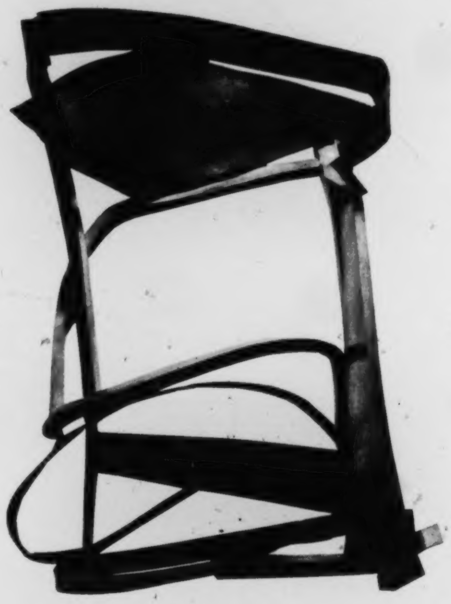
OCTOBER–NOVEMBER

THE PHOTOGRAPHY
OF LANGDON CLAY–
MONTICELLO & OTHER WORKS

DECEMBER–JANUARY

THE TWINING GALLERY INC.

33 BLEECKER ST., NYC 10012 (212) 674-2070



Michael Steiner

October 3 - November 29

Queen of the Fishes, Cast Bronze
1983 (33¾ x 23 x 17¾)

Martha White Gallery
330 West Main St., Louisville, Kentucky 40202
(502) 589-3347

Word Works
A Festival of Language in the Arts

30 September through
31 October 1983

Presented by Walker Art Center and the Minneapolis College of Art and Design

WoRdKs

Live Appearances by:
Charles Amirkhanian
David Antin
Imamu Amiri Baraka
Robert Bly
The Paul Bob
Martha Boesing
Johanna Boyce and Dancers
William Burroughs
Steve Busa/
Red Eye Collaboration
John Cage
Bob Carroll
Maria Cheng
Church of the SubGenius
Jane Comfort and Dancers
Fab 5 Freddy and Graffiti Rock
Vera Frenkel
The Gospel at Colonus
by Lee Breuer
and Robert Telson
Spalding Gray
Lyn Hejinian
David Jaggard
Constance de Jong
Terri Kruzan
Donald Kuspit
Carol Law
Lucy Lippard
Toby Lurie
Roy McBride
Michael McClure
Wendy Oliver
Adrian Piper
Jonathan Richman and the Modern Lovers
sfz Ensemble
Ntozake Shange
Ned Sublette Band

Visual Artworks by:
Vito Acconci
John Fekner
Hans Haacke
Barbara Kruger
Les Levine
Mark Mendel
Peter Nadin
Lawrence Weiner

Video and Film Works by:
John Baldessari
Dara Birnbaum
Lyn Blumenthal
Dan Curry
Ken Feingold
Morgan Fisher
Richard Foreman
Hollis Frampton
Howard Fried
Jean-Pierre Gorin
Peter Greenaway
Doug Hall
Gary Hill
Joan Jonas
Michael Kelley
Louis Malle
Robert Morris
Laura Mulvey
Bruce Nauman
Tony Oursler
Charlemagne Palestine
Peter Rose
Richard Serra
Michael Snow
Lee Sokol
William Wegman
Peter Wollen

● ● ● ● ● ● ●

Walker Art Center
Information:
375-7600
Minneapolis College of Art and Design:
870-3290

Catalog available
December 1, 1983

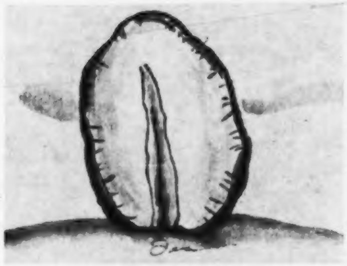
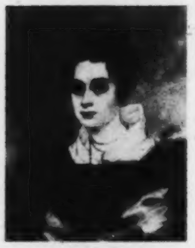
VOL 71 ISS 9 OC 1983 UMI



ARTHUR DOVE
Untitled
Watercolor 4 5/8" x 6 5/8"



GEORGE CATLIN
Portrait of Mary Catlin
Oil on Ivory 3" x 2¼"

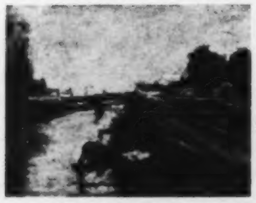
FINE AUCTION
AMERICAN AND EUROPEAN ART

Saturday, November 5, 1983 7 P.M.

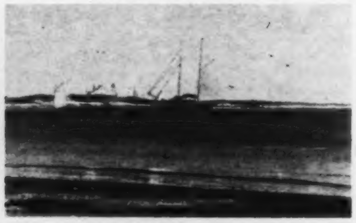
Preview: Saturday, November 5, 10 A.M. - 5 P.M.

Catalogues: $12.00 ($15.50 by mail), post-auction price key included

Many outstanding paintings offered publicly for the first time



WILLIAM MERRITT CHASE
Untitled
Oil on Canvas 9½" x 12½"



WILLIAM BRADFORD
Ten Pound Island, Gloucester
Watercolor 4¼" x 7"

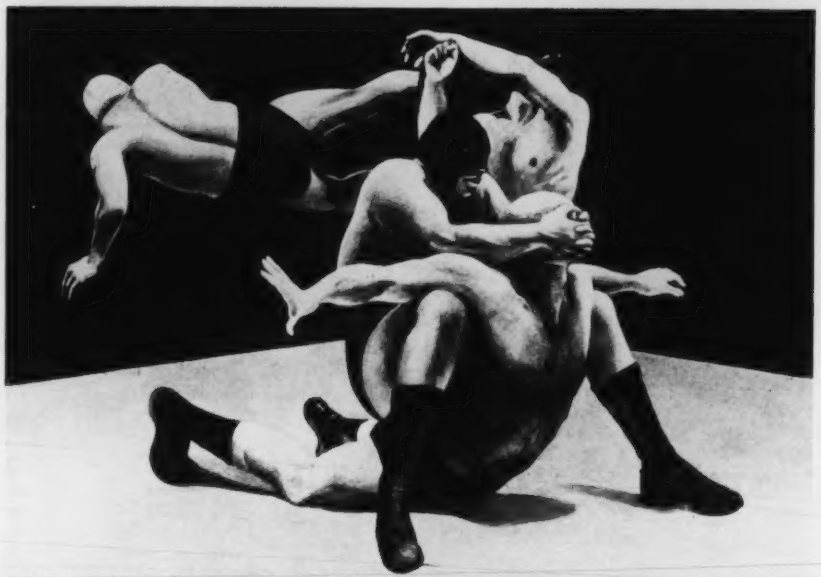
Barridoff
GALLERIES
Annette and Rob Elowitch*
242 Middle Street
Portland, Maine 04101
(207) 772-5011
*Maine License No. 422

Portland, Maine is a one-hour direct flight from LaGuardia or Newark or a two-hour drive from Boston.

RITA HILL TORLEN

THE WRESTLERS

OCTOBER 2-29



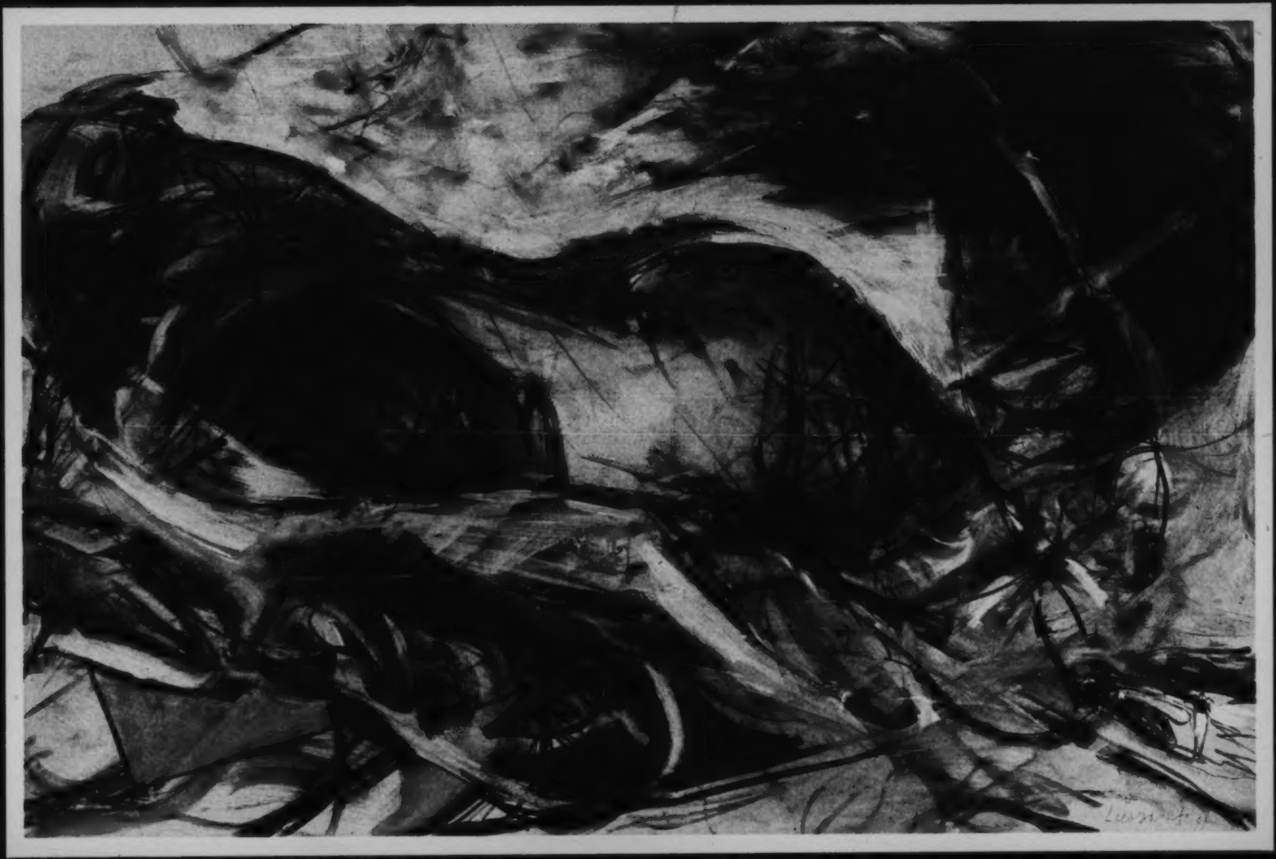
FOUR WRESTLERS, 7' x 10', ACRYLIC ON CANVAS

MARIE PELLICONE GALLERY

NEW YORK - SOUTHAMPTON

47 BOND STREET
NEW YORK, NEW YORK 10012
212-475-3899 - Tues.-Sat. 12-5:30

American Debut



Nude, Oil on Canvas, 1983, 100 x 150 cm.

Paul de Lussanet

paintings and works on paper

EXHIBITION and GRAND OPENING OCTOBER 2-31, 1983

Susan Montezinos Gallery

1628 Pine Street, Philadelphia, PA 19103 (215) 735-3235

In cooperation with: Kunsthandel, P.B. van Voorst van Beest, The Hague, Netherlands

VOL
7
1
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

Art in America

The '60s in Abstract: 13 statements and an essay

The artists from "Abstract Painting: 1960–69," a recent revisionist exhibition, reminisce about what it was like to be an abstract painter in the heyday of Pop, performance and political protest.

INTERVIEWS BY MAURICE POIRIER AND JANE NECOL

While the exhibition "Abstract Painting: 1960–69" was on view at P.S.1 (January–March '83), we went to the artists to gather recollections and background data on a period of painting that has been obscured in the historical perspective of Pop art, Color-Field painting, Photo and other Realisms, and Minimal sculpture. One of our hopes was that the information collected would help penetrate the aura of impersonality and remoteness surrounding the paintings.

Working from a fixed set of questions tailored for each artist, we interviewed all the artists in the exhibition, with the exception of Tony Smith (who died in 1980), and Agnes Martin and Jo Baer, with whom we corresponded. To avoid repetition, we have omitted the questions and arranged a selection from each artist's replies in a condensed narrative form. Since the artists helped select their own paintings for the show, we began with queries about their reasons for choosing particular works. The conversations moved on to topics such as their working methods at the time, other painters' and critics' influences, special experiences that affected their development, the political climate, the gallery situation, the impact of the critically popular movements of the day on their work, and what it was like to be an abstract painter in the '60s in contrast to today.

Their replies yielded a mosaiclike portrait of the time. Many spontaneously recalled the crisis that had developed in the late '50s, and how they had felt a need to separate themselves from Abstract Expressionism. While some were disinclined to discuss Pop art, others acknowledged its importance in helping to reorient painting in a new direction. One of the more rewarding aspects of the interviews is that each artist emerges very much as an individual, despite the superficial resemblances that many of the paintings project. We were impressed by the differences of approach, the variety in the sources of inspiration, and the unique perception that each artist held about his work.

As a whole the interviews convey a sense of the struggle that many nonobjective painters went through during the '60s. Events such as the decline in popularity of painting and the dominance of sculpture as a medium of avant-garde expression during the decade are recalled. Intensities of personal emotion surface, suggesting that behind the facade of coolness of the paintings a lot more was going on. Yet the interviews also convey the sense of excitement and adventure that are the hallmarks of the '60s. One is reminded of how artists needed to relate abstract painting to the real world, how avidly the whole structure of painting was reexamined, and how, unlike today, a substantial area of criticism was seriously concerned with the language and issues of abstract painting. —M.P. and J.N.

Brice Marden

I never tried to make a painting be a comfortable thing. I'm not known as a fun guy. The paintings in the P.S.1 show which I did in 1964–65 date from my Avenue C period. Here I was in New York, isolated, not knowing what the hell I was doing. All I knew were folk singers. I was a painter with a formal academic training—there I was on my own, living some place on the Lower East Side with my wife and child, trying to figure out what to do . . . . These are not happy paintings.

These painting were done when war was a major issue. It was like the call of death. Your country is making death. There is going to be a reflection of that in the art of the time. It's not that people are going to make paintings about death . . . . You could say that I was showing some of the bleaker aspects. In this sense I was making a political statement. One likes to think that art is on the side of truth.

I wanted the viewer to come away from my paintings feeling twisted. They have walked into a situation that they thought was a certain way, and begin to see that it is not what they thought it was. It has to do with tensions. When you have different tensions working on you, it just pulls you. You are pulled forward and pulled back—you are in an uncomfortable place. Sure—all is well with the world, but sure, all is horrible with the world, too.

Gray was the way I could deal with color at the time. What I liked about it was how you could twist it, how you could make it be gray, and also be a red—how you could get two readings out of one thing. I liked to read Zurbarán's paintings as very coldly executed yet very passionate. I think of him as a mystic. It interested me that he could make something so realistic yet so absolutely full of passion.

Godard (the French filmmaker) was an influence. His images would be light against dark backgrounds and he would mix them, and these would be things you'd be thinking about in your own work.

I just couldn't bring myself to close off the bottom of the paintings [of the period of the P.S. 1 show]. I remember going to see a Ralph Humphrey show and thinking, "My God, he closes off the bottom of the rectangle."

The sculptors in the '60s were very important. They were like a real moral force, people like di Suvero, Smith, Andre, Chamberlain . . . . The problems they were facing were very big.

I spent four years as an assistant to Rauschenberg (from the end of 1966 until the end of 1970). I found it easy to work for him because I had never felt influenced by his work. He was very encouraging. I found out how a lot of things are done.

Robert Ryman

Pop art opened up artists' eyes to the fact that other things could be done with painting. Pop was certainly the dominant avant-garde movement in painting in the early '60s. All other approaches to painting were not considered. In fact painting was pronounced dead several times. A lot of the lesser-known Abstract-Expressionist painters, and there were a lot, did not know what to do. It was a shock thing. Many painters I know stopped painting and turned to sculpture because they felt they could not continue with the approach that they had been involved with. They felt sculpture offered more of a way to further the problems that they had been involved with. I felt very much alone in those years. Even though some people may have liked my painting, they didn't know what to do with it because it was not really the correct thing—it didn't fit. Sometimes I myself couldn't see where it was going to lead; I had doubts and at times was not so sure of myself. Then one day in 1965 I felt that I had just finished being a student. I felt very confident. I felt that I knew exactly what to do. I felt mature. There was no more hesitation, no more doubt. It didn't have to do with any particular paintings I was doing or any outside recognition. It just had to do with myself and my painting.

I had seen the Malevich paintings at the Museum of Modern Art but he really had no bearing on what I was doing, either in the '50s or the '60s. In fact he was more like a curiosity to me . . . I thought of him more in terms of Surrealism. Mine was a different approach. Almost from the beginning I have approached painting intuitively. The use of white in my paintings came about when I realized that it doesn't interfere. It is a neutral color that allows for clarification of nuances in painting. It makes other aspects of painting visible that would not be so clear with the use of other colors. As to the square format, it always seemed to me to be a more suitable space to work on than the rectangle. I always had problems with rectangles. Altogether I only did four or five paintings at the most on rectangles.

I would say that Rothko had an important influence on me. There was also Matisse, particularly, and Cézanne. What interested me in Matisse was not so much what he was painting but how he was doing it. It was his sureness, the way he put the paint down. You could tell that he didn't fool around with it, it just went down. He was so sure, it was so immediate. That's what I got from him. With Cézanne it was more the way he could work with the paint and you wouldn't know how he did it . . . the building up, Brice Marden: Untitled, 1968, oil on paper mounted on canvas, 18 1/2 by 24 3/8 inches. Pace Gallery.

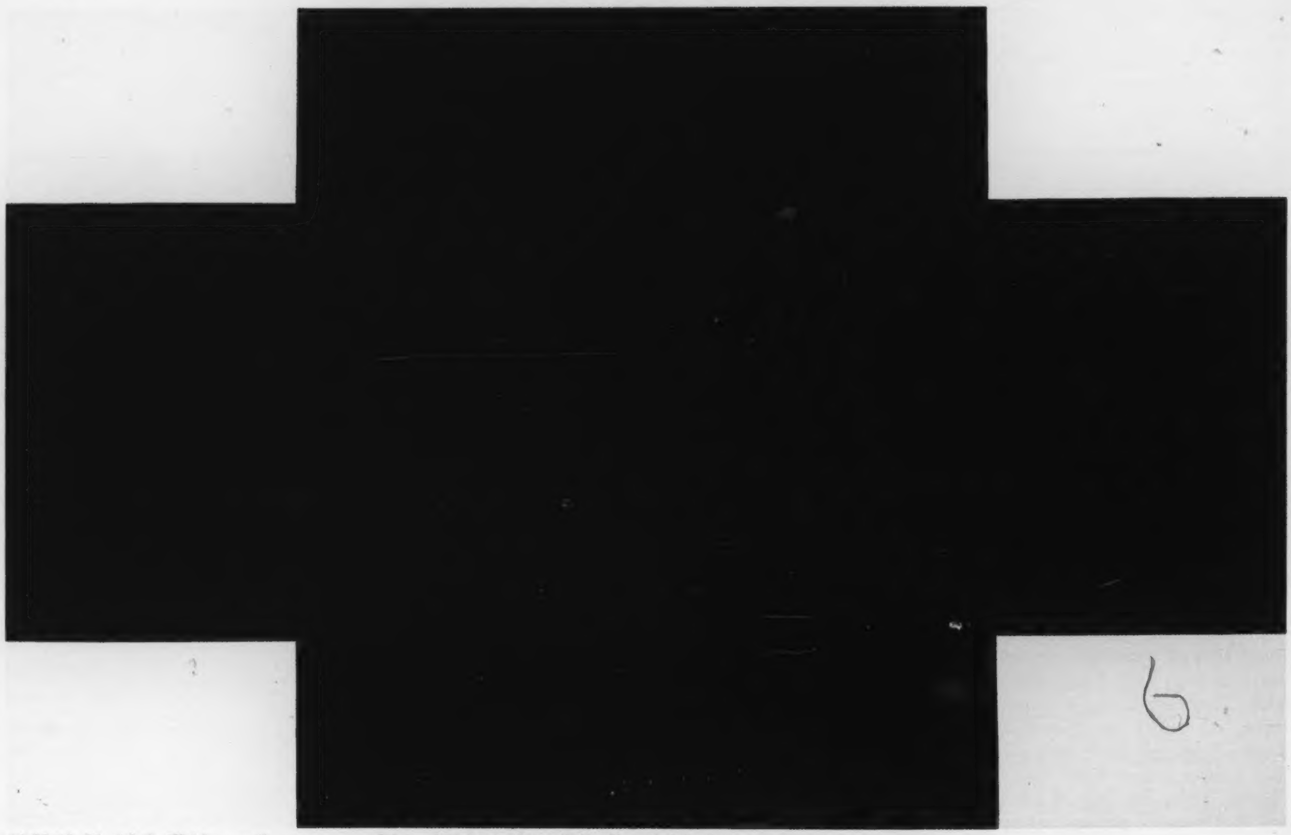
Robert Ryman: Untitled, 1960, oil on cotton, 43 inches square. Collection the artist.

VOL 71
ISS 9
OC
1983
UMI



Al Held: Untitled, 1964, acrylic on canvas, 76 by 118 1/2 inches. Collection Sylvia Stone.

> "[In the '60s] war was a major issue . . . . There is going to be a reflection of that in the art of the time . . . . One likes to think that art is on the side of truth."—Brice Marden the structure, the complicated composition. You would look at all that and you would say, "How did that happen?"

My first show was at Paul Bianchini's gallery in 1967. As it turned out, nothing was sold, even though the paintings were very inexpensive. But I brought an old acquaintance of mine, who happened to be in town, to look at my paintings. He didn't think much of them, but he saw a little Rembrandt drawing that Paul had in his office, and eventually bought it. Paul was so pleased about that (because he was going broke too—he folded a couple of months after my show) that he gave me $100. So something came from the show . . . and at that time $100 meant a lot. I had no money at all. I was kind of living by my wits.

Many artists today have a more commercial outlook. They feel they are entitled to make a living with their painting. I never felt that way at all in the '60s and I think that most of us didn't. It was never a matter of compromising your work to fit the taste. . . . I shied away from teaching for a long time because I was afraid it would take too much from my painting. I felt I would become too immersed in the education aspect so I would usually pick up jobs that left my mind free. Working in a library or a museum as a guard were the kind of jobs that seemed ideal.

I don't think it is any easier to be an abstract painter today than it was in the '60s. It was rough then, and it's rough now. Representational painting has always had a larger audience. But somehow today abstract sculpture seems more acceptable than abstract painting. You see more of it, particularly public sculpture. There is a lot of abstract sculpture that is proposed for public buildings and plazas, but when it comes to painting, most of the painting that is proposed is representational in some way. Very few buildings or public places will want an abstract painting or an abstract mural; they always seem to prefer some representational thing.

I would say that the poetry of painting has to do with feeling. It should be a kind of revelation, even a reverent experience. You come away feeling delight. It's like seeing a movie or going to an opera. If you can tune in to the frequency of what you are experiencing, you come away feeling very good. You feel sustained, and it can last for several days or longer. It's a feeling of well-being. Poetry does it, music does it, painting does it. I think that's what art is, if it can convey that feeling.

Al Held

One of the main reasons I and others began to move away from Abstract Expressionism in the late '50s was its ambiguity. You were beginning to feel that a lot of Abstract Expressionists—the self-appointed keepers of the flame—were faking it, with all the arm-waving and verbosity. I remember making a slogan for myself: "If it's going to be shit, I'm going to dot the i and cross the t." I was not going to fudge it. It was going to be clear and specific. It was a move toward clarity, order and structure.

So the configuration of my paintings came to be more and more geometric. I had no interest in geometry per se, and certainly I had no interest in symbolism. Things just developed this way. I liked the anonymity of circles and triangles. The letters came about because I was getting increasingly dissatisfied with those forms. I was looking for specificity in the letters, just as I had been with circles and triangles. That's why I insisted that the titles be preceded by "the", as in The I and The Big A.

But for a while my own position was ambiguous vis-à-vis the main trends. When the break with Abstract Expressionism finally took place in 1959–60–61, I refused to damn my father, so to speak. I kept saying, "I want to make my own thing." I did have my deep doubts but it was not like "The king is dead, long live the king." I refused to play that game. I also refused to accept the systemic argument, the mirror image of Abstract Expressionism. I thought there was a better way. So it became a theoretical argument. On the one hand I was arguing against the formalists and the color field people in terms of their decoration, their decorative quality, and on the other I was arguing against the Minimalists in terms of their systemic and conceptual notions. I thought there was a more complete way of making things. Those were bitter battles, they were screaming bloody battles that often filled me with rage. I was in an odd-man-out situation. . . . I fought and argued with Clement Greenberg constantly.

But then I fought and argued with what I refer to as the Cage philosophy too. The two people I viewed as the major theoreticians in those years were Greenberg on the one hand and [John] Cage on the other. Cage is never given the blame or the credit that he deserves. I never saw Duchamp as the central issue. It was Cage whom I saw as the central issue. Cage turned Duchamp into a creature of his own making. It was Cage's sensibility that created the dialogue, and Greenberg was on the other side of that.

The debates that went on in those days were very intense. Night after night the table was getting pounded. The concepts of art were being stretched in all different directions. Many points which may not seem terribly heavy now were very intensely felt and fought over and argued. It sounds ridiculous in 1983 to talk about the primacy of the flatness of the canvas. But this point was taken very seriously by very intelligent people, including most of the Minimalists. Actually, if you analyze the Minimalist rhetoric, it runs fairly parallel to Greenberg's thoughts. They never admit to liking his ideas, but their ideas are fairly close to his. You know, Carl Andre is going to the floor, and the flatness of the picture plane, and the "deterministicness" of the medium and the materiality of it . . . it's central to formalism.

These ideas were argued and fought over for a number of years, because these propositions kept getting stretched and pushed further and further. Where were these issues discussed? In bars, at dinner parties, openings, in the magazines, in the press, anywhere. That's when artists began to start writing. Don Judd, for one, and Bob Morris. They became their own spokesmen. Actually it probably all started with It Is [a magazine edited by Philip Pavia that began publication in 1958] and stuff like that, where artists began to make very large and grandiose statements, and began to become very historically self-conscious.

I was innocent enough to participate in the "Post-Painterly Abstraction" show organized by Greenberg in 1964 at the Los Angeles County Museum of Art. If you look carefully at the names in that show, you'll see that he literally scraped the barrel. He took anything that wasn't what he referred to in those days as the 10th Street look. What he was really interested in doing was attacking de Kooning and the gestural painters. I would suspect that he liked only about a third of the people in that show. The rest were just pawns. He wanted to show that there was a genuine grass-roots movement of change, that there was a very large number of people who were painting something other than gesture.

Pop art is what really rocked the boat. There we were, people like myself, Frank Stella, Kelly and tons of others banging on the doors of Abstract Expressionism. We made a little noise in 1959–60, but we really didn't do anything serious to the Abstract-Expressionist armor. What we were trying to say was that there was another way of making art. And then came the Pop artists, and they put a pin in the balloon, and the balloon went pffft. We had been whacking at it with big clubs, and it just kept bouncing off the clubs. They punctured it with a little pin-prick, and it really did collapse. Not the real art, but the whole structure with all the false stuff around it. To me Pop art was like real kick in the ass. It stretched my mind and made me think about a lot of things that at one point I had refused to deal with or discuss. It was an education.

The irony about punk art is that it put the pin in the Minimalist balloon in the same way that Pop had done it to the Abstract-Expressionist balloon. A lot of people had been beating on the Minimalist rhetoric for years and getting nowhere. Then came punk and the same thing happened—the thing collapsed. It was almost like living through the same period again. Actually I see in punk art an awful lot of relationships to Pop art.

I have a deep belief that nonobjective art is a basic language form, but it needs to be reexamined from the bottom up. In the '60s there was a romantic illusion that nonobjective art was creating a huge new world. Today it is in crisis. It has been in crisis for a number of years, but it came to a boil with the PR about punk art. Maybe this crisis was needed. My hope is that there will be a Sally Hazelet Drummond:* Turner #16, *1969, oil on canvas, 44½ inches square. Chase Manhattan.

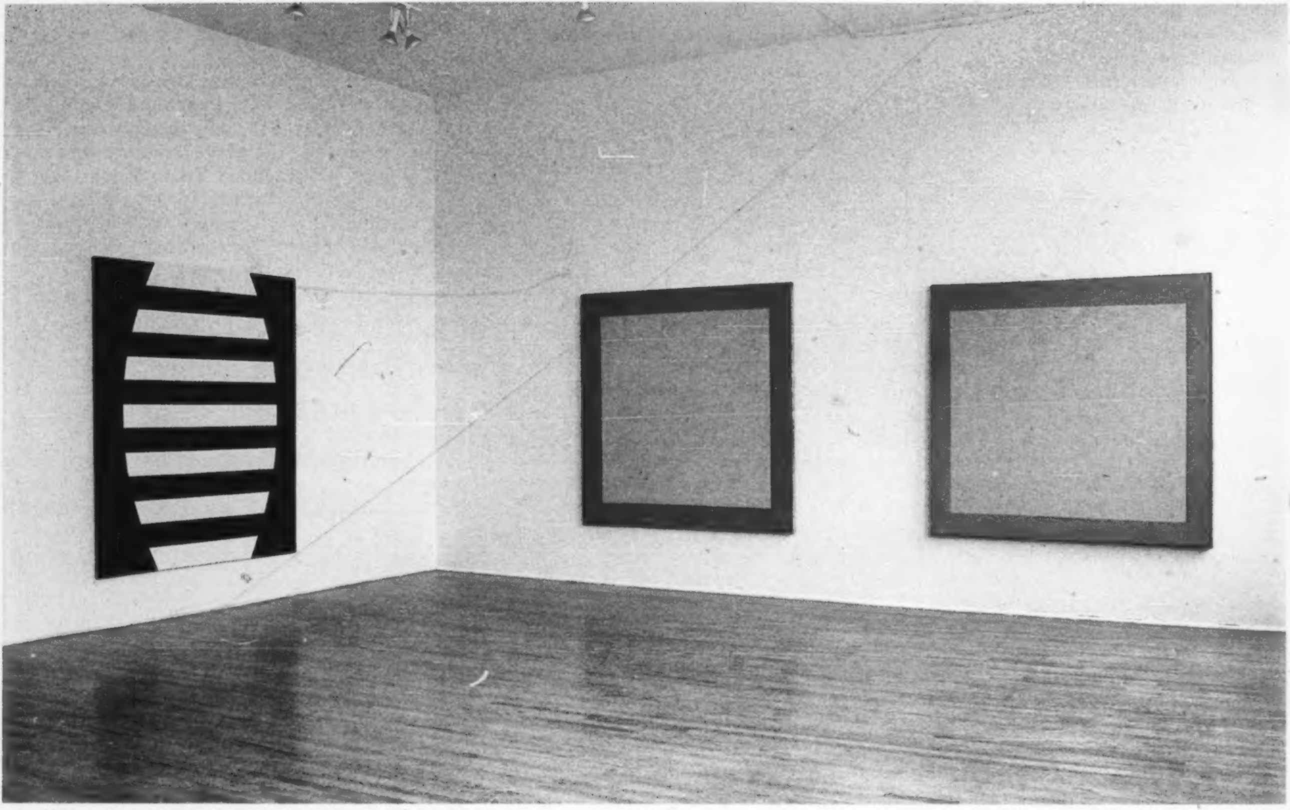
VOL
71
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI



Installation view at P.S.1 with, left to right, Marcia Hafif's Untitled, 1963, and Ralph Humphrey's Andersen and Carlyle, both 1965.

> "A cold look at the high art of the '60s shows . . . a deep-set pessimism out of which came works programmed in an intentional flight from history, ethos and significance."—Jo Baer cadre of young artists who will use the crisis to reexamine all the basic premises and axioms of non-objective art.

Sally Hazelet Drummond

In the middle '50s it became clear that in order to find my identity, I had to work my way out of Abstract Expressionism. The main thing that bothered me about Abstract Expressionism was that there was so much accident. A more classical attitude was growing in which a path toward symmetry and harmony was replacing the exuberance and explosiveness that so moves me in the work of de Kooning. Two of the critical influences in those years were Ad Reinhardt and Philip Guston. What I liked about Reinhardt was his intellectual austerity, his ability to say no to so much that was going on around him. He was almost a countercultural voice in the mid-'50s. The main thing that appealed to me in Guston's paintings (which were abstract at the time) was their centering quality; the focus was in the center, like a target. I was also drawn to their tactile quality and sensuousness. Yet I felt he didn't finish his paintings, he didn't bring them out to the edges.

By 1958 my paintings were monochromatic, slightly darker in the center and they were painted with a wide brush. This was the year that the Museum of Modern Art held a major exhibition of Seurat. There were three small painted studies for the painting Les Poseuses that thrilled me. I hung around them like a moth around a flame. Those three small paintings vibrated and pulsed with energy, and I realized this was the element lacking in my work. From now on pointillism would be the means by which I would give form and energy to the image of my paintings.

Until 1969 my paintings had a dark center because I had the concept that something that was serious, like a heart, or the core of anything, was heavy, and therefore should be dark. I felt that the core should have weight, that the center needed to be anchored down. Then in that year I began to experiment with a lighter center. Gradually it became not a matter of anchoring, but of radiation.

To me the most significant impulse in the 20th century has been the search for essentials, the need to simplify stemming from Cézanne, Seurat, later Brancusi. I think of myself as an illustrator. Nobody creates anything. We recreate and recombine what we perceive out there in nature. My work has been about the concept of oneness—everything being connected, no foreground, no background, no separations, like a humming, a drone, emanating from somewhere, a unified field, pulsating, energetic.

Ralph Humphrey

The frame paintings, which were done between 1961 and 1965, were meant to convey a feeling of just existing, just being there, experiencing some basic sense like one would get just looking out the window or walking down the street. . . . This meant applying just a certain amount of color, just a certain touch, and getting rid of all kinds of brushwork. I remember once getting very involved with my hand touching the canvas, like the touch itself was very important. Morandi was a big influence on those paintings. There was a quality of light in his works that fascinated me . . . it was as if light and space were floating on the surface. I bought a drawing of his in the early '60s when I had a job at Bennington. I was also influenced a great deal by existentialist movies, like those by Godard and Antonioni. L'Avventura (by Antonioni) made an enormous impact on me . . . the texture of the film, the motives, the experience. . . . Newman's paintings also influenced me in a related way. . . . All those works gave off a sense of what I felt existence was like at that time: the bottom line, that was it. But nobody liked the frame paintings at the time, even people closest to me. It was a painful experience. Personally I thought they were terribly sensual.

Left to right, Sally Hazelet Drummond's* Consent (Red Painting), 1962, and Turner #16, 1969, and Robert Mangold's Pink Area, *1965.

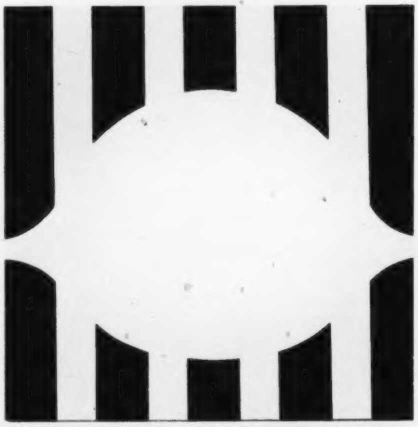
The titles often came from signs I saw, like Carlyle from the Carlyle Hotel in my neighborhood. But there was no real connection with what the paintings were about. The titles were interchangeable.

In my view 1965 was the apex of the '60s. It was the '60s in full force, with everything happening at its peak. That's one reason I chose two paintings from that year for the show at P.S. 1. Towards the end of the '60s, in 1968–69, the bottom fell out, politically, esthetically, emotionally, I mean everything, it was just a mess.

There was definitely more of a sense of a community among abstract artists in the '60s than there is today. You had people you related to and whom you hung out with. When I talk to young people today, this is one of the problems that emerges. They go to Hunter College (where I teach) to make friends and find people they can relate to. I used to hang out with people from Columbia, different writers . . . we got very heavy into philosophy at the time . . . books would come out, and everybody was reading, ideas were being fired, and I liked that. You had some sense that you were going somewhere, towards something.



Marcia Hafif:* Spagna II, *1963, enamel on canvas, 78 ¾ inches square. Collection the artist.

I don't think abstract painting commands as much respect today as it did in the '60s. In those days you could hang out with people from different schools (figurative and nonfigurative). These days I find that the schools are getting very competitive. One does not talk to the other. There was more of a kind of respect going on then.

The Green Gallery was a great one. It was innovative. You never knew exactly what you were walking into. Some shows you could hate. But there was an excitement. The shows differed an awful lot. I find that one of the problems right now is that there is a kind of sameness going on.

Marcia Hafif

It took me a long time to get to abstraction. When I got out of school I didn't really know what to do. It seemed silly to set up a nude in my room and paint the nude, so I didn't paint at all for several years, except occasionally in the summer some landscapes. Searching around to know what to paint is what I was doing. Finally around 1960, abstraction began to make sense to me. When I felt the power of it, that I could make a painting and somebody else could respond to it even though it was not representational, it seemed rather magic to me. It kept my interest. Realism seemed to

VOL 7 1 ISS 9 OC 1983 UMI

"Painting is a spiritual activity, a moral activity,. I can't think of anything less interesting . . . than Matisse's comparison of his painting to a good armchair."—David Novros me basically to be a copy, an imitation of life; and there's life already there to tell you what it's supposed to be. Abstraction was far from being cut and dried in any way. It had all of this mystery, all of this possibility of what could happen, and it seemed to work in some way. And that seemed very exciting. After that it didn't occur to me to work with realism again.

Left to right, Doug Ohlson's Untitled, 1964, 84 by 120 inches, and Untitled, 1963, 90 inches square, both acrylic on canvas.

I moved to Italy in 1961, and there the colors (of my paintings) changed considerably. The paintings became flatter, and the paint surface became flatter and hard-edge, which it had not been before. I responded particularly to the colors of the advertising, billboards, things you would see along the roads, also their forms and shapes . . . they soaked into my mind. I also bought enamels that were ready-mixed colors, and those colors were different from the same things you would have bought in the States. The images for my paintings came from the subconscious, although they were often stimulated by things I had seen, like church interiors or floor patterns. I used to stare at the prepared canvas until an image came to me. And then I would know what I wanted to do. One particular group of paintings, to which those in the show at P.S.1 belong, were done in 1963 after a trip to Spain. In December of that year my son was born. A month later a friend came to visit, and she looked at those paintings and said, "These are all about being pregnant!" I had been completely unaware of the connections. . . .

Around 1967 the shapes in my paintings began to move off toward the edges, and in 1968 the canvas became one integrated image. In the last group of paintings I did while still in Italy, the colors were all interwoven with each other, so that the painting might appear to be a one-color painting, white for instance, but it would have all the primary and secondary colors in it, sprayed in and overlaid. . . . The first painting I did using only one pigment the way I do now was in 1972.

After returning from Italy, I spent two years in California [1969–71], but I didn't paint very much there. I was essentially exploring other mediums—film and sculpture, photography, sound environment—just letting myself work with them. Finally, I realized that painting interested me the most. That's why I moved to New York in 1971. In New York there seemed to be an ongoing dialogue in painting that I didn't find in California. It didn't make a lot of sense to make paintings in California. There was no painting context there. People were doing everything else but paint. But then when I came to New York, I didn't find what I was looking for either. And that's why I began making one-color paintings, turning away from what I saw around me, turning to my own paintings for a dialogue. . . . I knew of the work of people like Reinhardt, Yves Klein and Robert Ryman. I had also seen a Ralph Humphrey one-color painting in 1961. But the motivations for me to begin experimenting with

Who's Who

Jo Baer
Born 1929, Seattle. Attended University of Washington; Graduate Division, New School. Came to New York 1950, again 1960; currently lives in London. In '60s, showed at Green Gallery, New York, and Galerie Rolf Ricke, Cologne. First solo exhibition at Fischbach Gallery, New York, 1966. Currently shows at Lisson Gallery, London.

James Bishop
Born 1927, Neosho, Mo. Attended Syracuse University; School of Fine Arts, Washington University; Black Mountain College; Columbia University. Since 1966 divides his time between New York and France. In '60s, showed at Fischbach Gallery, New York, and Galerie Jean Fournier, Paris. First solo exhibition at Galerie Lawrence, Paris, 1964. Recent shows at Kolbert Gallery, New York, and Dan Weinberg Gallery, San Francisco.

Sally Hazelet Drummond
Born 1924, Evanston, Ill. Attended Rollins College; Columbia University; Institute of Design, Chicago; University of Kentucky. Came to New York 1953; since 1962, lives in Ridgefield, Connecticut. In '60s, showed at Tanager Gallery, Green Gallery and Fischbach Gallery, New York. First solo exhibition at Tanager Gallery, 1955. Has shown recently at Fischbach Gallery.

Marcia Hafif
Born in California. Attended Pomona College; Claremont Graduate School. Came to New York 1971, and continues to live there. In '60s, showed at Bianchini Gallery, New York. First solo exhibition at Galleria La Salita, Rome, 1964. Has shown recently at Sonnabend Gallery, New York.

Al Held
Born 1928, New York. Attended Art Students League; Académie de la Grande Chaumière. Lives in New York. In '60s, showed at Poindexter Gallery and Emmerich Gallery, New York. First solo exhibition at Gallery Eight, Paris, 1952. Currently shows at Emmerich.

Ralph Humphrey
Born 1932, Youngstown, O. Attended Youngstown University. Came to New York 1956, and continues to live there. In '60s, showed at Bykert Gallery, New York. First solo exhibition at Tibor de Nagy Gallery, New York, 1959. Currently shows at Willard Gallery.

Will Insley
Born 1929, Indianapolis. Attended Amherst College; Harvard Graduate School of Design. Came to New York 1957, and continues to live there. In '60s, showed at Stable Gallery, New York. First solo exhibition at Stable Gallery, 1965. Currently shows at Max Protetch Gallery, New York.

Lee Lozano
Born 1930, Newark. Attended University of Chicago; Art Institute of Chicago. Lives in Dallas. In '60s, showed at Green Gallery and Bianchini Gallery, New York. First solo exhibition at Bianchini Gallery, 1966.

Robert Mangold
Born 1937, North Tonawanda, N.Y. Attended Cleveland Institute of Art; Yale University. Came to New York 1962; lives in Washingtonville, N.Y. In '60s, showed at Thibaut Gllery and Fischbach Gallery, New York. First solo exhibition at Thibaut Gallery, 1964. Recent shows at Janis Gallery and John Weber Gallery, New York.

Brice Marden
Born 1938, Bronxville, N.Y. Attended Florida Southern College; Boston University; Yale University. Came to New York 1963, and continues to live there. In '60s, showed at Bykert Gallery, New York. First solo exhibition at Bykert Gallery, 1966. Currently shows at Pace Gallery, New York.

Agnes Martin
Born 1912, Maklin, Saskatchewan, Canada. Attended Western Washington State College; Teachers' College of Columbia University; University of New Mexico. Came to New York 1957; since 1967 lives in New Mexico. In '60s, showed at Robert Elkon Gallery, New York. First solo show at Betty Parsons Gallery, New York, 1958. Currently shows at Pace Gallery.

David Novros
Born 1941, Los Angeles. Attended University of Southern California. Came to New York 1964, and continues to live there. In '60s, showed at Bykert Gallery and Park Place Gallery, New York. First solo exhibition at Park Place Gallery, 1966. Recent shows at Jon Leon Gallery, New York, and Rico Mizuno Gallery, Los Angeles.

Doug Ohlson
Born 1936, Cherokee, Iowa. Attended University of Minnesota. Came to New York 1961, and continues to live there. In '60s, showed at Fischbach Gallery, New York. First solo exhibition at Fischbach Gallery, 1964. Currently shows at Susan Caldwell Gallery, New York.

Robert Ryman
Born 1930, Nashville. Attended Tennessee Polytechnic Institute; George Peabody College for Teachers, Vanderbilt University. Came to New York late 1950s, and continues to live there. In '60s, showed at Galerie Konrad Fischer, Düsseldorf, and Galerie Heiner Friedrich, Munich. First solo exhibition at Bianchini Gallery, New York, 1967. Recent shows at Bonnier Gallery and Janis Gallery, New York.

VOL 71 ISS 9 OC 1983 UMI

"The legacy from Abstract Expressionism, that art should be a serious statement for the mind as well as the emotions, was not something I wanted to rebel against, but to extend."—Robert Mangold one color came from within myself. The way it happened is that one day I felt, "What if I just stopped relating the colors to each other? What if I didn't put two colors together? What if I used only one?" And I started with paper and pencil, actually, doing that, making drawings that were just pencil all over a surface of paper and no distinct image. And from those I began working with paint.

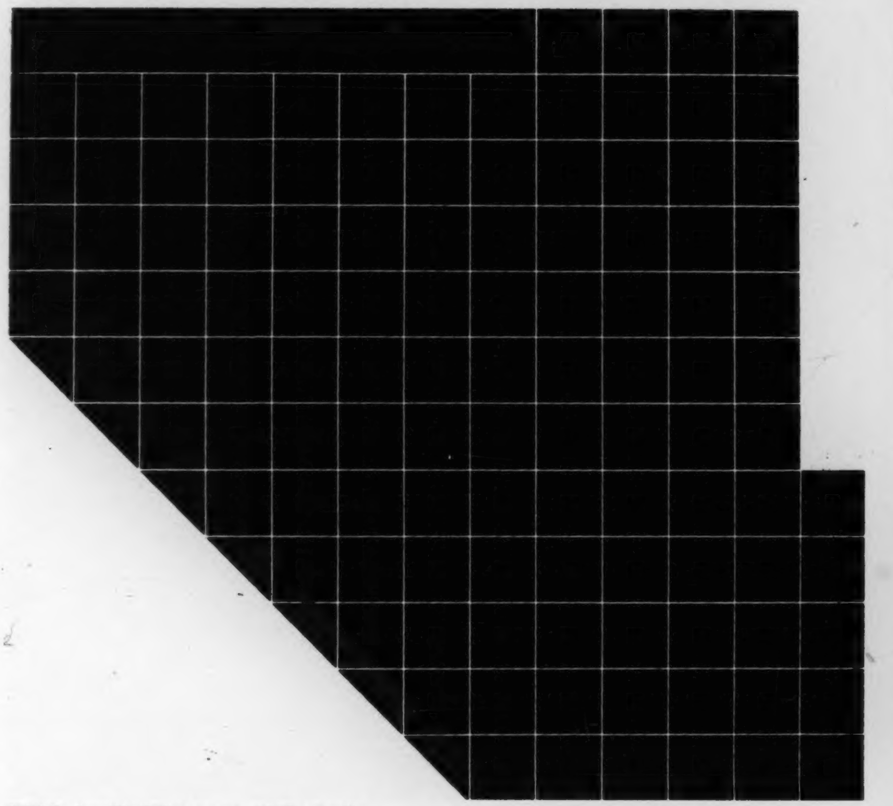
Popularly, abstraction now is at a low ebb with critics. In the '60s there was a substantial area of criticism that was interested in abstraction. And now it's hard to find any critics who write about it.

Robert Mangold

The Abstract Expressionists of the '50s made me want to be an artist. The works of de Kooning, Gottlieb, Rothko, Newman, and Still were all important to me for various reasons, but the strongest influence was Barnett Newman's work. It presented to me a kind of serious monumentality, mental expansiveness and emotional tenseness that was to be a model for me of what great art should be. The legacy from Abstract Expressionism, that art should be a serious statement for the mind as well as the emotions, was not something I wanted to rebel against, but to extend somehow. You had to figure out some way to separate yourself—and to move away so as to go on.

We moved to New York in 1962. I was affected by the environment, the visual toughness of lower Manhattan surfaces and colors, the sense of fragmentation of things, of seeing only parts of building, trucks, sky, signs—the arbitrariness of what you saw. I was also interested in the way paint was used in the subways, the way it would go over pipes and across posts and in a sense flatten out a totally 3-dimensional space. I responded to the almost antiformal quality of the color and surface of the city, of industry downtown. This all came together in a series of works from 1964 and 1965 called "Walls" and "Areas." Each work was approximately 96 by 96 inches on plywood-backed masonite, sectionalized in 4-by-8-foot units. The wall pieces were more sculptural, some standing on the floor. They were architectual slablike works with added mouldings and cutout areas, resembling doorways or window breaks. The works that seemed most radical, however, were the "area" paintings. Their thin flatness and sprayed surfaces were at once more severe and more interesting to me. . . . This whole idea of using industrial materials like plywood and masonite instead of traditional ones like canvas maybe came in a backhanded way through Pop art's idea of looking at the world again. Somehow it seemed important to get away from the language that painting had had for so long, and to find ways of dealing with the real world.



Will Insley:* Wall Fragment, *1967, acrylic on masonite, 96 by 104 inches. Protetch Gallery.

The early and middle '60s was a time of opening the gates (a comparison could be made to the early '80s). There was a lot going on, including an interest in new materials, areas of science, architecture and engineering, light art, kinetic art, happenings, Pop art, new figurative art, etc. All of it represented a turning away from the "interiorness" of 1950s art. It was a time of great vitality, and the feeling that invention was all around contributed to a sense of intensity (much of what passed for invention was really novelty).

I don't believe that Minimal art came out of European abstract sources like Mondrian or Malevich, or any kind of geometric painting language or thinking language. At this moment, I can't think of anybody's work at that time you could really think of in that way.

The summer of '66 we spent in the country, and there was a majestic view across a valley to some mountains. Stimulated by this view, I began, at first only in models, to introduce a curved line to the bottom edge of these area paintings, thinking of the way sky met mountain line. Eventually I used a compass curve because I wanted to avoid the organic natural line. These works led to the circle-part paintings of 1967–69, again exploring this idea of "fragment" and its relation to "whole." You could say I got geometry from the country. But I never thought about geometry as such. It didn't come from a sense of that.

It was easy for me to get into galleries. But then everybody who was an artist in the '60s was told over and over again there was no way you were going to make a living out of it. That was an accepted thing. The fact that I didn't sell paintings at first disappointed me, but it wasn't that I wasn't expecting it. It was only in 1969 that things really started to happen. But living was cheap. The first loft we rented in New York, we got three floors for $180. You could meet that with a part-time job.

The early '60s in New York were like the '50s in a sense. It was a very small art scene. You could throw a loft party and literally everybody in the art world would be there. Everything would open on Tuesday evening. In one evening you could see everything that was shown. That changed somewhere around the mid-'60s—the size of the art world, the number of galleries, a lot of things started shifting; things also shifted politically. By the end of the '60s the whole scene was very different. I left New York, very disillusioned, in 1970. For one thing, I felt there was a kind of commercialism taking place that I found offensive. I felt the need to put distance between me and the art world. Things were happening that somehow seemed so divisive, and everyone was jealous of everyone else. . . . I just wanted to get the art world out of my head. I didn't want to think about who was on the cover of the art magazines, or whether this or that article was mentioning me or not. To me it seemed a deadly context to live in.

Doug Ohlson

Symmetry was an important issue of discussion and examination in the early '60s. It was a way of not actively or obviously composing. In this sense it was a move away from the strong gestural language of much of Abstract Expressionism. My paintings in the show at P.S.1 are all based on symmetry. They also confront the problem of how to get a complete painting, something that doesn't refer to what they used to call a "slice of life," like looking out a window. . . . Each of these paintings in execution was done in a day or two at the most.

In the early '60s, one was coming out of a kind of overt expressionism, and I think there was a need for clarity. I think the Pop artists were looking for clarity also. There was a kind of fever involved, and people wanted to sit back and reexamine the structure of painting. Whether it was true or not, one did feel like one was discovering something or seeing something fresh. I remember being concerned with things like: What do you do with the corner? How can the corner be as important as the center? Then one day in 1962, because of some paint dripping or whatever, I tried to wipe it out and realized that I had "discovered" figure-ground interchange. Then I started to look around and realized that other people had known about it for a long time. But I had to discover it for myself.

I think that the concerns of a lot of painters in the '60s were very similar to those of sculptors. We talked about approaching the edge and the containment of a canvas. The sculptors were involved in getting rid of a base. The early and mid-'60s were a time when you could get pedestals for nothing. You could just take them away from galleries. Containment meant that everything that was there should talk. No positive and negative, but everything positive, which is what figure-ground interchange, for instance, attempts to deal with. If you've got one, you've got the other, and they are inseparable. I think the show at P.S.1 was timely, because a lot of artists at the moment seem to be reinvestigating those issues that were of concern in the '60s.

Tony Smith was a very influential figure in my life and in other people's lives, not only from his work but from his words. People talk about him as though he had some kind of hard line. He didn't at all. He was a regular artist, brilliant, and he was open to possibilities. He didn't set up something to be done and then continue to do it in some dogmatic way. There was nothing programmatic or anything like that. I remember him talking once about the Japanese moving back and forth between two and three dimensions, between painting and sculpture, and how he thought that had really heightened their cultural sensibility. That was probably around the time when people were talking about: "Is it painting or sculpture? Is it relief? What does it imply?" But he was always very humble about his paintings. In a note to me from 1963, he wrote: "It isn't my intention or desire to make pictures which are appealing. So I prefer to waste a certain amount of effort in the attempt at a deeper thing."

Will Insley

The '60s were one of the rare times in art history when there was a feeling of truly going back to the beginning. I think a lot of artists sensed this. What was the "beginning" of painting? The Abstract Expressionists confronted the issue of how to make a painting, but their concept of "a painting" was burdened with the past—i.e., revealed gesture of hand, active expression of paint. All we were doing was measuring two-dimensional space.

From 1959 to 1966, I was a file clerk in the Metropolitan Museum photo studio. One assignment was to sort the record cards, and I thus became aware that every separate thing had its own record. Suits of armor were in hundreds of pieces. Greek vases were often in fragments and each fragment could stand for an unavailable whole. Each piece and fragment had its separate card and was thus singularly recognized. Their odd shapes evoked reference to some greater "elsewhere." This information first produced the "secret" shaped paintings Left to right, Tony Smith's Untitled #38 and Untitled #40*, both 1962–63, and two untitled works, 1962, all oil on canvas. Pace Gallery.*

VOL 7 1
ISS 9
OC
1983
UMI

"A lot of Abstract Expressionists were faking it, with all the arm-waving and verbosity. I [made] a slogan for myself: 'If it's going to be shit, I'm going to dot the i and cross the t.' "—Al Held of 1961 to 1963 (painterly oil, never exhibited), and then the various series of "Wall Fragments."

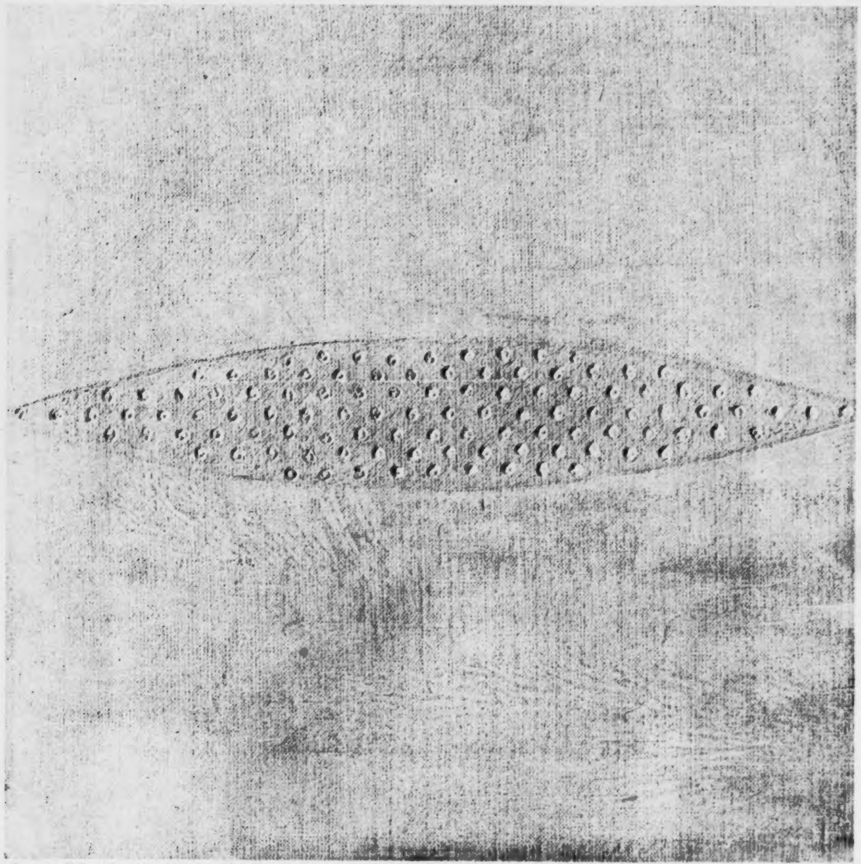
The trigger to this latter development was a square green and yellow diagonally striped painting I saw at the Green Gallery in 1963. I asked Richard Bellamy, "Who did that painting?" and he answered, "Frank Stella." I said, "It's the most amazing painting I've ever seen." I was struck by the clarity of Liquitex color, lack of painterly texture and absolute structure of the image.



Agnes Martin: Untitled, 1962, oil on linen, 12 inches square. John Weber Gallery.

This revelation came at a time of crisis in my work. I felt the "secret" shaped paintings were going nowhere. I had the shape system, but didn't know what to do with it. As I diagnosed Frank's painting, I reviewed my entire history, and in one long evening made decisions which have altered my artistic life to this day. I decided that my error lay in "thinking as a painter" and that I should henceforth "think as an architect." As a student of architecture in the '50s, I planned my buildings on a grid. Living in New York from 1957 on, I was preoccupied with walking the street grid and exploring empty parking lots and playing fields at night. When it rained, their dark asphalt surfaces gridded with gray and yellow lines provided liquid mirrors for visual descent to "another place." I thus decided to consider my work as "Wall Fragments" and not as paintings per se, and to use the grid as a basic system for the investigation of two-dimensional space. Optically, the black field with yellow grid provides the greatest visual contrast while at the same time "sticking together" (black and white falls apart), and I wanted maximum visual extension beyond material limitations of the physical support.

I eventually questioned and thus traced the "true" source of the "Wall Fragments." If there is a wall fragment, there must be a wall, and if a wall, a building; and if a building, a city; if a city, a civilization; if a civilization, a religion; and ultimately an unknown seed of cryptic signals. In 1967, I uncovered the first buildings of abstract architectural space. Upon digestion of their vocabulary, I was able to move in 1977 to the investigation of their focus, ONECITY, a mythological labyrinth in unlocated time and buried in the central North American plains between the Mississippi River and the Rocky Mountains. ONECITY houses 400 million people. In its center is hidden the Opaque Library, the source of the "Fragments." ONECITY is concerned not with the mechanics of cities but with their essence and mystery. ONECITY is both dream and nightmare, a dialogue of the order relating good and evil conducted by unidentified ghosts.

Agnes Martin

I believe the 1950s in America to be the most important period in all recorded time. It seems to me that artists are born in clusters (e.g., the composers in Germany, Greek art in the time of Pericles, Ming art, etc.). The most important cluster of painters in history were the American Abstract Expressionists. Even though their paintings vary to such an extent, they all gave up the same things. Before their time abstract art was an arrangement of forms in space. They gave up defined space (which resulted in enormous scale) and they gave up forms as expressive in themselves and they gave up all objectivity, making an authentic abstract art possible.

It is now possible to paint as musicians compose, thematically. In my shows all the paintings are the same theme, variations on a theme. Most of them are happiness, some innocence. In my next show, the theme is devotion, nuances on devotion.

I do not believe anyone is influenced in painting. When the painter gets his inspiration he follows it through and makes a series. If a painter is influenced, he cannot go on. There is no next step. Nor is he influenced by environment or political events (they are the most unreal).

There is only one reality in the whole field of art. The painting is not real and the artist is not real, only the response is real, that is, unchanging (as reality is). Even in thousands of years the response to a piece of art work does not change.

The art historians write about enlightened ages but it is quite obvious that a cluster of artists was all that there was. The Greeks in the time of Pericles were as they are now, just as the common German was not more musical at the great musical time in Germany.

Art work does not represent a culture. We enjoy art of all cultures, even that made by cannibals. I respond to all art work by all cultures and all ages.

I left New York in 1967 because every day I suddenly felt I wanted to die and it was connected with painting. It took me several years to find out that the cause was an overdeveloped sense of responsibility.

Lee Lozano: 2-Wave, 1968, and 8-Wave, 16-Wave, 24-Wave, 32-Wave, 1969, all works oil on canvas, 96 by 42 inches.

Left to right, James Bishop's Diary, 1963, 59 inches square, and Bathing and Fading, 1963, 76 3/4 inches square, both oil on canvas.

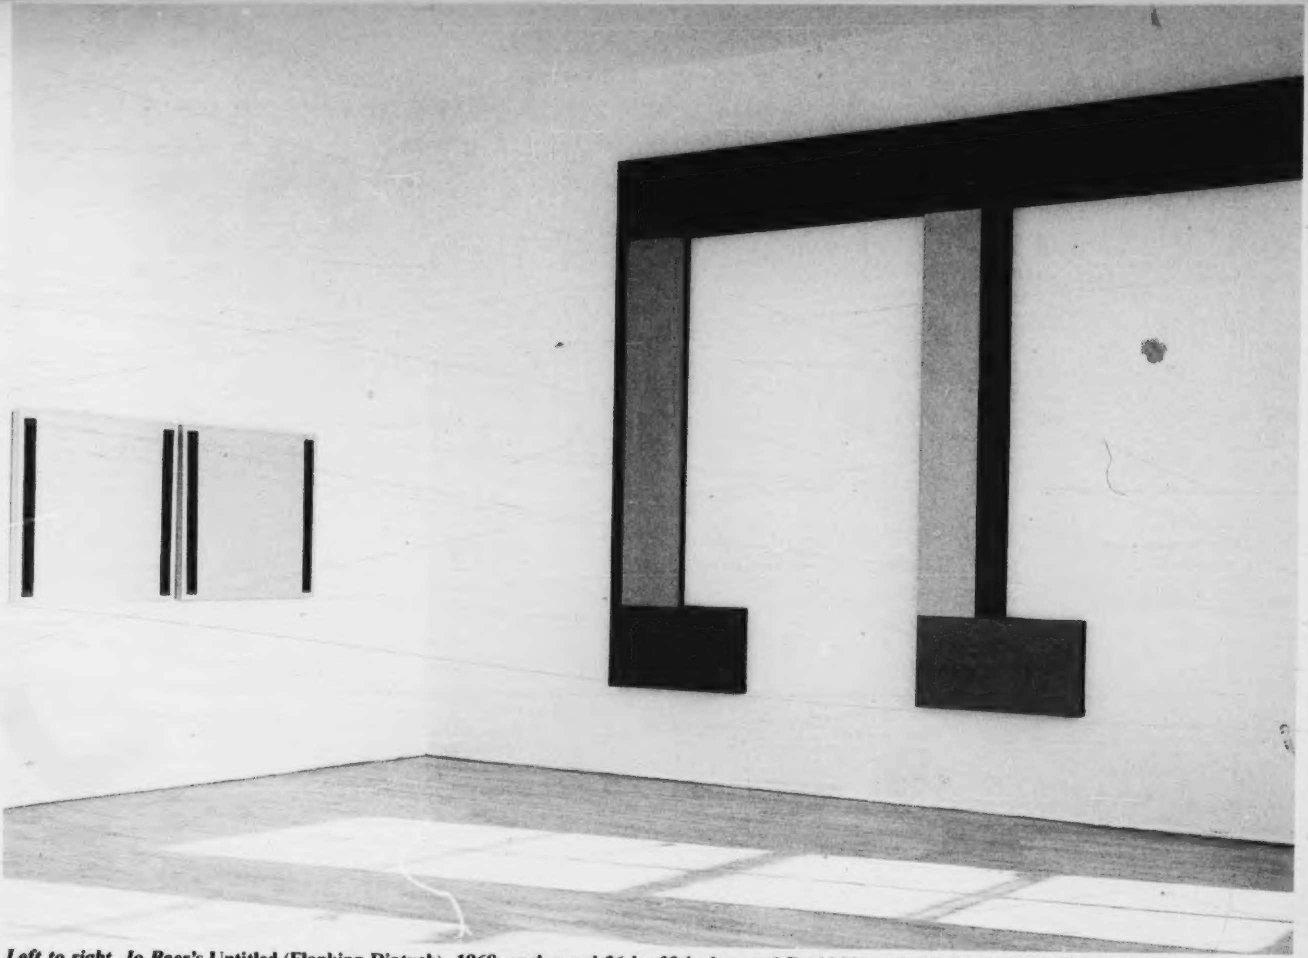
VOL 71 ISS 9 OC 1983 UMI



Left to right, Jo Baer's Untitled (Flanking Diptych), 1968, each panel 36 by 39 inches, and David Novros's Untitled, 1965, 10 by 12 feet.

"1965 was the apex of the '60s . . . . Towards the end of the decade, in 1968-69, the bottom fell out, politically, esthetically, emotionally. I mean everything, it was just a mess."—Ralph Humphrey

James Bishop

I went to Europe in 1957, traveled and then lived in Paris from 1958, and didn't come back to the U.S. until 1966. New York in those years seemed to be the capital. Paris certainly wasn't. When I visited New York in 1966 I saw much more interesting work being done than I had seen for years. Paris in the early '60s was less receptive to work from elsewhere than it is today, although foreign artists who lived in France got some credit for doing so. The longer they stayed around, the realer they became. American painting, the little that one saw, was avidly looked at by some, resented by others. A few big traveling shows came, such as the MOMA "New American Painting" and Pollock in 1959, and Rothko in 1962. Today France is much more open to international art.

I don't know how my painting or my life would have turned out if I had stayed in New York and tried to figure out how to go on from Abstract Expressionism. When I first started to work in Paris I still had something of the "true believer" feeling I had had as a student which was that with Abstract Expressionism painters had at last begun simply to paint, at least in a certain way. Of course I knew that Mondrian and others had started something else earlier. It wasn't just abandoning depiction. Today I'm less categorical. I'm still interested only in painting abstractly myself but I love a lot of painting, abstract or figurative, and even if I didn't see much interesting contemporary work in Paris, traveling in Europe I saw more and better examples of earlier painting, especially the great Italian masterpieces of the Renaissance. I used what I saw and what I had brought with me in a way that I might not have in New York. I think of myself as somebody who tried to go on from Motherwell (who was the painter I loved most as a student) and later on Newman, Rothko and Reinhardt. Since they are inimitable, I had to find something to do myself. I don't know if I would have tried to combine them if I had been in New York; but in my own relative isolation in Paris it seemed to fit my own feelings. I think today I am an Abstract Expressionist of the quieter branch.

In 1963 I began using the technique I've used since, although only partially in the early paintings. After putting down pencilled guidelines, I put the stretched canvas on the floor, fill in an area with very liquid paint, and then, by picking up one edge of the canvas and then another, let the paint roll around until there is more in one part of that area than another, and consequently more, or less, of the undercoat showing through, this according to the idea I have of how the different sections of the painting should work together. I reestablish the edges of the area by blotting up the paint that's gone over the boundary, and put down the next area. Lines are created, like seams really, by there being twice as much paint where two areas overlap slightly. But all this is interesting only for what it creates in terms of, say, intensities of color, ambiguities of space, etc. Sometimes a painting dries differently, better or worse than I was trying for. I've got the last word, of course, whether or not to keep it. But I like the painting's participation, and I like the artist's hand being there and not there. I think it's only possible with oil paint, but then I don't like the dead look of acrylics. I should say in passing that I have a feeling about oil paint that is close to something like patriotism.

Before starting a painting I always have an idea of what I want to do worked out on a piece of paper, notes really, never a careful model. In the '60s I wanted a fairly simple image with some interest or oddness in itself but which, above all, could be a vehicle for dealing with some problem or some aspect of painting. By the end of the decade the images had become repeated and repetitious, simpler as their relationships became more complex, image and "problem" subordinated to a certain expressiveness. Paradox and contradiction seem to be permanent elements.

Both Diary and Bathing and Fading in the show at P.S.1 deal with the relationship between white, which I think is stronger optically than any other color, and other colors, dark or light-filled. The white canvas left showing and the other colors painted on it reverse the fact of the order in which they're put down. The blue/white of Bathing and Fading comes directly from the Matisse cut-outs—the Blue Nudes—which I saw in 1961. I guess I was still under their spell. Blue is a very amiable color that pretty much does what you want it to. It's as easy to get along with as green is impossible. Any large expanse of an ultramarine blue with lots of white in it gets very buoyant . . . it bathes. The green of Diary is like a dark green hole, but flat and held down at the right by rectilinear luminous red bands and white canvas bands and torn loose from the white canvas at the left. The only excuse I can think of for this title is the torn page, tearing a page out of a diary. I think that's what I'd do if I ever kept a diary. I'd just gradually tear all the pages out.

Lee Lozano

I haven't seen the paintings that were at P.S. 1 since they were shown at the Whitney in '70. The Waves are really a reference to the electromagnetic spectrum. At the beginning they were more towards infrared, they were larger waves. There weren't as many oscillations. But I didn't do them in a sequence that would reflect the perfect order of the electromagnetic spectrum. I was trying to combine science and art and existence. One thing I always liked was this idea of energy that is not contained by the edges of the canvas. It's like a close-up of a huge thing that wouldn't even be a structure of human size. It would be something imagined, some energy that took on solidity. The idea was always that they were to be extended in any direction, that the energy left the canvas, beyond the edges. The energy was always very exciting to me.

The pictures refer to energy and they were brought into being with a great amount of energy. The more waves, the longer it took to do them. I was awake almost all the time it took; the last one in the series took the longest—52 hours; the oscillations were high energy. It represents a kind of athletic dance I did in my studio. . . . It was a science idea transferred to an art idea. What interested me, still interests me, what turns me on, excites me the most: astronomy, physics, cosmology. I've always enjoyed math. I'm interested in reading all the science news. . . . The one that was always around was Scientific American.

The first time the paintings were exhibited was in a room at the Whitney [in 1970]. They were hung on black walls that represented space. (Space is black, light is white.) They were sort of inaccessible, they were high. You couldn't really get close to them, they were up in space. They were intended to transport the viewer to some fantasy, and you could see the texture. The texture was supposed to give some sort of light that was mysterious. . . . If you can imagine a very high ceilinged room and these paintings hung, not higher than a person's head, but higher than most art is exhibited. And that was a play on the word "high." I wanted the art to make people high. I wanted to give people a fantasy of being in space. That was the idea originally, to be like a science experience, from an artist's view.

It was almost inevitable that people wanted to touch the surface. Although it gave the impression of being thick, the paint surface was thin. The surfaces were very pliable. You could change the light just a little bit and they were different paintings.

Color! The colors I used came from the oil I used—it was a very unpopular paint. People never used it. It wasn't metallic paint, it didn't have metal flakes in it, but it was ferrous oxide, I think. If you can think of earth colors—something like that, metal colors. If you think of the elements, or the metallic elements, they don't really have real bright colors—some of the crystals do—the metals themselves are muted. The particular oil I used was called Toshiba, and they discontinued it eventually. . . . I liked it because it did have a certain heavy quality to it. But you knew it wasn't earth. To me Toshiba's ferrous oxide colors had a quality of science. Even though these colors were very muted (some artists said they were dull), when I would do one of the big waves they would become overwhelmingly color. Even in that muted form they were almost too much color. One of the last ones I painted, one of the high frequency short waves, did have a kind of violent, decadent color (that's a value word). You wouldn't say it was purple or violet, but it had just a suggestion of that high energy color. I usually didn't want the color to have a literal reference. But with that one I just couldn't resist. With the last one in the series, I didn't, couldn't, wouldn't use that oil paint on it.

David Novros

I wanted to make frescoes since I first went to Europe in '63. What made the strongest impact on me were Giotto's frescos in Padua. It wasn't simply a matter of standing in one place and looking at a picture passively. It involved you in a total physical act related to the spiritual needs of the building. That moved me very much. I had never seen paintings in an architectural context before. After that trip, I wanted to make a kind of painting that was architecturally related. Pretty much all my work in the '60s was made to respond to wall painting. But because of the problems of getting the pieces of real estate to make it on, I had to find other ways of approaching the question of wall painting for myself. So I made these objects which interacted with the wall in a certain way, and which were portable and could be reassembled under certain correct circumstances to fulfill the functions of wall painting. The first fresco I did was at Don Judd's loft in 1969.

One of the reasons I made big paintings in the '60s was because of their relationship to an architectural scale. Another reason was that there is a lot of peripheral activity inherent in large paintings, and that implies the kinesthetic motion which also implies the way human beings actually see things in the world. People don't really sit and stare at something except as an audience. Most of the time you are moving when you look at something.

Materials like mosaic, fresco and stained glass are all capable of expressing an interaction with light that seems to me to be truer to nature because of their responsiveness to shifts in light. In the '60s I painted paintings with murano pigments which changed colors as you moved along them. That changed your relationship to the light source. Now I am trying to make paintings which are responsive to the way in which the earth moves around the sun and shifts the light source.

I never came to painting from a formalist point of view. I never saw paintings as a series of problems to be solved, for example. For me the content of a painting always stems from some expressive need. . . . I've been interested in painting as a spiritual activity, as a moral activity. I can't think of anything less interesting for myself than Matisse's comparison of his painting to a good armchair in which to rest. . . . It's like the idea of discussing painting in terms of "objectness." To me it's a meaningless expression. Sure, painting is an object. It is what you see. But then what is that? That's what a Rembrandt is, an object; it is what you see. I think there is a lot of simplistic rhetoric around the issue of literalness.

The strongest contemporary influences on me have been the painters of the '50s, primarily Pollock, Rothko and Kline. I was influenced especially by their commitment to painting as a means of expressing some kind of hidden truth.

VOL
7
1
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

Jo Baer: Untitled (Horizontal Flanking Diptych), 1968–74, aluminum, oil on canvas, each panel 6 by 8 feet. John Weber Gallery.

Jo Baer
"I am no longer an abstract artist"

*In lieu of answering the interviewers' questions,
Jo Baer sent the following written text from London.*

Modern avant-garde art died in the seventh decade of the 20th century. What began a hundred years before in pats of paint ended in a clutter of performance, pronouncement, photos, memorabilia and smashed utopias. Ironically, it is commmonplace to describe this decade as "optimistic." A cold look at the high art of the '60s shows instead a deep-set pessimism out of which came works programmed in an intentional flight from history, ethos and significance. (At the time the high-flying appeared both brave and bold. At this time it seems merely naive.)

The major events of the '60s were televised elucidations which remain unforgettable—assassinations, race riots, police violations, and that indelible Vietnam from which the committed absurdity and atrocities reverberate still. Phenomena of less consequence were rock concerts, drugs, democratic idealisms, and an enormous single-age group who felt theirs would be the efflorescent domination of the future. The charge of "optimism" for the decade arises from this hide-thick glitterskin which coated the basic events, while beneath the sparkle, an undersurface generated and succored both Pop Art (that banal genre wherein Surrealism became Americanized) and Color Field painting, wherein large scale decorative stains carried the day. Skins and bone were in disjunction. So too the painters and radical sculptors.

The radical ambitions of the Minimalist sculptors, which arose from that understanding of the '50s which eventuated in the '60s and which their works anticipated, were formed and undertaken before 1963, when the long real nightmare began and everyone's fears began to come true. (Later, around '67–68, some of the seminal artists noted further writings on the wall and promoted their ideas into Concept Art. More of that later.) I am at pains to give this chronology because, while art surely begets art, and a reaction against the expressionistic painters was due, exactly which art would obtain was always another matter. That the Minimalists chose the pre-WWI extreme abstraction of Dutch/German/Russian movements, gives the efficacy of a parallel time when apprehensions of vast, irreversible events were foremost. Not surprisingly, they made changes: the modern sculptors reversed the European idealism into a materialism (a simple case of American metaphysics), and they also forced the former's mystical absolutes into a mathematical logistics. The result was utopian.

The painters strictly associated with the Minimalist movement were Stella, Mangold and myself. Jasper Johns should also be declared. Johns's targets, flags, bronzed beer cans and coat hanger drawings ('58–60) married subject to object in a model influencing, nolens volens, all who followed. The marked change from Stella's black paintings to the subsequent metallic ones is probably due to Johns's example. After the black paintings, Stella's work of '60–64 was unique (if unsung) in its influence. His purple, bronze and aluminum series were geometricized pictures of sculptures: he painted a gallery of "specific objects" showing others the way before he went on to more colorful fields. Like the object-makers who came after, Stella had almost no illusions, which is why these paintings are so impeccably correct and why they are so implacably boring. Unlike the Stellas, the Mangolds of around '66—the sectional, quartered, halved, pie-shaped ones—are painterly objects which, clearly paintings and clearly objects, remain among the best works of the period.

My paintings from '62–75 also engaged and occupied a strong position in the dialectic of object versus sleight-of-hand. In part my work was congruent with the sculptors', especially in their focus on objecthood, then a primary and timely concern. This act of looking long to the nature of the object and into its specific organization stood for a hard look at integrity and the motions of deceit—an inquiry which further projected a quasi-political, visionary stance. But paintings, while objects, are not sculptures: flat and round are different intentions, and painted space is definitive deception. There can be no mark within a painting's format which does not deceive. The sculptors preferred isometric drawings and fabrication by nonisometric, straightforward measure; instead, I painted my straight edges curved to make them look straight (entasis) preferring an open dialogue of illusion/physicality to simplistic, one-dimensional fiat. Even more disrupt, my use of color was disreputable, being neither grisaille, nor unaccompanied nor uniform. Choosing instead color worked in a context—with others or with black and white—I obtained duplicity through color's standard double-face. In these and other ways my differences with the sculptors were more than esthetic: to face illusion boldly is also an ideological act, for illusion necessarily exists in reality as much as in art. Programmatics aside, the real challenge in painting was to make poetic objects that would be discrete yet coherent, legible yet dense. Double-dealing, double-edged, the elegant course was through color. Mention of painters in this obituary would be gratuitous but for the differences between painting's use of illusion and the sculptors' innocent rejection of it. When in 1966 Judd attacked illusion in painting he neglected to explore or even question its presence in sculpture—their aim was an "objectivity" to be derived from the "making of non-illusionary specific objects" (via numerical concept and a mundane restraint against philosophy's "secondary properties"—i.e., they used prefabrications, metals, geometric forms, bricks, mirrors, lamps, car paints, uniform colors, etc.). Sculpture's basic, scandalous fiction went unregarded. All sculptures pretend to contain the real. From the living woman anciently trapped within the marble up through today's arrangements of discarded plastic bottles and other detritus, sculpture always solicits its importance with or through this illusion of reality. If we allow that any object can become sculpture, to ignore its reciprocal—that any sculpture must needs become an object vis-à-vis the historical deception inherent in the art—did not continue to serve the Minimalists. Twenty years on, to a new generation lacking the relevant media propaganda, these carefully engineered works have reverted to hollow boxes, playground equipment, end tables, lighting schemes and peculiar dance floors, while questions of set theory, prime number or serial proportions are replaced by wonder at their presence in museums.

A nonillusionistic art, where not impossible, is a nearly meaningless art. Rejecting metaphor, symbolism, and "hierarchical" relations leaves only an organizing principle plus combinative rules to work from. To put 64 bricks in a line on the floor or arrange four light tubes into a square is to attack significance and the world it inhabits. The shock effect of such reduced meaning, however, has a handsome pedigree. The prototype comes from Russian Futurist poets and continues, ad nauseum, through the French, so that by 1960, speaking, say, 64 sounds in a line was a cliché. The difference is one of violence: 64 bricks in a line is brutal, as brutal as the time bespoken. What appalls in the '60s was the pervasive feel of normality. The '60s attempt at "business as usual" subsumed conflicts and contradictions which deserved 64 bricks through a window, which in part it got. When, toward the end of the decade the Minimalist sculptors became coopted, their "reduced" works chic and fancy and bought for enormous sums, the tactics of confrontational avant-gardism were over. From this point on, to act as though innocent showdowns could be staged against the ideological weight of the market was tantamount to the belief that a fish can ride a bicycle.

The paroxysms of the avant-garde were not pretty. American Concept artists of the late '60s–70s made the ultimate reduction and dematerialized the object after the "brutality of the brick" was understood to have failed. In their freedom from forming, most unfortunately remained trite and true to the well-established manifestos: they posted 64 cards or telegraphed 64 ontological messages to prove a passage; one photographer arranged 4 sunbeams in a square. Many painters took to exquisite attenuations. Monochromaticists reappeared while Agnes Martin and Robert Ryman were ratified by LeWitt's evanescent wall drawings (ephemeral paintings of a sort). All these were tailings-off, decorative or clever increments of a further futility. Between the quick and the dead, Concept Art in its mechanical, unrepentant "distantiation" and in its wandering appetite for meaningful subject matter had buried abstract art and admitted high art figuration.

I am no longer an abstract artist. My description of abstraction's demise is more than a disputatious recounting, it is a conviction I have acted upon. I began painting figuratively in 1975 and since 1978 in a collaboration with an English artist, Bruce Robbins. We have been working to construct a radical figuration which differs considerably from other new figurations recently seen in the galleries and museums. These others have been quick into the breach, the Schnabels, Clementes, Baselitzs, et al., transacting the swing of history's pendulum—over-scaled, indulgent, loose, fast, gaudy and shallow, they are also traditionally baroque—"individualists who directly address the world painting melodramas or tragi-comedies with eclectic, episodic brio." The ready reaction of these artists to mannerist Minimalism is part-for-part, so that one doubts the ongoing validity or interest in such painting: symmetrical reversals go as far as their models and can never be radical.

To construct a radical figuration is to reject the preeminence of either image or space to correspond to the parity of subject and its locale. This proposition was touched on, picked up and dropped by the early Cubists. Today, (unseduced by modernism) it wants a nonillustrative approach that puts the emphasis on the glossary of structure rather than on trends towards fable, and a nonexpressionistic manner to avoid tantrums, pandering and the distractions of matériel. A radical figuration further requires a subject that is akin to myth but not the mythological. Myth is a form of discourse where the subject remains invisible. Where the subject is a retelling or illustration of a mythology, the unit of meaning is closed and therefore inconsistent to discourse. To enhance discourse is to paint and draw in fragment, which is an open adventure; it is having paintings talk (as opposed to talking about parts of others' paintings). The topology is not complete until the contours and coastlines are arranged upon a coherent surface enforcing a cleaving together of those chosen fragments, split from former contexts and deformed into a new unity of meaning.

Twenty years have seen some changes.

Interviewers: Maurice Poirier is professor of fine arts at Kingsborough College, CUNY; Jane Necol is a free-lance curator and was co-organizer (with Donald Droll) of the exhibition, "Abstract Painting: 1960–69."

VOL
7
1
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

Monsieur Cactus (Cactus Man I), 1939, iron, 26¼ by 9⅞ by 5⅛ inches. Collection Carmen Martinez and Viviane Grimminger, Paris.

The Modest Greatness of Julio Gonzalez

In a career that began after he was 50 and lasted a brief 12 years, Gonzalez created a body of inventive and influential forged iron sculpture that earned him a niche in the modernist pantheon. A recent retrospective prompted this examination of the strengths and limits of his work.

BY SIDNEY TILLIM

Is it possible for a less than overpowering sculptor to be a major influence, to be, in some respects, seminal? It is a difficult question to phrase and it certainly sounds pejorative when, in fact, I don't mean it pejoratively at all. Still, I can't deny that I was let down at first—and surprised to be—by the retrospective of the sculpture, drawings and jewelry of Julio Gonzalez at the Guggenheim Museum. In a way Gonzalez's achievement is more defined than his sculpture and it was only after a second visit and sustained scrutiny that I was able to bring both into some kind of focus. Gonzalez was, in his way, a profound sculptor, at least as far as forging iron as no other had, but his vision was less inspired than his craft. Gonzalez had, actually, more depth than range. The brevity of his career and its late start might in part account for this disparity but the absence of the particular kind of energy peculiar to large talents within a corpus of work that is so consistently high in quality is evidence of a limit that is easier to sense than to perceive—or describe.

It is on record, of course, that Gonzalez, starting quite late—past 50—and working, first collaboratively with Picasso in the 1920s and then on his own, formalized a sculptural syntax that was to become the basis of major sculpture for more than the next 50 years, nor is that tradition by any means exhausted. Sculptors as conceptually disparate as Michael Steiner and Richard Serra are equally indebted to him. It is probable, in any event, that by the mid-1930s, when Gonzalez was in the full stride of his abbreviated career, the fruitful part covering about 12 years, that his sculpture along with, say, Mondrian's and Miró's paintings, was more advanced than the rest of modernist art, Brancusi, Moore and Giacometti notwithstanding. Russian Constructivism and its affiliates, much admired now, failed to acquire the plastic resonance of most sculpture that, like Constructivism itself, had passed through the alembic of both Cubism and the collage. Much restricted in its planarity, it petered out while the whole "open form" scenario unfolded as the mainstream of modernist sculpture until the 1960s. Its revival in such exhibitions as "The Planar Dimension" at the Guggenheim in 1979 and a number of exhibitions about Russian modernism, such as the "Paris-Moscow" exhibition at the Beaubourg, add to the history of modernist sculpture rather than alter or revise it.

The demand for an alternative to Cubism as a historical reckoning point for new tendencies in sculpture, especially Minimalism, and the blurring of distinctions between painting and sculpture, commenced in the '60s when by an extraordinary concatenation of cultural and artistic pressures the problems of painting and sculpture merged. For a while it was even thought that painting had become submerged: now it is felt, though not unanimously, that the opposite is true. Actually nothing changed because ideology is not history. Retrospectively, though, Minimalism might be seen as an effort to extricate sculpture from the dominance of the pictorial.

Yet the emphasis on materials, on the literal, on sites and non-sites, and the effort, generally, to apply technology to an expression of what in essence was the Sublime, is rooted in the process we call "painterly." Just as science can be considered a formalism when it reduces the cosmos to matter and energy, the painterly can be said to contain the cosmos (and therefore the cosmic) because, on the level of process, it too deals in primal matter and energy. Art and science, in this reductive sense, are mutually reinforcing. The temptation of the Sublime and the Theatrical is always latent in the painterly. The painterly entails a Romanticism that mistakes the infinite (the painterly as the cosmic) for the heroic. Romanticism has its sentimental side. What Michael Fried referred to pejoratively as "objecthood" actually embodied a poignant longing for the infinite, clearly implicit in Robert Smithson's otherwise simplistic notion of entropy. So, after the sculpture, or what claimed to be (or even not to be) sculpture of the '60s and '70s, from Smith and Caro, from Ferber and Nakian and di Suvero to Judd, Smithson, Andre, Serra et al.—that is, from an essentially idealistic canon of forms to modes of fabrication and location that "deconstructed" the determinate and essentially figural volumes or masses (even of air) of modernist sculpture—a sculptor like

VOL 7 1 ISS 9 OC 1983 UMI

Gonzalez can appear at first a bit tame. The convulsions in sculpture over the past 20 years hardly prepare one for what might now be termed his miniature greatness.

Head Called "The Large Trumpet," ca. 1932-33, iron, 38 ⅝ inches high. Collection Dr. W.A. Bechtler, Zollikon.

Gonzalez was certainly very reserved as an artistic personality. Though he was a forger of iron and as such a kind of archetypal "maker," he hammered the parts he made by hand into abstract effigies that signified figures after a fashion, but that mainly demonstrated the subjugation of the image by process and then the subjugation, one might even say domestication (especially since Gonzalez was very family oriented), of process itself by an imagination rooted in familial and cultural pieties. His attachment to Picasso was a form of bonding through which Picasso's influence was also the source of Gonzalez's independence. Gonzalez's work is unmistakably based on Picasso's (not to mention the Surrealist connection generally) but is just as unmistakably Gonzalez's own in its persistent attention to detail and finish. For in spite of the conceptual Cubist-cum-Surrealist armature, the embellishment of all but a few of Gonzalez's major pieces is often of an ornateness, even finickiness that is, at times, almost distractively "expressive." In his well-known pair of "cactus" figures, now correctly retitled by curator Margit Rowell as Monsieur Cactus and Madame Cactus, the prickly points combine with elaborate cutting and notching in an effect that is more cluttered than one would expect, given the degree of abstraction likewise present. On the other hand, in earlier pieces, such as a series of "masks" (e.g., The Poet, 1929), an absence of embellishment dilutes the planar format to just shallow relief which attempts to suggest a profile and frontality at the same time. There are a number of drawings that show how Gonzalez abstracted "synthetic" shapes from faces according to a stylized and flattened-out chiaroscuro. Certain "closed form" pieces approach an Art Deco look and also implicate another of Gonzalez's sources, Brancusi, whose vaunted purity was often no more than intense stylization. By contrast, The Swiss Woman, ca. 1934, is a wondrously subtle orchestration of planes and rods that, dominating the facial profile, evokes the mass of the head with none of the constricting planarity that befell much Constructivist art. It presages the lyrical distribution of counterposed elements of the best Caros of the '60s.

As for cultural pieties, these derive from both his family's trade in decorative metal work and jewelry, and from his own respect for craft and tradition. Most of Gonzalez's jewelry is not very distinctive unless it becomes both symbolic and abstract, suggesting primitive sculpture. Indeed it was probably through exposure to the latter that Gonzalez transcended the traditionalism which is particularly noticeable in his painting. Gonzalez originally intended to be a painter, but whatever disrupted his career, it was his connection with Picasso as both assistant and tutor (he taught Picasso enough about ironwork for Picasso to make at least one work all by himself) that reawakened the artist in him. Picasso was his "pony" rather than his master, and the frankness with which he developed Picasso's ideas evolves into the paradoxical integrity of a temperament in which self-effacement is as powerful as the urge to "make."

Gonzalez's sculpture is ultimately sensuous despite a syntax that recycled the caricatural element implicit in Cubist drawing where the rearrangement of natural facts produced visual and psychological surprise—humor once more dislocating aggression. Gonzalez's permanent contribution to modernism is his mode of improvisation through which he displaced depiction with analogy. Combined with the sen-suousness of his means, this displacement enabled Gonzalez to make a borrowed set of ideas his own. Picasso apparently did not recognize the plastic potential of forged iron even after using what Gonzalez taught him to produce Woman In The Garden, ca. 1929–30, from which Gonzalez in turn learned so much. Picasso's abandonment of constructed sculpture for the modeled kind corresponded to his earlier retreat from Synthetic Cubism to a period of more or less "classical" rendering; in short, Picasso entered a largely regressive phase just as Gonzalez began to produce his most significant and personal work. Or did Picasso unconsciously reject a direction that augured competition with Gonzalez whom he was then free to magnanimously encourage?

Head Called "The Swiss Woman," ca. 1934, iron, 15 by 8 ¼ by 7 ½ inches. Kunsthalle Bielefeld.

As Gonzalez's work flourished through the '30s, three more or less distinct modes emerged: the planar mode of the small heads of the early '30s in which Cubist design is most pronounced; the subsequent linear, upright mode, perhaps his most influential manner, of which Woman With a Mirror, ca. 1937, is most representative; and a bulkier mode which Rowell attributes to the passing influence of some painting of schematized rocks by the Italian painter Magnelli. There were a few realistic pieces, especially Montserrat, 1936–37, hammered out of sheet iron, which depicts a peasant woman and her child. This piece was politicized by its exhibition along with Picasso's Guernica and Miró's The Reapers in the Spanish Republican pavilion at an international exposition in Paris in 1937. But this infusion of political sentiment is external to a work that is basically general in form and sentiment. One need only compare it with the "abstract" Seated Woman I, ca. 1935, to see how necessary the metaphorical weight of the abstract was to the "representation" of a figure, a convincing modern figure, at that time and possibly still today.

Gonzalez formalized a sculptural syntax that was to become the basis of major sculpture for the next half century, a tradition by no means exhausted.

The planar sculptures commence directly after Gonzalez concluded his work with and for Picasso. Rowell exhibited three of the earliest in "The Planar Dimension" exhibition, which she also curated and in which she proposed a reading of Analytical Cubism that stressed its materiality rather than its formalism. She thus conferred upon Russian and Polish Constructivism, to which much of the exhibition was devoted, a degree of stylistic autonomy and innovation that formalist art history and criticism had denied it. Oddly, the frontispiece to the catalogue was of a 1976 piece by Anthony Caro, the most prominent current descendant of Picasso and Gonzalez (and Smith) but who was not represented in the exhibition. If the Caro piece qualifies much of Rowell's argument, it is because its ideas are sublimated in its mode of fabrication rather than its sheer materiality. It exposes the contingencies of its making rather than any regimentation of its parts. All of Gonzalez's pieces, on the other hand, remind one of the human and the mortal precisely because their sureness of touch is conditioned by and wrested from those very contingencies. Like the best modernist art, they arouse feeling because they risk the arbitrary, which they do not always transcend. They are contained, but they are not benign. It is curious to realize that it is just this quality that makes them seem a bit old-fashioned today.

VOL
71
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

Seated Woman I, ca. 1935, iron, 46 ½ by 21 ¼ by 14 ¼ inches. Collection Carmen Martinez and Viviane Grimminger, Paris.

Woman Combing Her Hair, ca. 1931, iron, 67 by 21 ¾ by 7 ⅞ inches. Centre Pompidou, Paris.

VOL
71
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

Head in Depth, 1930, iron,
10 ¼ by 8 by 6 ⅜ inches.
Collection Hans Hartung, Antibes.

> The embellishment of all but a few of Gonzalez's major pieces is of an ornateness, even a finickiness, that is at times almost distractingly "expressive."

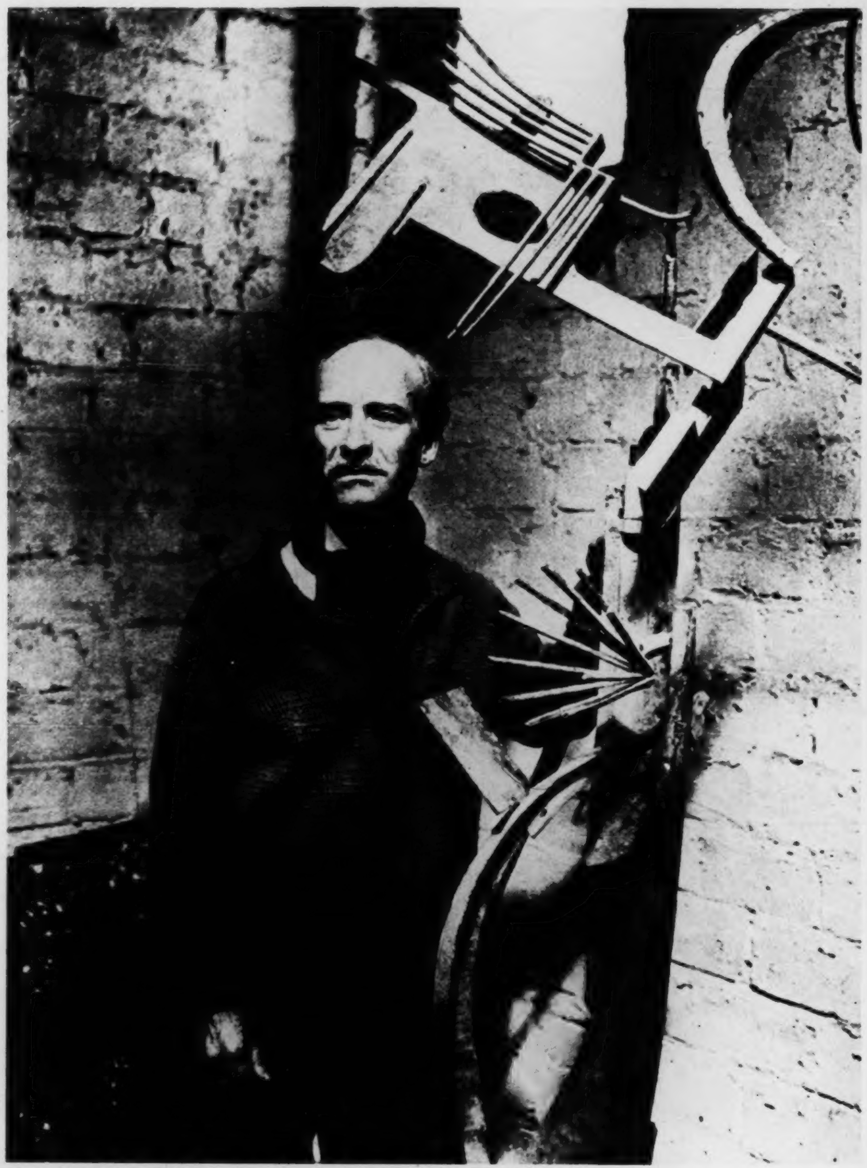
It was in the linear and upright mode (which was to become totemic in David Smith's version) that Gonzalez created his largest but not necessarily his best or most important works. Woman Combing Her Hair, ca. 1931, is almost six feet high but has trouble making it, standing gingerly on rods spliced together and sprouting planes that have an indeterminate look compared to The Large Trumpet, a "head," ca. 1932–33, which stands almost 39 inches high or The Tunnel, ca. 1934, 18⅜ inches high—both of which epitomize the compactness of planes and cones and other contrapuntal attachments of Gonzalez's best small pieces. Like Brancusi, Gonzalez was also attempting to absorb the pedestal into the sculpture proper. Indeed, the compactness of the small pieces is partly the result of their successful integration of the pedestal with the sculpture. On the other hand, a large piece such as the climactic and elaborate Woman With a Mirror, ca. 1937, which stands some 80 inches high, is as close as Gonzalez ever came to sheer bravura; it combines the gestural breadth of the "torso" with distinctive, almost idiosyncratic detailing, all of which rests on appendages that travesty contrapposto, just as Mae West did. We forget, or we no longer recognize, how much the urgency of modernism was relieved by wit that restored dignity rather than diminished it.



Gonzalez in his studio in Arcueil, ca. 1937, with Woman with a Mirror.

If our image of Gonzalez requires some adjustment it is largely because of the adulation he received from every major sculptor since David Smith and because the magnitude of Smith's own achievement in turn required antecedents to render it historically great. But as I implied earlier, it is also an achievement like Smith's that makes Gonzalez's sculpture seem to occupy parameters too modest for it to retain, upon the examination made possible by another of Margit Rowell's exemplary exhibitions, all the "high" accreditation it has accumulated. Needless to say, as far as his real quality goes, this hardly matters. If Smith takes one's breath away, Gonzalez invites a contemplation that throws more than just art into perspective for a moment. □

Author: Sidney Tillim is an artist and critic living in Manhattan.

David Smith: Heroic or Protean?

While an ambitious National Gallery retrospective emphasized the serial and formalist nature of his sculpture, a Hirshhorn show revealed Smith's omnivorous creative energies in a different light.

BY ROBERT STORR

> Does the onlooker realize the amount of affection which goes into a work of art—intense affection—belligerent vitality—total conviction . . .? Does the critic, the audience, the philosopher even possess the intensity of affection for the work which its creator possessed . . .? Or do they deal in the quality at all?
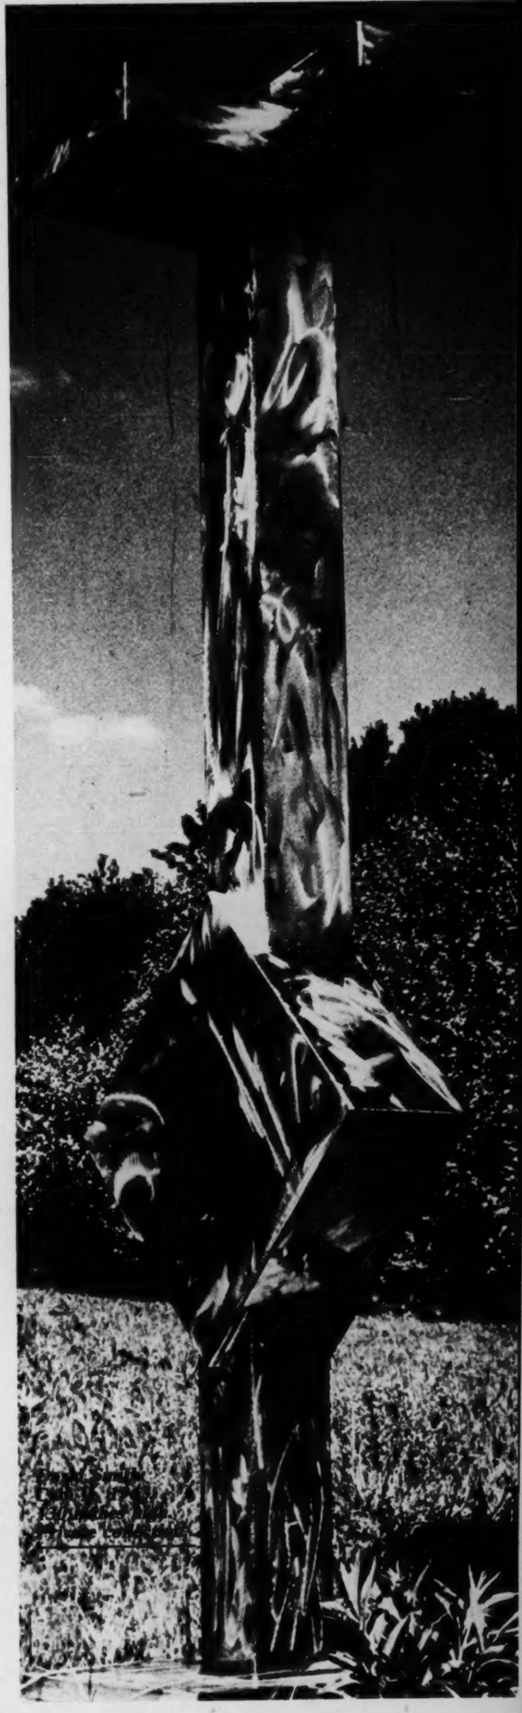
>
> —David Smith, 1952

Preserving, documenting and measuring the achievement of David Smith continues to be one of the most heavily contested tasks of contemporary art scholarship, but it is a struggle carried on for reasons and according to rules that the artist himself vigorously disputed. Indeed, Smith's writings and recorded remarks are replete with warnings against attempts to define causality in the creative process, and they are studded with attacks on art-overseers of all kinds. To be sure, Smith's persistent antagonism toward the art establishment, a hierarchy upon which he too would ultimately depend for recognition, was the result of many separate provocations, as well as a reflection of his own ambition and of his mixed emotions regarding communities of any sort. However, one cannot escape Smith's apparently blanket indictment of art writers, scholars and museum professionals simply by jumping to the conclusion that his anger was a mere projection of his private frustrations or a reaction to the critical offenses of a particularly conservative period. Nor can one write off his polemics as mere anti-intellectual railing, any more than one would the pronouncements of Barnett Newman or the sharp teasing of Ad Reinhardt.

Regardless of circumstantial factors and despite his apparent intemperance, Smith's challenge stands, and it should be sufficient to make any conscientious critic or curator pause, for inasmuch as Smith's first impulse may have been to defend his social position as an artist and his freedom in the studio, his lasting purpose was to protect the work itself from the chilling attentions of rational explainers, friend and foe. His fear that even the most complex and defiantly visual works of art could be translated into words and used as counters in esthetic contests was anything but naive, and two exhibitions devoted to Smith last season clearly reveal the nearly anarchic vitality of his work on the one hand, and, on the other, its curious vulnerability to academic manipulation and physical containment.

Of these two exhibitions, the one organized for the National Gallery by E. A. Carmean was by far the most ambitious, and it is perhaps that very ambitiousness that betrayed it. Carmean's aim seems to have been twofold; first, to gather a "blockbuster" collection of Smith's major sculptures, and second, to explore his working process so as to explain the genesis of individual works and the overall dynamics of his creative practice. These goals were the ostensible reasons behind the decision to concentrate entirely on Smith's



VOL
7
1
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

Installation view at the National Gallery: Volton XX (foreground), Voltri VII (center) and left to right Volton XV, Voltri-Bolton IX, Voltri-Bolton V, Voltri-Bolton I, VB XXIII, Volton XVIII.

sculptural series, which began with the "Agricolas" in the early 1950s. Of these many series Carmean chose seven to represent Smith's "mature" development, and he managed to obtain an impressive sampling from each, including seven "Agricolas"; six "Sentinels"; six "Zigs" plus one untitled work which he suggests may belong with them; all five "Circles" plus Bec-Dida-Day; 11 "Voltri-Boltons," "Voltons," "Voltrons" and "VBs" (which he treats as a single group); three "Wagons" plus four pieces he argues are related to them; and no less than 17 of the 28 "Cubis." Despite, as we shall see, notable omissions, this huge family reunion remains a major curatorial accomplishment, affording a rare chance to see work long dispersed.

The exhibition was accompanied by an equally imposing catalogue containing a short biography of the artist, a detailed description of his studio procedures, a valuable compilation of photographs showing works in progress and the original installation of finished sculptures, and finally a suite of extended essays on each of the series in the exhibition plus tangentially connected works. In all, it was the most massive and complicated presentation of Smith's work in over ten years, but as industrious as Carmean was, the combined result of his efforts not only seriously distorted the historical record of Smith's career but also violated the spirit of the work while attempting to explicate it.

To begin with, Carmean's premise that one can grasp the essence of Smith's genius and understand his evolution by examining the series work in isolation from the rest of the artist's output is extremely debatable; moreover, that premise is directly undercut by omissions Carmean chose to make even within its questionable terms. Allowing for the difficulty of securing individual loans—Zig IV, for example, was in the concurrent Smith exhibition at the Hirshhorn—how is one to consider the questions Carmean has raised, given the absence of all the small-scale series except the "Agricolas," and, among the larger works, all of the "Forgings," all of the "Primo Pianos," all but one of the "Voltris" and, most incredibly, all of the "Tanktotems," which are arguably Smith's most radical creations in that they are the most economical synthesis of his abstract and figurative concerns? Still worse, these omissions are never explained, and one cannot escape the sense that what has been offered is a splendid but arbitrary selection of related masterpieces, and a correspondingly disjointed image of just what Carmean has set out to clarify: the generative effect of series work on Smith's formal invention.

Meanwhile, though the catalogue does fill some of the exhibition's gaps with illustrations, it does not get us much closer to an understanding of the fundamental problem Carmean poses. In fairness, this is not entirely Carmean's fault. Smith's notion of what constituted a series was anything but systematic—he would group work variously according to materials, forms, or even the place it was made, as was the case with the "Voltris." In fact one often wonders if Smith's real reason for compartmentalizing his work was more to measure productivity and so impose general order on an unchecked flood of objects than it was to suggest to others how those works should be interpreted. Carmean acknowledges all these possibilities while insisting nonetheless that the series require independent study. Having claimed that project for himself, however, he does little more than describe the work in the groupings named by Smith—his own alterations and additions to Smith's categories do not amount to a formal reinterpretation of any great importance—while commenting on or arguing with other historians and critics.

In particular he is intent on rescuing Smith from the theoretical embrace of Rosalind Krauss. Her arguments regarding the substance and originality of Smith's achievement rest on two fundamental claims. First, she insists that his art is in essence figurative and that that figuration, far from simply serving as a jumping off point for abstract invention, has specific psychological content. Second, she sees Smith's formal contribution less as an elaboration of existing modernist conventions than as a radical break with the tradition of monumental sculpture, in which all planes must revolve around a dominant "spine" or describe a coherent core; this unstated prescription was never fully addressed or altered by Picasso, Gonzalez or indeed any of Smith's predecessors. Krauss brings these two observations into her central discussion of the totem as the key image in Smith's work. In primitive societies, a totem is a figurative surrogate for spiritual aspirations or properties—an object that both invites and defies actual possession. According to Krauss's theory, Smith's ambition was to create sculptures which were similarly invested with emotional or philosophical content, but which, by the nature of their formal articulation, could be grasped only by the mind—sculptures constructed of pictorial surfaces and linear elements which systematically explode or warp one's sense of a coherent three-dimensional whole.

Installation view of David Smith sculpture in the National Gallery's East Wing with "Sentinels" on the lower level and "Cubis" and Bec-Dida Day (1963) above.

VOL 7 1 ISS 9 OC 1983 UMI

Installation view of, left to right, Circle V, Circle III, Circle II, and Circle I, all 1962–63.

Clearly Carmean is uncomfortable with Krauss's dialectical abbreviations, but he fails to make a straightforward critique of them, failing equally to subsume them into a clear but more ample framework. Moreover, by excluding the "Tanktotem" series from the exhibition, he tampers with a primary piece of the evidence she uses to reach her conclusion; he then goes on to deal with other aspects of her interpretation by smothering them in exceptions and detail. It must be admitted that some of that detail is interesting and important—Carmean does seem to appreciate how physical means such as welding techniques can affect an artist's freedom of action—but he too often confuses shop procedure with sculptural substance. More disturbingly, his only strategy for enlarging Krauss's short-list of Smith's themes is to "trace" and reproduce a broad range of examples of work the artist "must have known" and thus have been inspired by.

Despite the anarchic vitality of Smith's work, it has been oddly vulnerable to critical manipulation.

Some of these influences are obvious—Picasso, Léger and Gonzalez—but Carmean rather mystifyingly persists, from case to case, in trying to prove that a particular work by a mentor was the model for a given piece by Smith. Other "influences" are preposterously farfetched, such as the link he tries to establish between Agricola I and the Mercury of Adriaen de Vries, or the connection among 2 Circles IV, 2 Circles 2 Crows and a duck-hunting painting by Winslow Homer. In all cases, however, Carmean's method of argument consistently emphasizes Smith's derivations at the expense of any more integrated understanding of his creativity. Carmean proposes to liberate Smith from the shackles of a modified formalism by resorting to an amorphously historical view, substituting description for analysis. Whatever the liberties taken by Krauss, at least she offers a sharp tool one can use, and when it is no longer helpful, put aside. Carmean's academic alternative invites one to join a tedious debate about sources and exact criteria for compartmentalizing Smith's work, while it distracts one from a direct experience of the art itself.

Such an appreciation of Smith's sculpture was further thwarted by the exhibition's disastrous installation, for which Carmean was not primarily responsible. Throughout his life Smith was as wary of architects as he was of the critical establishment, and his complaint was a substantive one, based on questions of formal priority. As he saw it, sculpture had been held captive by architecture from the time of the great cathedrals to that of the WPA monoliths, and he was determined to free it from its subsidiary decorative function by taking it out of the shadow of other man-made forms.

Unfortunately, I. M. Pei's addition to the National Gallery—a spectacular cross between corporate Piranesi and the cold grandeur of a (Robert) Smithsonian institution—is almost perfectly designed to destroy the spatial integrity of Smith's work. It is ironic, furthermore, that Pei's collaborators include respectively Smith's greatest nemesis, his best-known peer and his closest disciple: an immense Moore stands guard at the entrance; an equally mammoth Calder hovers over the central court like a floating vault; and an outsized Caro appears to slip from its niche, as if uncertain whether to join Smith's freestanding forms or keep its assigned place.

In all, these adornments and the busy vastness of the building itself assaulted Smith's work from almost every angle. Carmean's decision to put two of the "gate Cubis" in a stairwell and the "Agricolas" against the cluttered panorama of the atrium made matters only a bit worse than they would otherwise have been.

Only in the room specifically designed to house the permanent Smith collection was one able to get an accurate sense of the scale of the work, and only in the catalogue photographs of the fields around Bolton Landing could one see how these genuinely heroic sculptures were meant to mediate physically and visually between man and nature. While an open sky emphasizes that relationship, the pretentious enormousness of the East Wing simply dwarfed the sculptures, and the poetic tension between their aggressive size, color and gesture on the one hand and their near immateriality on the other dissolved into potted trees, marble walls and shifting levels.

The second major exhibition devoted to Smith this season, mounted by the Hirshhorn Museum and later seen at the San Antonio Museum of Art, was, happily, an antidote to Carmean's narrow vision. Organized by Edward F. Fry and Miranda McClintic, the show was a straightforward survey of Smith's work, heavily weighted toward archival material and experimental or transitional pieces, including notes, sketchbooks, early reliefs and paintings, a large selection of drawings and Smith's late "spray" stencils.[1] This is not to say that the contents of the Hirshhorn show were merely the leftovers from the National Gallery's presentation; the heart of the show was a substantial group of sculptures from all periods of Smith's life, among them Helmholtzian Landscape, Home of the Welder, Star Cage, Australia, Tanktotem IV, Becca, Volton IV, Cubi XII, and, as mentioned 7 Hours, 1961, steel painted black, gray, yellow and blue-black, 84 ½ by 48 ⅛ by 18 inches. Folkwang Museum, Essen, on loan from the collection of Reinhard Onnasch, Berlin.

VOL 71 ISS 9 OC 1983 UMI

Helmholtzian Landscape, 1946, steel painted blue, red, yellow, green, on wooden base, 15 7/8 by 17 5/8 by 7 1/8 inches. Collection Mr. and Mrs. David Lloyd Kreeger, Washington, D.C.

before, Zig IV. But what distinguished the two exhibitions was not so much the particular objects chosen for each as it was the different curatorial strategies employed.

By accepting the more conservative and less tendentious practice of surrounding masterpieces with smaller works and examples in other mediums, Fry and McClintic made obvious to the eye the very points regarding Smith's range of influences and procedures that Carmean so belabored in words. In the Hirshhorn show the sprayed drawings and painted cardboard studies which accompany Smith's sculptures could readily be seen both as stages of an organic working process and as works of art in their own right, informed by the same intensity as the larger sculptures. Similarly, Smith's obvious compulsion to absorb and transform outside ideas ceased to be a matter for art-historical hermeneutics and instead became recognizable for what it was: the very stuff of the artistic process.

The Hirshhorn show offered a privileged view of an omnivorous sensibility coming to recognize its own identity by simply consuming everything available to it. Indeed, what most sets Smith apart from other artists of his generation, Pollock excepted, is that he seems to have understood from the outset that mastery is not attained by refining the ideas one naturally inherits, but by dominating them. Thus, while Gorky, for example, apprenticed himself both to the manner and the myth of Picasso, Smith, though certainly adopting specific stylistic devices, also took on the full burden of a Picasso-like ambition and eclecticism, all the while refusing any deference to the man himself or the legend of his genius.

Tanktotem IV, 1953, steel, 92 ½ by 33 ½ by 29 inches. Albright-Knox Art Gallery.

Auburn Queen, 1959, bronze, 86 ¼ inches high. Hirshhorn Museum.

Repeatedly in the Hirshhorn exhibition one could see how Smith would seize upon a form and grapple with it physically until by cross-breeding, simplification, enlargement, or just sheer force of energy he was able to make it thoroughly his own. Thus claimed and altered, images and materials might be set aside for years, finally to become reference points for new projects. To this extent Smith fed as much or more off his own work as he fed off the work of others.

A small sculpture added to the San Antonio version of the show makes this internal dynamic clear. Aptly titled, Aggressive Character (ca. 1947) is constructed of roughly welded stainless-steel boxes from which protrude various spines and Star Cage, 1950, various metals painted dark blue, 44 7/8 by 51 1/4 by 25 3/4 inches. University Gallery, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis.

VOL 71 ISS 9 OC 1983 UMI

Aggressive Character, 1947, steel and iron, 32 1/2 inches high. Collection R. and C. Smith.

hornlike shapes. That it is derived from Gonzalez's Cactus Man is probable but scarcely the point; on its own, it perfectly reflects the confrontation between Smith's own angry Surrealism and his abstract concerns, even as, stripped of its spikes, it strikingly prefigures the structure of the "Cubis" by well over a decade.

To be sure, not all the minor works in the exhibition are so rich, but even the least resolved and most imitative of them—such as his abstracted genre scenes, the Marinesque paintings and the Hans Erni–like ceramics—are imbued with an honest vitality that transcends their sometimes art-fair look. Indeed, taken together they further document that passionate empiricism with which Smith would assimilate or exhaust his attraction to any idea that made a strong impression on him.

The Smith portrayed by the National Gallery exhibition is a reflection of the needs and tastes of '60s and '60s-influenced "mainstream" criticism; it is Smith seen as a rugged American classicist whose mature development parallels that of Abstract-Expressionist painting and whose later work seems to fit Greenbergian categories while anticipating Minimalism.[2] This view, of course, is part of the truth, but it is also an image of the artist which, though glorifying his struggle, ignores and even indirectly condescends to Smith's uncomfortable obsessions, consequently overlooking essential but inconvenient segments of his work: the explicit sexual fantasies and contorted miniatures of the '30s and '40s, the politically tough "Medals for Dishonor," and the proudly untidy drawings he produced by the ream throughout his life. The warts-and-all-inclusiveness of the Hirshhorn show restores and defends the messy integrity of Smith's achievement, and for that one is grateful.

Moreover, the offering at the Hirshhorn indirectly raised a number of provocative questions concerning the relationship between Smith's work and Untitled (relief construction with two circles), ca. 1954, metal, bone, oil, wood, cloth on wood, 25 ¾ by 33 ½ inches.

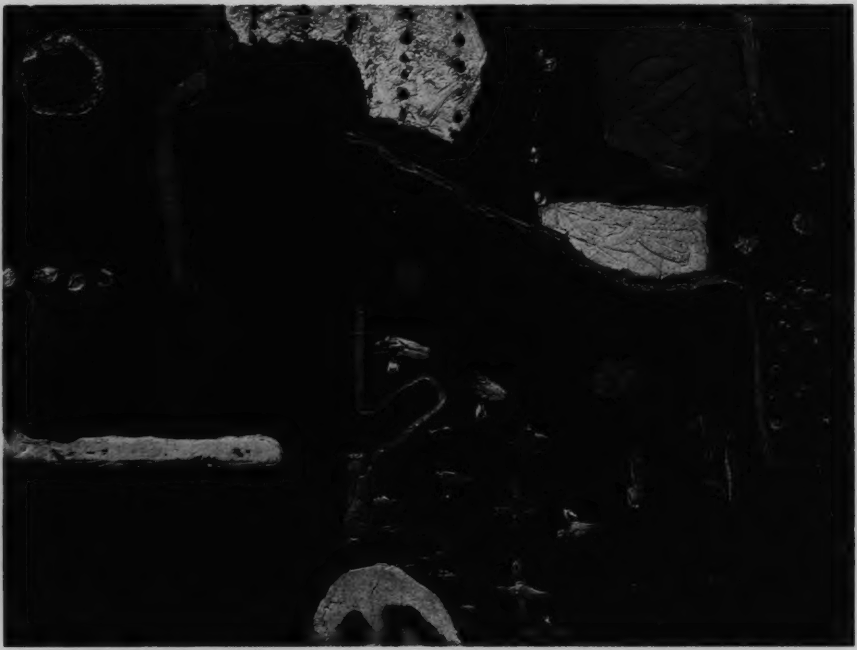
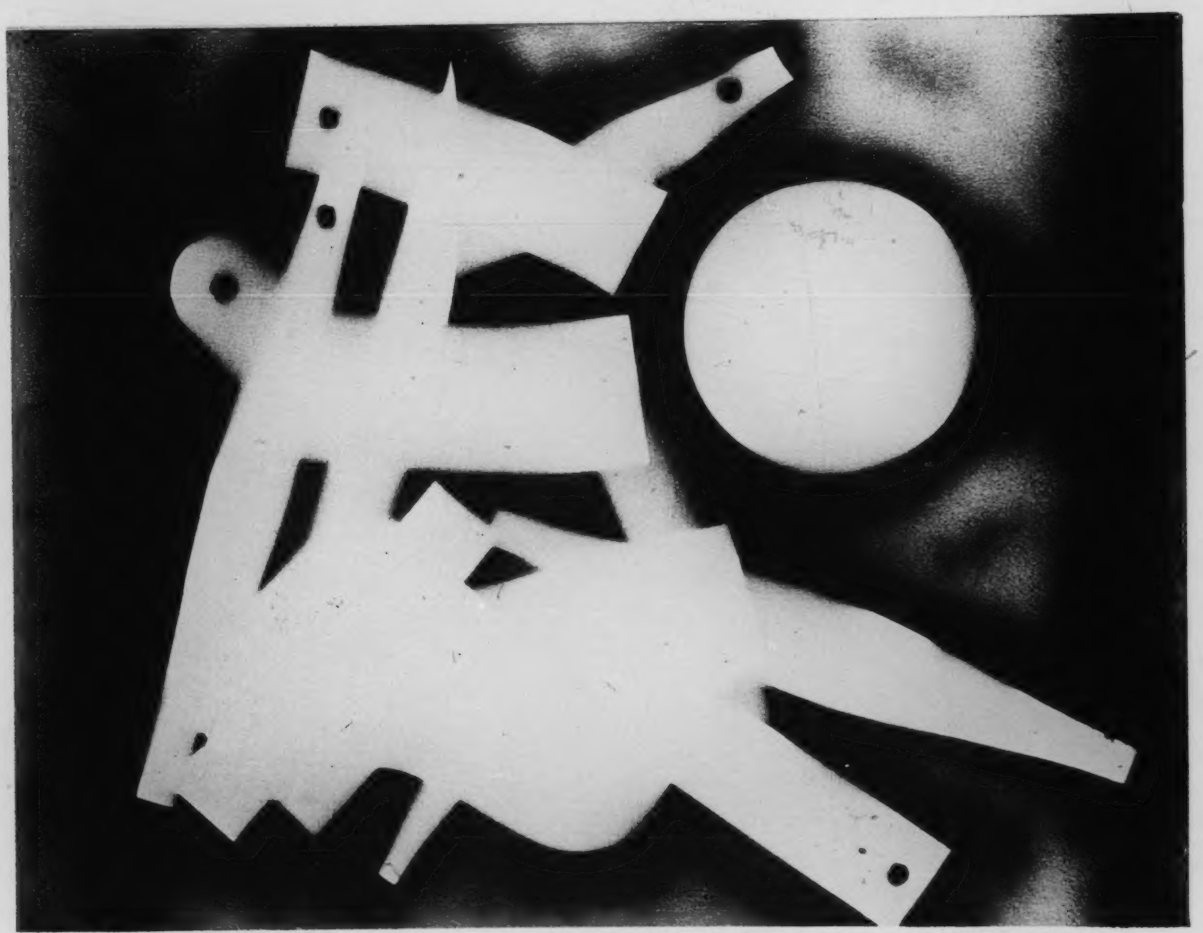
Untitled (study), 1959, spray paint, gouache, ink on paper, 17 ¾ by 11 ⅜ inches.



Untitled (patchwork landscape), ca. 1930, oil on canvas, 12 by 16 inches. All works this page estate of David Smith.

VOL
71
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI



Untitled (overlapping planes), ca. 1963, spray paint on canvas, 24 ½ by 30 ½ inches. Collection Mr. and Mrs. K. Kaiserman.

many current styles. On the most superficial level, it was interesting to note the similarity between Smith's soupbone–and–enamel reliefs of the mid-'50s and Julian Schnabel's well-known encrustations of the last few years. No less striking is the correspondence between the extraordinary painted-iron Smith of 1937 owned by Frank Stella and Stella's own rough-cut polychrome constructions. (Tiny as the Smith is, by the way, the recent Stellas do not benefit by the comparison.) Of more fundamental importance is the way the recurring awkwardness and excesses of Smith's experiments call into question the funkiness and fury of today's various neo-styles, as well as the degree of risk they involve. As Fry points out in his catalogue essay, Smith, like Pollock, was a provincial who unhesitatingly embraced modernism and whose discipline and lack of self-consciousness enabled him to extend its already solidifying traditions. The violence and unapologetic vulgarity of much of his work was both a conscious affront to academic good taste and a natural consequence of his energy and concentration. This vehemence was also the means by which Smith protected the most fragile and uncalculating elements of his sensibility; indeed it was by virtue of that vehemence that he was able to bring fragility and innocence—what he called "affection"—into his work at all.

Smith's art, by its example, challenges the aggressiveness and crude eclecticism of much contemporary work, throwing into substantial doubt the degree to which these qualities are the attributes of a wide-open and authentic ambition to breathe new life into the essential contradictions of modernism, as they were in Smith's case. After experiencing the depth and complexity of Smith's artistic appetites, it is hard not to wonder whether the slapdash eclecticism of much recent art is not simply the theatrical version of '60s cool and '70s theoretical correctness—whether it's not simply, in other words, the currently agreed-upon defense against genuine self-exposure and artistic risk. It is too soon to answer this question, but not too soon to ask it.

In 1952 Smith wrote: "Aesthetic qualities of the artist's work are in a sense a projection into the future, compared to verbal aesthetics which are based in the past."[3] The real struggle over Smith's legacy, finally, is not so much between different schools of thought regarding specific formal or thematic issues as it is between those who in order to "understand" Smith consign him to the past, and those who are content to let the work represent itself, reacting as it will with new art of comparable conviction. Whatever the merits of Carmean's arguments, he belongs with the first camp, while Fry and McClintic, by exploring the full range of Smith's accomplishment, have sided with the second. □

1. There have been some complaints that the Hirshhorn exhibition—infelicitously consigned to the building's cramped basement gallery—was severely congested and distracting in its installation, but this writer saw the San Antonio version only, and what might have struck people as cluttered seemed there simply a consequence of the variety of material chosen.

Zig VII, 1963, painted steel, 94 by 106 by 85 inches. Collection Candida and Rebecca Smith. Photo Dan Budnik/Woodfin Camp and Associates.

2. With regard to the connection between Smith and Abstract-Expressionist painting, Carmean's catalogue draws attention to the relation between Smith and Robert Motherwell, particularly as evidenced in the apparent link between Motherwell's "Spanish Elegies" and Smith's Gondola of 1961. Moreover, Carmean quotes Motherwell at length about the meaning of collage and its use by his contemporaries, even including in the text an illustration of Motherwell's current collage studio in Connecticut. Of course, the interpolation of interview material into such an essay needs no defense, and there is no reason to doubt the truth of Motherwell's account of his working friendship with Smith. Nevertheless, Carmean, by presenting Motherwell as presuming to speak for the record on behalf of his whole generation, brings about, whether wittingly or not, a particularly irksome bit of historical upstaging.

3. David Smith, "The Sculptor and his Problems," in David Smith, Garnett McCoy, ed., New York, Praeger, 1973, p. 87.

The National Gallery exhibition was accompanied by E. A. Carmean's catalogue, David Smith, Washington, National Gallery of Art, 1982. The catalogue for the Hirshhorn exhibition is Edward F. Fry and Miranda McClintic's David Smith, Painter Sculptor Draftsman, New York, George Braziller (in association with the Hirshhorn Museum and Sculpture Garden), 1982. "David Smith: Paintings, 1930s & 1940s" will be on view at the Washburn Gallery, New York, Sept. 20–Oct. 30; an excerpt from the Hirshhorn retrospective, this show is the first New York presentation of these early works.

Author: Robert Storr is an artist who writes frequently about art.

VOL
71
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

Julio Gonzalez:* The Montserrat,
1936–37, iron, 64 ¼ by 18 ½ by 18 ½ inches. Stedelijk Museum.

Virgins

Related sculpturally, Julio culturally: the Spaniard at ease by his Protestantism. Below, a their disparate ideas of woman,

BY ALAIN KIRILI

Julio Gonzalez and David Smith had two major points in common: they worked with the same material—iron; and the formal context of the sculpture of each was grounded in autobiographical references. As we will see, very little else brings them together; they had neither the same ethic nor the same concepts nor the same spiritual origin.

Iron, the material of these two artists, breaks the traditional concept of the monolith as a totemic mass and substitutes for it a vocabulary of lines, spaces, surfaces and hollowed-out solids. As the sculpture takes on transparency, the void can assume the role of solid mass. Inaugurated by Picasso, Gargallo and Gonzalez and developed further by Smith, this investigation in iron greatly enriched the formal properties of modern sculpture. But in the work of Gonzalez and Smith it never led to a formalism that was not thoroughly inflected by their very different cultural histories.

The contrast between Gonzalez's relatively small body of work and Smith's heroic production underscores the contrast between their two cultures: the tranquil elegance and often mystical grace of Gonzalez's Spanish tradition versus the aggressions and ambivalences of Smith's American Calvinist ethos. Here, a Catholicism that is sometimes extravagantly, sometimes austerely sensual, is matched against a Puritanism irreconcilably opposed to sensuality. In brief, it is Catalonia versus the Middle West.

With his fine intuition and broad learning, David Smith was able to &Totems

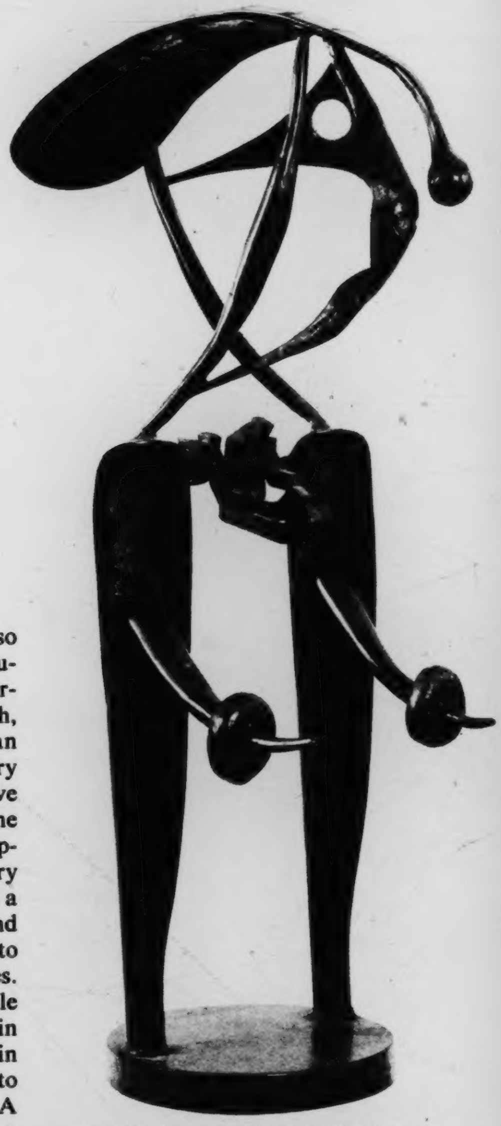
Gonzalez and David Smith were quite different with his Catholicism, the American conflicted sculptor's view of how their work reflects institutional religion and secular modernism.

measure the weight and force of his Protestant tradition. In an important interview with Thomas B. Hess in 1964, Smith, one year before his death, acknowledged the Calvinism in his background: "The idea of satisfaction," he commented, "is like the idea of happiness—the great American illusion . . . The American Protestant idea leads to revolt. A format is made to be changed."[1]

There is a persistent expression in his work of aggressivity toward women in general, especially in his theme of "cannon-rape." This aggressivity is overcome only occasionally—for instance, in the sculptures that express his love for his daughters, such as Rebecca Circle, 1961, and Running Daughter, 1956–60, in which the figure, abstracted from a photograph and constructed of curved metal rods, has a beautiful grace. But for the most part, woman assumes for Smith the Protestant role of predator, as in Portrait of the Eagle's Keeper, 1948–49, in which one motif can be read as a woman's breasts transformed into weapons. Maiden's Dream, 1947–48, is another nightmarish vision, apparently based on a photograph of two insects on a twig; here, hidden in the base of the sculpture is a female face, its grotesque mouth expelling a mess of anxious, intricate lines. Finally, there is Home of the Welder, 1945. A surrealistic, autobiographical work, it shows a room with mirror reflections of a nude woman and a dog; to this ensemble Smith added a short piece of chain and a scaffold—images suggesting imprisonment and castration.

Smith's notebooks and drawings also document a deep attraction to the brutal. In addition to his drawings of tortures inspired by Breughel and Bosch, there are many disturbing entries. In an essay for the Edmonton Art Gallery show "David Smith: the Formative Years," Karen Wilkin notes that in one sketchbook Smith copied out a description of the atrocities of a 15th-century sadist; one of these tells the story of a pregnant woman who is stripped and bound and forced to give birth, only to have her baby devoured by wolves. Smith also saved a magazine article about American soldiers at the front in World War II, circling a passage in which a G.I. described his desire to shoot pregnant German women. A third sketchbook inclusion tells of a newborn child eaten by rats. In these drawings and notes Smith faced directly the fears of sexuality and maternity that appear in more sublimated form in some of his sculptures.

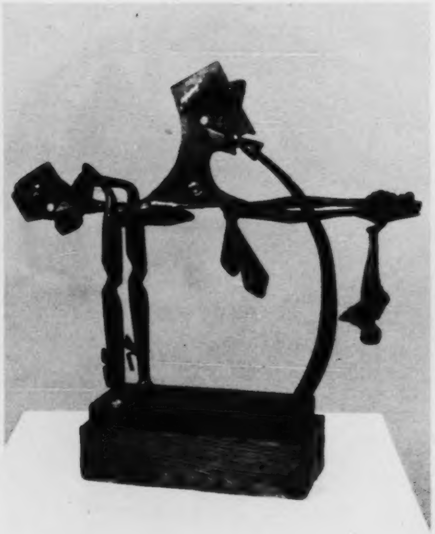
These fears contrast sharply with Gonzalez's feelings. Gonzalez drew women and children all his life—a preoccupation that led him, in the '30s, to a group of sculptural masterpieces, the abstract "Maternities." Indeed, in his drawings Gonzalez often depicted maternity in terms of the Madonna and Child, whereas Smith once depicted his mother, in Spectre of Mother, 1946, as a praying mantis devouring her male.



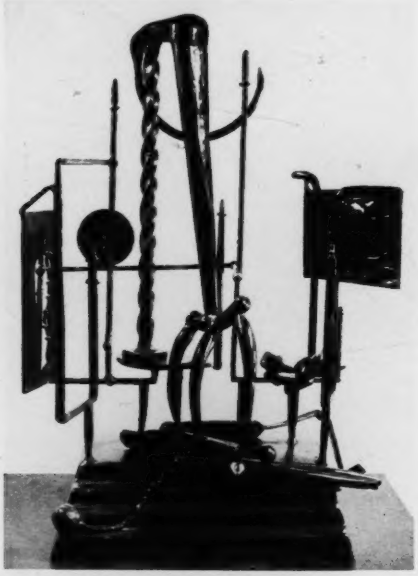
David Smith:* Portrait of the Eagle's Keeper, *1948–49, steel and bronze, 38 ½ by 13 by 23 inches. Collection Helen Frankenthaler.

The two sculptors also held very different views regarding religion. Smith resisted the institution of the church, as is suggested in Cathedral, 1950, and Pillar of Sunday, 1945, a curvilinear column with a bird on top that seems to parody both family and religion through the figure of his mother, a Sunday-school teacher whom he called "the pillar of the church." For his part, Gonzalez was a devout Catholic, and his devotion can be sensed in a sculpture of 1932–34, called in its final version The Prayer: the elegant genuflection of the figure here translates all the richness of corporal kinesis contained in the ceremony of the Catholic liturgy. The grace of the vertical lines in Gothic Man, 1937, also expresses his love for the art of the cathedrals. This largely abstract work perpetuates the tradition of statuary and so dissociates Gonzalez, here

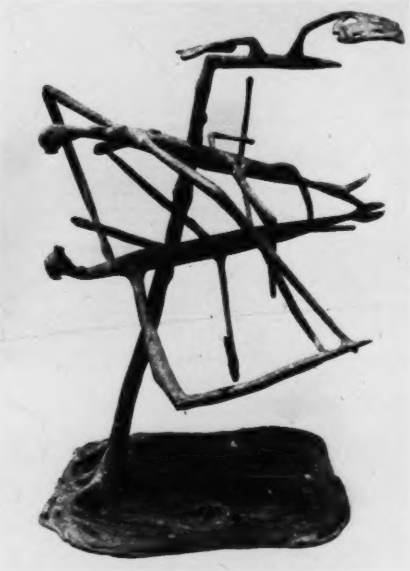
VOL 71 ISS 9 OC 1983 UMI



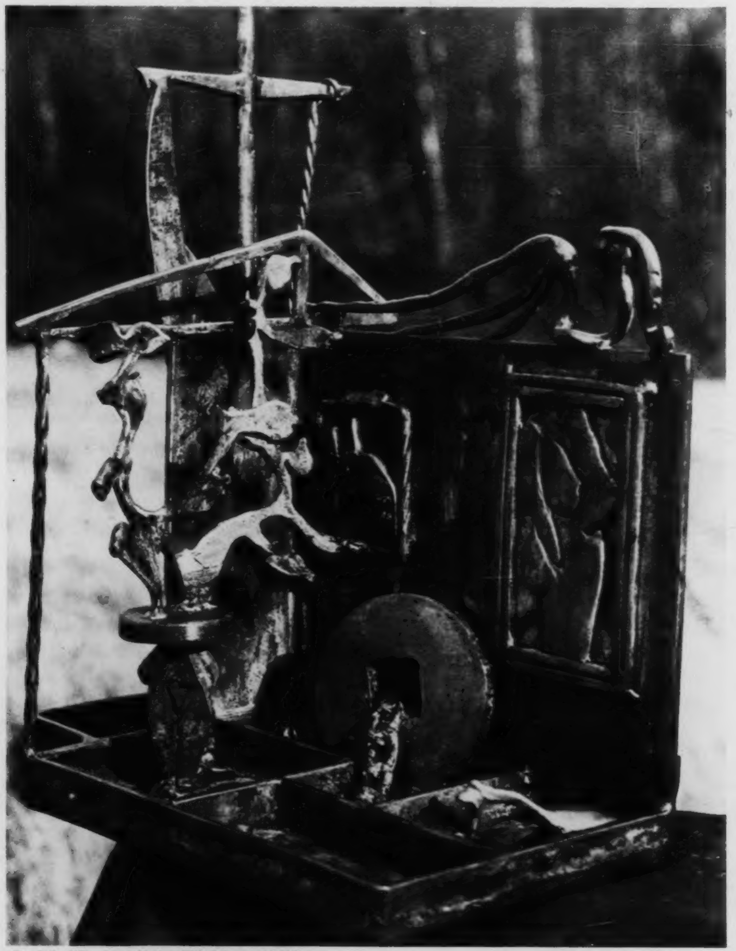
Smith:* Spectre of Mother, *1946, steel and stainless steel, 20 ¾ by 20 by 9 ½ inches. Collection Mr. and Mrs. Sidney M. Feldman.



Smith:* Cathedral, *1950, steel painted brown, 34 ⅜ by 24 ½ by 17 ⅛ inches. Private collection.



Smith:* Maiden's Dream, *1947–48, bronze, 27 ½ by 19 ¾ by 20 ⅜ inches. Estate of David Smith/Knoedler Gallery.



Smith:* Home of the Welder, *1945, steel, 21 by 17 ⅜ by 14 inches. Collection Candida and Rebecca Smith.

at least, from the secular bias of modern planar sculpture.

There are, of course, more properly sculptural differences between these two artists. In a Gonzalez sculpture like The Dream, The Kiss, 1932–33, there is an oneiric dimension, a lightness that derives from the abstract way in which the iron rods penetrate the circular and spherical forms, evoking an evanescent and immaterial world. The work attracts rather than repels the viewer: it is "like a dream." The opposite is often the case with a Smith sculpture. His "Tanktotems," for instance, are evocative precisely of totemic signs of prohibition; their verticality asks the viewer to assume a distance from them. In this regard, one can compare Gonzalez's Large Standing Figure, ca. 1935. For all its verticality (underscored by the presence of a phallus), the elegant, open composition of this work is inviting: indeed, the clean lines of its naked metal are an invitation to touch. Smith's sculptures, on the other hand, suggest a puritanical inhibition against touching. "I think sculpture along with any art is strictly a visual response," he once said. "I don't touch, I touch with the eye."[2]

In a Catholic perspective, as historian Louis Réau has written, a religion without woman is unnatural, even against nature. This judgment may help us understand the particularly Catholic personality of Gonzalez and its consequences for his work.

In Catholic Europe in the 19th century the cult of the Virgin was revitalized. Gonzalez's childhood (he was born Sept. 21, 1876, in Barcelona) was located spiritually in an atmosphere permeated with the Ave Maria. This Marianism produced a kind of feminization of Catholicism, something which neither Judaism nor Protestantism nor the Orthodox Church knew. One of the most seductive aspects of Catholicism, Marianism protects against the inhibitions created by an otherwise patriarchal religion and offers a wealth of iconographic sources; it can be a powerful inspiration for creation.

The formal consequences of such faith can be seen in Gonzalez's work. His sculptures express no misogyny, no aggressivity toward women, only grace—the grace of a woman combing her hair. For Gonzalez woman was the guarantor of liberty, just as she was for Delacroix. If her dignity is put in question, she has the force to engage in struggle: she is the Montserrat, the peasant in revolt who protects her child. Gonzalez began to explore this theme at the time of the Spanish Civil War in drawings and sculptures, most importantly in the proud, iron figure of the large Montserrat, 1936–37, in which his concern for both his country and countrywomen is apparent.

Gonzalez was very clear about this recognition of the grace and power of woman. In the catalogue of his drawings published in Paris (Editions Carmen Martinez, 1975), we see the constancy with which he addressed the theme of maternity from 1906 to 1942. These drawings show how interested he was in the attributes of maternity—its qualities of tenderness and strength, of veiling and unveiling emotion—and how he interpreted them in a religious way.

A deep sense of tradition is evident in his mostly representational drawings on the theme of the Virgin (e.g., Vierge

Gonzalez: Head with Halo, 1930–33, iron relief, 8 ¾ inches high. Photo courtesy Galerie de France.

Gonzalez: Gothic Man, 1937, iron, 19 ¾ by 10 ½ by 5 ⅛ inches. Collection Hans Hartung, Antibes.

Gonzalez: The Dream, The Kiss, 1932–33, iron, 23 ⅜ by 11 ⅞ by 9 ¼ inches. Centre Georges Pompidou.

Gonzalez: Large Standing Figure, ca. 1935, iron, 50 ⅜ by 27 ¼ by 15 ¾ inches. Maeght Foundation.

VOL 71
ISS 9
OC
1983
UMI

Gonzalez: Vierge au quadrille, 1941, pen and India ink on paper, 9 3/4 by 6 3/8 inches.

Gonzalez: Marie-Thérèse en vierge, 1940–41, pencil on paper, 8 by 6 1/4 inches. Photos Galerie de France.

Gonzalez: Vierge austère, 1941, pen and India ink on paper, 9 3/4 by 7 1/2 inches.

Gonzalez: Maternité mystique, 1940, pen and India ink on paper, 9 5/8 inches square.

Gonzalez: Maternité à la Croix, 1941, pencil on paper, 8 by 6 1/4 inches. Private collection, Madrid.

Gonzalez: Maternité à l'enfant et à la Croix, 1941, pencil, pen and India ink on paper, 8 by 6 1/4 inches.

austère, 1940, Vierge criant, Tête de vierge, Vierge au quadrille, all 1941). In other, related drawings Gonzalez represented his love for his wife in religous terms (e.g., Marie-Thérèse en vierge, and Marie-Thérèse au voile, 1940–41). But finally, he enlarged Christian iconography as much as he submitted to it: in the Cubistic Maternité mystique, 1940, and Maternité à l'enfant et à la Croix and Maternité à la Croix, 1941, he even included the Cross in an interpretation of motherhood, no doubt to express his sense of its almost mystical sufferings.

Julio Gonzalez drew on religion and mystical love for many aspects of his imagery: his art appears as an act of sublimation, a quest toward spirituality through a specific religion. David Smith trusted and relied only on his own identity, his faith in art and in himself. Whereas Gonzalez was at ease with his origins, Smith struggled against them: indeed, for Smith, to be a sculptor meant that he had to transgress them. True to his iconoclastic Protestant background, Smith held that Christianity and art were in opposition. "The truly creative art of our time," he once said, "cannot play an important part in organized religion because the traditions are diametrically opposed."[3] But for the Catholic Gonzalez, Christianity and art were in profound sympathy, and his many drawings on religious themes (which the recent Guggenheim show tellingly did not include) figure as importantly in his oeuvre as his drawings for his formal sculptures.

In his fury to create, Smith reached an epic power rarely equalled in 20th-century art. Gonzalez's genius was of a more gentle, mystical sort. But both sculptors, through their love for the medium, were able to express profound issues related to ethics, sexuality and religion. Perhaps it is in their very different responses to religion—which is too often today considered irrelevant to contemporary art—that we can locate their positions in the history of modern sculpture. Smith's Protestant personality made him sympathetic to a secular, formal view of modernism, whereas Gonzalez's Catholic nature allowed him to produce work that, though modernist in principle, was largely religious in feeling. ☐

---

1. This interview appears in The Secret Letter, a catalogue for a 1964 David Smith show at the Marlborough-Gerson Gallery, New York.
2. This statement is from a 1964 radio interview on WNCN, New York.
3. "Art and Religion: a Symposium," Art Digest (Dec. 1953), p. 11.

Author: Alain Kirili is a French sculptor based in New York.

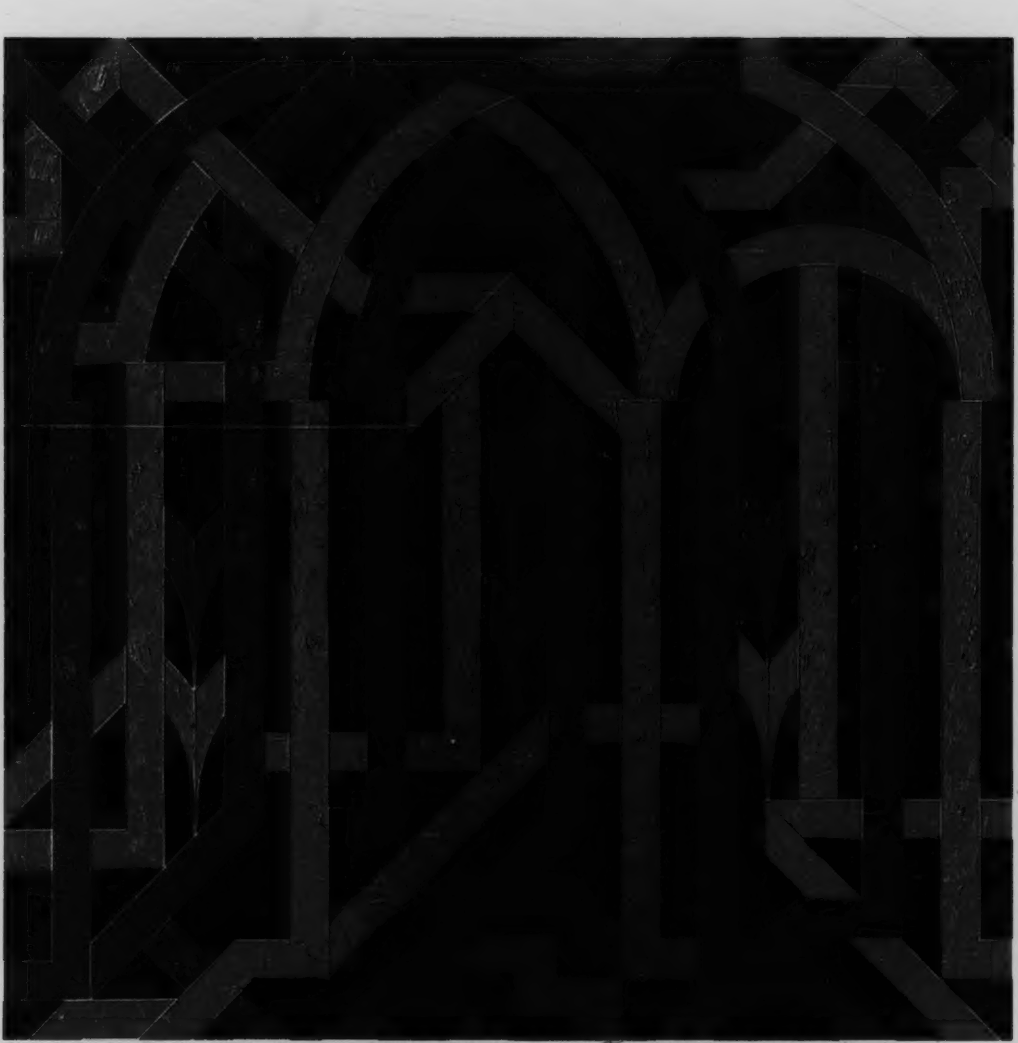
Smith:* Fascist Royalty, *1943, pen and ink on paper, 19 ½ by 25 inches. Estate of David Smith/Knoedler Gallery.

Smith:* Running Daughter, *1956, painted steel, 100 ½ by 36 by 17 inches. Whitney Museum.

VOL
71
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI



Valerie Jaudon: Sardis, 1983, oil on canvas, 80 by 80 inches. Collection David Sterling and Nora Lavori.

Allusive Depths: Valerie Jaudon

Moving beyond the flatness and symmetry of her earlier work into a new, illusionistic Decorative Art, Valerie Jaudon now orchestrates complex vaulted spaces with bold color and rugged impasto.

BY JOHN PERREAULT

When is an art movement over? When a particular style has been captured, caged and catalogued by art historians and museums? When a style is no longer controversial and is dropped from contemporary art discourse? When the artists associated with the movement begin to insist that their work is greater or different from the style with which they have been identified? When all the viewers, critics and artists are bored?

Most of this has not yet happened to Decorative Art, which is, after all, an art movement of a rather classical sort. The Decorationists share goals, methods and, to some degree, ideology. The art works they have produced and are still producing exhibit a strong family resemblance, sharing more characteristics with each other than with other styles of art. In addition, most of the Decorationists actually know one another, visit each other's studios, go to each other's exhibitions, stay in touch.

Of the many art categories that proliferated during the "pluralistic" '70s (most of which were no more than a passing glint in a critic's or curator's ambitious eye), only Decorative Art—first as Pattern Painting, then as Pattern and Decoration—has had the depth, the breadth and the substance necessary for staying power and further development. Filling in the blanks of modernist abstraction, emphasizing beauty, elaboration and cultural reference, Decorative Art has opened our sensibilities to non-Western art and to humble or despised traditions in the West. Nevertheless, not all Decorative Art is equal. And though the movement continues to thrive, it is now appropriate for criticism to begin, for the ranking of Decorationists to start.

What has been clear for some time is that Valerie Jaudon belongs in the top rank of the Decorationists. If Decorative Art were not a movement, but merely a genre, one could say that Jaudon—like Robert Zakanitch, Joyce Kozloff and Miriam Schapiro—has transcended the genre.[1] Her exhibition at the Sidney Janis Gallery last spring demonstrated that she, like her peers in the Decorative Art group, is not only competing with other contemporary art styles, but also with the great art of the modernist past. Like her Decorationist colleagues, she comes armed with strategies influenced by traditional decoration. Like each of them, she participated in the now legendary artists' meetings that focused on issues of decoration and patterning; she was one of the instigators of the decorative impetus.[2] Jaudon's first solo exhibition in New York was in 1977 at the Holly Solomon Gallery, at that time a brave bastion of the new decorative esthetic. Jaudon made her debut with a full-blown personal style: it consisted of an allover interlacing of straight and curved bands that under- and overpassed each other like chair caning or flat maps of tightly woven highway interchanges. The grid or lattice substructure of these paintings immediately linked them to systemic art. More important, however, was their decorative effect, which was startling. Although initially monochromatic and subdued in coloration, Jaudon's work exhibited a lush and almost dizzying complexity. She employed the requisitely thick stretchers of Minimalist painting and, like Frank Stella, let thin lines of bare canvas delineate bands of pigment. Her sensibility, however, was of a different order. Whereas Stella only alluded to Celtic interlace in his "Protractor Series," Jaudon offered fully developed interlacing. Her contained fields of patterning aggressively demonstrated their Celtic and Islamic connections, making it impossible to avoid the issue of decoration.

How had Jaudon arrived at her own style? It was in part an analytic process: to the basic verticals and horizontals of orthodox De Stijl vocabulary she added the curve. But she also credits Pop[3] and, surprisingly, Conceptual art as influences. After the '60s, the notions that context defines art and that a shift in context can be an artmaking strategy were well-established. If an artist could turn common objects, media images and even philosophical propositions into art by placing them in an art context, then why not decoration? After all, even though it had been unfairly despised within the framework of Western high art, decoration, too, was art. And it was clear to Jaudon that in spite of the high-art matrix of her painting, she could not avoid the problem of decoration. Instead of denying decorative values, which had been the usual ploy of abstractionists, she embraced them, thereby enriching the plastic, cultural and perhaps even the political foundations of her art.

Since 1977, year after year, Jaudon has managed to increase the complexity and the depth of her work. Nevertheless, one was not quite prepared for the new paintings. She has dispensed with symmetry; she has added illusionistic space, orchestrating suggestions of multiple and contradictory perspectives. She has leaped from relatively flat interlace to great vaults of color that evoke arches or windows without actually depicting those structures. There is a new breathing space, paradoxical and relentlessly disconcerting. And she has adopted a rich, impastoed painterly surface.

This change came about through a two-year period of anxiety and struggle. Jaudon used a series of working drawings as her method; over and over again she colored in variations on individual asymmetrical configurations. In question was whether she would be able to transfer the plastic and expressive expansion of her exploratory drawings to finished, large-scale paintings and whether work using the new illusionistic space would still be Decorative Art.

What has in fact happened is that Jaudon has successfully moved from decorative Pattern Painting to illusionistic Decorative Art. In her first (now apparently closed) set of works, Jaudon had arrived at an omnidirectional, symmetrical alloverness by rotating or mirroring a basic quadrant. These works were followed by paintings in which she explored bilateral symmetry. Arcola, a fine example, was the only "bilateral" in the Janis show and presumably the last of its line. Thus situated, it functioned in the exhibition as a sign of continuity—spatial effects are discernible—but also as a point of contrast with her newer, more radical, works. These present a new kind of decorative painting, among the sources of which are the illusionistically architectural wall paintings of Pompeii, and the bravado of Picasso's angry or playful spatial dislocations. (As for Picasso, Jaudon confesses that she was strongly impressed by the 1980 retrospective at the Mu-

Author: John Perreault is a critic and curator who lives in New York.

VOL
7
1
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

seum of Modern Art; Picasso's freedom to change was inspiring to her.)

The new paintings, for all their ecclesiastical grandeur, are strange and raw. The brushstroke textures are now as thick as frosting or stucco; the three-color works—those in red, black and gold-leaf are particularly powerful—have an invigorating tastelessness. Bands of these anti-Matissean colors move in arcs and jolts, in broad, structural movements that compose the surface while pulling the eye into imaginary and discombobulated depths. It is as if the skeletons of lost cathedrals were stepping over one another in a tangle of superimposed segments of time.

The new paintings, for all their ecclesiastical grandeur, are strange and raw. Those in red, black and gold leaf are particularly invigorating.

Not all of the paintings are equally resolved; some are even too resolved. The small, square paintings are like lyric poems. Of the works in larger format, I tend to prefer the horizontals to the verticals; Canaan, done this year, was the highpoint of the Janis exhibition. Taken together, the new works mark a significant expansion of Decorative Art and make an important contribution to contemporary painting in general. Are these new paintings modern or post-modern? Jaudon says they are either; I say they are both (and neo-modern, as well). They are difficult, serious and decorative. They have a dissonant majesty. ☐

Canaan*, 1983, oil and gold leaf on canvas, 92 by 130 inches. Collection David Sterling and Nora

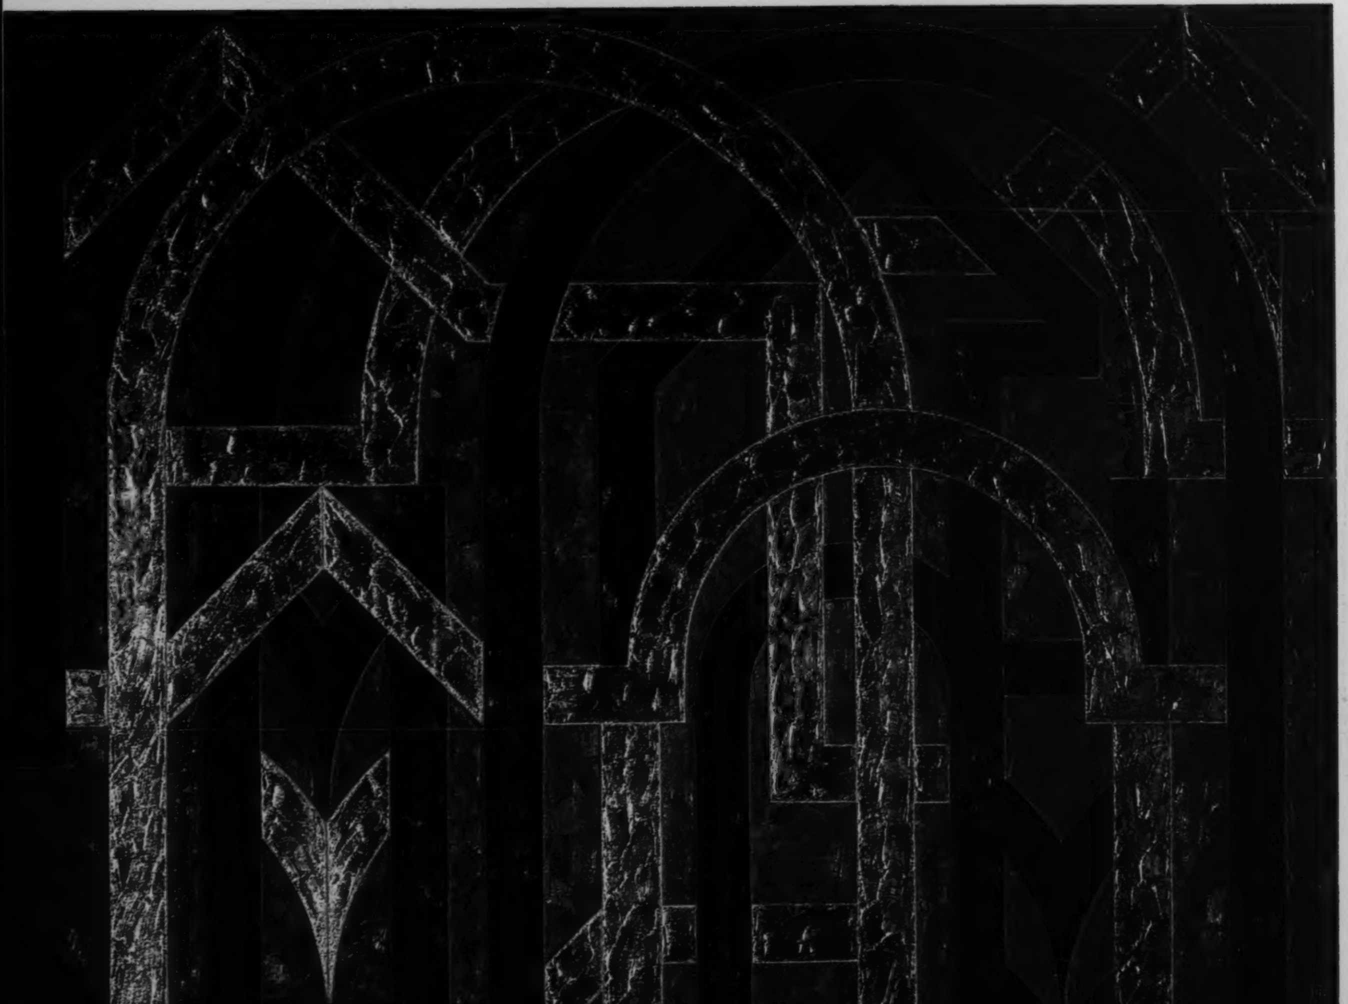
---

1. I am leaving out Kim MacConnel and Robert Kushner here because of their use of irony, which should be dealt with in another essay; Jaudon, like the artists mentioned in the text above, does not employ irony. Tony Robbins's spatial patterning also needs separate consideration though at some point comparison with Jaudon might be illuminating.
2. Jaudon and Kozloff's "Art Hysterical Notions of Progress and Culture," (Heresies, Winter 1977–78), a compilation of the pejorative uses of the word "decorative" in statements by artists, art historians and critics, remains an important and influential text.
3. Jaudon worked for several summers at the Philadelphia architectural firm of Mitchell/Giurgola, which at that time was strongly influenced by Robert Venturi's Pop-inspired theories of architecture.



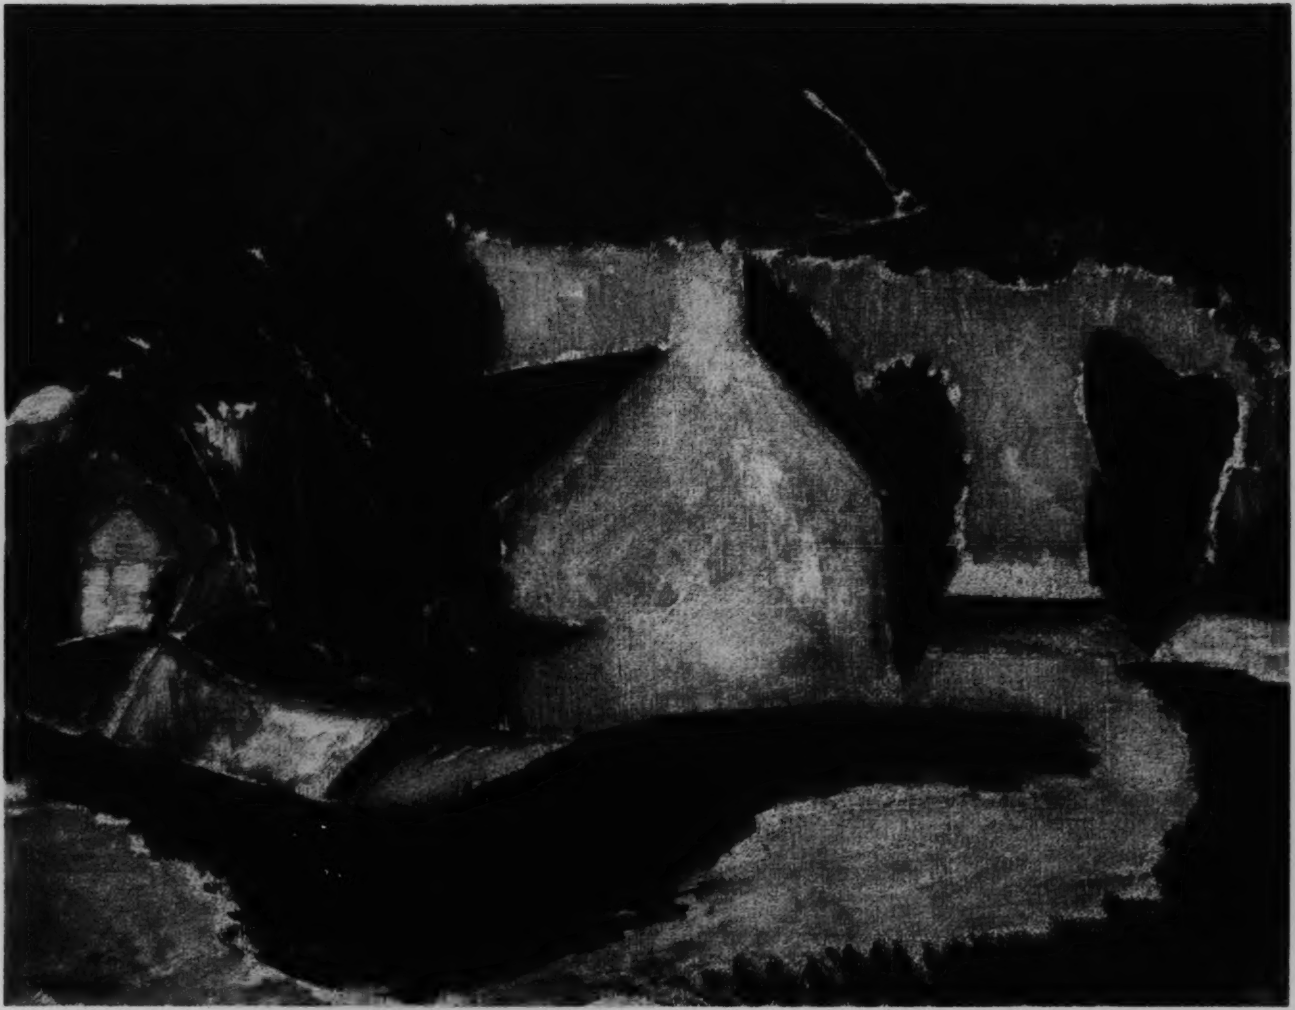
Lavori, New York.

VOL
71
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

On Native Ground: U.S. Modern

Tainted as well as inspired by the period's nationalist ethos, the 1916 "Forum Exhibition of Modern American Painters" was born of domestic resentment at the Armory Show's attention to European vanguard artists. The show was partially recreated last spring at the Whitney's new branch.

BY CHRISTOPHER KNIGHT



Charles Sheeler:* Landscape, Abstraction, *1915, oil on canvas, 14 by 18 inches. Courtesy Andrew Crispo Gallery, New York.

On March 13, 1916, the first major exhibition devoted solely to American modernist art opened for a 13-day run at the Anderson Galleries in New York.[1] Titled the "Forum Exhibition of Modern American Painters," the show is often mentioned in the literature on the period but has never been examined in any depth. Ironically, it has languished in the long shadow cast by the 1913 Armory Show, even though the Forum Exhibition was itself mounted for the very purpose of challenging the earlier presentation.

When the Armory Show was initiated in 1911, it was conceived as an exhibition solely concerned with American art, but it rapidly changed focus and became international in scope. Although three-quarters of the exhibition's 1,600 works were in fact American, European artists succeeded in garnering the lion's share of attention. To certain organizers of the Armory Show, the lack of attention paid to Americans was understandable. Frederick James Gregg, the show's publicist, observed in Arts and Decorations that "the vast mass of American works exhibited simply arrested development." That opinion was amplified by William Glackens, who had organized the American section. "We have no innovators here," lamented Glackens. "Everything in our art is due to the influence of French art. We have not yet arrived at a national art." But to Jerome Myers, one of the three artists who had originated the idea of a large exhibition of American art only to see the show radically change its course, it was the consequences of the Armory Show that were unacceptable. Myers aimed his complaints in particular at Arthur Davies, the artist who had assumed final control of the show. Davies "had unlocked the door to foreign art and thrown the key away. Our land of opportunity was thrown wide open to foreign art, unrestricted and triumphant . . . . While foreign names became familiar, un-American propaganda was ladled out wholesale."[2]

Man Ray: Invention/Dance, 1915, oil on canvas. Private collection, courtesy Andrew Crispo.

If many Americans were discontented with the public attention focused on European art by the Armory Show, it was not because the American modernists themselves were immune to the influence of European art. Virtually all the American modernist painters of the period fueled their own work with lessons learned from the European avant-garde. Aside from witnessing exhibitions of the new European art in New York, many American artists had traveled to Paris or Munich while still quite young; Stanton Macdonald-Wright, Morgan Russell, Charles Sheeler, Andrew Dasburg, William and Marguerite Zorach all did continental duty before the age of 25. But as the hostile reaction to the success of European art in the Armory Show makes clear, there simultaneously existed in America a decidedly nationalist strain of thought. Moreover, there is reason to suggest that early American modernism owed more to this American context than has previously been supposed. While the seeds of modernist painting in America clearly were of European origin, something in the American soil provided fertile ground in which those seeds could take root.

The Forum Exhibition offers an excellent opportunity for examining the divided character of early American modernism. Under the sponsorship of the Forum magazine, the show featured a roster of exceptional artists: Dasburg, Macdonald-Wright, Russell, Sheeler and the Zorachs all participated, as did Arthur Dove, Thomas Hart Benton, Oscar Bluemner, Mars-

VOL 71 ISS 9 OC 1983 UMI

Stanton Macdonald-Wright:* Arm Organization, *1914. Museum of Fine Arts, Houston.

den Hartley, John Marin, Alfred Maurer, Man Ray and Abraham Walkowitz. Also included were the lesser known painters Ben Benn, Henry L. McFee and George F. Of. Furthermore, the exhibition was accompanied by an invaluable catalogue in which the intentions of both the exhibition organizers and the artists are plainly stated.[3] Unabashedly listed as the organizers' primary objective was the desire "to turn public attention for the moment away from European art and concentrate it on the excellent work being done in America." In full, the preface declared:

> The object of the present exhibition is to put before the American public in a large and complete manner the very best examples of the more modern American art; to stimulate interest in the really good native work of this movement; to present for the first time a comprehensive, critical selection of the serious painting now being shown in isolated groups; to turn public attention for the moment away from European art and concentrate it on the excellent work being done in America; and to bring serious, deserving painters in direct contact with the public without a commercial intermediary.

The catalogue even went so far as to include a lengthy note addressed "To the Buying Public." In an impassioned plea that assumed the proportions of a moral imperative, the statement announced: "No more genuine art service can be rendered, either to yourself or to the cause of serious art effort in America, than by the purchase of these works." In a tone that would soon become familiar in appeals for the purchase of war bonds, the catalogue in effect implored: Buy American.

Officially, the Forum Exhibition was organized by a committee of six prominent artists and critics: Dr. Christian Brinton, advisory editor of Art in America; Robert Henri, the painter and leader of the Realist movement; W.H. de B. Nelson, a painter and editor of International Studio; Alfred Stieglitz, artist, dealer, editor of Camera Work and pioneering spirit of modernism in America; John Weichsel, art critic for International Studio and president of the People's Art Guild (an organization dedicated to both American art and social welfare work); and Willard Huntington Wright, art critic for the sponsoring Forum magazine. Wright, however, was largely responsible for having given the exhibition its shape, and it was he who wrote the catalogue's unsigned preface and, no doubt, the note to the buying public.[4] The show's unusual catalogue contained Wright's own essay, "What is Modern Painting?"—an attempt to place modernism within a continuous historical development.[5] There were also six individual forewords, one by each of the committee members, and 16 "Explanatory Notes," allowing each artist (with the notable exception of Marguerite Zorach, the only woman) to discuss his intentions. Finally, there was a bibliography of books and articles dealing favorably with modernism in general, and with the Forum exhibitors in particular.

It may well have been the intent of this extensive catalogue to diffuse, in advance, the sort of condemnation and ridicule by the public and press that had greeted the Armory Show. Despite the precaution—and to some degree because of it—critical response was heated. Negative commentary centered particularly on the catalogue's elaborate exposition of theory. A brief, witty (and unsigned) review in Arts and Decorations, for instance, identified Wright as the critic responsible for the explanation of how modern art had rid painting of literature: "Thereupon, we can readily understand why literature, a more or less tenacious medium evicted from the paintings, appears in such abundance in the catalog."[6] Only one reviewer, Charles Buchanan of International Studio, saw the value of the catalogue's extensive text.

Wright and Weichsel, the two members of the Forum committee who were critics, used their respective publications to further the cause of the show. Despite its obvious bias, the opening paragraph of Wright's review is a useful statement of his attitude toward the entire enterprise:

> At the Anderson Galleries this month is to be seen the largest exhibition of the more modern American painting ever held. In fact, next to the Armory Show, it is the most complete and comprehensive exposition of the new school's work this country has ever had. . . . The object of the exposition is . . . to concentrate on the really excellent work of our native artists.[7]

By invoking the name of the most influential and notorious avant-garde exhibition in the history of the American art world—the Armory Show, where "un-American propaganda" had been "ladled out wholesale"—Wright both identified the Forum Exhibition as a show of commensurate caliber and pointedly stated that American modernism had come of age.

The 166 paintings and 27 drawings by the American artists who participated in the Forum show clearly reveal the dominant impact of European modernism. Cézanne and Cubism provided the strongest source of influence, significantly affecting the work of Bluemner, Dove, Marin, Ray, McFee, Sheeler and Walkowitz. Fauvist elements are also discernible in the work of Sheeler and Bluemner, but the inspiration of Matisse is most plainly evident in the paintings of Benn, Maurer and the Zorachs. Synchromist principles, originated in Europe by Macdonald-Wright and Russell but with strong ties to Orphism, are found as well in Dasburg and Benton. That Hartley's visit to Kandinsky and Franz Marc had had a profound effect on his own development is apparent in the work he sent to the Forum. On the other hand, Of's style clearly reflects his enthrallment with Renoir. The artists and organizers of the show were not hesitant to acknowledge their debts, and Wright's own review provided lengthy, detailed appraisals of the European sources.

Looking back, however, it is possible to describe a certain difference between early American modernism and its European counterpart. As Abraham Davidson has perceptively observed:

> In American paintings that can be called Cubist there is a more haphazard compositional pattern with the geometrical substructure [e.g., the golden section] seldom in evidence. This can and should be stated positively: there is in American paintings adopting the Cubist idiom an energy, a directness, an exuberance. At the same time, there is a subtlety about much European Cubist painting that the Americans either missed or seldom tried to emulate.[8]

A perusal of the artists' "Explanatory Notes" supports Davidson's contention, which seems applicable even to those artists not working in a Cubist mode. As a group, the artists reveal a unity of common intention that might simply be described as the desire for an "immediacy of experience." Although Benton insisted on the preeminence of line in creating form while Macdonald-Wright stressed pure color as the basis for painting (an antithesis which obviously recalls the earlier debates between Ingres and Delacroix, the Poussinistes and the Rubenistes), all of the early American modernist painters agreed in their belief that art was both an inquiry into and a manifestation of reality, and all stressed the role of direct, unencumbered stimulation of the senses.

In a tone that would soon become familiar in appeals for the purchase of war bonds, the Forum Exhibition catalogue in effect implored: Buy American.

Dove stated the concept most succinctly: "I should like to . . . give back in my means of expression all that [life] gives to me . . . the reality of . . . sensation. . . . It is that in its essence which I wish to set down." Sheeler, too, specifically equated reality with sensory response in declaring, "I venture to define art as the perception through our sensibilities, more or less guided by intellect, of universal order and its expression in terms more directly appealing to some particular phase of our sensibilities." For Russell, it was the intensity of experience that was paramount: "To-day, the chaotic sounds and lights in our daily experience are intenser than those in art. Therefore, art must be raised to the highest intensity if it is to dominate life and give us a sense of order."

This concern for "sensibilities" or "sensations" as the essence of reality enters, without exception, into the notes of all the Forum artists. For them, the intellect—the rational, analytic construction of thought as the path to understanding—was obviously relegated to a minor role. Though Benton, Dove, Hartley, Russell and Sheeler all discussed the relationship of intellect to painting, most of these artists perceived it as a support for the higher quality of sensation. As Sheeler put it, "In my definition I used the expression 'through our sensibilities, more or less guided by our intellects,' and here I add 'less rather than more' for I believe that human intellect is far less profound than human sensibility; that every thought is a mere shadow of some emotion which casts it."

For its part, the Forum committee expressed similar sentiments in their forewords to the catalogue. In addition, all of the committee members endorsed what amounted to a "cult of the new," but one that was founded on the rationale of historical continuity. "That which we cherish most of all in a work of art is the accent of its particular day and epoch," wrote Brinton, while Wright observed, "It is not a new beauty, but an old beauty given new investiture." Wright and Weichsel specifically attempted to delineate the connections between modernism and the history of painting. They insisted that the new art "neither overlooked nor excluded anything in the cardinal stock of art creation" and that the qualities inherent in an old master work "are precisely those qualities which are found in all significant modern painting." Wright even went so far as to assert that modernism was "a direct result of ancient art."

In describing these paintings as "new" and "of the age" in which they were created, the members of the Forum committee were attempting to defend the validity of this art. Their rationale of historical continuity, which sought to establish the modernist movement as part of a natural and necessary social and esthetic evolution, both legitimized the art with a history and denied that modernist painting was an aberration caused by the Great War or any other social upheaval. It is not surprising, of course, that their views corresponded with those championed by the artists they had selected for exhibition. What is startling, however, is the degree to which their opinions corresponded with the conception of nationalism in art voiced by Theodore Roosevelt, a lay critic hardly in sympathy with the esthetics of modernism.[9]

Assertions of nationalist feeling (like those embodied in the reactions of Jerome Myers, et al., to the Armory Show) had already been firmly planted in the Amer-

VOL
71
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

Marguerite Zorach: The Garden, 1914, oil on canvas. Collection Harvey and Françoise Rambach.

William Zorach: Spring No. 1, 1913, oil on canvas, 46 by 40 inches. Andrew Crispo Gallery.

ican consciousness by the Roosevelt Administration in the first decade of the century. Following a long period of internal growth and continental exploration, the United States had begun its aggressive program of expansion into the Caribbean and the Pacific, commencing with the Spanish-American War in 1898. Ending an era of isolationism, America increasingly saw itself as the stronghold of individual liberty and defined its destiny as the expansion of American ideals throughout the world.[10] Paralleled by the popularity of social Darwinism, with its doctrine of the survival of the fittest, Roosevelt's extreme nationalist fervor was, to him, a matter of "robust morality." For Roosevelt, nationalism provided the only firm foundation on which a worthwhile civilization could be built.[11] By 1912, he was promoting the cause with the slogan, "the new nationalism," and he would continue to champion it for the remainder of his life.

In 1916, when the Forum Exhibition opened, the philosophy of nationalism was a continuing influence in the ongoing debate over the position of the United States on the Great War. That year the government banned publication of The Masses, ending the socialist magazine's opposition to national policy. In November, only a few months after the Forum Exhibition had sought "to turn public attention away from European art," Roosevelt himself applied his nationalist views to the subject of art in an address to the American Academy and National Institute of Arts and Letters. Speaking on the topic, "Nationalism in Art and Literature," Roosevelt admonished:

What is startling is the degree to which the opinions of the show's organizers corresponded with the idea of nationalism in art voiced by Theodore Roosevelt—who was hardly in sympathy with the esthetics of modernism.

> The fact remains that the greatest work [of art] must bear the stamp of originality. In exactly the same way, the greatest work must bear the stamp of nationalism. American work must smack of our own soil, mental and moral, or it will have little of permanent value.[12]

He went on to shun revivalism as false ("It means very little to have an Egyptian obelisk in Central Park") and described both art and nationalism as the products of natural evolution. Roo-

Ben Benn: Mother and Child, 1915, oil on canvas, 36 by 27 inches. Whitney Museum.

Thomas Hart Benton: Three Figures, ca. 1915–16, oil on canvas. Tilden-Foley Galleries, New Orleans.

Alfred H. Maurer: Landscape, ca. 1911, oil on canvas. Museum of Art, Carnegie Institute.

Arthur G. Dove: Nature Symbolized No. 1, 1911–12, pastel on paper. Private collection, courtesy Andrew Crispo Gallery.

Oscar Bluemner: Space Motif, A New Jersey Valley, 1914, oil on canvas, 30 by 40 inches. Whitney Museum.

sevelt maintained that the combination of the American land and a melting-pot population would create "a national type that must certainly be new." In light of this, he continued, "We need have scant patience with artificial development in nationalism or anything else. I care little more for the Cubist school in patriotism than I care for it in art and poetry."

Of course, the art that Roosevelt supported differed markedly from the works on view at the Anderson Galleries: a devoted admirer of Augustus Saint-Gaudens, Roosevelt presumably would have had "scant patience" for Cubist-derived paintings. Nevertheless, his chastisement of those academicians who contented themselves with the proficient rendering of accepted European motifs was surprisingly close to attitudes expressed by modernists. Roosevelt's comments almost seemed to echo those of Wright, who had written in the January 1916 Forum that "painters are still clinging to a musty, unvital past, serenely unconscious of the great march of events. . . . The painter or sculptor who . . . asserts that he is a child of Egypt, Assyria or Greece reveals at once his complete ignorance of the art of those countries. . . . He who is not of his own age belongs to none." In their emphasis on a new national type, Roosevelt's remarks also paralleled those of Weichsel, who believed that American modernism was less a style than an articulation of the artist's place in the world. In his June review of the show, Weichsel had asserted that "the New Art is more than the search for this or that aesthetic incarnation. It is an all-inclusive renascence of which the new plastique is one of the vertices. It is an embodiment of the modern spirit."

Whether conservatively voiced by Roosevelt or more progressively articulated by Wright and Weichsel, the tensions between tradition and the new were keenly felt in every sphere.[13] The "all-inclusive modern spirit" had been born of an uneasy marriage between the remnants of 19th-century individualism, as typified by Whitman and Thoreau, and the beginnings of the mass culture introduced by the machine age. And, indeed, one of the central dilemmas of the early modern period was how to reconcile the seemingly antithetical goals of staunch individualism with the collective demands of the larger social world.

VOL 71 ISS 9 OC 1983 UMI

Abraham Walkowitz: Creation, 1914, pastel on paper. Metropolitan Museum.

Early American modernism owed more to the U.S. context than has previously been supposed. While the seeds came from Europe, something in the American soil allowed them to take root.

It was in part as an answer to this question that the modern sociopolitical philosophy of nationalism had taken shape by the turn of the century. Unlike earlier versions of nationalism, and despite not infrequent lapses into a simplistic jingoism, modern nationalism had dual aspirations: the establishment of a social structure that would offer maximum opportunities for self-expression and self-determination, as well as of one that would encourage the growth of collective values—those beliefs held in common by the group as a political unit.[14] As codified by Roosevelt, those group values had a distinctly moral dimension and emphasized the primacy of the American people as a nation. "Normally," he told the American Academy, "the man who can do the most for the nations of the world as a whole is the man the fibres of whose being are most closely intertwined with those of the people to which he himself belongs."

That the ramifications of this political nationalism had their effects on the politics of the art world is abundantly clear from the reactions to the Armory Show and from the mounting of the Forum Exhibition. Plainly, Wright meant to promote American culture and its interests at the expense of European art. It may seem paradoxical, then, that the concept of an "American" modernism should rely to such large measure on European styles, however bluntly these were interpreted. Yet this paradox can itself be explained by the fact that the American modernists did not adopt the nationalist ethos wholesale, but adhered only to those of its ideals that proved useful.

Like their predecessors in 19th-century France, early 20th-century American artists were obviously shaped by the values of the middle class from which they largely came.[15] Whereas the academic artists of the period strove to maintain both the social and esthetic status quo, those who wished to challenge traditional middle-class morality often opted for the socially oriented but esthetically conservative art of Realism. The modernists, however, took neither of these positions; placing themselves outside middle-class morality, they chose instead to challenge the accepted esthetic values of their society. Exploring the principles on which art itself was based and stressing the arena of individual sensibility, the modernists exploited to the fullest the notion of individual self-expression—a notion inherent in the nationalist ideal—but did not simultaneously accept the political implications or group morality also associated with nationalism. Just as they emphasized direct, experiential sensation and wished to transcend the limitations of the intellect, the modernists similarly refused to be circumscribed by geographic or social boundaries. Thus, though they embraced the nationalist ideals of self-expression and self-determination, their art nevertheless assumed supranational goals.

If the modernists as individuals would have had little use for "the robust morality" by which Roosevelt defined nationalism and for his emphasis on the primacy of the American people, the Forum Exhibition as an exhibition was quite overtly concerned with promoting nationalist group interests. As carefully designed by Wright and his committee, it was the show that argued on behalf of American rather than European art, it was the expository theory in the lengthy catalogue that sought to reconcile the individual self-expression of the paintings with the collective demands of a general audience, and it was the note to the buying public that endowed the proceedings with the urgency of a moral imperative. In short, the "Forum Exhibition of Modern American Painters" was decidedly a nationalist affair. ☐

1. This article derives from a master's thesis, "The 1916 Forum Exhibition and the Concept of an 'American' Modernism," written by the author in 1976 at the State University of New York, Binghamton. Special gratitude is due Albert Boime, now of the University of California, Los Angeles, for his assistance with that initial endeavor.
2. All three are quoted in Milton Brown, American Painting from the Armory Show to the Depression, Princeton, Princeton University Press, 1955; see also Jerome Myers's reminiscences on the period, Artist in Manhattan.
3. The catalogue to the Forum Exhibition was reprinted in a facsimile edition in 1968 by Arno Press, New York; all quotations by the Forum committee and artists are from this source.

Marsden Hartley: One Portrait of One Woman, 1916, oil on composition board, 30 by 25¼ inches. University of Minnesota Gallery, Minneapolis.

VOL
71
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

4. Wright (brother of Stanton Macdonald-Wright) was recognized by many as the leading American modernist critic and theoretician of the period. In the February 1916 Forum, Andre Tridon credited him with having set a "standard of criticism" that placed him as "America's first aesthetician." An unsigned review in the December 1915 International Studio hailed Wright's book, Modern-Painting: Its Tendency and Meaning, as "the best extant work upon the genesis and development of the latter day pictorial spirit." In the June 1916 issue of the same New York publication, John Weichsel identified Wright as having been primarily responsible for formulating the scope of the Forum Exhibition, and indicated that he also had written the preface. In his own catalogue foreword, Weichsel referred to the show as "this enterprise of Mr. Willard Huntington Wright." And it was, of course, Wright's magazine that sponsored the show. Alfred Stieglitz's influence, however, should not be overlooked. Six of his protegés (Bluemner, Dove, Hartley, Marin, Maurer and Walkowitz) participated in the show, totaling more than one-third of the paintings and drawings on display.

> It may have been the intent of the show's extensive catalogue to diffuse, in advance, the sort of condemnation and ridicule that had greeted the Armory Show.

5. This essay formed the first chapter of Wright's 1915 book, Modern-Painting and also had been published under the title, "The Truth About Painting," in the October 1915 Forum.

6. "The Forum Band of Adventurers," Arts and Decorations, April 1916, p. 292. Reviews of the exhibition were many, and consisted of a small debate between Robert Coady and Wright in the New York Sun during the week of March 12–19, 1916 (Coady's first letter to the editor also appeared, verbatim, in his advertisement for his Washington Square Gallery found in the Forum catalogue); hostile and often sarcastic reviews by Frank Jewett Mather in The Nation (March 23, 1916, p. 340) and Royal Cortissoz in the March 12, 1916, New York Tribune ("The Ten and Some Others on the Art of Painting"); Wright in the April 1916 Forum and Weichsel in the June 1916 International Studio; a fair-minded but generally negative piece by Charles Buchanan in International Studio ("Paint and Progress," June, 1916, p. cxii); and a very favorable, unsigned review in the March 18, 1916, Christian Science Monitor which described the show as "destined mayhap for historical record" and noted that attendance was high.

7. Wright, "The Forum Exhibition," Forum, April 1916, p. 457.

8. Abraham A. Davidson, Early American Modernist Painting: 1910–1935, New York, Harper & Row, 1981, p. 5. Henry Geldzahler has taken a similar position, although without elaboration: "We can perhaps isolate as typically American a practical, straightforward simplicity, a concern with directness of experience. Certainly, this quality was evident in the work of the first American modernists, regardless of European influences." (American Painting in the Twentieth Century, Greenwich, Conn., New York Graphic Society, 1965, pp. 48–49.)

Thomas Hart Benton.

Marsden Hartley.

Arthur Dove.

Charles Sheeler. Archives of American Art.

9. Roosevelt's conception of art and nationalism was championed in the press by several conservative critics; see especially Everett Carroll Maxwell's "Nationalism and the Art of the Future," International Studio, September 1917, pp. lxxvi–lxxvii.

10. See Hans Kohn, American Nationalism, New York, Macmillan, 1957.

11. Ibid. p. 193. Not known for reticence, Roosevelt insisted that "every civilization worth calling such must be based on a spirit of intense nationalism."

12. Hermann Hagedorn, ed., The Literary Essays of Theodore Roosevelt, New York, Charles Scribner's Sons, 1926, p. 366.

13. These tensions between tradition and the new were manifest in numerous ways artistically, whether measured by the grudging acceptance of the legitimacy of Barbizon landscape painting by the National Academy of Design; by the merger of handicraft and machine embodied in the Craftsman Style; by the socially oriented, urban Realism of the Henri Group; or, not least of all, by early-American modernism and its defense by Wright as "a direct result of ancient art."

14. See Kohn, American Nationalism; and Benjamin Azkin, State and Nation, London, Hutchinson Company, 1964.

15. Brown, pp. 59-63. Brown's classic study was among the first comprehensive efforts to examine early-20th-century American art within its social context.

The "Forum Exhibition of Modern American Painters" was partially recreated at the Whitney Museum of American Art at Philip Morris and exhibited from May 18 through June 22. The show was organized by Anne Harrell with the assistance of Ellen Mahoney, both 1981-82 Helena Rubinstein Fellows in the Whitney Museum's Independent Study Program and working under the supervision of Richard Armstrong.

Author: Christopher Knight is art critic for the Los Angeles Herald Examiner.

STUART DAVIS: ARTISTS AGAINST WAR AND FASCISM, 1936, GOUACHE ON PAPER, 12 X 16 INCHES.

The Milton Avery Estate, Louise Bourgeois, The Stuart Davis Estate, Richard Diebenkorn, Jim Dine, Sam Francis, David Hockney, Jasper Johns, Donald Judd, Alex Katz, Lee Krasner, Sol LeWitt, Roy Lichtenstein, Robert Morris, Robert Motherwell, Louise Nevelson, Isamu Noguchi, Kenneth Noland, Claes Oldenburg, Robert Rauschenberg and James Rosenquist invite you to

ART FOR A NUCLEAR WEAPONS FREEZE

AN EXHIBITION AND AUCTION

Twenty-one artists and artists' estates have donated paintings, sculptures, and drawings to benefit the Nuclear Weapons FREEZE campaign. The goal of the campaign is an end to the Nuclear Arms Race through a bilateral, verifiable freeze on the testing, production, and deployment of nuclear weapons.

Works will be exhibited and sold by silent auction at participating galleries. Winning bids will be announced at the Gala closing on December 3rd, 1983, at Brooke Alexander, Inc., New York City. A fully illustrated 32-page catalogue with bidding instructions is available for $7.00 postpaid. A Jim Dine watercolor, 1983, will be raffled at the Gala closing. The raffle tickets ($50.00 each) and the catalogue are available from participating galleries or The Nuclear Weapons FREEZE Campaign, National Clearing House, 4144 Lindell Blvd., Suite 404, St. Louis, Mo. 63108. Checks are payable to The Nuclear Weapons Freeze Campaign.

October 18th
MARGO LEAVIN
812 North Robertson Blvd. Los Angeles 90069
Telephone 213 273-0603

October 21st
FULLER GOLDEEN GALLERY
228 Grant Avenue San Francisco 94108
Telephone 415 982-6177

October 28th
MUNSON GALLERY
653 Canyon Road Sante Fe 87501
Telephone 505 983-1657

November 4th
DELAHUNTY GALLERY
2701 Canton Street Dallas 75226
Telephone 214 744-1346

November 8th
THE GREENBERG GALLERY
44 Maryland Plaza St. Louis 63108
Telephone 314 361-7600

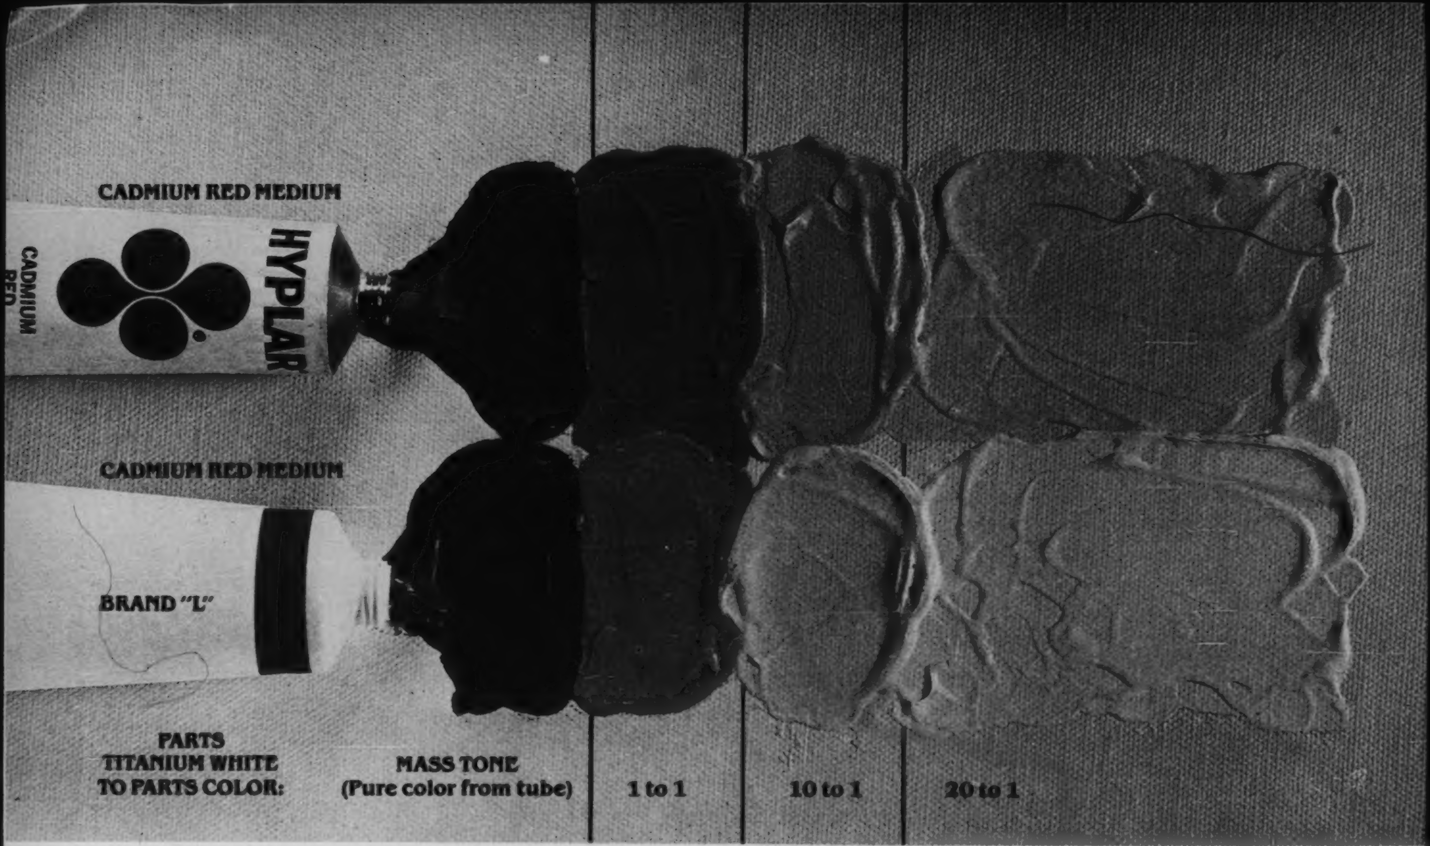
November 12th
JOHN C. STOLLER & CO.
400 Marquette Avenue Minneapolis 55402
Telephone 612 339-7060

November 21st
RICHARD GRAY GALLERY
620 North Michigan Avenue Chicago 60611
Telephone 312 642-8877

November 25th
BARBARA KRAKOW
10 Newbury Street Boston 02116
Telephone 617 262-4490

December 3rd Gala Closing
BROOKE ALEXANDER, INC.
20 West 57th Street New York City 10019
Telephone 212 757-3721

VOL 71 ISS 9 OC 1983 UMI



CADMIUM RED MEDIUM
HYPLAR
CADMIUM RED
CADMIUM RED MEDIUM
BRAND "L"
PARTS TITANIUM WHITE TO PARTS COLOR:
MASS TONE (Pure color from tube)
1 to 1
10 to 1
20 to 1

PERHAPS SURPRISING, BUT TRUE... RICHER COLOR BY FAR WITH HYPLAR® ACRYLICS

Right out of the tube, Grumbacher Hyplar and the leading acrylic competitor look about the same.

But mix them with white and you begin to see the difference.

At twenty parts white to one part color, the extra richness of Hyplar makes the other acrylics pale by comparison.

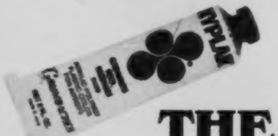
Hyplar Cadmium Red Medium actually has over TWICE the color strength when compared to the leading U.S. competitor, Brand "L".

That means your dollar buys more when you buy Hyplar. Much more. Because the color goes so much further.

But it isn't just color intensity that makes Hyplar Acrylics superior. We "mill" our paint in a process that results in the finest, most uniform dispersion.

So you get a paint that covers better and responds better to your brush or knife

Next time, give yourself the acrylic advantage. Get Grumbacher Hyplar... and get color as rich as your ideas.



™

THE RICHER COLORS OF GRUMBACHER

Ask your local artists' material dealers for these products, or write:
M. GRUMBACHER, INC., 460 West 34th Street, New York, N.Y. 10001.
In Canada: M. GRUMBACHER (CANADA) Inc., 460 Finchdene Square, Scarborough, Ontario M1X 1C4

Review of Exhibitions

NEW YORK

Joanna Pousette-Dart at Susan Caldwell

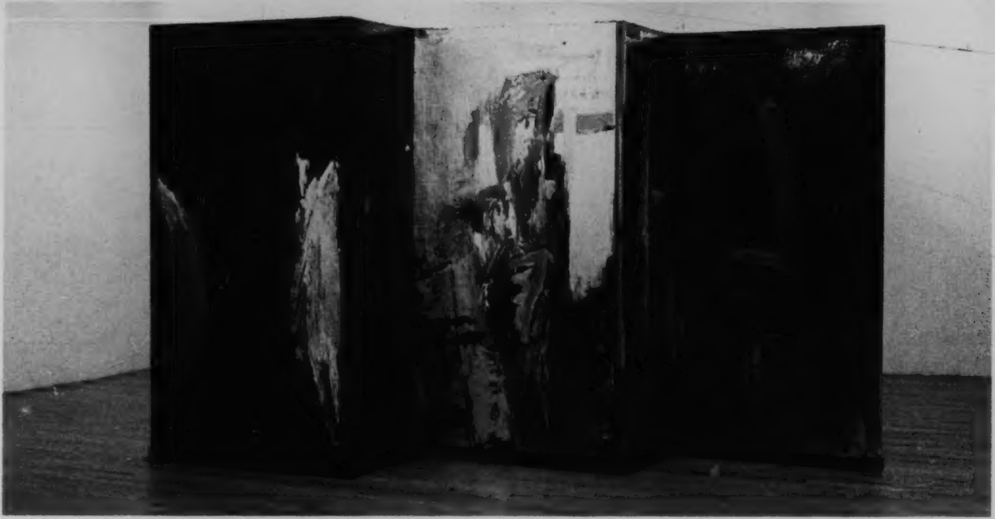
In this show Joanna Pousette-Dart presented 15 untitled paintings and drawings of varying sizes. Because of its enthusiasm and excitement, and her uninhibited way of combining mediums (oil with enamel and metallic pigment, ink with acrylic), her work reminded me of painting of the '50s, when Pousette-Dart was only a child.

In 1976 when Pousette-Dart had her first show at this gallery, her paintings were done mostly in gray on a rectangular grid with sand mixed in to give substance to her surfaces. Her work later passed through a diaphanous phase and, by 1979, had moved towards a stronger sense of gesture and image. At this time too, her paintings were evolving from a tonal neutrality to an inferno of texture and color, though she continued to do some paintings with only suggestions of color shadows. Both types of work—the clashing and the quiet—are still in evidence today.

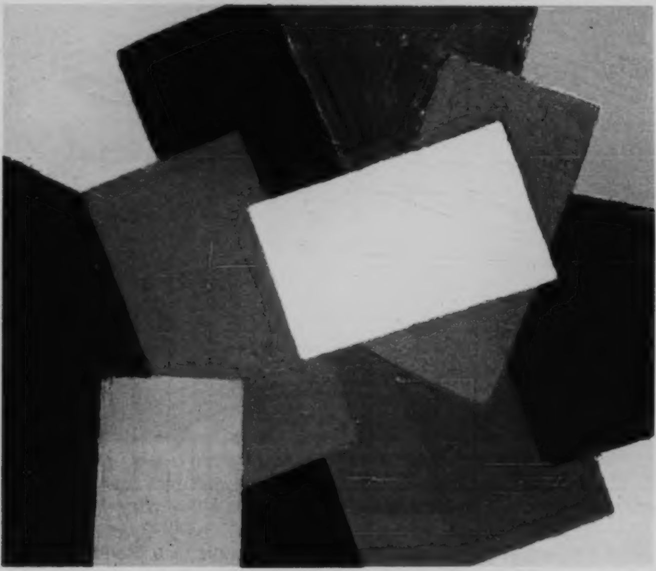
Pousette-Dart's new paintings are sometimes on separate, unequal, rectangular canvases which hang or stand next to each other so that the paint flows without interruption from one surface to the next—as was the case in the superb gray work in the first room of the gallery. Another work consisted of two panels, one on top of the other in a post-lintel relationship forming a kind of "tau" image. The most remarkable piece of all, however, was a free-standing wall, measuring 13½ feet on the diagonal, painted in oil and metallic pigment on canvas; it could be seen from both sides and could also be folded like a screen. Here, Pousette-Dart subtly opposed silver on one side to gold on the other—both veiled in dark paint, a dusty glitter suggesting the moods of day and night.

There is always in Pousette-Dart's work a somewhat blurred distinction between what is "real"—the surface of the paint—and what is metaphorical. Indeed, I think of her paintings—all space, matter and touch—as a visual music, a kind of tonkunst. A final note: One of her paintings on paper was bordered with unevenly placed glass mosaic tesserae. Pousette-Dart is a natural for the medium (as her mosaics in the Doumani House attest), and I can see her continuing the struggle to free mosaic from its conventional role of simply copying pictures.

—Lawrence Campbell



Joanna Pousette-Dart: Untitled, 1981–83, oil and metallic pigment on canvas, 8 by 13 by 5½ feet; at Susan Caldwell.



Marilyn Lenkowsky: Untitled, 1983, oil on canvas, 15 by 17 inches; at Siegel.

Marilyn Lenkowsky at Siegel Contemporary Art

Marilyn Lenkowsky has been well known for the past ten years for her monochromatic, stretched-canvas wall and corner pieces, but this is her first one-person show. Given the forcefulness of those constructions, the modesty of her recent work comes as something of a surprise.

In an interview published in the catalogue of the Guggenheim's 1978 "Young American Artists" exhibition, Lenkowsky reserved the option of returning to a traditional rectangular format, and in these paintings she has done just that. What seems so unusual here, however, is not so much her use of the easel format as the self-effacing scale of the panels and their curiously old-fashioned geometric and color syntax—a syntax that evokes the optical puzzles of the Bauhaus and its heirs. Though this historical association is not merely superficial, neither does it completely define the concerns of these paintings.

Ultimately, the artist's formal premise is less important than the instinctive, unpremeditated decisions she makes. It is her attention to the crucial refinements of the hand that gives these panels their liveliness and distinguishes them from the programmatic agenda of artists such as Albers or Max Bill. Lenkowsky's basic geometric forms—trapezoids, cardlike rectangles, and interlocking L shapes—become related but distinct painted areas through the gradual process of adjustment to each other. Within the compact, seemingly flat units, the artist explores a considerable variety of painterly procedures—pigment is brushed on in semi-opaque layers, rubbed and scraped down to the raw white canvas, and then densely applied with a palette knife. Each vivid and apparently simple color is therefore the nuanced sum of those procedures, which leaves visible traces in the streaks and cracks of the surface. Edges are defined individually by paint handling: in some places the paint has been built up, while in others it runs loosely along, with occasional, shimmering hairline crossovers into the neighboring block of color.

The degree to which such incremental changes in form and surface fascinate depends almost entirely on the viewer. The absence of any obvious formal challenge only underscores the necessity of looking closely at what is offered. For both artist and audience these paintings are in many respects the abstract equivalent of the still life—a circumscribed, disciplined exercise, and a source of unassuming pleasure. Lenkowsky has previously demonstrated her ability to extend beyond the limitations of such self-contained satisfactions, and there is no reason to begrudge her these small studies, nor to underestimate their complexity. Indeed, coming unexpectedly as they do from an artist such as Lenkowsky, these brittle, sparkling paintings are all the more affecting.

VOL 71 ISS 9 OC 1983 UMI

—Robert Storr

Nassos Daphnis at Leo Castelli and André Zarre

In 1951 Nassos Daphnis became an abstract painter. During a period when Abstract Expressionism and related tendencies were on the rise, he struck out in the then unfashionable Neo-Plastic direction, but more in the manner of van Doesburg (always the forgotten man) than of Mondrian. By the middle of the 1950s his work had taken an even more independent direction, although the color planes remained simple rectangles, set square with the horizontal and vertical of the picture.

Daphnis parted company with other members of the Neo-Plastic group especially in his "color-plane" theory. He visualized color as having an existence in an "abstract" space divided in virtual depth into a vernier scale of 100 equal planes, with plane 1 representing the surface of the painting itself, and plane 100, an infinite depth. The colors, in their various values and intensities, all have their assigned places in this scale. Black, the most intense of colors in his frame of reference, occupies planes 1 to 10. Blue belongs to planes 10 through 20; red to planes 20 through 50; yellow, 60 through 90; while white, the most distant of all colors, at least for him, is to be found in planes 90 through 100. When a color is placed outside its limit, it becomes a tonal value and no longer has the energy of pure, unmixed color. If the artist alters the sequence of planes for his colors by overlapping them there follows a tension and a struggle between the colors as they fight to reach the place denied them in the construction of the painting.

Viewers must involve themselves with the Daphnis color theory in order fully to appreciate his paintings. Many of the works from the late 1950s are precociously Minimalist, ahead of their time. The term "hard-edge," which first came into use in the 1960s, could perfectly well have applied to his paintings of a decade earlier. All are much more complex than they would appear on superficial examination. Try to make a freehand sketch of #9 (1956). It looks simple enough. But you will soon discover how difficult it is to do it without a grid. The same is true of the apparently less complicated paintings from the following year. Nothing is exactly balanced, nothing is exactly centered. Paintings that seem all on the surface begin to close up as you look at them, like the sliding doors of an elevator.

Jacob Kainen: The Way LXI, 1982, oil on canvas, 48 by 60 inches; at Sid Deutsch (review on p. 182).

Nassos Daphnis: I-82, 1982, magna and enamel on canvas, 80 by 95 inches; at Leo Castelli.

In the latest paintings exhibited at Castelli, (works from the '50s were at Zarre), it would appear that Daphnis (like Mondrian in his last paintings, although quite differently) has gone beyond the particularity of the color plane and has found a way of transmuting color into a movement or force independent of form. Bands of parallel color lines move across or through the fields of these paintings, each line usually the same width, though thickening here and there. The curvilinear trellises formed by these color lines—blacks, reds, blues and yellows—seem to move together as though in a magnetic field; the lines run back and forth, under or over each other, the white ground disappearing to be replaced by a solid black or red.

Seen as an expression of the Daphnis color theory, these canvases become doubly mysterious, since each color line theoretically (and in his view, actually) occupies a different plane and therefore has an existence separate from each other line in depth. The exhibition reminded me of a three-dimensional display at the Museum of Natural History that purports to show the universe from a vantage point light years distant from the earth, thus correcting our notions of celestial scale. From earth, of course, all heavenly bodies, whether relatively near or inconceivably distant, appear to occupy points on that imaginary single-surface canopy we refer to as "the sky." Daphnis's notional projection of color into three dimensions—avoided by color theorists like Chevreul and Ostwald, though not entirely by David Katz—is, on its own terms, completely absorbing.

—Lawrence Campbell

Alfred Leslie at Allan Frumkin

You've got to admire Alfred Leslie: he switched from Abstract Expressionism to Realism 20 years ago, when it was still verboten. A self-portrait in his recent exhibition shows him standing next to Hoboken Oval, an atypical striped painting from his very early years. We see the man and his (disowned?) art: Leslie has carefully distanced himself from his own, more vanguard past.

This distance between painter and subject characterized every one of the canvases in his latest New York show. In Leslie's Realist times past, distance was achieved by dramatic, Caravaggesque lighting—or such cool subjects as a full-color cemetery. Now there seems to be a meditated distance between subject and painter. Witness Laura Apostolon, an enormously pregnant nude sitting, with velvet choker and hair done up Victorian style, in a sheet-covered armchair. Leslie's approach is utterly devoid of psychological observation. The same thing applies to portraits of his own children: Tony Leslie stands frozen, holding a basketball, while Jeanette Leslie is seen ice-skating, wearing a Sanyo with the earphones in her ears, a lone figure in the far distance, more frigid than the ice.

It's as if Leslie never really got over the shock of conversion from abstraction, like someone who has lived a licentious life and now earnestly lights candles every Sunday in church. Leslie treats his canvases as sacred objects, icons designed to give the viewer the maximum of visual information and the minimum of psychological insight. It's a weird, American mannerist attitude, not a far cry from Grant Wood, and a little scary.

Leslie's subjects tend to be iconic ciphers, but he does seem to have a soft spot, and it is for women. Pregnant women may be a bit too much for him—he treats them as if they were Virgin Marys—but other, less portentous subjects result in more interesting painting. Or perhaps I should say, more interesting symbolism. The little still lifes with which Leslie surrounds his women lend a certain vibrancy to these canvases. Casey Key lies sunbathing on a beach-house porch, a partially devoured pizza, Mallomars, an apple, a telephone and a piece of paper which reads " © 1983 by Alfred Leslie" beside her. A little color TV displays a picture of pines, mountains and sky. The real sky and sea beyond her are an affectingly off-color blue, and the viewer gets an overall sense of a life lived—lived, perhaps, in tribute to Consumer Reports, but all the more evocatively American for so being.

Though Leslie's "cool" affects his female studies, it does not entirely preclude feeling, as the painting Bread and Coffee attests. This portrait of an older woman in a brown bathrobe is almost touching in its depiction of the exigencies of aging. Almost, but not quite—we're still being stared down. A painter of such technical accomplishment could, we sense, show much more sensitivity to his subjects. Behind all the art-historical ambition and posturing there's a real portrait painter in there somewhere. —Gerrit Henry

Alfred Leslie: Self-Portrait, 1983, oil on canvas, 84 by 60 inches; at Allan Frumkin.

Leland Bell: Self-Portrait, 1980, acrylic on canvas, 60 by 38¾ inches; at Robert Schoelkopf.

Leland Bell at Schoelkopf

In his most recent show Leland Bell has revived a category of art that has lain fallow these many modernist years: studio painting. Everywhere you looked in this show there were models in studio locations and intimate architectural spaces. Not much seems to go on in Bell's studio, but just under the surface the place is tingling with drama.

The surface itself, however, is formidable. Using what could be called off-primaries—steel blue, flesh tone, carmine, peach—Bell outlines his figures in heavy black, as if we wouldn't see them or they somehow wouldn't exist without this delineation. In one painting—titled Ulla, Temma, and Frank O'Brien—wife, daughter and friend pose for the artist, quite comfortable with their roles as models. This studio portrait says what it has to say with a minimum of fuss and even less drama—it is simply, gently and eloquently loving.

But Bell has more than this up his sleeve. In Three Figures with Bird the viewer can only wonder what it is about a little bird in the bottom left corner that has frozen these three figures in marionette-like poses, their arms rhythmically akimbo as if to point to the bird or scoop it up off the floor. Maybe it's that a wild bird doesn't belong in a studio—although this one certainly seems to. Equally mystifying is Three Figures with a Butterfly—again, we have a hopeless little flying thing, even more delicate than the bird, that has somehow gained entrance to the studio and is exciting much attention from the models.

Eventually we get a grasp on Bell's studio painting: it's a charmed little world involving birds and butterflies and friends and family. For Bell, the studio is not a cell, but a shrine in which vaguely sacred things take place and life is at a lovely, harmonious standstill. The painter does not escape his own, slightly deifying scrutiny: in Self-Portrait Bell stands before us in blue shirt, gray pants and a knit cap, surrounded by sketches, canvas, a turned-over open book and planes of color that represent planes of light in the studio.

But Bell has at least one surprise for us: the studio, shrine that it is, can admit reality to a small but somewhat shocking degree. This is what has happened in Two Figures with a Cat: a nude woman stands gesturing by a bed; a man lies on his side under the sheet, resting on his arm. They both look down at the cat, who stands proudly beside a dead bird. The precious studio, in which friends and family gather and birds and butterfly fly, is not inviolate. The viewer feels equal parts relief and dismay: relief that some sort of reality has penetrated, dismay that the cat with the bird in its mouth has gotten past the artist. Bell is a painter of graceful conviction, and in his skillful hands the contemporary studio is a disquieting, eventful place. —Gerrit Henry

Julian Schnabel at Castelli Greene St.

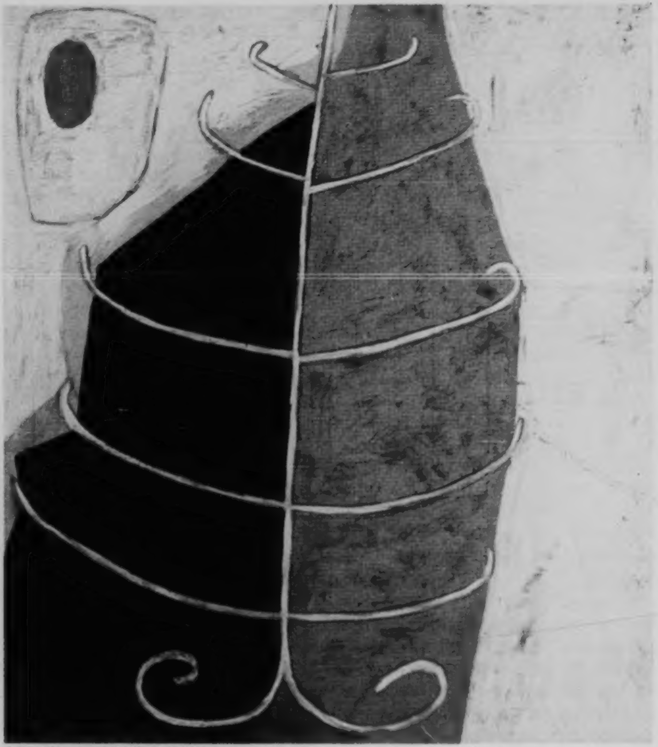
It has been a year of multi-gallery blockbusters and strategic maneuvers with size and quantity being considerations of the first order. No one is more proficient in this department than Julian Schnabel. Last fall at Mary Boone he exhibited monstrous canvases and map paintings meant to carve out their own mythological geography. He set his visions of suffering grandeur on a huge wooden cross-beam that read as an allegory for his personal calvary, and managed to achieve a kind of relentless coherence: the imposing titles, size and notorious "physicality" of the work were all meant to signal the presence of a Great Artist. Then, through most of April, his work (some of the same pieces shown the fall) filled the two floors of Castelli's Greene Street gallery. It was more of the same, with a vengeance: while the art world busies itself with its own escalation and proliferation, Julian Schnabel seems to be engaged in a race to outdo himself.

The gallery space dwarfed even the biggest and heaviest of the paintings, and their numbers only diminished their impact. The debacle of Schnabel's physicality becomes increasingly clear with the ever-expanding size, scale and ambition of his exhibitions. So intimately bound to his obsession with monumentality and strength, that physicality comes to seem small and picayune the greater the intended scope of his gesture. With his overburdened surfaces Schnabel seeks to bludgeon us (and, one suspects, himself) into a vision of painting (and of himself) as a powerful expression of individual will in the service of great visionary passions.

But the more Schnabel tries to convince us, the more fetishizing his relation to his means of expression becomes. Gradually, another scenario emerges. The carefully nurtured image of the temperamental, Romantic artist (albeit slightly sullied in the public view by commercial success) who struggles with Life, Death, and the

VOL
7
1
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

Julian Schnabel: Afternoon for Surfing, 1983, mixed mediums, 108 by 228 by 24 inches; at Castelli Greene St.



David Storey: Untitled, 1982, oil on canvas, 62¼ by 54¼ inches; at Concord.

meaning of Existence, producing canvases laden with the metaphoric refuse of civilization and unshackled Nature, blurs into that of an irascible child who covets the wreckage of his temper tantrums. Rather than visions of spiritual bravura, Schnabel assaults us with images of a frantic, caged domesticity. In a fit of pique he smashes dishes—vessels of nourishment and emblems of domestic well-being—and then gathers up the evidence, obsessively constructing a case for the higher purpose of his hysteria. Schnabel's much lauded "non-art" materials reconstitute the homey, decorative stage of a middle-class living room with its comfortable velveteen armchairs, sofas and heavy floral rugs. The wild beast the artist would unleash in his soul is, it turns out, no longer wild, but dead and stuffed—its antlers hung carefully over the mantelpiece as the compensatory adornment of the male of the species who feels threatened and surrounds himself with symbols of his manhood, of his (lost) dominion over nature. Rather than delve deep into popular culture to heal the rift between high and low, he splashes paint on the furniture in revolt against the claustrophobic comfort of his circumstances.

The anxious inertia of Schnabel's ambition renders painting inadequate and leads the artist inevitably and logically to sculpture. His sculpture seeks to establish yet another surge of virile energy and vision—Genius obliging the Artist to ever greater feats of endurance. The mammoth, conical bronze sculptures look somewhat like large feces or the pregnant forms of mummies or cocoons. Their titles (Balzac, Marie) confirm the artist's yearning for intimacy with the likes of Rodin and Victor Hugo. Capital with Boxes and Capital with Balls—tall columns topped by the womblike physiology of urn molds—laid claim to both female and male procreative powers.

Thus Schnabel continues the anxious elaboration of his family tree, including everyone from Motherwell, Mondrian and Michelangelo to Rothko, Reinhardt and Rodin by way of Goya, El Greco and Géricault. He is not alone in his desperation for cultural fecundity—in this respect he reflects something like a general malaise. There is a profound pathos in the work—though it is not at all of the sort Schnabel claims for himself. In his restless quest for power and legitimacy he builds to such a frenzied pitch that it appears the battle being waged is not with painting or a vision of the world, but with the self lashing out at its own impotence. —Jamey Gambrell

Nigel van Wieck at 112 Greene Street

A myth convinces, a proverb has authority, only if it feels impersonal—a given like weather or topography. Though myths, proverbs and cautionary emblems must, of course, originate in individual imaginations, these tropes never fully count until the general culture appropriates them. Or at least that's how it is in pre-modern cultures. But when politics call social forms into question and society's dubious structures can no longer support the authority of culture, myths come in for emendation. This started to happen in the West during the Romantic period, and it is still going on—not the clever amplification of myth that one sees in the Renaissance and Baroque periods, certainly not the prettifications of the Rococo, but a radical reimagining of the culture's basic images. For the past two centuries, individuals have been insisting on the singular origin of myth.

This leads to a process of reappropriation, which is proceeding at an extraordinary pace in the work of British painter Nigel van Wieck. Until very recently, van Wieck painted closely observed, delicately rendered images of contemporary people and places. Now the airy textures of these earlier works are gone, replaced by statuesque modeling and aggressive, vividly-colored patterns. Where once there were men and women of familiar urban kinds (portrait subjects who, it was clear, would have an informed appreciation of their images), van Wieck now presents us with, for a few examples, a raging Samson, a falling Icarus, fleshy Sirens, a heroic figure of the painter courting gigantic and voluptuous images of his muse, and a variety of unnamed male colossi. Against roiling skies and the schematized, glowing profiles of such Manhattan landmarks as the Empire State Building, dagger-wielding assailants bend over their victims in poses recalling Caravaggio's most violent scenarios. The musculature of van Wieck's male figures suggests Michelangelo, but only after Blake got done with him.

For a contemporary myth-maker like van Wieck, the heroes of art history are comparable to the heroes of Scripture and the Greek pantheon. He doesn't play variations on Blake so much as claim the earlier artist for his own, much as he claims Icarus. The result is a singularly powerful reinvention of cultural givens, a body of myth still in the making, that presents life as violent, desperate in its violence and relentlessly sexual in its desperation. In a calm painting like New Moon the male figure must take on the presence of a vividly ocher monument in order to resist the Siren's seductiveness. Here as elsewhere, the action takes place in a zone of crags and vast skies, a region as open as an Arctic wasteland which nonetheless may be a sunless cavern. Even the sun that defeats the wings of Icarus has a Plutonian rather than a solar glow.

The wheatfield of Breaking Cover stands in the light of an ordinary rural day, yet it seems far removed in time. There is a medieval feel to this image of hawk and hare, hunter and hunted, driven into the open by the harvester's scythe. And this picture's strategy suggests a pre-modern kind of image-making, for it can be seen as a visual proverb—that is, as an emblem of a long-familiar kind—or as an instance of that rather more complex device, allegory. Life, Death and Time (all capitalized by van Wieck's surgingly monumental style) preside over the painting, and the entire exhibition as well. Whether myth-maker, spinner of cautionary tales or allegorist, van Wieck makes it overwhelmingly clear that the large topics of his art are first of all the concern of the solitary—which is to say, modern—indivdual.

—Carter Ratcliff

Nigel van Wieck: New Moon, oil on canvas, 85 by 68 inches; at 112 Greene Street.

Charles Garabedian: The Bartender at Rest, 1964, oil on canvas, 54½ by 29 inches; at Rose Art Museum (review on p. 189).

David Storey at Concord

Since he moved to New York in 1979 from Arcata, Calif., David Storey's paintings have gotten bigger, looser, more ambitious and more natural in their imagery than when he lived in nature. His works of 1977–79 were small, dense, brilliant, saturated oils of slightly tipsy drinking glasses. By 1980 the tumblers had begun to look like trumpets. By 1982 these beakers became noses of large egghead shapes. From their origins in not-so-still life, Storey's forms have blossomed into dehydrated flora, fauna and figures.

When the egghead-orb entered the picture, it was a sun, moon and face—all at the same time. Likewise, the stiff, scrolling form that often lies beneath the orb has not evolved beyond the state of a rudimentary snakelike branch. And the leaf form that rears up on its tail in several works is still a free-floating hieroglyph for, among other things, cobras, tadpoles and sperm. Crosses and forms that could be skyscrapers have appeared, suggesting that Storey's cycle of slow, evolutionary urbanization may be his own enactment of the creation myth.

Nature and culture are both conventionalized in Storey's new work. When he uses a form reminiscent of the fleur-de-lis, for example, it seems intensely loaded with cultural baggage, while still recalling the symbol's natural source. In one bright yellow painting from the summer of '82, Storey turns the fleur-de-lis into a glorious efflorescence of stiff, one might almost say reluctant, white branches unfurling against a ground of butter and sun. With passages of red seeping under the yellow ground and flowing over the white branches, this painting's effect is ecstatic without sacrificing the slight reserve suggested by its nice formal balance. In another summer '82 painting, Storey reveals a subtle, if goofy, sense of humor in his use of a large leaf-torso-fish-skeleton form whose ribs seem alternately to clasp and tickle its own ambiguous edges. The viewer's palate is tickled by Storey's palette, especially by the traces of pink that pop up from under the painting's white "bones." Though definitely labored in their pentimenti, occasionally fussy in their punctuation and perhaps overly preoccupied with niceties of surface in their dappled and scratched passages, ultimately these two paintings are well-crafted, in the regionalist sense of craft.

While in Northern California, Storey lived coincidentally not far away from the greatest living American nature mystic, Morris Graves. Storey's images and careful facture seem to share a mystical vein with Graves's 1940s work, especially his chalices, joyous young pines and snakes dancing under the moon.

After Storey's coloristic effulgence of last summer, he cut way back on color and began exploring the properties of black and white in an impressive series of charcoal drawings (several of which were also seen in a group show titled "New Biomorphism and Automatism" at Hamilton). While the recent paintings sometimes seem to waffle a bit, remaining at once stiff and indecisive, the drawings clicked immediately as instant classics, or should I say, instant clichés. After a while, their very conventionality as "New Images" rendered through ravishing states of crisp edging and cloudy erasures begins to cloy. In the mold of Robert Moskowitz, who is a master at making loaded New Images look bland on a large scale, Storey's drawings struck me as too good to be true. In a word, they look academic, which they in fact are. (Storey began them while he was teaching at Brown.) The new paintings, on the other hand, feature elegant tourneys of black and pink against white, yellow and mustard. Their forms might be described in biological metaphor as stamen or in cultural terms as golfclubs, spears and saxophones—all moving to the jungle rhythms of a Wifredo Lam. To my eye, the new paintings are funnier and riskier than the drawings. They are rangy—in that fully American sense of the term, as it might be used to describe a mythic tall man who has come out of the West to paint big in the big city. —Brooks Adams

Natalie Edgar at Ingber

"I see nobody on the road," said Alice.

"I only wish I had such eyes," the King remarked in a fretful tone. "To be able to see Nobody! And

VOL
7
1
ISS
9
O C
1983
UMI

at that distance too! Why, it's as much as I can do to see real people, by this light!"

This quotation from Lewis Carroll's Through the Looking Glass is broadly indicative of the kinds of issues that Natalie Edgar is dealing with in her paintings, though their actual look might suggest something quite different. Each painting has several layers, and even when each separate layer seems to cancel out the last, they all somehow fuse together. It is as though someone has departed, leaving behind traces like the guest who, obliged to leave his hotel room in a hurry, forgets to pack his personal belongings. The space left vacant by this moonlight flit or "slideaway" (to borrow a useful word from a song by the late Jimmy Durante) is still alive with the presence of a tangible being—it is filled with all kinds of loops, marks, crossmarks and calligraphy.

Natalie Edgar, who is also known for her art criticism, began these paintings about six years ago. She titles them collectively "Moving Bodies." They are all activity: colors foam and churn or seem to fall with a crash; black-edged planes veer into whites that have painted out other colors, and shadows and silhouettes seem to dig into the painted surface.

Some of these paintings feature a division between an upper and lower part clearly defined by a horizontal line. From this separating line a wave of paint flows upward. Below the line the space appears ruled by mysterious laws—the kind of world where, as Boccioni once said, "the sidewalk may leap upon the table." Indeed, Edgar might seem to be reworking Futurist concerns in a personal way. But the paintings possess their own distinct stylistic qualities and the relationship to Futurism is purely theoretical—as Edgar has said, the problem of "the object in space has always been a challenge to painters and must be reattacked every twenty years or so."

It is quite primitive to conceive of some bodies as being at rest and others as moving, as Max Born noted in his book The Restless Universe. Everything is in constant motion. It is this tense feeling of perpetual activity, of a tumbling chaos, that Edgar's paintings vividly convey.

—Lawrence Campbell

Natalie Edgar: Moving Bodies #3, 1982, 50 by 50 inches, oil on canvas; at Ingber.

Stewart Hitch: Planet Rock, 1982, oil on canvas, 30 by 40 inches; at Harm Bouckaert.

Jacob Kainen at Sid Deutsch

Jacob Kainen's career as a painter and printmaker goes back to the '30s in New York. During the days of the W.P.A. he was one of the editors of Art Front, the organ of the Artists Union, along with Ben Shahn, Stuart Davis and Harold Rosenberg. In 1942 Kainen accepted an appointment in the graphics division of the Smithsonian and four years later became a curator. In this capacity—and later as curator of prints and drawings at the National Collection of Fine Arts—he built up a remarkable collection. He continues to make prints and paint pictures, exhibiting regularly throughout the country, though rarely in New York.

Kainen's work has usually gone against the grain of whatever happened to be fashionably avant-garde at the time. His first exhibition in New York since his "Forty Years of Printmaking" at the Associated American Artists gallery in 1978 consisted of paintings composed of simple rectangles, each one painted a flat, quiet color. Arranged thoughtfully by curator Walter Hopps so that each work would count individually as well as bring out the qualities of the others, the show included nine pictures, seven of which were in the main gallery. The result was a room with a definite mood.

On entering the gallery, the viewer first saw two vertical paintings to the right—The Way LXXII, a white rectangle centered on overlapping rectangles of blue, orange and rose, and Aegean XVII, also in whites, blues and rose. On the opposite wall the horizontal The Way XXVI and the vertical Aegean XV enhanced each other's qualities; somehow this arrangement permitted the green horizontal bar in the latter to speak out with authority.

One might suppose that paintings composed with such apparently simple means would be quickly forgotten, but these pictures grew in my memory. They reminded me of the experience of looking at Ad Reinhardt's late black paintings—the more one remained in their presence, the more the subtlety of the colors revealed itself. Kainen has a rather brushy way of painting, and his colors are the result of several layers of paint. It looks as though his works develop rather slowly, the relationship of their forms changing as he goes along. He does not make drawings first and then fill them in, and there is nothing hard-edged or precisely geometrical about his forms—the rectangles are never exactly true or parallel to each other.

Kainen's colors recall reflections on a windowless wall in the last light of day, or colors when the light has been turned off. At times it is as though one could see into or through them—like looking at a faintly cloudy liquid contained in a glass vessel. As Albers once said, "we never perceive what color physically is," and it is this intangible, elusive quality of Kainen's work that I found most appealing. —Lawrence Campbell

Harry Koursaros at Haber/Theodore

In the early '70s Harry Koursaros used the grid in order to explore pictorial relationships; at this time he was a geometric abstractionist in the tradition of Albers. Then in the mid-'70s he introduced imagery into his painting, mostly Greek and Byzantine architectural motifs; this allied him somewhat with the pattern painters. More recently, however, he has peopled the colorful spaces of his grids with athletes, hunters and Amazons, all of whom seem caught somewhere between narrative action and decorative design.

Although Koursaros alludes to Cycladic pottery, Roman tiles and Islamic art, he does not seem particularly fascinated by the exotic in the way that, say, Robert Kushner is; in fact, he debunks and domesticates it. For example, he might take figures and narratives from antique art and give them a witty twist, as in Amazon Deity, where we see a humanoid beast gleefully kicking a nude male to the right and, to the left, a voluptuous, winged nude female leading three nude males by chains. Here, Koursaros brings myth down to earth and pokes fun at current polemics about sexual roles.

A similar debunking informs If the Greeks Played Baseball, where we see "the Greeks"—nude males—pitching, running and catching as if they were good American kids. As in the other paintings, these "pictographs" are incised so that the layers of color beneath the surface become visible. Here, too, the grid does not contain the figures and colors strictly, serving more as a narrative support than as a compositional method.

Koursaros's inventions within this format have become increasingly ambitious and fluent in the last few years. The ease with which his compelling images arise suggests that they are true products of his imagination.

—John Yau

Latin American Women Artists at Central Hall Artists

Not all Latin American art exemplifies the Caribbean cliché of stridently bright, primitivistic, political work. Even a glance at "Latin American Women Artists Living in New York" sufficed to reveal the inadequacy of this notion. The exhibition included one piece each by 15 women from seven countries. Definitely mainstream, their art has both an aura of sophistication and a delicacy of expression.

Because of the recent emphasis on news from underdeveloped Central America, it is easy to forget that Latin America contains extremely modern cities like São Paulo, Rio de Janeiro, Buenos Aires and Mexico City—cities which have a distinctly European flavor. It is similarly easy to forget how influential postwar United States art has been in Latin America. Promulgated by the international programs of the Museum of Modern Art, the Center for Inter-American Relations and the United States Information Agency, as well as by awards and grants from private companies with holdings in Latin America, United States art has influenced an entire generation of Latin American artists who work in the "international style."

Many different tendencies in Latin American art were represented in this show, ranging from the cool geometry of Fanny Sanin and the surrealism of Lilliana Porter to the tropical expressionism of Inverna Lockpez's Cuban roosters. In addition, the show included a number of lesser-known artists along with those who already have international reputations.

This exhibition was part of the current tendency to group artists by qualities extrinsic to their art—for example, by gender, national or racial origin, or even by sexual preference. Once an opportunity for artists excluded from the mainstream to exhibit, so-called "Third World" shows now play an especially equivocal role in relationship to work that attempts to be "universal" and is not specifically concerned with "Third World" issues. Thus, although this show contributed to the dismantling of stereotypic ideas about Latin America and gave some younger women artists a chance to be seen, it also provoked one to ask what, if any, insights were to be gained from seeing these works together.

If there are any unifying qualities, I think they lie in the subtle relationships that all these artists establish with their cultural roots and with feminist values. Many use natural materials like handmade paper as well as motifs from Indian and popular culture. These characteristics are most obvious in the doll constructions of Marina Gutierrez, which exploit a Puerto Rican folk art form to make an esthetically sophisticated statement about the Latin family structure, and in the conceptual work of Cuban artist Ana Mendieta, who reinterprets matriarchal religious images. They are apparent as well in a mixed medium hanging by Josely Carvalho, a member of Central Hall Artists and one of the organizers of the exhibition, who uses photographic silkscreen combined with expressionistic scrawls of crayon and paint. Carvalho's image of a working-class woman and a nude male raise questions of class and sexuality. Yet, as was the case with the exhibition as a whole, her point is not to express protest, but rather to achieve an effect of elegance.

Catalina Parra's collages are also exemplary. She manipulates mediums and materials as a kind of code language for addressing social issues. Parra combines stitching and coarse thread—an allusion to a Chilean form of women's folk art and poverty—with X-rays, which point to what lies beneath the surface.

Perhaps it is thematic subtlety itself that is the single most telling quality of all these works. In a dictatorship—and too many Latin American nations are currently police states—subtlety can mean the difference between life and death.

—Eva Cockcroft

Harry Koursaros: If the Greeks Played Baseball, 1983, acrylic on canvas, 60 by 45 inches; at Haber/Theodore.

Stewart Hitch at Harm Bouckaert

All of Hitch's new work is based on the crude exploding star shape that he has been using for about four years. Though the grounds of his paintings had taken on some dynamism by the time of his first show at Harm Bouckaert two years ago, his new work is more expressionistic in its brushwork, pattern and color: the centered star motif is now painted atop fields writhing with vectors suggesting explosions and fire.

Several of these new works are framed by stripes of color as if to tame the forces unleased by their hot reds and yellows. Breathless and Interrogation are esthetic as well as pictorial outbursts, barely contained by their cool blue frames. In the other paintings Hitch has toned down his brushwork somewhat in order to concentrate on his pattern and color relationships. In Planet Rock, for example, the star shape is simply the background seen through a fracture in the two predominant foreground planes of blue and orange.

New Generation is a nearly square painting divided into three horizontal bands of color in proportions reminiscent of Rothko's best known work: a fluorescent orange-red above, cyan in the center, and a greenish yellow below. The star, here a thin, gray outline, is echoed by a yellow outline and heightened by bright green, dry-brushed paint exploding at each of its nine points. It is almost as if Hitch had applied graffiti on top of a Rothko, imposing the new-wave sensibility of one generation on an icon of a previous one.

Urban graffiti seems to inform much of Hitch's new work. His palette has the range of bright to gritty color found on the side of any worked-over building or train, and his patterns appear influenced by random layerings of spray paint and defaced ads (especially the way these ads are plastered one over another, the top ones often ripped to expose others beneath). Hitch weights his figure and field equally, thereby achieving an allover emphasis without blurring any individual element; his rough expressionistic brushwork also binds his compositions together. Though this painterly vocabulary can be seen as a distillation of expressionism from Rouault to Rothenberg, Hitch's new paintings owe at least as much to the visual cacophony of the contemporary city. —Ellen Lubell

VOL 71 ISS 9 OC 1983 UMI

Edith Schloss at Ingber

Edith Schloss paints airy pictures of contending spirits and legends of an enchanted island where deities are hidden like locusts in the grass. Sometimes she starts with only paint like mud on the canvas, but in this mud she is able to conceive of "ghoulies and ghosties and long-leggity beasties" which her brush skewers, making a mirage of gold or silver out of what was initially a paint-mire.

Another group of paintings—each in four separate sections on the same canvas—she calls quadrifoglios. One of these is quartered like a medieval shield into monochromatic panels of blue, yellow, green and red, going around the surface clockwise. Each of the four is really a separate work, and presumably they might have been cut up and exhibited in a line. However, there is nothing unpleasing in this arrangement of four.

Schloss also showed a series of watercolors in exquisite colors. Harking back to her work in the 1940s, each is a picture of a window with small things or flowers on the sill and a view through the window of the sea with Merlin's isle and lighthouse in the distance, sometimes a tiny steamer, and often the early morning sun rising in the east. The objects on the sill form a kind of inner landscape and are like notes on the treble staff (even though they are placed at the foot of the picture where, in a sheet of choral music, one would expect to find the bass).

A second group of oils relates in subject to the watercolors; one is a startler called Shine, essentially an all yellow painting, but with the sun defined as a circle of red with pink lines notching the disk, which, by some alchemy of color, suggests the sun's afterimage dancing in the viewer's eye.

In these latest works Schloss (who has been living in Italy since 1962 where she is now the art critic covering Italy for the International Herald Tribune) pulls together the different strands of her art going back to her earliest work in New York during the '40s and '50s. At that time she was better known for her boxes and assemblages than for her paintings of subjects similar to the ones in her work now—grasses and wildflowers thrust into jars and bottles on the shelves and window sills of her cabin in Maine. Although these older paintings and her present work may seem different, the inner content has not changed very much. For Schloss, art has always been the enchanted waters of a pond fed by a hidden spring deep in the woods. On the surface of this pond she plays ducks and drakes by skipping stones across it, while reaching at the same time for the top brick on the art chimney. She has no concern for categorizing the particular style or direction of her work, no more than the present reviewer who has admired her work for many years. In reply to an art critic, Schloss once remarked: "What I really do is what any painter worth his salt has always done. I abstract color and line from life around me, and make another life out of it."
—Lawrence Campbell

Edith Schloss: It's Supposed to be a Tiger, 1982, oil on canvas, 9 by 10 inches; at Ingber.

Neil Anderson: Ground Painting, 1983, watercolor, 47 by 94½ inches; at Fischbach.

Wolf Kahn: Airport, 1983, oil on canvas, 52 by 80 inches; at Grace Borgenicht.

Neil Anderson at Fischbach

The large watercolors Neil Anderson showed here in June belong to the ongoing series of works (including many in oil on canvas) he calls "Ground Paintings." The title is well chosen. Not only are his images based on projected photographs of the forest floor, but they are also visually dense with jostlings of figure and ground. He may even intend a reference to the early history of his medium, when many watercolorists ground their own pigments from mineral and vegetable matter.

Realism is not at issue in Anderson's work. He photographs areas of leaf-covered earth because they provide an inexhaustible source of uncomposed descriptive patterns. A close look at his pictures reveals that the underdrawing is loose and unfussed, a brisk carving of the page into theaters of painting action. Anderson's painting has never been more relaxed and athletic; indeed, no artist working in watercolor today handles it with greater daring or dexterity. He is not always respectful of his images' verisimilitude, for his aim is apparently to achieve the freshness of surface and transparency of color that only the finest watercolor technique can sustain. Since he is painting fallen leaves for the most part ("leaves on Arches," he says, referring to his chosen brand of paper), he favors the high-keyed reds and yellows of fall foliage, punctuating them with sap green, and even with an icy blue that fits coloristically, though not descriptively. The brilliant colors fill the paintings with light, yet they do not produce illusions of illumination. His handling of watercolor seems to merge light and the things it illumines in a way that we usually associate with oil painting.

There is almost no space in Anderson's watercolors because the images are tight close-ups. The leaf and twig forms are so much larger than life, and so much a pretext for releasing the energies of color, that they seem to flicker between abstraction and figuration with shifts of the viewer's attention.

The technical brilliance of Anderson's work may cause us to overlook the artistic intelligence operating in it. His choice of the forest floor as a source of images is a way of continuing the watercolor landscape tradition in contemporary terms, the aerial point of view common to all his pictures making them landscapes without horizons. And although the images have no frontal depth, they afford visual entry from all sides. In this and other respects, of course, the "Ground Paintings" bring to mind the work of Jackson Pollock, for Anderson has rotated the viewpoint of pictorial representation so that it in fact corresponds to Pollock's method of addressing the picture surface from above. Anderson further joins Pollock in affirming the most basic qualities of the painter's activity: to make a picture is to cover a surface. Whatever pleasures and meanings arise in consequence must derive visibly from such basic facts of the painting process. It is this sense of workmanly principle implicit in Anderson's art that keeps it from seeming merely decorative, high color and light touch notwithstanding. His ability to work watercolor at large scale (some recent pictures are 4 by 7 feet) underlines the connection to Pollock.

The ground as subject, or representational pretext, also provides Anderson with pictorial content that is cleverly aligned with the history of painting, but completely detached from other facts of history (except perhaps photography). His paintings are unmistakably contemporary, yet they pertain only in the most glancing way to the issues of the day. The time they invoke is the endless round of seasons in which history is engulfed. —Kenneth Baker

Barbara Zucker: Morristown Red Series, 1983, installation view, painted wood, ca. 8 feet high; at Pam Adler (review on p. 187).

John Okulick: Midnight Station, 1983, painted wood, 26 by 63 by 5 inches; at Nancy Hoffman (review on p. 186).

Royden Rabinowitch: Three Right Limits added to a Developed Nine Manifold, 1983, sandblasted steel, 102 by 59 by 2 inches; at John Weber.

Wolf Kahn at Grace Borgenicht

In The Raven Edgar Allan Poe was thrilled by the rustling of purple curtains which produced in him "fantastic terrors never felt before," feelings central to the then new 19th-century sensibility. Wolf Kahn also seeks to express feelings unfelt by anyone before, ones occasioned not by the rustling of things, but by the intangible relationships that arise when more than two colors are seen together. These feelings may be aroused by the sight of a field against the sky, or by a sunset glow behind a wood, or by rooftops seen below the level of a highway. They are realized through the color and texture of paint or the dry, dusty densities of pastel undercoatings—and through sizzling oranges and hazy violets rendered in short, sharp, scribbled strokes.

Color relationships are abstractions, and all genuine art has always been abstract. There are numerous painters who, like Kahn, paint pictures of "simple nature"—but how many are interested in a color relationship which approaches disharmony and is only made harmonious by the presence of other colors acting as a go-between? Such relationships may be new and unseen by anybody before, and therefore, like Poe's purple curtains, may create a new frisson of originality. In these color relationships, Kahn merits a direct confrontation with Rothko, but since Kahn is labeled a realist or an Impressionist by museum curators, it is unlikely that such a meeting will ever take place—at least not in his lifetime.

In this latest show of paintings and pastels Kahn's color is more radiant than ever. To his familiar though never tedious repertoire of themes he adds a new subject in Open Studio, a picture of his barn with both doors flapping open like the wings of a giant flying beetle. The dark yellow of the doors seems bright against the dark browns and purples of the interior. Whereas in most of Kahn's paintings he is sufficiently distanced to offer his subject in one homogeneous viewpoint, in this painting he had to paint from close up because there was no way of getting further back. The result is a successful attempt at combining two or more viewpoints in one coordinated image. Where the Brook Flows into the Pond is another fine picture, with its curving ellipse of bright green startling the dark colors. In Airport a sweeping space of yellow beneath a hazy sky looks like a powdered face seen through a veil.

In pastel Kahn seems to have found a medium invented expressly for his personal use. There is nobody handling it more interestingly today. (A recently issued book on Kahn, Pastel Light, published by Station Hill Press, contains first-rate color plates as well as a text by the artist and an interview by Isabella Halsted.)

It always used to be early morning in Kahn's paintings. Today it is always Sunday during Indian Summer, with just the merest trace of a bite in the air.

—Lawrence Campbell

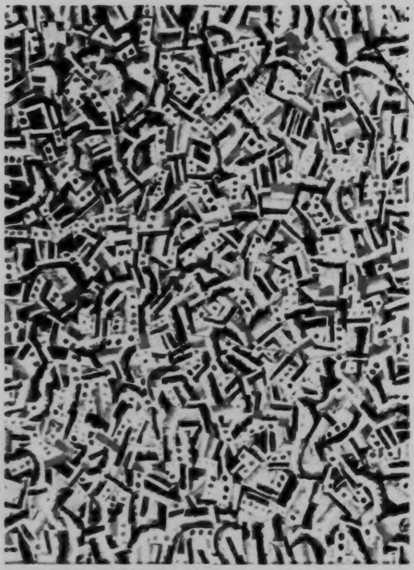
Royden Rabinowitch at John Weber

Royden Rabinowitch occasionally tries to buttress his sculpture with theoretical statements. Unfortunately, these pronouncements are usually cast in language so impacted and opaque as to make his work sound more inaccessible than it really is. Rabinowitch seems to accept the logic of Carl Andre's Minimalism, according to which steel sculpture that is true to its material should be deployed unsupported on the floor. Moreover, the principles of its construction should be obvious and intelligible, especially if vertical structure is involved. Broadly speaking, Rabinowitch tries to make floor sculpture of maximum complexity with a minimum of parts and virtually no verticality. His basic procedure has been to shape polygonal sheets of steel with slight linear creases that facet the surface into a number of contiguous planes. The creases elevate the sculpture a couple of inches from the floor at their highest point.

The recent works Rabinowitch showed this spring reached a new level of resolution in two respects. The first is technical: he now uses sandblasted mild steel which reflects light in a way crucially different from many of his earlier floor pieces. From certain vantage points the crease-ridges in these sandblasted pieces seem to disappear. The result is that the number of facets the crimped surface appears to have changes as you move around it, though no viewpoint is obstructed. Rabinowitch complicates this perspectival play by overlapping all or part of a surface facet with one or even two additional uncreased sheets of steel having the same velvety silver finish. From certain angles it is possible to lose sight of the number of layers of steel in a given sculpture because the sheets are so thin they cast no shadow at

VOL
71
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

Donald Baechler: Oum Kalsoum, 1983, acrylic on canvas, 60 inches square; at Tony Shafrazi.



Joseph Glasco: Untitled, 1981–82, collage, 96 by 72 inches; at Gimpel & Weitzenhoffer.

their far edges.

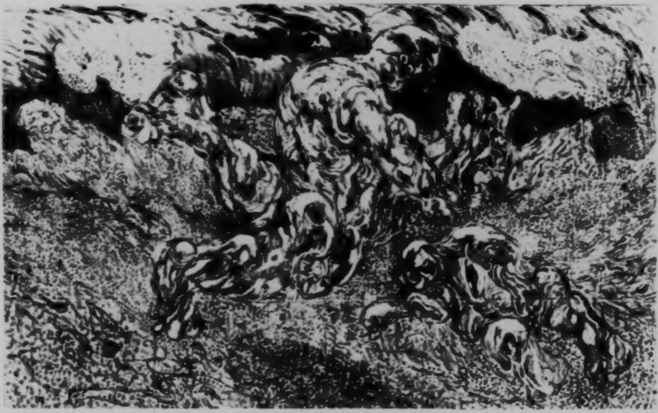
The second refinement of Rabinowitch's recent work is actually inseparable from the first. It is seen in the "drawing" of the sculptures' perimeter. Just as the number of segments in each work appears to fluctuate, so does the number of the object's perimeter angles. So, although Rabinowitch's pieces look simple at first glance, they grow more elusive upon closer inspection.

In his recent sculpture Rabinowitch has succeeded in abstracting from everyday experience the tensions that inevitably arise from changes of viewpoint, whether those changes are literal shifts of position or exercises of imagination or memory. The ambiguities of his sculpture operate on the viewer's perception, yet their significance is not just phenomenological. Rabinowitch makes number ambiguous—how many parts, how many angles?—fashioning a sculptural analogue to the threads of reality and the events which we never seem to grasp firmly enough. He has clearly done this with some thought to the tendency of our time to ground certainties in number whenever possible. There is thus a broad timeliness to Rabinowitch's work despite its unfashionable stylistic coolness.

—Kenneth Baker

John Okulick at Nancy Hoffman

John Okulick continues to turn out handsome wood relief constructions with the illusionistic power to tilt the walls on which they hang. The components of Okulick's art are pieces of stock lumber he miters and shaves into shapes that imply specific vanishing points. Through the combination of these elements Okulick builds peculiar tensions between appearance and tangible form into his objects. He further increases perceptual tensions by painting parts or the whole of a work.



Sven Wiig Hansen: Untitled, ca. 1978–79, ink on paper, 23 by 31 inches; at Bonlow.

Nearly all of Okulick's pieces are variations on a single illusion: the impression that we are looking down at an angle upon something that actually faces us frontally. With a little imagination, works such as Hub and Midnight Station turn the wall into a floor. One of the most appealing qualities of Okulick's work is its disregard for architecture. However, the systematic structure required to undermine the visual integrity of the wall gives his constructions a strange rigidity. Okulick seems to be trying to deal with this weakness by making his work less imagistic and more evocative of particular moods.

Most of the new pieces are relatively bright in tone, and sometimes in color as well. He had muted the literal reality of Hub, for example, by painting each surface a color different from that of the adjacent one, avoiding juxtapositions that might imply light and shadow. The relationship between colors and configuration is so arbitrary it exaggerates the pictorial quality of the object as a whole and breaks our fixation on the physical facts of its construction. The artist confesses that the birth of his first child during the past year may account in part for the light mood and toylike look of several recent works.

Expressway appears to be a transitional work between objects that look like carpentry (open boxes, channels or tabletops) and structures, such as Midnight Station, that seem to make no reference beyond themselves. Expressway is a constellation of unpainted wood elements—receding wedges, simple tapering planks—hemmed in by a great clutter of small, gaily colored rhomboids, pyramids and bias-cut cylinders.

I have rarely seen an Okulick standing alone, but it would be interesting to look at the recent works in isolation since they seem to depend for effect upon each other's proximity, almost in the way their constitutent parts do. Isolation might paradoxically heighten the formulaic qualities of any given piece. Okulick continually runs the risk of falling into formularized decisions, the more so the longer he continues to work in his familiar format. However, the intricate craft problems posed and solved in each individual piece keep the work from sinking into routine.

The strongest of the new works is Midnight Station, a piece painted the color of charcoal. Ominous and slightly futuristic-looking, this work is not at all representational, though at one point it does offer up a sort of arrow, like a one-way street sign. The piece looks rangier, more massive, and more distant than it really is. There is a hallucinatory intensity to it that many of Okulick's works promise but lack. In Midnight Station, Okulick has made a work which seems as psychologically remote as it is illusionistic. It consolidates the evocative powers of his art in a new way, and, one hopes, points the direction his work will take in the future.

—Kenneth Baker

Joseph Glasco at Gimpel & Weitzenhoffer

Glasco's painting is an artistic case of having your cake and eating it too. The "having" is Action Painting—ragged stripes of green or white or brick-red with purple, and gestural dots in rows of two or three or four. The "eating" is cutting up these canvases into short strips—as if through some giant painting shredder—and collaging them all over large, previously Action-Painted canvas surfaces. Sometimes the works come in the form of freestanding decorative screens; at other times, they hang mural-size on the wall, bordered by strips of velveteen that echo the painting's primary color—orange or gold or purple.

And why shouldn't Glasco—a 58-year-old artist who attended the Art Students League in the '50s and has been working and showing since in Mexico City, Taos, Athens, Boston and New York—have his cake and eat it at the same time? That is—or can be—what art is all about, the finessing of the impossible. If Glasco doesn't exhibit all the finer qualities of, say, the Abstract Expressionists or the Color Field painters, his paintings are nonetheless fresh and hearty, with the dopey boldness of Léger or Stuart Davis.

Glasco does go serious on us in a few instances—big black-on-canvas abstractions that are outsized mosaics of spoked circles and dots and thick outlining. These works, though, are strongly reminiscent of the beginnings of Abstract Expressionism, especially Pollock's psychoanalytic drawings—a kind of slice-of-life-of-the-unconscious. Better the paintings that are a piece of cake.

—Gerrit Henry

Barbara Zucker at Pam Adler

"Pattern Sculpture" may be the best phrase to describe the bulk of Barbara Zucker's spring show. In the gallery's main room she covered most of the floor with an oblique lattice of wood planks painted a color called "Sage Gray." To this openwork platform she attached an ensemble of standing wooden lattice triangles painted "Morristown Red." All three triangles were placed perpendicular to the floor, but their apexes inclined in different directions at various angles. The standing forms were constructed similarly to the deck under them: parallel lengths of lumber nailed together at regular intervals to form a grid. The triangles, however, were composed of three layers of planks, rather than two. Zucker made these objects decoratively distinct by cutting into the boards' edges simple moulding motifs derived from the "gingerbread" on 19th-century New England houses.

There was an unpretentious, workmanlike lack of elegance to Zucker's pieces, yet they were rich in sculptural reference. The standing triangles neither encouraged nor resisted analogy with the human figure. But when you saw them as figures, their criss-crossing rows of parallels gave them a futuristic, electronically mediated look. Any time spent with them will bring to mind Giacometti's board-game sculptures of the 1930s, and his later "city squares," in which symbols of attenuated humanity strut their unconscious determination not to connect. The direct handling of wood and the appropriation of American Scene architectural details recall Brancusi's assimilation and use of carved Rumanian folk building embellishments.

Zucker apparently wanted to make "architectural" sculpture without the false grandiosity to which that genre often inclines and without making an enclosed structure. She succeeded by resourcefully abstracting some basic patterns of structure and ornamentation from domestic architecture. The colors she used are also traditional to houses in the Northeast. Their association with older popular architecture gave Zucker's pieces a commemorative, almost nostalgic quality that was nonetheless pleasingly free of sentimentality. Her work struck an effective balance between allusive form and sculptural autonomy.

The large installation was accompanied by a series of small "Spiky Triangles" cut out of sheet steel from templates drawn by the artist. These pieces were much more suggestive of "characters"—both human and calligraphic—than the large objects, perhaps because of their freehand profiles. A couple of them inclined at steep angles, like people walking into a stiff wind. All were kept standing on a waist-high shelf by steel tabs affixed at the back. Their frontal surfaces had been scoured with black oil stick, taking on enough gestural energy to look like passages of drawing extruded into freestanding objects. From a distance, these pieces appeared to be solidified shadows, or even, depending on their disposition, dark crevasses opening in the white wall behind. To her credit, Zucker's esthetic treatment of the "Spiky Triangles" never let the observer lose sight of the fact that they are slivers of steel. —Kenneth Baker

Donald Baechler at Tony Shafrazi

Donald Baechler introduces a figure relatively new to modern American art: the artist as fashion plate. Life may have done a spread on the young Jackson Pollock in the '50s—but Pollock wasn't photographed in designer clothes, as was Baechler in a recent issue of New York magazine. "I like my art to look as if it's been kicked around a little," Baechler is quoted as saying, "and I feel the same way about my clothes."

Well, his art doesn't look like it's been kicked around enough. Painting in acrylic, scumbling layer over layer of gray and tan, Baechler incises his canvases with silly subcartoon faces: a dour-faced matron, a head with short-cropped hair, and a fish in Fish Story; three post-Dubuffet men and four children's-Christmas-card pine trees in Schwarzwald; a scribbledy-dibbledy head in tribute to the Egyptian singing star Oum Kalsoum; and so on. In the easy, nitwit grace of each painting, the artist seems to be saying, "Look ma, no hands"—or as few as possible in keeping with the purity of his kindergartenish vision.

A series of journal notations from Robert Pincus-Witten in the catalogue made Baechler's work seem almost mature: "Each element is rehearsed over and over, though painted in ways to suggest a clumsy freshness and sense of adventure." But the pictures really aren't that fresh or adventurous, just—almost shamelessly—modish.

Interestingly, Baechler's bio from the gallery includes a head shot at the top of the page. And recently Shafrazi presented him and other artists—among them Tom Otterness, Jean-Michel Basquiat and Keith Haring—in a catalogue called Champions. (Already? Most of these guys were born in the '50s and '60s, for heaven's sake.) Given his pouty good looks, Baechler certainly deserves his head shot. But, as the mentor once told the protegé on being asked if he thought he was good looking, "Not enough to interfere with your career." Baechler's New York-punk image is, decidely, interfering. So far, it's better than the art. —Gerrit Henry

Svend Wiig Hansen at Bonlow

Wiig Hansen is a Danish Expressionist whose bizarre drawings and paintings first reminded me of the sculptor Gaetano Zumbo's portrayal of putrefaction in the National Museum in Florence (sculpture which Hawthorne in his Italian Notebook described as "a very ugly piece of work indeed"), and then of the drawings of Wilhelm Busch, the 19th-century German cartoonist and illustrator. Hansen brings all kinds of things into his art—takes us way out beyond the 200-mile limit of Danish art, in fact. His work recalls that period in late Gothic art when European artists discovered India and with glee introduced into Christian iconography images of strange foreign demons and goddesses.

At the 1964 Venice Biennale Hansen covered entire walls with his graffiti-type drawings. His even larger ceramic reliefs may be seen at the the Herning Hospital in Denmark and at the Kastrup Church in Copenhagen. He is by turn sculptor, painter, graphic artist, illustrator and set designer, and he has also worked on films. In 1960 he won a Guggenheim International Award, yet remains little known in this country. This was his first one-man show in New York.

Hansen's American debut consisted of two parts: relatively small drawings and paintings occupying two walls, and enormous paintings on unstretched canvas. He is more successful in the former. The drawings, filled with subtleties, depict groups of people in varying conditions of anguish and torment. One long series of drawings presents a parade of men and women with their faces melting in the fire—an allegory, perhaps, of the Welfare State, its vision of a harmonious condition grimly transformed into a holocaust. It is these piercingly precise drawings which reminded me of Busch—not so much of his famous creations, the twins Max and Moritz (the originals of Rudolf Dirks's Katzenjammer Kids), but of Ice Peter, the story of a boy who does not heed his parents. Peter ventures out in the depth of winter to go skating, falls through the ice and freezes into a prickly porcupine shape. His father brings him home to thaw out in front of the stove, but the heat turns him into a gruel which his parents scoop off the floor and spoon into a pot. The story ends with a pot labeled "Peter" on a shelf next to pickles and cheese. Hansen's blubbery figures—like gingerbread with spiky appendages—have the cannibalistic intensity which Busch's cruel inventions all possess in varying degrees.

Hansen's large paintings seem crude compared to his drawings. The colors are raw and more or less unconnected with the figures—as though he had simply flung paint onto the drawn areas. The images themselves—men (or women?) and farm animals—seem bloated, without form. The apocalyptic mood of the drawings is missing somehow; there is too much vehemence, too much straining after dramatic effect. Yet there is one large, silvery painting that is better than the others, perhaps because there is little color, for color is never Hansen's strong point. (This show also appeared at the Arco Center for Visual Art in Los Angeles, April 12–May 21.)

—Lawrence Campbell

Cynthia Carlson at Pam Adler

The title of Cynthia Carlson's latest exhibition, "Insects: A Guide," forewarned the visitor to expect something quite different from her wall installations. The show consisted of 28 paintings of insects, oil-on-canvas works which stemmed from the artist's participation in a New Jersey competition for the decoration of an entomological research facility. The commission was eventually awarded to a local artist, but Carlson found herself intrigued by the images she'd come up with, and so continued to make use of the insect as subject.

VOL 71 ISS 9 OC 1983 UMI

While the exhibition might seem a complete break from Carlson's past work—the paintings, for one thing, were not done directly on the wall—it was still essentially an installation. The artist had obviously taken special care with the spacing of the paintings and with the way they were arranged to complement one another. The gallery walls were painted a dark brown, emphasizing the paintings' bright colors, and occasional pieces were further set off by gray outlines. All this painstaking detail went far beyond an artist's usual desire to present his or her paintings attractively; the individual paintings were here being considered as elements in a larger composition.

Mounted beside each painting was a text describing the life cycle and habits of the insect depicted. The texts read like entries from a biology textbook and gave the show a museum-of-natural-history quality, although the paintings could hardly be considered scientific illustrations. Their colors are wild, almost Day-Glo in tone: turquoise, hot pink and flaming orange laid on in many layers with broad strokes. With few exceptions, the canvases present single insects in giant scale, and the images are so closely cropped that they seem about to burst out of their spaces. While somewhat true-to-life (I'm sure an entomologist could identify each species), they are nonetheless divorced from life. Their sheer size (4 feet across, and more) makes them into decorative motifs. This, coupled with the absence of natural backgrounds, moves them from nature to the world of art. Yet the scientific descriptions bespeak the origins of the images, and the small cards call insistent attention to themselves. This juxtaposition of pop rendering with sober fact lent the installation an ambiguous depth.

Like virtually all of Carlson's earlier work, this exhibition displayed an underlying streak of humor, the importance of which is too often overlooked in discussions of her art. Many of the insects, while not exactly anthropomorphized, nonetheless appear to have distinct personalities. It is hard, for example, to avoid seeing a maniacal glint in the Dog Flea's eye.

These paintings evince all the trademarks of Carlson's previous work: wit, a sure decorative sense and a feel for the extended composition. The use of representational images adds a new dimension to Carlson's development.

—Reagan Upshaw

Sandro Chia at Castelli Greene St.

Sandro Chia has placed himself squarely within the bounds of European painterly convention and tradition, for tradition affords him a vocabulary and hence a semblance of meaning. He borrows unabashedly from other painters (Chagall, Picasso, Monet), but his borrowings are not so much formal appropriations of style as existential exercises directed at discovery—the discovery of a subject matter. For Chia, as for many other young artists, to paint or not to paint is not the question: instead, it is what to paint that gives pause. To all appearances Chia is not wanting for subjects; but despite their cultural and mythological allusions, his paintings lack the self-assured specificity of a personal voice, tending to treat content formally and grapple with trifles as though they were wrestling a beast. The paintings' rough textures and unquiet, muddy grounds overwhelm the figures rather like vast palettes grown crusty from overuse, yet from which it seems the artist hopes intimations of the marvelous will emerge. Chia labors his surfaces as though through sheer presence paint could materialize that "physical proof of metaphysical existence" (as he has called the work of art) which is not to be found in the unnatural mythology of his figures. Chia's mythology is almost of a generic brand, one that chooses to disregard its late-20th-century context. Paintings such as Woman Riding the Beast (a rape of Europa scene) are clearly intended to conjure up a world of symbolic archetypes and "timeless" cultural myths.

As if to tip the odds in favor of the metaphysical existence to which he aspires, Chia has recently complemented the insufficient gravity of paint with the weightier argument of bronze. In this, his second show of the 1982-83 season, he exhibited 10 sizable oil paintings and four large bronze sculptures, two of which were variations on the sexually ambiguous figures he showed earlier in the season. The sculptures are usually, though not always, accompanied by paintings on the same theme. By virtue of its size, Man and Vegetation dominated the show—standing eight feet high, it presented a fable of man, civilization, nature and decay. The stylized head of this half-kneeling figure is thrust upward in a gesture of optimistic defiance; budding vines clamber over him claiming his bloated limbs, which metamorphose into brick columns. The unbroken surface of the shoulders seems still threatened by the progress of their growth.

Chia has transposed the anxiety of his paint surfaces into the modeling of the bronze where, unhampered by color, it is more articulate. The differentiation of surface textures establishes emotional correspondences: the smooth, calm shoulders counterpoint the ragged chaos of the vegetation and the meticulous faceting of the buttocks and foot. The vines of an apparently vengeful nature erode the skin and thus can read as veins run riot over a body whose artifice lies in the disturbance of logic and proportion: this monument is part human, part edifice (the bricks), and part nature (the vines)—and the direction of the metamorphosis isn't entirely clear. Despite the mythological associations, this sculpture has a clumsy kitschiness that brings to mind the absurd transformations in fairy tales—rather than some god, this is more likely the giant, overtaken not by Jack, but by the Beanstalk.

In Boy and Ram, a somewhat smaller bronze, a boy with the sweet, expressionless features of a young Apollo grasps a ram, but the ram's body breaks open to reveal a brick construction. Limbless, both boy and animal stand on stacks of bronze bricks—ruins that seem to propose a bit more than an anachronistic stylization of antiquity. Boy and Ram possesses the same duplicity and ambiguity of metamorphosis as Man and Vegetation—they are both representations of damaged idealizations of man and nature, though their deliberate metaphoric confusion owes more to Surrealism than to current issues of representation.

Chia's art-historical borrowings are not confined to his paintings—Man and Vegetation recalls both Man Ray's Imaginary Portrait of de Sade and Magritte's "Souvenir d'un voyage" paintings—but he manages to make them more his own in the sculpture. Two paintings which depicted variants on the kneeling male figure of Man and Vegetation appeared mawkish and mannered next to the bronze. Chia's sculpture promises a more cogent, contemporary treatment of his concerns than is evident in the paintings, but that promise has yet to be fully realized.

—Jamey Gambrell

Scott MacLeay at Marcuse Pfeifer

This presentation of Scott MacLeay's color photographs was an abbreviated version of his exceptional show held at the American Center in Paris during the fall of 1982. That show was also divided between black-and-white and color prints. While there was much to admire in the black-and-white work, the color material was more original and more consistent.

MacLeay's use of Fresson prints—a little-known stable color process—creates grainy surface color and thin saturations. There is an unabashed lyricism in the choice of background colors such as turquoise, lavender, soft orange and rose—a plein-air Impressionist palette of the kind the Pictorialists used in early 20th-century autochromes. The emotional effect can sometimes border on the sentimental, yet these lyrical moments inform extremely considered compositions. The human presence here is highly artificial and theatricalized—anatomy is metamorphosed into pure shape, devoid of psychological considerations. Whether dealing with a single nude, clothed figures or arm and torso "segments," MacLeay opts for an abstracted, formal placement of the body within the picture frame. Using dancers as models, he is clearly concerned with distillations of human motion in which the erotic element remains marginal. By treating the body as a formal entity, MacLeay honors a tradition that stretches from Weston to Mapplethorpe.

If there is a weakness in MacLeay's work, it is one of self-consciousness. His strength is in marrying human form and color, transforming choreographic motion into its constituent gestures and reducing composition to a two-dimensional graphic surface in which body parts are abstractly integrated. For all the abstract play, however, these lithe and limber dancers, beautifully poised in gestures so austere they seem like visual haiku, never wholly abandon three-dimensional reality. MacLeay seems to be aiming at a conjunction of esthetic and spiritual concerns. The choreographic quality appears to allude loosely to ritual exercises such as Zen or yoga. His models do not convey joyous abandon, but are posed in apparently purposeful and measured attitudes.

When MacLeay speaks of "the use of very simple, detail-free forms" in his work, and of his role as somewhat like that of the social scientist who "tries to simplify reality, to isolate essentials," he is Sandro Chia: Man and Vegetation, 1983, bronze, 99 by 70 by 67 inches; at Leo Castelli.

Scott MacLeay: Untitled, 1980–81, black-and-white photograph; at Marcuse Pfeifer.

of course arguing against narrative interpretation of his work. Yet MacLeay's elegant esthetics are forced into the realm of real feeling by his use of human gesture that evokes spiritual rites, and by his choice of colors that are weighted toward the tender, lyrical, romantic and sweet. For some viewers these qualities might seem to create a false nostalgia, but there is courage, in a cynical age, in walking a tightrope of fragile emotions.

—Allen Ellenzweig

WALTHAM, MASS.

Charles Garabedian at Rose Art Museum

There are artists who will never become part of the mainstream: H.C. Westermann was one; Charles Garabedian is another. Garabedian has explored his personal vision in abstract and figurative modes for the past two decades, never assuming the dominant style nor arriving at a signature one of his own. Organized by Rose Museum director Carl Belz (who also wrote the catalogue introduction), this exhibition presented a selection of Garabedian's work in various mediums from the past 20 years.

An example of Garabedian's many interests is provided by Self-Portrait, 1972, which combines paper collage, drawing (of nuts and bolts) and a small self-portrait. Garabedian has even poured different colored resins onto the paper, allowing them to harden into thin opaque layers in which various abstract shapes can be seen. In the upper right-hand corner is the portrait, done in pencil much like a student's excercise. Remarkably, this self-portrait bears a resemblance to Arshile Gorky in his self-portraits from the '30s.

Like Gorky, Garabedian is Armenian, and he too is a brilliant draftsman (indeed, his self-portrait evokes that period in Gorky's work influenced by Ingres and Le Nain). But whereas Gorky wrestled with sources—Cubism, biomorphic abstraction, Surrealism—in a heroic attempt to reach his own ground, Garabedian does not feel the need to contend with prevailing styles. Instead, he intuitively explores various modes and methods—drawing, painting, collage, resin works, watercolors—often in the same work.

Many of Garabedian's images are narrative in structure. In these works, we usually see solitary figures in scenes of violence and desire that evoke movie melodrama: a man literally tearing his heart out, a woman in a bathroom surrounded by bones, an assassin lurking, Jean Harlow lying naked and dreamy-eyed on the ground.

Recently, on the basis of works such as these, some critics have written of Garabedian as a faux naif, associating him with "bad painting." However, as is clear from Self-Portrait, his awareness of history and attention to detail is too specific and personal to be seen as partaking of the histrionic, antimodernist attitudes of such art. Far from being naive, Garabedian is well aware of what it is to be an artist today, as his complex works attest. —John Yau

TORONTO

Murray Favro at the Art Gallery of Ontario

Canadian artist Murray Favro makes objects that are almost more impressive as engineering feats than as esthetic objects. The model of a windmill from his original design, the slides and films projected on three-dimensional tableaux, the one-seater airplane and the half-scale model of a fighter jet fuselage that made up the most interesting part of his retrospective remind us how close our appreciation of a work of art can be to our appreciation of a clever machine.

One of his better-known pieces, Van Gogh's Room (1973–74), is a life-size diorama of the painter's bedroom rendered in the tortured perspective of his painting, Vincent's Bedroom at Arles. A slide of the painting is projected onto the wooden model, matching its contours exactly and providing colors and details. Favro uses the same technique with a canvas-covered wood model of a 1961 Corvair on a country road and a still life of a stick of gum, a pack of cigarettes and a couple of pots on a washing machine.

He takes his over-engineered illusionism one step further in Synthetic Lake (1972–73). A film loop showing waves breaking on a beach is projected onto a sheet of cotton duck attached to a "wave mechanism" made with hinged, moving slats. The dreamy, romantic image of sea and shore, ear-

VOL
71

ISS
9

OC

1983

UMI

ArtScan?

Never heard of it.

You will.

ARTSCAN
The International Communications Network for the Art World
1013 Madison Avenue, New York, NY 10021

nestly simulated by a noisy contraption, is wonderfully silly.

Favro's wood constructions are obviously handmade and look as if they could have been knocked off by some 16th-century Florentine carpenter after drawings by Leonardo. His "improved windmill" incorporates a universal joint that is supposed to keep the machine operating at peak efficiency even when the wind changes direction. However, a film of the windmill in action shows the thing flapping about like a large bird trying to take off with one foot nailed to a pole. But if it fails as engineering, the "improved windmill" still passes as art, utilitarian necessity having organized the parts into a trim whole. The ambitious model of a jet fuselage, Sabre Jet (1979-83), is awesome for the number of man-hours it represents. It also suggests, somewhat frighteningly, how Brancusi's true heirs make their living today.

Favro is an artist whose originality and power come largely from his ability to envision a convergence of sculpture and engineering. He places himself in a tradition of artist-inventors that goes back to the Renaissance, even as he makes a provocative contribution to contemporary art.

—Ross Skoggard

Kenneth Josephson: Washington, D.C., 1975, black-and-white photograph, 11 by 14 inches; at Museum of Contemporary Art.

Murray Favro: Sabre Jet, 55% Size, 1979-83, aluminum, steel, fiberglass and aircraft hardware; at Art Gallery of Ontario.

CHICAGO

Kenneth Josephson at the Museum of Contemporary Art

Judging Kenneth Josephson's photographs by today's standards may not be altogether fair. Josephson came of age in the '60s, when photography was exploding as a medium. This explosion, in retrospect, was one of the last gasps of avant-garde expression to make it through the pluralistic '70s. Today, when photography is being held hostage in the artist's studio, Josephson's work seems intellectually forced—some pieces tend to look a little gimmicky, however clever the idea lurking beneath the photoemulsion may be. But fortunately, his best photographs are pictorially striking enough to hold up without resorting to Conceptual or art-historical games.

Josephson divides most of his photographs into four continuing series, all fully represented in this, his first major retrospective. From the "Marks and Evidences of Events" series there was Stockholm, 1967, his famous profile of a Volvo automobile casting a perfect "shadow" of snow. The fact that many of the scenes in this series are the equivalent of found art objects adds to their visual magic. His sense of whimsy peaks with Chicago, 1976, which shows a pencil scientifically pinpointing the imprint of elastic panties on a woman's hips. However, he appears to have run out of steam in Wisconsin, 1980, where he resorts to artificial manipulation, spray painting several leaves white in a dark forest scene.

Matthew, 1965 is well known from the "Images within Images" series. It depicts Josephson's toddler son holding up a snapshot of himself upside down in front of his face as if it were a camera, finger cocked and ready to snap a photo of his father. If the son is the "spitting image" of his dad, then this is surely an improvement on Lee Friedlander's self-portraits in mirrors. But in the "History of Photography" series Josephson's visual shoptalk never transcends self-mockery, remaining on the level of art school in-jokes. These works, with their references to Stieglitz, Steichen, Muybridge and Weston, may be a barrel of laughs to those in the know, but otherwise they're about as funny as a crutch to someone without an art-historical leg to stand on. The "Archaeological Series" is equally abstruse, but the images are often so silly or absurd that they provoke interest even when masquerading as exercises in design or land surveying.

In addition to the four series, the exhibition contained examples of Josephson's collage and three-dimensional work. Both involve particularly tedious attempts to piece together multiple images or elements into a puzzle of ill-fitting parts. One marvels at the artist's ambition, but the results are generally disappointing. Nevertheless, the collages anticipate by a decade David Hockney's recent, more cohesive photocollages.

Josephson studied with Minor White in Rochester and with Aaron Siskind and Harry Callahan at the Institute of Design in Chicago, but his work doesn't resemble theirs—except, perhaps, for some of Callahan's early-'60s Chicago street scenes. The 51-year-old photographer has been teaching at the School of the Art Institute of Chicago for more than 20 years and his influence on students has been major. His body of work, so far, amounts to a grand experiment in combining images and ideas, and in grafting Conceptual structures onto photographs with visual punch. In many cases, trying to have it both ways has compromised his work; yet his successes have been strong enough to assure him a place among the greats in Chicago's photography community.

—Michael Bonesteel

NEW ORLEANS

1983 Triennial at the New Orleans Museum of Art

Since 1887 New Orleans has sponsored regular contemporary art exhibitions which have attracted entries by the likes of Cassatt, Monet, Homer and Henri. Revamped as a triennial regional show under the auspices of the New Orleans Museum of Art, this year's exhibition was guest-curated by Linda Cathcart, director of Houston's Contemporary Arts Museum. The artists, who ranged in age from 26 to 81, included emerging talents as well as those with substantial exhibition records.

The Big Painting dominated the exhibition, with such occasional exceptions as Gael Stack's murky, graffiti-like works on paper. A non-figural painting was not to be found, and attempts at expressionist anarchy or angst were prominent. With linear undulations and eccentric perspectives recalling Thomas Hart Benton, Art Rosenbaum served up a lurid synthesis of folklore, fundamentalism and Appalachian lust. Eerily illuminated casts of ancient sculpture fragments were the subject of Jimmy Jalapeeno's mesmerizing, macroscopically detailed paintings. For the most part, however, the visitor found paintings heavy with "attitude" and seemingly reliant on some absent text, as in Richard Stout's surprisingly affectless Neo-Expressionist works and Derek Boshier's morally ambiguous depictions of Lee Harvey Oswald, Lech Walesa and David Bowie, painted on nasty, viscous grounds.

Also in evidence was the Big Photograph, most happily in the form of Nic Nicosia's chic and stagey Domestic Dramas—frozen tableaux from a sitcom run amok. Nancy O'Connor movingly coupled photography and oral history in images of the vanishing rural black culture of Texas which had been painstakingly inscribed in the

VOL
71
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

Chicago International Art 1984 Exposition

May 10-15, 1984

84

For further information
Chicago International Art Exposition
600 North McClurg Court
Chicago, Illinois 60611 USA
Telephone 312 787 6858

Chicago
International
Art
Exposition

[illegible]

handwriting of the residents.

Despite the numerical superiority of painting, most of the strongest works were found in sculpture. Clyde Connell's mixed-medium Communication Piece suggested and mastered a wealth of associations with the forms of the pagoda, the abacus and the pyre. The openness and logic of wood construction was tempered by a surface suggesting the slow corrosion of ancient metal, while pendulums of stocks and discs implied communication by sound as well as by configuration. Another brave stand for abstraction was made by Laura Russell's wall constructions, in which racy, jagged forms, gesturally colored, lunged and looped around open spatial cores. An intentional world away were Jack Nichelson's carved and assembled "reliquaries." Most appealing in the museum setting was Yart: The Last Art Collector Reliquary, a miniature, ship-shaped inventory of final-exam classics, including cut-out figures from Renoir's Luncheon of the Boating Party and a dozen other sly references to a once-living art history. For its sensational notoriety, mention must be made of James Drake's obsessive Trophy Room, a claustrophobic environment fabricated entirely from grim welded steel.

Perhaps inevitably, local debate about the curator's intentions tended to eclipse discussion of individual works. Only five of the 12 states in the region were represented, and 10 of the 23 artists work in Texas. It was hard to accept Cathcart's claim, articulated in the museum's quarterly, that the exhibition demonstrated the continuing vitality of an indigenous and specifically Southern figural tradition. How do we assess this tradition, for example, in Bronx-born Marc Brasz's scenes of urban violence? Does the mere rendering of plantation houses by Linda Burgess constitute Southern painting? Between Sun Belt immigration and Hollywood Taras, it may grow increasingly difficult to isolate a purely regional spirit in the visual arts of the South. As for this Triennial, the soulless state of painting was lamentable, the signs of daring and play in other mediums a cause for hope.

—Marcia E. Vetrocq

Norman Toynton: Catherine Wheel, 1983, oil on wood and Masonite, each panel 8 by 4 feet; at the Brattleboro Museum.

Cynthia Carlson: Insects: A Guide (detail), 1983, oil on canvas; at Pam Adler (review on p. 187).

BRATTLEBORO, VT.

Norman Toynton at the Brattleboro Museum

Norman Toynton is a British expatriate who divides his time between New York and rural Vermont. Late this spring he installed two recent composite works in the Brattleboro Museum.

In Masonite pegboard, Toynton found a working surface whose uniformity and ubiquity evoke the power of industry to homogenize the material life of society, a power the artist sees affecting even the language and concepts people use to voice their experience. The pegboard perforations function in at least two ways. First, they provide an underlying grid that harks back to pictorial perspective conventions. Secondly, they are a material metaphor for the false equivalences—of one thing to another, one word to another, one moment to another—promoted by mass production and mass media. Toynton attempts to set painting against the generalization and depletion of reality by the media and industry. Though his works tend to be small—often only a foot square—he paints with such devotion to finish and detail that every inch he covers seems like territory reclaimed for human curiosity from indifferent production and use.

The broad theme of Toynton's painting is thus the richness of physical reality that gets overlooked when perceptions are ruled too much by ideas. In the three adjacent panels that comprise a work titled Forehead—the panels are abstractions drawn from a detail of van Dyck's Portrait of Cornelis van der Geest—Toynton has glazed green over blue until each surface is crazed with tiny veins of vibrating color. Only within the bright red shape on each panel that abstracts the actual van Dyck forehead is the vitreous crust of paint interrupted by open perforations. Below the forehead shape in each panel, Toynton has squeezed brilliant dots of color through the pegboard holes from behind. The configuration formed by these dots is the major compositional variation from one panel to the next. One's discovery of that subtle shift—which the artist likens to noticing the way a clock's hands seem to jerk from one position to another between repeated glances—is a clue that the work is meant to stimulate close attention and the gradual perception of differences in things that appear to be the same. Toynton attempts to goad the viewer's curiosity on another level as well: he blocks close frontal access to the painted panels by placing pairs of small enameled green sawhorses on the floor. This device is undeniably effective, but its manipulativeness is out of keeping with the values realized so beautifully in the paintings themselves.

Sameness and difference are more explicitly the theme of the two-part Catherine Wheel. In both Forehead and Catherine Wheel, painted pegboard panels hang on unpainted sheets of pegboard that stretch from the floor to above eye level. The two halves of Catherine Wheel were placed at opposite ends of a long room. In this instance, the two hanging pegboard panels are not entirely covered with paint: instead, four lengths of 1-by-1-inch lumber form an inset square frame. Each bar is thinly painted and is divided visually (by contrasting color) into two rectangles. Within this square frame, more painted rectangles of changing colors set up an inward spiral. The paint application differs slightly from one color area to the next: in some places the paint fills in the pegboard perforations, while in others they are left gaping. In the matching color patterns on the two facing panels, differences occur as to which perforations are closed, and as to minutiae of surface facture. To compare the two parts of the work, one has either to look back and forth in opposite directions, or to walk from one to the other, bearing the memory of the details to be compared.

Toynton has apparently thought hard about what the act of painting most directly signifies, and has concluded that it translates into the lavishing of attention on something at hand. The artist's attentiveness comes across in almost everything he paints, and it has social as well as esthetic implications.

—Kenneth Baker

LOS ANGELES

Judith Simonian at Neil G. Ovsey

Judith Simonian is known for large paintings of whirling vessels. In her new work she has expanded her metaphoric vocabulary to investigate the movement of water. Her interpretive approach recalls that of Kupka's abstract "cosmic springs," in which water is viewed as a potent, life-giving element. Simonian, however, renders water naturalistically in the form of fountains, waterfalls, whirlpools and streams—all of which flow abundantly in her work.

Simonian belongs to a young

VOL 71
ISS 9
OC 1983
UMI

With Winsor & Newton's new Artists' Acrylic Colours we've made only one concession to the ordinary.

Permanent
WINSOR & NEWTON
ARTISTS'
ACRYLIC COLOUR
Violet Quinacridone
Permanentviolett
Violeta Quinacridona
60ml e 2 US fl oz
Quinacridone
WINSOR & NEWTON
ARTISTS'
ACRYLIC COLOUR
Rouge Quinacridone
Permanentrot
Rojo Quinacridona
Permanence A SL (3)
60ml e 2 US fl oz
Burnt Sienna
WINSOR & NEWTON
ARTISTS'
ACRYLIC COLOUR
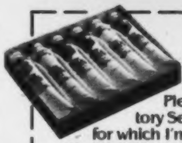
Terre de Sienne Brûlée
Siena gebrannt
Tierra de Siena Tostada
Permanence AA SL (1)
60ml e 2 US fl oz

You'd hardly expect Artists' Acrylics from Winsor & Newton to be ordinary, and they're not! They're every bit as extraordinary as all our world-famous Artists' Colours. Many of the pigments used are identical to those in our other high-quality products so they provide outstanding brilliance and permanence. Their smooth, creamy consistency is unequalled and the unique formulation ensures a durable paint film that is waterproof when dry, permanently flexible and will not yellow with age.

The only concession we've made in presenting this exceptional new line is the size of the tubes in which we've put it. They're the standard, convenient 2 fl. oz. tubes artists prefer.

Competitively priced, Winsor & Newton's new Artists' Acrylics in 33 marvelous colours, plus white, are now available wherever Winsor & Newton artists' materials are sold. Look for them or send for our Special Introductory Set (an $8.95 value for only $5.95) by completing the coupon below. You'll probably never settle for ordinary acrylics again! Winsor & Newton Inc., 555 Winsor Drive, Secaucus, New Jersey 07094.

WINSOR & NEWTON
1832 150th ANNIVERSARY 1982



Mail to: Winsor & Newton,
555 Winsor Drive,
Secaucus, NJ 07094.

Please send me an Introductory Set of Artists' Acrylic Colours for which I'm enclosing $5.95 (U.S. Check or Money Order only.) Set contains six #8 tubes (21 ml each). Offer expires: Dec. 31, 1983. Limit: one set per customer.

Offer not available in Canada. Please allow 4 to 6 weeks for delivery.

Name ____________________

Address ____________________

____

____________________ Zip ________

Time and expense aren't our main concern. Quality is.

generation of artists that is currently involved in philosophical speculation on the nature of the self and the universe. Though her art is basically representational, the abstract element in her style is strong enough to encourage a symbolic reading of natural appearances, as well as of the structures and rhythms of her compositions. In her imagery, the water's path is usually steady and movement constant, tracing out the various trajectories of an energy force that the artist sees as the generator and sustainer of all living things. In the paintings of fountains, the artist's brushstrokes are autonomous, emphasizing the movement of water jets toward us.

Although Simonian's paintings are marked by a high level of technical inventiveness, some of the devices she employs contribute to clarity and impact of expression, while others seem off target. The works referred to by the artist as "reconstructions"—that is, oil paintings done on supports formed by piecing together chunks of broken drywall—are quite successful. The literal breaks and fissures in the surface of these works serve as points of tension that seemingly drive the painted water onward. Objects are embedded in the plaster and function as compositional focal points. In Fire of the Falls (1983), a picture frame set into the drywall surface isolates the area where a waterfall appears to burst into flames. The water seems to rush out from underneath the inset frame, sweeping down a steep progression of physical "steps" formed by cracks in the support surface, until it spills into a (depicted) pool below. An equally dynamic feeling is established in Pots at the Falls (1983). Here, water flows swiftly down rocks, closely following the literal fractures in the dry wall surface, and zigzagging its way into an actual ceramic pot near the bottom of the picture. In both of these large paintings content and form are united logically and organically. Less satisfying is Wishing Pool (1983), a diptych whose two sections are enclosed within a single frame and connected by a real ceramic vessel, centered over the depicted image of a fountain. In a rather corny gesture, the vessel is filled with loose change.

A number of small works on paper are disappointing in their lack of spontaneity—their brushwork seems overly controlled and labored. Indeed, Simonian is least effective when working in such conventional modes. However, when she departs from tradition by mixing mediums, as in the "reconstructions," she proves herself to be among the more talented and promising young artists of the 1980s. —David S. Rubin

Judith Simonian: Pots at the Falls, 1982, mixed mediums on fractured wall, 74 by 56 inches; at Neil G. Ovsey.

David Amico: American Landscape, 1982, oil and enamel on canvas, 99 by 69 inches; at Ulrike Kantor.

David Amico at Ulrike Kantor

David Amico, who surfaced in the late '70s with movable Dadaesque sculpture, has more recently turned to painting in an expressionist manner. An exhibition in the summer of 1982 at the Newport Harbor Art Museum offered paintings that seemed infatuated with a number of styles, including Impressionism, Symbolism, and German Expressionism.

Amico's most recent work continues to be characterized by insouciant and arbitrary changes from painting to painting, a hyperconsciousness about art-making and blatant homages to past and present heroes. No sooner has one noticed the similarities between current neo-Expressionism and a painting such as Amico's Tunnel than the artist gives us another persona: Amico-the-Esthete, represented by Monarchianism, a lush tropical landscape replete with butterflies. Paint application varies throughout Amico's work and seems geared to particular moods: in one painting, for example, a thin oil wash is used to establish a tentative poetic tone, while elsewhere thick brushstrokes heighten the upbeat character of sunlight or greenery.

Amico's obstinate refusal to espouse an identifiable or predictable style would make it difficult to generalize about his work were it not for the pervasive sense of wistfulness that unified this exhibition. It is difficult to look at Amico's simple, often sentimental subjects—birds, butterflies, horses, mothers with their children, romantic couples—without seeing them as fictions, the traces of a once picturesque reality that has been altered by the historic facts of pollution, nuclear threat and technology. Amico's paintings continually evoke loss in both love and nature: solitary birds and flowers tremble; a movie-set landscape may be superficially cheery, but is devoid of life; people spend the evening alone facing their own shadows. In the black-and-white painting La Scala, ballerinas fill the stage of the many-tiered opera house; a large black chair is depicted in the extreme foreground. The chair, seen as if from a backstage vantage point, is placed slightly above stage level, and it is difficult to tell whether it is facing toward or turned away from the audience. La Scala recalls all those PBS television productions which present views available only to the camera and not visible to a live audience. The lone chair in La Scala thus seems to stand as a metaphor for the alienated experience that solitary television viewing represents, and to evoke such themes as the theatricality of life as well.

Amico fares less well when he attempts abstraction. The least representational works in the exhibition seem to exist only in order to round out Amico's stylistic repertoire. His attitude in these paintings seems careless; they are languid and unfocused in contrast to the stronger imagistic work. On the whole, however, Amico's painting asserts a tender, affecting poetry that is missing in much art today. What he may lack in irony, rhetorical questioning, humor and cynicism—fashionable qualities these days—he makes up for in an unaffected sincerity and poignance.

—Constance Mallinson

Contributors

Brooks Adams, Jamey Gambrell, Gerrit Henry and Ellen Lubell are free-lance critics living in New York . . . Kenneth Baker is a critic living in Providence, R.I. . . . Michael Bonesteel is a Chicago free-lance writer . . . Lawrence Campbell, Eva Cockcroft, Constance Mallinson, Ross Skoggard and Ann-Sargent Wooster are artists who also write on art . . . Susan Freudenheim is a free-lance critic based in Fort Worth . . . Carter Ratcliff's most recent book is John Singer Sargent (Abbeville) . . . David S. Rubin is director of exhibitions at San Francisco Art Institute and adjunct curator at San Francisco Museum of Modern Art . . . Reagan Upshaw and John Yau are poets who frequently write on art . . . Marcia E. Vetrocq is assistant professor of art history at the University of New Orleans.

VOL 7 1

ISS 9

OC

1983

UMI

THE HAND OF MAN

A LIMITED EDITION PORTFOLIO OF PREHISTORIC CAVE ART SERIGRAPHS

"Douglas Mazonowicz has rescued these great works of art. He has dedicated himself to a scrupulously careful recreation of these paintings, and the mottled surfaces which they grace. In all of these pictures we recognize that our ancestors were very much like us. Their essential humanity careens down across the ages. Mazonowicz has helped to time-bind the human community."

CARL SAGAN, Cornell University

PLEASE ATTEND THIS SPECIAL EXHIBIT
OCT. 21 THROUGH NOV. 30
MON.- FRI. 9:30-5:30 SAT. 10-5

DOUGLAS MAZONOWICZ

Hammer Publishing
33 WEST 57th ST., NEW YORK, N.Y. 10019 (212) 644-9353

Simbari

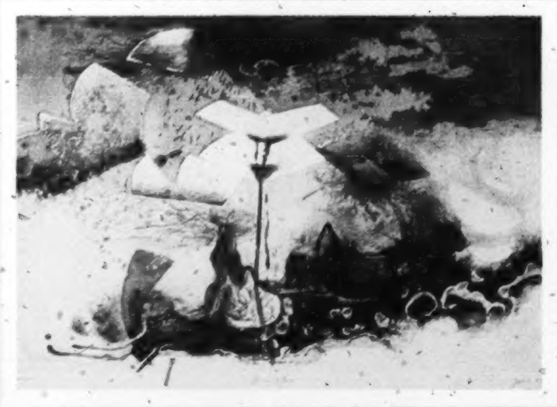
A MONOGRAPH

190 pages. Full color reproduction.

PUBLISHER
SELENE™
P.O. Box 75, Normandy House,
St. Helier, Jersey, Channel Islands

U.S. DISTRIBUTORS
Tamar Arts LTD
60 EAST 54TH ST. SUITE 1201, NEW YORK,
N.Y. 10022 TEL. (212) 308-2161

HANOVER



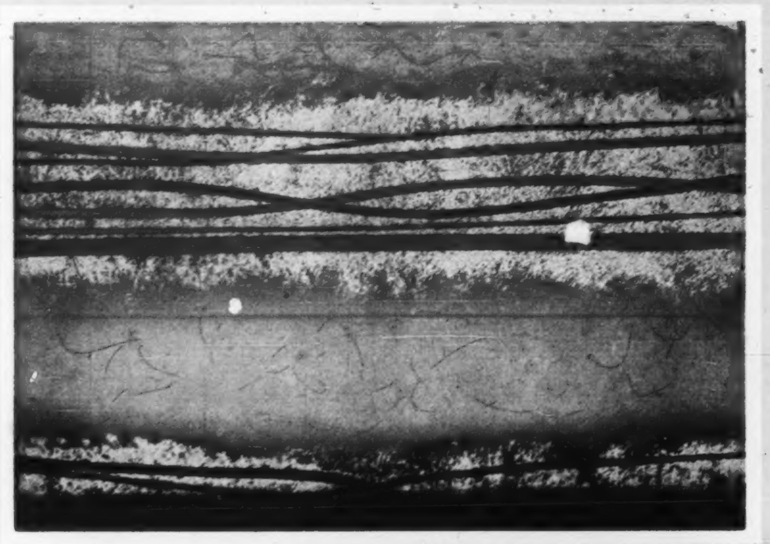
MONIR

"LOVE & STORM"

Size: 12 3/4" x 19"

Colored Etching

Signed and Numbered
Edition of 85



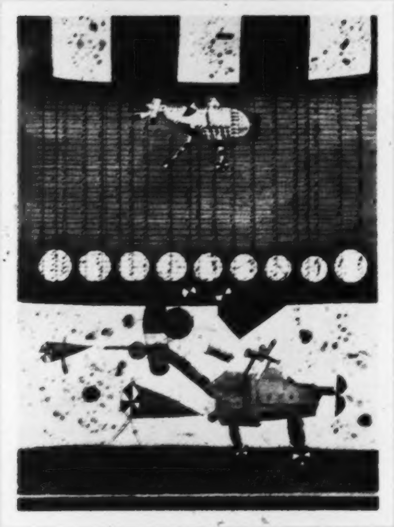
CARMELITANO

"ENTWINED"

Size: 17 1/2" x 25 3/4"

Colored Etching

Signed and Numbered
Edition of 85



LORENZO

UNTITLED #1

Size: 17 1/4" x 12 5/8"

Colored Etching

Signed And Numbered
Edition of 100

New York
Madrid
Hanover

Hanover Fine Arts
1078 Main Street
Hanover,
Massachusetts 02339
617·878·9144

VOL 71 ISS 9 OC 1983 UMI

Paula Clendenin

Prodigal Print Collagraph
15 unique variations
Height 41" Length 28⅛"

Current exhibitions:

Susan Parke Gallery
Urbana, IL

December:

Shepherd College
Visiting Artist

Published by:

Arts Focus Inc.

401 Capitol St., Charleston, WV 25301
(304) 345-9059

San Francisco Bay Area: 3708 Mt. Diablo Blvd.,
Suite 210, Lafayette, CA 94549
(415) 284-7703

GALERIA JOAN PRATS

29 W. 57th. Street - NEW YORK N.Y. 10019
T. 486 67 70

FIVE AMERICAN ARTISTS

JIM BOHARY
MARK GIBIAN
WILLIAM NOLAND
JIM WALSH
STEWART WALTZER

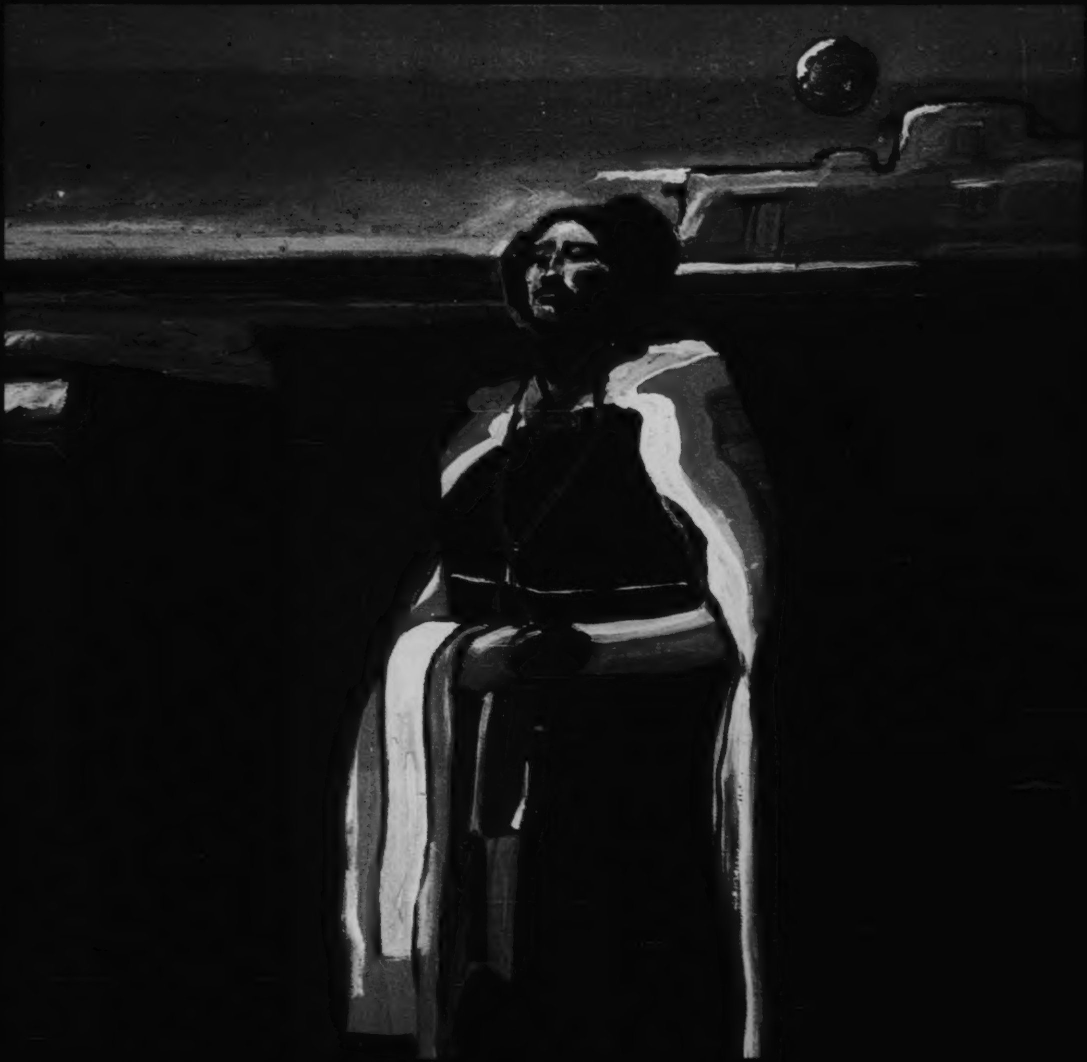
Paintings and Sculpture

GALERIA JOAN PRATS

Rambla Cataluña, 54 - Barcelona-7 (Spain) - T. 2160284

YAMANDU CANOSA

Paintings and Drawings



JOHN NIETO

One-Man Show
Enthios Gallery (1111 Paseo de Peralta)
October 1 through October 15
(Artist present Oct. 1, 4 to 7 pm)

ENTHIOS GALLERY 1111 Paseo de Peralta, Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501 (505) 988-1501

VOL
71
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

"The Great Outdoors" Currently on display at the Wave Hill
Sculpture Park, the Bronx, New York

Lifesize Bronze Sculpture

J. Seward Johnson, Jr.

For information contact:
Sculpture Placement Suite 304 2828 Pennsylvania Ave NW Wash. DC 202-362-9310

JUSZCZYK
JAMES

MIDDLE LINE SERIES

MORRIS
DAVID

DRAWINGS FOR SCULPTURE

OCTOBER - NOVEMBER 12 1983

JAN
CICERO
GALLERY
437 N CLARK CHICAGO, IL 60610 312 644 5374

RACHEL ADLER GALLERY

58 EAST 79 STREET NEW YORK, NY 10021 TEL 212-831-3824

Carlo Carra

Drawings · October 15 – November 19

Portrait of Soffici*, 1914.
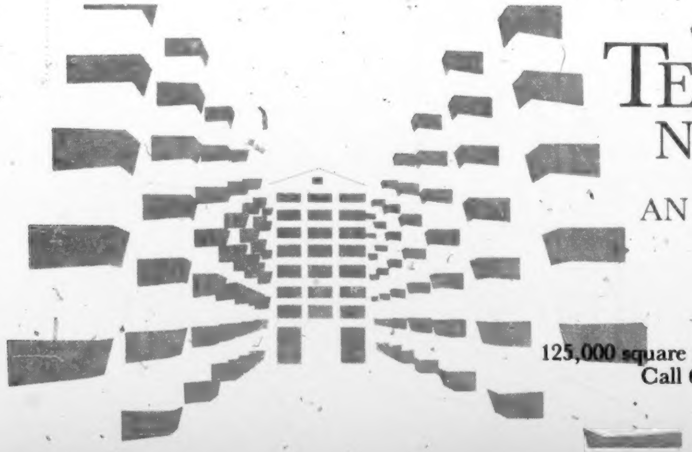
Ink and paper collage on paper, 8½ x 6⅛ in.



TERMINAL
NEW·YORK

AN ART EXHIBITION

125,000 square feet in the Harborside Industrial Center
Call 619-5000 ext. 845 for directions

ROTHENBERG LANE HUMPHREY
GRAVES PRICE LEDOUX LOBE
KORMAN SHEA WIZON THORNE
PAINTINGS DRAWINGS SCULPTURE
OCTOBER 28-DECEMBER 6
FAY GOLD GALLERY 3221 CAINS HILL PLACE ATLANTA GA 404 233 3843
SURVEY OF FRENCH PHOTOGRAPHY

Graduate Program

Architecture
Ceramics
Design
Fiber
Metalsmithing
Painting
Photography
Printmaking
Sculpture

Limited
Enrollment
Resident Artist Faculty
First year financial aid available for qualified students

Cranbrook Academy of Art
Registrar CAA
500 Lone Pine Road
PO Box 801
Bloomfield Hills, Michigan
48013

Cranbrook

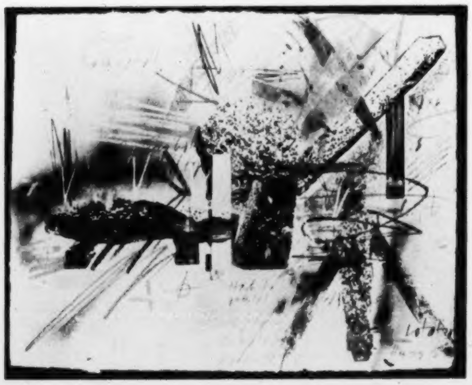
Natasha
NICHOLSON

Big Small Sculpture • October 14 – November 12, 1983

Perimeter Gallery
356 West Huron, Chicago, IL 60610
Telephone 312/266-9473

VOL
71
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

MICHAEL HEIZER



45°, 90°, 180° MONOTYPES

18 OCT-19 NOV

PATRICIA HEESY GALLERY
50 W 57 ST NY 10019 212 245 1420

DONALD JUDD

Oct. 6 — Oct. 29, 1983

CAROL TAYLOR, Art
2508 cedar springs dallas, texas 75201 (214) 745-1923

FRANKLIN FURNACE

Exhibition

CUBIST PRINTS / CUBIST BOOKS

October 15-December 3

at
Aldis Browne Fine Arts
1018 Madison Avenue
and
Franklin Furnace
112 Franklin Street

Installations

ELLEN RUMM
"Natural Hazards"
Thru October 22

PETER D'AGOSTINO
"We..."
Opening October 26

TUES.-SAT., 12-6 (212) 925-4671
112 FRANKLIN STREET, NEW YORK, NY 10013

DEAN

The Tyler School of Art of Temple University invites applications and nominations for the position of Dean. The Tyler School of Art is located in suburban Philadelphia and also maintains a center at the Villa Caproni in Rome. The School has 56 full-time faculty members and offers the B.F.A., M.F.A., and M.Ed degrees as well as the B.A. in Art, B.A. and M.A. in Art History and the B.S. in Art Education in cooperation with other colleges at Temple.

The School is composed of five departments: Art History; Crafts; Graphic Arts and Design; Painting, Drawing and Sculpture; and University Art and Art Education. The Dean is the academic and administrative head of the College and is responsible for admissions, budget, and all academic decisions concerning students involved in the College. The Dean reports to the Provost who in turn is responsible to the President of the University. At Tyler, the Dean is assisted by a full-time staff of nine.

Qualifications shall include national recognition for creative work and/or scholarship, as well as substantial experience as an effective teacher and demonstrated success in an administrative capacity.

Application deadline: November 1, 1983

An up-to-date resume and supporting materials should be sent to:

John Moore, Chair
Dean Search Committee
Tyler School of Art of Temple University
Beech & Penrose Avenues
Elkins Park, PA 19126

Temple University is an Affirmative Action/
Equal Opportunity Employer

Attention all artists applications are now being accepted for the United States National Fine Arts Competition & International Exhibition

If you are an artist residing in the United States, you are invited to enter this very important competition. All media representing the Fine Arts are eligible. Entry will be by 35mm slides of your original art work. All initial entries will be judged by a panel of professional Artists.

Win Any of Several Prizes Totaling Over $8,000.00...Including One of Three Grand Prizes: A TRIP TO EUROPE!

200 National Exhibit Winners!

The 200 artists who are selected from initial entries will be invited to exhibit at the state capitol in Tallahassee, Florida April, 1984. These artists will be honored at a special reception hosted by Florida Secretary of State, George Firestone, to be held at the Exhibition Gallery on the 22nd floor of the Florida State Capitol Building. Each of the 200 winners will receive a Letter of Certification issued by the Secretary of State on behalf of the State of Florida, documenting the honor of selection.

Works of 20 Finalists will tour Europe!

From the 200 winners, our panel of European jurists will select the works of 20 artists for the European tour. The names of these winners will appear on an internationally distributed commemorative poster. Galleries and exhibition schedules have already been confirmed in such art capitals as Paris, France; Rome, Italy; Munich, Germany.

Top Winners receive cash awards too!

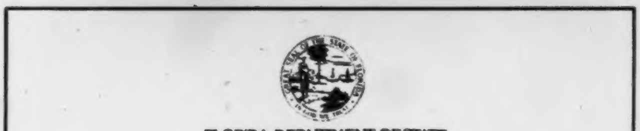
- Three 3rd Place Winners receive $200.00.
- Three 2nd Place Winners receive $500.00.

And the Grand Prizes: Trips to Europe!

3 Top Winners will be selected to co-host the exhibits in Paris, Rome, and Munich. All air travel expenses will be paid with open-ended return tickets.

ENTER NOW! To receive an official entry blank and brochure, send a post card with your name and address to:

UNITED STATES
NATIONAL FINE ARTS COMPETITION
& INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION
P.O. Box 631
Tallahassee, FL 32302



FLORIDA DEPARTMENT OF STATE
George Firestone
Secretary of State

Dear Artist:

As Florida's Secretary of State and Chief Cultural Officer, I would like to extend to you an invitation to take part in an exhibition which will occur in 1984 at the Capitol. The exhibition will take place during the legislative session, and is part of a competition to choose artists, both professionals and students, for participation in an international tour.

The exhibition will be displayed on the twenty-second floor of the Capitol, the location of exhibits of many renowned works of art. The exhibit will be utilized to assist in the choice of those artists whose works will be used as part of an international cultural exchange.

Should you choose to take part in the exhibit, I will look forward to meeting you and providing assistance to The United States Fine Arts Competition and International Exhibition.

Sincerely,

Secretary of State

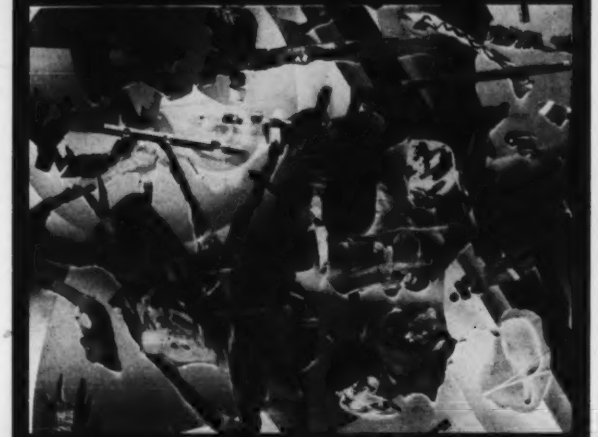
GF/vdr

FLORIDA-State of the Arts
The Capitol Tallahassee, Florida 32301 (904) 488-3680

This Competition is sponsored by Cultural Promotion, Inc., Sue Mecanick, Executive Director with the endorsement of George Firestone, Secretary of State and Chief Cultural Officer of the State of Florida.

VOL
71
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

FRANK ANTHONY SMITH



OCT. 1983

SUELLEN HABER GALLERY
133 GREENE STREET, N.Y.C., 10012
(212) 505-7800

MIKE STACK

Paintings, Sculpture & Drawings

"Wink" 8½ H. painted papier mache

September 30-October 31, 1983

BATZ GALLERY
4116 Pennsylvania Kansas City, Mo. 64111
(816) 531-4438

YOU SHOULD HAVE OUR NEW CATALOG!

Art Brown
AMERICA'S LARGEST ART SUPPLY DISTRIBUTOR
ARTHUR BROWN & BRO., INC.
Art Brown

The Art Brown catalog is virtually an "encyclopedia of materials" for everyone interested in any form of artwork. 228-pages and color inserts illustrate and describe over 20,000 products from the world's best sources. It's a one-stop shopping center for art supplies!

We'll make it attractive for you to order our catalog. Send in the coupon below with your check for $3.00 to cover mailing and handling costs.

—AND HERE'S WHAT WE'LL DO IN RETURN!

1. We'll send our big 260-page catalog
2. plus we'll give you a $5.00 credit slip towards your first order!
3. plus our 40-page "International Pen Shop" catalog in full color.
4. plus we'll ship your first order prepaid. (That's worth $!)

. . . you'll get back several times the amount you remit for the catalog!

Attached is check for $3.00 for catalogs and credit slips C987

Name________________________

Address________________________

City/State/Zip________________________

America's Largest Art Supply Distributor
ARTHUR BROWN & BRO., INC.
2 West 46th Street, New York, N.Y. 10036

EDNA ANDRADE

Recent Work
October 5—29, 1983

Marian Locks Gallery
1524 Walnut Street
Philadelphia, Pennsylvania 19102
215 546-0322

DALLAS

Icons of Contemporary Art

John DeAndrea
Richard Estes
Sam Francis
Duane Hanson
Morris Louis
Louise Nevelson
Kenneth Noland
Wayne Thiebaud

SAN FRANCISCO

Garry Bennett
Eric Orr

FOSTER
GOLDSTROM
FINE ARTS

2722 FAIRMOUNT STREET
DALLAS, TX 75201
214 744-0711

228 GRANT AVENUE
SAN FRANCISCO, CA 94108
415 788-5060

NEW YORK STUDIO SCHOOL

Lecture Series 1983/84

JANET ABRAMOWICZ
LAWRENCE ALLOWAY
NICOLAS CALAS
PEDRO CUPERMAN
LOUIS FINKELSTEIN
ANDREW FORGE
CLEMENT GREENBERG
DONALD KUSPIT
ANNETTE MICHELSON
GEORGE McNEIL
LEO STEINBERG
WILLIAM TUCKER

8 WEST 8 STREET NEW YORK, N.Y. 10011 (212) 673-6466

TURN IT OVER

MARINA ADAMS
ROSANN BERRY
KEIKO BONK
JANICE BRIDGERS
RICHARD BRIGGS
ROLANDO BRISENO
MAUREEN GALLACE
ENRICO GIORDANO
PATRICIA HOUGH
KEN KISELICK
COLLIN LEE
ANNETTE LEMIEUX
GARY MAYER
LAURA NEWMAN
PHILIP TAAFFE
WALLACE & DONOHUE

OCTOBER 25-NOVEMBER 25/521 W. 23RD STREET NEW YORK/212-924-4212
SPONSORED BY WHITE COLUMNS/CURATED BY ROSANN BERRY/SPACE DONATED BY SANDRO CHIA

PRINTWORLD

☐ 12,000 print listings
☐ 825 top artists profiles
☐ 600 photos ☐ 512 pages

1983/84 PRINTWORLD DIRECTORY

PRINTWORLD DIRECTORY is unique! It is the only print/price catalog with complete documentation of limited edition prints.

PRINTWORLD DIRECTORY quotes the market price of current & sold out editions. It also lists awards, exhibits, publishers, etc. for each artist. It provides complete addresses of print workshops, publishers and galleries.

PRINTWORLD DIRECTORY is a "must" reference for anyone actively involved in the print marketplace . . . an invaluable guide for galleries, collectors, appraisers, collectors, libraries, etc. Send for your copy today! The complete international print reference guide!

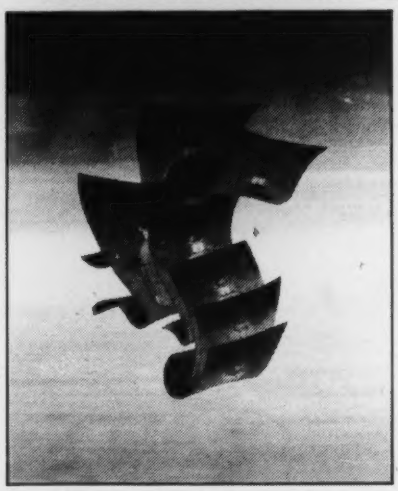
Postage/Handling: USA $5, Outside USA $10, Air Mail Europe/Asia $20
1982 EDITION $35.00 NAME ______
1983 EDITION $49.95 ADDRESS ______
______
VISA/MC # ______ EXP ______

P.O. Box 785 • Bala Cynwyd, PA 19004 (215) 649-5140

VOL
71
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

FOLON

WATERCOLORS AND
OTHER WORKS ON PAPER



"L'Estampe," 1976 watercolor

October 15-November 19, 1983

PASQUALE IANNETTI ART GALLERIES

575 Sutter Street, San Francisco, CA 94102 (415) 433-2771

MARY JONES

NEW PAINTINGS

OCTOBER 15 — NOVEMBER 12

NEIL G. OVSEY GALLERY

705 East Third Street, 3rd Floor
Los Angeles, California 90013
Telephone (213) 617-1351

B. LEWIN GALLERIES
ARE PROUD TO ANNOUNCE OUR 25th ANNIVERSARY OF
MEXICAN MASTERS

SELECTED WORKS ON EXHIBITION BY

RUFINO TAMAYO
CARLOS MERIDA
RAFAEL CORONEL
JEAN CHARLOT
DIEGO RIVERA
FELIPE CASTANEDA
FRANCISCO ZUNIGA
GUSTAVO MONTOYA ETC

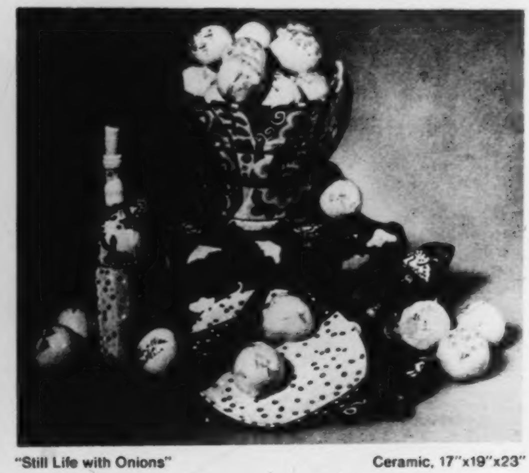
The B. Lewin Galleries

266 North Beverly Drive 213-278-5769
Beverly Hills, California 90210 213-550-1825

210 South Palm Canyon Drive
Palm Springs, California 92262 619-325-7611

KAREN ESTELLE KOBLITZ

EXHIBITION OF CERAMICS



"Still Life with Onions" Ceramic, 17"x19"x23"

October 7-29

db

DONALD BATMAN GALLERY

825 WESTPORT RD., KANSAS CITY, MO. 64111, (816)531-2588

From de Kooning to Motherwell. A painter's portrait of the men and their work.

Both colleague and chronicler, Seitz was there in the studios and salons during the exhilarating early days of the Abstract Expressionist movement.

His work, written from a perspective that only an insider could have, stands alone in conveying the anxiety and excitement of the times and art of Rothko, Gorky, Hofmann, de Kooning, Tobey and Motherwell.

Lavishly illustrated with over 300 paintings. 64 color, 245 halftones.

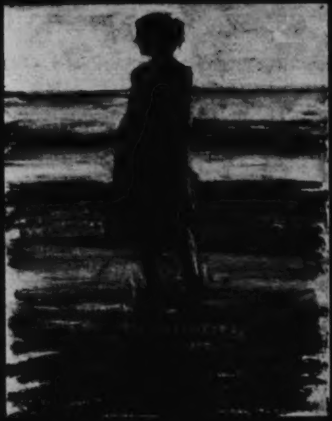
Abstract Expressionist Painting in America

William Seitz

Introduction by Dore Ashton
Foreword by Robert Motherwell
Ailsa Mellon Bruce Studies in American Art, National Gallery of Art
$45.00 until December 31, 1983; $60.00 thereafter.
Harvard University Press, Cambridge, MA 02138

Richard Segalman

In the Figurative Tradition



"DUSK" Pastel 14 × 11

October 16 Through November 13, 1983

KORNBLUTH GALLERY
7-21 Fair Lawn Avenue
Fair Lawn, New Jersey 07410
201-741-3374

PHOTO BY: DAVID CARDENAS

cut on dotted line

THE RED BUICK

Bettie Ward Johnston

AN ART PERFORMANCE PIECE
7:30 p.m.
Thursday, October 27, 1983
Spires - Douglas Buick Service Dept.
501 Broadway, Downtown, San Antonio, Texas

$100.00
Preferred Seating

COMPLIMENTARY

ATTENTION ARTISTS!

DOES THE NAME RUBY BERGONSKI RING A BELL?

PROBABLY NOT BUT IF ANY OF THE FOLLOWING DO:

WINSOR & NEWTON, GRUMBACHER, LEFRANC, HOLBEIN, LIQUITEX, TALENS, PELIKAN, BLOCKX, BOCOUR, ROWNEY, PERMALBA, SHIVA, MARKAL, PERCY BAKER, ISABEY, ROBERT SIMMONS, KOH-I-NOOR, BIENFANG, KRYLON, BEROL, DERWENT, D'ARCHES, WHATMAN, FABRIANO, CARAN D'ACHE, STAYCORE, NEOLT, TESTRITE, LUXO, BADGER, PAASCHE, THAYER & CHANDLER, ALTOS, C&H, DEXTER, FREDRIX, AND MORE...

YOU CAN FIND THEM AND OTHERS IN OUR HUGE DISCOUNT ART MATERIAL CATALOG.
YOURS FOR ONLY $1.00. OH, IF RUBY BERGONSKI DOES RING A BELL, SEND $2.00 FOR SPECIAL RUSH SERVICE.

☐ YES SEND ME YOUR CURRENT CATALOG. ENCLOSED IS $1.00 AND MY NAME AND ADDRESS

Name ____________________

Street __________ Town __________

State __________ Zip __________

JERRY'S ARTARAMA INC.

117 SOUTH SECOND ST. NEW HYDE PARK, NY 11040 516 328-6633 ASK FOR DEPT. AIA

VOL
7
1
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

Russel Wright
American Designer
William Hennessey

More than any other designer, Russel Wright brought Modernism into the American home. His good looking and affordable furniture and dinnerware were enormously popular; now they are collector's items. This book documents Wright's career and illustrates his most important designs.
96 pp. 50 illus, 10 in color
$15.00 paperback

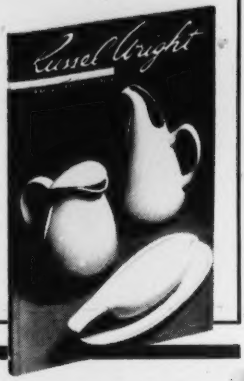
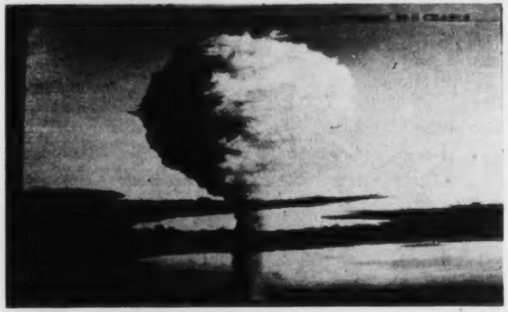
Write for our current architecture and design catalog.



The MIT Press

28 Carleton Street, Cambridge, MA 02142

RICK ROEDERER



"Last Beautiful Day" oil on canvas 48"x30"

EVOLUTION & PLANETARY APOCALYPSE

RECENT PAINTINGS & SCULPTURE

October 15-November 8

NEWELL GALLERY
4214 Woodhead
Houston, TX 77098
713 521 3585

November 12-December 11

BEVERLY FINE ARTS GALLERY
2702 McKenney
Dallas, TX 75204
214 741 9600

Represented by CHRIS COLE GALLERY
300 Garcia St. at Canyon Rd.
Santa Fe, NM 87501
505 983 3085

QLP

2 exciting new additions to Crown's bestselling Quality Low-Priced Art Book series only $7.95

each
Maurice Utrillo V.
Max Beckmann

MAURICE UTRILLO
by JEANINE WARNOD. The life and work of one of the greatest landscape painters of the 20th century.

MAX BECKMANN
by STEPHAN LACKNER. A revealing look at a major German Expressionist by a friend of the artist

Each clothbound QLP book features 75 illustrations, including 50 full-color reproductions. Size 8½" x 11".

Now at your bookstore, or send check or money order to Crown Publishers, Inc., One Park Ave., N.Y., N.Y. 10016. Please add $1.40 postage and handling charge per book. N.Y. and N.J. residents, add sales tax.

CROWN PUBLISHERS Inc

Fine Arts Insurance Worldwide

BELGIUM · FRANCE · GERMANY
GREAT BRITAIN · GREECE · ITALY
NETHERLANDS · SPAIN
SWITZERLAND · UNITED STATES

NORDSTERN
SERVICE INTERNATIONAL (U.S.) INC.
116 JOHN STREET, NEW YORK, NY 10038
TELEPHONE (212) 227-2224

ART IN AMERICA
PRESENTS THE
FIRST POST-MODERN
CHRISTMAS GIFT:

Art in America

COLUMN NOT INCLUDED.

BUSINESS REPLY CARD
FIRST CLASS PERMIT NO. 542 MARION, OHIO
POSTAGE WILL BE PAID BY

Art in America
542 PACIFIC AVENUE
MARION, OHIO 43306

NO POSTAGE
NECESSARY
IF MAILED
IN THE
UNITED STATES

BUSINESS REPLY CARD
FIRST CLASS PERMIT NO. 542 MARION, OHIO
POSTAGE WILL BE PAID BY

Art in America
542 PACIFIC AVENUE
MARION, OHIO 43306

NO POSTAGE
NECESSARY
IF MAILED
IN THE
UNITED STATES

VOL 7 1 ISS 9 OC 1983 UMI

This holiday season ART IN AMERICA is offering extraordinary savings on gift subscriptions.
Each gift order is only $24.95 – 28% off the regular one year rate of $34.95!

FIRST GIFT

☐ Please send a one year gift subscription to the person(s) listed. I pay only $24.95 for each subscription, more than 45% off the cover price.

My Name
Address
City State Zip
Recipient's Name
Address
City State Zip
Gift card to read from

ADDITIONAL GIFTS

Recipient's Name
Address
City State Zip
Gift card to read from
Recipient's Name
Address
City State Zip
Gift card to read from

☐ Check/money order enclosed ☐ VISA ☐ Mastercard ☐ Bill me.

Card # ________ Exp. date ______ Signature ________

In US Possessions and Canada, add $8 per subscription; elsewhere, add $15 per subscription. Offer good through 2/28/84

EK301

This holiday season ART IN AMERICA is offering extraordinary savings on gift subscriptions.
Each gift order is only $24.95 – 28% off the regular one year rate of $34.95!

FIRST GIFT

☐ Please send a one year gift subscription to the person(s) listed. I pay only $24.95 for each subscription, more than 45% off the cover price.

My Name
Address
City State Zip
Recipient's Name
Address
City State Zip
Gift card to read from

ADDITIONAL GIFTS

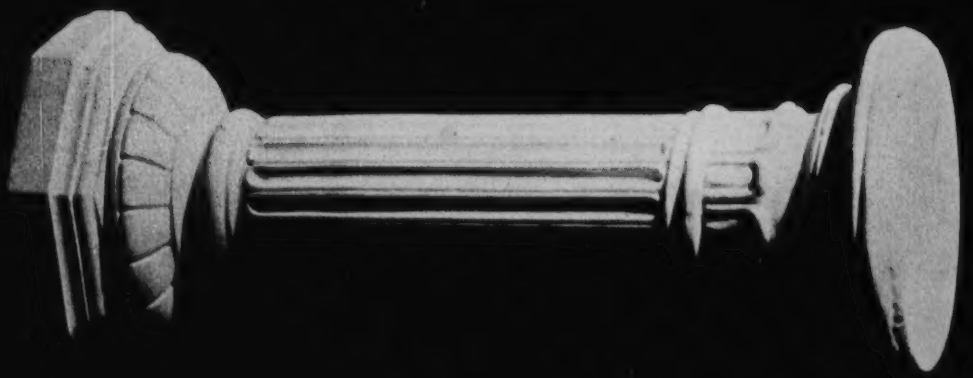
Recipient's Name
Address
City State Zip
Gift card to read from
Recipient's Name
Address
City State Zip
Gift card to read from

☐ Check/money order enclosed ☐ VISA ☐ Mastercard ☐ Bill me.

Card # ________ Exp. date ______ Signature ________

In US Possessions and Canada, add $8 per subscription; elsewhere, add $15 per subscription. Offer good through 2/28/84

EK301



ART SERVICES

ADVERTISING AGENCIES

AESTHETICS PLUS Circle No. 1
3050 N Street NW
Washington, D.C. 20007
(202) 965-0956
Services offered in PR, Advertising and Graphic Design.

WEBB DESIGN STUDIO/TAOS Circle No. 2
501 Ranchitos Road
Taos, NM 87571 (505) 758-3447
Graphic design to promote the arts: exhibition catalogues, brochures, advertisements, quality color postcards.

APPRAISERS

GLASS GALLERY Circle No. 3
Wendy Glass, 315 Central Park West, Suite 8W
New York, NY 10025 (212) SU7-4704
Appraisers in Japanese Ukiyo-e prints and Graphics. Estates handled.

AUDREY REAL HELFAND Circle No. 4
945 Fifth Avenue Member: I.S.A.
New York, NY 10021 (212) 535-5972
Appraiser of European & American Fine Arts for Insurance, Gift-Tax, Property Division, & Estates. By Appointment

MARK KESHISHIAN AND SONS, INC. Circle No. 5
6930 Wisconsin Avenue, Chevy Chase, MD 20815 (301) 654-4044
836 Rockville Pike, Rockville, MD 20852 (301) 340-6666
James M. Keshishian, A.S.A., Harold M. Keshishian, Appraisal, Cleaning, Restoration and Sale of Oriental Rugs.

KELVYN G. LILLEY AND ASSOCIATES, INC. 6
620 North Michigan Ave., Suite 520
Chicago, IL 60611 (312) 787-0985
Fine and Decorative Arts, Appraisals and Consultations. Over 15 yrs Exp. Recognized by Major Insurance Companies.

L. McADOO PROFESSIONAL APPRAISERS 7
503 Canyon Road
Santa Fe, NM 87501 (505) 984-0152
Fine Art and personal property appraisals. Member of Int'l Society of Appraisers.

PIERCE GALLERIES, INC. Circle No. 8
721 Main St. Route 228
Hingham, MA 02043 (617) 749-6023
19th and Early 20th Century American Art. By Appointment Only.

PROFESSIONAL ART SERVICES Circle No. 9
17765 Beach Drive, NE, Seattle, WA 98155 (206) 587-7214
Serving Pacific NW. Phd., History of Art, Member I.S.A. Appraiser of American & European Art. Advisor for diversified art investors. Experienced in Insurance, Legal, I.R.S.

TUCKER APPRAISAL ASSOCIATES Circle No. 10
River Oaks Shopping Center
Houston, TX 77019 (713) 529-8878
Independent Appraisers, Fine Art Only. We do not buy or sell. Mrs. Sally Tucker, Member: A.S.A., I.S.A., I.S.F.A.

ART BOOKS

ARS LIBRI Circle No. 11
286 Summer Street
Boston, Mass. 02210 (617) 357-5212
Rare & scholarly books in the fine arts. Illustrated books. Periodicals & documents in all fields of art history.

ART IN FORM Circle No. 12
P.O. Box 2567
Seattle, WA 98111 (206) 623-6381
Specializing in Contemporary Art Publications; Books, Periodicals, Recordings, Mail Order Catalog & Trade List Available.

WILLIAM AND VICTORIA DAILEY, LTD. Circle No. 13
8216 Melrose Avenue
Los Angeles, CA 90046 (658-8515
Art reference, catalogues raisonnes, illustrated & rare books, 19th & 20th century graphics. Catalogues issued.

ART BROKERAGES

THE ART BROKERAGE INC. Circle No. 14
300 S. 4th St. 1503, Valley Bank Bldg.
Las Vegas, NV 98101 (702) 732-3999/385-1296
Listings & Locating service, buy sell or trade, save 25-50%. Computer printout, dealer inquiry invited. See display ad.

ART CONSULTANTS

COLSON SCULPTURE SERVICE INT'L Circle No. 15
1375 5th Street
Sarasota, FL 33579 (813) 365-3818, 953-5892
Ceramics Shell Sculpture Casting Set-up and Related Information.

MR. FRANZ VILA Circle No. 16
24 East 97th Street, Apt. 20
New York, NY 10029 (212) 410-1702
Advisory Counseling, Analysis & Critique For Corporations, Collectors. Research & Art Education.

ART POSTERS

PACE POSTERS Circle No. 17
115 East 23rd Street, New York, NY 10010 (212) 673-8240
Publisher & Exclusive Distributor of Fine Art Posters including List Art Posters, Save Our Planet, America: The Third Century Bicentennial Posters, Pace Gallery & Museum Posters.

ART SUPPLIES

THE ART STORE Circle No. 18
7200 West Beverly Blvd.
Los Angeles, CA 90036 (213) 933-9284
Quality artist material; save 10% to 30% off manufacturer's list.

EASTERN ARTISTS & DRAFTING MATERIALS 19
352 Park Avenue South
New York, NY 10010 (212) 725-5555
Everything for the Artist, Draftsman, Photo-Studio at 20% to 50% off list.

GRUMBACHER Circle No. 20
460 West 34th Street
New York, NY 10001 (212) 279-6400
Fine quality art materials since 1905. See what our art can do for yours.

JERRY'S ARTARAMA, INC. Circle No. 21
248-12X Union Turnpike
Bellerose, NY 11426
Huge savings on art materials and picture frames.

KENNETH LYNCH & SONS Circle No. 22
Box 488, Wilton, CT 06897 (203) 762-8363
Picture hanging rods, mouldings, security devices, stanchions, vitrines, art storage racks, gallery carts, tablets, and plaques. FREE CATALOG.

Continued

VOL 71 ISS 9 OC 1983 UMI

ART SERVICES

RISING PAPER COMPANY Circle No. 23
Housatonic, MA 01236 (413) 274-3345
A full range of archival quality papers, pads and matboards for all artists and all media. Stonehenge, Dansk, Mirage, Gallery, Marker Layout, Photolene, Drawing Bristols, etc.

SELWYN TEXTILE COMPANY INC. Circle No. 24
15 West 38th Street
New York, NY 10018 (212) 921-9355, (800) 223-3032
Direct source linen & cotton PRIMED/UNPRIMED ARTISTS' CANVAS. No minimum yardage requirements. Send for free samples.

SHIVA® INC. Circle No. 25
4320 West 190th Street
Torrance, CA 90509 (213) 542-5583
Artists PAINTSTIK®, Solid Oil Paint in Stick Form. Call (800) 421-1325

UTRECHT Circle No. 26
33 Thirty-Fifth Street
Brooklyn, NY 11232 (212) 768-2525
Major Manufacturer & Distributor of Art & Drafting Supplies at Impressive Savings. Free Catalog.

WINSOR & NEWTON Circle No. 27
555 Winsor Drive
Secaucus, NJ 07094
Manufacturers of the world's finest artists' materials since 1832.

ARTISTS WANTED

GALLERY II R.S.V.P. Circle No. 28
ARTIST'S! Exhibition Space in New High Quality Fine Arts Sales and Exhibition Gallery. All Media Accepted. Send Slides and S.A.S.E. to: Gallery II R.S.V.P., Director, Colene Later, 218 W. Main, Charlottesville, VA 22901. (804) 977-R.S.V.P.

AUCTION HOUSES

HANZEL GALLERIES Circle No. 29
1120 South Michigan Avenue
Chicago, IL 60605 (312) 922-6234
Midwest's foremost auctioneers of fine art properties for over 40 years.

COMPETITIONS

NATIONAL SCULPTURE COMPETITION Circle No. 30
$75,000 commission for a public monument suitable to honor the writer O. Henry. Deadline for submitting sketch and vitae: Dec. 1, 1983. For information write: O. Henry Festival Committee, 1907 Rosecrest Dr., Greensboro, NC 27408.

CONSERVATORS & RESTORERS

THE TOMSICH ART GALLERIES LTD. Circle No. 31
11916 Manchester Road
St. Louis, MO 63131 (314) 966-6777
Conservation of Oil Paintings, Art on Paper and Framing Conservation. Appraisals.

EXHIBITION CATALOGS

WORLDWIDE BOOKS Circle No. 32
Brian Gold, 37 Antwerp Street
Boston, MA 02135 (617) 787-9100
The foremost specialist in Int'l Art Exhibition catalogs since 1960.

FINE ART CASTING

ALECO FOUNDRIES, INC. Circle No. 33
1930 South 4th Street
Milwaukee, WI 53204 (414) 645-3771
Silicon bronze, ferrous & non-ferrous sand & investment castings-Also production quantities-$75 minimum order.

FINE ART PHOTOGRAPHY

THOMAS MOON PHOTOGRAPHY Circle No. 34
1 Holden Street
Brookline, MA 02146 (617) 232-8044
Photography Services for the Fine Arts. Black & White, Color, INFRARED. Print or Transparency. All formats.

PHOTOGRAPHIC SPECIALTIES, INC. Circle No. 35
225 Border Ave. North
Minneapolis, MN 55405 (612) 332-6303
Fine Art Cibachrome, C-Print, Archival B&W Printing & Processing. All Mounting & Framing Services.

FINE ART PRINTING

COLOR Q Circle No. 36
AFFORDABLE FINE ART REPRODUCTIONS
2835 Springboro West, Dayton OH 45439 (513) 294-0406
Get your FREE booklet: "How to gain wider recognition for your artistry, and make more money, too."

CHERYL PELAVIN PRINTMAKER Circle No. 37
13 Jay St. (in Tribeca)
New York, NY 10013 (212) 925-9424
Etching Facilities, Open Workshops, Classes, Editioning, Plate Collaboration & Publishing. Brochure.

STUDIO HEINRICI, LTD. Circle No. 38
430 Washington Street
New York, NY 10013 (212) 925-0788
Fine Art Limited Editions in: Silkscreen, Etching Press Available and Contract Printing.

FINE ART PUBLISHERS

GONDECK GALLERY AND PUBLISHER Circle No. 39
211 Old Santa Fe Trail, Santa Fe, NM 87501 (505) 988-3580
Bronzes, One of a Kind Welded Steel Sculpture by Bill Prokopiof. Original Graphics, Lithographs, Serigraphs, Etchings of Contemporary Indian Artists. Kevin Red Star.

FINE ART TRAVEL

ART EXPLORER'S TOURS Circle No. 40
P.O. Box 26689-P, San Francisco, CA 94126 (415) 921-7677
1984: New Guinea-Mar, China-May, Scandinavia-Jun, Venice Biennale-Sept, Africa-Oct, 1985: China-May, Japan-Sept, Sao Paulo Biennale-Nov, Africa, Bali & Java.

FOUNDRIES

JOHNSON ATELIER TECHNICAL INSTITUTE OF SCULPTURE Circle No. 41
743 Alexander Rd., Princeton, NJ 08540 (609) 452-2661
Bronze, Aluminum, Stainless Steel, Ductile Iron: Sand Molding-Ceramic Shell-Rubber Molds-Bronze Repair & Repatine

KENNETH LYNCH & SONS Circle No. 42
Box 488, Wilton, CT 06897
(203) 762-8363
Casting in bronze, lead, or stone, also fabricating large art work of copper or bronze sheets repousse.

MATTHEWS CLASSIC BRONZE DIVISION 43
2230 North Chico Avenue
South El Monte, CA 91733 (213) 444-0468
Our lost wax casting capabilities assure the quality and fidelity of your art. Contact Mel Schelbauer.

JOEL MEISNER FOUNDRY & GALLERY Circle No. 44
120 Fairchild Avenue
Plainview, NY 11803 (516) 349-0260, (212) 895-1472
THE COMPLETE CENTER FOR BRONZE SCULPTURE: for the Sculptor . . . for the Collector . . . for the Art Dealer & Publisher.

ART SERVICES

NORDHAMMER ART FOUNDRY Circle No. 45
830 East Fifteenth Street
Oakland, CA 94606 (415) 465-5606
Complete Foundry Facility. Small to Monumental Scale in Bronze. Ceramic Shell and Vacuum Casting.

FRAMERS

AESTHETIC FRAME DESIGN Circle No. 46
1275 East 6th Street
Los Angeles, CA 90021 (213) 622-3331
Wholesale Custom Framing. Specializing in Archival Presentations for Artists, Galleries, Museums.

ARTISTS' FRAME SERVICE INC. Circle No. 47
1919 North Clybourn
Chicago, IL 60614 (312) 248-7713
Wholesale Custom Framing and Supply. 80 Metal, 200 Wood Styles, Mat Board, Museum Board. Fast Professional Service.

GRAND STREET FRAMES LTD. Circle No. 48
32 Grand Street
New York, NY 10013 (212) 334-9354
Custom Framing with Conservation Materials. Hardwoods or Metal. Cutglass, Mats, Painting, Strippings. Fast Service.

GREY GOOSE CUSTOM FRAMING Circle No. 49
5046 West Pico Blvd.
Los Angeles, CA 90019 (213) 938-6795
Plexiglass Fabrication, Cubes, Pedestals and Sculpture Mounting. Framing to Museum Standards. Wholesale and Retail.

TURNER FRAMING Circle No. 50
7508 Leesburg Pike, Falls Church, VA 22043
Also locations in Great Falls, Fairfax.
Excellence in Quality Custom Framing. Private Individual and Commercial Accounts. (703) 893-1263

WALLNUTS FRAME DESIGN Circle No. 51
2018 Locust Street
Philadelphia, PA 19103 (215) 732-8850
Design Consultants to PROFESSIONAL PICTURE FRAMERS ASSOC. Museum Matting, Exotic Woods, Acrylic Boxes, Pedestals.

HANGING & DISPLAY EQUIPMENT

KENNETH LYNCH & SONS Circle No. 52
Box 488, Wilton, CT 06897 (203) 762-8363
The famous Lynch picture rods made of stainless steel have been the standard in galleries for 100 years. Send for FREE CATALOG.

WALKER SYSTEMS, INC. Circle No. 53
530 South 21 Avenue East
Duluth, MN 55812 (218) 728-4434
Picture Hanging Devices (Rails, Rods, Hooks, Holders) Panel Hardware for freestanding displays & exhibits.

INSURANCE

FLATHER & HAYES COMPANY, INC. Circle No. 54
888 Seventeenth Street, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20006
(202) 466-8888
Fine arts insurance for collectors and dealers.

MOVERS AND PACKERS

PRO-PAK PROFESSIONAL PACKERS, INC.® 55
527 Dundee Road
Northbrook, IL 60062 (312) 272-0408
Fine Arts Packing, Crating and Shipping Specialists. Pick-up and Delivery Service. Full Insurance Coverage.

VIDEO SERVICES

VAN GOGH VIDEO Circle No. 56
Star Route 81 A, Rosendale, NY 12472 (914) 338-8943
Video Cassette Art News Magazine Distributed Weekly by Satellite/Cable TV & Cassette Subscription. Production and Distribution Services for the Art World.

ART SCHOOLS

AMERICAN ACADEMY OF ART Circle No. 57
I. Shapiro, A.W.S. Pres. & Director 220 S. State St.
Chicago, IL 60604 (312) 939-3883
AA Degree Programs in Adv'g. Des. & Graphics, Illust., Photo., Arch. Rend., the Fine Arts. 2 or 3 years.

ANTONELLI INST. OF ART & PHOTOG. Circle No. 58
Harry W. Hollingsworth, 2910 Jolly Road, P.O. Box 570
Plymouth Meeting, PA 19462 (215) 275-3040
Associate Degrees. Commercial & Fine Art, Interior Design, Photog. Additional campuses in Cincinnati, OH, York, PA.

ART INSTITUTE OF BOSTON Circle No. 59
Cynthia Close, 700 Beacon Street
Boston, MA 02215 (617) 262-2844
Graphic Design, Advertising, Illustration, Fine Arts, Photography, Day and Evening, Saturday and Summer Programs.

ART STUDENTS LEAGUE OF N.Y. Circle No. 60
R.A. Florio, Director, 215 W. 57th St., NYC 10019 (212) CI7-4510
Drawing, Painting, Sculture, Fine Arts Illustration, Printmaking, Portraiture, Landscape, Mural Painting, Etc. A.M., P.M. Late P.M., Eve; & Saturdays for children and adults.

AUGUSTANA COLLEGE Circle No. 61
Mary Em Kirn, Chair Art Department
Rock Island, IL 61201 (309) 794-7231
BA in Studio Art, Art History, Art Education including Painting, Ceramics, Fibers, Sculpture, Design.

STEPHEN F. AUSTIN STATE UNIV. Circle No. 62
Jon Wink, Dept. Chairman, Box 13001 SFA Station N
Nacogdoches, TX 75962 (409) 596-4804
BFA, MFA in all major studio areas. Excellent facilities. Private studios for grad students. Grad assistantships avail.

BARRY UNIVERSITY Circle No. 63
Patricia Minnaugh, Chairman 1130 N.E. Second Avenue
Miami Shores, FL 33161 (305) 758-3392 ext. 223
BA in Art, Music, Theatre
BFA in Art; BM in Music Education.

BETHEL COLLEGE Circle No. 64
Diana Torline, Director of Admissions
North Newton, KS 67117 (316) 283-2500
4 year church-related liberal arts, valuing community, peacemaking, global awareness. BA studio art, Art ED.

BOISE STATE UNIVERSITY Circle No. 65
Dr. Louis Peck, Art Department Chairman
1910 University Dr., Boise, ID 83725 (208) 385-1230
BA, BFA; Drawing, Painting, Print., Ad Design/Illus., Art ED, Design, Sculp., Ceramics, Metals, Photo.; MA Art ED.

BOSTON MUSEUM SCHOOL Circle No. 66
Eugene C. Ward, Dean of Admissions
Dept. of the Museum of Fine Arts/Affl. with Tufts Univ.
230 The Fenway, Boston, MA 02115/(617) 267-9300
BA BFA BSed MFA 5 yr dbl degree program with Tufts, Studio Arts

BRADLEY UNIVERSITY Circle No. 67
Walter Thompson, Director, 1501 West Bradley Avenue
Peoria, IL 61625 (309) 676-7611
MA, MFA Painting, Sculpture, Printmaking, Metals, Jewelry, Ceramics.

VOL
7
1
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

ART SCHOOLS

BRANDES ART INSTITUTE Circle No. 68
Director of Admissions, 6831 Tampa Avenue
Reseda, CA 91335 (213) 708-0050
Animation, Illustration, Fine Art,
Sculpture, Drawing, Painting

BRENTWOOD ART CENTER Circle No. 69
Ed Buttwinick, Director 13031 Montana Avenue
Los Angeles, CA 90049 (213) 451-5657
Private Fine Art School—Adults, Children.
Drawing, Painting, Sculpture, Cartooning, Mixed Media.

BUTERA SCHOOL OF ART Circle No. 70
Monnie Sloan, Registrar, 111 Beacon Street
Boston, MA 02116 (617) 536-4623
Diploma courses in Commercial Art/Illustration 3 yrs.
How to make a living with a brush "Sign Painting" 2 yrs.

CALIF COLLEGE OF ARTS & CRAFTS Circle No. 71
5212 Broadway
Oakland, CA 94618 (415) 653-8118
BFA, MFA, MAEd, 3 year Certificate, Teaching Credentials,
Fine Arts, Crafts, Design. 3 five week summer sessions.

CALIFORNIA INSTITUTE OF THE ARTS Circle No. 72
Kenneth Young, Director of Admissions
24700 McBean Parkway
Valencia, CA 91355 (805) 255-1050
BFA, MFA, Art & Design, Film & Video, Dance, Music, Theater.

CAZENOVIA COLLEGE Circle No. 73
Maxine G. Bowes, Dean of Admissions
Cazenovia, NY 13035 (313) 655-8005
Center for Art & Design: Advertising Design, Art, Fashion Design, Interior/Architectural Design, AAS Degrees.

CHAMBERLAYNE JUNIOR COLLEGE Circle No. 74
128 Commonwealth Avenue
Boston, MA 02116 (617) 536-4500 ext. 56
Advertising Design, Commercial Art; Interior and Fashion Design. Fashion Illustration.

CLEVELAND STATE UNIVERSITY Circle No. 75
Henry Drewal, Professor and Chair, Art Dept.
Cleveland, OH 44115 (216) 687-2090-89
BA Major/Minor/Honors in 8 Studio, 10 Art History, 3 Art Education Areas; Many exhibitions, Lectures, Workshops.

COLUMBIA COLLEGE Circle No. 76
Dean of Admissions, Department of Art
Columbia, MO 65216 (314) 875-7352
BFA, BA, BS, and 90 hour diploma program in Fine Arts and Graphic Design.

COLUMBUS COLLEGE OF ART & DESIGN 77
Laurie Clements & Pat Marion, 47 North Washington Avenue
Columbus, OH 43215 (614) 224-9101
BFA, Studio & Fine Arts, Advertising, Illustration, Photography
Interior & Industrial Designs. Non-Profit Prof. College.

COOPER UNION SCHOOL OF ART & SCHOOL OF ARCHITECTURE Circle No. 78
Director of Admissions, 41 Cooper Square
New York, NY 10003 (212) 254-6300
BFA in all areas of Visual Arts & Design. B. Architecture.

CORCORAN SCHOOL OF ART Circle No. 79
Office of Admissions 17th and New York Avenue, NW
Washington, D.C. 20006 (202) 628-9484
BFA in Fine Arts, Graphic Design & Photog./Private Studios in Sr. Fine Arts/Internships in Sr. Graphics/Dorm Apts.

CORNELL UNIVERSITY Circle No. 80
Ian Stewart, Acting Dean
College of Architecture, Art and Planning
Ithaca, NY 14853 (607) 256-4912
BFA, MFA, Painting, Sculpture, Printmaking, Graphics, Photo.

CRANBROOK ACADEMY OF ART Circle No. 81
Registrar CAA, 500 Lone Pine Rd., P.O. Box 801
Bloomfield Hills, MI 48013 (313) 645-3303
Graduate Program: Architecture, Ceramics, Design, Fiber, Metals, Painting, Photography, Printmaking, Sculpture.

DREXEL UNIVERSITY Circle No. 82
Sylvia S. Clark, Head 33rd & Market Streets
Philadelphia, PA 19104 (215) 895-2390-1
BS; Interior Design, Fashion Design, Design &
Merchandising. MS; Interior Design, Fashion Design.

THE FASHION & ART INSTITUTE OF DALLAS Circle No. 83
Evelyn Keedy, Director of Admissions, 2829 Northwest Highway
Dallas, TX 75220 (214) 359-8874
Associate of Applied Arts; Graphic Arts; Computer Graphics

FASHION INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY Circle No. 84
227 West 27 Street, New York, N.Y. 10001
Day Admissions (212) 760-7675/Continuing ED (212) 760-7650
9 AAS & 7 BFA majors in adver., display, fashion, fine arts, illus., interior, jewelry, packaging, photo, textile.

FASHION INST. OF TECHNOLOGY/SUNY 84
James Pidgeon, Director of Admissions, 227 West 27th St.
New York, N.Y. 10001 (212) 760-7675
18 majors offering AAS, BFA, BS Degrees in Art
& Design or Business & Technology.

GREENVILLE COUNTY MUSEUM OF ART 86
"Museum School of Art", Sharon Campbell, 420 College St.
Greenville, SC 29601 (803) 271-7570
Painting, Sculpture, Drawing/Printmaking, Advertising &
Interior Design, Contemp. Crafts, Fashion Illust., & Pottery.

HASTINGS COLLEGE Circle No. 87
Judy Redies Uerling, Director of Admissions
Box 269, Hastings, NE 68901 (401) 463-2402
Liberal Arts College. Outstanding Art program/facilities.
Glass, sculpture, ceramics, drawing, painting, printmaking.

HOPE COLLEGE Circle No. 88
Delbert Michel, Art Department Chairman
Holland, MI 49423 (616) 392-5111
Liberal arts institution with strong Art program. BA, major in Art.
Excellent new teaching facilities.

HOUGHTON COLLEGE Circle No. 89
Bruce Wenger, Head of Art Department
Houghton, NY 14744
Christian Liberal Arts. BA in Visual Arts of Drawing, Printmaking, Painting, Ceramics, Sculpture.

ILLINOIS STATE UNIVERSITY Circle No. 90
Fred Mills, Chairman, College of Fine Arts
Bloomington/Normal, IL 61761 (309) 438-5621
BA, BS, MA Art History, BFA, BS Studio Art, BS Art Ed, Art Special Ed, MSA, MFA, PHD.

INDIANA STATE UNIVERSITY Circle No. 91
Dr. Frederick Bunce, Chairman, Department of Art
Terre Haute, IN 46809 (812) 232-6311 ext. 2222
BS, BFA, MS, MA, MFA Studio Arts (9 Areas), Art Education, Art History.

ART SCHOOLS

JOHNSON ATELIER TECH. INSTITUTE Circle No. 92
Brooke Barrie, Academic Director
743 Alexander Road, Princeton, NJ 08540 (609) 452-2661
Sculpture: modeling-enlarging, resins, mold, wax, shell, foundry, metal chasing, structures, patination, sand foundry.

KANSAS CITY ART INSTITUTE Circle No. 93
Sharon Hunter, Director of Admissions, 4415 Warwick Blvd.
Kansas City, MO 64111 (816) 931-KCAI
BFA, Ceramics, Design, Fiber, Painting, Printmaking, Photography/Video, Sculpture and Liberal Arts Courses.

KENT STATE UNIVERSITY Circle No. 94
William Quinn, Acting Director
School of Art Kent, OH 44242 (216) 672-2192
BA, MA Art History, Art ED; BS, BFA, MFA Industrial & Graphic Design. BFA, MFA Crafts, Studio Art, Film.

THE JOE KUBERT SCHOOL OF CARTOON AND GRAPHIC ART Circle No. 95
Admissions 45 Lehigh St., Dover, N.J. 07801 (201) 361-1327
Specializing in CARTOON-GRAPHICS, CINEMATIC ANIMATION. 3 year diploma. Sat. Cartoon Sketch Classes, Graphic Arts.

KUTZTOWN UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF VISUAL & PERFORMING ARTS Circle No. 96
George E. McKinley, Kutztown, PA 19530 (215) 683-4060
BFA, Communication Design, General Fine Arts, Related Arts, Crafts. BS in Art Education.

RUTH LEAF STUDIO Circle No. 97
Ruth Leaf 40-30 235th Street
Douglaston, NY 11363 (212) 225-4734
Classes in Monoprints and Intaglio. Three presses. Studio facilities available.

LOYOLA MARYMOUNT UNIVERSITY Circle No. 98
Peter Clothier, Dean Loyola Blvd. at W. 80th St.
Los Angeles, CA 90045 (213) 642-3128
BA Degree in 2-dimensional, 3-dimensional and temporal visual media.

LYCOMING COLLEGE Circle No. 99
Marshall Raucci, Dean of Admissions & Financial Aid
Office of Admissions & Financial Aid. Williamsport, PA 17701
BA in Studio Art, Art History, Commercial Design. BFA Sculpture co-operative program with Johnson Atelier Technical Institute.

LYME ACADEMY OF FINE ARTS Circle No. 100
Nancy Hileman, Director Lyme Street
Old Lyme, CT 06731 (203) 434-0175
Basic techniques, principles, and traditions of fine art and promotion of sound technical knowledge of art.

JAMES MADISON UNIVERSITY Circle No. 101
Jay D. Kain, Head, Department of Art
Harrisonburg, VA 22807 (703) 433-6216
BA/Art History; BS/Studio, Art ED; BFA/Ceramic, Ptg., Print, Photo, Jewelry, Fiber, Sculp., Graphic/Int. Dsg. MFA/Mat.

MARYCREST COLLEGE Circle No. 102
Alan Garfield, Department Head, 1607 W. 12th
Davenport, IA 52804 (319) 326-9226
Computer Graphics, Art History, Ceramics, Drawing/Painting, Graphic Arts, Museum Training, Printmaking, Sculpture.

MARYLAND INSTITUTE COLLEGE OF ART 103
Barbara Miller, 1300 W. Mt. Royal Avenue
Baltimore, MD 21217 (301) 669-9200
BFA, MFA, Fine Arts, Interior Design, Photography, Graphic Design, Crafts.

MASSACHUSETTS COLLEGE OF ART Circle No. 104
Kay Ransdell 346 Brookline Avenue,
Boston, MA 02215 (617) 731-2340
BFA, Painting, Sculpture, Crafts, Film, Photo, Arch., Industrial, Graphic, Fashion Design, Art Ed., MSEd.

MEMPHIS ACADEMY OF ART Circle No. 105
Carol De Forest, Admissions, (901) 726-4085
Overton Park, Memphis, TN 38112
BFA, Fine Arts/Ad. Design/Crafts. Warm personal college. Scholarships & merit awards. Call collect.

MILTON AVERY GRADUATE SCHOOL OF THE ARTS - BARD COLLEGE Circle No. 106
Annandale-on-Hudson, NY 12504 (914) 758-4105
An interdisciplinary program; MFA granted in: Poetry, Sculp., Intermedia, Music, Film, Photog., Fiction, Painting.

MOORE COLLEGE OF ART Circle No. 107
Dolores Lewis, 20th and the Parkway,
Philadelphia, PA 19103 (215) 568-4515
Advtg., Fashion, Interior Design. Fashion Illustration. Textile, Ceramics, Jewelry, Paintg, Printmakg, Sculp, Photog.

MOUNT MARY COLLEGE Circle No. 108
Sister Rosemarita, Art Department Chairperson
Milwaukee, WI 53222 (414) 258-4810
Liberal Arts College. BA, Art, Art Therapy, Art ED, Graphic Arts, Interior Design, Fashion Design.

NEW YORK SCHOOL OF INTERIOR DESIGN 109
Director of Admissions, 155 East 56th Street
New York, N.Y. 10022 (212) 753-5365
BFA, AAS, 3-yr. Design Diploma, 12 credit Cert. in Interior design. Full & part-time: Fall, Spring, Summer & Evening.

NY STUDIO SCHOOL OF DRAWING PAINTING AND SCULPTURE Circle No. 110
Don Kimes, 8 W 8th St., NYC 10011, (212) 673-6466
Full Time Studio Programs; Drawing, Painting Sculpture MFA in Sculpture. Summer Programs in New York.

NORTH TEXAS STATE UNIVERSITY Circle No. 111
Dr. Margaret O Lucas, Chair Dept. of Art P.O. Box 5098
Denton, TX 76203 (817) 565-2855
BFA, MFA, Ad Art, Interior Des., Fashion Des, Photo, Ptg & Drg. Crafts, Sculp; FA, BFA, MA, MFA, Art Hist; BFA, MFA, MA, PhD.

OTTERBEIN COLLEGE Circle No. 112
Earl Hassenpflug, Art Department Chairperson
Westerville, Ohio 43081 (614) 890-0004
BA major in Art in the liberal arts tradition. Excellent facilities—Enthusiastic faculty.

OXBOW Circle No. 113
Saugatuck, MI 49453
(312) 787-0986
Intensive Paper-Making, Painting, Ceramics, and Architecture.

PACIFIC NORTHWEST COLLEGE OF ART 114
Bonnie Malcolmson, Admissions 1219 Southwest Park
Portland, OR 97205 (503) 226-4391
BFA, Ceramics, Printmaking, Drawing, Painting, Sculpture, Graphic Design, Illustration, Photography.

PAIER COLLEGE OF ART Circle No. 115
Director of Admissions, Six Prospect Park
Hamden, CT 06511 (203) 777-3851
BFA in Fine Arts, Graph. Des., Illus., Int. Des., AFA in Photo. Cert. in Graph. Prod., Int. Des., Tech. Illus.

VOL 7 1 ISS 9 OC 1983 UMI

ART SCHOOLS

PARSONS SCHOOL OF DESIGN Circle No. 116
Vieri Salvadori, Dean
66 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10011 (212) 741-8953
MFA, Studio Workshops with Senior Faculty. New Sculpture program available. Leland Bell, John Heliker, Paul Resika.

PENNSYLVANIA ACADEMY OF FINE ARTS 117
Erika Flory, Room M, Broad & Cherry Streets
Philadelphia, PA 19102 (215) 972-7625
Painting, Sculpture, Printmaking, Drawing, 4 Year Certificate.

PENSACOLA JUNIOR COLLEGE Circle No. 118
Mr. Carl F. Duke, Department Head, 1000 College Blvd.
Pensacola, FL 32504 (904) 476-5410 ext. 2250
AA in Advertising Design and Graphic Arts.
AS in Fine Arts (College transfer program).

PHILADELPHIA COLLEGE OF ART Circle No. 119
Caroline Kelsey, Director, Broad & Spruce Streets
Philadelphia, PA 19102 (215) 893-3174
Crafts, Fine Arts, Design, Liberal Arts, Concentration in Art Therapy, BFA, BS, MA in Art Education.

PRATT INSTITUTE Circle No. 120
Linda Berk, Director, 200 Willoughby Avenue
Brooklyn, NY 11205 (212) 636-3670
17 Majors, Graduate and Undergraduate in Art and Design MFA, BFA, AOS, BID, MID, BA and MA in Architecture.

PROFESSIONAL INST. OF COMM. ART 121
Mary F. Wise, Owner/Director, 4020 Clarks Lane
Baltimore, MD 21215 (301) 358-6311
Comm. art, fash. ill., art adv., graphics. 1 yr. program. Open enrollment. Offers fin. aid. OP. Programs: Prod.; Cartooning

RHODE ISLAND SCHOOL OF DESIGN Circle No. 122
Edward Newhall, Director
2 College Street, Box 1A
Providence, RI 02903 (401) 331-3511
18 Majors in Architecture, Fine Arts and Design.

ROANOKE COLLEGE Circle No. 123
Karen C Adams, Fine Arts Chairperson
Salem, VA 24153 (703) 389-2351
BA, Design, Drawing, Painting, Printmaking, Photography, Advertising Design, Ceramics, Sculpture, and Art History.

SAN FRANCISCO ART INSTITUTE Circle No. 124
800 Chestnut St., San Francisco, CA 94133 (415) 771-7020
Filmmaking, Painting, Performance/Video, Photography, Printmaking, Sculpture/Ceramic Sculpture, MFA, BFA, Humanities Program.

THE SAVANNAH COLLEGE OF ART/DESIGN 125
Paula Rowen, Director 342 Bull Street
Savannah, Georgia 31401 (912) 236-7458
BFA Painting, Graphics Design, Illustration, Interior Design Photography, Historic Preservation.

SCHOOL OF THE ART INST. OF CHICAGO 126
Jana Wright, Jackson and Columbus Drive
Chicago, IL 60603 (312) 443-3717
BFA, MFA, Professional Certificates in Art History and in Art Therapy.

SCHOOL OF VISUAL ARTS Circle No. 127
Stephen Pite, Director of Admissions
209 E. 23rd St., N.Y., N.Y. 10010 (212) 679-7350
BFA degree and non-degree programs.
MFA degree in Fine Arts.

SKOWHEGAN Circle No. 128
JoAnn Chuba, 329 E. 68th, New York, N.Y. 10021 (212) 861-9270
Nine week summer residency program in Maine. 65 enrollees. Independent studio work in painting, sculpture, fresco. Applications and slide portfolios due February 28th.

SOUTHAMPTON COLLEGE Circle No. 129
Kevin Coveney,
(516) 283-4000, ext. 120 Southampton, NY 11968
BFA, Graphic Design BS, ArtEd., BA Liberal Arts/Fine Arts Summer workshops in Studio Arts.

STATE UNIV. OF NEW YORK COLLEGE AT BROCKPORT Circle No. 130
Wolodymyr Pylyshenko, Art Dept. Brockport, NY 14420 (716) 395-2209 Drawing, Painting, Ceramics, Sculpture, Printmaking, Photo., Metalsmithing. BA or BS in Studio or Art History.

STATE UNIV. OF NEW YORK COLLEGE AT NEW PALTZ Circle No. 131
Michael Zadro, Chairman, SAB 106, New Paltz, NY 12561 (914) 257-2430 BFA, MFA, Ceramics, Graph. Des., Painting, Printmaking, Sculp., Photo., Gold & Silversmithing. BS Art ED, BA Art Hist.

SUMMIT ART CENTER Circle No. 132
Deborrah Lewis, Registrar 68 Elm Street
Summit, NJ 07901 (201) 273-9121
Painting, Drawing, Sculpture, Ceramics, Jewelry, Photography, Graphics, Art Appreciation.

SUNY AT PURCHASE Circle No. 133
Edward Colker, Dean
Purchase, NY 10577 (914) 253-5014,5
BFA, Painting, Drawing, 111-D Media, Printmaking, Paper Making, Arts of the Book, Graphic Design, Photography.

SAVE 10% TO 30% ON BRAND NAME ART SUPPLIES
OFF MANUFACTURERS LIST
SEND FOR FREE CATALOG
the Art Store 4300 WEST 190th ST. TORRANCE, CA. 90509

NAME ____________________
ADDRESS ____________________
CITY ____________ STATE ____________
ZIP ____________ PHONE ____________
PLEASE PRINT

E.A.T. BIBLIOGRAPHY 1965-1980
by BILLY KLUVER

Lists 969 publications documenting the evolution of art and technology since 1965

$7.50 plus $1 postage and handling

EXPERIMENTS IN ART AND TECHNOLOGY
49 East 68th Street New York, N.Y. 10021
(212) 285-1690

ART SCHOOLS

SWAIN SCHOOL OF DESIGN Circle No. 134
A.D. Tinkham, Admissions Director, 19 Hawthorn St.
New Bedford, MA 02740 (617) 997-7831
A four college of Art & Design offering the BFA in: Painting, Printmaking, Sculpture, and Graphic Design.

TEXAS CHRISTIAN UNIVERSITY Circle No. 135
Ronald Watson, Chairman, Dept. of Art and Art History
Fort Worth, Texas 76129 (817) 921-7643
BFA, Complete visual arts program including graphic design. MFA, painting, printmaking, ceramics, sculp., metals.

TRAPHAGEN SCHOOL OF FASHION Circle No. 136
Julia Kieran, Admissions Director 275 Park Ave. So.
New York, N.Y. 10010 (212) 673-0300
9 COTY AWARD WINNERS STUDIED HERE! 2-yr Certificate Programs; Fashion Design, Illust., 1 yr Int. Design & Dec.

TYLER SCHOOL OF ART OF TEMPLE U. Circle No. 137
Margaret Heuges, Beech and Penrose Aves.
Elkins Park, PA 19126 (215) 224-7575
BFA, MFA, MEd, Design, Fine and Applied Arts. Summer & Saturday High School Programs. On-Campus dormitories.

UNIVERSITY OF ILL./CHAMPAIGN-URBANA 138
School of Art and Design 408 East Peabody Drive
Champaign, IL 61820 (217) 333-0855
BFA, MFA, MA, PHD, EDD, Art Ed, Art History, Ceramics, Glass, Graphic Design, Indust. Design, Metal, Painting, Sculpt.

UNIVERSITY OF MASS. AT AMHERST Circle No. 139
George Wardlaw, Chairman, Art Dept., Fine Arts Center
Amherst, MA 01003 (413) 545-1902
BA, BFA, MFA, MAT, MS, MA, Art History, Studio Arts Art Education, Interior Design, Indicate Grad. or Under-Grad.

UNIV. N.C. AT CHARLOTTE Circle No. 140
Don Byrum, Division of Visual Arts, Dept. of Creative Arts
Charlotte, NC 28223 (704) 597-2482
BCA (84 semester hours in Art), Painting, Photo, Art History, Sculpture, Printmaking, Ceramics, Design, Fibers, Art ED.

UNIVERSITY OF NORTHERN IOWA Circle No. 141
Joseph M. Ruffo, Head, Department of Art
Cedar Falls, IA 50614 (319) 273-2077
BFA, BA Teaching, MA: Painting; Drawing; Ceramics; Metals; Sculpture; Photography; Printmaking; Graphic Design (No MA)

UNIVERSITY OF PENNSYLVANIA Circle No. 142
Robert Engman & Neil Welliver, Chairmen, Fine Arts
205 S 34th St., Philadelphia, PA 19104 (215) 898-8374
BFA Painting & Sculpture
MFA Painting, Sculpture & Printmaking

UNIVERSITY OF SOUTH CAROLINA Circle No. 143
Department of Art, Director of Grad or Undergrad studies
Sloan College—Columbia, SC 29208 (803) 777-4236
BA, BFA, MA, MFA, MAT-Painting, Sculpture, Graphic Design, Interior Design, Drawing, Fibers, Ceramics, Printmaking.

VIRGINIA COMMONWEALTH UNIVERSITY 144
Thomas DeSmidt, Assistant Dean, School of Arts
325 North Harrison Street
Richmond, VA 23284 (804) 257-1700
BFA, MFA in all Visual Arts Disciplines.

WEST TEXAS STATE UNIVERSITY Circle No. 145
Steven Mayes, Head, Department of Art
Canyon, TX 79016 (806) 656-2291
BFA, BA, BS, MA, MFA Drawing, Painting, Printmaking, Sculpture, Ceramics, Metalsmithing/Jewelry, Graphic Design & Art ED.

WESTERN MICHIGAN UNIVERSITY Circle No. 146
John Link, Art Department Chairperson
Kalamazoo, MI 49008 (616) 383-0407
BA, BFA, MA, MFA, Painting, Sculpture/Foundry, Crafts, Graphic Design, Prints, Photo, Art ED, Art History.

WESTMINSTER COLLEGE Circle No. 147
Robert Hild, Art Department Chairman
New Wilmington, PA 16172 (412) 946-2192
4 year private liberal Arts, BA major in Art and Art Education.

WINTHROP COLLEGE Circle No. 148
Edmund Lewandowski, Chairman
Rock Hill, SC 29733 (803) 323-2126
BVA/BA Painting, Sculpture, Printmaking, Advertising: Graphic Design, Photo, Drawing, Crafts, Summer Program.

YALE UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF ART Circle No. 149
Patricia DeChiara Lubar, Admissions Officer, 180 York St.
New Haven, CT 06520 (203) 436-4380
Graphic Design Summer Program in Brissago, Switzerland. Deadline April 1, 1983. Summer Art Programs in New Haven, CT.

To receive information from the companies listed, circle the corresponding number on the REPLY COUPON below, and drop it in an envelope. You will receive information directly from them.

Art in America REPLY COUPON
Reader Service Dept., 850 Third Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10022

OCTOBER 1983
THIS COUPON EXPIRES
January 31, 1984

NAME (PLEASE PRINT) TELEPHONE
ADDRESS
CITY STATE ZIP

Art Services & Schools ▽ Please send information circled.

1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11 12 13 14 15 16 17 18 19 20 21 22 23 24 25 26 27 28 29 30
31 32 33 34 35 36 37 38 39 40 41 42 43 44 45 46 47 48 49 50 51 52 53 54 55 56 57 58 59 60
61 62 63 64 65 66 67 68 69 70 71 72 73 74 75 76 77 78 79 80 81 82 83 84 85 86 87 88 89 90
91 92 93 94 95 96 97 98 99 100 101 102 103 104 105 106 107 108 109 110 111 112 113 114 115 116 117 118 119 120

ALLOW 6-8 WEEKS FOR DELIVERY

VOL
71
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

Haden, The Breaking of the "Agamemnon," 1870

AUTUMN AT AAA:

Through October 8: Clare Leighton: Wood Engravings, A Retrospective.

October 10-29: Seymour Haden: Etchings. Newly published: A Catalogue Raisonné of the Prints of Sir Francis Seymour Haden, by Richard S. Schneiderman, available through AAA at $250, plus $5 shipping.

November 1-23: The Master Print: America Since 1960. Recent works by Jim Dine, Richard Diebenkorn, Richard Bosman, Robert Motherwell, Helen Frankenthaler, Jasper Johns, Frank Stella, and others.

Illustrated catalogues on request.

Associated American Artists
663 Fifth Avenue (52-53 Sts.) New York 10022 □ (212) 755-4211

Art expo NY

New York Coliseum • April 5-9, 1984

The 6th Annual International Forum for Fine Art Dealers

Space reservations accepted subject to qualification and availability.

For further information contact
International Art Exposition
509 Madison Avenue, New York 10022
Telephone: (212) 935-7607

KIM ABELES

OCT 11 - NOV 12

△

KARL BORNSTEIN GALLERY
1662 12TH ST / SANTA MONICA
CA 90404 (213) 450-1129

---

gallery one

JACK BUSH

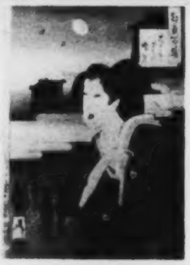
a survey; 1959 - 1976
October 1 - October 20, 1983

121 Scollard St., Toronto M5R 1G4 Telephone (416)929-3103

MASTERS of THE MEIJI ERA

Oct. 8 — Nov. 5, 1983

ARTISTS:
Chikanobu
Gekkō
Kunichika
Toshikata
Yoshitoshi
(amongst others)



Oban: The Moon at Shibai-Machi
Series: 100 Views of the Moon (1886)
Artist: Yoshitoshi

315 Central Park West
Suite 8W, (91st Street)
Wed. — Sat., 1 — 6P.M. &
by appt. SU7-4704.

GLASS GALLERY

TYLER SCHOOL OF ART FALL EXHIBITIONS

TEMPLE UNIVERSITY

VISITING ARTISTS & NEW FACULTY

October 7 - November 4
Biff Elrod · Larry Fink
Sharon Gold · Kristine Ford Herrick
Marian Levine · Rebecca Michaels
Susan Moran · John O'Leary
Esther Parada · Pedro Perez
Katherine Porter

IN A BASKET WAY

November 11 - December 9
Dorothy Gill Barnes · Douglas Fuchs
Lillian Elliott & Pat Hickman · Jane Sauer
John G. Garrett · Sylvia Seventy
Suellen Glashausser · Ferne Jacobs
Patti Lechman · John McQueen
Ed Rossbach · Carol Shaw-Sutton
Diane Sheehan · Gary Trentham

BRETT TAYLOR: THE AEGEAN YEARS

Memorial Exhibition (1943 - 1983)
November 11 - December 9

Tyler School of Art
of Temple University
Beech and Penrose Avenues
Elkins Park.
Philadelphia PA 19126
(215) 224-7575

We'll make you work hard so you'll have an easier time getting the job you want. For information about our programs in Graphic Design, Advertising, Illustration, Fine Arts and Photography, call (617) 262-2844.

THE ART INSTITUTE OF BOSTON

700 Beacon St. Boston, MA 02215

We'll put your creativity to work.

ESTHER A. GRILLO

UFT SHTEL BETTLE, 1983
36" x50" x22"

'The Ambiguous
Sculptural Image'
SEPT. 27 — OCT. 15

14 SCULPTORS GALLERY
164 MERCER STREET
NEW YORK 10012
212 / 966-5790

OPEN Tue. - Sun. 11-6 pm

JUDITH SELKOWITZ FINE ARTS, INC. announces
FOURTH ANNUAL COMPETITION $3,000

Category: A pair or series of REPRESENTATIONAL WORKS-ON-PAPER
No entry fee or application
Eligibility: Limited to American artists who have no affiliations with New York City commercial galleries.
Requirements: Artists may send slides of up to six different available works. Each work is considered a pair or series. There should be no more than two slides per work. Minimum size for each panel should be 18" x 24". A self-addressed, stamped envelope for the return of the slides is to be enclosed.
Award: There will be a $2,000 cash award to purchase the winning work, which will be placed in a corporate art collection. A travel stipend of $1,000 will also be given for the winner to travel to two cities in the U.S.
Deadline: Slides must be received by March 2, 1984. Judith Selkowitz Fine Arts, Inc. is not responsible for lost or damaged slides.
Address: Judith Selkowitz Fine Arts, Inc. Award
P.O. Box 3448, New York, New York 10185.
Selection: The winner will be selected by an advisory board of six, consisting of members from the art, architecture, and business communities.

L.A. Packing And Crating

Fine Art Specialists
Packing, Crating, Installation
Storage, Transportation

(213) 933-5602

5852 W. Adams Boulevard Culver City, CA 90230

Frame and Furniture Restoration

Restore Old Picture Frames for HOBBY, FUN, PROFIT!
New 24 pg. Booklet Tells You How.
Save or make big dollars by buying old, used picture frames. Beautifully restore them. Easily, inexpensively, authentically. Lots of fun at same time. Fully illustrated, clear step-by-step instructions. Satisfaction or your money back. Send $2.95 (plus 80¢ shipping and handling) to:

JPS BARKTON CO., INC. Dept. M308, 54 Pugh Road
Strafford, PA 19087 PA add 6% sales tax.

P.S. 1
SEPTEMBER 25-NOVEMBER 20, 1983

"EXPRESSIONS: NEW ART FROM GERMANY" with GEORG BASELITZ, JÖRG IMMENDORFF, ANSELM KIEFER, MARKUS LÜPERTZ and A.R. PENCK Curator: Jack Cowart

OPENING PEFORMANCE:
"PICTURE THIS FUTURE" By Paul Bob

ARCHITECTURE:
"SYNTHETIC LINKS" By JOHN MARGOLIES

FASHION:
"STRAIGHT WHITE MALE" By GARY CATHEY
Curator: Hollywood DiRusso

FILM: October 22-32, November 5-6, 19-20
P.S. 1 FILM EXHIBITION SERIES with ERICKA BECKMAN, ALAN BERLINER, STAN BRAKHAGE, ROBERT BREER, BARRY GERSON, PETER GIDAL, ALAN HOLLEB, SUSAN KOUGELL and ERNIE MORRERO, J.J. MURPHY, JEFF PREISS and others Curator: Fred Riedel

PHOTOGRAPHY:
"THE WAY WE LIVE NOW: BEYOND SOCIAL DOCUMENTARY" Curator: Abigail Solomon-Godeau

VIDEO:
"INFORMATION WITHHELD" By JUAN DOWNEY

"NYC: URBAN IMAGE" with JOHN ALPERT, KAREN RANUCCI and KEIKO TSUNO; JOAN BRADERMAN; STEVE GOODMAN; RII KANZAKI and BOB HARRIS; and ANGELO JANUZZI and THOM SUDANO
Curator: Bob Harris

SPECIAL PROJECTS:
FRANK BIGBEAR JR.
BRUCE CHARLESWORTH
THOM COONEY-CRAWFORD
ROBERT ELLSWORTH
DAVID JACKSON
R.T. LIVINGSTON
ED McGOWEN
MARK MILLOFF
SCOTT PFAFFMAN
ROD RHODES
SCOTT RICHTER
TED WELLER
TAD WILEY

"SIX WOMEN/IMAGE IMPACT" with SONIA BALASSANIAN, ANNE PITRONE, JUDY RIFKA, SUSAN ROTHENBERG, DENA SHOTTENKIRK and MIMI SMITH
Curator: Nancy Spero

The Institute for Art and Urban Resources
46-01 21st Street, Long Island City, NY 11101 212-784-2084
Gallery Hours: Thursday-Sunday 12-6pm

shiva®

We didn't invent airbrushing . . . .
We just improved the colors.

SHIVAIR™
AIRBRUSH COLOR
NET 2 FL OZ (59ML)

SHIVAIR™
AIRBRUSH COLORS

Shivair colors are a specially formulated, water base, airbrush paint in liquid form. Ready for instant use with airbrush, tech pen or brush. The extremely versatile palette consists of 17 brilliant opaque, 18 lively transparent and 6 neutral opaque grays that are completely consistent and intermixable. All colors dry rapidly to a matte, uniformly smooth finish.

shiva®
4300 West 190th Street
Torrance, CA 90805-2908
Telephone (213) 542-5583

VOL
71
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

JON LEON GALLERY

NATHAN SLATE JOSEPH

Oct. 15th - Nov. 19th, 1983

31 DESBROSSES NYC 10013 226-7789

Saturdays: 12:00 - 6:00; other days: by appointment

JANE PIPER

September 28
to
October 22

A catalog is available

Gross McCleaf Gallery 1713 Walnut Street
Philadelphia, PA 19103 (215) 665-8138

DISCOVER
THE BEST
IN FLORIDA

270 N.E. 39th St
Miami, Florida 33137
(305) 573-4898

3886 Biscayne Blvd
Miami, Florida 33137
(305) 573-4898

Dali-Erte-Limited Editions-Sculpture

Miro-Chagall-Wyeth-Neiman

Buy Art Smart

The Art Brokerage, Inc.
300 S. 4th St., 1503
Las Vegas, Nevada 89101
(702) 732-3999/3851296

Listing and Locating Service
Buy Sell or Trade

Save 25 to 50%;
Dealer Inquiries Welcome

$25.00 for computer printout
Applicable toward purchase

Noyer, Azoulay, Picasso

Mexican-European-American-originals

Anna Maria Hancke
Paintings

October 18
November 13

"Snow on Kilimanjaro", 1982,
Acrylic on canvas 36½" x 29"

Yvonne Séguy Gallery
61 West 62 Street • Harkness Plaza • New York, New York 10023
(212) 265-3314

TYLERSCHOOLOFART

TEMPLE UNIVERSITY

Programs Offered:
Ceramics/Glass Sculpture
Painting Graphic Design
Metals/Jewelry Printmaking
Photography Weaving/Textiles
Summer Pre-College

BFA, MFA, MEd
Teaching Certification
Tyler in Rome: Semester/Year
Continuing Education
Saturday Crafts Pre-College

for information:

Tyler School of Art of Temple University
Beech and Penrose Avenues, Elkins Park, Philadelphia PA 19126
(215) 224-7575

We are pleased to announce our new location in October with an inaugural exhibition of gallery artists.

HABER THEODORE GALLERY
24 West 57th Street, New York 10019

Art Books and
Illustrated Books

Rare and scholarly books in all fields of the visual arts.

Important illustrated books from the fifteenth century to the present.

ars libri, ltd.
286 SUMMER STREET • BOSTON, MA 02210
(617) 357-5212
Mon.-Fri. 9 to 6 • Sat. 11 to 5

INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION DIRECTORY

A guide to current exhibitions abroad

ARGENTINA

BUENOS AIRES ☎ 54 (1)

RUTH BENZACAR
Talcahuano 1216-1° • 1014 • Tel. 41-8549, 42-5814/5568
Audivert, Bedel, Benedit, Benguria, Cáceres, Castilla, De Monte, Iommi, Kemble, Marotta, Michel, Minujin, Robirosa, Smoje, Vegazzi.

DEL RETIRO
Florida 943 • 1005 • Tel. 32.5850
Gallery artists: Pablo Bobbi, Marcello Bonevardi, Sergio Camporalle, Dalla Cujat, Lea Lublin, Aldo Parella, Daniel Selaga.

AUSTRIA

INNSBRUCK ☎ 43 (5222)

KRINZINGER
Adolf Pichlerplatz 8 • 6020 • Tel. 32,131
Until October 20, Alois Mosbacher, paintings, gouaches 1983

KLAGENFURT ☎ 43 (4222)

CARINTHIA KLAGENFURT
Volermarkter Ring 25 • 9020 • Tel. 57.377
Until October 15, Franz Petschounig-Moro
As of Oct. 18, Shmuel Shapiro

VIENNA ☎ 43 (222)

ARIADNE
Bäckerstrasse 6 • 1010 • Tel. 52.94.79

GRITA INSAM
Köllnerhofg. 6 • 1010 • Tel. 52.53.30
October 5-November 9, Robert Combas, Hervé di Rosa, Lino Fiorito
Until Oct. 20, Shirazeh Houshiary; As of Oct. 29, "Neue Arbeiten"

PAKESCH
Ballgasse 6 • 1010 • Tel. 52.48.14
Markus Oehlen
Otto Zitko

NÄCHST ST. STEPHAN
Grunangergasse 1/11 II • 1010 • Tel. 52.12.66
Until October 22, Brigitte Kovanz-Franz Graf, paintings and installations (cat. available); As of Oct. 27, Mario Merz

ULYSSES
Opernring 21 • 1010 • Tel. 57.12.26.
"Aspects of 20th Century Sculpture"

GALERIE HUBERT WINTER
Sonnenfelsgasse 8 • 1010 • Tel. 52.92.85
October, Hubert Scheibel, paintings (illustrated catalogue available)

BELGIUM

ANTWERP ☎ 32 (31)

AVANTGRADE
Volkstraat 60 • Tel. 216.04.81

MICHELE LACHOWSKY
27 Waalse Kaai • 2000 • Tel. 237.23.93
Bertrand Lavier

LENS FINE ART
Mechelsesteenweg 146 • 2018 • Tel. 237.68.57
Through October 29, Pierre Klossowski

"121"
Mechelsesteenweg 121 • 218.68.73
Through October, Keith Haring, drawings

MICHELINE SZWAJCER
17 Venusstraat • 2000 • Tel. 32.71.65
Mark Luyten

BRUSSELS ☎ 32 (2)

ALBERT BARONIAN
89, Avenue Emile de Beco • 1050 • Tel. 647.3414
October, General Idea

ISY BRACHOT
62a, Avenue Louise • 1050 • Tel. 511.05.25
October, Joan Marti

VOL
71
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION DIRECTORY

	BRUSSELS (CONT'D)	☎ 32 (2)
	POST-SCRIPTUM 37, Rue des Eperonniers • 1000 • Tel. 511.96.43	Books and catalogues on contemporary art and photography, records
	GHENT	☎ 32 (91)
	BARONIAN/LAMBERT Oudburg 22 • 9000 • Tel. 254.057	Piet Dieleman
	RICHARD FONCKE 18 St. Janvest • 9000 • Tel. 23.81.28	Roger Raveel, woodcuts; Philippe Vandanberghe, recent paintings
	GEWAD 23 Gewad • 9000 • Tel. 25.56.16	October, Raoul De Keyser
	KNOKKE	☎ 32 (50)
	ELISABETH FRANCK 124 Kustlaan • 8300 • Tel. 606.881	Titus-Carmel
	GALLERY TRIADE Res. St. James, Kustlaan 130 • 8300 • Tel. 610.087	Alechinsky, Appel, Allan, Bissidre, Esteve, Fautrier, Herbin, Jorn, Soulages, Bram & Geer van Velde, Vieira da Silva
	ZWEVEGEM-OTEGEM	☎ 32 (56)
	DEWEER ART GALLERY 2 • Tiegemstraat 9 • 856 • Tel. 644.113	Panamarenko
COLOMBIA	BARRANQUILLA
	GALERIA QUINTERO 1, CRA 51 B N° 80-65 • Tel. 359.210
	BOGOTA	☎ 57
	GARCES Y VELASQUEZ CRA 5 N° 26-92 - AA 28936 • 1 • Tel. 284.5593	Luis Caballero, Santiago Cardenas, Beatriz Gonzalez, Becky Mayer, Saturnino Ramirez, Carlos Rojas, Bernardo Salcedo, Camilo Velasquez
	QUINTANA Carrera 11 N° 85-62 • Tel. 236.8226	XIXth and XXth Century paintings: Botero, Degas, Gauguin, Hockney, Matisse, Moore, Picasso, Rodin, Vuillard
ENGLAND	CAMBRIDGE	☎ 44 (223)
	KETTLE'S YARD GALLERY Northampton Street, C.B.3 OA.Q. • Tel. 352.124	October 15-November 20, Henri Gaudier-Brzeska, a retrospective exhibition of sculpture and drawing
	LONDON	☎ 44 (1)
	ANNE BERTHOUD GALLERY 1 Langley Court, W.C.2 • Tel. 836.73.57
	ART HOUSE 213 South Lambeth Road • Tel. 735.2192	Representing contemporary British artists, including John Bellany. Also collection of Outsider Art—by appointment
	ANTHONY d'OFFAY 23 Dering Street, W.1 • Tel. 499.4695	Until October 15, Joseph Beuys, "Vitrines—Forms of the 60's" As of Oct. 25, Julian Schnabel, paintings
	BROWSE & DARBY 19 Cork Street • Tel. 734.7984	Until October 22, Matthew Smith, paintings As of Oct. 26, Paul Maze, paintings, watercolors and pastels
	12 DUKE STREET GALLERY Duke Street, St. James, S.W.1 • Tel. 930.52.47	The gallery is closed
	GIMPEL FILS 30 Davies Street, W.1Y.1L.G. • Tel. 493.2488	October 4-29, Karel Appel, recent paintings
	ROBERT FRASER GALLERY 21 Cork Street, W.1 • Tel. 434 1911	Through mid-October, Nick Danziger, painted wood reliefs
	NIGEL GREENWOOD, INC. 41 Sloane Gardens, S.W.1W.8E.B. • Tel. 730.8824	Through mid-October, Ian McKeever, traditional landscapes of 1983
	I.C.A. The Mall, SW1. • Tel. 930.0493	Until October 23, "New Contemporaries," a selection from national art schools. October 28-30, "Art Ink," first annual visual arts book fair
	NICOLA JACOBS 9 Cork Street, W.1 • Tel. 437.3868	October 4-November 4, Judy Rifka, paintings; Kim Lim, prints (downstairs gallery)
	ANNELY JUDA/JUDA ROWAN 11 Tottenham Mews, W.1 • Tel. 637.5517/8	"First Russian Exhibition": El Lissitzky, Exter, Gabo, Kliun, Malevich, Popova, Rodchenko, Suetin, Tatlin, etc./Julian Hawkes, recent sculpture

LONDON (CONT'D)	☎ 44 (1)
KNOEDLER GALLERY (Kasmin, Director) 22 Cork Street, W.1 • Tel. 439.1096	As of October 4, Stephen Buckley
LEINSTER FINE ART 9 Hereford Road, W.2 • Tel. 229.99.85	Through October 19, German Impressionist and Expressionist paintings by Purrman, Slevogt and Weisgerber. As of Oct. 29, Knüt Steen
LISSON GALLERY (Nicholas Logsdail) 66/68 Bell Street, N.W.1 6S.P. • Tel. 262.1539	October 12-November 5, Anish Kapoor, sculpture
MAYOR GALLERY 22A Cork Street, W.1 • Tel. 734.3558	Richard Bosman
PICCADILLY GALLERY 16 Cork Street, W.1 • Tel. 499.4632	Until October 8, mixed exhibition of figurative painting As of October 10, David Tindle RA: recent paintings
REDFERN GALLERY 20 Cork Street, W.1X. 2H.L. • Tel. 734.17.32 734.05.78	Through October 20, Peter Sedgley, new works
GALERIE 39 96 George Street, W.1H. 5R.I. • Tel. 487 5038	October 12-November 4, Yuko Shiraishi, Blanca Moreno, recent paintings, drawings and prints
EDWARD TOTAH GALLERY 39 Floral Street • W.C.2 • Tel. 379.6241	October 4-29, Emilio Tadini, paintings and works on paper
WADDINGTON GALLERIES 2, 4 & 34 Cork St., W.1 • Tel. 439.1866	October 5-29, Jean Dubuffet, retrospective exhibition
SOUTHAMPTON	☎ 44 (703)
JOHN HANSARD GALLERY The University, Southampton • Tel. 559.122	Through October 29, "Still Life Photography and Painting"

FRANCE

BORDEAUX	☎ 33 (56)
C.A.P.C. ENTREPOT LAINE Rue Ferrère • 33000 • Tel. 44.16.35	Galleries will be closed during construction of the new museum
CANNES	☎ 33 (9)
GALERIE HERBAGE 17, Rue des Etats-Unis • 06400 • Tel. 39.19.15	Lynn Chadwick, sculpture retrospective (1971-1983)
LYONS	☎ 33 (7)
E.L.A.C. Centre de'Echanges Lyon Perrach • Tel. 842.27.39	"L'Art Nous Presse": Baratelli, Bellorgey, Bouys, Braconnier, Brunner, Corbin, Paul, Serre, Tardy, Tisler and Wanner
NICE	☎ 33 (93)
GALERIE PAUL HERVIEU 26, Rue Pastorelli • 06000 • Tel. 80.02.10	Paintings and gouaches by Allan, Clavé, Coignard, Goetz, Hélénon, Marchand des Raux, Papart and Key Sato
PARIS	☎ 33 (1)
ANTIOPE-FRANCE 10, Rue Budé • 75004 • Tel. 354.61.02	Mario Schifano, selected works 1959-1983
ARTCURIAL 9, Av. Matignon • 75008 • Tel. 256.32.90	Through October 15, Allen Jones, prints; opera posters Until Oct. 29, Sanchez, sculpture
BEAUBOURG 23, Rue du Renard • 75004 • Tel. 271.20.50	Through October 31, Arman, "Wall Pieces"
GALERIE ALAIN BLONDEL 4, Rue Aubry-le-Boucher • 75004 • Tel. 278.66.67	Illusion Réalité: Trompe-L'Oeil 1
GALERIE CAROLINE CORRE 14, Rue Guenegaud • 75006 • Tel. 354-5767	Group show and books of artists
CLAUDE BERNARD 5-7-9, Rue des Beaux-Arts • 75006 • Tel. 326.9707	October, accrochage As of October 25, Yuri Kuper
ISY BRACHOT 35, Rue Guénégaud • 75006 • Tel. 354.22.40	Until October 22, Stefan de Jaeger As of Oct. 26, Bernard Stern
GALERIE JEANNE BUCHER 53, Rue de Seine • 75006 • Tel: 326.22.32. 326.75.23	October, Fred Deux, drawings
LOUIS CARRE ET CIE. 10, Avenue de Messine • 75008 • Tel. 562.57.07	Accrochage

VOL
71
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION DIRECTORY

PARIS (CONT'D)	☎ 33 (1)
CHANTAL CROUSEL 80, Rue Quincampoix • 75003 • Tel. 887.6081	Until October 20, at the gallery and 33 Rue Fbg. St. Antoine: Gilbert & George, recent works. As of Oct. 23, François Boué, paintings
JACQUES DAMASE 61 Rue de Varenne • 75007 • Tel. 705.55.04	Through October 30, Valentine Hugo (1887-1968), drawings, engravings, oils, pastels (period: Ballets Russes, Cocteau, Eluard, Surrealists)
LE DESSIN 27, Rue Guenegaud • 75006 • Tel. 633.04.66	As of October 7, Marguerite Paszko, recent works
ERIC FABRE 6, Rue du Pont de Lodi • 75006 • Tel. 325.42.63	Until October 15, Alexandre Gherban As of Oct. 20, Christian d'Alwee, Jean-Luc Vilmouth
PAUL FACCHETTI 20, Avenue de Friedland • 75008 • Tel. 563.80.26	By Appointment
KARL FLINKER 25, Rue de Tournon • 75006 • Tel. 325.18.73	Alloscha Segard, recent works
GALERIE FARIS 50, Rue de l'Université • 75007 • Tel. 544.29.48	Until November 5, Attardi
JEAN FOURNIER 44, Rue Quincampoix • 75004 • Tel. 277.3231	As of October 8, Sam Francis, "Peintures pour Paris"
LILIANE FRANCOIS 15, Rue de Seine • 75006 • Tel. 326.94.32	October 4-19, Bir, sculpture; Le Rochais, drawings; Sendin, paintings As of Oct. 20, Santarelli, paintings
MAURICE GARNIER 6, Avenue Matignon • 75008 • Tel. 225.61.65.	Bernard Buffet, permanently.
DANIEL GERVIS GALLERY 14, Rue de Grenelle • 75007 • Tel. 544.41.90	Benrath, Constant, Dubuffet, Eterovic, Gerzo, Ghertman, Malaval, Montyn, Mutal, Nevelson, Olson, Pan, Pasotti, Sonderborg, Toledo, others
GALERIE MARWAN HOSS 12, Rue D'Alger • 75001 • Tel. 296.39.45	"Important Works: Masters of the 19th and 20th Centuries," paintings, drawings and sculpture
SAMY KINGE 54, Rue de Verneuil • 75007 • Tel. 261.1907	October 13-November 12, Gudrun Von Leitner, "Berlin—Cologne—Nuremberg," collages of postcards
LAHUMIERE 88, Bd de Courcelles • 75017 • Tel. 763.03.95
LA HUNE GALERIE EDITIONS 14, Rue de l'Abbaye • 75006 • Tel. 325.54.06	Until October 13, S. Delaunay, Max Ernst, Hayter, Lalanne, etc. As of Oct. 13, Dado, new colored prints and collages
LA HUNE-LIBRAIRIE 170, Boulevard St. Germain • 75006 • Tel. 548.35.85	Books, catalogues and magazines: Fine arts, literature, architecture, graphics, photography and fashion
YVON LAMBERT 5, Rue de Grenier St. Lazare • 75003 • Tel. 271.09.33	Blais, Combas, Middendorf, work on paper
GALERIE JEAN-PIERRE LAVIGNES 15, Rue St. Louis en l'Isle Paris • 75004 • Tel. 633.5602	John Kacere, paintings
ADRIEN MAEGHT 46, Rue du Bac • 75007 • Tel. 222.12.59	As of October 12, François Fiedler
GALERIE MAEGHT LELONG S.A. 13 & 14, Rue de Téhéran • 75008 • Tel. 563.13.19	Jiři Kolář
1900-2000 GALLERY 8, Rue Bonaparte • 75006 • Tel. 325.84.20	Until October 29, exhibition: "Trajectoires 1905-1983" Catalogue, "Half Stock Almanac," 60 F.F.
DENISE RENE 196, Blvd. St. Germain • 75006 • Tel. 222.77.57	Abstract constructive art
GALERIE NATALIE SEROUSSI 34, Rue de Seine • 75006 • Tel. 634.05.84	Sandro Chia As of the end of October, Giacomo Balla
DARTHEA SPEYER 6, Rue Jacques Callot • 75006 • Tel. 354.78.41	Until October 29, Ed Paschke
STADLER 51, Rue de Seine • 75006 • Tel. 326.91.10	Until October 22, Ernst Friedrich

PARIS (CONT'D)	☎ 33 (1)
NANE STERN 25, Ave. de Tourville • 75007 • Tel. 705.08.46	October 6-November 5, Shanon, collages; Tiné
DANIEL TEMPLON 30, Rue Beaubourg • 75003 • Tel. 272.14.10	Until October 27, Sandro Chia As of Oct. 29, Julian Schnabel
TEXBRAUN 12, Rue Mazarine • 75006 • Tel. 633.47.84/633.14.57	Through October 29, Bettina Rheims, photographic portraits of animals
TRANS/FORM 22, Ave de la Bourdonnais • 75007 • Tel. 550.40.32	Until October 15, "Les Nouveaux Peintres Français"
PATRICE TRIGANO 4 bis Rue des Beaux-Arts • 75006 • Tel. 634.15.01	Tal-Coat, oil paintings
GALERIE VALLOIS 41, Rue de Seine • 75006 • Tel. 329.50.84/85	Our new gallery is opening in October, specializing in 19th and 20th century sculpture.
ZABRISKIE 37, Rue Quincampoix • 75004 • Tel. 272.35.47	Until October 29, Tony Long, recent sculpture
LES SABLES D'OLONNE	☎ 33 (51)
MUSEE DE L'ABBAYE STE. CROIX Rue de Verdun • 85100 • Tel. 32.01.16	Permanently: la Salle Jean Launois (1898-1942)
ST. PAUL DE VENCE	☎ 33 (93)
FONDATION MAEGHT Saint Paul de Vence • 06570 • Tel. 32.81.63	October, permanent collection
GALERIE CATHERINE ISSERT Saint Paul de Vence • 06570 • Tel. 32.96.92	Artists of the gallery
TOULON	☎ 33 (94)
MUSEE DE TOULON 20, Boulevard Leclerc • 83000 • Tel. 93.15.54	As of October 6, François Arnal, "Aujourd'hui le moyen age," medieval archaeology
TOULOUSE	☎ 33 (61)
AXE-SUD 11, Place de la Daurade • 31000 • Tel. 25.37.17	October, Ben
GERMANY
BERLIN	☎ 49 (30)
GALERIE AKMAK Hohenzollerndamm 7 • 1000/31 • Tel. 883.53.12	October 7-November 11, Barry Herem, Northwest Coast: modern native American art.
GALERIE LEITZOW Knesebeckstrasse 32 • 1000/12 • Tel. 881.28.95	As of October 22, Hella Santarossa: Black/red/gold, canvas and glass—paintings about the colors of the German flag
R. ONNASCH AUSTELLUNGEN Niebuhrstr. 5 • 1000/12 • Tel. 882.77.18	Through October 21, Richard Serra: "Sculptures and Drawings" As of the end of October, Christian Ludwig Attersee
GALERIE POLL Lützowplatz 7 • 1000/30 • Tel. 261.70.91	Until October 9, Renate von Mangold, photographs As of Oct. 10, Jean Hélion, paintings and drawings
HANS REDMANN Fasanenstrasse 30 • 1000/15 • Tel. 881.11.35	Until Oct. 15, Janusz Haka, Oil paintings Oct. 18-Nov. 19, Jannis Psychopedis, Drawings
GALERIE FOLKER SKULIMA Niebuhrstrasse 2 • 1000/12 • Tel. 881.8280	Until October 15, Georg Baselitz, paintings As of Oct. 18, K.H. Hödicke, paintings
BONN	☎ 49 (228)
GALERIE LINSSEN Prinz-Albert-Strasse 47 • 5300 • Tel. 21.89.09	German Expressionists. Russian Avant Garde. International classics. Osvaldo Romberg and Jan Voss.
COLOGNE 49 (221)
GALERIE GMURZYNSKA Obenmarspforten 21 • 5000/1 • Tel. 23.66.21/2	Pablo Picasso, oil paintings and sculptures
GALERIE KARSTEN GREVE Wallrafplatz 3 • 5000/1 • Tel. 21.39.21	Nicola de Maria
GALERIE MAX HETZLER Kamekestrasse 21 • 5000/1 • Tel. 52.78.53	Until October 14, Werner Büttner, paintings As of Oct. 21, new works by Reinhard Mucha

VOL
7
1
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION DIRECTORY

COLOGNE (CONT'D)	☎ 49 (221)
GALERIE HOLTMANN Richartzstr. 10 • 5000/1 • Tel. 21.51.50	October 7-November 5, Rolf Winnewisser
GALERIE JOLLENBECK Maastrichter Strasse 53 • Tel. 51.58.52	Ben Vautier, works from the 60's and 70's
RUDOLF KICKEN Albertusstrasse 47/49 • 5000/1 • Tel. 21.02.34	Until October 25, André Gelpke: Fluchtgedanken As of Oct. 27, Drtikol: "Akte der 20er Jahre"
KÖLNISCHER KUNSTVEREIN Josef-Haubrich-Hof 1 • 5000/1 • Tel. 21.70.21/221.3740	October 8-November 13, "Eine Kunstgesichte aus Turin 1965-1983"
PAUL MAENZ Bismarckstr. 50 • 5000/1 • Tel. 51.50.88	October, "Masterworks of Conceptual Art" (inaugural exhibition)
GALERIE ORANGERIE REINZ Helenstrasse 2 • 5000/1 • Tel. 23.46.84	October, José Ortega
GALERIE RECKERMANN Albertusstr. 16 • 5000/1 • Tel. 21.20.64	Antonio Violetta, sculptures
GALERIE WENTZEL St. Apernstrasse 26 • 5000/1 • Tel. 24.24.00	Until November 3, Julio Gonzales, drawings and sculpture; Claude Viallat, "Leinwände"
MICHAEL WERNER Gertrudenstrasse. 24/28 • 5000/1 • Tel. 21.06.61	Markus Lüpertz, bronze sculpture
GALERIE RUDOLF ZWIRNER Albertusstrasse 18 • 5000/1 • Tel. 23.58.37/8
DUSSELDORF	☎ 49 (211)
KONRAD FISCHER Platanenstrasse 7 • Tel. 685.908	Bruce Nauman
GALERIE GMYREK Mutter-Ey-Strasse 5. • 4000/1 • Tel. 32.77.70	As of October 14, "Kontext—Kontest": Chevalier, Hödicke, Koberling, Middendorf, Zimmer
GALERIE MAIER-HAHN Eiskellerberg 1-3 • 4000 • Tel. 32 36 44	Rainer Fetting, paintings and drawings
DENISE RENE HANS MAYER Grabbeplatz 2 • 4000 • Tel. 13.21.35	October, gallery artists
KUNSTVEREIN RHEINLANDE/WESTFALEN Grabbeplatz 4 • 4000 • Tel. 327.023	Georg Klusemann, paintings, drawings, prints and collages
ESSEN	☎ 49 (201)
GALERIE NEHER Rüttenscheiderstr. 75 • 4300 • Tel. 78.20.71	Works by Dix, I. & J. Generalic, Grieshaber, Heckel, Kirchner, Kokoschka, Modersohn, Müller, Nay, Nolde, Pechstein, Rohlfs, Schmidt-Rottluff
HAMBURG	☎ 49 (40)
ASCAN CRONE Isestrasse 121 • 2000/13 • Tel. 040/47.42.94	Through October 22, David Salle, new paintings and watercolors (catalogue available). As of Oct. 27, Georg Jiri Dokoupil, new paintings
THOMAS LEVY GALERIE Tesdorpfstrasse 18 • 2000/13 • Tel. 45.91.88.	Claudio Bravo, Domenico Gnoli, Igor Mitoraj, Meret Oppenheim, Christobal Toral; German Expressionists
GALERIE MUNRO Barmbeker Str. 138 • 2000/60 • Tel. 48.45.52.	Through October, works on paper by Chia, Cucchi, De Maria, and Kounellis
MUNICH	☎ 49 (89)
GALERIE + EDITION A Amalienstrasse 81 & 87 • Tel: 28.13.64/28.84.45	K.F. Dahmen
GALERIE SIX FRIEDRICH Maximilianstrasse. 15 • 8000 • Tel. 29.50.21 & 29.61.10	Siegfried Anzinger, new paintings and drawings
TANIT Maximilianstr. 36 • 8000 • 8000/22 • Tel. 29.22.33	Bobin Beers, new paintings (1980-1983)
GALERIE THOMAS Maximilianstrasse 25 • 8000/22 • Tel. 22.27.41	Through October, for the 100th birthday of Erich Heckel: paintings, watercolors and graphics

	NUREMBERG	☎ 49 (911)
	GALERIE JOHANNA RICARD Königstrasse 33/37 • 8500 • Tel. 22.50.20	Russian Avant-Garde
GREECE	ATHENS	☎ 30 (1)
	JEAN BERNIER Marasli 51 • 140 • Tel. 723.5657	October, Alexis Akrithakis, new paintings
HOLLAND	AMSTERDAM	☎ 31 (20)
	AMERICAN GRAFFITI Berenstraat 20 • 1016 G.H. • Tel. 27 63 43	October, Kenny Scharf
	GALERIE KRIKHAAR Spuistraat 330 • Tel. 26.71.66	Until October 30, Jörg Remé, recent paintings
	STEDELIJK MUSEUM Paulus Potterstraat 13 • 1007 A.B. • Tel. 73 21 66	J.P. Goude; Video in the 80's. Until October 23, Kèrtesz; Kramer; Total Design. As of Oct. 7, Toon Verhoef, paintings, drawings 1975-82
	EINDHOVEN	☎ 31 (40)
	STEDELIJK VAN ABBEMUSEUM 5611 N.H. • Bilderdijklaan 10 • Tel. 38.97.30	October 15-November 13, Young artists; Boyd Webb As of November 19, Collection of the Bonn Kunstmuseum
ITALY	BARI	☎ 39 (80)
	MARILENA BONOMO Via Nicoló dell' Arca 19 • 70121 • Tel. 21.01.45	Pat Steir
	BOLOGNA	☎ 39 (51)
	DE FOSCHERARI Via Goidanich 1 • 40124 • Tel. 27.52.26.
	GALLERIA FORNI Via Farini 26 • 40124 • Tel. 27.07.60	October, Fabrizio Clerici
	STUDIO G7, G. GRIGOLO Via Val d'Aposa 7C • 40123 • Tel. 26.64.97.
	BRESCIA	☎ 39 (30)
	PIERO CAVELLINI F.lli Bandiera 18A • 25100 • Tel. 57.401
	FLORENCE	☎ 39 (55)
	GALLERIA SCHEMA Via della vigna nuova 17. • 50123 • Tel. 28.40.90.	By appointment, American Contemporary Art, Acconci, Baldessari, Bochner, Burden, Fox, Graham, Huebler, Kaprow, Kosuth, Levine, Oppenheim, Ripps, Rockburne
	MILAN	☎ 39 (2)
	SALVATORE ALA Via Mameli 3 • 20129 • Tel. 716-500
	ARIETE GRAFICA Via S. Andrea, 5 • 20121 • Tel. 79.55.73	October, Marco Gastini
	ARTRA/STUDIO Via Fiori Chiari 8 • 20121 • Tel. 861.190	Roberto Barni
	STUDIO CANNAVIELLO Piazza Beccaria, 10 • 20122 • Tel. 805.2148	Rainer Fetting
	DIAGRAMMA (Luciano Inga Pin) Via Pontaccio 12a • 20121 • Tel. 874.237	New show room: "Padiglione Italia," "Glenfatisti," "Fashion Moda"
	DISEGNI DI ARCHITETTURA Antonia Jannone Via del Carmine 5 • Tel. 878.384
	FRANCOISE LAMBERT Bastioni di Porta Nuova 11 • 20121 • Tel. 650.087	October, Antonio Violetta; General Idea
	STUDIO MARCONI Via Tadino 15 • 20124 • Tel. 225.543	October, Emilio Vedova
	MASSIMO MININI Via Cavalieri des S. Sepolcro • 20100 • Tel. 86.71.30

VOL
7
1
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION DIRECTORY

MILAN (CONT'D) ☎ 39 (2)

FRANCO TOSELLI Via del Carmine 9 • 20121 • Tel. 805.0434

MODENA ☎ 39 (59)

GALLERIA EMILIO MAZZOLI Via Nazario Sauro 58a • 41100 • Tel. 357.605/243.455	Agnetti, Boetti, Calzolari, Chia, Clemente, Cucchi, de Maria, Germanà, Paladino, Schifano, Turcato.

NAPLES ☎ 39 (81)

LUCIO AMELIO Piazza dei Martiri 58. • 80121 • Tel. 42.20.23/769.0521

ROME ☎ 39 (6)

IL COLLEZIONISTA Via Gregoriana 36 • 00187 • Tel. 678.45.85	Permanent archives of Afro
GALLERIA ANNA D'ASCANIO Via del Babuino, 29 • 00187 • Tel. 678.5820
UGO FERRANTI Via di Tor Millina 26 • 00186 • Tel. 654.2146
L'ISOLA Via Gregoriana 5 • 00187 • Tel. 679.00.29./678.54.77	Adja Yunkers, "Windows are Blind at Night": 26 collages from 1983
GALLERIA IL PONTE Via S. Ignazio 6 • 00186 • Tel. 679.6114	"The Italian New Image" (5 painters, 1 photographer): works on paper by Berti, Cantalupo, N.M. Martino, Pedriali, Piffero, and Vannini.
PRIMO PIANO Via Panisperna 203. • 00184 • Tel. 460.309	Bookstore specializing in European catalogues and books by artists
IL SEGNO Via Capolecase • 00187 • Tel. 679.1387	International contemporary graphics permanently: Afro, Arp, Braque, Burri, Capogrossi, de Chirico, Ernst, Fontana, Le Corbusier, Miró, Morandi, Savinio
SPROVIERI 3 Piazzi del Popolo • 00187 • Tel. 360.8918/361.0975	Futurism Dada Surrealism.
TONINELLI 86 Piazza di Spagna • 00187 • Tel. 679.34.88	Important sculpture by: Bodini, Fontana, Marini, Arturo Martini, Melotti, Moore, Medardo Rosso, Schmettau, Vangi.

TURIN ☎ 39 (11)

GIORGIO PERSANO Via dei Mille 29 • 10123 • Tel. 835.527
TUCCI RUSSO Corso Tassoni 56 • 10144 • Tel. 779.304

JAPAN

TOKYO ☎ 170

RYU INTERNATIONAL GALLERY P.O.B. 1383 Sunshine-City. Toshima-Ku • Tel. 987.6160	October 20-30, Promising Young Artist Print Show

SPAIN

BARCELONA ☎ 34 (3)

GALERIA CIENTO Consejo de Ciento 347 • 7 • Tel. 215.63 65	Until October 22, Carlos Alcolea, paintings and drawings As of Oct. 27, Frederic Amat
SALA GASPAR Consejo de Ciento, 323 • 7 • Tel. 318.87.401.318.87.36	Antonio Clavé, graphics
GALERIA MAEGHT Calle Montcada 25 • 3 • Tel. 310.42.45
CAJA DE PENSIONES (Centro Cultural) Passeig Sant Joan 108 • Tel. 258.89.07	October, Joaquin Sunyer, retrospective
GALERIA JOAN PRATS Rambla Catalunya 54 • 7 • Tel. 216.02.84	October, Yamando Canosa

IBIZA BALEARES ☎ 34 (71)

GALERIA ES MOLI Carretera San Miguel Sta Gertrudis	Azocar, Bechtold, Calbet, Faber, Galbraith, Hedrich, Kugler, Monreal, Segui, Tomlin, Villanueva, Zush

	MADRID	☎ 34 (1)
	CAJA DE PENSIONES (Centro Cultural) Paseo Castellana 51 • 1 • Tel. 419.0440	"New Sculpture in Spain"
	GALERIA KREISLER DOS Hermosilla 8 • 1 • Tel. 431.42.64	Until October 15, Castrortega As of Oct. 18, "Five Young Artists"
	EGAM Villanueva 29 • 1 • Tel. 435 3161	Alberto Solsona
	GALERIA HEINRICH EHRARDT Barquillo 44 • 4 • Tel. 419.52.86	October, Jörg Immendorf
	GALERIA JUANA MORDO Villanueva 7 • 1 • Tel. 435.84.42	Jose Abad
	GALERIA DE ARTE MUN Hermosilla 26 • 1 • Tel. 401.01.92	Gallery Artists
	GALERIA THEO Marqués de la Ensenada, 2 • 4 • Tel. 410.26.51	Hernando Viñes, retrospective
	GALERIA FERNANDO VIJANDE Nuñez de Balboa 65 • 1 • Tel. 435 8025	"New Figuration": Cobo, Gordillo, Navarro, Sicilia and Zush
	GALERIA YNGUANZO Antonio Maura 12 • 14 • Tel. 231 54 10	Japanese Contemporary Painters
	SEVILLE	☎ 34 (54)
	GALERIA JUANA DE AIZPURU Calle Canalejaz, 10 • 1 • Tel. 22.85.01
SWEDEN	MALMO	☎ 46 (40)
	GALERIE NORDENHAKE Ostra Ronneholmsvagen 5 • S-211 47 • Tel. 23.15.33
	STOCKHOLM	☎ 46 (8)
	KONSTRUKTIV TENDENS Nybrogatan 69 • 11440 • Tel. 61.16.65/61.50.65	Permanently: International Constructivist Art
SWITZERLAND	BASEL	☎ 41 (61)
	KUNSTHALLE BASEL Steinenberg 7 • 4001 • Tel. 23.48.33	October 2-November 6, Nicola De Maria; Max Neuhaus, sound installation
	GALERIE BEYELER Baumleingasse 9 • 4001 • Tel. 23.54.12	Through October, "Expressionist Painting Beyond Picasso": Appel, Bacon, Baselitz, Basquiat, Cucchi, Dubuffet, Jorn, de Kooning, Penck, Paladino
	BERNE	☎ 41 (31)
	MARBACH Wasserwerkgasse 37 • 3011 • Tel. 22.42.05/22.38.25	Contemporary art. By appointment only
	GENEVA	☎ 41 (22)
	GALERIE BONNIER 4, Rue Saint-Laurent • 1207 • Tel. 35.87.35	October, Chicago artists
	CENTRE D'ART CONTEMPORAIN Bd. du Pont d'Arve et Bd Karl Vogt • 1204 • Tel. 28.88.03	Collective exhibition from Geneva's Ecole supérieure d'art visuel; Cindy Sherman
	GALERIE ERIC FRANCK 15 Route de Florissant • 1206 • Tel. 47.08.09	David Bowes
	GALERIE MARIKA MALACORDA 1, Rue de l'Evêché • 1204 • Tel. 28.64.50	October, Martin Walde
	DANIEL VARENNE Galerie Clos de Sierne 15 Chemin de Sierne • 1255 • 84.15.93	Impressionist and 20th-century masters—by appointment only
	WEBER 13, Rue de Monthoux • 1211 • Tel. 32.64.50

VOL
71
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION DIRECTORY

ZURICH ☎ 41 (1)

THOMAS AMMANN FINE ART Restelbergstrasse 97 • 8044 • Tel. 362.62.31	Impressionist & 20th-century masters—by appointment only
GALERIE BISCHOFBERGER Utoquai 29 • 8700 • Tel. 910.43.62	Representing: Chia, Clemente, Cucchi, Salle, Salome, Schnabel, Tinguely, Warhol
KONRAD FISCHER Ackerstrasse 44 • 8005 • Tel. 42.71.61
GIMPEL • HANOVER • EMMERICH Tödistrasse 40 • 8002 • Tel. 202.03.00	As of October 15, Ernesto Tatafiore, works on paper; Robert Cronin, sculptures (new gallery)
M. KNOEDLER Kirchgasse 24 • 8022 • Tel. 69 35 00	Ensor, Klimt, Kubin, Schiele (catalogue available)
GALERIE MAEGHT Predigerplatz 10-12 • 8025 • Tel. 251.11.20
MAURER Münstergasse 14-18 • 8001 • Tel. 47.85.00	October, Italo Primi
PETER NOSER Schulhausstrasse 73 • 8002 • Tel. 202.65.81	Bernhard Johannes Blume
GALERIE SCHLEGL Minervastrasse 119 • 8032 • Tel. 251.4963	October, Marcel Cahn, retrospective
ANNEMARIE VERNA Scheuchzerstrasse 35 • 8006 • Tel. 361.90.70	Donald Judd, sculptures 1977-1983
JAMILEH WEBER Schanzengasse 10 • Tel. 47.79.89	October, Christian Herdegg, light sculptures
RENÉE ZIEGLER Rämistrasse 34 • 8001 • Tel. 251.23.22	Meret Oppenheim

VENEZUELA

CARACAS ☎ 58 (2)

GALERIA MINOTAURO
Calle Madrid-Entre Mucuchies y Monterrey • Tel. 92 27 40

ART IN AMERICA IS AVAILABLE IN EUROPE AT:

Amsterdam

Athenaeum Boekhandel, B.V.
Spui 14-16

Art Something Co.
Herengracht 259

Robert Premsela Boekhandel
van Baerlestrasse 78

Antwerp

Boekhandel Ban Den Bosch
St. Jacobsmarkt 1-B

Basel

Stampa
Spalenberg 2

Berlin

Galerie 2000
Knesebeckstrasse 56

Bern

Hans Huber
Länggasstrasse 76 und
Marktgasse 9

Brussels

Librairie Post Scriptum
Rue des Eperonniers, 37

Cologne

Walther König
Breite Str. 93

Eslangen

Buchhandling Redmann
Bohlemplatz 6/12

Florence

Centro Di
l/r Piazza de' Mozzi

Geneva

Ecart
16 rue d'Italie

Hamburg

Sautter & Lackmann
Klosterstern 8

London

Arts Bibliographic
37 Great Russell Street

Arts Council Shop
8 Long Acre
Covent Gardens, WC2E 9LG

Lyon

L'Ollave
58, rue Tramassac

Madrid

Torculo Graphics & Books
Claudio Coello 17

Milan

PAC - La Libreria
via Palestro 14

Idea Books Bookstore
Via Cappuccio, 21

Paris

Artcurial
9 Avenue Matignon

Flammarion 4
Librairie du Centre Georges Pompidou
Plateau Beaubourg

Galerie Jean Fournier
44 rue Quincampoix

Librairie La Hune
170, boulevard Saint-Germain

Librairie Musee d'Art Moderne
de la Ville de Paris
11, Avenue du President Wilson

Rome

Galleria Nazionale d'Arte Moderna
Viale delle Belle Arti, 131

Strasbourg

Librairie Les Idees et Les Arts
Place Brant

The Hague

Artline
Toussaintkade 67-68

Toulouse

Ombres Blanches
Librairie/48
rue Gambetta

Turin

OOLP
Via Principe Amedeo

Vienna

Buchhandlung am Hafnersteig
Hafnersteig 10

"BLACK & WHITE, A DEPARTURE POINT"
SEPTEMBER 22–OCTOBER 28

BOBBY GREEN
KENRO IZU
SEAN MCLAUGHLIN
GERALD SICILIANO

JHB

JAYNE H. BAUM GALLERY
12 WEST 37 STREET, NEW YORK, NY 10018 (212) 695 7200

SOHO 20
469 Broome
NYC 10013
OCT 8 –
NOV 2

LINDA BASTIAN

Lynn Chadwick
Eduardo Chillida
Jose Luis Cuevas
Giacomo Manzù
Marino Marini
Roberto Matta
Henry Moore

Tasende
Gallery
820 Prospect Street, La Jolla, California 92037
(619) 454-3691

Byron Galvez

Paintings

October 14-November 5, 1983

HARCOURTS CONTEMPORARY

415-421-5590
550 Powell Street
San Francisco, CA 94108

KRAUSHAAR GALLERIES
724 Fifth Ave (Bet. 57th & 56th Sts New York
Tues. thru Sat., 9:30 to 5:30

CONCETTA
SCARAVAGLIONE
Sculpture & Drawings • thru Oct. 22

BEN FRANK MOSS
Paintings and Drawings
Oct. 25 - Nov. 19

NANCY
DAVIDSON
Paintings

DENNIS KOWALSKI
Sculpture

September 24
October 28, 1983

marianne
deson gallery
340 west huron chicago, illinois 60610
312-787-0005

Carone Gallery
600 southeast second court
fort lauderdale, florida 33301
(305) 463-8833

CARL PALAZZOLO
RECENT PAINTINGS
MARCIA LLOYD
ISLAND PAINTINGS
OCTOBER

THE HARCUS GALLERY
7 NEWBURY ST. BOSTON 617•262•4445

VOL
71
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

Rosa Esman Gallery

Temporary phone:
212
722 1970

"The best laid plans of mice and men..."

Please ignore our September ads, and watch for the announcement of our real new Soho address.

Yoseido Gallery

Contemporary Japanese prints

5-5-15, Ginza, Chuo-ku, Tokyo,
Japan phone 571-1312, 2471

100 page catalog upon request – $8.00

TODD McKIE

September 29–October 29

ACQUAVELLA CONTEMPORARY
18 East 79th Street, New York, N.Y. 10021
(212) 734-6300

STEPHANIE BRODY
LEDERMAN

Recent Work
October 11 - November 5

KathrynMarkelGallery
50 WEST 57 • NEW YORK

SY ROSS

SERRA · DI · FELICE
THE PUCK BUILDING 295 LAFAYETTE ST NEW YORK
TELEPHONE: 212 334.8192

NIGEL VAN WIECK

Recent Paintings

October 8 - November 3
112 Greene Street, New York

Exhibition Organized by Graham Leader
Telephone 212/243-5322

JAMES BROOKS

New Paintings

October 18 - November 12

GRUENEBAUM 38 E 57 NYC

FACH

SCULPTURE•PAINTINGS•PRINTS

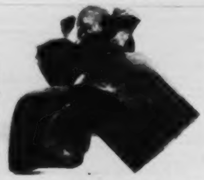

Photo: Jim Quick

XUS 15"x14"x8"
BRONZE

RIVERSIDE GALLERIES

MISSISSIPPI HOUSE
Galena, IL 61036
815-777-1510

October 14
to November 7

Index of Advertisers

ACA Galleries ... 100
Acquavella Contemporary Art ... 230
Addison Ripley ... 110
Adler Gallery, Pam ... 58
Adler Gallery, Rachel ... 200
Agnew, Thos. & Sons, Ltd. ... 64
Allport Associates ... 28
Ambur Art ... 106
Ars Libri ... 218
Art Brokerage, Inc. ... 218
Artexpo, N.Y. ... 216
Art Institute of Boston ... 216
Artscan ... 170
Art Schools/Services ... 209-215
Art Store, The ... 214
Arts Focus ... 198
Asher/Faure ... 97
Associated American Artists ... 216
Assoc. Artist-Run Galleries ... 112
Atelier De L'Ile ... 62

Barkton Industries ... 217
Barridoff Galeries ... 120
Batman Gallery, Donald ... 206
Baum Gallery, Jayne H. ... 229
Batz Gallery ... 204
Belcher Gallery, George ... 48
Berggruen Gallery, John ... 17, 36
Blum Helman ... Cov. IV
Boone Gallery, Mary ... 24
Borgenicht Gallery ... 54
Bornstein Gallery, Karl ... 216
Boyd Gallery, Roy ... 98
Brentwood Gallery ... 104
Brook House ... 116
Brown & Bro., Inc., Arthur ... 204

Carone Gallery ... 229
Castelli Gallery, Leo ... 62, 98
Castelli Graphics ... 52, 57
Chicago Int'l Art Exposition ... 192
Christie's ... 30, 33
Cicero Gallery, Jan ... 200
Coe Kerr Gallery ... 117
Condeso/Lawler Gallery ... 61
Cooper Gallery, Paula ... 56
Cowles Gallery, Charles ... 16, 36
Cranbrook Academy of Art ... 201
Crown Point Press ... 26
Crown Publishers ... 208

Davidson Gallery, Maxwell ... 52
Davis/McClain ... 54
DBR Gallery ... 108
Del Re, Marisa ... 8
Delahunty ... 109
Delta Editions ... 107
De Nagy, Tibor ... 100
Deson Gallery, Marianne ... 229
Dominion Gallery ... 60

Einstein, G.W. ... 51
Emmerich Galley, Andre ... 10, 12
Enthios Gallery ... 199
Ericson Gallery ... 114
Esman Gallery, Rosa ... 230
Exhibition Space at 112 Greene St. ... 230

Findlay Gallery, David ... 44
Fischbach Gallery ... 98
Fiterman Gallery, Dolly ... 116
49th Parallel ... 29
Forum Gallery ... 16
Fourcade, Xavier ... 6, 28
14 Sculptors ... 216
Franklin Furnace ... 202
Frumkin Gallery, Allan ... 54
Fuller Goldeen ... 49

Gagosian, Larry ... 53
Galeria Joan Prats ... 198
Galerie Maeght Lelong S.A. ... 2
Galerie Rudolf Zwirner ... 27
Gallery Vallois ... 105
Gallery One ... 216
Gallery 30 ... 53
Gallery II RSVP ... 62
Getler-Pall ... 54
Gillman Gallery, Barbara ... 218
Gladstone Gallery, Barbara ... 58
Glass Gallery ... 216
Gold Gallery, Fay ... 201
Goldstrom Fine Arts, Foster ... 205
Goodman Gallery, James ... 22
Goodman Gallery, Marian ... 116
Greenberg Gallery ... 55
Grimaldis Gallery, C ... 99
Gross-McCleaf Gallery ... 218
Gruenebaum Gallery ... 230
Grumbacher ... 176

Haber Gallery, Suellen ... 204
Haber Theodore Gallery ... 218
Hadler-Rodriguez ... 111
Haime Gallery, Nohra ... 109
Hamilton Gallery ... 110
Hammer Gallery ... 102
Hammer Publishing ... 196
Hanover Fine Arts ... 197
Harcourts Contemporary ... 229
Harcus Gallery ... 229
Harvard University Press ... 207
Heesy Gallery, Patricia ... 202
Herstand Gallery, Arnold ... 7
Hine Inc. ... 36
Hirschl & Adler ... 47
Hirschl & Adler Modern ... 51
Hoffeld Gallery, Jeffrey ... 26
Hoffman Gallery, Nancy ... 6
Hoffman Gallery, Rhona ... 61
Hokin Gallery Inc. ... 62
Horan Gallery, Vivian ... 14
Horwitch Gallery, Elaine ... 101
Hunsaker-Schlesinger ... 59
Hutchinson Gallery, Max ... 49

Iannetti Gallery, Pasquale ... 206
Incorporated Gallery ... 115
Ingber Gallery ... 192
International Art Exposition, Inc. 000
Irving Galleries ... 63
Ivory/Kimpton Gallery ... 118

Jacobs, Nicola ... 64
Janis Gallery, Sidney ... 110
Janus Gallery ... 25
Jerry's Artarama ... 207
Johnson, Betty ... 207

Kantor Gallery, Ulrike ... 104
Kind Gallery, Phyllis ... 110
Knowlton Gallery, Monique ... 56
Knoedler & Co., M. ... 14
Kornbluth Gallery, Lillian ... 207
Krakow Gallery, Barbara ... 59
Kraushaar Gallery ... 229

Lafayette Parke Gallery ... 4
L.A. Packing & Crating ... 217
Leavin Gallery, Margo ... Cov. III
Lefebre Gallery ... 64
Leon Gallery, Jon ... 218
Lewin Galleries, B. ... 206
Locks Gallery, Marion ... 61, 204
Love Galleries, R.H ... 111

Markel Gallery, Kathryn ... 230
Marlborough Gallery ... 46
Maroney & Co., James ... 18
Martin Gallery, Marianne ... 58
Mathes Gallery, Barbara ... 20, 55
Matisse Gallery, Pierre ... 50
Matthews Hamilton Gallery ... 52
Midtown Gallery ... 60
Miller Gallery, Robert ... 13
Milliken, Alexander ... Cov. II
MIT Press, The ... 208
Montezinos Gallery, Susan ... 121
Munroe Gallery, Victoria ... 112
McIntosh/Drysdale Gallery ... 102
McKee Gallery, David ... 56

Nahan Art Galleries ... 103
New York Graphic Society ... 106
New York Studio School ... 205
Newell Gallery ... 208
Nielson Gallery ... 114
Nordstern Service International ... 208

Oscarsson-Hood Gallery ... 100
Ovsey Gallery, Neil C. ... 206

Pace Editions Inc. ... 1
Palmer Gallery, Herbert ... 63
Pellicone Gallery, Marie ... 120
Pembroke Gallery ... 98
Perimeter Press ... 201
Perlman, Miriam ... 109
Pfeiffer Gallery, Marcuse ... 47
Phoenix Gallery ... 104
Printworld Directory ... 205
Protetch Gallery, Max ... 99
P.S.I. Institute for Art ... 217
Public Art Fund ... 201
Public Art Trust ... 118

Richebourg/McCoy ... 60
Riverside Galleries ... 230

Salander-O'Reilly ... 15
Sawyer Gallery, William ... 57
Schlesinger-Boisante ... 63
Schoelkopf Gallery, Robert ... 55
Sculpture Placement ... 200
Seguy Gallery, Yvonne ... 218
Selkowitz Fine Arts, Judith ... 217
Serra Di Felice ... 230
Shiva ... 217
Siegal Contemporary Art ... 59
Silberberg Gallery, Nathan ... 116
Soho 20 ... 229
Sointu ... 64
Snyderman Gallery ... 117
Solomon Gallery, Holly ... 56
Sotheby, Parke, Bernet ... 24
Steinbaum Gallery, Bernice ... 46
Stockholm Art Fair ... 50
Stoler Gallery, Bette ... 51, 114
Stoller Gallery, John ... 52
Stavaridis Gallery, The ... 44
Styria ... 45

Taghinia-Malani, Leila ... 58
Tamar Arts ... 196
Tasende Gallery ... 229
Taylor Art, Carol ... 202
Thorp Gallery, Edward ... 55
Tilton, Jack ... 61
Toll Gallery, Barbara ... 63
Transworld Art ... 97
Twining Gallery ... 118
Tyler School of Art ... 202, 216, 218

U.S. Fine Arts Competition ... 203

Vanderwoude Tananbaum ... 29
Vanity Fair Magazine ... 113
Villani Editions, Diane ... 118

Walker Art Center ... 119
Weinberg Gallery, Daniel ... 57
Werner, Michael ... 109
White Columns ... 205
White Gallery, Martha ... 119
Willard Gallery ... 60
Winsor & Newton ... 194
Wolf, Daniel ... 112

Yoseido Gallery ... 230
Young, Donald ... 57

Zabriskie Gallery ... 35
Zolla Lieberman ... 59

ART IN ENGLAND
Christie's London ... 85
Coracle Press Gallery ... 90
Anthony d'Offay ... 71, 81, 91
Fischer Fine Art Limited ... 84
Robert Fraser Gallery ... 74
Galerie Beyeler ... 73
Galerie De France ... 75
Galerie Tanit ... 78
Gimpel Fils ... 94
Gimpel Weitzenhoffer Ltd. ... 94
Barbara Gladstone ... 80, 92
Marian Goodman Gallery ... 87
Nigel Greenwood ... 66, 70, 78, 83
David Grob Ltd. ... 82
Nicola Jacobs Gallery ... 68
Bernard Jacobson Prints ... 91
Annely Juda Fine Art ... 67
Kendale Gallery ... 88
Knoedler Gallery ... 69
Lens Fine Art ... 93
Lisson Gallery London
... 80, 87, 89, 92, 95
Nicholas Logsdail ... 95
Studio Marconi ... 93
Marlborough Fine Art Ltd. ... 96
Mayor Gallery, The ... 79
Achim Moeller Ltd. ... 77
Royal Academy of Arts ... 76
Sotheby's ... 72
Sperone Westwater ... 83
Barbara Toll Fine Arts ... 89
Edward Totah Gallery ... 86, 93

VOL
7
1
ISS
9
OC
1983
UMI

Artworld

New Money Source for the Arts

Just when city, federal and private arts funding sources all seem to be dwindling, if not vanishing, a new lode has appeared—the National Arts Stabilization Fund (NASF). A joint project of the Ford, Mellon and Rockefeller Foundations, NASF is designed to strengthen financially troubled arts organizations and to help balance their budgets. Museums, arts schools, symphonic orchestras, dance, theater and opera companies are eligible for grants, distributed over five years, ranging from $150,000 to $1 million. Training in yearly budgeting, long-term financial planning, development and marketing is also provided. The program begins late this year and approximately 100 grants will be made during NASF's first five-year cycle.

The initial $9 million for the fund comes from the foundations—$7 million from Ford, $1.5 million from Mellon and $500,000 from Rockefeller. Additional contributions will be solicited from other foundations, corporations and local donors in order to increase the funding pool to $33 million. The NASF is modeled on the successful Ford Foundation arts stabilization program, now to be discontinued, which was established in 1971 to help dance, theater and opera groups. There are two kinds of grants: one will help organizations build a working capital reserve and the other will be used to eliminate debts.

Information is available from NASF president-elect Marcia Thompson (who had been director of the Ford Foundation's similar program), 320 East 43 Street, New York, N.Y. 10017.

1984 Arts Budget Battle Begins

The endowment budgets promise to be a point of contention again this year. Three different funding recommendations have been made, one by the President, one by the House of Representatives and one by a Senate subcommittee. In January, President Reagan requested a 13 percent cut in 1984 endowment funds—from 1983 levels of $143.9 million to $125 million for the NEA, and from $130 million to $112 million for the NEH. In late June, the House approved 1984 budgets of $165 million for the NEA and $151 million for the NEH—15 percent higher than 1983 levels (for the NEA, well above the pre-Reagan, 1981 level of $158.6 million). In August, the Senate Interior Appropriations subcommittee proposed to fund the NEA at $143 million and the NEH at $130 million. The Senate has yet to vote on the entire '84 Interior Department budget, which includes endowment allocations. Differences between the House and Senate recommendations for fiscal year '84 (which started Oct. 1) must be resolved before the budget bill goes to the President.

Lo-Cal Arts Budget

California Governor George Deukmejian has slashed next year's appropriation for the California Arts Council by 24 percent as part of his efforts to cut $1 billion from the 1983–84 state budget. The CAC, whose grants to visual arts organizations last year ranged from $1,000 (to the Arts Resource Center, Santa Cruz) to $28,000 (to the La Jolla Museum), will be left with $9 million—a 30 percent drop from its '81–82 budget of $12.5 million. For California, which according to a recent NEA analysis has an artist-population larger than that of any other state (with 16 percent of the nation's total), the budget cuts mean a fall in national ranking in per capita outlay for the arts from 17th to 29th or 30th place.

California law allows the governor to make specific cuts in the Arts Council's various programming categories. Thus he reduced by 32 percent funds for artists in schools, prisons and community centers—the primary program that provides grants to individual artists. The "prominent organizations" category, including approximately 20 of the state's largest arts institutions, was cut 15 percent, while the funding for smaller arts organizations was cut 13 percent. A $73,000 apprentice program was wiped out, as was a $2.7-million outreach program.

Museums: The New Crop

Several long-awaited new museums open this season: Atlanta's High Museum of Art (Oct. 15), Los Angeles's Temporary Contemporary (Nov. 20), the Miami Center for Fine Arts (Jan. 14, '84) and the Dallas Museum of Art (Jan. 29, '84). During construction of the Richard Meier-designed High Museum the permanent collection was expanded and much of it goes on display for the first time, including photographs from 1940 to the present and 19th-century American decorative arts. Inaugural exhibitions are "The Rococo Age: French Masterpieces of the 18th Century" (to Dec. 31) and "Rothko: Subjects" (to Feb. 26, '84).

Preliminary quarters of the still-to-be-built L.A. Museum of Contemporary Art, dubbed the Temporary Contemporary, opens its Frank Gehry-renovated buildings with "The First Show: Painting and Sculpture from Eight Collections 1940–1980" (to Feb. 19, '84). Works will represent particular strengths of the private holdings of Giuseppe Panza di Biumo, Peter and Irene Ludwig, Charles and Doris Saatchi, Howard and Jean Lipman, Dominique de Menil, Mrs. Taft Schreiber, Robert A. Rowan and the Weisman family.

Its opening delayed because of a faulty smoke-evacuation system, the Miami Center for Fine Arts will begin its program with an ambitous loan show of 200 works from 64 U.S. museums titled "In Quest of Excellence" (to Apr. 22, '84). The Mediterranean-style structure, designed by Johnson/Burgee, is part of the Metro-Dade Cultural Center.

The first occupant of a downtown arts district, the Dallas Museum of Art moves to its Edward Larrabee Barnes-designed building for which several major art works were commissioned. In the sculpture garden (opening Oct. 10) are a 10-foot-high stainless steel piece from Ellsworth Kelly's "Rocker" series and a granite settee by Scott Burton. A courtyard will house a work by Richard Fleischner incorporating flowering trees and limestone steps. Inside, Stake Hitch by Claes Oldenburg reaches to the top of a 40-foot-high vault.

Sotheby Parke Bernet: Going, Going, Gone

A. Alfred Taubman, Michigan shopping mall developer, art collector and trustee of the Whitney Museum and the Michigan Foundation for the Arts, will offer ca. $125 million for the British auction house Sotheby Parke Bernet. England's Monopolies and Mergers Commission just recently approved of the plan.

Taubman's success was nearly guaranteed in June after the withdrawal of a previous offer by Marshall Cogan and Stephen Swid, co-owners of the furniture company Knoll International and also art collectors. The takeover battle lasted several months and was resolved when Taubman offered to buy out Cogan and Swid's 30 percent share of the company. Sotheby's management had resisted their bid and last spring 133 of Sotheby's European staffers threatened to resign if Cogan and Swid had persisted.

Last year Sotheby had a deficit of $4.6 million, and was forced to close its Madison Avenue building. For 1983, it projects a $6 million profit, which chief executive Graham Llwellyn attributes to improvement of the art market, increased consignment of important works and improved operating efficiency.

People

Joseph Martin is the new director of the National Gallery of Canada.

Alexander V.J. Guadieri has been named director of the Museum of Fine Arts in Montreal.

Hugh Marlais Davies, former director since 1975 of the Gallery at the University of Massachusetts, Amherst, becomes director of the La Jolla Museum of Contemporary Art. He succeeds Sebastian Adler, director since 1973.

Thomas W. Styron, former curator at the Chrysler Museum, Norfolk, is director of the Greenville County (S.C.) Museum of Art.

Robert Murdock, formerly director of the Grand Rapids Art Museum, is the new chief curator at the Walker Art Center. He replaces Graham Beal, who left in March to become keeper of Sainsbury Centre for the Visual Arts at the University of East Anglia, Norwich, England.

Nicolai Cikovsky, formerly chairman of the art department at the University of New Mexico, Albuquerque, and an authority on George Inness, was appointed curator of American art at the National Gallery. Ross Merrill becomes the NGA's chief of conservation. Victor C.B. Covey, conservator since 1972 at the NGA, has been named chief conservator emeritus and senior conservator for special assignments.

Obituaries

Nikolaus Pevsner, 81, German-born architectural critic and historian who is known for a number of lucidly written encyclopedic studies of art and architecture, among them the classic text, An Outline of European Architecture (1942). His other works include Pioneers of the Modern Movement (1937), The Englishness of English Art (1955) and A History of Building Types (1976). He was originator of and chief contributor to the 46-volume Penguin survey, The Buildings of England, and editor of the multivolumed Pelican History of Art.

After earning his Ph.D. in 1924 in the history of art, Pevsner became assistant keeper in the Dresden Art Gallery from 1924 to 1928 and lecturer at the University of Göttingen from 1929 to 1933. When Hitler came to power, Pevsner emigrated to London and joined the staff of Birkbeck College, where he taught from 1944 to 1969. He also was Slade professor of Fine Art at Cambridge (1949–1955) and held the Slade professorship at Oxford during 1968–69. An early fan of Victorian architecture, Pevsner was founding chairman of the Victorian Society and author of High Victorian Design (1951). He was knighted in 1969.

Miyoko Ito, 65, California-born painter who settled in Chicago in the '40s, known for abstract compositions in oil that combined a precise rendering of form with an exquisite color sense. She had last showed at the Phyllis Kind Gallery, New York, in 1982.

The Museum of
Contemporary Art
Los Angeles
announces publication of a print portfolio
Eight By Eight to celebrate
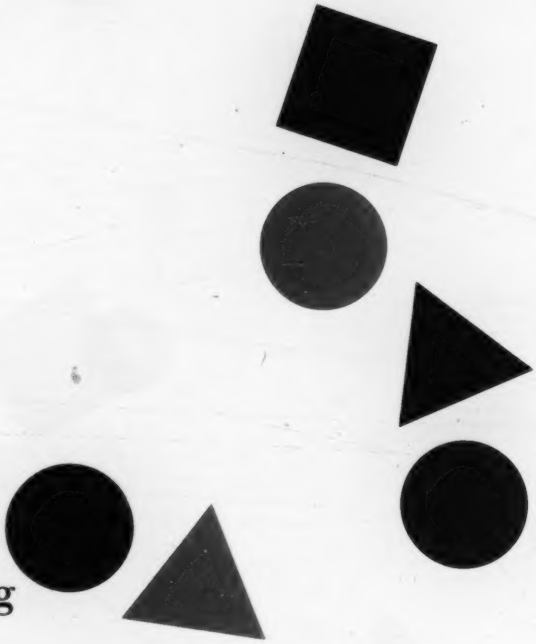
The Temporary
Contemporary



Richard Diebenkorn
Sam Francis
David Hockney
Ellsworth Kelly
Robert Rauschenberg
Niki de Saint Phalle
Jean Tinguely
Andy Warhol

On exhibition at
Margo Leavin Gallery
812 North Robertson Boulevard
Los Angeles, California 90069
(213) 273-0603

Illustrated brochure available call or write
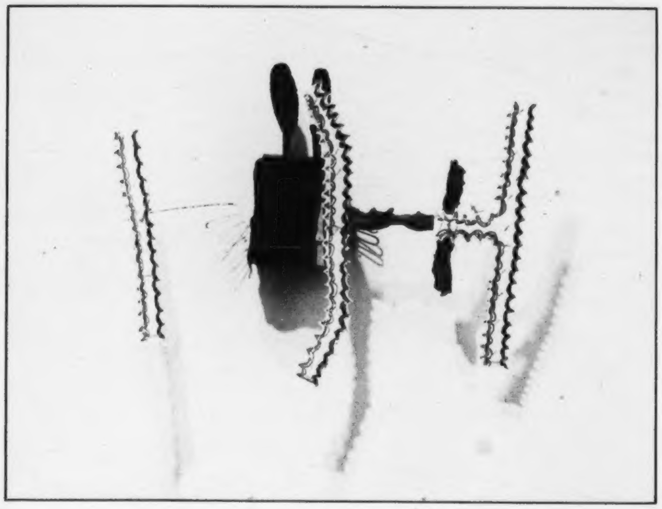
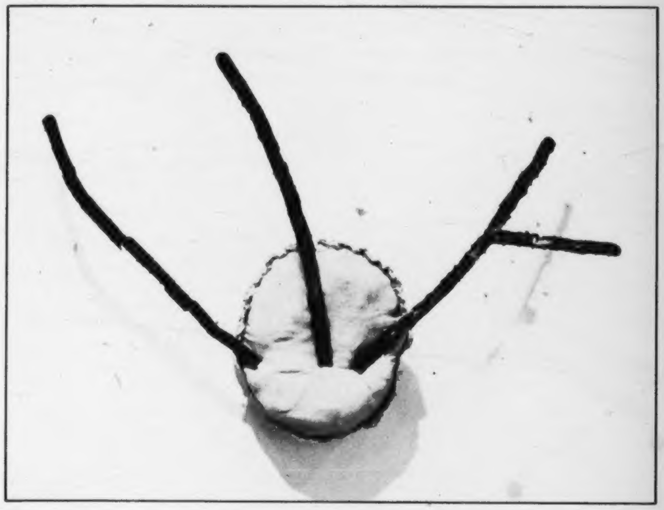
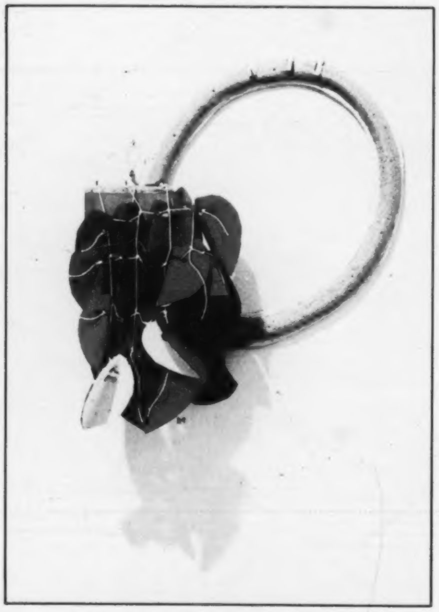
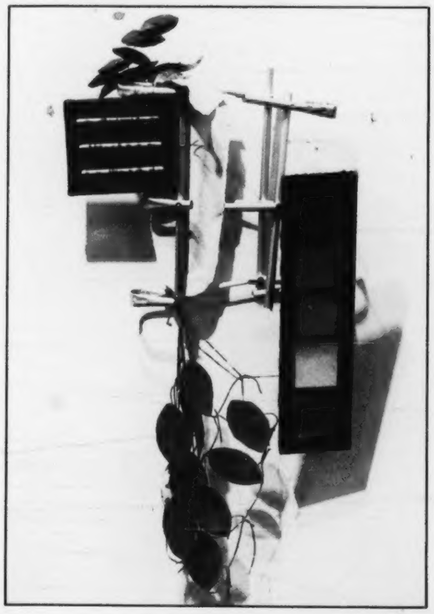
Jacqueline Crist
The Museum of Contemporary Art
414 Boyd Street
Los Angeles, California 90013
(213) 621-2766

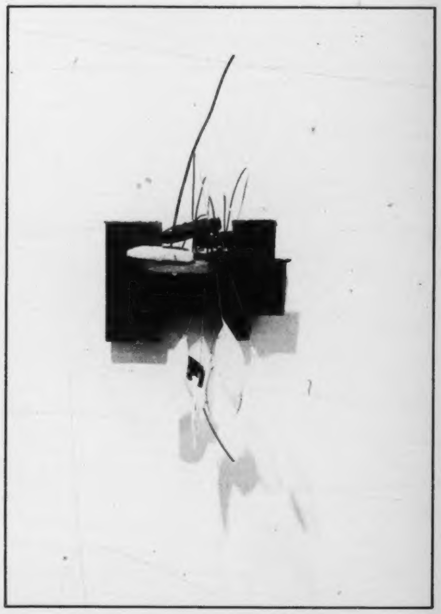
VOL 71
ISS 9
OC 1983
UMI





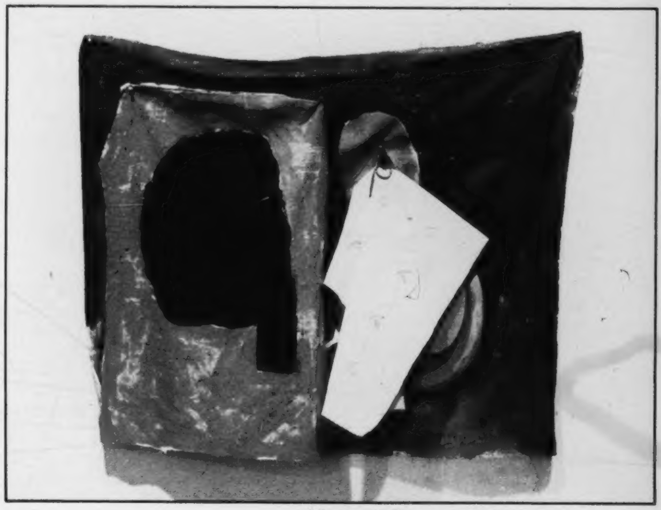






RICHARD TUTTLE
12 October-
5 November 1983

BlumHelman
20 West 57 New York



"Monkey's Recovery" # 4, 1, 2, 6, 3, 5, 1983

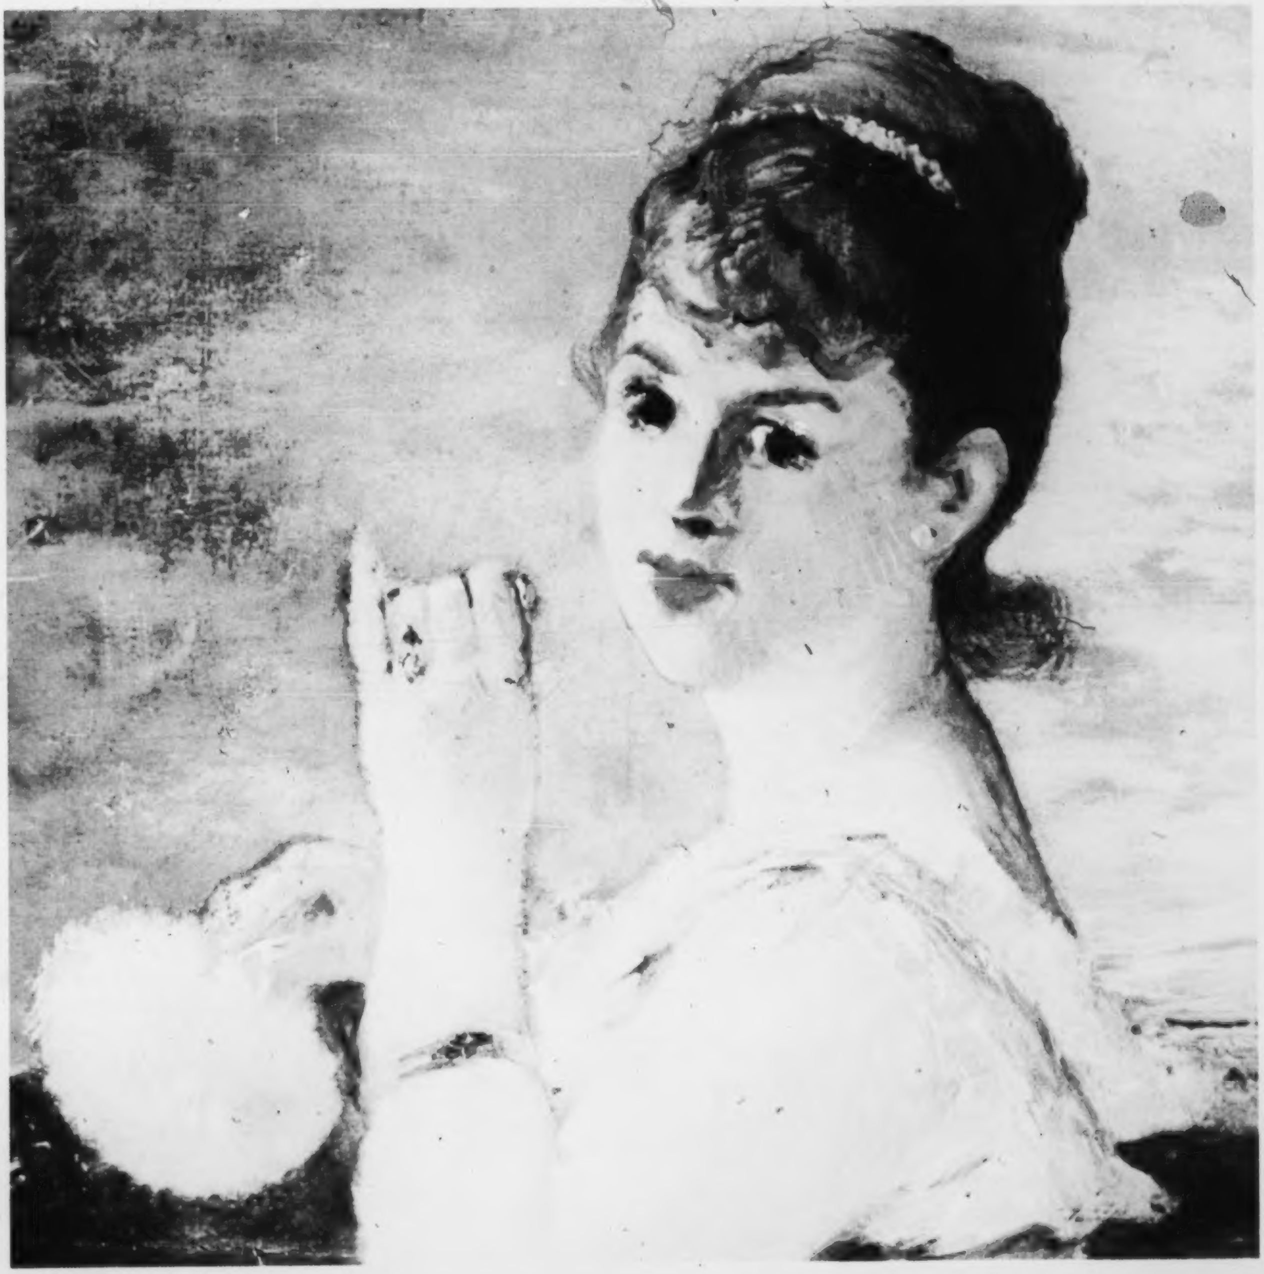
VOL
71
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI

Art in America

NOVEMBER 1983/$4.00

SPECIAL SECTION: MANET

Plus: John Chamberlain/Rothko Case, TV-style/The Calotype
Report from Germany/Books/Review of Exhibitions



VOL
7
1

ISS
10

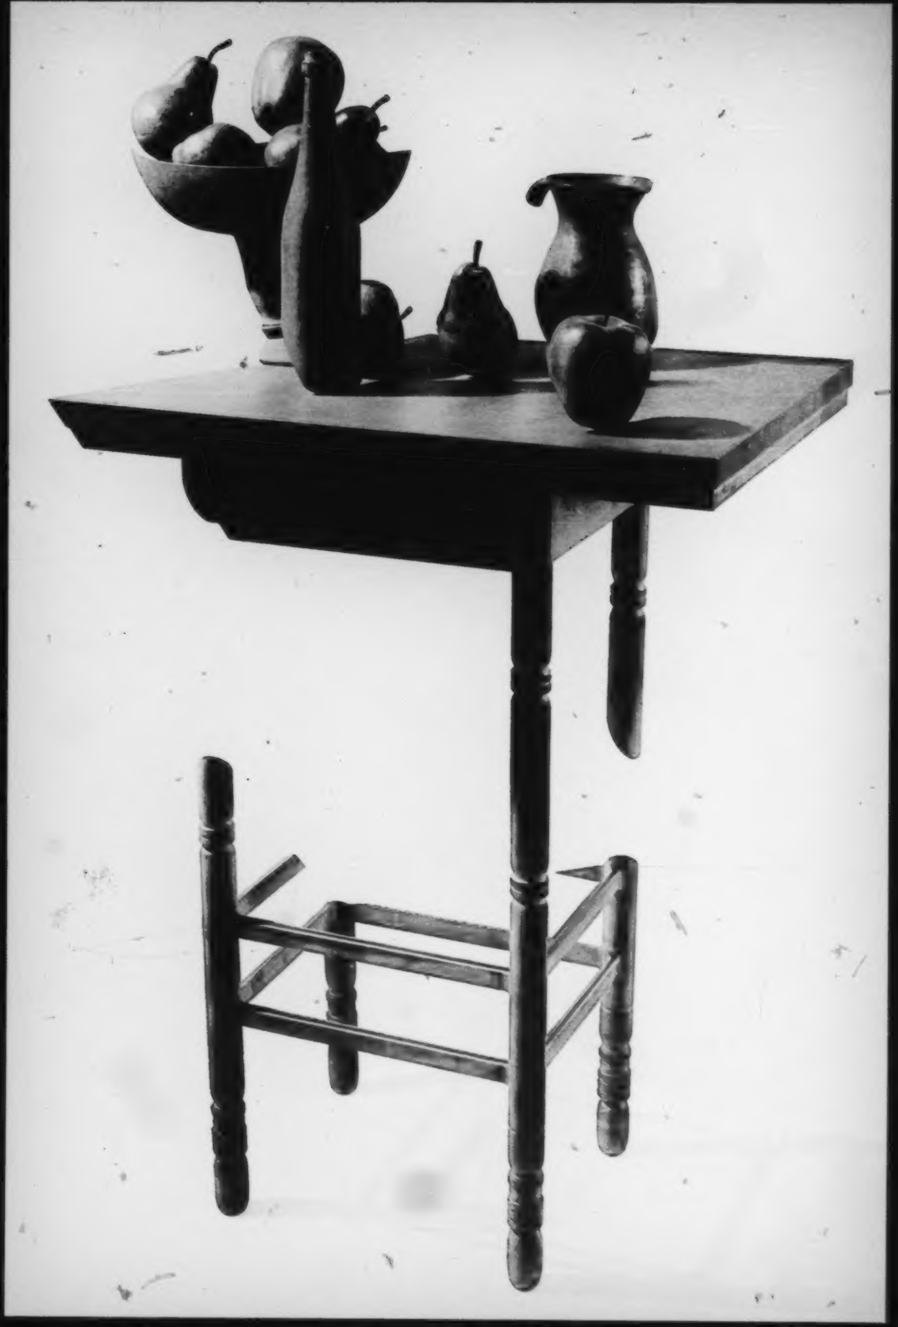
NO

1983

UMI

KAZUMA OSHITA

The Art of Metal Hammering



November 12 – December 21, 1983

ALEXANDER F. MILLIKEN INC.

98 Prince Street, New York, NY 10012 Telephone: (212) 966-7800

Still Life with Jug, 1983, hammered steel, 49 × 19 × 28 inches.

November, 1983

On our 70th anniversary, a milestone issue.

This is the largest issue of Art in America ever published.

It carries a record-high 178 advertising pages, including special advertising sections devoted to The Art of Germany (40 pages) and Works in Clay (24 pages).

By year's end, our advertising page-count will exceed 1,200... an increase of more than 700 pages over the past five years. The credit goes to you, our advertisers, and your conviction that consistent advertising in Art in America is a sound way to develop business.

This November issue, I believe, clearly demonstrates why you should hold this conviction:

1) Editorial comprehensiveness and credibility. There are 100 pages of wide-ranging editorial in this issue, highlighted by the definitive coverage of the Manet Retrospective at the Metropolitan Museum in New York. We've devoted 50 pages and 60 illustrations to this historic exhibition, and our writers are three of the most respected and engaging in the art world: John House, Linda Nochlin, and Charles Stuckey. Here, they contribute to an editorial authority unmatched in its power to attract quality readers and enhance quality advertising.

2) The art world's most active, affluent audience. Overwhelmingly, the readers of this magazine are avid gallery-goers and serious collectors. Subscribers alone own private collections valued at $2.5 billion; last year they spent $330,000,000 adding to their collections.

   More than any other art magazine, Art in America and its advertisers help them know and find what they want. They appreciate this help; nearly 9 out of 10 subscribers report that the advertising in Art in America is an important source of information. And they act on it.

3) The art world's largest complement of high-quality advertisers. This is the "company you keep" in Art in America—more New York galleries, more galleries nationwide, and more European galleries than advertise in any other art magazine. In Art in America, you identify with the best. This helps sell art.

Thank you for this record-breaking issue. May it be a cause for celebration for both of us.

Paul Shanley

Publisher

VOL
71

ISS
10

NO

1983

UMI

The Pace Gallery and Peter MacGill are pleased to announce the opening of a gallery for 20th-Century
photography.

Andre Kertesz

Distortions
November 5 to
December 17, 1983

PACE/MACGILL
11 East 57 Street
New York, NY 10022
212-759-7999

VOL
71
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI

Galerie Maeght Lelong

Sculpture on a Small Scale November 1 - December 9

GIACOMETTI Tête de Diego col roulé, 1951-52. Bronze, 13½"

Arp
Bourgeois
Brancusi
Calder
Chagall
Chillida
de Kooning
Ernst
Giacometti
Johns
Matisse
Miró
Moore
Noguchi
Picasso
Segal
Shapiro
Smith

9 West 57 Street, 41st floor New York, NY 10019 Tel (212) 371-9077

Art in America

NOVEMBER 1983

Manet Revised: Whodunit? Charles F. Stuckey 158
Not only did Manet frequently rework his own paintings, but evidence suggests posthumous tampering with a number of his works.

Seeing Manet Whole John House 178
A centenary exhibition provides a rare opportunity to see Manet's work as he himself wished it to be seen.

A Thoroughly Modern Masked Ball Linda Nochlin 188
Ball at the Opera reveals the way Manet suggested reality beyond the frame and erotic content within it.

Uncanny Images Hal Foster 202
The photographs of James Casebere toy with our sense of the real.

The Machine that Learned to Draw Lawrence Campbell 205
The graphic language of a computer called AARON evinces a witty artistic "personality."

John Chamberlain's Irregular Set Gary Indiana 208
Chamberlain's obsessional, extravagant sculptures are also metaphors of violent and cataclysmic consumption.

DEPARTMENTS

Letters 5
Review of Books 19
Report from Germany
Zero Years David Galloway 33
Photography
The World Embalmed Julia Ballerini 41

ISSUES & COMMENTARY

Tainted Image:
Rothko on TV Howard Singerman 11

Artworld 272

REVIEW OF EXHIBITIONS

New York, Chicago, Washington, D.C., San Francisco, Los Angeles, Costa Mesa, Calif. 219

Cover: Detail of Edouard Manet's Nana, 1877, oil on canvas, 60 3/4 by 45 1/4 inches; Kunsthalle, Hamburg. See articles beginning on p. 158.

Editor: Elizabeth C. Baker

Managing Editor: Nancy Marmer / Senior Editors: Ted Mooney, Craig Owens, Hal Foster / Senior Editor in Charge of Pictures: Prudence Carlson / Assistant Managing Editor: Kathryn Howarth / Assistant Editor: Robert Fisher / Designer: Alberto P. Gavasci / Associate Designer: Louis D'Esposito / Directory Manager: Amy Slaton / Consultant: John Peter / Contributing Editors: Donald B. Kuspit, Lucy Lippard, Sarah McFadden, Linda Nochlin, Carter Ratcliff, Irving Sandler, Peter Schjeldahl, Roberta Smith, Charles F. Stuckey / Corresponding Editors: Chicago, Franz Schulze; San Francisco, Peter Selz; Washington D.C., David Tannous; London, Suzi Gablik; Rome, Milton Gendel; Germany, David Galloway

Publisher: Paul Shanley

Director of Advertising: Susan B. Anthony / Advertising Sales: Deborah J. Gardner, Karen Niedzielski, Ruth Rothseid / Advertising Services: Julia H. Price, Cathy McKay / Production: Mary Jontry / Production Assistant: Sarah King / Promotion Director: Valerie Green / Circulation Director: Barbara Gutman / Circulation Manager: Susan Blattman / Marketing Services Director: Karen Tubridy / Art in America, 850 Third Ave., N.Y.C., 10022, Tel. (212) 715-2600
Director for International Development: John H. Liesveld, Jr. / Administrative Assistant: Grant Barker / Art in America, 39 Quai des Grands Augustins, 75006 Paris, France. Tel. (1) 325.26.55

WHITNEY COMMUNICATIONS CORPORATION MAGAZINE DIVISION
PRESIDENT: John S. Prescott SENIOR VICE PRESIDENT, FINANCE/ADMINISTRATION: Gordon H. Duncan
VICE PRESIDENT MARKETING: William Hitzig VICE PRESIDENT PLANNING: Dean Heine
VICE PRESIDENT PRODUCTION: James Kearney VICE PRESDIENT PRODUCT DEVELOPMENT: Virginia Evans

WHITNEY COMMUNICATIONS CORPORATION
CHAIRMAN: Walter N. Thayer
PRESIDENT: Charles H. G. Rees

Vol. 71, No. 10 (November) Art in America is published 11 times a year (monthly except July) by Art in America, Inc., 850 Third Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10022. Telephone (area code 212) 715-2600. Cable address: AMARTMAG. A member of the Magazine Division of Whitney Communications Corporation. Contents copyright © 1983 by Art in America, Inc., and may not be reproduced in any manner or form without permission. ISSN: 0004-3214. The opinions expressed in "Issues and Commentary," apart from the editor's comments, are those of the writers themselves and not necessarily those of this magazine. Not responsible for unsolicited manuscripts or photographs. Art in America is indexed in the Readers' Guide to Periodical Literature and the Art Index. Back volumes of Art in America are available in microfiche from Bell & Howell, Att. Periodical Department, Old Mansfield Road, Wooster, Ohio 44691. Microfilm copies are available through Xerox University Microfilm, Ann Arbor, Michigan 48106. Articles appearing in this magazine are abstracted and indexed in Historical Abstracts and/or America: History and Life and RILA. Circulation is verified by the Audit Bureau of Circulations. Controlled circulation postage paid at Concord, N.H. and New York, N.Y. BACK ISSUES AND COMPLETE VOLUMES: Lawrence McGilvery, P.O. Box 852, La Jolla, Calif. 92038. SUBSCRIPTIONS: U.S. 11 issues $34.95, 22 issues $59.95, 33 issues $79.95. Possessions & Canada add $8.00 per year. All others add $15.00 per year. Single copy $4.00 prepaid. Single copy August/Annual $7.45 prepaid (includes $1.50 postage and handling). SUBSCRIPTION OFFICE: Art in America, 542 Pacific Ave., Marion, Ohio 43302. Telephone (area code 614) 383-3141. CUSTOMER SERVICE: Telephone (toll free code 800) 624-9200. FOR CHANGE OF ADDRESS send old and new addresses and label from a recent issue. POSTMASTER Send Form No. 3579 to Art in America, 542 Pacific Avenue, Marion, Ohio 43302.

Member of the Audit Bureau of Circulations

VOL 71
ISS 10
NO
1983
UMI

Odilon Redon, Femme au Vitrail, pastel on paper, 20⅝" x 14⅝"

works from our collection by Archipenko, Beckmann, Diebenkorn, Francis, Klee, Klimt, Kokoschka, Leger, Matisse, Pechstein

LAFAYETTE PARKE LTD.

2151 Sacramento St. San Francisco, CA 94109
415-922-6777
by appointment only

Letters

More On Viet Memorial Controversy

As has been said, everyone who knows the difference between a Tastee Freez and a Roman frieze has an opinion about the Vietnam Veterans Memorial; this certainly includes Elizabeth Hess, author of "A Tale of Two Memorials", [A.I.A., April, 1983]. The snide and derisive treatment accorded my sculpture is rivaled only by her omissions and distortions, which are calculated to support her bias. Phrases such as "trite" or "traditional as a Hallmark card" are typical of the weary clichés contemptuously hurled at the serious figurative artist for far too long. Hess's attempt to turn the memorial controversy into a feminist issue is an idiocy which can only be explained as an act of opportunism—an exercise in ideological squatters' rights. The specific artistic issue actually raised by this controversy, but overlooked by Hess, concerns art and the public and the relationship of art to life.

The simple, bold, flat, unequivocal truth is that modernism has failed in its utopianist dream of creating a new and universal language. It has not happened, it is not happening and it may never happen. The figure is a necessary element if public art is in any sense to be truly public. The simple fact is that the philosophical arrogance rooted in the concept of "Art for Art's Sake" has led to continuously diminishing levels of substance and meaning in art. Art is now nothing more than a cult, held to the bosom of smug elitists who dictate what is, and is not, fit for public consumption. What a stunning day in the history of Art for Art's Sake when a student, a mere student, can be indignant and outraged that a design intended solemnly to honor the bitter sacrifice and suffering of 2.7 million people is felt to be, in some ways, inadequate. Art is no longer a part of life, no longer in the domain of the common man, no longer an enriching, ennobling and vital partner in the public pursuit of civilization, no longer the majestic presence in everyday life that it was in the past.

The arrogance of art today is equaled only by its insignificance. Do most people today care if art lives or dies? Of course they don't, but why? Because today's art has given them nothing, nothing that bears the slightest resemblance to their own lives, that touches their fears or cares, that evokes their dreams or gives hope to the darkness. It has, in short, become an irrelevant pursuit. It is not the public that has failed art; it is art that has failed the public. If anything can be art, then nothing is art.

If art is to survive into the 21st century as anything more than the hot-dog commodities game it has become, then it must be reborn. To be reborn requires a renewed and impassioned vision of the purpose of art within the larger purposes of civilization. The concerns of art must be rehumanized, must explore the domains of existence and capture the deep resonances of our commonality. In every sense, art must again participate in life.

The philosophical foundations of modern art are crumbling. If the history of art has shown us anything, it has shown that nothing—no school, no style, no philosophy—is permanent. As modes of thought wither and become hollow and empty, they are inevitably challenged and vanquished. That time has come again.

Frederick E. Hart
Washington, D.C.

•

It is hard to know where to begin a critique of the sloppy reporting, false history and art polemics which make up "A Tale of Two Memorials," by Elizabeth Hess. Perhaps the central error of her article lies in its description of the purpose of the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Fund and of the legislation which set aside a portion of Constitution Gardens, on the Washington, D.C. Mall, for a Vietnam War memorial. Hess wrote that the "specific and only purpose" of VVMF "was to erect a national monument honoring those who had died in the war." Any careful reporter (or editor) easily could have ascertained that this statement is flat wrong and the source of a major misconception about the purposes of the memorial and the various efforts to modify it.

VVMF's incorporation papers and the law providing public land for the memorial describe the project as a memorial to honor all those who served in Vietnam. The distinction is crucial. Many war memorials salute the dead while honoring those who survived. But Maya Lin frankly emphasized the funerary element in her design. In her own words, she says, "The piece itself is apolitical in the sense that it doesn't comment directly on the war—only on the men who died." She chose black marble for the wall because "black for me is a lot more peaceful and gentle than white . . . . I wanted something that would . . . turn into a mirror if you polished it. The point is to see yourself reflected in the names."

Many find this a beautiful, if mournful, conceit—one perfectly appropriate to express the sadness and loss of so many deaths; the only question left unanswered was how this monument could also be appropriate to living veterans.

In retrospect, it appears that the original jury could not find a design which both satisfied them esthetically and satisfied the condition that the monument honor the living and the dead. Lin's winning design, with undenied merits of simplicity, originality and clarity, seemed unbalanced to many of the living vets and hence the controversial effort to modify the original design by the incorporation of additional elements. It is certainly disrespectful of the serious participants in this effort, many of them Vietnam veterans, to allege that they were motivated by sexism, racism or right-wing politics, although those seem to be the issues that most interested Elizabeth Hess. And it does Maya Lin herself little credit that she seems to promote those issues, or that she makes gratuitous slurs on Frederick Hart's integrity, as in: "From what I gather, Hart thought a long time before accepting the commission. It wasn't necessarily going to be good for his reputation, but the price was right." The fact that Hart entered the original competition, seeking the same prize as Lin, suggests that he has consistently thought the memorial project worth his effort, and did not have to be bribed into doing it.

There remains the esthetic debate over Lin's abstract, Minimalist design and Hart's realist statue. I for one am not offended to see the two in juxtaposition, any more than I find it inappropriate that Rodin's work is shown in the atrium of the National Gallery's East Building.

Unlike Elizabeth Hess, I don't find the expressions of the three soldiers "peculiar," although she accurately describes them as "stunned—more bewildered than heroic." Perhaps she needs to take another look at photographs of American soldiers under fire. Hart has captured the essential exhaustion of battle in these faces. They are as little a "tribute to John Wayne" and "the military establishment" as Bill Mauldin's drawings of Willie and Joe, those older, but equally weary, GIs of World War II.

It is by no means clear that when the statue is in place it will "challenge" Lin's wall with a "contrary point of view," any more than it is clear that one monument cannot honor both living and dead. I don't doubt some viewers will prefer one element—wall or statue—on ideological grounds such as masculinity or femininity, abstraction or realism. But it seems likely that in juxtaposition the two elements will say more than either standing alone. And it looks as if the balance of purpose which Jan Scruggs and the VVMF originally hoped to incorporate in the memorial has been restored to the project. While it is misleading to think of the revised project as "two memorials," Maya Lin's wall alone could well be described as half a memorial.

Finally, I am sure Scruggs (and other veterans) would appreciate it if you would rectify Hess's minor error in describing the Army unit in which he fought. It was Company D, 4th BN., 12th Infantry, 199th Light Infantry Brigade.

Andrew Hamilton
Washington, D.C.

•

Elizabeth Hess's article gave the impression that there were only two sides to the controversy—those totally opposed to Maya Lin's design and those who wanted it totally unchanged. In fact, there was a third side: those who believed that the design was totally appropriate, but felt that it was incomplete—that it honored only those who died in Vietnam, but failed to recognize the veterans who survived. The final Fine Arts Commission ruling specified that the flag and [Hart's] statue be grouped at the entranceway to the two-acre memorial site. That ruling was a victory neither for the anti-Lin forces nor for the pro-Lin forces, but for those who believe the memorial also should honor living Vietnam veterans. I am a Vietnam veteran and a journalist. I've covered the memorial controversy since its inception. I think that the memorial is a powerful and effective monument to those who gave their lives in Vietnam. I also think the statue and flag will enhance, not interrupt, the memorial.

Marc Leepson
Woodbridge, Va.

•

Elizabeth Hess replies:

For the record, the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Fund was mandated to construct one public memorial for those men and women who died or are still missing in action in Vietnam. After completion, this organization will cease to exist and Jan Scruggs, its war-torn president, will move on—happily, no doubt. I might add that he has done a heroic job rescuing this project from going down the drain altogether.

The main gripe from Mr. Hamilton and others attempting to rationalize the excessive and expensive addition of a second memorial is that Maya Lin's "V" exclusively eulogizes the dead. They see Frederick Hart's statue as geared to praising the living. Let's get one thing clear: all memorials are for the living. What disturbs some viewers of Lin's memorial is the fact that it is an extremely depressing reminder of how many people were wasted in a war that the American people didn't want to get into, that they were lied to about, and that, in the end, our government was unable to win. Lin's memorial is too realistic. Some people prefer the less painful and

VOL
7
1
ISS
1 0
NO
1983
UMI

Richard Pousette-Dart

Time is the Mind of Space,
Space is the Body of Time
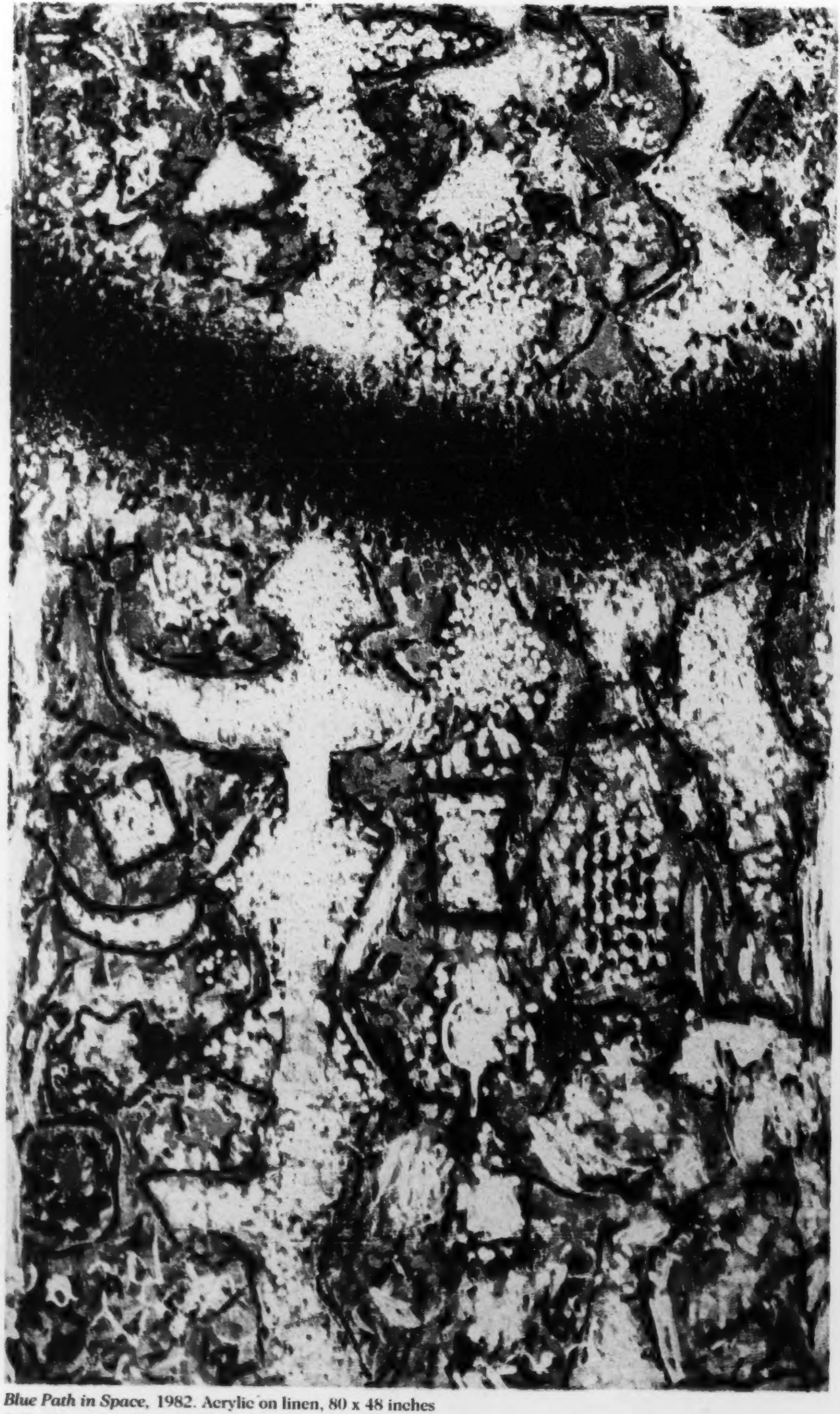
The "E" Series
1981-1983

Oct 27 – Nov 26



Blue Path in Space, 1982. Acrylic on linen, 80 x 48 inches
Fully illustrated color catalogue $15

Marisa del Re Gallery

41 East 57th Street New York, NY 10022 Tel (212) 688-1843

more upbeat version of the war provided by Frederick Hart—the depiction of youthful survivors.

I would like to remind Mr. Hamilton that it was indeed the military establishment, those in power (and they are all on public record), not those in the ranks, that engineered the addition of a non-threatening, compromise statue. The VVMF had no choice; they were forced to acquiesce in order to save the project. Hart's cry for realism seems ironic in this context. I suspect that Vietnam veterans will get much more satisfaction from touching one of their buddy's real names on the black stone than from a larger-than-life reproduction of a group of soldiers emerging from battle. They already know that war is hell.

As far as the fortune that Hart's soldiers have evidently brought him, only his banker knows for sure. Hart has been genuinely interested in this project since its inception, as I indicated in my article. Mr. Hamilton used the phrase "bribed into it," not me. I do however, along with Maya Lin, think it peculiar that Hart and the VVMF have kept his fee—for a public memorial—a secret.

While I'm flattered that Mr. Hamilton credits me as the only one in town that is ideologically bent, the truth is I am in mixed company. No one who has followed this debate to the bitter end could possibly claim that it was Lin's modernist esthetic that did her in. Art this time cannot escape its political and social context. No one can argue with critic Benjamin Forgey's statement in The Washington Post that the addition of Frederick Hart's sculpture was "clearly a political not an esthetic necessity." That is a reality Hart will have to face.

On Women & Laughter

It is interesting to note in Jane Weinstock's article "A Lass, A Laugh and a Lad," [A.i.A., Summer '83] that an art of feminist "risk" is now excised, a matter of in-difference. Her recidivism cunt-ra-dicks what Simone de Beauvoir told us almost 35 years ago: "Otherness is a fundamental category of human thought.... If the woman question seems trivial, it is because masculine arrogance has made of it a 'quarrel' " (The Second Sex).

Weinstock asks to "take back a bit of our mouth to try to speak." But she tries to gag me by her legislating. Too bad we're caught in a new wave of phallocentrism, under the guise of "difference."

Isn't Hélène Cixous in the process of freeing desire/intention? "I write woman; woman must write woman. And man, man. So only oblique consideration will be found here of man; it's up to him to say where his masculinity and femininity are at; this will concern us once men have opened their eyes and seen themselves clearly" ("The Laugh of the Medusa"). Cixous's writings are a search for the female, and I interpret my piece Let the priests tremble... as a cunt painting, a new representation on the subject of sexuality, on being female rather than playing pet or merely "subversive" to male symmetries and privilege.

I am not interested in hobbling (castrating) women's tongues, in avoiding the "risk of feminist art." Weinstock's terminology, in its strained derivation of French models, becomes her version of that same old exclusionary system. She is dystopian in that she operates from a depressed point of view, a view that claims the literal but refuses representation.

Can one be "literal" about women where women do not appear? Is the representation of women's bodies only reserved for men? Where are the images of women taking charge of their sex/lives?

Nancy Spero
N.Y., N.Y.

•

Jane Weinstock replies:
My intention was not to silence you but to articulate a perspective which would bypass the biological. I respect your long-term commitment to feminism, but I question your search for a female essence.

Even more importantly, I deeply regret that our disagreement has become public. It is unfortunate that the spectacle of two women fighting is still a crowd pleaser.

In Memoriam

I recently heard that Richard Stankiewicz had died. Although I had not seen him for a few years, I remember dear Richard vividly. By god, he was a dark, gaunt, just about Lincolnesque figure (seemingly far taller than he was). And although he had become a considerable humorist in welded sculpture, Richard took time to impart a certain sense of what should be serious artistic commitment to this then-young G.I. artist. I'll never forget Richard for that confirmation/information, for himself, and for his thought and work.

Dan Flavin,
Wainscott, N.Y.

Art in America welcomes letters from readers. Short letters have a better chance of being published. All letters are subject to condensation for space reasons. Anonymous letters will not be considered for publication.

Mother and Daughter, ca. 1920. Oil on canvas, 30 x 24 inches

ARNOLD FRIEDMAN
(1882-1946)

PORTRAITS

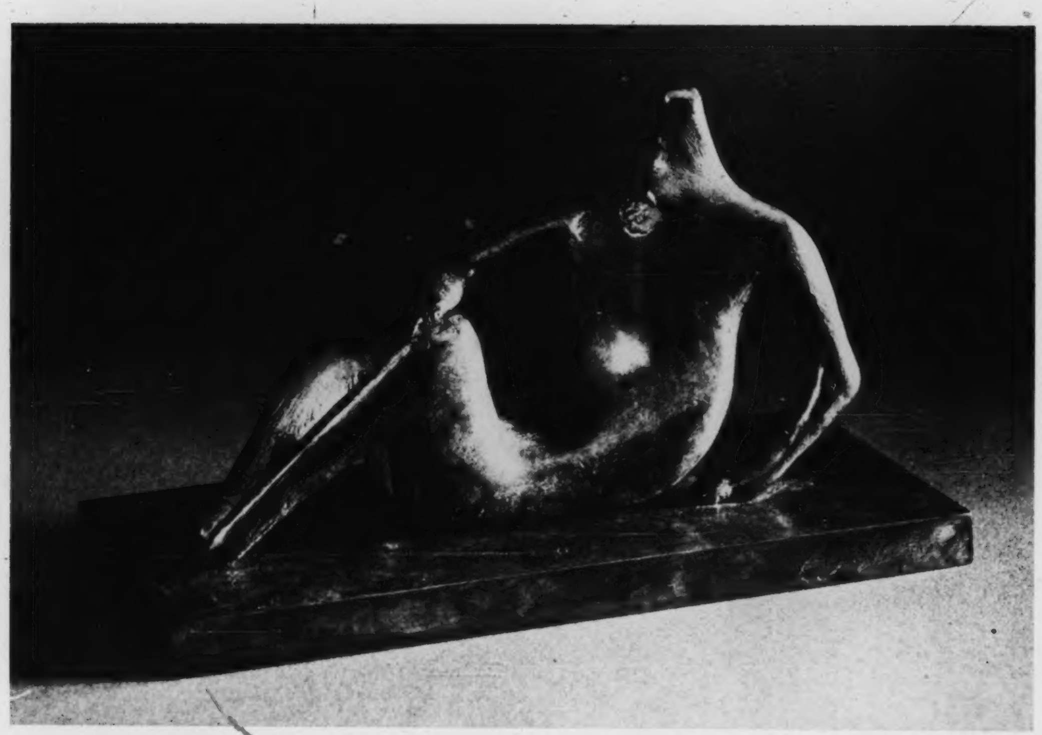
NOV 15–DEC 17

ZABRISKIE
724 FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK
521 WEST 57 STREET, NEW YORK (BY APPT)
37 RUE QUINCAMPOIX, PARIS

THE ESTATE OF ARNOLD FRIEDMAN IS REPRESENTED BY ZABRISKIE

VOL 71 ISS 10 NO 1983 UMI

HENRY MOORE



Working Model for Reclining Figure Pointed Head, 1982. Bronze, edition of 9, 16 x 34 x 20 in. (40.5 x 86.5 x 51 cm.)

james goodman gallery

1020 Madison Avenue New York, NY 10021 Tel (212) 772-2288

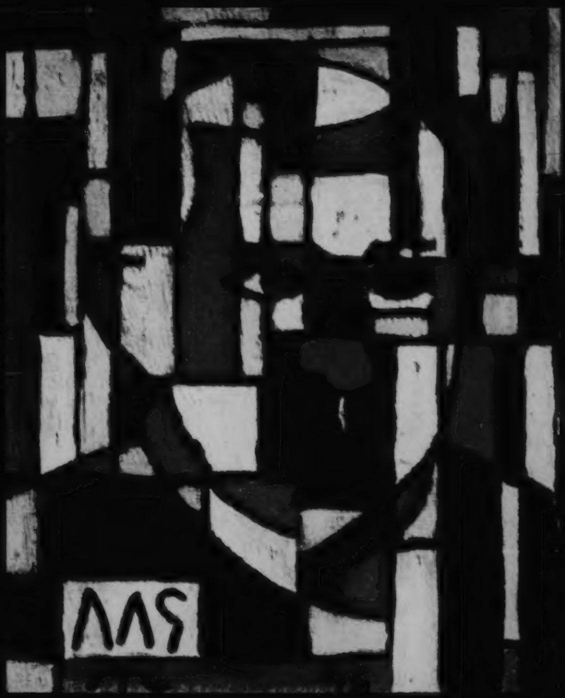
ARNOLD HERSTAND & COMPANY
24 WEST 57TH STREET, SIXTH FLOOR
NEW YORK, NEW YORK 10019
212-664-1379

TORRES-GARCIA, SELECTED LATE PAINTINGS
OPENING, NOVEMBER 29TH, 1983

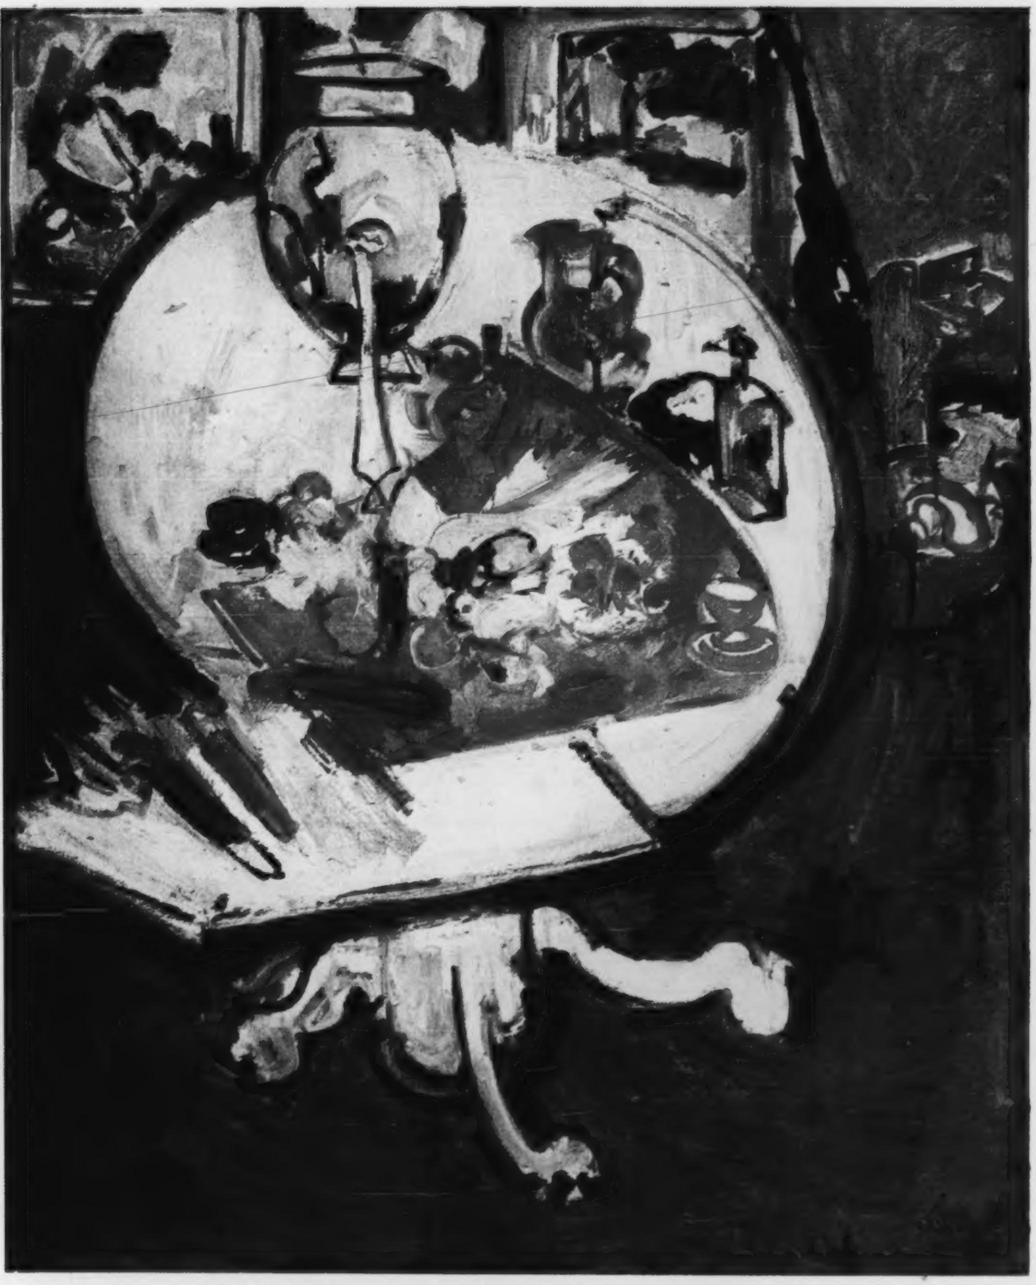
JOAQUIN TORRES-GARCIA
"CABEZA CON ESTRUCTURA A CINCO COLORES"
1946, OIL ON BOARD, 15¾ x 12⅜"

TORRES-GARCIA IS EXCLUSIVELY
REPRESENTED BY
ARNOLD HERSTAND AND JAN KRUGIER

AH



VOL 71
ISS 10
NO
1983
UMI



Still Life — Yellow Table on Green, 1936. Oil on board, 5 ft. by 3 ft. 8½ in. (1.52 x 1.13 m.)

The Estate of
HANS HOFMANN is represented by
ANDRE EMMERICH GALLERY
41 East 57th Street, New York 10022
Telephone (212) 752-0124

Issues & Commentary

Tainted Image: Rothko on TV

Presenting him as a latter-day van Gogh, the BBC's "Rothko Conspiracy" stereotyped Rothko's life and turned the struggle over his estate into melodrama.

BY HOWARD SINGERMAN

The opening sequence of The Rothko Conspiracy, Michael Baker's television dramatization of the death of Mark Rothko and its aftermath, produced for BBC and shown on PBS last spring, cuts back and forth between the despondent Rothko, alone in his cold, dark studio, and a crowded, expectant Sotheby's where van Gogh's Wheatfield with Cypress Trees is being auctioned. The parallel scenes build to a climax together; Rothko drinks and fingers a tissue-wrapped razor blade with paint-stained hands as the painting's price climbs past the million dollar mark. He finally acts as the painting is sold. From its beginning, The Rothko Conspiracy attempts to fit the events on Rothko's life into the mold of van Gogh's, to explain one artist—his suicide and the hollowness of his public success—by means of the other. While it molds or casts Rothko as van Gogh, it is an archetypal role and a fictional van Gogh that he plays: one who stands for the artist whose genius verges on madness—alone, misunderstood, self-destructive. The actor who portrays Rothko plays the generic artist, a culturally conditioned role that preexists and supersedes Rothko.

The Rothko Conspiracy moves both forward and back from the suicide, and it presents Rothko in a series of flashbacks staged to introduce and indict the alleged conspirators and to punctuate their trial. (As is well known, the "conspirators," who included Frank Lloyd, the director of Marlborough Gallery, and the executors of of Rothko's will—his accountant, the late Bernard Reis; the painter Theodoros Stamos; and Morton Levine, an anthropology professor—were accused of plundering Rothko's estate and charged with "self-dealing.") The flashbacks are also staged to display Rothko's character, like anecdotes that sum him up. In the earliest one, Rothko's studio is light, even airy, as are the paintings that fill it. He has, it appears, just taken a break; he has a visitor and his assistant is busy in the background. From that scene onwards, Rothko's studio grows darker and emptier, as though designed to reflect the increasingly somber tonality of his paintings, and it grows smaller, too. The studio that finally imprisons him, huddled and shivering, is almost black and little more than a corner. We no longer see paintings and we never see him at work, yet Rothko's hands, as they are in his opening scene, are stained with paint. Increasingly, his inactivity comes to seem inability, and the paint stains a nostalgic costume of the artist. When his body is discovered, the paintings that suddenly surround it seem to have been painted years before. In this docudrama, Rothko's character is by episodes boastful and paranoid, irritable and self-pitying; he is surrounded by sycophants and crippled by his helplessness and insecurity.

The Rothko Conspiracy's psychological, even pathological profile echoes Gauguin's portrait of the painter—"condemned to penury, . . . the most menial tasks, dilapidated studios, and a thousand other obstacles. All these create despondency, followed by impotence, rage, violence."[1] This notion of the bohemian painter is the model for The Rothko Conspiracy's artist. And in spite of its backlot sets and central-casting players, the show shares its model of the artist—his separateness and suffering—with the New York School. Clement Greenberg, for example, revived Gauguin's portrait of the painter when he named the peintres maudits of 19th-century Paris as the prototypes of the Abstract Expressionists: "Their isolation . . . is inconceivable, crushing, unbroken, damning. . . . What can fifty do against a hundred and forty million?"[2] As if specifically addressing The Conspiracy's opening scenes and the image of van Gogh, Ernst Kris writes of the modern artist: "One gains sometimes the impression that the actual behavior of one or another of the famous artists of the time has been used as a prototype, frozen into a formula which has been handed down as such to succeeding generations."[3] In Legend, Myth, and Magic in the Image of the Artist Kris focuses primarily on the artists of classical antiquity, the sources of their biographies in still more ancient myths, and the reappearance of their stories attached to other artists up through the Renaissance. He begins with the story of the young Giotto, an example that incorporates the most common and important motifs of the artist's biography. According to the legend, the shepherd boy Giotto already had his mature and miraculous gifts in childhood. He is discovered in the humble surroundings where he has been placed as though by nature's mistake, and lifted from them by his gifts, the mark of divine genius. Giotto is born an artist, or as a more recent biographer has Dürer say of another artist, "Truly, he was a painter in his mother's womb."[4] For the Renaissance biographer, "artistic creativity is determined not by schooling or practice, but by special endowment."[5]

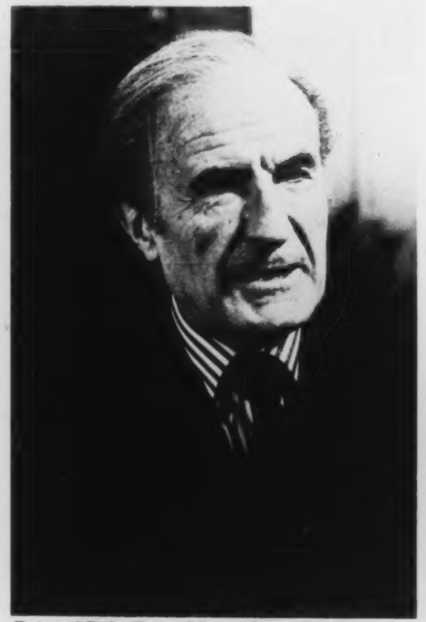
The importance of the myth of the artist as exemplified in The Rothko Conspiracy is that it separates the artist from both social context and cultural history. It gives him a special gift and position, and links his identity to him intrinsically and essentially. Like Giotto, The Rothko Conspiracy's artist is not one of us and his difference is organic—even genetic or, as Dürer intended to locate it, divine. But for the modern artist, this separation from other men and linkage to his artistic identity are more secular, and perhaps for that reason riskier. His difference, no longer divine but biological, becomes, by definition, abnormality: he is separated by his genius, and his estrangement is cast as illness.

The Rothko Conspiracy ties Rothko's identity to him in a way that is at once organic and prosthetic, part biology and part costume. The most significant details of Rothko's television appearance are his glasses and the eyes we barely see through them: magnified, yet blurry and fogged, inexplicably distant. Rothko's glasses do more than separate and clothe Rothko as an artist; they offer an almost physiological, even physiognomic explanation for his paintings. Softened and blurred, his eyes echo and explain the fuzzy, floating forms of his paintings in the same way that van Gogh's mental illness explains his vision and, then, his paintings. The explanation, not unimportantly, keeps the artist's act embedded in phenomenological truth, one of verisimilitude rather than revolution. But The Rothko Conspiracy's most effective use of the glasses as a literary device and its most poetic evocation of van Gogh come at Rothko's funeral, where he lies in state in glasses, the right lens cracked. The body was, in fact, wearing glasses; Bernard Malamud mentions them in a remembrance in the catalogue of the Guggenheim's 1978 Rothko retro-

VOL
7
1
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI

Rothko (Larry Hoodekoff) is presented as the archetypal artist verging on madness.

Mark Rothko, 1963. Photo Robert E. Mates.



Bernard Reis (Barry Morse) becomes one of the TV-drama's arch-"conspirators."

spective. Added for television, the single broken lens, like van Gogh's ear, is an act against symmetry: a physical imbalance that bespeaks a mental one.

The glasses must also explain—for the production does not—why The Rothko Conspiracy's Rothko cannot see what the audience sees: that he is surrounded by the most caricatured of villians. Frank Lloyd, Marlborough's director, is presented in the guise of the European gangster; in fact, he wears the gangster's costume, a double-breasted pinstripe suit, its lapels too wide and handkerchief too loud. Bernard Reis, Rothko's accountant and, after his death, his chief executor as well as Marlborough's secretary-treasurer, is still louder. He marks each incident of duplicity by clearing his throat or, still more self-incriminatingly, laughing the hollow laugh of the cartoon villain.

If The Rothko Conspiracy is clearly melodrama, it has borrowed its sets from film noir. Rothko and Theodoros Stamos, the only other artist in the cast, hold their meeting with Lloyd on rainy nights in black limousines pulled up in alleys or against dark curbs. The fictional Stamos fits the locations well. He is burly and slow and, in contrast to the real Stamos, seemingly illiterate. He speaks lines like "you bet" and "sonovabitch" in a stock immigrant accent that the show's Rothko also has. The fictional Stamos glowers and swears in the company of dealers and lawyers. He is played as the artist-as-day-laborer, the man of few words. And led along by Reis and Lloyd, he is presented as the artist-as-thug.

In The Rothko Conspiracy, vision is the sole sensory attribute of the artist, and Rothko, like Stamos, is nearly speechless. Though his apparent inability to communicate is different than Stamos's—it is not illiteracy but incoherence—it is his speechlessness that counts to the image of the artist. For it is his speechlessness that allows him access to the ineffable, the unspeakable; and we must not understand him in order that he might be misunderstood. All of Rothko's speech is on the edge of emotion, on the edge of poetic outcry. He speaks only in shouts or in whimpers, yet all of his words have the quality of quotes; they are, like his role, already spoken—he speaks the public Rothko's most famous utterances, drawn from interviews and statements, as though oddly unfamiliar with their original locations or their meaning.

Rothko's most important speech is directed at his daughter Kate in a flashback placed to establish her love for her father and his work, and to support her claims to the paintings against Reis's less honorable ones in her attempt to regain control of her father's estate. When Kate admires the colors of one of her father's paintings, he insists loudly that he is "not an abstractionist," and paraphrasing the published interview from which that line is taken,[6] he speaks of how we are to feel before his paintings, how we are to laugh or cry before them. When Kate replies that the painting makes her happy and asks her father never to sell it, Rothko insists, again as if almost insulted, "How can I sell a painting? They are my children. I cannot send them away."

Taken from its context, this pronouncement is addressed to a daughter he is about to leave and, in the space of a previous flashback, has already left. Rothko's awkward speech is meant to elucidate his paintings, but it speaks most loudly of his separateness and his abnormality: his inability to function within society's conventions and structures—in conversation or in family. Like the mythified van Gogh, Rothko must literally be a misfit; in his attempt to be unencumbered by the world, he must not fit into it. The Rothko Conspiracy must locate Rothko instead in the garret that his studio becomes, in his melancholy and his isolation, or as Kris puts it: " . . . beyond the pale of society, beyond the dictates which normally rule it and hold it together . . .—but the radius of their lives extends only from Parnassus to bohème."[7]

Bernard Reis, former secretary-treasurer of the Marlborough Gallery, New York.

Rothko's biological claim to his paintings ("They are my children") recalls the first of Kris's three "formulae" for the modern artist's biography. The first formula recalls "an ancient comparison [that] describes the particular attachment of the artist to the work he creates in terms of his parenthood: the work of art is seen as the artist's child."[8] Rothko's reply to his daughter draws on this myth of the artist as progenitor. According to this myth, if his paintings are his children, his ties to them become, like his artistic identity, natural; and questions of making, of history and of meaning are overridden by parental authority. This biological claim thus allows The Rothko Conspiracy to separate Rothko again: we do not need to see how the paintings are made, or to understand their production or their development. We do not need to know their situation in history—the paintings and the criticism, even the society, that preceded, surrounded and received them; and we cannot know what they might mean outside of being of, and belonging to, Rothko. It is his fatherhood that allows his silence—it is a relationship that needs no explaining. Finally, Rothko's claim empowers us to do what The Rothko Conspiracy has done: to engage in " 'pathographic' analyses, . . . [to] insist on seeing the artist's life and work as one and the same thing."[9]

Stamos (Norman Chancer) is rendered as a burly, inarticulate artist-as-thug.

Theodoros Stamos. Photo Lee Boltin.

The fictional Frank Lloyd (Ronald Lacey) appears in the guise of a European gangster.

Frank Lloyd, Marlborough Gallery director and owner. Photo Jack Mitchell, 1975.

The myth of paternity is the first of Kris's formulae; the other two focus on the artist's unwillingness to part with his work. (In fact, the real-life Rothko established a foundation, one function of which was to keep his paintings together as much as possible and to control the conditions of their exhibition; interpretation of the purpose of this foundation was one of the questions of the trial.) The second of Kris's formulae concerns the artist who would destroy the work rather than let it outlive him. The third is almost its opposite: the artist must not outlive the work—its destruction demands the artist's suicide. The Rothko Conspiracy implies that harm has befallen Rothko's work, for besides being melodrama, it is a cautionary tale. It speaks its moral in voiceover near the show's end: this is a story in which "the dangers and temptations for all artists are manifest," one that "takes place far from the rarefied esthetics of high culture." The Rothko Conspiracy's moral is simple: the artist's location in the garret is necessary; worldly success is the downfall of the artist and the defiler of art. Success topples the work of art from its rarefied heights, even destroys it, and the tainted painting demands a sacrifice. Perhaps the real-life Rothko was as uncomfortable with his success as his television counterpart: true to the bohemian myth, he advised the artist to "abandon his plastic bank-book" and fashioned the "unfriendliness of society" as a "lever for true liberation."[10]

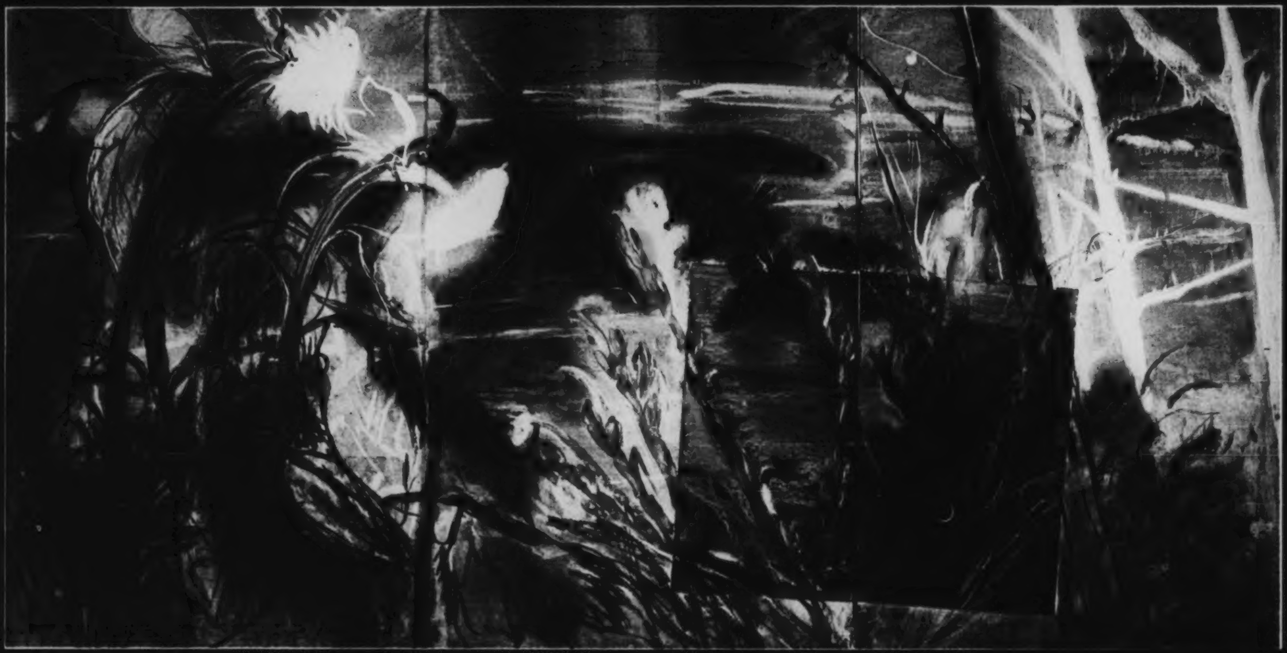
Kris notes a final body of legends, a subgroup of the third formula, surrounding the death of the artist, in which the artist destroys himself and his work together. Kris records the story of a goldsmith who melted himself down with his flawed work. Creator and creation were in death "irrevocably linked."[11] Lee Seldes, in The Legacy of Mark Rothko, resurrects the image in her description of Rothko's suicide. "The enormous patch of congealed blood was the ultimate work of art, the final dramatic gesture, the true, most poignant action painting." Seldes ends her paragraph with a quote from Nietzsche: "No longer the artist, he has himself become a work of art"; and she begins the next: "In the studio, his last canvas was a

VOL 71
ISS 10
NO
1983
UMI

MICHAEL MAZUR

RECENT WORK

November 5 - November 30, 1983



MICHAEL MAZUR
b. 1935
Wakeby Fog
1983
Pastel over monotype
47 5/8 × 94 1/8 inches

BARBARA MATHES GALLERY

851 Madison Avenue New York NY 10021 212/249-3600

large, unfinished study in reds."[12] The Rothko Conspiracy recalls not just the point but the letter of Kris's example: on television Rothko melts into his works. The paintings, framed in black, are shown to the camera in groups of three of four, fading into and out of one another. Each sequence begins with Rothko's portrait, the head and shoulders of the actor who portrays him, hovering and melting into the floating rectangles.

If The Rothko Conspiracy renders Rothko mute, it makes his paintings speak too loudly; it finally offers them only one meaning. It makes the Rothko it has presented, helpless and tortured, the sole subject of his paintings. Framed in black and inhabited by his ghost, they can only be seen as suicide notes—despite the deliberateness with which Rothko painted himself out. Indeed, the real-life or at least the public Rothko insisted that art must hold "a clear preoccupation with death," but at the same time and in the same speech he continued, " . . . the artist's real model is an ideal which embraces all of human drama rather than the appearance of a particular individual."[13]

"I'm interested only in expressing basic human emotions," he remarked, but his list—"tragedy, ecstasy, doom and so on"—raises the level of his emotions to the ideal and the dramatic.[14] What The Rothko Conspiracy has done is to shrink the paintings for television. It has replaced the monumental death that was Rothko's subject with a particular one. On TV, his paintings are used as, and can go no further than being, illustrations for his death; they are limited to his own particular and personal suffering. Yet as they are presented, neither the paintings nor the suicide are truly his: they belong to the typical artist.

Rothko wrote that his paintings were "created from the need for a group of actors who were able to move dramatically without embarrassment and execute gestures without shame," and cautioned, "Neither the action nor the actors can be anticipated, or described in advance."[15] The Rothko Conspiracy finally does not allow Rothko or his paintings either the strength to act without shame or the identity to elevate his emotion to the monumental. Rather, it scripts and circumscribes his action within the stereotypical image of the bohemian artist. It refuses finally to allow him even his own death; his suffering, at the hands of "conspirators" and dealers, is devalued and external. While he commits suicide as the camera cuts away, The Rothko Conspiracy's Rothko is in effect killed by the villains who populate television. For his act to become truly tragic, for it to reach the dramatic seriousness he desired for this painting and his emotion, Rothko must instead be seen as his own victim. ☐

---

1. Paul Gauguin, "Gauguin's Letter in Response to Fontaina's Article" (1899), Theories of Modern Art, ed. Herschel B. Chipp, Berkeley, University of California Press, 1968, p. 75.
2. Clement Greenberg, "The Present Prospects of American Painting and Sculpture" (1947), in New York School: The First Generation, Paintings of the 1940s and 1950s, ed. Maurice Tuchman, Los Angeles County Museum of Art, 1965, p. 48.
3. Ernst Kris, Psychoanalytic Explorations in Art, New York, Schocken Books, 1952, p. 80.
4. Kris and Otto Kurz, Legend, Myth, and Magic in the Image of the Artist, New Haven, Yale University Press, 1979, p. 50.
5. Ibid.
6. See Selden Rodman, Conversations with Artists, New York, Devin-Adair, 1957, p. 93.
7. Kris, pp. 79–80.
8. Ibid., p. 80.
9. Kris and Kurz, p. 120.
10. Mark Rothko, "The Romantics Were Prompted" (1947), in Chipp, p. 548.
11. Kris and Kurz, p. 131.
12. Lee Seldes, The Legacy of Mark Rothko, New York, Penguin Books, 1979, p. 111.
13. Rothko, "From Statements: Excerpts from Pratt Lecture" (1958), in Tuchman, p. 30.
14. Rothko quoted in Seldes, p. 38.
15. Rothko, "The Romantics Were Prompted," p. 548.

Author: Howard Singerman is a critic living in Los Angeles.

BARRY FLANAGAN
THE PACE GALLERY 32 EAST 57TH NYC

VOL
7
1
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI

ALEXANDER ARCHIPENKO

November 9 - December 3

NOHRA HAIME GALLERY

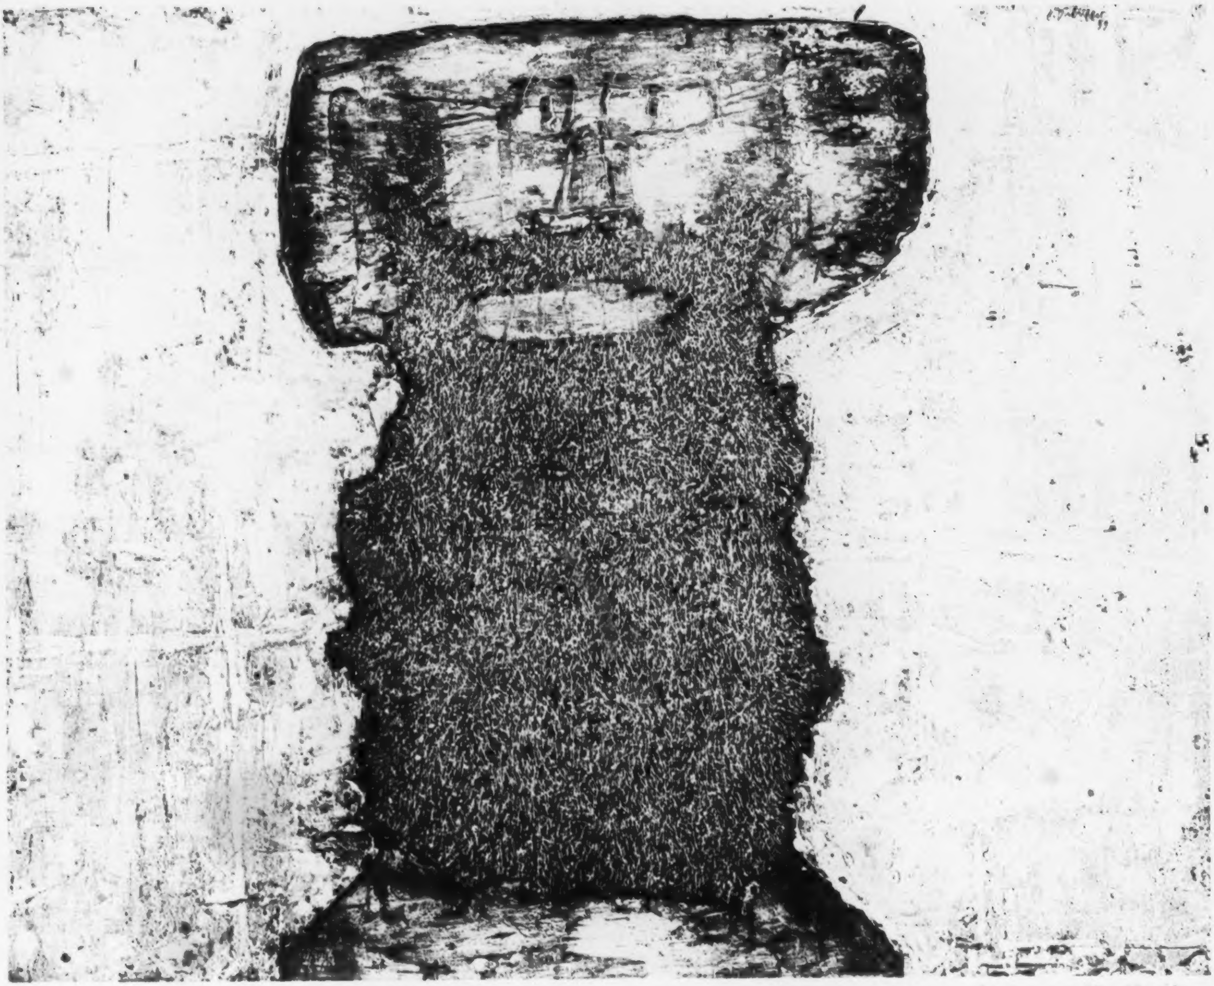
1000 MADISON AVENUE

NEW YORK, N.Y. 10021 (212) 772-7760

JEAN DUBUFFET

TWO DECADES: 1943-1962

November 1—December 31

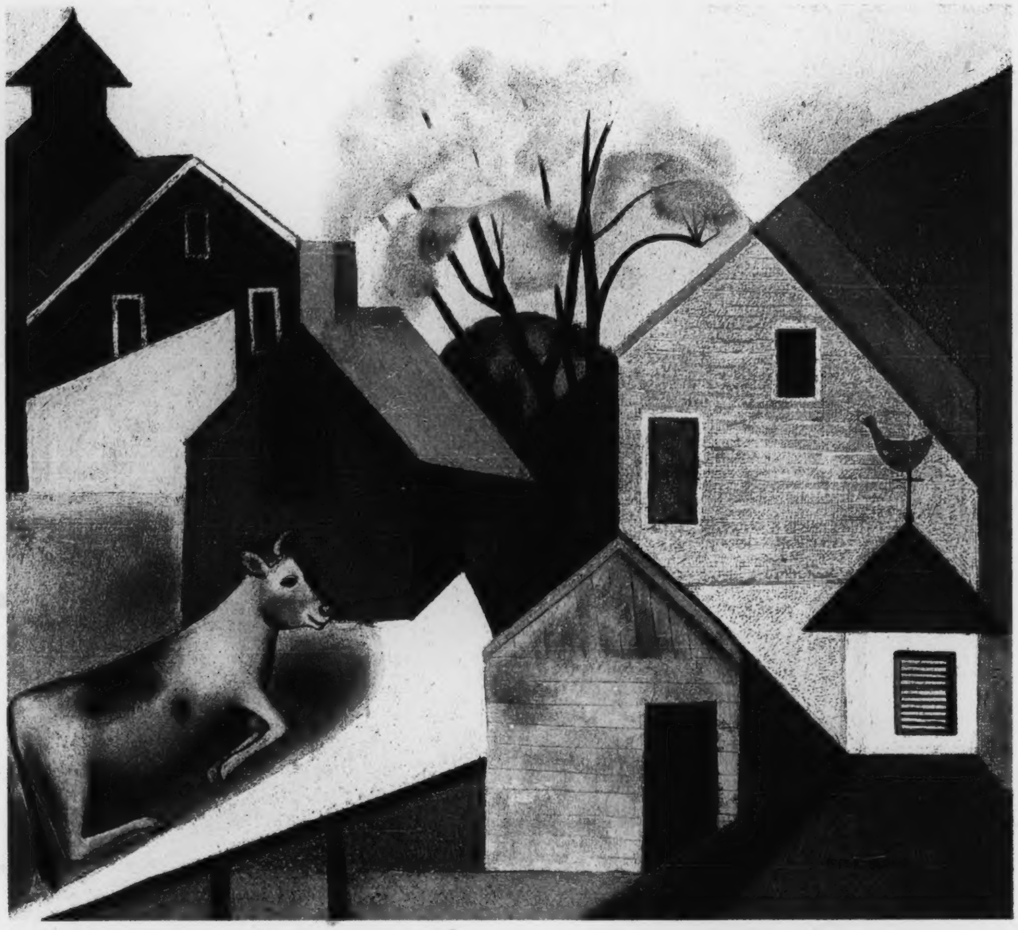


Barbe des combats, 1959 oil on canvas, 32 x 40 inches

56 page catalogue, fully illustrated in color
with an essay by Dore Ashton • $22.50 ppd.

DONALD MORRIS GALLERY
105 Townsend • Birmingham, Michigan • 48011 • (313) 642-8812

VOL
71
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI



Peter Blume (b. 1906)
Landscape with Cow
Oil on canvas, 18 x 18¾ inches
Signed Peter Blume, lower right
Painted circa 1926

JAMES MARONEY incorporated

129a East 74th Street, New York, N.Y. 10021 (212) 879-2252
Church Street, Roxbury, CT 06783 (203) 354-6783

Review of Books

Critical Postmodernism

A polemical new anthology presents heterogeneous views of the implications of postmodernism.

BY JOEL FINEMAN

The Anti-Aesthetic: Essays on Postmodern Culture, edited by Hal Foster, Port Townsend, Wash., Bay Press, 1983; 176 pp., $13.95 cloth, $8.95 paper.

The term, but also to some extent the practice of, postmodernism no longer possesses its initially striking oxymoronic force. Being "post" or subsequent to "modernism" originally served to summon up a radical and fruitful paradox. This was the case, however, only for so long as "modernism" was itself understood to retain a special purchase on the present, which is to say only for so long as "modernism," as such, could claim meaningfully to offer access to the "now." Under such circumstances, with the present identified as that which is "modern," to be "postmodern" was tantamount to being "post-contemporary," to use Paolo Valesio's still striking phrase, and there was no doubt something powerfully disorienting and exhilarating attaching to the experience of such a deferred present, something novelly novel in the durative feel of a time that was in this peculiar way ahead of its time.

Perhaps this oversimplifies what was fresh and exciting about a first moment of postmodernist enthusiasm. It is certainly the case, however, that postmodernism has lost much of its excitement and also much of its peculiarity in direct proportion to its effective displacement of the modernism to which in more than merely nominal ways it stands in loyal opposition. For when "modernism" is no longer something current, when it turns into a period-term like any other, so too does postmodernist polemic against modernism lose much of its urgency. To the extent that postmodernism successfully succeeds modernism, to precisely that extent does its "post" express a kind of negative nostalgia for that which is passé.

The first unhappy consequence of this is that "postmodernism" too becomes a period-term like any other, itself domesticated and dated. Worse, as the self-declared successor to modernism, postmodernism comes to seem the programmatic and symptomatic aftermath of modernism, the ghost of a ghost, an esthetic whose imagination is constrained by hapless retrospection, an art whose originality consists not only in being after the fact but in feeling itself to be so for no good reason. This is somewhat exaggerated. But neither is it unfair to say that postmodernism is today the name of an esthetic perspective the currency and contemporaneity of which is systematically extracted from its ongoing confrontation with an outdated point of view. It is not entirely surprising that the novelty of postmodernism is often reduced to a series of rear-guard battles with an old-fashioned avant-garde—battles that are in principle uninteresting since they are always lost the moment they are won.

There is more to postmodernism than such double binds suggest, if only because much of what is called postmodernist seems only lightly burdened by the memory of that which it succeeds. Even so, it remains the case that postmodernism originally derives much of its own specificity and motivation from its historical relation to a high modernist esthetic that in many ways anticipates and defends against its subsequent rebuke. It is not exactly the case that modernism declared itself to be the end of the history of art, but there is a sense in which it seems to draw a line that said this far and no farther. The characteristic gestures and strategies of modernism—its mimic self-referentiality, its parodic quotations of preceding art, its ironically reflexive themes, its foregrounding of purely formal values—these were all expressions of an esthetic sensibility self-consciously aware of its relation to traditionary art. By emphasizing the infinite range of this self-consciousness the modernist work of art could make a claim to be, both historically and formally, a limit case of art, since in this wry way it managed, whatever else it didn't do, to incorporate into itself its own historicist self-criticism as well as its own formal negation.

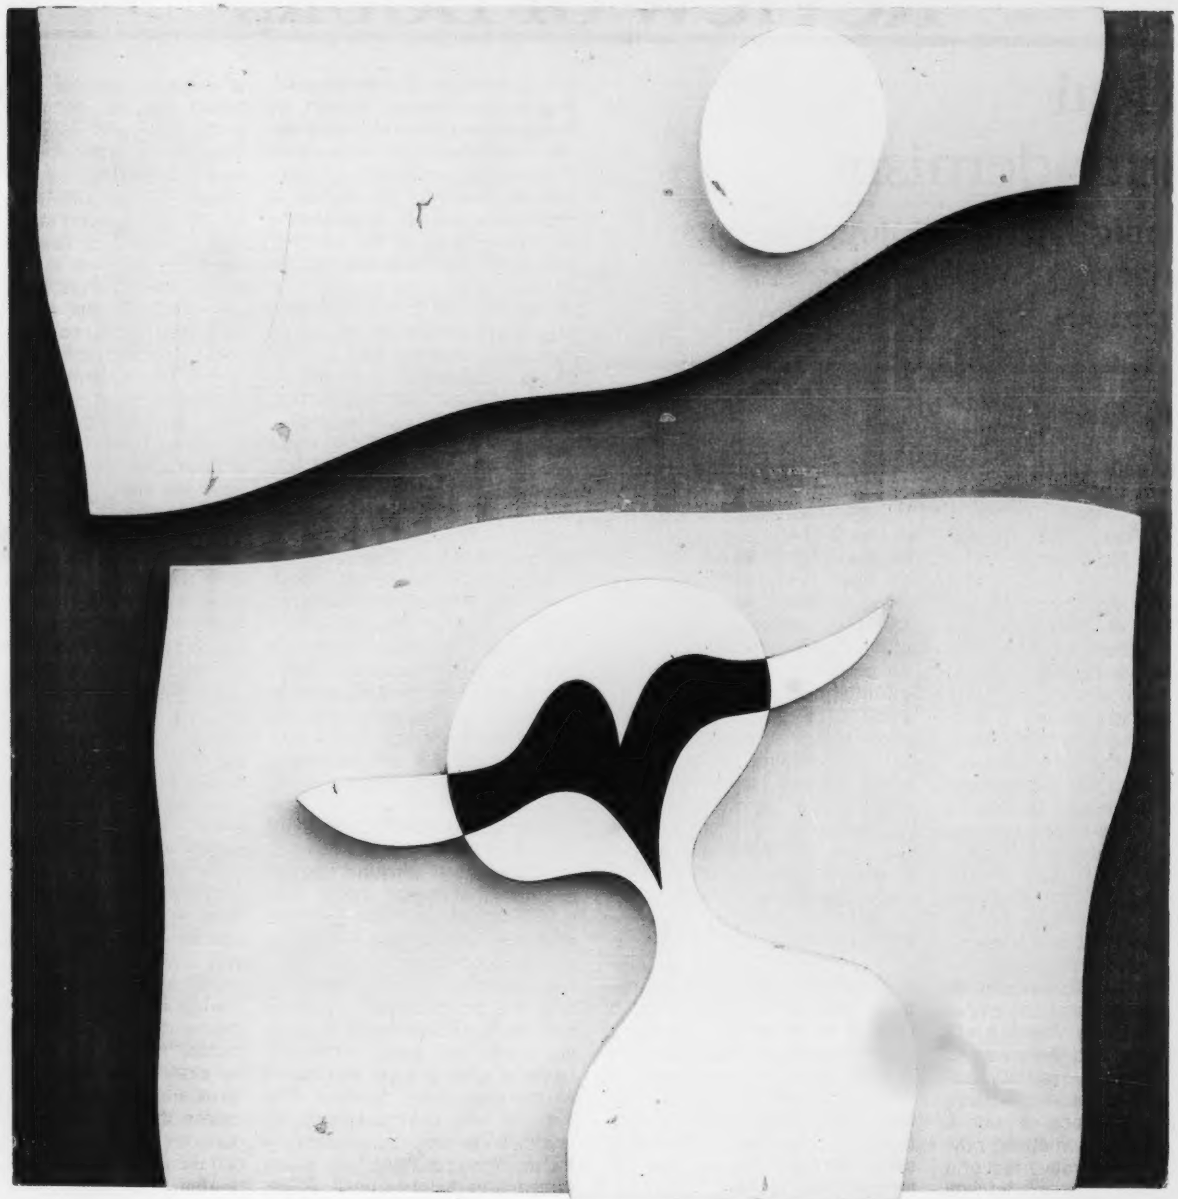
It matters very little that these modernist strategies—especially when they are trivialized by endless repetition and banalized by vacuous generalization—are more examples of than they are resolutions of the esthetic problems they address (for example, the way in which the circularity of modernist self-representation begs rather than answers perennial questions regarding esthetic reference, or the way even the purest formalism seems to argue, despite itself, for specific and in many ways objectionable ideological values). If it turns out that modernism repeats and does not consummate all previous art history, this itself amounts to but another motive for ironic self-reflection, yet another impasse to mull over with mandarin regret. It is easy to see why such an imperturbable self-consciousness (the kind that a proto-postmodernism such as Surrealism found disgusting from the start) eventually came to seem evasive and inane. At the same time, however, this explains why postmodernism so readily finds itself recuperated by the modernist esthetic from which it means to distance itself. To be against modernism, postmodernism must think itself through the passive aggression of the modernist self-conscious; as it does so it becomes a part of the very art history which it wants at once to exceed and to oppose.

All the contributors to The Anti-Aesthetic: Essays on Postmodern Culture are concerned in one way or another with this problem. Can the "Anti-" and the "Post" of the book's title join together without thereby canceling each other out? Can there be a rupture of art history that is not a secret continuity, a reaction to modernism that is not itself reactionary, an explicit resistance that is not an implicit affinity or capitulation? As these essays make very clear, these are not only esthetic qustions. What is at stake in, and not merely illustrated by, the confrontation of modernism with its other is the character of a genuinely new cultural sensibility, one that is obliged to interpret, to represent, and also to respond to the novelty and peculiarity of its own historical situation. This is a powerful sub-theme of almost all these essays, namely, that as the "Anti-Aesthetic" goes, so goes a world that in social, technical, political and economic terms is itself postmodern. For this reason, however, the different ways the authors characterize the historical provenance and future of postmodern art have the effect of reinvesting the problematics of the postmodern present with a special urgency.

The most pessimistic prognosis is given by the German philosopher Jürgen Habermas who sees postmodernism as a self-defeating and inevitably conservative attempt to negate through art alone the culture of specialized expertise spawned by societal modernization. Habermas sees the need to rethink the original impulses of modernism so as to relate art positively to social practice. However, since Habermas understands both modernism and its negation to derive in equal measure from late capitalist socio-technical developments, he gloomily predicts that such a redeemed and redeeming modernism will never come to pass. Kenneth Frampton is more optimistic in his discussion of contemporary architecture, but he too looks forward by looking backward. He recognizes and very effectively characterizes the dehumanizing consequences of pseudo-postmodernist urban design, the way it obliterates local particularities in its application of maximally efficient, universal architectural technique. Frampton imagines in contrast, however, a truly postmodern architecture that would resist such homogeneity by inflecting its constructions with regionally specific features. This would work to revive the old-fashioned "aura" of local spaces, and Frampton is quite willing to risk whatever sentimentality this new combination of the old and the new, this local juxtaposition of the local and the global, might entail.

Rosalind Krauss is more explicitly formalist in her discussion of the development of postmodern sculpture, since she shows this to be a rigorously logical and necessary reaction to the failure of certain modernist concepts regard-

VOL 71
ISS 10
NO
1983
UMI



Jean Arp, "Homme Moustache et Nombril," painted wood, 1928 80 cm x 80 cm

GALERIE RUDOLF ZWIRNER
ALBERTUSSTRASSE 18
5 COLOGNE 1
49 (221) 23 58 37

GALLERIA PAOLO SPROVIERI
3, PIAZZA DEL POPOLO
ROME
39 (6) 361 09 75

ARP BALLA BRAUNER DUBUFFET ERNST FONTANA FAUTRIER YVES KLEIN
LEGER MAGRITTE PICABIA PICASSO SCHWITTERS STELLA TWOMBLY

ing the marking of space. In effect, Krauss produces a structuralist account of what she punningly calls the "expanded field" of post-structuralist sculpture. The account is a persuasive tour de force, but again the result is to make postmodernism an epiphenomenal consequence of modernism, almost a dead end, since the expanded field that Krauss describes is now completely plowed even if not completely harvested. In some respects Gregory Ulmer does much the same for postmodern criticism insofar as this is exemplified by the deconstructions associated with the influential French philosopher, Jacques Derrida. For Ulmer, postmodern criticism is what happens when modernist collage-montage principles come to inform theoretical practice. Derrida borrows fragments of the theoretical past, citing, or re-citing, or resighting, or "para-siting" them into a new combination which works allegorically to revive not the past but its decay. The result is a critical practice that builds new ruins, "deconstructions" whose "postcritical" dis-integration in this way acts out the living death of bourgeois art.

In his essay on "The Museum's Ruins," Douglas Crimp raises the same sort of question with regard to the practical vitality of postmodern performance. Beginning with a paradox imagined by Flaubert in Bouvard and Pécuchet, Crimp asks what happens to the museum when it is called upon to represent itself within itself, as happens, for example, when the art displayed inside the museum is itself parodic of museological intentions. Crimp shows very well why, at least in principle, "notions of originality, authenticity and presence, essential to the ordered discourse of the museum, are undermined" by such mise en abyme, if only because, in logical terms, the class of all classes cannot classify itself. Yet if this is all there is to the story, why is it that Rauschenberg is not only Crimp's example of the way postmodern artists mean to undermine the museum, but, in addition, is also Crimp's example of the way the institution of the museum leads such artists to miss their own anti-museological point?

The essays in the collection that are more directly concerned with political and social relations identify similar dilemmas and difficulties. Edward Said characterizes the many ways in which mainstream criticism, especially the academicist literary criticism that is built on modernist assumptions, tends self-servingly to avoid the realm of politics. Said argues that this avoidance itself abets the "Age of Reaganism." Though Said objects to the quietist, even Quislingesque, consequences of such an apolitical criticism, his analysis makes it seem very unlikely that an alternative, political critical practice will ever be realized in an effective or more than marginal way. That such marginality is a specifically postmodern political dilemma is brought out by Craig Owens when he collates postmodern art and theory with the politics of feminism. Owens very acutely develops the parallels that obtain between a feminism opposed to the phallocratic master unities of patriarchal culture and a postmodernism opposed to the unitary and universalizing discourse of modernism. Both feminism and postmodernism work to secure differences that do not call forth hierarchy; both imply a pluralism that would not privilege any single term. To the extent that this is the case, however, both postmodernism and feminism are restricted to relatively secondary gestures of negation and resistance, for any positive or essentializing claims that they might make for themselves amount to a bad-faith surrender to a discourse of mastery.

None of the authors in this collection would insist that postmodern culture necessarily imposes either esthetic or political impotence, but there is a strong suggestion in some of these essays that postmodernism seriously runs the risk of succumbing to the challenge of its own historical moment. Jean Baudrillard speaks of the schizophrenic subjectivity induced by "the ecstasy of communication," a vertiginous subjectivity caught up in the dimensionless, textureless, passionless circulation of information. Where in modernism there was at least an authentic sense of alienation from the spectacle of the world, now there is only the cool "ob-scene" thrill elicited by the transistorized, miniaturized, hyper-realized sheen of simulation as it is imaged on the television or, better, on the computer screen. Baudrillard carefully avoids saying anything bad about this. But what kind of future is there for a subjectivity that is "now only a pure screen, a switching center for all the networks of influence." The Marxist critic Fredric Jameson makes this point even more explicitly when he wonders whether postmodernism does anything more than "reinforce the logic of consumer capitalism." His point is that postmodernism, or at least one aspect of it, produces a subjectivity unwilling or unable to focus on history, a subject who forgoes reality for the sake of what Jameson elsewhere calls an artificial (and merchandisable) sublime.

The essays in this collection are theoretically sophisticated and they display a concrete grasp of contemporary art practice. They become all the more interesting as they argue, sometimes implicitly and sometimes explicitly, one with another. In its heterogeneity, its energy, its polemics, and also in its worries, this collection is true to the postmodern culture it describes. It is probably the most useful, serious and rewarding anthology of its kind; it should be read by anyone concerned with the practice and theory of contemporary art.

The Man Behind the Monument

One of the most elusive artists of the Soviet avant-garde, Vladimir Tatlin is the subject of a much needed new biography which, sadly, fails to solve his mysteries.

BY JAMEY GAMBRELL

Vladimir Tatlin and the Russian Avant-Garde, by John Milner, New Haven and London, Yale University Press, 1983; 252 pp., $29.95.

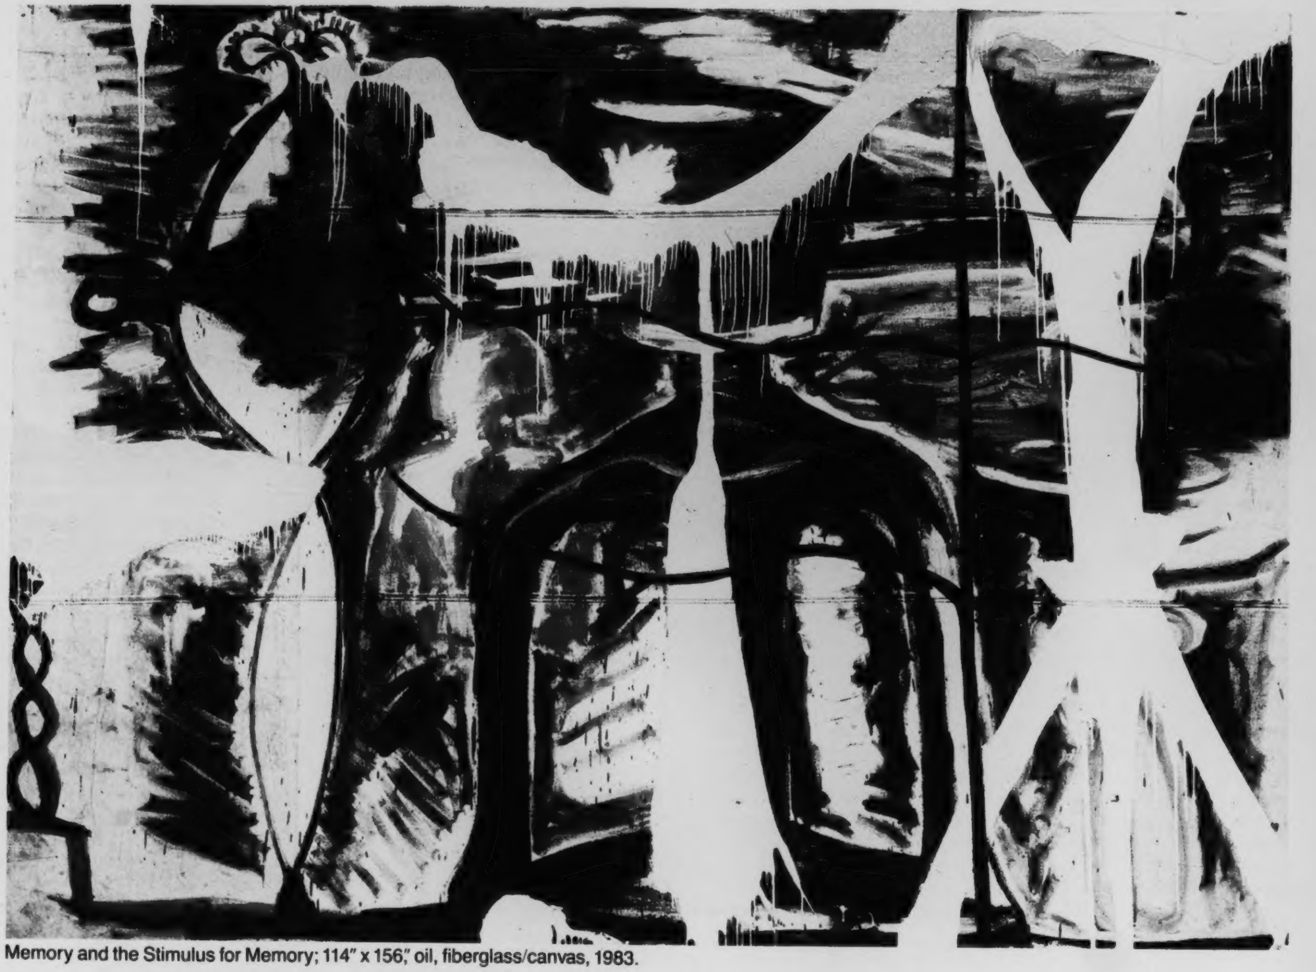
Though long revered in the modernist West, the Russian avant-garde remains sketchily chronicled and inadequately understood here, partially because iron curtain politics have so impeded access to archival information, but also, and perhaps more profoundly, because an equally dense curtain of cultural and historical differences separates us from the period. The reader who wishes to learn more can, if he or she is diligent, wade through a huge number of catalogues and journals devoted to the subject; yet there are still few biographies of the artists involved or general books on the period itself, arguably one of the richest and most chaotic in the history of art. Some 20 years after its writing, Camilla Gray's The Russian Experiment in Art remains the best overview we have had. Thus John Milner's well-illustrated "critical biography" of Vladimir Tatlin, legendary father of Constructivism, creator of the Monument to the Third International and the Letatlin is, at least theoretically, a welcome addition to the field.

Little is known about Tatlin's early life. He was born in Moscow in 1885, the son of a railroad engineer. His mother, a poet, died when he was about two years old, and he was raised in Kharkov by his father and stepmother. In 1902 Tatlin became a merchant seaman and traveled to Bulgaria, Turkey, Persia and all about the Mediterranean. He returned to Russia in 1904 and enrolled in art school in Penza, where he lived, when he was not at sea, until about 1909–10. He then moved to Moscow and enrolled at the College of Painting, Sculpture and Architecture. His ties with the artist Mikhail Larionov, whom he had known since childhood, brought him in contact with all the major writers and artists of the avant-garde: Burliuk, Goncharova, Malevich, Kandinsky and, most importantly, the poet Velimir Khlebnikov.

From 1911 on Tatlin participated in most of the major exhibitions of the avant-garde. He showed in Larionov's "Donkey's Tail" exhibition in 1912 and then broke with Larionov to appear in the 1913 exhibition of the rival "Jack of Diamonds" group in Moscow. In early 1913 he joined the Union of Youth and subsequently had works included in a number of their exhibitions. He traveled to Europe in 1913, and in Paris he met Picasso and saw Picasso's constructed reliefs—a meeting which was pivotal for Tatlin. Returning to Russia he virtually abandoned painting and began constructing his own "painterly" and "counter" reliefs. By the time of the "0.10" exhibition in 1915 (in which Malevich first showed his Suprematist works) Tatlin had emerged as the principal proponent of a tendency which was perceived as being in direct conflict with Malevich's Suprematism: Tatlin's work had moved out into

VOL
7
1
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI

JULIAN SCHNABEL



Memory and the Stimulus for Memory; 114″ x 156″, oil, fiberglass/canvas, 1983.

October 29 – November 30

Daniel Templon

30, rue Beaubourg, Paris, (1) 272-1410

volume, making use of the intrinsic qualities of materials, while Malevich explored the flatness of surfaces and planes.

After the Revolution Tatlin was appointed head of the Moscow section of IZO, the Visual Arts division of the People's Commissariat of Enlightenment; in this capacity he was responsible for enacting Lenin's "Plan for Monumental Propaganda." He subsequently served in numerous government posts, directly influencing the course of artistic events and education in the Soviet Union. From about 1919–20 he taught a course titled "Materials, Volume and Construction" at Petrosvomas, the "free studios" in Petrograd. In 1919 his Monument to the Third International was commissioned, and the model was first exhibited in Petrograd in 1920. Thoughout the '20s Tatlin was involved in various design projects in collaboration with his studio workshops (they designed, among other things, a stove, a coat, dresses and a bentwood chair) as well as in theatrical production, most notably the posthumous staging of Khlebnikov's Zangezi in 1923. Tatlin worked in the theatrical section of the People's Commissariat of Enlightenment in Kiev from 1925–27, returning to Moscow to resume teaching. From 1929–32 he worked on the Letatlin glider. During the '30s and '40s his involvement with theater grew, he illustrated a number of books—and returned to figurative painting. Tatlin died in 1953.

Despite his importance and the by now almost mythical status of his Monument and the Letatlin glider, Tatlin remains one of the more elusive members of the avant-garde. Unlike Malevich, he apparently wrote very little and only a few laconic statements of purpose are widely known.

John Milner's recent Vladimir Tatlin and the Russian Avant-Garde is therefore a much needed, if unsatisfying, attempt to examine the life and work of this major artist within the context of his time. In Tatlin's work Milner sees a sort of meeting ground of East and West, in which the East ultimately held sway. Though Western European Cubism certainly played a crucial role in Tatlin's work (his visit to Picasso was a real turning point) Milner quite appropriately seeks to elucidate and emphasize the particularly Russian nature of the artist's concerns. Even when dealing with such apparently Cubist-inspired pieces as Tatlin's reliefs he finds much in Russian artistic tradition to support his thesis: "When it is recalled that Tatlin had worked with icons, whose mounts might often be metal or wood in high relief, the transition from a flat painted surface to relief is less surprising than it would be for a Western European painter." He also stresses the importance of Tatlin's experience as a sailor for his later development of the concepts of faktura (texture or handling) and construction. Central to Tatlin's work, Milner convincingly claims, was his friendship with the poet Khlebnikov, whose linguistic, temporal and spatial theories are often echoed in the artist's three-dimensional practice. Throughout the book Milner emphasizes the wide range of Tatlin's interests, which extended beyond painting to sculpture, theater and industrial design.

Perhaps the most successful chapter is the one devoted to the Monument to the Third International. Milner raises a series of intriguing associative (if not always actual) sources for the Monument ranging from the obvious, such as the Eiffel Tower and Rodin's Monument to Labor, to the Colossus of Rhodes, Ouspensky's Tertium Organum, and Khlebnikov's alchemical theories of language. Noting the Monument's resemblance to a forward striding figure, he explores its status as a politically and spiritually utopian metaphor whose "body" was to function literally as the center of the body politic (the Tower was meant to contain moving halls designed to house various governmental organizations). "Tatlin's Tower employs a spine, legs, rib cage and vital organs that move: Tatlin's construction is more than a visual representation, for it functions, both mechanically and socially. . . . If the tower contains references to the human form, it is upon the communal and not the individual level: the figure he presents is not heroic or typical but the collective and social body of man—a hyperhuman, the human form of the collective identity. It was more than a symbolic object. Tatlin's Tower provided an image of the social macrocosm."

Unfortunately, Milner's book is flawed by awkward writing that often verges on incoherence—an affliction that could have been considerably alleviated by a good editor. The reader must trudge through repetitive descriptions of works and naive, albeit enthusiastic, paeans to Tatlin's theories of construction and faktura to grasp the bare facts of the artist's life. As a result, analysis of specific works, which at its best moments is thorough and thoughtful, if a bit overdone, does not have nearly the clarity or impact it should have.

As biography this book is painfully lacking. In attempting to set Tatlin's life in context, Milner jumps about among the better-documented lives of Tatlin's contemporaries in such a way as to entirely lose sight of his subject at times. The reader comes away from the book with no sense of the man behind the Monument, and a rather garbled chronology. (Again, one need only turn to Camilla Gray's lucid book for an example of how the admittedly confusing story of the avant-garde can be told.) The documentary evidence of Tatlin's biography may in fact be as slim as Milner's book suggests, but nowhere does he make mention of the lack of such information. On the next to the last page of the book we suddenly learn that Tatlin's only son was killed during World War II—though there has been no mention of Tatlin's wife or lover, and the only previous reference to this son is in a footnote to an earlier chapter. (Indeed, Milner frequently relegates more interesting biographical tidbits to his footnotes.)

Milner gives little historical background, and such stinting is particularly problematic in the chapters dealing with the post-Revolutionary period. It is often as though these artists moved about in a vacuum where the only historical reality was that of their own (often obscure) rhetoric. Milner seems to be a true believer and takes this rhetoric a bit too much to heart, adopting it himself without batting an eyelash, even when the actual human implications, given the bloody history of the time, are horrific: in the chapter on the Monument he refers to Tatlin's Tower as "a social alembic for the resolution of opposites and the transmutation of base social material [my italics] by a purifying and social philosopher's stone." Later in that same chapter he claims that if Tatlin's project was utopian, "it was proposed at a time when Utopia was apparently receiving material and social foundations."

It is, rather, one of the ironies of Tatlin's utopianism that at the time his Monument was proposed, the Civil War was still raging and Russia was entering one of the worst famines in its history. In Moscow as well as in the countryside people were literally starving to death; parents put their children in orphanages in the hopes they would be fed; heating fuel was in fatally short supply and people were driven to burn furniture and tear out floorboards just to keep warm. Milner does not even allude to such uncomfortable historical facts, nor to the fact that artists such as Tatlin occupied privileged positions—they received housing and extra rations and so were protected to some extent from the plight of more "base social material."

Milner likewise provides no account of the growing conservatism of Soviet cultural policy in the late '20s and '30s, the rising political influence of realist artists and the consequences of the consolidation and centralization of artistic administration in the Artists' Union, whose founding in 1932 marked the abolition of all independent artistic groupings. He only refers to the creation of the Artists' Union in passing. Like many Russian avant-garde artists, Tatlin moved gradually into design and returned to figurative painting in the '30s (it would be rash to attribute all such "re-conversions" to political pressure alone). Milner devotes a mere three or four pages at the end of the book to this transformation and to the last 20-odd years of Tatlin's life. The tone of this section is one of nostalgic disappointment in a fallen hero. But this progression, characteristic of so many modernist innovators, raises questions which, if they cannot yet be answered, are at least worthy of the ink and paper needed to ask them.

It is to be hoped that future writers on the period will not only do a better job of sifting through and sorting out historical fact from rhetorical fancy, but will avail themselves of the luxury of hindsight to place people, events, and paintings in a more focused historical perspective.

PHOTOGRAPHY

Walker Evans at Work: 745 Photographs together with Documents Selected from Letters, Memoranda, Interviews, Notes, with an essay by Jerry L. Thompson, New York, Harper & Row, 1982; 239 pp., $18.95.

Berenice Abbott, American Photographer, by Hank O'Neal, introduction by John Canaday, commentary by Berenice Abbott, New York, McGraw-Hill/An Artpress Book, 1982; 255 pp., $59.95.

Dorothea Lange: Photographs of a Lifetime, with an essay by Robert Coles, afterword by Therese Heyman, Millerton, Aperture, 1982; 192 pp., $40.

Throughout their careers, Walker Evans, Berenice Abbott and Dorothea Lange often seemed to reject the idea of their work being called "art" photography, a label they associated with the "art for art's sake" attitudes of Alfred Stieglitz or the f64 group. Evans

VOL
71
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI

"Jokhang #3, 1983." Oil on canvas, 48"x56", 1983.

SYLVIA LARK

NOVEMBER 1-DECEMBER 3, 1983

JEREMY STONE GALLERY

126 POST SAN FRANCISCO CA 94108 415/398 6535

preferred that his work be called "documentary," or "documentary style." So did Abbott. The ambiguity of this latter label was to prove significant. A "documentary" photographer would seem to have renounced his pretentions to art. A photographer working in "documentary style," however, might still be making "art" photographs, just as John Steinbeck, in writing the realist Grapes of Wrath, was still making art.

Two new books about Evans and Abbott leave no doubt that these two photographers saw themselves as artists, albeit of a radically different kind from the f64 school. For them, "documentary style" was an artistic style, whose source seems to have been the photographs of Atget. This is no surprise insofar as Abbott is concerned; it was she who discovered Atget and his work in the late '20s, and devoted much energy to preserving and publicizing his work throughout the next 40 years, perhaps at the expense of her own career. Abbott's biographer here, Hank O'Neal, determined to emphasize the quixotic heroism of her battle for Atget, ends up unduly minimizing her success in making him known to photographers and critics, if not to the wider public. One valuable fact we learn from Walker Evans at Work is that Evans was aware of Atget, and praising him in the pages of the magazine Hound and Horn, as early as 1931. Evans, like Abbott, found in Atget the model for a photographic esthetic based on a profound engagement with reality rather than a pictorialist simplification of it.

Dorothea Lange seems to have been genuinely less concerned with "art" than were either Evans and Abbott or the f64 crowd. Ironically, her relations with the latter were quite amicable, and for years Ansel Adams made the fine prints of her pictures she herself couldn't be bothered with. Like Abbott, Lange began as a portraitist, but quickly abandoned the protected world of the studio and the upper-middle class. In her earliest "street" pictures, Lange concentrates on simple, powerful shapes and truncated figures shot from below or above. Although Lange's later style became more complex and more realistic, her best images continued to conform to these early formulas, which seem to show the influence of German photographers like Lotte Jacobi and Max Burchartz. At the risk of being callously "esthetic," it is tempting to say that her best pictures are not really "documents" of social problems at all but highly stylized portraits of strained beauty. (Oddly enough, Lange's heroic women of the 1930s tend to resemble the troubled, hollow-cheeked beauties of the affluent 1960s.)

Dorothea Lange: Photographs of a Lifetime, which is in the familiar mold of an Aperture monograph, is probably the best presentation Lange's work will ever receive. The beautifully printed plates are interspersed with occasional Lange quotations, prefaced by a biographical essay by Robert Coles, and followed by a useful chronology and bibliography. Although Coles's essay is marred by a tendency to embellish his arguments with long personal anecdotes about something that was once said to him by an Indian, or an old black sharecropper, or a black minister, or an Appalachian mountaineer, or his wife or his son, it is ultimately an excellent presentation not only of Lange's life and career but also of the moral issues involved in "documentary" photography: the persistent doubts and accusations that photographing the sufferings of others demeans and exploits them more than it helps them. To this question, Coles can only respond with Lange's own suffering (she was afflicted with a lame leg caused by childhood polio), and her genuine compassion. She never photographed people without their consent, which she earned by her willingness to listen to them. (Walker Evans at Work reveals that Evans, with his typically no-nonsense determination to get good pictures, found a rather different way of winning his subjects' consent: he paid them. This will probably shock a lot of people who want to see Evans as a secular saint.)

Berenice Abbott: American Photographer is somewhat less successful than the Lange monograph in presenting its subject's long and tortuous career. Hank O'Neal's essay contains much valuable information, although he is too partisan to be an incisive biographer. John Canaday's brief but balanced introduction, giving Abbott her due as an insufficiently acclaimed modern master, is insightful about photographic esthetics. It is interesting to see Abbott's own selection of her photographs, and her detailed, often technical commentary on them is fascinating. Unfortunately, her little-known "science photographs," which she is clearly eager to publicize, are simply not on a level with her masterpieces from New York and Paris. But what is unforgivable here is the layout, a throwback to the magazine-style picture books of the 1950s and '60s, with photographs arranged helter-skelter, sometimes bleeding off a page edge, sometimes not, and (worst of all) sometimes blown up into a double page spread, which absolutely destroys the image's integrity.

Walker Evans at Work is a very different sort of enterprise. (Evans's official oeuvre has already been reprised, in the splendid 1978 volume, Walker Evans: First and Last.) Assembled by John T. Hill, the executor of Evans's estate, Walker Evans at Work contains an essay on Evans's working methods by photographer Jerry Thompson, once Evans's assistant, followed by an incredible potpourri of Evans material: alternate negatives and prints of well-known subjects; snippets from letters to friends; memoranda to himself, and to publishers, editors, employers and curators; spreads of his work as it appeared in Vogue and Fortune; the mock-up for an unpublished book of subway photographs; and much more. All this raw material cries out for a writer to analyze Evans's decisions, evaluate his successes and failures, connect the life and work. Indeed it could have used precisely the kind of technical and personal commentary Abbott provides for her own photographs. Thompson's essay is a helpful step in this direction, but an unfortunately brief one. As matters stand, one learns primarily that Walker Evans, like most photographers, took an awful lot of mediocre pictures for every good one. (Abbott, always the exception, set up her shots carefully and took very few negatives, most of which came out successfully.) There is a fascinating study to be written on Abbott's and Evans's personal and photographic relationship. Without knowing it, Abbott, in 1937, photographed the same New York door that Evans had photographed in 1931, and the images, reproduced side by side in the introduction to the Abbott book, give something of a sense of the close link between their styles — both cool and formal, but Evans's a little bolder and closer, Abbott's a little more reserved and distant, letting in more of the world, but constraining it to elegance. —Pepe Karmel

Contributors

Joel Fineman is a literary critic who teaches English at the University of California, Berkeley . . . Jamey Gambrell and Pepe Karmel are free-lance critics.

Charles Cowles Gallery

Laddie John Dill

November 5-29

420 West Broadway New York 10012 (212) 925-3500

VOL
7
1
ISS
1 0
NO
1983
UMI

Jeffrey Hoffeld & Company, Inc.
1020 Madison Avenue New York, NY 10021 Tel (212) 734-5505

SAUL STEINBERG Arizona, 1969. Oil and ink on canvas, 19 x 28½ inches

OCTOBER 25–NOVEMBER 19
Rodrigo Moynihan
PAINTINGS–COLOR CATALOGUE WITH ESSAY BY RICHARD SHONE $8 PPD.
Heinrich Kühn
PHOTOGRAPHS
ROBERT MILLER
724 FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK
212·246·1625

Important Auctions of Paintings, Drawings and Sculpture

November 9, 10, 16 and 17, 1983

Wassily Kandinsky, Mit Grünem Reiter, oil on glass, painted in 1918, 9¾ x 12 inches (25.8 x 30.8 cm.)

A Selection of Contemporary Art from the Estate of Robert Elkon
Auction: Wednesday, November 9 at 7 pm (admission by ticket only).
Exhibition opens Saturday, November 5.
Illustrated catalogue $16 by mail. Sale no. 5136.
Inquiries: Lucy Havelock-Allan, (212) 472-3543

Contemporary Paintings, Drawings and Sculpture
Auction: Wednesday, November 9, immediately following the auction of the Elkon Collection (admission by ticket only), and Thursday, November 10 at 10:15 am.
Exhibition opens Saturday, November 5.
Illustrated catalogue $12 by mail. Sale no. 5109.
Inquiries: Lucy Havelock-Allan, (212) 472-3543.

Impressionist and Modern Paintings and Sculpture
Auction: Wednesday, November 16 at 7 pm (admission by ticket only).
Exhibition opens Thursday, November 10.
Illustrated catalogue $16 by mail. Sale no. 5110.
Inquiries: John Tancock, (212) 472-3547.

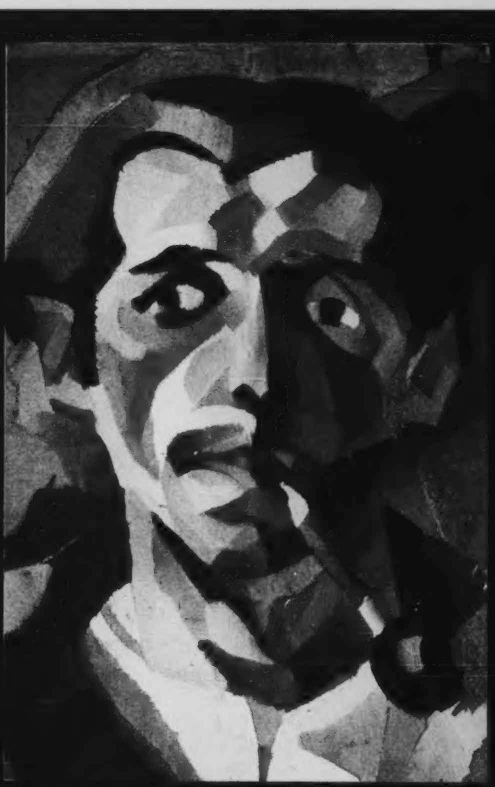
Impressionist and Modern Drawings and Watercolors
Auction: Thursday, November 17 at 10:15 am.
Exhibition opens Thursday, November 10.
Illustrated catalogue $12 by mail. Sale no. 5116.
Inquiries: Hermine Chivian-Cobb, (212) 472-4765.

Impressionist and Modern Paintings and Sculpture, Part II
Auction: Thursday, November 17 at 2 pm.
Exhibition opens Thursday, November 10.
Illustrated catalogue $16 by mail. Sale no. 5112.
Inquiries: Shary Grossman, (212) 472-3545.

To order catalogues, please request by sale number and send your check to Sotheby's Subscriptions, Dept. A109ME, P.O. Box 4020, Woburn, MA 01801. For tickets, please call (212) 472-3400. Sotheby Parke Bernet Inc., 1334 York Avenue at 72nd Street, New York, N.Y. 10021.

SOTHEBY'S
Founded 1744

VOL 71
ISS 10
NO
1983
UMI



MAN WITH PIPE, C. 1927, OIL ON PAPERBOARD, 15⅛" x 11"

YUN GEE
(1906–1963)
EARLY MODERNIST PAINTINGS 1926–1932
NOVEMBER 8–DECEMBER 10

VANDERWOUDE TANANBAUM
24 E 81 STREET NEW YORK
212 879 8200

EXCLUSIVE REPRESENTATIVE FOR THE ESTATE OF YUN GEE.

Michael Heizer

New Work

through November 26

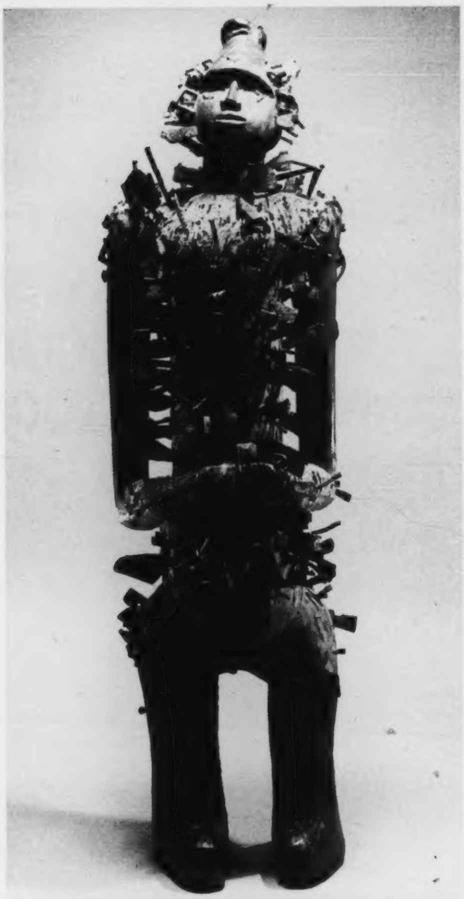
In Honor of de Kooning

Paintings and Sculpture by
Bacon · Balthus · Baselitz · Chamberlain · Crozier · de Kooning
Dubuffet · Freud · Hague · Heizer · Johns · Lichtenstein
Marden · Mitchell · Morley · Murphy · Rockburne · Segal

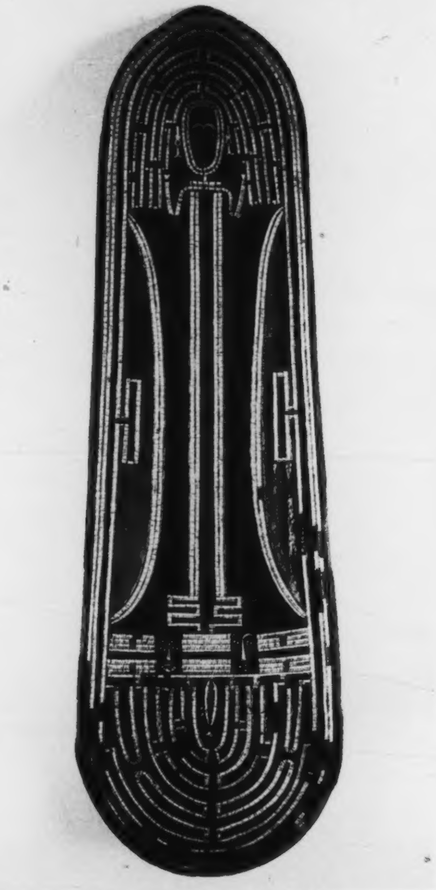
December 8 – January 21

XAVIER FOURCADE INC.
36 East 75 Street New York, NY 10021 212 535-3980

Important Auctions of Tribal Art at Sotheby's



Kongo Nail Fetish, height 43¼ inches (110 cm.), sale no. 5118.



Solomon Islands shield, first half 19th century, height 36½ inches (92.5 cm.), sale no. 5132.

The Ben Heller Collection

Auction: Thursday, December 1 at 7 pm.
Exhibition opens Saturday, November 26.
Illustrated catalogue $16, sale no. 5118.

Important Tribal Art, the property of various owners

Auction: Friday, December 2 at 2 pm.
Exhibition opens Saturday, November 26.
Illustrated catalogue $16, sale no. 5132.

For information about these auctions, please contact Ellen Napiura and Roberto Fainello at (212) 472-3521. Sotheby Parke Bernet Inc., 1334 York Avenue at 72nd Street, New York, N.Y. 10021.

To order catalogues, request by sale number and send your check to Sotheby's Subscriptions, Dept. A118ME, P.O. Box 4020, Woburn, MA 01801.

Fine Pre-Columbian Art will be auctioned on Saturday, December 3 at 10:15 am and 2 pm.

SOTHEBY'S
Founded 1744

VOL 7 1
ISS 1 0
NO 1983
UMI

RICHEBOURG / McCOY

By appointment 212/570.2131

JOSEPH CORNELL
WILLEM DE KOONING
MARK DI SUVERO
ARSHILE GORKY
AMEDEO MODIGLIANI
JACKSON POLLOCK
LARRY RIVERS

WILLEM DE KOONING Untitled IV, 1979. Oil on canvas, 79½ x 69½ inches.

ALFRED LESLIE: 100 VIEWS ALONG THE ROAD • OCTOBER 25–DECEMBER 3 • OIL & STEEL GALLERY 157 CHAMBERS ST. NYC

In London:

Impressionist and Modern Paintings and Sculpture

Pierre Auguste Renoir, Couple Lisant, signed, painted in 1877,
12 ¾ x 9¾ inches, property from the Collection of Henry Ford II.

Auction in London: Tuesday, December 6 at 7 pm.
Exhibition opens Wednesday, November 30.

Illustrated catalogue available at Sotheby's New York Galleries, 1334 York Avenue at 72nd Street, New York, N.Y. 10021, and at our galleries and offices worldwide.

Inquiries: In New York, David Nash, (212) 472-3590;
In London, Michel Strauss, (01) 493-8080.
Sotheby Parke Bernet & Co.,
34-35 New Bond Street, London W1A 2AA.

SOTHEBY'S
Founded 1744

VOL
71
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI

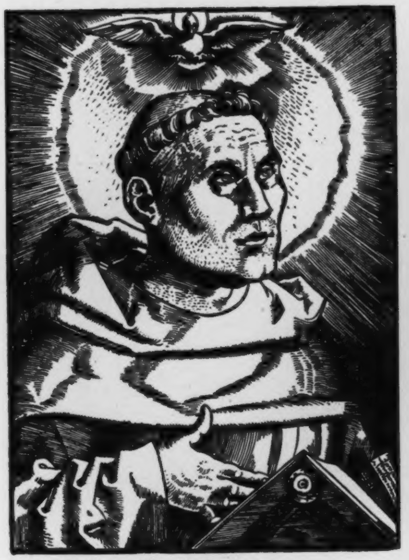
Be careful! That's Chivas Regal!

Report from Germany
Zero Years

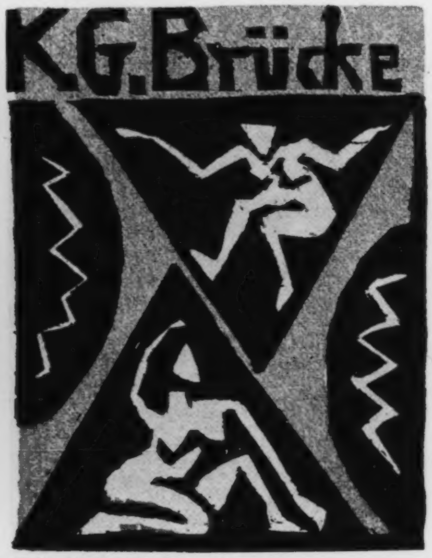
BY DAVID GALLOWAY

1983 has presented a somewhat bewildering array of anniversary exhibitions, commemorating events as diverse as Hitler's rise to power and Luther's birth.

In Germany, "zero years" are celebrated with an unmistakably Teutonic fervor, and 1983 has presented a somewhat bewildering sequence of anniversaries: 500 years since the birth of Protestant reformer Martin Luther; 300 years since the first German emigration to America; 100 years since the birth of Erich Heckel, founder of the Brücke movement; 50 years since Hitler's overthrow of the tottering Weimar Republic.



Hans Baldung:* Martin Luther as an Augustine Monk, *1521, woodcut, 60 by 45 inches.



Erich Heckel: Invitation to a Brücke exhibition, 1912, woodcut, 4 by 2 ¾ inches.

Sculpture and Power

The burning of the Reichstag on Jan. 30, 1933, heralded the systematic "purification" of German culture, including the ruthless suppression of artists who failed to comply with the Aryan ideal. "Degenerate" works of art were removed from public collections to be burned or shipped to Switzerland for auction, although some mysteriously found their way into the opulent private lodgings of the Nazi elite. Few communities were exempt from the ruthless and frequently contradictory mandates of Goebbels's propaganda ministry, though many museum directors showed remarkable ingenuity in circumventing them. In postwar years many works long thought to have been destroyed have emerged from secret storage. Just this year, a key work by Oskar Schlemmer reappeared: a colorful, semiabstract mural of sprightly dancers that once ornamented a circular staircase at the Bauhaus in Dessau. Painted over by the Nazis, it has now been meticulously restored by the East German government.

This year, a number of German cities—including Hamburg, Duisburg and Hannover—prepared documentary exhibitions exploring the local consequences of the Nazis' totalitarian passion. Yet it is the works not shown that underscore most dramatically the irrevocable damages of the purge: in the Duisburg catalogue, for example, an illustration of an Ernst Barlach bronze is accompanied by the terse note, "Confiscated 1937; disappeared."

Although the cultural impoverishment brought about by the Third Reich clearly cannot be measured in inventories alone, such exhibitions do help reestablish the sense of history that has been lacking during the decades of West Germany's postwar prosperity. There was, of course, another dimension to Nazi cultural policy, one that was pursued with near-religious fervor: the promotion of an art of "Blood and Soil" celebrating the new master race. Monuments to that vision still stand in almost every city in the Federal Republic, but the phenomenon itself has been systematically ignored by German art historians. But now, students at Berlin's Academy of the Arts have set out to correct this omission with a definitive, provocative exhibition titled "Sculpture and Power."

The Berlin students' aim was not only to present the taboo subject of Nazi sculpture as a case study in the use of art as propaganda, but also to encourage an evaluation of individual artists' technical achievements. The Academy's directors supported this effort but drew a dogmatic line around the controversial name of Arno Breker, Adolf Hitler's "court" sculptor. They officially declared him a "nonartist" (nicht-Kunstler), and his work was allowed to be represented only through photographs. The unintentional but unavoidable result was that the shadow of Hitler's personal favorite loomed even larger than it might otherwise have done.

Arno Breker's local visibility remains so high—a Munich gallery currently offers a scaled-down limited edition of a bronze first produced in 1944, and the porcelain firm of Hutschenreuther features a full range of idealized female nudes Breker originally modeled to please party officials—that the exclusion of his work from the Berlin show had a perversely quixotic air. The recent controversy over Breker's proposed Heinrich Heine memorial for Düsseldorf was an entirely different matter. Although the project was supported by several members of the city council, few could justify the use of public money for such a commission, though private corporations continue to provide occasional patronage for the 83-year-old sculptor.

Few artists in history have enjoyed such intimate access to absolute power as Arno Breker. In the last months of the war, when metal for weapons was exhausted, he still sent his maquettes to Paris to be cast by the renowned Rudier Foundry; he had access to materials and supplies of which generals could only dream. With Albert Speer, he gave the new regime its over-dimensional, heroic trappings: together they realized the colossal sports stadiums in Munich and Berlin, where sculpture and architecture were united with stunning theatricality.

VOL
7
1
ISS
1 0
NO
1983
UMI

Bottrop's Josef Albers Museum (right) linked by a glass-enclosed bridge to Das Quadrat (left).

In both subject matter and politics, Breker was unswervingly reactionary, but his skills were indisputable. Not only were his monumental nudes rendered with virtuoso anatomical precision; all his figures—whether in plaster, bronze, granite or marble—seem to wear a translucent skin which lends a tragic vulnerability to even the most steely-eyed warrior. Such technical brilliance does not, to be sure, make a great artist. On the other hand, to exclude Breker from critical evaluation because he put his talent at the service of despotism is perhaps a dogmatism in reverse.

There is a substantial dose of Weltschmerz in exhibitions that document Nazi persecution; but until figures like Breker or Gerhard Marcks and Georg Kolbe—other Nazi sculptors whose work has also been taboo in the postwar period—are accurately appraised, our sense of recent art history will remain incomplete. Exhibiting these artists' works should not be confused with their "rehabilitation," but neither should it be prohibited by a head-in-the-sand refusal to confront even the most disturbing evidence of the past. Ultimately, that evidence must include the collection of paintings and drawings by Hitler himself, which were taken as spoils of war by the British, who would dearly love to return them to the Führer's adopted homeland. The Germans, however, have persistently refused to accept them.

Albers Comes Home

Arno Breker still has an influential lobby, and his champions have begun renovation of a Baroque palace near Cologne to provide a permanent home for his work. Their efforts stand in ironic contrast to those which have recently added a Josef Albers Museum to Germany's diversified cultural landscape. It is precisely 50 years since the Nazis denouced the Bauhaus as "a bolshevist hatchery," and Albers fled to the United States with his Jewish wife Anni. It was her decision to present the city of Bottrop, where Albers was born, with 90 paintings and 250 graphic works that document the full span of his career. "In a world where millions are homeless," she remarked during the opening ceremonies, "Joseph has now found two homes."

Josef Albers as a young man.

The setting for this symbolic repatriation seems oddly unsuited to the works of the celebrated esthetician and color theorist who influenced an entire generation of American and European artists. For Bottrop is one of many all but interchangeable, gray, raw-knuckled towns strung through the Ruhr district of central Germany. Still, Albers was clearly a product of its uncompromising working-class heritage. The family into which he was born in 1888 had been artisans for generations—primarily carpenters, blacksmiths or housepainters. He inherited their respect for industriousness and for solid, no-frills craftsmanship. His earliest works, chiefly expressionistic woodcuts, were sympathetic observations of the industrial landscape.

In 1972, Bottrop celebrated its most famous native son with an elegant functionalist museum building christened Das Quadrat ("The Square"), to which Albers donated six paintings. Following his death in 1976, plans were launched for a separate museum to house a representative collection of his works and to serve as a European center for the study of his color theories.

Constructed in less than two years, the Albers Museum opened to the public in June. Like the Quadrat, it is constructed in the steel, concrete and aluminum that are typical of the Ruhr district. Linked by a graceful glass-enclosed bridge, the two buildings frankly proclaim their Bauhaus heritage, but their rigid geometry is softened by the birch forest in which they are sited. Itself a great cube, the Albers Museum contains an airy series of diminishing galleries—cubes within cubes—which themselves seem spatial abstractions. In the central and largest of these spaces, cantilevered light catchers and concealed fluorescent lights similar to those used in Albers's studio lend his canvases a suspended, meditative quality that perfectly complements the artist's intentions.

Unfortunately, Albers's belated homecoming was marred by angry political protests—the spillover from the morning's tricentennial celebrations in nearby Krefeld. It is 300 years since several Mennonite families from the old silk-weaving capital of Krefeld set sail for the New World, to join William Penn's "divine experiment" in religious tolerance. Other Germans had preceded them—including the Rockefellers and the Astors and the resourceful Peter Minuit—but the Krefeld contingent represented the real beginning of a mass emigration, which would eventually leave its stamp on virtually every facet of the so-called American way of life.

That remarkable contribution was celebrated in Krefeld with exhibitions, folksong concerts and a parade complete with drum majorettes and Disney characters. Neither the Reagan nor the Kohl administrations lost the opportunity to use the Volksfest to promote the stationing of nuclear warheads in the Federal Republic. Predictably, the streets of Krefeld swarmed with protesters expressing their dissatisfaction with the latest chapter in German-American relations.

The formal opening of the Albers Museum was a kind of cultural apostrophe to the Krefeld jamboree; the presence of both Chancellor Helmut Kohl and Vice-President George Bush resulted in security measures reminiscent of a police state. Armed soldiers stood elbow-to-elbow in a cordon surrounding the peaceful park where the museum is located, and dissenters waved both anti-American and anti-Semitic banners, the most chilling of which read, "Anti-Fascists Go Home!" The opening was thus a jolting reminder of the bitter emigration of some of Germany's greatest artists and intellectuals only a half-century ago, and of totalitarian horrors which many of Albers's contemporaries did not survive.

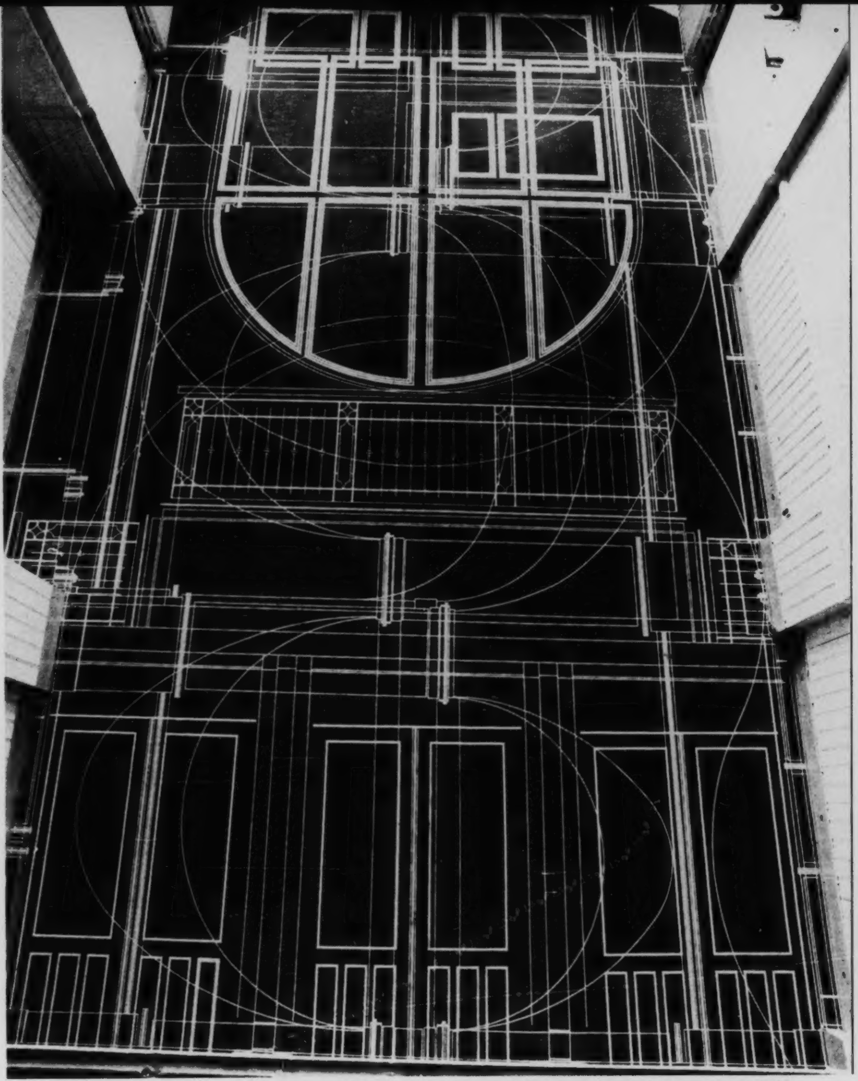
The Whole Picture

The apocalyptic leitmotif in this season's offerings found healthy contrast in Der Hang zum Gesamtkunstwerk ("The Tendency toward the Total Art Work"), organized and curated by Harald Szeemann. The first major show sponsored by the European Economic Community, it opened in Zürich early this year, moved to the Kunsthalle in Düsseldorf and then to Vienna's Museum of Modern Art. Spanning two full centuries of attempts to conquer the frontiers separating the various arts, to choreograph a total environment, the exhibition is a visual anthology which places this tendency in the tradition of French utopian thought. The interdisciplinary approach is perhaps most vivid in the paintings of composer Arnold Schönberg, which share space with ballet costumes by the painter Oskar Schlemmer. The creative drive to embrace an ever-larger environment culminates here in the theories of Josef Beuys, who would turn the earth into a single, harmonious work of art in which all men continually participate.

Kurt Schwitters's approach was more modest but no less absolute. Sawing through the ceiling of his Hannover atelier, he gradually extended the space with niches and ledges, jagged walls and Cubist planes to create the famous Merzbau. This secular cathedral, together with Tatlin's futuristic model for a Monument to the Third International (1919), have both been reconstructed for this pan-European exhibition. They find complements in designs for theater and film sets, fanciful visions of spaceships and floating cities, as well as plaster architectural models by anthroposophist Rudolf Steiner.

Few of the visionary projects documented here were ever realized; most were evoked only through drawings and models. The French postman Ferdinand Cheval, however, turned his own dream of a total art work into breathtaking reality. Working with a porous volcanic rock native to the region around Lyon, he spent 33 years erecting a fairy palace that is a three-dimensional collage of the world's myths, religions and architectural idioms. Imaginary beasts and plant forms are playfully fused with elements from a Hindu temple, a Swiss chalet, castles and mosques and medieval cathedrals. Presented through photographs and a scale-model, Cheval's idiosyncratic monument dramatically illustrated the drive to realize an all-embracing testament to the power of the artistic imagination.

As if in conscious parody of Szeemann's impeccably scholarly presentation, actress-director Almut Via Nerw installed her Restaurant of the Seven Senses in an abandoned warehouse in Düsseldorf. This mixture of performance art, pantomime, musical theater, ballet, poetry, happening and an exotic seven-course dinner was "inspired" by the writings of a fictional 15th-century sorceress, Helene von Mosgenstein. The latter allegedly prophesied that knowledge would come to replace wisdom in the following centuries and proposed an antidote to this sterile future in the form of a restaurant to stimulate all the senses simultaneously. In Almut Via Nerw's "re-creation" of this total-theater vision, performers served guests food, offered massages, recited poetry, trailed exotic perfumes through the transformed factory and, between courses, in song and dance, evoked Helene von Mosgenstein's contagious spirit.

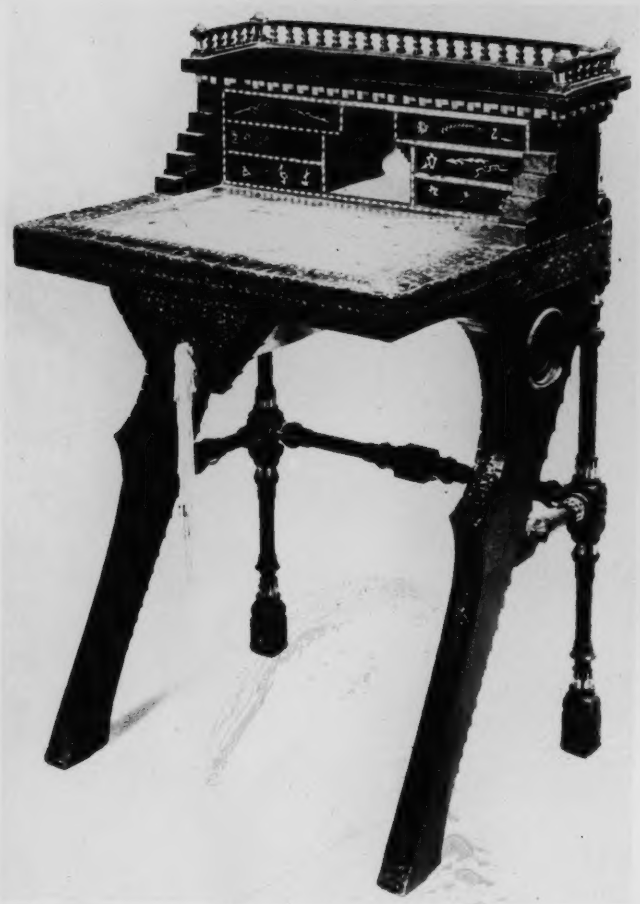


Marianne Pohl: Overhead view of installation in the former Wartenau Chapel, Hamburg, 1983.

Performance of a more conventional kind recently animated the Hamburg Kunstverein, where an ambitious "Performance Week" included contributions from Mike Hentz, Duka Delight, Bruce McLean and Robert Wilson. The event was conceived as a complement to an ingenious exhibition titled "Artist Rooms," for which young artists were given access to abandoned or unused spaces throughout the city: decaying cellars, a swimming pool near the notorious Reeperbahn, a chapel, a warehouse in the customs zone of the harbor. Sabine Reiff filled the continually moving cubicles of a "paternoster" elevator (a kind of human conveyor belt which carries two passengers in each compartment) with brightly painted theater sets, staging witty performances in each of them. Olaf Metzel sliced into a brick wall in the attic of a harbor warehouse, then used plaster to form a relief painting resembling an oversized scrawl left behind by a worker. Metzel's nervous calligraphic slashings and brilliant colors provided a striking counterpoint to the functional simplicity of the soaring, loftlike space.

Marianne Pohl uses "found architecture" in a direct way, creating intricate drawings that are ghost versions of the rooms in which they are composed. Using linen tape, Pohl reproduces the contours of each wall as though they had been tipped out of vertical position and laid down in a one-to-one scale on the floor. Each curve, column, window ledge and strip of molding is meticulously silhouetted; as the details of the four walls are layered onto a

VOL 71 ISS 10 NO 1983 UMI



Carlo Bugatti: Lady's writing table, 1895, 36 ¼ inches high.

Rembrandt Bugatti: Baboon, ca. 1910, bronze, 16 ¾ inches high.

Rembrandt Bugatti: Young Giraffe, ca. 1910, bronze, 6 ¼ inches high.

Carlo Bugatti: Chair with Tower, ca. 1900, 58 ½ inches high.

single horizontal plane, they create an intricate abstraction of the room in which the viewer stands. Pohl's current work is in a former chapel at the Hamburg School of Design, which has long since been rendered into an anonymous public space with a coat of white paint and a floor of industrial-gray linoleum. The artist's graceful elaboration of half-visible details restores to the space its former mystery and meditative stillness.

Bugatti and Sons

The undisputed grand slam of the Hamburg season was an exhibition at the Museum of Arts and Crafts titled "The Bugattis." No other name so definitively recalls the sumptuous wedding of design and technology as that of the Alsatian firm which produced 8,000 handcrafted automobiles between 1900 and 1946. Fifteen hundred of them are still in concourse condition, and their owners are the uncrowned monarchs of the oldtimers' circuit. The annual Bugatti rally at Preston Hill in England is the stuff of which the Great Gatsby's dreams were made.

Despite the golden nimbus wrapping the family name, little is known of the remarkable dynasty of sculptors, designers and engineers who first enjoyed celebrity more than a century ago. Carlo Bugatti, son of a famous Milanese sculptor, was an architect, engineer and artist who in 1880 focused his multiple talents on furniture design. The fashion for Turkish "smoking parlors" provided the initial inspiration, but Bugatti placed his own individual stamp on the exotic Alhambra style. Walnut and fruitwoods are inlaid with ivory and mother-of-pearl, wrapped in parchment, edged in beaten copper and accented with silk tassels and fringes. While the effect is frankly operatic, the use of plant motifs and sensuous calligraphic elements anticipated the coming mode of Art Nouveau.

From earliest childhood, Carlo's sons Ettore and Rembrandt were at home in their father's studio. Ettore was determined to become an artist, while Rembrandt favored a career as locomotive engineer, but as precocious teenagers they amiably swapped objectives. At age 17 Ettore built his first three-wheeled vehicle; the following year he single-handedly constructed a functioning "horseless carriage." At 16 Rembrandt signed a contract with a major Paris gallery and launched a brief but brilliant career as a sculptor.

Rembrandt Bugatti is often relegated to the twilight phase of the 19th-century animaliers—sculptors who produced small-scale bronze animals for well-appointed salons. This image is misleading, for his earliest known works demonstrate an extraordinary command of optical effects. Like three-dimensional sketches, Bugatti's sculptures seem to live from light and shadow rather than volume, and his subjects are tenderly caught in a momentary pause in their natural lives. Later studies grew more structured and angular, and a walking baboon from 1910 seems a precursor of Cubist sculpture.

The entire Bugatti family moved to Paris in 1904, where the young Rembrandt established his official studio. Most of the year, however, was spent in Antwerp, where the local zoo offered a treasure house of subjects; exotic animals intended for the continental trade were also imported through the Belgian port. At the outbreak of World War I, the sculptor became a stretcher-bearer in the temporary hospital set up in the great marble hall of the Antwerp Zoo. The experience filled him with despair, and visits to Milan and Paris did nothing to ease his acute depression. In 1916, at the age of 21, he committed suicide.

Meanwhile, Ettore Bugatti had closed his automobile factory near Strasbourg at the outbreak of war, but after 1919 his racing cars were again winning every major European meet. But it is his jaunty roadsters and regal limousines that seem to embody the glamorous excesses of the Jazz Age. Despite recurrent financial problems, Ettore staunchly refused to adopt mass-production techniques, believing that every part of an automobile should combine technical efficiency with absolute esthetic purity. His ultimate folly was the Royale, a rolling palace over 15 feet long, proudly advertised as the most expensive motorcar in the world and promptly nicknamed "Golden Bucks."

Only six Royales were produced; the most resplendent among them has coachwork designed by Ettore's gifted son Jean (who was killed while test-driving a new model for Le Mans). All the Royales sported a silver radiator cap in the form of a rearing elephant sculpted by Rembrandt Bugatti. Like an earlier technological marvel, the Titanic, Bugatti's Royale slowly sank; mass-market competition ultimately closed the exclusive firm. But the family's esthetic legacy is prodigious. The curators at Hamburg's Museum for Arts and Crafts wisely put sculptures and drawings, furniture and silver and automobiles on an equal footing. In this context, one could fully appreciate the extraordinary esthetic properties of a Bugatti engine—as compact, suggestive and modulated as a Futurist sculpture.

Prospects & Retrospectives

A curatorial tour de force, the Bugatti presentation was a case study in that which the Germans do best—scholarly and definitive presentations of individual artists or movements. Munich's Lehnbach House, for example, recently composed a schematic review of the achievements of Alexej von Jawlensky, including representative works by his associates in the Blaue Reiter movement. One of the show's revelations was the profound influence of Matisse's broad, lyrical Hilmar Boehle. Color Lesson, 1980, mixed mediums.

VOL 71
ISS 10
NO
1983

AUCTION CALENDAR:
NOVEMBER

TUES. 1 & WED. 2	Old Master and Modern Prints, Contemporary Prints and Multiples
TUESDAY 8	Contemporary Art from the Collection of Pauli Hirsh
TUESDAY 8	Contemporary Art
WEDNESDAY 9	Contemporary Paintings, Sculpture, Drawings, Watercolors and Collages
WEDNESDAY 9	Contemporary Art from the Estate of Betty Parsons
TUESDAY 15	Impressionist and Modern Paintings and Sculpture from the Collection of Paul Mellon
TUESDAY 15	Impressionist and Modern Paintings and Sculpture
WEDNESDAY 16	Impressionist and Modern Paintings and Sculpture
WEDNESDAY 16	Impressionist and Modern Drawings and Watercolors
FRIDAY 18	Books
TUESDAY 22	Important French and Continental Furniture, Objects of Art, Tapestries and Sculpture
TUESDAY 29	19th and 20th Century Latin American Paintings, Drawings and Sculpture
WEDNESDAY 30	Important Chinese Paintings, Ceramics and Works of Art

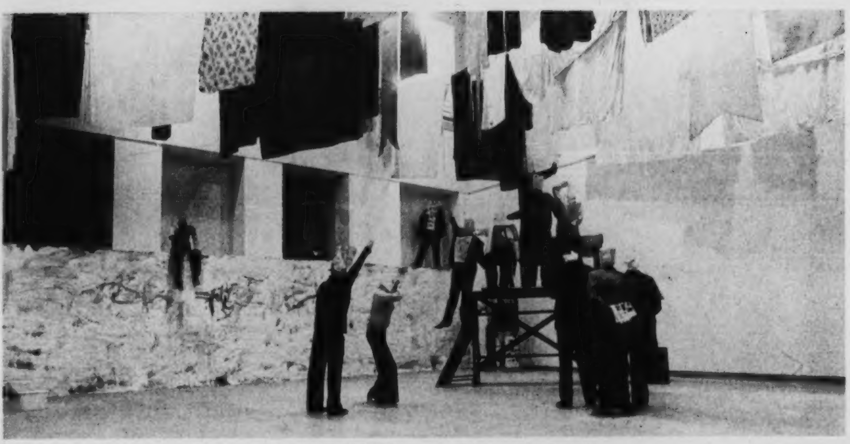
CHRISTIE'S
1766
CHRISTIE'S
502 Park Avenue, New York, New York, 10022 212-546-1000

UMI



Vlassis Caniaris: Installation at the Ostwall Museum, Dortmund, 1983.

strokes and luminous color on Jawlensky's later style. Matisse himself was represented at the Düsseldorf Kunsthalle by an overpublicized and generally overrated retrospective of 100 paintings. Too many important works were missing, and the hard-edged, cramped, bunker-style architecture of the Kunsthalle was stridently at odds with the master's sinuous line and lush palette.

Hannover's Kestner Gesellschaft offered an epicurean treat with a show of 120 works on paper by Oskar Kokoschka. The works themselves are almost as vulnerable to decay as the faces they portray, thereby heightening Kokoschka's feeling for the fever that gnaws from within, the decrepitude that hovers in the wings. The Hannover galleries were shaded into artificial twilight to protect the fragile works, so that the exhibition itself seemed an Expressionist dreamscape. Early works by Kokoschka's cynical contemporary Max Beckmann were at the Städel Museum in Frankfurt, Rouault was presented at the Kunsthalle in Cologne, and Dubuffet drawings were shown at the Neue Pinakothek in Munich. Cologne's Galerie Gmurzynska, with its proven talent for staging museum-quality shows, prepared a small but choice retrospective of works by Robert Delaunay.

The current trend is clearly toward big-name shows with weighty, didactic, lavishly illustrated catalogues, the sale of which often pulls faltering budgets into the black. Shows for contemporary artists are becoming rarer, though the Bremen Kunsthalle launched an impressive touring exhibition of 120 paintings, gouaches and sculptures by Horst Antes. In its continuing examination of the achievements of the 1960s, the Kestner Gesellschaft in Hannover offered a definitive look at English Pop artist Peter Blake. The ascetic, reductivist sculptures of Reiner Ruthenbeck were at the Kunsthalle in Braunschweig. Despite their frequent incorporation of commonplace artifacts, Ruthenbeck's attachments of painted geometric forms to oversized white tables seem curiously abstracted and impersonal—the archeological remains of a culture that is somehow both familiar and anonymous.

By contrast, for the young Düsseldorf sculptor Hilmar Boehle, whose works were recently shown at the Bielefeld Kunsthalle, every artifact carries a rich patina of personal history. Objects as banal as a chair or a coat hanger seem charged with a distinct private energy when they take their place in an assemblage or combine. Sometimes this effect is achieved through the addition of a drawing element or the use of splashed paint, stressing the object's passage through the atelier; at others, Boehle incorporates elements with clear autobiographical references.

In The Conversation two chairs faced each other across a table, while a wooden draftman's compass mounted to the wall pointed to the empty places once occupied by a pair of interlocutors. Chewing-gum wrappers littered the floor as the sole reminder that human beings formerly met here and exchanged ideas; a circle drawn on the tabletop indicated the harmony they once achieved. Like many of Boehle's works, The Conversation suggests intimacy and quiet meditation as it persuasively explores the vocabulary of emotions latent in inanimate objects.

> With eight exhibitions exploring various aspects of his life and times, Martin Luther is the winner of the anniversary sweepstakes.

The emotional dimension is also central to the environments composed by Athens-born Vlassis Caniaris. At Dortmund's Ostwall Museum he created dozens of life-size figures in wire mesh, clothed and draped and arranged to suggest the life of the streets, where the homeless gather in doorways or sprawl on steps. Men urinate against a graffiti-smeared wall, while others listen indifferently to a soap-box orator. This surrealistic pantomime of alienation is filled with sadness and edged with anger. There are obvious parallels to Kienholz's tableaux, though Caniaris lacks the American's aggressiveness and never loses a sense of whimsy.

Reformations

Meanwhile the birthday celebrations continue. Erich Heckel, born in 1883, abandoned the study of architecture when he was 22 and with three friends formed the group that proclaimed itself Die Brücke—a bridge to "all the revolutionary and surging elements" of modernism. Heckel and his colleagues advocated an art derived from the deepest subjectivity; they idolized van Gogh and Munch and the primitve arts of Africa and the Pacific. Heckel personally organized the first Brücke exhibition in Dresden in 1906, which provided the key impulse for 20th-century German Expressionism.

Heckel's early woodcuts were shown at the Brücke Museum in Berlin earlier this year, while a touring show of watercolors and drawings opened at the City Gallery in Karlsruhe. A retropective of paintings and drawings is at the Folkwang Museum in Essen until Nov. 20, when it moves on to the Haus der Kunst in Munich.

Yet the clear winner of the anniversary sweepstakes is Martin Luther. At present there are eight separate exhibitions exploring various aspects of his life and times—through paintings and sculpture, books and manuscripts and historical documents. In Worms there are everyday tools and utensils from the 16th century, together with examples of the crafts and applied arts that lent flavor to the reformer's daily environment.

The most intriguing of these presentations was at the Hamburg Kunsthalle earlier this year, under the title "Heads from Luther's Time." The belief that individual character could be read in the distinctive features of powerful and expressive men was relatively new in the 15th century, and it inspired a documentary tradition in which famous explorers, conquerors, statesmen and philosophers were portrayed in woodcuts and engravings. Such works simultaneously recorded a unique personality and offered uplifting examples for imitation. Dürer and Holbein, Cranach the Elder and Cranach the Younger pushed these examinations to new heights of technical refinement; thus Luther's age became the first in history to leave us with an encyclopedic visual record of European costume and countenance. ☐

Author: David Galloway teaches American studies at Ruhr University in Wuppertal.

VOL
7
1
ISS
1 0
NO
1983
UMI

GREGORY GILLESPIE:
Experimental Graphics

Gregory Gillespie, with master printer Brian Shure in the studio of Editions Press, preparing his first graphic work.

Gregory Gillespie, the well known American painter was recently invited to explore the dimensions of original graphics in the studios of Editions Press. The result is a portfolio of etchings and lithographs which are highly personal and experimental. This series comprises Gregory Gillespie's first graphic works, and advances new insights into the artist's versatility.
Editions Press is proud to offer forty-five portfolios of these distinguished works. Please call or write for further information.

EDITIONS PRESS
915 Bryant Street, San Francisco,
California 94103, U.S.A.
Telephone: (415) 626-1846

Photography
The World Embalmed

BY JULIA BALLERINI

The first full-length study of the calotype is the embodiment of the enterprise it seeks to describe—making photography into an art.

If ever there existed a means intrinsically suited to taming photography's stubborn contingency, its dependence on things in the world, it was the calotype, a photographic process in use mainly from the mid-1840s through the 1850s, and now enjoying a scholarly and curatorial revival. Unlike the daguerreotype and, later, prints from glass negatives, both of which tended towards meticulous recording of linear detail, the calotype, being a paper print made from a paper negative, was literally enmeshed in the materiality of its process. The fibers of the paper, through which the image was twice transmitted, caused chemicals to be absorbed unevenly, rendering the subject by means of soft agglomerations of masses, often smudging details. The exposure time was lengthy (in some cases, as long as 20 minutes); therefore, all life was rendered as stilled, hushed. Any movement was reduced to an ectoplasmic wisp. In addition, the images were toned in a variety of hues—sepia, musty browns, deep plums—in the service of both art and preservation. In the calotype, the world was exquisitely embalmed.

Given these characteristics, it is not surprising that the first full-length study devoted exclusively to the calotype, by André Jammes and Eugenia Parry Janis, is titled The Art—rather than "History," "Era" or "Process"—of French Calotype. In the elegance of its design and printing, the book itself is the embodiment of the enterprise it seeks to describe: making photography into an art. Comprised of two parts—a theoretical "Essay" section and an extensive, thoroughly researched, factual "Dictionary" of all those known to have used the method—the text both outlines the technical developments and variations of the calotype and attempts to describe what the authors believe to be a coherent calotype esthetic.

Jammes and Janis stress the importance of precedents in printmaking—especially lithography—and the use of prints as picturesque illustrations for travel books, poems, etc. Literary antecedents, such as Victor Hugo's Romantic descriptions of architecture and landscape, are said to have determined, in part, the calotypist's approach to his subject and his consequent adaptation of his medium to suit that approach. Buttressing the plausibility of such connections, the authors introduce us to early photographic groups such as the Société Héliographique (1851–53) which, they claim, "took its spirit" from a literary and artistic dinner club of the 1830s, the charm of which had been its "general purposelessness." An attitude towards photography as a sophisticated form of entertainment is described as setting the tone of the society's journal La Lumière, addressed to the erudite and "to those who are interested in beautiful things and are looking in their leisure time for the charm of a noble interest." While later photographic organizations and publications tended to be more democratic, the authors stress that those formed during the age of the calotype remained elitist.

Charles Marville: Young Man Reclining beneath a Horse-Chestnut Tree, *1853.

VOL 71 ISS 10 NO 1983 UMI

Edouard-Denis Baldus: The Railroad Station at Clermont (Oise), ca. 1852–55.

Charles Nègre: The Little Chimney Sweeps, May 1852.

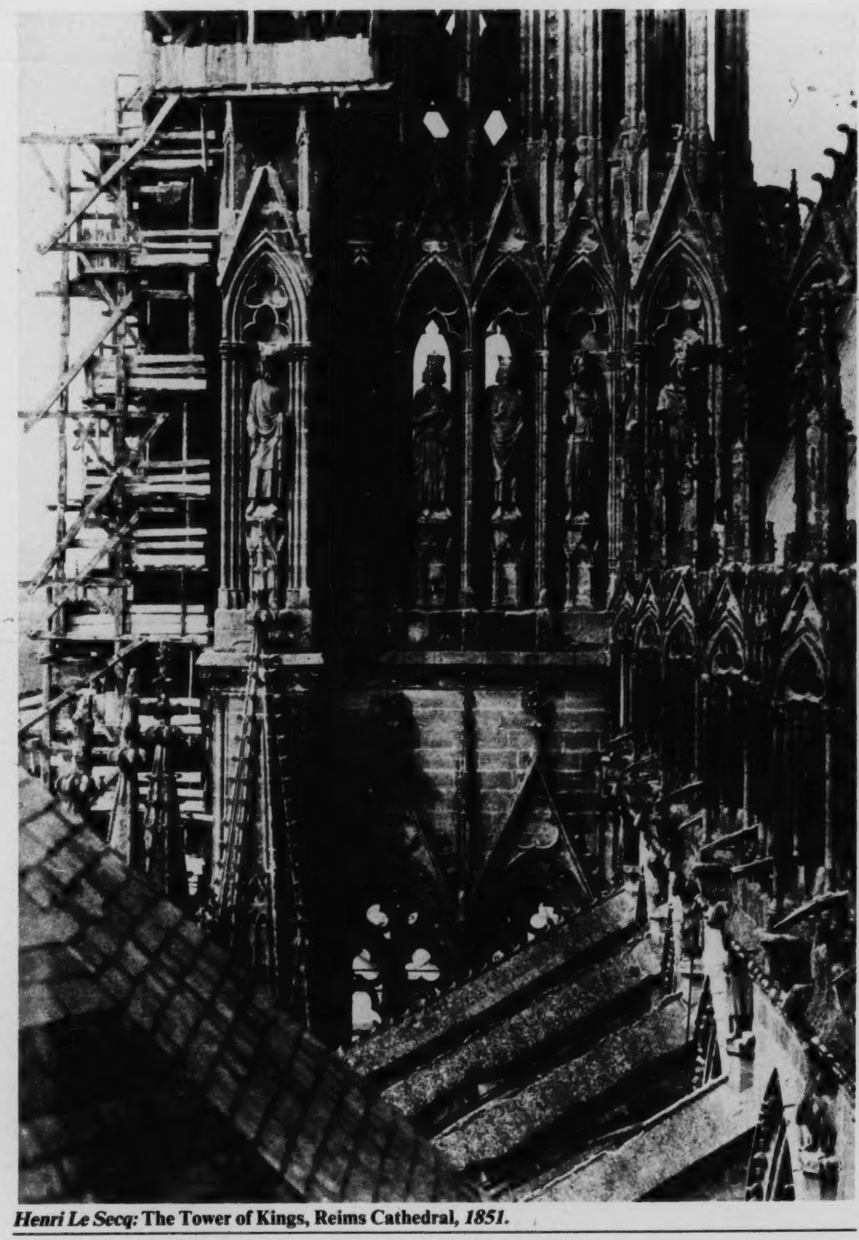
In addition to presenting the artistic, literary and social factors which contributed to the formulation of a calotype "esthetic," Jammes and Janis also elaborate what they believe to be the new and unique contributions of the medium itself. Emphasis is placed on its abstracting tendencies; at times, they write, "material reality glowed like some new form of fiction"; at others, "shadows and flattening created an abstracting mode in dialogue with the conventions of the past." Their analysis of Marville's Young Man Reclining beneath a Horse-Chestnut Tree (1853) concludes, "The whole natural tapestry is abstractly reorganized into a completely new spatial environment and structure."

What emerges from the "Essay" section is a general sense of a calotype "school" which, though characterized visually by a range of technical variations, was unified in its basic "descriptive reticence" and its abstracting version of the Romantic. What emerges, however, from the book's many quotations and abundant footnotes, from its "Dictionary" section, and especially from the (approximately 200) illustrations themselves is a different sense of the calotype. Although this sense does not contradict the "Essay," it is much broader and more conflicted. Thus we come away with a greater sense of the calotype as a domain of theoretical as well as technical experimentation and oscillation than the authors perhaps intended.

To begin with, it is difficult to accept their argument that there existed a coherent calotype esthetic based on the overall abstracting and Romantic tendencies of the medium. We are informed that there were in fact 45 different modes of calotype, and that an 1851 treatise on the calotype instructs its readers on how to achieve "a detailed drawing" as well as "a picturesque ensemble." We are told that it is often impossible to distinguish some paper-derived prints from some glass-derived ones. From the "Dictionary" we learn that, for most photographers, "the practice of the calotype was usually a foray, a brief interlude or stage of development." Although the authors present eclecticism and experimentation as characteristics of calotype activity, it would seem that much experimentation was directed towards ends that had little to do with either abstraction or Romanticism.

The situation was conflicted even within the only actual calotype school, which was located in the large studio of pioneer photographer Gustave Le Gray, who taught "a special elite of artists, scientists, noblemen." Le Gray is presented as the main esthete of the paper negative, but we also learn that in 1851 he was at work on two processes which would, according to the authors, "attack the primary difficulty of paper's uneven texture," those "physical disadvantages of paper" which earlier in the text were said to be "the source of abstraction's most expressive extremes." Be that as it may, Le Gray, after having successfully developed a waxed-paper negative (as well as a less successful glass negative) which would render detail more clearly, went on to formulate, in 1854, the opposing theory: "The artistic beauty of a photographic print," he wrote, "consists nearly always in the sacrifice of certain details." Le Gray therefore does end up nestling comfortably within the authors' hypothesis, but it is questionable how consistently he was settled there.

To take another discrepancy: in the "Essay" one characteristic of the calotype esthetic is said to be a Romantic revolt against modernity. The popularity of Egypt, for instance, is explained: "Compared to the radical changes affecting Paris, the eternal calm of the shade of the all-seeing sphinx seemed to offer profound solace to the modern French traveler." Yet in the "Dictionary" we learn that Maxime du Camp, author of the first major photographic book on Egypt, "was celebrated as one of the most interesting and sympathetic members of the 'progressive generation,'" and that he "railed against the 'cult of the old' as a 'mania, a sickness, an epidemic.'" But the problem this poses for an interpretation of his large body of photographs of Egyptian monuments is not discussed.



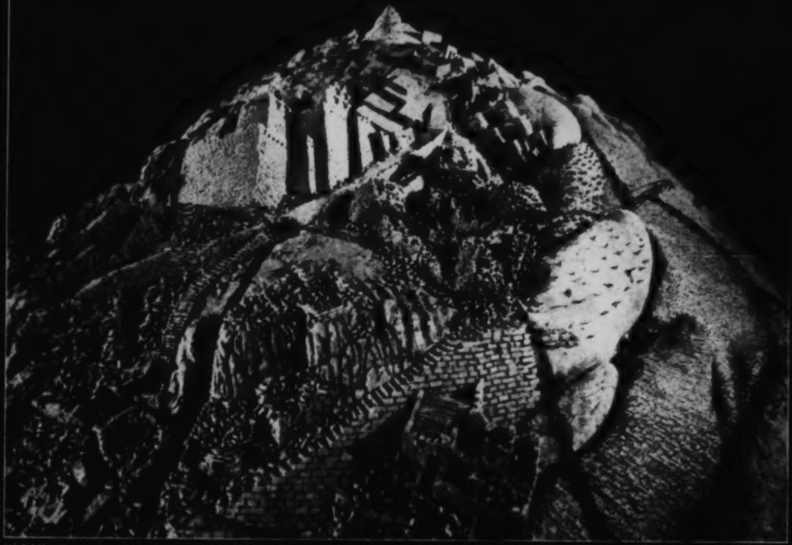
Henri Le Secq:* The Tower of Kings, Reims Cathedral, *1851.

It is the pictures themselves which should have the first and last words. To return to Le Gray: among the illustrations of his works are two gritty calotypes of posed figures (neither of which is from the Jammes collection). In one, a nude female is lying, propped up on one elbow, on the unswept floor of a bare, paper-littered corner. She appears to be trying to peer through a chink in a doorway. One foot is mysteriously dirty. On the facing page, another figure, draped in oriental fabrics, is standing in the same corner facing the wall, palms pressed against it, in a position reminiscent of a prisoner waiting to be frisked. Neither image is discussed in the text (nor, for that matter, are nudes discussed at all), and we cannot but wonder about them since their scruffy, nightmarish quality so strongly resists all the theories we have been offered.

But despite Jammes and Janis's reluctance to examine fully their own abundant and often new material, The Art of French Calotype is a commendable effort. Although the authors have suppressed the contradictory nature of their subject in favor of a simple, harmonious view, they do convey that disturbing collision between artifice and fact, between the willed and the given, the possible and the inevit-

VOL
7
1
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI

CHARLES SIMONDS



DETAIL OF [illegible] IN DIAMETER
EXHIBITED AT THE SOLOMON R. GUGGENHEIM MUSEUM [illegible]

CHARLES SIMONDS IS REPRESENTED BY

CASTELLI FEIGEN CORCORAN
420 WEST BROADWAY
NEW YORK, N.Y. 10012
TELEPHONE: 212/431-5160

IDA KOHLMEYER

Sculpture Paintings

Arthur Roger Gallery

3005 Magazine Street

New Orleans 70115 504-895-5287

Gustave Le Gray: Nude, ca. *1849.

able which was so new and bewildering to those involved with photography in its beginning years. In discussing printmaking and literature the authors have suggested esthetic parameters broader than those considered in most photographic histories. And while the scope of the topic needs to be enlarged even further, to examine photography within the contexts of politics, economics, industrial developments, mores, etc.—in other words, within the context of its actual subject matter—this was never the purpose of Jammes and Janis's pioneering work. Admittedly, the calotype does encourage a different approach. For calotypes often tell of the heroic attempt to transcend the given, eventually mortality itself. It was the gentle vigor of such attempts that produced those exquisitely uneasy conjunctions which give so many calotypes their tender, sweet sting. ☐

In conjunction with the publication of The Art of French Calotype [Princeton, Princeton University Press, 1983; 284 pp., $75], the Princeton Art Museum mounted an exhibition of approximately 60 calotypes from André Jammes's collection. The exhibition was curated by Peter Bunnell.

Author: Julia Ballerini is a free-lance critic who frequently writes on the history of photography.

Hippolyte Bayard: Garden Still Life with Straw Hat, ca. *1847–50.

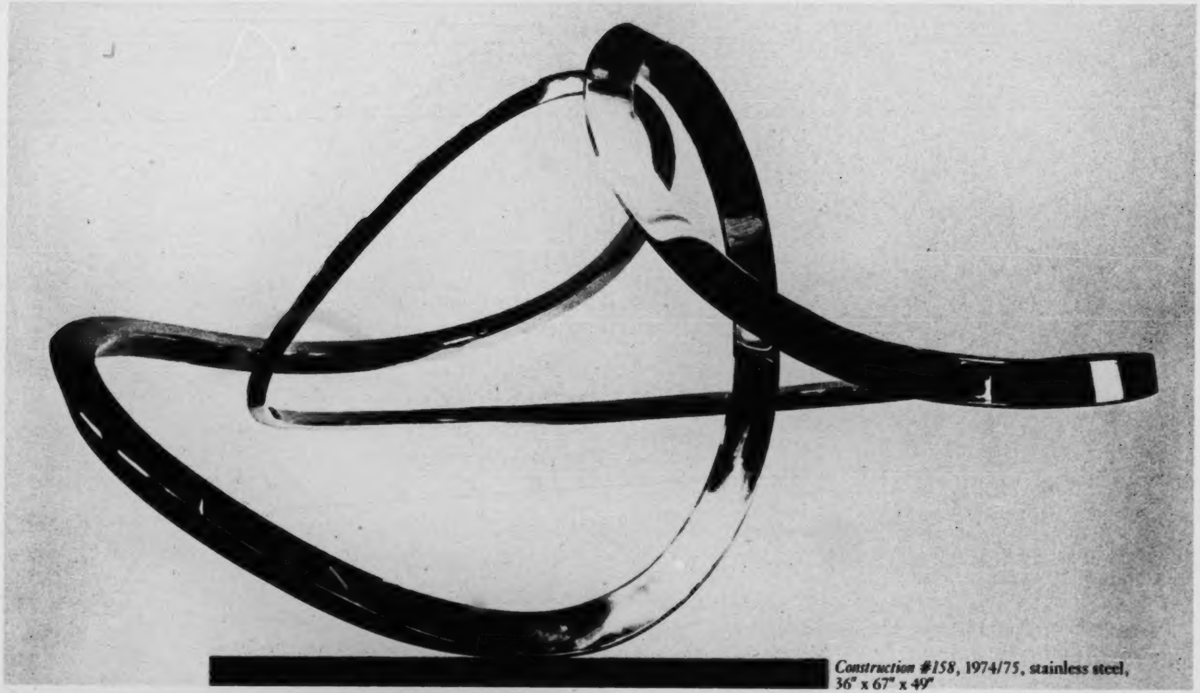
VOL
71
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI



Construction #158, 1974/75, stainless steel, 36" x 67" x 49"

José de Rivera

CONSTRUCTIONS

NOVEMBER 5 — DECEMBER 1

Grace Borgenicht Gallery
724 Fifth Avenue
New York, New York 10019
212 / 247-2111

---

5 NOVEMBER TO 26 NOVEMBER

ROSS BLECKNER

MARY BOONE
MICHAEL WERNER
GALLERY, 417 WEST BROADWAY, NEW YORK 431-1818

SUETIN
MALEVICH
CHASHNIK

Exhibition of Drawings and Watercolors

Left: Nicolai Suetin 1897–1954
Center: Kazimir Malevich 1878–1935
Right: Ilya Chashnik 1902–1929
Fully documented catalog with 26 illustrations
$10 plus $3 postage.

LEONARD
HUTTON
GALLERIES

33 East 74th St. (Townhouse)
New York, N.Y. 10021
212-249-9700
Gallery Hours: Mon. thru Sat., 10 to 5

Works on Paper by:

ARIKHA
BOTERO
BRAVO
GROOMS
KATZ KITAJ
LOPEZ-GARCIA
PETLIN RIVERS
WELLIVER

Illustrated catalogue available
$10 US and Canada, postage included

November 5 to 29

Marlborough
40 West 57 New York 10019 Tel 541-4900

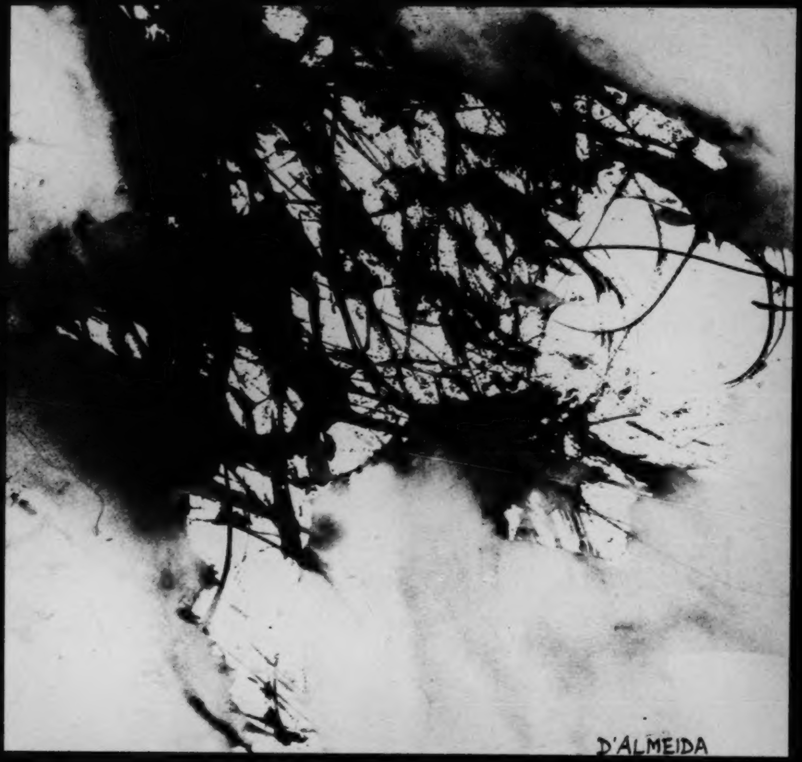
VOL
7
1

ISS
1 0

NO

1983

UMI



[illegible]

GEORGE d'ALMEIDA

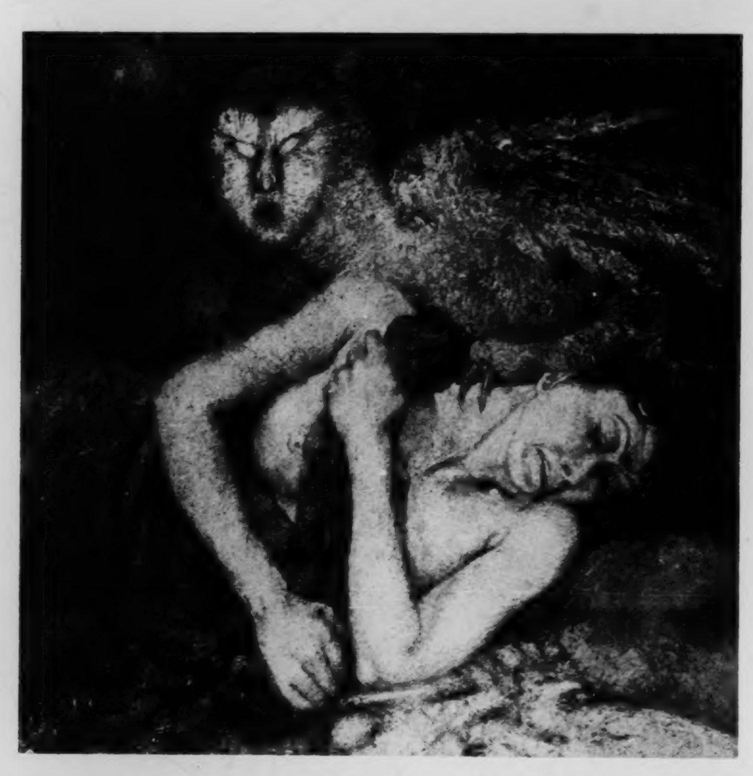
PAINTINGS
WATERCOLORS
DRAWINGS

November 16-December 24

943 Madison Avenue
New York, New York 10021
Telephone (212) 535-1460

d'Almeida Newsletter (1981)
$2.50 postpaid

ROLLY-MICHAUX
BOSTON • NEW YORK

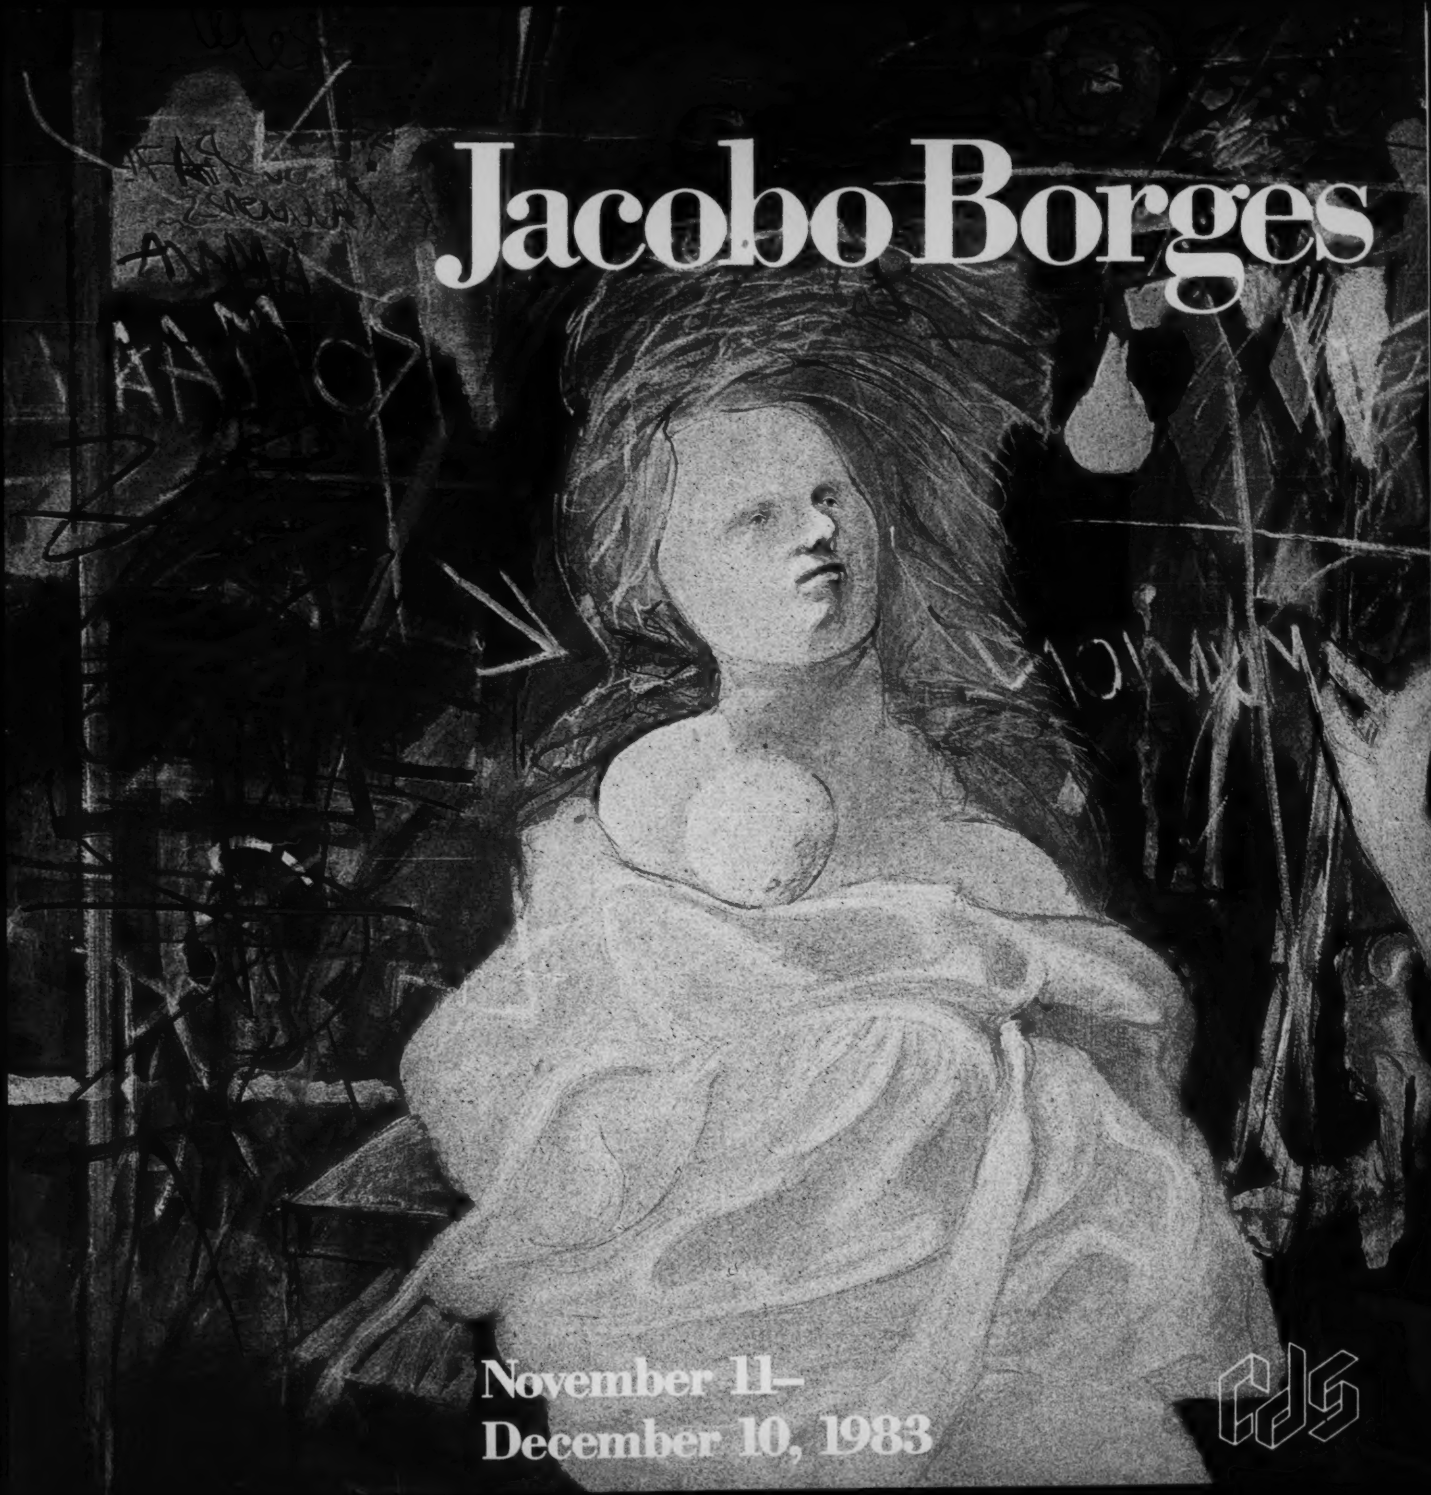


NORA SPEYER
Recent Work

November 16 — December 3

GROSS McCLEAF GALLERY
1713 Walnut Street
Philadelphia, PA 19103
(215) 665-8138
Monday — Saturday, 10-5

A Catalog is Available



Jacobo Borges

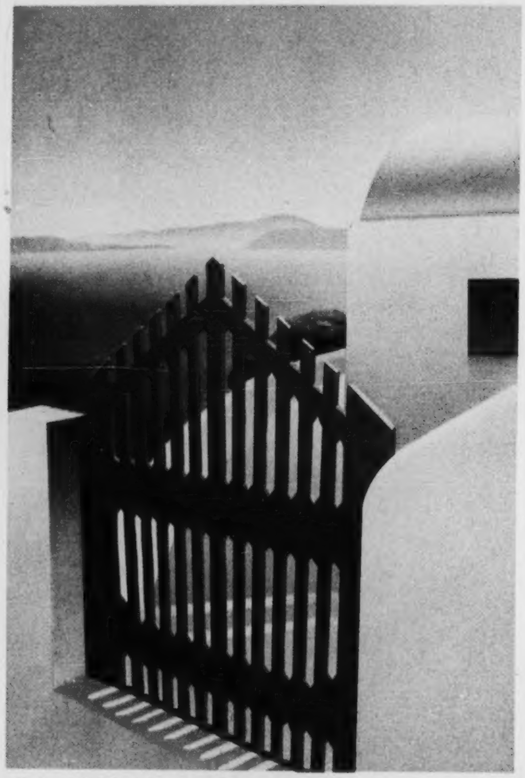
November 11–
December 10, 1983

La Romanilla 1981
Oil on canvas
47 x 50"
16-Page color
Catalogue $5

Jacobo Borges is the subject of Dore Ashton's new critical biography describing the artist's work as a visual counterpart to the novels of Garcia Marquez, Alejo Carpentier, and Julio Cortazar. Published by Editorial Armitano, English and Spanish. World Representative: Scott Meredith Literary Agency, New York.

CDS Gallery
13 East 75 Street
New York 10021
212/772 9555
Telex 225932

VOL
71
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI



"RED GATE" 1983, GOUACHE ON PAPER—25¾" × 17¼"

ELENA BORSTEIN
NEW WORK

November 8
thru
December 3

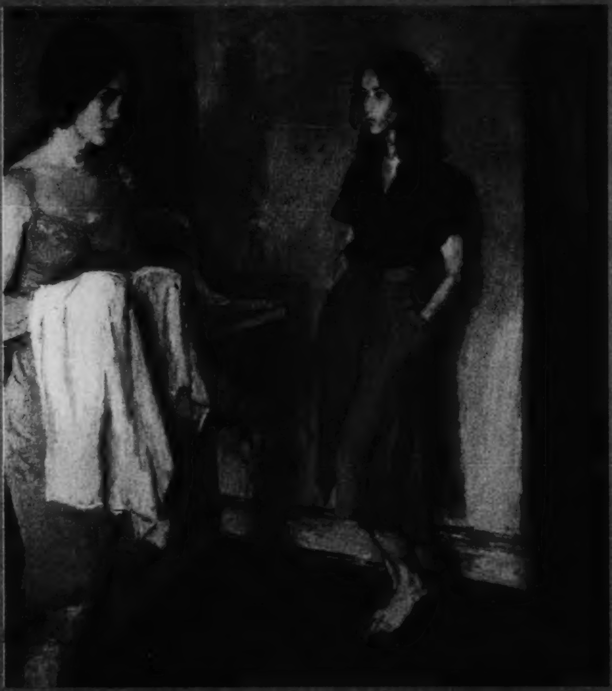
KathrynMarkelGallery
50 WEST 57 • NEW YORK

BETTĒ STOLER GALLERY

13 White
Street
New York City
10013
212 966 5090

Recent
Paintings
October 28 to
November 26

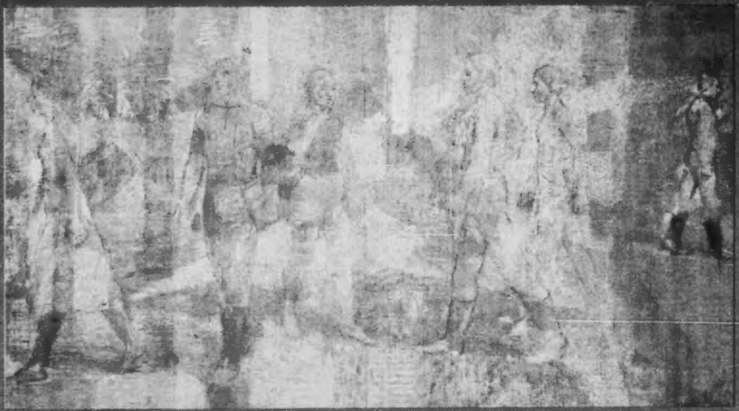
GEORGE PECK



Courtesy, FORUM GALLERY, NYC

Annunciation, 1980, Oil, 56" x 50"

RAPHAEL SOYER
&
ISABEL BISHOP



Courtesy, MIDTOWN GALLERIES, NYC

Students Walking Outdoors #2, 1978, Oil, 24¼" x 43½"

PEMBROKE GALLERY

NOV. 3 - DEC. 10

1639 Bissonnet Houston, Texas 77005 (713) 521-1001

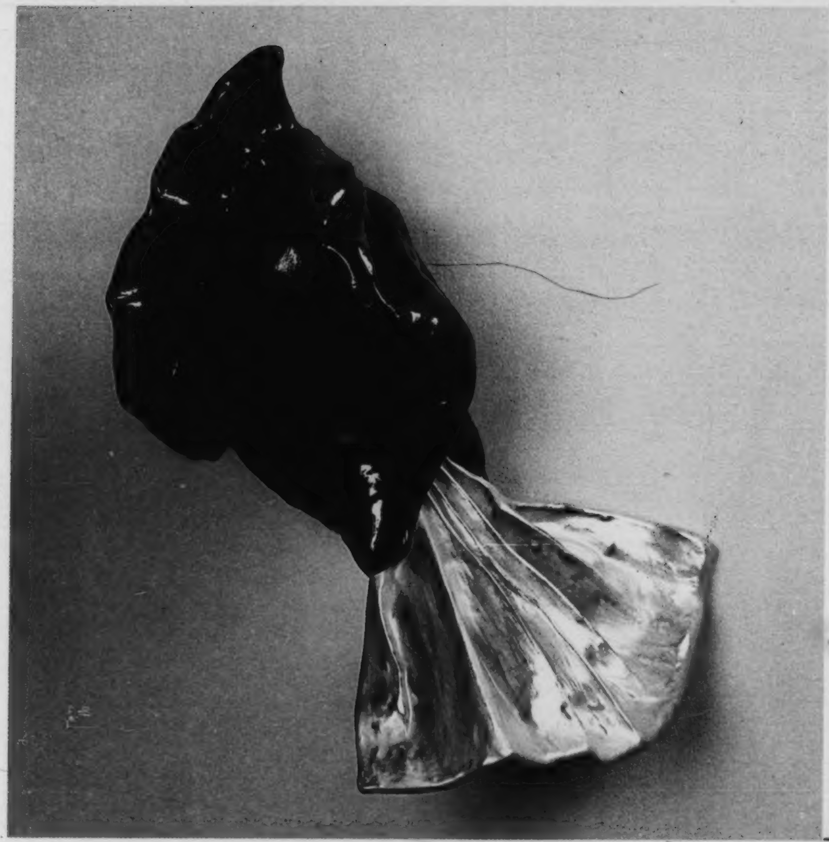
VOL
7
1

ISS
10

NO

1983

UMI



LYNDA
BENGLIS

'Ceramic Knot' 1983
Clay, purple & pearl lustre
18 x 11½ x 8 inches.
Edition of 8. Published by Cooper & Alexander.

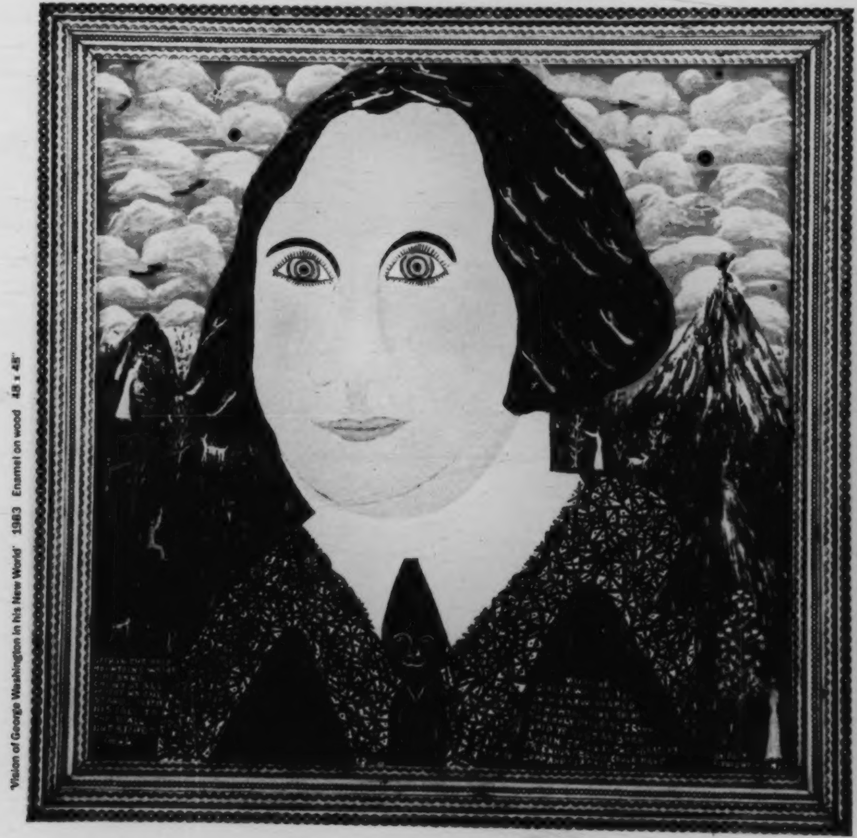
BROOKE ALEXANDER, INC.
20 West 57th Street
New York (212) 757.3721

PAULA COOPER GALLERY
155 Wooster Street
New York (212) 674.0766



'Vision of George Washington in his New World' 1983 Enamel on wood 48 x 48"

THE REVEREND HOWARD FINSTER
TWO CONCURRENT
EXHIBITIONS IN N.Y.

17 NOV-11 DEC 1983

EARLY WORK
RICCO·JOHNSON
GALLERY
475 BROOME STREET

RECENT WORK
PHYLLIS KIND
GALLERY
136 GREENE STREET

ROBERT ELKON MEMORIAL EXHIBITION
Twentieth Century Masters

DUBUFFET Portrait of Fautrier, 1948. Oil on canvas 45x35 in.

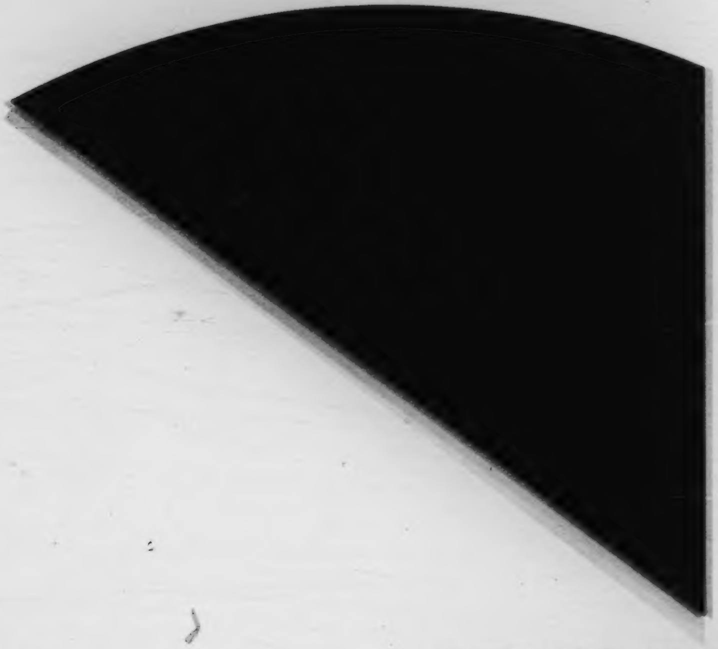
October 15-November 23

Robert Elkon Gallery
1063 Madison Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10028 Tel. 212/535.3940

VOL
71
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI



ELLSWORTH KELLY
"DARK BLUE CURVE"
1982 Oil on Canvas 92⅝" X 105"

IRVING GALLERIES
332 WORTH AVENUE, PALM BEACH, FLORIDA 33480 USA
(305) 659-6221

Christo

Drawings and Collages for Surrounded Islands,
Biscayne Bay, Florida 1980–83
and Four Works in Progress

November 12–December 14, 1983

Delahunty Dallas
2701 Canton Street, Dallas Texas 75226
214-744-1346

Jane
Dickson

November 1–December 10, 1983

Delahunty NewYork
291 Church Street, NY 10013
212-226-2519

JERRY PEART

Yares Gallery

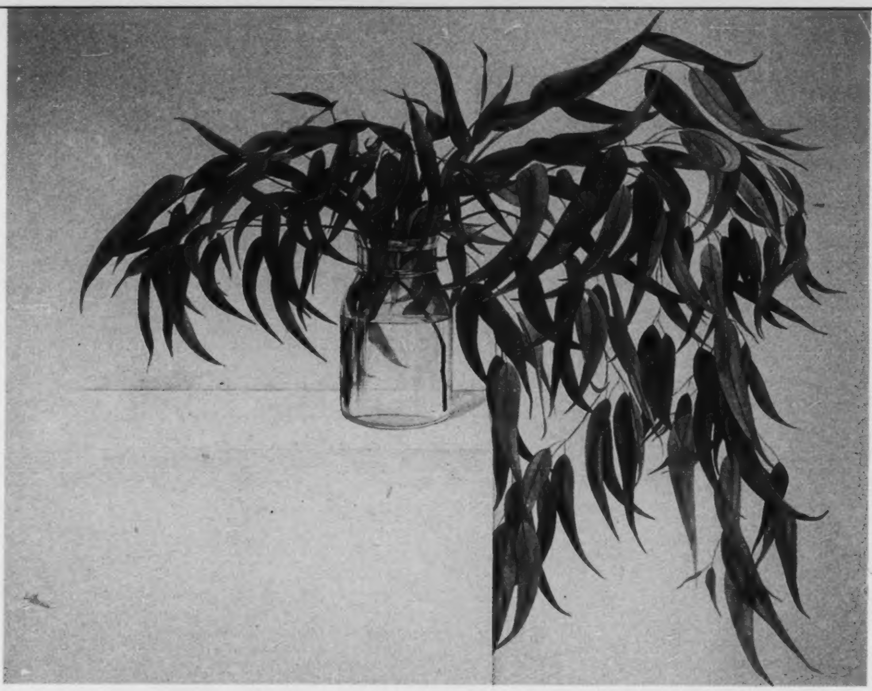
KABUKI DANCER 1983 painted aluminum 13½"h x 13½" x 13½"

REPRESENTED BY

YARES GALLERY

3625 BISHOP LANE SCOTTSDALE, ARIZONA 85251 (602) 947-3251

VOL 71
ISS 10
NO
1983
UMI



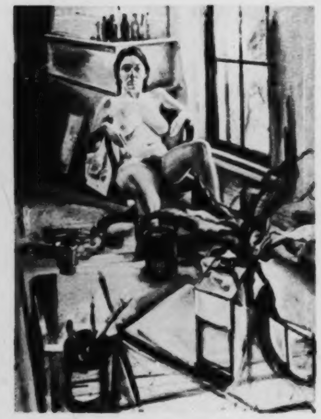
Eucalyptus Leaves, 59¾" x 43½" (poster available)

ROBIN ESCHNER CAMP

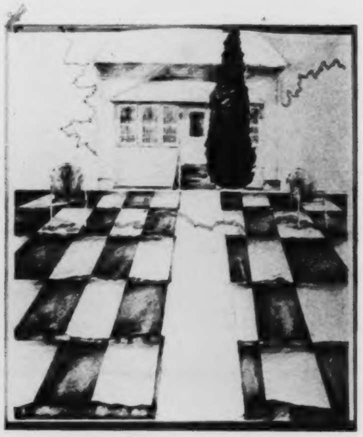
Recent Watercolors, November 16 – December 16

ALLPORT ASSOCIATES GALLERY
126 Post Street, Fourth Floor, San Francisco, CA 94108, 415/398-2787

For two hundred years some of the best painting in this country has been done in Maine. Nothing has changed.



Joseph
Nicoletti



Marjorie
Moore

Representing

Sigmund Abeles
Alan Bray
Gilbert Cass
Alfred Chadbourn
Maury Colton, III
Lynne Drexler
John Gable
Sheila Gardner
Pat Hardy
Conley Harris
Paul Heroux
J. Thomas R. Higgins
John Hultberg
Elena Jahn
John Laurent
Viviane Linssen
Frederick Lynch
Paul Maddrell
Natasha Mayers
William Manning
Marjorie Moore
Joseph Nicoletti
Hearne Pardee
Stuart Ross
Abby Shahn
Robert Solotaire
Alice Spencer
C. David Thomas
Susan Webster
Gina Werfel

Barridoff
GALLERIES
Annette and Rob Elowitch*
242 Middle Street
Portland, Maine 04101
(207) 772-5011
*Maine License No. 422

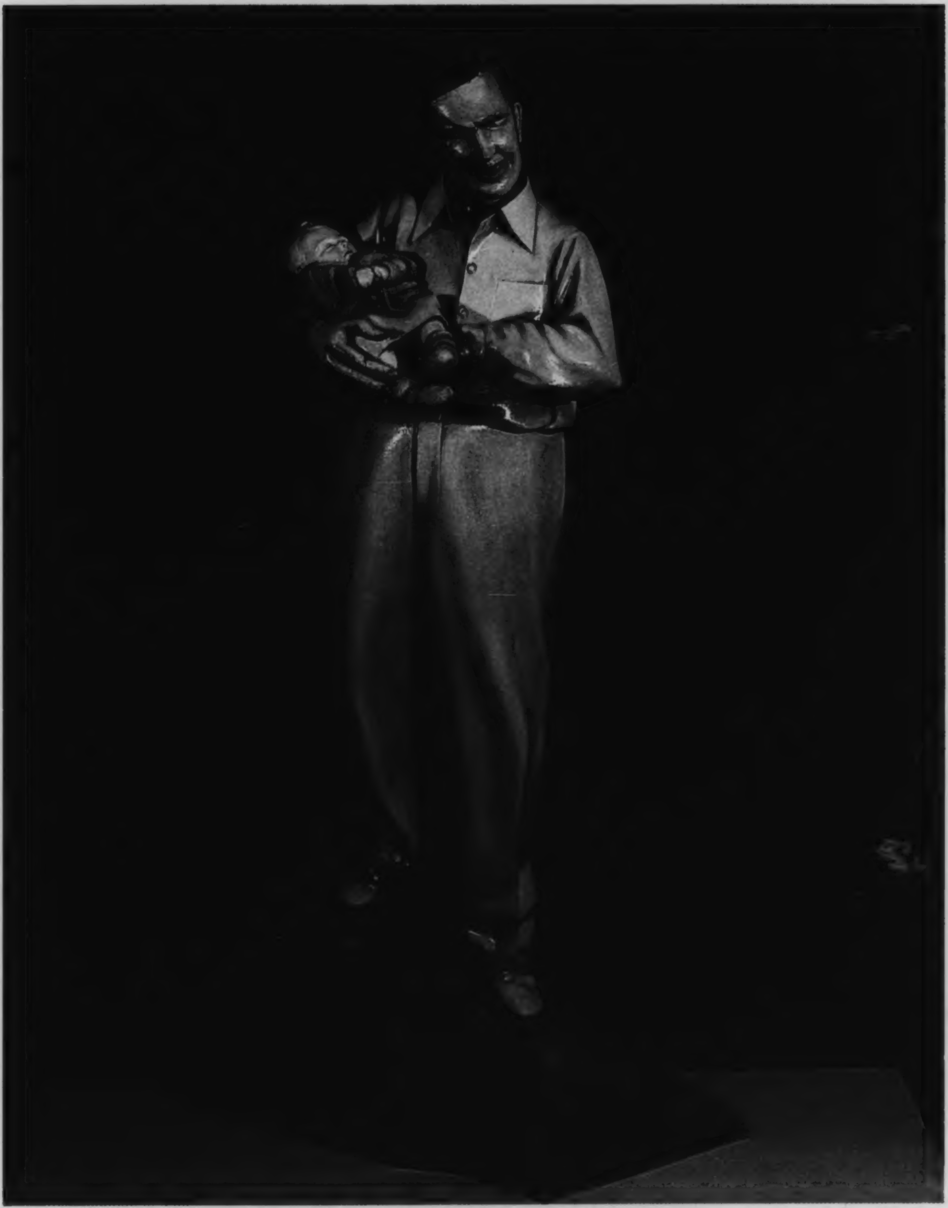


Photo credit: Lee Nordness

"Father son, Father Son, Father son, Father Son. Gail and Timmy, One Month."
Oil Painted Ceramic. 44" x 18" x 14¾" Anne and Ronald Abramson Collection.

JACK EARL

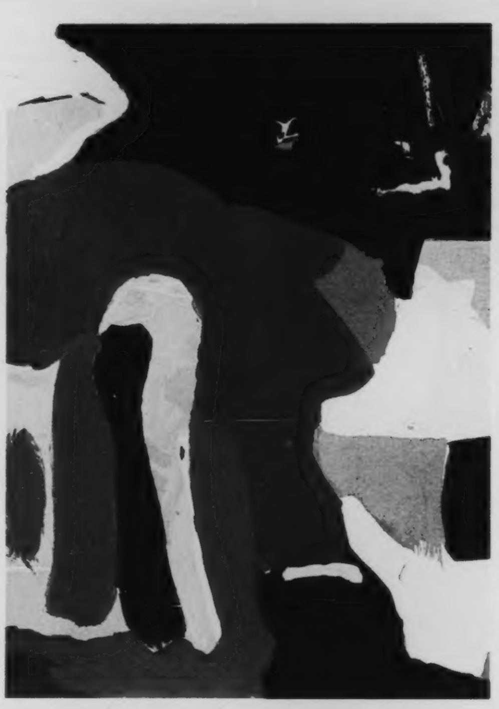
Represented by:

Perimeter Press
356 West Huron
Chicago, Illinois 60610
312/266/9473

Theo Portnoy Gallery
162 West 56th Street
New York 10019
212/757/0461

Rocklands Gallery
375 Alvaredo Street
Monterey, CA. 93940
408/649/3462

VOL 7 1 ISS 1 0 NO 1983 UMI



Eastern 1982; paper size: 30¼" × 22⅛"

James Brooks

Original lithograph, signed and numbered by the artist. Edition: 150. $350

Complete Transworld Art Catalog M-II $10

TRANSWORLD ART

20 West 57 New York NY 10019 212-757-2700

ROBERT INDIANA
LARRY RIVERS
ROBERT RAUSCHENBERG
R.B. KITAJ
JAMES ROSENQUIST
ALEX KATZ
ROBERT MOTHERWELL
RED GROOMS

EIGHT CONTEMPORARY ARTISTS CELEBRATE THEIR CITY

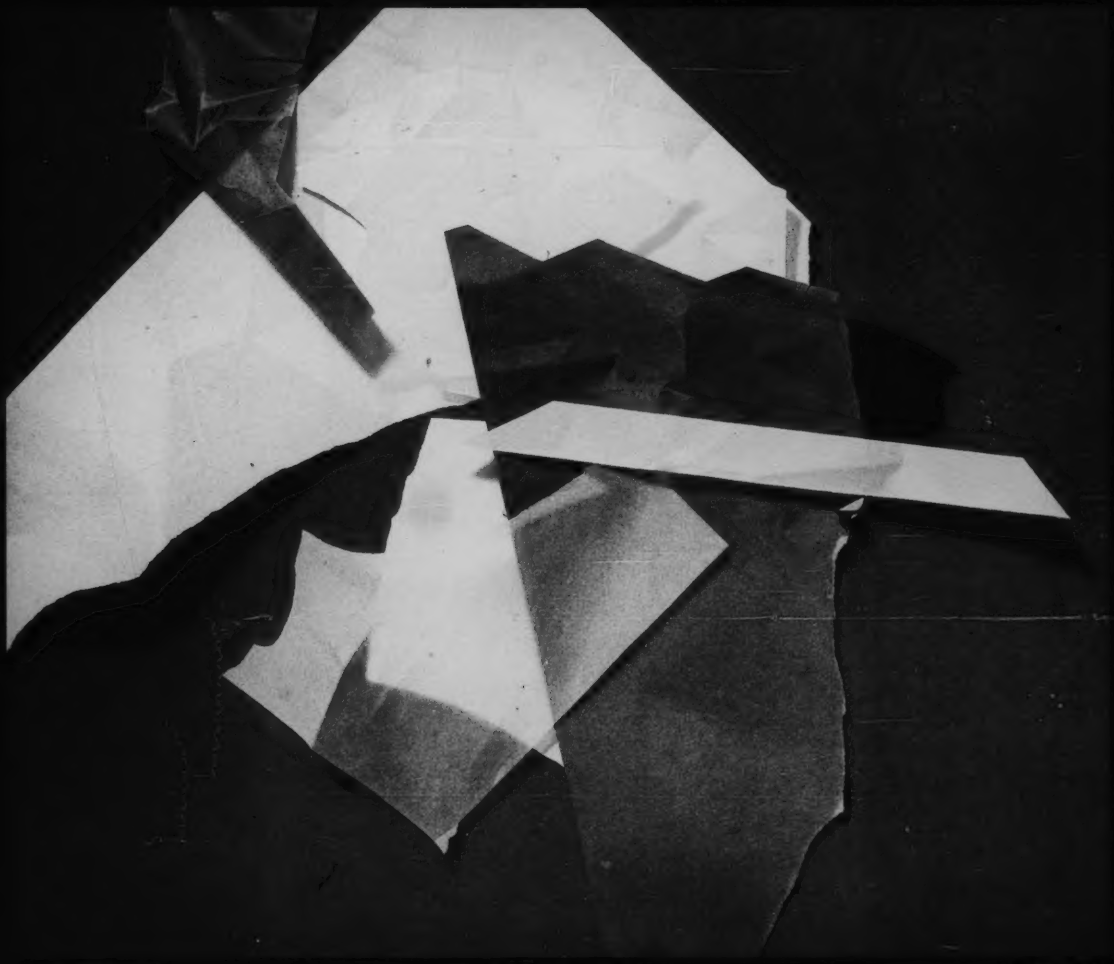
Introducing New York, New York. A portfolio of eight images representing the essence of a city in which these artists have lived and worked. Their unique interpretation of subway riders, the Brooklyn Bridge, bicycling in Central Park, cultural institutions, the Bronx Zoo, New York communications, the Statue of Liberty, and the performing arts is the New York, New York portfolio.

Limited edition of 250 standard and 35 deluxe portfolios now available at a pre-publication price.

Advance reservations are recommended. Telephone or write for prospectus.

Published by: NEW YORK GRAPHIC SOCIETY™
140 Greenwich Avenue, Greenwich, Connecticut 06830 (800) 243-4494
A Chartwell Company

YRJÖ EDELMAN



"Daily Papers II" oil on canvas 47" x 55"

SCOTTSDALE EXHIBITION:
November 17 - December 7, 1983

ELAINE HORWITCH GALLERIES

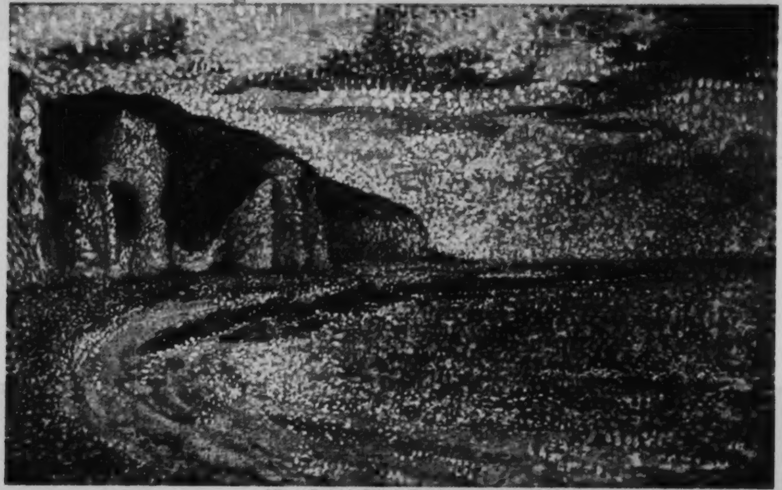
4211 N. Marshall Way
Scottsdale, Arizona 85251
(602) 945-0791

129 W. Palace Avenue
Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501
(505) 988-8997

Schnebly Hill Road & Hwy 179
Sedona, Arizona 86336
(602) 282-6290

VOL
71
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI

19TH & 20TH CENTURY WORKS, SPECIALIZING IN NEO-IMPRESSIONISM



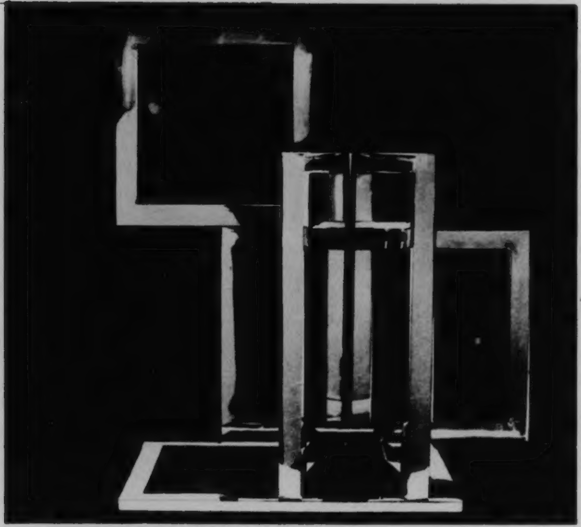
Albert Dubois-Pillet, Falaises à Yport, 1888, oil on canvas. 10¼ x 16½ in.

Cross • Manguin
Marquet • Petitjean
Rysselberghe
Signac • Vuillard

Baziotes • Hofmann
Maurer

Seixas & Company

22 East 72nd Street, New York, New York 10021 • Phone: 212 570-2291

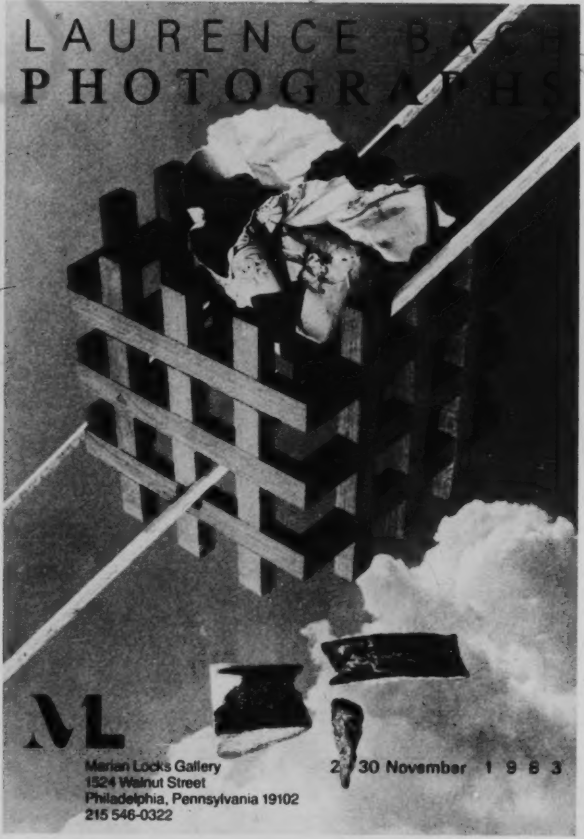


Margaret Wasserman Levy

Contemporary Sculpture

Opens 11/2/83 through the month of November

Marian Locks Gallery
1524 Walnut Street
Philadelphia, Pennsylvania 19102
215-546-0322



LAURENCE BACH
PHOTOGRAPHS

Marian Locks Gallery
1524 Walnut Street
Philadelphia, Pennsylvania 19102
215 546-0322

2 30 November 1983

SOL LEWITT: STARS

"Star - Red Center," 1983. Color Aquatint. Edition of 10. 21 x 21 inches. One of 35 new editions of Stars by Sol Le Witt

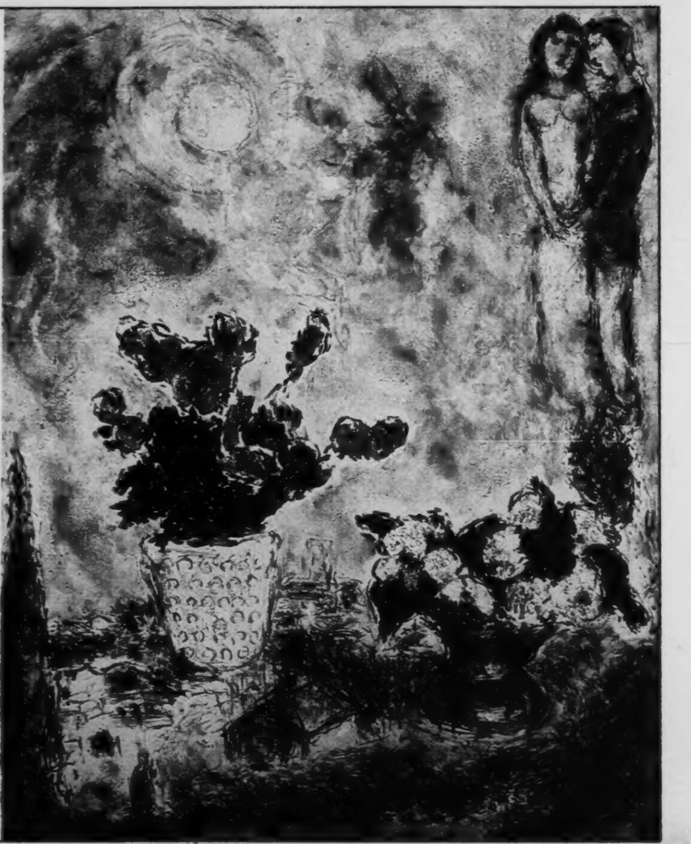
CROWN POINT PRESS

1555 SAN PABLO AVE., OAKLAND, CA, 94642 TEL: (415) 835-5121
545 BROADWAY, NEW YORK, NY 10012 TEL: (212) 226-5476

VOL
7
1
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI



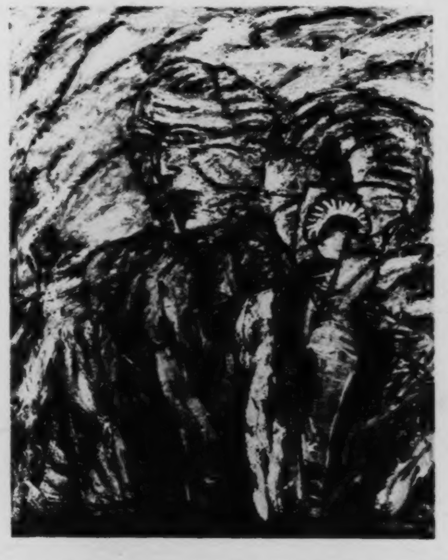
Marc
Chagall

"Les Cyclamens" 1974
Oil on canvas, 32 x 25¼ inches.

Exhibition:
November 21–
December 3

Hammer Galleries
SINCE 1928
33 West 57th Street
New York, N.Y. 10019
(212) 644-4400

LANCE KILAND
PAINTINGS



"WAITING AT THE RIVER" 1983 OIL & WAX ON CANVAS 60" x 48"

8 NOV-10 DEC
GETLER/PALL/SAPER
50 WEST 57 NY 212/581-2724

We are pleased to announce that CAROL SAPER has joined the GETLER/PALL/SAPER
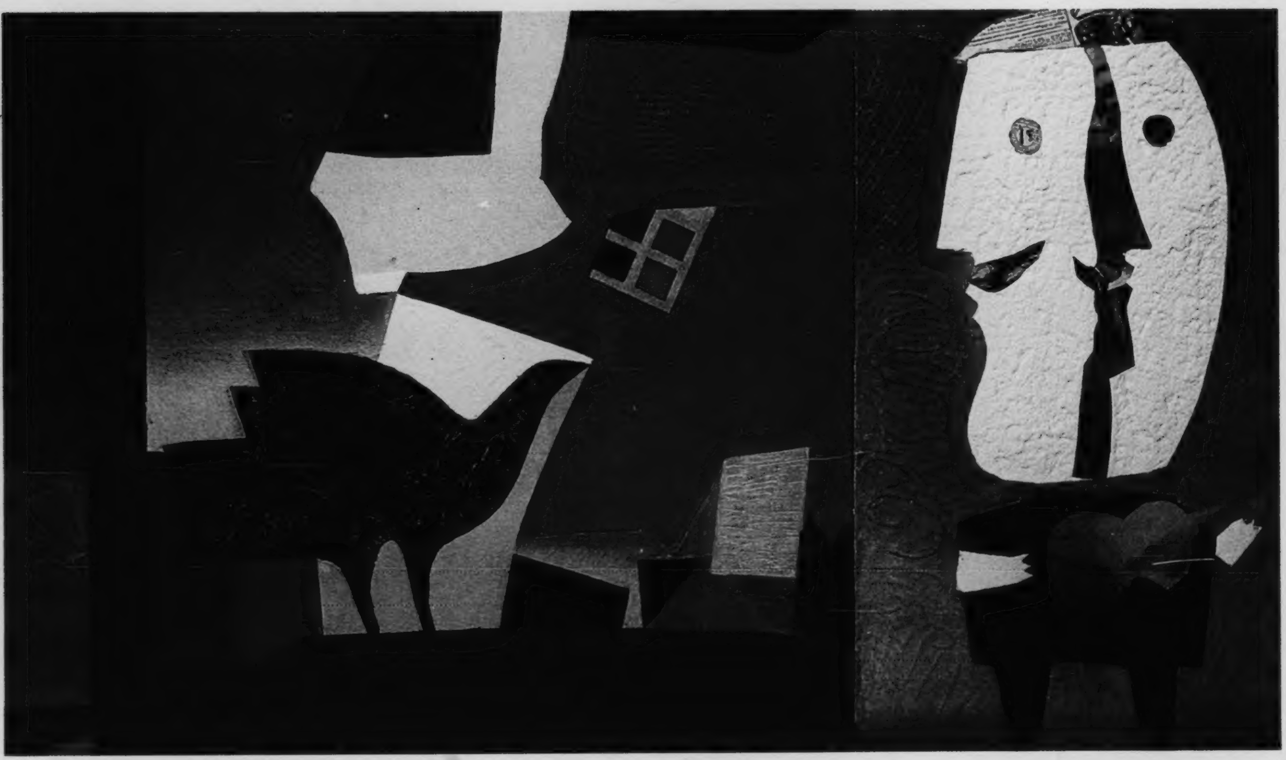
GALLERY

50 WEST 57 NY 212/581-2724

HAND PRINTED ORIGINAL ETCHING BY

MAX PAPART

"Sonata for a Bird"



42¾" x 25¼"

EDITION OF 85

WITH THE USE OF CARBORUNDUM
AQUATINT
WATERCOLOR
COLLAGE &
EMBOSSING
PRINTED ON HAND MADE PAPER

PUBLISHED AND DISTRIBUTED BY

NAHAN
GALLERIES
540 ROYAL STREET
NEW ORLEANS, LA. 70130
U.S.A.
(504) 524-8696

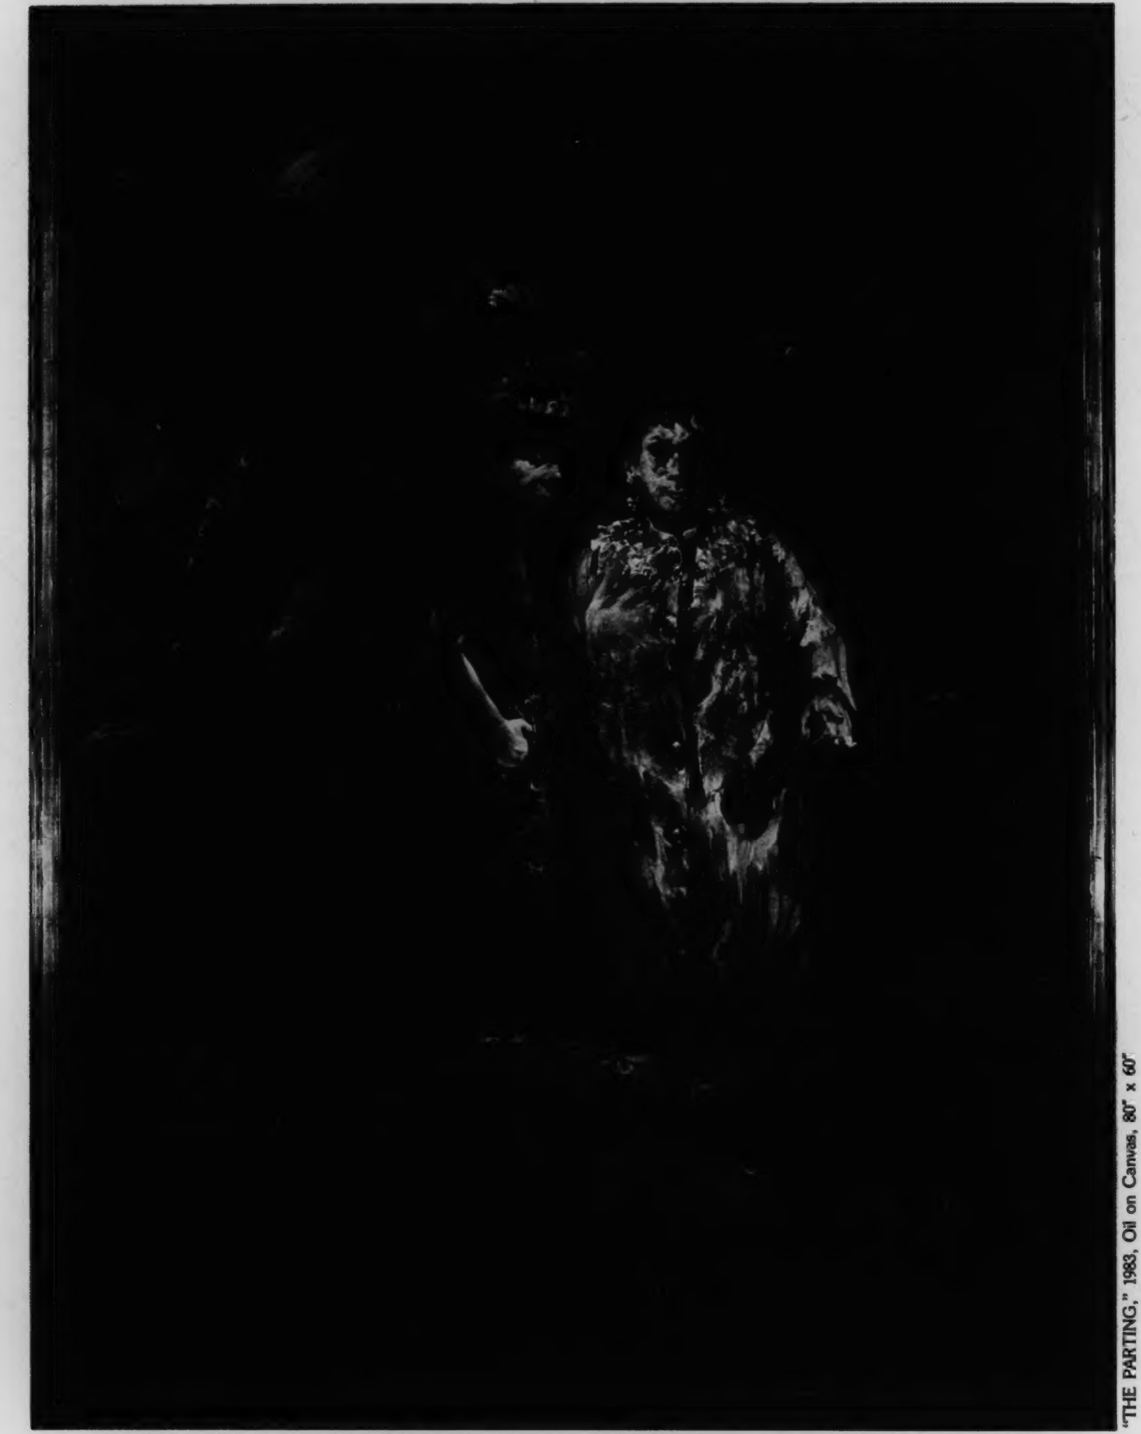
ALSO MAY BE SEEN AT CHASE McKNIGHT GALLERIES, 2809 CANTON, DALLAS
(A NAHAN AFFILIATE GALLERY)
AND OTHER FINE ART GALLERIES

TO PARTICIPATE IN OUR NEW PROGRAM FOR "NAHAN AFFILIATE" GALLERIES
CALL US FOR DETAILS AND TO RESERVE YOUR TRADING AREA.

VOL
7
1
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI

JOYCE TREIMAN

NOVEMBER 18-DECEMBER 31, 1983



"THE PARTING," 1983, Oil on Canvas, 80" x 60"

TORTUE GALLERY
2917 SANTA MONICA BLVD.
SANTA MONICA, CA 90404
(213) 828-8878

Works In Clay

A Special Advertising Supplement.

Art in America

November '83

ARTISTS • JOHN MASON • RICHARD SHAW • KEN PRICE • ROBERT ARNESON
ELSA RADY • MINEO MIZUNO • PETER SHIRE • WAYNE HIGBY • MICHAEL LUCERO
PATTY WARASHINA • ROBERT SPERRY • RON NAGLE • PAUL SOLDNER
PETER VOULKOS • NANCEE MEEKER • LUCIE RIE • MARGIE HUGHTO • ADRIAN SAXE
LIDYA BUZIO • AKIO TAKAMORI • BETTY WOODMAN • VIOLA FREY • BENNETT BEAN

GALLERIES • BRAUNSTEIN • BRASETH • LEO CASTELLI • JACKIE CHALKLEY • GARTH CLARK • CHARLES COWLES
HELEN DRUTT • ELEMENTS • EXHIBIT A • ASHER/FAURE • ALLAN FRUMKIN • NINA FREUDENHEIM
FULLER GOLDEEN • GREENBERG • HEATH • IMAGE SOUTH • INCORPORATED • JANUS GALLERY
MORGAN • MAX PROTETCH • THE QUAY GALLERY • THOMAS SEGAL • B.Z. WAGMAN
WESTMINSTER • FOSTER WHITE • WOODSIDE • WORKS • JAMES CORCORAN • BETSY ROSENFIELD

VOL 71

ISS 10

NO

1983

UMI

KENNETH PRICE

"Ultramarine" 1983. Painted ceramic, 3¼" x 4½" x 2½"

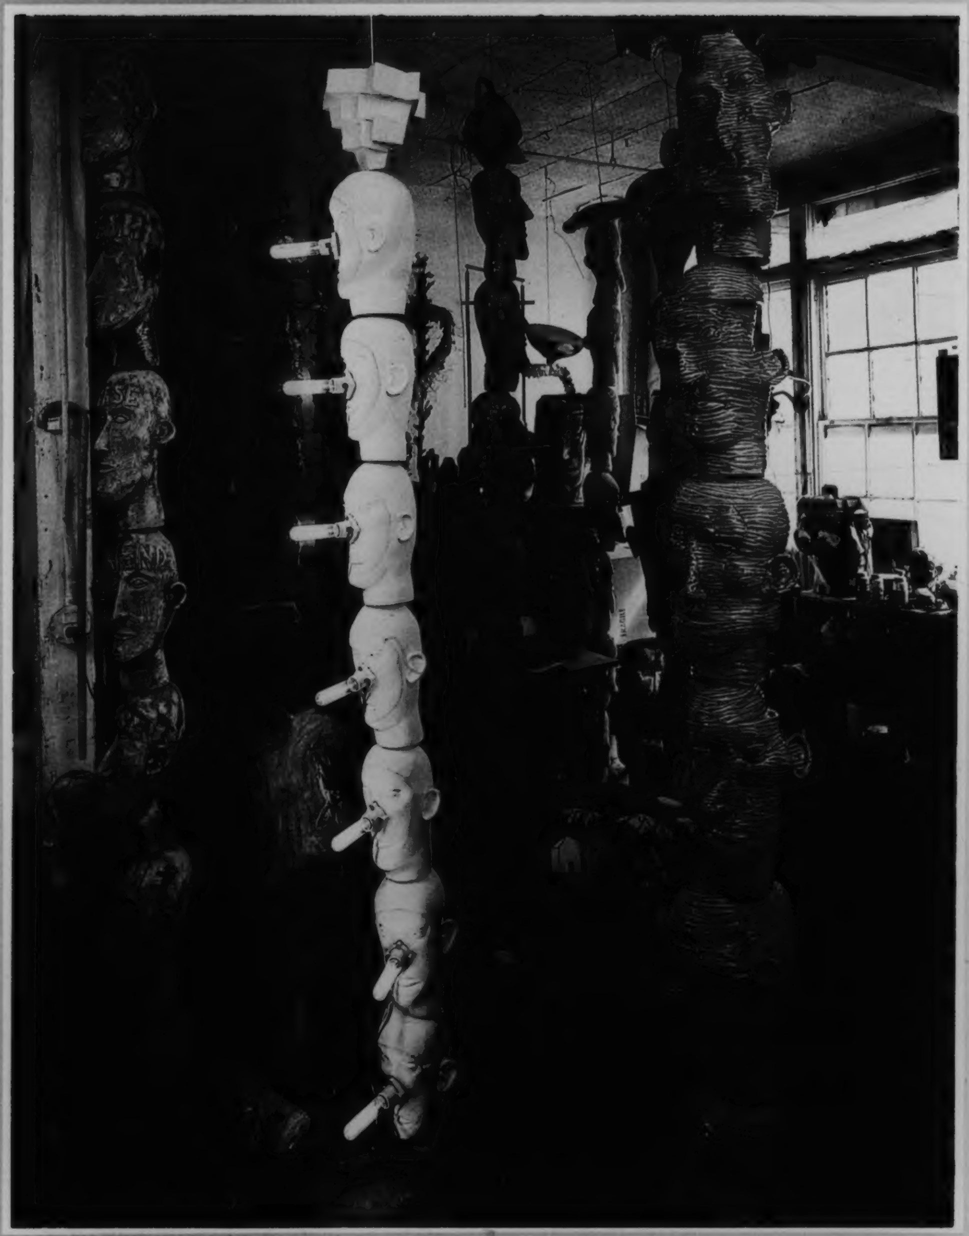
LEO CASTELLI GALLERY
420 WEST BROADWAY NEW YORK, NEW YORK 10012 TEL: (212) 431-5160

JAMES CORCORAN GALLERY
8223 SANTA MONICA BLVD., LOS ANGELES, 90046 TEL: (213) 656-0662

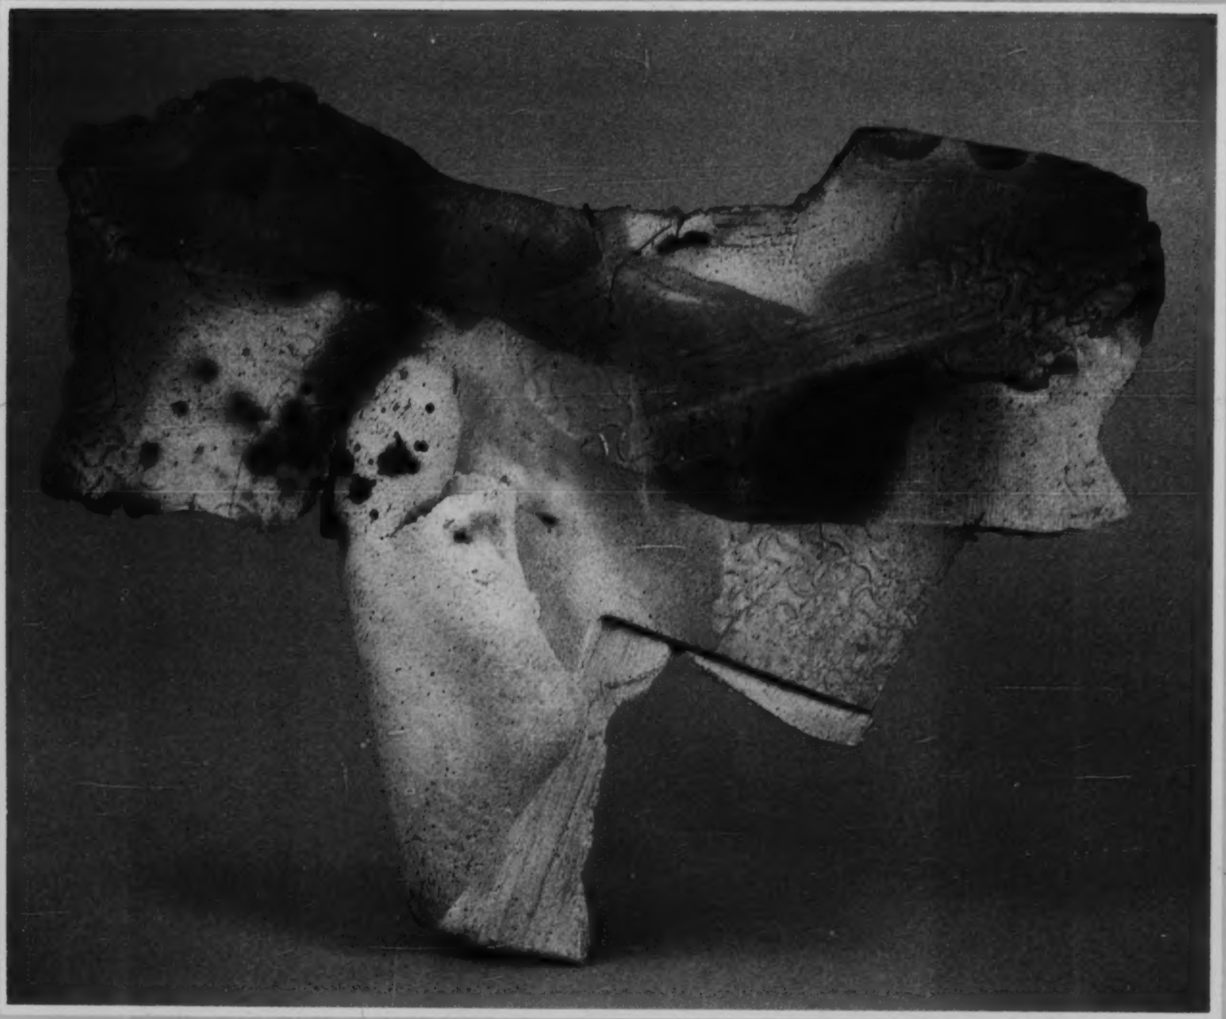


MICHAEL LUCERO

Studio interior November 5–26, 1983
Also representing Ron Nagle and Peter Voulkos

CHARLES COWLES GALLERY
420 WEST BROADWAY, NEW YORK, NEW YORK 10012 TEL: (212) 925-3500

VOL 71
ISS 10
NO
1983
UMI



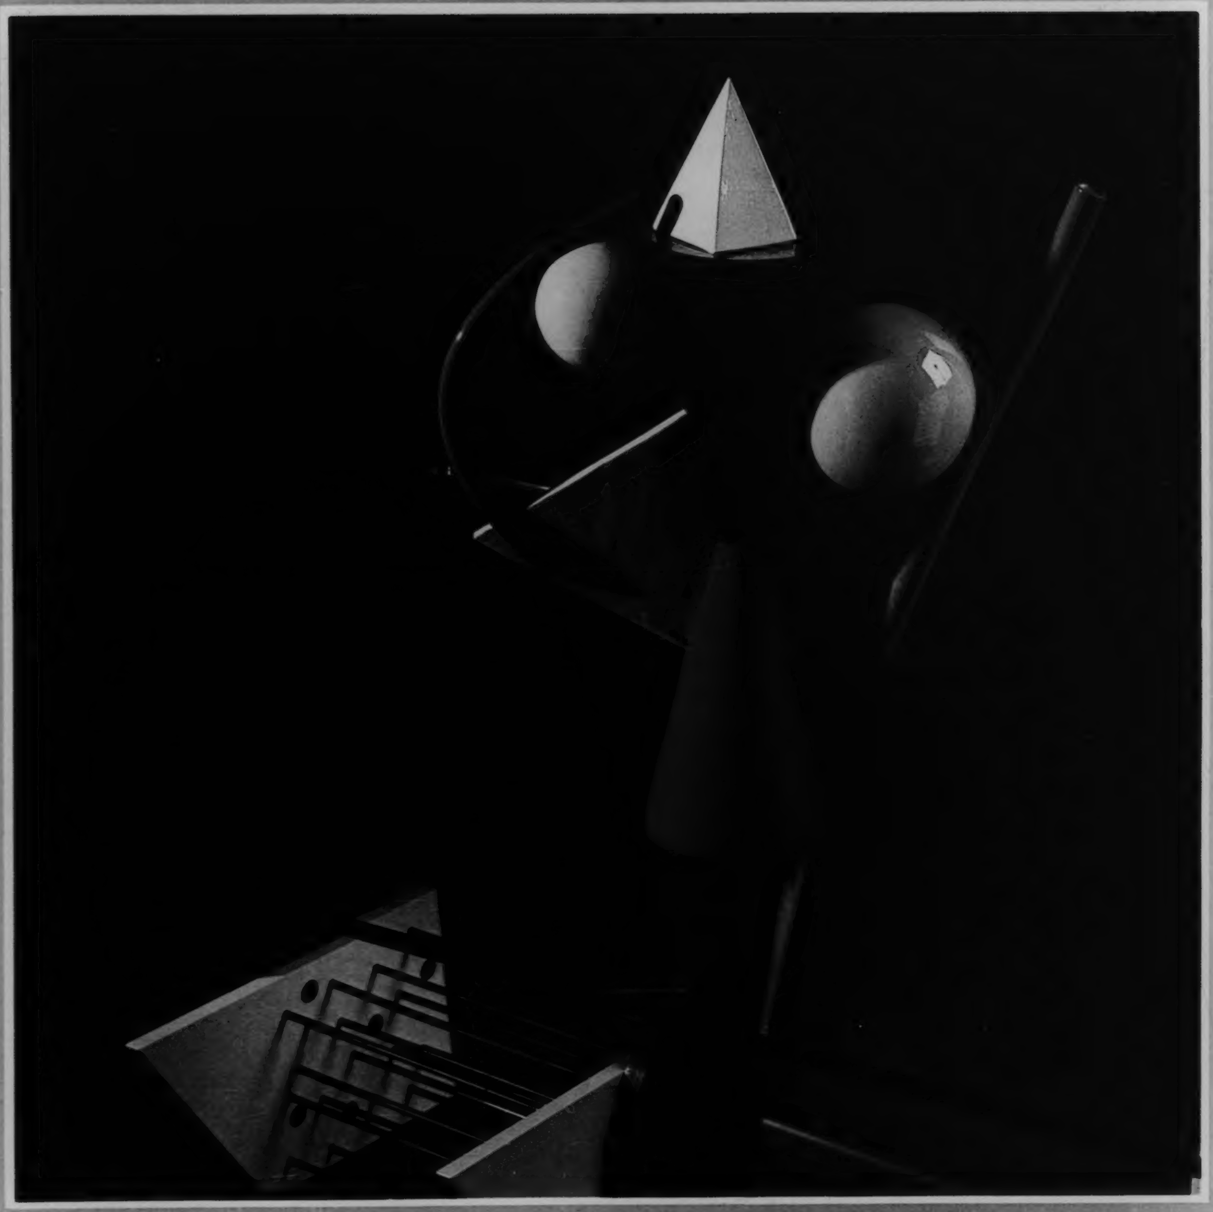
Paul Soldner

PAUL SOLDNER

Ceramic Wall Piece, 1983, low temperature, salt-fired.

ELEMENTS GALLERY

90 HUDSON STREET, NEW YORK, NEW YORK 10013 TEL: (212) 226-5910.



Eric Dahan

PETER SHIRE

"Hourglass Teapot", 1983. Partially in view, "Turbine Table", 1983, by Peter Shire. ceramic teapot, 23" high x 19" wide x 6" deep. Exhibiting Oakland Museum, October 8-December 23/Morgan Gallery, Kansas City, October 15-November 27 Janus Gallery, Los Angeles, December 2-31. Exclusively represented by:

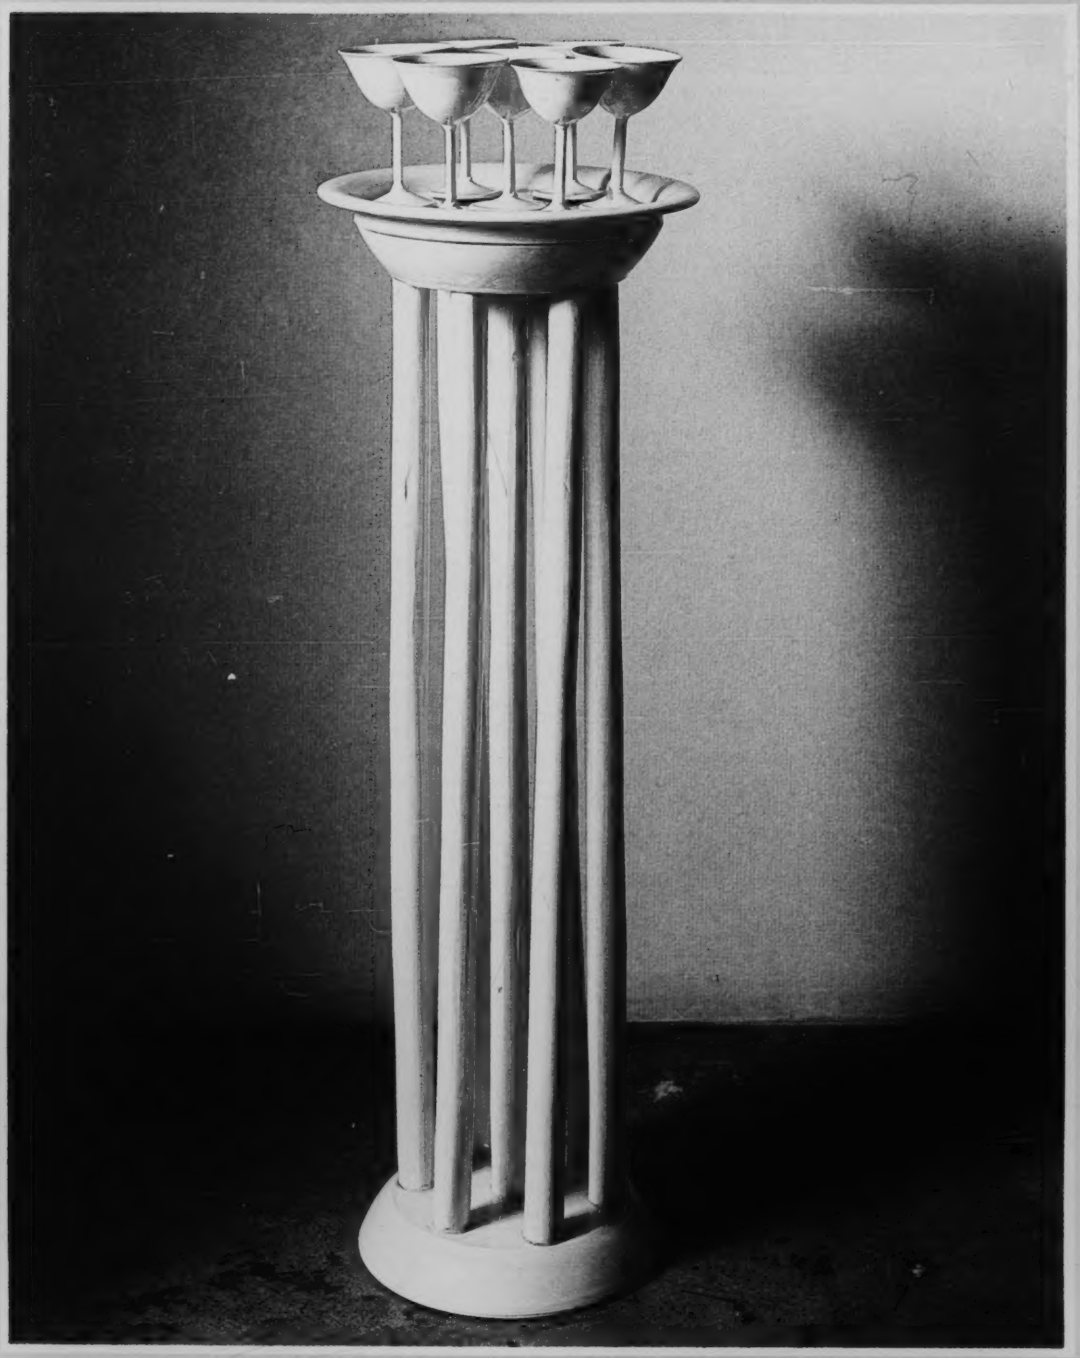
JANUS GALLERY

8000 MELROSE AVENUE, LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA 90046 TEL. (213) 658-6084

VOL
71
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI



Douglas Parker

MINEO MIZUNO

Party for Seven, 1983 earthenware ceramic, 43" high x 14" diameter.
Exhibiting Gensler & Associates, San Francisco, October 4-December 30.
Also available at Greenberg Gallery, St Louis/DBR Gallery, Cleveland /Hokin-Kaufman Gallery, Chicago. Represented by:

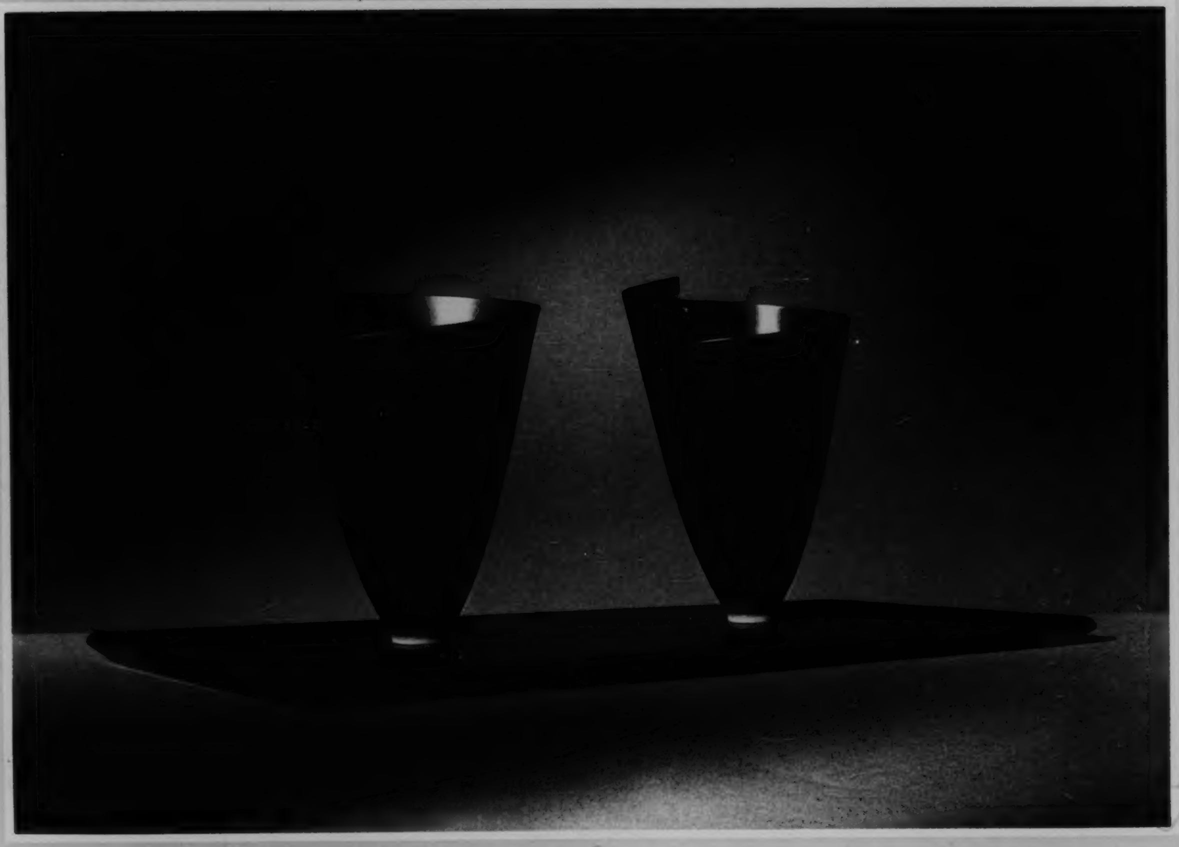
JANUS GALLERY

8000 MELROSE AVENUE, LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA 90046 TEL. (213) 658-6084



Gerry Cappel/Janus Gallery

ELSA RADY

Conjugation, 1983. Porcelain on granite base. 9 ¼" x 6 ¾", 8 ¾" x 5 ¾". Base 20 ¾" x 10 ½".
Exhibiting William Rockhill Nelson Gallery at Atkins Museum, Kansas City, October 15-November 27
Douglas Drake Gallery, Kansas City, October 8-November 5
Janus Gallery Los Angeles, February 3-25, 1984. Represented by:

JANUS GALLERY

8000 MELROSE AVENUE, LOS ANGELES, CALIF. 90046 TEL. (213) 658-6084

VOL
71
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI

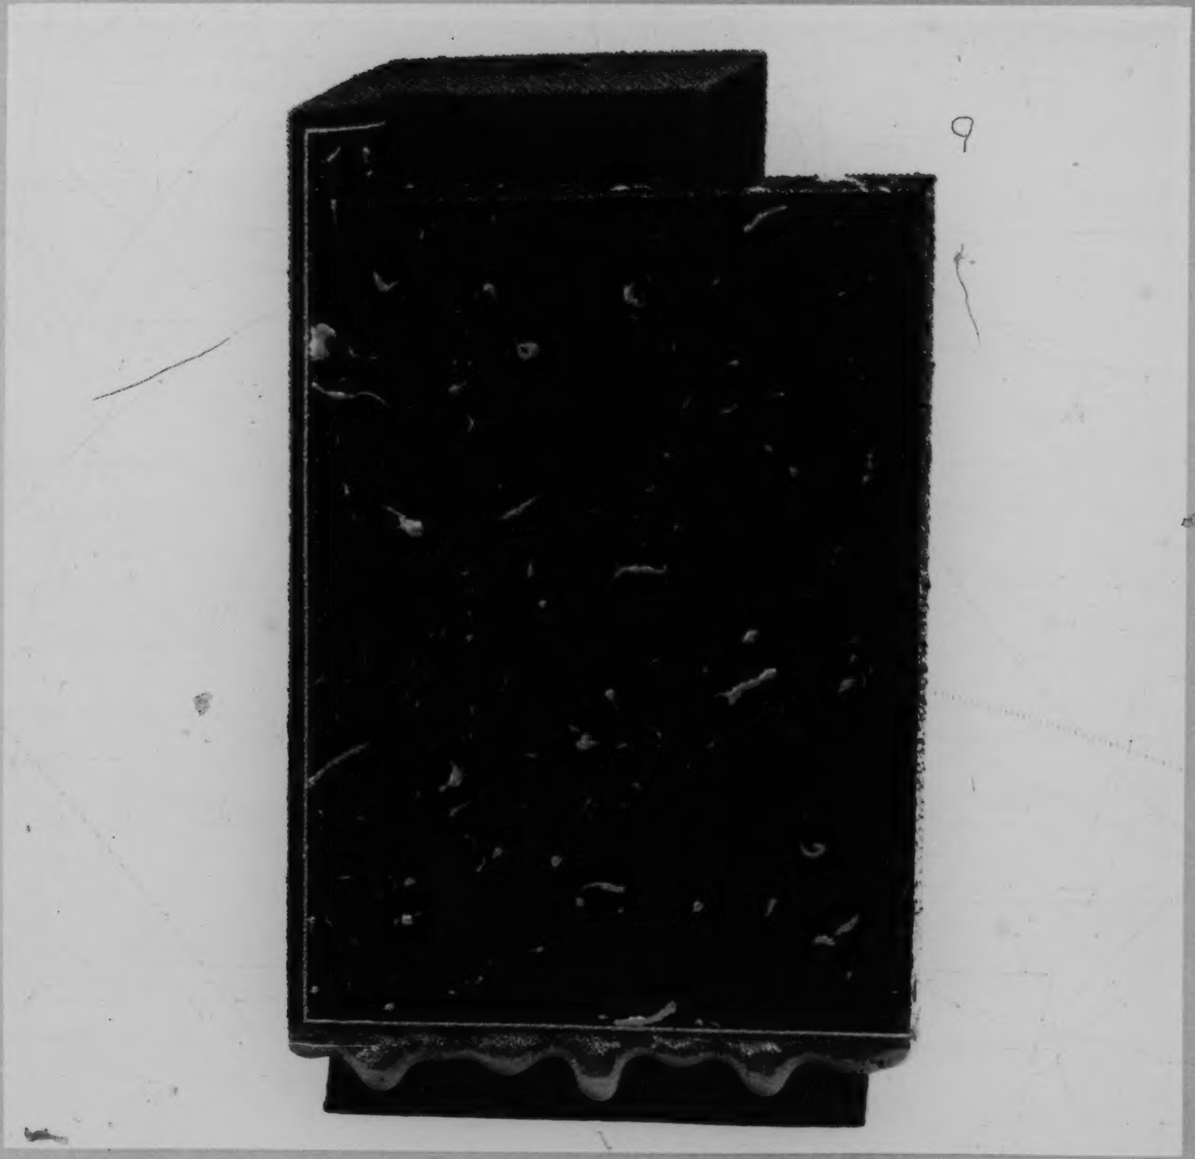

Photo: M. Lee Fatherree

RON NAGLE

Purple Slab 1983. Ceramic, 8" x 5" x 3½"

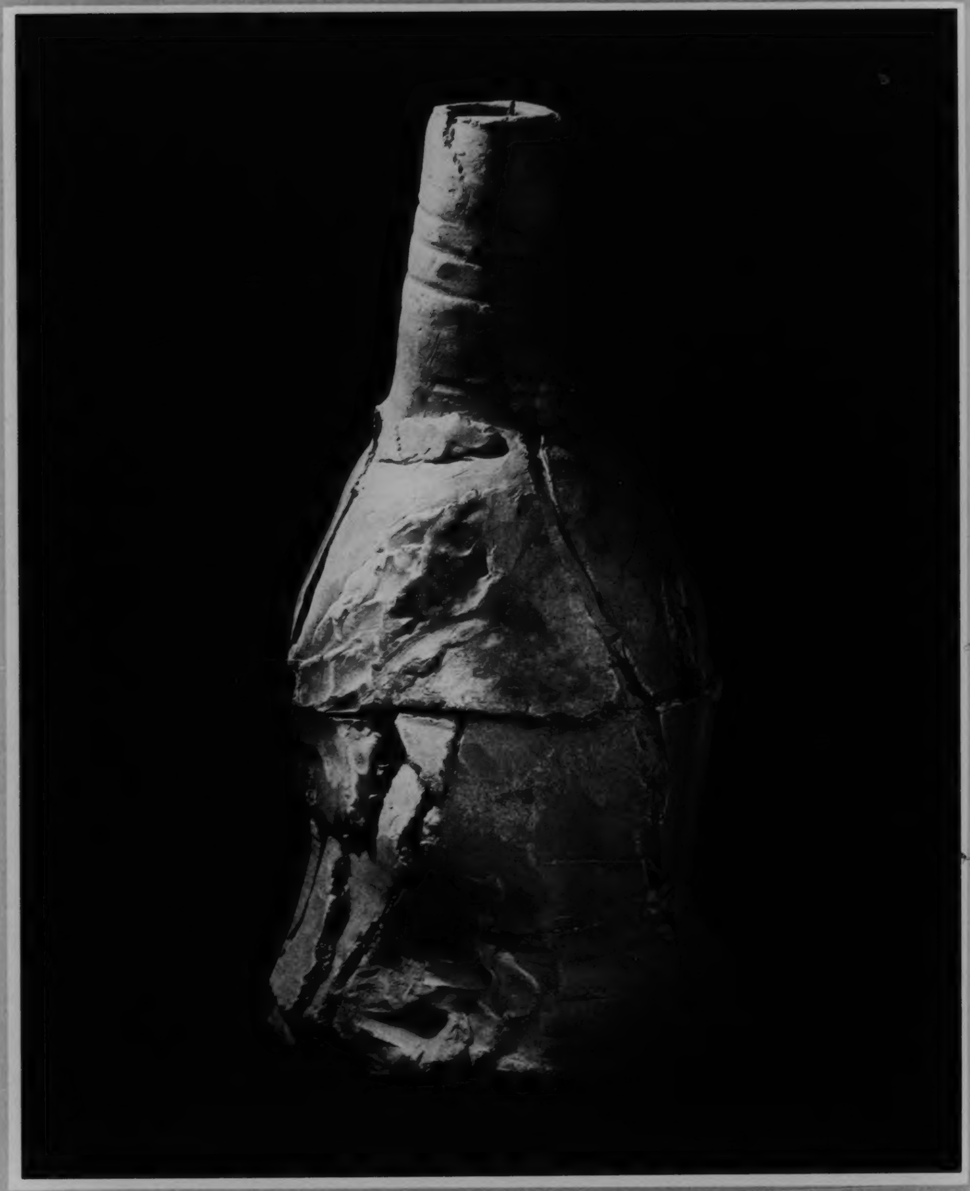
CHARLES COWLES GALLERY
420 WEST BROADWAY, NEW YORK 10012 TEL: (212) 925-3500

THE QUAY GALLERY
254 SUTTER STREET, SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF. 94108 TEL: (415) 982-3292

BETSY ROSENFIELD GALLERY EXHIBITION
APRIL 1984 212 WEST SUPERIOR ST., CHICAGO, ILL. 60610 TEL: (312) 787-8020



PETER VOULKOS

Untitled, 1982. 46" h. x 24"d. Stack woodfired stoneware.

BRAUNSTEIN GALLERY
254 SUTTER STREET, SAN FRANCISCO, CA. 94108
TEL: (415) 392-5532

MORGAN GALLERY
1616 WESTPORT ROAD, KANSAS CITY, MISSOURI 64111
TEL: (816) 931-3335

EXHIBIT A
361 W. SUPERIOR, CHICAGO, ILLINOIS 60610
TEL: (312) 944-1748

CHARLES COWLES GALLERY
420 WEST BROADWAY, NEW YORK NY 10012
TEL: (212) 925-3500

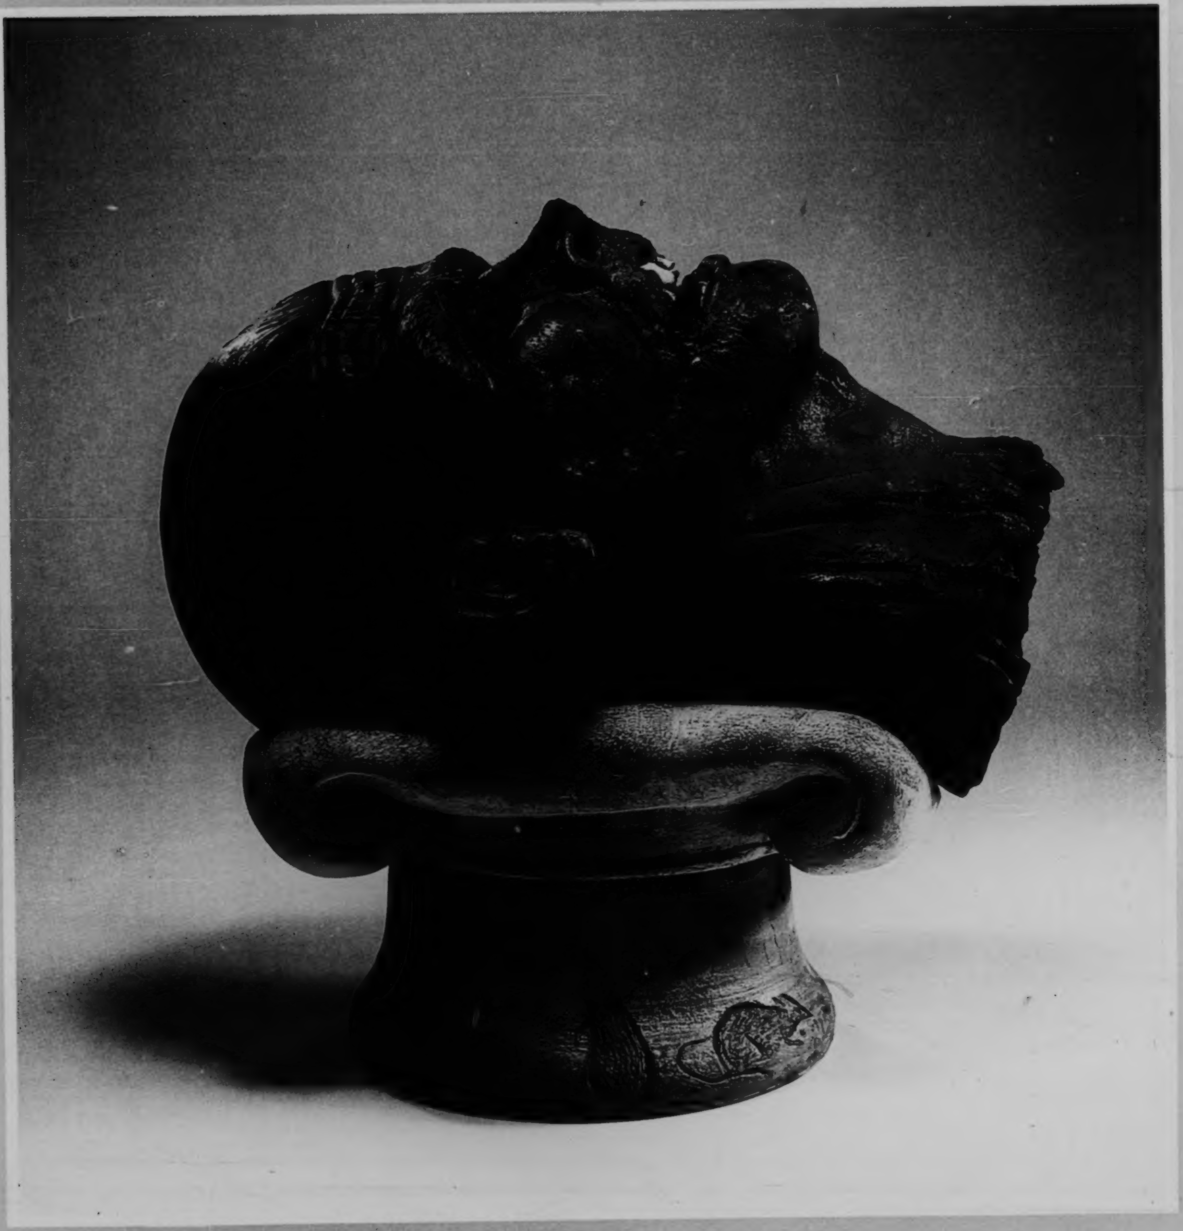
VOL
7
1
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI

Tom Winetz

JOHN MASON

Cross Form 1963 66" x 50 ½" x 10 ½" Ceramic

THE QUAY GALLERY
254 SUTTER STREET, SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF. 94108 (415) 982-3292



ROBERT ARNESON

"A War Memorial", 1983 glazed ceramic, 37 x 38 x 24 inches.

ALLAN FRUMKIN GALLERY
50 WEST 57th STREET
NEW YORK, NEW YORK 10019
TEL: (212) 757-6655

FULLER GOLDEEN GALLERY
228 GRANT AVENUE
SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA
TEL: (415) 982-6177

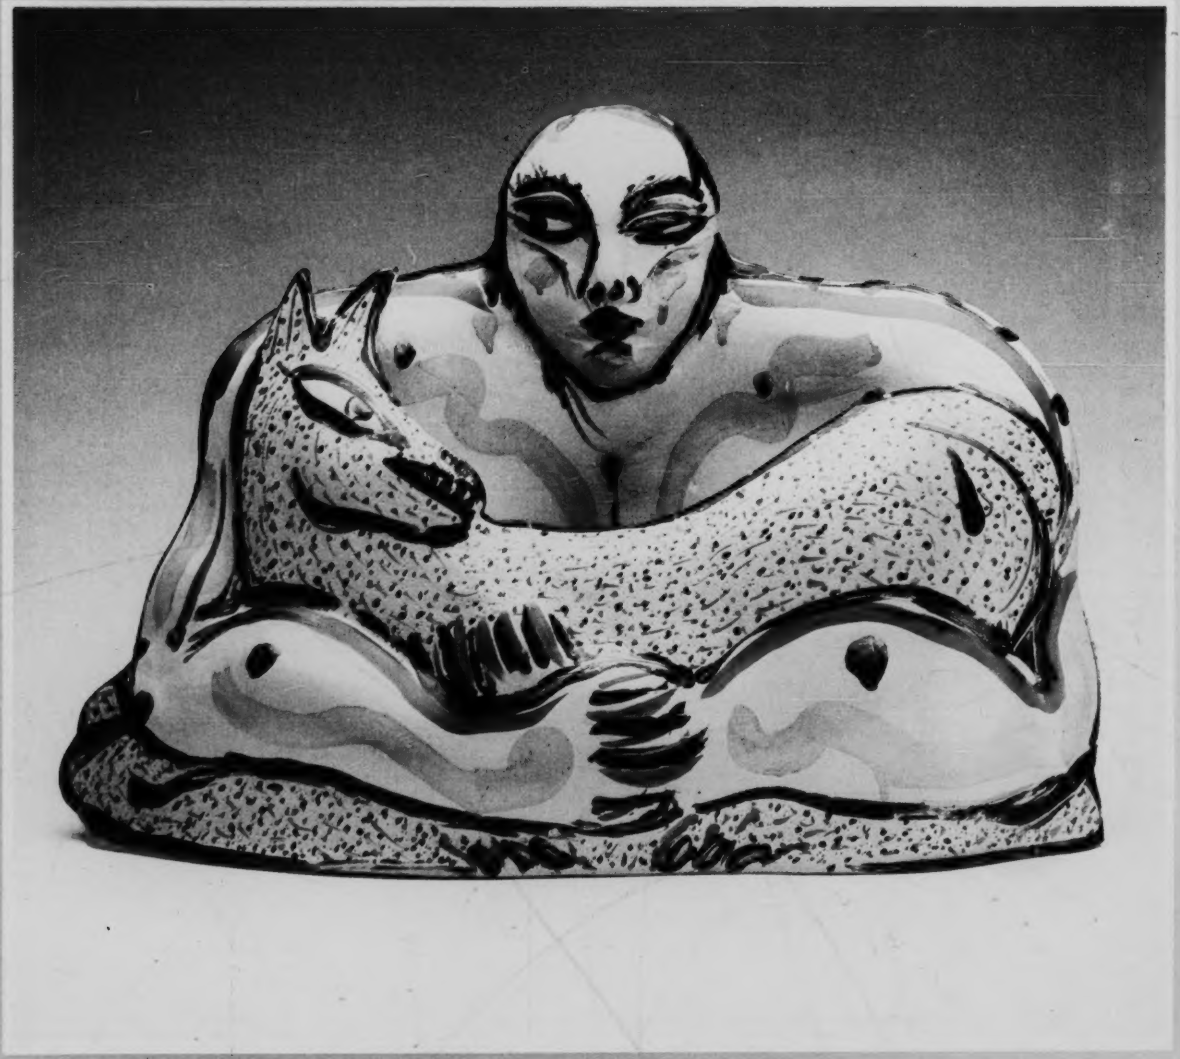
VOL
71
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI

BETTY WOODMAN
Ming Memories: Three Part Vase, 1983. Whiteware

GARTH CLARK GALLERY—L.A.
5820 WILSHIRE BLVD., LOS ANGELES, CA 90036 TEL: (213) 939-2189

MAX PROTETCH GALLERY
37 WEST 57TH STREET, NEW YORK, NY 10019
TEL: (212) 838-7436

GREENBERG GALLERY
44 MARYLAND PLAZA, ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI 63108
TEL: (314) 361-7600



AKIO TAKAMORI

Man Holding Dog, 1983 17"h. x 25"w. Stoneware.

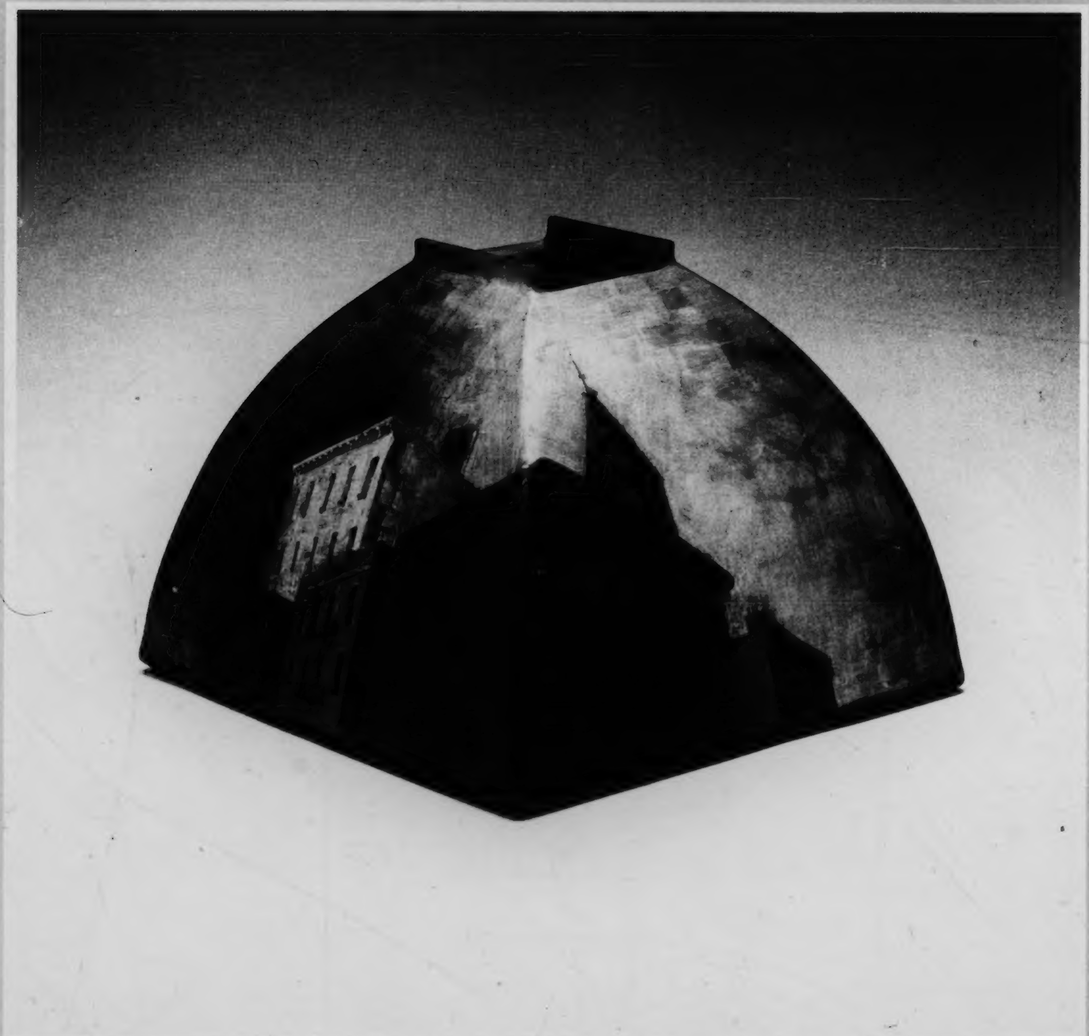
GARTH CLARK GALLERY - L.A.

5820 WILSHIRE BLVD., LOS ANGELES, CA 90036 TEL: (213) 939-2189

GARTH CLARK GALLERY - N.Y.

24 WEST 57th STREET, NEW YORK, NY 10019

VOL
71
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI



LIDYA BUZIO

Square Vessel, 1983, 7" h x 9¼" w. Burnished earthenware.

GARTH CLARK GALLERY
5820 WILSHIRE BLVD.
LOS ANGELES, CA 90036
TEL: (213) 939-2189
24 WEST 57TH STREET NEW YORK NY 10019

THOMAS SEGAL GALLERY
73 NEWBURY STREET
BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS 02116
TEL: (617) 266-3500

ADRIAN SAXE

Bowl With Couch, 1983 12¼" h. x 12" w. Porcelainous stoneware and raku.

GARTH CLARK GALLERY
5820 WILSHIRE BLVD.
LOS ANGELES, CA 90036 TEL: (213) 939-2189
24 WEST 57TH STREET NEW YORK NY 10019

THOMAS SEGAL GALLERY
73 NEWBURY STREET
BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS 02116
TEL: (617) 266-3500

VOL
7
1

ISS
1 0

N O

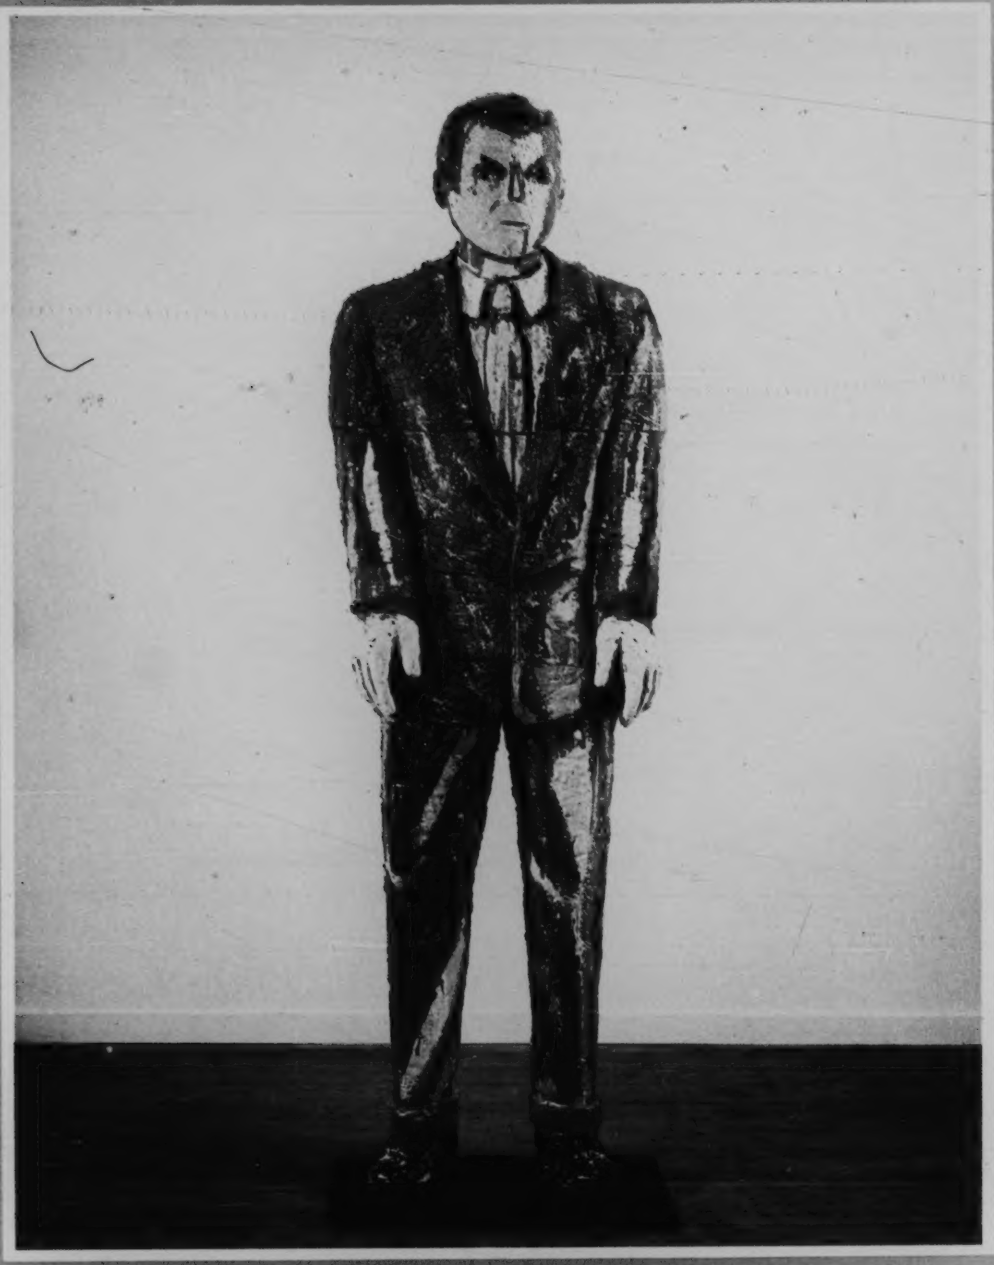
1983

UMI

BENNETT BEAN

Clay glazed and painted.

THE WORKS GALLERY
319 SOUTH STREET, PHILADELPHIA, PA. 19147 TEL: (215) 922-7775



VIOLA FREY

"Fire Suit" 1982-83 98" x 32" x 23"

ASHER/FAURE

612 NORTH ALMONT DRIVE, LOS ANGELES, CA. 90069 TEL: (213) 271-3665 January 7–February 4 1984

GREENBERG GALLERY

44 MARYLAND PLAZA, ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI 63108
TEL: (314) 361-7600 APRIL 28–MAY 26, 1984

THE QUAY GALLERY

254 SUTTER STREET, SAN FRANCISCO, CA. 94108
TEL: (415) 982-3292

VOL 71
ISS 10
NO
1983
UMI

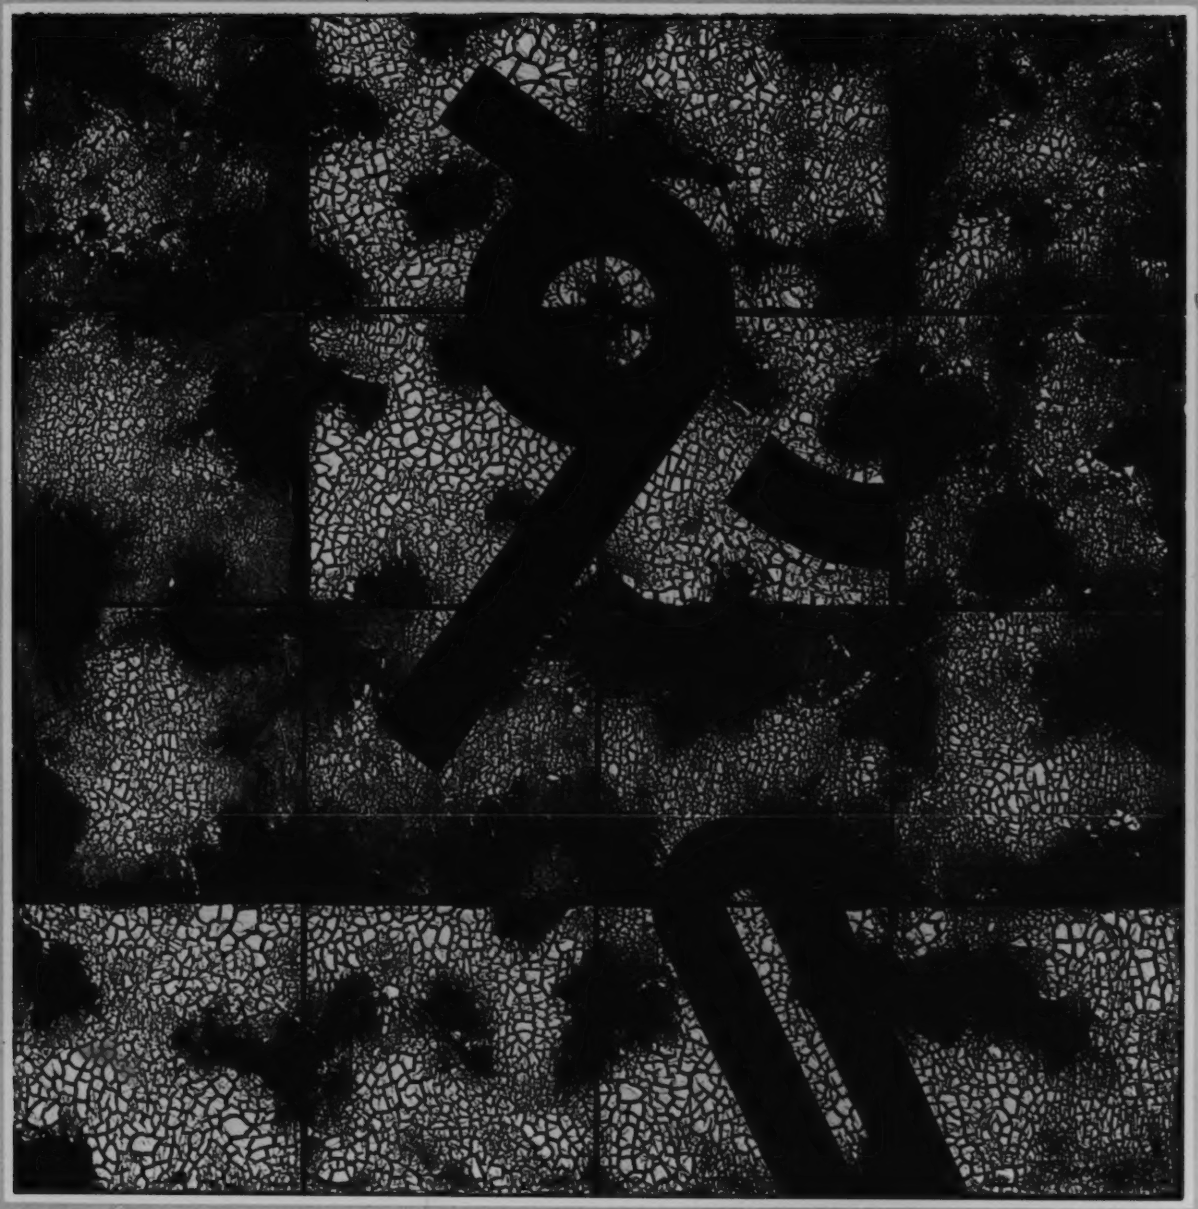

Photo: Johsel Namking

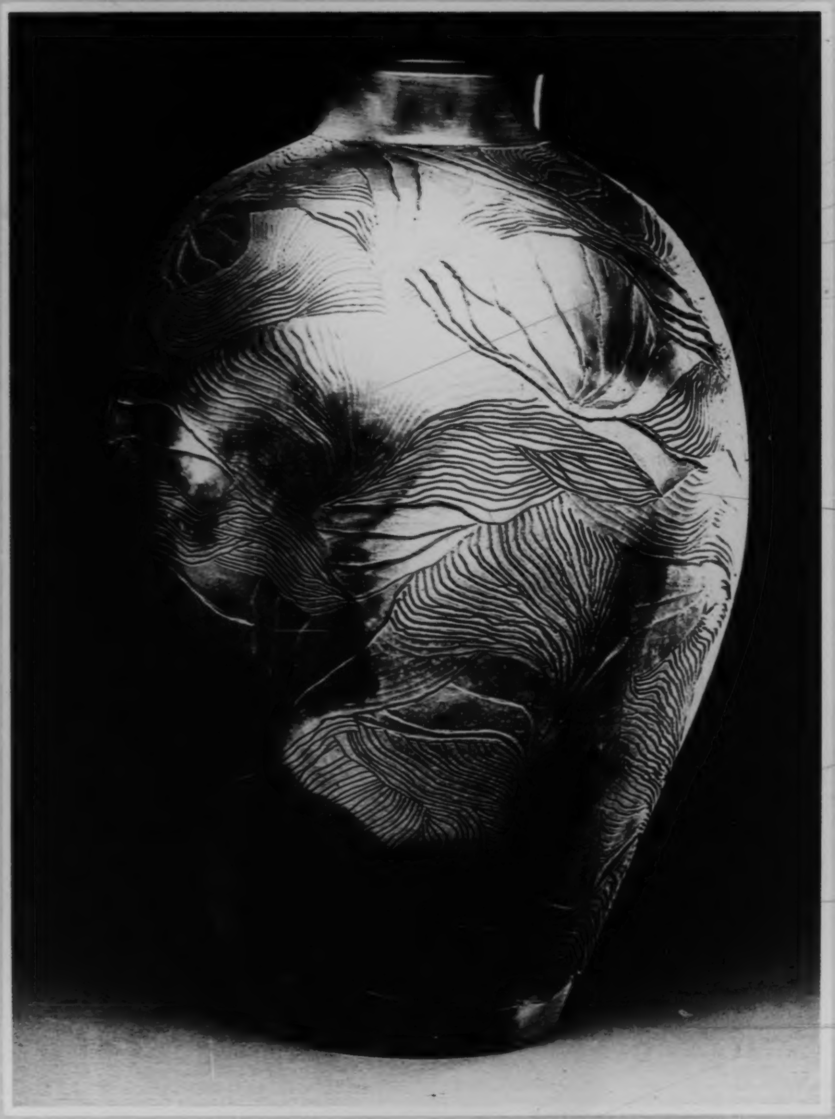
ROBERT SPERRY

#566, 1983, 64" x 64", stoneware.

IMAGE SOUTH
1925 PEACHTREE ROAD NE, ATLANTA, GEORGIA
30309 TEL: (404) 351-8210

WOODSIDE/BRASETH GALLERY
1101 HOWELL STREET, SEATTLE, WASHINGTON
TEL: (206) 622-7243



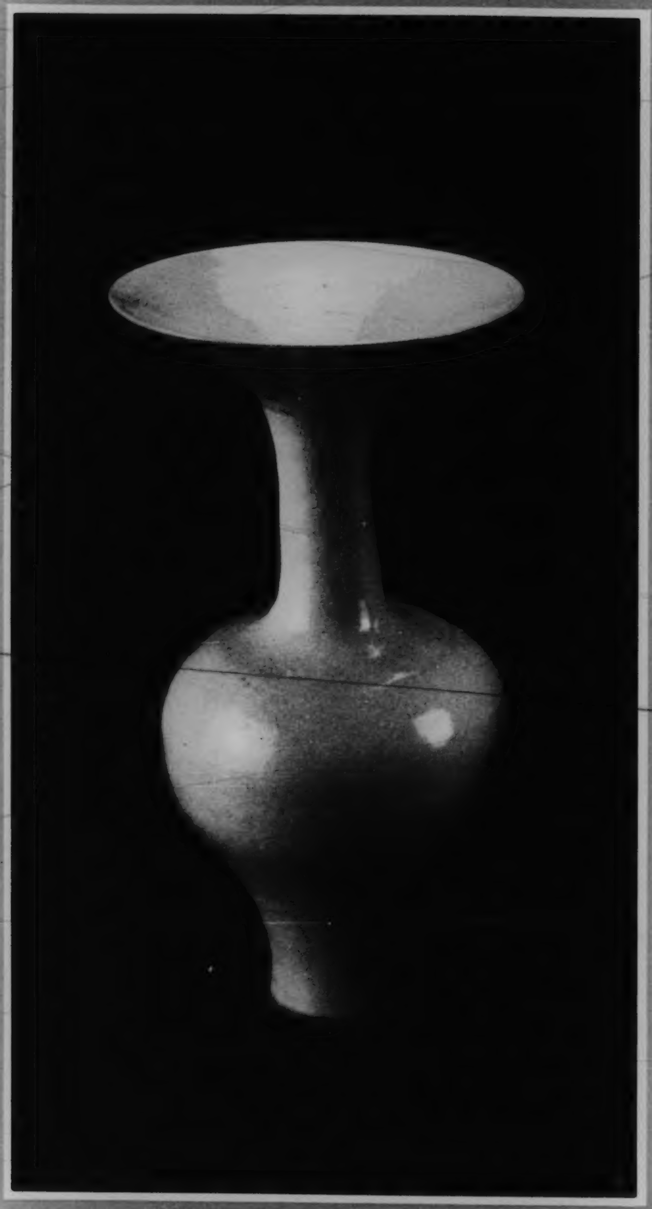
NANCEE MEEKER

(Geologic Series) Carved, Stone Burnished, Pit Fired Vessel, 1983, 17" high x 10" diameter

JACKIE CHALKEY GALLERY
FOXHALL SQUARE, 3301 NEW MEXICO AVENUE
N.W., WASHINGTON, D.C. 20016 TEL: (202) 686-8884

INCORPORATED GALLERY
1200 MADISON AVENUE,
NEW YORK, NEW YORK 10128 TEL: (212) 831-4466

VOL
71
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI



LUCIE RIE

Stoneware, 12" high

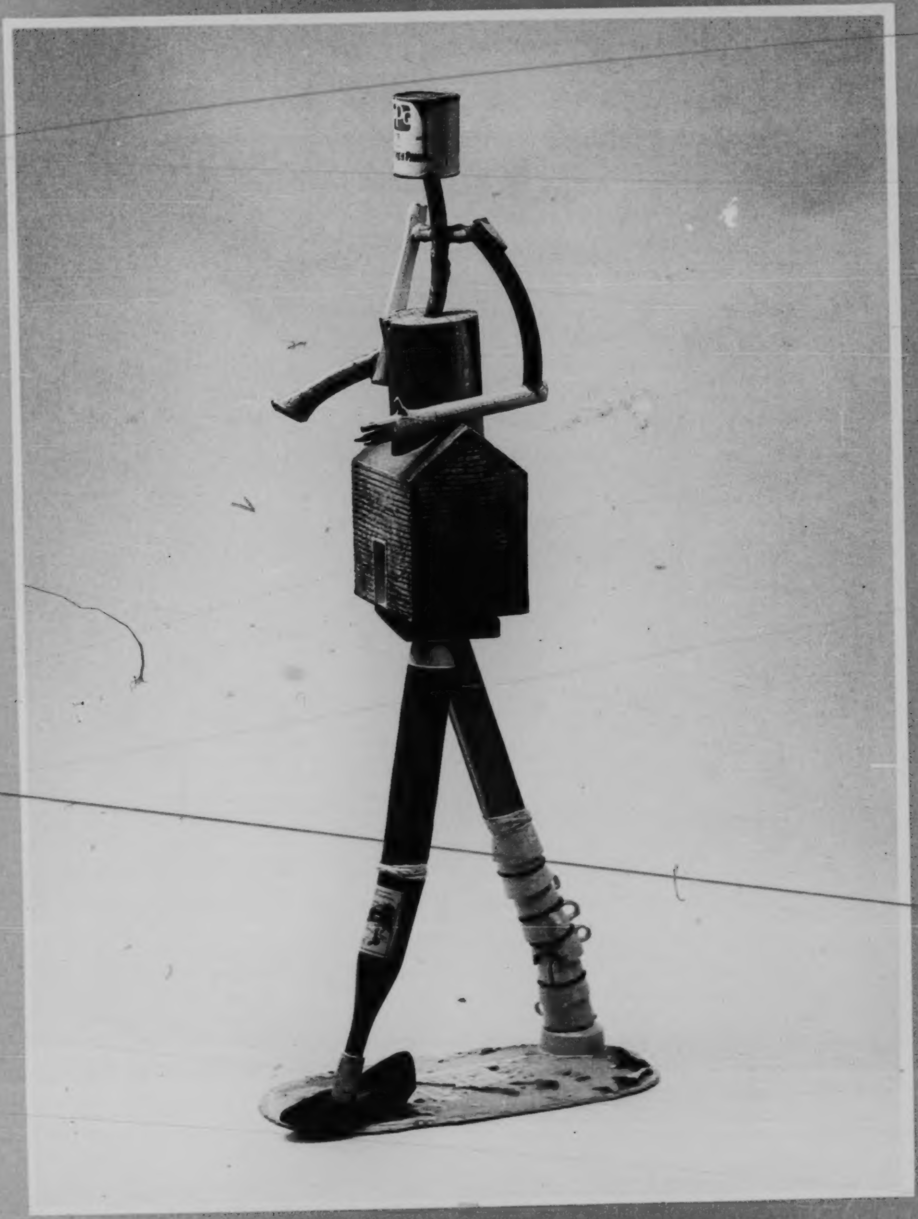
WESTMINSTER GALLERY
Representing Britain's Leading Ceramic Artists
132 A Newbury Street, Boston, Massachusetts 02116 TEL. (617) 266-6704 Monday-Saturday, 11-6



Joseph Schopplein

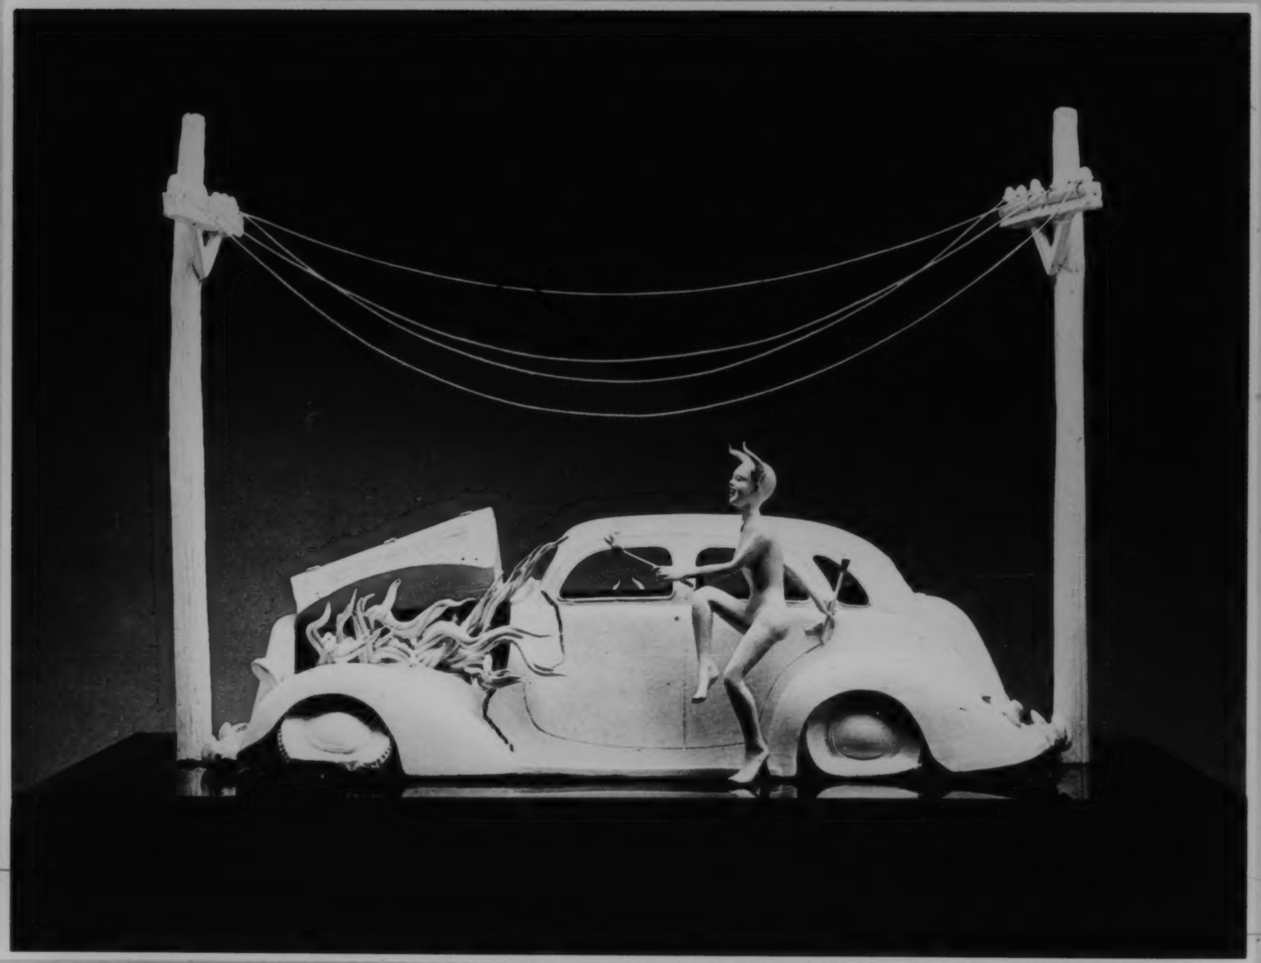
RICHARD SHAW

"Warren Walter, William" 59" x 27" x 12", 1981 Porcelain w/decal overglaze

BRAUNSTEIN GALLERY

254 SUTTER STREET, SAN FRANCISCO, CA 94108 TEL. (415) 392-5532

VOL
7
1
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI



PATTI WARASHINA

High Tension Wire, 1982, 30 ½" x 39" x 22", low fire clay, glaze, mixed media

FOSTER/WHITE GALLERY
311 ½ OCCIDENTAL AVENUE SOUTH, SEATTLE, WASHINGTON 98104

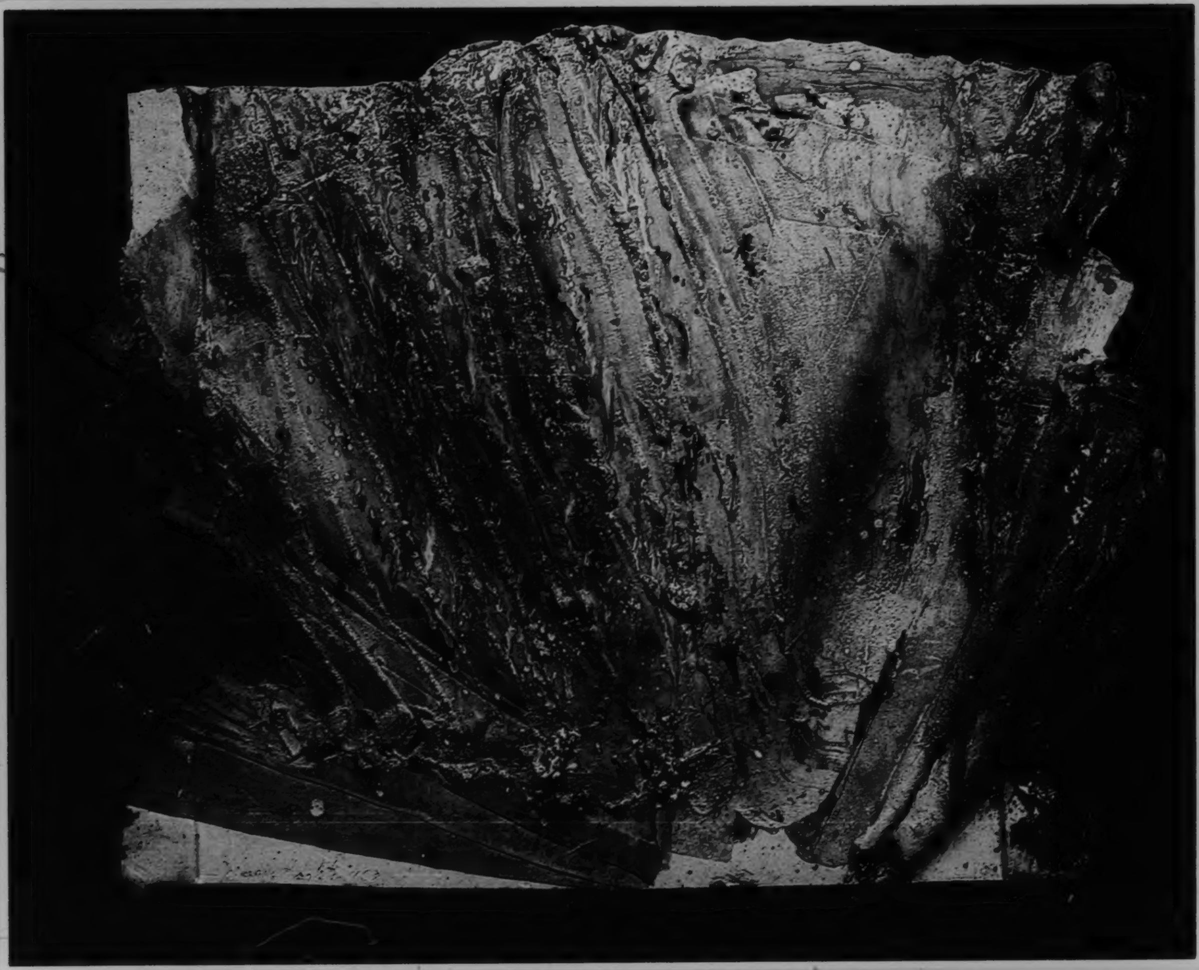

Photo: Courtney Frisse

MARGIE HUGHTO

"Summer Shimmer", colored clays, slips and glaze, 31" x 39" 1983

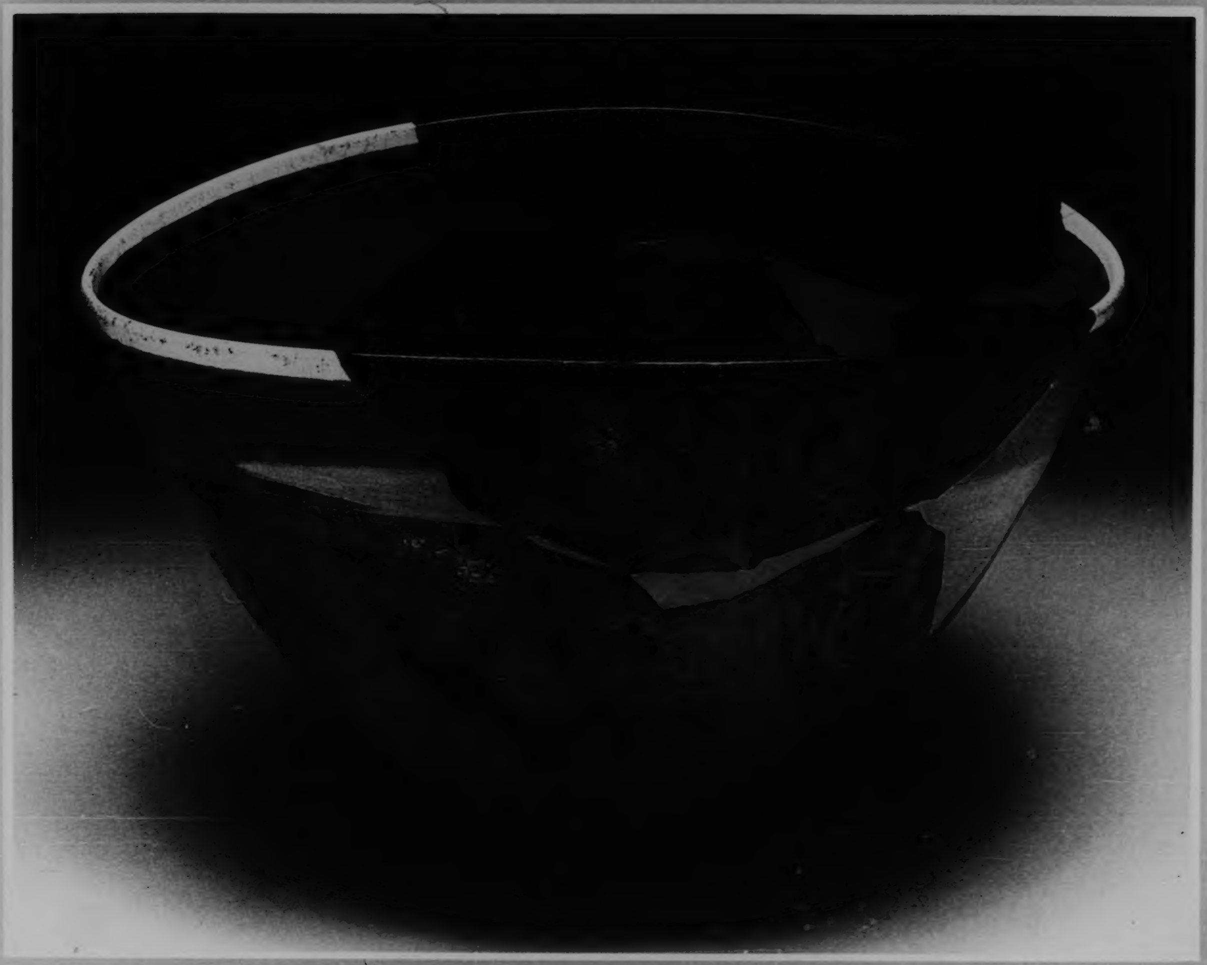
HEATH GALLERY, INC.
416 EAST PACES FERRY ROAD
ATLANTA, GEORGIA 30305 (404) 262-6407
FORTHCOMING EXHIBITION: DEC.-JAN. 1983-84

NINA FREUDENHEIM GALLERY
560 FRANKLIN STREET, BUFFALO, NEW YORK 14202
TEL: (716) 881-1555

THOMAS SEGAL GALLERY
73 NEWBURY STREET, BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS 02116
TEL: (617) 266-3500

B.Z. WAGMAN GALLERY
34 NORTH BRENTWOOD, ST LOUIS, MISSOURI 63105
TEL: (314) 721-0250

VOL
7
1
ISS
1 0
N O
1983
UMI



Steve Myers

WAYNE HIGBY

"Fortress Rocks Bay" 1982. Landscape bowl, raku technique. 12" h x 19 ½" w x 16 ½" d

HELEN DRUTT GALLERY
305 CHERRY STREET, PHILADELPHIA, PA. 19106 TEL. (215) 735-1625

PETER CHARLES
sculpture—Nov. 18 - Jan. 5

Cherry Circle with Wedges 1982 steel & wood 40" x 36" x 6"

ZOLLA/LIEBERMAN GALLERY
356 W. Huron Chicago 60610 312/944-1990

SCOTT
CHAMBERLIN

Ceramic Sculpture

NOVEMBER

HADLER · RODRIGUEZ · GALLERIES
38 East 57th Street New York 10022 212 752-7734

Ceramic Sculpture

SCOTT CHAMBERLIN

November

meyer breier weiss
415 928 2119

MOVING TO 103-105 PRINCE STREET
SECOND FLOOR

EDWARD THORP
GALLERY

419 WEST BROADWAY, NEW YORK, NY 10012
TELEPHONE 212/431-6880

VOL 71
ISS 10
NO
1983
UMI

M. Knoedler & Co.

Estate of Alexander Calder
Adolph and Esther Gottlieb Foundation, Inc.
Estate of Ludwig Sander
Estate of David Smith
Walter Darby Bannard
Richard Diebenkorn
Friedel Dzubas
Herbert Ferber
Nancy Graves
Howard Hodgkin
Robert Motherwell
Jules Olitski
Jack Roth
Frank Stella
John Walker

19 East 70 Street, New York 10021
Telephone (212) 794-0550

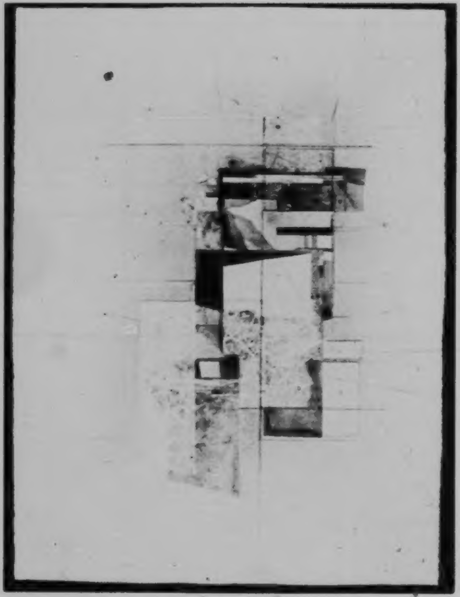
TIBOR DE NAGY GALLERY
29 WEST 57 STREET NEW YORK 10019 (212) 421-3780

TONY ROBBIN
RECENT PAINTINGS
THIRD FLOOR

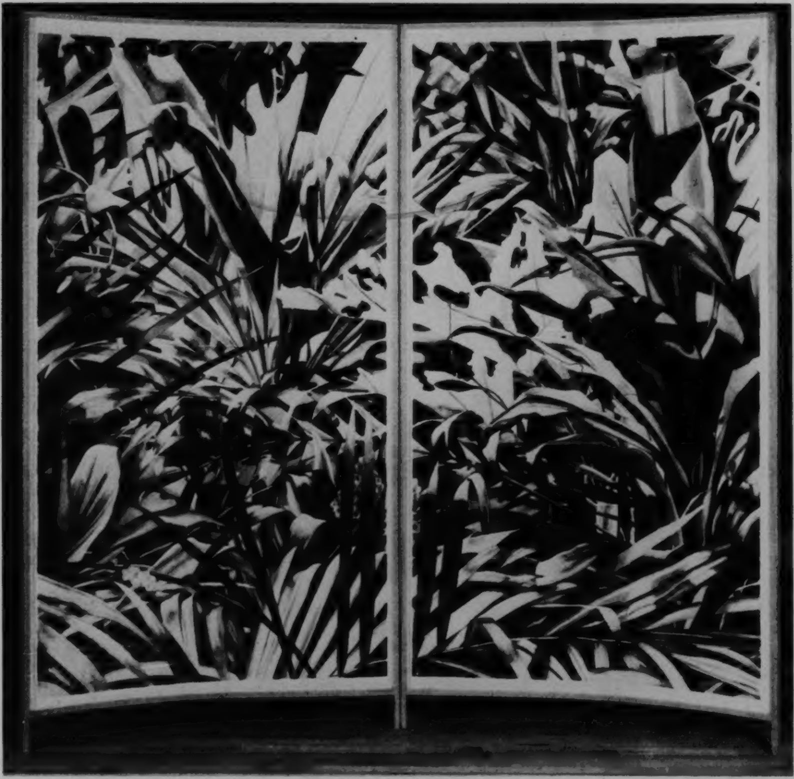
RICHARDS JARDEN
FRAGMENTS FROM TELEVISION
FOURTH FLOOR

29 OCTOBER–30 NOVEMBER

BARBARA WELDON



NOVEMBER
IVORY/KIMPTON GALLERY
55 GRANT AVENUE · SAN FRANCISCO · 94108
415/956-6661



Phyllis Plattner
Watercolor Screens

Frumkin & Struve Gallery
309 West Superior Street
Chicago, Illinois 60610
tel. 312.787.0563

Exhibition
October 28 to November 28

Fortin de las Flores II, 1983
Watercolor folding screen 89" x 93" x 13"

MIMMO
PALADINO

29 October-26 November 1983

SPERONE WESTWATER
142 Greene Street New York 212/431.3685

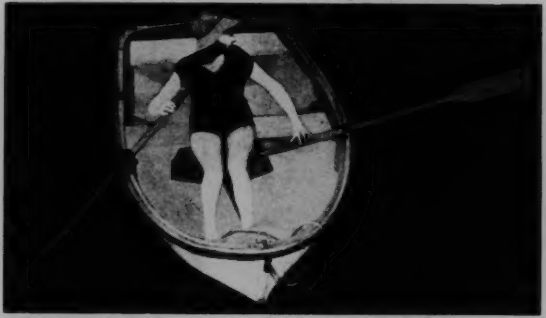
VOL 7 1 ISS 10 NO 1983 UMI

AT FORUM GALLERY

RECENT PAINTINGS

CORNELIS RUHTENBERG

OPENING SATURDAY, OCTOBER 29

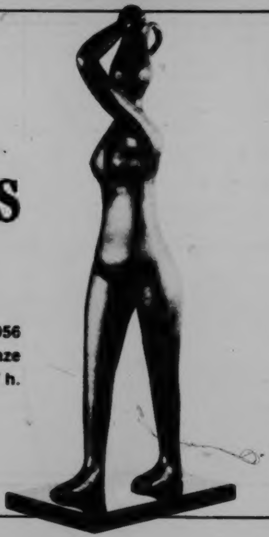


"Blue Rowboat," 1982, acrylic on canvas, 74 x 64" (detail)

SCULPTURE

HUGO ROBUS

OPENING SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 19

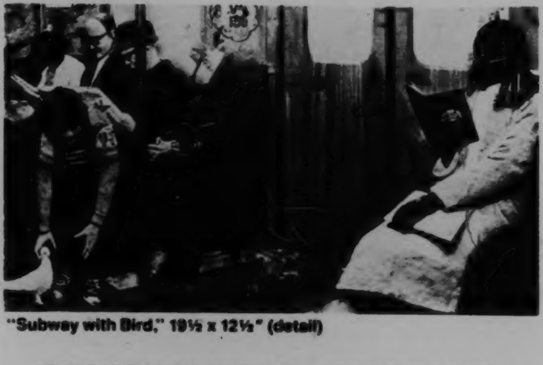


"Water Carrier," 1956
bronze
36" h.

1ST. EXHIBITION

JEANNIE BAKER IN PENTHOUSE

NEW YORK IMAGES (CONSTRUCTIONS)

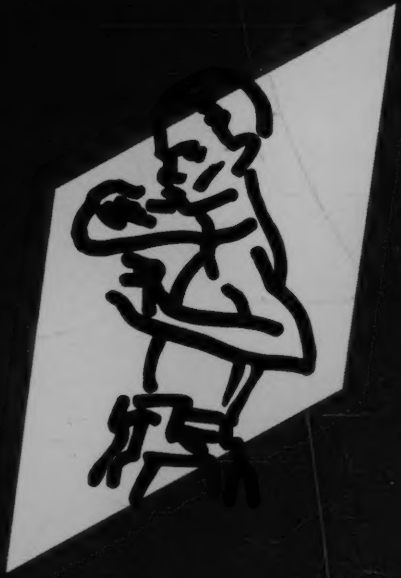


"Subway with Bird," 19½ x 12½" (detail)

1018 MADISON AVENUE · NEW YORK 10021
PHONE: (212) 772-7666

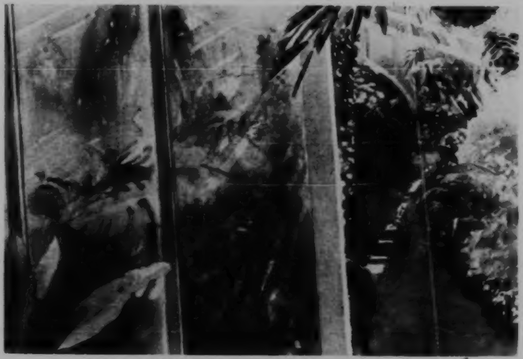
NANCY DWYER

NOVEMBER 9 TO DECEMBER 3



SEMAPHORE GALLERY

462 WEST BROADWAY NEW YORK 10012 228-7990



Water color 1983, 58½" x 77½"

JOEL JANOWITZ

November 1983

VICTORIA MUNROE GALLERY

56 West 57 Street New York 10019 212 246-9616
Tuesday–Friday 10–5:30 pm Saturday 11–5 pm

Stanley Boxer

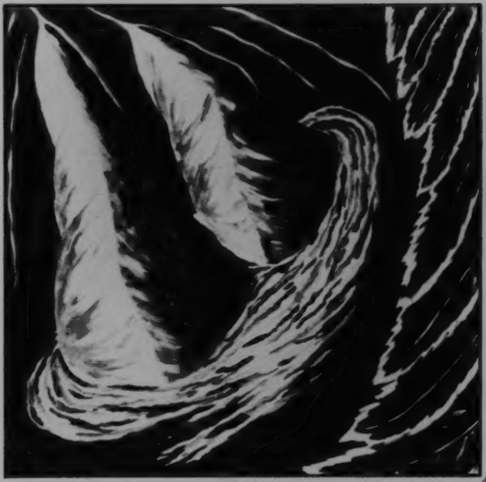
Marble Sculpture

Catalogue available

November 4 to 30

Salander-O'Reilly Galleries, Inc.
22 East 80 Street New York, NY 10021
Telephone: (212) 879-6606
Gallery hours: Monday-Saturday, 10 to 5:30

ANDREW TAVARELLI



"High Up," 1983, oil on canvas 67 x 67"

November

note new location:

HABER THEODORE GALLERY
24 West 57th Street, New York 10019 (212) 541-9393

important works by butler
chagall
dubuffet
giacometti
lam mac iver mason millares
miró riopelle rouan saura tanguy
zao wou-ki

pierre matisse gallery
41 east 57th street
new york 10022

VOL 7 1
ISS 1 0
NO
1983
UMI

NEW TALENT PRINTMAKING

NOV. 12 TO DEC. 3 CASTELLI GRAPHICS 4 E 77 NEW YORK

ROBERT RYMAN

RECENT PAINTINGS 22 NOVEMBER-23 DECEMBER 1983

DANIEL WEINBERG GALLERY

619 N. ALMONT DR. LOS ANGELES, CA 90069 213-271-7101

Mel Bochner

Sonnabend 420 West Broadway, New York

RHONA
HOFFMAN
GALLERY

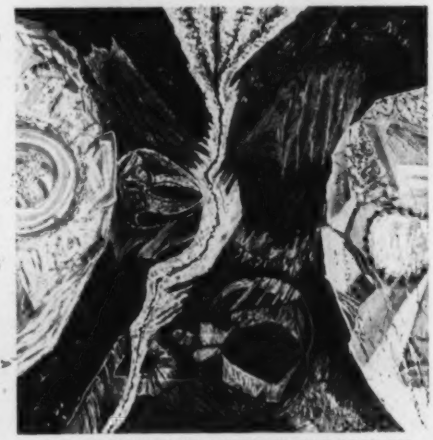
NANCY
SPERO
1974 – 1983

215 WEST SUPERIOR
CHICAGO, ILLINOIS 60610
TEL 312.951.8828

JAKE BERTHOT
PAINTINGS
NOV 9–DEC 3

DAVID MCKEE GALLERY
41 EAST 57 NY 10022
TEL 212/688-5951

PHILIP WOFFORD



SPLIT SELF-PORTRAIT, 1982. ACRYLIC, OIL STICK AND ENAMEL ON CANVAS: 84 X 84 INCHES.

NANCY HOFFMAN
429 WEST BROADWAY NEW YORK 10012

JOEL SHAPIRO
NEW WORK
NOVEMBER 19-DECEMBER 24, 1983

ASHER/FAURE
612 NORTH ALMONT DRIVE
LOS ANGELES, CA 90069
(213) 271-3665

Philip Grausman
"Portraits 1973–83" Sculpture & Drawings
October 29–November 23

Roland, 1982. Pewter. Height: 12"

Robert Schoelkopf Gallery
825 Madison Avenue, New York 10021

VOL 71 ISS 10 NO 1983 UMI

Anderson Machin Wilson Holland
Yarbrough Spiggle Weese Kowalski
Pletos Ahn Klein Rose Justis

Marianne Deson Gallery
340 West Huron
Chicago, Illinois 60610
312.787.0005

CASTLES

October 29 - November 30, 1983

HILDA THORPE

November 2 - 26

ADDISON/RIPLEY GALLERY LTD.

9 Hillyer Court N.W. Washington, D.C. 20008 [202] 328 2332

EVELYN B. JOHNSON

MATHEMATICAL LYRICISM

MIRIAM PERLMAN

Lake Point Tower 505 N. Lake Shore Drive Chicago

HF

H.F. MANES GALLERY ■

TOM ARNDT photographs
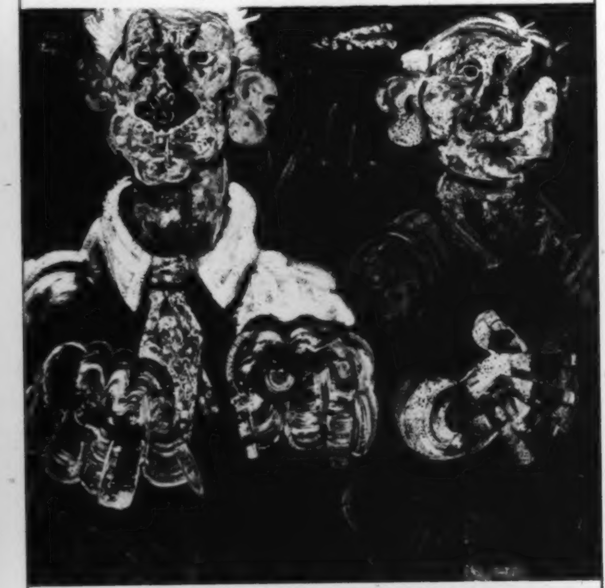
NANCY RANDALL paintings & monotypes inaugural exhibition november 17–december 31 1983 177 prince street new york n.y. 10012 212-316-1699

JENNY HOLZER
5 NOVEMBER–1 DECEMBER

OUTER SPACE IS WHERE YOU DISCOVER WONDER, WHERE YOU FIGHT AND NEVER HURT EARTH. IF YOU STOP BELIEVING THIS, YOUR MOOD TURNS UGLY.

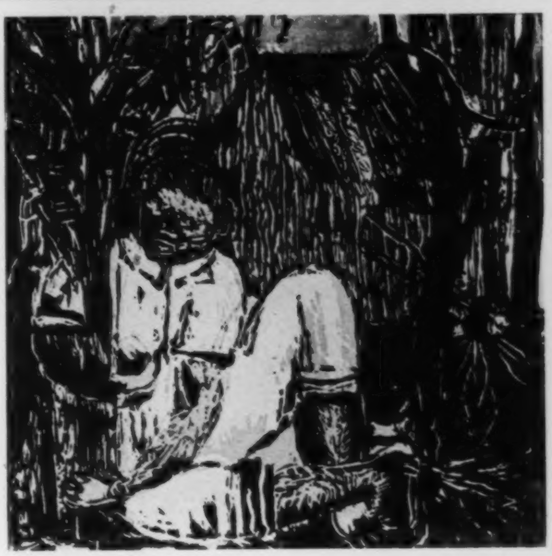
BARBARA
GLADSTONE GALLERY
152 WOOSTER ST. N.Y. N.Y. 10012

Robert Beauchamp
New Paintings / November 5-December 7



Untitled, 1983. Oil on canvas, 47¾ x 47¾ in.

Monique Knowlton
153 Mercer, New York, N.Y. 10012 · (212) 431-8808



ROBERTO JUAREZ
"Sweet Sweat," 1983
Color woodcut
36 × 36 inches
Edition of 25

Diane Villani EDITIONS
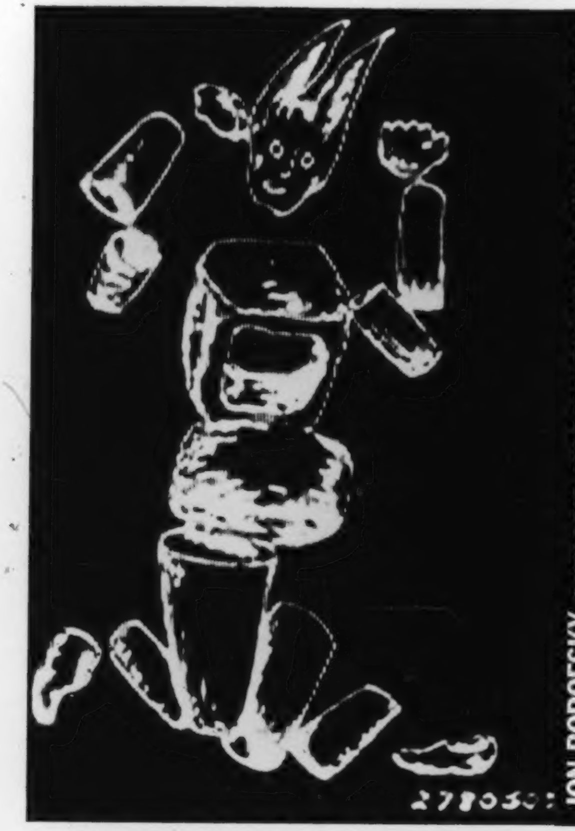
271 Mulberry Street, New York 10012
telephone: (212) 925-1075

Nancy Spero
THROUGH NOVEMBER 17

Harriet Korman
NOVEMBER 19 THROUGH DECEMBER 24

Willard Gallery
29 EAST 72 STREET, NEW YORK 744-2925

VOL 71 ISS 10 NO 1983 UMI



JON BOROFSKY 5 NOV-3 DEC PAULA COOPER GALLERY 155 WOOSTER NEW YORK

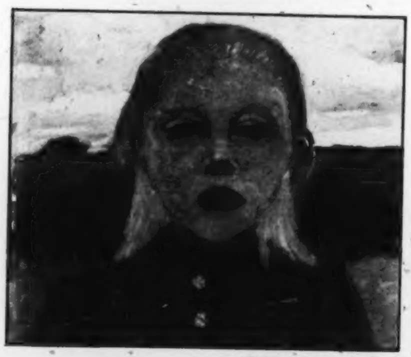
Still from 'Man in Space' Videotape #2 1982-83 ½" Cassette videotape, black and white

---

November 15—January 7

Paula Modersohn-Becker

Germany's Pioneer Modernist



Girl in Landscape. 1901.

Her first major American showing, including loans from museums and private collections in Germany and the United States.

Organized with the cooperation of Lufthansa German Airlines.

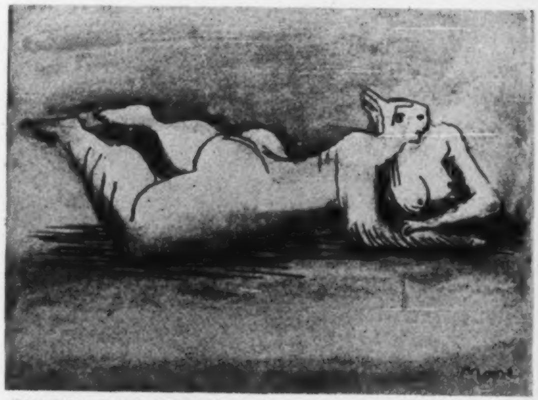
Illustrated catalogue $15 (post. incl.) Detailed checklist available on request.

Galerie St. Etienne

24 W. 57th St. NYC 10019
(212) 245-6734 Tues.-Sat. 11-5

HENRY MOORE

Oct. 27—Nov. 30



SMALL SCULPTURE/DRAWINGS/PRINTS

Dolly Fiterman Gallery

Suite 238, Plymouth Bldg., Mpls., MN
(612) 370-8722

JAMESBROWN

October 29–November 26, 1983

Tony Shafrazi Gallery
163 Mercer Street
New York, NY

MARTIN DISLER

8 NOVEMBER–3 DECEMBER

MARIAN GOODMAN GALLERY
24 WEST 57TH STREET NEW YORK NY 10019 (212) 977-7160

Important Works by:

CORNELL
HOFMANN
HOPPER
KIEFER
MATISSE
RAUSCHENBERG

By appointment

VIVIAN HORAN
40 East 62nd Street
New York, NY 10021
212 935-1682

FRANK STELLA
NOVEMBER

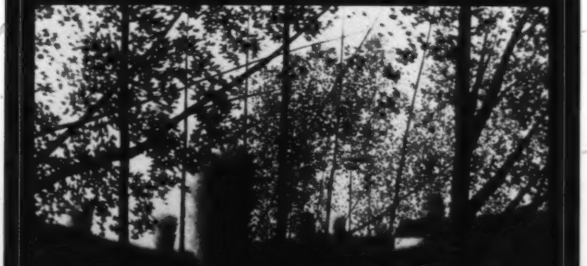
THE HARCUS GALLERY
7 NEWBURY STREET BOSTON, MA 02116 617•262•4445

BILL BARRETTE
NOV 1–26

LEILA TAGHINIA-MILANI
1080 MADISON AVE., N.Y., N.Y. 10028 (212) 570-6173
HOURS: TUES–SAT, 11–6 PM

VOL
7
1
ISS
1 0
N O
1983
UMI

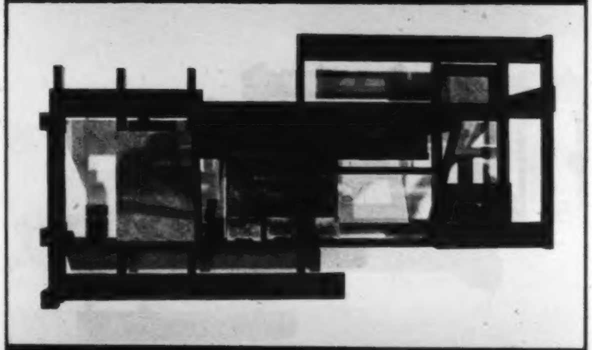
MILO REICE
NOV. 1–26
BARBARA TOLL
FINE ARTS
146 GREENE ST.
NEW YORK 10012
212 431-1788



ROBERT KIPNISS
Recent Paintings
November 8 – December 10

PAYSON · WEISBERG
822 Madison NYC 212 249-1666

JEFFREY BROSK
RECENT WALL SCULPTURES



TEXAS NIGHT, 1983
TILE, SLATE, WOOD CONCRETE AND BRICK, 17¼" x 26¾" x 51¾"

NOVEMBER 17 TO DECEMBER 17
MAX HUTCHINSON GALLERY
138 GREENE STREET NEW YORK, NY 10012 212-966-3066

PAINTINGS AND WORKS ON PAPER

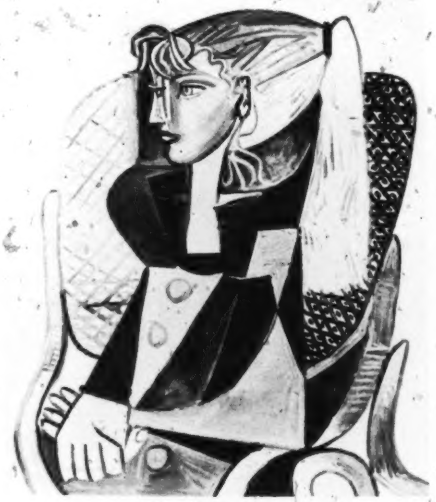
FRIEDEL DZUBAS
HELEN FRANKENTHALER
ROBERT MOTHERWELL
KENNETH NOLAND
FRANK STELLA

LESLIE FEELY
NEW YORK

BY APPOINTMENT ONLY
212 737-4989

ACQUAVELLA GALLERIES, Inc.

19TH & 20TH Century
Master Paintings Exhibition
November 3–December 3, 1983



Portrait of Sylvette David, 1954. by PABLO PICASSO. Oil on canvas. 32 x 39½ inches.

Monday-Saturday 10-5 P.M. Full color Catalogue $6.50

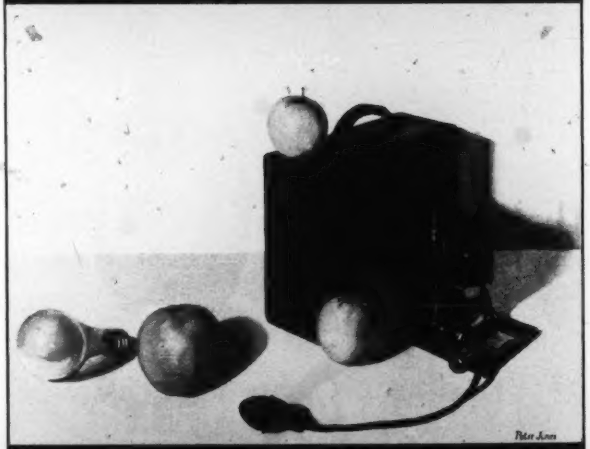
18 East 79th Street, New York, N.Y. 10022 212 • 734-6300

TERENCE LA NOUE

PAINTINGS AND
WORKS ON PAPER, 1981–1983
25 OCTOBER–19 NOVEMBER

SIEGEL
CONTEMPORARY ART
24 WEST 57 STREET NYC 10019 (212) 586-0605

A.M. ADLER FINE ARTS, INC.



"Camera" Oil on canvas, 18 x 24"

PETER JONES

NOVEMBER 12 – DECEMBER 10

21 East 67th Street · NY 10021 · (212) 249-2450
Tuesday – Saturday, 10-5

JOSEPH HASKE

RECENT PAINTINGS

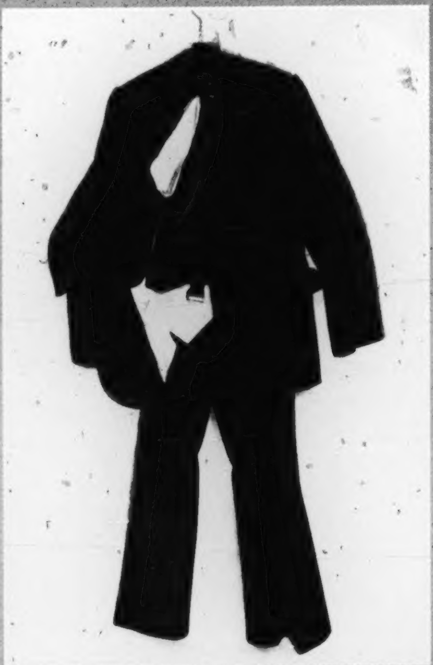
NOVEMBER

OSCARSSON HOOD
GALLERY 41 W 57 NYC
10019 (212) 750-8640

VOL
71
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI

Santiago Cárdenas

November 19 – December 17



RACHEL ADLER GALLERY
58 EAST 79 STREET NEW YORK, NY 10021 TEL 212-831-3824

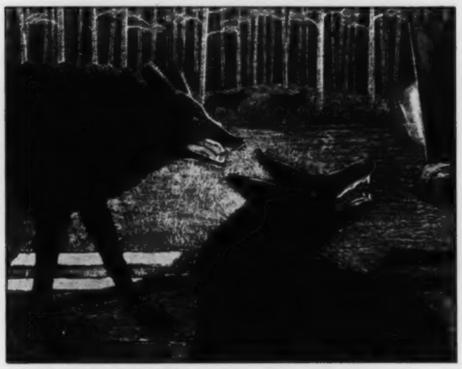
ROY LICHTENSTEIN, Two Red and Yellow Apples, 1981 24 x 28", oil and magna on canvas

THE GREENBERG GALLERY

44 MARYLAND PLAZA ST. LOUIS, MO. 63108 (314) 361-7600

JAMES PINK

New Paintings—Nov. 18 - Jan. 5



Wolf Attack 1983
acrylic & graphite on board 36" x 48"

ZOLLA/LIEBERMAN GALLERY

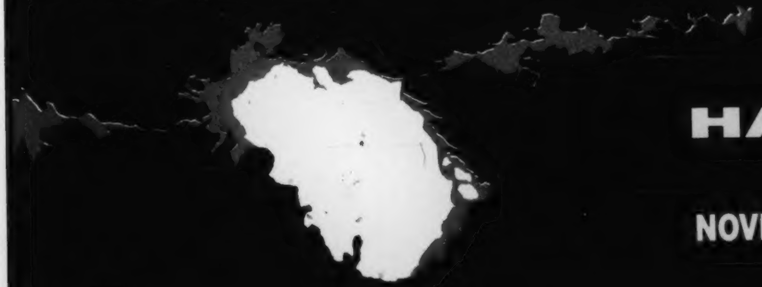
356 W. Huron Chicago 60610 312/944-1990

1963
1983
20

Richard Gray Gallery

620 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago, IL 60611 · Tel. 642-8877

Detail: I Still Love You 1983 acrylic, gold leaf, velvet on canvas



HAMANAKA

NOVEMBER

Exclusive Representation PORTICO 902 Spruce Street Philadelphia PA 19107 215 627-8089 Telex 831389

GRAHAM MARKS

NOVEMBER 12 - DECEMBER 10, 1983

HELEN DRUTT

HELEN DRUTT GALLERY
305 CHERRY STREET
PHILADELPHIA, PA 19106
(215) 735-1625

Earthenware, 34 h" x 32" x 33"

ROTHENBERG LANE HUMPHREY
GRAVES PRICE LEDOUX LOBE
KORMAN SHEA WIZON THORNE
OCTOBER 28-DECEMBER 6
FAY GOLD GALLERY 3221 CAINS HILL PLACE ATLANTA GA 404 233 3843
SURVEY OF FRENCH PHOTOGRAPHY
SOUTHERN FOLK ARTISTS

George Rickey

November 15–December 24

Maxwell Davidson Gallery

43 East 78 Street New York 212 734-6702

VOL
71
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI

HELMUT
MIDDENDORF

Drawings and Paintings

Gallery Silvia Menzel
Niebuhrstrasse 69 1000 Berlin 12
Tel. 49 (30) 324 19 20

New Gallery
In Washington
Brody's Gallery
Dupont
Circle
Area
Fine
Prints

Oct. 25–Nov. 26
German Expressions
Baselitz Kirkeby
Höckelmann Lüpertz
Immendorff Penck

Nov. 29–Dec. 31
Two Views of Nature
Pearlstein Welliver

To be added to our mailing list send your name and address to Dept. AM-11

10–5:30 Tues–Sat (202) 462-4747
2031 Florida Ave NW (Conn & S) Washington, D.C. 20009

GALERIE MICHAEL WERNER
BASELITZ
BYARS
IMMENDORFF
KIRKEBY
LÜPERTZ
A.R.PENCK
D—5000KÖLN—1—
GERTRUDENSTR. 24/28 T.210661

JEAN BERNIER
51 MARASLI, ATHENS 140 GREECE. TEL. 723 5657

STEPHEN ANTONAKOS

NOVEMBER 7 - DECEMBER 3, 1983

Art In Germany

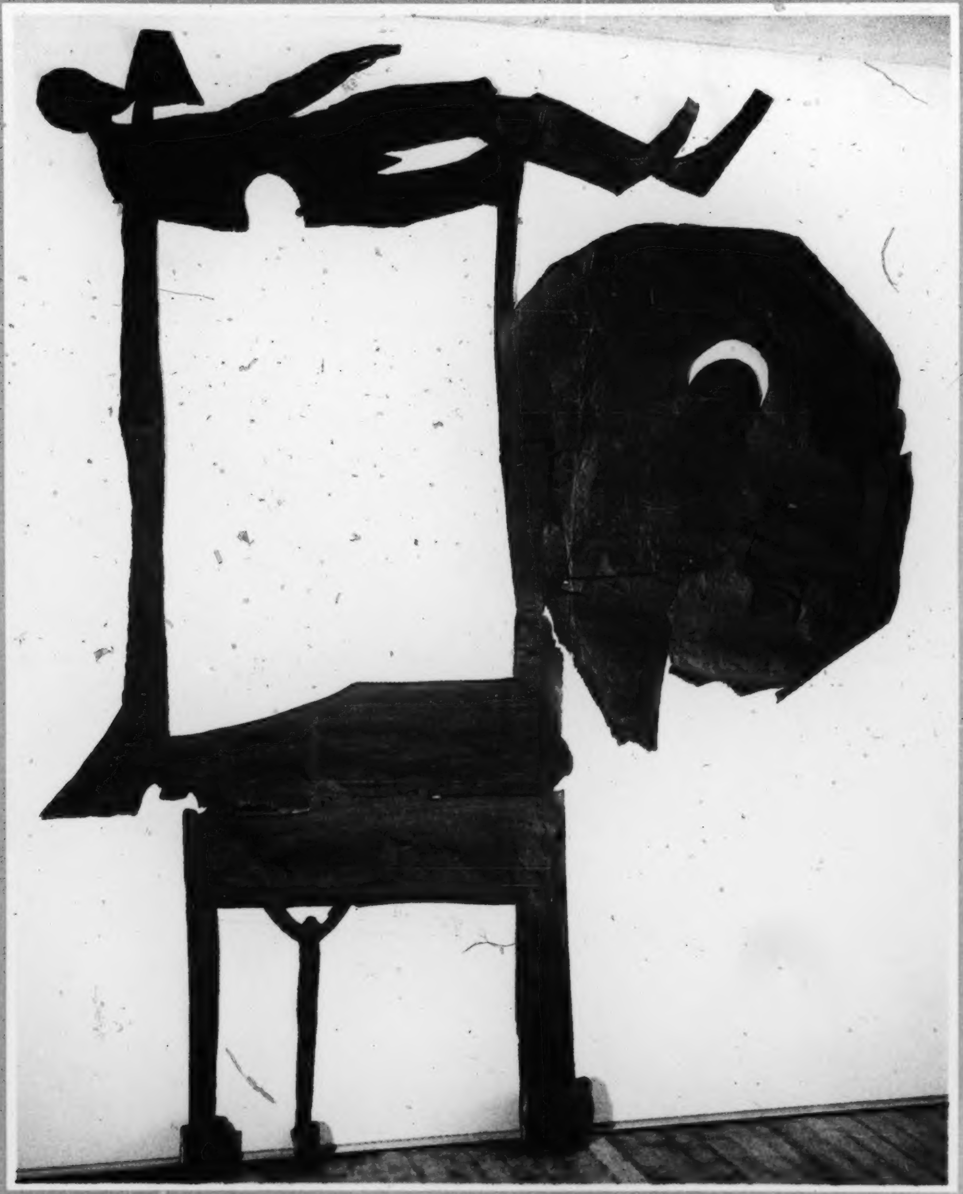
ARTISTS • SIEGFRIED ANZINGER • ELVIRA BACH • GEORG BASELITZ
MICHAEL BUTHE • JOSEPH BEUYS • PETER CHEVALIER • JAMES COLLINS • WALTER DAHN
FELIX DROESE • RAINER FETTING • HELEN FRANKENTHALER • W. GIES • ROBERT HELM
ERNST HERMANNS • K.H. HODICKE • WASSILY KANDINSKY • ERNST LUDWIG KIRCHNER
ANSELM KIEFER • PER KIRKEBY • YVES KLEIN • BERND KOBERLING • HELMUT MIDDENDORF
E.W. NAY • MERET OPPENHEIM • PAVLOS • WOLFGANG PETRICK • NORBERT PRANGENBERG
ARNULF RAINER • SALOMÉ • CY TWOMBLY • GUNTHER UECKER • JAN VOSS

GALLERIES • GALERIE + EDITION A • JEAN BERNIER • BUNDESVERBAND DEUTSCHER GALERIEN
ASCAN CRONE • GALERIE HEIKE CURTZE • ANTHONY d'OFFAY • GALLERY 44 • XAVIER FOURCADE
GALERIE GMYREK • KARSTEN GREVE • GALERIE HEINZ HERZER • GALERIE CATHERINE ISSERT
GALERIE JURKA • M. KNOEDLER ZURICH • GALERIE KRINZINGER • GALERIE LEVY • GALERIE ADRIEN MAEGHT
MARIAN GOODMAN • PAUL MAENZ • VERA MUNRO • GALERIE NEHER • GALERIE NEUENDORF
GALERIE ORANGERIE REINZ • GALERIE POLL • RAAB GALERIE • GALERIE RECKERMANN
HANS REDMANN • GALERIE SIX FRIEDRICH • GALERIE FOLKER SKULIMA
HOLLY SOLOMON GALLERY • GALERIE THOMAS • EDWARD TOTAH GALLERY • HELEN VAN DER MEIJ
GALERIE WENTZEL • GALERIE MICHAEL WERNER • GALERIE RUDOLF ZWIRNER

Art in America

A Special Advertising Supplement, November '83

VOL
71
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI

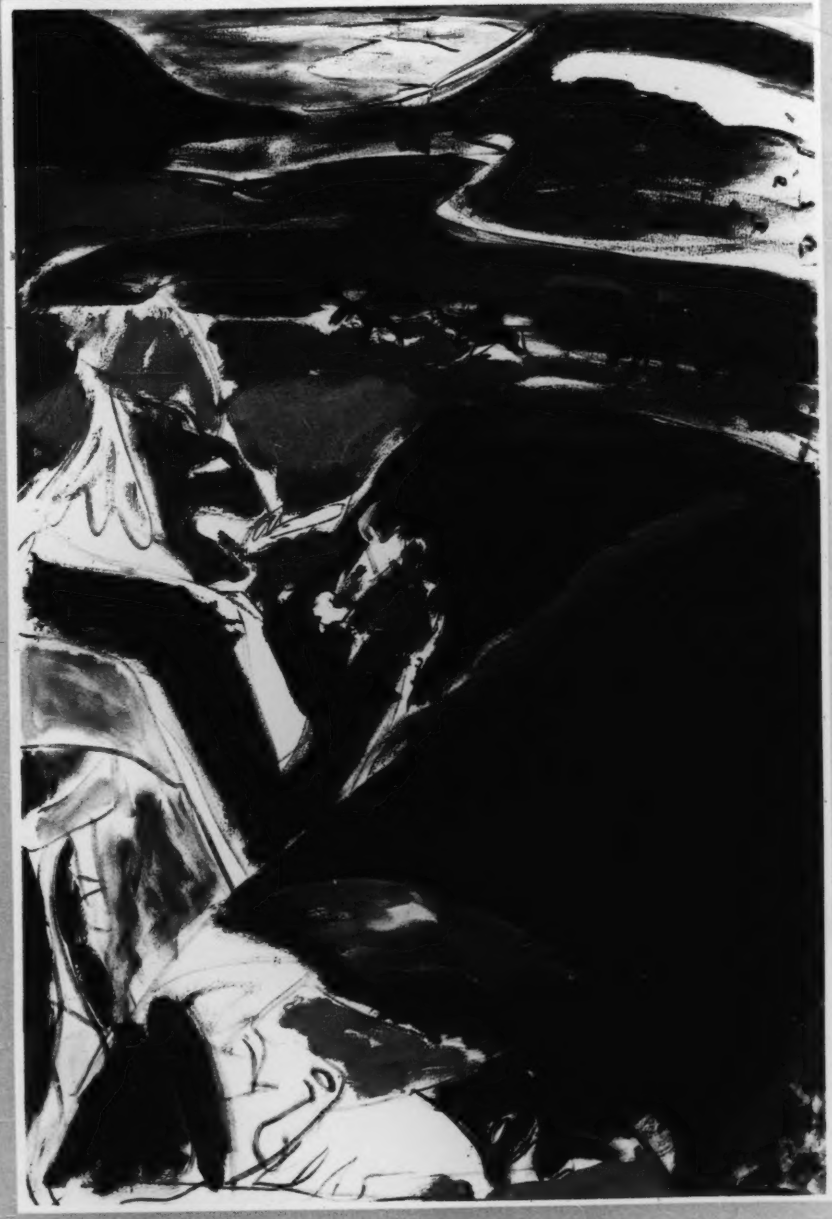


FELIX DROESE

"Hole." Papercut. 1980. 512 cm. x 273 cm.
Ahearn Baselitz Borofsky Büttner Dahn
Droese Hitzler Immendorff Kiefer Kippenberger Oehlen Penone Penck Robbins Winters

GALERIE RUDOLF ZWIRNER

ALBERTUSSTRASSE 18, D-5000 COLOGNE 1. TEL. (221) 235837
BISMARCKSTRASSE 50, D-5000 COLOGNE 1. TEL. (221) 235837



K.H. HÖDICKE

"Tjuonajokk-Symphonie." 1978/79. Acrylic on canvas. 190 x 130 cm.

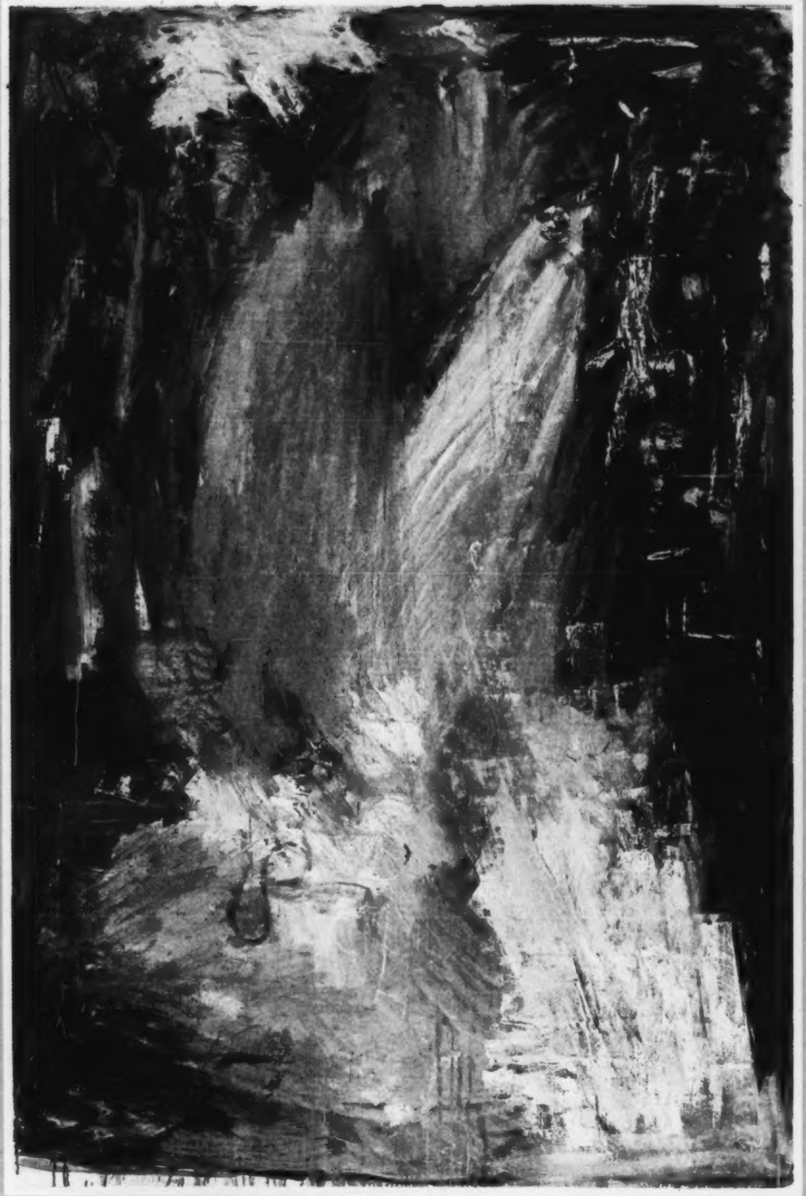
GALERIE FOLKER SKULIMA

NIEBUHRSTRASSE 2, 1000 BERLIN 12. TEL. (30) 881 82 80/881 66 44

VOL
71
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI



PER KIRKEBY

"Untitled." 1978. Oil on canvas. 207 x 140 cm. December 1, 1983 - January 21, 1984
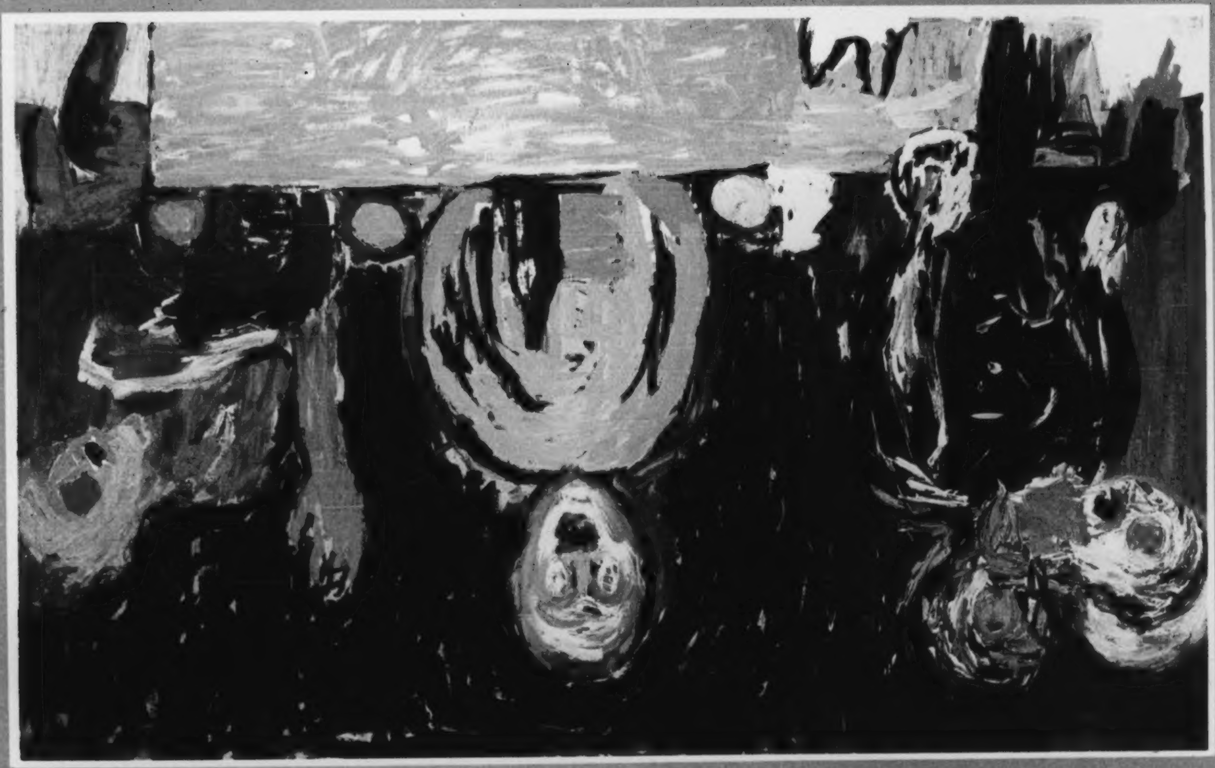
Exhibition with works on paper.

ASCAN CRONE
ISESTR. - 121, D-2000 HAMBURG 13. TEL. (40) 47 42 94



GEORG BASELITZ

Nachtessen in Dresden (Dinner in Dresden). Oil on canvas. 9'2" x 14'9" (280 x 450 cm.)

XAVIER FOURCADE INC.

36 EAST 75TH STREET, NEW YORK, NEW YORK 10021 TEL. (212) 535-3980

VOL
7
1
ISS
1 0
N O
1983
UMI

HELEN FRANKENTHALER

"Thicket." 1977. Oil on canvas. 83 ⅛" x 69 ¾", 211 x 117 cm.

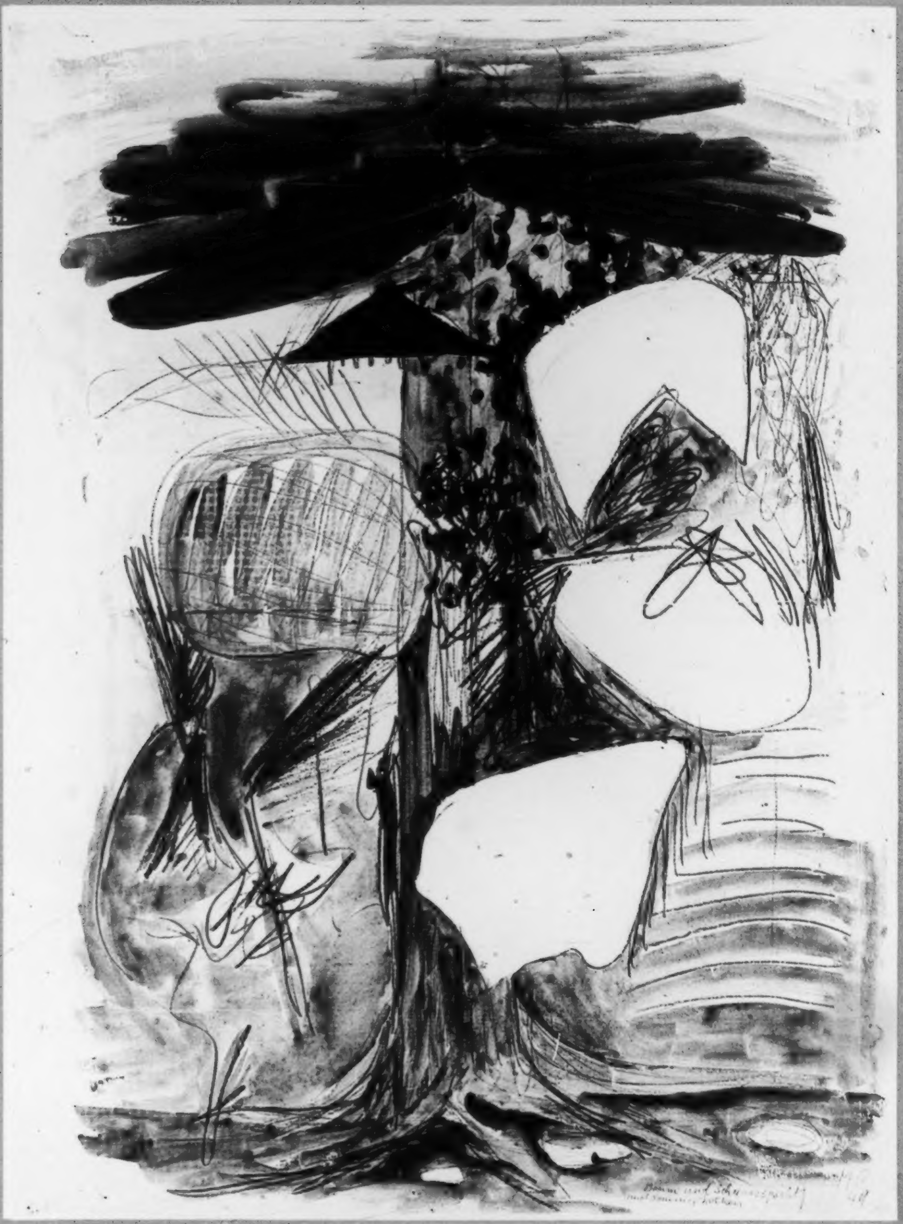
GALERIE WENTZEL
BOGISLAV V. WENTZEL, ST.-APERN-STR. 26, D-5000 COLOGNE 1 TEL. (221) 24 2400



MERET OPPENHEIM

"Baum und Schwarzspecht und Sommerwolke." 1949. Watercolor, pencil, chalk. 68 x 51 cm.
Exclusive representation of the artist Meret Oppenheim. Bellmer, Blais, Botero, Brauner, Bravo, Dominguez, Dali, Delvaux, Gnoli, Jaume, Lodenkämper,
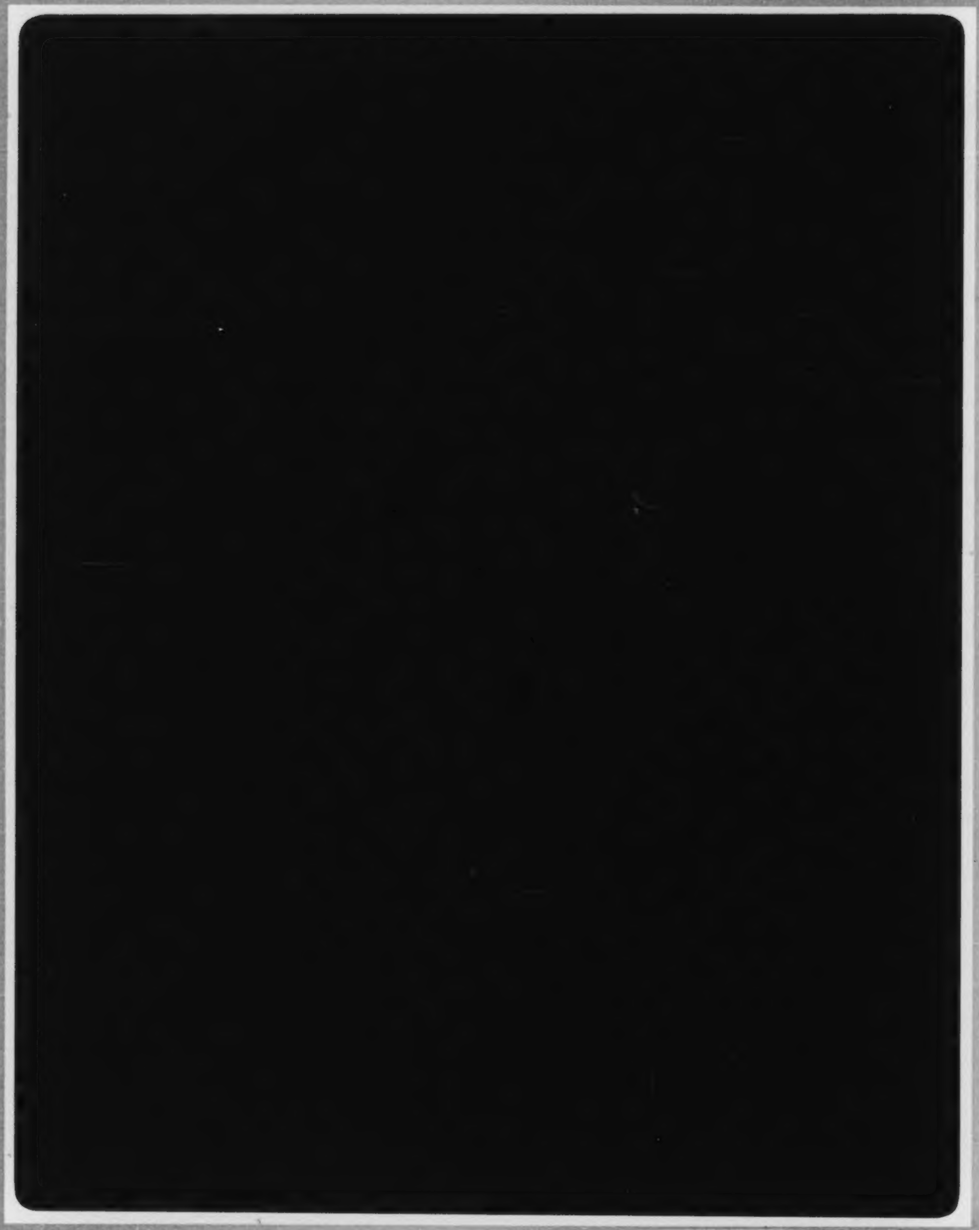
Masson Mitoraj, Moore, Oppenheim, Poliakoff, Toral, Wunderlich

GALERIE LEVY

BOHMERSWEG 24, 2000 HAMBURG 13. TEL. (40) 45 91 88

VOL
7 1
ISS
1 0
N O
1983
UMI



YVES KLEIN

Monochrome bleu, 1960. 92 x 73 cm., signed and dated. Wember-book IKB 170, page 75

AGAM, ARMAN, BURY, CASTELLANI, FONTANA, GRAUBNER, YVES KLEIN, MACK, MANZONI, PIENE, ROTH, SCHOONHOVEN, UECKER

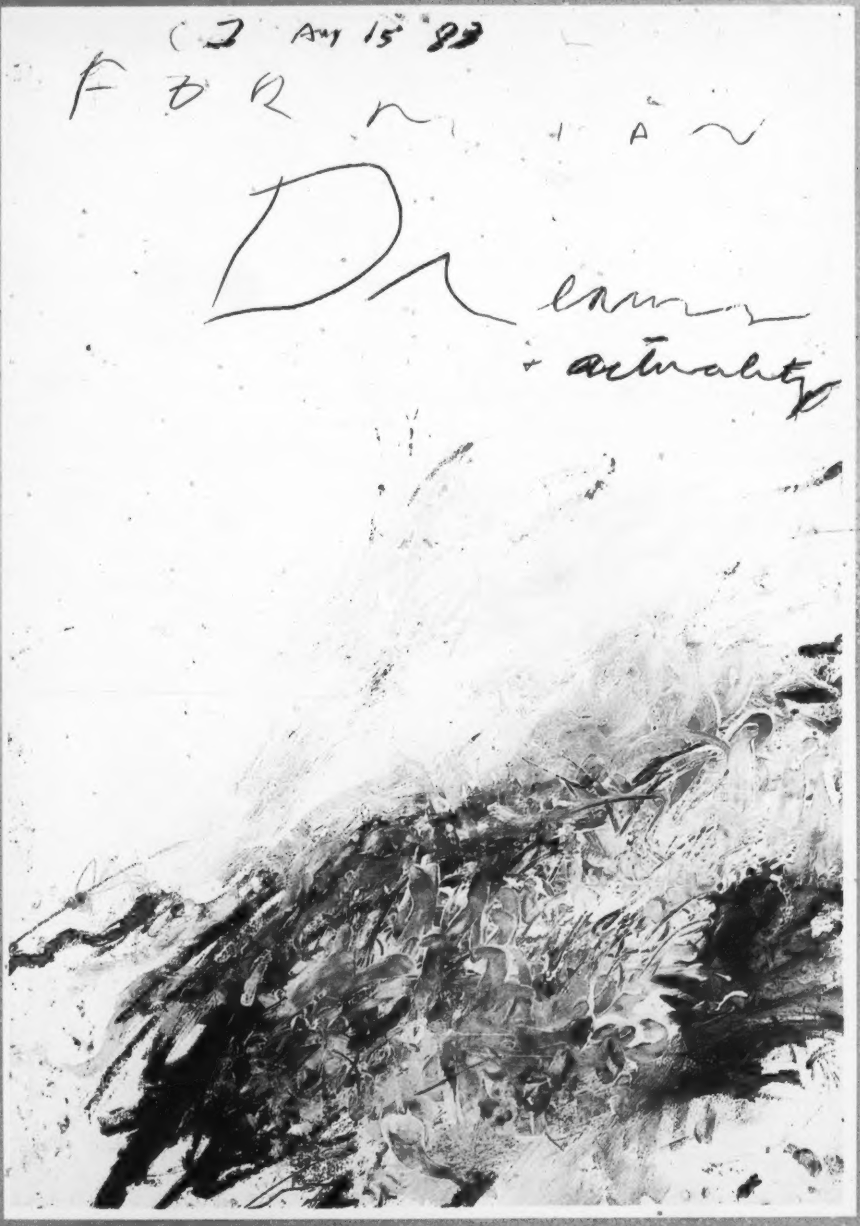
GALLERY 44

HASSELSTRASSE 60, 4044 KAARST 2. TEL. (2101) 64723 / (211) 621 9214-215



(2 Aug 15 '83
FORMIAN
Dreams
+ actuality

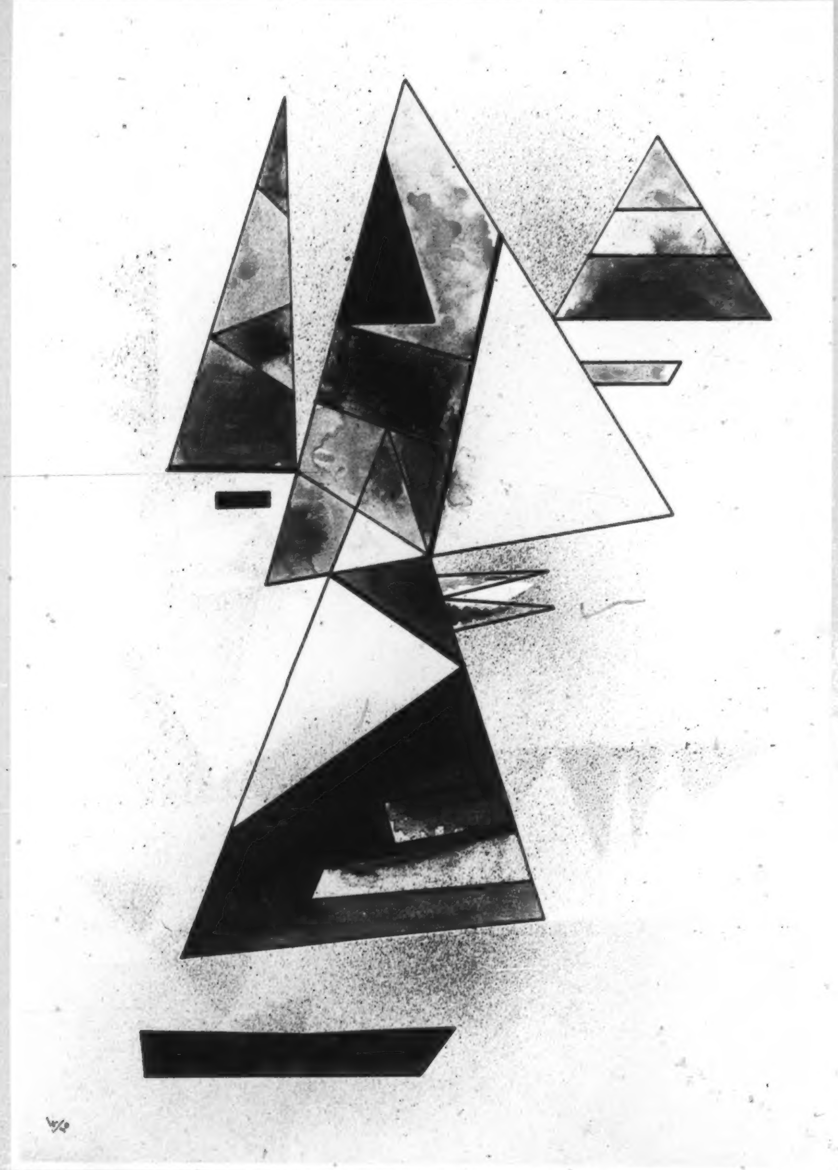
CY TWOMBLY

"Formian Dreams + Actuality," Aug. 15, 1983. Oil and crayon on paper. 100 x 70 cm. Catalogue available.

KARSTEN GREVE

WALLRAFPLATZ 3, 5000 COLOGNE 1. TEL. (221) 21 39 21

VOL
71
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI



WASSILY KANDINSKY

Komposition, 1930. Watercolor on paper. 47.5 x 33 cm. Signed and dated. Dedicated to Gropius on reverse.

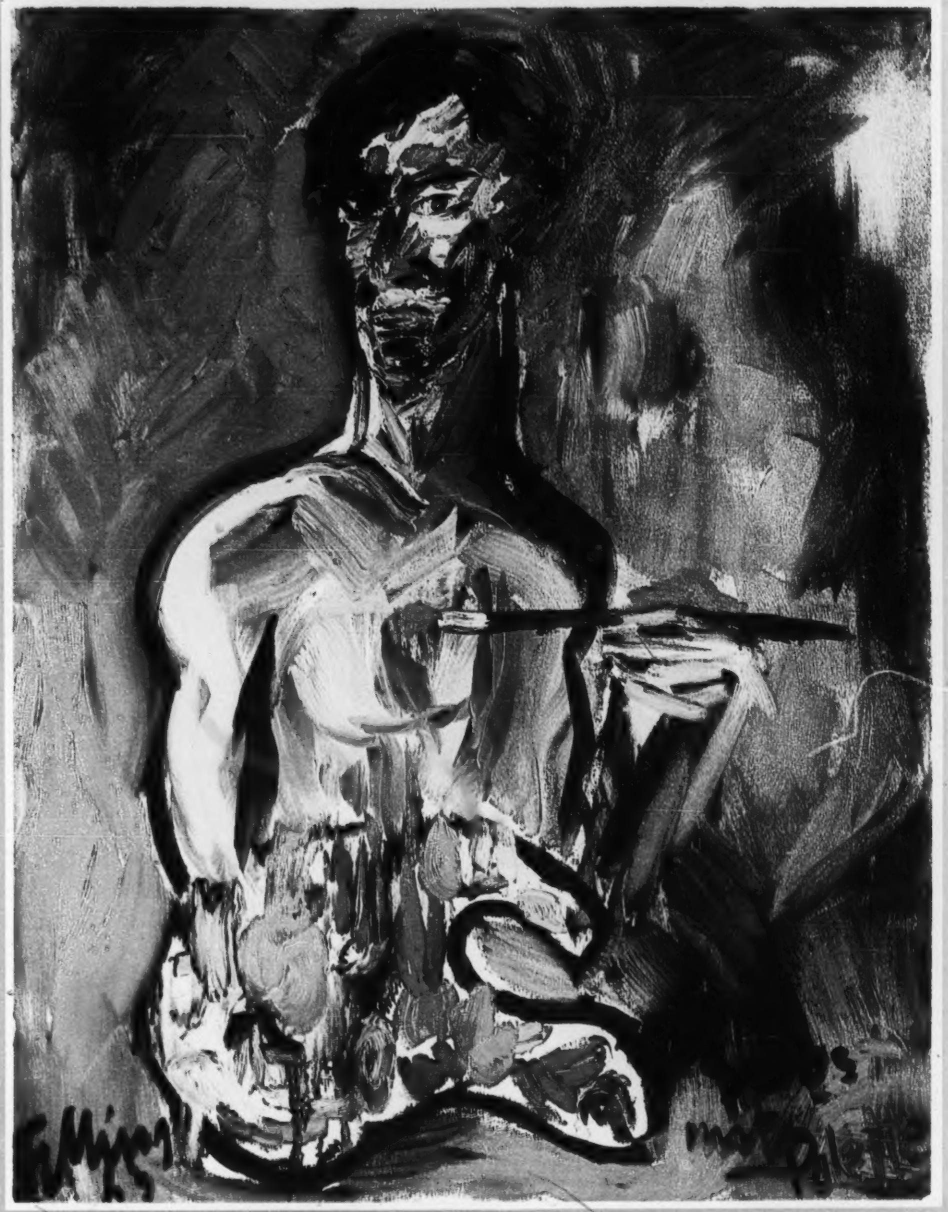
GALERIE THOMAS

MAXIMILIANSTRASSE 25, 8000 MUNICH 22. TEL. (89) 29 55 17 / 22 27 41



RAINER FETTING

"Self-Portrait with Palette," 1983. Oil on canvas, 155 x 120 cm.

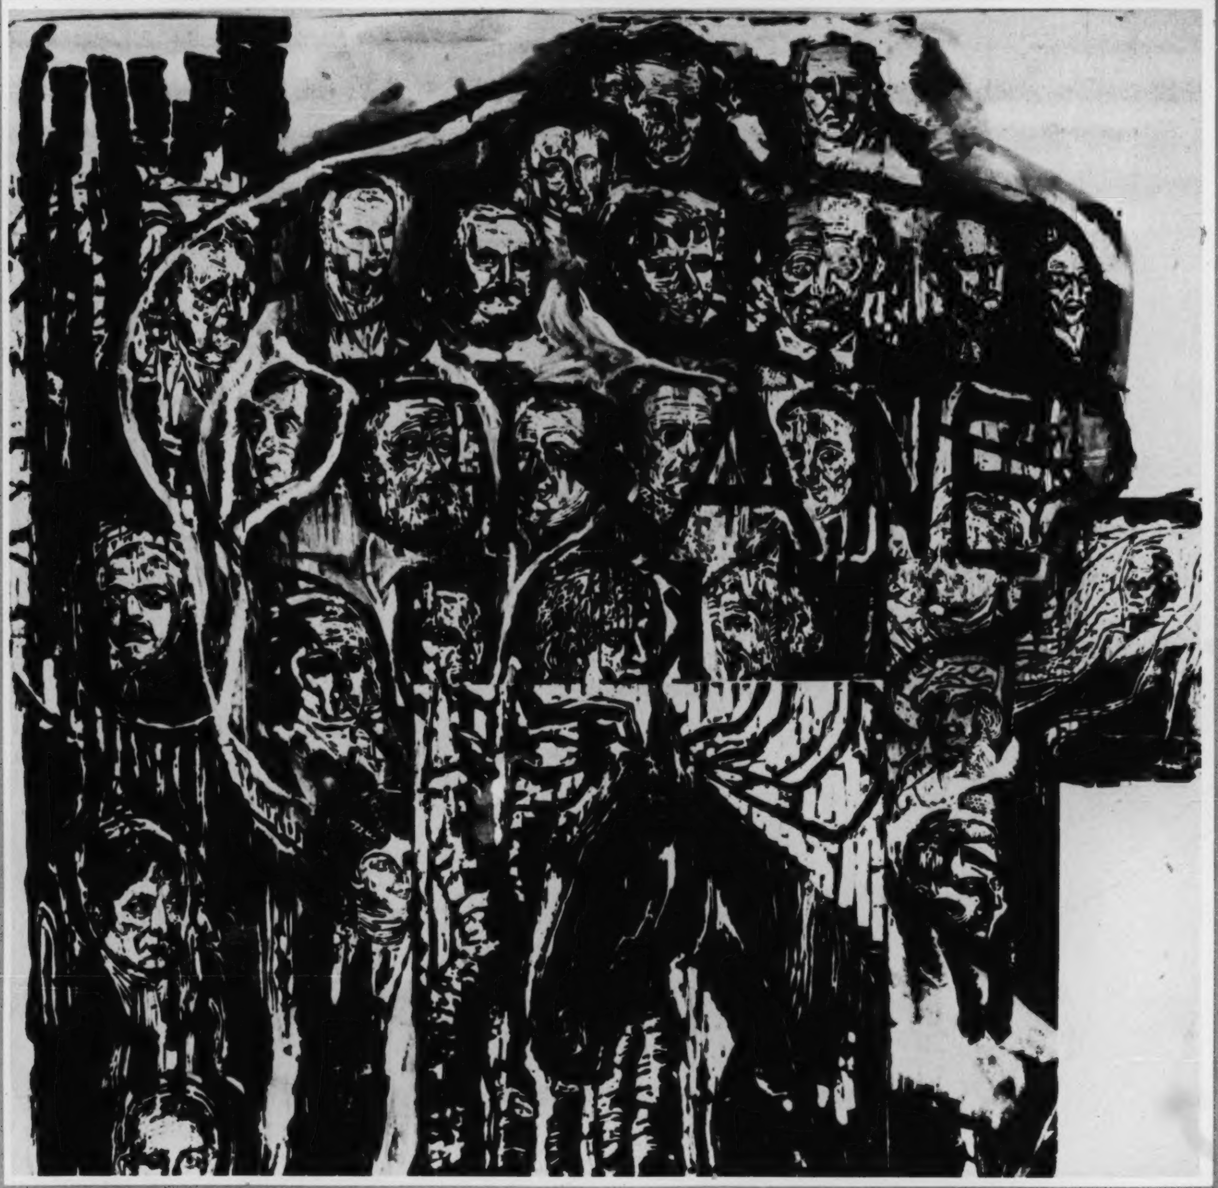
RAINER GALERIE

POTSDAMER STRASSE 58, 1000 BERLIN 30. TEL. (30) 261 60 98

VOL
71
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI



ANSELM KIEFER

"Grane." 1980. Woodcut. 220 cm. x 200 cm.

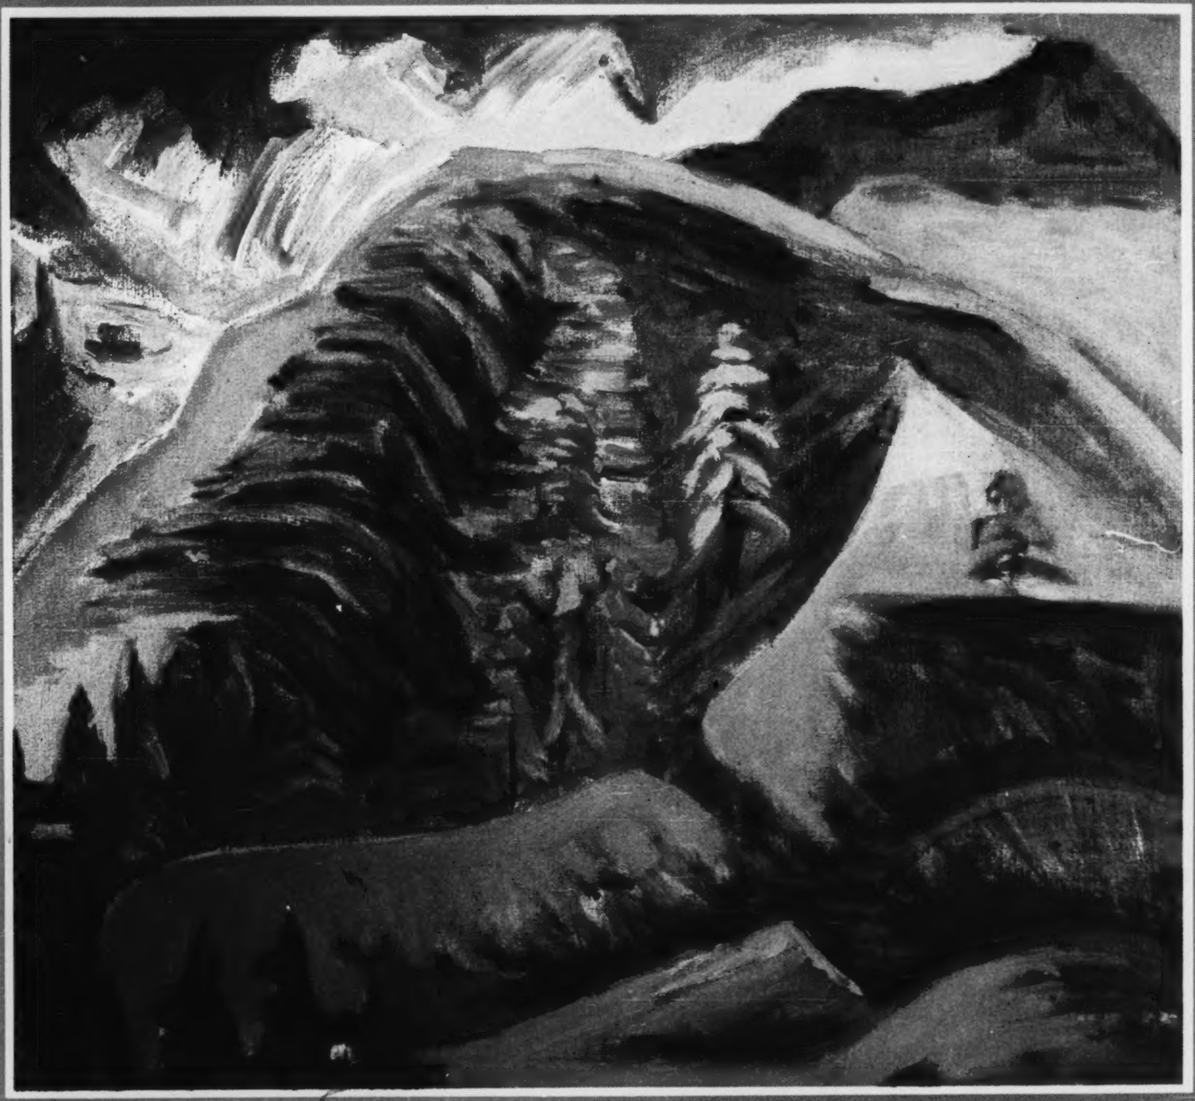
Exhibition 1984 at
MARIAN GOODMAN GALLERY
24 WEST 57 STREET, NEW YORK, NEW YORK 10019. TEL: (212) 977-7160



ERNST LUDWIG KIRCHNER

"Landscape in Green and Orange" 1919-20. Oil on canvas. 36 x 40 inches (17.8 x 16.05 cm.) Initials at upper right.
Gordon N° 594 Exhibition: "Focal Points" September 11-December 31, 1983.
20th Century German Masters. Catalogue with 60 color plates, DM 20.—on request.

GALERIE NEHER

RUTTENSCHEIDER STRASSE 75, 4300 ESSEN 1. TEL. (201) 78 20 71

VOL

71

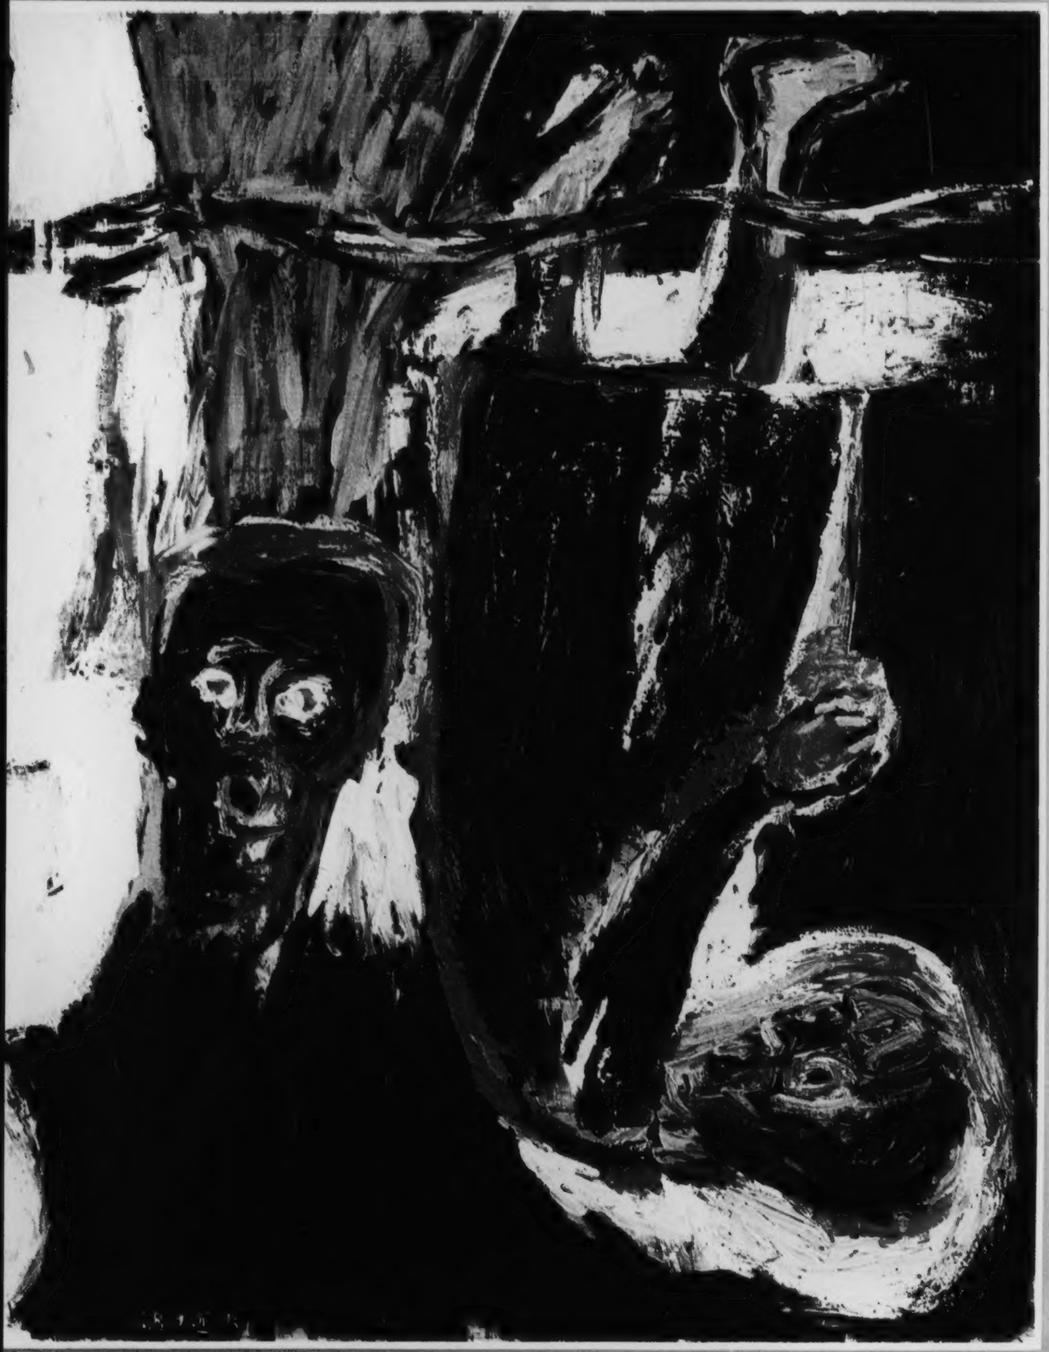
ISS

10

NO

1983

UMI



GEORG BASELITZ

"Bruckechor." 1983. Oil on canvas. 109" x 175".

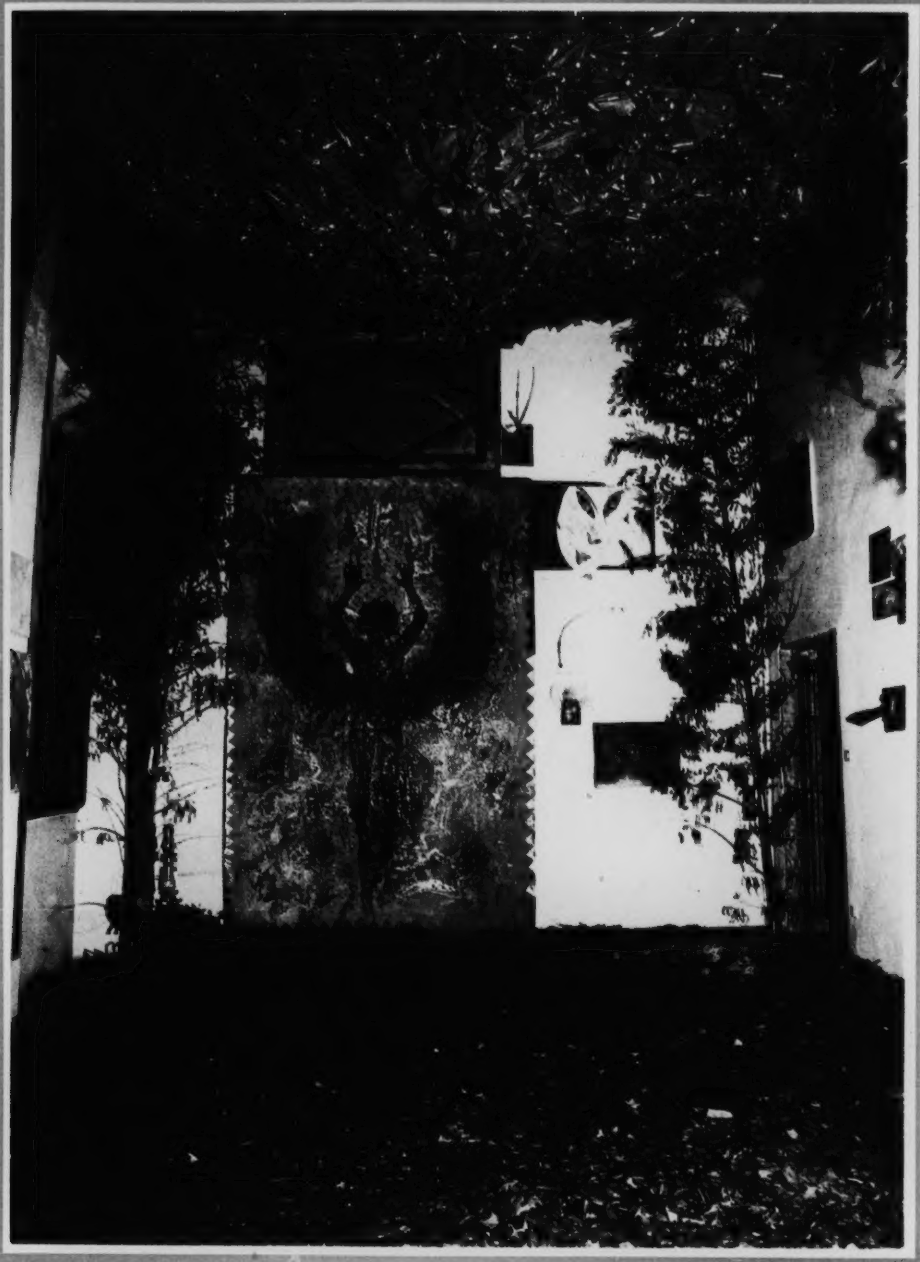
GALERIE MICHAEL WERNER

GERTRUDENSTRASSE 24/28, 5000 COLOGNE 1. TEL. (221) 21 06 61

VOL
7
1
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI

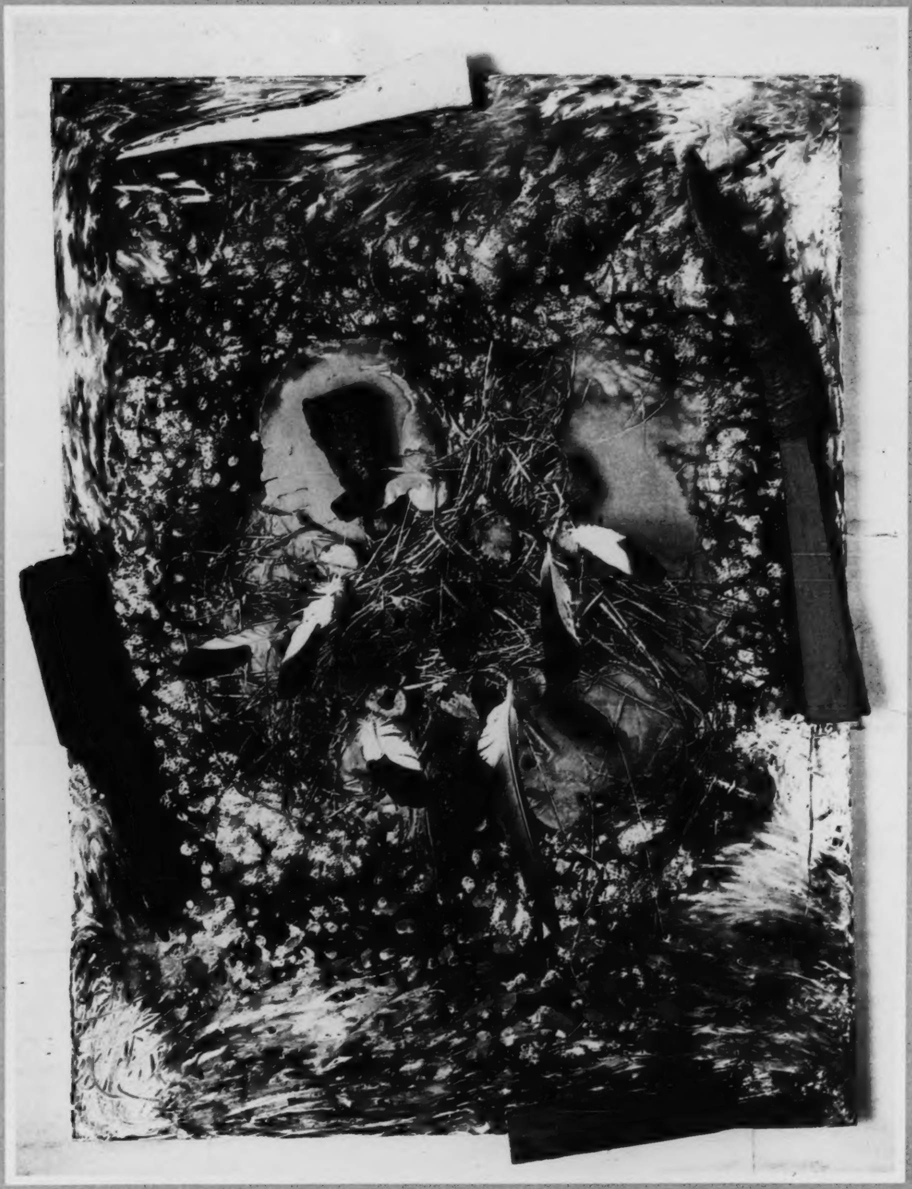


MICHAEL BUTHE

"Angel." 1982. Mixed media on paper/on canvas. 360 x 245 cm.

VERA MUNRO

BARMBEKER STRASSE 138, 2000 HAMBURG 60. TEL. 49 (40) 48 45 52



Paolo Mussat Sartor

MICHAEL BUTHE

"Four Seasons" 1980. Canvas, wax, mixed medias. 175 x 130 x 40 cm.

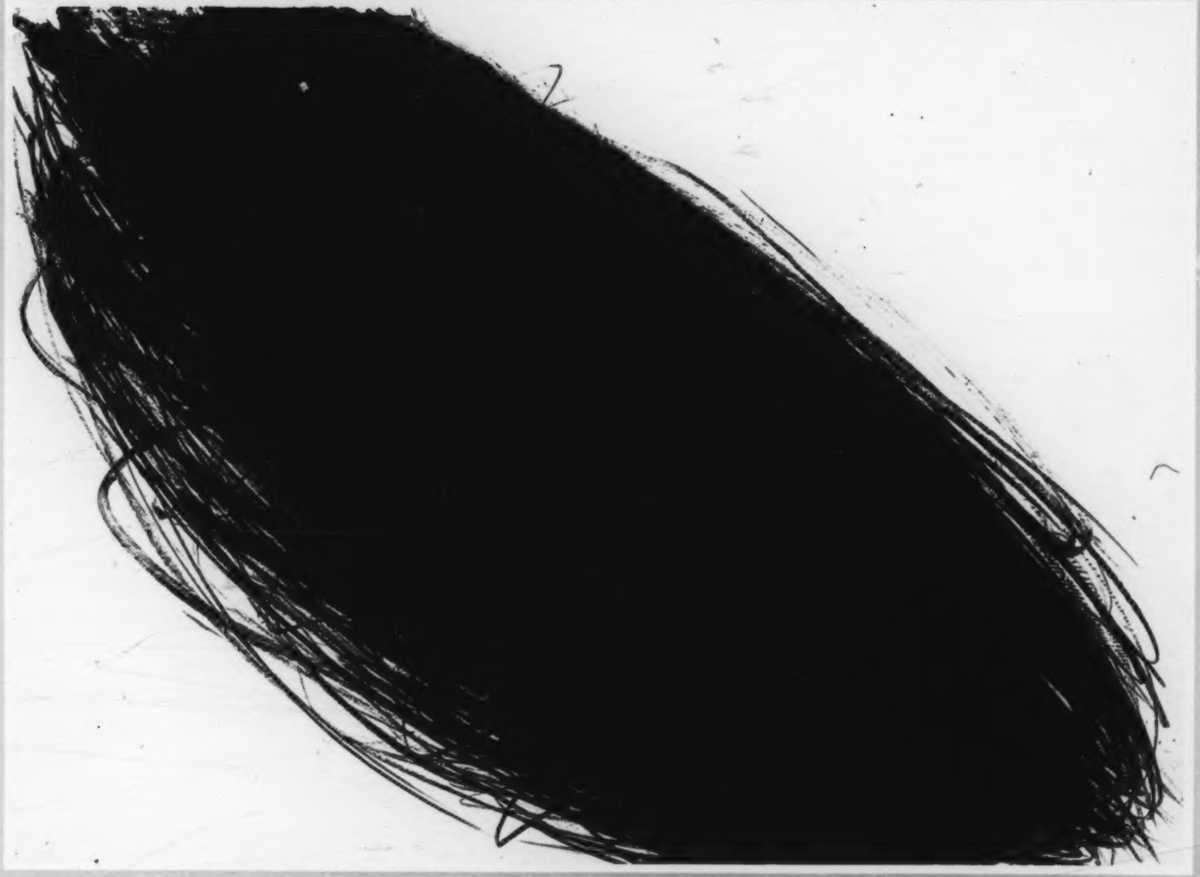
JEAN BERNIER

51 MARASLI, ATHENS 140. TEL. (1) 723 5857

VOL
7
1
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI



ARNULF RAINER

"Ubermalung." 1957/58. Oil on paper. 61 x 86 cm.

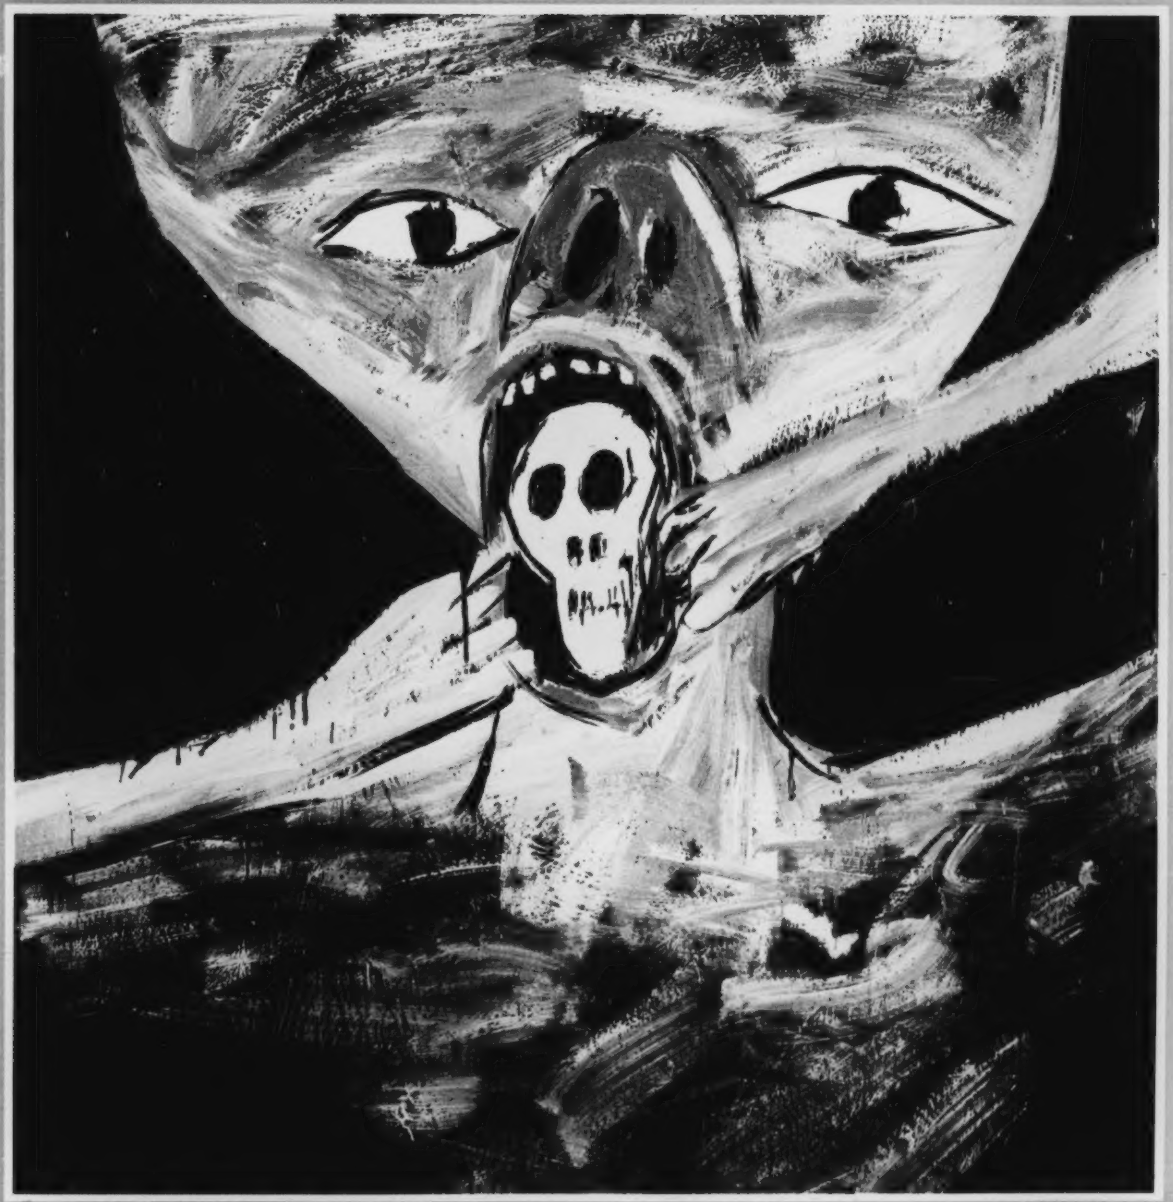
GALERIE HEIKE CURTZE

CITADELLSTRASSE 11, 4000 DUSSELDORF 1. TEL (211) 32 68 00
GRUNANGERGASSE 12, 1010 VIENNA. TEL. (222) 52 93 75



WALTER DAHN

"Asthma." 1982. Exhibition October-November 1983: Stedelijk Van Abbemuseum, Eindhoven.

PAUL MAENZ

BISMARCKSTRASSE 50, D-5000 KOLN 1. TEL. (221) 515088

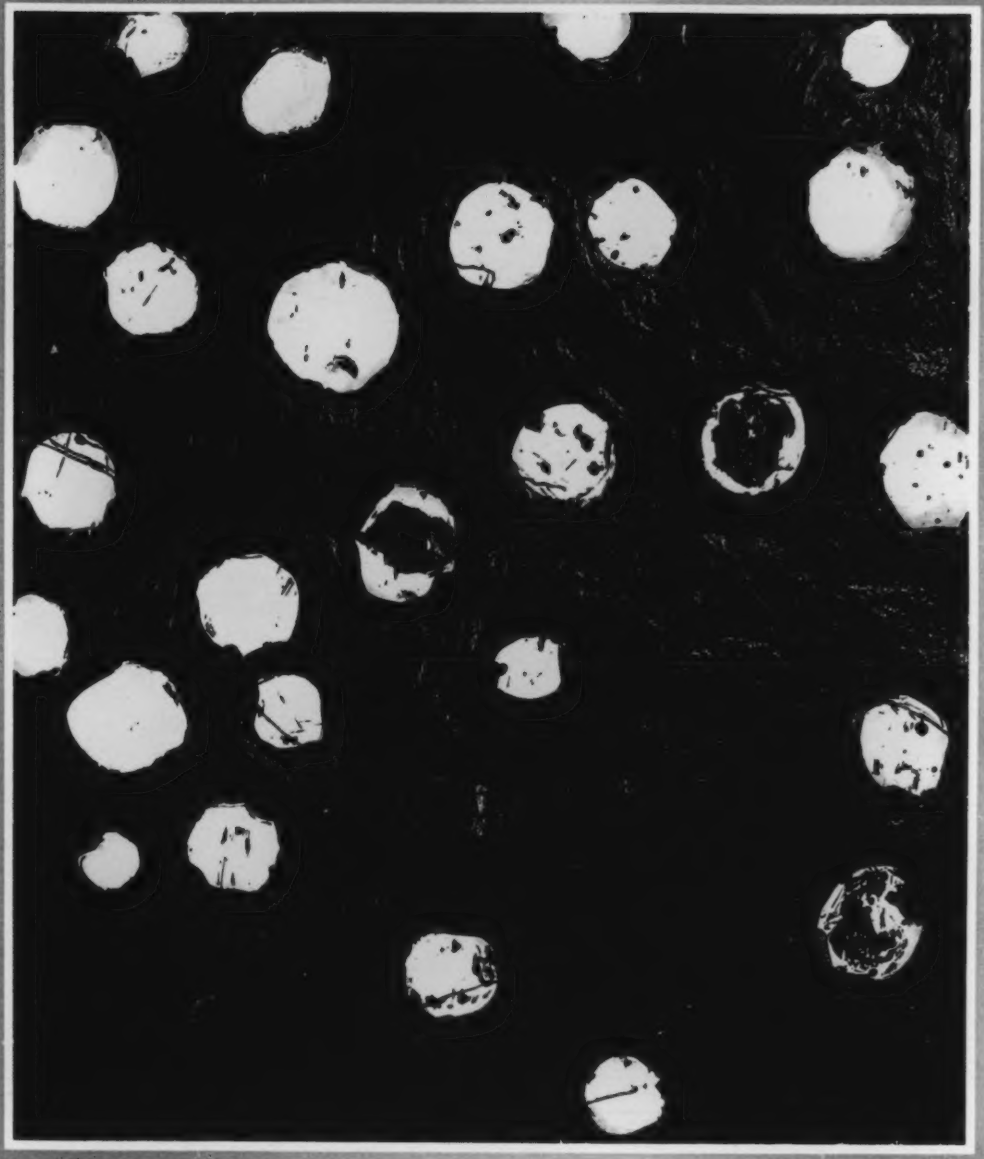
VOL
71

ISS
10

NO

1983

UMI



NORBERT PRANGENBERG

Untitled 1981. Ink, pencil and tempera on paper. 175 x 155 cm.

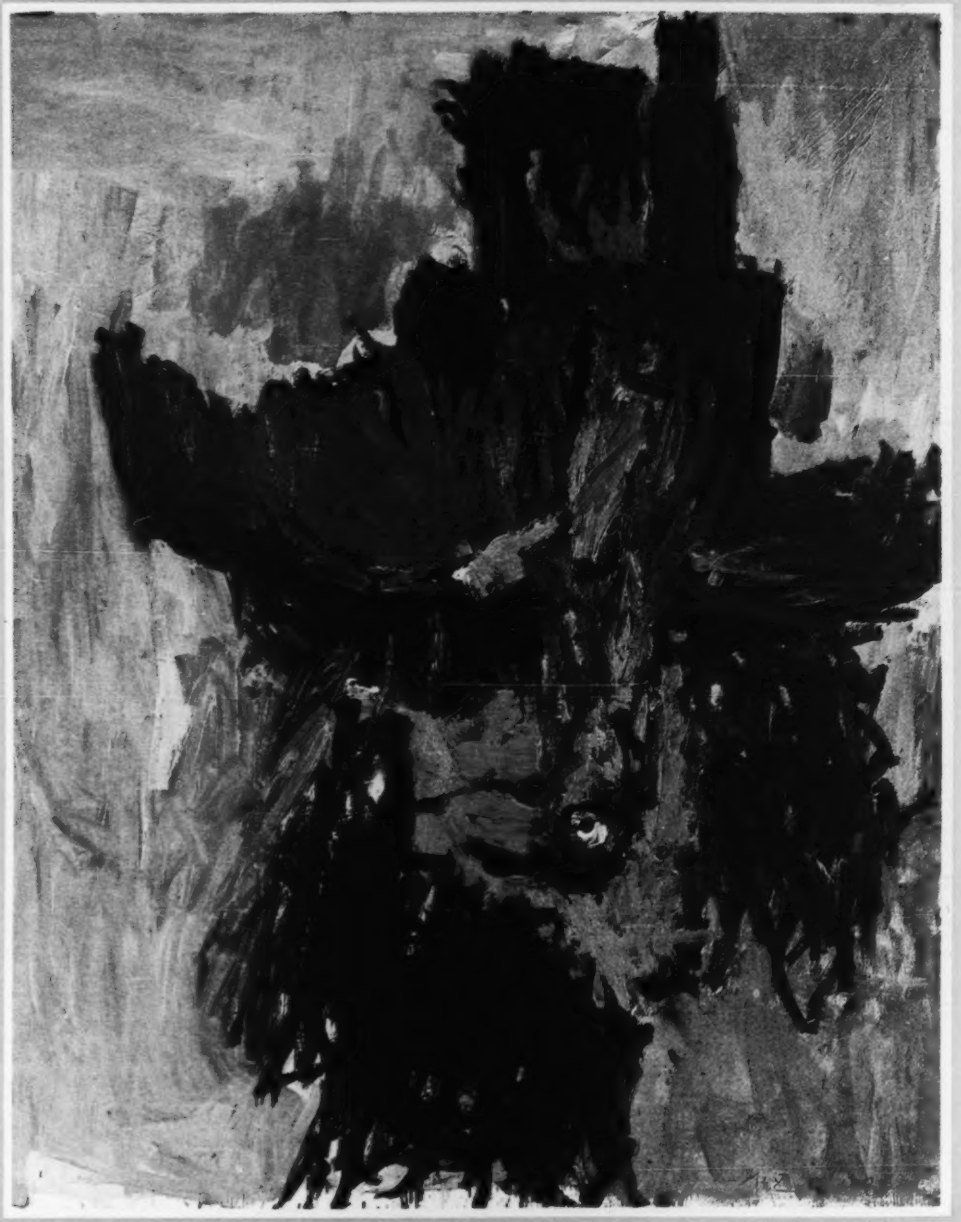
KARSTEN GREVE
WALLRAFPLATZ 3, 5000 COLOGNE 1. TEL. (221) 21 39 21



GEORG BASELITZ

"Adler" (Eagle), 17/12/1982. Oil on canvas. 250 x 200 cm.
Current exhibition, "Georg Baselitz—Drawings and Watercolors 1961-1983". All 53 artworks are reproduced in color in the first book on Baselitz's drawings which has been published in a signed edition limited to 850 copies; Price: $80. (+ $5.00 for overseas mail, prepaid).

GALERIE NEUENDORF

FELDSTRASSE, HOCHHAUS 1, 2000 HAMBURG 4. TEL. (40) 43 11 75

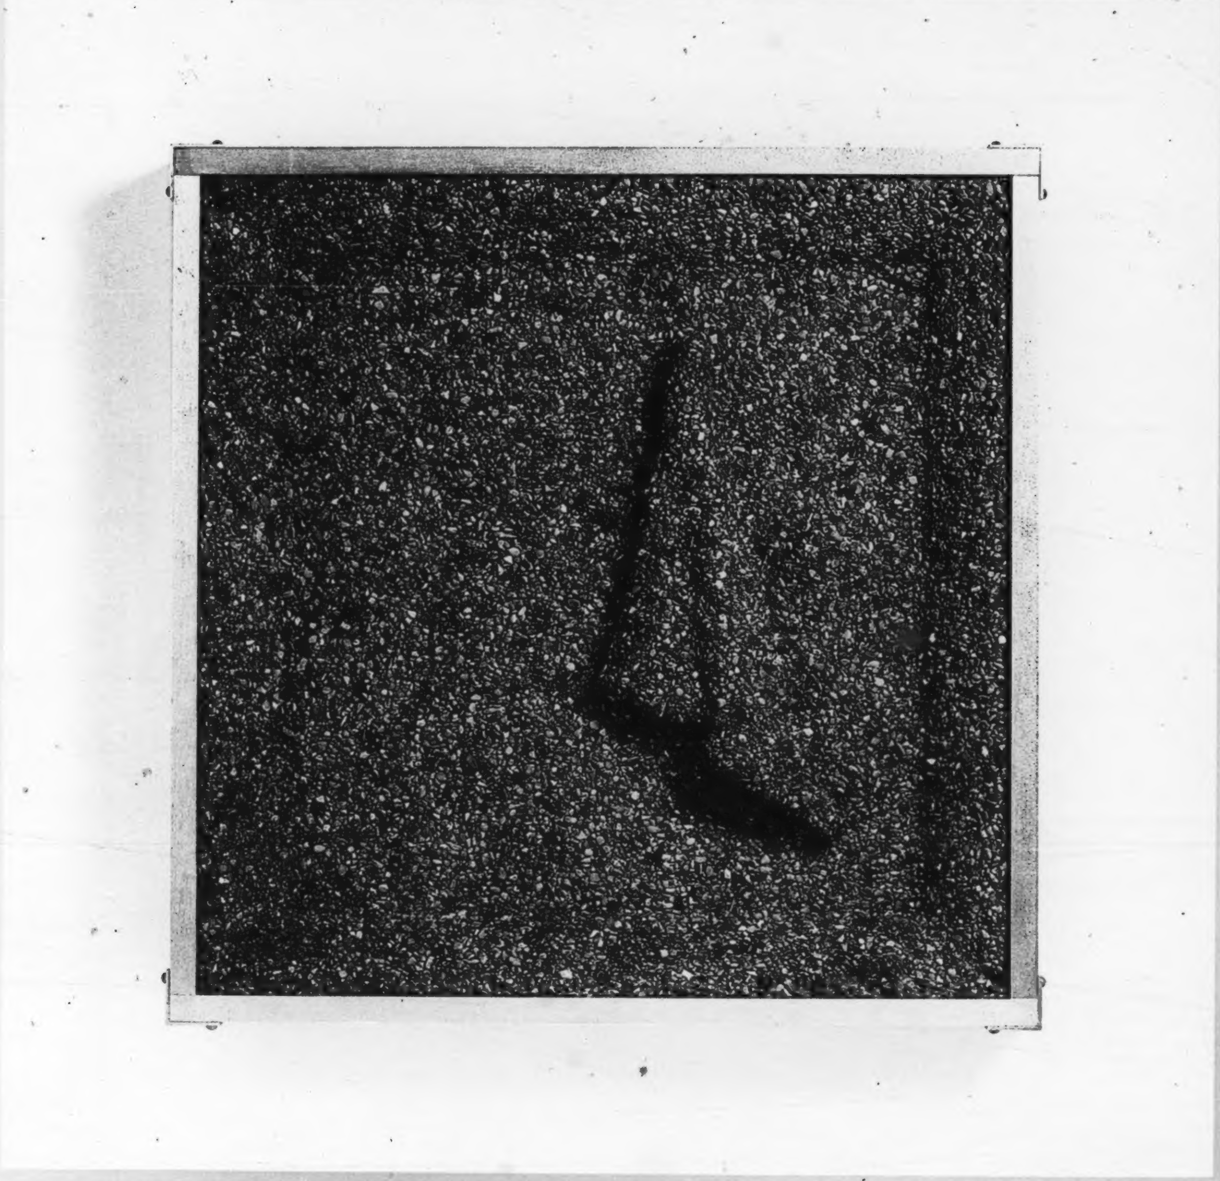
VOL
71

ISS
10

NO

1983

UMI

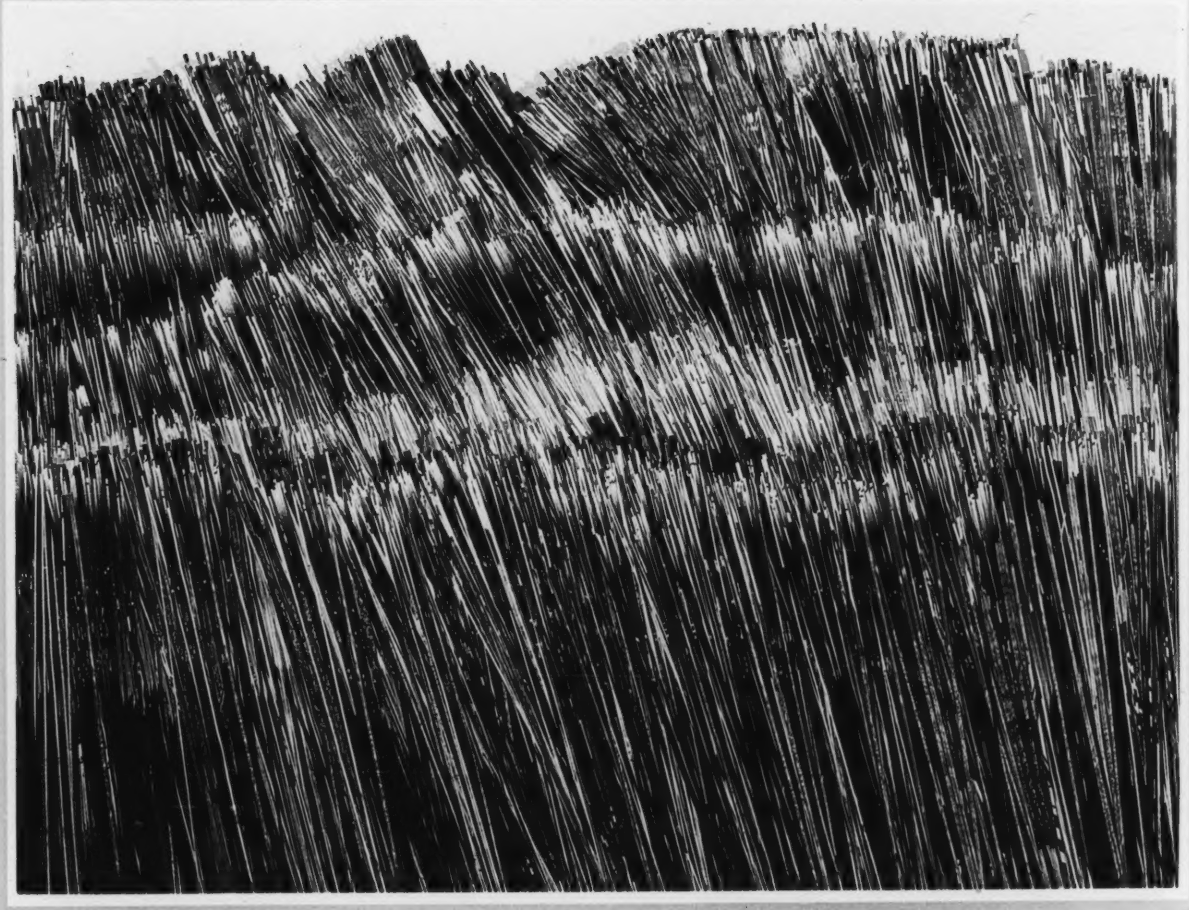


ROBERT HELM

"We entered by a broad empty way, between long walls, where we saw no one." 1977. Assemblage. 81.5 x 81 x 11 cm.

HANS REDMANN

FASANENSTRASSE 30, 1000 BERLIN 15. TEL. (30) 881 11 35



PAVLOS

"Champs de Blé" 1983. Collage, poster paper. 111 x 149 cm.

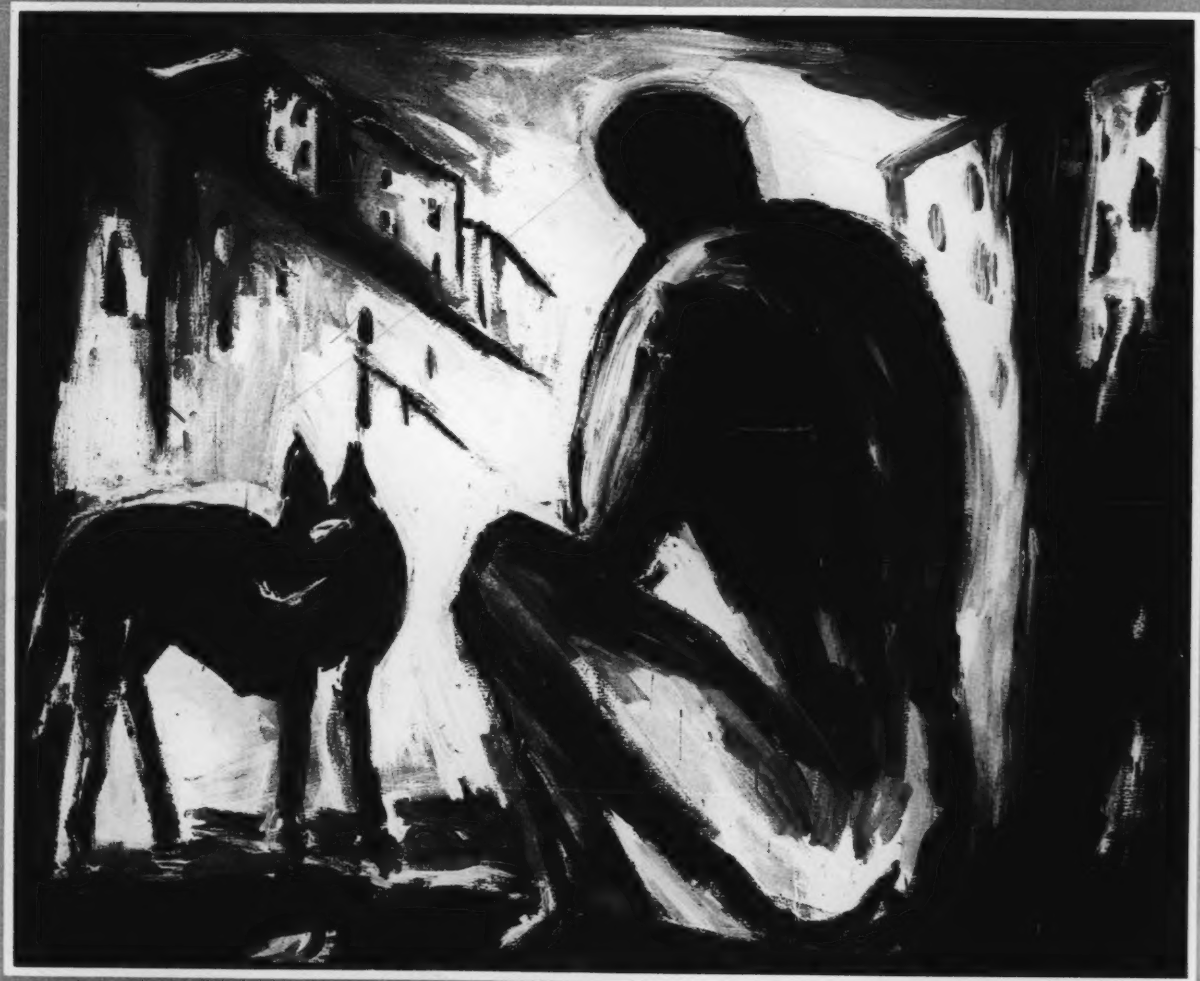
HANS REDMANN

FASANENSTRASSE 30, 1000 BERLIN 15. TEL. (30) 881 11 35

VOL
71
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI



HELMUT MIDDENDORF

"The Dog Painting", 1983. Acrylic on canvas. 180 x 220 cm.

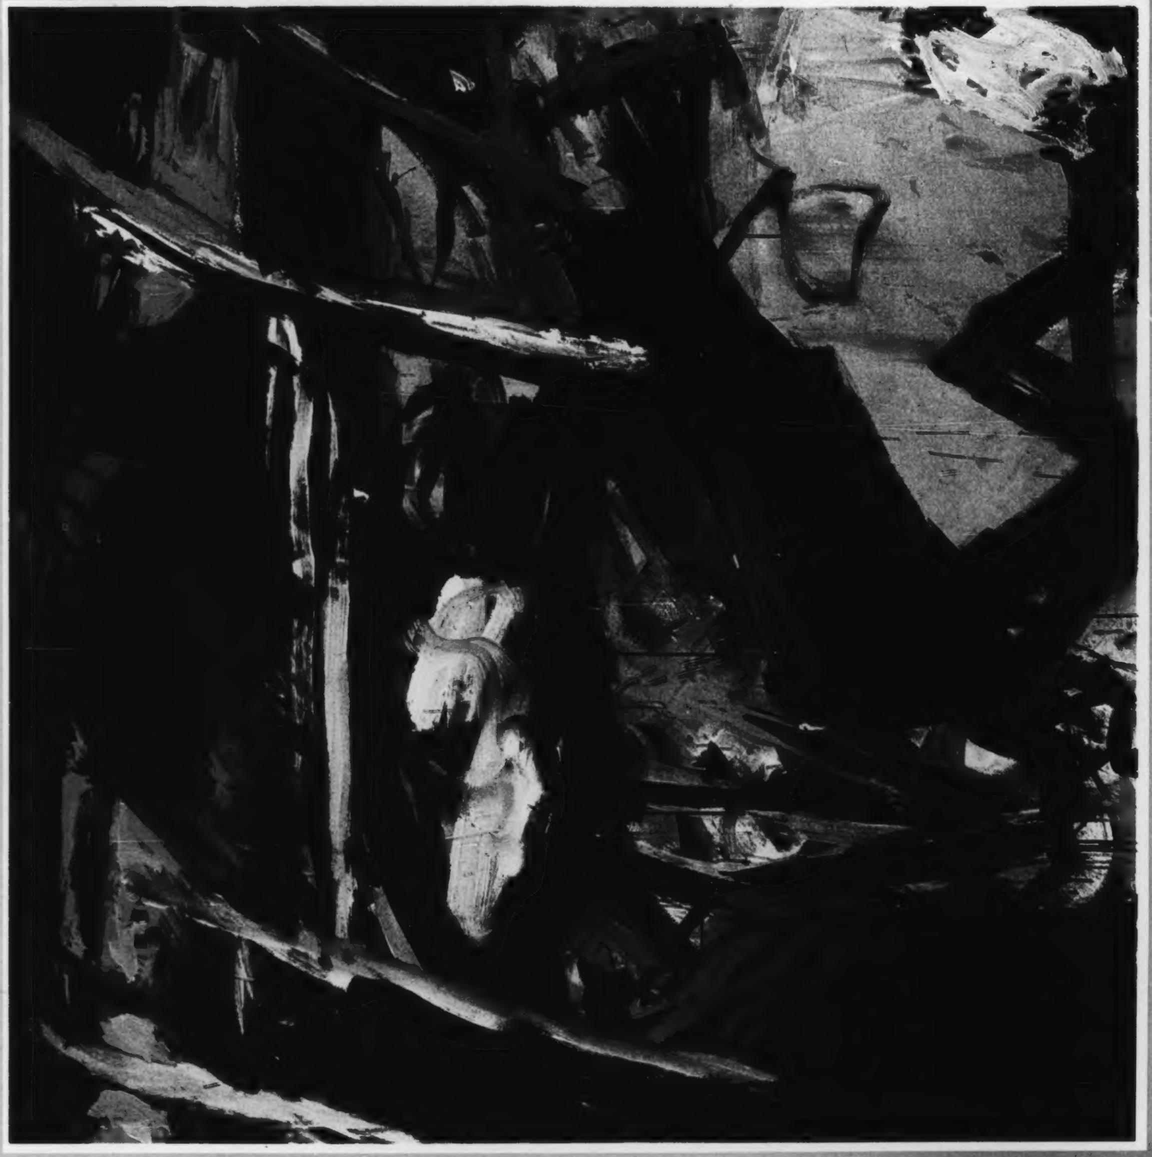
GALERIE GMYREK

MUTTER-EY-STRASSE 5, 4000 DUSSELDORF 1. TEL. (211) 32 77 70



BERND KOBERLING

"Vulcanic Space I." 1982. Acrylic and oil on canvas. 210 x 210 cm.

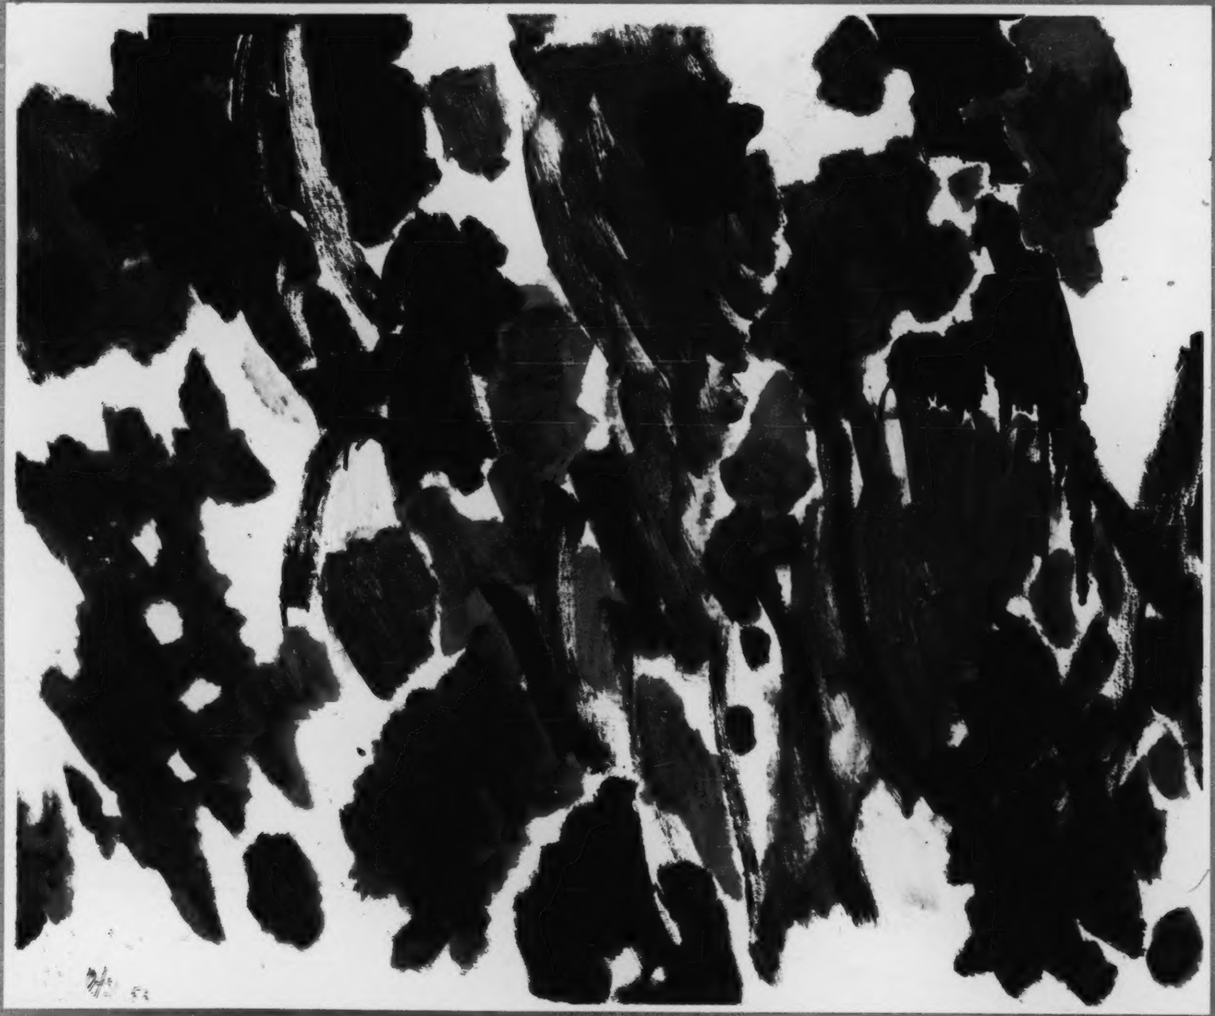
GALERIE GMYREK

MUTTER-EY-STRASSE 5, 4000 DUSSELDORF 1. TEL. (211) 32 77 70

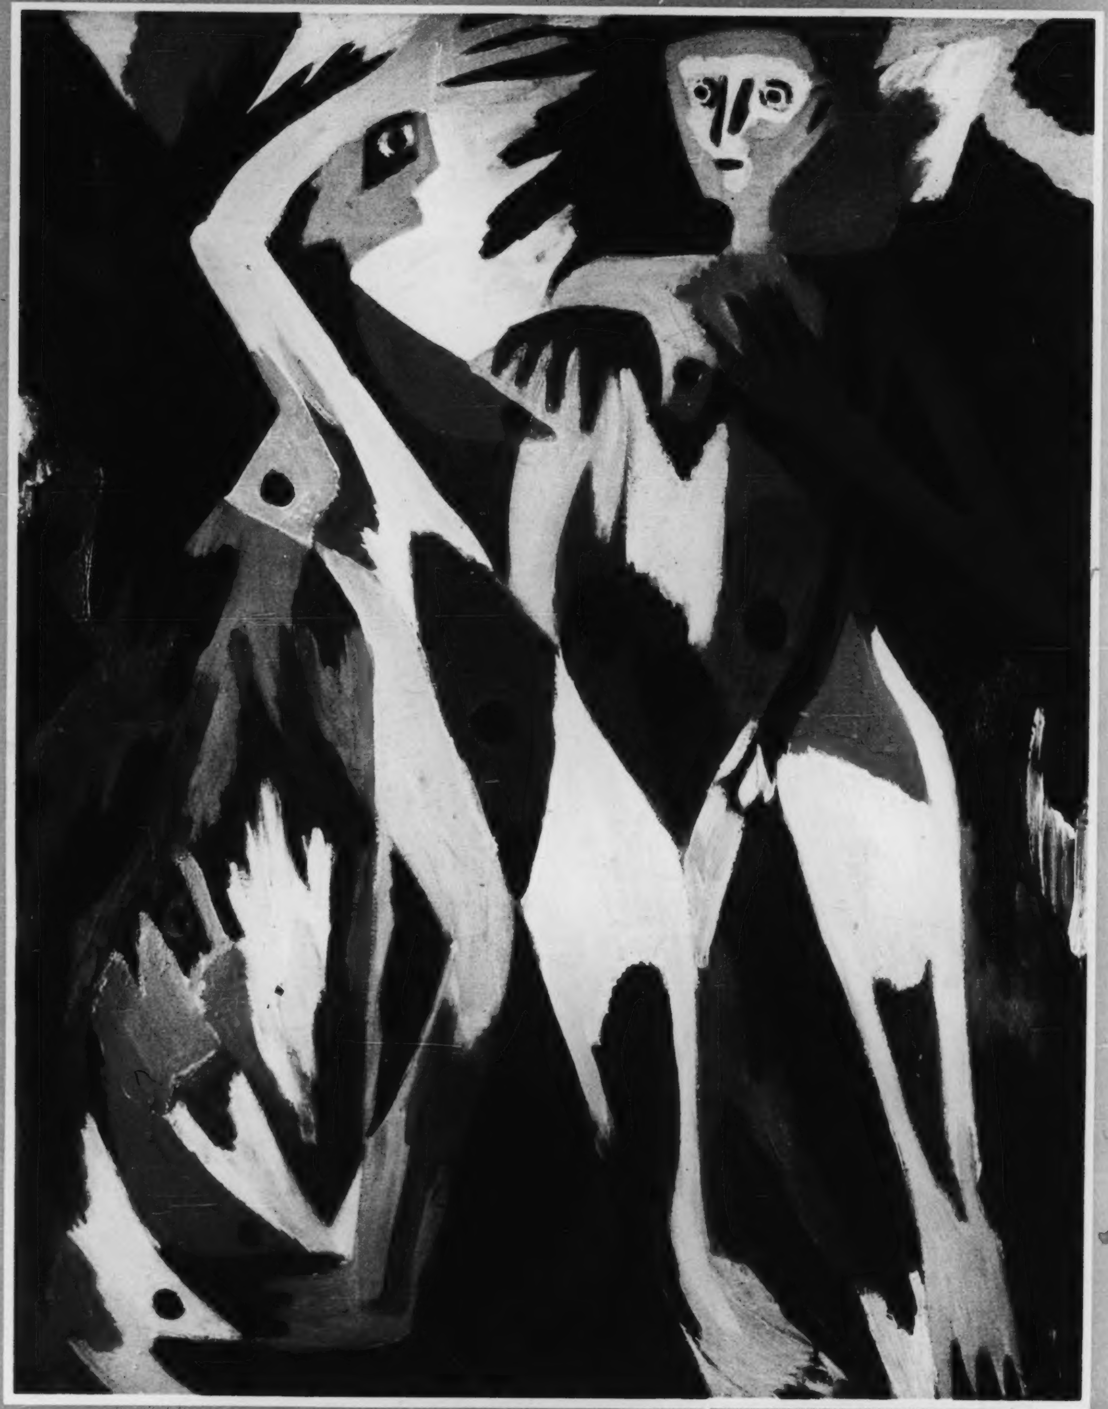
VOL
71
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI



E. W. NAY

"Vom vulkanischen Grau—Vulcanic Grey", 1953, oil on canvas, 100 x 120 cm., signed and dated lower left

ORANGERIE REINZ
HELENENSTR. 2, 5000 COLOGNE 1, TEL. (221) 23 46 84, TELEX 8882939 ORIE D



E. W. NAY

"Familie—Family", 1939, oil on canvas, 130 x 100 cm., signed and dated lower left

ORANGERIE REINZ

HELENENSTR. 2, 5000 COLOGNE 1, TEL. (221) 23 46 84, TELEX 8882939 ORIE D

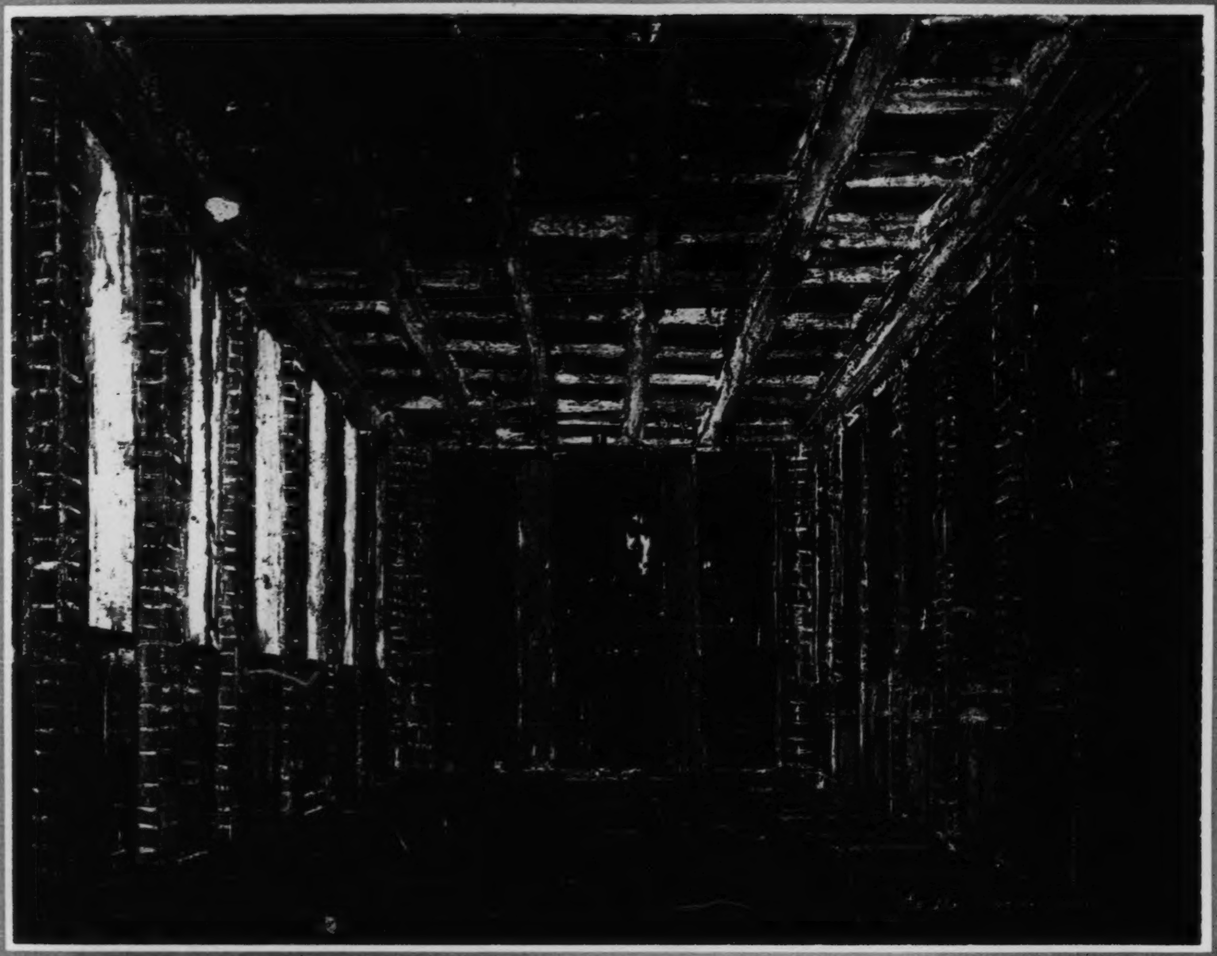
VOL
7
1

ISS
1 0

NO

1983

UMI

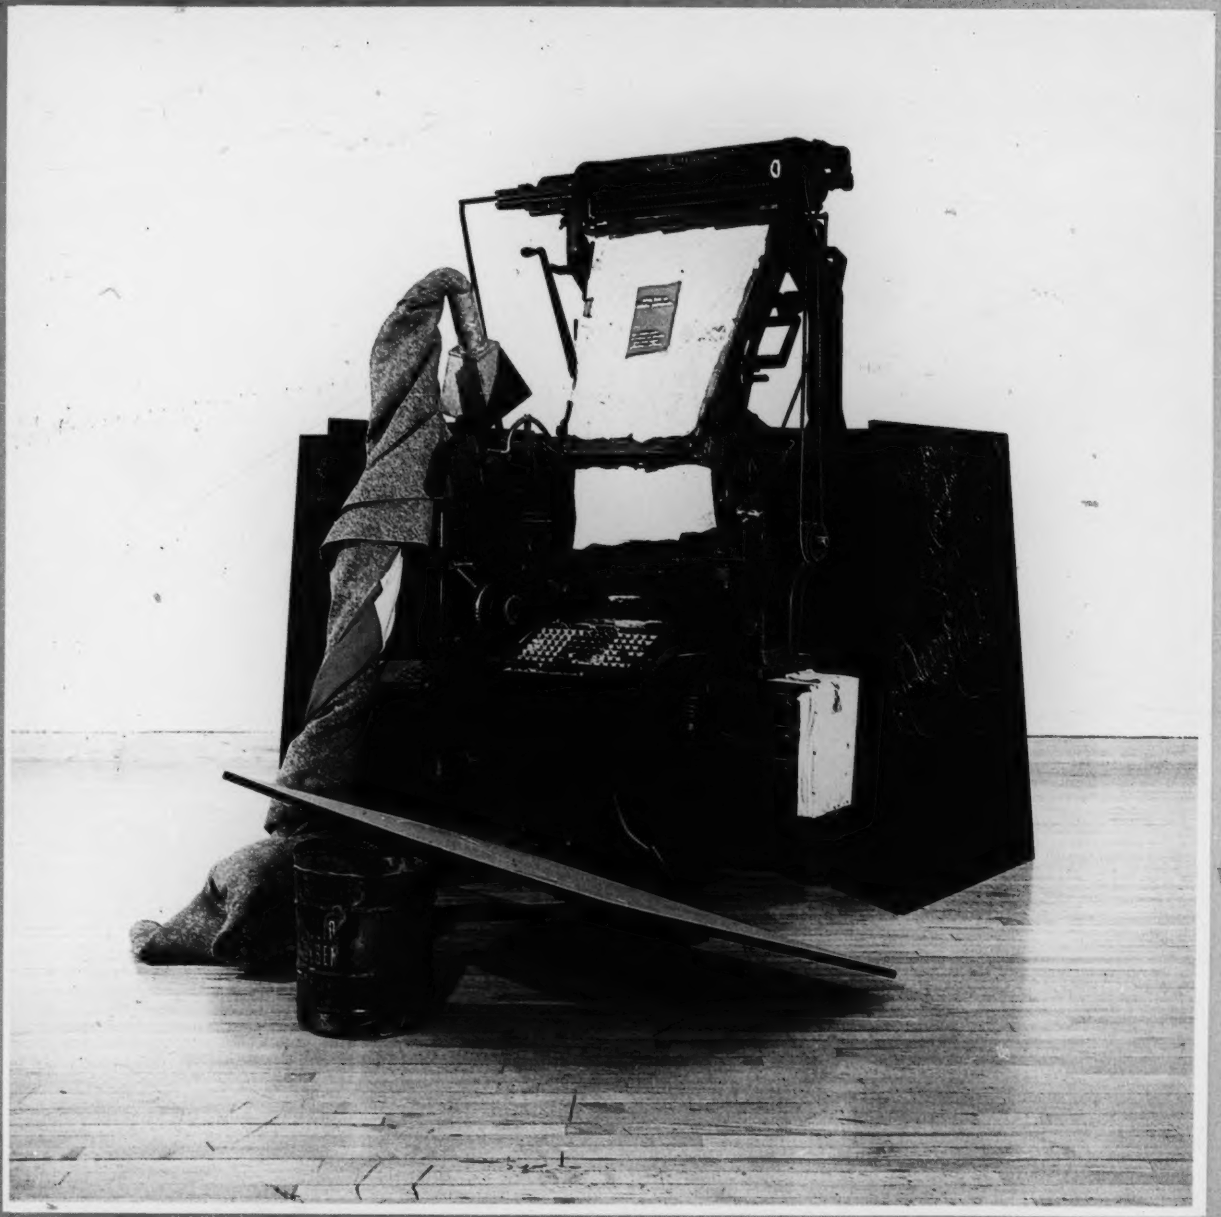


ANSELM KIEFER

To the Supreme Being. 1983. Mixed media. 200 x 260 cm. (74 ¾ x 102 ½ in.)

ANTHONY d'OFFAY/HELEN VAN DER MEIJ

9 AND 23 DERING STREET, NEW BOND STREET, LONDON W1 TEL. (1) 499 4695



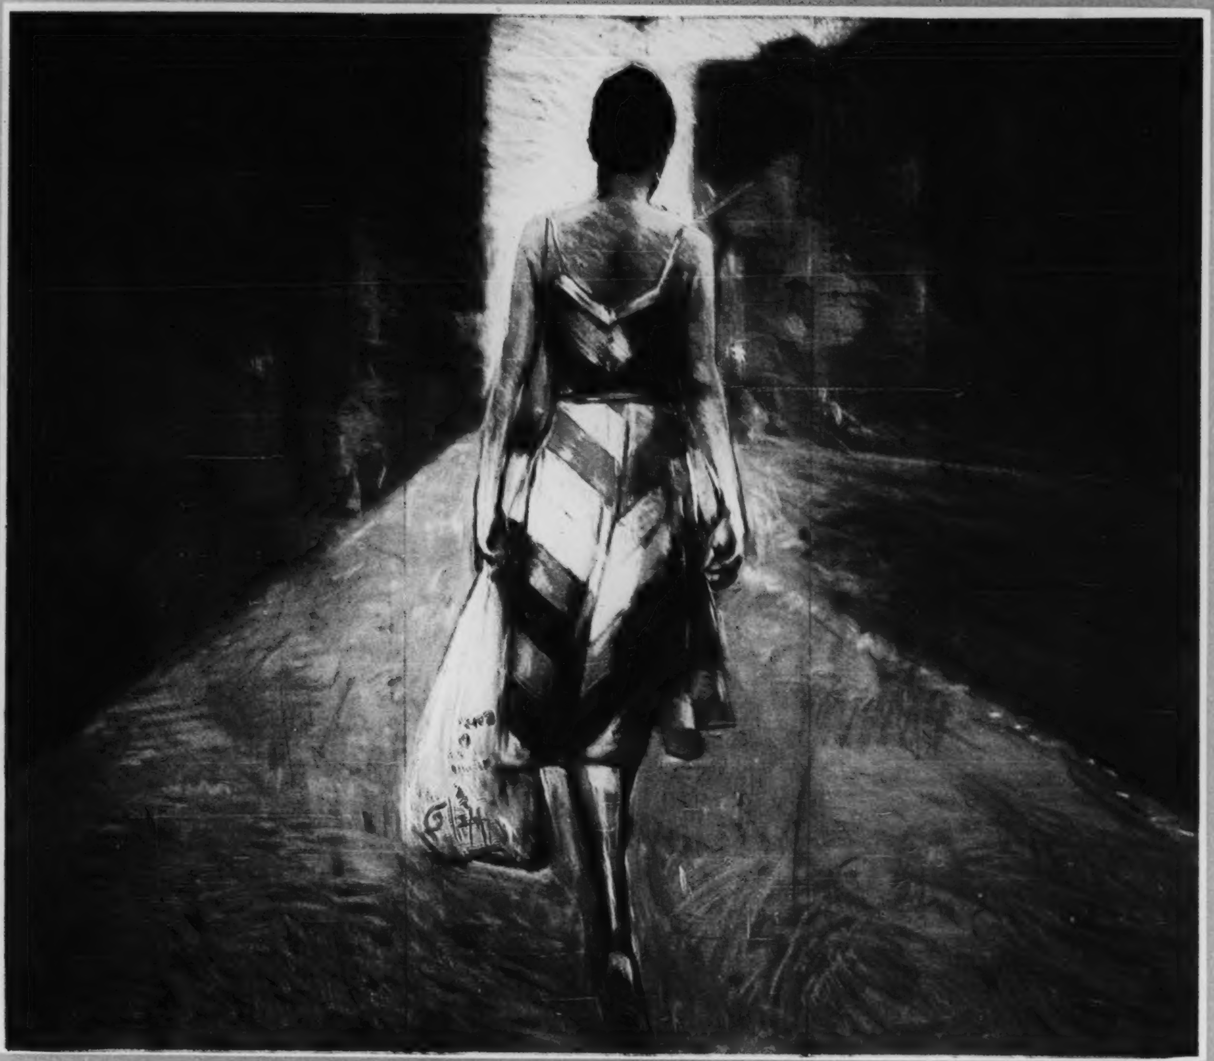
JOSEPH BEUYS

Terremoto. 1981. Mixed media. 185 x 350 x 490 cm. (73 x 129 x 193 in.)

ANTHONY d'OFFAY/HELEN VAN DER MEIJ

9 AND 23 DERING STREET, NEW BOND STREET, LONDON W1 TEL. (1) 499 4695

VOL
7
1
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI

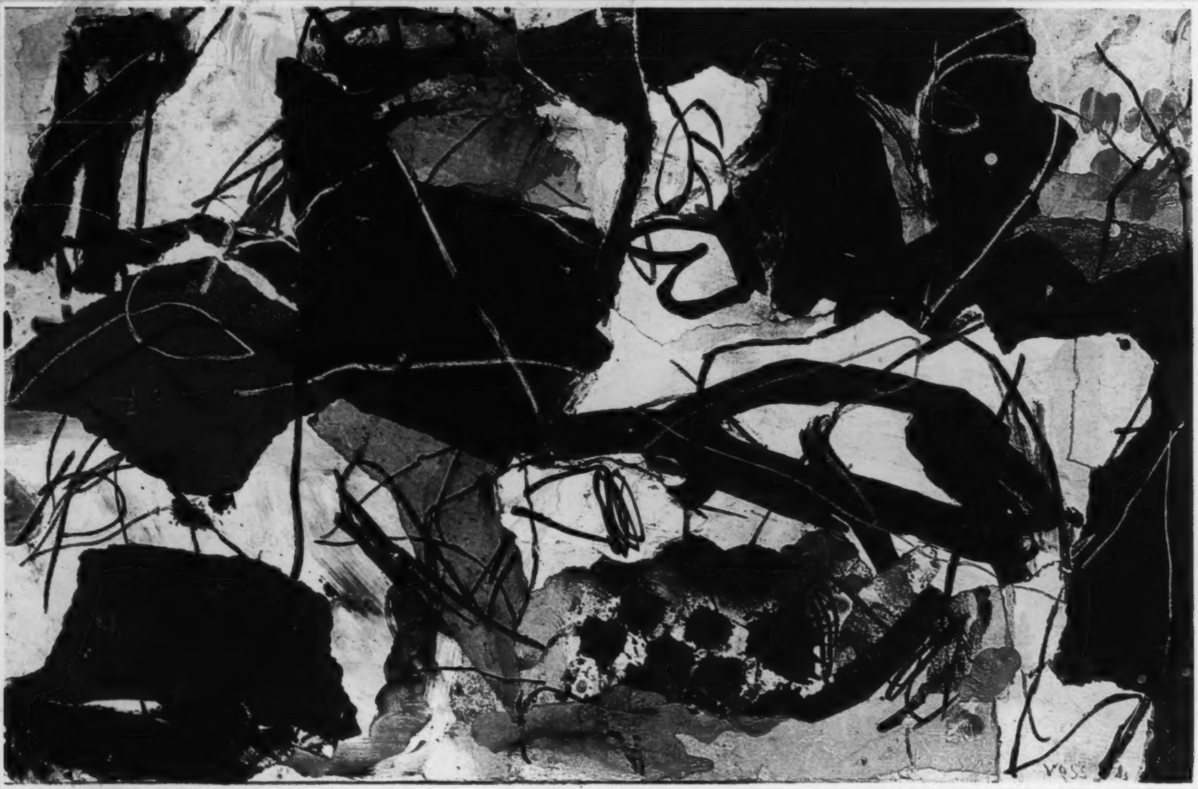


JAMES COLLINS

"Remembrance of Times Past: Here She Comes Again." 1983. Pastel on paper. 225 x 270 cm.

GALERIE + EDITION A

AMALIENSTRASSE 81 & 87, 8000 MUNICH. TEL. (89) 28 13 64 / 28 84 45



JAN VOSS

Untitled, 1983. Collage on paper. 65 x 100 cm. Exhibition. 15 November-December 1983

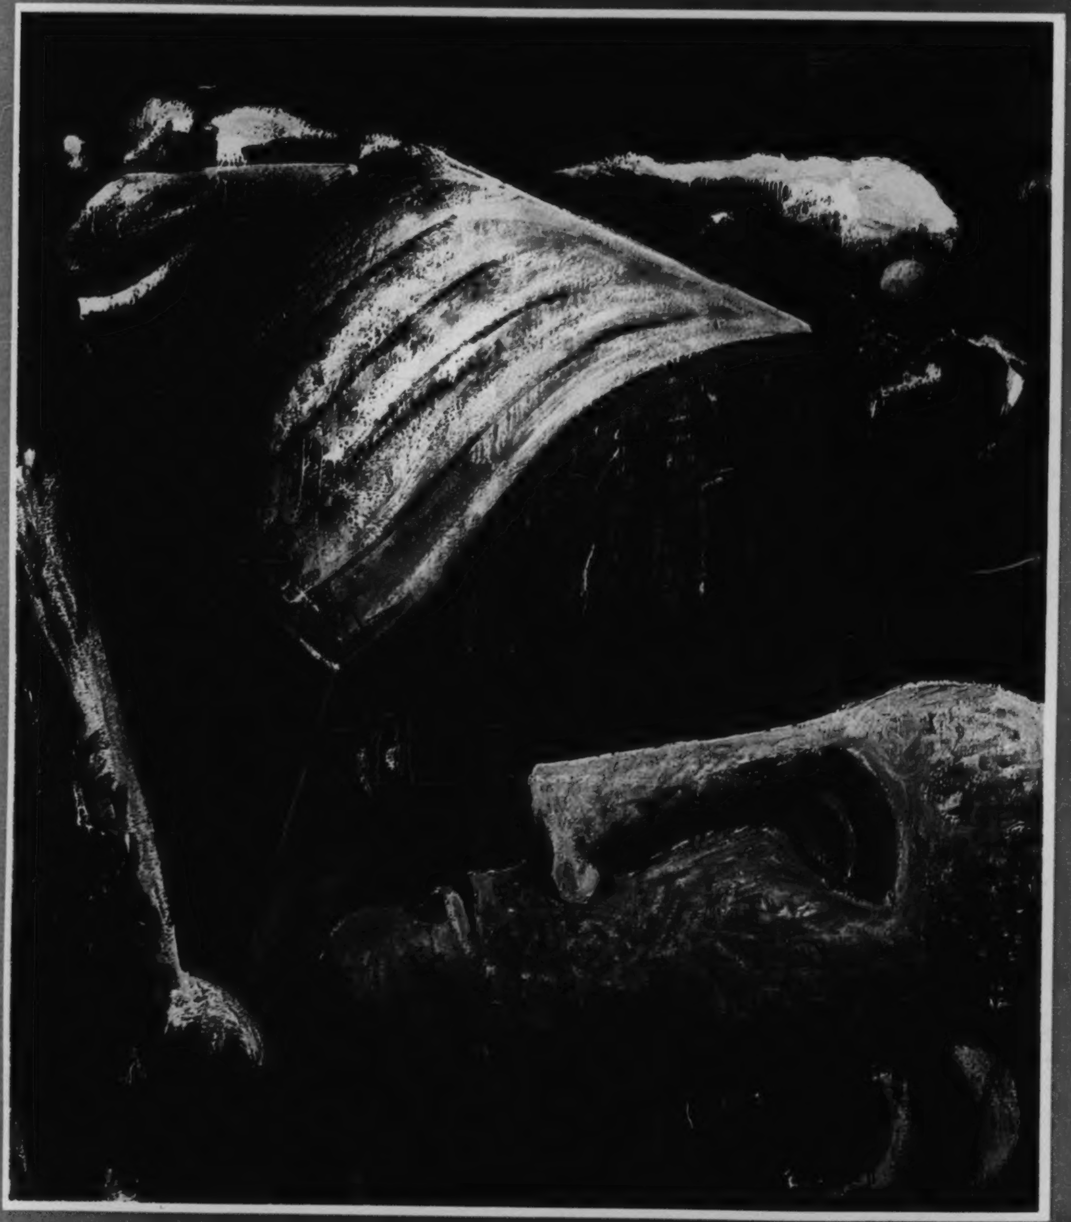
GALERIE ADRIEN MAEGHT

46, RUE DE BAC, 75007 PARIS. TEL. (1) 222 12 59

MAEGHT EDITEUR

42, RUE DE BAC, 75007 PARIS. TEL. (1) 548 45 15

VOL
71
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI



PETER CHEVALIER

"Dreamer." Oil on canvas. 175 x 152 cm.

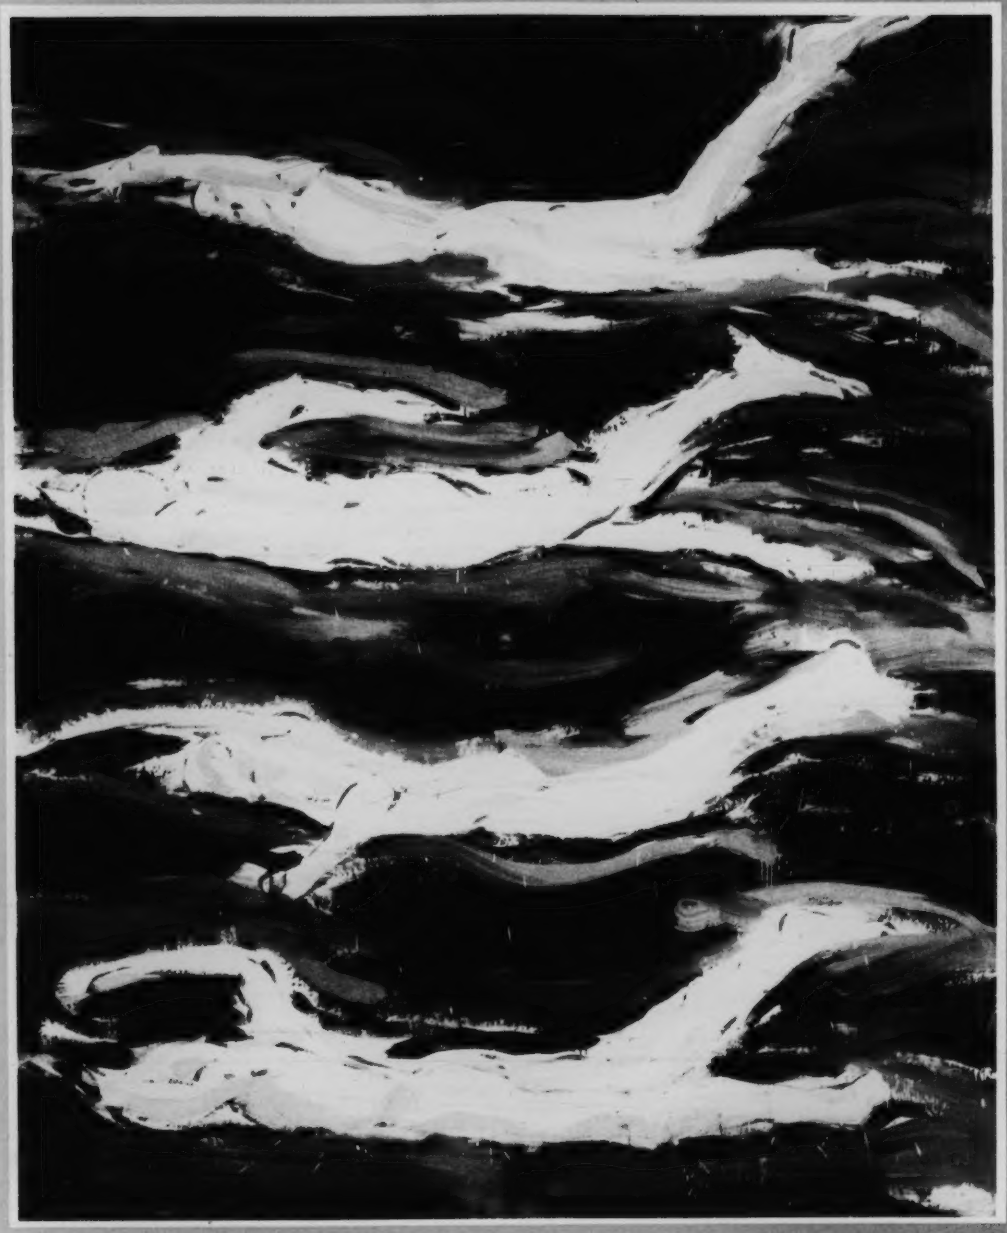
RAAB GALERIE

POTSDAMER STRASSE 58, 1000 BERLIN 30. TEL. (30) 261 60 98



SALOMÉ

"Kaltes Ultramarin" 1982. Mixed media on canvas. 400 x 300 cm.
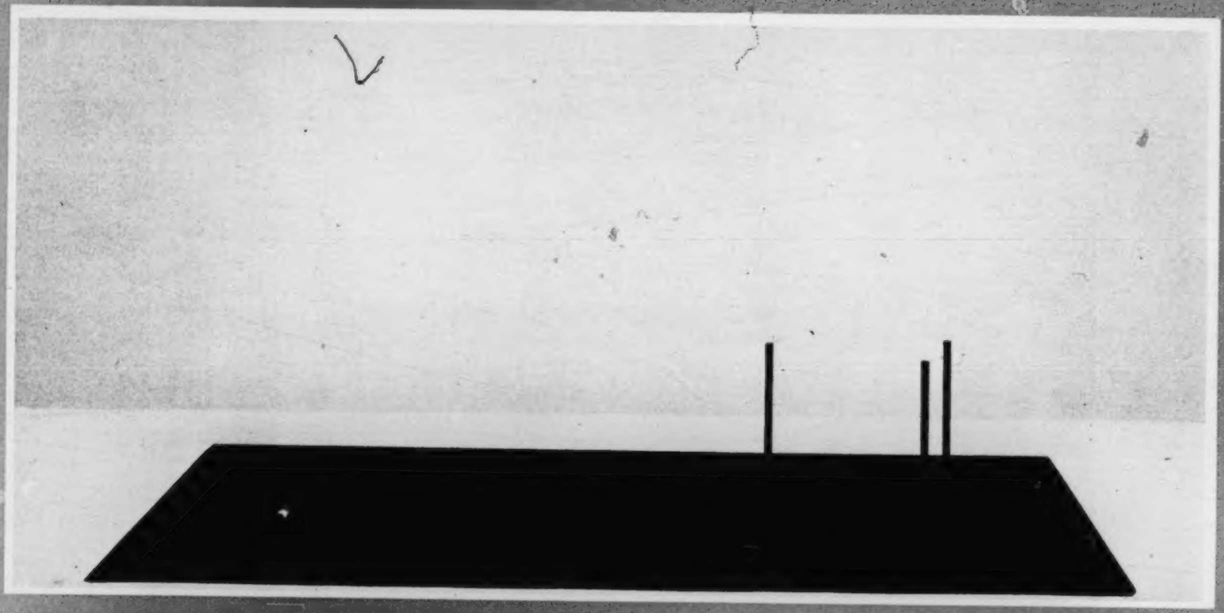
Exhibited: Zeitgeist. December 1982, Berlin. Catalogue N° 194.

GALERIE THOMAS

MAXIMILIANSTRASSE 25, 8000 MUNICH 22. TEL. (89) 29 55 17 / 22 27 41

VOL
7
1
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI



ERNST HERMANNS

Without title, 1983 (WV 215). Stainless steel on iron base. Height 8 cm., base 51.5 x 36 cm.
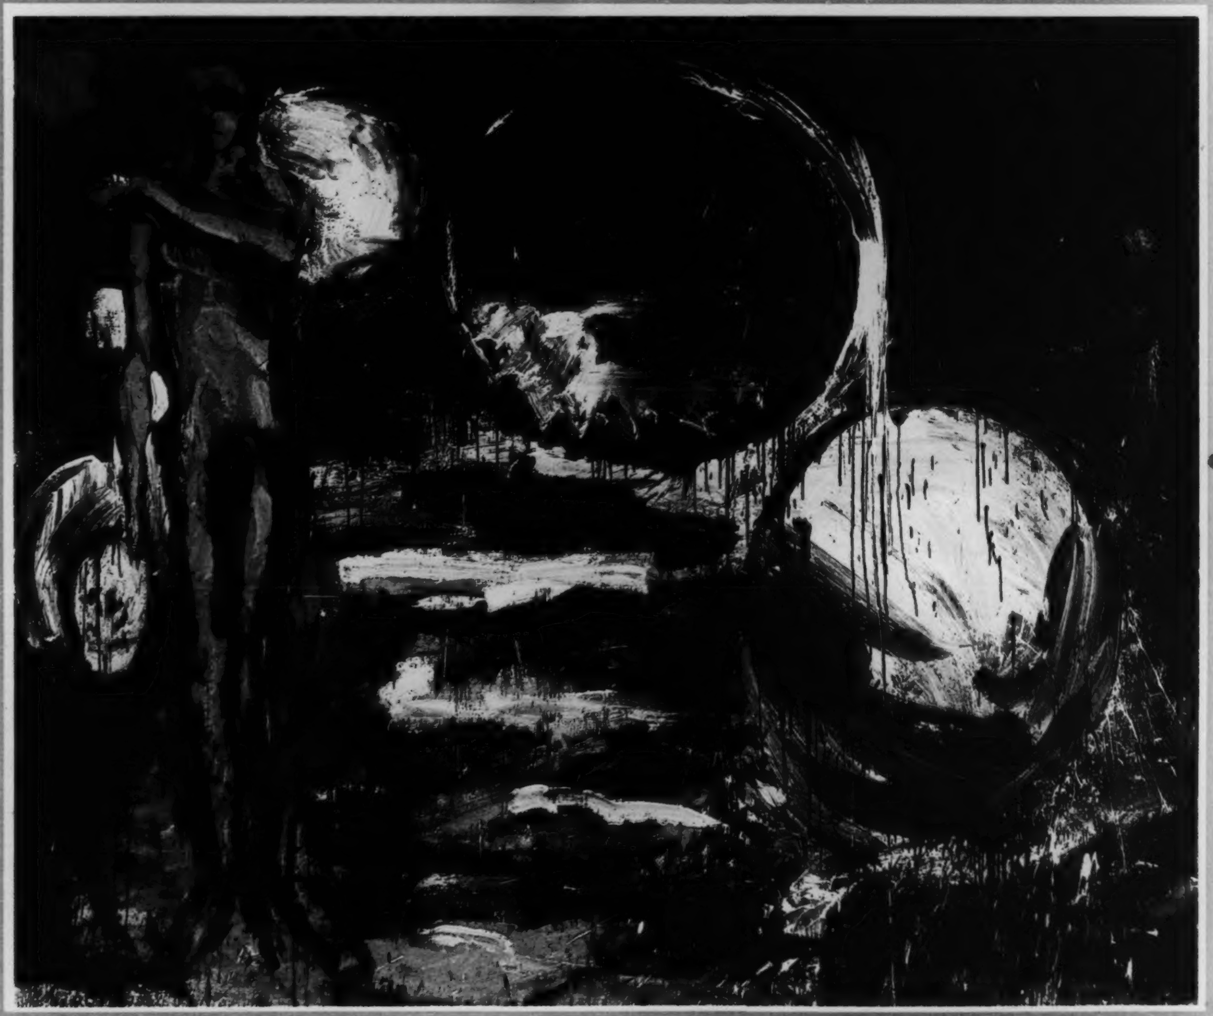
Retrospective show - Städtische Galerie im Lenbachhaus München. 29/11/83-8/1/84.

GALERIE HEINZ HERZER
(formerly GALERIE AM PROMENADEPLATZ)
MAXIMILIANSTRASSE 43, 8000 MUNICH 22. TEL (89) 29 77 29



SIEGFRIED ANZINGER

"Zwei Krieger," 1982. 270 x 310 cm.

GALERIE SIX FRIEDRICH

MAXIMILIANSTRASSE 15, 8000 MUNICH 22. TEL: (89) 29 50 21/29 61 10

Exhibition: Recent Paintings and Drawings, November 10 through December.

GALERIE KRINZINGER

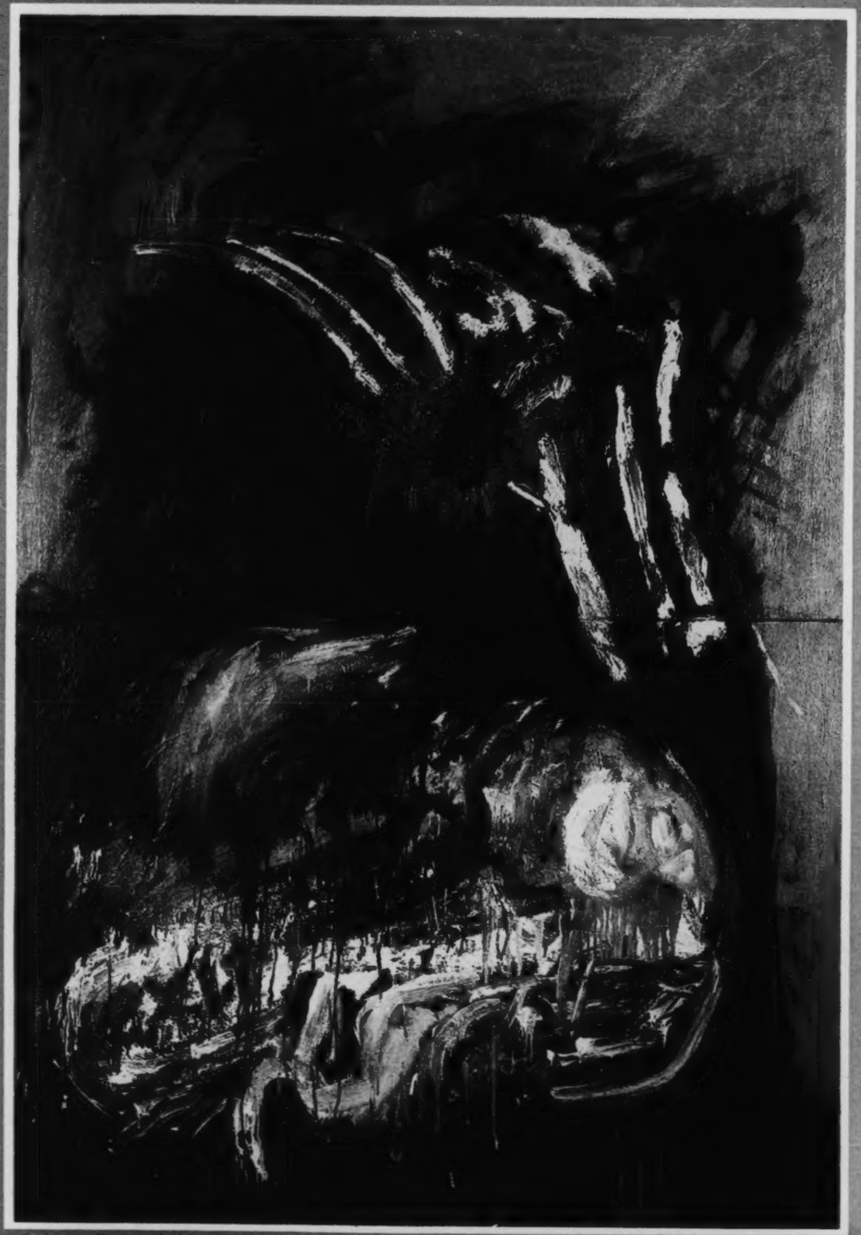
ADOLF PICHLER PLATZ 8, 6020 INNSBRUCK.
TEL: (5222) 32 131

Exhibition: "Symbol Tier" with major works by Anzinger, January-February 1984.

HOLLY SOLOMON GALLERY

724 FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK, NEW YORK 10019.
TEL: 757-7777

VOL
71
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI



W. GIES

"Exit." 1981/82. Oil on canvas. 224 x 155 cm.

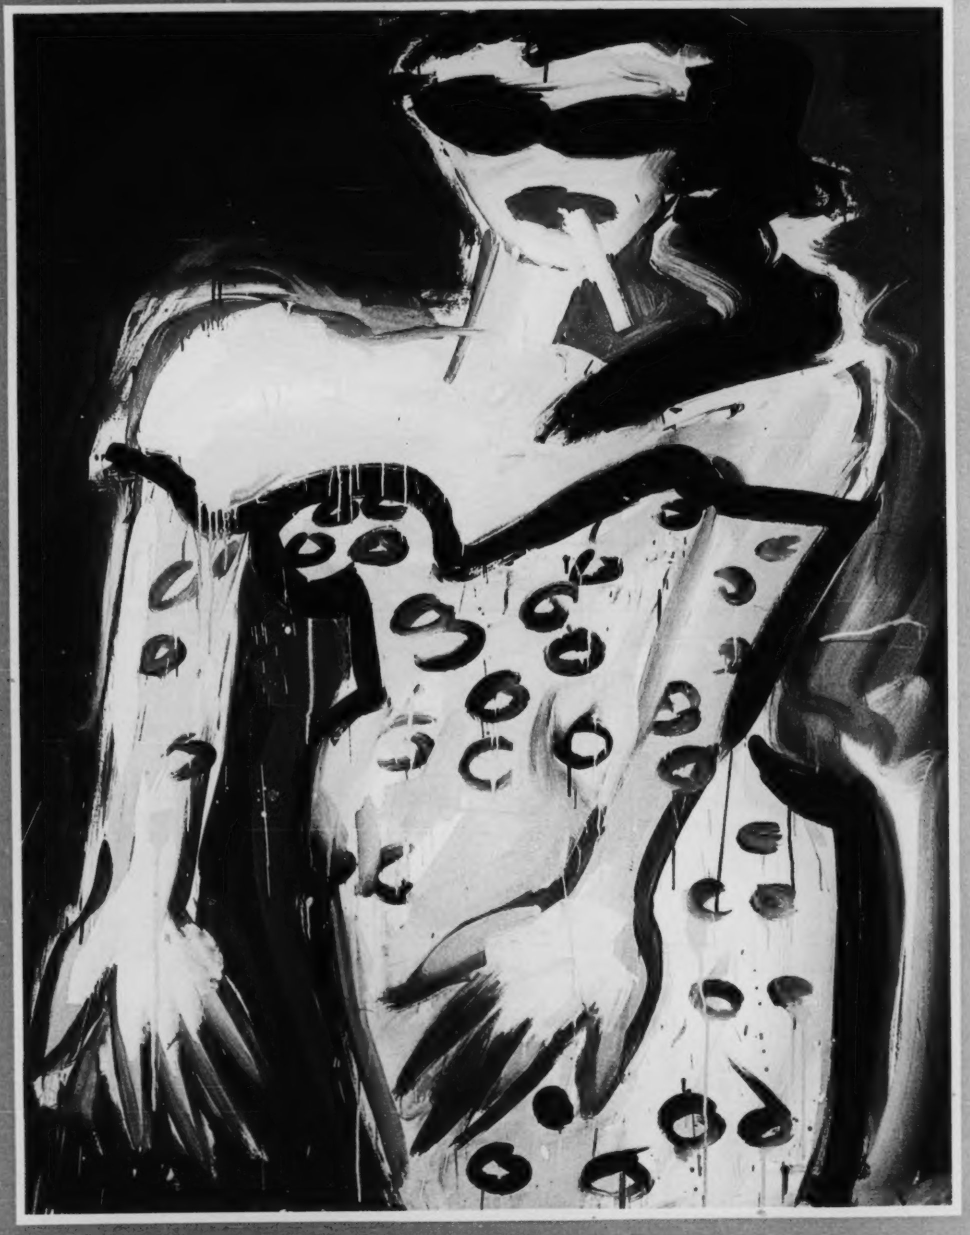
M. KNOEDLER ZURICH

KIRCHGASSE 24, 8022 ZURICH. TEL. 69 35 00.



ELVIRA BACH

"Nightowl," 1981. Dispersion on canvas. 165 x 130 cm.

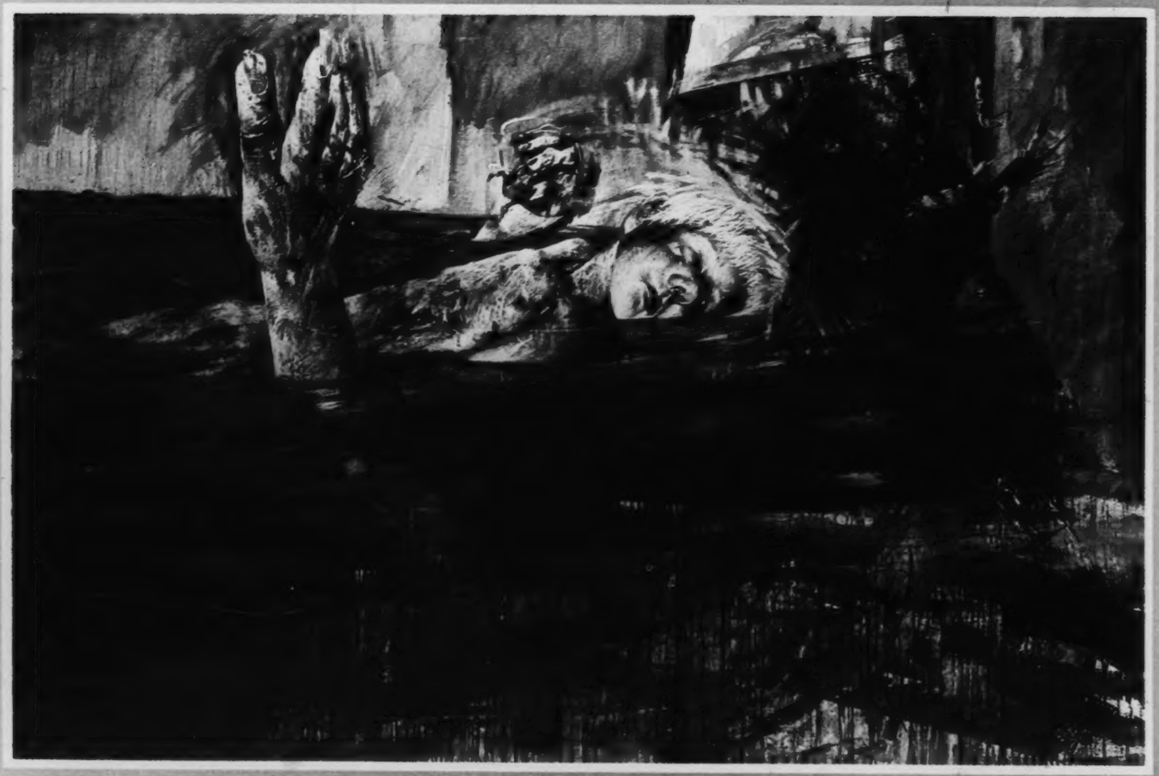
RAAB GALERIE
POTSDAMER STRASSE 58, 1000 BERLIN 30
TEL: 49 (30) 261 61 98

EDWARD TOTAH GALLERY
39 FLORAL STREET, LONDON W.C.2
TEL: 44 (1) 379 62 41

GALERIE CATHERINE ISSERT
ROND POINT STE-CLAIRE
06570 SAINT PAUL DE VENCE
TEL: 33 (93) 32 96 92

GALERIE JURKA
SINGEL 28, 1015 AA AMSTERDAM
TEL: (20) 26 67 33

VOL
7
1
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI



WOLFGANG PETRICK

"Uber das Leben im Wasser." 1981/82. Egg tempera and oil on canvas. 195 x 295 cm.

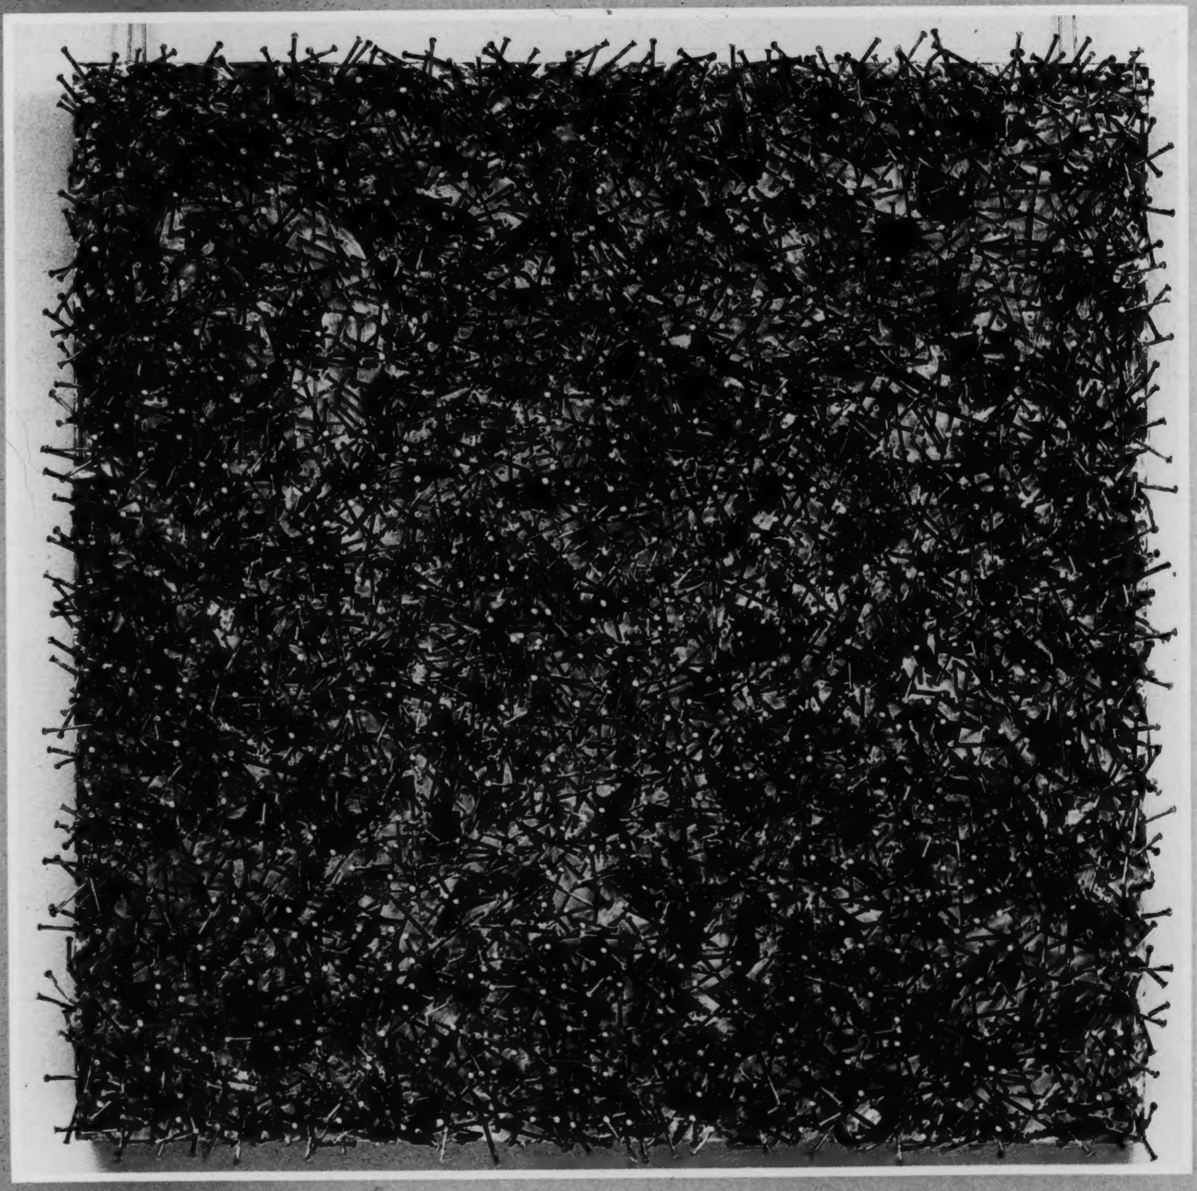
GALERIE POLL

LUTZOWPLATZ 7, 1000 BERLIN 30 (TIERGARTEN). TEL. (30) 261 70 91



GUNTHER UECKER

"Poesie der Rekonstruktion eines verletzen Feldes." 1982. Nail-relief. 150 x 150 cm.

GALERIE RECKERMANN

ALBERTUSSTRASSE 16, 5000 COLOGNE 1. TEL. (221) 21 20 64 / 21 73 29

VOL
71
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI

BVDG Bundesverband Deutscher Galerien e.v. Helenenstr. 2, D-5000 Cologne, Tel. 0221/23 72 95

1000 BERLIN
Andre, Pfalzburger Str. 80
Bossin, Meierottostr.1
Bremer, Fasanenstr. 37
Dibbert, Joachim-Friedrich-Str.37-38
Dinkler, Niebuhrstr. 77
Fahnemann, Fasanenstr. 61
Galerie 2000, Knesebeckstr. 56
Hass, Niebuhrstr. 5
Kunze, Giesebrechtstr. 3
Lietzow, Knesebeckstr. 32
Nothelfer, Uhlandstr. 184
Petersen, Pestalozzistr. 106
Pels-Leusden, Kurfürstendamm 58-60
Poll, Lützowplatz 7
Redmann, Fasanenstr. 30
Skulima, Niebuhrstr. 12
Springer, Fasanenstr. 13
Wewerka, Fritschestr. 27-28
Zellermayer-Lorenzen, Thielallee 30a

2000 Hamburg
Brockstedt, Magdalenenstr. 11
Commeter, Hermannstr. 37
Dröscher, Elbchaussee 140
Flottbeck, Alexander-Zinn-Str. 25
Hochhuth, Poststr. 11
Levy, Tesdorpfstr. 18
von Loeper, Doormannweg 22
Meissner, Lemsahler Dorfstr. 51
Munro, Barmbeker Str. 138
Neuendorf, Feldstr./Hochhaus 1

2300 Kiel
Neumann, Dänische Str. 30

2400 Lübeck
Kunsthaus Lübeck, Königstr. 20
Westenhoff, Hüxstr. 29

2800 Bremen
Rabus, Lothringer Str. 3
Werner, Rembertistr. 1a

2900 Oldenburg
Centro, Tangastr. 16

3000 Hannover
Brusberg, Uhlemeyerstr. 21

3300 Braunschweig
Schmücking, Lessingplatz 12

3500 Kassel
Lometsch, Kölnische Str. 5

4000 Düsseldorf
Art in Progress, Kasernenstr. 18
Biesser, Bilker Str. 5
Curtze, Citadellstr. 11
An der Düssel, Prinz-Georg-Str. 19
Konrad Fischer, Platanenstr. 7
Gmyrek, Mutter-Ey-Str. 5
Keppel, Hermannstr. 32
Kohnen, Schirmerstr. 23
Ludorff, Königsallee 22
Maier-Hahn, Düsseldorfer Str. 112
Nebelung, Im Ratinger Tor
Niepel, Grabenstr. 11
Denise René Hans Mayer, Grabbeplatz 2
Strelow, Luegplatz 3
Schoeller, Poststr. 2
Vömel, Königsallee 30
Wittrock, Sternstr. 16
Zimmer, Oberbilker Allee 27

4020 Mettmann
Schübbe, Hassler Str. 65

4030 Mülheim
Lessart Slominsky, Wasserstr. 3-7

4044 Kaarst
Gallery 44, Hasselstr. 60

4050 Mönchengladbach
Löhrl, Kaiserstr. 58

4100 Duisburg
Orober, Bismarckplatz 3

4130 Moers
Scholten, Dorfstr. 39

4150 Krefeld
Peerlings, Friedrichstr. 49

4300 Essen
Heimeshoff, Kennedyplatz
Neher, Rüttenscheider Str. 75

4400 Münster
Hachmeister, Klosterstr. 12
Schnake, Beiertsteige 5

4600 Dortmund
Utermann, Betenstr. 12

4630 Bochum
Galerie m, Haus Weitmar

4700 Hamm
Kley, Werler Str. 304

4780 Lippstadt
Trost, Stiftstr. 10

4292 Rhede
Am Finkenbusch, Krommert 9a

5000 Cologne
Axiom, Hans-Driesch-Str. 7
Baecker, St. Apernstr. 21
Borgmann, Apostelnstr. 19
Dreiseitel, Richmodstr. 25
Ernesto, Neusser Str. 27
Glöckner, Breitestr. 112
Gmurzynska, Obenmarspforten 21
Goyert, Hahnestr. 18
Greve, Wallrafplatz 3
Hetzler, Kamekestr. 21
Holtmann, Richartzstr. 10
Inter Art Reich, Neven-DuMont-Str. 2
Jöllenbeck, Maastrichter Str. 53
Koppelmann, Friesenplatz 23
Maenz, Bismarckstr. 50
Ha.Jo. Müller, Brüsseler Platz 15
Orangerie-Reinz, Helenenstr. 2
Reckermann, Albertusstr. 16
Ricke, Volksgartenstr. 10
Ruchti, Gertrudenstr. 15
Der Spiegel, Bonner Str. 328
Stolz, Pferdmengesstr. 30
Teufel, Auf dem Rothenberg 13
Wentzel, St. Apernstr. 26
Werner, Gertrudenstr. 24-28
Wiegand, Mittelstr. 12-14
Wilbrand, Lindenstr. 20
Wintersberger, Kamekestr. 21
Zwirner, Albertusstr. 18

5100 Aachen
Hilger, Bendelstr. 9

5200 Siegburg
Wasserwerk Lange, Wahnbachtalstr. 17

5300 Bonn
Apicella, Poppelsdorfer Allee 76
Hennemann, Kaiserstr. 23
Linssen, Prinz-Albert-Str. 57
Magers, Händelstr. 13
Pudelko, Heinr.-v.-Kleist-Str. 11

5330 Königswinter
Brodershof, Hauptstr. 128

5500 Trier
Kaschenbach, Fleischstr. 50

6000 Frankfurt
Ferme, Mainluststr. 8
Gering-Kulenkampff, Schweizer Str. 77
Gierig, Braubachstr. 26
Lüpke, Braubachstr. 28
Meyer-Ellinger, Brönnerstr. 22
Schoof, Dannekerstr. 39

6050 Offenbach
Huber, Berliner Str. 218

6103 Griesheim
Swetec, Friedrich-Ebert-Str. 48

6360 Friedberg
Hoffmann, Römerstr. 47

6500 Mainz
Kosien, Hinter der Kapelle 54

6750 Kaiserslautern
Wack, Morlauterer Str. 18

6900 Heidelberg
Rothe, Werderplatz 17
Staeck, Ingrimstr. 3

7000 Stuttgart
Fischinger, Esslinger Str. 20
Hederer, Römerstr. 1
Kubinsky, Olgastr. 109
Manus-Presse, Lieschingstr. 6
Merch, Solitudestr. 284a
Mueller-Roth, Blumenstr. 15
Schaller, Marienstr. 3
Schurr, Alexanderstr. 157
Valentien, Königsbau

7070 Schwäbisch Gmünd
Wahlandt, Uferstr. 30

7148 Remseck
Schloss Remseck

7500 Karlsruhe
Rottloff, Sophienstr. 106

7570 Baden-Baden
Suzanne Fischer, Marktplatz 13

7781 Herrischried
Redies, Hauptstr. 26

7800 Freiburg
Limmer, Maria-Theresia-Str. 15

7847 Badenweiler
Krohn, Hintere Au 1

7964 Kisslegg
Schlosshof, Altes Schloss

7980 Ravensburg
Döbele, Marktstr. 59

8000 München
A, Amalienstr. 87
Braunbehrens, Ainmillerstr. 2
Charlotte, Falkenturmstr. 8
Dürr, Prinzregentenstr. 60
Fassbender, Tattenbachstr. 20
Friedrich, Maximilianstr. 15
Gunzenhauser, Maximilianstr. 10
Hartmann, Franz-Joseph-Str. 20
Hasenclever, Cuvilliésstr. 5
Hermanns, Am Platzl 4
Hermeyer, Wilhelmstr. 3
Herzer, Maximilianstr. 43
Hesseler, Residenzstr. 27
Jentsch, Possartstr. 12
Klewan, Maximilianstr. 29
von Laar, Türkenstr. 72
van de Loo, Maximilianstr. 27
Pabst, Stollbergstr. 11
Schlessel, Kaulbachstr. 36
Schellmann & Klüser, Maximilianstr. 12
Schweinsteiger, Stollbergstr. 11
Tanit, Maximilianstr. 36
Thomas, Maximilianstr. 25
Walser, Fraunhoferstr. 19

8400 Regensburg
Bäumler, Obere Bachgasse
Grois-Zierach, neue Waag-Gasse 2

8500 Nürnberg
Defet, Gustav-Adolf-Str. 33
Nickel & Zadow, Plobenhofstr. 4
Ricard, Königstr. 33-37

BVDG GERMAN ART DEALERS ASSOCIATION

MEMBER GALLERIES (20th century art)

The BVDG is the organizer of the Cologne International Art Fair 12-17 November 1983

STOCKHOLM
ART FAIR

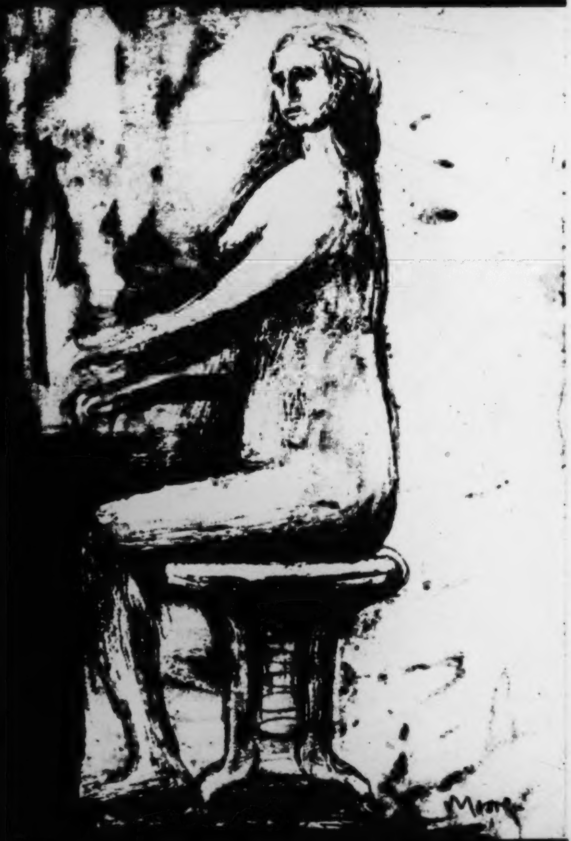
4-9 APRIL 1984

Head Office:
Leif Ståhle
MÄSSBOLAGEN AB
Box 174
S-191 23 Sollentuna
Sweden
Tel. 08/96 00 60

Representative in USA:
Jan Eric Löwenadler
799 Park Avenue
New York, N.Y. 10021
USA
Tel. (212)737-6835

emer publicité

Henry MOORE



DRAWINGS & SCULPTURE
Nov. 22/Dec.17

HOKIN GALLERY INC.

PALM BEACH

Hokin Gallery Inc.
245 Worth Avenue
Palm Beach, Florida 33480
Telephone 305/655-5177

1086 Kane Concourse
Bay Harbor Islands, Florida 33154
Telephone 305/861-5700

Hokin/Kaufman Gallery
210 West Superior Street
Chicago, Illinois 60610
Telephone 312/266-1211

VOL
7
1
ISS
1 0
N O
1983
UMI

METRO PICTURES

CINDY SHERMAN
29 OCTOBER—26 NOVEMBER
METRO PICTURES
150 GREENE STREET, NY 10012
212/925.8335

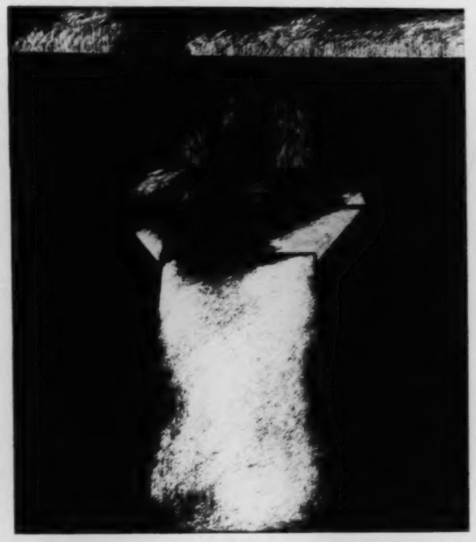
Opened

Florida Art: The Eighties

Marcia Athens
Pablo Cano
Greg Fensterman
Rosemary Fineberg
Michael Flick
Fernando Garcia
Bill Humphreys
Ilana Ilan
Jean Janson
Susan Kores
Cherry McDaniel
Tom Minor
Robert Moorhouse
Aline Sklaire
Freda Tschumy
J.G. Vizzi
Jean Ward

GREENE GALLERY
3300 RICE STREET, SUITE 4, COCONUT GROVE, FLORIDA 33133 (305) 448-9229

SONIA GECHTOFF
Paestum
The Sea
New York
The Rivers
November 15 - December 31



Small Cast Iron Facade 1983, acrylic & pencil on paper.

GRUENEBAUM 38 E 57 NYC 212-838-8245

ceramic artists

Jamie Davis
Margie Hughto
Robert McGowan
Robert Milnes
Donna Polseno
Nancy Selvin
Kaete Brittin Shaw
Pamela Skewes-Cox
Tip Toland

meredith
CONTEMPORARY ART

805 N. Charles St.
Baltimore, MD 21201
301-837-3575

Tue.-Fri. 10-5
Sat. 11-5

REUBEN NAKIAN:
WORKS IN CLAY

An Exhibition of Terracotta
Plaques and Works in the Round

OPENING
Tuesday, November 22

David Settles Gallery
Twentieth Century Art
1700 Bissonnet, Houston, TX 77005
(713) 528-1690

Rufino Tamayo

Oils, drawings, lithographs and mixographs

November 12-26
at Palm Springs Gallery only

B. Lewin Galleries
210 S. Palm Canyon Road
Palm Springs, California 92262
(619) 325-7611

266 N. Beverly Drive
Beverly Hills, California 90210
(213) 278-5769

World's Largest Gallery Collection of Mexican Masters

VOL 71 ISS 10 NO 1983 UMI

MEXICAN and LATIN AMERICAN PAINTINGS

We buy and sell 19th and 20th Century paintings, drawings, sculpture and graphics by Mexican and Latin American artists, to include the following:

DR. ATL
FERNANDO BOTERO
JULIO CASTELLANOS
JEAN CHARLOT
JOAQUIN CLAUSELL
JOSE LUIS CUEVAS
GUNTHER GERZSO
OSWALDO GUAYASAMIN
FRIDA KAHLO
WIFREDO LAM
RICARDO MARTINEZ
MATTA
CARLOS MERIDA
ROBERTO MONTENEGRO
JUAN O'GORMAN
JOSE CLEMENTE OROZCO
EMILIO PETTORUTI
CANDIDO PORTINARI
DIEGO RIVERA
DAVID ALFARO SIQUEIROS
RUFINO TAMAYO
FRANCISCO TOLEDO
JOAQUIN TORRES-GARCIA
REMEDIOS VARO
JOSE MARIA VELASCO
FRANCISCO ZUNIGA

GEORGE BELCHER GALLERY
500 Sutter Street
San Francisco, California 94102
Telephone (415) 981-3178

BEVERLY PEPPER

Recent Sculpture

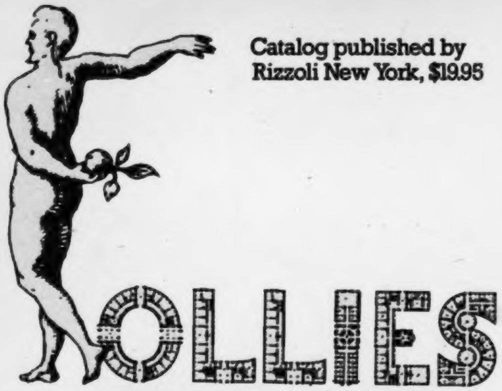
November

JOHN BERGGRUEN GALLERY
228 Grant, San Francisco
(415) 781-4629

RICHARD HENNESSY

NOVEMBER 11–DECEMBER 3

HAMILTON
20 WEST 57TH NEW YORK (212) 765-5915



Catalog published by
Rizzoli New York, $19.95

Architecture for the Late-Twentieth-Century Landscape

Leo Castelli Gallery
420 West Broadway New York
October 22–November 22

James Corcoran Gallery
8223 Santa Monica Blvd., LA
January 21–February 25

ARMSTRONG
GALLERY / HARRIET LEBISH, DIRECTOR
50 WEST 57TH NY 10019 (212) 582-8581

INAUGURAL EXHIBITION
NOVEMBER 8–DECEMBER 3
AUDREY FLACK
THE EARLY YEARS: 1953–1968

DECEMBER 6–JANUARY 7
AN INTIMATE APPROACH
WORKS ON PAPER BY HAROLD BRUDER,
DIANE BURKO, ROBERT DASH, ELAINE DE KOONING,
JIMMY ERNST, AUDREY FLACK, CONNIE FOX,
SAM GELBER, CLEVE GRAY, JOHN HARDY, LEE HALL,
PATTI HANSEN, DEBORAH REMINGTON, JUNE WAYNE

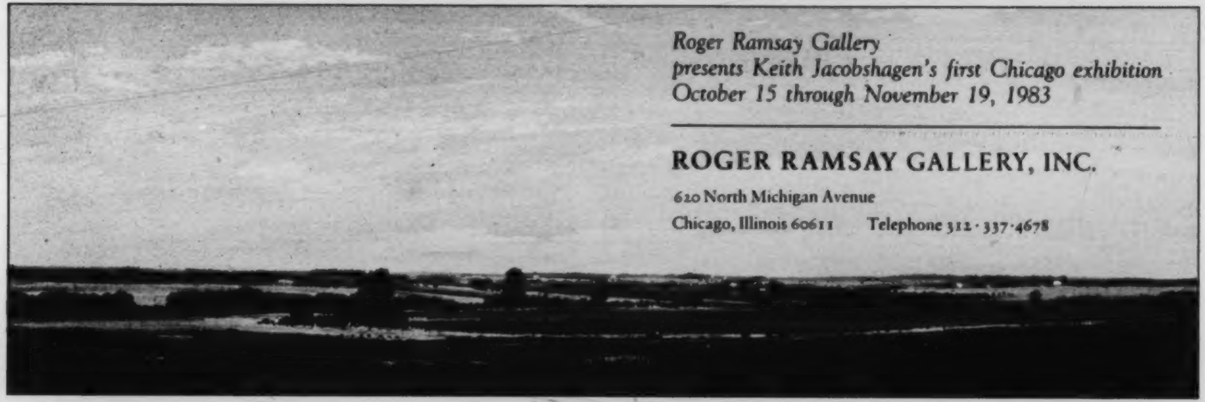
VOL
7
1
ISS
1 0
NO
1983
UMI

4

RICHARD FRANCISCO
November 15 - December 10, 1983
Jack Tilton
Gallery
24 West 57 Street • New York, N.Y. 10019 • 212-247-7480

JOHN C. STOLLER & CO.
ART FOR A NUCLEAR WEAPONS FREEZE
BENEFIT EXHIBITION — NOVEMBER 12
400 MARQUETTE AVE MINNEAPOLIS 55401 (612) 339-7060

GUY JOHN CAVALLI
PAINTINGS
NOVEMBER 8 – DECEMBER 9
William
Sawyer
Gallery
3045 CLAY STREET • SAN FRANCISCO



Roger Ramsay Gallery
presents Keith Jacobshagen's first Chicago exhibition
October 15 through November 19, 1983
ROGER RAMSAY GALLERY, INC.
620 North Michigan Avenue
Chicago, Illinois 60611 Telephone 312 · 337 · 4678

KRAUSHAAR
GALLERIES
FOUNDED 1885

BEN FRANK MOSS
PAINTINGS
October 25–November 19

RUSSELL COWLES
(1887–1979)
MEMORIAL EXHIBITION OF PAINTINGS
November 23–December 17

724 FIFTH AVENUE NEW YORK 10019
PHONE: (212) 307-5730

10 Artists from the Galería de Arte Mexicano, Mexico City

Frederic Amat
Alfredo Castañeda
José Luis Cuevas
Elizabeth Garrity
Gunther Gerzso
Luis García Guerrero
Joy Laville
Luis Lopez Loza
Eduardo Tamariz
Francisco Toledo

November 29 through December 23
Illustrated catalogue $5 postpaid

Mary-Anne Martin/Fine Art
213 E 49 St, NY 10017 Tel 212 980-8104

MORTON KAISH
RECENT PAINTINGS
NOVEMBER 8 THROUGH DECEMBER 3

STAEMPFLI GALLERY
47 EAST 77 STREET NEW YORK, NY 10021 212/535-1919

BARBARA KRAKOW GALLERY
10 Newbury Street Boston, MA 02116 617 262-4490

Victoria Faust

Paintings

November 5–
December 8, 1983

VOL 7 1
ISS 1 0
NO
1983
UMI

Pam Adler Gallery

37 West 57th Street
New York, N.Y. 10019
Tel. 212/980.9696

Jonathan Santlofer

November 15 - December 10

CONSTANCE MALLINSON

NEW PAINTINGS AND PASTELS

NOVEMBER 19 - DECEMBER 31

NEIL G. OVSEY GALLERY

705 East Third Street, 3rd Floor
Los Angeles, California 90013
Telephone (213) 617-1351

Edwin Dickinson

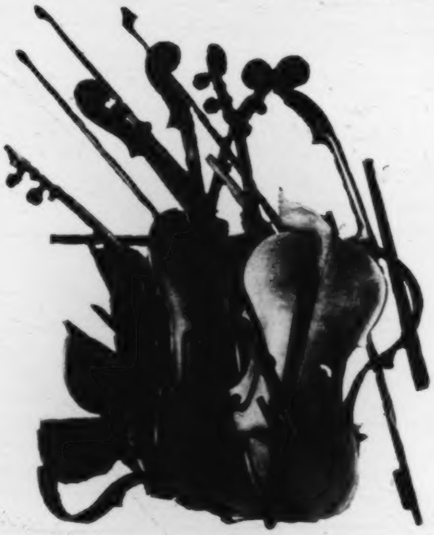
1891 - 1978

November 3 - 30

HIRSCHL & ADLER Modern

851 Madison Avenue New York, New York 10021 212 744-6700

Gallion, 1982, Bronze



ARMAN'S ORCHESTRA

An Exhibition of Recent Works in Bronze

HERBERT
PALMER
GALLERY

802 North La Cienega Blvd. Los Angeles, California 90069 213-854-0096

When it comes to demanding brilliance, Bert Sinfield's no shrinking violet.

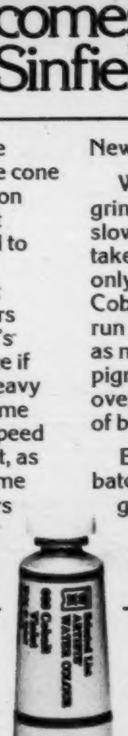
He can't afford to be because he's responsible for running the cone grinding mill at Winsor & Newton to ensure that our Cobalt Violet Artists' Water Colour is ground to perfection.

As a skilled colourman, Bert knows that certain water colours cannot meet Winsor & Newton's exacting standards for brilliance if they are ground on a normal heavy commercial roll mill. The extreme pressure of these large, high-speed mills would cause Cobalt Violet, as well as Lemon Yellow, to become dull. While some manufacturers accept this loss of brilliance for the sake of economy and high production output, Winsor & Newton and Bert Sinfield cannot.

We insist on gentle but thorough grinding on a small cone mill; a slow painstaking process which can take up to a full week to produce only five gallons. Each batch of Cobalt Violet and Lemon Yellow is run through the cone mill as often as necessary to ensure proper pigment dispersion without risking overgrinding and subsequent loss of brilliance.

Bert Sinfield ground his first batch of colour in 1948 and today, grinding certain water colours on a cone mill the old-fashioned way is one of his specialties. He's just one of our many meticulous craftsmen who take great pride and infinite pains in their work. No wonder Winsor & Newton continues to produce the world's finest Artists' Water Colours. We wouldn't settle for anything less. Would you?

Winsor & Newton, 555 Winsor Drive, Secaucus, New Jersey 07094. Western Distributors: Pacific Stationery, 415 South West Second Avenue, Portland, Oregon 97204; Pacific Artists Materials, 2410 West Third Street, Santa Ana, California 92703. Wyoming, North and South Dakota Distributor: The Mathison Company, 1213 North P. Avenue, Fargo, North Dakota 58102.



WINSOR & NEWTON

1832 150th ANNIVERSARY 1982

Time and expense aren't our main concern.
Quality is.

VOL
7
1
ISS
1 0
N O
1983
UMI

Mark Di Suvero, MIZORBIT, 1962, one inch steel plain cut welded sculpture in two pieces, 17½ ins.

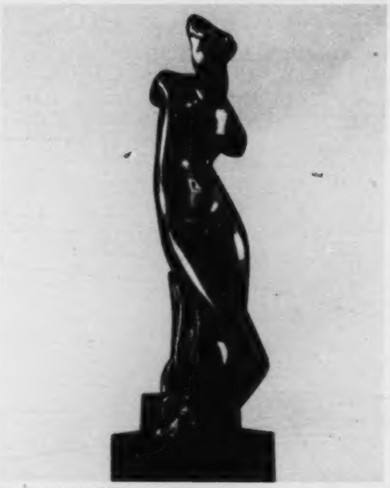
Quality American and European contemporary works of art

HARCOURTS CONTEMPORARY

550 Powell Street
San Francisco, CA 94108
415-421-5590



Alexandre Archipenko, SPRING
TORSO, 1925, gilt bronze sculpture,
18ins.

Distinguished work by 19th and 20th century European, American, and Latin artists

HARCOURTS GALLERY

535 Powell Street
San Francisco, CA 94108
415-421-3428

Van Dyke Kaleidoscope, Series III

From the studio of Van Dyke Limited, William O'Connor's elegant, rectangle, 20 pieces of handblown glass project an endless stream of multi-colored images. Recessed bronze dial. Hand-beveled crystal end piece. Solid brass housing available in 3 finishes: polished brass, chrome or black chrome. With black suede lined tabletop mount. $475. Include $11. for shipping and insurance. New York State residents add applicable sales tax. Check or Money Order, American Express, MasterCard or Visa. Include signature and expiration date.

SOINTU

20 East 69th St., NY NY 10021
212/570-9449
Catalog available $2.

NEW RELEASE MARCHE AUX FLEURS Retablo in silkscreen
Pre-publication list price $750 Size: 60x85cm 23½x33½in

© 1983 Nicola Simbari

SIMBARI
ORIGINALS AND GRAPHICS

PUBLISHER
SELENE™
P.O. Box 75, Normandy House
St. Helier, Jersey, Channel Islands

Books and Catalogues available
Prices on application
U.S. DISTRIBUTORS
TamarArts LTD
60 EAST 54TH ST. SUITE 1201, NEW YORK
N.Y. 10022 TEL. (212) 308-2161

VOL 71 ISS 10 NO 1983 UMI

J. Seward Johnson, Jr.

Lifesize Bronze Sculpture

"A Little to the Right" is currently on view in the exhibition
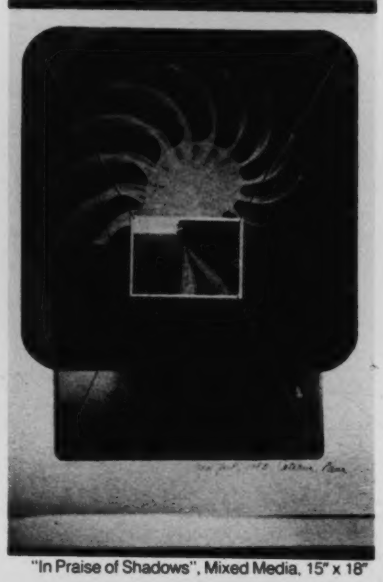
"Bronze at Washington Square"
Washington, D.C.

For information contact:
Sculpture Placement Suite 304 2828 Pennsylvania Ave. NW Washington, DC 20007 202-362-9310

Catalina Parra
November 15 - December 11, 1983



"In Praise of Shadows", Mixed Media, 15" x 18"

Yvonne Séguy Gallery
61 West 62 Street • Harkness Plaza • New York, New York 10023
(212) 265-3314
Tuesday - Sunday 11 to 7 p.m.

NEW WORKS
NEW YORK
curated by John Weber

Nov. 1 — Nov. 26, 1983

CAROL TAYLOR, Art
2508 cedar springs dallas, texas 75201 (214) 745-1923

VOL
71
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI

Edouard Manet: Lola de Valence, 1862/73, oil on canvas, 48½ by 36¼ inches. Musée d'Orsay, Paris.

Manet Revised: Whodunit?

Pressed by stylistic second thoughts, Manet often revised his paintings; however, research into the estate inventory, the "Lochard" photographs and other documents reveals that some pictures were also reworked after his death. The tale—a veritable detective story—appears below.

BY CHARLES F. STUCKEY

I

For a variety of reasons many of Manet's works have changed in appearance since he first painted them. Pigments have darkened in some cases, the result of slow chemical changes, not to mention plain grime. In other cases, surfaces which must once have been "alive" with the tracks and peaks left behind as the artist stroked and jabbed with his brushes have been flattened by the restorer's iron during relining. Such pictures as Baudelaire's Mistress (so-called), The Philosopher and the Portrait of M. Pertuiset must now be viewed with imagination, as if light could sparkle across them as it still does across the remarkably preserved surfaces of Music in the Tuileries, for example, or The Street Singer. Part of the damage to Baudelaire's Mistress can, of course, be attributed directly to Manet, who apparently began to scrape out the figure's skirt at an unknown date because he was dissatisfied with it. For the pastels, some of those that Manet chose to exhibit suffered spot losses because the protective sheets of glass used in framing pressed too closely against them. Without the benefit of historical records and modern technology, however, changes of other sorts can escape notice. An account of revisions made by the artist himself sheds light on his methods and changing goals. An account of changes made by others after Manet's death signals caution

Manet's etching shows that Lola, like many of his portraits of the 1860s, was painted originally with a blank, neutral background.

VOL 71
ISS 10
NO
1983
UMI

The Spanish Singer, 1860, oil on canvas, 58 by 45 inches. Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York.

A struggle with spontaneity: Manet may have painted* The Singer*'s head "at first go," but as the X ray shows, he fussed with the guitar.

like a lighthouse on a dark coast.

As Manet told his lifelong friend Antonin Proust, "There's just one real thing. To get down what one sees at the first shot. When it's there, it's there. When it's not there, one starts over. Everything else is nonsense."[1] Manet admired other artists who rendered images with spontaneity. In 1859 he encountered Degas at the Louvre, drawing lines directly into a copper plate for an etching after Velásquez's L'Infante Marguerite. "You're bold to etch that way, without any preliminary drawing," Manet admitted. "I wouldn't dare do the same!"[2] Years later it was no different. "An artist has to be a spontaneist. That's the correct term. But to have spontaneity one must be a master of one's art. Groping about never leads to anything. It's necessary to translate what one experiences, but to translate it instantaneously."[3] Manet was referring to his own reconsideration of the primacy of "impressions" in painting, thanks to the example of younger associates such as Monet and Renoir. Recording this conversation, Proust added that Manet had discussed art in such terms in 1858.

> "There's just one real thing," Manet told Antonin Proust. "To get down what one sees at the first shot."

When he succeeded, Manet expressed his pleasure openly. "Can you imagine that I painted the head on the first go," he asked, pointing to The Spanish Singer, 1861. "After two hours' work, I looked at it in my little black mirror and it held its own; I didn't put down one more brushstroke."[4] In contrast, X rays show how Manet fussed with other parts of this painting, altering the position of the guitar three times, along with the musician's hand.[5] Around 1879, Manet was obsessed with the idea of rendering Proust's portrait on an unprepared canvas in one single session. The hand in the glove went well ("With 3 strokes—pic, pic, pic"), but that was during a second session, and seven or eight other canvases had already been abandoned.[6]

Throughout his career the perfectionist in Manet wrestled with the "spontaneist" in him.[7] His admirer and future sister-in-law, Berthe Morisot, included a progress report of Manet's portrait of Eva Gonzales in the letters she wrote to her sister throughout the summer of 1869. By September, after more than 40 sittings, Gonzales's head was once again effaced. "He is the first to laugh about it . . . ."[8] Herself one of Manet's favorite models, Morisot endured repeated, often uncomfortable posing sessions.[9] For Le Bon Bock, 1873, Manet needed 60 sittings from his model, the engraver Emile Bellot.[10] Exasperated by Manet's "spontaneity," most models complained and several, including Monet, Gambetta and Clemenceau, refused to continue sittings.[11] Claude Lantier, the protagonist of Zola's controversial novel The Masterpiece, 1886, who was modeled in part upon Manet, "nearly killed his models from fatigue" and dismayed friends when he savagely scraped out the head of a reclining nude in his painting Open Air, a thinly disguised version of Le déjeuner sur l'herbe.[12]

Unfinished oils such as the Metropolitan Museum's portrait of Manet's wife should be seen as vain struggles with spontaneity. In finished works, the battle scars are hidden. But X rays of the Metropolitan's exquisite Woman with a Parrot, 1866, indicate how often he scraped that head, too, before finally getting what he wanted. For this work, Manet's ultimate revisions may postdate Monet's unaccountably negative reaction in 1867 and Theophile Gautier's complaint in his review of the Salon of 1868 that the face was unacceptably ugly.[13] It seems likely that some of the harsh criticisms directed at Manet's works by contemporaries referred to earlier "states" of pictures.

Apparently, Manet sometimes took adverse criticism to heart. In 1864, for example, a journalist disliked the "inexplicable pink" color of the loincloth in Manet's The Dead Christ with Angels.[14] Pinkish undertones, still visible today, suggest that the painter may have repainted this area later to make it more conventional. Yet although his friend Baudelaire wrote to warn him that the wound was placed on the wrong side of Christ's chest in this same painting, Manet did nothing about it, a fact which exemplifies his complex attitude toward revisions.[15] Manet did "correct" his other 1864 Salon painting, Episode in a Bull Ring, a butt of caricaturists, who exaggerated his misapplication of the rules of perspective. He quickly resolved the problem by cutting the large canvas into segments and reworking these as separate works. The largest segment, The Dead Man, was ready for exhibition by the beginning of the next year.[16]

Manet similarly "edited" several other works after having exhibited them. Most often, fragments cut from larger pictures were developed as complete pictorial ideas in themselves; but sometimes he sewed additional pieces of canvas to "completed" compositions because he wanted to expand them.[17] For example, it seems that the large racetrack painting, finished by 1865 and copied in a watercolor, was later cut down by the artist, but it is unclear when or why.[18] And Woman playing a Guitar, the painting now at the Hill-Stead Museum, is only a fragment of a large oil exhibited in 1867. Perhaps, as in the case of The Water Drinker, he contemplated these revisions over several years.[19] This last painting is a reworked fragment of a large composition entitled The Gypsies, which he copied in an etching. For a critic writing in 1863, "The etching succeeds better than the canvas . . . . Most of all I love the [figure] who, head thrown back, inverts a jug of water towards his open mouth: Velásquez's Drinkers would admit him into their confraternity."[20] Manet, who must have relished the reference to his favorite, Velásquez, ultimately came to the same conclusion. After again exhibiting The Gypsies in 1867, he cut out that single figure and transformed it into an independent genre picture with a monochromatic background à Woman with a Parrot, 1866, oil on canvas, 72⅞ by 50⅝ inches. Metropolitan Museum, New York.

Advice taken: This X ray suggests that Manet reworked Woman with a Parrot's head, perhaps because critics found her "unacceptably ugly."

VOL 71
ISS 10
NO
1983
UMI

Water Drinker, 1862/72, oil on canvas, 22¼ by 20 inches. Art Institute of Chicago. Manet cut out this single figure from a larger work, The Gypsies, and transformed it into an independent genre picture with a monochromatic background à la Velásquez.

la Velásquez.[21]

Given Manet's poor sales during the 1860s, he could reconsider pictures at leisure and, not surprisingly, he took every opportunity to make improvements. The Absinthe Drinker, the first painting that he submitted to a Salon jury, in 1859, is a case in point. Evidently, Manet had first hoped to please both his former teacher, Couture, and maverick associates like Baudelaire by adopting an old master style for an original picture based upon modern life. But the result displeased both Couture and Baudelaire, and, most important, the jury rejected it, perhaps because Manet's subject matter was taken as vulgar.[22] Why such an extraordinary work fared so poorly seems unaccountable, except for documents that reveal that the painting as it is known today is significantly different from the unpopular original version.

Manet's etching of* The Gypsies. *The "water drinker" is in the right mid-ground.

The Dead Man, 1864, oil on canvas, 29⅞ by 60⅜ inches. National Gallery. Originally a segment of Episode in a Bull Ring, this painting was exhibited separately in 1865.

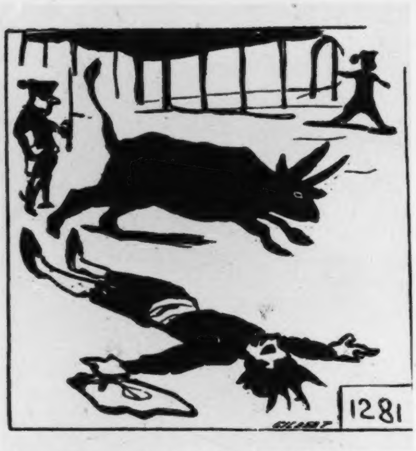
According to notes made after Manet's death by his stepson Léon Leenhoff, the artist added the legs and glass of absinthe in 1863.[23] An unpublished conservation report corroborates Léon's claim, at least in part. The report certifies that the bottom 40.5 centimeters (or 16 inches) of the present painting is a separate piece of canvas that was sewn on as an addition.[24] When the change from a three-quarters length to a full-length figure was made is a matter of some debate. Was it before 1862, when Cadart published a portfolio of Manet's etchings including The Absinthe Drinker, now in full-length format, albeit still lacking the glass? The Old Musician, a large oil ready for exhibition in 1863, includes the same full-length figure recorded in the etching.

Curiously, however, when Manet showed the oil version of The Absinthe Drinker in his one-artist retrospective in 1867, no changes were yet evident. The catalogue gives the dimensions as 1.30 by 0.99 meters, whereas now the painting measures 1.81 by 1.06. And a caricature published in 1867 gives an idea of its original appearance before the feet, bottle and glass were added. It is certain that the painting was "finished" by 1872, for early that year Manet sold it to the dealer Durand-Ruel as one of four related works referred to as "philosophers." Put another complicated way, after 1867 Manet "completed" a painting begun around 1859 to correspond to a print published in 1862 because he wanted this painting to become part of an ensemble consisting of full-length images of beggars. Although it is unknown when Manet first envisioned such an ensemble, he began to paint the final three works after he returned from Spain in 1865, well before revising The Absinthe Drinker.

Starting in the late 1850s, Manet often considered alternative formats as he developed pictures. For example, The Surprised Nymph, exhibited as "Nymph and Satyr" in St. Petersburg in 1861, developed from a much larger horizontal composition begun as an oil sketch by 1859.[25] A red chalk drawing, evidently made in preparation for La toilette, another of the etchings in the 1862 portfolio, provides additional insights into Manet's thinking about format.[26] With a few bold lines he indicated how he might crop this full-length seated figure at the knees, just about where he had originally cut off the figure of The Absinthe Drinker. Was Manet in this drawing, considering alternative formats of an original etching not yet begun? Or was there once a painted version of La Toilette, never exhibited and subsequently destroyed because the artist found neither format satisfactory?



Caricaturists had a field day with* Episode, *exaggerating its perspectival "mistakes."

A drawing of the Spanish dancer Don Mariano Camprubi further illustrates how Manet was generally of two minds about format. In the drawing the figure is cropped at mid-thigh, whereas in the oil version, 1862, and the subsequent etching Manet opted for a full length. When the critic Duret commissioned his portrait from Manet in 1868, the painter explained that he preferred the more complete format, even for small works: "I think that one could do a little full-length portrait to the dimensions that you want; a head by itself is always something boring. . . . "[27] But a Lochard photograph (these will be discussed later) documents how Manet considered reducing his full-length Woman in Evening Dress, 1877–80.

Manet's changing ideas about backgrounds are just as important. Be-

VOL 71 ISS 10 NO 1983 UMI

The Absinthe Drinker, 1859/1872, oil on canvas, 71$\frac{5}{16}$ by 41$\frac{3}{4}$ inches. Ny Carlsberg Glypotek, Copenhagen. According to his stepson, Manet added the legs and glass in 1863.

Manet's 1862 etching of The Absinthe Drinker shows him full-length but glassless.

An 1867 caricature of The Absinthe Drinker gives an idea of its original appearance.

tween approximately 1861 and 1868 he painted more than a dozen pictures, including The Absinthe Drinker and the portraits of Camprubi and Duret, each of which presents a single full-length figure in a bare, monochromatic setting. Evidently, Manet hoped to emulate the powerful simplicity of some of Velásquez's finest portraits or to expound Baudelaire's proposition that "The greatest colorists know how to attain color with a black coat, a white tie and a gray background."[28] Manet's appreciation for richly painted backgrounds that indicate no setting whatsoever increased when he studied Velásquez's greatest works first-hand during a trip to Spain in 1865.[29] During the next two years or so Manet executed a half dozen large oils along similar lines, including The Tragic Actor and the Portrait of Theo- dore Duret. Then, curiously, he lost interest in the idea almost entirely for about a decade.

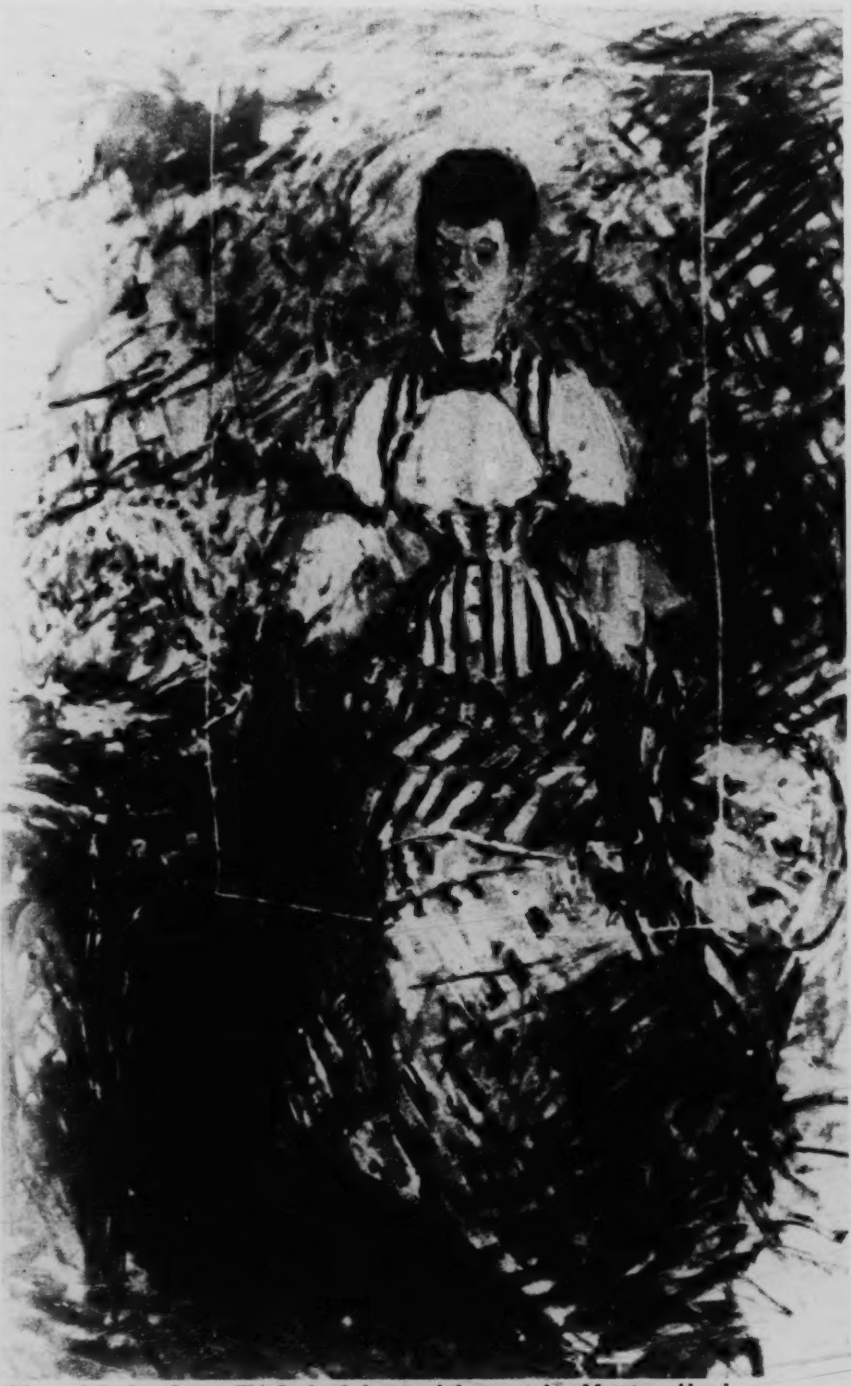
In several cases during the 1860s Manet apparently replaced neutral backgrounds with more elaborate ones indicative of specific locales. For example, caricatures of his portrait of Mme Brunet suggest that sometime between 1863 and 1867 Manet cropped the bottom of the figure and added an out-of-doors setting behind her.[30] And as Manet's etching after the picture shows, his striking full-length portrait of the Spanish dancer Lola de Valence was also first set against a blank, dark background.[31] Judging from a caricature published in 1867, Manet had still not added the backstage scene visible today. The new background was certainly added, however, before 1873 when the painting was sold to the baritone Faure, whose own stage career must have predisposed him toward the "final" work. Although when and why Manet altered the format of Lola de Valence is anyone's guess, there is no question that Manet's original frame for this work, used both before and after he added the theatrical background, masked narrow strips of canvas visible today at the top and bottom (as the placement of his signature indicates).[32]

Why was the extraordinary "Absinthe Drinker" received so poorly? Partly because the unpopular original version is quite different from the one known today.

The different "states" of Lola raise the question of whether Manet added background details to other works. For example, did The Street Singer, 1862, have a neutral background at first, before Zola saw the picture in 1866 as it appears today? Although Manet made prints after most of his exhibition paintings during the first half of the 1860s, he neglected to reproduce several important works, including The Street Singer, The Old Musician,[33] Le déjeuner sur l'herbe and Jesus Mocked by the Soldiers. Did he lack the time to make etchings after these? Or did he find that these paintings did not lend themselves to translation into black and white? Given Manet's open-minded attitude toward revisions, he possibly postponed etching because he was not sure that these works were "finished." As recently as 1967, Clement Greenberg made the startling suggestion that Le déjeuner sur l'herbe might have been more successful had Manet cropped it on the top and sides.[34]



Of two minds about format: This Lochard photograph documents how Manet considered cropping his full-length* Woman in Evening Dress, *1877–80, now in the Guggenheim Museum.

In any event, Manet came to his decision to repaint the originally neutral background of Lola at about the same time that he decided to stop using such backgrounds for new works, that is, around 1868. Duret's portrait done in that year is of particular interest because his account of

VOL
7
1
ISS
1 0
NO
1983
UMI

La toilette, 1861, etching, 11⅛ by 8⅜ inches. Bibliothèque Nationale, Paris.

This red chalk drawing in preparation for La toilette suggests how Manet might have cropped the seated figure at the knee.

how it developed records Manet's thinking about changes.[35] After Manet had painted Duret's figure on a neutral background, the portrait was considered finished. But on a subsequent visit to the painter's studio, Duret was asked to resume his pose because Manet had decided to add a still life in the foreground. According to the model, who served little purpose on this occasion but received a lesson about abstraction in art, the artist painted each new object—a stool, a paperback fallen on the floor, and a serving tray loaded with a glass, carafe and lemon—before adding the next. As Duret learned, each object enriched the painting's color harmonies, despite the fact that none of them had anything to do with him personally, as props generally do in portraits. The shadows cast by the new items are incongruously longer than those that the figure had cast during earlier sittings, as if Manet wanted his additions to appear as such, related no more closely to the sitter in terms of time and space than they are related to him in meaning.

"Upon beginning a picture, [Manet] could never tell how that picture would come along,"[36] explained Zola, who evidently heard a similar lecture in 1866. His famous essay in defense of Manet's art, published the following year, maintains that the painter added the maid and cat to Olympia simply as black accents and the bouquet simply as a large highlight, without considering their meaning as props.[37] No matter how simplified Zola's explanation, it seems clear that Manet decided to add new details to this famous picture long after it was underway. Baudelaire, who saw the work before leaving for Brussels in the spring of 1864, was surprised to learn a year later that Manet had added a cat. The 14-year-old Jacques-Emile Blanche, who watched Manet paint The Artist in 1875, recalled later that a green garden chaise in the background was scraped out and replaced by the bizarre image of a dog lapping water from a tall glass.[38]

Such accounts of Manet revising works already near completion underline his idiosyncratic opposition to the use of preliminary drawings.[39] Typically, the only known drawing of the entire composition of Olympia was done after the painting was exhibited, in preparation for a print. Although Manet made two drawings to establish the model's pose, he relied on neither of them for the final work.[40] Indeed, after the portrait of his parents, 1860, for the composition of which a conventional preliminary drawing was made,[41] Manet seems rarely to have depended upon drawings, even for details in his paintings. Except for those done in conjunction with prints after paintings, almost all of his known drawings remained undeveloped as paintings.[42]

Although some preliminary drawings may have been lost, it is clear that Manet believed the use of them would interfere with his goal of spontaneity. Duret claimed that during Manet's brief trip to Spain he made reference sketches of bullfights in anticipation of paintings to be executed when he returned to his studio.[43] But only one such sketch survives, and it has little in specific to do with the bullfight scenes that Manet eventually painted apparently from memory. Only during the 1870s and 1880s did he tend increasingly to refer to the drawings taken in notebooks on his rounds of Paris, and then merely for details in the backgrounds of pictures.

The few exceptions tend to prove the rule. There is an elaborate ink sketch, parts of which Manet transferred directly into Music in the Tuileries, 1862. Yet since this sketch corresponds only to the middle section of the oil, it appears that Manet's original compositional idea expanded as soon as he undertook the oil version.[44] The tiny sketch for The Balcony was made only after Manet had had to abandon a large canvas because his composition had turned out entirely wrong. Presumably taking additional expenses and delays into account (as most artists routinely do), Manet now made this drawing to define the correct composition before committing a second large canvas.[45] Even so, the drawing hardly corresponds to the final work in every detail. X rays show that Manet had relied on it (for example, the seated woman had a parasol) but then changed his ideas yet once more.

"Each time he begins a painting," reported his friend Mallarmé in 1876, "he plunges headlong into it, and feels like a man who knows that the surest plan to learn to swim safely is, dangerous as it may seem, to throw himself into the water."[46] Ironically, the time-saving notion of spontaneity cost Manet hours of extra work scraping out false starts. Drawing in oils, like working crossword puzzles in ink, can cause problems, and Manet never stopped coping with them. For example, when he attempted a portrait of the statesman Gambetta around 1871, he covered his canvas with large sheets of paper. When he attained a successful result, it could then be traced onto the canvas.[47] But this change in his routine was no solution, and the portrait was never executed. Manet's interest in the medium of pastels on canvas, beginning around 1874, must likewise have been motivated, at least in part, from his determination to draw in colors, changing freely as he went along. Working directly in oils, however, never became easy for him. Blanche watched Manet rework Jeanne: Spring and The Amazon repeatedly.[48] Considering Baudelaire's contention that "Drawing is a battle between the artist and nature,"[49] Manet was often on the defensive, and he often lost. The many partially completed oils circulated on the art market after Manet's death should not be considered as "sketches," as Blanche pointed out, but as abandoned "pictures stopped in progress."[50]

Observers have all noted a sweeping change in Manet's style around 1870, when he openly adopted a more high-keyed palette and a more earnest attitude toward paintings taken directly from modern life. Inspired by Degas and Renoir in particular, Manet began to paint what could be called "double portraits" of couples engaged in real life activities, instead of single figures isolated in a neutral studio setting. Mostly works intended for exhibition, these "double portraits" include The Railroad, 1872–73, Monet Painting in his Boat Studio, 1874, Argenteuil, 1874, Boating, 1874, Le linge, 1875, and finally In the Conservatory and At Pere Lathuile's, both 1879. Although Manet had at first intended to paint Nana, 1877, as an isolated female figure, he eventually revised his thinking and added a male figure,[51] presumably so that no one could fail to appreciate the picture's dimension of social commentary. Judging from the finished work, when Manet realized the need to include the courtesan's customer, there was relatively little space left over in his original composition, enough for only half a figure à la Japonaise.

Similar resourcefulness led to the first of these double portraits in realistic settings. The picture referred to as "La Lecture" (Reading) in Manet's 1872 inventory of unsold works is a revised portrait of his wife, first exhibited in 1866 when she was 35 years old. Her son Léon was only 14 years old at that time, whereas the figure in Reading for which he posed appears to be nearly 20.[52] As he would do later for Nana, Manet conceived this new figure of Léon to "fit" into an empty space in an already "complete" composition. When Manet added a similar secondary male figure to In the Garden is less certain. Begun in the spring of 1870 and developed that summer on vacation outside of Paris, this painting may correspond to the one listed as "A la campagne" in Manet's 1872 inventory. Prunaire's engraving after the painting, probably executed around 1873 or 1874, at which time he assisted Manet with several reproductions, records the picture with only the seated woman tending a baby in a carriage.[53] Later Manet must have decided that the child needed a "father" and so added the reclining male figure, "fit" into spaces once left empty on either side of the woman.

As many of Manet's friends pointed out, the artist had a horror of repeating himself.[54] It is hardly surprising, therefore, that by 1880 Manet's attitude toward the double portrait had changed. Writing to Proust about his portrait, then on exhibition at the Salon, Manet explained: "Believe me when I tell you, my dear friend, how difficult it is to place a single figure on a canvas and to concentrate all interest on this single and unique figure, without it ceasing to be alive and full. To do two figures who draw their magnetism from the duality of the characters is child's play in comparison."[55]

Manet often revised "completed" works; he also mostly painted without the use of orthodox preliminary drawings.

No discussion of the changes in Manet's works can omit the special problem of colors that faded. Comparing Manet's oils done in the 1860s with his watercolor reproductions of them, it is clear that many of the dark tones have "sunk" or become darker in the former. The figures in the oil version of Olympia, for example, no longer stand out crisply from the background as they still do in the watercolor copy, and details, such as the model's long red hair, remain scarcely visible. Such changes were noted already in Manet's lifetime. In 1876 a visitor to his studio reported,

> Now see what has become of the famous Woman with a Cat which once was so much discussed! The painting's tones have extinguished themselves. The silkiness of the flesh has disappeared to give way to a yellow tone, uniform, flat, without values and without half tones. The negress and the cat have become masses of opaque black without effect and without transparency; only the bouquet still cries out above everything. The head is rigid, wooden and without charm. Obviously, this picture must have changed profoundly.[56]

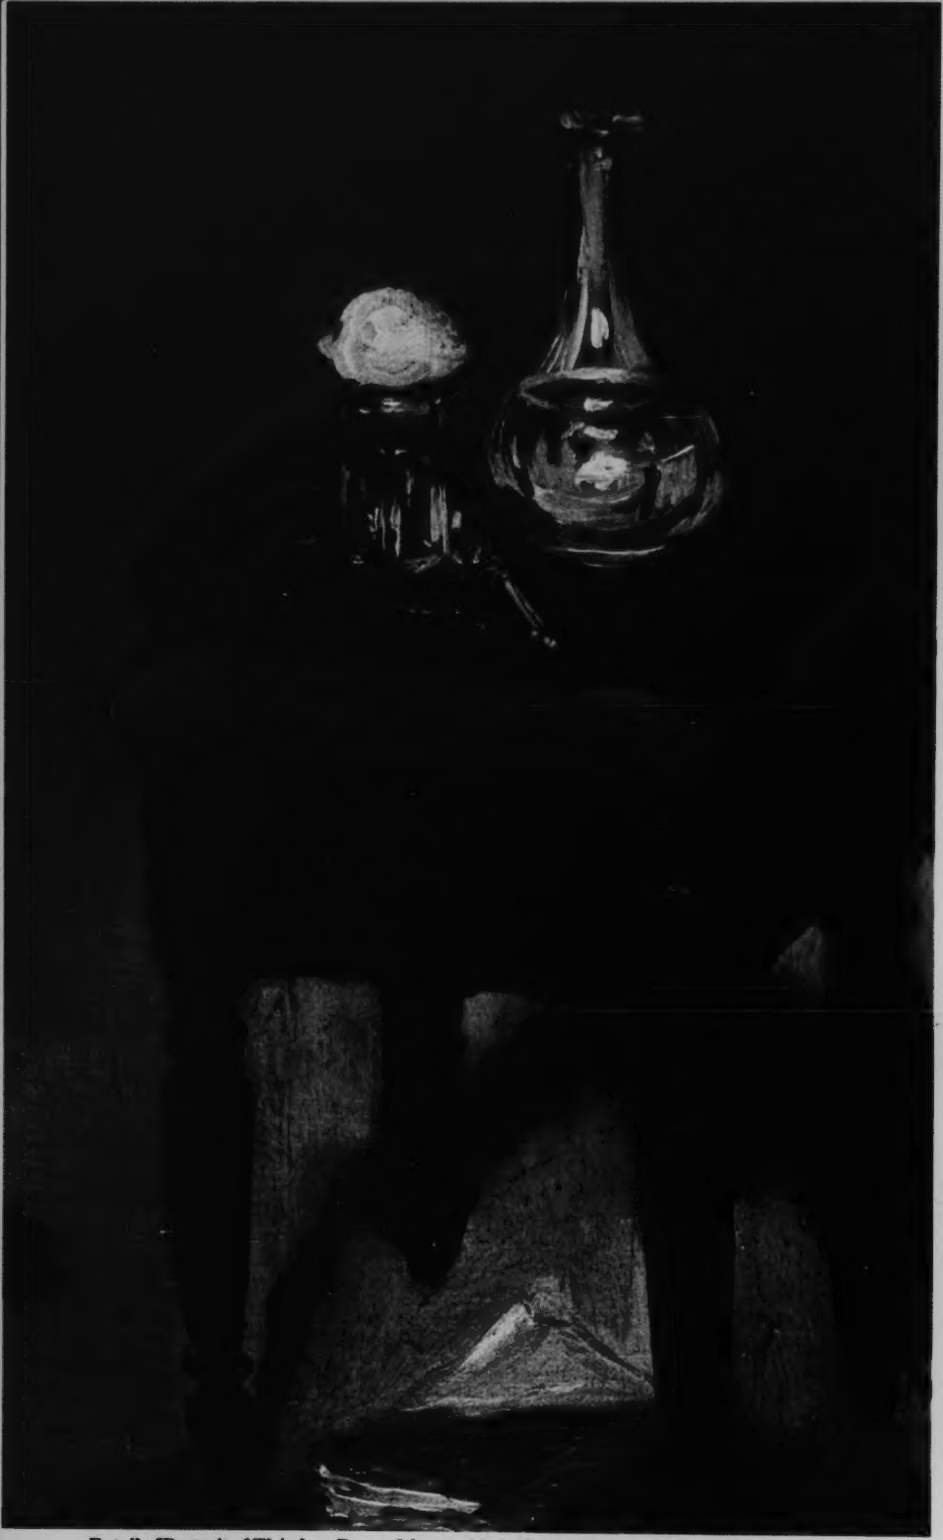
To prevent such a tragedy recurring, Manet began to use colors with high values that appeared garish to early viewers. As the painter realized, in time the colors would fade and thus "correct" themselves. Writing in 1912, Blanche claimed that the colors of the Portrait of M. Pertuiset, Jeanne: Spring and A Bar at the Folies Bergère were all considerably darker, and more acceptable, than when he saw them newly painted in the early 1880s. The flesh tones in Portrait of M. Pertuiset originally resembled poppies, according to Blanche.[57] Like Manet, Renoir calculated how his colors would become seasoned with time. Referring to Fantasia, 1881, painted in Algeria, Renoir told the dealer Ambroise Vollard, "When I delivered [it] to Durand-Ruel, it had the [glaring] appearance of a heap of plaster. Durand-Ruel had confidence in me and several years later, the work of the color having come to an end, the subject stood out on the canvas just as I conceived it."[58]

II

It comes as a shock, but some works by Manet were changed after his death. For example, according to notes entered by Manet's stepson, Léon, in a register of the works left in Manet's estate, the heirs decided to send Autumn, an incomplete work, to be finished "by the painter at Kievert's in preparation for the exhibition at the Ecole des Beaux Arts [to be held in January 1884]."[59] The full extent of the tampering with Manet's works is still not known and can best be estimated from letters, imprecise legal and business documents, and a teenager's diary that contain clues worthy of a whodunit.

Manet died on April 30, 1883, leaving a will that directed his executors to sell the contents of his studio at public auction for the benefit of his wife Suzanne and Léon. The will authorized Duret to decide which works should be destroyed rather than sold, but as far as is known, he ignored this option—and who could blame him? On June 18 Manet's heirs engaged no-

VOL 71 ISS 10 NO 1983 UMI



Detail of* Portrait of Théodore Duret. *Manet added this still life to the painting in order to enrich its color harmonies; the objects are otherwise totally unrelated to the sitter.

Portrait of Théodore Duret, 1868, oil on canvas, 17 by 13¾ inches. Musée du Petit Palais, Paris.

It comes as a shock, but some works by Manet were repainted after his death in order to increase their market value.

taries to make an official inventory of the estate as required by law. Approved by all parties on Dec. 28, this inventory of the works unsold during Manet's lifetime included value appraisals established by professional auctioneers with the assistance of Durand-Ruel, his most active dealer for more than 20 years. Besides seven works at Suzanne's apartment and five kept by the artist's mother, the authorities found 135 oil paintings that merited being listed individually with evaluations—from merely 50 francs to 200 for A Bar at the Folies Bergère—considerably below the prices that Manet had been charging clients. Forty-one of these oils were listed together under the heading "Painted studies" with a value of 2000 francs total, presumably because they were judged to have far less market appeal. Finally, the inventory listed 40 pastels and several portfolios of drawings and engravings.[60] In a rough way these estimates indicate whether or not a given work had been completed by the artist.

To supplement the official inventory, Léon decided to have the contents in the estate photographed before many items were put up for auction in early February 1884. As he noted:

> After Manet's death, I had had the idea to have everything that remained in the studio photographed. I contacted Lochard, a photographer known to artists. I did not wish to incur any great expense, having still to pay for frames. It was agreed beween us that the price would be so much for a certain number. The bills are in the inventory. I thus established a regis-

The Street Singer, ca. 1862, oil on canvas, 69 by 42¾ inches. Museum of Fine Arts, Boston.

VOL 71 ISS 10 NO 1983 UMI

In the Garden, 1870, oil on canvas, 17½ by 21¼ inches. Shelburne (Vermont) Museum. Apparently, Manet thought the baby here needed a "father," whom he later slipped into the space behind the woman.

Prunaire's 1874 engraving of In the Garden shows only the woman tending the baby.

> ter numbered from 1 to 327 and the corresponding number was pasted on the canvases. It appears in the photographs.[61]

The whereabouts of the bills is still unknown, and none of the little Lochard photographs shows any trace of the numbering system that Léon described. Still more curious, the sets of Lochard photographs known today record works not included in Léon's register of 327 pictures. When these other photographs (with numbers as high as 440) were added is one of the mysteries surrounding Lochard photographs that has never been investigated.

Overlooking such questions, Adolphe Tabarant, who published comprehensive catalogues of Manet's paintings in 1931 and again in 1947, concluded: "Of all the documentary sources for a descriptive catalogue of Manet, that provided by the photographs of Fernand Lochard is assuredly the most perfect."[62] But, as we shall see, several of the photographs taken to document the appearance of Manet's works as left in the estate are now lost, and in one case it can be shown that an original Lochard photograph was replaced with another photograph taken years later, after a painting had been changed. Consequently, these Lochard photographs can hinder as well as help an understanding of Manet's output.

The information contained in Léon's register indicates that in at least two instances paintings were cut down, apparently before Lochard set to work. As a result, the originally projected scope of these paintings has never been properly appreciated. Had Manet not abandoned it, the extraordinary portrait of Léon riding a velocipede, begun around 1871, would have been an important work in terms of scale (96.5 by 47 centimeters or 38 by 19½ inches, at least). Likewise, Manet's double portrait of Monet and his wife, probably undertaken in a polemical vein with the Salon of 1875 in mind,[63] was considerably larger in both dimensions (130 by 195 centimeters or 50⅜ by 76⅞ inches) than the extant unfinished picture, today in the museum in Stuttgart (106 by 134 centimeters or 41¾ by 51¾ inches).

In other cases, however, Lochard photographs do accurately record the appearance of abandoned works that were cut down after Manet's death, such as The Execution of the Emperor Maximilian, 1867–69, in London and the portrait of Clemenceau, 1879–80, in the Louvre.[64]

Fortunately, Lochard photographed Autumn before Manet's family sent it to "the painter at Kievert's," so the extent of repainting can be determined: the muff and hand were finished, and flowers that appeared close to the sitter's face were covered over. Lochard's photograph of The Surprised Nymph shows the satyr's head that originally leered from behind a tree in the background. It has been suggested that this head may have been inadvertently removed during cleaning at an unknown date.[65]

Incredibly, some other Lochard photographs make it certain that several unfinished paintings in Manet's estate were later "completed" to make them more salable. Tabarant cited several examples, including Manet's abandoned equestrian portrait of Arnaud, given to the modern art museum in Milan in 1958. Comparing the work as it presently appears to Lochard's photograph, it is clear that the entire background and the horse were finished by another hand.[66] Not knowing the whereabouts of some works, however, and lacking means to inspect all of the located ones at first hand, Tabarant could not describe the full extent of the problem. The works in question are mostly minor ones, with little interest except for specialists.

Music in the Tuileries, 1862, oil on canvas, 30 by 46½ inches. National Gallery, London. Contrary to his usual practice, Manet used preliminary drawings for this complex canvas.

This ink sketch corresponds only to the middle section of* Music in the Tuileries; evidently, Manet's compositional idea expanded when he undertook the oil version.

For instance, when Anne Coffin Hanson compared a portrait of Mlle Lemonnier, today in the Philadelphia Museum of Art, to the Lochard photograph, she reported in an unpublished paper (deposited in the museum's curatorial file) that repainting had occurred. But since the time of Tabarant, only Daniel Wildenstein, who with Denis Rouart co-authored the most recent catalogue raisonné, has addressed the problem of repainted works in print. In 1975 Wildenstein suggested that the lost unfinished portrait of Antonin Proust, known from a Lochard photograph, exists in a "completed" state now deposited at the Fabre Museum in Montepellier.[67] Although this may be the case, Léon's register actually lists four unfinished portraits of Proust,[68] including one given to the sitter by Manet's heirs. Unfortunately, Lochard never photographed three of the four, and the Montpellier picture might conceivably correspond to one of the unphotographed versions rather than to the recorded one. Moreover, the conservation department of the Metropolitan Museum has begun to examine its portrait of Faure, which may have been cut out from any of the three portraits of the singer mentioned in Léon's register.[69] Since the Lochard photograph for one of the three is lost, however, a final determination may never be possible in this case. Without more investigations of this kind, it will not soon be possible to evaluate the accuracy of claims published by Blanche that there were "fake Manet factories" and that unfinished paintings had been "completed" for export to America (where the deceit would be less likely to be recognized).[70]

VOL 71 ISS 10 NO 1983 UMI

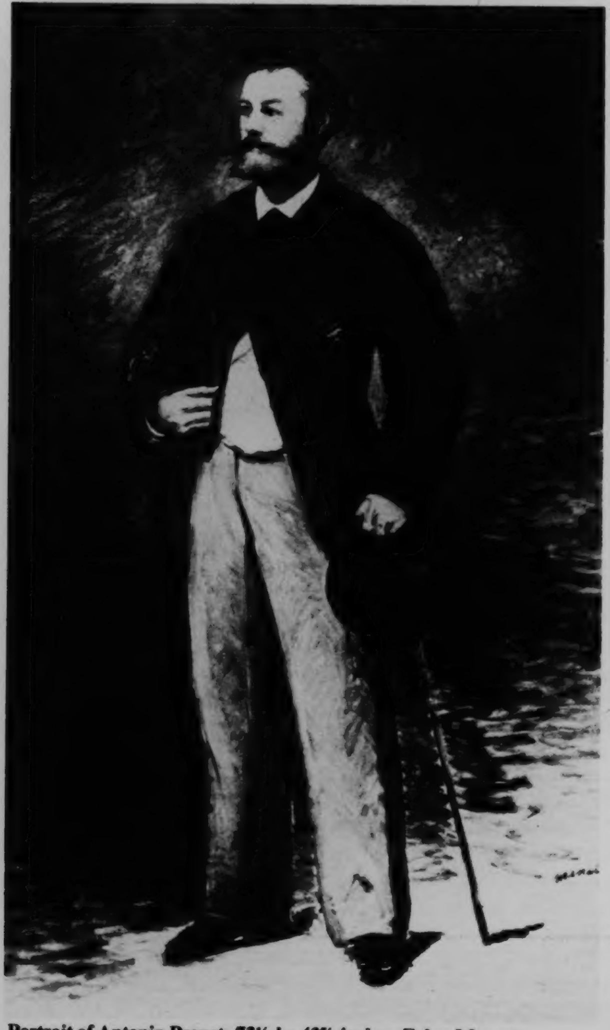
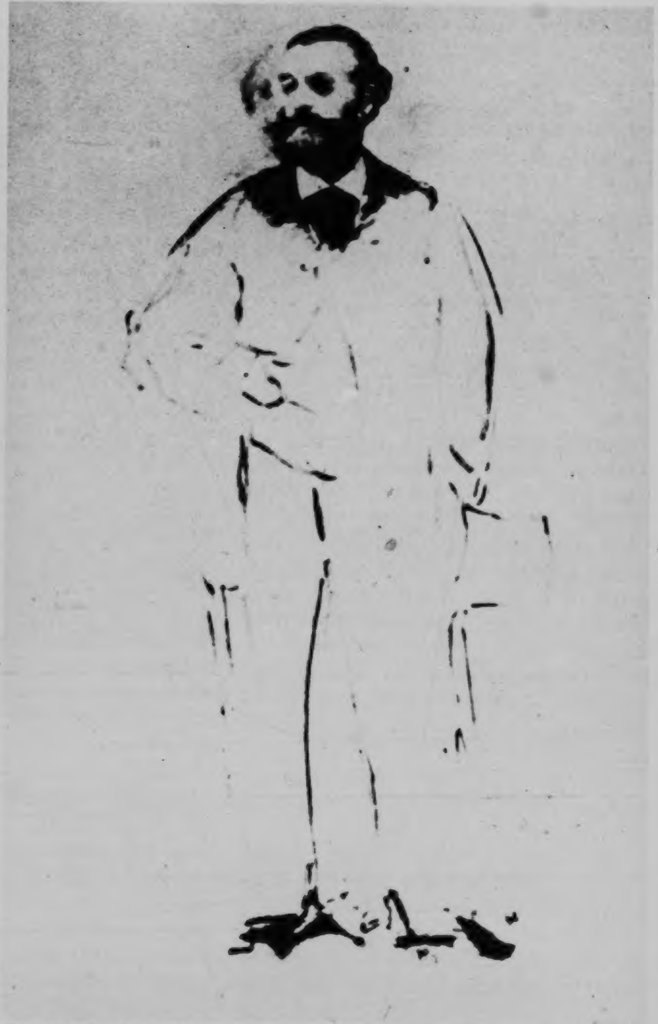
Lochard photographs should exist for every work listed in Léon's register and, by extension, for every work included in the official estate inventory. Confusion has resulted because this is not the case. For example, Rouart and Wildenstein omitted a genuine work from their catalogue because it was not recorded by a Lochard photograph. Yet the painting, Children playing in the Tuileries, 1862, now in the Musum of Art, Rhode Island School of Design, is listed in the inventory. Moreover, since the Lochard photograph of the unfinished version of The Execution of the Emperor Maximilian, today in Boston, is evidently lost, it must remain uncertain whether or not this work was repainted after Manet's death—a possibility suggested by the fact that such an important work was not included in the estate inventory. Why are some of the 327 photographs missing? Were they destroyed when the works that they recorded were destroyed? Were they lost inadvertently, or were they discarded for some reason known only to those who made use of them—that is, Manet's family, dealers in contact with them and the artist's earliest biographers?

Why are some of the 327 Lochard photographs missing? Were they destroyed with the works they recorded? Were they lost? Replaced?

More unsettling than the question of the missing photographs, however, is the evidence that at least one Lochard photograph was replaced by an "imposter photograph" taken years later to cover up an attempt to increase the market value of a painting that Manet had abandoned in an incomplete state. Now referred to as Bathers on the Seine and in the possession of the São Paolo Museum, this work is documented in Léon's register as "Femmes nues" and as "Nymphes se baignant" among the 41



Portrait of Antonin Proust, 72¼ by 43⅝ inches. Fabre Museum, Montpellier. No Lochard photo corresponds to this actual work.



Does this Lochard photo represent the "lost" portrait of Proust that now exists in a completed state at the Fabre Museum?

Head of J.B. Faure, 18⅛ by 14⅞ inches, Metropolitan Museum. Was this work cut from a larger Manet portrait of the singer?

This Lochard photo may represent the canvas from which the Metropolitan's picture was cut before repainting.

"Painted studies" in the estate inventory. The painting was not offered for sale at the 1884 auction of the contents of Manet's studio, presumably because it had little market value. In his memoirs, Blanche explained that the dealer Portier sold him the picture for only 500 francs. In 1898 Blanche received a visit from "a well-known dealer" who acquired the picture in an exchange.[71] This dealer was accompanied by Auguste Pellerin, the margarine tycoon whose collection of works by Manet, begun around this time, was among the most extensive ever assembled. The Bathers caused a commotion when it came into Pellerin's hands.

Pellerin invited Berthe Morisot's daughter Julie to see his collection of her uncle's works on Jan. 29, 1899. In her diary, the 19-year-old expressed misgiving about the Bathers, "which Pellerin is enchanted with and which is beautiful in effect; but the background is done with a black that astonishes me."[72] Two days later she visited the Renoirs and discussed the Pellerin collection with them. Mme Renoir told her that "the Bs repainted one of my uncle's pictures that they sold to Mr. P for 100,000 francs."[73] Julie concluded that the Bathers must be the dubious painting. Several days later Julie noted that Blanche had visited to explain that when he had sold the picture to the dealer Bernheim the previous summer the background was green in color and the major figure's unresolved legs had been scraped out.[74]

Meanwhile, Manet's widow, Suzanne, received a note from Bernheim Jeune & Fils on February 6 which explained that "the photographs are not ready yet."[75] As we shall see, it was the Lochard photographs that were under discussion. On February 7 Julie paid her aunt a visit to ask permission to initiate legal action concerning the repainting. Her diary records her sense of outrage after the visit:

> There is nothing to do, nothing to say. Aunt Suzanne has written on the back of the picture that she acknowledged it as being by her husband, after having hesitated, aware that it had been retouched: "I could not say that it was not by my husband," she told me with her Dutch nonchalance, "since the women were by him." I tell her squarely that she should not have signed; I lost my temper a little; I believe that she finds that I am interfering in something which doesn't concern me, and she is very calm and says that it is always like this with the sketches; it's true that her own brother repainted several of my uncle's pictures. Here is what happened; in order to protect themselves, those crafty Bs arranged to have my aunt's signature before the work was entirely repainted. There is nothing to be done with those people! Aunt Suzanne believes that P works in concert with them. I don't know; if it's true, it's well concealed.[76]

Of course, Julie's extraordinary claim that Suzanne's brother had repainted "several" of Manet's works demands fuller discussion, but first the Bathers saga must be continued. Blanche now insisted that Pellerin invite him and his friend the scholar Etienne Moreau-Nélaton to see the collection. They found the Bathers in the drawing room. "The painting of both legs was now completed, and there was a very dark background in the style of Henner. The picture was sumptuously framed and mounted on a sort of dais. I dared not meet the eyes of my guide."[77] Evidently, Peller-in decided to treat the situation boldly. In April he extended another invitation to Julie, offering to show her some paintings by Manet that he had recently acquired, adding that they were quite unknown ones. When Julie told Renoir about the invitation, he commented, “You should have replied that even Manet never saw them.”[78] She brought her Aunt Edma along when she made the second visit. They found the Bernheim brothers there, and Julie went away inclined to believe that Pellerin was in league with them. She wanted to voice her disgust, but “since the signature of my aunt Suzanne is behind these canvases, I cannot condemn my aunt. Ah, these people have protected themselves. I must go back and talk to aunt Suzanne about this and find out whether she signed all these horrors, quite probably, before they were completely retouched.” She cried when she returned home “at the thought that I can do nothing about his Manet industry; Pellerin has lots of fakes and is getting rid of the good pictures.”[79] But after this, Julie dropped the matter.

VOL 71 ISS 10 NO 1983 UMI

On May 16 the Bernheim brothers sent Suzanne “the photographs that you left us to bind in 4 volumes.”[80] Although nothing was said about duplicates, eight additional albums (likewise containing about 80 photographs each) are known today.[81] The “Lochard” photographs of the Bathers exist in two versions: a negative made before the repainting for Pellerin and another showing the dark background.

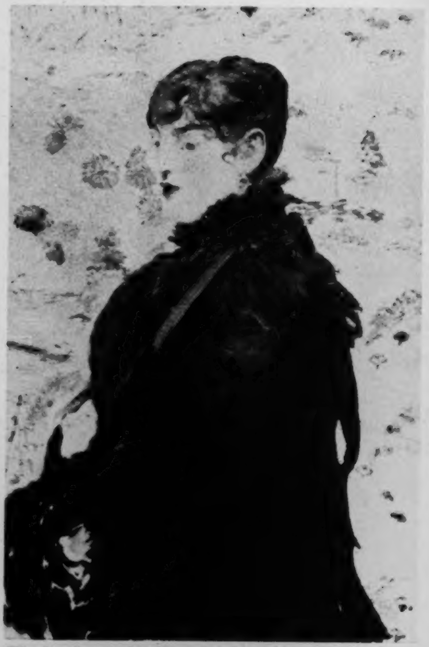
Stretching his luck too far, Pellerin offered to lend the Bathers to the prestigious “Centennale de l’art français” exhibition held in conjunction with the World’s Fair that took place in Paris in 1900. Although listed in the catalogue, the painting never went on public view. Upon seeing the work during an inspection of the galleries before the opening, Moreau-Nélaton threatened to withdraw the paintings that he had lent (including Le déjeuner sur l’herbe) “if by tonight a certain fake has not disappeared from this room.”[82] Oddly, no catalogue raisonné has ever referred to this complicated story, and to make matters worse some recent catalogues have accepted as authentic a watercolor “study” signed by Manet’s widow and likewise once in Pellerin’s collection, although it apparently corresponds to the repainted rather than to the original version of the oil.[83]

Obvious questions remain to be discussed. What about Suzanne’s brother, who retouched “several” unfinished works? Was Suzanne a dupe or an accomplice? Most important, was the Bathers an isolated case—that is, can we any longer implicitly trust the authority of so-called Lochard photographs in matters of attribution? And how many of the “horrors” that Julie saw at Pellerin’s still deceive Manet’s admirers?

Suzanne had two brothers—a sculptor, Ferdinand, and a painter, Rodolphe. The latter served as Manet’s model for two important works undertaken during the summer of 1874, when the Bathers must also have been begun.[84] Witness to Manet’s painting techniques, Rodolphe would later have access to his brushes and paints if he visited his sister. Yet he is not the only candidate for the dubious distinction of having tampered with Manet’s unfinished works. There was also Suzanne’s nephew Edouard Vibert. The scant available information about him comes from Tabarant:

> Always ill, to the point that he did not attempt to find a regular job, he lived with his mother and his aunt Manet, coddled and pampered by them. When the country house at Sarcelles, Seine-et-Oise (10, rue Verte) was bought, where Mme Manet and her relatives betook themselves every summer, the deed was entered in the name of Edouard Vibert, whose future the mother and aunt wished to insure. An idler, he tinkered all the day, played the violin and painted for fun, copied or imitated the works of his father, his uncle, above all those of Manet, childishly inept at first, later not unimpressive, sometimes pretty skillful. He died at the age of 32 on August 18, 1899, and his tearful mother kept everything to which his brush had given birth.[85]

On several occasions Vibert made replicas of works that his aunt planned to sell, allegedly so that she would not feel the loss as painfully.[86] After Suzanne’s death in 1904, however, Léon, as if he were ignorant of Vibert’s enterprise, sold a few of the copies as original second versions by Manet himself. When Léon died in 1927 he was involved in a lawsuit over a second version of La pêche that he had sold in 1910, after securing written authentification for it from the aging Duret.[87]



The Lochard photograph of* Autumn *before repainting reveals the unfinished state of the sitter’s hand and muff.

Léon’s questionable career as a dealer had evidently begun years before. In an undated letter written to Suzanne shortly before Vibert’s death, Proust looked forward to the sale of the Chocquet collection (July 3–4, 1899) and made a curious request. “Please ask your nephew to put the Boy with a Sword in place.”[88] Since Manet’s famous painting had already entered the Metropolitan Museum collection in 1889, what was Proust referring to? Did this work have anything to do with an entry that Léon made in a notebook sometime after July 1900: “Boy with a Sword, The Balcony and Flowers in a Vase—5000 [francs] to Gerard”?[89] The “Boy with a Sword” referred to here, a small “version” of the Metropolitan Museum picture, was not mentioned in the estate inventory, or Léon’s register. But Duret included it in his catalogue raisonné of Manet’s works in 1902, and it circulated on the art market as a genuine work until Tabarant rejected it in 1931.[90] Although some of them may have been unwitting accomplices, the “Manet industry” that upset Julie evidently included not only Suzanne and her brother, but Vibert, Proust, Léon and Duret.

But it is the status of the so-called Lochard photographs that is at issue here. Was the photograph of the Bathers the only one to be replaced to hide retouching? Without citing the source for this information, Tabarant claimed that the Lochard photographs were organized into albums at Suzanne’s request, through the efforts of Proust and the Bernheims.[91] As we Autumn, 1881, 28¾ inches by 20 inches. Musée des Beaux-Arts, Nancy. This painting was "finished" by another hand.

VOL
71
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI

Bathers on the Seine, begun 1874, 52 by 38⅔ inches. Museu de Arte de São Paulo. This work was listed in the inventory as a "painted study."

"Lochard" photographs of the Bathers exist in two versions: this, the real one, shows the work before repainting.

The "imposter photograph" of the Bathers was taken to prevent discovery of the posthumous repainting of this picture.

have seen, they were returned to her in May 1899. Work sold around this time should therefore be particularly carefully examined. In Suzanne's personal records, sales of the oil sketch of Manet's portrait of Faure as Hamlet and the two self-portraits are listed for that year.[92] There is no longer certainty that "Lochard" photographs do really record the appearance of these works in Manet's studio in 1883.

At one time or another, Pellerin owned the bulk of Manet's drawings, in addition to more than 40 oils, mostly ones done in the 1870s and 1880s. For many of his pictures, such as A Bar at the Folies Bergère, there is full documentation that goes beyond the veracity of Lochard photographs. There is not space to comment about those for which such documentation is lacking. The questions surrounding a version of Girl Serving Beer, today in the Louvre, suffice to suggest how carefully any investigation must proceed.[93] Although Duret accepted this picture for his 1902 catalogue raisonné, it is not mentioned in the estate inventory, nor in Léon's register, and Lochard never took a photograph of it. Moreover, there appears to be no reference to this important picture among Manet's own sales records, which are rather complete for the last six years of his life, when it would have been painted. Yet Tabarant took no issue with the painting's authenticity, except with regard to the signature in Mme Manet's handwriting, although Manet presumably would have signed anything that he sold himself.[94]

For the time being we are really not much further along than Tabarant. Writing in 1947, he pitied those who would confront issues of authenticity in years to come, no matter what new resources they might have. "Perhaps they will have access to more focused radiography techniques, more usefully revealing than those of today, and the paintings will not leave room for controversy thanks to future investigations into pigments."[95] Still capable of only limited results, technical analysis of Manet's works may have to be postponed indefinitely.

Meanwhile, Manet's present admirers must regret the damage done to his reputation, as did Monet, who discussed the matter with a visitor who was alarmed by smoke rising above the famous gardens at Giverny. Monet was burning paintings that had not developed satisfactorily. "So there you are, what can you expect? I had the example of Manet. I will explain to you: after the painter's death, the dealers flung themselves at his works. They snatched everything, down to his slightest sketches. Myself, I became apprehensive and I preferred to destroy during my lifetime everything which did not please me."[96] What happened to Manet's works should be a lesson. Indeed, the first chapter in the history of modern art is in need of revision since it is unclear when certain paintings "by Manet" were finished and by whom. □

Author: Charles F. Stuckey, an art historian and critic, was a member of the exhibition staff for "Manet 1832–1883."

For their generous cooperation I am indebted to the exhibition staff for the current exhibition "Manet 1832–1883," expecially Françoise Cachin, Gisela Helkampf, Mark Leonard, Charles S. Moffett, Lucy Oakley, Susan Stein and Juliet Wilson Bareau; as well as to M. Guy Patrice

Continued on page 239

VOL
71
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI

Edouard Manet: Luncheon in the Studio, 1868, oil on canvas, 46 ½ by 60 ⅝ inches. Bayerische Staatsgemäldesammlungen, Munich.

Seeing Manet Whole

A rare opportunity to see Manet's work as he wanted it to be seen, the centenary exhibition disqualifies all one-sided interpretations. For while Manet's paintings can be discussed in terms of the conventions they subvert, they are also positive expressions of his view of modern life.

BY JOHN HOUSE

In the Conservatory, 1879, oil on canvas, 45 ¼ by 59 inches. Nationalgalerie, Berlin.

"I want my work to be seen as a whole," Manet said near the end of his life. Since his death, of course, his oeuvre has been scattered into collections from Japan to South America, but the centenary exhibition, shown in Paris this summer and at New York's Metropolitan Museum [Sept. 10-Nov. 27], offers what will surely be the only opportunity in the later 20th century to see Manet as he wanted to be seen. Many artists might doubt that their work could stand the exacting test of the major retrospective exhibition, but Manet's confidence in his painting is utterly vindicated by the present show. Long lines outside the Grand Palais, and heat and crowds within, at times made one forget that exhibition-viewing is recreational, but these were prices well worth paying to see an oeuvre which carries conviction from first to last. Manet emerges as a complete painter; an apparently effortless virtuoso with the brush, but always more than that: a varied, intelligent, often disquieting mind.

The backbone of the exhibition is the sequence of Manet's major public paintings, the milestones of his career, from his first Salon success, The Spanish Singer of 1861, to his last ambitious painting, A Bar at the Folies-Bergère, exhibited in 1882. Only a few crucial pictures are absent, though four of these are of such capital importance that they need signaling. Three belong to collections that cannot lend: The Old Musician (1862) from the Chester Dale Collection in the National Gallery, Le Bon Bock (1873) from the Tyson Collection in the Philadelphia Museum, and Le Linge (1874) from the Barnes Foundation; the fourth is the final version of The Execution of the Emperor Maximilian (1867–69) from the Mannheim Kunsthalle (the large and rough preliminary sketch for this work from Boston is a thoroughly misleading substitute). Viewers in New York will miss, too, Le Déjeuner sur l'herbe (1863) from a non-lending bequest, and also the newly cleaned and resplendent Olympia (1863): the decision of the French authorities not to allow her to travel to New York and take her place where she belongs, at the core of Manet's oeuvre, would have saddened those who contributed to her purchase for the French nation in 1890 at the instigation of Monet and Sargent. In general, the exhibition focuses primarily on Manet's major public paintings, rather than on exquisite morsels such as his late studies of flowers and fruit, perhaps because paintings of such intimacy might not have looked their best amid large neighbors.

But emphasis on these gaps quite

VOL

71

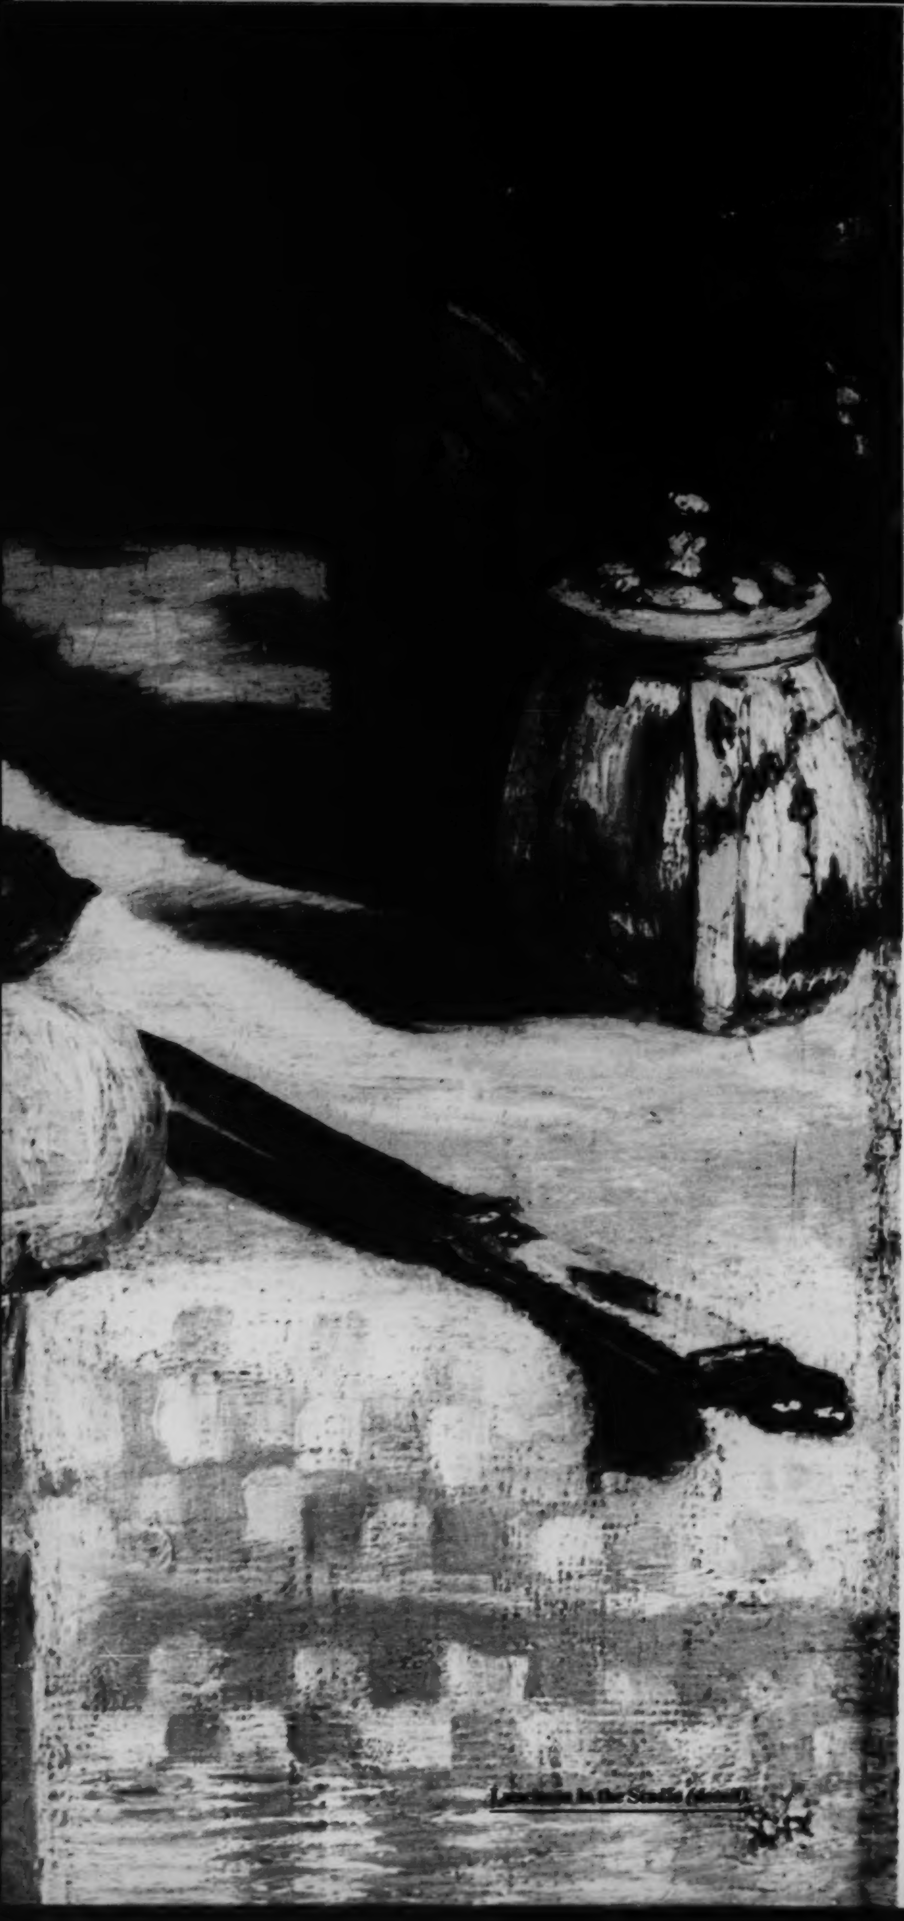
ISS

10

NO

1983

UMI



Luncheon in the Studio (detail)

misrepresents the exhibition as a whole, which alongside the major canvases, also stresses Manet's activity as draftsman and printmaker. Here the installation in Paris achieved a remarkable success: clusters of graphic works were threaded throughout the exhibition, always within sight of the major paintings to which they relate, but viewers were never disturbed by changes of scale or lighting levels. The large paintings were admirably spaced and grouped, roughly in chronological sequence, with occasional discreetly theatrical vistas, as at the beginning of the show where one could look past The Street Singer (1862) to Olympia beyond, and to Woman with a Parrot (1866) beyond that. Only the smaller, less highly finished oil sketches at times seemed incongruous, since the viewer was given no clear indication of their status. In New York the works are more evenly spaced, with far less variation in rhythm and pace; the chronological sequence is ruptured at times in the search for balanced arrangements for every wall. Such orderly groupings tend to diminish the impact of individual paintings.

> Running through Manet's work is a sense of artificiality, a self-conscious interest in the ways human beings define their roles and appropriate their surroundings.

In Paris the earlier paintings were hung on eminently appropriate dull brown walls, but cool light blue walls were used for the later pictures presumably to match the lightening of Manet's palette in the 1870s. However, the assumption that the Impressionist palette requires light wall colors is wholly unhistorical: Manet, like his contemporaries, expected his work to be hung on dark toned, generally reddish walls. Light toned walls diminish the effect of Manet's "Impressionist" palette, by reversing the relationship between painting and ground: in Paris his earlier, darker work stood out light against dark, while the lighter-toned later paintings were darker than their surroundings. More varied colors are used for the walls at the Metropolitan Museum. The insistent red of the early rooms

VOL
7
1
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI

trespasses on the delicacy of the reds and pinks within the paintings, but the dull deep blue in the two final spaces enhances some of the late canvases, such as In the Conservatory (1879) and A Bar at the Folies-Bergère (1881-82). The lighter hues in the middle rooms, including a particularly characterless pale green, show that, in New York as in Paris, there is still much uncertainty about how paintings from this period should be displayed.

What is learned from seeing Manet whole? Most importantly the big paintings are very diverse: each new subject demanded a new solution. Mallarmé emphasized this in 1876, writing of how Manet tried to start every new project with a mind cleared of previous experiences. Even when a group of works shares a generic resemblance, such as the full-length figures of the 1860s placed against largely neutral backgrounds, Manet's treatment of individual paintings is endlessly varied. Elsewhere, even such ostensibly similar subjects as the portraits of his writer friends Astruc and Zola were conceived in wholly different ways—Zola centered amid the emblems of his trade, Astruc almost casually seated alongside a table strewn with books. Zola's background frames and encloses him, while to the left of Astruc we see a space with a female figure: is it a view to a room beyond, or a picture on the wall, or even a mirror? The sequence of paintings which Manet submitted to the Salon, if reconstructed in its entirety, accentuates this impression of variety. Paintings submitted in the same year are very disparate, and one year's submission never reiterates the previous year's themes. When he did exhibit a success, Le Bon Bock, in 1873, he completely subverted the conventions on which that success had been based with his two main submissions the following year: The Railroad, accepted

In their forms and focuses, Manet's paintings are open-ended, couched like constant question marks—challenges, even—directed at the viewer.

Young Woman Reclining, in Spanish Costume, 1862, oil on canvas, 37 by 44 ½ inches.

Yale University Art Gallery, New Haven.

VOL
7
1
ISS
1 0
N O
1983
UMI

The Monet Family in the Garden, 1874, oil on canvas, 24 by 39 ¼ inches. Metropolitan Museum, New York.

but received with incomprehension, and The Ball at the Opera, which was rejected by the jury [illegible]o cashing in on an acceptable formula here.

Manet's diversity has made itself felt, too, in the ways in which scholars have tackled his art, generally focusing on particularities: particular "sources"—the figure poses he adapted from masters as diverse as Titian, Velázquez and Watteau—and particular details of imagery, such as Olympia's cat or the uniforms of the firing squad in The Execution of the Emperor Maximilian. The cumulative effect of a massive academic industry, especially in the United States, has been to fragment Manet. To find yet another putative "source" for an image does not advance understanding; instead we have to ask how Manet made such materials his own—how and why certain images seemed relevant, and, crucially, how he transformed them. Single-minded approaches to his art are always unsatisfactory, whether they stress his Frenchness, his interest in popular imagery, or his use of emblematic symbolism; his diversity and complexity refuse the straitjacket of unitary explanation. The search for pictorial "sources" has had the further effect of focusing attention primarily on Manet's earlier paintings, where his concern about his relationship to old master traditions is more overt. The paintings after 1866 have received far less attention, though they emerge from the present show as quite the equal of their predecessors.

The massive catalogue of the exhibition relates ambivalently to this recent scholarly activity. Françoise Cachin, who wrote most of the entries for the paintings, remains broadly faithful to a French viewpoint which sees Manet's art as belonging primarily to a tradition of belle peinture, the product of a unique sensibility, though her extensively documented entries refer to many rival interpretations and admit the possibility of certain types of iconographic exploration. Charles Moffett, in his treatment of the rest of the paintings, makes his own position less clear in relation to the varied discussions he summarizes. A word, too, about the scale of the catalogue. The length of the entries and the commitment to lavish illustration, including many details reproduced in color, makes the volume far too bulky and heavy (around 6 pounds!) to be used as a handbook to the exhibition. It disgorges a wealth of detail from its many parts, but lacks the unity of structure and perspective which would give it the status of a monographic book—perhaps inevitably, given the pressures under which so ambitious a catalogue must have been produced.

The reviewer has the advantage over the cataloguer of writing after seeing the exhibition as an ensemble; and it is the exhibition itself which provokes the future questions about Manet's art. For the specialist, there are problems concerning the execution and history of some paintings. Many canvases bear signs of significant changes during their execution—changes which reveal the mechanics of Manet's pictorial thinking. In raking light, for example, one can still trace in The Balcony (1868-69) the position of the parasol which the seated Berthe Morisot originally held, as she still holds it in the tiny drawn study for the canvas. The catalogue occasionally cites x-ray evidence to good effect—for example, the changed background in Luncheon in the Studio (1868)—but x-rays and detailed surface examination of the paintings need to be used far more systematically in order to reconstruct the complex and intuitive means by which Manet worked his way towards the deceptively immediate effect of the final canvases.

Our understanding of his processes is enriched by the groups of successive states of prints in the exhibition, with their attendant drawings. Here we are greatly helped by Juliet Wilson Bareau's catalogue entries, which are scrupulously attentive to the particularities of these works; her study of the genesis of the Barricade lithograph (ca. 1871) from a drawing of the execution of the Emperor Maximilian is particularly revealing. The histories of many works need to be rewritten in another sense too: the history of their ownership. The ambitious and amply documented provenance sections in the catalogue reveal the inadequacy of the Rouart-Wildenstein catalogue raisonné and lay bare many contradictions and lacunae. A major contribution was made to this and other areas of the catalogue's documentation by Charles F. Stuckey.

Detailed work such as Stuckey's is not only relevant to the cataloguer or documentalist: fresh understanding of the paintings themselves cannot be achieved without thorough consideration of their execution and history. How greatly, for example, is our reading of Manet's early work transformed by Stuckey's discovery [see pp. 158–177] that The Absinthe Drinker of 1858–59 (Ny Carlsberg Glyptotek, Copenhagen, sadly absent from the present exhibition) was submitted to the 1859 Salon, and exhibited in 1867, as a three-quarter length. The figure thus appears full-length for the first time in The Old Musician of 1862, and, as a single figure, in the etching of the same year, years before The Absinthe Drinker was enlarged to become one of Manet's series of philosophers. The entirety of Manet's work needs such constructive connoisseurship.

But, as Manet realized, we need to see his work whole—not in order to impose a spurious unity onto it, but to make sense of the problems it poses. In the exhibition these problems face the viewer from start to finish: there are countless paintings whose forms and focuses are open-ended, paintings that are couched like constant question marks—challenges even—directed at the viewer. The challenges are most overt in Manet's major subject paintings. In almost all of them, one figure turns outwards, either gazing directly at us, as his model Victorine Meurent does in Le Déjeuner sur l'herbe and Olympia, or gazing into our space, as Léon, Manet's stepson, does in Luncheon in the Studio. At a stroke, such compositions rupture the self-contained character of pictorial space in conventional painting and the potential coherence of the relationships among the figures within the picture. In the art of the past, where a figure looks out toward the viewer, our relationship to the figure in question, and thence to the whole subject, is clearly determined; Manet's paintings permit us no such certainties. By denying the viewer either a clearly defined relationship to the figures in his paintings or the means of constructing a coherent narrative from them, Manet was creating pictorial structures which challenged the conventions of narrative painting current in the 19th-century Salon. In some of his single figures, the relationship is equally ambiguous; in Woman with a Parrot, for example, the model's quizzical glance and her puzzling set of attributes leave us vainly seeking clarification from the data within the picture about her relationship to the spectator.

The scholarly quest for ever-greater legibility, far from enriching our understanding of the work, closes off its potential.

In many pictures there is no clear reason for the presence of attributes: the half-peeled orange in the base of the parrot stand in Woman with a Parrot; the lemon on the glass in the still-life group on the right of the Portrait of Théodore Duret (1868); the armor and cat, and much else, in Luncheon in the Studio, where the diversity of the objects included complements the disparate focuses of the figures to thwart our attempts at explanation. In other paintings everyday objects do not behave as they should, like the deformed parasol that lies opened in the foreground of Music in the Tuileries (1862), the illegible fold where the tablecloth is tucked under itself in Still Life with Melon and Peaches (ca. 1866), or the celebrated mirror with its "impossible" reflection behind the barmaid in A Bar at the Folies-Bergère. Things such as these bring us back to the minefield of Manet interpretations. Should we seek ever more precise readings from each painting, in order to explain every detail and form more and more comprehensively? Or should we fall back on the idea of Manet the pure painter, who included these oddities for purely pictorial reasons (whatever these are)—an explanation sanctioned, it is true, by Théodore Duret's own disarming account of the purely esthetic considerations that led Manet to add the still-life elements in the portrait of him?

I am convinced that the quest for ever greater legibility, far from enriching our understanding of the paintings, tends to close off their potential. To propose a reason why Léon has risen and turned away from the table in Luncheon in the Studio undermines the challenge of his gesture. To explain that the viewer is the donor of the bouquet which the black maid proffers in Olympia violates ambiguities which the painting is at pains to maintain. To identify the barmaid in A Bar at the Folies-Bergère as a prostitute destroys the ambivalence of our relationship to her. Manet's paintings themselves contain no answers to these uncertanties, nor are they the sort of questions which any detailed analysis of the historical context can resolve; they must be left as questions.

The "pure painting" alternative offers solutions that are scarcely more satisfying. It bypasses the problems posed by the narrative structure of the paintings—their confrontation with the viewer and their subversion of the patterns of coherence expected of subject painting. And it ignores certain odd details for which there can be no formalist explanation: in Le Déjeuner sur l'herbe, the red bird at top center may be necessary as a color contrast to the surrounding greens, but the same argument cannot explain away the green frog amid the greenery at bottom left of the picture. If it is wrong to attempt to decode every detail, it is equally misleading to treat all alike, as mere "patches of color." The cock, hen and chick that parade in front of father, mother and child in The Monet Family in the Garden (1874) are surely more than mere visual accents.

To make some sense of these apparent contradictions, we must go back to the bases of Manet's enterprise as a

VOL
71
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI

Still Life with Melon and Peaches, 1866?, oil on canvas, 27 ⅛ by 36 ¼ inches. National Gallery of Art, Washington, D.C.

painter. On one level he always conceived his major paintings with an exhibition context in mind—generally the Salon; but on another level, as all his friends testify, his prime goal was to translate his experiences of the life around him in Paris. Our analysis must not separate these twin ambitions. Manet's exhibition paintings can be discussed in terms of the pictorial conventions they subvert, but the means he adopted are at the same time a positive expression of a view of the world.

As Manet realized, his work must be seen whole—not in order to impose a spurious unity onto it, but to grasp the problems that it poses.

How can we characterize this view? Running through Manet's entire oeuvre is a sense of the artificial, a self-conscious interest in the myriad ways in which human beings define their roles and appropriate their surroundings. This concern emerges in the set of costume pieces of the early 1860s, in which the models play at roles, rather than living them out: in Young Woman Reclining, in Spanish Costume (1862) for instance, the tightly drawn male costume becomes a sort of second skin on a plump female figure who reclines in the pose of an odalisque; the gesture of her right hand is a strange fusion of a Spanish dance movement and the casual act of scratching her head. Even in paintings where nature plays an important role the human agency always intervenes. Pruning scissors lie beside cut flowers in two still lifes of the 1860s. In The Monet Family in the Garden, Monet cultivates the garden (natural, but man-made) as a setting within which Camille and Jean can rest in their summer garb. The sea in The Pier at Boulogne (1869) is bisected by jetties, which cut from view the hull of the boat between them; not only is the sea tamed, but the traditional elemental opposition between boat and sea is truncated by the monotonous grid of the jetties.

In his modern life images of couples and groups of figures, Manet introduced ruptures which, contrary to tradition, deny expectations of a legible narrative and force the viewer to confront gestures for what they are—coded signs whose sense we can only gauge by defining their context; but this context itself is deliberately left ambiguous or open-ended. We can no longer view the signs as ostensibly natural elements in an ostensibly natural order of communication. The woman In the Conservatory sits on the bench looking out to the right while her husband leans towards her over the seat-back. We are given an initial entry into the picture's meaning by their closely juxtaposed hands, with their wedding rings, at the core of the composition. But the expectations which this detail raises are undermined by the lack of psychological exchange between the couple. Indeed, the proximity of their hands seems incidental: the man's gesture, at first glance apparently one of communication, is simply a means of holding a cigar. The woman's distant gaze may suggest detachment, but any psychological reading is merely the viewer's construction: the gestures which Manet presents to us carry no clearly legible content, except as a series of contrasts between the two figures.

The Pier at Boulogne, 1869, oil on canvas, 23 ½ by 28¾ inches. Private collection, Paris.

The view of the world which Manet constructs is full of disjunctions—from the unexplained presence of small details to the undefined relationships between human beings. It is a vision which violated the canons of Salon art, but also, if we credit Manet's friends as witnesses to his intentions, it is a vision which he felt to be true to his experiences of modern urban life. Only, perhaps, from the later 1860s on, after he had emancipated himself from close references to past painting, did he create a truly persuasive visual language for the expression of his vision of modernity. For Manet, the visible patterns of this life rarely conformed to Aristotle's three unities of time, place and action; they were, instead, a set of incomplete incidents, caught as they passed. Manet's art was to paint pictures which, by their forms as well as their content, enshrined this open-endedness of real life. Just as we are left free to explore their thematic uncertainties, so it is for us, too, to place a moral construction on what we see in the paintings, but always with the awareness that this construction is ours, not Manet's.

For their original audience the paintings were a challenge directed at the self-contained world that painting then inhabited, and at the premise that the most incoherent facets of modern experience were not the proper province of art. Today, we are used to paintings that confront us far more starkly than Manet's, but his art still asks questions with great immediacy, and thwarts our attempts to reach easy answers. The historian must explore the ways in which these questions were posed and received in their original context. But for any modern viewer the present exhibition is a feast of painting which combines a sumptuous surface virtuosity with a continuing power to challenge and to disconcert. □

Author: John House teaches at the Courtauld Institute of Art in London.

VOL 7 1
ISS 10
NO
1983
UMI

Edouard Manet: Ball at the Opera, 1873–74, oil on canvas, 23½ by 28¾ inches. National Gallery of Art, Washington, D.C. Detail on pp. 190–91.

A Thoroughly Modern Masked Ball

In his 1874 Ball at the Opera Manet employed a brilliant Realist strategy—the substitution of part for whole—not only to imply a continuing reality beyond the boundaries of the frame, but also to indicate his awareness of the erotic nature of the transactions going on within it.

BY LINDA NOCHLIN

On April 12, 1874, the Salon jury rejected Manet's Masked Ball at the Opera. We can see why. Even today, this painting attracts and disturbs almost equally. More disconcertingly, what attracts us in the Ball is exactly what disturbs us about it: its mixture of brutality and sensuality; the way it manages to suggest coarseness with infinite refinement; the way the nostalgic frivolity of the rococo masked ball is recast in the up-to-date, down-to-earth language of the bourse, the boulevardier and the cocotte. Only one year earlier, Manet had used a similar compositional structure—a back-to figure with raised arms confronting a random group facing out of the picture space—in his lithograph The Barricade, a pictorial record of the execution of a Communard. Although the Salon jury probably only sensed this coincidence, there is a confrontational energy to the painting that at this particular moment in history could easily have been interpreted as a subliminal threat.

The Ball at the Opera refused—and still refuses—to comply with the conventional view of its subject, with notions like "merrymaking," "gay abandon" or "lighthearted revelry." Such notions account for only part of its impact. The avidity of its gestures, the close-up concentration of its format, the all-embracing darkness of its color scheme—all this seems to point to a more complex range of experience and sensibility. One contemporary chronicler wrote of the moist lips and sensual eyes of the men, "alight with truffles and Corton"—men who, in the words of the same writer, "are rich . . . with pockets full of louis d'or."[1] The 20th-century German critic Julius Meier-Graefe, who loved the painting but never minced words, called it a Fleischbörse—a flesh market.[2] It was no doubt these connotations, as well as the apparent recognizability of several of the men-of-the-world who had posed for the painting, that made the jury of 1874, which had accepted Manet's Railroad and his watercolor Polichinelle, balk at the Ball at the Opera. Neither moralizing nor trivializing its subject, Manet reveals sexual commerce all too openly, constructing the inextricable mingling of business and pleasure in a variety of literal and figurative disguises—all this in a painting that itself plays seriously with strategies of disguise and recognition.

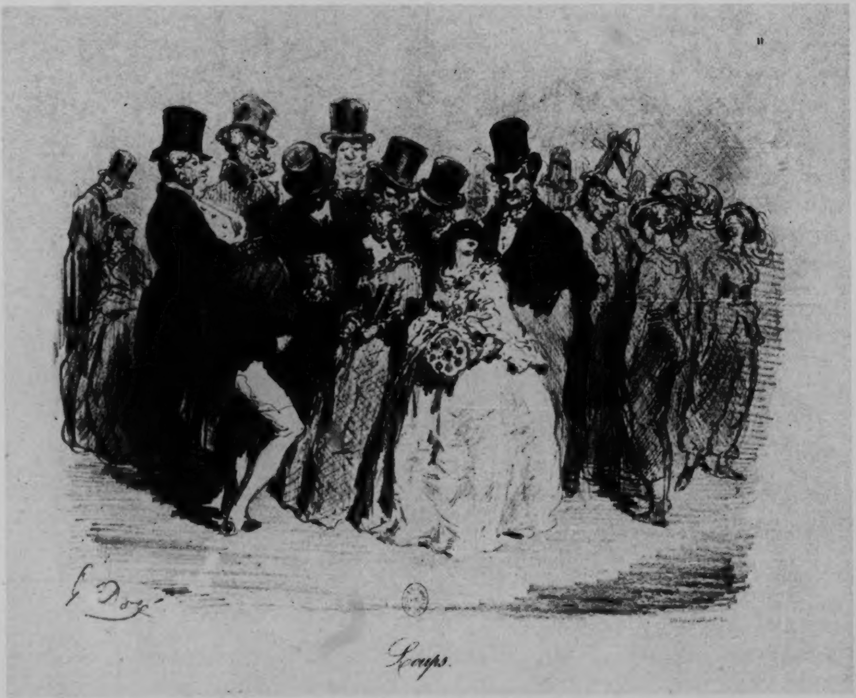
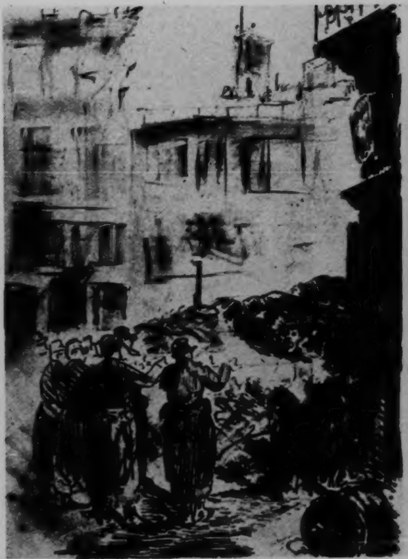
As in so many of Manet's most important paintings, women—marginal, equivocal, unclassifiable or all-too-classifiable—lie at the heart of the critical Realism of the Ball at the Opera and its modern, urban, explicitly Parisian imagery. In a way, the Ball at the Opera stands to the folklore of the city as Courbet's Burial at Ornans stands to the folklore of the country. Both works use the very currency of social clichés—in the Manet, about the relation of the sexes; in the Courbet, about the relation of classes—against themselves, in order to deconstruct them, undermine their authority. All of this would have given the jury pause. It is what leads us on, even today.



The subject of the masked ball persisted in 19th-century art primarily in works by such caricaturists as Gavarni, Grévin and Gustave Doré, whose 1860 lithograph Loups appears here.

Although it is a relatively small painting (23½ by 28¾ inches), the Ball at the Opera merits serious investigation. Manet's friend and admirer Stéphane Mallarmé, protesting the painting's exclusion from the Salon in an indignant letter to the press, declared that it was "of capital importance in the painter's work and a culminating point within it, summing up many previous efforts."[3] Manet's friend and biographer Théodore Duret emphasized the amount of time the artist spent on the painting.[4] The work was begun after March 1873, when Manet probably attended the bal des artistes which followed the annual masked ball at the Opera House on the rue Le Peletier; it was still unfinished on Nov. 18, when the singer Faure bought it; it must have been completed in time to be refused by the jury of the Salon in April of the following year. Manet's preparatory studies for the work include two oil sketches of the subject, several related watercolors and possibly three or four drawings as well.[5]

Although the painting is usually referred to as Masked Ball at the Opera, only the women are actually masked and wearing fancy dress; the men wear ordinary evening clothes. The only exception is the partially visible figure of Polichinelle, cut off by the frame at the left, who seems more like an observer than a participant. The cast of characters includes about five or six women, all masked or shrouded in black dominoes except for the trousered figure left of center, and about two dozen top-hatted hommes du monde. At far left, a group of men surrounds a young woman dressed as Columbine; left of center, a girl en débardeuse—the longshoreman's costume popularized by Gavarni in his print series earlier in the century—talks intently to a man who holds her by the elbow. Behind this couple, a single, provocative white-stockinged leg announces the presence of another débardeuse, hidden by the encircling darkness of masculine evening dress.



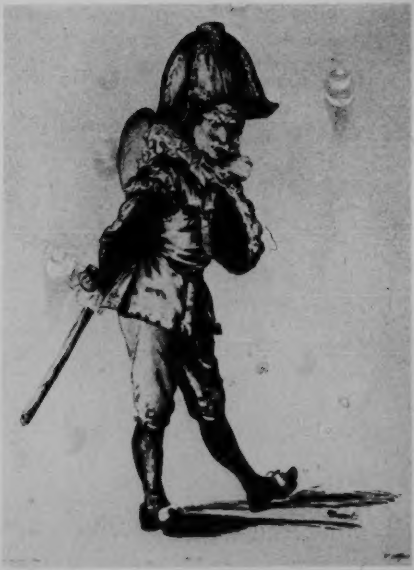
The composition of Manet's 1871 lithograph The Barricade may relate to that of the Ball.

At center, almost disappearing into the general blackness of the men's clothes, two women in masks and black dominoes stand together, facing out. One holds a big bouquet, an orange and a fan; both seem to be flirting with the men to their right and left. Next to this group and slightly behind it, a masked, costumed woman places her hand on the shoulder of a top-hatted man. At far right, almost invisible but arresting in its intimacy and désinvolture once you notice the group, there is a masked, dominoed woman leaning over, her chin in her hand; her elbow rests on the knee of a man seated on what may be a bar, while he gazes down with playful absorption at her upturned face.

Around the room, on the floor, is the detritus of frenetic merrymaking: a mask, some flower petals and, in the right foreground, a little dance program with Manet's signature. On the balcony above, cut off by the painting's top margin, is the torso of one scantily clad woman and the leg of another, along with her red sash, plus the shawl of a third.

Finished in the year of the first Impressionist show (1874), the Ball seems in some ways related to the sensibility of Impressionism, even though Manet chose never to exhibit with the group. Radically

VOL
71
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI

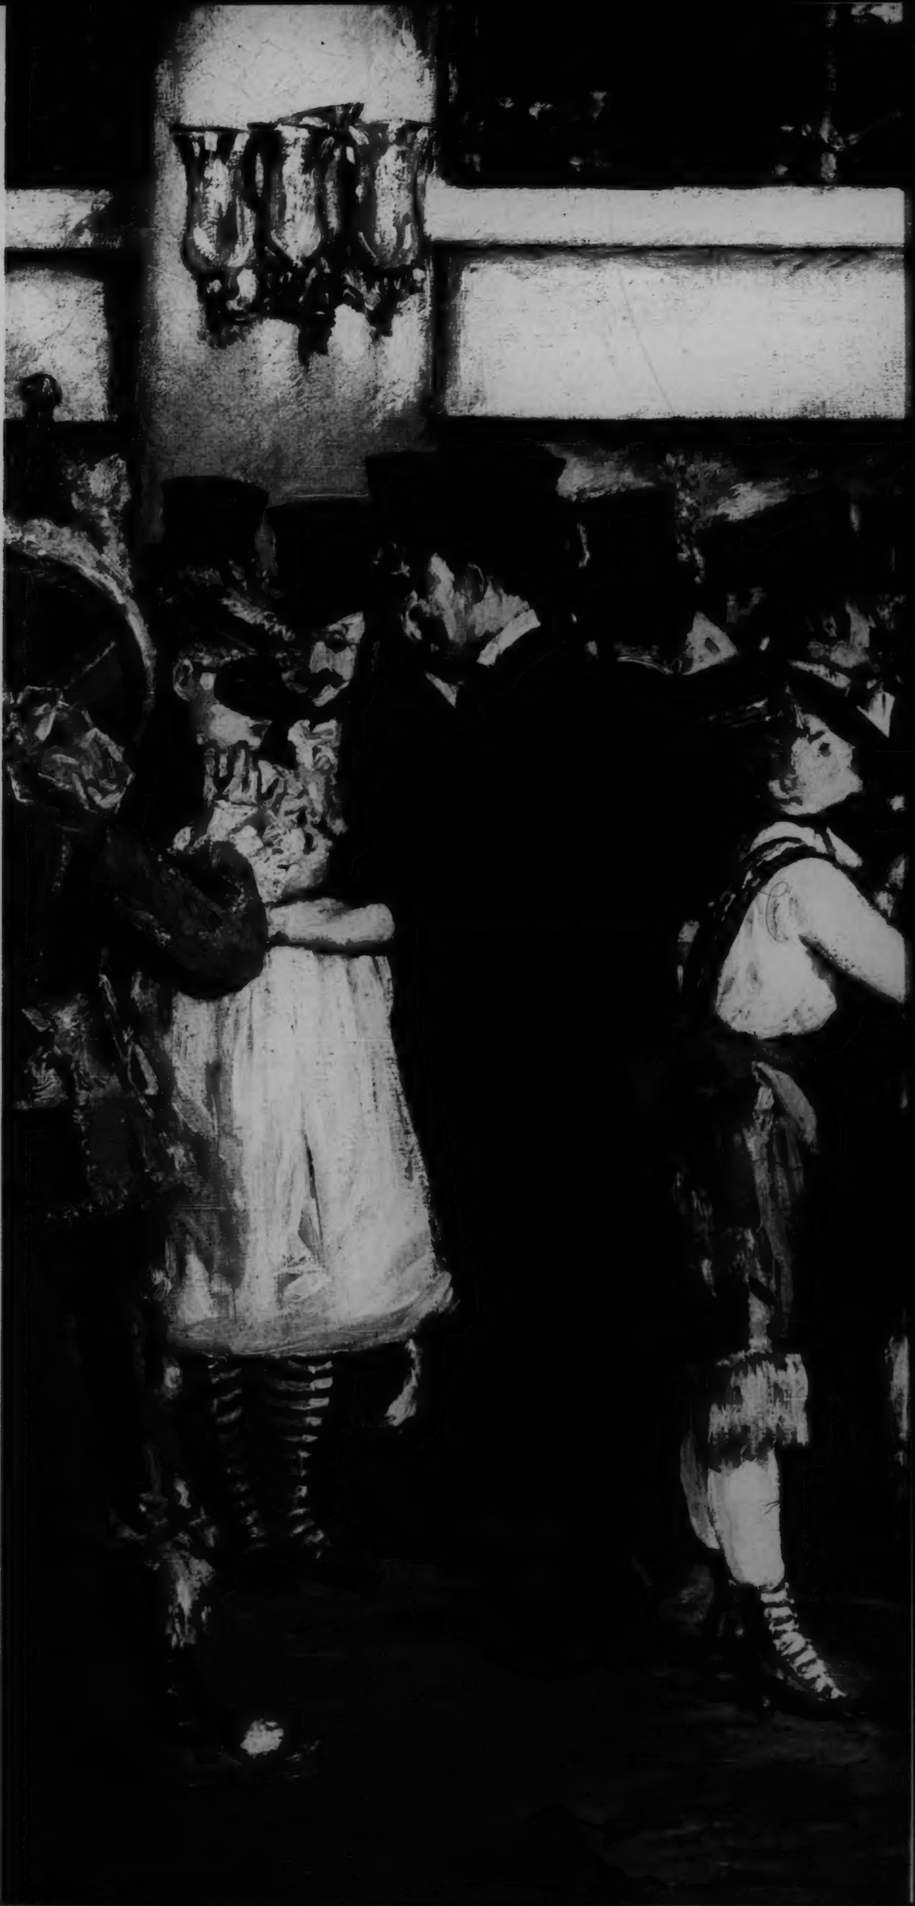


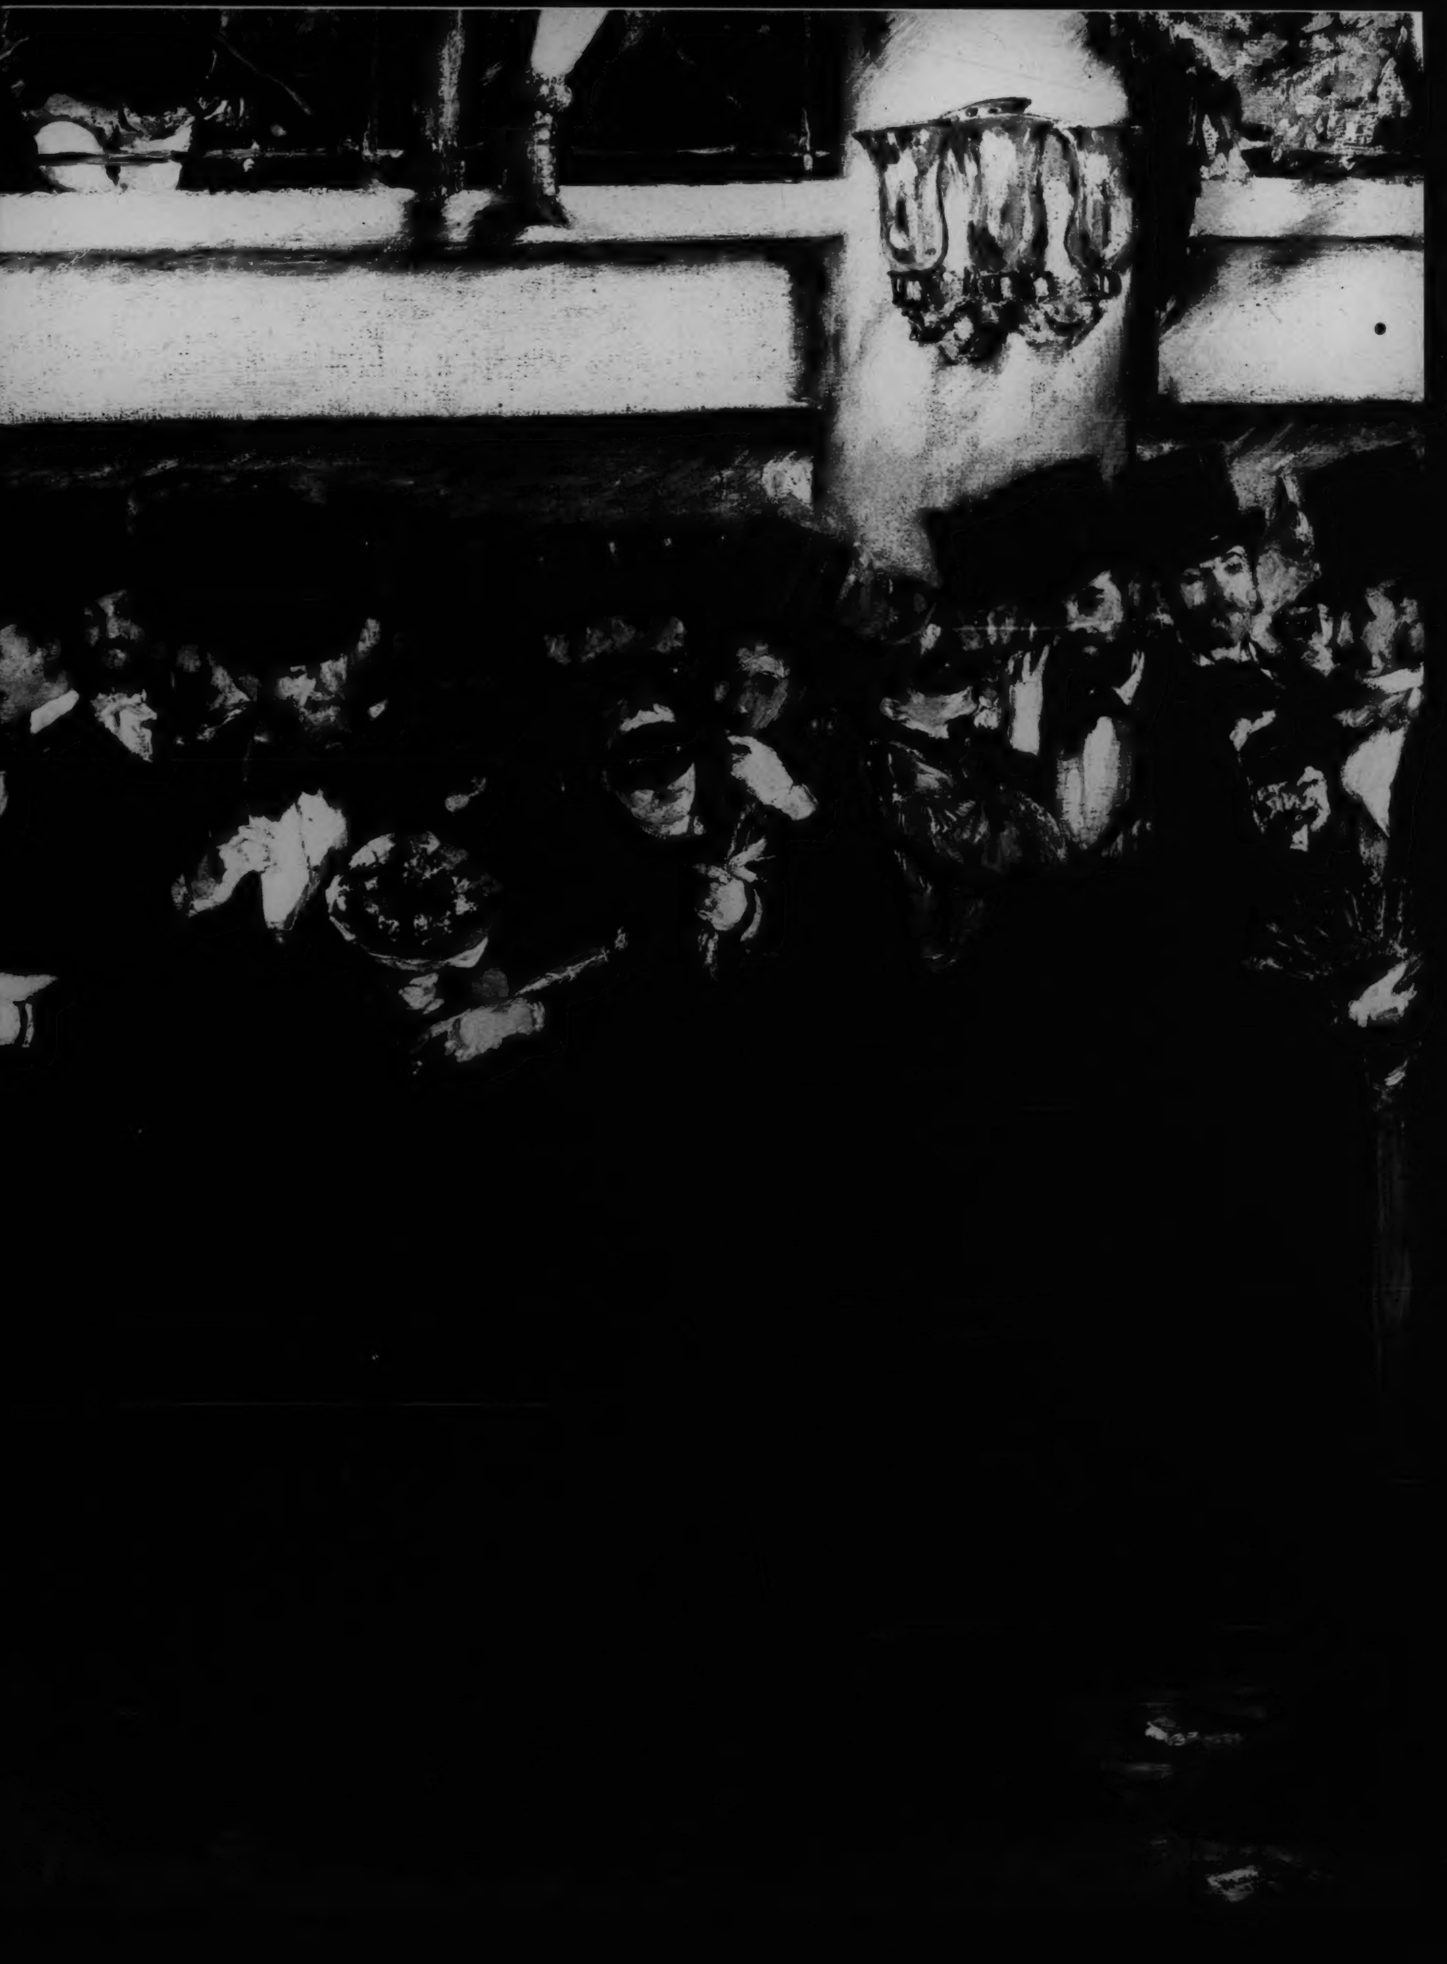
Theodore Reff makes a convincing case that Polichinelle appears in this 1874 Manet lithograph as a caricature of Marshal MacMahon.

modern and provocatively Realist in both structure and subject, the Ball at the Opera, like so many of Manet's most interesting pictures, hints at older art, but more in terms of what it rejects—its refusal of tradition—than what it accepts from it. The same might be said of its attitude toward the subject of the masked ball itself, which has a long career in the history of art, continuing into the 19th century primarily in the works of caricaturists like Gavarni, Doré and Alfred Grévin.[6] But Manet recasts this subject in terms of a particular kind of astringent sensuality to produce a poignant yet witty—and thoroughly modern—vision of the subject, one that is rooted in a particular time and place.

The artist's vision oscillates between that of a participant in the scene and that of an observer of it. Manet's self-conscious awareness and deliberate articulation of both his own Parisian modernity and a contemporary problematic of eroticism is manifested in the picture's construction. The cut-off view of the scene substitutes part for whole, implying instantaneity and arbitrariness; but the provocatively fragmented figures at the edges of the work do not merely suggest a continuing reality beyond the frame; they also allude to the nature of the transactions going on within it.

For Manet, synecdoche, or the substitution of part for whole—which, according to linguist Roman Jakobson, was central to the literary imagery of





VOL 71 ISS 10 NO 1983 UMI

In Music in the Tuileries (1862, oil on canvas, 30 by 46 ½ inches; National Gallery, London) Manet sliced off his own figure at left, placing himself half in, half out of the picture.

19th-century Realism[7]—constituted an important strategy of pictorial invention as well, a way of avoiding the closure imposed by traditional narrative compositional devices. This fragmentary aspect of the work of Manet and of the Impressionists in general disturbed many members of the contemporary public, who associated these artists' substitution of part for whole with an inability to compose properly, to "finish" their pictures. At the same time, it was paradoxically associated with willfulness and deliberate provocation.

The theme of the Ball at the Opera can be related to a variety of Manet's preferred subjects, especially to his many representations of women of the theater and the demimonde, the courtesan or the prostitute, sometimes with a male admirer present or suggested, as in Olympia or, later, Nana. It can also be related to his contemporary Parisian scenes of recreation and enjoyment, like Music in the Tuileries, and to his various paintings of bars and cafés, culminating in the Bar at the Folies-Bergère. Disguise, whether fancy dress, travesty or outright theatrical costume, is an ambiguous constant in his work, in both the costume portraits of Léon Koëlla dressed up in 17th-century costume in the Boy with a Sword and of Victorine Meurent en travesti as an espada, and the more straightforwardly costumed theatrical portraits, like those of Philibert Rouvière or Faure as Hamlet, or Emilie Ambre in the role of Carmen.

The particular dress-up situation associated with the commedia dell'arte, and with the figure of Polichinelle in particular, was manifested in Manet's work as early as 1862, in a frontispiece etching in which Polichinelle may well stand in for the artist.[7] It attracted him again in 1873, the same year that he worked on the Ball at the Opera, in which Polichinelle plays a role. That year, Manet created several independent versions, in a variety of mediums, of this commedia figure: two variations in oil, a watercolor and a seven-color lithograph.[9] Obviously, though, it was not Manet's choice of theme but the inventive structure of the Ball at the Opera that called forth Mallarmé's defense of the work as the culminating point in his friend's career. In the boldness of its cuts, above and to the left, the Ball seems the most vivid example yet of Manet's "slice of life" vision, his conception of this particular group of foyer strollers and their companions signifying a larger and more extensive world beyond the painting's boundaries. To borrow the words of Mallarmé, who perfectly grasped the unusual coincidence of the casual and the deliberate in Manet's pictorial vision, the artist discovered a new "manner of cutting down pictures" so that the frame has "all the charm of a merely fanciful boundary, such as that which is embraced by one glance at a scene framed by one's hands."[10]

The cut-off view was certainly not Manet's invention, nor was it his exclusive property. Daumier had cut off the heads of his classical hero and heroine in The Orchestra during a Performance of a Tragedy (1852) in order to create an ironic antithesis between the high-flown, "timeless" world of classical drama and the workaday boredom of the members of the orchestra in the foreground pit. The cut-off view became a standard feature of Impressionist composition in the '70s and was frequently related to the Impressionists' innovative, spontaneous vision of modern life, as well as to such novel sources of inspiration as photography and the Japanese print.[11] Cut-off compositions appear in Manet's work throughout his career. Quite early, in 1862, in Music in the Tuileries—a work which seems related to the Ball at the Opera in a variety of ways—he slices off half of his own figure at left. In the Old Musician of the same year, he cuts off half of the figure of the old Jew with the righthand margin.

Olympia, 1863, oil on canvas, 51⅜ by 74¼ inches. Musée d'Orsay (Jeu de Paume).

The slightly cropped, black-and-white reproduction of Olympia in Manet's 1869 Portrait of Emile Zola (oil on canvas, 57½ by 45 inches; Musée d'Orsay) is far more modest than the original.

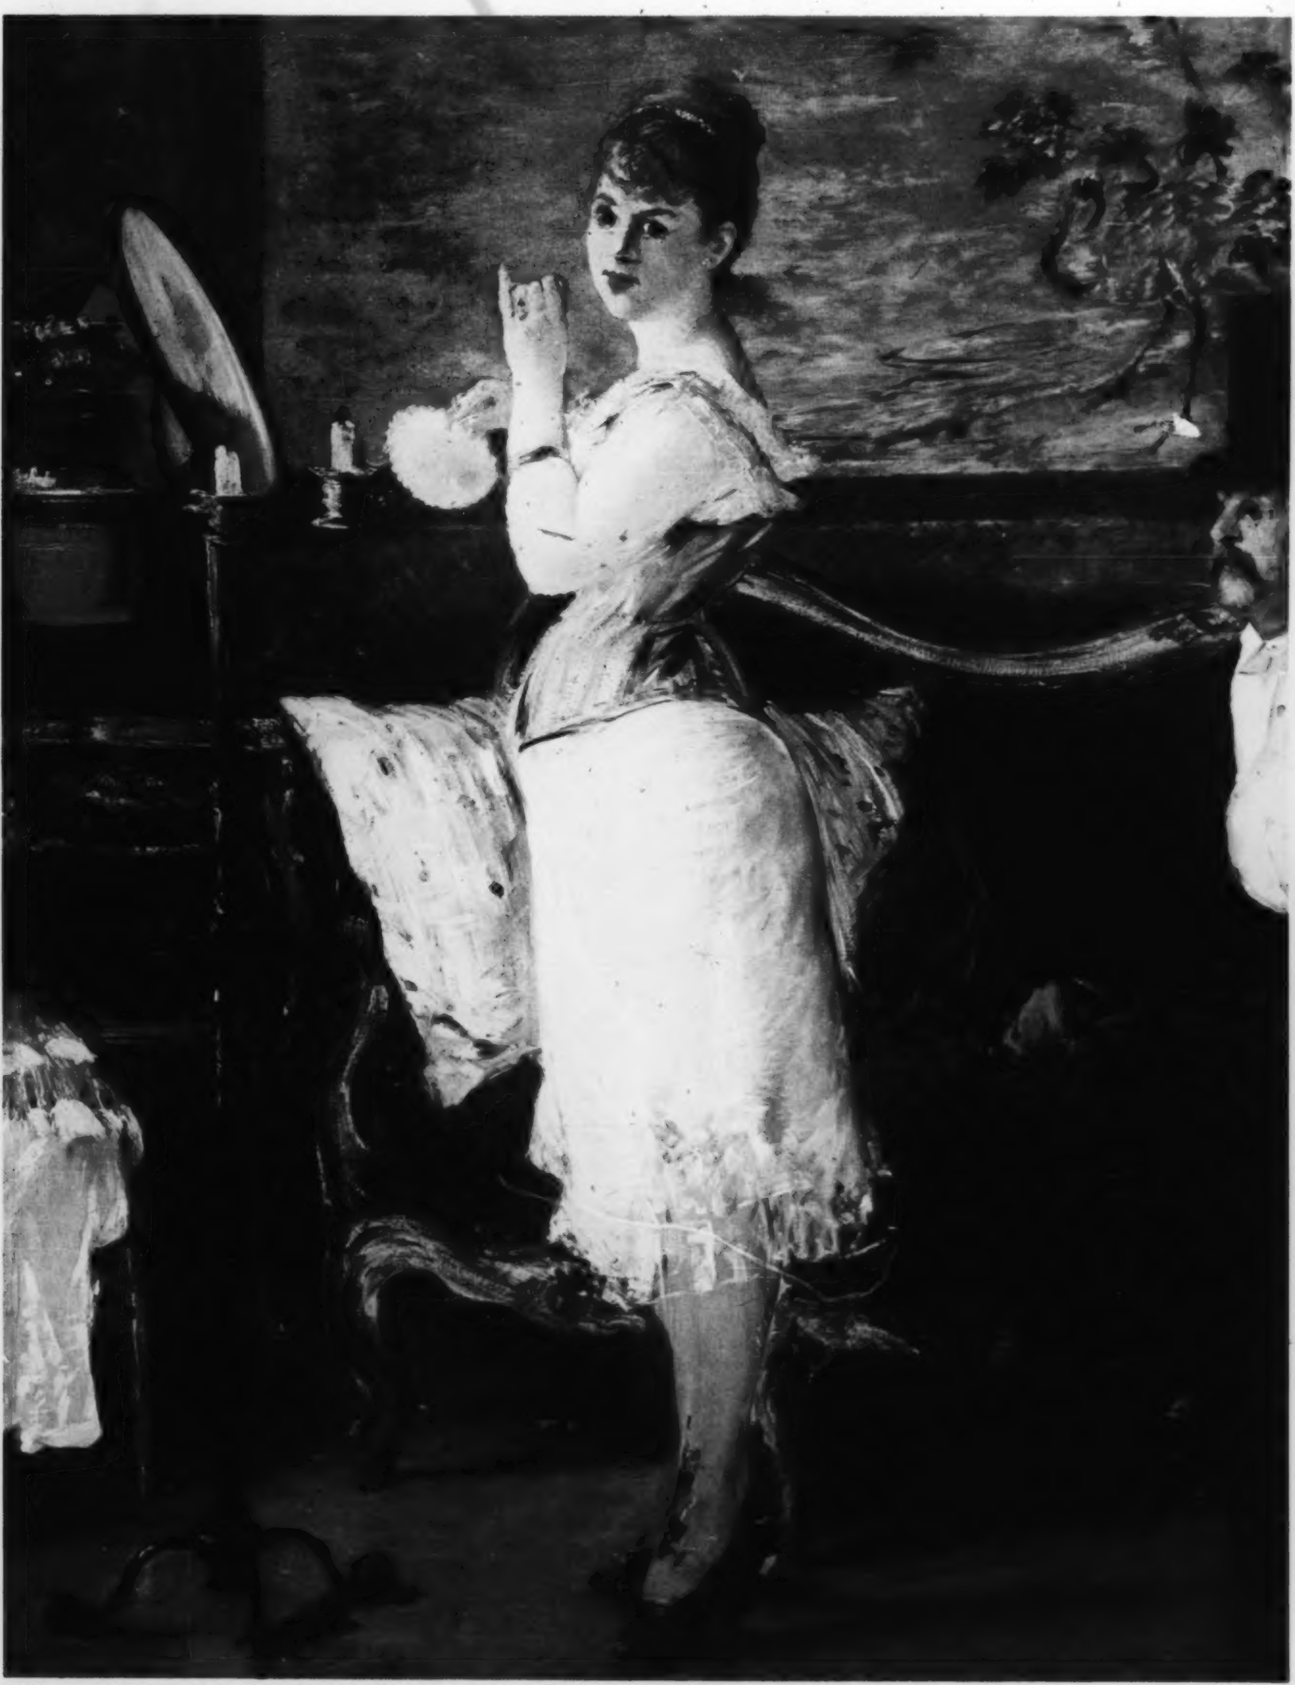
A more elusive—and provocative—kind of cut-off occurs in Manet's 1868 Portrait of Zola, in which a reproduction of his own work, the Olympia, appears in altered form. Not only do the eyes of the reproduced Olympia swerve towards the sitter, as though in gratitude for his defense of her reputation.[12] The margin of the photograph within the painting has itself been cropped on the right immediately against the body of the black cat, which almost disappears into the background rather than standing out with memorable perversity, as in the original. The cut-off is a way of making the Olympia in the Zola portrait more modest, less sexually charged in the presence of her knight-at-arms. The rather prim Zola had stoutly denied that Olympia was in any way obscene or sexually provocative. It is certainly possible that Manet, an inveterate blagueur, substituted a chastened as well as a grateful Olympia for the original—a private visual joke between himself and his friend.

More overt examples of partial figures with sexually suggestive overtones occur later in Manet's career. In Nana, for example, from 1877, half a top-hatted man observes a seductively half-dressed young woman at her toilette. In the Girl Serving Beer of 1879, a working-class man in a blouse gazes towards a tantalizingly fragmentary view of a female performer.

However, the cut-offs in the Ball at the Opera assume their particular significance only within the context of the work itself. That context is deliberately contemporary and concrete—but more concrete in some aspects than in others. The setting, for example, is highly specific: the scene takes place not in the salle, or auditorium, but rather in the promenade or gangway behind the boxes of the Opera on the rue Le Peletier—which, in fact, burned down the very year Manet painted the picture.

Manet also carried veracity to an extreme in his depiction of the male figures. Duret, who served as a model himself, assures us in his biography of the painter that the models were all "men of the world," Manet's friends and acquaintances, and that the artist insisted that they keep their habitual postures and expressions. "The men," Duret writes, "have their hats placed on their heads in the most varied ways possible. This was not the result of an imaginative arrangement but actually of the way all these men really wore their hats. Manet asked them, 'How do you put on your hat when you're not thinking about it? All right—when you pose, put it on that way, without premeditation.'" So

VOL
71
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI



Half a top-hatted man observes a seductively half-dressed Nana (1877, oil on canvas, 60¾ by 45¼ inches; Kunsthalle, Hamburg).

anxious was Manet to capture real life, Duret continues, that he used a different model for each of the supernumeraries in the back row, even though only a part of a head or a shoulder might be visible.[13]

Although specific individuals have been cited as models for the men in the painting, Manet's male figures stubbornly "resist identification," to borrow Françoise Cachin's apt phrase. Matching names with faces has proved, as so often in the artist's work, to be a slippery business. The bearded man at far left is usually identified as the composer Emmanuel Chabrier, on the basis of one of two portraits Manet did of him in 1880, as well as a little head of the composer in a Degas painting. Cachin, however, has recently disputed this identification; she sees Chabrier in the dark, bearded man to the right under the chandelier.[14] The fact is, in evening dress one bearded man tends to look rather like another.

The crowd also includes an old school friend, Paul Roudier, and Albert Hecht, one of the first amateurs to have bought Manet's paintings. (Hecht also bought one of the sketches for the Ball at the Opera after Manet's death.) The first man at left in profile may be Duret, who was known to be tall; Duret, however, claims to have served as a model for "part of a hat, an ear and a bearded cheek," which hardly makes for a strong identification. Also included are two young painters, Guillaudin, to the left of the woman with the bouquet at center, and Edmond André, a painter of genre and military subjects who died in 1877 and is said to have served as the model for both the half-figure of Polichinelle in the Ball at the Opera and for Manet's various single-figure versions of this character from the same period.

Manet may have included a self-portrait in the blond-bearded figure, second from the right, immediately above the little dance card bearing his signature.[15] But this image can hardly be counted as a striking likeness: Manet had broader cheekbones and a distinctively aquiline nose. However, it is entirely in character for Manet to tuck himself modestly into the margin of the scene, as he had in Music in the Tuileries more than a decade earlier, so that he could be both a participant in and the observer-constructor of the painting.

Girl Serving Beer, 1879, oil on canvas, 30½ by 25⅝ inches. Musée d'Orsay (Jeu de Paume).

It seems to me no accident that it is difficult, if not impossible, to attach the specific names cited by Duret to specific figures in the Ball at the Opera. If the male figures "resist identification," I believe that it is because Manet wished them to. He was not painting a group portrait of his friends and companions, but rather using them as models to give authenticity to the representation of a certain class or group. It was not an accurate likeness, but rather a genuine ear, an eye, a gesture, the tilt of a hat, the bulge of a shirt front that Manet was after. Duret, Chabrier, Guillaudin and the rest are there not as portrait subjects—identifiable individuals—but merely to provide the genuine raw material for a worldly, masculine typology, an intermittent, provocative but never verifiable shock of recognition.

How and why did the half-figure of Polichinelle get into the Ball at the Opera? He certainly doesn't appear in the preparatory oil sketches for the work, and while there is no reason for him not to be part of the crowd at a masked ball, it is nevertheless significant that his brilliantly colored half-figure backed up to the left side of the frame, visible hand raised in a gesture of surprise or dismay—or mock-command—should be the only costumed male figure in the picture. I think that Manet is up to something with his half-a-Polichinelle, and that this something is a half-joking reference outside the picture. This reference is probably political—although, as we will see, it may be other things as well.

Theodore Reff has recently made a convincing case that Manet's color lithograph of Polichinelle of June 1874 is a disguised caricature of Marshal MacMahon, who in early 1871 had led the French army to its stunning defeat by the Prussians at Sédan, and then compounded this offense by directing the bloody suppression of the Commune the following May. In May 1873 MacMahon was elected President of the Republic.[16] According to Reff, the printer's assistant later recalled that some 1,500 examples of the lithograph, part of a larger edition to be distributed to subscribers of the staunchly Republican Le Temps, were destroyed by the police because of the resemblance between the insolent old Punchinello with his baton and the newly elected President, whose cabinet had embarked on a campaign to restrain the press in order to silence the government's leftist opponents.[17]

A radical Republican, Manet had strong political opinions in the years immediately following the defeat of France in the Franco-Prussian war and of the Commune.[18] He went to the Assembly to sketch Gambetta and tried to persuade him to sit for a portrait when he was temporarily allied with the far Left after the by-elections of July 1871.[19] At the end of 1873 Manet, with Duret and other friends, attended the treason trial of Marshal Bazaine, where he made several reportorial sketches of Bazaine confronting the conseil de guerre—sketches which are hardly flattering to this military leader of the Second Empire.[20]

For a politically concerned Left Republican like Manet, MacMahon's election to the presidency constituted a threatening defeat. Following the so-called "parliamentary coup d'etat" of May 24, 1873, MacMahon inaugurated the reign of "Moral Order" and the right's biggest effort to effect a monarchical restoration.[21] What better way of making a covert dig at the Marshal and his government of Moral Order than to include him in the Ball at the Opera, his back turned safely to the audience, half-in, half-out of the picture, and have him confront with apparent alarm the world of Manet, his friends and their women companions—a world obviously neither moral nor orderly?

If the men in the painting "resist" identification," not a single one of the women is identifiable.[22] This is not because of factual uncertainty—the loss of once-known identities over the course of history—but because of the way in which Manet conceived the picture. The women are anonymous, their identities disguised and deleted, their faces concealed by masks, their bodies swathed in dominoes. In an even more radical strategy of anonymity, some of them exist only piecemeal, as fragments—a trunk here, a leg there. Still, the women, in their provocative anonymity, are the point of the picture—or rather, the point is in some sense the nascent act of physical intimacy growing up everywhere among the hidden but patently attractive women and the (theoretically) identifiable men of the world who surround them.

VOL 71 ISS 10 NO 1983 UMI

The densely packed mass of figures is constantly punctuated by interesting nuances of touch, physical pressure, leanings against, intimate glances; all these subtle and not-so-subtle moves mark the various stages of making out. This is not so much a scene of merrymaking as one of erotic commerce, in which women are the product—enticingly, seductively and mysteriously packaged—and the men, the buyers. The female trunk and leg at the top border of the painting function like traditional shop signs—a leg at the stocking-seller, a watch at the clockmaker—advertising the available merchandise.

This is not to say that Manet is overtly critical of what is going on—far from it. These are his friends, this is their—and possibly his—natural habitat, and their transactions are meant to be seen as pleasurable for both buyer and seller. There is nothing moralistic about Manet's depiction of the situation; however, an interesting tension is created by the doubling of viewpoints, the shift from the notion of the scene as a transparent slice of life to that of the image as an arbitrary creation with an implication of distancing or even of ironic commentary.

Where did Manet get the idea for this rigorously horizontal two-story composition? Edmond de Goncourt thought that it was inspired by the mise-en-scène of the Goncourt brothers' play Henriette Maréchal (1865); writing in his journal on Thursday, Nov. 20, 1873, he notes, "Today, I was in Manet's studio, looking at his painting of the Ball at the Opera, which is, so to speak, the set for the first act of Henriette Maréchal."[23] This opinion was seconded by Ernest Chesneau in 1874 and recently reiterated by a contemporary critic.[24] But R. Ricatte, the modern editor of the Goncourts' Journals, correctly points out that there is a considerable difference between the "colorful verve" of the Goncourt's description of the opera ball and "the rigor of Manet's file of black-clad figures . . . under the implacable balcony which extends across the painting's entire width."[25]

El Greco's* Burial of Count Orgaz (1588) has been cited as a source for Manet's Ball.

Recently, Alain de Leiris has suggested a compositional analogy between the Ball at the Opera and the line of black-clad figures, their white linen setting off the portrait heads, in El Greco's Burial of Count Orgaz.[26] Obviously, there are many possible formal precedents for Manet's painting, including an almost inexhaustible supply of illustrations in the popular press. However, I know of only one work which both represents a ball at the opera and shares the rigorously horizontal structure of Manet's painting, including the balcony which divides the scene across its entire width. I am thinking of a print by the minor French artist Jean-François Bosio, The Ball at the Opera, one of five large, brilliantly colored compositions des moeurs designed in 1804 for the Journal des dames.[27] We don't, of course, know that Manet actually knew Bosio's print; even if he did, when we place the two works side by side, their differences turn out to be more interesting than their schematic similarity.

Even if Bosio's composition did enter into the story, it has been all but eradicated in Manet's work; the print remains a minor prototype that provided only the scaffolding and the faintest reverberation of the past against which the spirit of the present could ring out all the more vividly. Manet substituted observed gestures for conventional poses, the poses of his friends and contemporaries for Bosio's vapid types. Above all, whereas Bosio presented a finished, carefully detailed composition—a pictorial totality, fixed and premeditated despite its would-be sprightliness—Manet deliberately emphasized the fleeting, tangential, variable aspect of his subject through the cut-off view and a partial representation. In Manet's Ball at the Opera everything has been done to convey a sense of the fragmentary rather than the whole, of suggestion rather than overstatement, of momentary incident instead of unfolding plot, of mood rather than narrative, of contemporaneity rather than mere modishness.

Manet's conception of pictorial structure is analogous to the esthetic of the fragmentary, the "slice of life" theory articulated by the French literary Naturalists later in the century. Doing away with conventional plot and characterization, these writers sought to create an authentic equivalent of experienced reality. Guy de Maupassant, for example, in his theoretical discussion of literary art Le Roman (1888), insisted that the writer must strive for an illusion of truth rather than tell a good story: "Instead of contriving a surprising event and then having it unfold in a way that keeps the plot interesting right up to the denouement," he wrote, "the novelist should simply take up his characters at a certain point in their lives and let them proceed by natural transitions to the next."[28] Presumably like life itself, the Naturalist novel or story offered no convenient solutions; protagonists were frequently left in midstream, as it were, to continue their struggles outside the boundaries of the work itself.[29]

In visual art, the esthetic of the fragment was articulated most forcefully by critic and novelist Edmond Duranty;[30] in his most sustained discussion of the innovative painting of his time, La nouvelle peinture, published in 1876, after the second Impressionist show, Duranty seems almost to be describing Manet's compositional practice in the Ball at the Opera. In reality, Duranty maintained, there are thousands of unpredictable views of both people and things, and the artist can create an authentic equivalent of experience by deploying his figures asymmetrically, never placing them in the center of the canvas. In the new painting, Duranty continues, the figure is not always represented as a totality: "Sometimes it may appear cut off at mid-leg, half-length or longitudinally."[31]

Manet may have based the Ball at the Opera on the rigorously horizontal, two-tiered composition of Jean-François Bosio's The Ball at the Opera (1804).

Manet's use of the fragment does not, however, merely create a Naturalistic illusion. The remarkable synecdoche at the top of the Ball at the Opera also suggests a continuing, even inexhaustible supply of women's bodies beyond the boundaries of the image. But it also functions as a signifier of artifice which points to the painter's deliberate and willful choice. Mallarmé's claim that there is "nothing disorderly or scandalous about the painting which seems to want to step out of its frame"[32] suggests that there were in fact people who found it scandalous or disturbing.

The image of the cut-off leg functions in art as an easily understood, nontransferable synecdoche for sexual attractiveness and female availability, right down to the present. When the leg is feminine, as it is in Alfred Stieglitz's photograph of Dorothy True (1919) or even in André Kertész's American Ballet (1939), it refers to the model's passivity—the very source of her sexiness for the male spectator. Similarly fragmented masculine legs never have the same implication. From the time of the medieval manuscript to that of the modern comic strip, male legs have functioned as potent emblems of energy—either upwardly mobile, as in the case of the Ascending Christ, or a destructive, downward force, as in Jerry Siegel and Bernard Baily's The Spectre, in which a foot crushes a car with stunning force.[33]

In Manet's work cut-off female legs—suggesting the world beyond the picture frame and signifying complex meanings within—will turn up again in the Bar at the Folies-Bergère, exhibited in the Salon of 1882. In both theme and formal structure, this work recalls the Ball at the Opera. The little green shoes of the trapezist at upper left echo the brilliant green of the crème-de-menthe bottle in the lower-right foreground. The barmaid—herself both seller and sold, immobile yet alive and vulnerable—is positioned between these two reference points. She functions as a kind of way station between the world of inert, densely painted objects in the foreground and that of the evanescent, openly brushed pleasure-seekers reflected in the mirror behind her—a world into which the green-shod feet of the trapezist swing for an incandescent moment, seeming to distill the transitoriness of pleasure itself. Those feet sum up, in a way, the whole point of the bar, the ball and the café concert—that is, of Manet's subjects, and a significant part of his life as well.[34]

Although Manet himself is not recognizable in the crowd reflected in the mirror, he might just as well be there, alongside his demimondaine friends Méry Laurent and Jeanne Demarsy. Once more, Manet can be thought of as both an inhabitant of the world of the painting and an ironically detached observer of it, remarking on its venality as well as its pleasurableness. Manet was aware of the peculiar vulnerability of the demimondaine, of the marginal or working-class women who frequented these places of pleasure. Yet he saw these women's defining and perpetual availability as an acceptable part of their attraction, their simply being there for him and for men like him.[35]

There is certainly a sense in which the Ball at the Opera is a subversive painting, daring in its open representation of feminine sexual availability and the recognizability of the male consumers of it—especially at a time when Moral Order was the order of the day. The painting is also daring in its formal strategies—its immediacy, its brio, its deliberate yet casual-looking cut-off view of the spectacle. It was no doubt the intersection of these two impulses that made the Salon jury reject the painting in 1874, and Mallarmé admire it. Today, Manet's antinarrative strategies seem to call into question the ideology of his time. By rejecting traditional modes of pictorial storytelling, by interrupting the flow of the story line, Manet seems to be making a witty and ironic reference to the underlying assumptions controlling such gatherings of upper-middle-class men and charming women of the theater—pleasure for the former, profit for the latter. The cut-off legs and torso at the top are a brilliant Realist device, a substitution of part for whole, through which Manet makes us aware of the artifice of his art and, at the same time, of the nature of the actual power structure underlying the worldly goings-on here.

There is some truth in this vision of Manet and his work; but things are even more complicated than this. Money—buying and selling—lay at the heart of pleasure in Manet's Paris. As a man of his time, his city, his class—a man of the world, in short—Manet knew and accepted this, even if he was sometimes able to stand

VOL 71 ISS 10 NO 1983 UMI

ıt caeleſtiſ regeſ ſup a buntur inſelmon monſ pinguiſ · latuſ monſ pingui ı monteſ coagolan bene placitum eſt ceñ dñſ habitabit
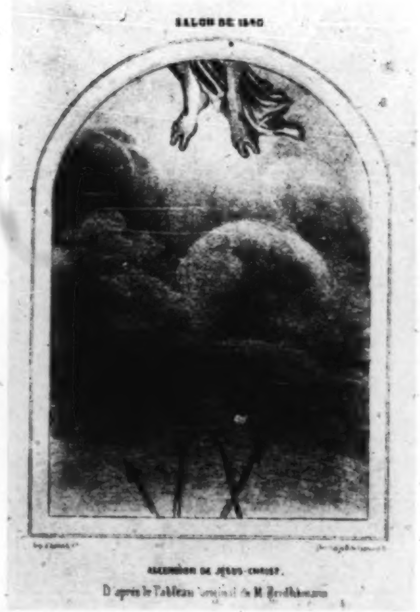
decem milib; mult

Detail of top edge of a page from a Bury St. Edmunds Psalter, ca. 1000, showing the ascending Christ as a pair of disembodied, cut-off feet.



SALON DE 1840
ASCENSION DE JÉSUS-CHRIST.
D'après le Tableau original de M. Brrdhkmann

A mid-19th-century parody of the convention of depicting Christ's feet: Honoré Daumier's Ascension of Christ (After M. Brrdhkmann).

Manet: At the Cafe, Study of Legs, ca. 1880, watercolor on paper, 7¼ by 4⅝ inches. Musée du Louvre, Paris.

Alfred Stieglitz: Dorothy True, 1919, gelatin silver print, 9½ by 7½ inches. National Gallery of Art, Washington, D.C.

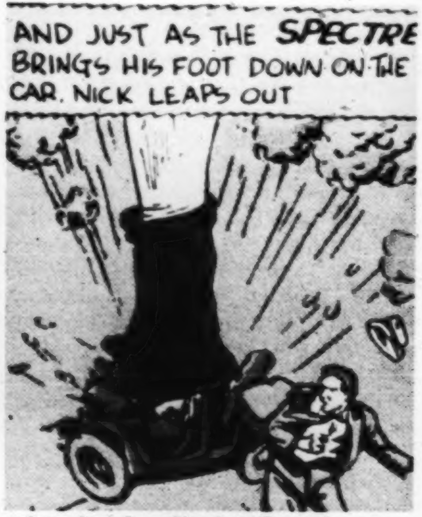
André Kertész: American Ballet, 1939, gelatin silver print, 10 by 8 inches. Courtesy Susan Harder Gallery, New York.



AND JUST AS THE SPECTRE BRINGS HIS FOOT DOWN ON THE CAR. NICK LEAPS OUT

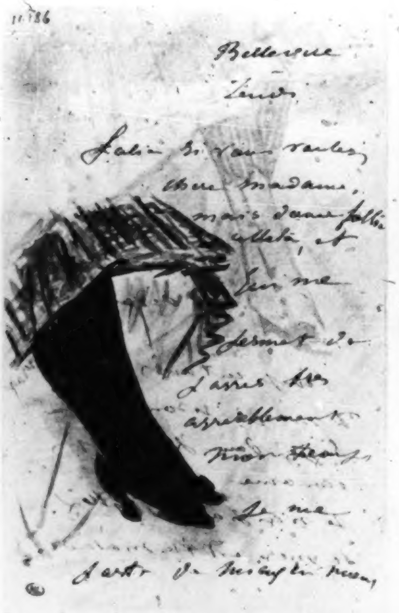
A frame from Jerry Siegel and Bernard Bailey's comic strip The Spectre: ". . . and just as the SPECTRE brings his foot down. . . ."

back from his world in order to set it forth, to paint the flesh market in its various disguises. If we tend to accept his version of 19th-century reality so readily, perhaps this is because it coincides so easily and so unconsciously with our own reality—depending, of course, on who we mean by "we." For in the Ball at the Opera Manet sets forth erotic pleasure as mutually engaging for prosperous men and marginal or anonymous women, no matter what its ultimate price, literal and figurative—which can hardly be the same for both.

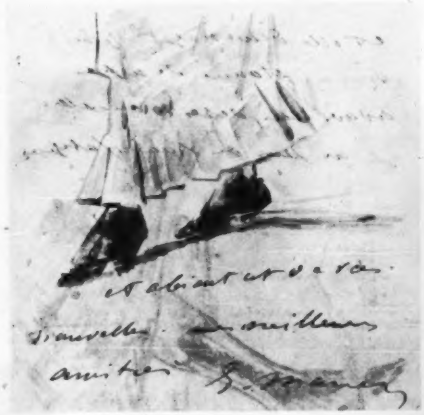
When all is said and done, Polichinelle may assume still another meaning. We know that in the past Manet had identified himself with his commedia figure.[36] Michael Fried relates Manet's work to the marionette theater of the 1860s, suggesting that Punch, like the artist, was both producer of and participant in his own creations.[37] If Polichinelle in some way stands for Manet in the Ball at the Opera, drawing back momentarily to criticize the scene, he is nevertheless an alter ego whose very disguise and half-bodied presence mocks his own condemnatory gesture. ☐

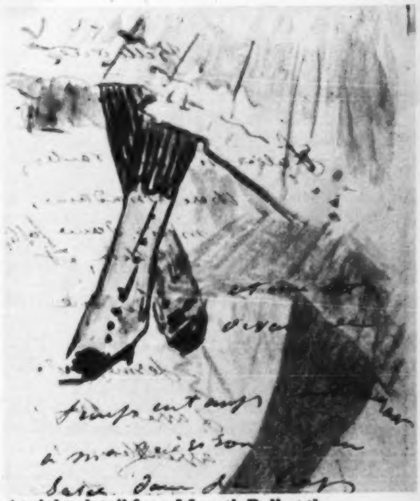
---

1. The chronicler in question was Fervacques, quoted in Moreau-Nelaton, Manet raconté par lui-même, Paris, 1926, vol. II, pp. 9–10, and in turn cited by Françoise Cachin in her catalogue entry on the Masked Ball at the Opera in Manet 1832–1883, New York, 1983, no. 138, pp. 349–52. This catalogue entry is a rich source of information and documentation

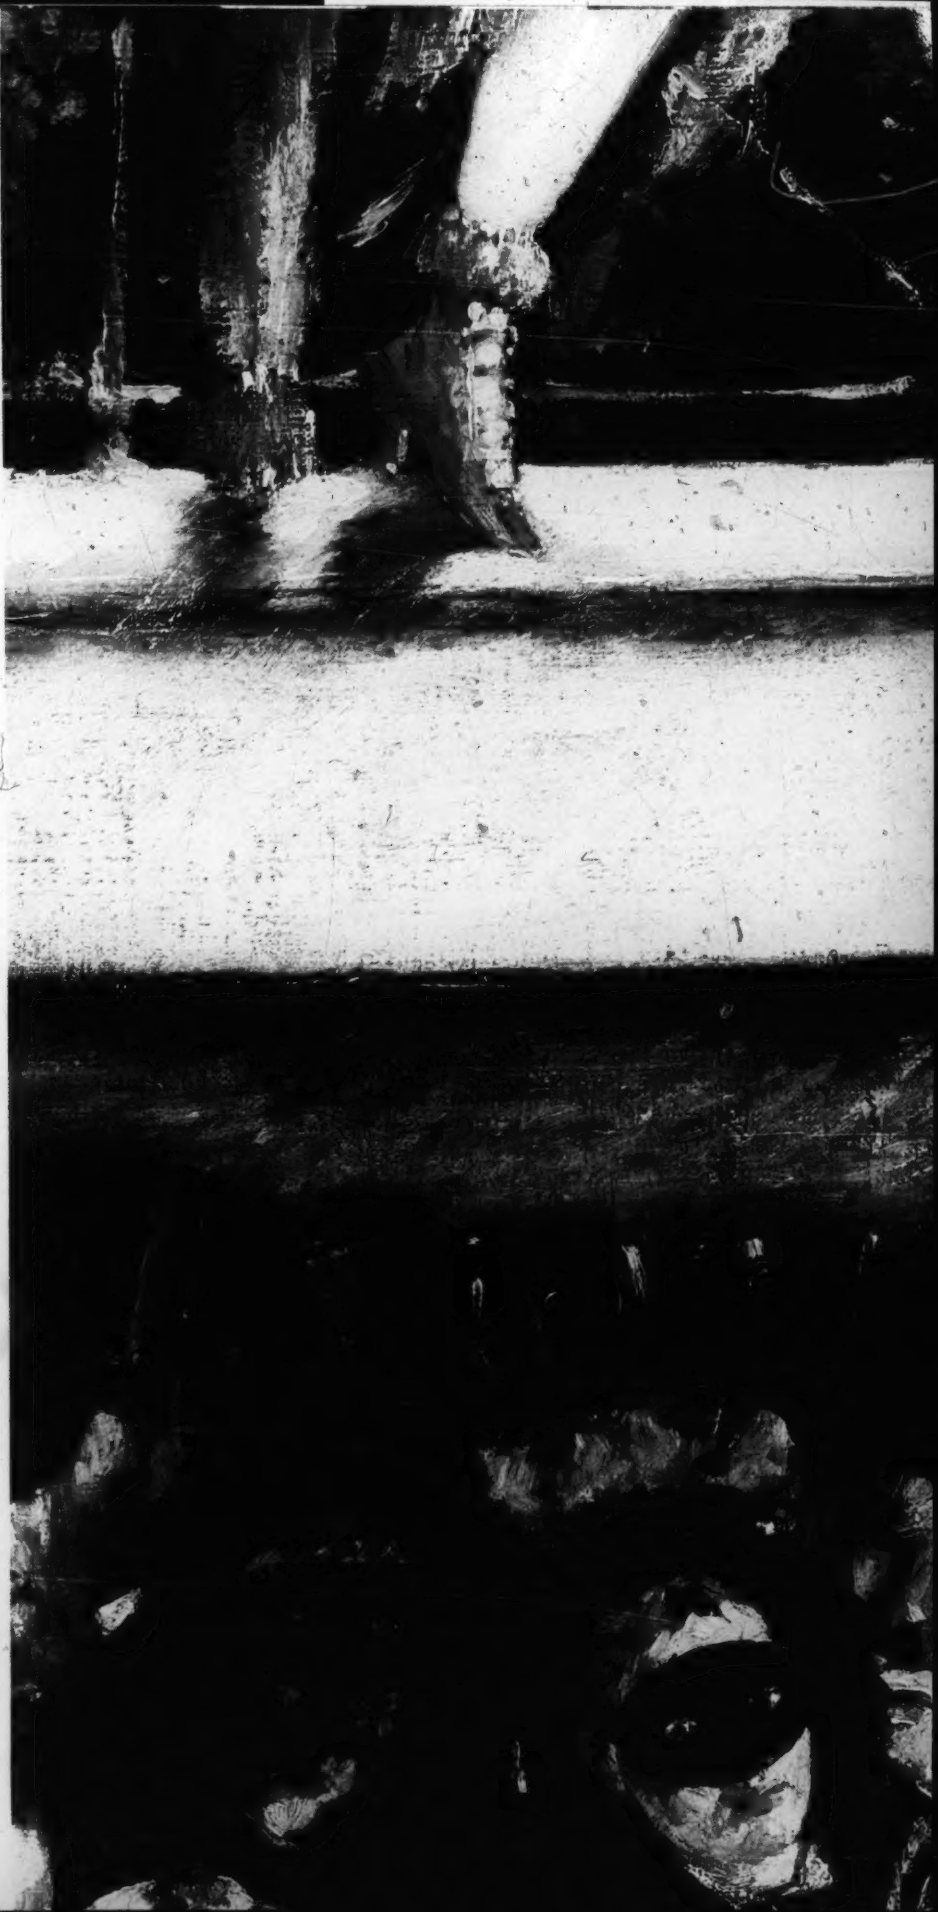


Above and below, details from three pages of a Manet note to Mme Guillemet, 1880. Musée du Louvre, Cabinet des Dessins.





At right, detail from Manet's Ball at the Opera, with the cut-off leg in the balcony.



VOL
7
1
ISS
1 0
N O
1983
UMI

A Bar at the Folies-Bergére, 1881–82, oil on canvas, 37¾ by 51¼ inches. Courtauld Institute Galleries, London.

about the painting, as are Theodore Reff, Manet and Modern Paris, Washington, D.C., 1982, no. 39, p. 122, and Denis Rouart and Daniel Wildenstein, Edouard Manet: Catalogue raisonnè, Lausanne, 1975, I, no. 216. For a recent interpretation of the work see Alain de Leiris, "Manet and El Greco: The 'Opera Ball,' " Arts, Sept. 1980, pp. 95–99.

2. Julius Meier-Graefe, Edouard Manet, Munich, 1912, p. 216. Meier-Graefe also maintained that the painting was "ein Stück, das ein Ganzes ergibt." His analysis of the work (pp. 215–218), though brief, is brilliant.

3. Stéphane Mallarmé, "Le Jury de peinture pour 1874 et M. Manet," Oeuvres complètes, ed. H. Mondor and G. Jean-Aubry, Paris, 1945, p. 695. The letter originally appeared in La Renaissance artistique et littèraire in 1874.

4. Théodore Duret, Histoire d'Edouard Manet et son oeuvre, 2nd ed., Paris, 1919, p. 109.

5. For related works see the oil sketches in Rouart-Wildenstein, I, nos. 214–215 and an ink-wash study, II, no. 503. There may be three or four related drawings as well. See de Leiris, The Drawings of Edouard Manet, Berkeley and Los Angeles, 1969, nos. 412–415.

6. Reff reproduces the relevant Grévin caricature in Manet and Modern Paris, fig. 62, p. 122.

7. Roman Jakobson, "The Metaphoric and Metonymic Poles," Fundamentals of Language, The Hague, 1956, pp. 76–82.

8. T. Reff, "The Symbolism of Manet's Frontispiece Etchings," Burlington Magazine, May 1962, pp. 182–87.

9. For the color lithograph, see Reff, Manet and Modern Paris, no. 40. For the watercolor study, see Rouart-Wildenstein II, no. 563; for the oil sketch, I, no. 212; and for the finished oil, I, no. 213.

10. Cited by Jean C. Harris, "A Little-Known Essay on Manet by Stéphane Mallarmé," Art Bulletin, Dec. 1964, p. 561. Mallarmé's essay had originally appeared in the English Art Monthly Review in 1876.

11. See, for example, the caricature of the work of the photographer Disderi by Cham, from Le Charivari of 1861, reproduced by Aaron Scharf, Art and Photography, London, 1968, fig. 144. p. 155, in which the legs of the passengers on an omnibus are amputated by the upper margin of the image.

12. T. Reff, "Manet's 'Portrait of Zola'," Burlington Magazine, Jan. 1975, p. 41.

13. Duret, pp. 110–112.

14. Cachin, p. 350. For images of Chabrier, see R. DeCage, "Chabrier et ses amis impressionistes," L'Oeil, Dec. 1963, pp. 16–23f.

15. De Leiris, "Manet and El Greco," p. 98.

16. Reff, Manet and Modern Paris, p. 124.

17. J.P.T. Bury, Gambetta and the Making of the Third Republic, London, 1973, p. 155.

18. For a detailed examination of Manet's activities during the Franco-Prussian War and the Commune, see Marianne Ruggiero, "Manet and the Image of War and Revolution: 1851–1871," Edouard Manet and the Execution of Maximilian, Providence, R.I., 1981.

19. Bury, pp. 38–39.

20. Duret, pp. 173–74.

21. Bury, p. 152.

22. Cachin, p. 351.

23. Edouard and Jules de Goncourt, Journal, ed. R. Ricatte, Paris, 1956.

24. Eric Darragon, "Le Bal de L'Opéra, espace et réalité post-romanesque chez Manet en 1873," L'Avant-Guerre sur l'art, 3 (1983).

25. Ricatte, Goncourt Journal, Thurs., Nov. 20, 1873.

26. De Leiris, "Manet and El Greco," pp. 95–96, 99.

27. Bosio's engraving, in the Cabinet des Estampes of the Bibliothèque Nationale, is brilliantly colored. For information about J.-F. Bosio, see Jean Adhémar, Bibliothèque Nationale: Departement des Estampes; Inventaire du Fonds français après 1800, Paris, 1942, III, 157–58.

28. Cited by A. Vial, Guy de Maupassant et l'art du roman, Paris, 1971, p. 77.

29. For an articulation of this view of the Naturalist novel, see Lillian Furst and Peter N.

Skrine, Naturalism, London, 1971, p. 47.

30. Duranty, founder of the influential review Réalisme in 1856, had known Manet since 1863, if not earlier. Both figured in Fantin-Latour's Hommage à Delacroix at that time. In Duranty's novella La simple vie du peintre Louis Martin, published in 1872, there are reminiscences of Manet's work in the Salon des Refusés of 1863. Their relation was generally a close one despite a duel they fought in 1870 over a not-too-complimentary article Duranty had written about the artist. See L.E. Tabary, Duranty (1833–1880): Etude biographique et critique, Paris, 1954 (Etudes français, vol. 46), passim.

31. Duranty, La nouvelle peinture: à propos du groupe d'artistes qui expose dans les galeries Durand-Ruel (1876), ed. M. Guérin, Paris, 1946, pp. 46–7. Although Duranty's remarks are generally associated with Degas's compositional innovations, they apply equally well to those of Manet. In La nouvelle peinture Duranty praises Manet as an unparalleled innovator, "the audacious head of the movement" (pp. 35–36).

32. Mallarmé continues: ". . . but on the contrary, the noble attempt to capture, through purely pictorial means, a total vision of contemporary life." Mallarmé, Oeuvres complètes, p. 689.

33. Meyer Schapiro, who devoted a major article to the motif of Christ's feet in Ascension imagery ("The Image of the Disappearing Christ: the Ascension in English Art Around the Year 1000," Gazette des Beaux-Arts, March 1943, pp. 135–152), noted the "remarkable and unexpected vivacity and realism of this motif . . . [which] with its emphasis on the viewpoint of an earthly observer is relatively unique in the medieval period." Schapiro goes on to connect this "daringly realistic" type of Ascension with the radical transformation of traditional conceptions in England in favor of more concrete and active types. He sees "an intensified concreteness in rendering the transitive and dynamic aspects of the old religious scenes," an "emphasis on the act of seeing at an objective moment of the story," connecting these features with the "empiricism and pragmatic aspect of English philosophy in the Middle Ages"—in brief, with what might be termed a "realist-empirical outlook" analogous to, though of course very different from, that of Manet and his fellows in the 19th century.

34. In the days when women's legs were more provocative, Manet obviously relished the sight of dainty feet and ankles. See, for example, the neat, black-stockinged legs depicted in his 1880 note to Mme Guillemet (catalogue no. 198, p. 458; de Leiris, Drawings, no. 583; Rouart-Wildenstein II, no. 580). In a watercolor study of legs (catalogue no. 199, p. 585; Rouart-Wildenstein II, no. 518), dated about the same time, the angles and curves of legs and feet, in proximity with the skinny, inanimate curves of the legs of the café table next to them, suggest not merely a personality but a whole milieu.

35. The definitive study of French prostitution and attitudes towards it in the 19th and 20th centuries is Alain Corbin, Les Filles de Noce, Paris, 1978.

36. Reff, "Manet's Frontispiece Etching," p. 184.

37. Michael Fried, "Manet's Sources: Aspects of his Art, 1859–1865," Artforum, March 1969, pp. 70–71.

Author: Linda Nochlin is Distinguished Professor of Art History at the City University Graduate Center, New York.

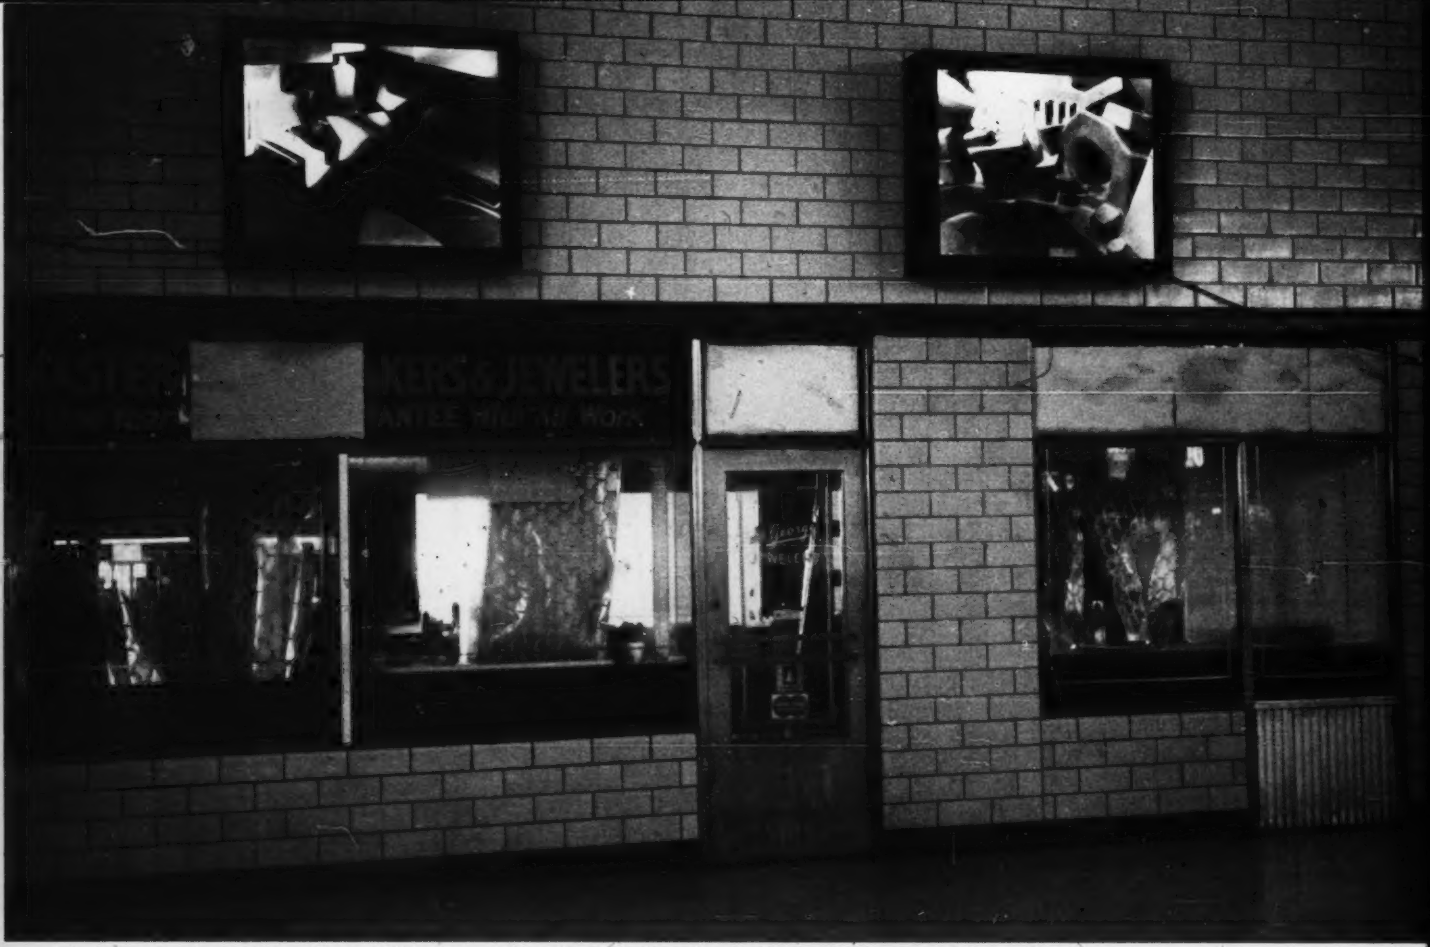
Detail from A Bar at the Folies-Bergère, showing the suspended legs of a trapezist at the painting's upper left.

VOL
7
1
ISS
1 0
N O
1983
UMI



James Casebere's photo-tableaux, Utility Room (left) and Sutpen's Cave, installed in St. George Terminal, Staten Island.

Uncanny Images

In photographs of models of his own making, James Casebere plays with our sense of the real, questioning the photograph as document, seeing it rather as simulacrum, and evoking scenes that are at once familiar and phantasmal.

BY HAL FOSTER

James Casebere is a genre artist, a photographer of bizarre tableaux: out of paper, mat board and plaster he makes little models which he lights "naturally," photographs, then usually destroys. Whether the everyday made strange (as in Kitchen Table where a shadow cast by a cardboard man looms among pots and pans) or the exotic made tame (as in Sutpen's Cave where a cave is staged with a grand colonnade), all these shadowy white images seem slightly deranged. Though homey, even homely, the photographs are not quite right: they have the scalar oddity of dreams that will not be contained; and like natures mortes come alive, they blur the line between true and false, real and imaginary. Neither models nor copies of wordly things (no original or referent exists), they are more properly phantasms—as if here the symbolic had somehow usurped the real, or a dream or memory were projected before our eyes.

An encounter with these images, then, is strange, all the more since now it may occur in a public space—the St. George Terminal of the Staten Island Ferry.[1] High in this everyday place of routine repetitions, Casebere has set five large photo-tableaux in deep black light boxes, their size and format much like the ads and signs elsewhere in this space. Kitchen Table appears above a post office. Sutpen's Cave is set above a jeweler's store beside Utility Room, complete with open drawers and generic box, bottle, racket and ball. Waterfall, a suburbscape of rocks, water and vine, hangs above a small bank ("1st Nationwide"). And Back Porch, with typical lawn mower and upset garbage can, is placed above a New York City subway map, a ship's bell and a women's room. All these images are unmarked, and before them one can only ask: what type of sign is this, to what does it refer?

Far from "pregnant moments" in which past, present and future converge, these tableaux without actors lose one in time and space, and so confound the function of social signs in this public place. For example, below Back Porch, with its shadowy presence too evanescent to grasp, the subway map seems opaque, a mere mess of colored lines. Impossible to ground, these images in effect untie the other signs, which also come to seem without specific referent, reality, weight. At the same time, the other signs (which like the map tend to be abstract) render the photos more referential—give them a weightiness they otherwise lack. This play with the real is Casebere's serious game.

As each image is a photograph of a model of his own making, it has no referent in the world; no caption fixes its "chain of signifiers," no title (or only a generic one) limits its projective power.[2] And yet each image evokes what Barthes called "the effect of the real." This effect generally attaches to photography in two ways: through its conventional status as a document and through its representation of the insignificant, accidental data that we commonly accept as literal, real. Casebere plays with both these effects: he confounds our belief in the photograph as a record of the real, and he suppresses all specific detail in order to cast its reality-value in doubt.

These photographs, then, do not transcribe a reality so much as contrive one—an encoding which goes against our sense of photography as a pure representation, a matter of denotation, a "message without a code."[3] It is, of course, this putative absence of a code in photography that allows for its great power as a medium that renders things "obvious" and events "natural." But denotation, even in documentary photography, does not banish meanings; rather, as Barthes explains "the denoted image naturalizes the symbolic," and "the discontinuous world of symbols plunges into the story of the denoted scene as though into a lustral bath of innocence." The symbolic similarly swims in Casebere's staged scenes—but self-consciously, blatantly. The signs in this nature (like the "natural" cave in Sutpen's Cave) are purely cultural, parodistically man-made.

Casebere thus works to suspend the opposition not only between original and copy but between nature and code. This operation—in which his images drift free of specific signifieds, real referents—is not only a play with content: it is a subversion of the conventional process of signification. Such a claim, I know, seems absurd: how can photos of little plaster models subvert the practice of meaning? How can these homey, even homely images be in any way disruptive? Yet disruptive they are, and this is so, I want to suggest, because of two things: their status as simulacra and their precisely uncanny effects.

> These would be the successive phases of the image: it is the reflection of a basic reality; it masks and perverts a basic reality; it masks the absence of a basic reality; it bears no relation to any reality whatsoever: it is its own pure simulacrum.
>
> —Jean Baudrillard
> "The Precession of Simulacra"

Casebere's images confuse not only other signs (ads, maps) but also the typology of signs (e.g., are these photos indices or symbols?). They may even lead us to question the very order of representation—the hierarchy of essence over appearance, thing over image, original over copy, model over simulacrum. The motive of this Platonic order, as Gilles Deleuze has written, is simple: to distinguish "the good and the bad copies, or rather the copies (always well-founded) and the simulacra (always engulfed in dissimilarity)," and to supress the latter.[4] The simulacrum is suppressed in Western philosophy because it is a copy without an original and as such is based on difference and repetition—not the principle of identity and resemblance by which the Platonic order of representation (of Ideas, of Truth) is set. "The simulacrum makes the Same and the Similar, the model and the copy, fall under the power of the false (the phantasm). It makes the order of participation, the fixity of distribution, the determination of hierarchy, impossible . . . it engulfs all foundations, it assures a universal breakdown (effondrement), but as a positive and joyous event, as an un-founding (effondement)." Casebere's images play a part in this un-founding, and it is easy enough now to "identify" them as simulacra. For like simulacra, they designate a "merely external, non-productive effect of resemblance, an effect obtained by some ruse or Installation view of Casebere's* Back Porch, *1983, one of five photo-tableaux in the terminal, each 56 by 44 inches.

VOL
7
1
ISS
1 0
NO
1983
UMI

James Casebere: Back Porch, 1981, black and white photograph, 20 by 16 inches.

Waterfall, 1983, photograph, 20 by 16 inches; model: paper, mat board, plaster.

Casebere's images confuse not only other signs, but also the typology of signs; they lead us to question the order of representation—the hierarchy of essence over appearance, original over copy, model over simulacrum.

subversion":

> Plato is quite precise about how this nonproductive effect is obtained: the simulacrum implies huge dimensions, depths and distances that the observer cannot master. It is precisely because he cannot master them that he experiences an impression of resemblance. The simulacrum includes in itself the differential point of view; the observer becomes a part of the simulacrum itself, which is transformed and deformed by his point of view. In short, there is in the simulacrum a going-mad, a becoming unlimited . . . .

But what precisely is this "going-mad," and how do Casebere's images partake of it? As Deleuze explains, the going-mad is simply this: "the simulacrum when it breaks its chains and rises to the surface . . . affirms its power of phantasm, its repressed power." In other words, the simulacrum is related to the phantasm, which leads us in turn to the phantasmal—uncanny—nature of Casebere's images.

In his essay of 1919, Freud cites as typically uncanny the confusing of live and dead, of real and imaginary, and the usurping of things by symbols—precisely the effects of these images noted at the outset. Freud also stresses the scopic nature of the uncanny and the sense of guilt, of the hidden and the secret, attendant upon the uncanny vision. Now the word "uncanny"—German unheimlich—enfolds all these meanings: "heimlich [literally, homelike] is a word the meaning of which develops toward ambivalence, until it finally coincides with its opposite, unheimlich. Unheimlich is in some way or other a sub-species of heimlich."[5] Freud enucleates this ambivalence in this way: the uncanny (or unheimlich) is a familiar (or heimlich) event that, estranged through repression, returns to us in the form of the dreaded, the bizarre. This return obeys the principle of the repetition-compulsion, the principle that governs our instinctual tendency to regress to a prior state. For Freud, whatever reminds us of this inner compulsion—which is at work in play, dreams and neuroses—is perceived as uncanny. And therein, I think, lies the uncanniness of Casebere's images.

But we need, finally, to relate this uncanny or phantasmal effect to the status of the images as simulacra, as copies without originals. The uncanny, of course, is a matter of psychic not material reality. Similarly, as Freud came to see, the memories related by analysands are often phantasmal, a bricolage of memories old and new, true and false. Yet such phantasms remain "therapeutically effective" without their referring to a specific event.[6] In other words, the state recalled—whether a memory, a moment returned as uncanny or even a "primal scene"—need not have actually existed. And so it is with Casebere's phantasms: they repeat scenes and events that, however familiar, remain absent and untold.[7] Resonant with repetitions yet without originals, they are simulacra; not real yet somehow "effective," they are phantasms; heimlich and unheimlich at once, they are uncanny. ☐

---

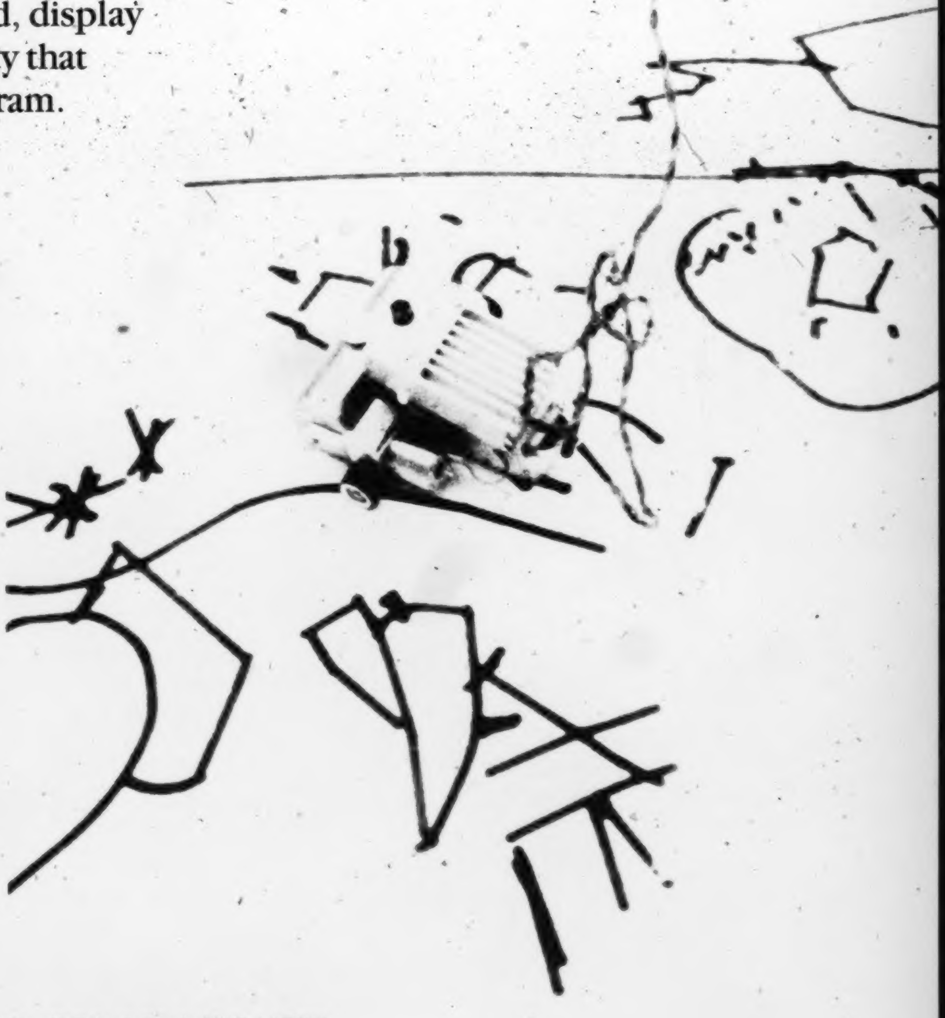
1. This installation (through Dec. 1983) was assisted by Frank Addeo, deputy ombudsman of the Department of Transportation, New York City. Casebere has also shown at the Sonnabend Gallery; see my review, Art in America, Oct. 1982, p. 132.
2. This is even more the case in the photographs of related artists like James Welling and Gregory Rukavina. In such work the "scission" between the signifier on one hand, and the signified and the referent on the other, is almost complete. "The referent in question here is no more external to the sign than is the signified: indeed, it is governed by the sign. It is carved out and projected as its function; its only reality is of that which is ornamentally inscribed on the sign itself. In a profound sense, the referent is the reflection of the sign . . . ." See Jean Baudrillard, For a Critique of the Political Economy of the Sign, trans. Charles Levin, St. Louis, 1981, pp. 143–163.
3. These ideas derive from the first three essays of Roland Barthes, Image-Music-Text, trans. Stephen Heath, New York, 1977. In a sense one can say that Casebere operates between photography and drawing or "writing." Barthes: "The photograph, message without a code, must thus be opposed to the drawing which, even when denoted, is a coded message."
4. Gilles Deleuze, "Platon et le simulacre" (the first of five essays of the appendix to Logique du sens, Paris, 1969), translated with an introduction by William Pietz in the journal Palimpsest, 1983. All Deleuze quotations are from this essay.
5. Sigmund Freud, "The 'Uncanny,'" in Studies in Parapsychology, Philip Rieff ed., New York, 1977, p. 30. This note seems uncannily related to Casebere's images: "There is a humorous saying: 'Love is a home-sickness'; and whenever a man dreams of a place or country and says to himself, still in the dream, 'this place is familiar to me, I have been here before,' we may interpret the place as being his mother's genitals or her body. In this case, too, the unheimlich is what was once heimisch, homelike, familiar; the prefix 'un' is the token of repression."
6. See Pietz (note 4).
7. See Michel Foucault, "Theatrum Philosophicum," in Language, Counter-Memory, Practice, Donald F. Bouchard ed., Ithaca, 1977. "The event is that which is invariably lacking in the series of the phantasm—its absence indicates its repetition devoid of any grounding in an original, outside of all forms of imitation, and freed from the constraints of similitude."

The Machine that Learned to Draw

Witty graphics from a California-born computer, now ten years old, display a distinct stylistic personality that was not in the original program.

BY LAWRENCE CAMPBELL

The announcement that a computer called AARON—brainchild (or alter ego) of painter Harold Cohen—would produce up to 12 unique and original drawings every hour did not prepare me for what I was actually to experience in the Brooklyn Museum's large West Gallery. Instead of an exhibition of computer-generated designs programmed by scientists with artistic horizons fenced in by M.C. Escher's perspective puzzles, I found the relaxed atmosphere of a studio with the artist standing by to answer questions, in the midst of quantities of white paper, tubes of acrylic paints, scaffoldings, and four drawing tables with an attachment on each called a "turtle." These were connected by black wires to a large box which housed a Digital Vax 11/75 computer. When started, one of the "turtles" began to execute, without pause or hesitation, a freehand, witty ink drawing on a sheet of white paper, abstract yet oddly suggestive of many things, and in a graphic style which reminded me irresistibly of the Kin-der-Kids, a brilliant comic strip which the Chicago Tribune commissioned Lyonel Feininger to draw and write in 1906.



Harold Cohen's "brainchild" AARON in action at the San Francisco Museum of Modern Art, summer 1979.

AARON's black and white drawings, signed by Cohen, were on sale in the gallery for $10 apiece. Other drawings with color added by Cohen were in frames around the walls, and there were also two mural-sized blowups from AARON originals, with cheerful high-keyed acrylic colors added by Cohen and his assistants. (In his color additions Cohen adapts himself to AARON quite freely, by working both inside and outside the delineated shapes; he integrates a great number of different colors by generous expanses of white.)

Harold Cohen is an English painter who by the mid-1960s had built up a substantial reputation, having already represented the United Kingdom in the Venice Biennale and other big international exhibitions. Invited in 1968 to join the Visual Arts Program of the University of California at San Diego as Visiting Professor, Cohen learned computer programming from a friend in the music department, and has remained in California ever since. AARON's birth as an art-making computer began with drawing lessons in 1973.

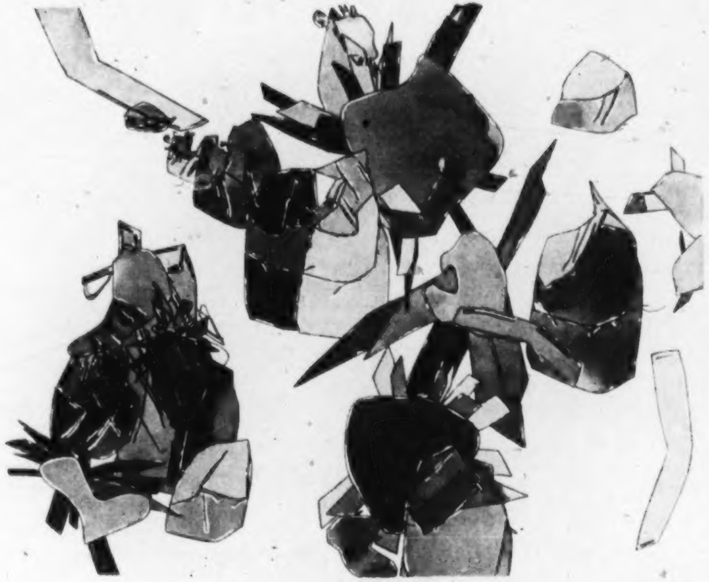
VOL
7
1
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI

AARON is not a machine programmed to reproduce what earlier was fed into it, but an entity with a genuine, if limited intelligence. AARON is of the same order as a computer capable of providing a Grand Master with a good game of chess. What this means is an ability to make decisions based on the changing state of the drawing as it proceeds, without waiting for further instructions. Built into AARON's hardware is a concept of completion. AARON does not ask to be switched off. It knows when a drawing is finished.

The first lessons in AARON's drawing course involved the mechanics of manipulating a Rapidograph drawing pen, moving its point up and down and along a sheet of drawing paper. This part went quite quickly. From the start AARON's memory was phenomenal. It could remember every drawing it had ever done, and would never repeat itself.

Next, and this took a much longer time, AARON had to learn certain basic rules: concepts like inside and out, as well as the difference between image and ground, which the human intelligence learns without being taught by the age of two and three. AARON also had to be taught concepts like negative and positive, pattern, certain simple textures—single as well as cross-hatching—plus open and closed planes, notched planes, overlappings and the difference between large and small. Thus, by slow degrees, some 20 "rules" became embedded in its hardware. Eventually AARON became so good at drawing that Harold Cohen began to see his own role as more that of a collaborator than a teacher, and since AARON's drawings cried out for color, he took to coloring them himself. Cohen felt no embarrassment for doing this, since without Cohen AARON would never have existed.

AARON has a recognizable graphic personality, and Cohen admits to some bewilderment as to the reason for this, since he knows of nothing in the program to account for it. To turn the problem around, Cohen would not know how to change the program in order to project a different personality.



Harold Cohen: Hand-colored computer-generated drawing, 1982, 22 by 30 inches.

> AARON's "abstract" language is immediately seen by most viewers as forming images of birds, people, animals, faces, furniture, boats —even entire landscapes.

Cohen has also given a good deal of thought to the reason why AARON's "abstract" or non-representational language, with no intention of communicating anything, is immediately seen by most viewers as forming images of birds, people, animals, faces, furniture, boats and even entire landscapes. It is almost as though the will to communicate recognizably (realistically) had become mysteriously a part of AARON's personality.

Most people regard a computer as a kind of tool, the way a hammer is an extension of a man's hand or brain. But, as Cohen says, AARON is like a hammer with a life of its own—a hammer capable of scurrying around a building by itself, hunting for nails that stick out from a surface by a mere thirty-second of an inch, and then, still by itself, of hammering them home.

Asked about AARON's future, Cohen said: "I have several things in mind. Most of all I'm interested in the question of color. Color is an interesting problem for the machine on a theoretical level, partly because of the difficulty in characterizing color, and of how to communicate these characterizations to the machine clearly and without ambiguity."

"Does the device vitiate the concept of art as a product of imagination?" asked The New York Times headline writer in the caption accompanying a drawing by AARON above a review by Grace Glueck. Somehow the question seems about as witless as the classic "I like it, but is it art?" Plants have feelings. Trees talk. Bees and ants communicate with each other. Monkeys enjoy painting. Why should intelligence be thought of as limited to human beings? Why not thinking machines—as Ambrose Bierce proposed in a short story written more than a century ago.

During the summer of 1983, AARON and his creator held a joint exhibition in London's Tate Gallery.

Author: Lawrence Campbell is an artist who writes on art.

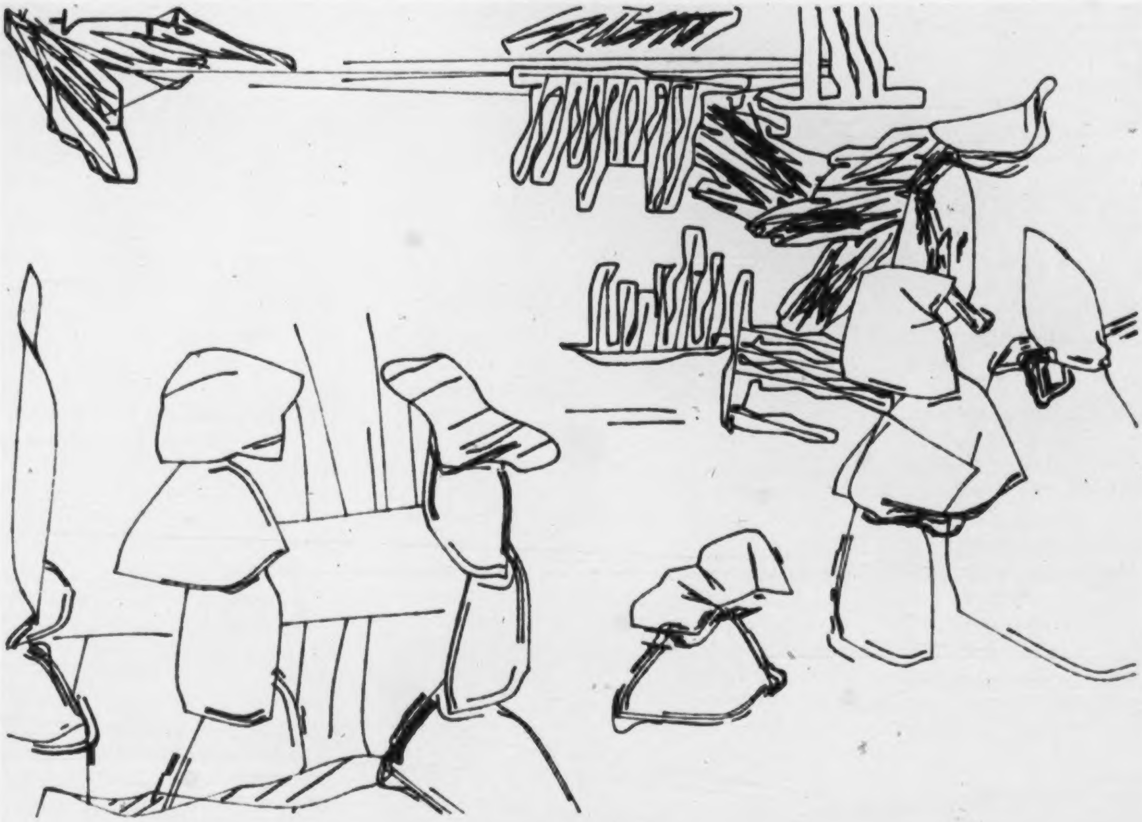
Above and below, computer-generated drawings, 1982–83, India ink on paper, 22 by 30 inches.



VOL 7 1 ISS 10 NO 1983 UMI

John Chamberlain's Irregular Set

John Chamberlain's work straddles the thick line between Minimalism and the art of the present: for while he renounces the normative claim of sculptural immutability, he remains an incorrigibly retinal artist whose idiosyncratic thinking about color and shape appeals to a contemporary appetite for content.

BY GARY INDIANA

With major shows at Castelli Greene Street and the Ringling Museum in Sarasota in the past year, John Chamberlain has again demonstrated the exemplary force of a singular, ingratiatingly bizarre vision. In a field dominated by slabs and architectural parsley, Chamberlain, like Christo and Oldenburg, is one of the very few sculptors whose work is instantly recognizable to a wide public. Because he is one of the great obsessional artists—one whose work takes up a self-referring set of formal considerations and generates a strong family resemblance between individual pieces—his achievement is sometimes thought to be marginal, a fixed tune with variations.

In actual fact, Chamberlain's recent output has been highly varied and adventurous. He is working again with found, crushed metal; however, the giraffe-skin standing pieces at Castelli and the gondola forms in Documenta 7 (examples of which are on permanent display at Chamberlain Gardens in Essex, Connecticut) ring extreme changes of form and scale. They are distinct from earlier works in their use of color as well. Chamberlain has reintroduced patterned color in a keenly dramatic way; the giraffe pieces have painted-over found color, sandblasted into irregular shapes, that is made to vibrate against the sheen of foreground contours and the signature hunks of crumpled metal. The materials instantly betray authorship, but Chamberlain wittily stretches the terms of this recognition without testing them further than they will go.

The singularity of the work presents an automatic difficulty. It's easier to say what it isn't. It is not figurative, though many of Chamberlain's freestanding metal pieces like Son of Dudes and Two Dark Ladies are heavy with anthropomorphic suggestion—the former work owing to a spinelike division of a single, vaguely torso-shaped vertical piece, the latter by virtue of its height and the general suggestiveness of its massed forms. It is not narrative in any sense and generally avoids and often parodies the monumentalization that has filled in for profundity in so much contemporary sculpture; the work often asserts its thing-ness in a shrugging, take-it-or-leave-it way. The latter quality is a form of generosity. The egregiously relaxed appearance of Chamberlain's work is a deft bit of structural camouflage.

In at least a narrow sense, Chamberlain straddles the thick line between the Minimalist canon and whatever the present is now being called. On the one hand, the foam-and-aluminum-foil works Chamberlain made in the late '60s and early '70s literalized a renunciation of the normative sculptural claim of immutability that is more implicit than real in the crushed car pieces; besides being made from materials subject to rapid corrosion and decay, these particular ones are all drawn from the international glut of American consumer products. Displaced to the gallery, the lawn, the public building, the material resonates with the frisson of its apotheosis in the realm of consumption. Here it echoes Wittgenstein's "The meaning is the use," and other pertinent criteria of Minimalism (and of many things before Minimalism).

On the other hand, Chamberlain is an incorrigibly retinal artist whose idiosyncratic thinking about color and shape readily appeals to a marked contemporary appetite for content. The Whitmanesque, very American extravagance of Chamberlain's impacted and varilayered constructions, the elegant sprawl of the large leaning and relief works like A Small Monument to a Swiss Monument and Broken Toe, as well as their jumbled color and swirling topographical densities, are rich in associations with current painting and a surprising amount of current sculpture. (I'm thinking particularly of Christof Kohlhofer's Chamberlain-like whimsy in works like Soy Sauce that proceed from found objects.)

The rationale for Chamberlain's esthetic program is rooted in Abstract Expressionism, in the generative sense that early encounters with the work of Franz Kline and Willem de Kooning deeply influenced Chamberlain's notions about form and color, and Jackson Pollock may have suggested the possibilities of certain procedural habits. From that point of origin, Chamberlain has fairly consistently appropriated current painting styles as ironic collage elements, often guided by their accidental appearance on found materials. (Chamberlain was working with spray paint years before graffiti art; for that matter, actual graffiti has turned up frequently in his work.)

Although Chamberlain's choice of materials may have derived from David Smith's work in the early '50s, like Tanktotem I, much earlier events in photography had also dragged the homely detritus of technological society into the suspicious realm of the interesting. Documenting the careers of manufactured objects is one of photography's oldest and most persuasive methods of seeming "true"; making the desuetude that is the fate of such objects seem beautiful was a major preoccupation of American photography in the '20s and '30s. Photography (and the silent film) suggested the appropriateness of such debris as art material to the Surrealists, whose love for dysfunctional machinery echoes throughout Chamberlain's work.

What Chamberlain specifically celebrates is the moment at which materials alter their function, slipping out of this world into "the world inside this one." The rape of synthetic matter accomplished in his polyurethane-foam and melted-plexiglas pieces presumes a civilization terrorized by the sudden autonomy of its basic parts.

John Chamberlain: Wongkong Melong (both above and at right), 1982, painted and chromium plated steel, 95 by 52 by 49 inches.

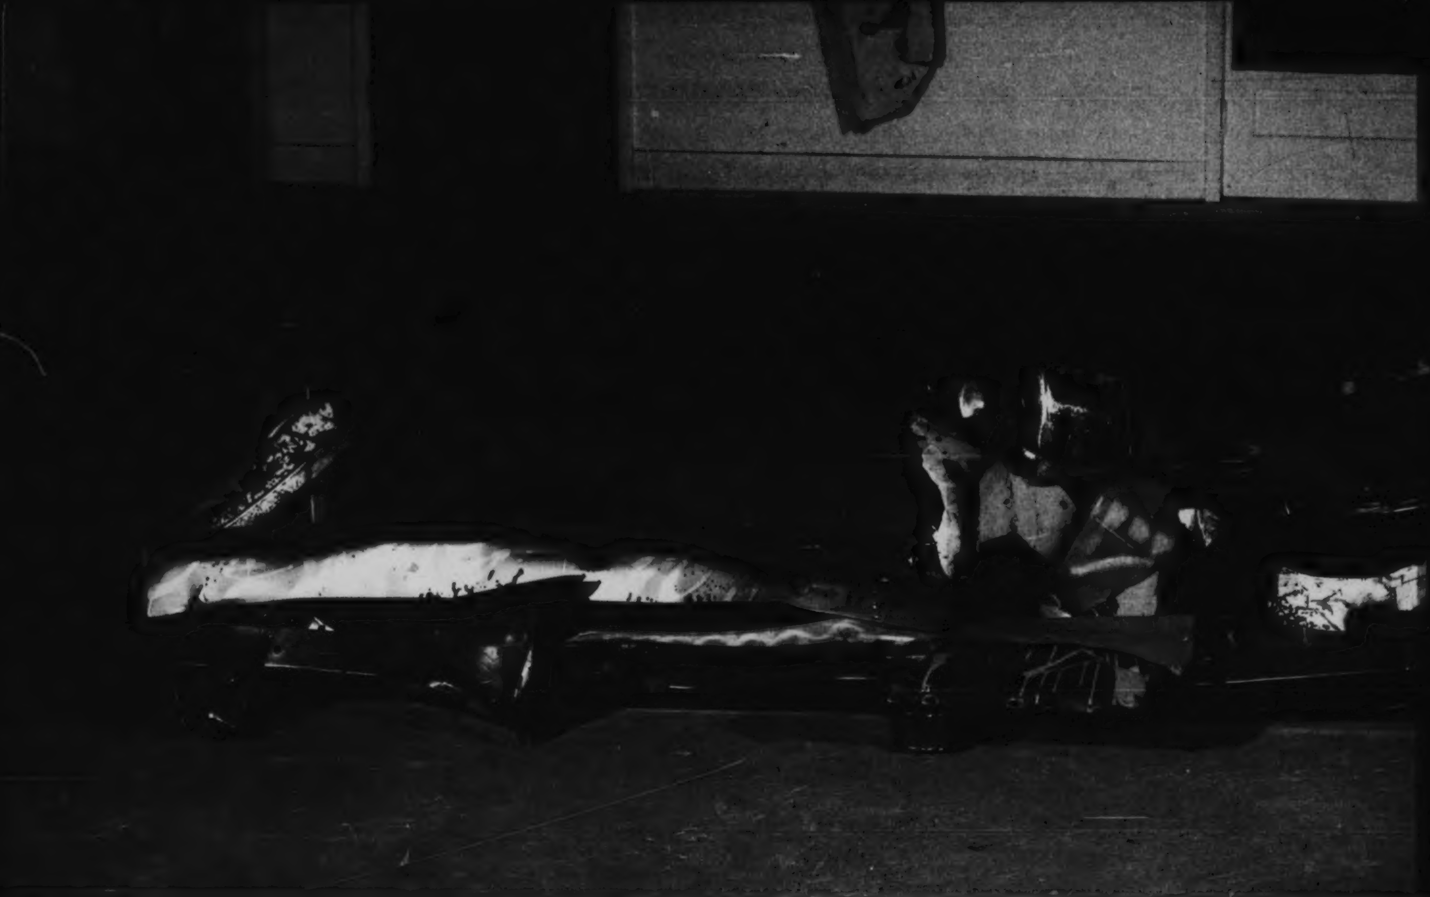
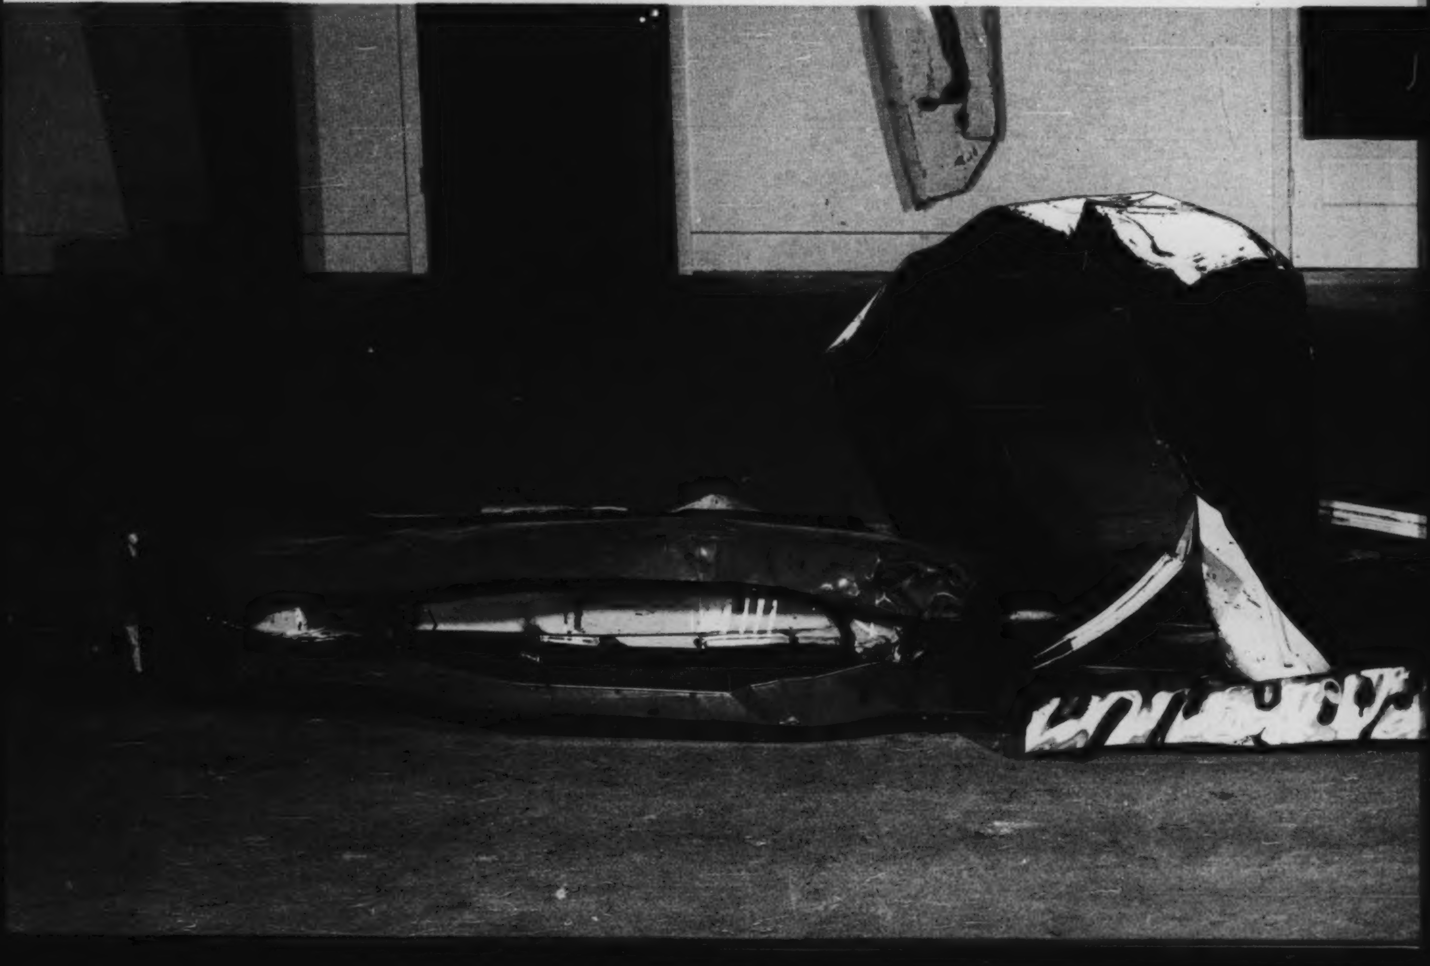
VOL
7
1
ISS
1 0
N O
1983
UMI



Gondola Charles Olson (two views), 1982, painted and chromium plated steel, 205 by 47 by 45 inches. Courtesy Fourcade Gallery, New York.



VOL 71 ISS 10 NO 1983 UMI

Fiddling Fiddler, 1981, painted steel, 204 by 33 ½ by 45 inches. © Dia Art Foundation, on exhibition at Chamberlain Gardens, Essex, Conn.

From this point of view the automobile as material is bound to have a certain resonance. The romance of the car may seem today a silly canard of mechanization, but anyone who has ever rolled over in a Volkswagen knows the thrill of collision, the stupefied alertness, the rather irrelevant taste of imminent death. And, of course, the eerie imprint of this moment's very special emotions on the mutilated automobile's physical hull. It's true that "how it got that way" is deemphasized in Chamberlain's sculpture by the arrangement of discrete parts, but the role of temporality in this work is stamped right on the surface. The impact trace condenses time into a violent epiphany instead of dilating it into narrative and metaphor.

Chamberlain often discusses his activity in terms of "irregular set." This feels like another way of saying he proceeds on intuition rather than calculation, for instance in switching to new materials. But it also accounts for the intermittent way his work has been integrated into various historicizing moments in recent art history. Chamberlain's concerns have brushed against those of Abstract Expressionism and Pop, etc., in full awareness of what was going on contemporaneously, yet the work always sidesteps anything like complete identification with a school, a movement. Indeed, the self-containment imposed by Chamberlain's unwieldy materials recalls that of obsessed mavericks like Clarence Schmidt and Simon Rodia—artists uniquely beyond the reach of quantifying polemics.

"Irregular set" also refers to private systems of meaning that Chamberlain evolves as working motives for certain pieces, which their impenetrable titles sometimes allude to. Thus a particular form at a particular moment, impelled by a private image not suggested by the form itself. Working on the vibrantly fitted steel slashes of the relief Essex, for example, Chamberlain had the idea of a small water fountain ("a dribbler"). The general impetus of the work is consciously sexual, not just in the snug interlocking of parts, but in the repetition of certain allusions, the deployment of unusually (and somewhat inexplicably) libidinal objects. The emphasis of certain elements throughout a sequence of works will stress, say, the erotic lure of crushed door panels, radiator grilles, impacted rear-end assemblies. (Surprisingly, Chamberlain never seems to use that most castratingly suggestive remnant of highway carnage, broken glass.) Consider the eroticism of the massive foam couches: vast, brooding, carnal invitations designed for one thing and one thing only.

Chamberlain's applied color is confectionary; hugged and wadded into writhing fit with scarred, pitted and peeling industrial color, it suggests demonic surrender to a horny, twisted technology. The work lays claim to certain materials with a lover's ferocity. Chamberlain has virtually colonized chrome bumpers as an art material, and has recently celebrated their individual expressiveness in Memorial to Lost Souls at Sea. This work, installed permanently in Essex, Conn., consists of two galvanized aluminum troughs, almost identical blunt-cornered oval bins filled with glistening bumpers and covered with flat glass lids. The troughs' inner walls are a delicate blue-green, suffused with rippling sea-bottom light as the sun snaggles and coils along the polished chrome. This is an elegiac piece. These bumpers look like vanquished denizens of some fatally metallic civilization. At the same time, in their absurd innocence and incongruity, they evoke the polymorphic sensuality of childhood and seawater.

Memorial to Lost Souls at Sea, 1980–81, galvanized steel troughs, chromium plated steel, glass, 135 by 70 feet overall. © Dia Art Foundation, New York.

Memorial to Lost Souls is paradigmatic of "irregular set": it bears no structural resemblance to other Chamberlain works, but we recognize it as one immediately. It's interesting to consider the many mutations his work has undergone while supposedly staying the same.

Peteundclit, 1973, painted aluminum foil, 29 ½ by 44 by 43 inches.

VOL 71 ISS 10 NO 1983 UMI

Added Pleasure, 1975–82, painted and chromium plated steel, 108 by 53 by 36 inches. Ringling Museum of Art.

In the metal sculptures, Chamberlain has always been preoccupied with a baroque surface articulation of essentially negative inner space. The definition of volume has invariably included color, not merely to emphasize edge and contour nuances but as an integral, often dominant aspect of overall composition. This is as true of an aluminum-foil egg form like Peteundclit as it is of a horrendously complicated freestanding piece such as Toasted Hitlers. It's intriguing to find the same volumetric idea inhabiting the jarringly simple Kiss series of crushed industrial barrels. In each instance, the inference of hollowness reinforces the airy, dancing quality of meandering color and sinuous metal lines.

In freestanding pieces like Wongkong Melong, an acrobatic tension is maintained by theatrically balanced shards of dented and folded-over metal canted into a frozen toppling or lurching movement; another tension proceeds from the juxtaposition of predetermined shapes and tones with ones that have been altered in the studio. A complex inner structure often does suggest itself in the stance of Chamberlain's heavier works, and, in fact, certain tall ones reveal something very like a classical armature. Certain early reliefs, like Trancas, reverse the hollow-core trope, presenting surfaces of smithereens exploding from a flat ground. Others, like Added Pleasure and Hightale, move in descending thicknesses to a tapered base, a little chrome comma or hook. These are so densely compressed that their volumes are assumed to be full.

Chamberlain's applied color, wadded into writhing fit with peeling industrial color, suggests demonic surrender to a horny, twisted technology.

Some of the visual geometries that occur in the reliefs anticipate Chamberlain's most recent and in many ways most appealing works. In the narrow slatting draped against the edges of solid-piece monochrome slabs (Patino Nuevo, Maude's Dream), a horizontal idea is pitched on its side and hangs weight-defying in space.

Broken Toe, 1980–81, painted and chromium plated steel, 117 ½ by 87 ½ by 20 ½ inches. © Dia Art Foundation.

The new gondola pieces hug the ground felicitously, exemplars of untroubled, slithery movements—instead of the visual drift of collision, the gondolas resemble some decimated technological circus shunting along on trestles or gliding across peaceful canals. The gondola bases are overlapped, shallow shields for truck axles; varicolored strips of metal are draped and perched along their surfaces and prodded into the gaps between them. Some of the vertical structures poking up from the smaller projections distantly suggest sails, or scaffolding; a piece like Faint Paint recalls the delicate linear composition of Giacometti's The Palace at 4 a.m. I would be the last person to impute anything like serenity to an artist as patently allergic to it as John is; let's just say that the same set works for the gondolas that worked for the couches. And that the gondolas would definitely hurt more if they fell on your foot.

Other recent works seem to conglomerate problems that arose in the Kiss #12, 1979, painted steel, 30 by 31 by 27 inches.

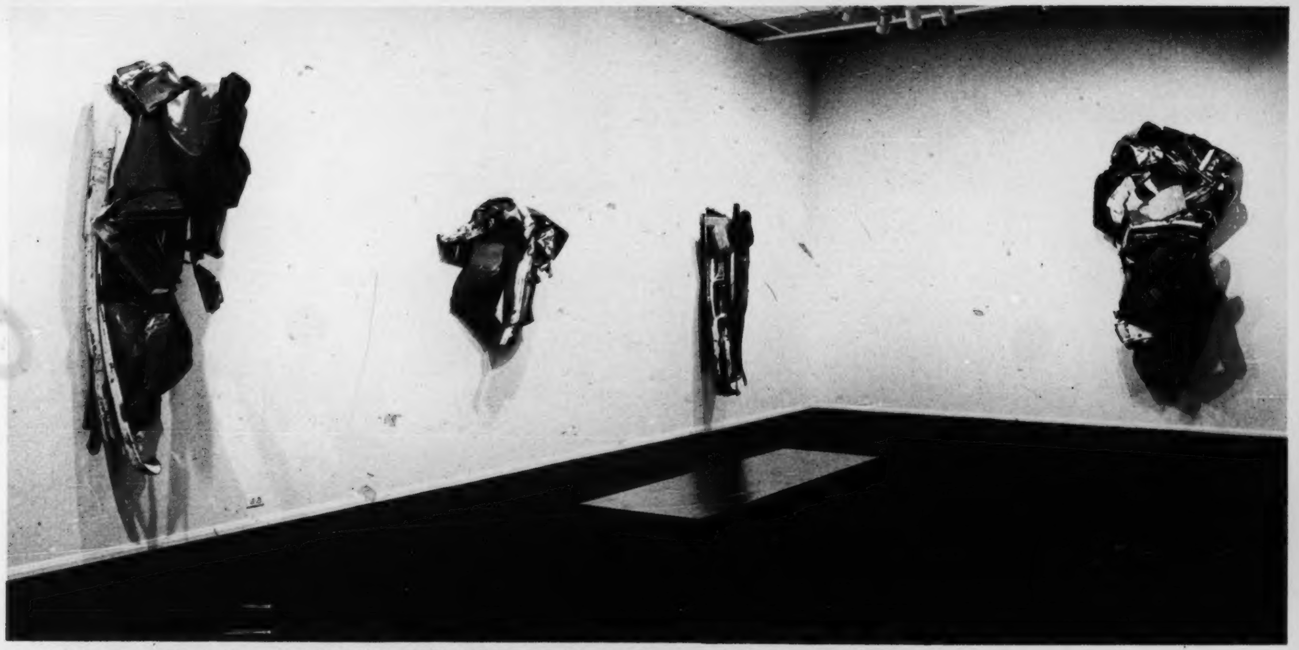
© Dia Art Foundation, on loan from a private collection.

VOL
7
1
ISS
1 0
NO
1983
UMI



Installation view of "John Chamberlain Reliefs 1960–1982," at the Ringling Museum of Art, Jan.-Mar. 1983: From left to right,* Hightale, 1978, Tropical Hot Dog Night, 1981, Paddy's Limbo, 1976–77, and Added Pleasure, *1975–82.

first car pieces and found their penultimate resolution in the GSA-commissioned Detroit Deliquescence: how to get all this rebarbative and weirdly curved, buckled and bent material to stand up; how to accommodate a succession of views, all of them radically different in emphasis, while retaining the feeling of a unified, totalized process. Deliquescence is enormous, and rather singlemindedly concerned with balance; the pieces that follow it, however, are like most Chamberlains: scaled to what the body receives as not much larger nor much smaller than itself. In works like Grandma's Hat, Vandam Billy and Stoneyknob, we see again, crystallized, the force of nature Chamberlain's talent wants to be, and the didactic character of this strangely pure ambition.

I can think of only one contemporary artist who strongly resembles Chamberlain in a specific way, who has given breath to the same omnivorous sexual sense of technology and its alienated, inhuman productions. He is not a visual artist but a writer, the British novelist J.G. Ballard. In Ballard's novels, a single element in the swarming mosaic of life suddenly mutates into an agent of apocalyptic catastrophe, either individual or global. As the thing takes root in the minds of Ballard's characters, it begins to draw all available frames of reference to itself and becomes the virtual locus of all metaphorical thinking and perceptual analogy. In The Drowned World, the polar ice caps melt and the world becomes slowly submerged. In The Drought, all the water in the world dries up. In The Wind from Nowhere, cyclone-force winds begin blowing all over the surface of the world. In each case a marginal group of survivors endures the ongoing catastrophe, entering a new form of normative thinking which Ballard gradually reveals to be collective desublimation, a return to primitive consciousness, the reinvestment of organically occurring forms (mutant birds, monstrous vegetation) with totemic sexual energy. In every Ballard novel, a radical transmutation of some familiar entity is assumed at the outset. The drama hinges on the articulation of the metamorphosis through various preextant structures (social, architectural, geographic). In his loving descriptions of sunken world capitals and demolished ecologies Ballard seizes upon the terrible beauty of destruction that recommends itself to a totally disposable culture.

Not surprisingly, Ballard has eroticized the car smashup. In a sinister yet hilarious novel called Crash, a narrator named J.G. Ballard becomes party to the sexual manias of a "reporter" named Vaughan who dreams of dying in a front-end collision with Elizabeth Taylor's limousine. Most of Crash adoringly describes Vaughan's myriad rehearsals for this event. The following passage, I think, reads like a window into the unconscious rage the mechanized mind is powered on, the subtext art like John Chamberlain's renders explicit:

> Vaughan dreamed endlessly of the deaths of the famous, inventing imaginary crashes for them. Around the deaths of James Dean and Albert Camus, Jayne Mansfield and John Kennedy he had woven elaborate fantasies. His imagination was a target gallery of screen actresses, politicians, business tycoons and television executives. Vaughan followed them everywhere with his camera, zoom lens watching from the observation platform of the Oceanic Terminal at the airport, from hotel mezzanine balconies and studio carparks. For each of them Vaughan devised an optimum auto-death. . . .
>
> [Finally] . . . I knew that Vaughan had retired . . . into his own skull. In this overlit realm ruled by violence and technology he was now driving for ever at a hundred miles an hour along an empty motorway, past deserted filling stations on the edges of wide fields, waiting for a single oncoming car. In his mind Vaughan saw the whole world dying in a simultaneous automobile disaster, millions of vehicles hurled together in a terminal congress of spurting loins and engine coolant. ☐

Author: Gary Indiana will soon be seen in the role of Dr. Mabuse's assistant in Ulrike Ottinger's film* Dorian Gray as Viewed in the Boulevard Press.

STRAIGHT TALK

ArtScan is the first international telecommunications network, geared exactly to the world of fine art. We are not a computer company trying to sell hardware while promising software. In fact, when you subscribe to ArtScan, a terminal is provided free.

ArtScan will give you the following services, all updated instantaneously and designed to save you weeks of research:

① ArtScan—just type an artist's name and receive a complete listing of his or her recent and past international auction sales.

② Fastfinder—instantaneously and automatically you can access or add to an international inventory of artwork available for purchase, sale, loan, exhibition or research.

③ Mail Box—communicate with other members of the ArtScan international network instantly! Send and receive general broadcasts and personalized messages.

④ Stolen Works—no longer should the buyer beware. Access this data base and receive immediate worldwide listings of stolen art work.

⑤ Calendar—at the push of a button, scan a directory listing upcoming auctions and consignment deadlines, gallery openings, sales, exhibitions, publications, etc.

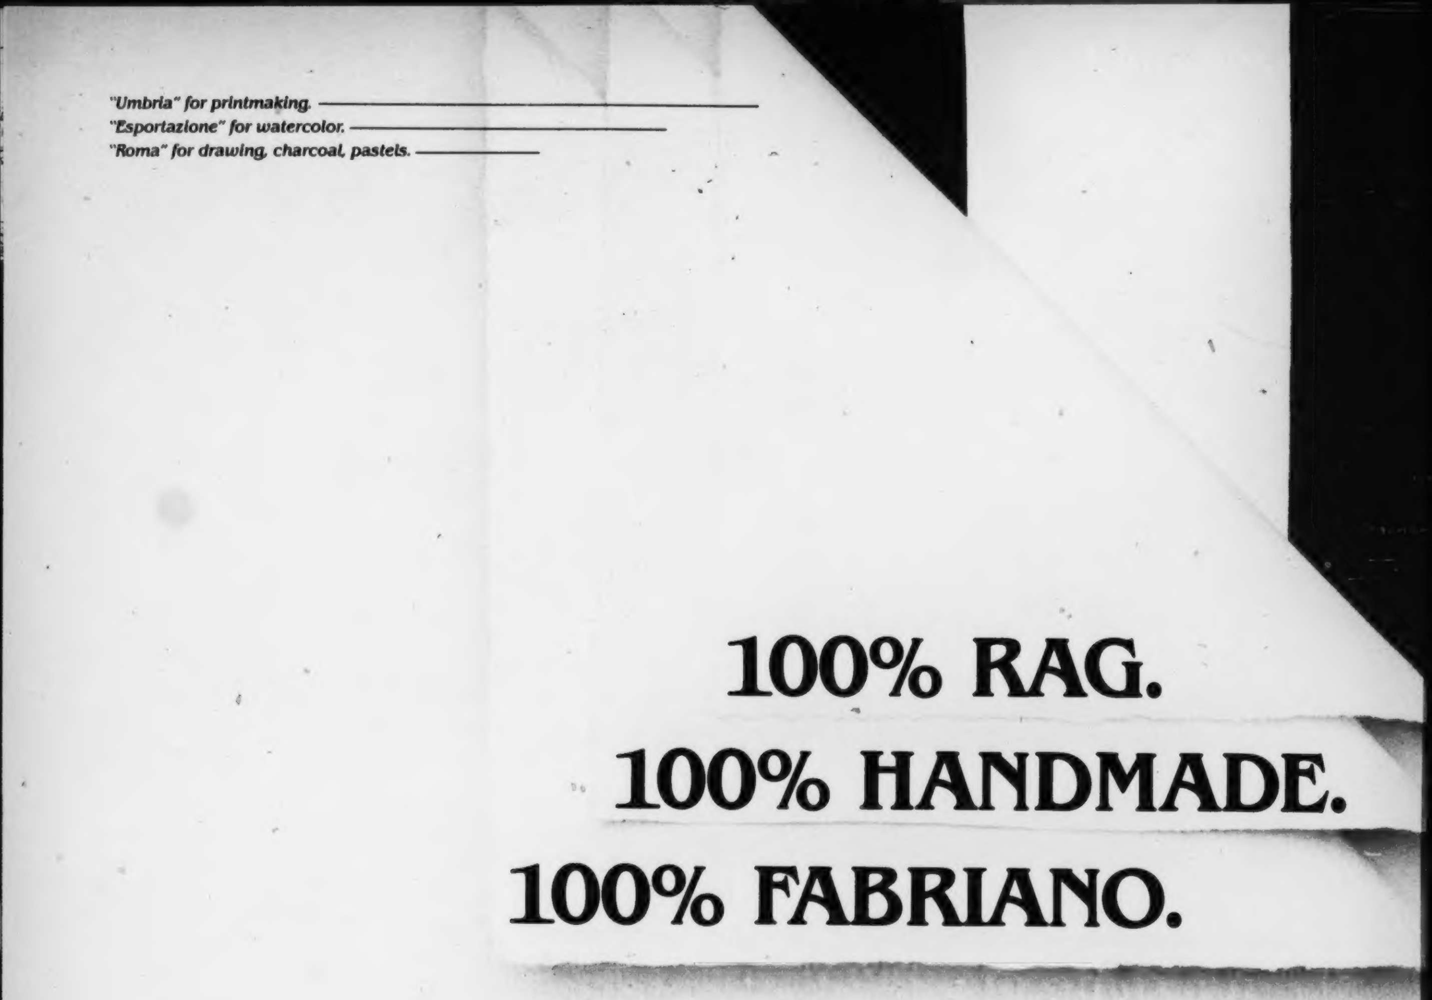
⑥ ArtControl—select this service for all your inventory control and accounting needs. Unique security features insure your total confidentiality.

Want to know more? We invite your inquiry and promise you straight talk.

ARTSCAN

The International Communications Network for the Art World
1013 Madison Avenue, New York, NY 10021
Telephone toll-free New York State: 1-800-351-1300
Toll-free outside of New York State: 1-800-742-5500

VOL
7
1
ISS
1 0
N O
1983
UMI



"Umbria" for printmaking.
"Esportazione" for watercolor.
"Roma" for drawing, charcoal, pastels.
100% RAG.
100% HANDMADE.
100% FABRIANO.

You are looking at the world's finest art papers. Still made today exactly as they were for Michelangelo and Dürer. By hand, one sheet at a time.

These are the incomparable papers of Fabriano. A product of 700 years of pride, tradition, and craftsmanship.

Today, the Fabriano mill in Italy is the only major mill in the world still producing exquisite handmade papers. And Grumbacher is proud to offer these papers in North America.

Fabriano handmade papers are distinguished by four deckled edges, 100% rag content, exceptional strength, and a richly textured surface that enhances the artist's spontaneity. And their neutral pH assures they will stand the test of time without yellowing.

Grumbacher also offers Fabriano mould-made papers for watercolor, drawing, printmaking, and etching; now available at better artists' materials stores.

When you cannot compromise with quality...when you need papers that will show your work at its best now and for generations to come...insist on Fabriano from Grumbacher.

Fabriano...artistry in paper.

FABRIANO IMPORTED PAPERS FROM GRUMBACHER

Ask your local artists' material dealers for these products, or write:
M. GRUMBACHER, INC. 460 West 34th Street, New York, N.Y. 10001. In Canada: M. GRUMBACHER (CANADA) Inc. 460 Finchdene Square, Scarborough Ontario M1X 1C4

Review of Exhibitions

NEW YORK

David Park at Salander O'Reilly

This is an interesting moment for David Park's vigorous figurative paintings to be traveling to New York from California, where they've enjoyed a considerable reputation for 30 years. An Abstract Expressionist who returned to representation while keeping a powerful, brushy attack, Park was the progenitor of the Bay Area figurative painters, a group that included Richard Diebenkorn, Elmer Bischoff and Paul Wonner. His work has been anticipated here, by those who know it, for the fresh light it might cast on today's figurative expressionists in general and the bold, brushy Germans in particular. The differences turn out to be greater than the similarities.

An important distinction must be claimed for the time and locale of these paintings. Park died of cancer in 1960 at the age of 49, and his most important paintings were completed in the last decade of his life on the other side of the continent from the ferment and pressures of the art scene in New York. Consequently, there's an entirely different spirit to the work. His figures are less symbolic and confrontational than, for instance, de Kooning's or Lester Johnson's. Park's people seem detached, a little preoccupied. They move in the real world, bathed in that edifying California light, and are engaged in various "timeless" activities—bathing, sitting, playing physical games. The subjects of these paintings could have been addressed in almost any epoch.

David Park: Bathers on the Beach, 1956, oil on canvas, 55 ¼ by 59 ½ inches; at Salander O'Reilly.

When Michael Brenson of the Times declared that Park's paintings must be compared with the best of expressionism and then proceeded to knock them for Park's failure to "shoot the works" (de Kooning's phrase), he was missing the point. Park is finally less an expressionist than a classicist, closer to Matisse than Beckmann. He brought Abstract-Expressionist techniques to the figure in order to achieve a new naturalism (only Diebenkorn's magnificently banal women of the same years slouch as effectively as Park's models) while activating the entire picture plane. His small elemental still lifes are glowing examples of his efforts to bend a big-brush attack into an effective and graceful representational shorthand. A clue to the psychological gulf between Park and most expressionist artists can be gleaned from the subjects of these still lifes: a hammer, a coffee cup, lemons on a table—his is the blunt language of utilitarian objects, virtuously taciturn yet relaxed.

If his brushy style seems to resonate with the work of some of the German Neo-Expressionists, it's more of a red herring than anything else. Still, I'm struck by what a fundamentally better painter Park is than Hödicke or Salome (two German painters of the figure who come quickly to mind). Both Germans, intent on getting the image out, are so great at designing a painting that their consistent failure to develop one is a crashing disappointment. Possessing a reticent and contemplative esthetic and the clear vision of an outsider, Park was inclined to work and rework a painting until it sang. He was able to absorb the pertinent lessons of the best painting of his time and put them to work for his own benign and coolly observant temperament. The lesson to be gained from his work, for so many of today's expressionists, is to exercise the self-discipline to paint fewer pictures and spend more time on them. —Stephen Westfall

Bill Woodrow at Barbara Gladstone

This was Bill Woodrow's first New York exhibition, and it was entirely comprised of works executed here in the city during a nine-week burst of concentrated activity. Generally speaking, they continue in the vein for which he is increasingly celebrated in Europe and his native England: from "raw" materials like discarded household appliances and automobile parts he fashions new objects or creatures of a completely different nature—a communications satellite from a washing machine, for example, or a lizard from the plastic trim on a camera. In the cutting and shaping the identity of the original is never lost, so a dialogue ensues between it and its offspring.

Working in New York modified Woodrow's procedures little, although he was forced to purchase his raw materials rather than scavenge in the street as he does in London. The predominance of automobile scrap, together with vernacular allusions, attests to his practice of working closely with his immediate environment, both mental and physical. What is, perhaps, different is the more forthright, even aggressive mood. His characteristic black humor has become less dry, more assertively challenging and mocking. In Tattoo, for example, a panther attacks the meaty haunch of yellow

VOL
7
1
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI

Juan Hamilton: Curve and Shadow #1, Untitled, Disc, Untitled, Curve and Shadow #2, 1983; at Robert Miller.

cab with exuberant ferocity, though the trail of debris that results seems ironically to be made of the same substance as the predator. In Microphone and Fish an ominous black washing machine spawns a tiny blue fish, helpless and pathetic in proximity to its progenitor, and a microphone, an expectant witness.

In this show, the refabricated offspring belong to two main realms: the natural and the esthetic. As Cello/Chicken (in which two car doors sire a fowl and a musical instrument) demonstrates, the new generation never fully usurps the authority of the old, never attains quite the same level of reality. Those sturdy industrially fabricated forms, however battered, remain more substantial, more palpable and thus more powerful—if power is gauged by physical authority–than the newly forged objects. In place of easy metamorphosis, Woodrow offers us the spectacle of a violent birth, something akin to a caesarean. But having been literally cut from the substance of the parent, these progeny often remain linked by an umbilical cord, as if incapable of an independent existence. Whether of the natural or the artistic world, they are appendages to a different order, primary by definition. There is no question which is the generative realm, which the dependent.

Siah Armajani: Fireplace Mantel with Mirror, 1982-1983, painted wood and mirror surface, 79 ½ by 25 ¾ inches; at Max Protetch.

Such themes are, nevertheless, subsumed by the more encompassing one of mortality, which runs through Woodrow's oeuvre in many guises. The variety of imaginative transformations it undergoes is sustained by the artist's remarkable mimetic resourcefulness. Tattoo is again typical in this respect; the dexterity, elegance and economy Woodrow exhibits in his handling of the materials impart great animation and presence to the beast as it ravages its parent material. This skill, as much as the timbre of his wit, distinguishes Woodrow's work from that of his many followers. Neither surrealistic nor comic, at once beguiling and insidious, this humor ultimately serves as a mask. Woodrow's pessimism, sometimes cynical, mostly fatalistic, is rarely glib or blithely won.

—Lynne Cooke

Juan Hamilton at Robert Miller

Juan Hamilton's lacquered bronzes and ceramics are very odd. There's something closed off and unreachable about his simple forms. They have the mysterious self-possession of tantric symbols and Hindu lingams. A quiet, contemplative air hangs about them, but the longer you look the more they seem to ripple with energy.

The remote quality in Hamilton's work may spring, at least partially, from his own removal from a major urban art center. He lives in northern New Mexico, literally next door to Georgia O'Keeffe, to whom he's been a friend and helper for many years. This part of the country seems to attract individualistic artists whose work runs to light-filled abstraction. Agnes Martin and Larry Bell are other residents in the area. But Hamilton's work appears to draw less from the overwhelming landscape and light of his surroundings than from an indigenous product—the burnished black pottery of the Pueblo Indians. This isn't to say that nature doesn't play an important part in the work. The distinctive fluidity of Hamilton's sculpture suggests the shaping forces of wind and water. This is particularly true of a chest-high, slightly sagging ring that stood on end in the smaller of the gallery's two rooms. The work in the larger room looked as if it was fashioned from some particularly heavy fluid—hot, glistening tar, perhaps. These pieces were installed in a manner that deemphasized their individual characteristics, putting them to work in a tableau format. Each end of the room was dominated by two large arched forms casting curved shadows under carefully angled lighting. Three smaller, bloblike pieces were artfully positioned as well. The entire effect was akin to a zen rock-garden.

The cool serenity of Hamilton's work is especially distinctive right now, when a resurgence of vigorous expressionism is claiming so much attention. Yet his pieces pack a visceral punch of their own, due to their roughly human scale (even the smaller pieces are massively proportioned), and their expressiveness is intensified by their subtle animation.

—Stephen Westfall

Siah Armajani at Max Protetch

Siah Armajani, an adoptive Mid-Westerner, makes sculpture that suggests American vernacular architecture. His structures, curiously compounded of the thoroughly familiar and the eccentric, tread a tightrope between practicality and art-for-art's-sake esthetics, between prose and poetry, between object and environment. Although he is best known for his Bill Woodrow: Tattoo, 1983, car door, car fender, cloth, 42 by 59 by 95 inches; at Barbara Gladstone.

Sylvia Plimack Mangold: The Long Blue Stroke, 1982-83, oil on canvas, 60 by 120 inches; at Brooke Alexander (review on page 229).

full-sized "rooms" and shedlike structures, Armajani devoted his most recent show to several more intimately scaled constructions. These works veer away from environmental concerns, suggesting instead some improbable combination of Popular Mechanics do-it-yourself projects and the furniture designs of postmodern architects like Michael Graves.

Words are either alluded to or quite literally applied to three of these sculptures. Library Steps is a large arrangement of triangles (both positive and negative). Set into a notch in the uppermost triangle or chevron is an open book, reduced by its placement above eye level to an anonymity that leads us to read it as a symbol of books in general. On either side, at above elbow height, two shelves are formed by the top of another triangle. One shelf is empty, the other occupied by Webster's Third International Dictionary, open, when I examined it, to the heading "dogs." The sides of the base are lined with a series of shelves diminishing in size. Just as in his series of Reading Room environments, Armajani has streamlined what is usually thought of as a complex, multipartite spatial experience, here turning a library and/or the steps that allow access to the books into an iconic structure holding but two volumes.

Armajani's preoccupation with the written word receives a more literal treatment in two works based on the familiar form of the fireplace mantel: taking a cue from Robert Indiana, he emblazons both sculptures with quotations from the works of American writers. Fireplace Mantel with a Window, for instance, is a boxy, pleated structure divided in two like a set of Dutch doors. The lower opening is blocked by a door partially opened inwards and equipped in the middle with an extra set of hinges. Above, two walls pierced by an elliptical opening—the "window"—meet to form a receding corner that leaves the viewer peering into a wedge-shaped space. Above, and flush with the front of the work, a lintel bears the words, "LEAVE THE HOUSE DOOR." This quotation from Herman Melville is continued on the work's four other lintels. Their placement makes it impossible to ever read the passage in its original order. One sequence yields the following: "LEAVE THE HOUSE DOOR/LEARNED TO LIT/UNTIL THEY HAD LIT/THE LAMP INSIDE/WIDE UNTIL." With a typically literal-minded expressiveness, Armajani uses the structure's pleating and lantern-like opening to evoke the action and mood of the words.

The Fireplace Mantel with Mirror finds an even more explicit parity between words and structure. A mirror-lined oculus deep enough to suggest a tube joins the simple post-and-lintel base of the mantel with a triangular pediment. Inscribed around the edge of the oculus in yellow letters (the rest of the sculpture is green) is a quotation from Robert Frost, "THE DIVER SUN SLOW DIVED FROM NOON GOES DOWN." The semicircular arrangement of the words mimics the rising and falling of the sun as described in the poetry fragment. At the same time, the conjunction of pediment/oculus and base suggests the new uses to which postmodern architecture is currently putting the classical past; this reference is strengthened by the use of color, which is accorded renewed importance by the postmodernists.

Other sculptures, such as Window in Window and Door in Window #2, condense two different architectural elements into one object, rendering them in the process more like fantasy drawings than architecture. The brightly colored Garden Gate also collapses deep space into a shallow compartment, but here Armajani succeeds in evoking not only the sense of pleasure normally associated with a garden and its gate, but also a richly felt sense of mystery: the small gate and its vestibule lead nowhere.

Armajani's use of language is the most startling aspect of his sculpture. Words serve almost like Zen koans to challenge the conventions of architecture and sculpture, adding a much needed effervescence to Armajani's otherwise solemn constructions.

—Ann-Sargent Wooster

Stanley Spencer at CDS

In the century of Mondrian and Picasso, Kandinsky and Matisse, Stanley Spencer—who worked in England from the teens on and died in 1959—was that rara avis, a Christian visionary, with almost as strong a sense of religion and as strong a hope for the Second Coming as his fellow countryman, John Bunyan. This exhibition, part of last spring's "Britain Salutes New York," was devoted to Spencer's most visionary—and never materialized—project, the scheme he called his Church House, which was to be, as the name implies, part dwelling place, part church, decked out gloriously with artwork. The show included drawings from his early years—the Times' John Russell hung his hopes on a very early self-portrait to make a case for Spencer's being not really a visionary, but a master of objective realism"—and more importantly (despite Russell's assessment) large oils, which, Spencer was chagrined to report, never made their way into the Church House because he was forced to sell them as soon as

VOL 7 1
ISS 1 0
NO 1983
UMI

he finished painting them.

Spencer's canvases from the '20s and '30s may give us just as much trouble as they did the viewers of his own day, if for different reasons. This was not the work of some neglected modernist master. In fact, Spencer was rather the Thomas Hart Benton of British painting, as attest his barrellike, elongated or otherwise distorted humans, and his decoratively surfaced grounds and backgrounds. Then there's the Christianity of it all—during the two World Wars, how did an artist manage to keep alive a faith in a God that Nietzsche and Marx had all but obliterated, and Hitler made a mockery of?

Francis Barth: Kyoto, 1982, acrylic on canvas, 5 feet 10 inches by 12 feet 1 inch; at Susan Caldwell.

Stanley Spencer: The Baptism, 1952, oil on canvas, 30 by 50 inches; at CDS Gallery.

Nell Blaine: Table with Flowers and Yellow Bird, 1981, oil on canvas, 28 by 32 inches; at Fischbach.

The answer probably lies in Spencer's innate provincialism, his lifetime adherence to the values instilled in him as a youth in the little town of Cookham on the Thames, with a belief in free love and universal peace and harmony thrown in for good modern measure. How else paint a Mannerist Crucifixion in 1918, after his return from service in Macedonia, based on the Macedonian landscape, featuring weeping Virgin, head-wagging priests, burly centurion, and Christ and the two thieves brutally arrayed against the sky? So strong was Spencer's faith—or his imagination—that he was able to incorporate three angels into a 1933 scene of himself Separating Fighting Swans, with soon-to-be wife Patricia Preese looking on. Art historian Roger Took, who curated the show, notes that the angels "watch from nearby as if to bless Stanley's heroism and hallow the place."

Along with Spencer's Christianity came a love of the life of Christian labor, so that we have several Domestic Scenes, including one of Christmas in the overcrowded bedroom of Stanley and siblings, and The Woolshop, depicting Stanley and his friend, a married woman named Daphne Charlton, choosing wool in a store (this was to hang in the "Daphne Memorial Chapel" in the Church House!).

It all borders dangerously on farce—at which the English are, intentionally or unintentionally, so good—until we reach the paintings of the '40s and '50s, in which Spencer's Christianity comes on full-blown, and the self-consciousness that marred the earlier works drops away to be replaced by a real visionary conviction. The Baptism from 1952 still features modern figures—boys and girls in their bathing suits—and it's located in a real pool at Odney Weir, Cookham, but Spencer isn't fooling around this time: portrait of a sternly loving John the Baptist pouring water over a lean, leonine Christ is haunting.

The masterpiece of the Church House series is The Resurrection: The Hill of Zion from ca. 1946. Here, Spencer's vision of human emancipation is completely realized, as Christ sits at the top of a lilac-strewn hill directing the event: angels trumpet and record, a disciple sits at Christ's feet, a prophet surveys the countryside, children walk into the scene from the left, praising God; to the right, men and women climb out of their graves and approach the hill. Where earlier the theme had been heaven on earth, Spencer in his late maturity seems to have realized that heaven can only be in heaven, as worldly as that heaven may be. The Christian drama may give today's viewers trouble, but Spencer's skill and prophecy are such that he metamorphoses, in these later paintings, from the English Thomas Hart Benton to a modern Raphael. Christian art in the 20th century? Seeing it, at least, was a rare privilege.

—Gerrit Henry

Frances Barth at Susan Caldwell

Frances Barth has taken a deliberate step towards the figurative in her new paintings. Color and movement were the focus in her earlier works; illusionist space was all but eliminated in the interplay of flat, oblong shapes that tumbled and danced their way horizontally across the canvases, parallel to the picture plane. In several of her new compositions, the artist has created a deeper, decidedly illusionist space, inhabited by geometric and architectural forms that have an unmistakably solid, volumetric quality. In most of the new paintings, there is also an attempt to create richer, softer-looking colors, using very fully saturated hues with a velvety quality. These replace the scratchy-looking color fields of her older works, into which small linear bits often introduced additional colors.

Barth's new style is most evident in Seventh New Year (1983), in which she paints a pyramid and other solid forms that clearly cast shadows on curving, rolling checkerboard color fields. There are lozenge forms flying in space. This painting displays an awkwardness or uncertainty of intention, as if Barth were feeling her way into what for her is new territory. This painting depicts nothing less than a geometric landscape. There is a ground on which the forms rest, and a sky through which others fly. This composition is the most radical departure from her earlier nonreferential ones. Other compositions, most notably Shadow Casting (1982) and Peru (1983), combined old and new elements; usually the oblong and puzzle-piece shapes are joined by a few "solid" geometric forms, that together create sharp dimensional contrasts.

Kyoto (1982) is rendered in Barth's earlier style. Jagged and jigsaw shapes, quite flat and quite parallel to the surface, only hint at a shallow depth change where the pastel color areas border the many black shapes. In this work, Barth achieves a new richness and depth of color, including blacks that look like velours. There is also a great deal of linear work in Kyoto. Some of the individual shapes are patterned with stripes formed by a dry-scumbled working of under- and over-colors with a drawn, crayonlike appearance. This technique is most effective when used to outline the shapes. The more spontaneous look achieved by the scumbling adds a sprightliness to an already playful movement of forms.

Several of Barth's canvases were grouped to form screens. Shuttle Screen (1982-83) works in the manner of her best older paintings, with a flow of form and color that is light and painterly. The other screen, Spinners Dream (1982), is dark and murky, simply not one of her better paintings and not interesting as a screen. Here, a gray-brown palette deprives the shapes of the light-dark interplay they need to interact spatially and to create a dynamic flow across the canvases. The physical divisions of the screen seem arbitrary as well—the composition does not seem to relate to them. In Shuttle Screen, on the other hand, the placement and movement of the forms are enhanced by the physical breaks between panels.

Barth's new foray into illusionist space represents one of her greatest stylistic leaps between shows since she started exhibiting at Caldwell in 1974. For the most part, her almost annual shows have displayed quiet changes in color, shape and line that did not alter her basic approach. This latest exhibition suggests that she may be thinking about a jump in an entirely new direction. —Ellen Lubell

Frank Bowling: Scottseyetooth, 1982, mixed mediums on canvas, 68 ½ by 53 ⅜ inches; at Tibor de Nagy (review on p. 229).

David Shapiro: Subtle Body #59, 1983, acrylic on canvas, 34 by 72 inches; at Vanderwou de Tananbaum and Getler Pall.

Nell Blaine at Fischbach

That Nell Blaine is a Painterly Realist more or less goes without saying. That she is a distinctly different Painterly Realist than her peers in the field—Jane Freilicher or Robert Dash or Wolf Kahn—may take some explaining.

All the American Painterly Realists owe a debt to the French modern style—as H. H. Arnason puts it, the tradition that runs "from impressionism through fauvism and cubism" through to the School of Paris—but none quite so honestly as Blaine. This was most apparent (in her recent show) in such off-the-cuff watercolors as Sunlight, Abandoned Boat. Here, one of the main differences between Blaine and her contemporaries is evident: brushstroke is not gesture, but pure color—the intensely casual delineation of reality rather than any interpretation of it. Here, too, Blaine's love of jazz is exemplified: the brush lays down so many riffs on the subject at hand, depicting a boat basin with boat in foreground and another boat, presumably the abandoned one, in the middle ground; purple and green shore and hazy blue skies constitute the background.

The Fauves are a major influence, although Blaine's color is not quite as primal as theirs. Indeed, her colors are more generally the "hot" but somehow mellow tones of two artists she must have an earnest admiration for, Bonnard and Vuillard. Table with Flowers and Yellow Bird is an excellent case in point: bouquets of flowers and an open book offset a breakfast scene—juice in glasses to the left, cup of coffee and spoon and creamer to the right, and, the impossible cap to the whole affair, a cheery canary sitting on a bread basket. All this is executed in warm tones of red and blue and ocher, with a wonderful deep lime green ledge just beyond the table. Blaine has infinite respect for what she sees around her in the domestic scene: it's something like Colette's concept of an earthly paradise, with a little painterly Transcendentalism abounding for good American measure.

But French artistic materialism isn't really that far a cry from American cultural spiritualism; Blaine throws them together, and comes up with a worshipful, but very down-to-earth, Double Rubrum, two of the pinkish, lilylike flowers in a glass vase against a blue wall and what seems to be a window, in lavender. What might be an occasion for meditative wit in Freilicher or a study in atmosphere for Dash is, in Blaine's hands, nothing less than an affirmation of the still-life mode in the great French line. The picture's delicacy is its strength, its disjunctive, cut-off views its harmony. These are rubrum that grow best in hearty painterly soil.

For all her Frenchification, though, Blaine is obviously still an American artist painting in the late 20th century. That she has kept her painterly vision intact for nigh onto 40 years, since her first exhibition at the legendary Jane Street Gallery in 1945, is a marvel much to be cherished; that she is as contemporary today as younger artists currently discovering Expressionism as if Francis Bacon had never existed, is most evident in her landscapes.

In a canvas like October's Bright Day, the reconciliation between European and American, between old modern and new modern, proceeds apace before the viewer's very eyes. The painting itself is all purple dunes, with yellow, red, green and even aqua foliage, blue sea, and purple mountains and sky at the horizon. Brushstroke, again, is not so much gesture as touch, but it is touch of a very personal, generous nature; colors, though Fauve in genesis, are distinctively Blaine's, simultaneously timorous and effusive. Blaine's landscapes are landmarks: they point to a vision undimmed by the passing of time and unafraid of the parade of fashion. We have a treasure of an artist here, one who often tends to get lost in the Painterly Realist shuffle, perhaps because of her French connection. But Blaine's outlook is finally universal: her works sing the praises of reality to anyone willing to look. Blaine is a leading light in the School of Paris via New York via earth. —Gerrit Henry

David Shapiro at Vanderwoude Tananbaum and Getler Pall

Since 1971 when he first showed in New York, David Shapiro has explored drawing and painting with equal intensity, evolving a vocabulary of graphic symbols expressive of interior states. Instead of inventing personal signs, however, Shapiro has assimilated into his work geometric forms (triangles, circles, etc.) as well as abstract images (spirals, knotlike shapes, etc.) from various Eastern cultures.

His recent paintings and drawings (shown concurrently at Vanderwoude Tananbaum and Getler Pall, respectively) are from a series titled "Subtle Body." Thinly painted, the monochromatic (often reddish) grounds of the paintings are veil-like, and Shapiro's images seem to float in atmospheric space. This "lacing" of shape and space is delicate, and appears intuitively achieved.

VOL 71 ISS 10 NO 1983 UMI

Friedel Dzubas: Icarus, 1973, acrylic on canvas, 96 by 259 inches; at Hirshhorn Museum. Courtesy Knoedler (review on p. 233).

Shapiro's drawings are also subtle, contemplative: like the paintings, they don't give everything away at once. In some, he has overlaid shape upon shape to create a palimpsest effect. These marks recall diary notations; a sense of intimacy is enhanced by the small scale of the works. Other drawings suggest symbolic diagrams. In these, rather than weave disparate shapes together, Shapiro has aligned a set of five abstract forms in a vertical format. The forms—a knot, a spiral, a circle, a triangle and a square—suggest that Shapiro is seeking here a visual analogy for abstract thought.

Shapiro's philosophical, inventive bent sets him apart from the pattern painters, with whom he might otherwise be associated. He seems, rather, to partake of the tradition of modern mystics that includes Kandinsky and Klee as well as Tobey—a tradition that American painters have never embraced wholeheartedly because it tends to become overly "poetic." Shapiro never succumbs to this tendency—which suggests that he is also part of that more basic tradition of American art, that of the individualist. —John Yau

Troels Wörsel: Orange & Scotch, 1983, acrylic on canvas, diptych, 70 by 117 inches; at Brooke Alexander.

Attilio Salemme: Nostalgia of Purity, 1944, oil on canvas, 33 by 43 inches; at Grace Borgenicht (review on p. 229).

Troels Wörsel at Brooke Alexander

At 33, Danish-born Troels Wörsel seems to have attained some of the status of a contemporary old master. All it took was a big exhibition at Bonn's Städtisches Kunstmuseum, and an article by Donald Kuspit—talking about Wörsel and Franz Hitzler in terms of the apocalypse, light and dark, and masturbatory painterliness—in a recent Arts, and here's Wörsel all over the walls at Brooke Alexander's, an acknowledged entry in today's Neo-Expressionist sweepstakes.

There's only one thing missing—a distinctive style of painting, a style that doesn't need Kuspit's prose to explain it or prop it up. Wörsel works mostly in black and white, and perhaps volumes could be written about how the dark is always in danger of being completely absorbed by the light (wouldn't it be more Expressionist and Faustian the other way around?). But truly, the joy of these paintings—what little joy there is—is Wörsel's slaphappy paint handling, as if he were a very direct descendant of Willem de Kooning. Don't look for a distinctive manner of painting—other than the signature black and white. It isn't there. Wörsel's few bows to figuration involve an actual doorknob in one black-and-white triptych, or the lower part of a woman in dress and shoes painted in black on a canvas divided into red and green areas—and these bows are highly formal. Kuspit says that Wörsel's allover painting is about immanence, but that's like saying rain gets you wet. Practically no content, and a style that owes its all to Abstract Expressionism—what hath Neo-Expressionism wrought?

As the smoke of last season clears away a bit in this one, we may be better able to see who's interesting among the Expressionists and who's not. Wörsel isn't all bad, or unoriginal. His greatest contribution at present is the development of a kind of black-and-white plaid—a grid gone quietly mad with chiaroscuro—in one of his paintings. But a diptych titled Orange and Scotch—the word "orange" in black and gray on orange to the left, the silhouette of a falling Scotch bottle amidst all the black and white to the right—is plain fatuous. Further diptychs and triptychs yield nothing more than dense black and white scribbling, although a small piece called Mirepoix departs from formula long enough to feature a tiny circle at its center, with squarish daubs of paint surrounding it. Otherwise, Wörsel gets a "D" for painting and an "A" for fashion. And an "A+" for his uncanny stereotyping of a style only a few seasons old. —Gerrit Henry

Ariane Lopez-Huici At. P.S. 1

There are two themes in these photographs—the tombstones in an Islamic graveyard in Istanbul, and Jules Cain's 19th-century bronze sculptures of groups of fighting wild animals in the Tuileries. Both are somewhat exotic themes, the first inherently, the other made so by the handling—the close-up pushed to an extreme, so that the features of the statues are exaggerated and take on weird psychological significance, becoming more the signs of inward events than recognizable forms. The exotic implies something unknowable, whether inherently or on cultural grounds. It suggests incongruity, the maladaptive, even the abnormal. It is, at least, "unclear," i.e., not subject to our sense of overall coherence.

Photography usually strives to give us clarity, based on an unexamined sense of the visual coherence of the world—the photographer thinks he or she can harmonize its incongruities, often simply by recording them. But Lopez-Huici, perhaps unwittingly, forces us away from clarity and its emotional "rightness." The irrational viewpoint of the details in her "Animals" series denies us the satisfaction of believing in the existence of visual coherence. This is one way of generating the illusion of mystery, which bespeaks the repressed. Lopez-Huici wants to make the repressed her centerpiece, to feature it but not to expose or dissect it and thereby neutralize its power. She creates a feeling of equivocation and rejects obviousness to attend to what Jung has called the shadow side. She wants to unnerve us, disorient us with a stealthy duplicity, and so she cultivates obscurity without seeming to do so. Her images thus become treacherous, but more authentically so than the recent spate of absurdities in tableau photography.

Her phallic tombstones are double entendres for life-in-death as well as for the livingness of death, and the lettering on them—resembling primitive tattoos on genitals—seems as much a magical emblem of power as an announcement of death. In the "Animals" series she highlights the harsh texture of the sculpture by draping it here and there with soft, silky material. The claws of these beasts, and the cavernous darkness that seems integrated into their bodies, threaten us—though more by reason of their visual ominousness than any perceived potential for action. Underneath the cool and collected air of these photographs there is an unconscious violence at work—the violence of the attempt to reach the unconscious. Is it the Jamesian beast in the jungle that Lopez-Huici is trying to encounter?

—Donald B. Kuspit

Ariane Lopez-Huici: Animalis, 1982, black-and-white photograph; at P.S.1.

Jan Dibbets: Octagon II, 1982, color photographs, watercolor, pastel, pencil, 73 by 72 ½ inches; at Leo Castelli.

Jan Dibbets at Castelli

A quiet subversive, Jan Dibbets takes photographs which, if regarded singly, are naturalistic. Seen as parts of the ensembles in which he orders them, however, they clearly violate the natural order of the scenic view at hand. In the late 1960s, for example, Dibbets photographed the coast of his native Holland, aligned the photos' horizons in a sine wave, and titled this undulating sequence Dutch Mountains.

Dominating his most recent show were large (approximately 73-by-72-inch) collage-drawings: two individual pieces, Octagon I and Octagon II, and a triptych entitled Bianca Octagon. They are nearly identical compositions in watercolor, pastel and pencil on a painted, murky gray ground, empty of incident except for a central, fairly tight semicircle of photographs taken in the courtyard of an 18th-century building in Kassel, Germany. Standing in the courtyard, he aimed the camera up and rotated it to capture, shot by shot, each contiguous section of the architecture.

The actual building is of minor interest relative to the mood it evokes: it closes in on the viewer in a gloomy embrace, and the only imaginative escape is a glimpse of the sky. It is as if the panoramic view often typical of Dibbet's vision had closed in on itself. The mood created by the photographic perspective combines with other formal devices to bring about an abstract consideration of perception. The irregular octagon formed by overlapping photographs suggests the multiple concentric elements that form the shutter of a camera, and the dark space surrounding it the interior of the camera body. The picturesque monument thus becomes merely an instrument by which we apprehend a larger order. "Even the hugest telescope," remarked Wittgenstein, "has to have an eyepiece no larger than the human eye." Dibbets demonstrates here the contingency of the objective world and emphasizes the subjectivity from which knowledge of this world originates.

Dibbets's images are pseudoscientific in principle—carefully calibrated exercises intended to weave disparate mediums and modes of representation into a seamless design. But in this new series, the artist's self-imposed constraints tend to overwhelm the imagery and weaken the visual impact of the works. Rather than enticing the viewer into their mystery, they suggest a visual compromise, arrived at by a careful tally of constituent perceptions. The delicate retinal effects Dibbets aimed for came off considerably better in another work in the exhibition, Van Abbe Ceiling, a diptych in which photos of a ceiling are superimposed on a painted, grayish blue ground. Here Dibbets's concerns are expressed in terms of light rather than darkness. In the past Dibbets has been eloquently arbitrary, and this exhibition was yet another way station in his sustained insurrection against perceptual givens. —Marjorie Welish

David Bates at Charles Cowles

Neo-Expressionism up till now has been mostly a European affair, Salle and Schnabel notwithstanding. What would a true American Neo-Expressionism be like? Perhaps closer to Alice Neel than Willem de Kooning?

Yes, at least if it were as figurative and funny an Expressionism as David Bates's. Bates hails from Florida, so he's not as Southern as all that, but his pictures revive a South, and a North, of the heart as well as of history. His subjects are often blacks, and he gets as close to racial stereotype as you can get without being offensive. In a painting like King of the Street Dancers, for instance, a jaunty group of fellows gathers around one of their high-stepping own. It doesn't hurt because it's nostalgic, and, somehow, true; and because Bates's generous Expressionism—distorting with an idealizing purpose in mind—is loving. Strangely touching, for all its harsh realities, is The Blues Man, a black man lighting a cigar, the light reflecting on ring, pomaded mustache and hair, throwing a handsome shadow on the wall behind.

Bates finds the pursuits of whites equally choice targets for his particular brand of sentimental parody—a man rows doggedly through a crazy quilt pattern of brown trees, tan bullrushes and orange and red water in The Long

VOL 71 ISS 10 NO 1983 UMI

David Bates: The Whittler, 1983, oil on canvas, 96 by 78 inches; at Charles Cowles.

Fred Mitchell: Torso, 1955, oil on canvas, 36 by 24 inches; at Buecker & Harpsichords.

Ilan Averbuch: Fata Morgana, 1983, wood and stone, 13 feet high; at O.K. Harris.

Cypress. In The Garden Room a woman in a yellow cable-knit sweater sits reading a book on a floral pattern chair on a floral border rug; the room is lush with indoor plants and the view out the window—trees, bushes—seems plain in the face of all this neo-Matissean finery. Milk Bone is a funny, slightly scary bestiary—a boy in red cap holding a milkbone is surrounded by black collies only too eager to claim the prize. Halloween is a work of sheer sentimentality that somehow gets away with its own delight in itself—devil, ghost, witch, Frankenstein and skeleton are gathered together as if for a snapshot. All the Americana climaxes in The Whittler. The painting is near caricature; the whittler is a dopey, likable fellow seated on a chair in a big white shirt and white socks, grinning as he holds a stick of wood in one hand, a knife in the other. It's so down-home as to be embarrassing, but so sure of itself and its naive charm that we can only admire Bates's technique and give him a pat on the shoulder.

Nostalgia, parody, caricature—them's fightin' words to formalists, but our new Expressionism seems to have let them, and Bates, in the back door. And what could be more American than back-door art? Bates is a master of the absurd in reality, and the reality in the absurd. Not only Grant Wood, but William Wiley would be proud. In an art scene of Expressionist parvenus, Bates is a true upstart. —Gerrit Henry

Ilan Averbuch at O.K. Harris

Wood and stone are the two primary materials of Ilan Averbuch's "archeological" installations: huge rough-hewn or carved beams form columnlike structures and irregular stone bricks create configurations that suggest fragments of destroyed walls or roadways.

At first I thought Averbuch's sculpture was another stylized version of primitivism, authentic to the extent that it represented Israeli machismo (Boaz Vaadia's untitled piece in the Jewish Museum made similar use of stone, logs and thongs), inauthentic as only the "neo" version of something can be. Then, in Miami, I saw an early piece set on an island, facing the sea—the freestanding portal of a decayed temple, such as Odysseus might have encountered on his voyages. I realized the hazard of seeing such works in galleries; they are meant for the stage of the great outdoors, where their infectious gigantism can feel at home, be seen in the proper perspective. Wood, stone and (in a piece at the List Art Center in Providence, R.I.) white cement, contrast boldly like semaphores of absolute experience. One doesn't know if one is encountering the columnar ruins of some early effort of devotion—or challenge—to the gods, or a fresh start at fierceness of feeling. Averbuch's work is always muscular, titanic, but one doesn't know if one is witness to remnants of the heroic or a fresh assertion of it—a memorial or an adventure.

This ambivalence is crucial to the power of Fata Morgana and Metamorphosis (both 1983); it disappears in Event No. 1 (1983), the List piece, in which clearly archaic forms emerge and the structure is more decisive—the tension between burrows and columns, and between molded cement and carved wood columns, is more measurable. There is perhaps something a little too stagestruck about the forms in Event No. 1; they are too self-conscious in their abruptly terminated seriality, too neat in their "antagonism." Yet there is a truly archeological feel to Averbuch's archaism. It is as though we are indeed on the site of a dig, and have uncovered a still moving, still awesome form, cabalistic in its implications.

This is desert art at its best—art born of the desert and its illusion of theatrical timelessness. This is why it is appropriate that Averbuch will be designing the stage for a new production of Beckett's Waiting for Godot. Averbuch's columns and dugouts are as much "characters" as any of Beckett's archetypes (if less freakish), and so should serve, like any good backdrop, as a chorus mediative of audience.

—Donald B. Kuspit

John Ahearn and Rigoberto Torres at Brooke Alexander

By casting his figures from living subjects, George Segal decisively separated naturalistic sculpture from classical modeling, pushing it toward documentation and so out into the world. The work of John Ahearn and Rigoberto Torres has some of the look of Segal's polychrome fragments and depends for its immediacy on the same equivalence between the presence of the art object and a literal human presence, but Ahearn and Torres have taken direct casting into new and uneasy territory.

In general, Segal's sensibility and iconography put him among the observers of the American scene whose primary concern is with the emotionally and socially typical. Like his mentor, Hopper, he is the fabricator of scrupulously average environments inhabited by poignantly anonymous everymen. The busts and tableaux of Ahearn and Torres, by contrast, are emphatically particular in detail and origin. Where Segal's plasters are purposefully generalized, Ahearn and Torres have caught and heightened with color the expressions and gestures of each of their models along with all their idiosyncratic bits of clothing, pieces of jewelry or tattoos. Moreover, these portraits collectively project a specific social reality—life in the South Bronx—and by extension provide a glimpse of the life and vitality of the American urban underclass.

It is, however, a privileged glimpse and as such one must question it. Exhibited in the community from which they were drawn, as they first were, these portraits of mothers and grandmothers, of children playing or just hanging out, and of smiling men, sideshow swamis and sword swallowers are clearly a positive reflection of lives carried on in trying conditions and so the occasion for self-recognition and pride. But once lifted from their setting and placed in the neutralized confines of a midtown gallery, what is truly human and distinctive about these images is all too easily transformed by the lust for exotic fetishes and the falsely homogenous vision of Family-of-Man humanism into simple moral or folkloric artifacts. Even those who approach the work on its own terms have benefited from an encounter without risk or the possibility of real exchange. Certainly Ahearn and Torres have made extraordinarily vivid sculptures while keeping faith with their models, but, as with documentary photography, it is no longer enough simply to show "how the other half lives." A social art requires that one carefully choose and control not only the primary content but also its social context. If these portraits are to extend their effect beyond their initial impact, the artists must make it harder for their gallery audience to identify with and assimilate them. Somehow they must make what their subjects think and feel about our scrutiny as explicit as how they look when at ease in their own surroundings. —Robert Storr

Francesco Clemente: (left) two untitled works, oil on canvas, (right) Guardian, watercolor on paper, both 1983; at Mary Boone.

Francesco Clemente at Mary Boone and Sperone Westwater

At Mary Boone Clemente showed large, majestic paintings, hung high on the walls, and two freestanding watercolor screens. At Sperone Westwater there were a few large paintings, including a seven-panel fresco that covered an entire wall, but, equally important, there were many painted artifacts—found objects such as architectural and industrial fragments. In both galleries a contrast was set up between loudly painted, grandly scaled works and delicately executed, "softer" works that were more intimate, more "usable." All are examples of the "psychological picturesque," an evocative picturing of unconscious dramas. In a sense they are Surrealistically oriented, if not precisely Surrealist; they pursue the "marvelous," but not through the yoking of incongruous elements. (However, the strategy, seen in many of the Mary Boone paintings, of juxtaposing a large head or figure with a small one, has an element of the Surrealist pursuit of irrational metaphor.)

Clemente offers us a child's vision of sexuality—of the dangers of orifices, as one critic has put it. More precisely, his work is about intimacy, as a child might experience it. Such paintings as Semen and Porta Coeli (both 1983), depict a child's sense of omnipotence, and other works, such as those that constitute the fresco wall, a child's sense of vulnerability. If not always floating, neither are the figures firmly on the ground; the heads, particularly, loom at us, hovering like hallucinations. All the figures inhabit an inward space, signaled by the fragmentary, indefinite character of the background. Clemente depicts an irrational vista, perhaps most obviously in the frescoes, where an air of forlornness and desertion further depletes the schematized, symbolic figures. Each picture is a state of mind, sometimes more, sometimes less coherent, but always primordial—a memory rather than an immediate event. The primordial destroys distance: the confrontational heads and figures indicate that there is no escape from self-obsession—the narcissism, again, that is natural to the child.

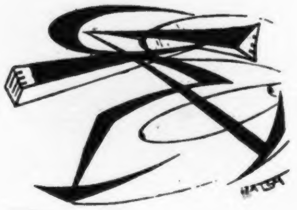
Clemente has been criticized for overproduction, but there are many states of mind, many dreams of the self. He exteriorizes the child that is in all of us, and remains seductive, as well as self-seduced. The erotic element in his work is only an aspect of this—the stylized rendering of those images indicates their token value. The seductive is an emanation of what Oscar Wilde called "the obscurity that belongs to life"; in a sense, seduction is possible only as long as a touch of the enigmatic remains. Clemente is trying to regenerate the enigmatic quality of life by a major rehabilitation of the modern romantic sense of being childlike. It is a dandyish effort, an aspect of the dandy's rebellion against the logic and clarity of the know-it-all bourgeois. Clemente's "overproduction" suggests both the desperate and unrelenting character of such rebellious efforts. Enigma, the evocation of the obscure depths of life, is something that must be worked at, as was once the case with clarity. Everything is all too clear these days, we are all too conscious, which is why it is an unrelieved struggle to reach the authentically unconscious. I think Clemente does, finding new jewels in an unconscious that seems to have been exhaustively mined. Having achieved both a refined complexity as well as a casual abundance—of images, mediums and manners—he restores our belief in the authenticity and power of the unconscious. I see Clemente as a Surrealist Expressionist, for he shows us that beyond our paradigms of understanding—within the paradigms that give us imagined control over ourselves and the world—is a core of uncontrollable obscurity that is the heart of life. Clemente's highly varied production captures its subtle arrhythmia. —Donald B. Kuspit

"Homage to the Tanager" at Buecker & Harpsichords

Before such urban phenomena as the East Village, SoHo, NoHo, Tribeca and the South Bronx became artworld landmarks, back in the faraway 1950s, there was a small group of young artists who met regularly. The members were Charles Cajori, Lois Dodd, Angelo Ippolito, William King and Fred Mitchell. It was an extraordinary period. The enemies of modernism were everywhere. Abstract art was widely thought to be un-American. Even well-known artists such as Willem de Kooning and Jackson Pollock could barely make enough to meet their bills. Yet good painters and sculptors were everywhere in New York, more than ever before, and they had almost nowhere to exhibit. Uptown a few galleries did their best to cope with the situation—notably Betty Parsons, Willard, Egan and Kootz—and the scene included a few places specializing in newcomers, like The Artists Gallery.

One day in the early spring of 1952, Angelo Ippolito and Fred Mitchell were walking along East Fourth Street, near Cooper Union, and noticed that the tenant of No. 53, a barber, had moved out. They put it to the other members of the group: why not split the monthly rent of $59 among themselves

VOL
71
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI

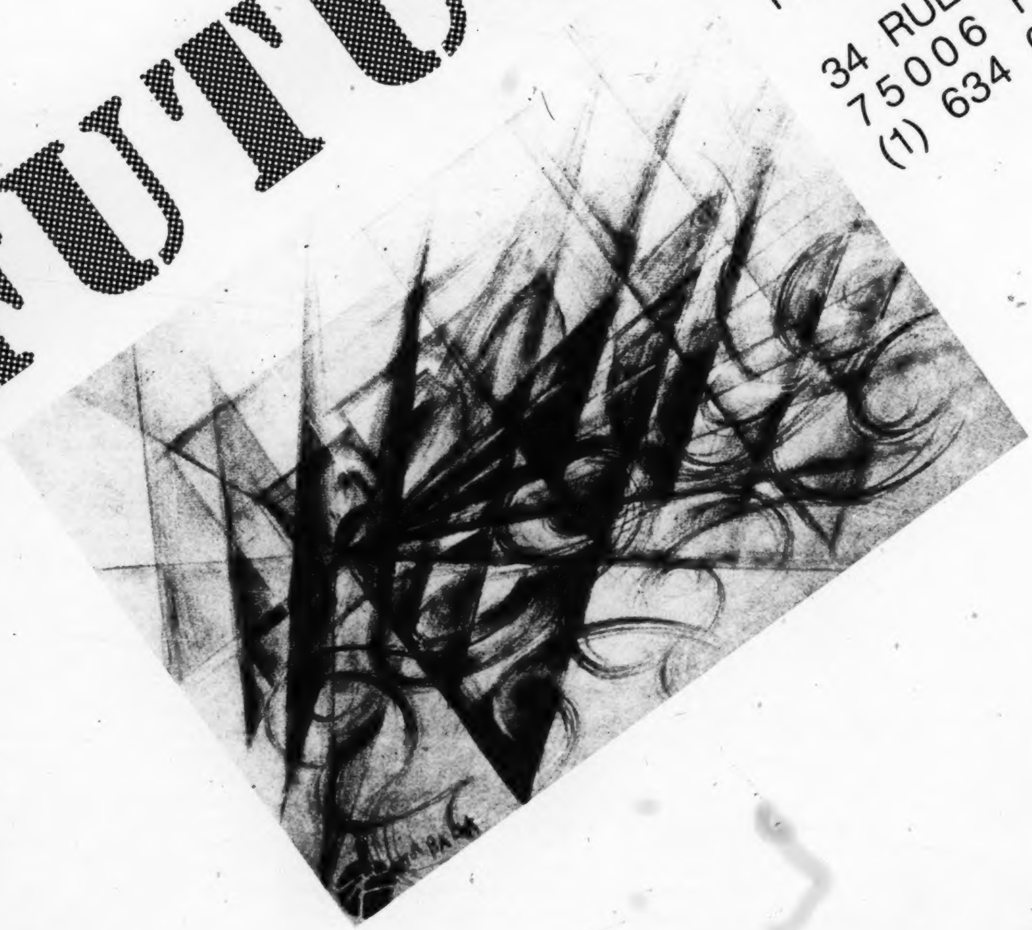


FUTURBALLA

EXHIBITION NOVEMBER–DECEMBER

NATALIE SEROUSSI
PAOLO SPROVIERI

34 RUE DE SEINE
75006 PARIS
(1) 634 05 84



and open a gallery, not only to show their own work, but also the work of other artists they admired? Thus was born the Tanager Gallery. A small pane of glass, orange-red in the sunlight, reminded somebody of a scarlet Tanager—hence the gallery's name. William King made a wooden bird to hang outside the door. The opening show, May 21-June 8, 1952, consisted of works by 12 artists, half of them nonmembers. When in the fall of 1953 the group moved the gallery to 90 East Tenth Street, they took the bird and the name along. In the ten years of its existence, the gallery introduced between 300 and 400 artists to the public in shows which were regularly reviewed by the art magazines and even, on occasion, by the New York Times.

It was no easy job being a member of the Tanager Gallery. The rent had to be paid each month, and time had to be spent considering the work of nonmembers for possible exhibition. The membership fluctuated. Sally Hazelet (later Drummond) joined the gallery and her father, Craig Hazelet, became its patron, considerably easing the financial burden until the Tanager closed in 1962.

This show last spring at Buecker & Harpsichords was a deliberate attempt to recreate a typical Tanager mid-season "salon" exhibition. It included paintings, drawings, prints and sculpture made in the '50s by members of the group: Charles Cajori, Lois Dodd, Sally Hazelet Drummond, Perle Fine, Nanno de Groot, Alex Katz, William King, George Ortman, Nicholas Marsicano, Fred Mitchell, Philip Pearlstein, Raymond Rocklin, Sal Sirugo and Tom Wesselmann.

Stanton Krieder, who reviewed Fred Mitchell's paintings in Pictures on Exhibit in June 1953, said that his work ranged from the "compactly far-abstract to the airily nonfigurative"; it was "broadly conceived and resourcefully executed" and was "lucid, incisive and bright with verve." I find it impossible to improve on the aptness of these comments, which today I would echo without reservation. Ben Isquith, whose death about 20 years ago was a loss to American art, was represented by small monochromatic paintings, like rusty relief slabs with hints at a great deal going on below the surface. William King was represented by brilliantly improvised watercolors of landscapes from a notebook. Sal Sirugo's pictures, resembling the interiors of caves lit by phosphorescent stalagmites, made me think of Henry Holiday's drawing of the Boojum, which Lewis Carroll rejected as too alarming for youthful readers of The Hunting of the Snark. Except for a small and beautiful expressionist Landscape by Philip Pearlstein, works by the other artists tended to foreshadow their current production, notably Joseph Groell's Earthbound, Lois Dodd's painting of chickens, Sally Hazelet Drummond's square fields with a myriad of tiny dots of color, Alex Katz's portrait drawing and Tom Wesselmann's large charcoal Nude.

—Lawrence Campbell

Attilio Salemme at Borgenicht

The American artist Attilio Salemme began painting in 1938 at the age of 27. He had his first one-man show in New York in 1945 and his short career ended with his death in 1955. He seems to have had an awful lot of influences at work in his painting. All the walking plants and bugs and biomorphic bipeds in Love in the Hothouse—that's Miró, isn't it? And those little animals, neutered, lovable, in the midst of arcades and columns in the lime and pink land of Oratorical Dementia are Chagall, right? And the abstracted planes of buildings flying apart on the canvas like a house of cards—Picasso. And, last but not least, the solemn grays, blues and blacks of a darkened room in The Full Night, with its mysterious black doorway and arches and opened window—de Chirico, who else?

Salemme was strongly influenced by de Chirico, as well as by Miró and Chagall and maybe even Picasso, in these paintings from the '40s and early '50s. He echoes de Chirico even in his titles, like Nostalgia of Purity, which features a tan floor with egglike appurtenance, two tan columns, a sand-colored wall (or beach?) behind it, a pyramid in the distance and powder-blue skies. Not only the title, but the metaphysics are reminiscent of de Chirico. However, Salemme did have one strong point: the creation of his very own, uninspired-to-highly-original totems—stick figures, stripes with arms and heads, or upstanding poles covered with minute patterns in all sorts of colors. Two of the more geometric totems appear in Nostalgia of Purity, and they give this otherwise derivative painting a life of its own. Nonetheless, the influences are damaging—the figures are too often familiar ones.

In the paintings that tend to Miróism, such as Doll Opera, the figures are obviously something between animal and vegetable. It's when the totems are the least animal or vegetable that they most come into being, into their existential own. In The Sacrifice geometry reigns—oddly enough, in a picture with such a very human, even religious, title. Here, in the tension between the meaning of the title and the work itself, we come upon Salemme's distinctive genius—not often manifested, it seems—for making geometric patterns and designs starkly real and frightening. In The Sacrifice he establishes wild checkerboards of color as backgrounds, adds a crazy-quilt mosaic of a floor and displays four of the totems. Hanging from the totem to the left is a tilted balance, and a smaller totem to the right is outfitted with balance and clockface. It's all a kind of draftsman's nightmare.

Not many of us, presumably, dream in geometries, but perhaps Salemme did; artists are known for such things. Whether the vision was nocturnal or studio-inspired, it is a powerful one, and there is real Surreal achievement in getting scares out of the designs with which the Bauhaus sought to liberate the world. In The Sacrifice influences are gone and a fine individual madness has risen to the surface. Euclid is somehow equated with evil; the balance is off, as time runs on, and out.

—Gerrit Henry

Frank Bowling at Tibor de Nagy

Frank Bowling was born in Guyana in 1936 and was educated at the Slade School in London in the late '50s and early '60s; later he moved to New York. While his early work was influenced by Francis Bacon, it was the American Color Field painters who interested him in the mid-'60s, and color has remained dominant in his paintings of the last decade.

Bowling is capable of achieving a greater range of visual effects with his various methods of applying paint than almost anyone else of his generation; in this respect he even surpasses many older, better known figures such as Noland, Olitski and Poons. Pouring acrylic and Rhoplex on his canvas so that the colors separate and form uneven puddles, or staining and later daubing the canvas with a clear gel (in imitation of brushstrokes) are just two of the techniques Bowling used in the paintings in his most recent show. The resulting surfaces look almost as if they had suffered the "natural" processes of urban industrial decay, like walls weathered by the chemistry of soot and acid rain. Most of the paintings were somber in color—deep greens and dark browns dominated.

After the pouring or staining, Bowling applies thin strips of foam rubber (which look like industrial discards) to the surface; in a couple of paintings he even affixes an egg carton. Unlike Poons, say, who attaches irregularly shaped pieces of styrofoam to the canvas before he begins painting, Bowling does so afterward. The difference is important in that for Poons the effects of the paint pouring down an uneven surface are largely accidental, while Bowling tries, after the fact, to define the accidents of pouring and staining through the application of gel or foam rubber strips. The strips work in a kind of counterpoint to the arbitrary irregularity of the surface, affording the only suggestion of deliberate line. They also imply the artist's impotence vis à vis the physical properties of paint—its tendency to run, smear, crack, etc.

By affiliating himself with process-oriented Color Field painting Bowling faces the issues of intentionality inherent in this approach. Until this exhibition his paintings have always had the "right" look: they were beautiful, bright, crisp fields of garish color. By using the gel and foam rubber strips Bowling seems to be attempting to make his paintings ugly, or at least, crude. Perhaps he himself has doubts about what he has previously accomplished. What he does next should make it clear whether or not this is the case.

—John Yau

Sylvia Plimack Mangold at Brooke Alexander

Regardless of this artist's subject matter—which has shifted, as this capsule retrospective made clear, from human-made spaces to natural ones—the images she presents offer a tension between cerebral, witty conceits and more subjective, emotional pursuits.

The earlier work, in which sections of flooring (parquet, linoleum tile, wood slat) were rendered on the picture plane in perspective, eventually moved to trompe-l'oeil satires. In this middle period, the three-dimensional illusions were tweaked by the inclusion of two-dimensional rulers rendered in true scale at the image borders or appearing in the picture space in correct three-dimensional perspective. The fruitful mix of austere pictorial geometry and hard-nosed numerical components recalled Minimalist canon, but the subject matter seemed personal and oddly poignant. Certain tenta-

VOL
7
1
ISS
10
NO
1983

You don't have to spend millions to collect the modern masters!

Now there's Abbeville's Modern Masters, an affordable new series of monographs on contemporary artists, filled with illustrations, information, and a lot of good reading. And since they cost only $16.95 in paperback and $29.95 in cloth, you can collect them all, starting with five of the postwar artists who have changed the course of modern art: Willem de Kooning, Jackson Pollock, Roy Lichtenstein, George Segal, and Andy Warhol.

Each book has approximately 48 stunning color and 70 black and white illustrations, both of milestone works and of lesser-known but important pieces not readily available in reproduction. The authors are highly respected art historians and critics chosen for their ability to think clearly and write well. Each presents a thorough survey of the artist's life and work, plus a selection of statements by the artist and a chapter describing his technique.

Abbeville's Modern Masters series is the first to combine an abundance of reproductions, enjoyable texts, extensive documentation, and luxurious production values with a price that everyone can afford. Whatever your interest in art, whether casual or critical, you'll want to start collecting these Modern Masters right away.

"Abbeville's series on significant modern artists fills an important niche in the study of art in our time. Well-illustrated books written by intelligent writers at affordable prices are to be welcomed."
—Peter Selz, Professor
History of Art, U.C. Berkeley

Special Features

8½ x 11", 128 pages
48 color, 70 black and white illustrations
Sewn binding in paper and cloth editions
Illustrated chapter on technique
Illustrated chronology
Lists of exhibitions and public collections
Annotated bibliography
Index

DE KOONING
HARRY F. GAUGH
LICHTENSTEIN
LAWRENCE ALLOWAY
POLLOCK
ELIZABETH FRANK
SEGAL
PHYLLIS TUCHMAN
WARHOL
CARTER RATCLIFF

Linda McCartney

An illustrated chapter on technique explains how the artist works.

Special introductory offer! Save $5.00 on each clothbound book when you order direct from Abbeville. Satisfaction guaranteed.

ABBEVILLE PRESS / 505 Park Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022
1-800-227-7210, ext. 204

Please send me clothbound copies of the following titles at $24.95 each.

☐ de Kooning ☐ Lichtenstein ☐ Pollock ☐ Segal ☐ Warhol

☐ My payment is enclosed.
Please add $2.50 per order for shipping and handling. N.Y. and N.J. residents add applicable sales tax.

☐ Please charge to: ☐ Mastercard ☐ Visa ☐ American Express

Card No. ☐☐☐☐☐☐☐☐☐☐☐☐☐☐☐☐ Expires ________

NAME ________ (please print) SIGNATURE ________

ADDRESS ________

CITY/STATE/ZIP ________ 112

Also available in paperback at your favorite bookstore.

UMI

tive touches of autobiography stood revealed: the interiors were the artist's own, and studies of light on walls and floors were reminders of life beyond the domestic inside.

Trompe l'oeil borders of "masking-tape" also began appearing, frequently creating boundaries for a smaller image upon the larger picture field. Plimack Mangold was challenging notions of pictorial framing and exploring geometric possibility. In Paint the Tape, Paint the Paper, Paint the Tape (1975), a page apparently torn from a spiral-bound steno-pad, surrounded by four strips of masking tape, appears tacked to a larger blank surface. Along the left side of the page the artist has written the title words. This entirely two-dimensional image has been painted with remarkable verisimilitude, although brushwork overlapping the tape is left evident, so that the masquerade is unmasked. The medium is acrylic; the effect is updated Will Harnett.

Here and in the more ambitious work to follow, the visual pun was held in check by the austerity of means. Floorboards and walls remained unadorned, and while Plimack Mangold can observe and render with the best of the Photo Realists, it was always clear that her technique was at the service of larger ends. The viewer's notions of reality and artifice were quite deliberately challenged by a repertoire of illusions whose inauthenticity was meant to be noticed. The painting, the artist seemed to say, was always and "only" a painting.

By 1977, as demonstrated in Collision, the forces of reality and illusion were battling with abstract composition. Collision offers up a variety of two-dimensional items "affixed" to the canvas—lengths of tape, paper, an illusionistic ruler—but also makes use of overpainting and semitransparency. Only by taking a mental step back from the issues usually engaged by Plimack Mangold do we see how formally effective the nearly symmetrical composition really is.

A concurrent move to upstate New York apparently urged a change of subject matter as well, and the artist began turning her eye to the outdoors. Inspired by a landscape of open vistas changing with the seasons, Plimack Mangold began a series of works in which small landscape images, achieved in loose, washy brushwork, were bordered by illusionistic masking tape. However exciting the initial forays appear, Changing Colors (1977) indicates the issue of pictorial framing had become a troublesome one. In this painting, a set of half-effaced "taped" rectangles and their stains of autumnal color were allowed to betray "unsuccessful" efforts at distinguishing the image from the larger canvas field. Ultimately, a picture emerged in the center—a rolling landscape of golden autumn foliage—but the surrounding surface reads as a series of starts and stops, far too active to achieve internal balance. It is the sort of experiment more exciting in theory than actuality.

Soon after, however, the artist found a different resolution. The larger field began to be articulated as pure color surrounding a smaller pictorial rectangle. Furthermore, the move to oil painting, and especially oil glazes, made for richer color and palpable atmosphere. These loosely worked images were a far cry from the tight geometry of the interior. Subsequently, Plimack Mangold was able to expand her pictorial images outward toward the real physical canvas borders, leaving only the barest reference to her past illusionistic framing devices.

The large landscapes of the past three years strive unabashedly for emotional resonance. Having moved from daytime to nocturnal mise-en-scènes, with an occasional snowscape at sunset as well, Plimack Mangold now accords atmosphere and color a much grander treatment than before. She also achieves a glazed surface so tactile that, in the winter scenes especially, we can almost believe we are looking through a sheet of ice. This glacial veneer is but another reminder of the physical truth of the canvas; the material facts stand lightly between us and the painter's poetry. —Allen Ellenzweig

Gordon Cook: Delta House behind Levee, oil on canvas, 12½ by 13 inches; at Charles Campbell (review on p. 233).

Mark Mulhern: Conflicted Appetites, 1982, oil on canvas, 79 by 88 inches; at Frumkin & Struve.

CHICAGO

Mark Mulhern at Frumkin & Struve

It would appear that Catholic guilt is a hard thing to overcome, but Mark Mulhern is making the most of it. In his recent Chicago exhibition, the Milwaukee artist showed six big oil paintings picturing himself lying on a psychiatric couch and free-associating to his psychoanalyst. These free associations take the form of lurid, disturbing images crammed into each canvas, hanging like heavy clouds over Mulhern and his black-suited shrink. A heart perched on a limb, a penis sticking through a crib/cage, a ladder climbing off the edge of the picture plane and an eyeball rising like a sun are just a few of the sacred and profane images tormenting the artist in these confessional paintings. While some images, such as a chalice and a birdlike Holy Ghost, refer directly to Mulhern's Catholic upbringing, others do not.

Mulhern's expressionism contains a hint of cartoonish whimsy, so that even the repetitious image of a blood-spattered sink—alluding to an artist-friend's 1977 suicide—is not terribly upsetting. It is not so much the images themselves that disturb, but their relentless presence, their suffocating proximity and frenzied pressure. The viewer's eye can find no peace in these works. The charge that some neo-Expressionists fabricate a false angst does not apply to Mulhern. There can be little doubt that his paintings are sincerely autobiographical.

There is an unnerving tension in the work that makes it both compelling and repulsive. Compelling because of the psychological dramas suggested: shades of the mad artist attempting to map out the jumble of memories clogging his brain. Yet repulsive because the effort has resulted in little more than clogged, confused canvases. Viewers are apt to walk away more bewildered than enlightened by the artist's psychological probing. Meaning—even to the artist himself—is lost in an avalanche of seemingly unrelated images. On several canvases, the

VOL
71
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI

Chicago International ART Exposition

May 10–15, 1984

CIAE

Chicago International Art Exposition

Chicago International Art Exposition
600 North McClurg Court,
Chicago, Illinois 60611 USA
Telephone 312.787.6858

A Project of the Lakeside Group

artist went back and painted over certain images in order to create interstices allowing other images to "breathe." This relieves the eye and improves the composition, but does little for overall comprehension.

Judging from the work Mulhern showed earlier in the Milwaukee Art Museum's "New Figuration in American Art" exhibition and at the Chicago International Art Exposition, he is capable of cleaner, calmer and less compulsive visions. As for the body of work in this show, he may have been attempting a grand-scale exorcism of his psyche—clearing the decks, so to speak, for things to come. The 31-year-old artist bears watching. His vision may be cloudy, but his technique is accomplished and his colors are strong. And there is a certain flair to the work that makes even his failures memorable. —Michael Bonesteel

John Ahearn: Girl with Braid, 1983, painted cast plaster, 19 by 18 by 7 inches; at Brooke Alexander (review on p. 226).

WASHINGTON, D.C.

Friedel Dzubas at the Hirshhorn Museum

Friedel Dzubas's retrospective was surprisingly timely. It was a chance to see how some highly touted Color-Field abstraction looks more than ten years after its heyday, now that most American painting seems to be a world away from it. The fact that the Dzubas retrospective was not a traveling show suggests how far out of favor Color-Field painting may be these days, at least with museum curators.

The most informative aspect of the exhibition was the glimpse it provided of Dzubas's Abstract-Expressionist roots. From the late '40s until about 1961, he made loose, crowded, gestural paintings that echoed aspects of Gorky, Pollock, Hofmann and Frankenthaler. Perhaps because he was never a facile draftsman, Dzubas's Abstract-Expressionist pictures lack the struggle to avoid figuration that gave so much energy to Pollock's work. Abstraction seems to have been no particular achievement for Dzubas because it didn't involve unlearning another kind of training or habit. There is a dithering quality to his agitated canvases of the '50s which happily disappeared around the turn of the decade.

In the early '60s Dzubas apparently concluded that his strength lay in the disposition of color rather than in the dramas of gesture, for his painting became suddenly cooler, brighter and simpler. He started smoothing out and tightening up his color areas, leaving traces of gestural energy only around their edges. The broad, abutting or interlocking flat shapes that occupy his canvases of the mid-'60s resemble some of Jules Olitski's motifs of those years. The only "action" in these paintings is the interplay of hue and shape, and the occasional suggestion that a color is traveling within the picture space. Nowhere in Dzubas's art does the large scale he favors seem more apt than in pictures such as Stellar (1962) and Arch (1963), where broad stretches of unpainted canvas give weight to a few passages of color. His use of emptiness is a strength he does not seem to have recognized, for the paintings he has made since tend to be crammed with color incidents.

The retrospective gave a distinct emphasis to the pictures Dzubas has produced since 1970. With the gestural works of the '50s in adjacent galleries, it became easy to see that movement is the signal quality Dzubas revived to take his paintings of the '70s and '80s beyond what he had done before. In pictures such as Trough (1972) and Icarus (1973), Dzubas developed the handling of color areas that has become the earmark of his art. He tends to paint broad bands of color that are solid and hard-edged at one end and feathered towards blank canvas at the other. The fading of color, thinning of paint and the leaning or veering quality of the shapes themselves create an impression of movement across the surface. This movement harks back to the literal velocity of gesture in the early works, but in the late pictures the color areas are much larger than the brushes used to apply the paint. In some pieces, such as Phoenix Rising (1975), there is an almost comic quality to the way certain color areas seem to swoop and surge, as if fleeing other parts of the picture. I wonder whether Dzubas introduces somber tones into his paintings partly to offset the animated quality of the painted shapes.

Dzubas's major technical accomplishment is to have found a vocabulary of forms that manifests the activity of painting and can be varied indefinitely. He is not afraid to take to extremes the play of hues and lights he sets up—the gain in confidence he has made over three decades is obvious. Yet his work continues to be haunted by the aimless, scattershot quality that undermines his paintings of the '50s. It is as if he paints from a compulsion he has never really examined, and when it lets him down in such a mammoth effort as Spessart (1981), which measures nearly 10 by 24 feet, the result is a monumental embarrassment.

There is little point in debating the caliber of Dzubas's color sense—the decorative felicity of some pictures obviates dispute, while others seem intended to provoke it. But the results of Dzubas's efforts are so inconsistent that it is hard to guess what he's aiming at, or whether his ambitions change from one painting to another. —Kenneth Baker

SAN FRANCISCO

Gordon Cook at Charles Campbell

Gordon Cook's realism, like Morandi's, is of the minimalist persuasion. He rejects the specific while also refusing the abstract. Cook has a steely eye and precise hand, and is capable of intense concentration. Though he refrains from detailed speculation or dramatic gesture, his images are highly charged.

Cook's recent landscapes are derived from the Sacramento River Delta where he lived in the early '70s. The Delta region is harsh and desolate, its fog dense and constant, brought in on mistrallike winds. Cook returned to the area last year, armed with a camera. These landscapes, produced in the studio, are a mixture of memory and observation aided by photographs. Cook seems to have found an almost formulaic set of elements to codify his experience of that featureless, gray flatland: a tower or house masked by a levee, flanked by a windblown cypress. There is a road on top of the levee, but it is inaccessible, it does not lead toward the tower. The tower is shuttered, half hidden, and the tree suffers the wind. There are no incidents to be observed and no one is present, but these deceptively simple ensembles edge toward the symbolic, laden with a sense of portent.

The real power of these pictures, however, lies in the charged, magical nature of their light. The viewer must retreat to be able to see the glow of these small paintings. Cook does not invite the intimacy of close inspection; he rewards the viewer who keeps his distance. His brushstrokes are loose, almost scumbled, but their placement is highly calculated—there is nothing casual or offhand in these intense scenes.

As if by way of contrast, Cook also included in the exhibition still lifes of the kind he has been doing for many years. These images—of half a loaf of French bread, a salami, a black hat—might evoke certain works by Magritte, except that Cook does not indulge in

VOL 71
ISS 10
NO
1983
UMI

LEONARDO NIERMAN
Exhibition:
PAINTINGS DRAWINGS
SCULPTURE
November 26 - December 23, 1983

NAHAN GALLERIES • 540 ROYAL ST. • NEW ORLEANS, LA. 70130
(504) 524-8696

metaphysical teasing. The essence of these images, moreover, is their absence of context. The objects are lost in a limbo of gray. They are uprooted, dependent on the underplayed bravura of their execution for their mysterious, withdrawn life.

Cook's Delta landscapes may constitute a contrived, restricted world, but it is a world that emits an intense emotional energy. Cook seems to be coming to terms with his past, reducing memory to the bare elements of earth, building, tree and sky.

—Howard Junker

Marc Katano: Sisyphus, 1982, oil on canvas, 78 by 96 inches; at Stephen Wirtz.

Marc Katano at Stephen Wirtz

Each of Marc Katano's paintings is made up of a half dozen or so broad, intersecting lines. Though they seem black, the lines are blue, as is apparent where the heavy wet paint has dripped onto the backgrounds, which are usually light in color. The whole process seems done with deliberate speed, growing under the hand rather than being preconceived.

The background color of River, 1982, is a thin blue-gray, on top of which several thick, curved lines cross. The lines, which can be read as concave or convex, appear to occupy physical space, especially inasmuch as a thin band of canvas forms an "aura" around them. Thus separated from the background, the lines seem to describe positive objects rather than to mark action or indicate contour. Katano studied sculpture at one time, so the almost sculptural presence of his forms comes as no surprise. It was very possibly the opportunity to explore spatial ambiguity in another medium that first drew him to painting.

Some of Katano's paintings have distinctive images—like pared-down, calligraphic forms, almost pictograms. In River, an oval form suggests a fish; other lines might indicate a boat and net, with the gray background evoking water. I suspect, however, that the title was a literary recognition after the fact, for the painting is really an abstraction, one that seems to have emerged almost automatically. Perhaps this is the aspect of Abstract Expressionism that remains most alive for young painters like Katano: the revelation of the inner mind and the realization of an "automatic" imagery through a concentration on process. In River, Katano's message comes through fresh and direct—with all the rudeness of experience.

Katano's father was an American, and though born in Japan, Katano has spent most of his life in Hawaii and California. We have seen him quite regularly in San Francisco in both one-man and museum shows, but he is not yet well known in the east.

—Knute Stiles

Gwynn Murrill: Varna and Midnight Playing, 1982–83, painted bronze, (Varna, left, 26 by 31 by 25 inches; Midnight, right, 39 by 14 by 26 inches); at Asher Faure.

LOS ANGELES

Gwynn Murrill at Asher Faure

Gwynn Murrill's sculpted animals began to receive significant West Coast attention ten years ago. The first were rough-hewn from construction lumber. Later she created a series of great cats (cougars and cheetahs) and other creatures whose wood surfaces she finished to a smooth, glowing polish. A 1979 Prix de Rome fellowship led her to work in more traditional materials such as marble and bronze. Her recent exhibition included life-size animals—a coyote, assorted dogs at rest and play and two domestic cats—in bronze, wood, stoneware and bisque.

Murrill makes realistic sculpture of extraordinary beauty, and though she flirts with sentimentality, she has always managed to resist its obvious dangers. How has she done this? The answer, I think, is that she works not with individual detail, but with type. In pieces such as Mexican Dog (bronze, 1983) she conveys, to use a neo-classical analogy, the "tulipness of the tulip." The delightfully lifelike quality of the animal—which makes the urge to bend down and pat its cool, smooth flank irresistible—is in part due to Murrill's ability to evoke the essence of the beast in a characteristic posture. Yet her refusal to be seduced by particularities allows her to maintain an esthetic distance that encourages contemplation rather than identification, wonder rather than familiarity.

Murrill's work has an air of vulnerability that makes its beauty seem truly contemporary. However, her essays in marble and bronze leave one wondering whether, after resisting the sentimental appeal of her subject, she may not have succumbed to the no less dangerous charm of her materials—these pieces appear too perfect. Most successful, to my mind, are such works as Coyote (wood, 1983) and Bisque Cat (1983), whose materials allow more readily for surface imperfection and viewer response.

Varna and Midnight Playing (1982–83) suggests that the artist may now be attempting to achieve similar results in bronze. Here, the surface is rougher than usual and has been painted expressively. The canine features are less stylized and less serene than in the other bronze works; stillness of pose has been replaced by the rough-and-tumble of dramatic interaction. In the context of the exhibition this work may have seemed less resolved, but it suggests an interesting new direction.

—Peter Clothier

COSTA MESA

Nick Vaughn at Turnbull Lutjeans Kogan

If one of art's purposes is, to use a neo-classical standard, to formulate that which "oft was thought, but ne'er so well expressed," Nick Vaughn's first solo exhibition of artist-made clothes succeeded wonderfully well. The show reflected a great number of my own ambivalent attitudes toward clothes, and I suspect those of many others as well.

Vaughn's clothes are a designer's fantasy—or nightmare. Draped over the backs of chairs and hangers in the exhibition, they nonetheless are actual clothes, and the viewer was invited to try them on—much as one might in a department store—though at some personal risk to dignity, if not to limb. Each article was accompanied by a large black-and-white fashion photograph and a designer's graphite sketch.

Big Tweed, a huge suit of that material and the only item displayed on a mannequin, greeted the visitor at the gallery door like a gentle, headless giant. Joseph

VOL
7
1
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI

FRITZ SCHOLDER
AN AMERICAN PORTRAIT

A 30 minute documentary film on PBS
Monday, November 7
10:30 E.S.T. & 9:30 C.S.T. check local listings

Produced by the Oklahoma Summer Arts Institute made possible by Phillips Petroleum

Fritz Scholder is represented by:
ACA Gallery
21 East 67 St.
New York, NY 10021
(212) 628-2440

Marilyn Butler Fine Art
7157 Main St.
Scottsdale, AZ 85251
(602) 994-9550
149 E. Alameda
Santa Fe, NM 87501
(505) 982-9359

Tally Richards
2 Ledoux St.
Taos, NM 87571
(505) 758-2731
72-205 Painter's Path
(off Hwy 111 at Fred Waring Dr.)
Palm Desert, CA 92260

Joanne Lyon Gallery
525 E. Cooper Ave.
Aspen, CO 81611
(303) 925-9044

Beuys's ungainly gray felt clothing hovered in the mind behind this monument to sartorial taste. The neat conformity of the subdued tweed predominated—until one's eyes descended to the mannequin's shoes, neatly crafted from the same cloth. Like Big Tweed, each of Vaughn's items possesses its own surprises, some of them hilariously obvious at first glance, others more subtle and disturbing. Shirt, an otherwise normal white dress shirt, is endowed with a 60-inch collar, from which the wearer's neck and head protrude in the ungainly manner made famous by Stan Laurel; Glove Shirt, a pleasant blue plaid, is altered by the extension of its arms into gloves made of the same material; Suit is set askew by an uncomfortably stitched horizontal pleat that shortens one of its front panels.

Nick Vaughn: Long Shirt, 1983, polyester; at Turnbull Lutjeans Kogan.

Apparel such as this confirms one's most Kafkaesque anxieties about clothes. These shirts and suits confine and distort, perverting the expectation that clothes should be comfortable. They act on the wearer much as fun-house mirrors do, providing grotesque projections of childhood fears about one's physical appearance. Stick Shirt, for example, is fitted in the front with awkward stiffening rods that constrict the chest and inhibit the body's movement in a way that is at once alarming and enlightening. Vaughn reminds us of the subtle cruelty of a fashion industry which designs clothes for a supposedly ideal shape—one few of us seem destined to attain.

This aspect of fashion design is one of Vaughn's more obvious targets, and he scores a thoroughly enjoyable hit. The obsession with newness that leads to outrageous and unaffordable annual excesses is delightfully satirized in such articles as Long Shirt, a luscious, blousy violet shirt whose left front side extends into a trainlike affair over 10 feet long. The wearer would be forced to haul this appendage around, or to hire a page to carry it. Vaughn cannily designs his clothes—at least those included in this exhibition—exclusively for men. His humorous parodies of the vagaries of the fashion industry seem calculated to enlighten specifically the male ego, which has for too long delighted in simultaneously mocking and exploiting the industry's manipulativeness of women. By stepping into Vaughn's clothes, one is pleasurably seduced into a reappraisal of values, and this act of participation leaves its mark all the more forcefully for its humor.

—Peter Clothier

Review Contributors

Michael Bonesteel is a Chicago free-lance writer . . . Peter Clothier is dean of the College of Fine and Communication Arts, Loyola Marymount University, Los Angeles . . . Lynne Cooke is a lecturer in history of art, University College, London . . . Susan Freudenheim writes on art from Fort Worth . . . Gerrit Henry and Ellen Lubell are free-lance critics living in Manhattan . . . Howard Junker writes on art from San Francisco . . . Donald Kuspit received the College Art Association 1982 award for art criticism . . . Robert Storr, Stephen Westfall and Ann-Sargent Wooster are artists who also write on art . . . Reagan Upshaw and John Yau are poets and art critics . . . Marjorie Welish is a New York poet, writer and painter.

Corrections

May '83, p. 167: Benny Andrews's Serenity was reproduced in reverse.

Summer '83, cover and pp. 121-125: the photos of Ellsworth Kelly's sculptures should have been credited to Jerry L. Thompson.

pp. 7-9: installation photos by Dorothy Low.

p. 164: Nic Nicosia's Domestic Drama 1 was reproduced in reverse.

Sept. '83, p. 139: Fairfield Porter's Iced Coffee was reproduced in reverse.

Oct. '83, p. 177, p. 178: Marilyn Lenkowsky's Untitled and Nassos Daphnis's I-82 should have been reproduced vertically.

Richard Pitts

REPRESENTING

Adele Alsop
Michael Filmus
Charles Moser
Philip Mullen
Richard Pitts
Bill Sullivan
Marguerite Walsh
John Wilde

DAVID FINDLAY JR CONTEMPORARY

41 East 57 St New York 10022 212-486-7660

Haydn Stubbing

Recent Paintings

9 November -
3 December 1983

Gallery Paule Anglim
14 Geary St. San Francisco California 94108
(415) 433-2710 Tues.-Fri. 10:30-5:30 Sat. 11-5

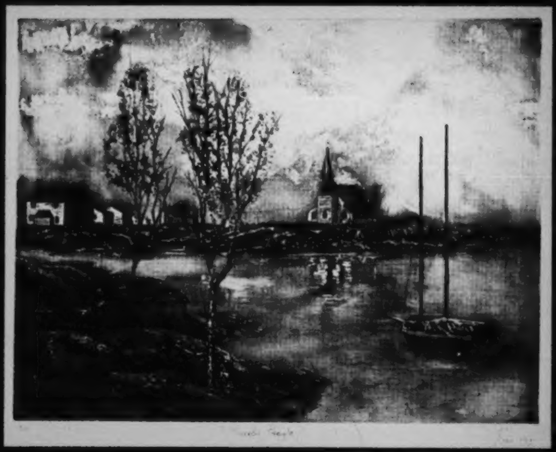
VOL
71
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI

HANOVER

New York
Madrid
Hanover

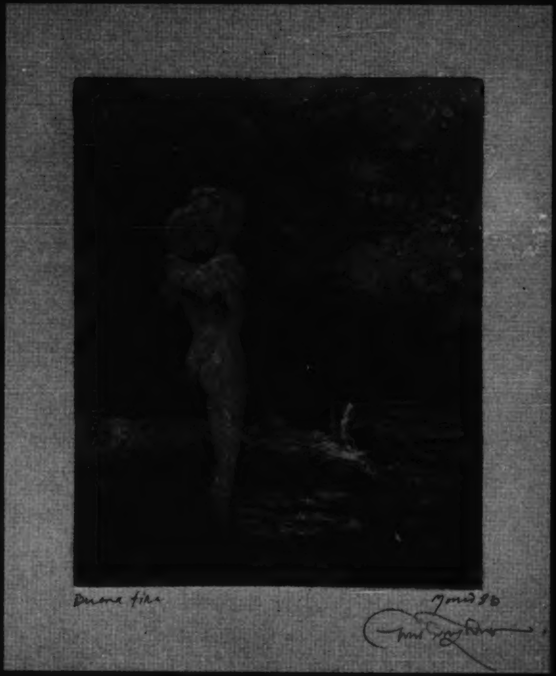
SCHRAM

"CHURCH STEEPLE"
Size: 13½" x 17¼"
Colored Etching
Signed and Numbered
Edition of 85



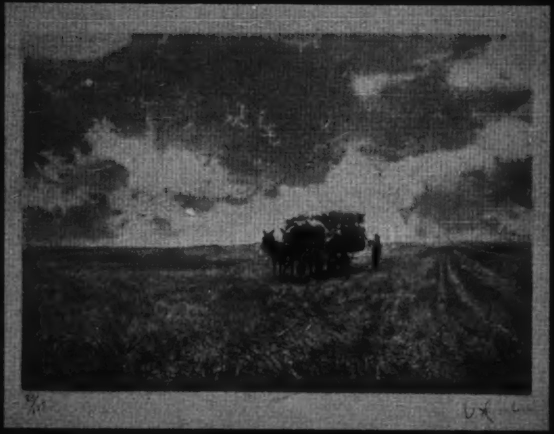
MONIR

"NUDES"
(Carpeta of Four)
Size: 4¾" x 3¾"
Colored Etching
Signed and Numbered
Edition of 85



ARRIBAS

"CART SCENE"
Size: 6" x 9"
Colored Etching
Signed and Numbered
Edition of 125



Hanover Fine Arts
1078 Main Street
Hanover,
Massachusetts 02339
617 878 9144

Whodunit?

Continued from page 177

Dauberville, Galerie Bernheim-Jeune, Paris; La Fondation Wildenstein, Paris; Herbert Cahoon and Barbara Paulson, The Pierpont Morgan Library, New York; and John Rewald.

1. Antonin Proust, "Edouard Manet (Souvenirs)," La Revue Blanche, vol. 12 (Feb. 1, 1897), pp. 132–133.
2. Delteil, Loys, Le Peintre-Graveur illustre, vol. IX (Edgar Degas), Paris, chez l'auteur, 1919, no. 12.
3. Proust (April 1, 1897), p. 427.
4. Ibid. (Feb. 15, 1897), p. 170.
5. Françoise Cachin, Charles S. Moffett and Juliet Wilson Bareau, Manet 1832–1883, Paris, Galeries nationales du Grand Palais and New York, The Metropolitan Museum of Art, 1983, cat. no. 10, p. 67.
6. Proust (Mar. 15, 1897), p. 308. According to Jacques-Emile Blanche, Propos de Peintre de David à Degas, Paris, Emile-Paul Frères, 1919, p. 146, Manet repainted the hat in this portrait at least 20 times. See also Manet 1832–1883, cat. no. 187, pp. 447–450
7. Paul Jamot and Georges Wildenstein, Manet, Paris, Les Beaux-Arts, 1932, I, 47.
8. Denis Rouart, ed., The Correspondence of Berthe Morisot, trans. Betty W. Hubbard, London, Lund Humphries, 2nd ed., 1959, p. 39.
9. Ibid., p. 29; and Bernice Davidson, "Le Repos, A Portrait of Berthe Morisot by Manet," Bulletin of The Rhode Island School of Design, vol. 4, no. 2 (Dec. 1959), p. 7. Davidson discusses Manet's slight alteration of the format of this painting.
10. See Theodor Siegl, "The Treatment of Edouard Manet's Le Bon Bock," Philadelphia Museum of Art Bulletin, vol. LXII (1966), pp. 133–141. Originally, Manet considered incorporating details into this neutral background.
11. See respectively Etienne Moreau-Nélaton, Manet reconté par lui même, Paris, Henri Laurens, 1926, II, 23; Proust (Feb. 15, 1897), p. 177; Manet 1832–1883, cat. nos. 185–186, pp. 443–47; and Anne Coffin Hanson, "Manet's Pictorial Language" pp. 20–28.
12. Emile Zola, The Masterpiece, trans. Thomas Walton, Ann Arbor, The University of Michigan Press, 1968, pp. 49 and 58. See also Robert J. Niess, Zola, Cézanne and Manet—A Study of L'Oeuvre, Ann Arbor, The University of Michigan Press, 1968.
13. For Monet's comment see Daniel Wildenstein, Claude Monet, Biographie et catalogue raisonné, Lausanne and Paris, La Bibliothèque des arts, 1974, I, 424 (lettre 33); for Gautier's comment see George Heard Hamilton, Manet and his Critics, New Haven, Yale University Press, 1954, pp. 114 f.
14. Manet 1832–1883, cat. no 74, pp. 199–203.
15. For a discussion of Manet's attitude toward "mistakes" in pictures, see this author's "What's Wrong with this Picture?", Art in America, LXIX (Sept. 1981), pp. 97–107.
16. Theodore Reff, Manet and Modern Paris, The National Gallery of Art, 1982, p. 215; and Manet 1832–1883, pp. 195–198.
17. The fullest discussion is Anne Coffin Hanson, "Edouard Manet, 'Les Gitanos,' and the Cut Canvas," The Burlington Magazine, vol. 112 (March 1970), pp. 158–167; for Courbet's use of similar methods see Bruce K. MacDonald, "The Quarry by Gustave Courbet," Bulletin, Museum of Fine Arts, Boston, vol. LXVII (1969), pp. 52–71.
18. See Jean C. Harris, "Manet's Race-Track Paintings," The Art Bulletin, vol. XLVIII (March 1966), pp. 78–82; Reff, p. 134 (cat. no. 43); and Manet 1832–1883, cat. no. 99, pp. 262–264.
19. Charles Perussaux, "Curiosités de l'histoire de l'art—Manet, Coupeur de toiles," Lettres français, Sept. 18, 1955; and Hanson, 1970.
20. Paul de Saint Victor in La Presse, April 27, 1863; reprinted in Jean Adhémar, "Manet et l'Estampe," Nouvelles de l'estampe, no. 7 (July 1965), p. 231.

Monet in his Studio, 1874?, oil on canvas, 41¾ by 51¾ inches. Staatsgalerie Stuttgart.

21. Already in 1865, when asked to contribute a reproduction of works for an illustrated guide called Autograph au Salon, Manet had contemplated this change. His contribution was a sheet containing three small sketches. One of these, showing the isolated half-length drinking figure from The Gypsies, taken together with an etching in which this same figure appears as a full-length, suggests that Manet evaluated several different possibilities before quarrying The Water Drinker from The Gypsies. See Juliet Wilson, Manet: Dessins, aquarelles . . ., Paris, Hugette Beres, 1978, cat. no. 10. Wilson dates Manet's etching of the half-length format around 1870–74; the date of 1861 for the etching of the full-length format (Marcel Guérin, L'Oeuvre gravé de Manet, Paris, Floury, 1944, no. 22) is open to question.
22. Proust (Feb. 1, 1897), pp. 134–35.
23. Moreau-Nélaton archives (Copie pour Moreau-Nélaton de documents sur Manet) on deposit at Bibliothèque Nationale (Cabinet des estampes), Paris.
24. The only scholar to mention this change was Jens Thiis, "Manet et Baudelaire," Etudes d'Art (Algiers), vol. 1 (1945), p. 16.
25. Manet 1832–1883, cat. nos. 19–20, pp. 83–87.
26. Wilson, cat. no. 4; and Manet 1832–1883, cat. nos. 24–25, pp. 91–93.
27. Unpublished letter, Cabinet des Dessins, Musée du Louvre, Paris.
28. Charles Baudelaire, Salon de 1846, Paris, Michel Lévy frères, section XVIII.
29. Moreau-Nélaton, 1927, I, 71.
30. Manet 1832–1883, cat. no. 5, pp. 53–54.
31. First noticed by Léon Rosenthal, Manet aquafortiste et lithographe, Paris, Le Goupy, 1925, pp. 56–57.
32. Manet 1832–1883, cat. no. 50, pp. 146–150. Moreau-Nélaton, II, fig. 343 records the framing of Lola de Valence in 1884.
33. Reff, pp. 186 and 190.
34. Clement Greenberg, "Manet in Philadelphia," Artforum, Vol. 5 (Jan. 1967), p. 26.
35. Theodore Duret, Histoire d'Eduoard Manet et de son oeuvre, Paris, H. Floury, 1902, pp. 71–73; Manet 1832–1883, cat no. 108, pp. 287–290.
36. Emile Zola, "Eduoard Manet" in Exposition des oeuvres de Edouard Manet, Paris, A. Quantin, 1884, p. 16.
37. Zola, "Une nouvelle manière en peinture—Edouard Manet," Revue du XIX^e siècle, Jan. 1, 1867, pp. 58–9; and Manet 1832–1883, cat. 64, pp. 174–182.
38. Jacques-Emile Blanche, Essais et Portraits, Paris, Dorton Ainé, 1912, p. 154; Manet 1832–1883, cat. no. 146, pp. 370–73.
39. See Antonin Proust, "L'Art d'Edouard Manet," Le Studio, Jan. 15, 1901, p. 71.
40. Manet 1832–1883, cat. nos. 65–67, pp. 183–186.
41. Ibid., cat. nos. 3–4, pp. 48–52.
42. Only one painting, begun in 1869, was developed extensively from drawings; see Alain de Leiris, "Manet: Sur la plage de Boulogne," Gazette des Beaux-Arts, vol. 57 (1961), pp. 53–62. In addition, Manet evidently relied on a notebook sketch for The Ragpicker, 1869, Norton Simon Foundation, Los Angeles. Except for A Bar at the Folies Bergère (see Manet 1832–1883, cat. nos. 211–212, pp. 478–484), Manet likewise did not work out ideas in small oil sketches, as did most artists. The reduced scale version of Le déjeuner sur l'herbe, Courtauld Institute Galleries, London, is a "replica" of the large version, and its authenticity has been the subject of debate since it first appeared on the market around 1924.
43. Duret, p. 37.
44. See Manet 1832–1883, cat. no. 38, pp. 122–126; and Michael Wilson, Manet at Work, National Gallery, London, 1983, pp. 16–19.
45. For the first oil version, see Denis Rouart and Daniel Wildenstein, Eduoard Manet, Catalogue raisonné, Paris and Lausanne, La Bibliothèque des arts, 1975, I, 124 (cat. no. 133); and Manet at Work, pp. 46-47. For the drawing see Manet 1832–1883, cat. no. 116, p. 308.
46. Stéphane Mallarmé, "The Impressionists and Eduoard Manet," The Art Monthly Review, Sept. 1876; reprinted in Documents Stéphane Mallarmé, ed. Carl Paul Barbier, Paris, Librarie Nizet, 1968, p. 69.
47. Proust (Feb. 15, 1897), p. 177.
48. Moreau-Nélaton, II, 87 and 99.
49. Baudelaire, section VII.
50. Blanche, 1919, p. 138.
51. Edmond Bazire, Manet, Paris, A. Quantin, 1884, p. 100.
52. Manet 1832–1883, cat. no. 97, pp. 258–260.
53. See M.L. d'Otrange-Mastai, "Au Jardin—Two Manet Versions in America," Apollo, vol. LXIV (Dec. 1956), p. 173.
54. For example, Proust, 1901, p. 76.
55. Antonin Proust, Edouard Manet—Souvenirs, Paris, Librarie Renouard, 1913, pp. 102–103.
56. Bertall, "L'Exposition de M. Manet," Paris-Journal, Apr. 30, 1876. In Zola's The Masterpiece, p. 256, Claude Lantier's Open Air undergoes a similar change.
57. Blanche, 1912, pp. 156–157.
58. Ambroise Vollard, Renoir, Paris, G. Crès & Co., 1920, p. 123. See also Henry Dauberville, La bataille d'Impressionisme, Paris Bernheim-Jeune, 1967, p. 215.
59. Moreau-Nélaton archives, Bibliothèque Nationale (Cabinet des estampes), Paris. This register, donated to the library in 1929, has still not been catalogued and thus remains unknown to most specialists. It is a bound notebook with pages numbered 1–327 (missing 307–308, evidently by mistake). Each page bears Léon Leenhoff's annotations for a single work. His original pencil notes generally indicate title, dimensions and whether or not the work was signed, framed or photographed; his subsequent anno-

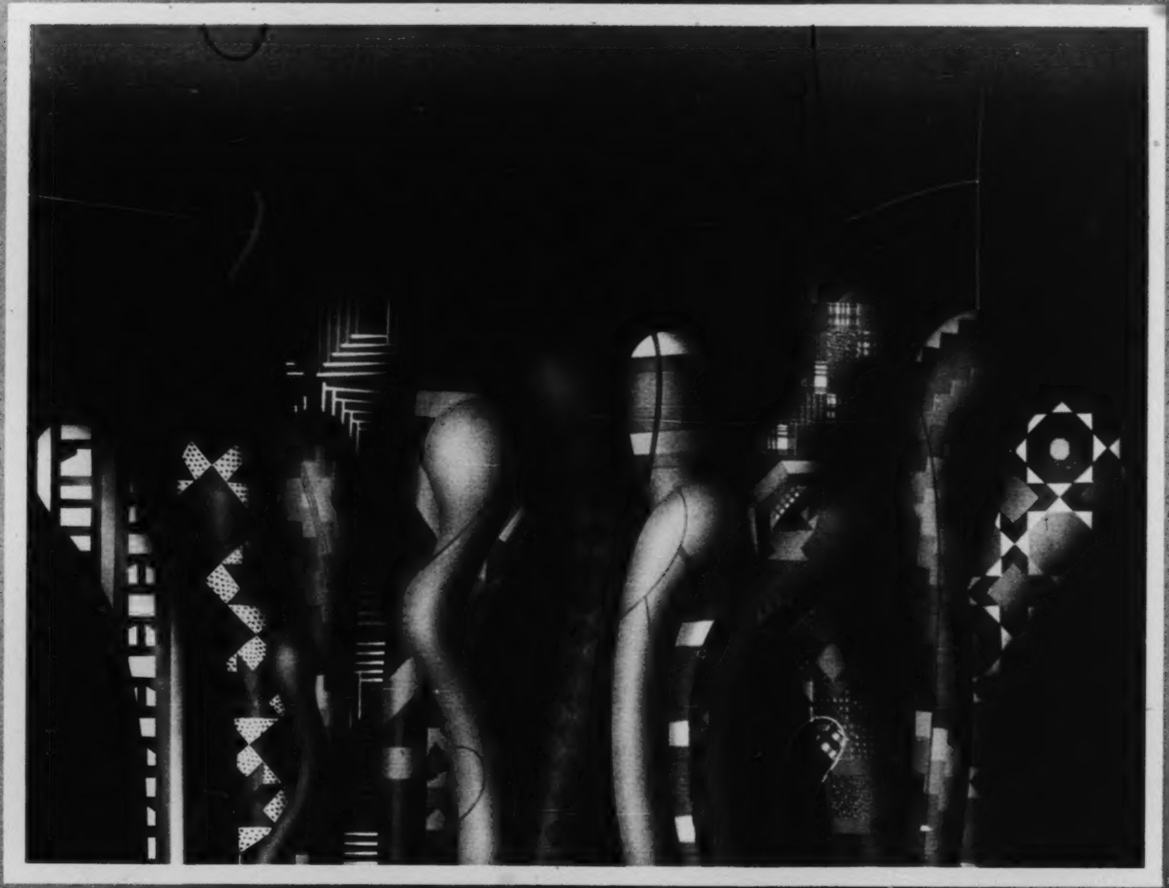
VOL
71

ISS
10

NO

1983

UMI



YANKEL GINZBURG
SALUTES AMERICANA with
"QUILTED"
A NEW SILKSCREEN PRINTED ON ARCHES IN AN EDITION OF 250

TRULY INC.
PO Box 56-1863
Miami, Fla. 33156
(305) 576-2473

PLEASE SEND ME YANKEL GINZBURG'S "QUILTED" SIZE 25" x 33" ($900.00)
CHECK ENCLOSED ____ VISA ____ MASTERCARD ____ EXP. DATE ____
SIGNATURE ____ CARD NO. ____
NAME ____ ADDRESS ____
CITY ____ STATE ____ ZIP ____
FLORIDA RESIDENTS ADD 5% SALES TAX ALLOW 3-4 WEEKS FOR DELIVERY
DEALER INQUIRIES WELCOME

ART IN AMERICA PRESENTS THE FIRST POST-MODERN CHRISTMAS GIFT:

Art in America

COLUMN NOT INCLUDED.

BUSINESS REPLY CARD
FIRST CLASS PERMIT NO. 542 MARION, OHIO

POSTAGE WILL BE PAID BY

Art in America
542 PACIFIC AVENUE
MARION, OHIO 43306

NO POSTAGE
NECESSARY
IF MAILED
IN THE
UNITED STATES

BUSINESS REPLY CARD
FIRST CLASS PERMIT NO. 542 MARION, OHIO

POSTAGE WILL BE PAID BY

Art in America
542 PACIFIC AVENUE
MARION, OHIO 43306

NO POSTAGE
NECESSARY
IF MAILED
IN THE
UNITED STATES

VOL 7 1
ISS 10
NO
1983
UMI

This holiday season ART IN AMERICA is offering extraordinary savings on gift subscriptions. Each gift order is only $24.95 – 28% off the regular one year rate of $34.95!

FIRST GIFT

☐ Please send a one year gift subscription to the person(s) listed. I pay only $24.95 for each subscription, more than 45% off the cover price.

My Name
Address
City State Zip
Recipient's Name
Address
City State Zip
Gift card to read from

ADDITIONAL GIFTS

Recipient's Name
Address
City State Zip
Gift card to read from
Recipient's Name
Address
City State Zip
Gift card to read from

☐ Check/money order enclosed ☐ VISA ☐ Mastercard ☐ Bill me.

Card # ______ Exp. date ______ Signature ______

EL301

In US Possessions and Canada, add $8 per subscription, elsewhere, add $15 per subscription. Offer good through 2/28/84

This holiday season ART IN AMERICA is offering extraordinary savings on gift subscriptions. Each gift order is only $24.95 – 28% off the regular one year rate of $34.95!

FIRST GIFT

☐ Please send a one year gift subscription to the person(s) listed. I pay only $24.95 for each subscription, more than 45% off the cover price.

My Name
Address
City State Zip
Recipient's Name
Address
City State Zip
Gift card to read from

ADDITIONAL GIFTS

Recipient's Name
Address
City State Zip
Gift card to read from
Recipient's Name
Address
City State Zip
Gift card to read from

☐ Check/money order enclosed ☐ VISA ☐ Mastercard ☐ Bill me

Card # ______ Exp. date ______ Signature ______

EL301

In US Possessions and Canada, add $8 per subscription, elsewhere, add $15 per subscription. Offer good through 2/28/84 tations in ink regard dates, models, exhibitions and sales.

60. The will and inventory are published in Jamot and Wildenstein, I, 105–108; and Rouart and Wildenstein, I, 25–28.

61. Moreau-Nélaton archives.

62. Adolphe Tabarant, Manet et ses oeuvres, Paris, Gallimard, 1947, pp. 518–519.

63. Moreau-Nélaton, II, 23.

64. Manet 1832–1883, pp. 277 and 446–447.

65. Beatrice Farwell, "Manet's Nymphe surprise," The Burlington Magazine, CXVII (April 1975) pp. 225–29.

66. Tabarant, p. 275; he discusses another example, La Liseuse, on pp. 342–3.

67. Daniel Wildenstein, interviewed by Souren Melikian, "That's not a Manet—I painted it myself," Réalités, no. 196 (March 1967) p. 56. The Montpellier painting, already "finished," was included in Ausstellung Edouard Manet 1832–1883, Berlin, Galerie Matthiessen, Feb. 6–Mar. 18, 1928, cat. no. 44 (pl. 42).

68. Register (see note 59) nos. 103, 296, 297, 298. Tabarant, 1947, pp. 302–312, discusses this group.

69. Register (see note 59) nos. 101, 102, 106. For an account of the sittings for these portraits see Theodore Duret, Histoire de Edouard Manet et de son oeuvre, Paris, Bernheim-Jeune, 1926, pp. 122–3.

70. Jacques-Emile Blanche, Manet, Paris, Les Editions Rieder, 1928, p. 58.

71. Jacques-Emile Blanche, More Portraits of a Lifetime, 1919–1938, trans. Walter Clement, London, J.M. Dent & Sons, 1939, p. 147.

72. Julie Manet, Journal (1893–1899), Paris, C. Klincksieck, 1979, p. 213.

73. Ibid., p. 214.

74. Ibid., p. 215.

75. Unpublished letter, Tabarant archives, The Pierpont Morgan Library, New York.

76. Manet, p. 216.

77. Blanche, 1939, p. 148.

78. Manet, p. 227.

79. Ibid., p. 230.

80. Unpublished letter, Tabarant archives, The Pierpont Morgan Library, New York.

81. Of these 12 volumes, each with annotations by Léon Leenhoff similar to those in his register (see note 59), three are now in the Tabarant archives, The Pierpont Morgan Library, New York; eight are at the Galerie Bernheim-Jeune, Paris; and one is in the Moreau-Nélaton archives, Bibliothèque nationale (Cabinet des estampes), Paris. The Moreau-Nélaton archives contain eight additional albums (apparently made up for the scholar at a later date), lacking annotations by Leenhoff, as well as more than 100 loose "Lochard" prints. There are additional loose photographs in the Tabarant archives. Perhaps some of the loose ones belonged to three albums once in the possession of the dealer Camentron and eventually dispersed, according to Tabarant, 1947, p. 518.

82. Blanche, 1939, p. 148.

83. Tabarant, 1947, no. 606; Alain de Leiris, The Drawings of Edouard Manet, Berkeley and Los Angeles, University of California Press, 1969, cat. no. 430; and Rouart and Wildenstein, II, 146, cat. no. 392.

84. Moreau-Nélaton, II, 24.

85. Tabarant, pp. 35–36; and see also p. 524.

86. Ibid.

87. Ibid., pp. 35–6.

88. Unpublished letter, Tabarant archives, The Pierpont Mogan Library, New York.

89. "Documents Léon Leenhoff," Tabarant archives, Morgan Library, New York.

90. Adolphe Tabarant, Manet Histoire catalographique, Paris, Editions Montaigne, 1931, p. 69. J.G. Walker, Self-Portrait with Donors, Boston and Toronto, Little Brown, 1974, pp. 197–198, discusses this copy's subsequent history.

91. Tabarant, 1947, p. 518.

92. Tabarant archives, The Pierpont Morgan Library, New York.

93. Manet 1832–1883, cat. nos. 172, 175, pp. 418–423. As has been discussed, the version today in the National Gallery of London was originally part of a large café scene that Manet cut in half before 1880. For the most recent discussion of this important change see Sarah Jane Checkland and Danny Halperin, "A Manet Mystery is Solved," The Telegraph Sunday Magazine, July 31, 1983, pp. 16–19; see also Wilson, Manet at Work, pp. 45–47.

94. Manet, 1832–1883, cat no. 173, pp. 421–423.

95. Tabarant, 1947, p. 519.

96. Marthe de Fels, La Vie de Claude Monet, Paris, Gallimard, 1929, pp. 198–99. The fate of unfinished paintings in Monet's estate has never been systematically investigated; see Charles F. Stuckey, "Blossoms and Blunders: Monet and the State, II," Art in America, vol. 67, no. 5 (Sept. 1979), p. 116.

Collectors • Dealers • Museums

FINE ARTS INSURANCE SPECIALISTS

HUNTINGTON T. BLOCK INSURANCE

2101 L Street, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20037
Telephone (202) 223-0673
Toll Free (800) 424-8830
Telex 892596

VOL
7
1
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI

Porfirio DiDonna

DRAWINGS

1971—1983

November 12 — December 3, 1983

NIELSEN GALLERY
179 NEWBURY ST., BOSTON, MA
02116 (617) 266-4835

BASKERVILLE+WATSON

SHERRIE LEVINE
NEW WATERCOLORS AND PHOTOGRAPHS

NOVEMBER 22–
DECEMBER 22

ADOLF BENCA

ERIC HOFFMAN

JOHN McKINNON

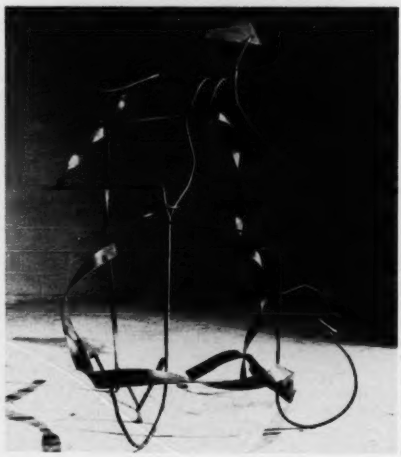
THROUGH NOVEMBER

THE TWINING GALLERY INC.

33 BLEECKER ST., NYC 10012 (212) 674-2070

JAMES WOLFE

NEW SCULPTURE



Tippet, 1983 Steel 7'1" x 5' x 4'7"

STEPHEN ROSENBERG GALLERY
212 431-4838

LARGE STEEL SCULPTURE
Nov 5 to Nov 17 / 112 Greene Street, New York

STEEL SCULPTURE & WORKS ON PAPER
Nov 5 to Dec 10 / 115 Wooster Street, New York

NEW YORK UNIVERSITY

80 Washington Square East Galleries

8th ANNUAL COMPETITION

— SMALL WORKS —

(IN ANY MEDIA — NOT TO EXCEED 12" IN ANY DIMENSION)

CASH AWARDS

TO BE JURIED BY CARROLL JANIS, OF SIDNEY
JANIS GALLERY, NEW YORK
ALL ENTRIES DUE JANUARY 7-14,1984
EXHIBITION OF ACCEPTED WORK FROM

FEBRUARY 4th - MARCH 2

FOR ENTRY BLANKS AND RULES, OR FOR INFORMATION REGARDING PROGRAMS IN THE DEPARTMENT OF ART AND ART EDUCATION AT NEW YORK UNIVERSITY FILL OUT COUPON AND RETURN TO

80 WASHINGTON SQUARE EAST GALLERIES, NEW YORK UNIVERSITY
80 WASHINGTON SQUARE EAST, NEW YORK, N.Y. 10003

SEND ME INFORMATION ON:
☐ UNDERGRADUATE PROGRAMS IN ART
☐ GRADUATE PROGRAMS IN STUDIO ART ☐ COSTUME DESIGN MASTERS DEGREE
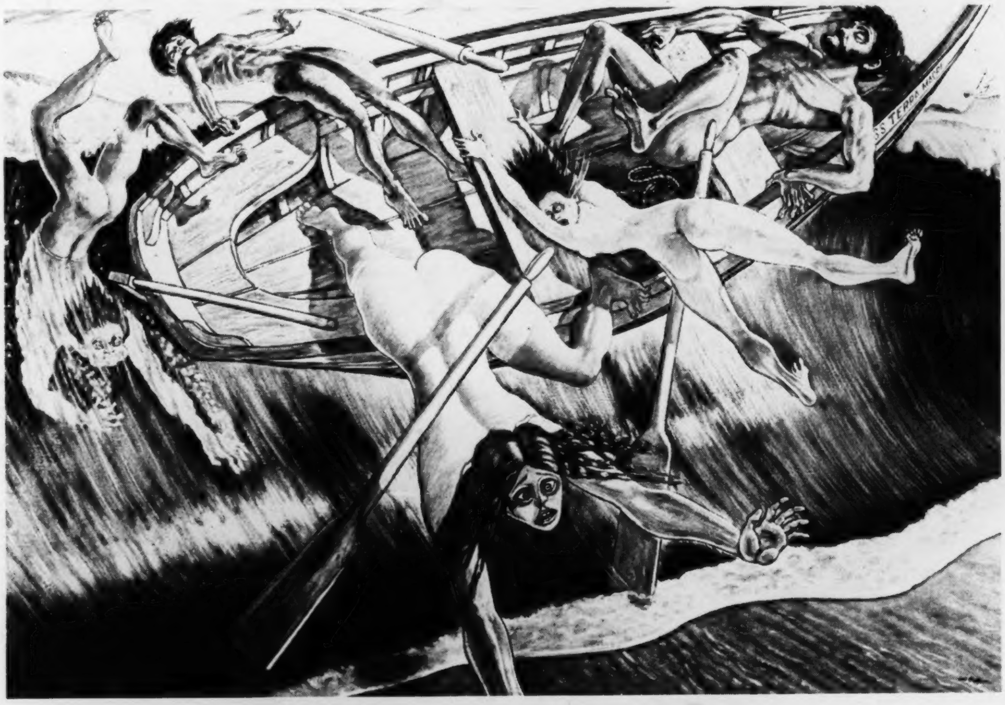
☐ VENICE PROGRAM — SUMMER
☐ "SMALL WORKS COMPETITION"
☐ FOLK ART MASTERS DEGREE
☐ MUSEUM ADMINISTRATION MASTERS DEGREE

NAME ____________________

ADDRESS ____________________



PELLICONE

Paintings 1940 - 1983

BELANTHI gallery

212-855-2769

142 Court Street
Brooklyn, N.Y. 11201

VOL
71
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI

GEORGE SNYDER
Paintings, Color Tubes

Current exhibition:
City Art Gallery
Grand Rapids, MI

December:
Eva Cohon Gallery
Highland Park, IL

PAULA CLENDENIN
Collagraphs, Etchings

Current exhibition:
Susan Parke Gallery
Urbana, IL

December:
Shepherd College
Shepherdstown, WV
Visiting Artist

afi
Exclusive Representation
Arts Focus Inc.
401 Capitol St., Charleston, WV 25301
(304) 345-9059
San Francisco Bay Area, 3708 Mt. Diablo Blvd.
Suite 210, Lafayette, CA 94549
(415) 284-7703

~LATIN~ AMERICAN MASTERS

Including works by:

CARRINGTON	MERIDA
CUEVAS	OROZCO
JAVIER	SIQUEIROS
LAM	TAMAYO
MATTA	TOLEDO

ZUÑIGA
and others.

NOV.15—DEC.3

Brewster Gallery
41 West 57th Street · (212) 980-1975

FOLON

WATERCOLORS AND OTHER WORKS ON PAPER

"L'Estampe," 1976 watercolor
October 15-November 19, 1983
PASQUALE IANNETTI ART GALLERIES
575 Sutter Street, San Francisco, CA 94102 (415) 433-2771

JOHN-FRANKLIN KOENIG

Vermarz, 1982, 52 by 38 inches new paintings and collages

November 3 — November 30

Greg Kucera Gallery
608 Second Avenue Seattle, WA 98104 (206)624-0770

GERMAN EXPRESSIONISM: THE BUCHHEIM COLLECTION

First exhibition in the United States of the works of the early 20th century masters of German Expressionism, assembled by Lothar Buchheim, painter, publisher, and author of "Das Boot."

Presented by the City of Philadelphia and the Federal Republic of Germany in honor of the German-American Tricentennial Celebration. Underwritten by a grant from the SmithKline Corporation.

OCTOBER 7 through
NOVEMBER 20, 1983

PORT OF HISTORY MUSEUM
AT PENN'S LANDING

Delaware Avenue at Walnut Street,
Philadelphia, Penna. (215-925-3804)

Wednesdays-Sundays, 10 a.m.-4:30 p.m.

ALTERNATIVE GALLERIES

AMOS ENO 101 WOOSTER ST
Jane McClintock October 29 - November 17
Lori Lawrence November 19 - December 8

ATLANTIC 458 W BROADWAY
Carol Levin David Ray
November 8 - November 27

BOWERY 121 WOOSTER
Carolyn Virgil November 11 - November 30

CENTRAL HALL 386 W BROADWAY
Kathie Brown October 25 - November 13
Group Show November 13 - December 4

FIRST STREET 386 W BROADWAY
Mary Ann Perry November 11 - November 30

GALLERY 84 30 W 57 ST
Theodora Gavenchak November 1 - November 12
Helen Muller November 15 - November 26

NOHO 168 MERCER ST
Olga Sheirr November 8 - November 27

PHOENIX 30 W 57 ST
Rollie Guild, James Weber, Invited Artists
November 1 - November 26

PINDAR 127 GREENE ST
Phyllis Hammond Karen Lewis
November 8 - November 27

PLEIADES 164 MERCER ST
Beatrice Riese Martin Schreiber
November 8 - November 27

SOHO 20 469 BROOME ST
Linda Cunningham
November 5 - November 30
Margot Lovejoy (Invitational Space)

22 WOOSTER 22 WOOSTER
Samia A. Halaby Suzanne McClelland
November 1 - November 26

VIRIDIAN 51 W 57TH ST
Jane Willoughby
November 8 - November 26

WARD-NASSE
Susan Harriet Gross Joel A. Hofflich
Luis Pardini Ian Beckett Smith
November 5 - November 24

ASSOCIATION OF ARTIST-RUN GALLERIES

VOL
7
1
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI

Roy Boyd Chicago

Dan Ramirez
Paintings

215 W. Superior
Chicago 60610

312 642 1606

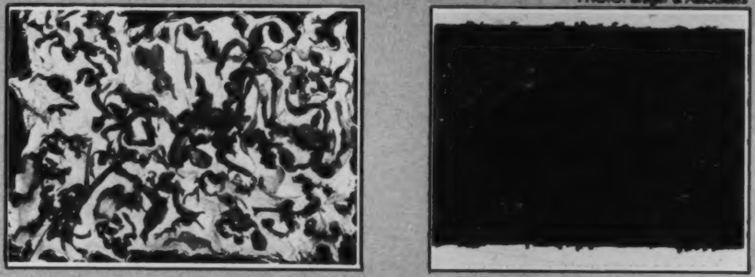
Roy Boyd Los Angeles

Richard Overstreet
Paintings

170 S. La Brea
Los Angeles 90036

213 938 2328

PHOTO: Brager & Associates



C. GRIMALDIS GALLERY
928 n. charles, balto., md. 21201 301/539-1080

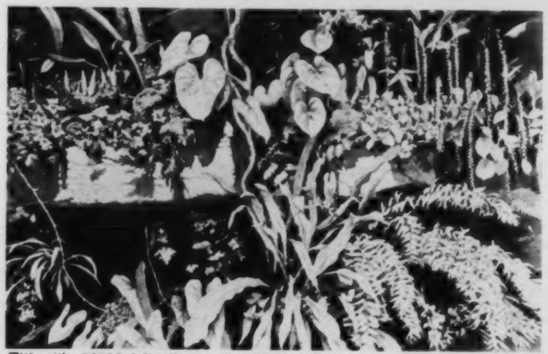
CHRISTINE NEILL
New Works on Paper
November 3 – 27, 1983

SYLVIA BENITEZ
Paper Tapestries
November 3 – 27, 1983

Left: "Night Beach" Mixed Media on Paper 43" x 60"
Right: "Baltimore Paper Tapestry"
Woven Paper Bags & Canvas –
Mixed Media 8'x 10'

Matthews Hamilton Gallery
262 South 16 Street
Philadelphia PA 19102 Telephone 215/545-5308

Works on Paper
November 1983



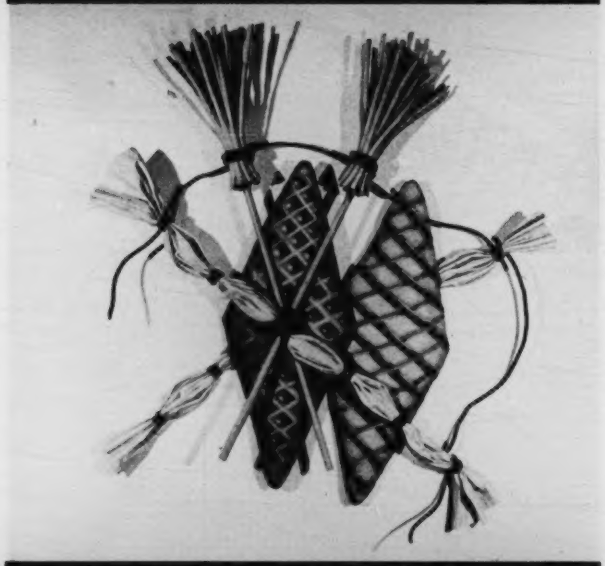
Title: "Lush Habitat", acrylic, 60 w. x 32 h.

CARL E. SCHWARTZ

Month of November

Joy Horwich Gallery
226 East Ontario, Chicago, IL 60611 312-787-7486

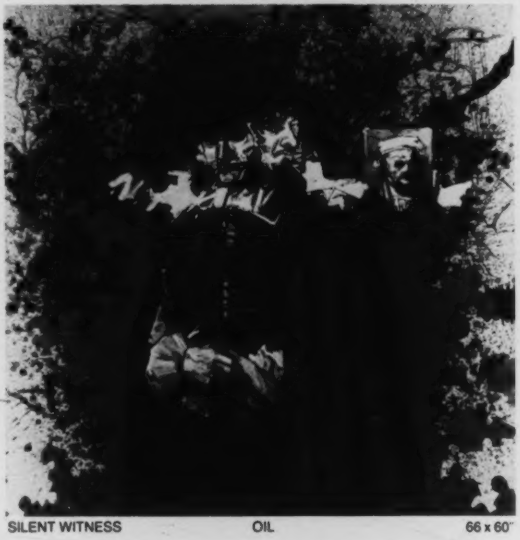
VICTORIA FULLER



YOU CAN COME ALONE AT HOME [illegible] '84 CANVAS, WIRE, ACRYLIC, OTHER MEDIA

WALL RELIEFS & PAPER
NOVEMBER 26-DECEMBER 15
WESTBROADWAY GALLERY
431 WEST BROADWAY NEW YORK 10012 (212) 966-2520

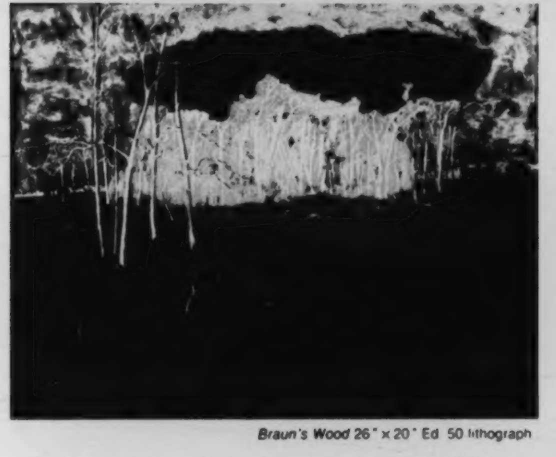
JOHN DAWSON
"NEW OLD MASTERS"



SILENT WITNESS OIL 66 x 60"

NOV 19 — DEC 17

SEGAL
GALLERY
63 East 57 Street, New York, N.Y. 10022 (212) 486-2297



Braun's Wood 26" x 20" Ed. 50 lithograph

EMIL WEDDIGE
Lithographs

November 17 - December 6, 1983

Hammerquist Gallery, Inc.
419 Third Avenue New York 10016
(212) 889-8173

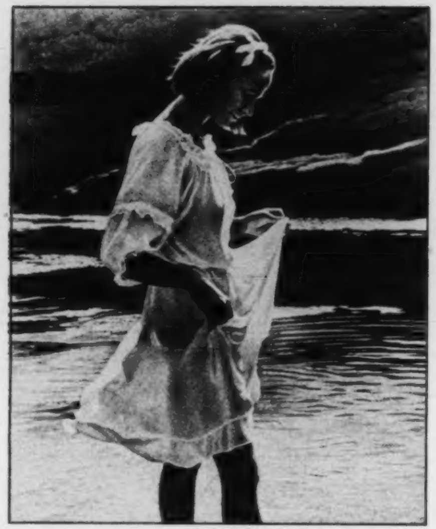
Artists'
Illustrated Books

Robert Kushner
Sol LeWitt
Pat Steir
Wayne Thiebaud

Crown Point Press

1555 San Pablo Oakland CA 94612 (415) 835-5121
545 Broadway New York NY 10012 (212) 226-5476

VOL 71
ISS 10
NO
1983
UMI



ALONG THE SHORE Lithograph 1983

KEN DANBY · NEW WORKS

November 26-December 14,1983

GALLERY MOOS LTD.

136 Yorkville Ave., Toronto, Ontario M5R 1C2 (416) 922-0627
Hours: Tuesday - Saturday 11 a.m. - 6 p.m.

NADEŽDA VITOROVIĆ

New Drawings.

Leading Belgrade Artist.

November 3 – November 25

Monday thru Saturday
10 a.m. – 5 p.m.

Nathan Silberberg Fine Arts
16 East 79th Street, New York, NY 10021 • 212-861-6192

DISCOVER
THE BEST IN FLORIDA

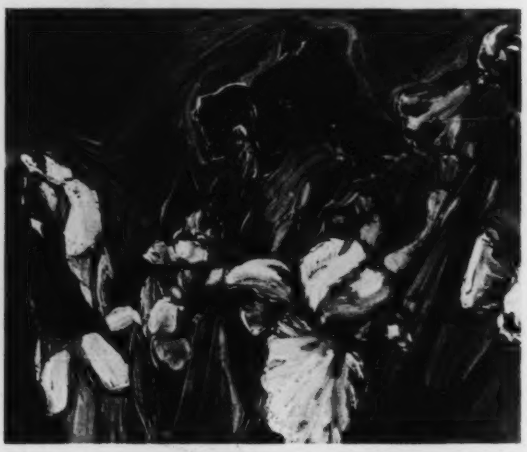
Barbara
Gillman
Gallery

270 N.E. 39th St.
Miami, Florida 33137
(305) 573-4898

3886 Biscayne Blvd
Miami, Florida 33137
(305) 573-4898

DIANE LAWRENCE

OILS and WATERCOLORS



"Iris Bed" Oil on Canvas, 20" x 24"

November 4-26

db

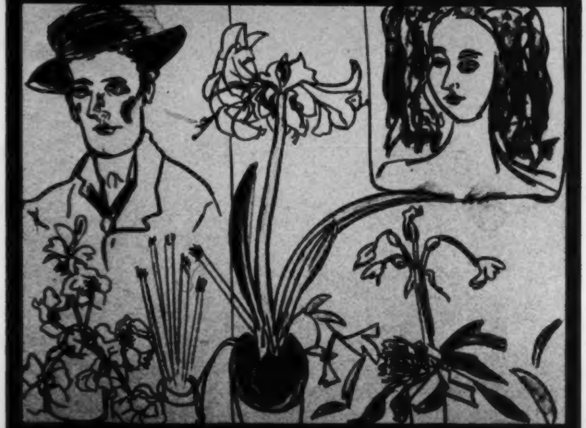
DONALD BATMAN GALLERY
825 WESTPORT RD., KANSAS CITY, MO. 64111, (816)531-2588

SY ROSS

20 OCTOBER—19 NOVEMBER

SERRA · DI · FELICE
THE PUCK BUILDING. 295 LAFAYETTE ST. NEW YORK

Fay Lansner



Male & Female, Amaryllis, Anemone & Brushes, charcoal on paper, 38 x 50 inches

drawings
november 1 to november 19

ingber gallery
460 West Broadway NYC (212) 674-0101

Fine Arts
of The Netherlands

Dutch Art Galleries in New York second exhibition important 17th-19th century old master paintings and antiquities

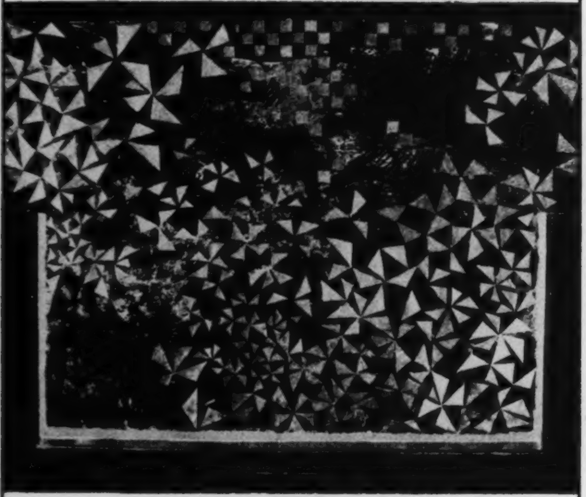
The Waldorf-Astoria Hotel
Lobby Park Avenue
Empire Room

November 22 through December 4
1983

Daily 10 a.m. - 10 p.m.
Sundays 10 a.m. - 8 p.m.

Art Gallery P. de Boer · Amsterdam
Waterman Art Gallery · Amsterdam
Douwes Fine Art · Amsterdam
P. Hoogendijk · Art Objects · Baarn
A. C. Beeling · Antique Dutch Silver · Leeuwarden

SUSAN COPLEY



Parable, 1983, MM on Canvas. 60"x72"

Recent Paintings
November 4 - 26

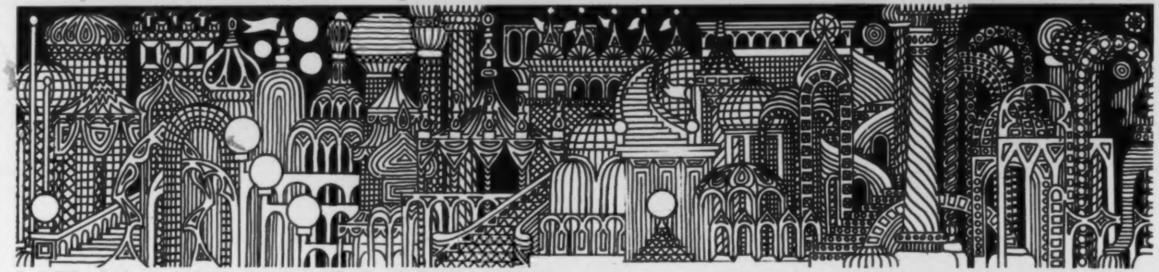
malton gallery
2709 Observatory Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio 45208
(513) 321-8614

VOL
7
1
ISS
1 0
NO
1983
UMI

REPRESENTING THE FINEST IN CERAMIC ART •
OFFERING SERVICES TO THE CORPORATE COLLECTOR

13225 SHAKER SQUARE CLEVELAND, OHIO 44120 216/491-8062

DBRGALLERY



LIZ WHITNEY QUISGARD Architectural Fantasies & Other Paintings
November 1 through December 2
MMC Gallery at Marymount Manhattan College 221 East 71st Street, New York City 10021

JOHN BORDEN EVANS
PAINTINGS

DAVIDSON COLLEGE ART GALLERY NOVEMBER

"Moon Ra", Slate, 10" x 79".

JORDAN
NOVEMBER 19 - JANUARY 3
THE SANDE WEBSTER GALLERY
2018 LOCUST STREET • PHILADELPHIA, PA 19103
WS

Brentwood Gallery

Jack Earl September
Then and Now

New New York October
Haring, Scharf, DePalma, Futura 2000

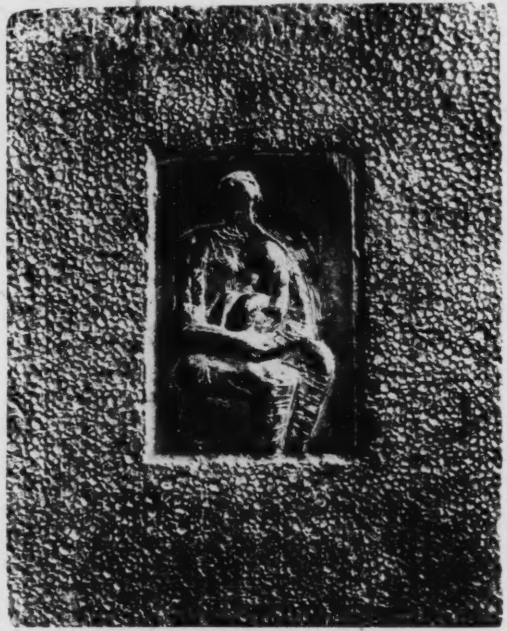
Joe Zucker November
Paintings and Drawings

Bill Stewart
Ceramic Kingdoms

Thom Bohnert December
Expanded Vessels

Art to Wear

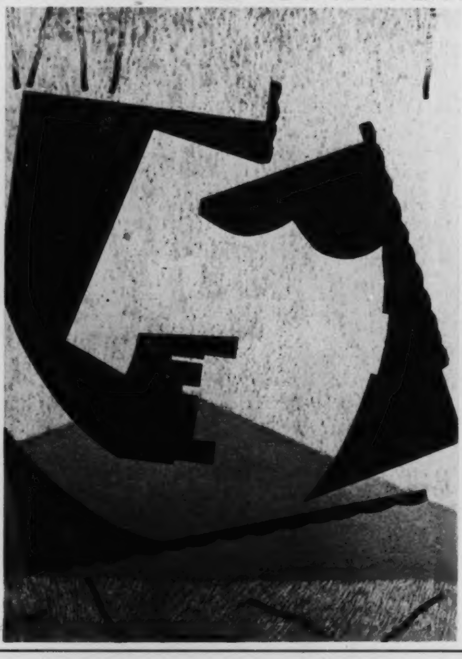
1221 South Brentwood Boulevard
Saint Louis, Missouri 63117
(314) 863-0808



HENRY MOORE, O.M., C.H.
"SEATED MOTHER AND CHILD" 1977 BRONZE RELIEF, 12¾ x 10 x ½ INCHES

DOMINION GALLERY
1438 Sherbrooke St. West, Montreal H3G 1K4
514-845-7471 and 7833

NANETTE CARTER



ERICSON GALLERY

23 East 74th Street New York, N. Y.
737-6155

LI-LAN
New Paintings

November 12 through
December 3

O.K. HARRIS
383 W. Broadway, New York 10012
Telephone (212) 431-3600

VOL
71
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI

ANNOUNCING THE PUBLICATION OF THE CATALOGUE RAISONNE ON THE PRINTS OF G.H. ROTHE

G. H. Rothe
Master of the Mezzotint
G. H. Rothe

trade edition copy 11 x 11⅞ inches

A complete pictorial reference of every mezzotint printed by the artist. More than 168 color illustrations and 40 black and white illustrations. Deluxe leather bound, gold stamped edition limited to 1000 signed and numbered by the artist, accompanied by a limited edition mezzotint signed and numbered by the artist.

Retrospective Exhibition
Celebrating 10 Years in Mezzotint
November 14-26, 1983

Hammer Publishing
33 West 57th Street · New York, N.Y. 10019 · 212-644-6371

Art Books and Illustrated Books

Ars Libri, Ltd. specializes in rare and scholarly books in the fine arts and in illustrated books from the fifteenth to the twentieth century. Our stock of art reference material includes monographs, catalogues raisonné, periodicals and documents relevant to all periods and all fields of art history.

We issue catalogues regularly and provide quotations upon request. We make periodic offerings as well of scholarly libraries and collections, and of original prints and photographs.

Currently available:
Catalogue 41: Drawings
Catalogue 40: Dutch and Flemish Art
Catalogue 39: German Art Before 1800
Catalogue 38: European Art of the Nineteenth Century
Catalogue 37: American Art
Catalogue 36: British Art

ars libri, ltd.

286 Summer Street, Boston, MA 02210 U.S.A.
tel. (617) 357-5212 / telex: 95 1075 (Ars Libri, BSN)
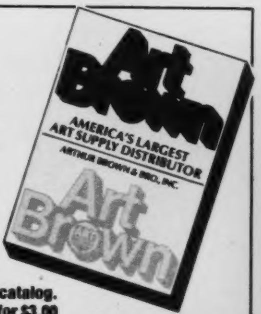
cable: Ars Libri, BSN

YOU SHOULD HAVE OUR NEW CATALOG!



Art Brown
AMERICA'S LARGEST ART SUPPLY DISTRIBUTOR
ARTHUR BROWN & BRO., INC.
Art Brown

The Art Brown catalog is virtually an "encyclopedia of materials" for everyone interested in any form of artwork. 228-pages and color inserts illustrate and describe over 20,000 products from the world's best sources. It's a one-stop shopping center for art supplies!

We'll make it attractive for you to order our catalog. Send in the coupon below with your check for $3.00 to cover mailing and handling costs.

—AND HERE'S WHAT WE'LL DO IN RETURN!

1. We'll send our big 260-page catalog
2. plus we'll give you a $5.00 credit slip towards your first order!

3. plus our 40-page "International Pen Shop" catalog in full color.

4. plus we'll ship your first order prepaid. (That's worth $!)

. . . you'll get back several times the amount you remit for the catalog!

Attached is check for $3.00 for catalogs and credit slips C987

Name____________________________________

Address__________________________________

City/State/Zip______________________________

America's Largest Art Supply Distributor
ARTHUR BROWN & BRO., INC.
2 West 46th Street, New York, N.Y. 10036

New updated edition of the most complete catalog ever assembled

- Lists the 7,000 known prints (with title, description, date of publication, and size)
- 89 of the rarest and most precious prints reproduced

CURRIER & IVES PRINTS

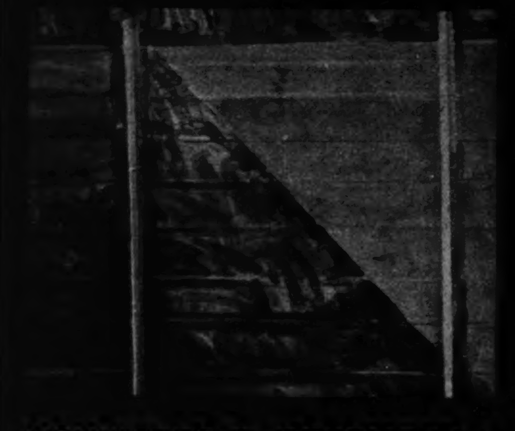
An Illustrated Check List
by FREDERIC A. CONNINGHAM

New foreword by Robert L. Searjeant

Paper $9.95, cloth $13.95; now at your bookstore, or send check or money order to Crown Publishers, Inc., One Park Ave., N.Y., N.Y. 10016. Please add $1.40 postage and handling charge. N.Y. and N.J. residents, add sales tax.

CROWN PUBLISHERS Inc.

JOSEPH CALS
OF HOLLAND
paintings and works on paper



NOVEMBER 6, DECEMBER 1
Susan Montezinos Gallery
1628 PINE ST., PHILADELPHIA, PA 19103 215-735-3235

Edward S. Curtis Kwakiutl House Press

EDWARD S. CURTIS
Original prints, gravures and orotones
December 8 - January 7

ALBERT RENGER-PATZSCH
Vintage German photographs 1920's - 40's
November 1 - December 3

Ledel GALLERY
168 MERCER STREET
NEW YORK, NY 10012
OPEN TUES-SAT 12-6pm
(212) 966-7659

NEW YORK STUDIO SCHOOL

Lecture Series 1983/84

JANET ABRAMOWICZ
LAWRENCE ALLOWAY
NICOLAS CALAS
PEDRO CUPERMAN
LOUIS FINKELSTEIN
ANDREW FORGE
CLEMENT GREENBERG
DONALD KUSPIT
ANNETTE MICHELSON
GEORGE McNEIL
LEO STEINBERG
WILLIAM TUCKER

8 WEST 8 STREET NEW YORK, N.Y. 10011 (212) 673-6466

PRINTWORLD

☐ 12,000 print listings
☐ 825 top artists profiles
☐ 600 photos ☐ 512 pages

1983/84 PRINTWORLD DIRECTORY

PRINTWORLD DIRECTORY is unique! It is the only print/price catalog with complete documentation of limited edition prints.

PRINTWORLD DIRECTORY quotes the market price of current & sold out editions. It also lists awards, exhibits, publishers, etc. for each artist. It provides complete addresses of print workshops, publishers and galleries.

PRINTWORLD DIRECTORY is a "must" reference for anyone actively involved in the print marketplace . . . an invaluable guide for galleries, collectors, appraisers, collectors, libraries, etc. Send for your copy today! The complete international print reference guide!

Postage/Handling: USA $5, Outside USA $10, Air Mail Europe/Asia $20
1982 EDITION $35.00 NAME ____
1983 EDITION $49.95 ADDRESS ____
VISA/MC # ____ EXP ____

P.O. Box 785 • Bala Cynwyd, PA 19004 (215) 649-5140

VOL
71
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI

ATTENTION ARTISTS!
DOES THE NAME
RUBY BERGONSKI RING A BELL?
PROBABLY NOT BUT IF ANY OF THE FOLLOWING DO:

WINSOR & NEWTON, GRUMBACHER, LEFRANC, HOLBEIN, LIQUITEX, TALENS, PELIKAN, BLOCKX, BOCOUR, ROWNEY, PERMALBA, SHIVA, MARKAL, PERCY BAKER, ISABEY, ROBERT SIMMONS, KOH-I-NOOR, BIENFANG, KRYLON, BEROL, DERWENT, D'ARCHES, WHATMAN, FABRIANO, CARAN D'ACHE, STAYCORE, NEOLT, TESTRITE, LUXO, BADGER, PAASCHE, THAYER & CHANDLER, ALTOS, C&H, DEXTER, FREDRIX, AND MORE...

YOU CAN FIND THEM AND OTHERS IN OUR HUGE DISCOUNT ART MATERIAL CATALOG.
YOURS FOR ONLY $1.00. OH, IF RUBY BERGONSKI DOES RING A BELL, SEND $2.00 FOR SPECIAL RUSH SERVICE.

☐ YES SEND ME YOUR CURRENT CATALOG.
ENCLOSED IS $1.00 AND MY NAME AND ADDRESS

Name
Street Town
State Zip

JERRY'S ARTARAMA INC.
117 SOUTH SECOND ST. NEW HYDE PARK, NY 11040 516 328-6633 ASK FOR DEPT. AIA

shiva®

LIQUID MASQUE™
LIQUID FRISKET WITH COLOR KEY

shiva
LIQUID MASQ
NET: 2 1/2 FL.OZ.(7
shiva
LIQUID MASQUE™

A smooth flowing liquid frisket that may be applied with brush or pen. Masks areas with a protective, highly visible colored film. Easily removed by peeling or rubbing with a soft eraser. Will not stain paper or board. For use with watercolors, tempera, acrylics or Shivair airbrush colors.
Also available - Liquid Masque Brush Cleaner

shiva®
4300 West 190th Street
Torrance, CA 90805-2908
Telephone: (213) 542-5583

CRITICS' LECTURE SERIES IV

Nov. 10
Paul Goldberger — Senior Architecture Critic for the New York Times.

Jan. 12
Carter Ratcliff — Poet, art critic and Contributing Editor of Art in America.

Feb. 16
John Simon — Author and film and drama critic for New York Magazine.

March 15
Rosamond Bernier — Journalist, lecturer and founder/ editor of the art magazine L'Oeil.

THE VISUAL ARTS GALLERY
Florida International University
Miami, Fla. 33139 (305) 554-2890

Kansas City Art Institute

A visit to our campus . . . will show you a 4-year college with spacious facilities. BFA programs in ceramics, design, fiber, painting, printmaking, photography and sculpture. In 1982-83, we granted $1,500,000 in aid and scholarships. Financial aid deadline Feb. 15. Apply now for Spring or Fall Semester admission.
Free Poster, Transfer Brochure
For more information write: Admissions, Dept. 008, KCAI, 4415 Warwick Blvd., KCMO, 64111 816.561.4852

ART SERVICES

ADVERTISING AGENCIES

WEBB DESIGN STUDIO/TAOS Circle No. 1
501 Ranchitos Road
Taos, NM 87571 (505) 758-3447
Graphic design to promote the arts: exhibition catalogues, brochures, advertisements, quality color postcards.

APPRAISERS

AUDREY REAL HELFAND Circle No. 2
945 Fifth Avenue Member: I.S.A.
New York, NY 10021 (212) 535-5972
Appraiser of European & American Fine Arts for Insurance, Gift-Tax, Property Division, & Estates. By Appointment

MARK KESHISHIAN AND SONS, INC. Circle No. 3
6930 Wisconsin Avenue, Chevy Chase, MD 20815 (301) 654-4044
836 Rockville Pike, Rockville, MD 20852 (301) 340-6666
James M. Keshishian, A.S.A., Harold M. Keshishian, Appraisal, Cleaning, Restoration and Sale of Oriental Rugs.

KELVYN G. LILLEY AND ASSOCIATES, INC. 4
620 North Michigan Ave., Suite 520
Chicago, IL 60611 (312) 787-0985
Fine and Decorative Arts, Appraisals and Consultations. Over 15 yrs Exp. Recognized by Major Insurance Companies.

PIERCE GALLERIES, INC. Circle No. 5
721 Main St. Route 228
Hingham, MA 02043 (617) 749-6023
19th and Early 20th Century American Art. By Appointment Only.

PROFESSIONAL ART SERVICES Circle No. 6
17765 Beach Drive, NE, Seattle, WA 98155 (206) 587-7214
Serving Pacific NW. Phd., History of Art, Member I.S.A. Appraiser of American & European Art. Advisor for diversified art investors. Experienced in Insurance, Legal, I.R.S.

TUCKER APPRAISAL ASSOCIATES Circle No. 7
River Oaks Shopping Center
Houston, TX 77019 (713) 529-8878
Independent Appraisers, Fine Art Only. We do not buy or sell. Mrs. Sally Tucker, Member: A.S.A., I.S.A., I.S.F.A.

ART BOOKS

ARS LIBRI Circle No. 8
286 Summer Street
Boston, Mass. 02210 (617) 357-5212
Rare & scholarly books in the fine arts. Illustrated books. Periodicals & documents in all fields of art history.

ART IN FORM Circle No. 9
P.O. Box 2567
Seattle, WA 98111 (206) 623-6381
Specializing in Contemporary Art Publications; Books, Periodicals, Recordings, Mail Order Catalog & Trade List Available.

PRINTED MATTER INC. Circle No. 10
7 Lispenard Street
New York, N.Y. 10013 (212) 925-0325
Books, Periodicals and Audioworks by Artists. 168 page catalog - $4 postage paid.

ART BROKERAGES

THE ART BROKERAGE INC. Circle No. 11
300 S. 4th St. 1503, Valley Bank Bldg.
Las Vegas, NV 98101 (702) 732-3999/385-1296
Free current list of Rockwell, Neiman, Erte' prints. Free appraisal. See display ad. List your art free.

ART CONSULTANTS

COLSON SCULPTURE SERVICE INT'L Circle No. 12
1375 5th Street
Sarasota, FL 33579 (813) 365-3818, 953-5892
Ceramics Shell Sculpture Casting Set-up and Related Information.

FIELDS AND ROSEN FINE ARTS, INC. Circle No. 13
115 Broadway
New York, N.Y. 10006 (212) 925-0030
Suppliers of Fine Arts for Corporation, Private Collections, Designers, Architects & Art Galleries.

MR. FRANZ VILA Circle No. 14
24 East 97th Street, Apt. 20
New York, NY 10029 (212) 410-1702
Advisory Counseling, Analysis & Critique For Corporations, Collectors. Research & Art Education.

ART POSTERS

PACE POSTERS Circle No. 15
115 East 23rd Street, New York, NY 10010 (212) 673-8240
Publisher & Exclusive Distributor of Fine Art Posters including List Art Posters, Save Our Planet, America: The Third Century Bicentennial Posters, Pace Gallery & Museum Posters.

POSTER ORIGINALS LTD. Circle No. 16
924 Madison Ave. New York, NY 10021 (212) 861-0422
158 Spring Street, New York, NY 10012 (212) 226-7720
Major Distributor of American and European Art Posters

ART SUPPLIES

THE ART STORE Circle No. 17
7200 West Beverly Blvd.
Los Angeles, CA 90036 (213) 933-9284
Quality artist material; save 10% to 30% off manufacturer's list.

GRUMBACHER Circle No. 18
460 West 34th Street
New York, NY 10001 (212) 279-6400
Fine quality art materials since 1905. See what our art can do for yours.

JERRY'S ARTARAMA, INC. Circle No. 19
248-12X Union Turnpike
Bellerose, NY 11426
Huge savings on art materials and picture frames.

KENNETH LYNCH & SONS Circle No. 20
Box 488, Wilton, CT 06897 (203) 762-8363
Picture hanging rods, mouldings, security devices, stanchions, vitrines, art storage racks, gallery carts, tablets, and plaques. FREE CATALOG.

RISING PAPER COMPANY Circle No. 21
Housatonic, MA 01236 (413) 274-3345
A full range of archival quality papers, pads and matboards for all artists and all media. Stonehenge, Dansk, Mirage, Gallery, Marker Layout, Photolene, Drawing Bristols, etc.

THE SAINT ARMAND PAPER MILL, INC. Circle No. 22
110 Young
Montreal, Canada H3C 2E7 (514) 935-7526
Finest Linen Watercolor Papers 22x30, 300lbs., $7.50/sheet:Samples.

SHIVA® INC. Circle No. 23
4320 West 190th Street
Torrance, CA 90509 (213) 542-5583
Artists PAINTSTIK®, Solid Oil Paint in Stick Form. Call (800) 421-1325

Continued

VOL 7 1 ISS 1 0 NO 1983 UMI

ART SERVICES

UTRECHT Circle No. 24
33 Thirty-Fifth Street
Brooklyn, NY 11232 (212) 768-2525
Major Manufacturer & Distributor of Art & Drafting Supplies at Impressive Savings. Free Catalog.

WINSOR & NEWTON Circle No. 25
555 Winsor Drive
Secaucus, NJ 07094
Manufacturers of the world's finest artists' materials since 1832.

COMPUTERIZED SERVICES

ARTSCAN Circle No. 26
1013 Madison Ave. New York, NY 10021
In NY State, 1-800-351-1300
Outside NY, 1-800-742-5500
International Communication Network for the Art World.

CONSERVATORS & RESTORERS

THE TOMSICH ART GALLERIES LTD. Circle No. 27
11916 Manchester Road
St. Louis, MO 63131 (314) 966-6777
Conservation of Oil Paintings, Art on Paper and Framing Conservation. Appraisals.

EXHIBITION CATALOGS

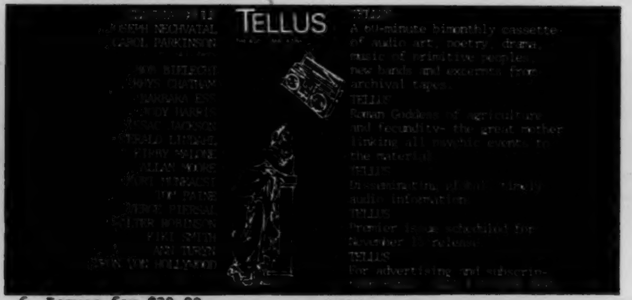
WORLDWIDE BOOKS Circle No. 28
Brian Gold, 37 Antwerp Street
Boston, MA 02135 (617) 787-9100
The foremost specialist in Int'l Art Exhibition catalogs since 1960.

FINE ART CASTING

ALECO FOUNDRIES, INC. Circle No. 29
1930 South 4th Street
Milwaukee, WI 53204 (414) 645-3771
Silicon bronze, ferrous & non-ferrous sand & investment castings- Also production quantities-$75 minimum order.

FINE ART GRAPHICS AND SCULPTURES

STEPHEN J. COPANS Circle No. 30
21500 Califa Street #113
Woodland Hills, CA. 91367
ERTE - DALI and others.
25-75% Discount



TELLUS

JOSEPH NECHVATAL
CAROL PARKINSON
BOB BIELECKI
RHYS CHATHAM
BARBARA ESS
ANDY HARRIS
ISSAC JACKSON
GERALD LINDAHL
KIRBY MALONE
ALLAN MOORE
MORI HUMACSI
TOM PAINE
PIERCE PIERSAL
WALTER ROBINSON
KIKI SMITH
ANN TURYN
JOHN VON HOLLYWOOD

TELLUS
A 60-minute bimonthly cassette of audio art, poetry, drama, music of primitive peoples, new bands and excerpts from archival tapes.
TELLUS
Roman Goddess of agriculture and fecundity- the great mother linking all psychic events to the material.
TELLUS
Disseminating global timely audio information.
TELLUS
Premier issue scheduled for November 15 release.
TELLUS
For advertising and subscrip-

6 Issues for $30.00 ____ name ____
Premier issue for $6.00 ____ address ____ make checks payable to TELLUS
143 Ludlow Street NY 10002 city state,zip ____

FINE ART PHOTOGRAPHY

THOMAS MOON PHOTOGRAPHY Circle No. 31
1 Holden Street
Brookline, MA 02146 (617) 232-8044
Photography Services for the Fine Arts. Black & White, Color, INFRARED. Print or Transparency. All formats.

PHOTOGRAPHIC SPECIALTIES, INC. Circle No. 32
225 Border Ave. North
Minneapolis, MN 55405 (612) 332-6303
Fine Art Cibachrome, C-Print, Archival B&W Printing & Processing. All Mounting & Framing Services.

FINE ART PRINTING

COLOR Q Circle No. 33
AFFORDABLE FINE ART REPRODUCTIONS
2835 Springboro West, Dayton OH 45439 (513) 294-0406
Get your FREE booklet: "How to gain wider recognition for your artistry, and make more money, too."

CHERYL PELAVIN PRINTMAKER Circle No. 34
13 Jay St. (In Tribeca)
New York, NY 10013 (212) 925-9424
Etching Facilities, Open Workshops, Classes, Editioning, Plate Collaboration & Publishing. Brochure.

STUDIO HEINRICI, LTD. Circle No. 35
430 Washington Street
New York, NY 10013 (212) 925-0788
Fine Art Limited Editions in: Silkscreen, Etching Press Available and Contract Printing.

FINE ART PUBLISHERS

ART EXCLUSIVE GALLERY AND PUBLISHER 36
9, Gustavstreet 5000 Cologne 41, Germany, 49(221) 445044
Original Graphics, Lithographs, Serigraphs, Etchings of Contemporary European Artists. Free Information. Illustrated catalog -$3. Dealer Inquiries Welcome.

GONDECK GALLERY AND PUBLISHER Circle No. 37
211 Old Santa Fe Trail, Santa Fe, NM 87501 (505) 988-3580
Bronzes, One of a Kind Welded Steel Sculpture by Bill Prokopiof. Original Graphics, Lithographs, Serigraphs, Etchings of Contemporary Indian Artists. Kevin Red Star.

FINE ART TRAVEL

ART EXPLORER'S TOURS Circle No. 38
P.O. Box 26689-P, San Francisco, CA 94126 (415) 921-7677
1984: New Guinea-Mar, China-May, Scandinavia-Jun, Venice Biennale-Sept, Africa-Oct, 1985: China-May, Japan-Sept., Africa, Bali, Java, Turkey.

FOUNDRIES

KEEP SOHO LOW

Hi-rise development threatens the historic community of cast-iron buildings. Help us preservve SoHo as a landmark district and center for the arts.

Please call or write:

Friends of SoHo
22 Wooster
New York, N.Y. 10013
(212) 431-6503

(All contributions are tax-deductible)

Typesetting donated by First Galley Typography, New York City

ART SERVICES

JOHNSON ATELIER TECHNICAL INSTITUTE OF SCULPTURE Circle No. 39
743 Alexander Rd., Princeton, NJ 08540 (609) 452-2661
Bronze, Aluminum, Stainless Steel, Ductile Iron: Sand Molding-Ceramic Shell-Rubber Molds-Bronze Repair & Repatine

KENNETH LYNCH & SONS Circle No. 40
Box 488, Wilton, CT 06897
(203) 762-8363
Casting in bronze, lead, or stone, also fabricating large art work of copper or bronze sheets repousse.

JOEL MEISNER FOUNDRY & GALLERY Circle No. 41
120 Fairchild Avenue
Plainview, NY 11803 (516) 349-0260, (212) 895-1472
THE COMPLETE CENTER FOR BRONZE SCULPTURE: for the Sculptor . . . for the Collector . . . for the Art Dealer & Publisher.

NORDHAMMER ART FOUNDRY Circle No. 42
830 East Fifteenth Street
Oakland, CA 94606 (415) 465-5606
Complete Foundry Facility. Small to Monumental Scale in Bronze. Ceramic Shell and Vacuum Casting.

FRAMERS

AESTHETIC FRAME DESIGN Circle No. 43
1275 East 6th Street
Los Angeles, CA 90021 (213) 622-3331
Wholesale Custom Framing. Specializing in Archival Presentations for Artists, Galleries, Museums.

ARTISTS' FRAME SERVICE INC. Circle No. 44
1919 North Clybourn
Chicago, IL 60614 (312) 248-7713
Wholesale Custom Framing and Supply. 80 Metal, 200 Wood Styles, Mat Board, Museum Board. Fast Professional Service.

GRAND STREET FRAMES LTD. Circle No. 45
32 Grand Street
New York, NY 10013 (212) 334-9354
Custom Framing with Conservation Materials. Hardwoods or Metal. Cutglass, Mats, Painting, Strippings. Fast Service.

GREY GOOSE CUSTOM FRAMING Circle No. 46
115 North LaBrea Ave.
Los Angeles, CA 90036 (213) 938-6795
Plexiglass Fabrication, Cubes, Pedestals sculpture Mounting. Framing to Museum Standards. Wholesale and Retail.

TURNER FRAMING Circle No. 47
7508 Leesburg Pike, Falls Church, VA 22043
Also locations in Great Falls, Fairfax.
Excellence in Quality Custom Framing. Private Individual and Commercial Accounts. (703) 893-1263

WALLNUTS FRAME DESIGN Circle No. 48
2018 Locust Street
Philadelphia, PA 19103 (215) 732-8850
Design Consultants to PROFESSIONAL PICTURE FRAMERS ASSOC. Museum Matting, Exotic Woods, Acrylic Boxes, Pedestals.

GALLERY SPACE

FACTORY PLACE GALLERY Circle No. 49
1308 Factory Place 5th fl. Los Angeles CA 90013 (213) 627-5043
Available For Immediate Occupancy. Five High Quality Spacious Galleries. Renting on a Monthly Rotation Basis. For more info contact Daren Milou de Reiset or Karen Murphy.

HANGING & DISPLAY EQUIPMENT

KENNETH LYNCH & SONS Circle No. 50
Box 488, Wilton, CT 06897 (203) 762-8363
The famous Lynch picture rods made of stainless steel have been the standard in galleries for 100 years. Send for FREE CATALOG.

WALKER SYSTEMS, INC. Circle No. 51
530 South 21 Avenue East
Duluth, MN 55812 (218) 728-4434
Picture Hanging Devices (Rails, Rods, Hooks, Holders) Panel Hardware for freestanding displays & exhibits.

INSURANCE

FLATHER & HAYES COMPANY, INC. Circle No. 52
888 Seventeenth Street, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20006
(202) 466-8888
Fine arts insurance for collectors and dealers.

MOVERS AND PACKERS

D.A.D. TRUCKING INC. Circle No. 53
419 Broome Street
New York, N.Y. 10013 (212) 226-0054
For Gentleness in Transporting Fine Art & Antiques in NYC and Across the Nation, Call Your D.A.D.

PRO-PAK PROFESSIONAL PACKERS, INC.® 54
527 Dundee Road
Northbrook, IL 60062 (312) 272-0408
Fine Arts Packing, Crating and Shipping Specialists. Pick-up and Delivery Service. Full Insurance Coverage.

VIDEO SERVICES

VAN GOGH VIDEO Circle No. 55
Star Route 81 A, Rosendale, NY 12472 (914) 338-8943
Video Cassette Art News Magazine Distributed Weekly by Satellite/Cable TV & Cassette Subscription. Production and Distribution Services for the Art World.

To receive information from the companies listed, circle the corresponding number on the REPLY COUPON below, and drop it in an envelope. You will receive information directly from them.

REPLY COUPON

Art in America Reader Service Dept., 850 Third Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10022

NOVEMBER 1983
THIS COUPON EXPIRES
February 29, 1984

NAME (PLEASE PRINT) TELEPHONE
ADDRESS
CITY STATE ZIP

Art Services & Schools

▽ Please send information circled.

1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10	11	12	13	14	15	16	17	18	19	20	21	22	23	24	25	26	27	28	29	30
31	32	33	34	35	36	37	38	39	40	41	42	43	44	45	46	47	48	49	50	51	52	53	54	55	56	57	58	59	60
61	62	63	64	65	66	67	68	69	70	71	72	73	74	75	76	77	78	79	80	81	82	83	84	85	86	87	88	89	90
91	92	93	94	95	96	97	98	99	100	101	102	103	104	105	106	107	108	109	110	111	112	113	114	115	116	117	118	119	120

ALLOW 6-8 WEEKS FOR DELIVERY

VOL
71
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI

NOVEMBER
SAN FRANCISCO
SUZANNE AUBER
PAINTINGS
ALAN GREENBERG INSTALLATION

DALLAS
CONTEMPORARY AMERICAN REALISM

FOSTER GOLDSTROM

228 GRANT AVENUE
SAN FRANCISCO, CA 94108
415 788-5060

2722 FAIRMOUNT STREET
DALLAS, TX 75201
214 744-0711

IMAGES OF THE THIRTIES:

Germany Between Wars

Ursula Wolff Schneider
Pioneer Photojournalist
1906–1977

November 22–December 10

Sunday at the Baltic Sea, 1935

ingber gallery 460 W Broadway, NYC 674-0101

KIM ABELES
THROUGH NOV 12
■
TOM JENKINS
NOV 22–DEC 31
KARL BORNSTEIN GALLERY
1662 12TH ST/SANTA MONICA
CA 90404 (213) 450-1129

The authoritative texts

THE LIFE OF A PHOTOGRAPH
Archival Processing, Matting, Framing and Storage
BY LAURENCE E. KEEFE, JR. AND DENNIS INCH $24.95

STORING, HANDLING AND PRESERVING POLAROID PHOTOGRAPHS: A GUIDE
POLAROID CORPORATION $7.95

FOCAL PRESS
10 Tower Office Park Woburn, MA 01801 (617) 933-8260

Nordstern Service International (U.S.), Inc.
(Fine Arts Insurance Worldwide)
in conjunction with Dubelle Fine Art
presents
NEW TALENT 1983: Paintings, Sculpture and Collages
November 5-23

Dubelle Fine Art 40 W. 17 St., Suite 3-B, NYC
(212) 929-6200 • Tues.—Sat., 1-5 p.m., or by appointment

MARGALIT MANNOR color photographs

November 1-29, 1983

BERTHA URDANG GALLERY
23 E. 74th St., N.Y.C. 10021 288-7004

L.A. Packing And Crating

Fine Art Specialists
Packing, Crating, Installation
Storage, Transportation

(213) 933-5602

5852 W. Adams Boulevard Culver City, CA 90230

DINA GUSTIN BAKER
NEW PAINTINGS
* * * * *
BRIGHAM YOUNG UNIVERSITY-PROVO, UTAH
SEPTEMBER, 1983
RICKS COLLEGE-REXBURG, IDAHO
OCTOBER, 1983
* * * * *
INGBER GALLERY-NEW YORK, NEW YORK
MARCH, 1984

INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION DIRECTORY

A guide to current exhibitions abroad

ARGENTINA	BUENOS AIRES	☎ 54 (1)
	RUTH BENZACAR Talcahuano 1216-1° • 1014 • Tel. 41-8549, 42-5614/5568	"El antirrinoceronte—Martin Fierro—Las Primeras Vanguardias"—a selection of works by 14 artists
	DEL RETIRO Florida 943 • 1005 • Tel. 32.5850	Gallery artists: Pablo Bobbi, Marcello Bonevardi, Sergio Camporalle, Dalla Cujat, Lea Lublin, Aldo Parella, Daniel Selage.
AUSTRIA	INNSBRUCK	☎ 43 (5222)
	KRINZINGER Adolf Pichlerplatz 8 • 6020 • Tel. 32,131	Through November, "8 French Artists": Blais, Blanchard, Boisrond, Brindel, Combas, Di Rosa, Laget, Rousse
	KLAGENFURT	☎ 43 (4222)
	CARINTHIA KLAGENFURT Volermarkter Ring 25 • 9020 • Tel. 57.377	Until November 5, Samuel Shapiro, original works and lithographs As of Nov. 8, Accrochage: new acquisitions of the gallery
	VIENNA	☎ 43 (222)
	ARIADNE Bäckerstrasse 6 • 1010 • Tel. 52.94.79
	GRITA INSAM Kölnerhofg. 6 • 1010 • Tel. 52.53.30	November 3–25, Shirazeh Houshiary, sculptures As of Nov. 26, Sebastien Prantz, dance performance
	HEIKE CURTZE Grünangergasse 12 • A1010 • Tel. 52 93 75	November, Rudolf Goessl, drawings
	PAKESCH Ballgasse 6 • 1010 • Tel. 52.48.14	Until November 27, Otto Zitko As of December 4, Volker Tannert and Herbert Brandl
	NÄCHST ST. STEPHAN Grunangergasse 1/11 II • 1010 • Tel. 52.12.66	Until November 26, Mario Merz. As of Nov. 29, Oswald Oberhuber, drawings, paintings and tapestries (catalogue available)
	ULYSSES Opernring 21 • 1010 • Tel. 57.12.26.	Franz von Zülow (1883–1963)
	GALERIE HUBERT WINTER Sonnenfelsgasse 8 • 1010 • Tel. 52.92.85	As of November 7, Richard Tuttle: "A Drawing Book," illustrated catalogue available, Room II, Klaus Merkel, paintings and sculptures (cat. available)
BELGIUM	ANTWERP	☎ 32 (31)
	AVANTGRADE Volkstraat 60 • Tel. 216.04.81
	MICHELE LACHOWSKY 27 Waalse Kaai • 2000 • Tel. 237.23.93	Bertrand Lavier

VOL
7
1
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI

	ANTWERP (CONT'D)	☎ 32 (3)
	LENS FINE ART Mechelsesteenweg 146 • 2018 • Tel. 237.68.57	Lucebert
	"121" Mechelsesteenweg 121 • 218.68.73	Nov. 10–Dec. 15, Edward Allington, Anish Kapoor, Julian Opie, recent sculpture
	MICHELINE SZWAJCER 17 Venusstraat • 2000 • Tel. 32.71.85	Mark Luyten
	BRUSSELS	☎ 32 (2)
	ALBERT BARONIAN 89, Avenue Emile de Beco • 1050 • Tel. 647.3414	Siegfried Anzinger
	ISY BRACHOT 62a, Avenue Louise • 1050 • Tel. 511.05.25	Through November 11, Collection "A" As of Nov. 16, Nollet
	MINETA MOVE 43, Rue Ernest Allard • 1000 • tel. 513 03 60	Until November 19, Barend Blankert As of Nov. 23, John Mewling, sculptures; Michael Porter, paintings
	POST-SCRIPTUM 37, Rue des Eperonniers • 1000 • Tel. 511.96.43	Books and catalogues on contemporary art and photography, records
	GHENT	☎ 32 (91)
	BARONIAN/LAMBERT Oudburg 22 • 9000 • Tel. 254.057	Blais, Castelli, Combas, Futura 2000
	RICHARD FONCKE 18 St. Janvest • 9000 • Tel. 23.81.28	Through November 12, Philippe Vandenberghe, recent paintings
	GEWAD 23 Gewad • 9000 • Tel. 25.56.16	Raoul De Keyser
	KNOKKE	☎ 32 (50)
	ELISABETH FRANCK 124 Kustlaan • 8300 • Tel. 606.881	Until November 15, Titus-Carmel The gallery will reopen in April.
	GALLERY TRIADE Res. St. James, Kustlaan 130 • 8300 • Tel. 610.087	Alechinsky, Appel, Atlan, Bissidre, Esteve, Fautrier, Herbin, Jorn, Soulegès, Bram & Geer van Velde, Vieira de Silva
	KRUISHOUTEM	☎ 32 (91)
	FONDATION VERANNEMAN Vandevoordewegg 2 • 9770 • Tel. 83 52 87	Martin Baeyens, Agnes Naes, Carlos Revilla, Kim Tschang Yeul, P. Wunderlich
	ZWEVEGEM-OTEGEM	☎ 32 (56)
	DEWEER ART GALLERY 2 • Tiegemstraat 9 • 856 • Tel. 644.113	As of November 8, Alfred Hofkunst (catalogue available)
COLOMBIA	BARRANQUILLA
	GALERIA QUINTERO 1, CRA 51 B N° 80-65 • Tel. 359.210	Liliana Porter
	BOGOTA	☎ 57
	GARCES Y VELASQUEZ CRA 5 N° 26-92 - AA 28936 • 1 • Tel. 284.5593	Luis Caballero, Santiago Cardenas, Beatris Gonzalez, Becky Mayer, Saturnino Ramirez, Carlos Rojas, Bernardo Salcedo, Camilo Velasquez
	QUINTANA Carrera 11 N° 85-62 • Tel. 236.8226	Henry Moore
DENMARK	COPENHAGEN	☎ 45 (1)
	ASBAEK Ny Adelgade 8 • 1104 • Tel. 15 40 04	November, Arne Haugen Sørenson, one-man show
ENGLAND	CAMBRIDGE	☎ 44 (223)
	KETTLE'S YARD GALLERY Northampton Street, C.B.3 OA.Q. • Tel. 352.124	Until November 20, Henri Gaudier-Brzeska. As of Nov. 26, recent paintings and sculptures by J. Froud, P. Noble, R. Soden, R. Wiltshire
	LONDON	☎ 44 (1)
	ANNE BERTHOUD GALLERY 1 Langley Court, W.C.2 • Tel. 836.73.57	Through November 12, Glenn Sujo, "Impossible Meetings": paintings and drawings. As of Nov. 15, "Interiors": contemporary British artists
	ART HOUSE 213 South Lambeth Road • Tel. 735.2192	As of mid-November, show of Faces: Paintings, drawings, sculptures, reliefs and masks by 25 contempory artists

LONDON (CONT'D)	☎ 44 (1)
ANTHONY d'OFFAY 23 Dering Street, W.1 • Tel. 499.4695	Paintings and sculpture.
BARBICAN ART GALLERY Barbican Centre for Arts & Conferences • EC2Y 8DS • Tel. 638 41 41	As of November 23, "Young Blood": an exhibition showcasing Britain's young designers
BROWSE & DARBY 19 Cork Street, W.1 • Tel. 734.7984	Paul Maze, paintings, watercolors and pastels
12 DUKE STREET GALLERY Duke Street, St. James, S.W.1 • Tel. 930.52.47	The gallery is closed
FISCHER FINE ART 30 King Street, S.W.1 • Tel. 839.3942	Until November 28, Arthur Boyd, recent work As of Nov. 23, A selection of architectural drawings—18th–20th centuries
GIMPEL FILS 30 Davies Street, W.1Y.1L.G. • Tel. 493.2488	Until November 22, Peter Lanyon As of Nov. 22, "New French Painting"
ROBERT FRASER GALLERY 21 Cork Street, W.1 • Tel. 434 1911	Through November 24, Keith Haring. As of Nov. 28, Salvador Dali, drawings from the Edward James Collection—1937–1938
NIGEL GREENWOOD, INC. 41 Sloane Gardens, S.W.1W.8E.B. • Tel. 730.8824	As of November 22, Glen Baxter, color drawings (until Christmas '83)
I.C.A. The Mall, SW1. • Tel. 930.0493	As of November 4, Robert Mapplethorpe, photographs As of Nov. 4, Barbara Kruger, "Your Comfort is My Silence"
NICOLA JACOBS 9 Cork Street, W.1 • Tel. 437.3868	Through November 12, Judy Rifka, paintings and drawings As of Nov. 16, Ken Kiff, new work
ANNELY JUDA/JUDA ROWAN 11 Tottenham Mews, W.1 • Tel. 637.5517/8	"First Russian Show": El Lissitzky, Exter, Gabo, Kliun, Malevich, Pevsner, Rodchenko, Suetin, Tatlin, etc. From Nov. 10, Richard Kidd, new N.Y. work
KNOEDLER GALLERY (Kasmin, Director) 22 Cork Street, W.1 • Tel. 439.1096	Group show: Ayres, Buckley, Caro, Frankenthaler, Hockney, Hodgkin, Matisse, Motherwell, Noland, Stella
LEINSTER FINE ART 9 Hereford Road, W.2 • Tel. 229.99.85	Until Nov. 17, gallery artists and works by German Expressionists. As of Nov. 21, Christmas Show '83: "Toujours L'Elégance," objets d'art.
LISSON GALLERY (Nicholas Logsdail) 66/68 Bell Street, N.W.1 6S.P. • Tel. 262.1539	Through November 19, Anish Kapoor, sculpture As of Nov. 22, Bertrand Lavier, sculpture
MARLBOROUGH FINE ART LTD 6, Albemarle Street • W1X 3HF • tel. 629 51 61	Until November 19, Bill Jacklin, recent work As of Nov. 25, John Piper, romantic paintings
MAYOR GALLERY 22A Cork Street, W.1 • Tel. 734.3558	Until November 25, Alfred Wolmark. As of the end of Nov., Salvador Dali, drawings from the Edward James Collection
PICCADILLY GALLERY 16 Cork Street, W.1 • Tel. 499.4632	November 8–December 3, Eric Holt, recent paintings
REDFERN GALLERY 20 Cork Street, W.1X. 2H.L. • Tel. 734.17.32 734.05.78	20th-century painting, drawing, sculpture and graphics
GALERIE 39 96 George Street, W.1H. 5R.I. • Tel. 487 5038	November 15–December 9, Waichi Tsutaka, paintings
EDWARD TOTAH GALLERY 39 Floral Street • W.C.2 • Tel. 379.6241	Through November 26, Elvira Bach, paintings and works on paper
WADDINGTON GALLERIES 2, 4 & 34 Cork St., W.1 • Tel. 439.1866	November 9–December 3, Georg Baselitz (new address 10–12 Cork Street), Michael Moon (34 Cork Street)
SOUTHAMPTON	☎ 44 (703)
JOHN HANSARD GALLERY The University, Southampton • Tel. 559.122	As of November 14, Rebecca Horn, installations

FRANCE

BORDEAUX	☎ 33 (56)
C.A.P.C. ENTREPOT LAINE Rue Ferrère • 33000 • Tel. 44.16.35	Galleries will be closed during construction of the new museum
CANNES	☎ 33 (9)
GALERIE HERBAGE 17, Rue des Etats-Unis • 06400 • Tel. 39.19.15	Lynn Chadwick, sculpture retrospective (1971-1983)

VOL 7 1
ISS 10
NO
1983
UMI

LYONS	☎ 33 (7)
E.L.A.C. Centre de'Echanges Lyon Perrach • 69002 • Tel. 842.27.39	Through November 28, "L'Art Nous Presse." Baratelli, Bellorgey, Bouys, Braconnier, Brunner, Corbin, Paul, Serre, Tardy, Tissier and Wanner
GALERIE J.L.J. BERTIN 10, Rue Auguste Comte • 69002 • Tel. 842 62 87	November, Jean Janoir, recent work
GALERIE GASTON/NELSON 99 Cours Emile Zola • 69100 Villeurbanne • Tel. 894 00 69	November, group show: Edward Allington, Gloria Friedman, Shirazeh Houshiary, Pierre Keller
NICE	☎ 33 (93)
GALERIE LE CHANJOUR 55, Rue de France • 06000 • Tel. 37 30 11	Until November 15, Jean-Luc Poivret As of Nov. 15, accrochage: Combas, Di Rosa, Dole
GALERIE PAUL HERVIEU 26, Rue Pastorelli • 06000 • Tel. 80.02.10	Paintings and gouaches by Atlan, Clavé, Coignard, Goetz, Hélénon, Marchand des Raux, Papart and Key Sato
PARIS	☎ 33 (1)
ABCD-CHRISTIAN CHENEAU 30, Rue de Lisbonne • 75008 • Tel. 563 25 42	November, Yann Dugain; Catherine Viollet
ANTIOPE-FRANCE 10, Rue Budé • 76004 • Tel. 354.61.02	Carla Accardi, work from 1981
ARTCURIAL 9, Av. Matignon • 75008 • Tel. 299.16.16	As of November 1, Les Affiches de Bandes Dessinées (comic-strip posters)
BEAUBOURG 23, Rue du Renard • 75004 • Tel. 271.20.50	Arman, "Wall Pieces"
GALERIE ALAIN BLONDEL 4, Rue Aubry-le-Boucher • 75004 • Tel. 278.66.67	Bruno Schmeltz
CLAUDE BERNARD 5-7-9, Rue des Beaux-Arts • 75006 • Tel. 326.9707	Until November 26, Yuri Kuper
ISY BRACHOT 35, Rue Guénégaud • 75006 • Tel. 354.22.40	Until December 3, Bernard Stern
GALERIE CLAUDINE BREGUET 19, Rue Guénégaud • 75006 • Tel. 633 40 06	November, Jacques Minassian, photographs: India 1981
GALERIE JEANNE BUCHER 53, Rue de Seine • 75006 • Tel: 326.22.32. 326.75.23	November 15–December 5, Jean Amado, recent sculpture
LOUIS CARRE ET CIE. 10, Avenue de Messine • 75008 • Tel. 562.57.07	Accrochage
GALERIE CAROLINE CORRE 14, Rue Guenegaud • 75006 • Tel. 354-5767	As of November 2, Bedarrides, one man show
CHANTAL CROUSEL 80, Rue Quincampoix • 75003 • Tel. 887.6081	Until November 24, François Boué, paintings
JACQUES DAMASE 61 Rue de Varenne • 75007 • Tel. 705.55.04	Until November 15, Valentine Hugo, drawings, engravings, oils, pastels As of Nov. 15, Sonia Delaunay
LE DESSIN 27, Rue Guenegaud • 75006 • Tel. 633.04.66	Through November 12, Marguerite Paszko, recent work As of Nov. 24, Annemarie Pecheur, recent paintings
ERIC FABRE 6, Rue du Pont de Lodi • 75006 • Tel. 325.42.63	Until November 19, Christian d'Alwes, Jean-Luc Vilmouth As of Nov. 24, Lee-U-Fan
PAUL FACCHETTI 20, Avenue de Friedland • 75008 • Tel. 563.80.26	By Appointment
KARL FLINKER 25, Rue de Tournon • 75006 • Tel. 325.18.73	Ségard, Les Histoires d'Aljosha
GALERIE FARIS 50, Rue de l'Université • 75007 • Tel. 544.29.48	Artists of the gallery
JEAN FOURNIER 44, Rue Quincampoix • 75004 • Tel. 277.3231	Sam Francis, Peintures pour Paris
GALERIE DE FRANCE 50-52, Rue de la Verrerie • 75004 • Tel. 274.38.00	November 8–December 10, Pierre Antoniucci, François Bouillon, Gerôme Fonchain

PARIS (CONT'D)	☎ 33 (1)
LILIANE FRANCOIS 15, Rue de Seine • 75006 • Tel. 326.94.32	Until November 8, Santarelli, paintings Nov. 9–30, Cuensante, drawings
MAURICE GARNIER 6, Avenue Matignon • 75008 • Tel. 225.61.65.	Bernard Buffet, permanently.
DANIEL GERVIS GALLERY 14, Rue de Grenelle • 75007 • Tel. 544.41.90	Benrath, Constant, Dubuffet, Eterovic, Gerzo, Ghertman, Malaval, Montyn, Mutal, Nevelson, Olson, Pan, Pasotti, Sonderborg, Toledo, others
GALERIE MARWAN HOSS 12, Rue D'Alger • 75001 • Tel. 296.39.45	"Important Works: Masters of the 19th and 20th Centuries," paintings, drawings and sculpture
SAMY KINGE 54, Rue de Verneuil • 75007 • Tel. 261.1907	Until November 12, Gudrun Von Leitner, collages 1982–83: "Nuremberg-Cologne-Berlin." Bradley, Victor Brauner, Matta, Niki de St. Phalle
LAHUMIERE 88, Bd de Courcelles • 75017 • Tel. 763.03.95	November: Dahmen, Dewasne, Dorny, Magnelli, Picasso Cologne Art Fair 1983
LA HUNE GALERIE EDITIONS 14, Rue de l'Abbaye • 75006 • Tel. 325.54.06	Dado, original works on paper; Delaunay, Dorny, Ernst, Fassianos, Folon, Friedlaender, Hayter, Kozo, Matta, Piza
LA HUNE-LIBRAIRIE 170, Boulevard St. Germain • 75006 • Tel. 548.35.85	Books, catalogues and magazines: Fine arts, literature, architecture, graphics, photography and fashion
YVON LAMBERT 5, Rue de Grenier St. Lazare • 75003 • Tel. 271.09.33	November, Blais, Combas, Middendorf, work on paper
GALERIE JEAN-PIERRE LAVIGNES 15, Rue St. Louis en l'Isle Paris • 75004 • Tel. 633.5602	Until November 12, John Kacere, paintings As of Nov. 15, Jean-Claude Meynard, Corps et Graphiques, acrylic paintings
ADRIEN MAEGHT 46, Rue du Bac • 75007 • Tel. 222.12.59	Until November 20, François Fiedler As of Nov. 16, Jan Voss
GALERIE MAEGHT LELONG S.A. 13 & 14, Rue de Téhéran • 75008 • Tel. 563.13.19	Until November 18, Alan Green; Nigel Hall; Jiři Kolář As of Nov. 24, Jean-Paul Riopelle
1900-2000 GALLERY 8, Rue Bonaparte • 75006 • Tel. 325.84.20	"Made in U.S.A. 1930–1950," period furniture and objects Surrealist paintings
DENISE RENE 196, Blvd. St. Germain • 75006 • Tel. 222.77.57	November–December, Tsai
GALERIE NATALIE SEROUSSI 34, Rue de Seine • 75006 • Tel. 634.05.84	Sandro Chia "Giacomo Balla—1911–1918"
DARTHEA SPEYER 6, Rue Jacques Callot • 75006 • Tel. 354.78.41	As of November 8, Peter Saul, Regards sur l'Amérique, works from 1969–72
STADLER 51, Rue de Seine • 75006 • Tel. 326.91.10	Until November 26, Oswaldo Romberg As of December 1, Alexandre Delay
NANE STERN 25, Ave. de Tourville • 75007 • Tel. 705.08.46	November 8–December 3, Alexandre Hollan, drawings
DANIEL TEMPLON 30, Rue Beaubourg • 75003 • Tel. 272.14.10	Julian Schnabel
TEXBRAUN 12, Rue Mazarine • 75006 • Tel. 633.47.84/633.14.57	November 10–December 9, Pierre et Gilles
TRANS/FORM 22, Ave de la Bourdonnais • 75007 • Tel. 550.40.32	Until November 26, "The Historic and New Avant-Garde": Beuys, Buren, De Dominicis, Dicrola, Kounellis, LeWitt, Lista, Montesano, Salvo, Twombly
PATRICE TRIGANO 4 bis Rue des Beaux-Arts • 75006 • Tel. 634.15.01	November, Bryen
GALERIE VALLOIS 41, Rue de Seine • 75006 • Tel. 329.50.84/85	Sculpture by Archipenko, Biegas, Chauvin, Csaky, Dalou, Daumier, Miklos, Rodin
ZABRISKIE 37, Rue Quincampoix • 75004 • Tel. 272.35.47	Until December 3, Joan Fontcuberta, photographs
LES SABLES D'OLONNE 33(51)
MUSEE DE L'ABBAYE STE. CROIX Rue de Verdun • 85100 • Tel. 32.01.16	Donation Sorlier: "Lithography at the turn of the century" Salle Jean Launois (1898–1942); Victor Brauner, Les Mythologies

VOL
71
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI

ST. PAUL DE VENCE	☎ 33 (93)
FONDATION MAEGHT Saint Paul de Vence • 06570 • Tel. 32.81.63	Permanent collection of the Fondation
GALERIE CATHERINE ISSERT Saint Paul de Vence • 06570 • Tel. 32.96.92	". . . pourvu que cela dure."—Ben

TOULON	☎ 33 (94)
MUSEE DE TOULON 20, Boulevard Leclerc • 83000 • Tel. 93.15.54	Until December 4, François Amal; Aujourd'hui le moyen age, medieval archaeology; Japon: Dialectique du dedans-dehors

TOULOUSE	☎ 33 (61)
AXE-SUD 11, Place de la Daurade • 31000 • Tel. 25.37.17	Ben

GERMANY

BERLIN	☎ 49 (30)
GALERIE AKMAK Hohenzollerndamm 7 • 1000/31 • Tel. 883.53.12	Through November 11, Barry Harem. As of Nov. 24, Jaune Quick-to-see Smith, oil paintings and drawings: modern native American art.
GALERIE LIETZOW Knesebeckstrasse 32 • 1000/12 • Tel. 881.28.95	Until November 26, Hella Santarossa: Black/red/gold, canvas and glass-paintings about the colors of the German flag.
SILVIA MENZEL Niebuhrstrasse 69 • 1000/12 • Tel. 324 19 20	November, Helmut Middendorf
R. ONNASCH AUSTELLUNGEN Niebuhrstr. 5 • 1000/12 • Tel. 882.77.18	Through December 3, Attersee, Der Wettergatte: paintings from 1980–83
GALERIE POLL Lützowplatz 7 • 1000/30 • Tel. 261.70.91	Until November 15, Jean Hélion, paintings and drawings Nov. 12–17, Kunstmarkt Köln
RAAB GALERIE Postdamer Strasse 58 • 1000/30 • Tel. 261 60 98	Until November 15, Rainer Fetting As of Nov. 19, Peter Chevalier
HANS REDMANN Fasanenstrasse 30 • 1000/15 • Tel. 881.11.35	Until November 19, Jannis Psychopedis, drawings As of Nov. 23, Heinrich Kley (1863–1945)—Illustrator of Simplicissimus
GALERIE FOLKER SKULIMA Niebuhrstrasse 2 • 1000/12 • Tel. 881.8280	Until November 20, K.H. Hödicke, new work
ZELLERMAYER-LORENZEN Thielallee 3A • 1000/33 • tel. 831 17 97	P. Hacker, A. Höckelmann, G. Jovanovich, A. Kiefer, J. Kolář, H. Krauth, T. Lange, K. Meldner, F. Roda, H. Spörel

BONN	☎ 49 (228)
GALERIE LINSSEN Prinz-Albert-Strasse 47 • 5300 • Tel. 21.89.09	German Expressionists. Russian Avant Garde. International classics. Osvaldo Romberg and Jan Voss.

COLOGNE	☎ 49 (221)
GALERIE BAECKER St. Apernstrasse 21 • 5000/1 • Tel. 240 16 26	Until November 10, Geoffrey Hendricks, "Berlin Sky—Cloud Paintings and Environments." As of Nov. 12, Louisa Chase, Neue Malerei aus New York
GALERIE GMURZYNSKA Obenmarspforten 21 • 5000/1 • Tel. 23.66.21/2	Through November 19, Picasso Nov. 12–17, Kunstmarkt Köln
GALERIE MAX HETZLER Kamekestrasse 21 • 5000/1 • Tel. 52.78.53	Through November 19, Reinhard Mucha, sculpture. As of Nov. 25, Markus Oehlen, new paintings. Nov. 12–17, Kunstmarkt Köln
GALERIE HOLTMANN Richartzstr. 10 • 5000/1 • Tel. 21.51.50	Through November 5, Rolf Winnewisser; Andy Warhol, early drawings As of Nov. 12, Gerhard Naschberger. Nov. 12–17, Kunstmarkt Köln
GALERIE JOLLENBECK Maastrichter Strasse 53 • Tel. 51.58.52	Through December, "Sculpture Now" November 12–17, Kunstmarkt Köln
RUDOLF KICKEN Albertusstrasse 47/49 • 5000/1 • Tel. 21.02.34	Drtikol, Form und Frau
KÖLNISCHER KUNSTVEREIN Josef-Haubrich-Hof 1 • 5000/1 • Tel. 21.70.21/221.3740	Until November 13, Einst Kunst-Geschichte in Turin As of Nov. 24, John Hilliard
PAUL MAENZ Bismarckstr. 50 • 5000/1 • Tel. 51.50.88	Through November 19, "Master Works of Conceptual Art" As of Nov. 25, Anselm Kiefer. Nov. 12–17, Kunstmarkt Köln
GALERIE ORANGERIE REINZ Helenstrasse 2 • 5000/1 • Tel. 23.46.84	Until November 20, José Ortega, Arbeiten aus 25 Jahren Nov. 12–17, Kunstmarkt Köln
GALERIE RECKERMANN Albertusstr. 16 • 5000/1 • Tel. 21.20.64	Gianfranco Baruchello, paintings Nov. 12–17, Kunstmarkt Köln
GALERIE WENTZEL St. Apernstrasse 26 • 5000/1 • Tel. 24.24.00	As of November 3, Dominique Gauthier, Neue Bilder (New Paintings) Nov. 12–17, Kunstmarkt Köln
MICHAEL WERNER Gertrudenstrasse. 24/28 • 5000/1 • Tel. 21.06.61	Markus Lüpertz, sculpture

COLOGNE (CONT'D)	☎ 49 (221)
GALERIE RUDOLF ZWIRNER Albertusstrasse 18 • 5000/1 • Tel. 23.58.37/8	November, Jedd Garet Nov. 12–17, Kunstmarkt Köln

DUSSELDORF	☎ 49 (211)
HEIKE CURTZE Citadellstrasse 11 • 4000/1 • tel. 32 68 00	November, Günter Brus, new paintings and drawings
KONRAD FISCHER Platanenstrasse 7 • Tel. 665.908	Bruce Nauman
GALERIE GMYREK Mutter-Ey-Strasse 5. • 4000/1 • Tel. 32.77.70	Through November 19, Kontext-Kontest: Chevalier, Hödicke, Koberling, Middendorf, Zimmer. Nov. 12–17, Kunstmarkt Köln. From Nov. 23, Bernd Zimmer
GALERIE MAIER-HAHN Eiskellerberg 1-3 • 4000 • Tel. 32 36 44	Rainer Fetting, paintings and drawings
DENISE RENE HANS MAYER Grabbeplatz 2 • 4000 • Tel. 13.21.35	Accrochage
KUNSTVEREIN RHEINLANDE/WESTFALEN Grabbeplatz 4 • 4000 • Tel. 327.023	Until November 13, Georg Klusemann, paintings, drawings, prints and collages As of Nov. 25, Friedrich Becker: Schmuck, Gerät, kinetishe Objekte

ESSEN	☎ 49 (201)
GALERIE NEHER Rüttenscheiderstr. 75 • 4300 • Tel. 78.20.71	Works by Dix, I. & J. Generalic, Grieshaber, Heckel, Kirchner, Kokoschka, Modersohn, Müller, Nay, Nolde, Pechstein, Rohlfs, Schmidt-Rottluff

HAMBURG	☎ 49 (40)
ASCAN CRONE Isestrasse 121 • 2000/13 • Tel. 040/47.42.94	Until Nov. 5, David Salle. Cat. available. Nov. 8-26, gallery artists. Nov. 12-17, Cologne Art Fair
THOMAS LEVY GALERIE Bohmersweg 24 • 2000/13 • Tel. 45.91.88.	Yannick Vu, paintings (please note our new address)
GALERIE MUNRO Barmbeker Str. 138 • 2000/60 • Tel. 48.45.52.	Works on paper by Sandra Chia, Enzo Cucchi, Nicola de Maria, Jannis Kounellis
MUNRO Barmbeker Str. 138 • D-2000/60 • Tel. 47 47 46/48 45 52	Sandra Chia, Enzo Cucchi, Nicola de Maria, Jannis Kounellis, works on paper

MUNICH	☎ 49 (89)
GALERIE + EDITION A Amalienstrasse 81 & 87 • Tel: 28.13.64/28.84.45	Sieckmeyer-Michaelis, photography; James Collins, pastels
GALERIE SIX FRIEDRICH Maximilianstrasse. 15 • 8000 • Tel. 29.50.21 & 29.61.10	As of November 10, Siegfried Anzinger
TANIT Maximilianstr. 36 • 8000 • 8000/22 • Tel. 29.22.33	Marianne Eigenheer, paintings, drawings and sculptures
CHARLOTTE GALERIE Falkenturmstrasse 8 • 8000/2 • Tel. 22 71 66	Naive art, sculptures, drawings. "70th Birthday Exhibition—Jan Balet." Until Nov. 29, Dragutin Jurak, Traumstädte
GALERIE PFEFFERLE Maximilianstrasse 16 • 8000/22 • Tel. 29 79 69	Stefan Szczesny
GALERIE THOMAS Maximilianstrasse 25 • 8000/22 • Tel. 22.27.41	Victor Mira: Variationen zur "Zwitschermaschine" (variations on the Twittering Machine by Paul Klee), paintings and gouaches

NUREMBERG	☎ 49 (911)
GALERIE JOHANNA RICARD Königstrasse 33/37 • 8500 • Tel. 22.50.20	Russian Avant-Garde

GREECE

ATHENS	☎ 30 (1)
JEAN BERNIER Marasli 51 • 140 • Tel. 723.5657	Stephen Antonakos, new works

HOLLAND

AMSTERDAM	☎ 31 (20)
AMERICAN GRAFFITI Berenstraat 20 • 1016 G.H. • Tel. 27 63 43	Until mid-November, Kenny Scharf
GALERIE JURKA Singel 28 • 1015AA • Tel. 26 67 33	November, Troels Wörsel, paintings
GALERIE KRIKHAAR Spuistraat 330 • Tel. 26.71.66	Accrochage: Appel, Picasso, Remé, Sonderlenque, etc.
STEDELIJK MUSEUM Paulus Potterstraat 13 • 1007 A.B. • Tel. 73 21 66	Until Nov. 20, Toon Verhoef. As of Nov. 4, Jean Tinguely; Margot Rolf; Walter Giers, installation. As of Nov. 11, Enzo Cucchi, Günther Tuzina

VOL 71
ISS 10
NO
1983
UMI

INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION DIRECTORY

EINDHOVEN	☎ 31 (40)
STEDELIJK VAN ABBEMUSEUM 5611 N.H. • Bilderdijklaan 10 • Tel. 38.97.30	Until November 13, Young artists; Boyd Webb As of Nov. 19, Collection of the Bonn Kunstmuseum
ITALY
BARI	☎ 39 (80)
MARILENA BONOMO Via Nicolò dell' Arca 19 • 70121 • Tel. 21.01.45
BOLOGNA	☎ 39 (51)
DE FOSCHERARI Via Goidanich 1 • 40124 • Tel. 27.52.26.
GALLERIA FORNI Via Farini 26 • 40124 • Tel. 27.07.60	Giorgio Scalco
STUDIO G7, G. GRIGOLO Via Val d'Aposa 7C • 40123 • Tel. 26.64.97.
BRESCIA	☎ 39 (30)
PIERO CAVELLINI F.lli Bandiera 18A • 25100 • Tel. 57.401
FLORENCE	☎ 39 (55)
GALLERIA SCHEMA Via della vigna nuova 17. • 50123 • Tel. 28.40.90.	By Appt , American Contemporary Art, Acconci, Baldessari, Bochner, Burden, Fox, Graham, Huebler, Kaprow, Kosuth, Levine, Oppenheim, Ripps, Rockburne
MILAN	☎ 39 (2)
SALVATORE ALA Via Mameli 3 • 20129 • Tel. 716-500
ARIETE GRAFICA Via S. Andrea, 5 • 20121 • Tel. 79.55.73
ARTRA/STUDIO Via Fiori Chiari 8 • 20121 • Tel. 861.190	Alberto Abate
STUDIO CANNAVIELLO Piazza Beccaria 10 • 20122 • Tel. 805.2148	Urs Lüthi
DIAGRAMMA (Luciano Inga Pin) Via Pontaccio 12a • 20121 • Tel. 874.237	Padiglione Italia
DISEGNI DI ARCHITETTURA Antonia Jannone Via del Carmine 5 • Tel. 878.384
FRANCOISE LAMBERT Bastioni di Porta Nuova 11 • 20121 • Tel. 650.087	Edda Renouf, new drawings; General Idea
STUDIO MARCONI Via Tadino 15 • 20124 • Tel. 225.543	As of November 17, Enrico Baj, "Autobiography"
MASSIMO MININI Via Cavalieri des S. Sepolcro • 20100 • Tel. 86.71.30	New works by Fortuna, Levini, Salvatori, Salvo
FRANCO TOSELLI Via del Carmine 9 • 20121 • Tel. 805.0434	Tony Cragg
MODENA	☎ 39 (59)
GALLERIA EMILIO MAZZOLI Via Nazario Sauro 58a • 41100 • Tel. 357.605/243.455	Agnetti, Boetti, Calzolari, Chia, Clemente, Cucchi, de Maria, Germanà, Paladino, Schifano, Turcato.
NAPLES	☎ 39 (81)
LUCIO AMELIO Piazza dei Martiri 58. • 80121 • Tel. 42.20.23/769.0521
STUDIO TRISORIO Riviera de Chiaia 215 • 80121 • Tel. 41 43 06	Luciano Bartolini, until mid-November As of mid-November, Tomaso Durante
ROME	☎ 39 (6)
IL COLLEZIONISTA Via Gregoriana 36 • 00187 • Tel. 678.45.85	Permanent archives of Afro
GALLERIA ANNA D'ASCANIO Via del Babuino, 29 • 00187 • Tel. 678.5920	Lindsey Kemp, drawings
DUE CI - ARTE MODERNA Piazza Mignanelli 3 • 00187 • Tel. 679 56 85/678 75 66	November, Masson—a retrospective of works from his American period (1941–1945)
GALERIA IL GABBIANO Via Della Frezza 51 • 00186 • Tel. 679 77 76	Bailey, Balthus, Barelier, Botero, Cordio, Guccione, Morandi, Morgan, Piccolo, Riati, Setsuko, Tsarouchis

ROME (CONT'D)	☎ 39 (6)
L'ISOLA Via Gregoriana 5 • 00187 • Tel. 679.00.29./678.54.77	Ettore Cilla, reliefs and sculpture
GALLERIA IL PONTE Via S. Ignazio 6 • 00186 • Tel. 679.6114	"The Italian New Image": Berti, Cantalupo, N.M. Martino, Pedriali, Piffero, and Vannini. As of Dec. 1, Nino Longobardi, recent paintings and prints
PRIMO PIANO Via Panisperna 203. • 00184 • Tel. 460.309	Bookstore specializing in European catalogues and books by artists
IL SEGNO Via Capolecase • 00187 • Tel. 679.1387	International contemporary graphics permanently: Afro, Arp, Braque, Burri, Capogrossi, de Chirico, Ernst, Fontana, Le Corbusier, Miró, Morandi, Savinio •
SPROVIERI 3 Piazzi del Popolo • 00187 • Tel. 360.8918/361.0975	"The Roman Image—The Sixties" Surrealism
TONINELLI 86 Piazza di Spagna • 00187 • Tel. 679.34.88	Important sculpture by: Bodini, Fontana, Marini, Arturo Martini, Melotti, Moore, Medardo Rosso, Schmettau, Vangi.

TURIN	☎ 39 (11)
TUCCI RUSSO Corso Tassoni 56 • 10144 • Tel. 779.304

VERONA	☎ 39 (45)
STUDIO LA CITTA Vicolo Samaritana 10 • 37121 • Tel. 25728	November, Luigi Veronesi, "The Color of Music"

JAPAN

TOKYO	☎ 170
RYU INTERNATIONAL GALLERY P.O.B. 1383 Sunshine-City, Toshima-Ku • Tel. 987.6160	Contemporary Japanese and Chinese (Mainland) original prints. Catalogue upon request. U.S. $10, sea-mail postage included

SPAIN

BARCELONA	☎ 34 (3)
GALERIA CIENTO Consejo de Ciento 347 • 7 • Tel. 215.63 65	Frederic Amat
SALA GASPAR Consejo de Ciento, 323 • 7 • Tel. 318.87.401.318.87.36	Alfaro, Arranz Bravo, Bartolozzi, Claye, Fenosa, Gudiol, Iberz, Llove, Miró, Picasso, Tharrats, etc.
GALERIA MAEGHT Calle Montcada 25 • 3 • Tel. 310.42.45	Enric Pladevall, sculptures; Hervé Telemac, paintings
CAJA DE PENSIONES (Centro Cultural) Passeig Sant Joan 108 • Tel. 258.89.07	Joaquin Sunyer, retrospective
GALERIA JOAN PRATS Rambla Catalunya 54 • 7 • Tel. 216.02.84	Frederic Amat

IBIZA BALEARES	☎ 34 (71)
GALERIA ES MOLI Carretera San Miguel Sta Gertrudis	Azocar, Bechtold, Calbet, Faber, Galbraith, Hedrich, Kugler, Monreal, Segui, Tomlin, Villanueva, Zush

MADRID	☎ 34 (1)
GALERIA JUANA DE AIZPURU Barquillo 44 • Madrid 4 • Tel. 411 77 58	Until November 15, Opening group show: Baldeverg, Barceló, Bermejo, Campano, Delgado, Mira, Sevilla, Sierra, Simón, Suarez, Tovar, Ualé. From Nov. 16, Mira
CAJA DE PENSIONES (Centro Cultural) Paseo Castellana 51 • 1 • Tel.419.0440	December and January, Joaquim Sunyer, retrospective
GALERIA KREISLER DOS Hermosilla 8 • 1 • Tel. 431.42.64	Until November 19, Angel Medina As of Nov. 22, Luis Eduardo Aute
EGAM Villanueva 29 • 1 • Tel. 435 3161	José Miguel Rodriguez
GALERIA HEINRICH EHRARDT Barquillo 44 • 4 • Tel. 419.52.86	A.R. Penck, graphics
GALERIA JUANA MORDO Villanueva 7 • 1 • Tel. 435.84.42	November 11–December 3, José De Guimaraes
GALERIA DE ARTE MUN Hermosilla 26 • 1 • Tel. 401.01.92	Gallery Artists
GALERIA THEO Marqués de la Ensenada, 2 • 4 • Tel. 410.26.51	Alfonso Fraile
GALERIA FERNANDO VIJANDE Nuñez de Balboa 65 • 1 • Tel. 435 8025	"Six Spaniards in Madrid": Chema Cobo, Luis Gordillo, Juan Muñoz, Miguel Navarro, José Ma Sicilia, Zush
GALERIA YNGUANZO Antonio Maura 12 • 14 • Tel. 231 54 10	Dali

VOL 71
ISS 10
NO
1983
UMI

INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION DIRECTORY

MADRID (CONT'D) ☎ 34 (1)

GALERIA JUANA DE AIZPURU
Calle Canalejaz, 10 • 1 • Tel. 22.85.01

SWEDEN

MALMO ☎ 46 (40)

GALERIE NORDENHAKE
Östra Rönneholmsvägen 5 • S-211 47 • Tel. 23.15.33

STOCKHOLM ☎ 46 (8)

KONSTRUKTIV TENDENS
Nybrogatan 69 • 11440 • Tel. 61.16.65/61.50.65
Permanently: International Constructivist Art

SWITZERLAND

BASEL ☎ 41 (61)

KUNSTHALLE BASEL
Steinenberg 7 • 4001 • Tel. 23.48.33
Until November 6, Nicola de Maria, Max Neuhaus
As of Nov. 27, Weihnachtsausstellung der Basler Künstlerinnen und Künstler

GALERIE BEYELER
Baumleingasse 9 • 4001 • Tel. 23.54.12
"Expressionist Painting Beyond Picasso"

BERNE ☎ 41 (31)

Wasserwerkgasse 37 • 3011 • Tel. 22.42.05/22.38.25

GENEVA ☎ 41 (22)

GALERIE BONNIER
4, Rue Saint-Laurent • 1207 • Tel. 35.67.35
Gerry Bergstein, recent works

CENTRE D'ART CONTEMPORAIN
Bd. du Pont d'Arve et Bd Karl Vogt • 1204 • Tel. 28.88.03
Collective exhibition from Geneva's Ecole Supérieure d'Art Visuel;
Cindy Sherman

GALERIE ERIC FRANCK
15 Route de Florissant • 1206 • Tel. 47.08.09
Dennis Oppenheim, project for Geneva and Chambéry

GALERIE MARIKA MALACORDA
1, Rue de l'Evêché • 1204 • Tel. 28.64.50
Olivier Mosset, recent works
Martin Walde, young Austrian artist

DANIEL VARENNE Galerie Clos de Sierne 15
Chemin de Sierne • 1255 • 84.15.93
Impressionist and 20th-century masters—by appointment only

WEBER
13, Rue de Monthoux • 1211 • Tel. 32.64.50
Accrochage, modern prints: Alechinsky, Marini, Miró,
B. van Velde (also at l'Espace Hilton)

ZURICH ☎ 41 (1)

THOMAS AMMANN FINE ART
Restelbergstrasse 97 • 8044 • Tel. 362.62.31
Impressionist & 20th-century masters—by appointment only

GALERIE BISCHOFBERGER
Utoquai 29 • 8700 • Tel. 910.43.62
Representing: Chia, Clemente, Cucchi, Salle, Salomé, Schnabel,
Tinguely, Warhol. Andy Warhol Dec. 3-Jan.14

GIMPEL • HANOVER • EMMERICH
Tödistrasse 40 • 8002 • Tel. 202.03.00
Until November 19, Ernesto Tatafiore; new gallery, Robert Cronin
As of Nov. 26, Max Bill; new gallery, Chuck Close, handmade-paper editions

M. KNOEDLER
Kirchgasse 24 • 8022 • Tel. 69 35 00
Until December 3, Ensor, Klimt, Kubin, Schiele (catalogue available)

GALERIE MAEGHT
Predigerplatz 10-12 • 8025 • Tel. 251.11.20
As of mid-November, Pierre Klossowski

MAURER
Münstergasse 14-18 • 8001 • Tel. 47.85.00
Hans Zweidler

PETER NOSER
Schulhausstrasse 73 • 8002 • Tel. 202.65.81
Sarah Zoelly
Gunter Frentzel

GALERIE SCHLEGL
Minervastrasse 119 • 8032 • Tel. 251.4963
Marcelle Cahn, (1885-1981), retrospective

ANNEMARIE VERNA
Scheuchzerstrasse 35 • 8006 • Tel. 361.90.70
Works on paper by James Bishop, Sol LeWitt, Robert Mangold,
Richard Tuttle

JAMILEH WEBER
Schanzengasse 10 • Tel. 47.79.89
Christian Herdegg, light sculptures and drawings
Representing: Aldo Rossi

RENÉE ZIEGLER
Rämistrasse 34 • 8001 • Tel. 251.23.22
Gianfredo Camesi, new works

VENEZUELA

CARACAS ☎ 58 (2)

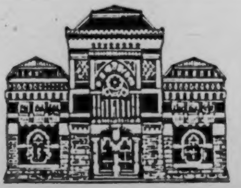
GALERIA MINOTAURO
Calle Madrid-Entre Mucuchies y Monterrey • Tel. 92 27 40

19th & 20th Century Masterworks
November

Louis Legrand
December

Jack Rutberg Fine Arts, Inc.
357 N. La Brea Ave. Los Angeles, CA 90036
Tel: 213 938-5222

JOHN HIMMELFARB
GALLERY 72 OMAHA, NE
NOV. 11 - DEC. 5, 1983



PENNSYLVANIA ACADEMY OF THE FINE ARTS

Oldest art school in America offers majors in Painting, Sculpture & Printmaking. Admission to Day school by Portfolio. Accredited by NASAD. Financial Aid available. Approved for Veterans.

Evening & Summer programs in Painting, Drawing and Sculpture.

Founded 1805

For catalog write:
PAFA, Room M,
Broad & Cherry Sts.,
Phila., PA 19102

JON LEON GALLERY
NATHAN SLATE JOSEPH
Oct. 15th – Nov. 19th, 1983
31 DESBROSSES NYC 10003 226-7789
Saturdays: 12:00 – 6:00;
other days: by appointment
COMING: Nov. 29 – Jan. 14 TWO-MAN SHOW
GORDON HART/NEW WORKS
Part 2. IN PRAISE OF LIGHT: THE CITY
YOJI SHINAGAWA, THE SHODO MASTER
"TETSUZAN" / CALLIGRAPHY

JEFF GOMPERTZ
NOV. 1983

SUELLEN HABER GALLERY
133 GREENE ST., N.Y.C., 10012
(212) 505-7800

STEVE CATRON
UGENE NEWMANN
OHN CONNELL
SAM SCOTT

BRADFORD SMITH
DORIS CROSS
JULIE SULLI[illegible]N
CARL JOHANSEN

the eason gallery.
338 east de vargas
santa fe, nm 87501
(505) 982-9573

F A C T O R Y P L A C E
G A L L E R Y
1308 FACTORY PLACE. 5TH FLOOR / LOS ANGELES. CA 90013

ATTENTION: ARTISTS • DEALERS • GALLERIES
LOOKING FOR EXPOSURE IN LOS ANGELES?

AVAILABLE FOR IMMEDIATE OCCUPANCY — FIVE HIGH QUALITY, SPACIOUS GALLERIES. RENTING ON A MONTHLY ROTATION BASIS. FOR MORE INFORMATION PLEASE CONTACT: MILOU de REISET OR KAREN MURPHY. CALL (213) 627-5043.

CURRENTLY EXHIBITING: EUGENE IONESCO, BARBARA MENDES, SHIGE UKAI & MANUEL VILLAZON

Dali-Erte-Limited Editions-Sculpture

The Art Brokerage, Inc.
300 S. 4th St., 1503
Las Vegas, Nevada 89101
(702) 732-3999/385-1296

Listing and Locating Service
Save 25 to 50%;
Dealer Inquiries Welcome

$25.00 for computer printout
Applicable toward purchase

Free Rockwell Appraisal List

Noyer, Azoulay, Picasso
Mexican-European-American-originals
Miro-Chagall-Wyeth-Neiman

VOL
7
1
ISS
10
NO
1983
UMI

Yoseido Gallery

Contemporary Japanese prints

5-5-15, Ginza, Chuo-ku, Tokyo,
Japan phone 571-1312, 2471

100 page catalog upon request — $8.00

PAUL BRACH

OCTOBER 16 — NOVEMBER 19, 1983

BERNICE STEINBAUM GALLERY, LTD.
903 madison avenue
new york, new york 10021
(212) 734-3373

November: Recent Work

Wesselmann

Sidney Janis 110 W 57

Carone Gallery
600 southeast second court
fort lauderdale, florida 33301
(305) 463-8833

JANE WILLOUGHBY

Collage Paintings
November 8-26

VIRIDIAN GALLERY
52 W 57 St, New York, NY 10019 212-245-2882

PRINTS

BARTLETT
HARING
HEIZER
HOCKNEY
JOHNS
KATZ
KELLY
LICHTENSTEIN
MOTHERWELL
ROSENQUIST
STELLA
WARHOL

PATRICIA HEESY GALLERY
50 W 57 ST NY 10019 212 245 1420

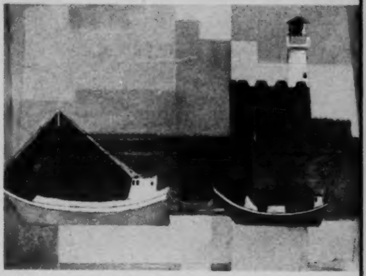
MIDTOWN

GALLERIES EST. 1932 11 East 57 St., N.Y. (212) 758-1900

JASON SCHOENER

PAINTINGS OF THE ARTIST'S TRAVELS

REPRESENTING IMPORTANT AMERICAN ARTISTS



HARBOR AT RHODES, OIL, 30 X 40"

Lynn Chadwick
Eduardo Chillida
Jose Luis Cuevas
Giacomo Manzù
Marino Marini
Roberto Matta
Henry Moore

Tasende Gallery
820 Prospect Street, La Jolla, California 92037
(619) 454-3691

Index of Advertisers

Abbeville Press 230
Acquavella Gallery 101
Addison Ripley 96
A.M. Adler 101
Adler Gallery, Pam 152
Adler Gallery, Rachel 102
Allport Associates 56
ARCO 157
Armstrong Gallery 149
Ars Libri 252
Art Brokerage, Inc., The 269
Artscan 217
Art Services 255-257
Arts Focus 244
Asher/Faure 95
Assoc. Artist-Run Galleries 245

Barridoff Galleries 56
Baskerville & Watson 242
Batman Gallery, Donald 248
Belanthi Gallery 243
Belcher Gallery, George 148
Berggruen Gallery, John 148
Bernier, Jean 104
Block Insurance, Huntington T. 241
Blum-Helman .... Cov. IV
Boone Gallery, Mary 46
Borgenicht Gallery 46
Bornstein Gallery, Karl 258
Boyd Gallery, Roy 246
Brentwood Gallery 251
Brewster Gallery 244
Brodys Gallery 104
Brown & Bro., Inc., Arthur 252

Carone Gallery 270
Castelli-Feigen Corcoran 44
Castelli Gallery, Leo 148
Castelli Graphics 94
C.D.S. 49
Chicago Int'l Art Expo. 232
Chivas Regal 32
Christie's 38
Cooper Gallery, Paula 52, 98
Cowles Gallery, Charles 25
Crown Point Press 61, 247
Crown Publishers 252

Davidson College 250
Davidson Gallery, Maxwell 103
DBR Gallery 250
Del Re, Marisa 6
Delahunty Gallery 54
De Nagy, Tibor 90
Deson Gallery, Marianne 96
Dominion Gallery 251
Drutt Gallery, Helen 103

Eason Gallery, The 269
Editions Press 40
Elkon Gallery, Robert 53
80 Washington Sq. East Gall. 243
Emmerich Galley, Andre 10
Ericson Gallery 251

Factory Place Gallery 269
Feeley Gallery, Leslie 100
Findlay Gallery, David Jr. 237
Fine Arts of the Netherlands 249
Fiterman Gallery, Dolly 98
Focal Press Publishing 258
Forum Gallery 92
Fourcade, Xavier 28
Frumkin-Struve Gallery 91

Galerie Maeght Lelong S.A. 2
Galerie St. Etienne 98
Galerie Natalie Seroussi 228
Galerie Rudolf Zwirner 20
Gallery Moos 248
Gallery 72 269
Gallery Paule Anglim 237
Getler-Pall-Saper 62
Gillman Gallery, Barbara 248
Gladstone Gallery, Barbara 97
Gold Gallery, Fay 103
Goldstrom Fine Arts, Foster 258
Goodman Gallery, James 8
Goodman Gallery, Marian 99
Gray Gallery, Richard 102
Greenberg Gallery 102
Greene Gallery 146
Grimaldis Gallery, C. 246
Gross-McCleaf Gallery 48
Gruenebaum Gallery 146
Grumbacher 218

Haber Gallery, Suellen 269
Haber Theodore Gallery 93
Hadler-Rodriguez 89
Haime Gallery, Nohra 16
Hamilton Gallery 148
Hammer Gallery 62
Hammer Publishing 252
Hammerquist Gallery 247
Hanover Fine Arts 238
Harcourts Contemporary 154
Harcus Gallery 99
Heesy Gallery, Patricia 270
Herstand Gallery, Arnold 9
Hirschl & Adler Modern 152
Hoffeld Gallery, Jeffrey 26
Hoffman Gallery, Nancy 95
Hoffman Gallery, Rhona 94
Hokin Gallery Inc. 145
Horan Gallery, Vivian 99
Horwich Gallery, Joy 246
Horwitch Gallery, Elaine 59
Hutchinson Gallery, Max 100
Hutton Gallery, Leonard 47

Iannetti Gallery, Pasquale 244
Ingber Gallery 249, 258
Irving Galleries 54
Ivory/Kimpton Gallery 90

Janis Gallery, Sidney 270
Jerry's Artarama 254

Kansas City Art Inst. 254
Kind Gallery, Phyllis 52
Knowlton Gallery, Monique 97
Knoedler & Co., M. 90
Krakow Gallery, Barbara 151
Kraushaar Gallery 151
Kucera 245

Lafayette Parke Gallery 4
L.A. Packing & Crating 258
Ledel Gallery 253
Leon Gallery, Jon 269
Lewin Galleries, B. 147
Locks Gallery, Marian 60

Malton Gallery 249
Manes, H.F. 96
Markel Gallery, Kathryn 50
Marlborough Gallery 47
Maroney & Co., James 18
Martin, Marianne/Fine Art 151
Mathes Gallery, Barbara 19
Matisse Gallery, Pierre 93
Matthews Hamilton Gallery 246
Menzel, Sylvia 104
Meredith Cont. Art 146
Metro Pictures 146
Meyer Breier Weiss 89
Midtown Gallery 270
Miller Gallery, Robert 26
Milliken, Alexander .... Cov. II
Montezinos Gallery, Susan 253
Morris, Donald 17
Munroe Gallery, Victoria 92
McKee Gallery, David 95

Nahan Art Galleries 63, 234
New York Graphic Society 58
New York Studio School 253
Nielsen Gallery 242
Nordstern Service Int., Inc. 258

O.K. Harris 251
Oklahoma Summer Art Inst. 236
Oil & Steel Gallery 30
Oscarsson-Hood Gallery 101
Ovsey Gallery, Neil C. 152

Pace Editions Inc. 1
Pace Gallery 15
Palmer Gallery, Herbert 152
Payson Weisberg 100
Pembroke Gallery 51
Pennsylvania Academy 269
Perlman, Miriam 96
Port of History Museum 245
Printworld Directory 253
Portico 103
Portnoy, Theo 57

Quisgard, Liz Whitney 250

Ramsay Gallery, Roger 150
Richebourg/McCoy 30
Roger Gallery, Arthur 44
Rolly-Michaux 48
Rosenberg Gallery, Stephen 242
Rutberg Fine Arts, Jack 269

Salander-O'Reilly 93
Sawyer Gallery, William 150
Schoelkopf Gallery, Robert 95
Sculpture Placement 156
Segal Gallery 247
Seguy Gallery, Yvonne 156
Seixas & Co. 60
Semaphore Gallery 92
Serra Di Felice 249
Settles Gallery, David 147
Shafrazi, Tony 98
Shiva 254
Siegal Contemporary Art 101
Silberberg Gallery, Nathan 248
Sointu 154
Solomon Gallery, Holly .... Cov. III
Sonnabend Gallery 94
Sotheby, Parke, Bernet 27, 29, 31
Sperone Westwater 91
Staempfli Gallery 151
Steinbaum Gallery, Bernice 270
Stockholm Art Fair 145
Stoler Gallery, Bette 50
Stoller Gallery, John 150
Stone Gallery, Jeremy 24

Taghinia-Malani, Leila 99
Tamar Arts 155
Tasende Gallery 270
Taylor Art, Carol 156
Templon, Daniel 22
Thorp Gallery, Edward 89
Tilton, Jack 150
Toll Gallery, Barbara 100
Tortue Gallery 64
Transworld Art/Alex Rosenberg 58
Truly Inc. 240
Twining Gallery 242

Urdang Gallery, Bertha 250

Vanderwoude Tananbaum 28
Villani Editions, Diane 97
Viridian 270
Visual Arts Gallery 254

Wallnuts Frame Design 250
Webster Gallery, Sande 250
Weinberg Gallery, Daniel 94
Werner, Michael 104
West Broadway 247
Willard Gallery 97
Winsor & Newton 153

Yares Gallery 55
Yoseido Gallery 270

Zabriskie Gallery 7
Zolla Lieberman 89, 102

ART IN GERMANY
Galerie + Edition A 134
Jean Bernier 121
Bundesverband Deutscher Galerien 144
Ascan Crone 108
Galerie Heike Curtze 122
Anthony d'Offay 132, 133
Gallery 44 112
Xavier Fourcade 109
Galerie Gmyrek 128,129
Marian Goodman 116
Karsten Greve 113,124
Galerie Heinz Herzer 138
Galerie Catherine Issert 141
Galerie Jurka 141
M. Knoedler Zurich 140
Galerie Krinzinger 139
Galerie Levy 111
Galerie Adrien Maeght 135
Paul Maenz 123
Vera Munro 120
Galerie Neher 117
Galerie Neuendorf 125
Galerie Orangerie Reinz 130, 131
Galerie Poll 142
Raab Galerie 115, 136, 141
Galerie Reckermann 143
Hans Redmann 126, 127
Galerie Six Friedrich 139
Galerie Folker Skulima 107
Holly Solomon Gallery 139
Galerie Thomas 137
Edward Totah Gallery 141
Helen Van Der Meij 132, 133
Galerie Wentzel 110
Galerie Michael Werner 118, 119
Galerie Rudolf Zwirner 106

WORKS IN CLAY
Asher/Faure 81
Braunstein 73, 85
Braseth 82
Leo Castelli 66
Jackie Chalkley 83
Garth Clark 76, 77, 78, 79
Corcoran Gallery, James 66
Charles Cowles 67, 72, 73
Helen Drutt 88
Elements 68
Exhibit A 73
Foster/White 86
Allan Frumkin 75
Nina Freudenheim 87
Fuller Goldeen 75
Greenberg 70, 76, 81
Heath 87
Image South 82
Incorporated 83
Janus Gallery 69, 70, 71
Morgan 69, 73
Max Protetch 76
The Quay Gallery 72, 74, 81
Rosenfield, Betsy 72
Thomas Segal 78, 79, 87
B.Z. Wagman 87
Westminster 84
Woodside 82
Works 80

Statement Of Ownership, Management and Circulation (Required by 39 U.S.C. 3685). Date of filing: 10/6/83; Publication Number: 00043214; Art in America is published eleven times yearly (monthly except July) by Art in America, Inc., 850 Third Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10022 and is wholly owned by Whitney Communications Corporation, 110 West 51st Street, New York, N.Y. 10020. Annual subscription price: $34.95. Publisher: Paul Shanley; Editor: Elizabeth C. Baker; Managing Editor: Nancy Marmer, all at 850 Third Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10022. Average number of copies each issue during preceeding 12 months: Total number of copies, 57,152; Paid Circulation: Sales through dealers and carriers, street vendors and counter sales, 10,386; Mail subscriptions: 38,106; Total paid circulation: 48,492; Free distribution by mail, carrier or other means, samples, complimentary and other free copies, 908; Total distribution, 49,400; Copies not distributed: Office use, left over, unaccounted, spoiled after printing: 1,507; Returned from news agents, 6,245; Total: 57,152. Actual number of copies of single issue published nearest to filing date: Total number of copies, 56,939; Paid Circulation: Sales through dealers and carriers, street vendors and counter sales, 10,658; Mail subscriptions, 38,200; Total paid circulation: 48,858; Free distribution by mail, carrier or other means, samples, complimentary and other free copies, 967; Total distribution, 49,825; Copies not distributed: Office use, leftover, unaccounted, spoiled after printing: 1,338; Returned from news agents, 5,776. Total: 56,939 Paul Shanley, Publisher.

VOL 71 ISS 10 NO 1983 UMI

Artworld

U.S. Entry Axed at São Paulo Bienal

The 17th International São Paulo Bienal, which opened Oct. 14, has rejected the special group exhibition of U.S. artists selected by Linda Cathcart, curator at the Houston Contemporary Arts Museum. The U.S. entry, titled "The Heroic Figure," featured 37 works by 13 artists—John Ahearn, Ellen Carey, William Crozier, Nancy Dwyer, Jedd Garet, Thomas Lawson, Robert Longo, Robert Mapplethorpe, Richard Prince, David Salle, Julian Schnabel, Cindy Sherman, Michael Zwack—and was budgeted at $134,000 by the U.S. Information Agency.

The cause of the cancellation appears to have been a conflict of curatorial vision, as well as a failure of communication, between Cathcart and Bienal general curator Walter Zanini. Zanini sought to limit individual national sections to retrospectives of deceased artists and planned to exhibit contemporary works from all countries together in a vast international show titled "Nucleus I." Cathcart and the USIA arts staff, having planned the U.S. entry as a cohesive unit—which was apparently allowed by the Bienal guidelines—refused to surrender curatorial prerogatives and allow dispersal of the show. When faced with the choice of breaking up "The Heroic Figure" or withdrawing the show, the U.S. team chose the latter. Bienal organizers independently invited James Brown, Keith Haring and Kenny Scharf to appear in "Nucleus I."

The subsequent tour of "The Heroic Figure" to Rio, Caracas and Santiago will probably take place, dependent upon reapproval of the original loan agreements, as will an appearance at the Houston CAM in Oct. '84.

U.S. artists in other sections of the Bienal include Nam June Paik and Dick Higgins.

NEA Budget Update

As we go to press it appears that Congress has overruled President Reagan and allocated $98 million more for the arts and humanities in 1984 than the Administration had requested. A House-Senate panel has agreed on the higher figure, virtually assuring its passage; Reagan could still veto the measure, but it is considered unlikely. NEA's '84 budget will be $162 million, the amount first suggested by the traditionally more generous House, as opposed to the President's $125-million figure and the Senate's $143-million compromise [see "Artworld," Oct. '83]. The National Endowment for the Humanities will get $140 million, the Institute of Museum Services $20.1 million, and the Historic Preservation Fund, which the Administration had planned to cut off, will get $26.5 million.

Go, Getty!

The J. Paul Getty Museum in Malibu, Calif. has announced further details of its planned major expansion [see "Artworld, Apr. '83]: the museum will begin to select architects for a new $100-million arts complex, including an art museum, an art and humanities study center and a conservation institute, on a 162-acre site in West Los Angeles, north of Sunset Boulevard and immediately west of the San Diego Freeway. The new buildings will occupy 24 acres; the site's open space will include landscaped vistas, pedestrian pathways and sculpture gardens.

The Getty also announced that art and architectural historian Kurt Forster, currently at MIT, will be director of its art history center.

Museum Merger

New York City's Museum of the American Indian and American Museum of Natural History have agreed in principle to merge, a move that would combine the country's two largest collections of Native American artifacts into one vast archive. The Indian museum has long sought to move to larger quarters—only four percent of its collection can be displayed at one time—and blames its uptown location at 155th Street and Broadway for its poor attendance figures (40,000 visitors in 1982). Actual union of the two museums is several years away, however; details of joint funding, administration and space—the possibility of constructing a new facility at the History museum's Central Park site has been raised—remain to be worked out.

NEA Artists Fellowships, 1983

The National Endowment for the Arts has announced grants totaling $2.32 million to 218 visual artists for 1983. NEA's cutback in its artists fellowship program, effected for the first time this year by awarding grants in only half the usual categories, is evident: a decrease of 118 fellowships (or a total of $1,085,000) from last year. Grants of $25,000, $15,000, and $5,000 were awarded in painting, video, conceptual/performance/new genre, and printmaking/drawing/artists' books. The $15,000 category is new this year.

Painting, $25,000: Jake Berthot, Tony DeLap, Louis Finkelstein, Richard Loving, Alice Neel. $15,000: Julio Alpuy, Ellsworth Ausby, Gary Bandy, Jack Barth, Karl Benjamin, Mel Bochner, James Bohary, Phyllis Bramson, Farrell Brickhouse, Eugene Brodsky, Paul Brown, Richard Chiriani, Robert Colescott, Papo Colo, Martha Diamond, Susanne Doremus, Rafael Ferrer, Louise Fishman, Frances Gillespie, Shalom Gorewitz, Scott Grieger, Leo Grucza, Philip Hanson, Peter Heinemann, Victor Henderson, Fay Jones, Mark Karnes, Brian Kazlov, Johannes Lacher, Terence La-Noue, Brian Longe, Margo Machida, S. Craig McPherson, David Miller, Judith Murray, Peter Passuntino, Howardena Pindell, Lucio Pozzi, Harvey Quaytman, Christina Ramberg, Jonathan Santlofer, Anita Steckel, May Stevens, Altoon Sultan, Joan Thorne, Kay WalkingStick, A. Michael Walling, Helen-Miranda Wilson, Karl Wirsum. $5,000: Bob Alderette, Carlos Alfonzo, Michael Almaguer, Scott Bell, Scott Belville, Harry Brock, Diana Cabouli, Danny Connally, Alan Crockett, Michael David, Mark Dean, David DiSalvo, Grant Drumheller, Jeanne Duval, Jean Feinberg, Laurie Fendrich, Stephanie Frank, Cynthia Gallagher, Robert Ganong, Dana Garrett, Judy Geichman, Jeff Gompertz, Jennie Gorton, John Hull, Shelly Hull, Susana Jacobson, Susan Julien, Charles Kessler, Melanie Kozol, Susan Laufer, Kenneth Leslie, David Lowe, William Lombardo, Melissa Meyer, Richard Milani, Kenneth Morgan, Anthony Naponic, Will Northerner, Judith Ornstein, Michele Owings, Cliffton Peacock, Lincoln Perry, John Phillips, Langdon Quin, Dan Rice, Mark Saltz, Juan Sanchez, Sean Scully, Raul Serrano, Elena Sisto, David Vereano, Patrick Webb, Tony Wong, Robert Yarber.

Conceptual/Performance/New Genres, $25,000: Ping Chong, David Ireland, Carolee Schneemann, John White. $15,000: Vito Acconci, Leif Brush, Chris Burden, Sarah Charlesworth, Paul DeMarinis, William Farley, Cheri Gaulke, Vanalyne Green, Douglas Huebler, Joan Jonas, Jill Kroesen, Barbara Kruger, Matt Mullican, Glugio Nicandro, James Pomeroy, Rachel Rosenthal, Alfons Schilling, Theodora Skipitares, Michael Smith, Alan Sonfist, Mierle Ukeles, Martha Wilson. $5,000: Jo Harvey Allen, Eric Bogosian, Kenneth Butler, Dorit Cypis, Karen Finley, Larry Goodell, Candace Hill-Montgomery, Hudson, Ronald Jones, Richard Kamler, William Maxwell, Daphne Nichols, Lorraine O'Grady, Robert Peters, Liz Phillips, James Pridgeon, Earl Ripling, Peter Rose, Fiona Templeton, Al Wong.

Printmaking/Drawing/Artists' Books, $25,000: Dotty Attie, Warrington Colescott, Phoebe Helman. $15,000: Jane Abrams, Emma Amos, Gene Beery, Peter Berg, Troy Brauntuch, William Childress, Max Cole, Robert Cumming, William DeLottie, Kent Floeter, Ira Haber, Harmony Hammond, Gordon Newton, Raymond Saunders, Robert Stackhouse, Peter Waite. $5,000: Lisa Allen, Lynne Avadenka, Katherine Bard, Robert Baribeau, Richard Beckett, Vivian Bower, Carol Burch-Brown, Grace Burney, Alfredo Bustinza, Kenneth Capps, James Clark, Gerald Crimmins, Richard Finch, Gail Gash, Charles Heasley, Sue Hettmansperger, Margo Humphrey, Nene Humphrey, Jim Koss, Annette Lemieux, Norman Lundin, Kevin Osborn, Lois Polansky, Scott Reeds, Lyle Rosbotham, Bruce Schnabel.

Video, $15,000: Liza Bear, Nancy Buchanan, Maxi Cohen, Jaime Davidovich, Howard Fried, Mitchell Kriegman, Laurie McDonald, Tony Oursler, Martha Rosler, Ilene Segalove, Bill Viola, Bruce Yonemoto. $5,000: Benjamin Chase, Raymond Ghirardo and Megan Roberts, David Hayes, Kim Ingraham, Deans Keppel, Tony Labat, Mark Magill.

Application deadlines for 1984 fellowships are: critical writing, Jan. 4, '84; photography, Jan. 26; sculpture, Feb. 15; crafts, Mar. 15.

Obituaries

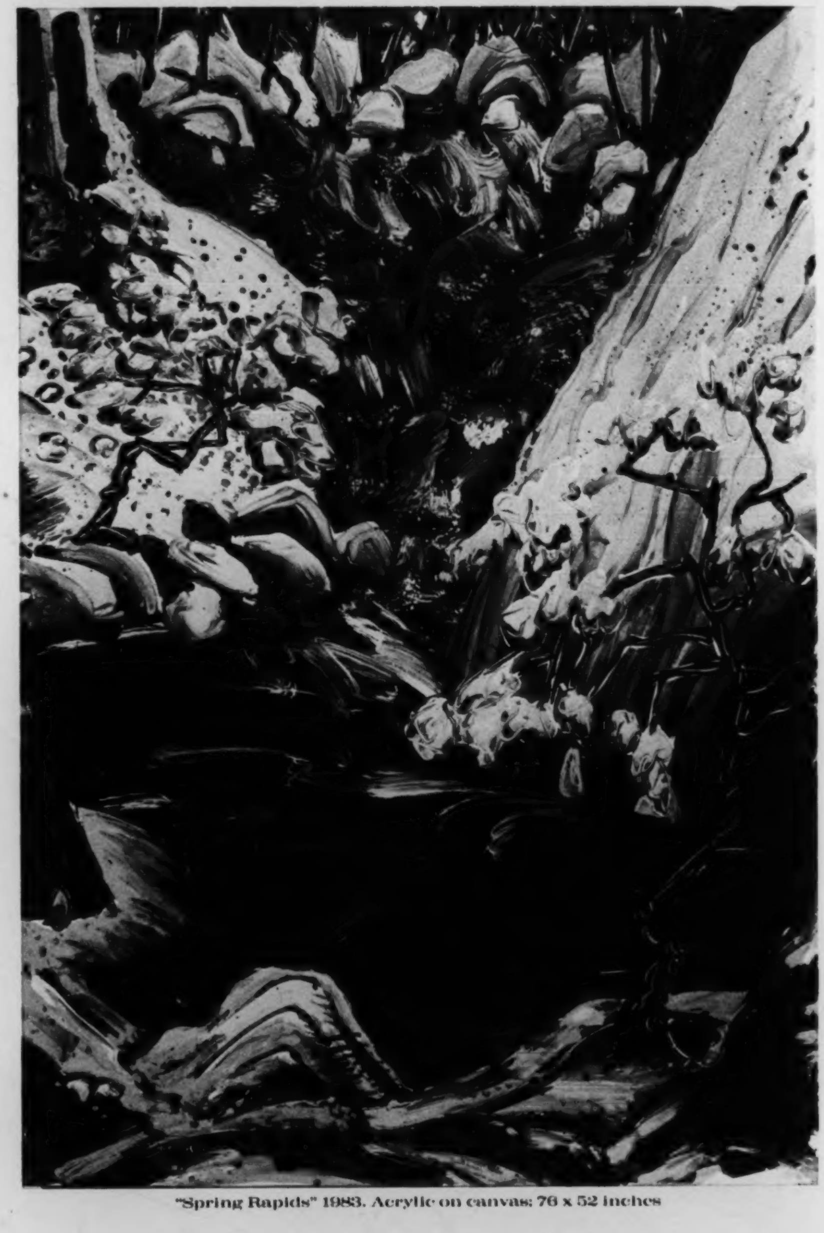
J. Patrick Lannan, 78, business executive and art collector known for his avid patronage of contemporary art. Lannan started as a small-business entrepreneur, becoming chairman of the Susquehanna Corp., a Chicago investment-banking concern; he was a director of ITT for 36 years and a director of Macmillan. He was board chairman of Poetry magazine and a founding board member of the New Museum.

As a contemporary art collector, Lannan was one of the first to buy Louis, Noland and other Color Field painters, as well as large-scale sculpture by Bladen, Forrest Myers, di Suvero and others; he was also an early patron of Voulkos, Gilhooley and other artist-craftsmen; he was particularly active in seeking out new art of the last 10 years. Lannan established the Lannan Foundation to give financial help to needy artists and writers; in 1981, he opened the Museum of the Lannan Foundation in a renovated Art Deco theater in Lake Worth, Fla.; at his death he was working on plans for additional museum facilities in the area.

Guy de Cointet, 43, French-born performance artist who lived in Los Angeles and New York. He was known for elegantly staged pieces which examined paradoxes in language and life and were often openended. He didn't appear in his own works but collaborated with numerous artists, critics and actors. Trained as a painter in Paris, de Cointet also produced books, paintings, drawings and graphics. His U.S. debut was at L.A.'s Cirrus Gallery in 1973; his last show, in 1982, was at the Los Angeles Municipal Art Gallery. In 1981 A New Life was performed at the Guggenheim Museum [see A.i.A., May '81].

Art Sinsabaugh, 58, Chicago-based photographer known for panoramic landscapes of the midwest. From 1959 on he taught at the University of Illinois, and before that at Chicago's Institute of Design. The Art Sinsabaugh Archive was established in 1978 at the University of Indiana. Sinsabaugh's last solo show was in 1980 at the Daniel Wolf Gallery, New York.

BRAD DAVIS



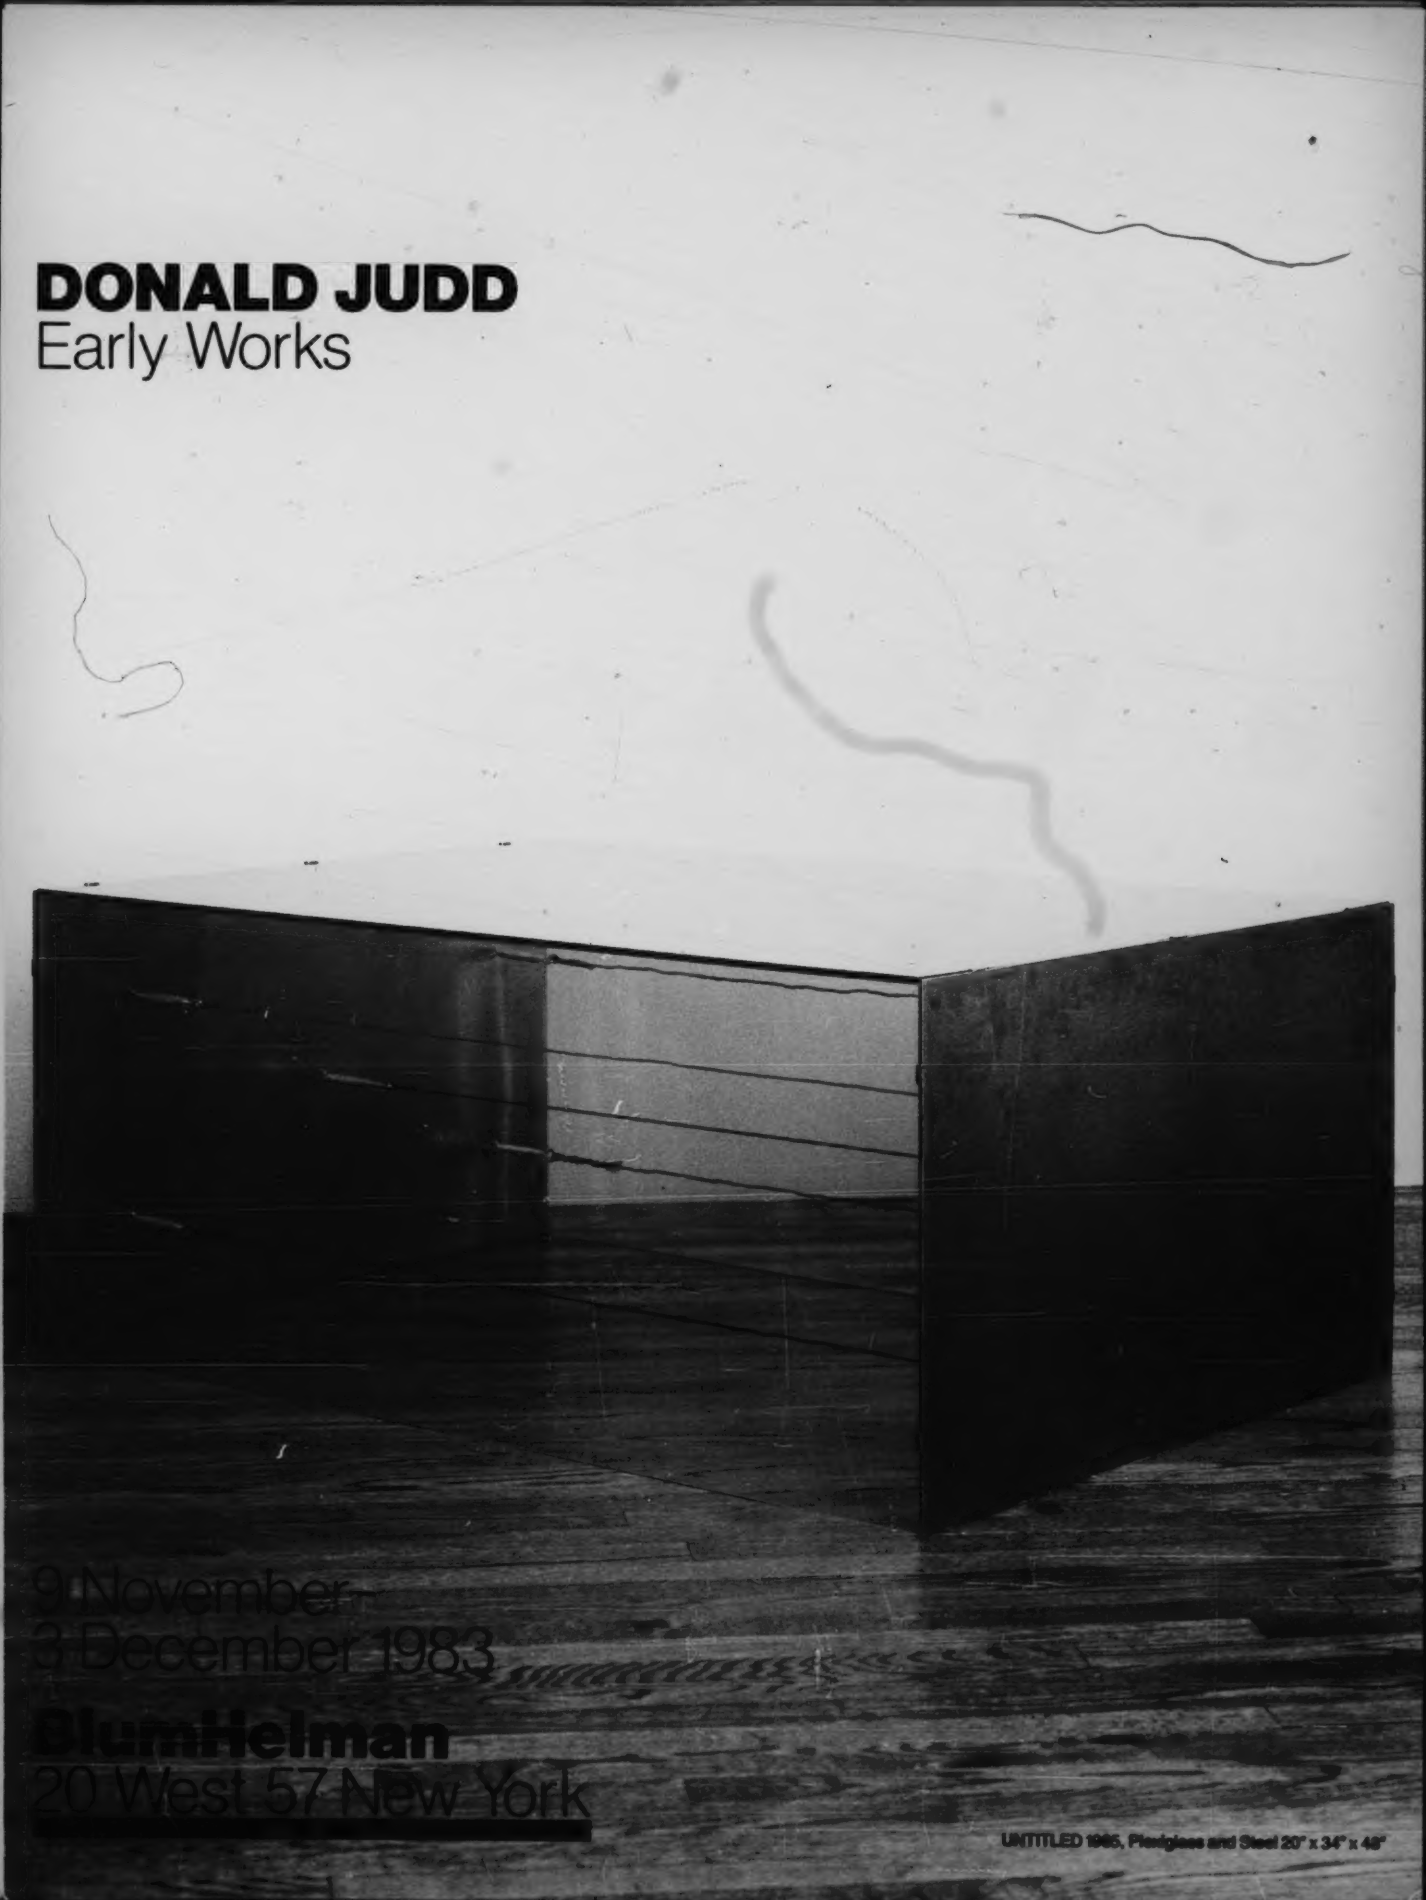
"Spring Rapids" 1983. Acrylic on canvas: 76 x 52 inches

PAINTINGS/NOVEMBER 4-26

HOLLY SOLOMON GALLERY
724 FIFTH AVENUE NEW YORK 757-7777

VOL 71
ISS 10
NO
1983
UMI

DONALD JUDD
Early Works



9 November–
3 December 1983

BlumHelman
20 West 57 New York

UNTITLED 1965, Plexiglass and Steel 20" x 34" x 48"

VOL
7
1

ISS
1 1

D E

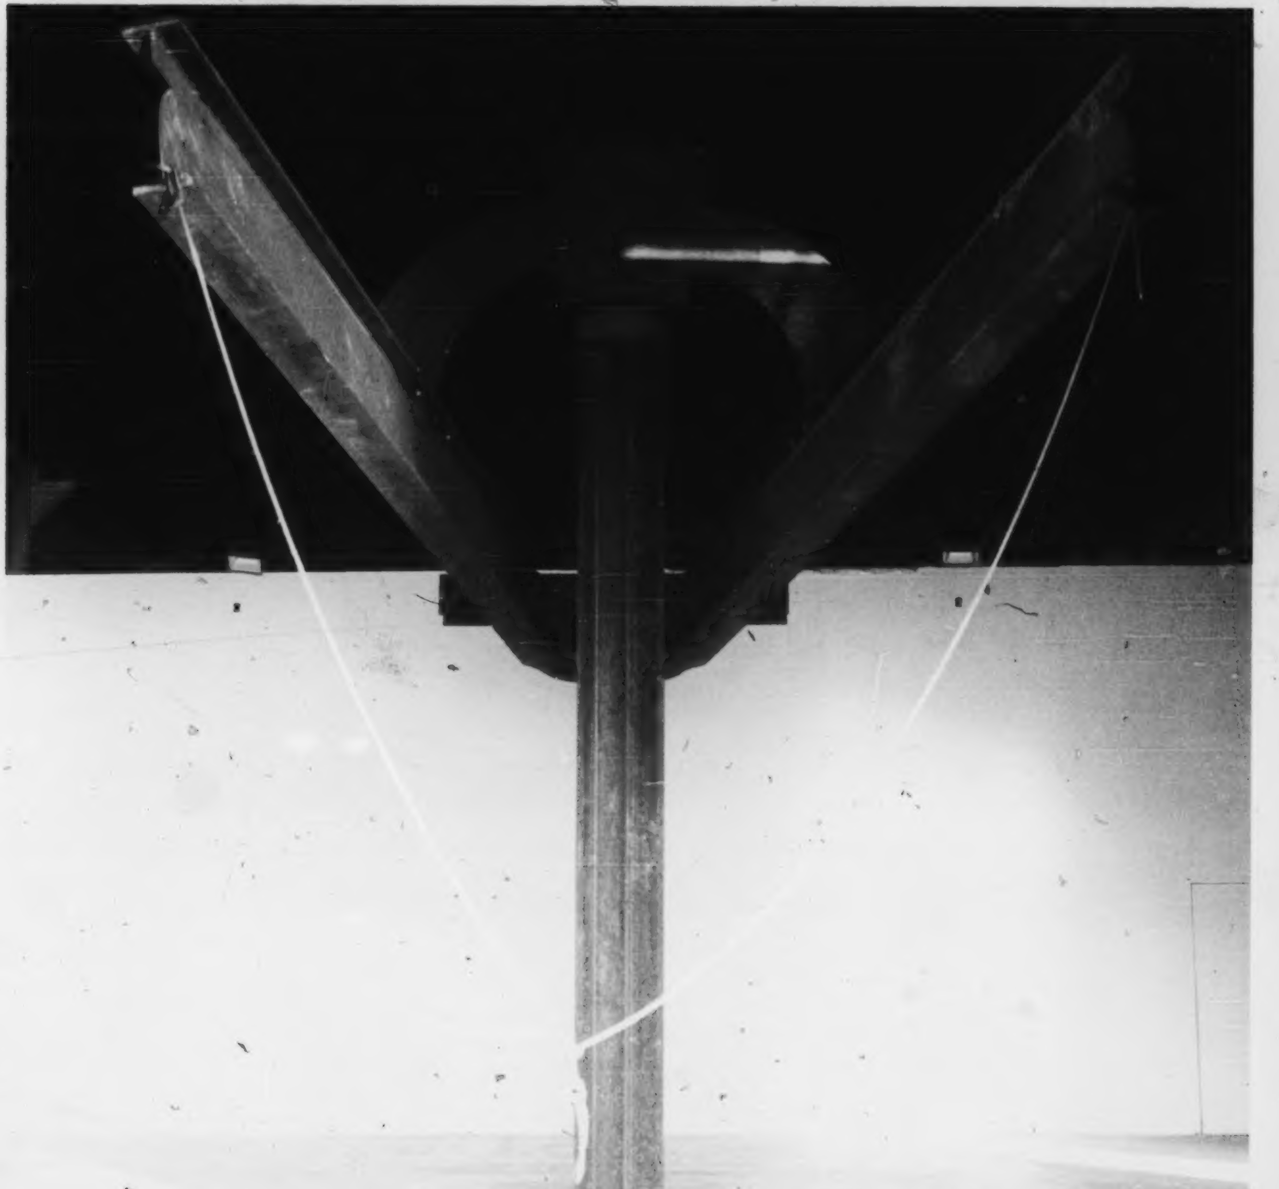
1983

UMI

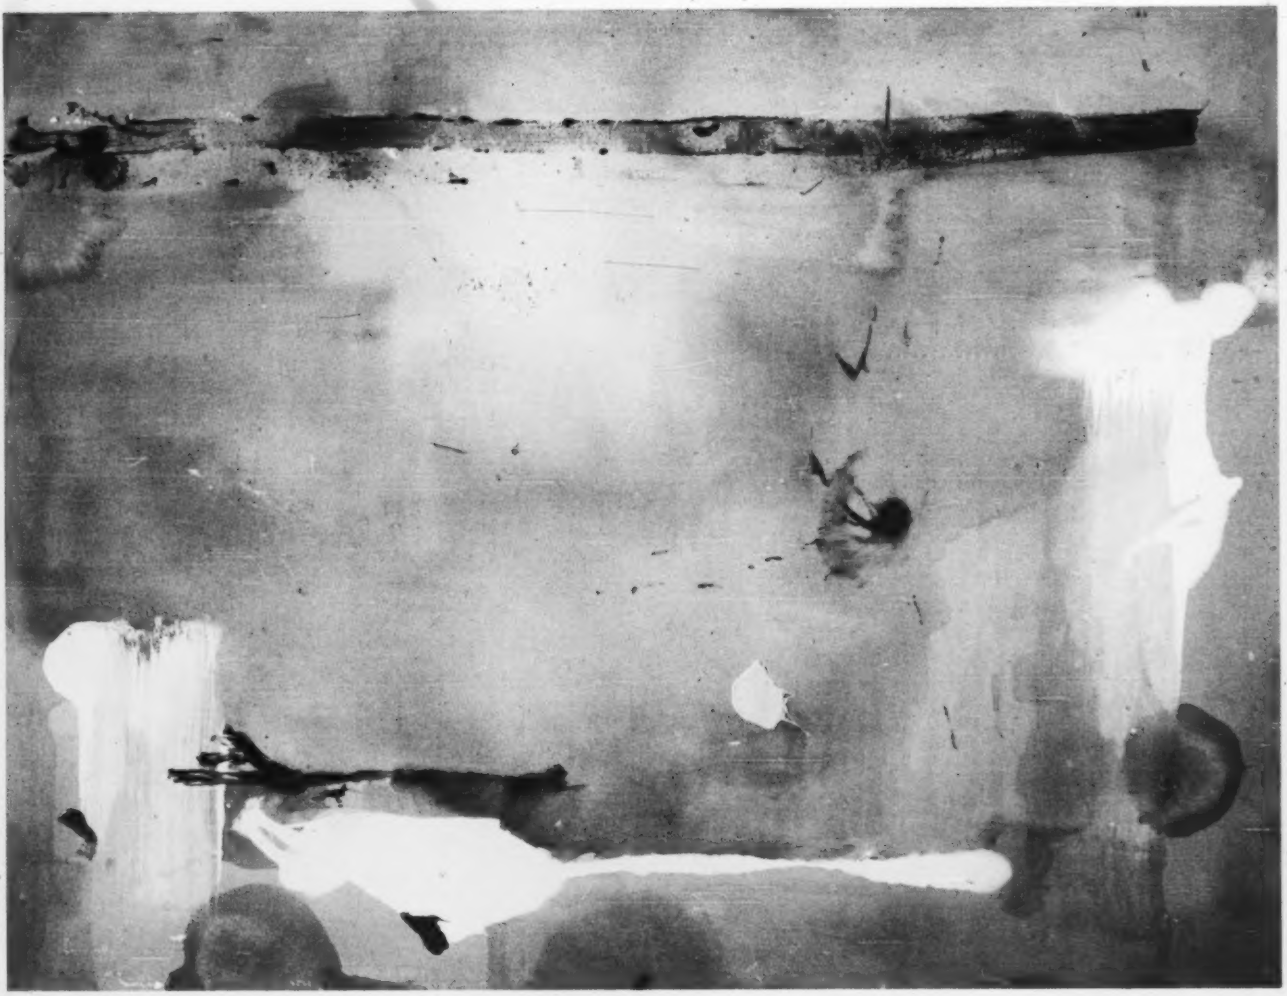
Art in America

DECEMBER 1983/$4.00

Cover: Mark di Suvero's "Mahatma," 1979
Sontag on "Available Light"/Larry Rivers/Fantin-Latour Retrospective
Di Suvero/Social Realism of the '30s/Arman/Cuban Artists Interviewed
"L'Informale" in Bologna/Books/Review of Exhibitions



VOL
7
1
ISS
1 1
DE
1983
UMI



Stone, 1983. Acrylic on canvas, 6' x 7'10¼" (1.82 x 2.39 cm.)

Helen Frankenthaler

New Paintings · November 30 to December 31

ANDRE EMMERICH GALLERY
41 East 57th Street, New York 10022
Telephone (212) 752-0124

A fully illustrated catalogue with 15 color plates is available at $12 postpaid.

Memo to Advertisers:

Thank you for our most successful advertising year ever.

In 1983, you established Art in America as the art world's premier advertising medium – emphatically:

> 1,312 advertising pages is Art in America's all-time annual record, best in our 70-year history.
>
> On a comparative basis, this page total nearly equals the year's combined advertising page totals of Artnews and Artforum.
>
> The art world's highest quality advertisers dominate this record-breaking advertising volume. Included in the "company you keep" are more leading New York galleries, more galleries nationwide, and more European galleries than advertise in any other art magazine.

The result is an artworld information network increasingly valued, and vital to the art interests and activities of the entire art community, who appreciate, read, and act on your advertising.

We at Art in America are equally appreciative – particularly for your record contribution to our success this year.

And we are resolved to make our contribution to your success a growing reality in 1984.

Paul Stanley

Publisher

VOL
7
1
ISS
1 1
D E
1983
UMI

ALFRED JENSEN

THE LATE WORKS

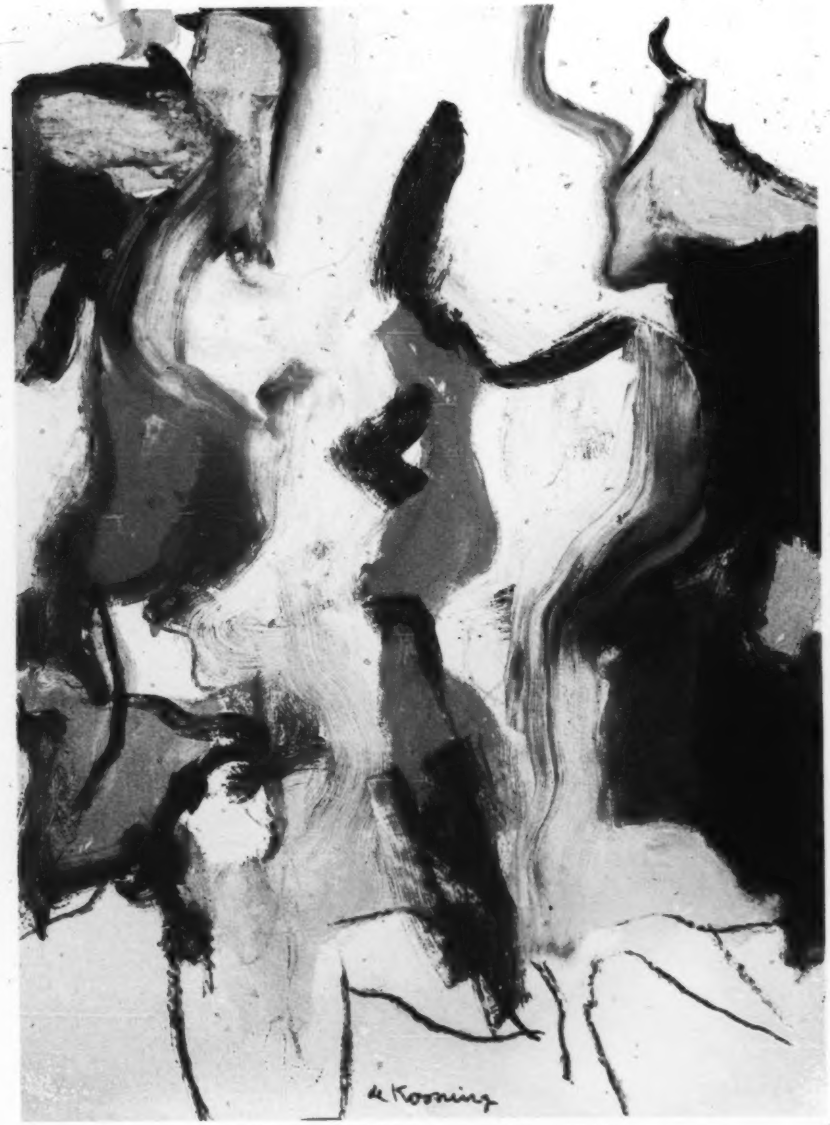
photograph by Hans Namuth

THE PACE GALLERY 32 E 57 NY

VOL 7 1
ISS 1 1
DE 1983
UMI

Willem de Kooning

Selected Works



Untitled, 1981-82. Oil on paper, 41$^1/_8$ x 30$^1/_8$ inches

Dec 16-Jan 27

Galerie Maeght Lelong

9 West 57 Street 41st floor New York, NY 10019
Tel 212 371-9077 Mon-Fri 10-5:30

Art in America

DECEMBER 1983

An Art of Protest and Despair — Jamey Gambrell 92
A traveling show examines American social painting of the '30s.

For "Available Light": A Brief Lexicon — Susan Sontag 100
Lucinda Childs's new dance production is annotated and set in the context of her earlier work.

Fantin-Latour: The Reticent Image — John Jacobus 111
The complexities of Fantin-Latour's contribution to 19th-century painting are explored.

Larry Rivers, Painter Familias — Gary Indiana 118
A recent mini-retrospective accented the domestic side of Rivers's work.

Alfred Kubin: Decadence and Beyond — Brooks Adams 125
Including his fin-de-siècle fantasies as well as his later enigmatic landscapes, an exhibition surveyed this Austrian artist's oeuvre.

Risk & Balance: Mark di Suvero — Wade Saunders 128
Di Suvero's best new steel sculptures combine massive size with careful detailing.

Accumulations by Arman — Ted Castle 136
Amassing and arranging all manner of found objects, Arman has made monuments out of detritus.

DEPARTMENTS

Review of Books 11

Report from Italy:
'50s Informalities
Marcia E. Vetrocq 25

Art & Politics:
Cuba After the Revolution
An Interview with Raul Martínez and Marucha by Eva Cockcroft 35

Artworld 208

REVIEW OF EXHIBITIONS

New York, Purchase, N.Y., Pittsburgh, Washington, D.C., San Francisco, Seattle, Santa Fe, Wallingford, Conn., Los Angeles, Oxford, Eng. 145

Cover: Mark di Suvero's Mahatma, 1978–79, steel and rope, 20 feet high by 30 feet in diameter; photo Steven Sloman, courtesy Oil & Steel Gallery, New York. (Above, Mahatma situated outdoors.) See article beginning on p. 128.

Editor: Elizabeth C. Baker

Managing Editor: Nancy Marmer / Senior Editors: Ted Mooney, Craig Owens, Hal Foster / Senior Editor in Charge of Pictures: Prudence Carlson / Assistant Managing Editor: Kathryn Howarth / Assistant Editor: Robert Fisher / Editorial Secretary: Sarah King / Designer: Alberto P. Gavasci / Associate Designer: Louis D'Esposito / Directory Manager: Amy Slaton / Consultant: John Peter / Contributing Editors: Donald B. Kuspit, Lucy Lippard, Sarah McFadden, Linda Nochlin, Carter Ratcliff, Irving Sandler, Peter Schjeldahl, Roberta Smith, Charles F. Stuckey / Corresponding Editors: Chicago, Franz Schulze; San Francisco, Peter Selz; Washington D.C., David Tannous; London, Suzi Gablik; Rome, Milton Gendel; Germany, David Galloway

Publisher: Paul Shanley

Director of Advertising: Susan B. Anthony / Advertising Sales: Deborah J. Gardner, Karen Niedzielski, Ruth Rothseid / Advertising Services: Julia H. Price, Cathy McKay / Production: Mary Jontry / Production Assistant: Beth Koslan / Credit Manager: Barbara Olivencia / Promotion Director: Valerie Green / Circulation Director: Barbara Gutman / Circulation Manager: Susan Blattman / Marketing Services Director: Karen Tubridy / Art in America, 850 Third Ave., N.Y.C., 10022, Tel. (212) 715-2600

Director for International Development: John H. Liesveld, Jr. / Administrative Assistant: Grant Barker / Art in America, 39 Quai des Grands Augustins, 75006 Paris, France. Tel. (1) 325.26.55

WHITNEY COMMUNICATIONS CORPORATION MAGAZINE DIVISION
PRESIDENT: John S. Prescott SENIOR VICE PRESIDENT, FINANCE/ADMINISTRATION: Gordon H. Duncan
VICE PRESIDENT MARKETING: William Hitzig VICE PRESIDENT PLANNING: Dean Heine
VICE PRESIDENT PRODUCTION: James Kearney VICE PRESIDENT PRODUCT DEVELOPMENT: Virginia Evans

WHITNEY COMMUNICATIONS CORPORATION
CHAIRMAN: Walter N. Thayer
PRESIDENT: Charles H. G. Rees

Vol. 71, No. 11 (December) Art in America is published 11 times a year (monthly except July) by Art in America, Inc., 850 Third Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10022. Telephone (area code 212) 715-2600. Cable address: AMARTMAG. A member of the Magazine Division of Whitney Communications Corporation. Contents copyright © 1983 by Art in America, Inc., and may not be reproduced in any manner or form without permission. ISSN: 0004-3214. The opinions expressed in "Issues and Commentary," apart from the editor's comments, are those of the writers themselves and not necessarily those of this magazine. Not responsible for unsolicited manuscripts or photographs. Art in America is indexed in the Readers' Guide to Periodical Literature and the Art Index. Back volumes of Art in America are available in microfiche from Bell & Howell, Att. Periodical Department, Old Mansfield Road, Wooster, Ohio 44691. Microfilm copies are available through Xerox University Microfilm, Ann Arbor, Michigan 48106. Articles appearing in this magazine are abstracted and indexed in Historical Abstracts and/or America: History and Life and RILA. Circulation is verified by the Audit Bureau of Circulations. Controlled circulation postage paid at Concord, N.H. and New York, N.Y. BACK ISSUES AND COMPLETE VOLUMES: Lawrence McGilvery, P.O. Box 852, La Jolla, Calif. 92038. SUBSCRIPTIONS: U.S. 11 issues $34.95, 22 issues $59.95, 33 issues $79.95. Possessions & Canada add $8.00 per year. All others add $15.00 per year. Single copy $4.00 prepaid. Single copy August/Annual $7.45 prepaid (includes $1.50 postage and handling). SUBSCRIPTION OFFICE: Art in America, 542 Pacific Ave., Marion, Ohio 43302. Telephone (area code 614) 383-3141. CUSTOMER SERVICE: Telephone (toll free code 800) 824-9220. FOR CHANGE OF ADDRESS send old and new addresses and label from a recent issue. POSTMASTER Send Form No. 3579 to Art in America, 542 Pacific Avenue, Marion, Ohio 43302.

VOL
71
ISS
11
DE
1983
UMI

ARNOLD HERSTAND & COMPANY
24 WEST 57TH STREET, SIXTH FLOOR
NEW YORK, NEW YORK 10019
212-664-1379

RECENT ACQUISITIONS:
ANCIENT AND AFRICAN ART; ALSO WORKS BY PICASSO, MIRO, KLEE, TOBEY AND OTHERS

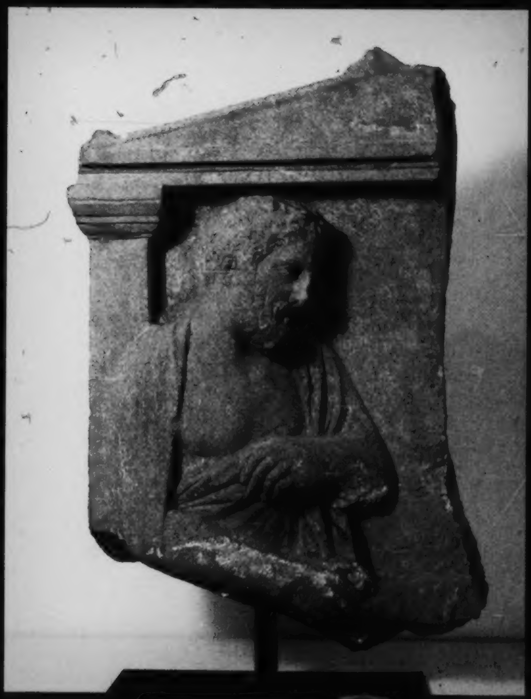
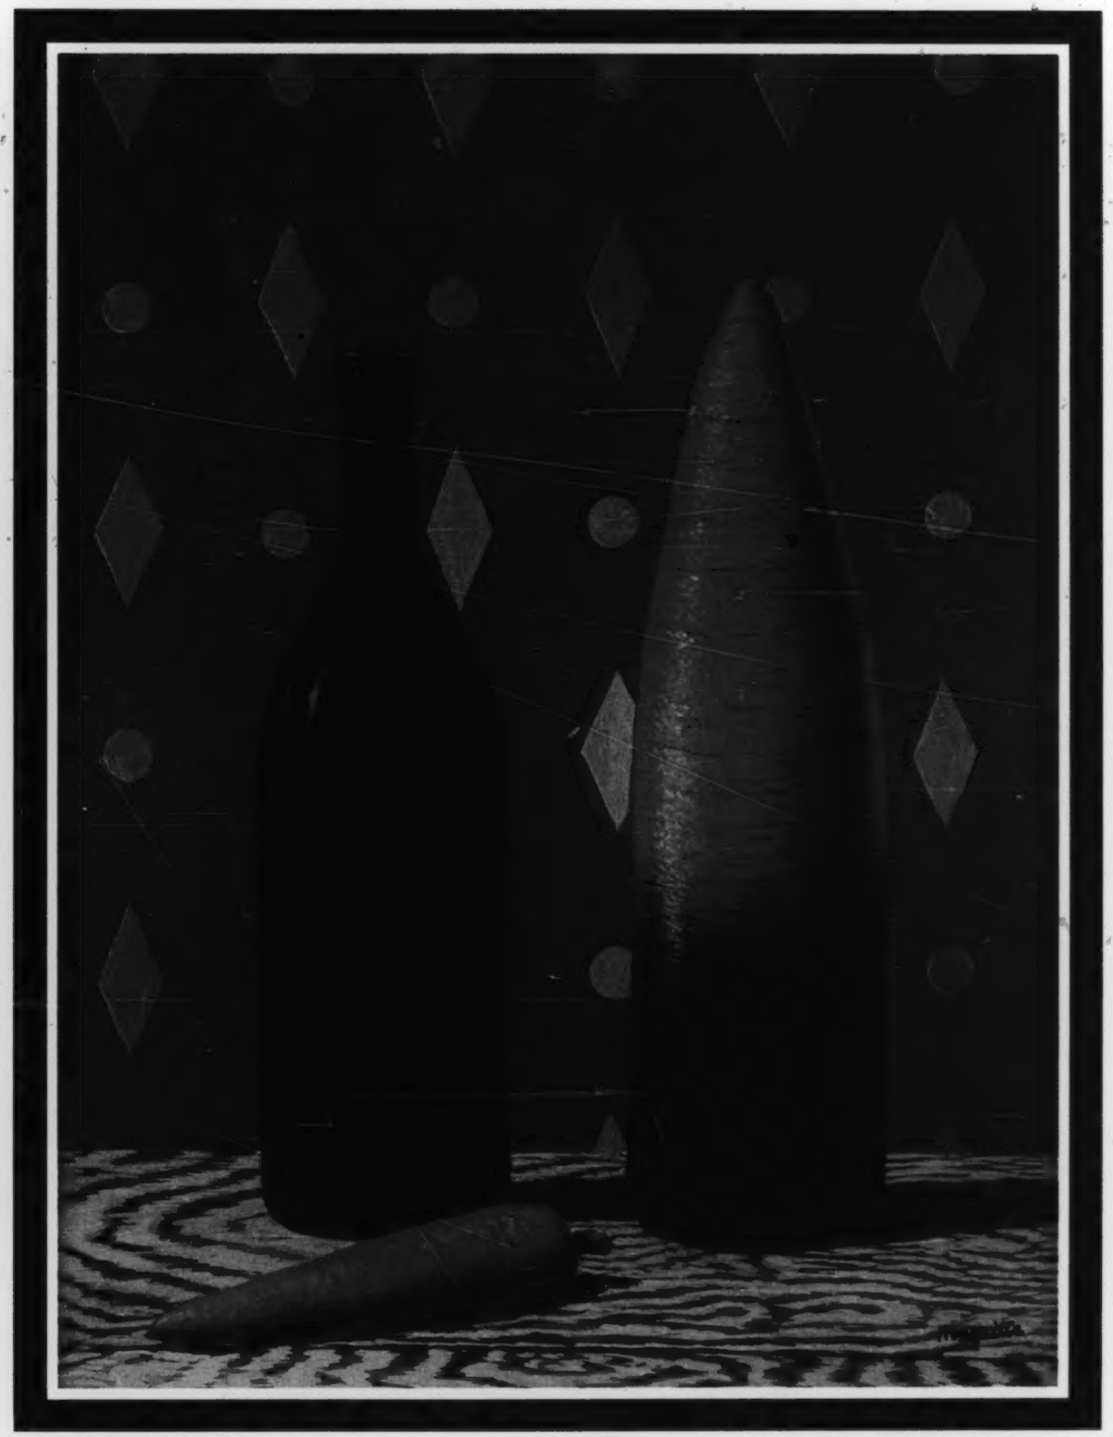
CONTINUING EXHIBITION,
JOAQUIN TORRES-GARCIA, LATE PAINTINGS
THROUGH JANUARY 28, 1984

FRAGMENT OF A GREEK STELE
FOURTH CENTURY B.C., ATTIC MARBLE
27 x 19 x 6¼", 68.5 x 48 x 16 cm
COURTESY GALERIE NEFER, ZURICH

AH





René Magritte, L'Explication, 1960
gouache on paper, 14" x 10½"

works from our collection by Archipenko, Beckmann, Francis, Klee, Klimt, Kokoschka, Leger, Matisse, Pechstein, Renoir

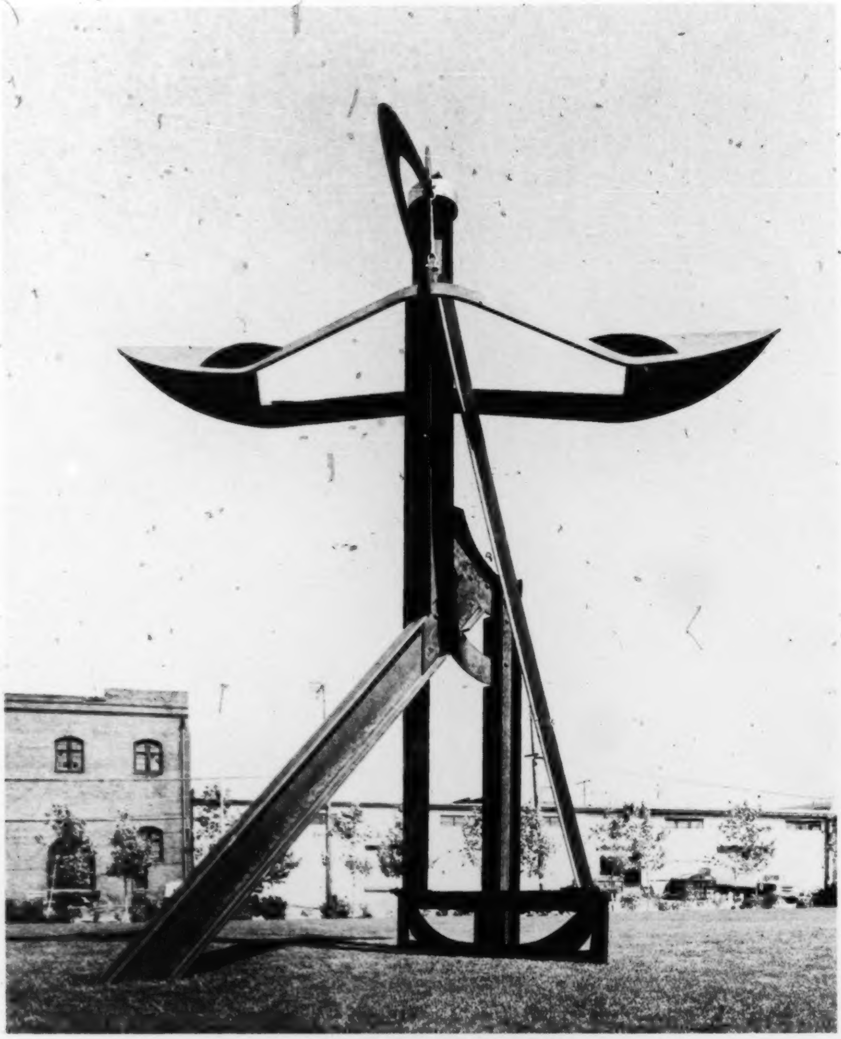
LAFAYETTE PARKE LTD.

2151 Sacramento St. San Francisco, CA 94109
415-922-6777
by appointment only

VOL 71
ISS 11
DE 1983
UMI

JOHN BERGGRUEN GALLERY

228 Grant Avenue · San Francisco · 94108 · 415/781-4629



"Miwok" 1981-82, steel, height: 28'9"

MARK DI SUVERO

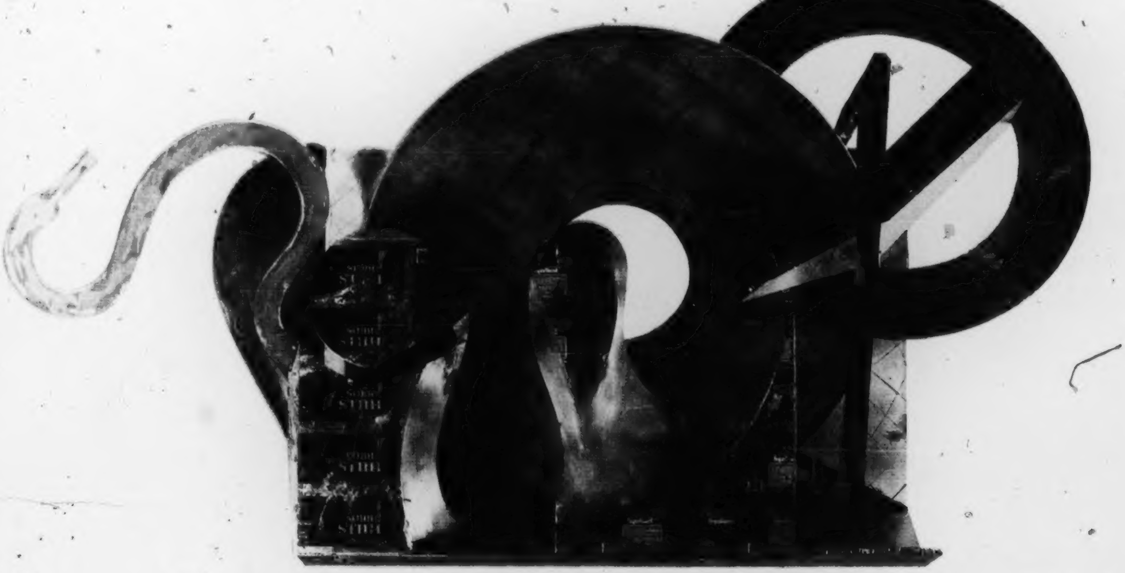
Major Outdoor Sculpture Through December 31st

TONY BERLANT / DON NICE

December 14 - January 14

KNOEDLER ZURICH

KIRCHGASSE 24 · CH-8001 ZURICH · TELEPHONE: 01/69 35 00



FRANK STELLA, GOZO, 1983, HONEYCOMB ALUMINUM, ETCHED HONEYCOMB MAGNESIUM, MOLDED FIBERGLASS AND SHEET STEEL, 70 x 120 x 58¾ INCHES.

Frank Stella

FRANK STELLA

RECENT WORKS
DECEMBER 13, 1983 – JANUARY 21, 1984

TUESDAY TO FRIDAY 10 A.M. TO 6.30 P.M., SATURDAY 10 A.M. TO 4 P.M.

VOL
7
1

ISS
1 1

DE
1983

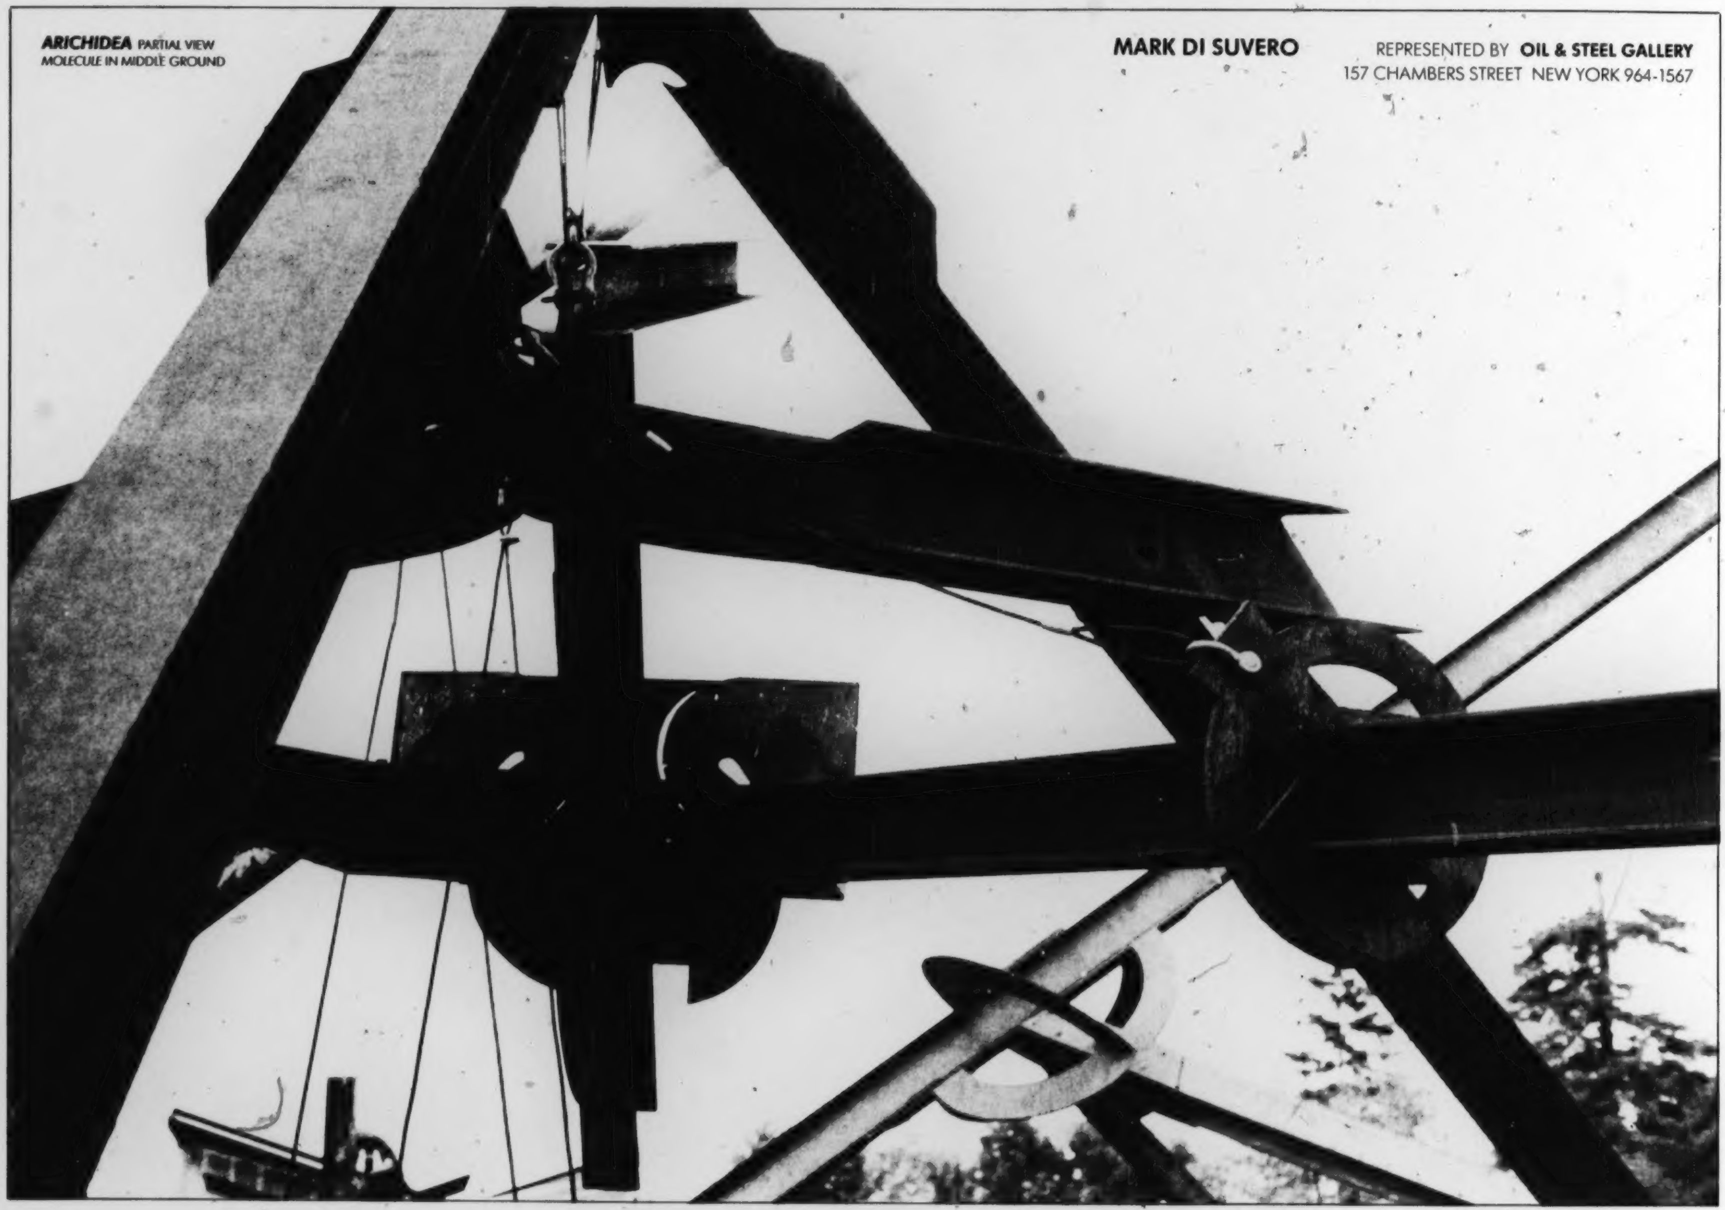
UMI

pierre matisse gallery

in new york since 1932 at 41 east 57

balthus	1938 · 39 · 49 · 57 · 62 · 67 · 77
calder	1934 · 36 · 37 · 40 · 41 · 42 · 43
chagall	1941 · 42 · 44 · 45 · 46 · 47 · 48 · 68 · 68 · 69 · 72 · 73 · 75 · 79 · 81 · 82
chirico	1935 · 40
dubuffet	1947 · 47 · 47 · 48 · 50 · 51 · 52 · 54 · 56 · 58 · 59 · 78
giacometti	1948 · 50 · 58 · 61 · 64
lam	1942 · 44 · 45 · 48 · 50 · 82
matta	1942 · 44 · 45 · 46 · 47
millares	1965 · 74
miró	1932 · 33 · 35 · 36 · 38 · 39 · 40 · 41 · 42 · 44 · 45 · 45 · 47 · 48 · 49 · 50 · 51 · 51 · 52 · 1953 · 56 · 58 · 59 · 61 · 63 · 65 · 67 · 70 · 72 · 73 · 73 · 75 · 76 · 76 · 78 · 80 · 83
riopelle	1954 · 56 · 69 · 74 · 74 · 77
rouan	1976 · 82
saura	1961 · 64 · 71
tanguy	1939 · 42 · 43 · 45 · 46 · 50 · 63
zao wou-ki	1980

major one-man exhibitions since 1932



ARICHIDEA PARTIAL VIEW
MOLECULE IN MIDDLE GROUND

MARK DI SUVERO

REPRESENTED BY OIL & STEEL GALLERY
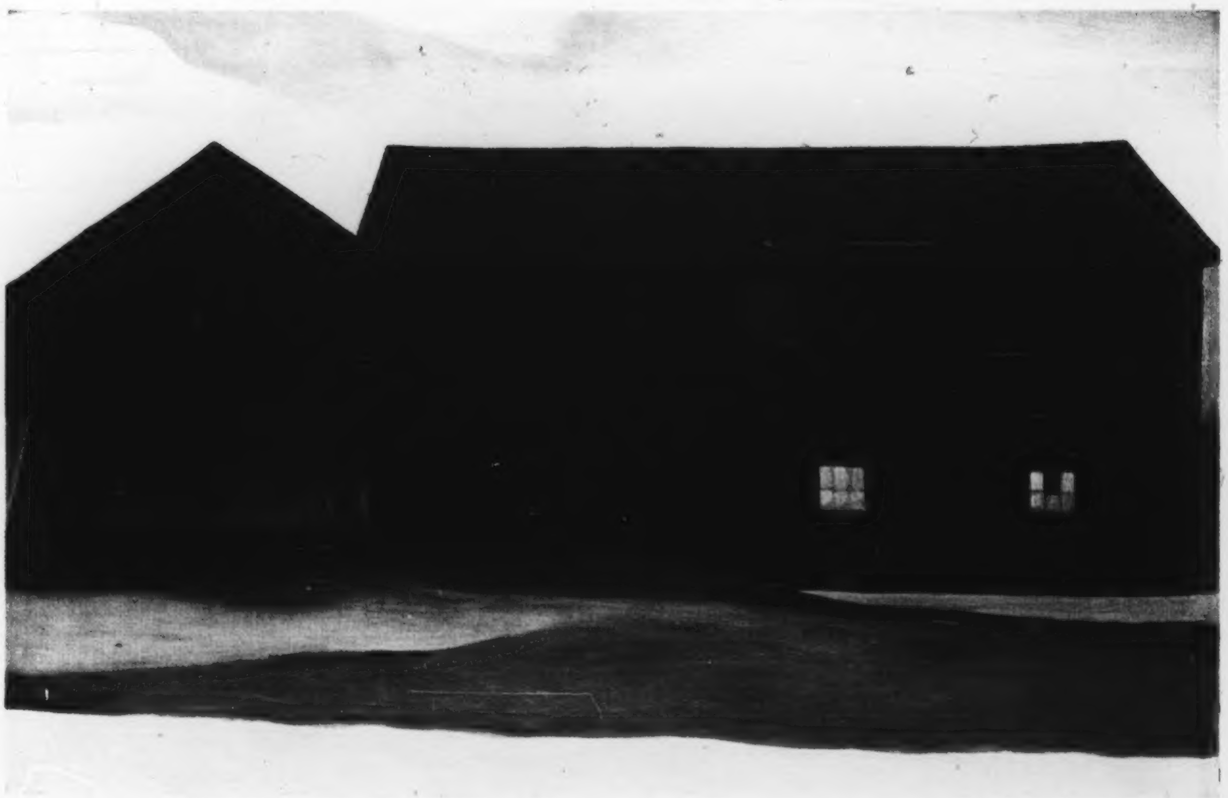
157 CHAMBERS STREET NEW YORK 964-1567

VOL
7
1
ISS
1 1
D E
1983
UMI



Georgia O'Keeffe
The Barns, Lake George, 1926
Oil on canvas, 21 x 32¼ inches
Signed OK and starred on the reverse

JAMES MARONEY incorporated

129a East 74th Street, New York, N.Y. 10021 (212) 879-2252
Church Street, Roxbury, CT 06783 (203) 354-6783

Review of Books

Revolution Out of Bounds

Interweaving sexuality and politics, a new study of revolutionary imagery extends the term "revolution" beyond all reasonable bounds.

BY LINDA NOCHLIN

Representations of Revolution (1789–1820), by Ronald Paulson, New Haven, Yale University Press, 1983; 398 pp., $29.95.

Ronald Paulson begins his extraordinarily ambitious, intermittently brilliant study Representations of Revolution with citations from Marx and Trotsky. The Marx passage is the well-known one from the 18th Brumaire about the tradition of dead generations weighing "like a nightmare" on the brain of living revolutionaries in 18th- and 19th-century France. The citation from Trotsky's History of the Russian Revolution begins, "If a symbol is a concentrated image, then a revolution is the master-builder of symbols," but continues, "The trouble is that the symbolism of a revolution is too grandiose; it fits in badly with the creative work of individuals."

Both citations are apposite to Paulson's undertaking, which is to explore how a writer or artist can represent something believed to be totally unprecedented—in this case, the French Revolution. Yet one could scarcely define Paulson's approach as Marxist in any strict sense of the term. If any theoretical presence dominates Representations . . ., it is Freud. Revolutionary sexuality—treated in terms of repression and regression, of projection and introjection—plays as large, if not a larger role in Paulson's scheme than revolutionary politics. But Paulson is concerned not so much with the actual history of the French Revolution, or even with its direct impact on art, but rather with the representation of revolution in the broadest sense of the term.

One of Paulson's theses is that distance lends enchantment: it was in England and, finally, in Spain with Goya that the French Revolution assaulted the creative imagination most forcefully, with the most shattering impact. With Goya, we confront not merely a transformation of the known, but the invention of a new pictorial language to body forth new realms, hitherto unexplored, of imagination and feeling.

Paulson makes his position clear at the outset. "My subject," artistic representation," he writes, "is not the same as the reaction or response of individuals to the French Revolution. . . . Rather I am exploring the problem of representing the phenomenon in words and images (the 'figuration' of revolution could as well have been my title)." In France, David—an actual revolutionary—was too close to the Revolution itself, too "immersed in day-to-day problems of selling it," to represent it with either the admiring or the horrified detachment of a Burke or a Blake, both safely distanced in England from the actual occurrence.

Indeed, Paulson's chapter on David, "The French Revolution and the Neoclassical Style," while not without originality and insight, is his weakest. Here, he depends heavily on other people's research and writing: the chapter is as rich in citations as a Christmas cake with fruit and nuts. In a sense, this chapter is a transformation (and expansion) of Robert Rosenblum's Transformations in Late Eighteenth-Century Art, supplemented by more recent scholarship and energized by a far more up-to-date emphasis on sexual symbolism. (Paulson pursues at great length that ultimate sexy personification of revolution, Liberty, from the prototypical Virgin Mary to the headier formulations of the Marquis de Sade and Mary Wollstonecraft.)

Inevitably, though, the specific, sometimes oppositional stance of the authorities Paulson cites gets lost in the shuffle or, perhaps, blended into the revolutionary fruitcake. For example, Thomas Crow's provocative and polemical article on David's Oath of the Horatii, which argues for a strictly contextual interpretation of the painting and inveighs against any kind of source-mongering or conventional art-historical reading of the work, is blandly assimilated by Paulson to a variety of "viewpoints" or "interpretations" of David's political beliefs on the eve of the Revolution. But the point of Crow's piece is that his is not simply another approach; he makes a strong case for Marxist social history as the only way to deal with art and artists. Paulson simply squeezes the information out of Crow's article and ignores its essential message: that it is only within the concrete discourse of pre-Revolutionary radicalism that sense can be made of David's famous painting.

Paulson's chapters on England are, I think, his best. He seems most at home and most freewheeling in his analyses when leading us through the imaginative responses of Burke and Paine, Wollstonecraft and Blake. His reading of literary texts is especially enlightening. For example, he treats Burke's description of the poor, besieged, "almost naked" Marie Antoinette fleeing the revolutionary crowd as a metaphor: the stripping of society has become the literal stripping of the queen.

Paulson is an adept of this sort of easy movement between subconscious sexual imagery and larger political representations, and he treats this kind of grand image-making under the aspect of Thomas Rowlandson: Death and the Portrait, 1814, watercolor drawing. Henry E. Huntington Library and Art Gallery.

VOL 71
ISS 11
DE 1983

the sublime and the beautiful. He leads us to see the metaphorics of Burke and his political opposite, Mary Wollstonecraft, as manifest expressions of more extensive ideological outlooks, vast pools of latent content which include attitudes towards the father, God, the Sublime and the Beautiful, as well as towards sex, dirt, darkness and excrement. Paulson is particularly convincing on these, the more regressive aspects of revolutionary imagery. His chapters titled "Rowlandson, Wilkes, Fox, Sheridan, & Co.: The Comic/Picturesque" and "The Grotesque, Gillray, and Political Caricature" are the best in the book.

Paulson takes the comic seriously, and rightly so. As he points out, although the representation of revolution by pornography may seem inadequate to the events taking place in France, it was nevertheless central to the uprooting of all sorts of traditional values which lay at the heart of the great event. Sex, often grotesquely exaggerated in its representation, was an important aspect of the so-called "nature" that replaced church and state as the ultimate authority. In Rowlandson's work, the sexual-anarchic is constantly at war with the forces of repression and order. In some of his marvelously irreverent watercolors, the comic and the serious, the contemplation of death itself, are inextricably mingled in a language of passionate grotesquerie: Death and the Portrait, done the very year of Napoleon's defeat, shows a skeleton at an easel tracing the image of a wrinkled old man whose classical wreath suggests the horns of a cuckold. Behind him, on the couch, a young man makes love to his wife.

The book's final chapter—titled "Goya and the Spanish Revolution"—is also its most problematic, in part because the Spanish "Revolution" was ultimately a reactionary revolution which ended with the restoration of the Spanish monarchy. Paulson relates Goya's graphic work to political developments in revolutionary Spain, which are divided into three phases. The first phase is the Spanish reaction to the French Revolution and corresponds to Goya's "Caprichos" of the 1790s. The second begins in 1808 when, following the enthronement of Napoleon's brother, the Spanish people rose up against the foreign invaders who were also the source of liberalism and Enlightenment; this phase is represented in Goya's work by the "Disasters of War." The third phase, the counter-revolutionary restoration of the Spanish king, is heralded by the final prints of the "Disasters" series and responded to in the "Bullfight" prints, the great works of Goya's final years in exile. Then, Paulson launches into his grand finale—a no-holds-barred discussion of the most aggressive-regressive representation of revolution of all: the black paintings of the Quinta del Sordo.

Obviously, images like Satan Devouring his Children and Judith Beheading Holofernes offer a field day to a critic so deeply attuned to the interaction of the sexual and the political dimensions of revolution as Paulson, and he takes full advantage of the interpretive possibilities offered by Goya's hallucinatory imagery in the Quinta. He concludes that Goya's art of revolution is, in some sense, a defense mechanism, "a dual response of projection and introjection. What in the Desastres he projects onto the irrational situation of the Spanish War, in the Deaf Man's House he dramatizes as an awareness of how the artist's own process of projection/introjection operates."

This is certainly an interesting hypothesis, but it seems to me to extend the implications of revolutionary imagery beyond all reasonable bounds. Paulson anticipates this sort of objection: "I have been using the word revolution," he writes, "because we are speaking of the period of the French Revolution. But in the Spain of Goya all we see is a series of revolts and failed revolutions of the people and of Goya himself. Only the artist was revolutionary in the sense of proceeding with a plan for reconstruction—not of society, which he is only mirroring, but of his art. That is where the true Spanish revolution lay."

This argument seems to dissolve the term "revolution" rather than extend it. What we are ultimately left with is a new style in art—which is not a revolution at all, but something quite different. Paulson in some way recognizes this fact and admits as much. But he really believes that artists like Blake and Goya were luckier than David: "They were fortunate enough to be free of the constricting situation of the successful revolution, which requires apologists only." This is certainly a provocative—and highly debatable—proposition. ☐

Vision and Revision

A new attempt to dislodge entrenched art-historical models applies recent developments in critical theory to the analysis of painting.

BY DAVID CARRIER

Vision and Painting: The Logic of the Gaze, by Norman Bryson, New Haven and London, Yale University Press, 1983; 189 pp., $17.95.

Every month a shelfload of new books on critical theory is published; a critic can make a name today just by telling the history of recent criticism. Until relatively recently only specialists had heard of Lacan, Barthes or Foucault; still newer figures have already started to displace these, our modern "masters." By contrast, most art history published now could have been written decades ago. For a discipline which remains obsessively centered on an Italian Renaissance model, the great book on theory remains Ernst Gombrich's Art and Illusion, which is critically examined by almost no one.

Art historians' lack of concern with theory is surprising, both because theories of literary interpretation would seem to be relevant to the visual arts, and because much recent art itself critiques more traditional approaches to art. Expressive brushwork, popular imagery, the place of art in the marketplace, teleological models of art history: today's painters are much concerned with these issues. But art historians take little professional interest in new art and remain relatively indifferent to questions of historiography and critical method; thus, there is a pretty firm dividing-line between contemporary art and speculative criticism on the one hand, and serious art history on the other. Nobody publishes in both the Art Bulletin and Artforum.

Of course, novelty is not in itself a good thing, and assimilating both contemporary art and theory will take time. But in our culture it is hard to imagine an intellectually demanding discipline that fails to innovate. What was exciting about the creation of art history—as Michael Podro's The Critical Historians of Art (1982) well indicates—was how Panofsky, Warburg and others synthesized a living tradition dating back to Hegel. The debate among these now legendary figures was intellectually rich in a way that recent orthodox art history is not. (It is revealing that Podro's book is the first substantial study in English of that tradition.) The stasis in current art history seems both a contingent fact about intellectual history—the German refugees of the 1930s imported into the English-speaking world a methodology, but not the theoretical argumentation behind that methodology—and an unhappy acknowledgment of the close relation between art history and an art market which it serves.

Certainly we have eminent art writers: Leo Steinberg, T. J. Clark, Ronald Paulson (Emblem and Expression, 1975, and Literary Landscape, 1982), Michael Fried (Absorption and Theatricality, 1980), Svetlana Alpers (The Art of Describing, 1983), Oleg Grabar (The Formation of Islamic Art, 1973), Joseph Masheck. These writers differ in approach, but what they share—what justifies grouping them together as "revisionist" art historians—is their rejection of two Albertian ideas developed by Gombrich: that a painting is a window opening onto a illusionistic space, and that interpretation requires identifying the scene we see through the window.

Though seemingly dated, this is a surprisingly versatile model. Gombrich extended it to 19th-century landscape, showing how Ruskin's Modern Painters continues Alberti's On Painting; even Clement Greenberg's flattened modernist space is both a development out of and a break with the Albertian model. Renaissance religious narrative, Constable's landscapes, Abstract-Expressionism: these are viewed as three stages in one continous development.

UMI

Now we may, with Steinberg, speak of a flatbed picture plane, a hard surface "on which objects are scattered"; or, with Fried, say that painting seeks to deny the presence of an observer before the window; or, with Alpers, treat the image as like a retinal image, a mirror of the external world; or, with Masheck, link abstract art to crosses and icons. In any case, we deny that paintings are windows, and thereby decenter the traditional art-historical privileging of Italian Renaissance art. No longer does it provide the model which all paintings of other times and places should approximate.

The publication of Norman Bryson's Vision and Painting: The Logic of the Gaze is therefore timely, for it offers both a critique of traditional art history and presents an alternative position suggestively related to all these revisionist accounts. Critically, Bryson argues that Gombrich treats the image as an "essential copy," a replica aiming transparently to present what it represents. In Gombrich's account, Bryson argues, the artist's physical working of materials is concealed: "The oil-medium does not exist," he writes, "except to erase its own production."

According to Bryson, we can explain our intuition that Giotto's Christ and Judas is more naturalistic than the earlier work, perhaps by Duccio, at Assisi without reference to Gombrich's theory of art as illusion. Here, Bryson relies on Roland Barthes's account of literary realism: just as a naturalistic novel—whether a James Bond fantasy or Madame Bovary—seems "true to life" because it describes so many things in such detail, so Giotto has provided us with surplus information, with more narrative details than are needed to tell the bare story Judas-kisses-Christ. The function of such excess information is to make us believe that the picture describes a reality external to itself.

Bryson's semiotic theory attempts to show how this illusion is both produced and maintained: Suppose we deny that pictures are more or less naturalistic images of what they depict. Rather, elements in paintings, as in texts, refer by being parts of a code, and art history must analyze the changing systems of these codes. Today we must learn to read the expressive gestures in Baroque art; soon people analyzing our fashion advertisements will need to understand our codes. For what once seemed so obvious that it hardly needed putting into words eventually becomes the object of the historian's research.

Gombrich, however, seems to take our codes for granted; he thinks that the viewer can see directly the scene depicted in a picture, whose hidden or symbolic meanings iconology then reveals. But for a consistent semiotic theorist, all images—from a "straightforward" Impressionist landscape to an esoteric Renaissance allegory—are codified, and therefore require decoding. And since codes have meaning only because artists once used and viewers once understood them, a semiotic history of art necessarily is a social history. To see the picture we must know an intersubjective system of meanings; we cannot simply look at the picture.

My description, presenting what seems a developed theory, is too optimistic—or at least premature. What Bryson offers is a sketch of such a theory, whose full development is no trivial task. His arguments about the "essential copy" are suggestive, but are not really developed far enough to be convincing. Nor are they entirely fair to Gombrich. Sometimes, it is true, Gombrich does treat pictures as if they were transparent, as if the viewer were just looking through the medium to see what is depicted. But he does not always do this. In fact, Gombrich says much about the conventions of pictorial art; his repeated insistence that we can see the representation only when we know the relevant codes seems consistent with a semiotic theory.

Moreover, Bryson's claim that European art treats its medium as if it were transparent is odd—especially after Gombrich has described at such length that tradition's fascination with the "beholder's share," with seeing pigment turn into what it represents. Only looking too much at photographs of paintings could cause anyone to hold this view. No one who has stood close to Titian's Bacchus and Ariadne would agree that here "the oil-medium does not exist, except to erase its own production."

More generally, what Bryson's theory omits is a distinction between the ways that different naturalistic works may match reality. Constable's Wivenhoe Park depicts an actual scene viewed by the artist, but a holy family does not; and though this distinction is obvious, talking of naturalism naturally but misleadingly causes us to think of Titian, like Constable, as copying some particular reality. The Renaissance artist studied his models, but their relation to what he depicted was complex; a naturalistic-looking Trinity, like the one by Masaccio analyzed by Bryson, copies no scene, though admittedly some 19th-century religious art treats holy scenes as if they had been photographed. Ironically, Bryson does not discuss more recent art, in which the re-presentation of images from earlier painting or from popular culture does explicitly invoke awareness of a code.

Actually, to speak confidently, as I have, of Bryson's "semiotic" theory does not locate his account in the happiest way. In fact, he criticizes Saussure's theory of signs, and the account on which he does draw, Jacques Lacan's analysis of perception, comes from a piece of that elusive analyst's work not directly concerned with language. In a series of lectures titled "Of the Gaze as Objet Petit a," published in The Four Fundamental Concepts of Psychoanalysis, Lacan suggests that in visual perception the subject's essential lack of integration—manifested in castration anxiety—is shown by our perception of ourselves as seen by the gaze of "the other" directed at us. In this anti-Cartesian account the perceiver does not look out at the world—as indeed Alberti's model also requires—but views and is viewed by that world in a way that implicates his bodily presence.

Bryson claims that European art treats its medium as transparent. But no one standing close to Titian's "Bacchus and Ariadne" could agree that "the oil-medium does not exist, except to erase its own production."

Lacan's presentation is highly elliptical; even those who find him readable may think that, because he says so little about painting, this is an odd starting point for an alternative to Art and Illusion. Since Gombrich too draws inspiration from psychoanalysis—his redoing of the Albertian model draws on the different psychoanalytic theorizing of his friend Ernst Kris—we might even schematize the debate between Gombrich and Bryson as an argument about how to interpret Freud.

What revisionist art history needs, I think, is some alternative to the Albertian account, whether this be Steinberg's flatbed press, Fried's worries about theater or Masheck's icons. For Bryson the history of European art is not a progress towards naturalism, but a story of the spectator's changing role. The Christ in a Byzantine Pantocrator looks directly at me; viewing a Quattrocento altar, I place my body at some viewing point chosen by the painter; finally, before a Vermeer, I as viewer have "no existence in tangible space." For Bryson, this gradual displacement or repression of the observer's body signals the gradual denial of the artist's physical work. Bodies in this tradition appear only as depicted—this disavowal of the body accounts for our obsession with the nude—and not as the source of that physical object in which or through which we see the image.

Vision and Painting is a virtuoso performance, an incredibly skillful weaving together of esoteric texts into a seemingly coherent design. If the result seems more impressive as intellectual synthesis than as the product of close observation of individual artworks, that perhaps is inevitable in any book so concerned with theory. Bryson's earlier Word and Image: French painting of the Ancien Régime (1981) gave a detailed account of that period, and the new book provides, presumably, the justification for that history. Though this separation of theory and practice affords a certain clarity of presentation, one difficulty with it is that the relation of Bryson's novel theory to his analysis of 18th-century painting is not always clear. Nor is Word and Image always as radically novel as Bryson's rejection of orthodox art history might suggest; sometimes one has the impression that much orthodox art history could be restated without too much difficulty in this exotic vocabulary.

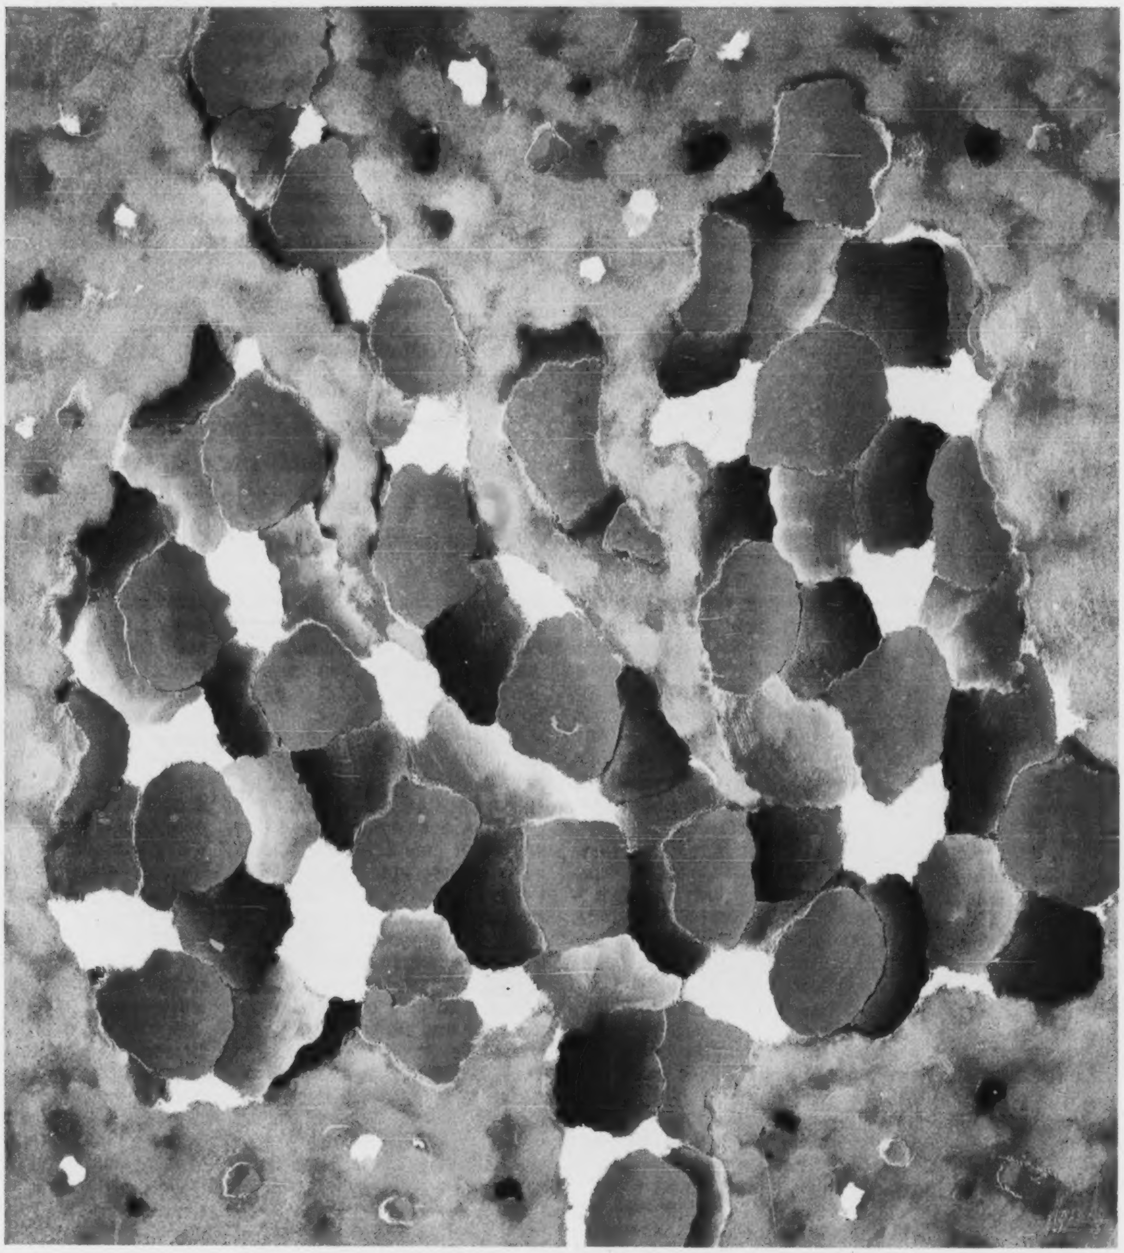
Unlike the other revisionist art historians, Bryson—dean of English Studies at Cambridge—aims to present a novel systematic account. We may be grateful for that, for much can be learned even from the failure of such an ambitious project. Perhaps it is premature to look for a synthesis which, when it comes, may not be a semiotic or Lacanian account. Maybe as art history ceases to be centered on the Italian Renaissance the felt need for a single,

VOL 7 1
ISS 1 1
DE 1983
UMI

Gershon Iskowitz

New Paintings 1981-83

December 1–31



Painting B, 1982. Oil on canvas, 45 x 39 inches (114.3 x 99.1 cm.)
Illustrated color catalogue $10

Marisa del Re Gallery

41 East 57th Street New York, NY 10022 Tel (212) 688-1843

generally applicable model of art will disappear. Icons, Dutch genre scenes, Persian carpets and postmodernist paintings may all coexist in the same museum without a search for common qualities which make them all works of art. Possibly, also, the art history establishment will seek such a paradigm change only when motivated by detailed argumentation about particular works. A synthesis like Panofsky's or Wölfflin's, we can learn from Podro, came only after a long debate within the intellectual community. What an ambitious book like Bryson's might provoke is much-needed dialogue among revisionist art historians; an attempt by them and also by more orthodox figures to spell out the theory of art history would be most welcome. Vision and Painting is likely to produce debate, and it comes at a time when argumentation is much needed. The concerns of people in literature, the contemporary art world and art history all converge here. Art history, it seems, threatens to become interesting to more than just art historians.

Mystifying the Mysterious

Vague in its theses, a new Rothko monograph evokes the context of his art—but fails to convey its principles or its pertinence.

BY PETER SCHJELDAHL

About Rothko, by Dore Ashton, New York, Oxford, 1983; 244 pp., $25.

Depending on the extent of one's empathy, Mark Rothko's life was tragic or merely sad. In any case, it was and remains an interesting life. Its vicissitudes were a seismograph of big changes in art and the world (and the art world) which still reverberate. It was crowned for a number of years—the early to mid-'50s if you're picky, longer if you're not—with the production of some extraordinary paintings, classics of modernism. And Rothko's life exerts the poignant tug—mythic or melodramatic, according to taste—of an injured but ambitious personality which found, then lost, a grip on reality through art. So there are plenty of angles in the Rothko story, lots of questions to be addressed and a wide range of plausible opinions to be advanced or refuted. It could make for a very good book.

Given Dore Ashton's temperament, About Rothko didn't figure to be that book, and it isn't. As a veteran chronicler of the New York School, Ashton has many strengths, all of them apparent here: intimate personal acquaintance, a passionate response to the art and the artists, and an encyclopedic command of relevant art history, literature and philosophy. She writes from inside a deep, nearly symbiotic absorption, radiant with earnestness and sympathy. But Ashton's strengths entail corresponding handicaps, notably an elusive point of view and a style of argument that is all elaboration of theses curiously unstated. Her intelligence, in her writing, is ambient, like a warm fog. Without narrative or discursive momentum, her prose, though clear, is punishingly hard to read.

Ashton writes that when she and Rothko socialized, "We talked about 'life' the way we imagined the old Russian literati used to talk—long, meandering conversations that often concluded with a sigh. . . ." Her half of the conversation has been kept up. Heady and a bit breathless, it is the keynote of this book, which features an astonishing lack of hard information. A fact is not a fact for Ashton unless shellacked with "meaning," no matter how speculative or superfluous. Thus, "selling newspapers and working regularly after school did not undermine [the young] Rothko. It seemed to enhance his underlying seriousness." The disembodied "seemed" in that passage is symptomatic, by the way, of Ashton's deficiencies as a biographer. What little (very little) biography there is in About Rothko is bespattered with "apparently," "no doubt," "it seems that," "almost certainly" and other qualifiers, each introducing an unbuttressed supposition.

The bulk of About Rothko, good and bad, is a piling up of literary and philosophical references, all cited as influences on Rothko's art and inner life. (I leave out an umpteenth retelling of the Abstract Expressionist generation's saga—background surely familiar, from Ashton's The New York School: A Cultural Reckoning, among other sources, to anyone likely to read this book.) At worst, the practice seems like name-dropping, so that, for instance, the artist can't have a moment of nervousness without Kafka flying in the window. And can it really be that all relationships among the Abstract Expressionists were mediated by literature? "[Clyfford] Still became Archilochus to Rothko's Homer," Ashton writes. Two pages farther on she quotes Robert Motherwell: "I was Stephen Dedalus to [Rothko's] Bloom." All one big psychic costume party, evidently.

At best, Ashton's constant striving in the realm of Great Books breaks through to some substantial illuminations. Within the amorphous body of About Rothko an important essay on the artist's involvement with Nietzsche is struggling to get out. The passages on music that Ashton quotes from The Birth of Tragedy thoroughly prophesy the intentions and effects of Rothko's mature style. For example:

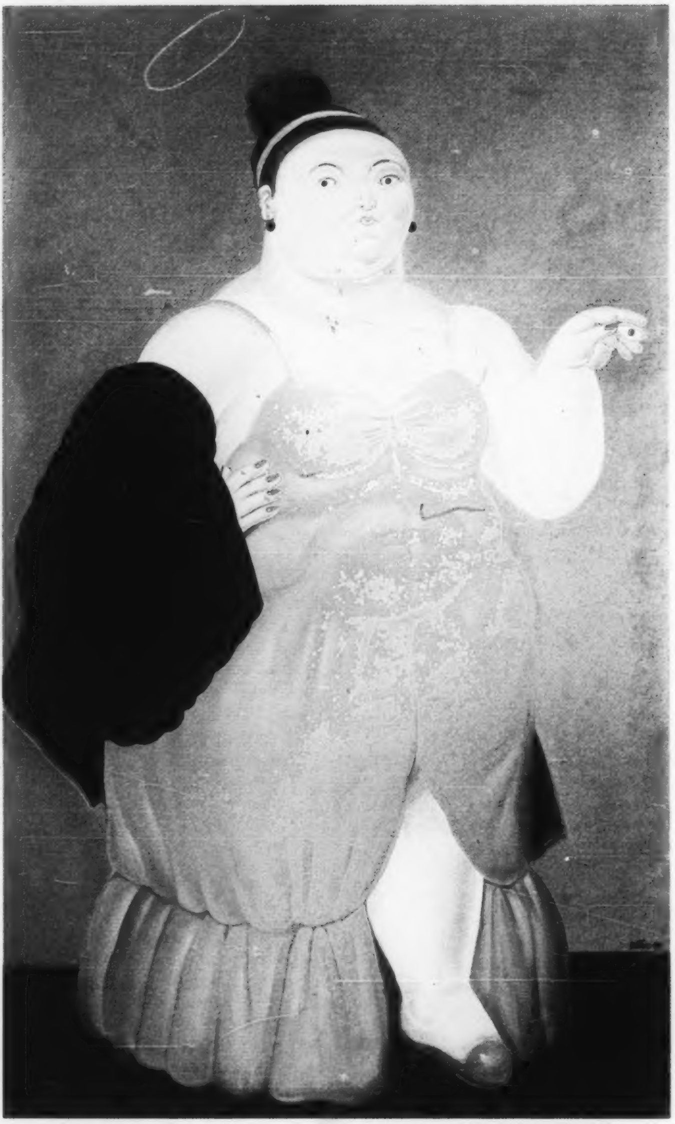
> All possible efforts, excitements, and manifestations of will, all that goes on in the heart of man and that reason includes in the wide, negative concept of feeling, may be expressed by the infinite number of possible melodies, but always in the universal, in the mere form, without the material, always according to the thing-in-itself, not the phenomenon, the inmost soul, as it were, of the phenomenon without the body.

That, confirmed by the tendency of Rothko's own words and, at least in my experience, by his work itself, is the very essence of his wager with art—a desperate bet on the communicative capacities of abstract painting. This wager and its results amount to an extreme, permanently fascinating case in the problematics of modern art. Nietzsche should not be permitted to roll by as another car in a freight train of "influences," as he does—slotted between Aeschylus and Corot—in About Rothko. He should be brought to bear directly on the form and dynamic of the work, as perceived by the author: Did Rothko succeed? If so, how? If not, why not? Without such specification of theory, and its testing against practice, we are left with an inexcusable impression of equivalence between idea and performance.

Two major tasks confront ambitious criticism of any artist of the past. The first is to restore our inevitably eroded sense of the artist's original context, including the context of his or her own perceptions and self-perceptions. The second is to place the artist in an entirely fresh perspective, answerable to present uses for art. To do the second task without having done the first is to be superficial. To do the first without proceeding to the second—Ashton's failing—is to be lifeless. (It ought to matter, somehow, that her "failing" is the function of a loyal and sincere commitment, but it really doesn't.) Thus Rothko is left hostage to the murky rhetoric of his era and still defenseless against the draconian positivism that subsequently either assimilated him to Color-Field esthetics or dismissed him as pretentious and sentimental. Today's wholesale revaluation of painting and its potential meanings (including the long-despised "literary") would seem to offer an opportunity for more aggressive tactics.

The first order of business must be to put daylight between Rothko the actual man and artist and Rothko the oversold (and consequently undervalued) myth. A certain amount of psychological inquiry would serve this end, showing the role of Rothko's attitudes and beliefs in the economy of his emotional needs. Rothko was spectacularly neurotic—a fact that is neither here nor there in evaluative terms (artistic worth has nothing to do with mental health) but without which the peculiar circuitry, so to speak, of his life and achievement becomes unintelligible. Ashton has repeatedly declared her opposition to psychological analysis of artists, citing Gaston Bachelard's contempt for efforts "to explain the flower by the fertilizer," so she cannot be accused of evasiveness on this score. But the unfortunate effect of her discretion is unnecessarily to mystify an already mysterious artist. "Explanation" of Rothko is not the point. The point is to free his name of encrusted confusions and pieties, making his art immediate to experience and his significance accessible to thought. That job remains to be done. □

FERNANDO BOTERO



Santa Lucia, 1983. Oil on canvas, 65¾ x 39½ in. (167 x 100 cm.)

james goodman gallery

1020 Madison Avenue New York, NY 10021
Tel (212) 772-2288

Looking at Fashion

Three recent volumes, very different in scope and ambition, examine the social imperatives of style in clothing.

BY JEFF WEINSTEIN

The Fashion System, by Roland Barthes, Hill and Wang, 1983; 303 pp., $20.50.
Skin to Skin, by Prudence Glynn, Oxford University Press, 1982; 157 pp., $19.95.
Fashion and Fetishism, by David Kunzle, Rowman and Littlefield, 1982; 359 pp., $27.50.

Since fashion criticism is still young enough to include virtually anything written about clothing, one can "compare and contrast" without compunction books as diverse as these—one a bargain basement picturebook, another a full-fledged academic treatise, and the third a bit of philosophy in the salon. The tenets of pluralism dictate that we regard each example as at least potentially successful on its own terms, but unfortunately Skin to Skin, a large-format, narrative-caption discussion of eroticism in Western dress by London Times columnist Prudence Glynn, must be quickly discounted. Not only are its scattered insights untouched by the modeling hand of thought, but there is also throughout a persistent tone of unexplained nastiness.

Eroticism needs no definition, according to Glynn, who believes not only in the ahistorical nature of heterosexual attraction, but also in the existence of a "perfect" male physique (that of tennis player Bjorn Borg). The author presupposes the validity of the late Victorian biological-drive or "essentialist" model of sexuality; kinkiness, sadomachochism, and the consequential appearance of fetish style are the results of sexual boredom, "usually the product of leisure, although it may be now within the grasp of unoccupied but State-financed persons of low intelligence. . . . " This is one of the few acknowledgments of class distinctions in the book. Glynn's racial generalizations followsuit, interspersed with enough pictures of past and present royalty to give Skin to Skin the appearance of a newsreel on the rise and fall of the British Empire. Happily, Glynn is a better archivist than writer; the book's illustrations, taken on their own terms, are excellent.

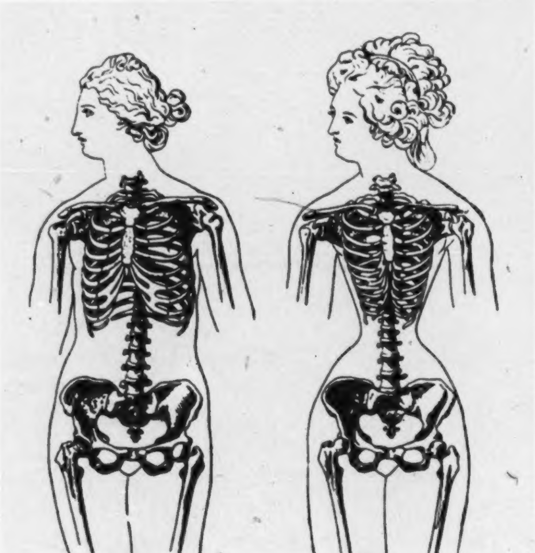
One of the most surprising of these depicts a French soldier of the 1830s corseted by his servant à la Scarlett O'Hara. Men in corsets? Art historian David Kunzle has written about the early comic strip as well as Cuban and Chilean revolutionary art, but in Fashion and Fetishism he turns to social history, giving us a chronological, no-fact-is-unworthy compendium devoted to the corset and what he calls "body sculpture." Kunzle's thesis, presented earlier in preliminary papers, is controversial: he contends that the Victorian fashion of tight-lacing, instead of being a mode of male-directed physical subjugation of women, is instead a cross-class assertion by women of their own sexuality and attractiveness—as well as "potentially and often actually a painful form of social resistance against the unwanted pregnancy. . . against the maternal role."

Kunzle's argument is weaker than his athletic massing of fascinating data. He seems to be saying that because conservative anti-feminists attacked the corset, we may infer that corset-wearing is in fact a feminist, individuating response. Whatever the merits of such a conclusion, the logic here is clearly faulty, and the proof Kunzle does offer remains less than convincing. He is adept at flushing out medical-expert anti-corset propaganda—cautionary tales of livers cut in two—but less careful to question the numerical and sensual exaggerations of the corset fetishists, whose obsession with waist size so much resembles the metric interests of genital pornography, but in reverse.

The book itself wants shaping. The range of Kunzle's primary material and his tendency toward quick hypotheses make it exciting to read, but also divert the author from following anything through. This indiscriminate love of fact may be called the Scholar's Problem or Fetish. The relationship between the corset and the outer clothing of the period is referred to but never analyzed. How many styles of the time required corsets and how many did not? Certainly enough of them did presuppose a corseted figure to make one wonder how free the women of the period actually were to make up their own minds on the matter. Sometimes the author assumes that women (and men) of any class could choose what they wished to wear; other times he implies they could not. The difference between fashion conformity and fashion rebellion in an exquisitely innovative fashion world goes unexplained here, though it has clear bearing on Kunzle's argument that tight-lacers "chose" to wear the corset for their own reasons.

Kunzle does bravely propose a progression from fashion (what you wear) to sexual fetish (what you do); most writers, including Glynn, assume without evidence that sexual fetish is diluted into fashion and not the other way around. Kunzle also finds sufficient evidence that sensual pleasure as well as pain could be had from the use of corsets and some other limiting devices. In the book's breathless cataloging of busks, cinchers, winchers, hoists, heels, high collars, finger-stocks and lacings, Kunzle attempts a poetry of physical restraint. He leaves out, however, the next step, a fashion meditation on the ethics of apparent but limited choice.

While Kunzle fails to consider what it means to be able to choose what one wears, Roland

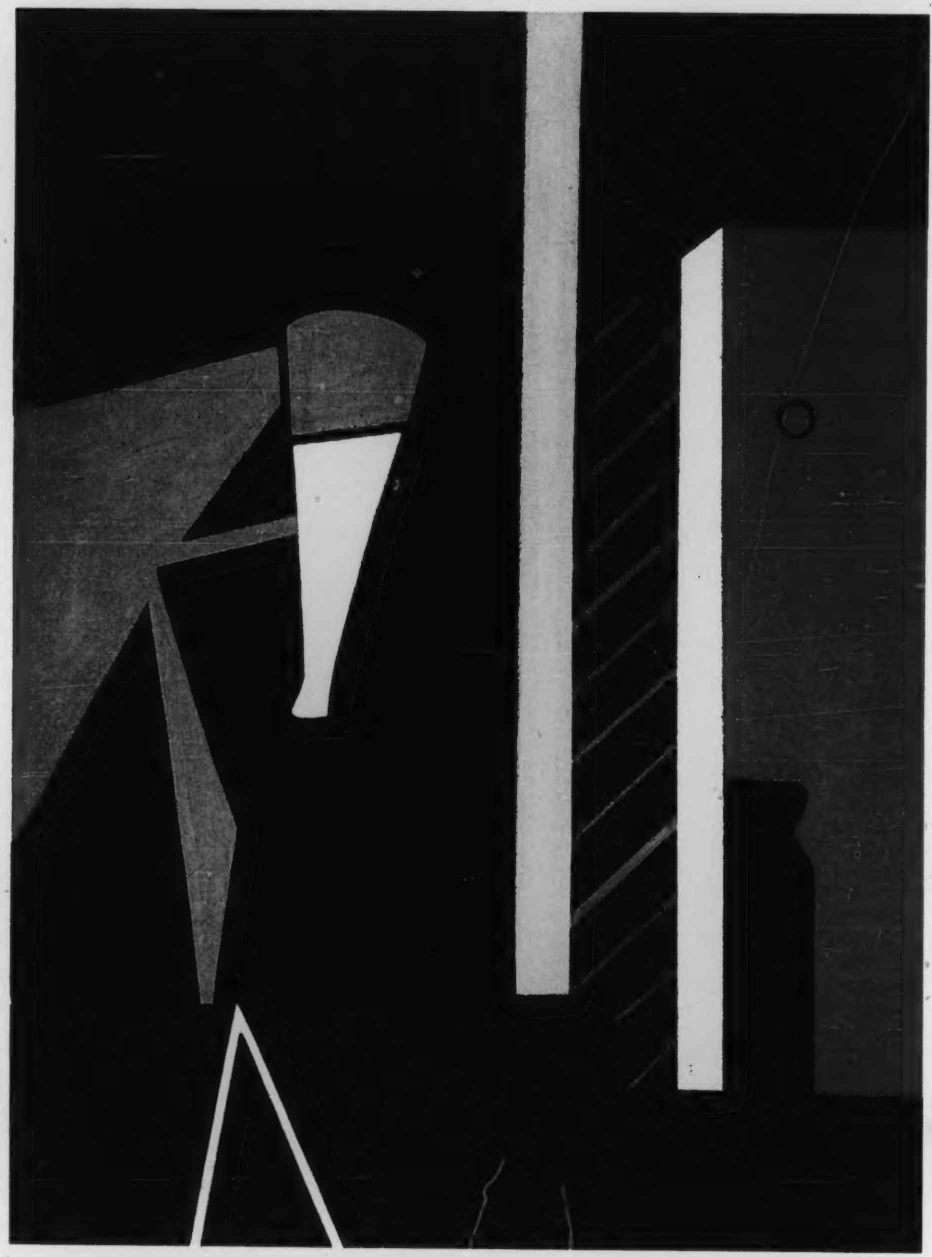


"Skeletal deformation": illustration from Samuel Soemmerring's On the Effects of the Corset, 1793.

CROQUIS MILITAIRES, — par BORDES et ED. MORIN,

Bordes and Morin: "Damn! You're strangling me . . ." "Never mind, old chap, you'll be rigged up for the colonel's review." Journal pour Rire, Dec. 22, 1849.

VOL 71 · ISS 11 DE 1983



New Orleans #8, oil on canvas, 28¾"x21¼," 1957-58

Ralston Crawford

A SELECTION OF IMPORTANT PAINTINGS FROM THE YEARS 1945 TO 1975 AT THE ROBERT MILLER GALLERY, 724 FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK CITY, FROM NOVEMBER 22 TO DECEMBER 30, 1983.

A 58-PLATE COLOR MONOGRAPH Ralston Crawford: Painting and Visual Experience BY WILLIAM C. AGEE IS AVAILABLE AT THE GALLERY OR FROM TWELVETREES PRESS, P.O. BOX 188, PASADENA, CALIFORNIA 91102.

ROBERT MILLER 724 FIFTH AVENUE NEW YORK 212 246 · 1625

UMI

HARMONY IN RED & SILVER

A Very Special Holiday Offer From Art in America

This holiday season ART IN AMERICA is offering extraordinary savings on gift subscriptions.
Each gift order is only $24.95, a 45% savings off the cover price.

FIRST GIFT

☐ Please enter a one year subscription to ART IN AMERICA for my friend. I pay only $24.95 — over 45% off the cover price.

My Name

Address

City State Zip

Recipient's Name

Address

City State Zip

Gift card to read from

ADDITIONAL GIFTS

Recipient's Name

Address

City State Zip

Gift card to read from

Recipient's Name

Address

City State Zip

Gift card to read from

☐ Check/money order enclosed ☐ VISA ☐ Mastercard ☐ Bill me.

Card # Exp. date Signature

EM303

In US Possessions and Canada, add $8 per subscription; elsewhere, add $15 per subscription. Offer good through 2/28/84.

VOL

71

ISS

11

DE

1983

UMI

NO POSTAGE
NECESSARY
IF MAILED
IN THE
UNITED STATES

BUSINESS REPLY CARD
FIRST CLASS PERMIT NO. 542 MARION, OHIO

POSTAGE WILL BE PAID BY

Art in America

542 PACIFIC AVENUE
MARION, OHIO 43306

Barthes is concerned with a fashion system of language which precludes choice. If you remember your now-unfashionable Saussurean semiology, then you may be able to give Barthes's The Fashion System a quick read; otherwise it is difficult going. In this book, begun in 1957, finished in 1963, and just now available in English, Barthes limits his analysis to language found in photograph captions in French fashion magazines, mostly Elle and Le Jardin des Modes, from 1958 to 1959. Fashion read this way, he thinks, is an element of mass culture: "Half of all Frenchwomen read magazines at least partially devoted to Fashion on a regular basis." However, his semiotic analysis is directed not at real clothing but "toward a set of collective representations."

Barthes admits at the outset that concentrating on the written system may disappoint (because we like the clothes themselves), but it is precisely the inevitability of that emphasis that constitutes his point: "Man is doomed to articulated language, and no semiological undertaking can ignore this fact. . . . This work's essential function is to suggest that in a society like ours where myths and rite have assumed a form of reason, . . human language is not only the model of meaning but its very foundation."

So the prose makes the clothes—or, instead, the Fashion. But Barthes's exegesis is almost always dialectical: he surprises with an apparent opposite and then resolves. "Why does Fashion utter clothing so abundantly?" In other words, why so many words? Because an industrial society, he says, must create needs, desires, in order to sell. Yet the commercial impetus of the Fashion system will always conform, if Barthes is correct, to the structure of the linguistic system, and his argument consequently results in a kind of apotheosis of semiology: "Linguistics will become the science of every imagined universe." So clothes, with all their particularities, lead to a very French embrace of the universal.

> What Kunzle seems to be saying is that because conservative anti-feminists attacked the corset, we may infer that corset-wearing is in fact a feminist, individuating response.

Barthes then elaborates his system—though you may have already closed his book—by using as his point of departure captions like "a little braid gives elegance," "a cardigan sporty or dressy, if the collar is open or closed," and my favorite, "I am a secretary, and I like to be impeccable." His rigor is tempered only by his imagination, which is given most freedom when describing the "coming together" of clothing with its descriptive language. Barthes believes that clothing is rarely described by the Fashion system as colorfully or originally as when it is itself used to describe something else (in novels, for example). To explain Fashion's resistance to what is normally thought of as imaginative writing, Barthes suggests models of "clichéd" Fashion rhetoric which under the Cultural include the natural ("hats in bloom"), the geographic or exotic ("Samurai belt"), the historical ("a 1916 flavor"), and the artistic ("Picasso colors"). These are codes, and they connote more than they denote: "the models Fashion proposes pell-mell are borrowed from the intellectual baggage of a young girl who is 'on the go and in the know' (as Fashion would say), who takes courses at the Ecole du Louvre, visits a few exhibitions and museums when she travels, and would have read a few well-known novels."

Barthes has other models of Fashion connotation, and his description of "the detail" approaches the poetic (I use the term less exactly than he does). I will quote part (!) of one of Barthes's famously lengthy sentences to show how beautifully, if unexpectedly, his imagination leads him from the abstract to the real:

> . . . The rhetoric of the detail seems to take on an increasing extension, and the stake it has in doing so is an economic one: by becoming a mass value (through its magazines, if not through its boutiques), Fashion must elaborate meanings whose fabrication does not appear costly; this is the case of the "detail": one detail is enough to transform what is outside meaning into meaning, what is unfashionable into Fashion, and yet a "detail" is not expensive; by this particular semantic technique, Fashion departs from the luxurious and seems to enter into a clothing practice accessible to modest budgets; but at the same time, sublimated under the name find, this same low-priced detail participates in the dignity of the idea: likewise free, likewise glorious, the detail consecrates a democracy of budgets while respecting an aristocracy of tastes.

The objections one can raise to The Fashion System, a knotting together of categories and poetic leaps, are those that have already been thrown at structuralists in general: complacence about history, pervasive either/or-ness, and difficulty with the concepts of struggle, accident, innovation and pleasure. Barthes ultimately fought the idea of the "neutral" sign, but even sympathetic readers of this early work will wonder at the apparent lack of engagement with the nonlinguistic, wearable objects of his study.

PHOTOGRAPHY

Mining Photographs and Other Pictures 1948-1968, photographs by Leslie Shedden, essays by Don Macgillivray and Allan Sekula, Halifax and Cape Breton, The Press of Nova Scotia College of Art and Design and The University College of Cape Breton Press, 1983; 280 pp., $25.

Within the spectrum of photography book publishing, Mining Photographs and Other Pictures represents an audacious departure from the norm. Over 330 photographs taken from the archive of Shedden Studio—a commercial photographer in Cape Breton, Nova Scotia—are reprinted in this book; the subjects range from men and machinery in the mines (photographs mostly commissioned by the Dominion Steel and Coal Company for public relations purposes) to wedding pictures, shop fronts and group portraits of local gymnastic teams. These are the kinds of images that can be found by the thousand in the archives of any number of commercial photographers, in the files of government agencies, of corporate house organs, of historical societies and even in the morgues of local newspapers. Their specific interest resides not in the manner of their making (no esthetic claims are advanced for these pictures whatsoever), but rather in the context from which they come—the particular matrix of history, culture, economic and social relations that collectively defines the community of Glace Bay, Cape Breton, and its environs.

Since the production of photography books is in general either predicated on auteurist notions of the exemplary, the singular and the original or (when the intention is historical rather than esthetic) informed by the belief that photography represents the spectacle of history itself, the publication of such a selection of photographs—that is, photographs which are at the same time utterly specific and utterly banal—raises questions of meaning. Local and regional interest aside, what are we to make of this 20-year slice of a photographic archive depicting the industrial and public faces of an economically depressed mining community?

And, indeed, one of the fundamental intentions of this book is precisely to foreground the issue of the meaning of a body of archival photographs. Given what Allan Sekula calls the "semantic availability" of archival pictures—the fact that when these (or any) pictures are removed from their initial context their meanings are up for grabs—the way in which an archival selection is edited, repositioned and re-presented obviously determines how specific pictures will be read and the kinds of meanings they will yield. By refusing to privilege either an authorial or an editorial sensibility and by seeming, moreover, to be as inclusive in its subject matter as the total archive itself, Mining Photographs and Other Pictures succeeds in focusing attention on the social function of photography and the discursive nature of photographic meaning.

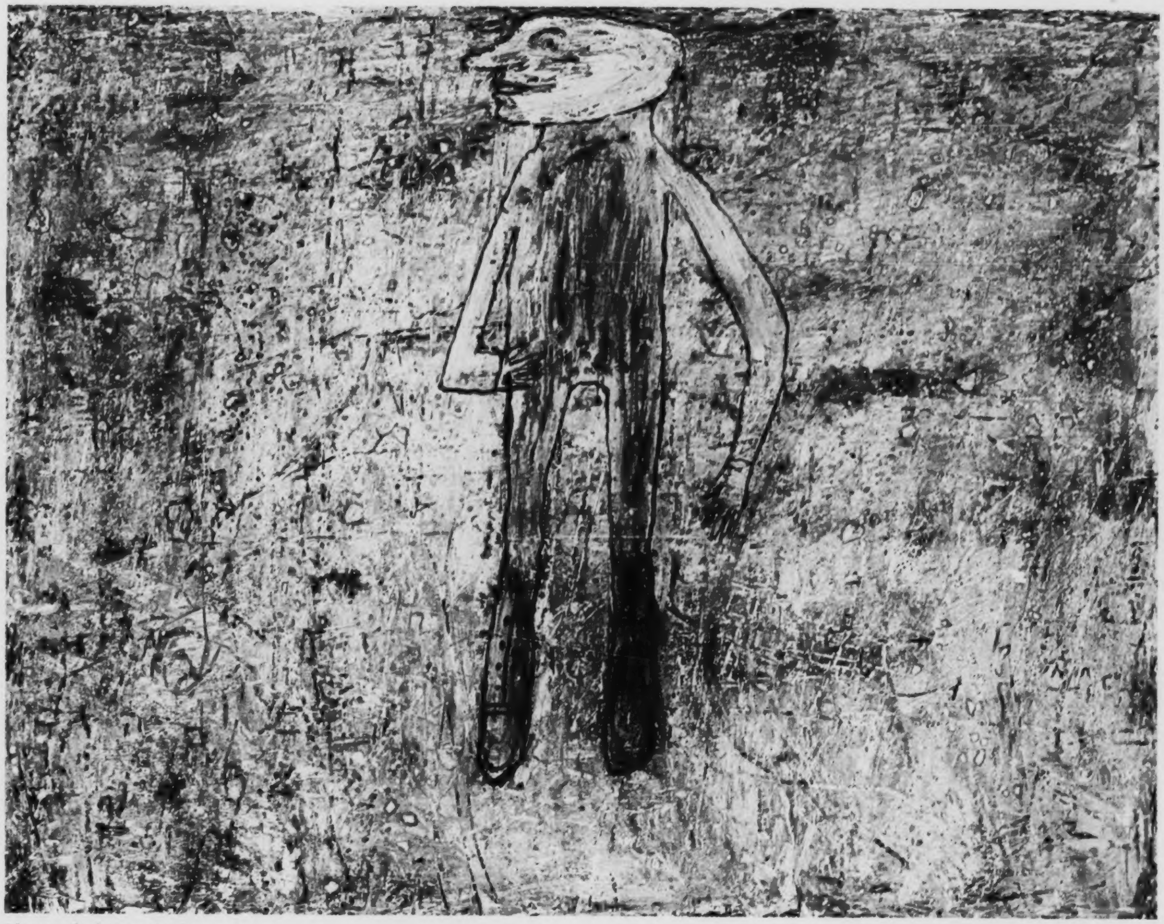
Mining Photographs opens with an introductory essay by Robert Wilkie which traces the history and fortunes of the Shedden Studio from its initial establishment by David Shedden in 1916 through the retirement of his son Leslie (who took most of the pictures in the book) in 1977. The second part of the essay is concerned with the position of Dominion Steel and Coal Company (Dosco) within the economic life of Cape Breton and with the company's use of photography to augment and confirm its corporate self-image of benign patriarchy. Following the plates is the first of the book's two major essays, "Glace Bay: Images and Impressions" by Don Macgillivray, which traces the labor history of Glace

VOL
7
1
ISS
1 1
DE
1983

JEAN DUBUFFET

TWO DECADES: 1943-1962

November 1—December 31



L'agoraphobique, 1957

oil on canvas, 45 x 57½ inches

56 page catalogue, fully illustrated in color
with an essay by Dore Ashton • $22.50 ppd.

DONALD MORRIS GALLERY

105 Townsend • Birmingham, Michigan • 48011 • (313) 642-8812

UMI

Dosco (Dominion of Canada Steel and Coal Corporation)
Miner crew next to their machine, mid-1950s.

Bay and Cape Breton with special emphasis on the waxing and waning of working class militancy between the 1920s and the present. Although it was clearly necessary for the book to provide a historical background against which to consider the Shedden archive, Macgillivray's text is somewhat disappointing. Despite the fact that his subject consists of confrontations between labor and management, strikes, exploitation and struggle, his piece is lifeless, occasionally tendentious, and prone to fluctuate between excessive detail and broad generalizations.

The heart of the book, however, is Allan Sekula's intelligent, provocative and challenging monograph-length essay entitled "Photography Between Labour and Capital," which must be reckoned as a major contribution to the field of photographic theory and criticism. While the Shedden Studio archive provides the point of departure for Sekula's ambitious inquiry into the instrumental functioning of photography, the breadth and substance of his discussion goes well beyond the initial question of how to read a particular corpus of images. Sekula takes as the a priori of his critical enterprise the assumption that photography—in all its uses—serves to legitimize, naturalize and sustain existing power relations. What Roland Barthes characterized as the mythological aspect of photography (the way in which it functions to naturalize the cultural), Sekula treats as photography's ideological working. Drawing on Althusser's proposition that ideology represents an imaginary and constructed reality that masks the real relations of individuals to the apparatuses of power, Sekula argues that photography, too, must be apprehended as an imaginary economy. Sekula sees a photographic archive as a "clearing house of meaning"; far from being neutral repositories, archives "embody the power inherent in accumulation, collection, and hoarding as well as that power inherent in the command of the lexicon and rules of a language." Sekula is not, however, concerned to track down an immutable, originary meaning or use in individual photographs or bodies of photographs. Rather, he is concerned with the site of representation, where meaning and ideology are encoded, expressed and reproduced. Mining imagery is thus a particularly suggestive field of inquiry since on a symbolic level it signifies a prototypical form of industry. "More than any other practice," Sekula points out, "mining exemplifies the direct domination of nature, the extraction of value from nature by alien means."

Tracing the representations of mining from Agricola's De Re Metallica, a 16th-century treatise on mining (translated from the Latin by, of all people, Herbert Hoover and his wife) through Diderot and D'Alembert's Encyclopedia to TimothyO'Sullivan's photographs of the Comstock lode, Sekula examines the ways in which the conventions of representation and the discourses in which they functioned have served to rationalize and manage the labor they depicted. The "universal language" of photographs, which Sekula factors into the development of a picture language of capitalism, is examined in terms of a metaphoric connection between representation, quantification and commodity exchange. Continuing an argument first proposed in his essay "The Traffic in Photographs," Sekula compares the functioning of photography to that of goods in the marketplace; he argues that photography's uniform logic of representation mirrors the global market economy's uniform logic of exchange. Branching out from this discussion, Sekula addresses a broad range of related issues, such as photography's relationship to 19th-century historicism and positivism, the exploitation of photography in scientific management and industrial psychology (in the work of Frederick Winslow Taylor and the Gilbreths), and the history of underground photography.

Mining Photographs and Other Pictures is important primarily because of Sekula's essay, but it should be said that such a book has a value even apart from Sekula's contribution. By choosing to publish selections from a photographic archive (and thus to represent one aspect of photography's normative, ubiquitous functioning), the editors and authors demand a reading of photographic imagery that requires far more attention—and far more thought—than does a presentation which merely focuses on the esthetic.

—Abigail Solomon-Godeau

The Prints of Louis Lozowick: A Catalogue Raisonné, by Janet Flint, foreword by Alfred P. Maurice, New York, Hudson Hills Press, 1982; 233 pp., $50.
William Gropper, by Louis Lozowick, foreword by Milton W. Brown, East Brunswick, Associated University Presses/Art Alliance Press, 1983; 192 pp., $40.
Rockwell Kent: An Anthology of His Works, edited, with an introduction, by Fridolf Johnson, foreword by Jamie Wyeth, New York, Knopf, 1982; 359 pp., $60.

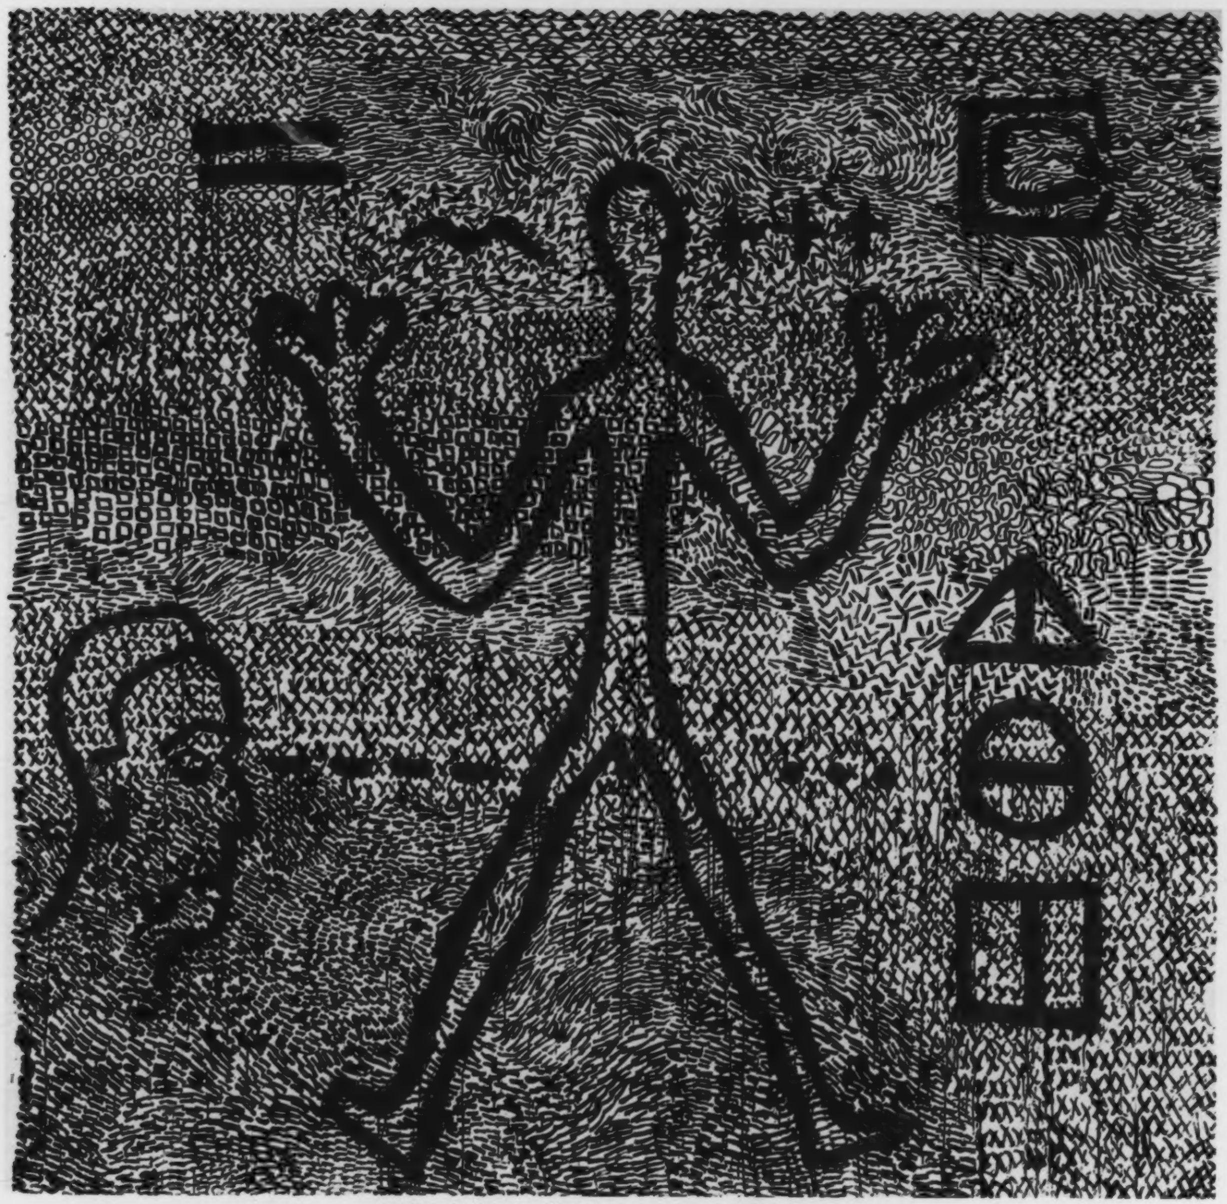
Louis Lozowick is one of those artists who is constantly being "discovered." Despite his importance to the Precisionist movement of the 1920s and '30s, his work has remained in relative obscurity; perhaps because he worked almost exclusively in lithography. Janet Flint's comprehensive The Prints of Louis Lozowick should help to permanently fix his reputation, making it possible to grasp the qualities which distinguish Lozowick's work from that of Sheeler, Demuth and the other Precisionists.

Flint's introduction provides useful biographical details on Lozowick's artistic education in Russia, France, Germany and the U.S., and a good description of Lozowick's working method. Many of the entries in her catalogue raisonné of the prints include illuminating background information on Lozowick's subjects as well as the usual facts about edition sizes, monograms, printers and dates. The story the reproductions themselves tell is that it was only in 1927, at the age of 35, that Lozowick arrived at a truly personal synthesis of the Cubist and Constructivist influences he had absorbed from Léger in Paris and from El Lissitzky in Berlin.

Lozowick's most distinctive work may have been done in lithography, but the creative impulse impelled him further, not only to paint but also to write. Over the years, he published several translations from French and Russian and a plethora of articles on modern European painting, Jewish art, art and politics, and modern theater. He also designed stage sets, display windows, and a dress for Gilda Grey, "the shimmy girl of the Ziegfeld Follies." Although Lozowick died in 1973, his text for a volume on the Social Realist William Gropper has just now appeared in print. Lozowick reviewed Gropper in the Nation in 1932, and wrote the catalogue introduction for his second one-man show of paintings, in 1937, at the ACA Galleries in New York—where Gropper was shown recently in 1981 and 1983. Lozowick's discussion of Gropper makes plain his own forceful leftist convictions, as well as his breadth of cultural reference and his ability to analyze pictorial form.

In the 1930s, Lozowick added scenes of men at work or strikers confronting police to his architectural subjects, but his images are odder than their typical period subjects might suggest. The ripe, curving figures of his workers are strangely feminine. The foreshortened figure of a fallen striker in one print strikingly resembles the foreshortened female nudes he drew in the same period. And in a 1934 Strike Scene of a black worker raising an arm to halt the blow of a club-wielding policeman, the composition appears to derive from two of the central figures of Jacques-Louis David's Sabine Women: the cop corresponds to the bearded Sabine king on the left, while the worker matches the woman in the center who halts the battle. It is tempting to suggest that Lozowick's visualization of class struggle drew on his feelings about relations between the sexes. But this is a matter for future Lozowick scholars. They will not, unfortunately, want to spend much time on

VOL 71
ISS 11
DE 1983



A.R. Penck, "Standard," oil on canvas, 1983 285 x 285 cm

GALERIE RUDOLF ZWIRNER
ALBERTUSSTRASSE 18
5 COLOGNE 1
49 (221) 23 58 37

GALLERIA PAOLO SPROVIERI
3, PIAZZA DEL POPOLO
ROME
39 (6) 361 09 75

ARP BALLA BRAUNER DUBUFFET ERNST FONTANA FAUTRIER YVES KLEIN
LEGER MAGRITTE PICABIA PICASSO SCHWITTERS STELLA TWOMBLY

UMI

most of Lozowick's later work—images of the New York countryside; of Soviet Tajikistan, where he traveled in 1931; or of Israel, Italy, Greece, India and Mexico, where he traveled in the 1950s. Dealing with nonurban subjects, Lozowick sinks quickly to illustration pure and simple.

Like Lozowick, Rockwell Kent was a better printmaker than painter. Kent too became deeply involved with left-wing politics in the 1930s. As Lozowick did in 1931, Kent in 1959 visited the USSR as a guest of the Soviet government. And, like Lozowick, Kent was called before Joseph McCarthy's witch-hunting Senate committee. On an artistic plane, both men were urged towards printmaking by dealer and curator Carl Zigrosser; both used the same printer, George C. Miller; and both were commissioned by the Treasury Department to execute post office murals during the 1930s. But there the resemblances end.

Kent's prints and illustrations, beloved by bibliophiles, have received an appropriately handsome presentation in this new volume from Knopf, designed by Robert Scudellari. It would have been nice if the suites of reproductions from his illustrated editions of Moby Dick, Candide, The Canterbury Tales and The Decameron had been given more prominence, for they give a good idea of why Kent was the most popular American illustrator of his time. Illustrating such classics, Kent could make past or foreign worlds seem vivid and familiar. Melville or Boccaccio could provide the depth of feeling curiously absent from Kent's self-inspired images. Kent on his own was monotonously heroic.

Perhaps for this reason, Kent's paintings were never as popular as his prints and illustrations, and the rather dull color reproductions of them here seem merely to confirm the judgment of the Art News reviewer who wrote in 1910 that Kent appeared, "in a way, a younger Winslow Homer in his somewhat hard and crude color but dramatic intensity." Kent regarded modern art, particularly abstraction, as an immense hoax. Late in his career—after the Soviet Union had given him the full-scale retrospective no American museum would—Kent expressed his approbation of Socialist Realism: "If the 'Revolution' means anything, it means increased social responsibility for everyone and an end to such silly, ivory-tower self-expressionism as Picasso boasts."

Fridolf Johnson's biographical introduction to this volume reveals a life that was a mass of contradictions. Kent's notorious radicalism did not deter him from earning several fortunes by creating illustrations and advertisements for the capitalists he despised. "His illustrations, treated as works of art by well-known corporations, conferred on their advertisements a cachet which set them far above the usual run of publicity," Johnson writes, seemingly without realizing how morally dubious this sounds. Nor did Kent's radicalism keep him from enjoying high life in New York or on his country estate.

In his private life, Kent seems to have been obsessed by sex, pursuing three wives and innumerable mistresses. But the elongated, mannerist figures in his art remained oddly sexless and unsensual. What took the place of sensuality or tenderness in his work was a hunger for the sublime. He wrote with enthusiasm of Nietzsche's Zarathustra and threw himself into a series of expeditions into the wilderness of Maine, Alaska, Greenland and South America, building houses with his bare hands, driving dog sleds, shipwrecking boats, testing his mettle against the elemental forces of cold and wind and sea. These experiences provided the material for Kent's books and pictures. The artistic search, for Kent, always remained a search for dramatic subject matter.

But Kent's mannered handling tended to drain the drama from his images. He reworked William Blake's visionary figures and landscapes in a hard graphic style, with a sinuous, Art-Nouveau line perhaps derived from Aubrey Beardsley. The result was pastiche. Kent's prints are frequently "drawn" with white lines on a black ground, which gives them an appearance of "color"—but, unlike Lozowick's work, they remain essentially linear in conception. As an artistic education, Greenland and Alaska are, alas, no substitute for Paris and Berlin. —Pepe Karmel

Contributors

David Carrier teaches philosophy at Carnegie-Mellon University, Pittsburgh . . . Pepe Karmel is a free-lance critic of photography and art . . . Linda Nochlin is Distinguished Professor of Art History at the City University Graduate Center, New York . . . Peter Schjeldahl is a New York poet and art critic Abigail Solomon-Godeau writes free-lance on photography . . . Jeff Weinstein is a fiction writer, free-lance critic and regular contributor to the Village Voice.

Jeffrey Hoffeld & Company, Inc.
1020 Madison Avenue New York, NY 10021 Tel (212) 734-5505

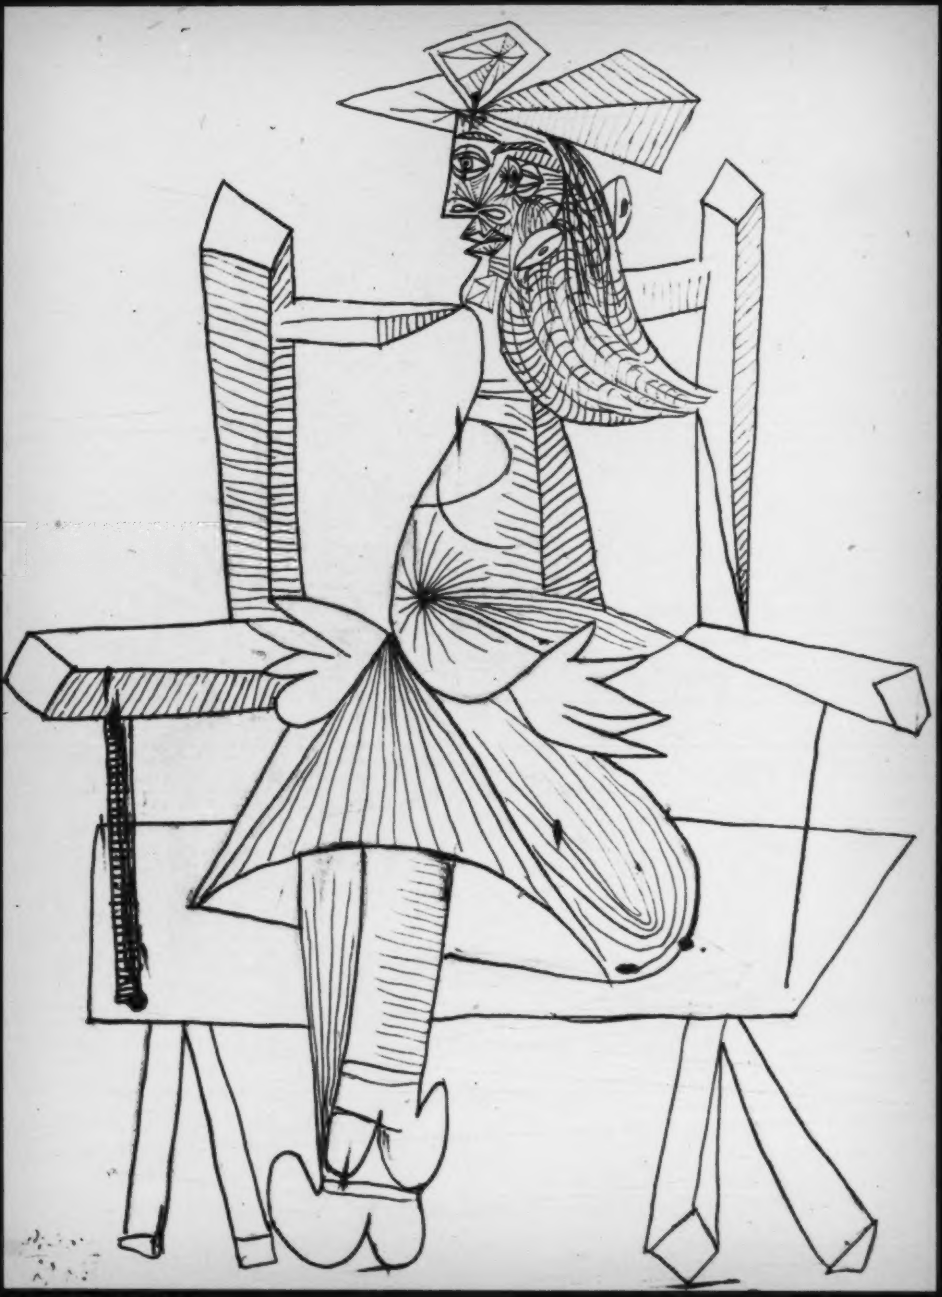
Works Available by:
Avery
Balthus
Calder
de Kooning
Dine
Dubuffet
Giacometti
Kline
Léger
Lipchitz
Matisse
Mondrian
Picasso
Reinhardt
Rothko
Steinberg
Stella
Vuillard

DAVID HOCKNEY Jacques, 1974. Colored pencil on paper, 25½ x 19¾ inches

VOL
7
1
ISS
1 1
DE
1983

EUROPEAN MODERN MASTERS

Exhibition, December 2nd, 1983, through January 14th, 1984



PABLO PICASSO (1881-1973)
Femme Assise, 29 April 1938
Ink on paper, 30 × 22 inches
Signed and dated, lower left

BARBARA MATHES GALLERY

851 Madison Avenue New York NY 10021 Telephone 212 249-3600

UMI

Report from Italy
'50s Informalities

BY MARCIA E. VETROCQ

An exhibition devoted to the emergence of abstraction in postwar Italy corrected the impression that Italian art between Carrà and Chia had been as still and dusty as Morandi's bottles.

Giuseppe Capogrossi:* Surface 369, 1960, oil on canvas, 50¾ by 37¾ inches. Galleria L'Isola.

As if to endorse the seemingly unanimous conviction that painting is making a comeback in the 1980s, there have been a number of recent exhibitions devoted to reacquainting the public with the medium's last heroic age, the 1950s.[1] Since much of the current heat and light is being generated abroad, the American audience has had to confront its near total ignorance of European art after Surrealism, and perhaps even question its habit of regarding foreign artistic developments after 1945 as ripples in the wake of the New York School. Enlightenment awaited those few American travelers who ventured to Bologna between June and September, for the Galleria Comunale d'Arte Moderna di Bologna housed this summer's maximostra, the mammoth exhibition "L'Informale in Italia." The show served as a sharp corrective to the impression that Italian art between Carrà and Chia had been as still and dusty as Morandi's bottles. Documenting the emergence of a new abstraction in Italy not long after the Second World War, "L'Informale in Italia" presented over 300 examples of ceramics, sculpture, photography and, above all, painting. With a large team of collaborators, Renato Barilli and Franco Solmi curated the exhibition and introduced its appropriately hefty catalogue.[2]

Plans for an Informale exhibition first germinated after the 1974 death of Francesco Arcangeli, director of the Galleria Comunale d'Arte Moderna and a professor at the city's university. Arcangeli's essays had been fundamental to the early critical identification of l'Informale.[3] The delay in realizing the show freed its organizers from a strict adherence to Arcangelian orthodoxy, permitting a more inclusive consideration of the style and its practitioners. The postponement also meant that the exhibition acquired a then-unforeseeable and now-inevitable postscript: the emergence in the late 1970s of a strong gestural and metaphoric current in Italian painting, limply called Neo-Expressionism on this side of the Atlantic but more polemically labeled transavanguardia by Italian criticism.

The Bologna exhibition presented l'Informale as a style which eludes conventional definition, more a climate or a spirit than a common look. The heterogeneous tendencies within l'Informale were united in their rejection of Cubism and the geometric, rationalistic and utopian models of the prewar avant-garde, personified for them by Picasso, Mondrian, Gropius and Kandinsky. Acquiring its name from the French critic Michel Tapié, l'Informale arose in the aftermath of the Second World War as a repudiation of any formal organization, figurative or nonobjective, which embodied a belief in shared symbols and the universality of form, or which postulated the very processes of representation and abstraction to be the mental acts of a disembodied consciousness. The determinism and (yes) idealism of Surrealism were no less bankrupt than the authoritarian mysticism of Neo-Plasticism. Drawing upon the heroic fatalism of phenomenology and the feisty desperation of existentialism, l'Informale embraced flux, uncertainty, corporeality and immersion in the world as the essence of the human condition.

VOL 71 ISS 11 DE 1983 UMI

Lucio Fontana: Spatial Conceit—Paradise, 1956, mixed mediums on canvas, 45¾ by 35½ inches. Collection Laurini, Milan.

Lucio Fontana: Spatial Conceit—Expectation, 1957, mixed mediums on canvas, 39 by 31¼ inches. Collection Amanda R. Dangelo, Milan.

With the ideals of the old avant-garde discredited, the authenticity of the new art, not surprisingly, did not hinge on criteria of abstract purity; hence the unembarrassed references to the figure and to nature, and the emphatic materiality of Informale ceramics and mixed-medium works. The most ardent of Informale proponents never argued for the transcendent autonomy of art or the self-sufficiency of the creative act. The Informale artist seems to have been less concerned with surveying the nonillusionistic field of the canvas than with acting out his bitter freedom from the "illusions" (delusions) of geometric abstraction as an instrument and mirror of social order.

Based in existentialism and phenomenology, "l'Informale" embraced flux, uncertainty, corporeality and immersion in the world as the essence of the human condition.

By its very title—"L'Informale in Italia"—the exhibition declared its subject to be part of an international movement, and generous reference is made in the catalogue essays to the catalytic effect of contact with the art of Wols, Fautrier, Dubuffet, Pollock, Tobey and others. This acknowledgment is more than an act of critical retrospection, for such contact was triggered by a number of European exhibitions throughout the 1950s which had brought together the various international exponents of the new art.

The Bologna exhibition was comprehensive, perhaps to a fault, in subsuming just about every species of non-Neo-Cubist art in postwar Italy under the rubric l'Informale, a strategy which taxed the explicative categories by which the installation and the catalogue were organized. While individual catalogue essays accorded recognition to the particular flavor of the regional variants of l'Informale, the show's principal divisions were three: 1) Lo spazialismo e il nuclearismo ("Spatialism and Nuclearism"), which referred to two related groups of abstractionists who officially announced their programs with manifestos issued in the early 1950s; 2) L'ultimo naturalismo ("The Last Naturalism"), named after Arcangeli's seminal essay of 1954 in which the critic discussed the revitalization of landscape painting as the visual metaphor for a phenomenological understanding of existence; and 3) Le poetiche del segno e della materia ("The Poetics of Sign and Material"), a catchall confederation of works, ranging from the pyrotechnic to the austere, which were concerned with ciphers, surfaces, gestures and materials as vehicles of an often-tormented expression of the encounter between the individual and the world.

Chronologically the first to emerge, Spazialismo and Nuclearismo were the twin-headed offspring of a neo-Futurist urge, born of an infatuation with new technology and the "other realities" revealed by the telescope, the microscope, the atom and the promise of space travel. It is this initial manifestation which most stretches the premise that l'Informale was a spiritual climate and not a "style," for while the spatialists and nuclearists shared in the general rejection of the fastidious geometry and Platonic pretensions of prewar abstraction, their technophilic inspiration and apparent immunity to the underlying pessimism of l'Informale distinguished them from the mainstream sensibility.

The first prophet of Spazialismo was Lucio Fontana, who returned to Italy from Buenos Aires in 1947 calling for an end to static, rationalist models of art and consciousness.[4] Fontana was represented in Bologna by works on canvas whose punctures, razor slashes and relief attachments were attempts to open painting to the "fourth dimension" of modern experience. His most prescient works, however, defy museum presentation, for they consisted of "environmental" pieces, installations incorporating fluorescence, phosphorescence and black light, and the broadcast of moving, luminous images over Milan's RAI-TV in 1952. Joining Fontana in Spazialismo were the artists Bergolli, Deluigi, Peverelli and Crippa, whose horizonless, spiraling, orbital images had been inspired by his experiences as a pilot.

The younger nucleari—Baj, Dova, Dangelo, Bertini—probed the hitherto undepicted world of protoplasmic, subatomic and subaqueous processes in paintings as scaleless as a magnetic storm or the nucleus of a cell. The expressions ranged from Dova's coldly glowing marinelike spaces, rendered with transparent enamels, to Dangelo's evocations of a teeming bacteriological realm, at once limitless and claustrophobic, and comparable to the work of Tobey.

Spiritually distinct from this technologically mediated nature are the works of the ultimi naturalisti. In Arcangeli's view, these artists portrayed nature not as the object of privileged or detached observation but as the given sensuous substance of which all experience is formed, the inescapable "milieu" of self-actualization. As a student of Robert Longhi, who had illuminated the melancholy, elegiac qualities of the northern Italian landscape tradition, Arcangeli—looking at the works of artists largely from Lombardy and Emilia—recognized the instinctive perpetuation of a regional poetry in the portrayal of nature as a tragic alter ego, the necessary Other by which the Self is both realized and limited. Moreni's thunderbolts and howling sun, Morlotti's bathers and "organic forms," which are barely perceptible in the meaty painted surface, Vacchi's lost and burning figures, and the ceramics of Leoncillo, in which the artist seems to have served as midwife to the spontaneous generative or degenerative process of the clay itself—all attest to the materiality of existence and the consequent mortality of the flesh.

The last division—"The Poetics of Sign and Material"—united widely disparate expressions as indicators of a situation of alienation and assertion.

Ennio Morlotti: Vegetation, *1956, oil on canvas, 40½ by 36¾ inches. Private collection, Monza.

Leoncillo: Red Wind, *1958, glazed terracotta, 9¾ by 41¼ by 76½ inches. Collection Bruno Sargentini, Rome.

Mattia Moreni: Howling Sun, *1954, oil on canvas, 89¾ by 46¾ inches. Collection Franco Corrado, Bologna.

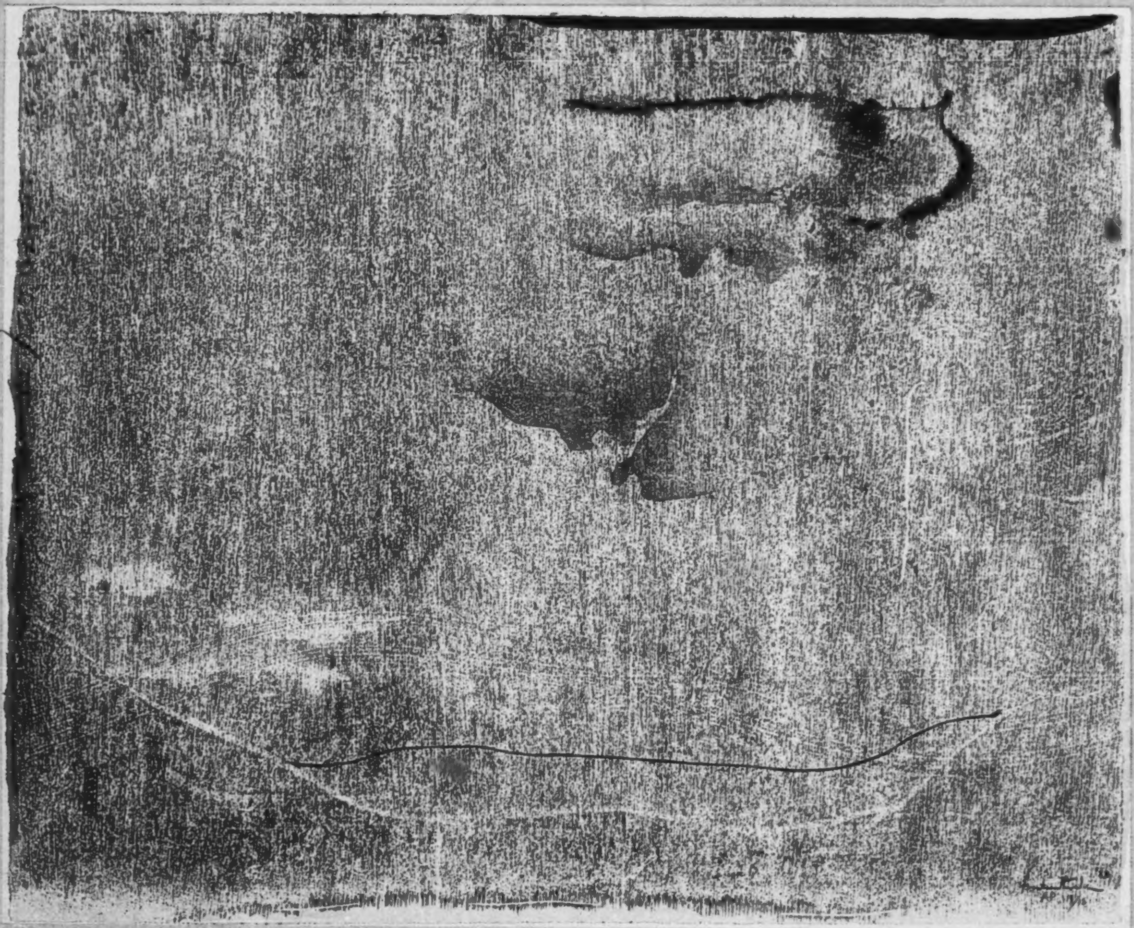
VOL
71
ISS
11
DE
1983
UMI

Helen Frankenthaler



Cedar Hill, 1983, color woodblock print, 20⅛ x 24¾ inches

Crown Point Press

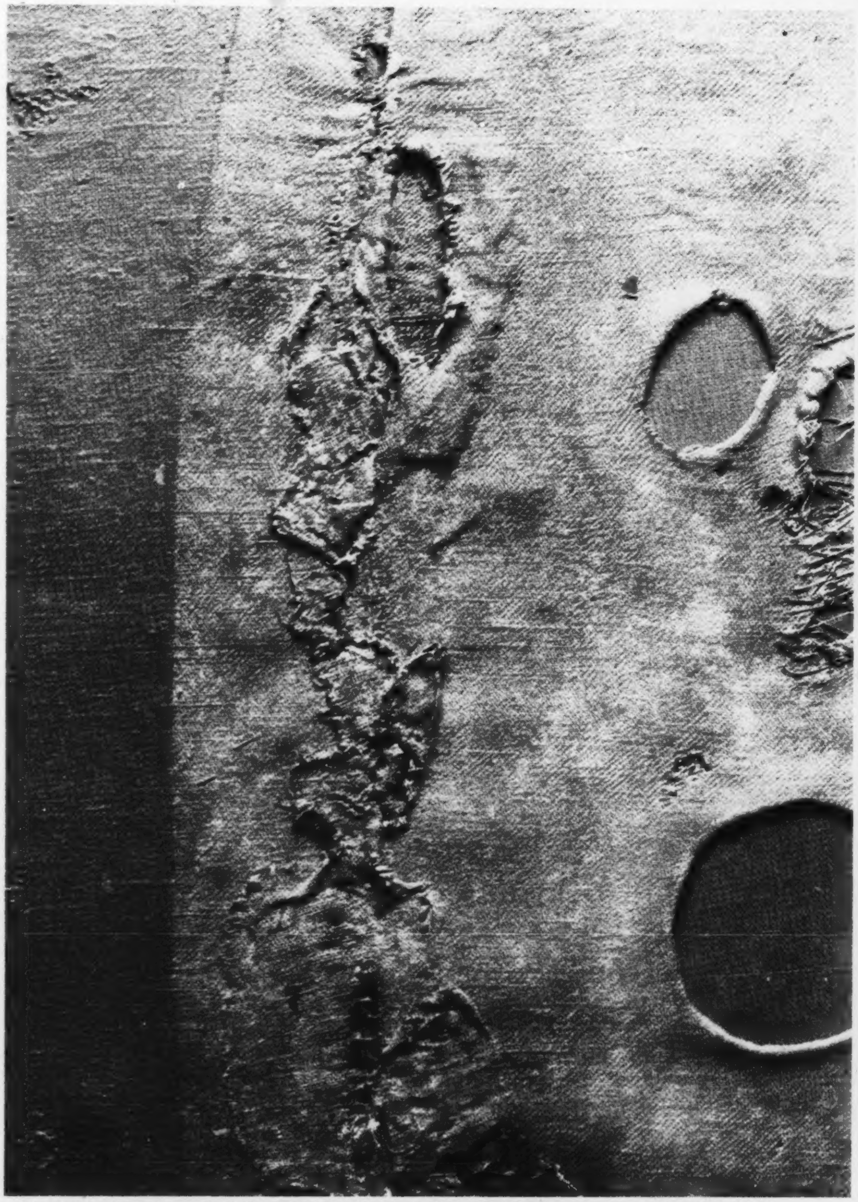
1555 San Pablo
Oakland CA 94612
415-835-5121

545 Broadway
New York NY 10012
212-226-5476

Now the artist was free of a priori models, and thus had no means by which to assay his effectiveness. Having realized that no human gesture is without significance, the artist found himself lacking a common language, a guarantor of shared meaning. The ambiguity of the work revealed it to be not a positive structure, but an act of relation or communication. Ambiguity also condemned that communication to incompleteness or misinterpretation. The painterly energy and strong two-dimensionality of this branch of l'Informale have strong affinities with American Abstract Expressionism, affinities which reflect the increasing exposure of the art of Pollock, de Kooning and others in Italy, and the coincidence of formal concerns in both countries in the mid-1950s.

By positing "l'Informale" as a recurrent cultural motif, the exhibition tends to treat all art subsequent to the historical "Informale" of the 1950s as a series of permutations on a revolution effected 30 years ago.

The task of reinventing a language of signs is most directly addressed by the cursive networks of Accardi's paintings, by Vedova's calligraphic anarchy, and by Capogrossi's superficie (surfaces) covered with private hieroglyphs that are indecipherable yet urgent. More painfully present are Burri's surfaces of torn sacks, weathered metal and black paint, which preserve their intransigent materiality in the very grip of the artist's structuring activities. The ugliness and brutality which contend with the almost magisterial muteness of the works seem less a provocation than an act of self-mortification. Rather familiar and less powerful are the gestural paintings of Afro and Birolli, which share the New York School's debt to Gorky and Hofmann.



Alberto Burri:* Sack SP 1, *1956, mixed mediums, 39¾ by 29¼ inches. Private collection, Milan.

To appreciate the wrench in consciousness which this art represents, it is necessary to distinguish the heady experience of artistic independence in a victorious postwar America from the traumatic experience of rejecting one's own cultural parents in the rubble of postwar Europe. A sense of weariness and foreboding not to be known in the United States for another quarter century suffused much of the Italian intellectual and artistic community. In 1954 Arcangeli would cite the grim imminence of nuclear destruction as one key to the desperation of the new—and last—naturalism.[5] With escalating Cold War tensions and the exclusion of the Communist Party from the government in 1947, the Italian left had stiffened its opposition to nonfigurative art.[6] Realism was declared the style of antifascism, a demonstration of the intellectual's solidarity with the people. Renato Guttuso, Ernesto Treccani and others responded to the call for an art depicting the contemporary struggle of the worker and the peasant. Abstraction was branded the antiprogressive tool of decadence and Americanization, and the nascent style of l'Informale, although practiced by certain Party members, was hectored from the pages of the influential left-wing press. In 1961 Giulio Carlo Argan would offer a compassionate, but nonetheless damning assessment of l'Informale:

> L'Informale reveals a condition of anguish: that of he who, having been denied the separation of contemplation and representation, is tied hopelessly to the necessity of doing, without having knowledge of past motives or future goals. Surely action that does not presuppose choice or moral will, action that wants only to fill the time of being and not leave pauses in which the terrifying question of nothingness can insert itself, a question which instead reappears in every act and instant of existence—surely that action realizes, far more than reveals, a condition of anguish.[7]

In the United States, we must turn to the criticism of Harold Rosenberg to find a parallel understanding of Action Paint-

VOL 71
ISS 11
DE
1983
UMI

Jess, The Sun: Tarot XIX, 1960, collage, 80″ x 50″

Jess: Paste-Ups 1951-1983

The John and Mable Ringling Museum of Art
Sarasota, Florida
December 9, 1983 - February 5, 1984

Subsequent showing:
Newport Harbor Art Museum,
Newport Beach, California
April 19, 1984 to June 10, 1984

Full-color, 144 page, hardcover catalog (cover designed by Jess)
Available through the museum: P.O. Box 1838, Sarasota, Florida 33578

Exhibition and catalog supported in part by the National Endowment for the Arts, a Federal agency, and the Saunders Foundation, Tampa.

ing as the operation of artists who, bereft of the "integratedness" promised in the 1930s and despairing of social efficacy, were reduced to the canvas as the sole arena for "risk-taking." By the early 1960s Rosenberg was already decrying the "normalization" of Action Painting, the obscuring of its "crisis-content" in an upbeat saga of the progress of pure form as narrated by Clement Greenberg.[8] By contrast, Italian criticism appears to have deepened in its understanding that philosophical rather than formal insights would be the crucial contribution of l'Informale. Writing in 1961—the same year that Argan and Barilli published formidable summations of l'Informale—Enrico Crispolti suggested that, insofar as l'Informale had replaced rationalist myths with an art whose truth was immediately verifiable in existential terms, it should be seen as an "act of realism." The new art of the 1960s, while rejecting l'Informale's confessional abandon, would emerge as an art seeking "relatedness" in terms of material reality.[9]

Emilio Vedova: Situations in Collision, 1951, collage and tempera on canvas, 50¾ by 66¼ inches. Collection Emilio and Annabianca Vedova, Venice.

In this spirit of historical continuity, and perhaps in an excess of enthusiasm and trendiness as well, the organizers of the Bologna exhibition extended the net to include art from the 1960s to the present. Appearing in a sort of critical addendum were works by Calzolari, Merz, Mattiacci and Kounellis (the neon lights, charred debris and plastic tubes of Germano Celant's Arte Povera), here identified as l'Informale freddo (cold Informale) in recognition of the fact that the motives of these artists had remained antimythic and anti-idealist even as their means had grown cooly ironic and factual. Omitting what Barilli refers to in passing as the technologically oriented art of l'Informale troppo freddo (too cold), and showing some paintings by Verno, Vago and others of l'Informale raffreddato (chilled) of the 1970s, the exhibition arrived at Neoinformale. Such current figures as Mimmo Paladino and Nicola de Maria have revived aspects of l'Informale as they forage about amid historical styles. In the conclusion to his catalogue essay, Barilli posits l'Informale as a constant or at least recurrent motif of our culture.

The problem with this approach is not simply that it made the exhibition numbingly large, which it did. Rather the issue is one of threatening to reduce all art subsequent to the historical Informale of the 1950s to a series of permutations of a revolution effected 30 years ago. Having celebrated the specific worth of a style and a time, the exhibition all but squandered its point in a bloated demonstration that l'Informale lives on—and on and on. In an effort to keep the revisionist tail from wagging the historical dog, let it be said that l'Informale was a movement of great quality, compelling uncertainty and occasional superficiality, and that it was accompanied by a body of criticism distinguished for its eloquence and insight.

Sergio Vacchi: The Ignited Figure, 1959, oil on canvas, 78 by 54½ inches. Private collection, Rome.

The work itself remains strong and direct, almost disconcerting in its surface beauty, and sympathetic in its general retention of the human scale that was often sacrificed in the American pursuit of the big canvas. If today we are too intimate with anxiety to respond to l'Informale solely for its content of alienation and dread, we are not insensitive to the genuine dignity and freedom from cynicism which distinguished its pursuit of lasting values in art. □

---

1. See L. Cooke, "Report from Paris: Cobraphilia," Art in America, Summer 1983, pp. 29–33.
2. L'Informale in Italia, Milan, Mazzotta, 1983, 357 pp., illustrated.
3. F. Arcangeli, "Gli ultimi naturalisti" and "Una situazione non improbabile," first published in Paragone, n. 59, Nov. 1954, and n. 85, Jan. 1957, reprinted in Dal Romanticismo all' Informale, Turin, Einaudi, 1977, vol. II, pp. 313–326 and 338–376.
4. Fontana was the subject of a major exhibition at the Guggenheim Museum, New York, in 1977.
5. Arcangeli, "Gli ultimi naturalisti," p. 317.
6. For a discussion of the political debate surrounding abstraction see N. Misler, La Via Italiana al Realismo, Milan, Mazzotta, 1973.
7. G. C. Argan, "Salvezza e caduta nell'arte moderna," first published in 1961, reprinted in Salvezza e Caduta nell'Arte Moderna, Milan, Il Saggiatore, 1964, p. 45 (trans. author).
8. H. Rosenberg, "Action Painting: Crisis and Distortion," The Anxious Object, New York, New American Library, 1964, pp. 37–44.
9. Argan, "Salvezza"; R. Barilli, "Considerazioni sull'Informale," first published 1961, reprinted in Informale Oggetto Comportamento, Milan, Feltrinelli, vol. I, pp. 38–54; and E. Crispolti, "Un panorama delle ipotesi attuali all'esordio degli anni sessanta," first published 1961, reprinted in Ricerche dopo l'Informale, Rome, Officina, 1968, pp. 19–52.

Author: Marcia E. Vetrocq is assistant professor of art history at the University of New Orleans.

VOL
71
ISS
11
DE
1983
UMI

JESS: A Gap in the Meal, 1983. Paste-up, 17 ¾ x 33 ⅝ in.

JESS IS REPRESENTED BY ODYSSIA GALLERY NEW YORK · (212) 517-9112

Dale Chihuly

Charles Cowles Gallery

December 3-31

420 West Broadway New York 10012 (212) 925-3500

Jacques-Henri Lartigue

ADOLPH GOTTLIEB
ROBERT MOTHERWELL
DAVID SMITH

Dec 7 - Jan 4

M. Knoedler & Co.
19 East 70 Street. New York 10021. Telephone (212) 794-0550

MODERN AND CONTEMPORARY WORKS OF ART.

MARVIN ROSS FRIEDMAN & CO.

15451 SOUTHWEST 67 COURT
MIAMI, FLORIDA 33157
BY APPOINTMENT ONLY
PHONE (305) 233-4281

VOL
71
ISS
11
DE
1983
UMI

SOUTINE
(1893-1943)

December 6th, 1983 - January 28th, 1984

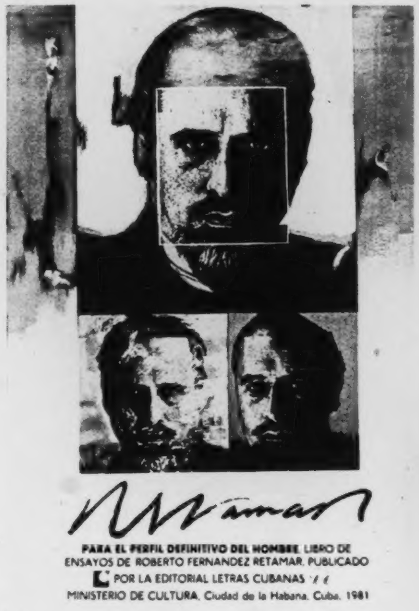
Galleri Bellman
41 East 57th Street, fifth floor, New York, New York 10022 • (212) 486-7944

Catalog available $28.00 ppd

Art & Politics
Cuba After the Revolution

AN INTERVIEW WITH RAUL MARTINEZ AND MARUCHA BY EVA COCKCROFT

Having abandoned abstraction for a revolutionary realism, Cuban artists are returning to individual concerns—less the history of the people, more the story of each one.



PARA EL PERFIL DEFINITIVO DEL HOMBRE LIBRO DE ENSAYOS DE ROBERTO FERNANDEZ RETAMAR, PUBLICADO POR LA EDITORIAL LETRAS CUBANAS
MINISTERIO DE CULTURA. Ciudad de la Habana. Cuba. 1981

Raul Martínez: Toward a Definitive Profile of Man, *1981, poster, 23 by 15 inches.

Marucha (Maria Eugenia Haya): Woman with Fan *("En el Liceo"), 1981, 20 by 16 inches.

A year after the military coup of 1952, in which Batista became dictator of Cuba, a group of young Cuban painters working in the Abstract-Expressionist style began to exhibit together as "Los Once" (the eleven). Modernism in Cuban painting had been linked with anti-establishment politics since its initiation in the 1920s by painters like Victor Manuel, Carlos Enriquez, Abela, Wifredo Lam, Portocarrero and Amelia Pelaez, among others. In this tradition, "Los Once" issued antigovernment statements and manifestos, and even sponsored an anti-Biennial. In the early years after the revolution, abstraction continued to be important. Raul Martínez, one of Cuba's leading contemporary artists who has worked in a figurative mode for many years, began his career as an Abstract Expressionist, as did a number of the artists whose subsequent representational work brought the Cuban poster movement to international prominence. In photography, a similar change from abstraction to realism occurred in the case of Mayito (Mario Garcia Joya), a prominent revolutionary photographer and head of the photography section of the artists' union. In the following interview, Raul Martínez and Marucha (Maria Eugenia Haya), an important photographer and historian of Cuban photography, discuss developments in contemporary Cuban art in the context of their country's revolution. Drawing on personal experience, they trace some of the changes that have occurred since the early Abstract-Expressionist years. The interview was conducted in Spanish in New York on Jan. 27, 1983. Raul Martínez and Maria Eugenia Haya were in the United States in conjunction with the opening of the exhibition, "Cuba: Poster Art and Photography of the Revolution, 1959–1982," sponsored by the Center for Cuban Studies and held at New York's Westbeth Gallery. The interview was translated by Geoffrey Fox. E.C.

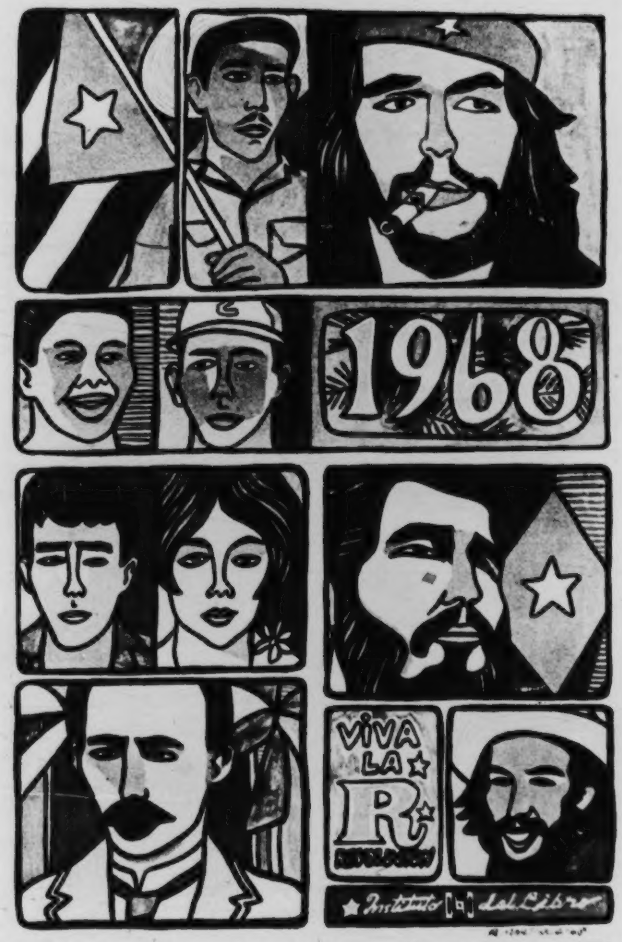
Eva Cockcroft: Marucha, I just recently realized that a number of Cuban painters as well as photographers—for example, Raul Martínez in painting and Mayito in photography—began their careers as abstractionists and only later on became realists. In the U.S., most artists have seemed to develop in the opposite direction—from realism to abstraction. Can you explain why the progression is different in Cuba?

Maria Eugenia Haya: Actually we started off in the "reverse" direction because of the artistic movements of the period when we began working. This was when the influence of Action Painting was important in Cuba. The painters were very involved in exploring the world of abstraction and finding new expressive modalities. Mayito had planned to be a painter, but got interested in photography and decided that he could do abstract work as a photographer also—through starting out from reality. The painters were investigating a whole series of formal and expressive possibilities in their painting, while Mayito was trying to demonstrate how a very concrete, specific reality can also, formally, be abstract.

This relationship between the work of Mayito and the painters continued for some time. In 1966, they did an exhibition together called "Foto Mentira" ("Photo Falsehood") that brought together a painter, Raul Martínez, with two photographers, Mayito and Luc Chessex (who is Swiss). Among themselves, they sought three different paths of experimentation, playing with the elements of reality and fiction in photography. Raul's paintings were based on a series of photographs of a single subject to suggest movement and to achieve a kind of expression based on that movement. Mayito, in a work on the Vietnam War, used photos that were not his and transformed those images so that they expressed what he wanted to say. Chessex did a very straightforward essay on the Cuban woman—how he saw the Cuban woman. I was the only one who didn't agree with his essay, since I didn't like the image that Chessex presented. To me, it seemed a little bit superficial, not delving deeply into the problems of women, as might be expected. In any case, the photos were excellent and they had great appeal.

Then, in the '70s, there was the whole current of Photo Realism which also influenced us to move from abstraction to realism. In that period, painters continued to join with photographers because they based their work on photographic images. Some used photos of their own, as in the case of Gory (Rogelio Lopez Marin), a painter who is also a photographer. Others, like Aldo Menendez (who has made many paintings based on Mayito's photos), used other photographer's images.

VOL 71 ISS 11 DE 1983 UMI



Raul Martínez:* Viva la revolucion, *1968, poster, 20 by 14 inches. All photographs courtesy Center for Cuban Studies, New York.

Raul Martínez:* Untitled *(Committee for the Defense of the Revolution "Bulletin Board Series"), hand-colored photograph, 20 by 16 inches.

EC: Raul, how do you see the relationship between photography, painting and graphics in Cuba?

Raul Martínez: Well, the photo is used in all three: in photography as such, of course. Then, in painting, it is used—or at least I use the photo—to establish a parallel between photography as a supposed "take" of reality and painting as an independent and very personal way of seeing reality. Sometimes I use the photo as a document from which to work, and sometimes I use it as itself, but manipulated and transformed into a pictorial object.

There are also many young photographers in Cuba who employ the manipulated photo. Not satisfied with the photo as document, they feel the necessity to add to the photo or to paint it. Other young artists take the photo as a document and then add to, alter or subtract from it. They use one or a sequence of photographs and transform the image according to their needs. Then there is the type of painter who starts from a photograph and uses that image as the basis for his own creation of pictorial reality. In graphic design, I believe that the use of photography has not been so important.

MEH: Except in the case of Umberto Peña and Azcuy, who have used photography a great deal.

RM: That's true. Azcuy bases his entire production of posters on photos. He simply adds a screen, dots and intensifies the contrast in order to transform the photo into a graphic. Azcuy uses the photo as his medium of expression and respects the black and white of the photo itself.

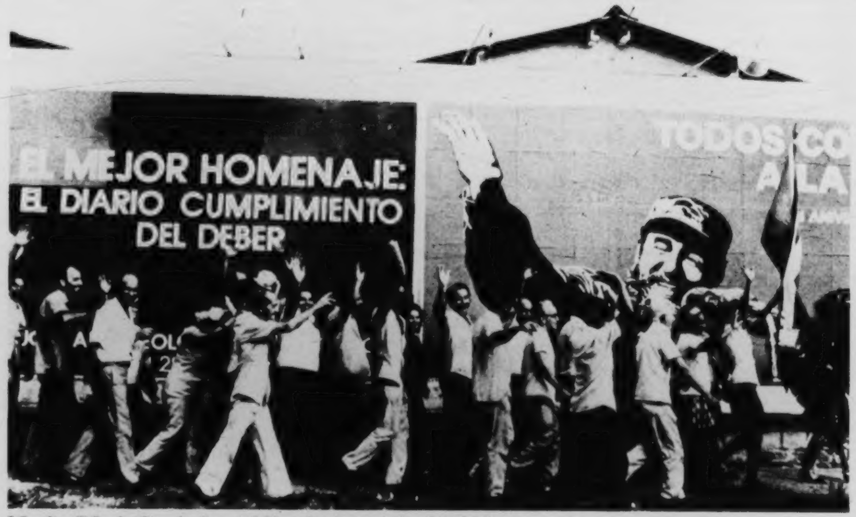
Umberto Peña also uses photography a great deal in the magazine Casa de las Americas which he designs. Photos are used expressively in almost every issue. Also, the photo as a graphic element has been used in posters. There is the famous photo of Fidel standing, for example.

MEH: You mean the one which is titled, "Commander-in-Chief, give your orders"?

RM: Yes, and the photos of Che and many others. These have been used in the past and continue to be used today. What I meant was that, in comparison with the quantity of posters employing color and imagination, those that use photography as a principal element are relatively few. One reason is the means of printing that used to be available. Now that offset is more common, several young poster-makers who exhibit, like Modesto Braulio, for example, use black-and-white or color photos and print them in four colors.

EC: In your own work, Raul, since you are a photographer and a graphic designer as well as a painter, how do you decide when to use one or another of these mediums?

RM: I have used photography for a long time as a document, as an instrument for my painting. The first works of this kind were drawings based on photos, but intentionally awkward and clumsy because I wanted them to look like popular art drawings by the people. Then, in another phase, I made drawings based on the image of the photograph but I converted it into a line drawing which I would color.



Mayito (Mario Garcia Joya): Mi mejor homenaje (My highest tribute), black-and-white photograph, 20 by 16 inches.

Rene Azcuy: Evidence, 1979, poster, 30 by 20 inches.

And so, in successive stages, my images have become more photographic, until the point when I decided to incorporate the photo directly into my work without making a drawing—that is, I include interpretative drawings or paintings around the photo, but I respect the integrity of the photograph.

I give greater weight to the photographic image now because I consider it a more contemporary language. Now, in my photographs of the bulletin boards made by local Committees for the Defense of the Revolution, I try to do photography as a kind of sideline, while continuing to use the manipulated image in my painting.

EC: Let's broaden the discussion a little and add another factor: the society. How do you relate the Cuban abstract movement of the 1960s to what was happening at the same time in Cuban society? In the U.S., there is often a great problem of distance between the artist and the public. The public does not understand the artist's work and is not interested in it. This is thought to be particularly true in the case of artists who use abstraction, which is considered to be very far from the life of the masses. But in Cuba, the abstract movement coincided with the first years of the revolution. What was the connection between abstract art and the Cuban masses in that period?

MEH: You have to understand that although abstract art was important during the first years of the revolution, it was something that was carried over from before. That is, the abstract movement was more of a response to an earlier historical moment and not a specific reaction to the triumph of the revolution. If it is true that today there is more concern for the individual, for human and everyday problems, for everything that has to do with the transformation to a new society, then perhaps it is for this reason that art has become more realistic. No, not realistic—realistic is a word I don't like to use—I would prefer to say more objective.

RM: Abstraction was initiated by a group of us young artists in Cuba at the beginning of the decade of the 1950s. In 1952 the first big group exhibition of abstract painting took place in Havana. It was a time of searching, an epoch in which our society was dominated by a terrible political scene, a terrible dictatorship. It was a time of total isolation, egoism, barbarity in general, a time of struggles for power and wealth at all political levels. There were no values, no ethics, no examples for young people trying to establish themselves to follow. This was the time when Batista seized dictatorial power. Nobody knew at the beginning of this stage what the future held.

Obviously a society with these features must be reflected in the world of individual expression, even when the artists themselves are not conscious of that intention. The group I belonged to, which was important in Cuba and continued doing abstraction, was composed of 11 artists and was thus called "Los Once." We began doing abstraction because of esthetic concerns. As we worked, and saw the developments in our country—that chaos I spoke about—we began to develop a social consciousness, a realization that the country had to be transformed. In addition to our esthetic, formal investigation of abstraction, we began to develop an interest in the idea of using our art as a weapon for change.

Yet, we could not use abstract art for combat because, although abstraction represents a world that is real, it is another order of reality that is not measurable by specific references. But, at that moment abstraction seemed to us the only spontaneous and possible art, and I believe that in that historical moment it was. For me, abstract art was always a means of personal discovery and perhaps a kind of escape from reality as well. We therefore did not try to change our painting then, but to change the use we made of it—by means of titles that related to the struggle, by the places where we exhibited it, and our purpose in exhibiting it.

After the triumph of the revolution we continued doing abstraction. Reality was transformed, but for the human being it is transformed initially only on the outside, the facade. For that reality to transform an individual takes time. Otherwise it wouldn't be a transformation. We accepted the revolution and worked with the revolution—the process that was totally changing our society into a radically opposite form in which human beings begin to consider and be considered by others. Obviously this causes a change in the landscape. The environment is transformed.

At the end of several years, I saw that I had become a different person. Now, when I set out to do a painting, I would start but I wouldn't know where to go. People used to ask, "How do you know when the picture is done?" and I would laugh because one knows when the picture is done only when one knows what one's objective is. I discovered that my objective had been lost. I had been fundamentally transformed by that society, and now I had a need to have my message understood. I wanted my painting to reflect the life that surrounded me, to reflect the people as well as political and social facts.

VOL 71 ISS 11 DE 1983 UMI

EC: Then can we say that there have been three or four phases of change, both in the revolution and in the directions taken by painting and photography during this period? The first phase was abstraction, which continued from before. Then there was another, more realist tendency. . . .

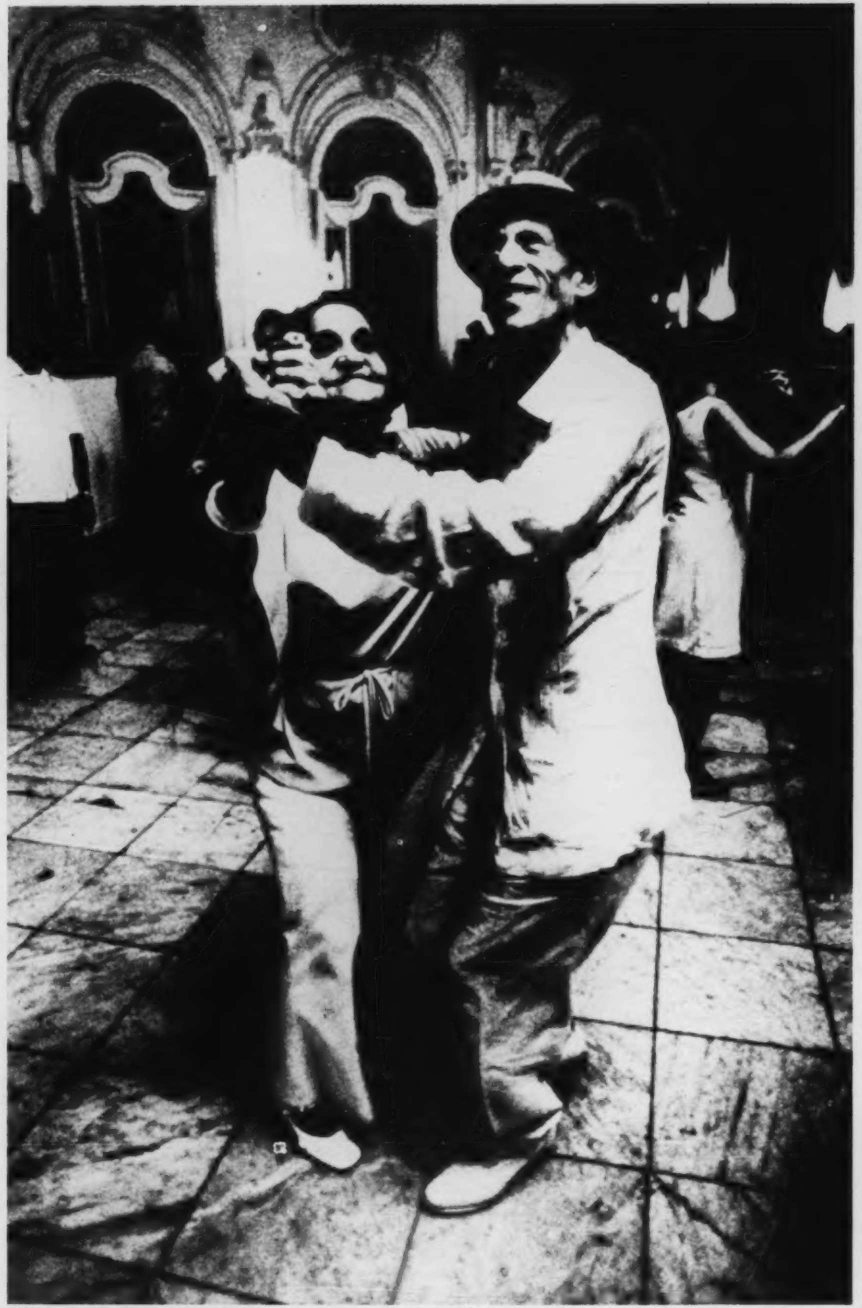
RM: By 1964 many people were already giving up abstraction or questioning how to represent society through their painting. At that time I began adding other materials to the abstract language: pictures from magazines, the initials "M-26" of the 26th of July movement—I put in pictures of the heroes, wrote things on the paintings—a visual language something like that of Rauschenberg, but made according to Cuba's possibilities. Some time later I began figurative work without abstraction.

Later, when Photo Realism arose as an international tendency, young art school graduates began working in this style. Today there is a strong interest among young people in exploring Conceptual art forms. Young people are working in abstraction, Conceptual art, Minimal art, happenings—nearly everything that you see in New York or London is also being done in Cuba.

I think that today the search is turning once again toward abstraction and experimentation. It seems to me that because the revolution as a political and social structure has made such great advances, it is now possible for artists to concentrate more on esthetic and experimental needs. It is not just the more favorable economic situation, but rather that the historic fact of the revolution—with a constitution and the establishment of a whole political and social structure in favor of everyone—has given direction to and created a sense of order in the whole country. This sense of order, it seems to me, makes the individual feel secure and also feel that —just as the revolution is advancing—it is possible for the artist to advance by other paths.

EC: Marucha, it seems to me that there have also been phases in photography. At one time the need was to educate the people in a new politics. In those days, there were the images of the martyrs, of the mass meetings in the plaza, the photography of Korda . . .

MEH: As in painting, there was also a transformation in photography closely related to the problems that developed within the revolution. Photographers in the first stage published their photos in the press and lived their experience as revolutionaries. Instead of just taking the assigned pictures, the photographer sent to the rural areas got in touch with the life of the campesino and enriched himself as a person through learning about their lives. As the photographers lived within the revolution, they began to feel that this was their poetry, their form of expression. So we find in these early photos not only an image of what was happening, but also a feeling of extraordinary love.



Marucha:* Esperanza and Chenaro *("En el Liceo"), 1981, photograph, 20 by 16 inches.

The second stage, the period of the big exhibitions, resulted from shortages caused by the trade embargo. There was no longer enough paper to publish a lot of photographs in newspapers and magazines. So, in order to display their work, photographers got together to do group shows on the revolution. In 1968, for the Cuban Pavilion at Expo 68 in Montreal called "From the Third World," a group of creative artists, architects, musicians, painters and photographers gathered to explore thoroughly a number of issues concerning Third World culture. They clarified their ideas through intensive discussions before carrying out their work. In this way they established a relationship between architecture, photography, painting and music.

Then came the exhibitions commemorating national holidays or celebrations such as the exhibition "Hundred Years of Struggle." This was held in Oriente Province at the site of the original proclamation for the first Ten Years War (1867–77)—what was literally the beginning of 100 years of struggle. For the exhibition there were five gigantic screens on which photographic images were projected. At a given moment, on the center screen, a movie was shown of the revolution in motion, pictures taken in the Sierra Maestra Mountains. Raul did a large mural.

Korda:* Don Quixote of the Lamppost, *July 26, 1959, black-and-white photograph, 20 by 16 inches.

RM: One hundred meters (328 feet). I did the sketch and the people painted it.

MEH: At the same time as the images were being projected above the mural, there was live theater going on—a pageant reconstructing everything that had occurred, the Mambises on horseback, the students protesting during the civil war against the Machado government in the 1930s—the actors actually turned over a squad car and set it on fire. At the end of this live spectacle, the marchers hung their placards on a sculpture of a tree symbolizing the nation. Then Fidel began to speak about the history of the nation.

EC: In this kind of exhibition, who was the public?

MEH: The public took part in the same way as when they go to the plaza to a mass meeting to hear a speech. It was that same public. There were hundreds of people from the local region, and they came from other provinces too.

EC: And they understood the art?

MEH: But, of course.

EC: Well, that was very realistic art. But now that the concerns of the artists in the contemporary epoch are more individual and less social, less the history of the whole people and more the story of what is within each one, does this massive public still come?

RM: No. Now, for the artistic programs, the public is not so massive. But it is a more educated public. These programs find support because now, in Cuba, there isn't any illiteracy. We have lost the massiveness, but I think we have gained in selectivity. The revolution is still interested in obtaining that mass response, but the process is slower.

> "Because of the work done by the Ministry of Culture, there is now a richness in Cuba's cultural world that did not exist in the early years of the revolution."

MEH: Also the galleries have a large public participation.

RM: Yes, but it's not the same mass audience as before.

MEH: It's not the same as it was for those spectacles that were trying to create an art linked to the public. Now, because of all the work done by the Ministry of Culture, and especially by Armando Hart, the Minister of Culture, who has worked for the in-depth development of all art forms, there is a richness in Cuba's cultural world that did not exist during those years.

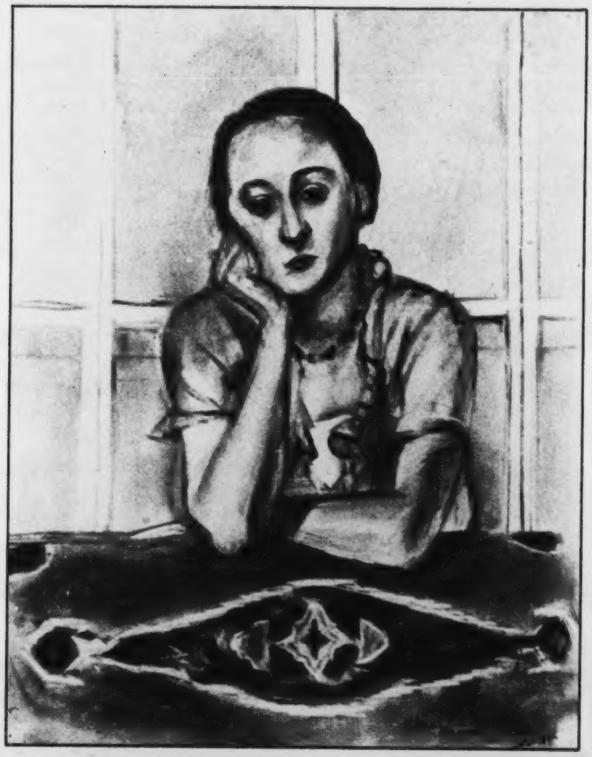
RM: Now, for example, every municipality has its House of Culture. They have shows there that the people of that town or municipality attend, and where they also present their own productions.

EC: Do you see the current system as having several levels? Let us say, a lower culture, and another, more specialized one?

RM: No, I would say it is a single culture that includes expressions at different levels. In Cuba, artistic work is highly varied. There are those who do academic landscapes, others who are impressionists or who work in a semiabstract style, and still others whose work is much more complex, both in its analysis and its expression. Yet, it is all seen by the same public—the landscape art as well as the work with more complex themes. This situation is good because the art is part of the visual and cultural education of that public.

EC: Marucha, how much do women participate in art and photography? Are there many women artists? It seems to me that there are not.

VOL
7
1
ISS
1 1
DE
1983
UMI



HENRI MATISSE
Figure au Tapis de Scutari, 1922
Charcoal on paper,
20⅛ x 15⅞ inches

Other works by KELLY, KIEFER, LEGER,
PICASSO, ROTHKO

By appointment

VIVIAN HORAN
40 East 62nd Street
New York, NY 10021
212 935-1682

Cordier & Ekstrom
417 East 75th Street, New York

ROMARE BEARDEN

Mecklenburg Autumn

NOV. 12– DEC. 17

MEH: There aren't many, Eva. The problem is that we've had only 24 years of revolution and a 24-year-old artist is still not a fully developed artist. Among young people just out of school, you'll find many girls interested in photography and other artistic expression. Regrettably, there is a much smaller number of us coming from the period of the Republic because we brought with us all the limitations of the previous epoch. But there are some. Just as Raul Martínez is important in painting, so is the expressionist painter, Luz Antonia Eiriz, a woman of extraordinary creative force, as was Amelia Pelaez, a synthetic Cubist who was one of the early leaders of Cuba's modernist movement.

In photography, there were a few women working but there was no tradition—which happens to us a lot, not only in the arts, but in general. Now, especially among the students, you find women participating in everything.

EC: In your career, have you had problems because you are a woman?

MEH: No, not in the revolutionary period. It's curious that this always comes up. In Cuba, we have never been concerned to arrange for the presence of either blacks or women in a calculated way. A little while back a delegation of us went to Veracruz, Mexico. The artists were chosen by their work. It so happened that there was only one black and one woman. Everywhere we went, people asked us, "How can it be that a revolutionary country sends us only one black and one woman?" Everyone thinks there's got to be some kind of quota.

RM: A similar thing happened to me. I have a famous poster, done for an exhibition of Cuban art in Grenoble. It's a typical poster of mine, with photos of the people and the heroes in the center. I did the poster, naturally, with the consciousness that comes from being in a country where we don't manipulate imagery—and in Cuba no one ever pointed out anything about it. Now this poster became very well known, in great demand, and all the foreigners who came to Cuba always asked me, "How come you haven't put in a black?" Of course, if I had thought rationally about the fact that this poster was intended to go abroad, I probably should have presented the idea that in Cuba everything is mixed. But since we don't worry about that idea, I just made the image. I was concerned to have children, peasants, older people, all kinds of people, but not racial types.

MEH: For example, as far as women are concerned, look at our Vice Minister of Culture. She is an extremely brilliant woman, Marcia Leiseca; the Director of the National Archive Museum is a woman; the Director of Cultural Assets is a woman; the director of the Museum of Fine Arts; the director of Casa de las Americas. Women are in extremely important posts. So much so that men sometimes say, "You've taken over the revolution. You've taken over everything."

Raul Martínez.

Maria Eugenia Haya (Marucha).

EC: What do artists in Cuba talk about now? What do they debate? What things are they concerned about?

MEH: They discuss social problems in general, the problem of analyzing reality and especially what is happening right now. The great concern is to be up-to-date. We have an eagerness to know what's happening in the world of art in general, although when it comes to creating our own painting or photography, that is totally related to our own reality.

EC: There are some artists and writers who have left Cuba in recent years and are now living elsewhere. Why?

RM: They are few.

MEH: And they are not the most important ones either.

RM: There were one or two important ones.

EC: There was the poster artist, Reboiro, for example, who left last summer. We heard about that here in New York, and it raises the question of whether there are problems of censorship.

RM: There is no problem with censorship in Cuba. Expression is completely free. Reboiro left as a result of a personal decision he made and not as a result of having had special problems. On the contrary, now young artists travel, go to Paris, write—they are known everywhere in the world. In Cuba today, culture is widely diffused and totally supported. So these options that some have taken are the result of private or personal reasons. I don't believe that any of them were for political reasons.

EC: In recent years many Cuban artists have traveled and spent considerable time out of the country. For example, Raul, weren't you in Mexico for a year?

RM: Yes, a year ago. We've had much greater and more frequent opportunities to travel recently. In earlier years it was much harder to establish exchanges and, moreover, the country had many other concerns of higher priority than ours.

MEH: I would say from what I've seen of the artists here in New York, that they are much more anxious than we are because of the difficulty they have in getting their works exhibited and so on. You don't find this happening at all in Cuba. People always have the possibility of a gallery, the possibility of gaining recognition. They live in an environment less fraught with struggle than the young artists here.

RM: In Cuba, talent is the basis for success, not age. When I receive an honor for my work, there's likely to be a young person—maybe 23 years old—also receiving it. We know each other, we're in the same places, joined by the same interests, and we don't have the kind of competition you have in the U.S. I happen to be in New York now, but Flavio and some other young people were in Paris a few months ago.

EC: I have heard that in Cuba, even landscape and still-life paintings are political, that everything that one does is political. Can you explain this point of view?

RM: What we say is that when you are living responsibly in a socialist country, and when you are consistent with the politics of your country, then everything you do has political connotations. Maybe the word "politics" is not correct. There may be a better word, but anyway, that's what we mean. When you are in harmony with your country, then you are expressing your country's politics even if you are not conscious of it. Therefore your work is a political fact. Culture is a political fact. Even if you paint a still life, it is a political act, and that still life is not the same when it's painted there as it is when it's painted here. ☐

"Cuba: Poster Art and Photography of the Revolution, 1959–1982" consisted of more than 100 photographs and 200 posters. The poster section was exhibited at the New York City Technical College Gallery, Brooklyn, New York [Oct. 19–Nov. 8] and the Mason Gross School of the Arts Gallery, Rutgers University [Nov. 14–Dec. 2]. Subsequent itinerary available from the Center for Cuban Studies, New York.

Author: Eva Cockcroft is a painter and photographer who often writes on Latin American art.

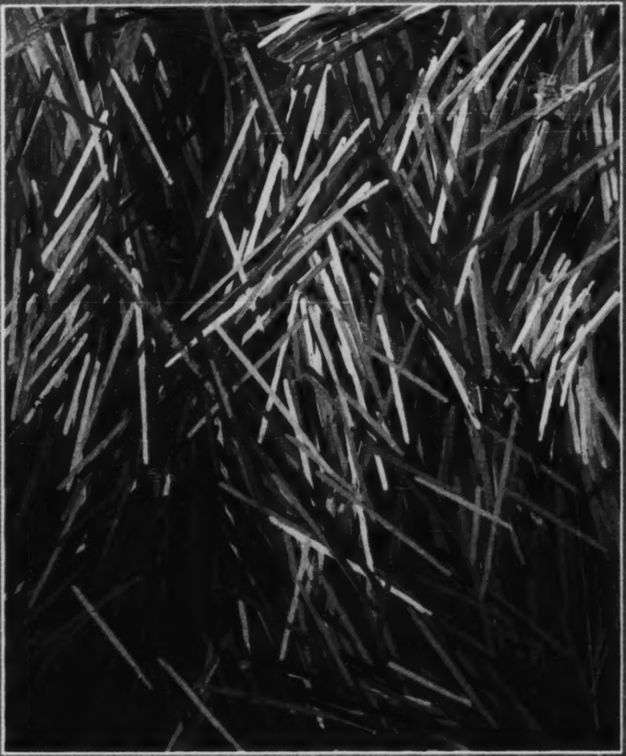
VOL 71 ISS 11 DE 1983 UMI

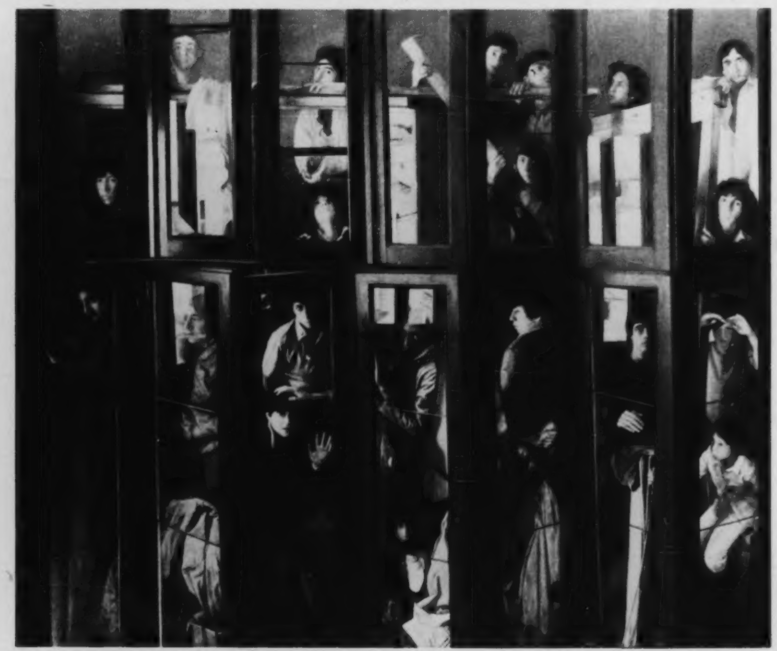
Artists of the Gallery
1961-1983

Nov 29-Dec 31

Robert Elkon
1063 Madison Avenue
New York, N.Y. 10028
Tel: 212/535.3940



Charles Arnoldi
"VI," 1979. Oil on canvas, 60x50 in.



Windows, 1982-83. Oil on canvas, 98½ x 118 inches

DANIEL QUINTERO

Recent Paintings and Drawings

Illustrated catalogue available
$10 U.S. and Canada, postage included

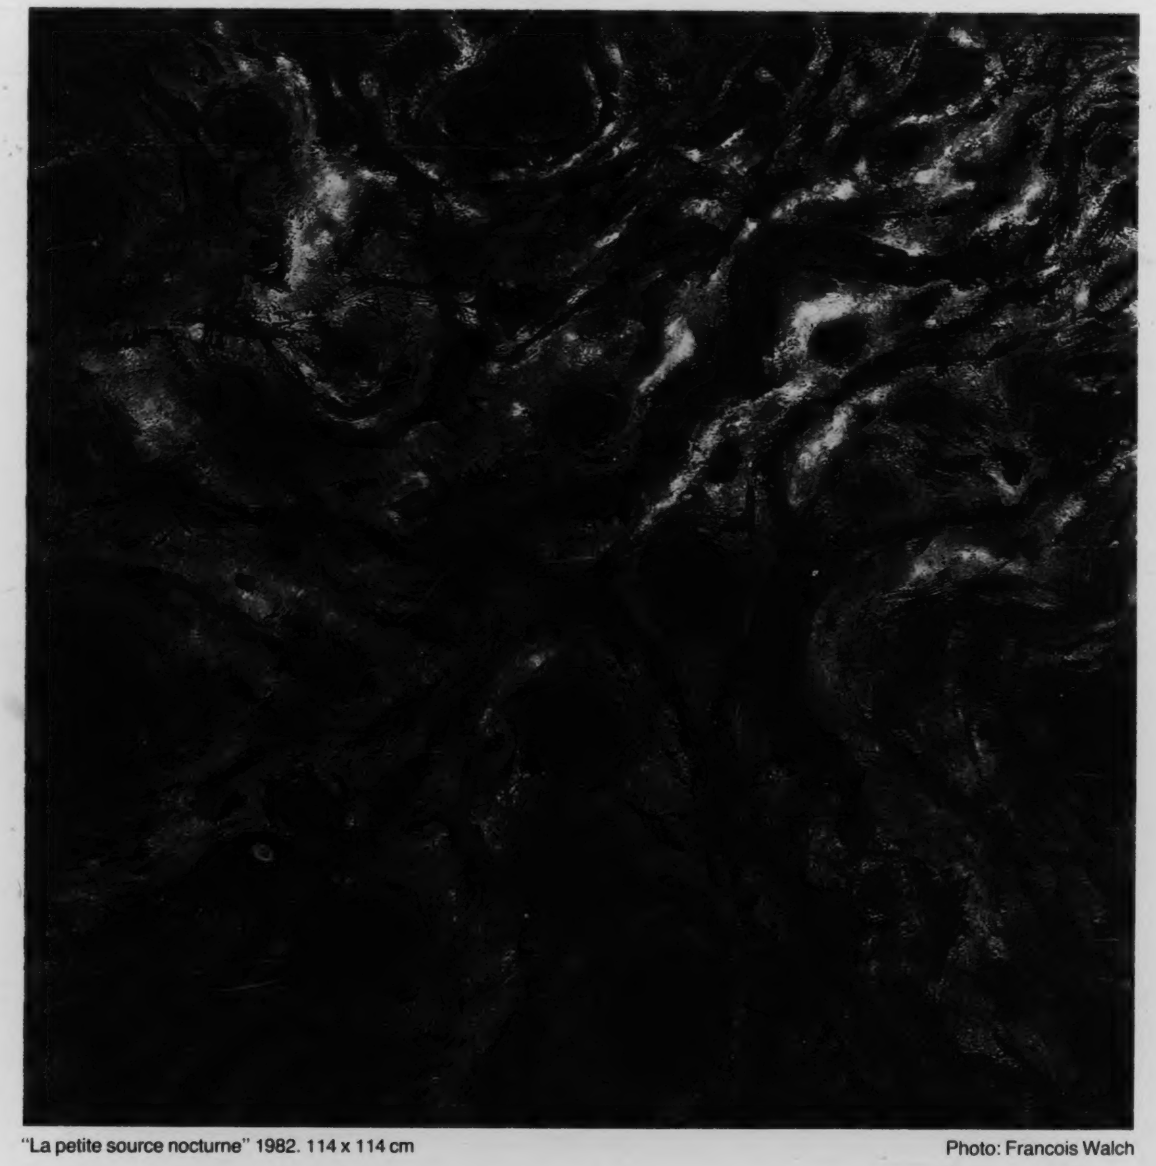
December 3-31

Marlborough

40 West 57 New York 10019 Tel: 541-4900

ALFRED MANESSIER

December 20 - February 5, 1984



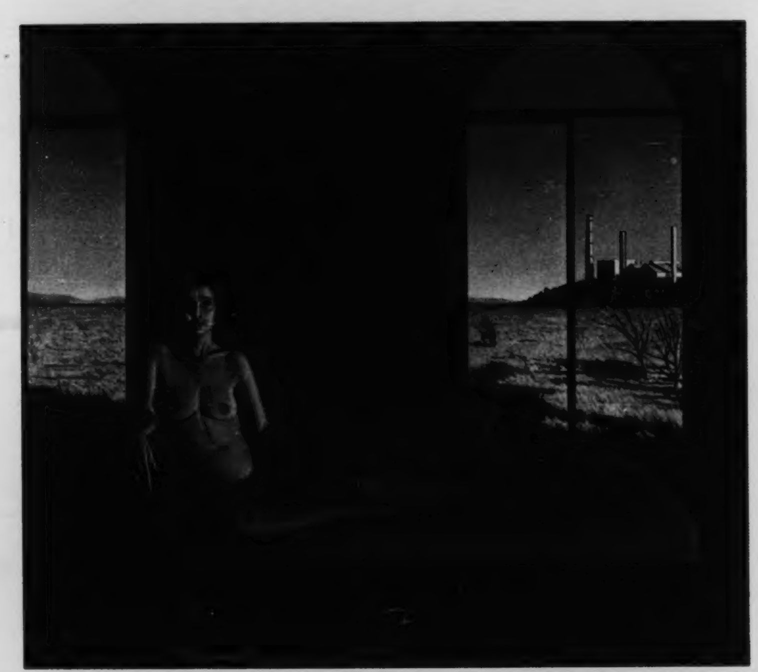
"La petite source nocturne" 1982. 114 x 114 cm

Photo: Francois Walch

Galerie de France

50-52 Rue de la Verrerie
75004 Paris
274.38.00

VOL
7
1
ISS
11
DE
1983
UMI



Woman on Chaise Lounge, 1983. Oil on canvas 62"h x 70"w

KEVIN KEARNEY RECENT PAINTINGS JEREMY STONE GALLERY

DECEMBER 6-JANUARY 14 • 126 POST STREET • SAN FRANCISCO, CA 94108 415/398 6535

3 DECEMBER TO 31 DECEMBER

PAINTINGS

GEORG BASELITZ, JEAN MICHEL BASQUIAT,
TROY BRAUNTUCH, FRANCESCO CLEMENTE,
ERIC FISCHL, JORG IMMENDORFF,
PER KIRKEBY, MARKUS LUPERTZ, A.R.PENCK,
SIGMAR POLKE, DAVID SALLE, JULIAN SCHNABEL

MARY BOONE
MICHAEL WERNER
GALLERY, 417 WEST BROADWAY, NEW YORK 431-1818

CLAUDE BERNARD EDITIONS

Please consult us for catalogues and posters on the following artists

Francis BACON
William BAILEY
BALTHUS
Gerard BARTHELEMY
Jack BEAL
BIRMELIN
Julius BISSIER
Peter BLAKE
BONNARD
BOTERO
BOURDELLE
Juan CARDENAS
CREMONINI
Tibor CSERNUS
Roel D'HAESE
DUBUFFET
ESTEVE
GIACOMETTI
Piero GUCCIONE
HOCKNEY
IPOUSTEGUY
IRIARTE KLAPPER
Yuri KUPER
LAURENS
LEGER
David LEVINE
LOPEZ GARCIA
McGARRELL
Luis MARSANS
Raymond MASON
Armando MORALES
Rodrigo MOYNIHAN
Zoran MUSIC
PICASSO
Antonio SEGUI
SZAFRAN
VARLIN
Andrew WYETH
Boris ZABOROV

List of all publications, prices and discounts upon request

GALERIE CLAUDE BERNARD
5-7-9, Rue des Beaux-Arts - 75006 Paris, Tel: 326 97 07

ORGANISATION ARTISTIQUE

VOL
7 1
ISS
1 1
DE
1983
UMI

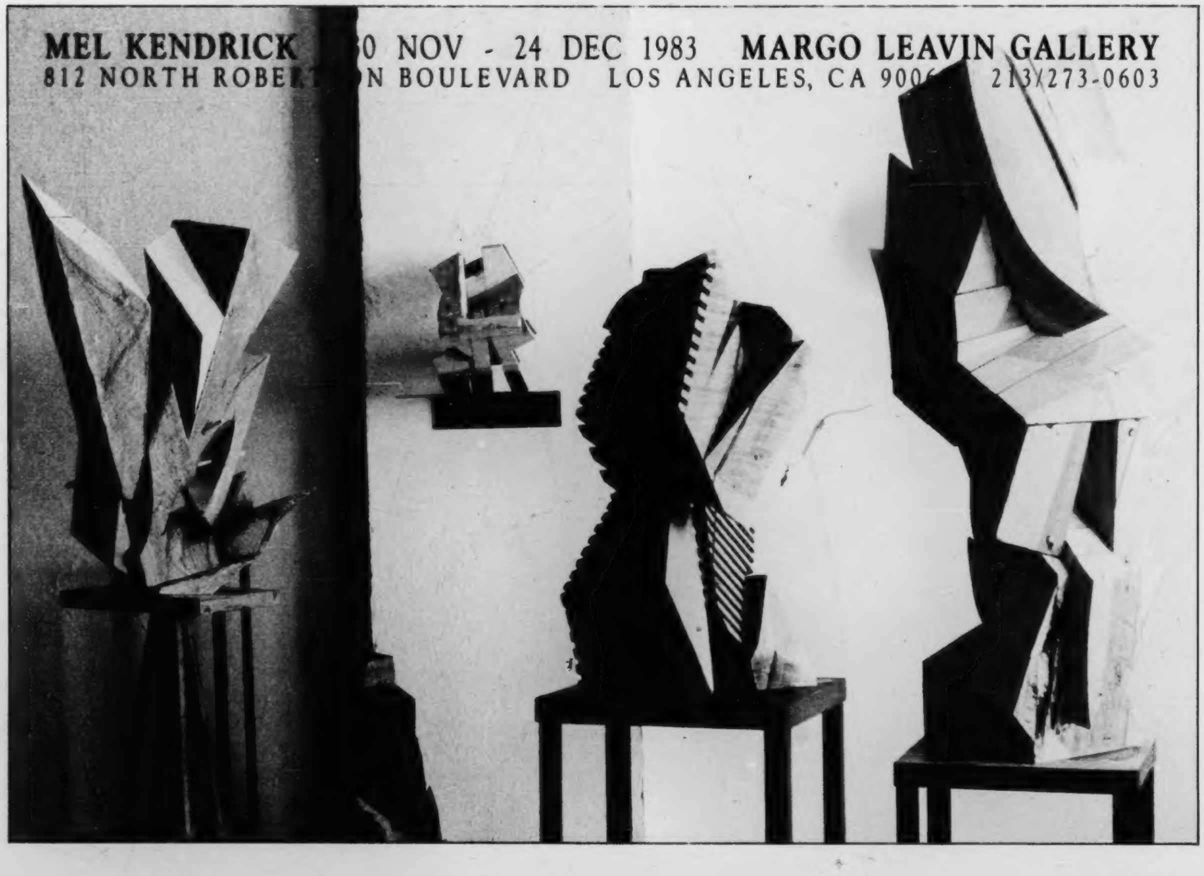
In Honor of de Kooning

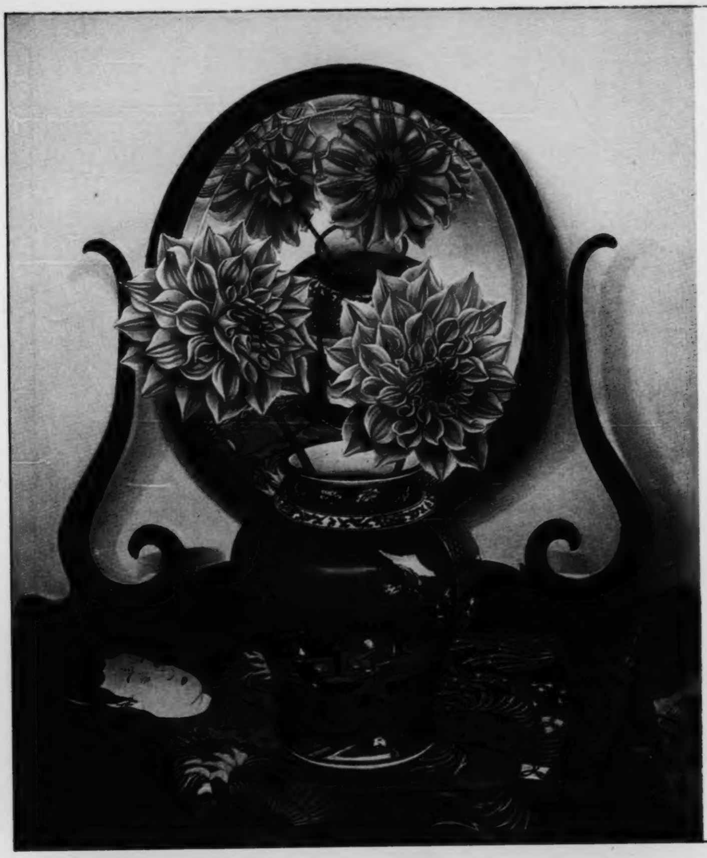
Paintings and Sculpture by
Bacon · Balthus · Baselitz · Berlant · Chamberlain
Crozier · de Kooning · Dubuffet · Freud · Hague
Heizer · Johns · Lichtenstein · Marden · Mitchell
Morley · Murphy · Rockburne · Segal

December 8 – January 21

XAVIER FOURCADE INC.
36 East 75th Street New York, New York 10021 212 535-3980

MEL KENDRICK [illegible]0 NOV - 24 DEC 1983 MARGO LEAVIN GALLERY
812 NORTH ROBE[illegible]N BOULEVARD LOS ANGELES, CA 900[illegible] 213/273-0603





Frances
Cohen
Gillespie
Paintings

December 10, 1983
through
January 7, 1984

Lapis Lazuli, 1983.
Oil on wood, 72 x 60 in.

Monique
Knowlton
153 Mercer, New York 10012
Telephone (212) 431-8808

David Reed: New Painting

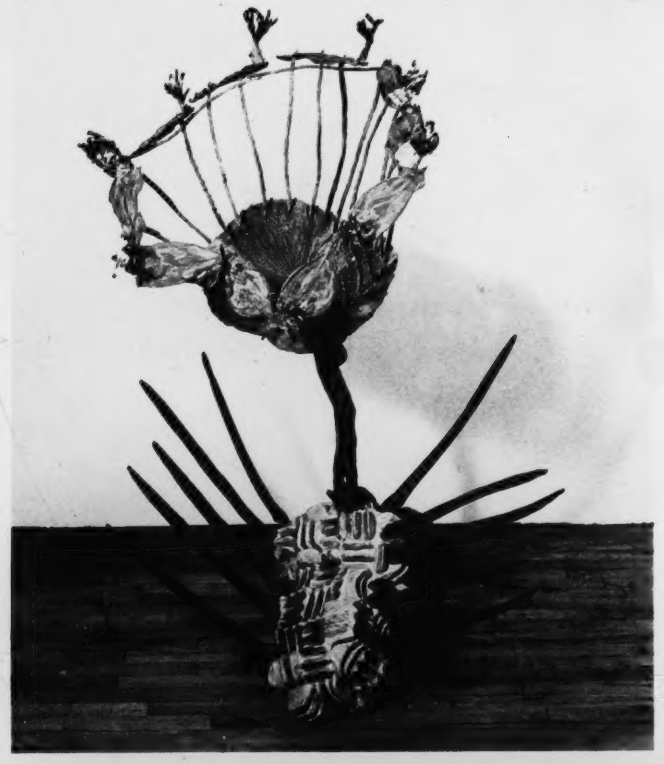
Richard Devore: Pottery

Max Protetch 37 W. 57th Street N.Y.C. 838-2340

Gallery Group Show

Protetch McNeil 214 Lafayette Street N.Y.C. 226-8957

VOL 71
ISS 11
DE 1983
UMI



NANCY GRAVES
"KRATER"
1982 Bronze, with Polychrome Patina
57½" by 41" by 40"

IRVING GALLERIES
332 WORTH AVENUE
PALM BEACH, FLORIDA 33480 USA
(305) 659-6221

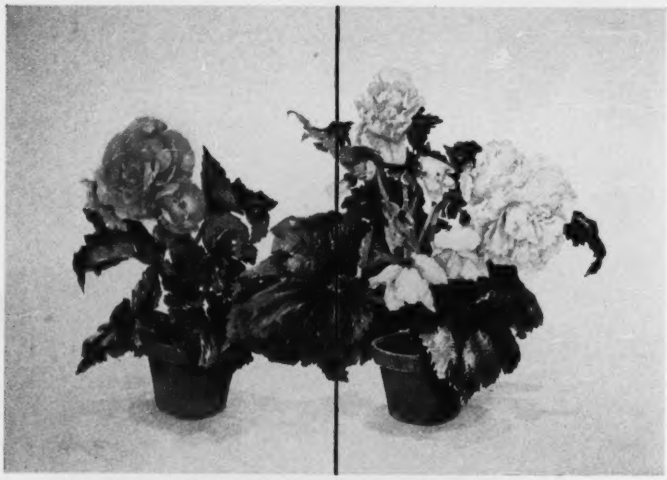
WILLIAM T. WILEY

DECEMBER
Catalogue Available/Postage Prepaid/$12. + Tax

FULLER GOLDEEN GALLERY
228 Grant Avenue San Francisco CA 94108
(415) 982-6177

GARY A. BUKOVNIK

WATERCOLORS OF FLOWERS • DECEMBER 6, 1983 TO JANUARY 7, 1984



Begonia Diptych, 1983, watercolor, 41 1/2 x 59"

STAEMPFLI

47 EAST 77 ST., NEW YORK N.Y. 10021 Tel. 212/535-1919

Roy Boyd Chicago

215 W. Superior
Chicago 60610
312 642 1606

Roy Boyd Los Angeles

170 S. La Brea
Los Angeles 90036
213 938 2328

16 Sculptors

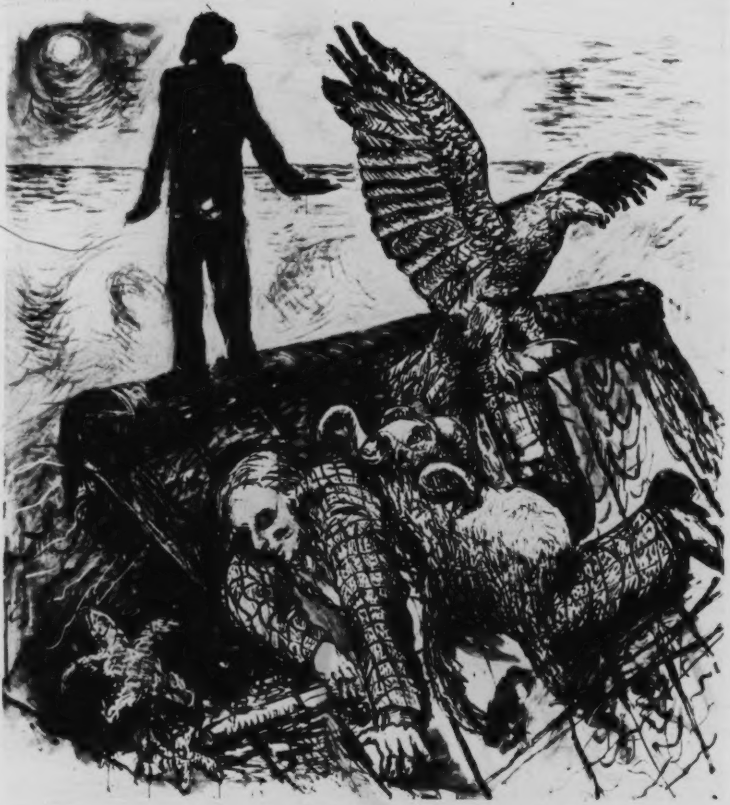
David Bottini
David Bower
Jeff Colby
Gary Cudworth
Michael Davis
Woods Davy
Herbert Ferber
Matt Gill
Stephen Luecking
Robert McCauley
Dan Nardi
Joel Perlman
Jay Phillips
Gordon Powell
Barry Tinsley
Bruce White

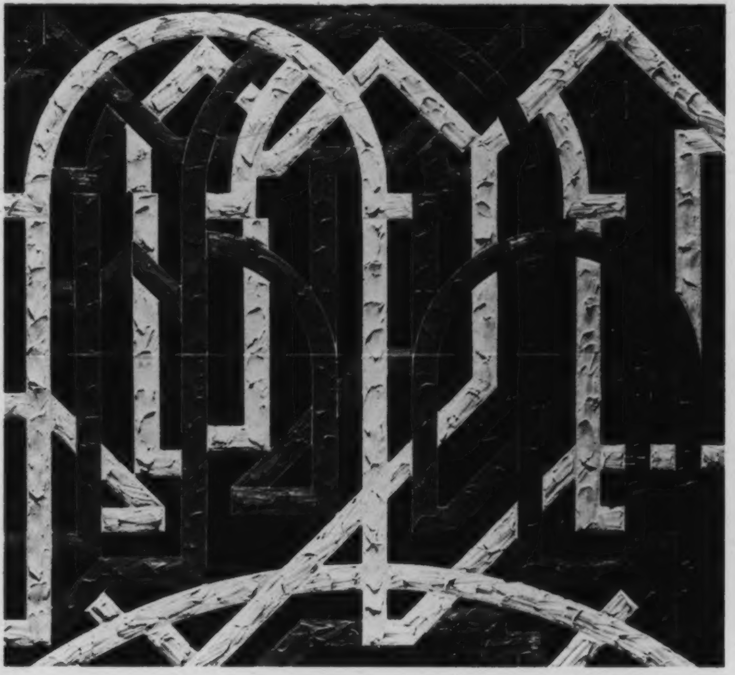
VOL 71
ISS 11
DE 1983
UMI

STEVEN CAMPBELL
DEC. 3-23

BARBARA TOLL FINE ARTS
146 GREENE ST.
NEW YORK 10012
212 431-1788

JOHN WEBER GALLERY
142 GREENE ST.
NEW YORK 10012
212 966-6115





Bolivar, 1983

VALERIE JAUDON

Paintings
and Drawings
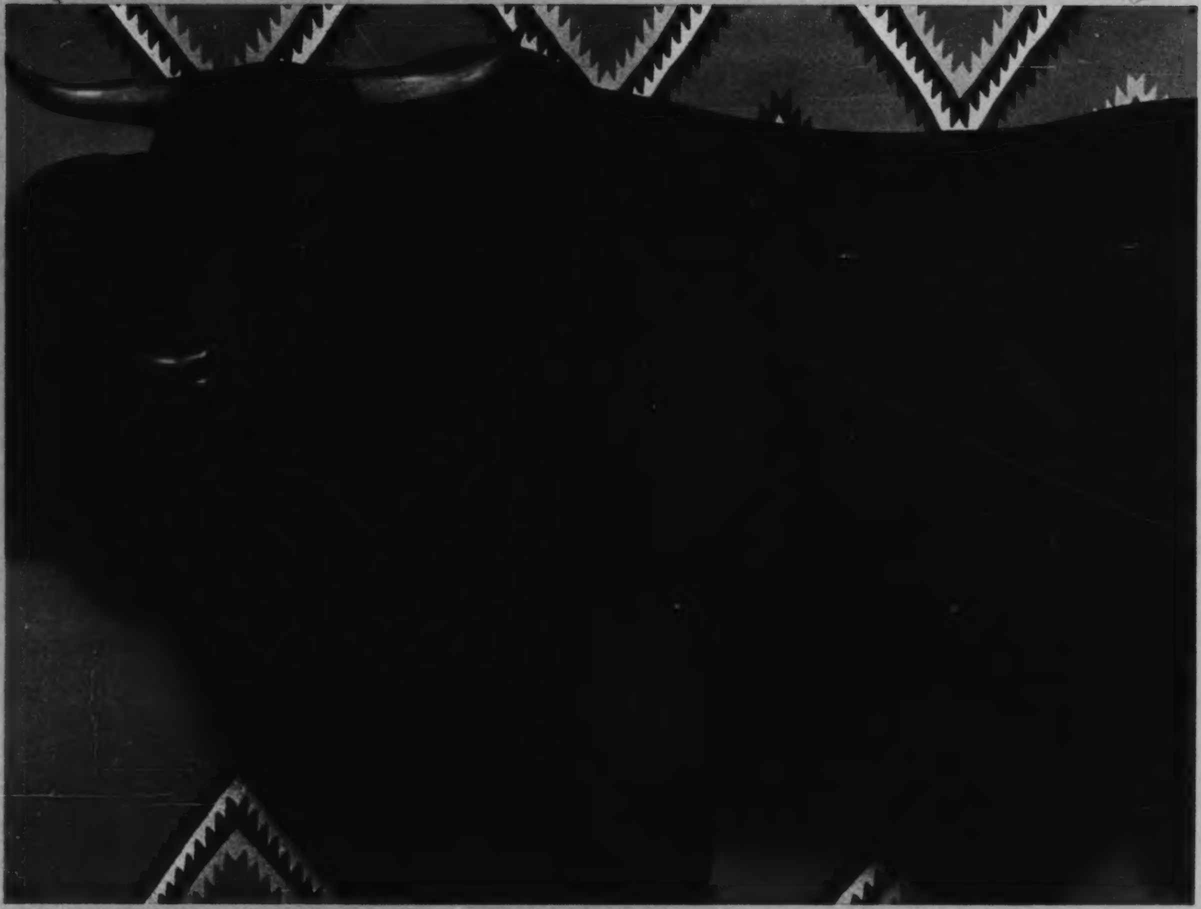
December 9 -
January 4, 1984

DART GALLERY INCORPORATED • DART GALLERY INCORPORATED •
DART

The Dart Gallery 212 West Superior Suite 203, Chicago, Illinois 60610 (312) 787-6366

representing
TOM PALMORE



"Cherokee General" acrylic on canvas 72" x 96"

ELAINE HORWITCH GALLERIES

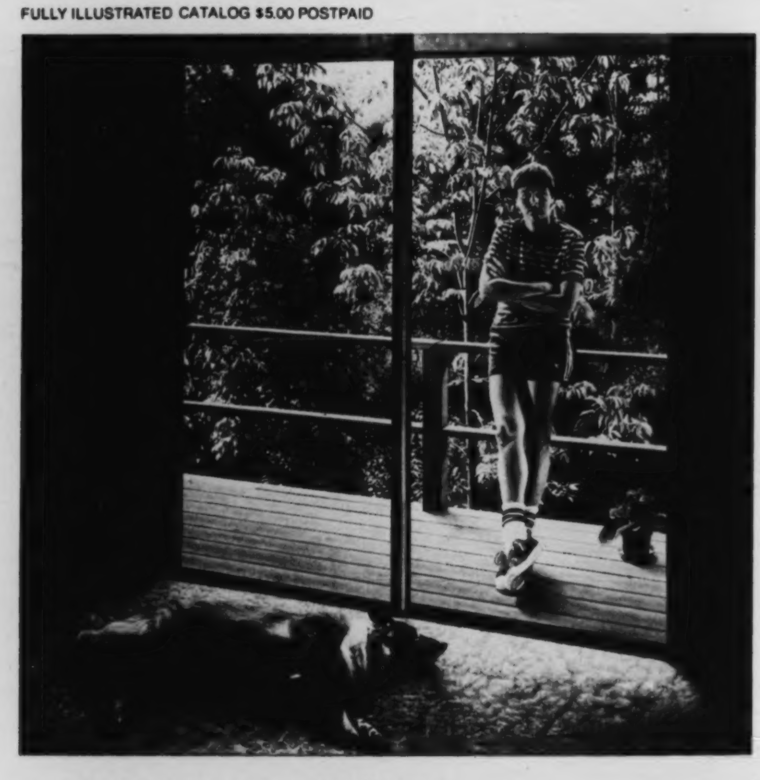
129 W. Palace Ave.
Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501
(505) 988-8997

4211 N. Marshall Way
Scottsdale, Arizona 85251
(602) 945-0791

Schnebly Hill Rd & Hwy 179
Sedona, Arizona 86336
(602) 282-6290

VOL
7
1
ISS
1 1
D E
1983
UMI

FULLY ILLUSTRATED CATALOG $5.00 POSTPAID



"Paul and Lucky," 1983, oil on canvas, 92½ x 95½ inches.

JAMES VALERIO

New Paintings and Drawings

November 12 – December 10

ALLAN FRUMKIN GALLERY
50 West 57th Street New York

GEORGE GREEN

DECEMBER 20 / JANUARY 15

HOKIN
GALLERY
INC.
PALM BEACH
245 Worth Avenue · Telephone 305/655-5177

Hokin Gallery Inc.
1086 Kane Concourse
Bay Harbor Islands, Florida 33154
Telephone 305/861-5700

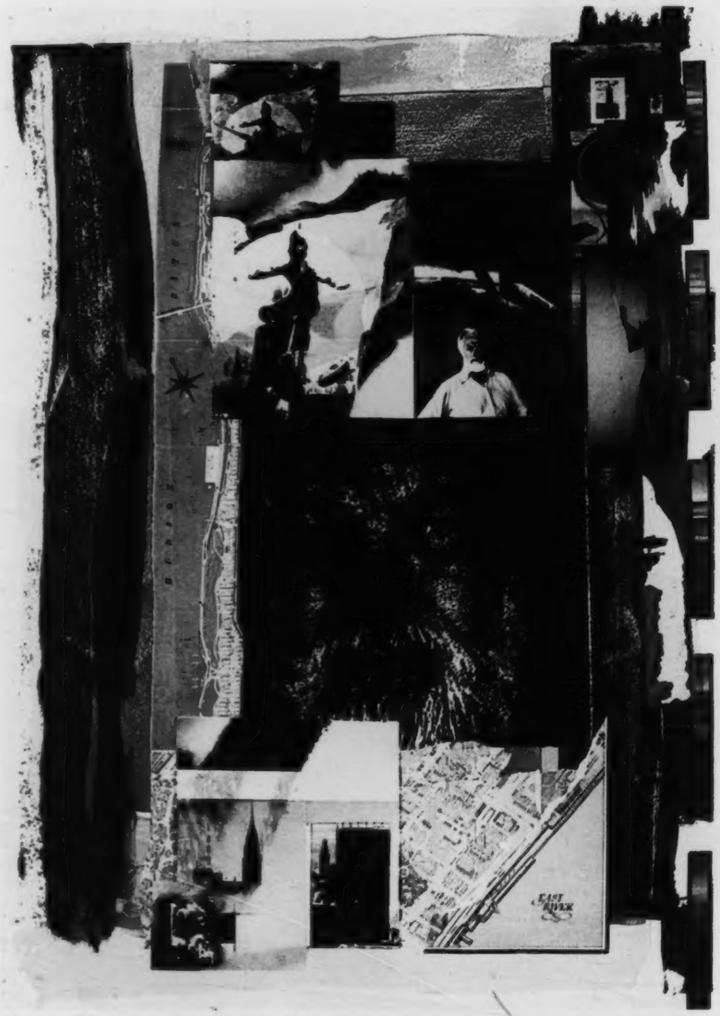
Hokin/Kaufman Gallery
210 West Superior Street
Chicago, Illinois 60610
Telephone 312/266-1211

Paul Jenkins

Anatomy of a Cloud

Tibetan remnants and autobiographical collage paintings

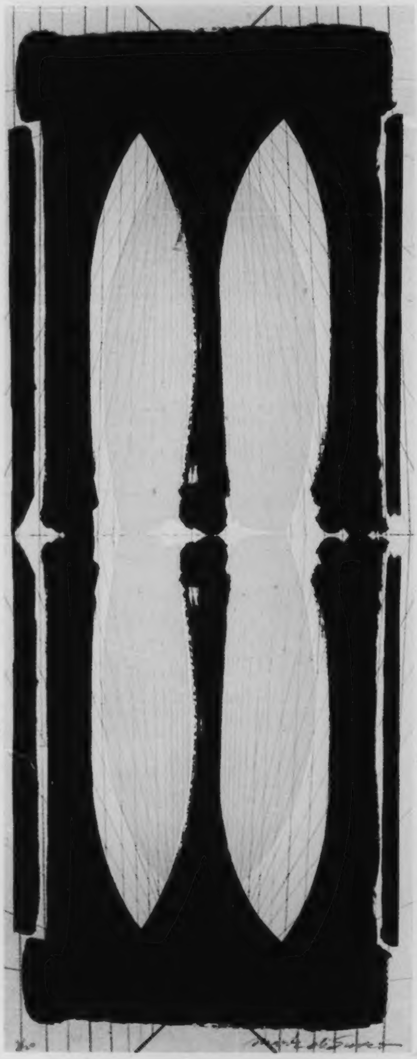
An exhibition concurrent with the publication of the new Abrams' book
Anatomy of a Cloud by Paul Jenkins with Suzanne Donnelly Jenkins.



Open Another Door 1977-81; 43" x 31". Photo: Geoffrey Clements

ALEX ROSENBERG GALLERY TRANSWORLD ART
20 West 57 Street, New York, NY 10019 Telephone (212) 757-2700

VOL
7
1
ISS
1 1
D E
1983
UMI



DI SUVERO LITHOGRAPH

Creative Time is pleased to announce the publication of a new 3-color lithograph, in a signed edition of 20, by Mark di Suvero commemorating its participation in the Brooklyn Bridge Centennial. The lithograph is titled Roebling's Arch, after the designer of the bridge.

All proceeds from the sale of Roebling's Arch will benefit Creative Time, and will help match an N.E.A. "Advancement Grant."

$1,500 unframed; tax deductible to the extent allowed by law. Overall dimensions 62" × 25". Framing available.

Creative Time/66 West Broadway/NYC
10007 (212) 619-1955.

TIBOR DE NAGY GALLERY
29 WEST 57 STREET NEW YORK 10019 (212) 421-3780

FORREST MOSES

RECENT PAINTINGS

STEPHANIE KIRSCHEN-COLE

RECENT COLLAGES

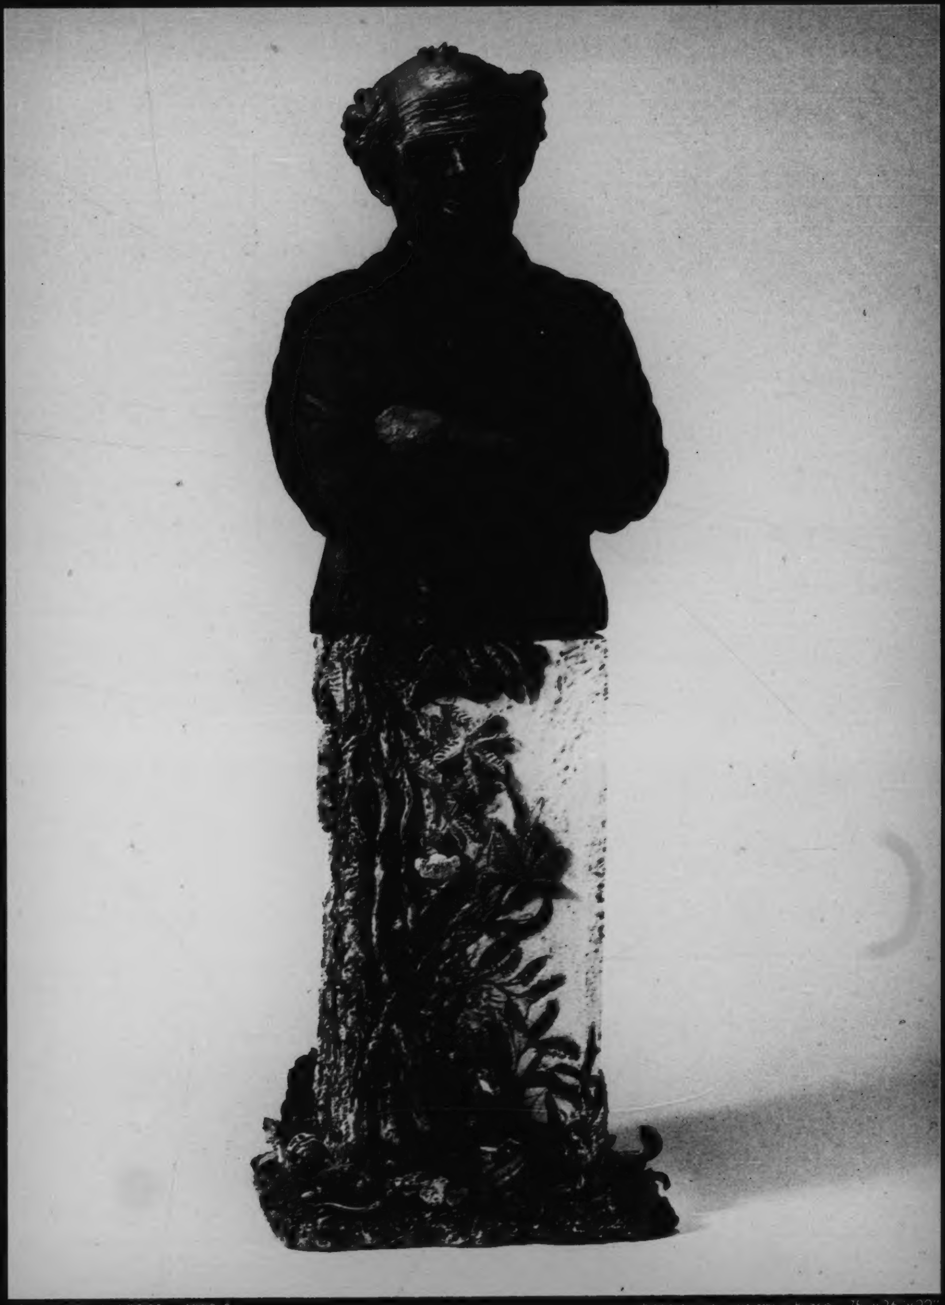
3 DECEMBER –
4 JANUARY 1984

Harriet Korman

THROUGH DECEMBER 24

Willard Gallery
29 EAST 72 STREET NEW YORK 744-2925

ROBERT ARNESON



M LEE FATHEREE

"CALIFORNIA ARTIST" 1982-3 bronze on ceramic base 75"x26"x22"

SELECTED WORKS
DECEMBER 4 - 30

YARES GALLERY
3625 BISHOP LANE SCOTTSDALE, ARIZONA 85251 (602) 947-3251

VOL
7
1
ISS
1 1
DE
1983
UMI

GUS HEINZE
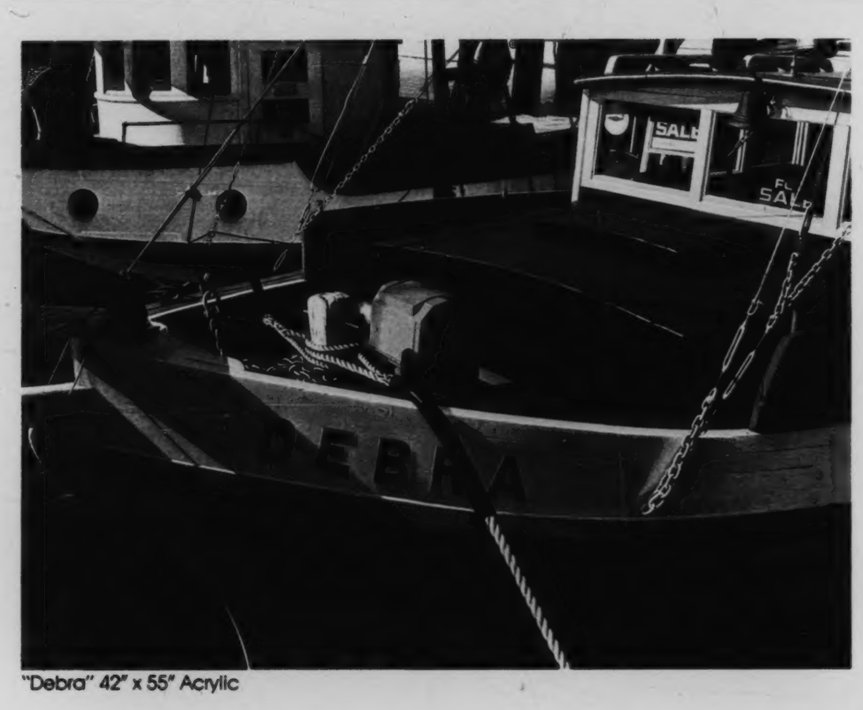
New
Paintings



"Debra" 42" x 55" Acrylic

William
Sawyer
Gallery 3045 Clay Street • San Francisco, CA • 94115 • (415) 921-1600

JAMES DeWOODY

PAINTINGS & SCULPTURE

DECEMBER
KIRK de GOOYER / LOS ANGELES

THE PHOTOGRAPHY
OF LANGDON CLAY

Monticello
& Other Works

Langdon Clay
Laundromat, New York City, 1977
From the portfolio, Flatlands
Illustrated: Langdon Clay: Color Atlas
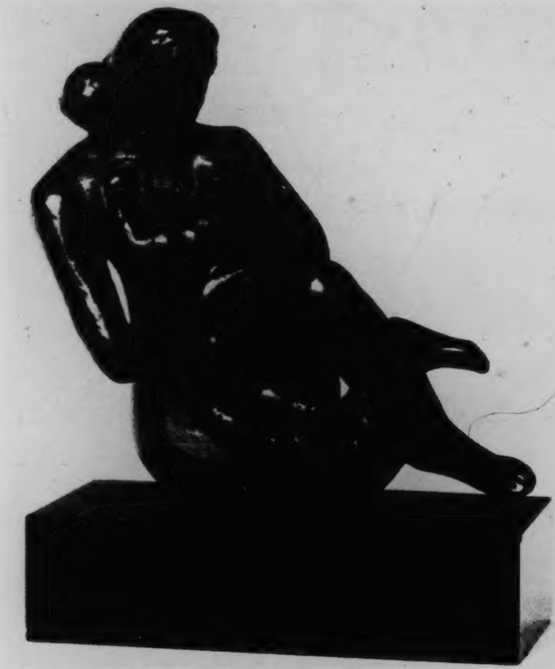
Exhibited: Corcoran Gallery of Art, 1979

DECEMBER-JANUARY

THE TWINING GALLERY INC

33 BLEECKER ST NYC 10012 674-2070



November 30 - December 31

Archipenko
Gross
Lachaise
Nadelman
Storrs
Zorach

William Zorach, Mother and Child, Bronze
1952 (7¾" x 8½" x 3½") 5/6

Martha White Gallery
330 West Main Street • Louisville, Kentucky 40202 • (502) 589-3347

VOL
7
1
ISS
1 1
DE
1983
UMI

ROBIN COLLYER
CURATED BY PHILIP FRY FOR THE AGNES ETHERINGTON ARTS CENTRE, KINGSTON, ONTARIO

BUY ME, 1981. FOUR UNITS, 81 x 81½ x 49 INCHES OVERALL.
PHOTO COURTESY OF CARMEN LAMANNA GALLERY

VIDEOTAPES
CURATED BY KATE CRAIG, WESTERN FRONT

TOM DEAN
MARSHALORE
ELIZABETH VANDER ZAAG
PAUL WONG & CO.

NOVEMBER 26–DECEMBER 22

49TH PARALLEL
CENTRE FOR CONTEMPORARY CANADIAN ART
49E PARALLELE
CENTRE D'ART CONTEMPORAIN CANADIEN
420 WEST BROADWAY NEW YORK NY 10012
212 925-8349

December 3-January 7

ERNEST TROVA

Iglesias/Troubadour Series

THE GREENBERG GALLERY
44 MARYLAND PLAZA ST. LOUIS, MO. 63108 (314) 361-7600

Davis • McClain Galleries

"Pond, Madbush, Vermont" Gelatin Silver Print 1982

Gary Faye

December 1-December 31

2818 Kirby Drive Houston Texas 713 520 9200

December
ADRIAN DECKBAR
JIMMY De SANA
Arthur Roger Gallery
3005 Magazine St.
New Orleans

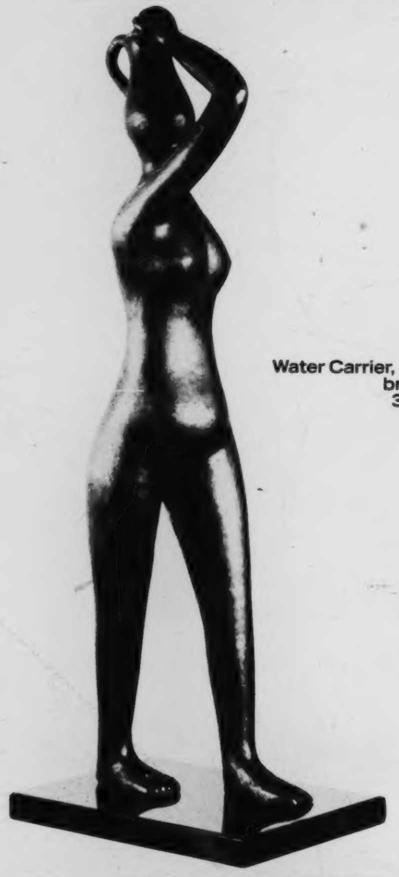
PIETRO FORTUNA

24 NOVEMBER – 23 DECEMBER 1983

SERRA · DI · FELICE
THE PUCK BUILDING, 295 LAFAYETTE ST NEW YORK
TELEPHONE: 212 334.8192

HUGO ROBUS

EXTENDED TO DECEMBER 24TH



Water Carrier, 1956
bronze
36″ h.

IN PENTHOUSE

ARCHIPENKO
DE CREEFT
GROSS
LAURENT
LUCCHESI
NADELMAN
OFFNER
STORRS
ZIEGLER
ZORACH
and others

FORUM GALLERY
1018 MADISON AVENUE · NEW YORK 10021
(212) 772-7666

VOL 71 ISS 11 DE 1983 UMI

FRANK LOBDELL

RECENT PAINTINGS AND MONOTYPES
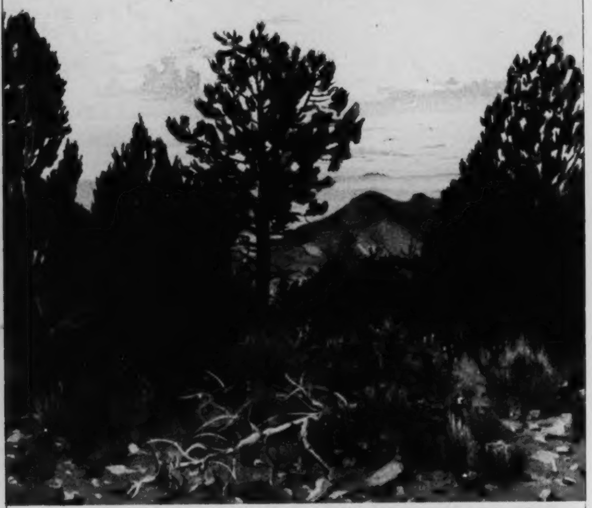
DEC. 7 - JAN. 7

OSCARSSON HOOD
GALLERY 41 W 57 NYC
10019 (212) 750 8640



Adele Alsop "On the Edge of the Great Basin," oil, 66 x 72 inches

REPRESENTING

Adele Alsop
Michael Filmus
Charles Moser
Philip Mullen
Richard Pitts
Bill Sullivan
Marguerite Walsh
John Wilde

DAVID FINDLAY JR CONTEMPORARY

41 East 57 St New York 10022 212-486-7660

MOVING TO 103-105 PRINCE STREET
SECOND FLOOR

EDWARD THORP
GALLERY

419 WEST BROADWAY, NEW YORK, NY 10012
TELEPHONE 212/431-6880

ANSELMO

DECEMBER 13 — JANUARY 7

MARIAN GOODMAN GALLERY
24 WEST 57TH STREET NEW YORK NY 10019 (212) 977 7160

MOTHERWELL

13 DECEMBER 1983—21 JANUARY 1984

GETLER/PALL/SAPER
50 WEST 57 NEW YORK 10019 212/581.2724

EVE ARNOLD
In America

Castelli Graphics
4 EAST 77TH STREET NEW YORK, NEW YORK 10021 TELEPHONE 212/288-3202

BILLY AL BENGSTON

December 1, 1983–January 14, 1984

ACQUAVELLA CONTEMPORARY ART, INC.
18 East 79th Street, New York, N.Y. 10021 (212) 734-6300

DONALDYOUNGGALLERY
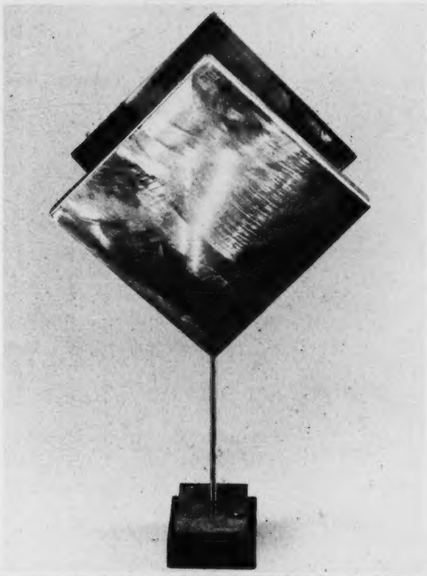
212 WEST SUPERIOR STREET CHICAGO ILLINOIS 60610 312-664-2151

Master Works on Paper

ALBERTO GIACOMETTI ROGER DE LA FRESNAYE
ARSHILE GORKY LE CORBUSIER
PAUL KLEE HENRI MATISSE

VOL
7
1
ISS
1 1
DE
1983
UMI

George Rickey
Thirty Years of His Art
through December 24



Two Planes Vertical Diagonal Vis à Vis, 1974. Stainless steel, 15" h.

Maxwell Davidson Gallery
43 East 78 Street, New York
212 734-6702

richard
AMBROSE
-
deborah BROWN
-
theodore
HALKIN
-
george
LIEBERT
-
arthur
LERNER
-
linda
LOWRY
-
contemporary
REALISM
-
december

JAN CICERO
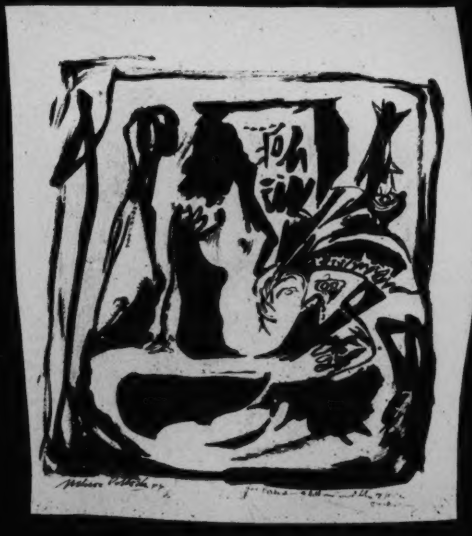
GALLERY
437 N CLARK CHICAGO, IL 60610 312 644 5374

JACKSON POLLOCK



Untitled, 1944. Ink and colored pencils on paper, $12^{1}/_{2}$ x $11^{5}/_{16}$ inches.

RICHEBOURG / McCOY
By appointment 212/570.2131

KRAUSHAAR
GALLERIES
FOUNDED 1885

RUSSELL COWLES
(1887–1979)
MEMORIAL EXHIBITION OF PAINTINGS
November 23 – December 17

GROUP SHOW
December 21, 1983 – January 7, 1984

MARGUERITE ZORACH
PAINTINGS
January 11, 1984 – February 4, 1984

724 FIFTH AVENUE NEW YORK 10019
PHONE: (212) 307-5730

RICHARD STANKIEWICZ

SCULPTURE 1952-1982

THROUGH JANUARY 21, 1984

ZABRISKIE

724 FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK
37 RUE QUINCAMPOIX, PARIS

THE ESTATE OF RICHARD STANKIEWICZ IS REPRESENTED BY ZABRISKIE

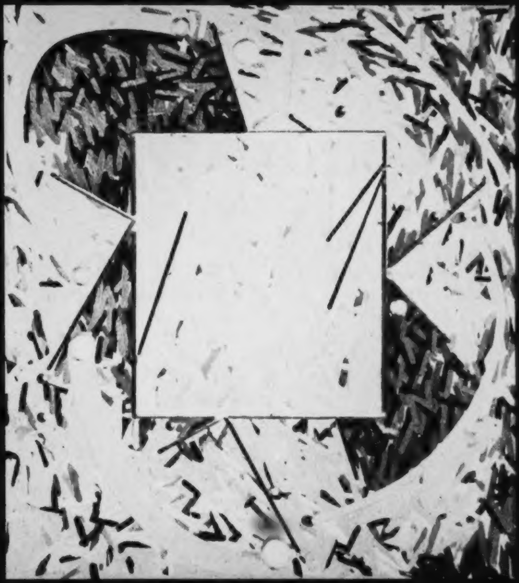
HOWARD BUCHWALD



Portrait of an Absent Loved One, 1983. Oil on linen: 32 x 28 inches.

NANCY HOFFMAN GALLERY
429 West Broadway New York/966-6676

DAISY
YOUNGBLOOD

DAVID NELSON

DECEMBER 3 - JANUARY 5

BARBARA
GLADSTONE GALLERY
152 WOOSTER ST. N.Y. N.Y. 10012 212-505-8690

KIKUO
SAITO

New Paintings
December 3 to 31

Salander-O'Reilly
Galleries, Inc.
22 East 80 Street New York, NY 10021
Telephone: (212) 879-6606
Gallery hours: Monday-Saturday, 10 to 5:30

VOL
71
ISS
11
DE
1983
UMI

Roy Lichtenstein

Greene Street Mural 142 Greene Street Paintings 420 West Broadway

Opening 3 December Leo Castelli New York

PATRICIA MOSS-VREELAND

paintings and drawings
December 1-31, 1983

ML
Marian Locks Gallery
1524 Walnut Street
Philadelphia, Pennsylvania 19102
215 546-0322

(title) pencil on paper, 20 x 28", 1983

HADLER · RODRIGUEZ · GALLERIES

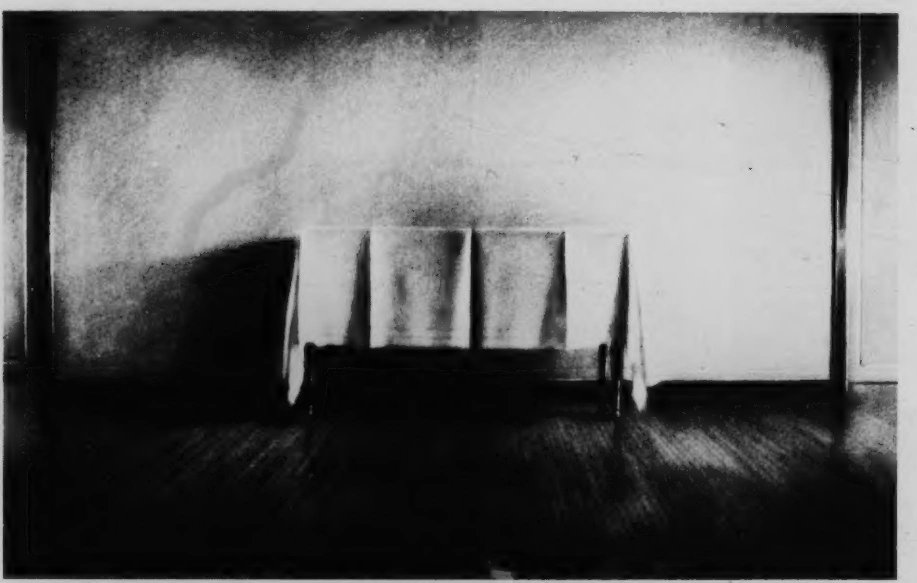
38 EAST 57th STREET · NEW YORK, NEW YORK 10022 · 212-752-7734
20 PINEDALE · HOUSTON, TEXAS 77006 · 713-520-6329

KEN LITTLE • NANCY BOWEN

DECEMBER 3-23

SUSAN CALDWELL INC.
383 WEST BROADWAY, NEW YORK
TELEPHONE: 212/966.6500

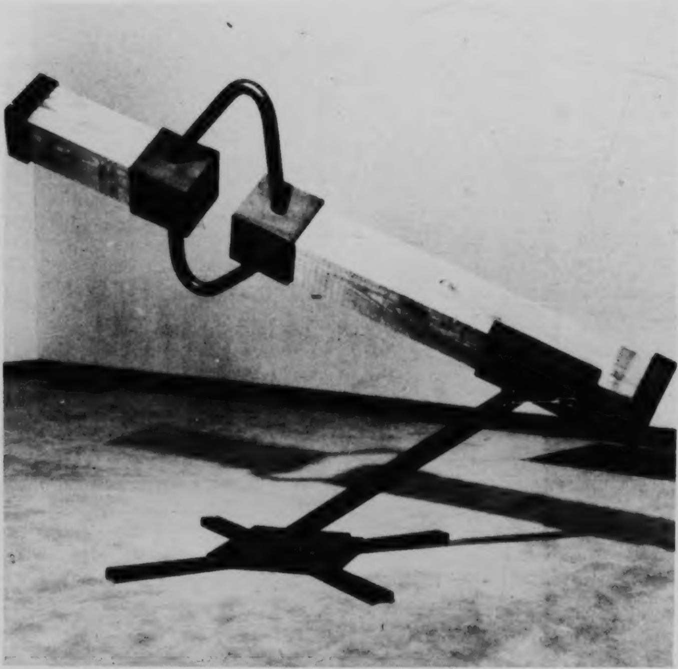
NORMAN LUNDIN



"Table", charcoal, dry pigment (poster and catalogue available)

JANUARY 10 – FEBRUARY 10, 1984

ALLPORT ASSOCIATES GALLERY 126 POST STREET SAN FRANCISCO, CA 94108 (415) 398-2787



wood & steel Sunrise With Sunset

An Exhibition of Sculpture
by

JOHN CUNNINGHAM

October 28th-December 17th
1983

R.H. LOVE
20th CENTURY GALLERY
100 E. OHIO STREET CHICAGO IL 60611 312/664-9620

VOL
7
1
ISS
1 1
D E
1983
UMI

DAVID CRAVEN

PAINTINGS, 1983

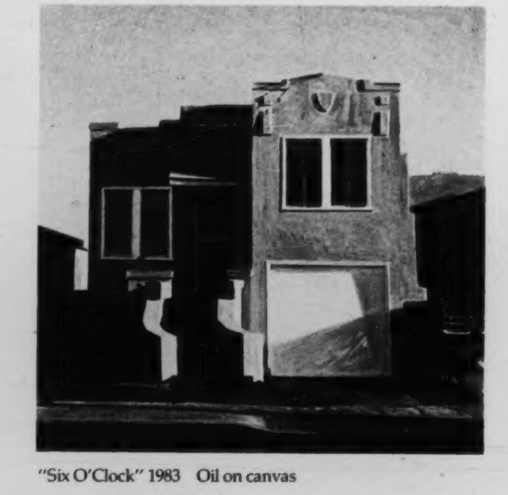
JUDITH HUDSON

PAINTINGS ON CANVAS AND ON PAPER, 1983

22 NOVEMBER–17 DECEMBER 1983

SIEGEL
CONTEMPORARY ART
24 WEST 57 STREET, NYC 10019 (212) 586-0605

DREW BEATTIE



"Six O'Clock" 1983 Oil on canvas

Recent Paintings
and Drawings
7 December - 31 December 1983

Gallery Paule Anglim
14 Geary St. San Francisco California 94108 (415) 433-2710

Bruno Civitico

Recent Paintings
November 29–December 21

Robert Schoelkopf Gallery
825 Madison Avenue, New York 10021

---

10 Artists from the Galería de Arte Mexicano, Mexico City

Frederic Amat
Alfredo Castañeda
José Luis Cuevas
Elizabeth Garrity
Gunther Gerzso
Luis García Guerrero
Joy Laville
Luis Lopez Loza
Eduardo Tamariz
Francisco Toledo

November 29 through December 23
Illustrated catalogue $5 postpaid

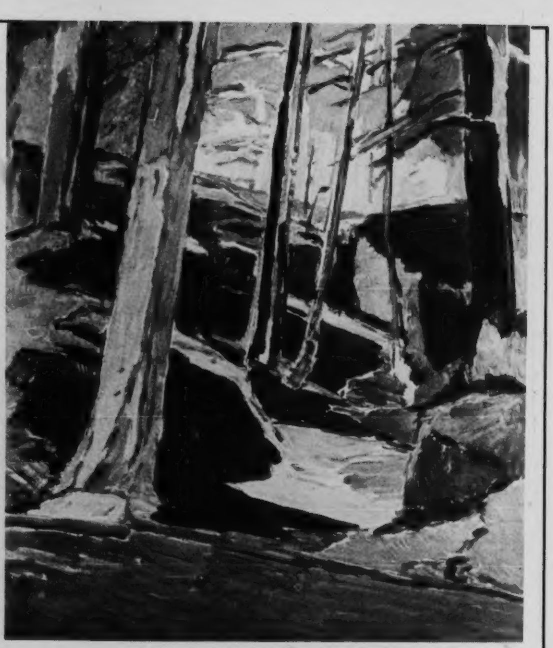
Mary-Anne Martin/Fine Art
213 E 49 St, NY 10017 Tel 212 980-8104

AUSTRIAN ART BRUT

17 DECEMBER
THROUGH JANUARY

PHYLLIS KIND GALLERY
136 GREENE STREET NEW YORK

In cooperation with DR. LEO NAVRATIL and GALERIE HEIKE CURTZE, Düsseldorf & Vienna



Deep Wood, oil, 1981, 52" x 44"

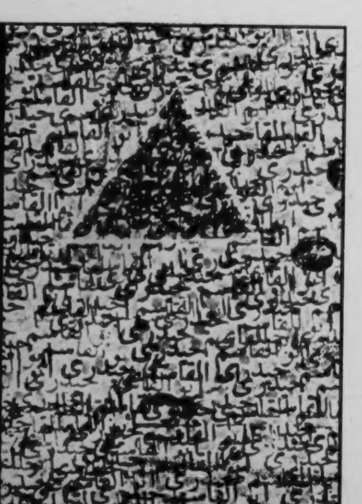
DAVID LUND
December 3–22
Grace Borgenicht Gallery
724 Fifth Avenue, New York 10019 212/247-2111

ROBERT KUSHNER
NEW WORKS

KEVIN BOYLE
PHOTOGRAPHS

DECEMBER 2-24

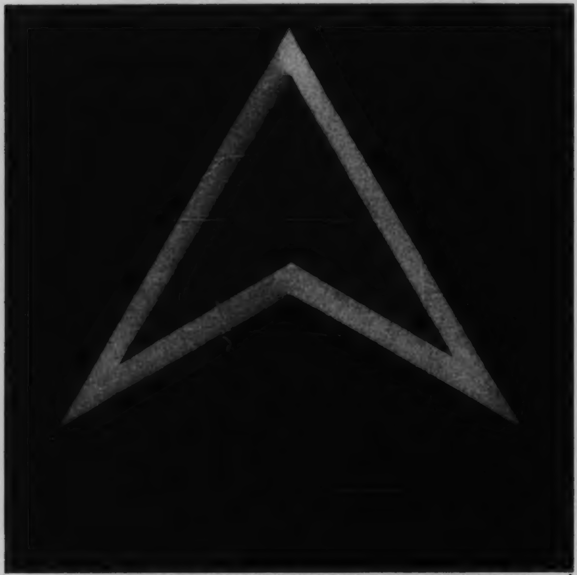
HOLLY SOLOMON
GALLERY
724 FIFTH AVENUE
NEW YORK 10019
757-7777



HOSSEIN
ZENDEROUDI
CALLIGRAPHIC
PAINTINGS
NOV 30–DEC 31

LEILA TAGHINIA-MILANI
1080 MADISON, NYC 10028 (212) 570-6173
HOURS: TUES–SAT, 11–6 PM

VOL 71 ISS 11 DE 1983 UMI



SOL LEWITT "STAR DARK CENTER" 1983 B/W AQUATINT (EDITION OF 10) 21 x 21"

GROUP EXHIBITION
DECEMBER 1983 THROUGH JANUARY 1984

PAULA COOPER GALLERY
155 WOOSTER STREET NEW YORK 212 674.0766

JUDITH A. ORNSTEIN
PAINTINGS

ZEKE BERMAN
PHOTOGRAPHS

December 7 — January 21

VIBEKE LEVY FINE ART
40 GREAT JONES ST, NYC 10012
(212) 473-7151 · BY APPT.

D'ARCANGELO
DINE
FRANCIS
JOHNS
ROSENQUIST
December 5-January 16

Dolly Fiterman Gallery
Suite 238, Plymouth Bldg., Mpls., MN
(612) 370-8722

WILLIAM McKENZIE
OTIS TAMASAUSKAS

LITHOGRAPHY

MIRIAM PERLMAN
Lake Point Tower 505 N. Lake Shore Drive Chicago

JEAN BERNIER
51 MARASLI ATHENS 140 GREECE TEL. 723 5657

LUCAS SAMARAS
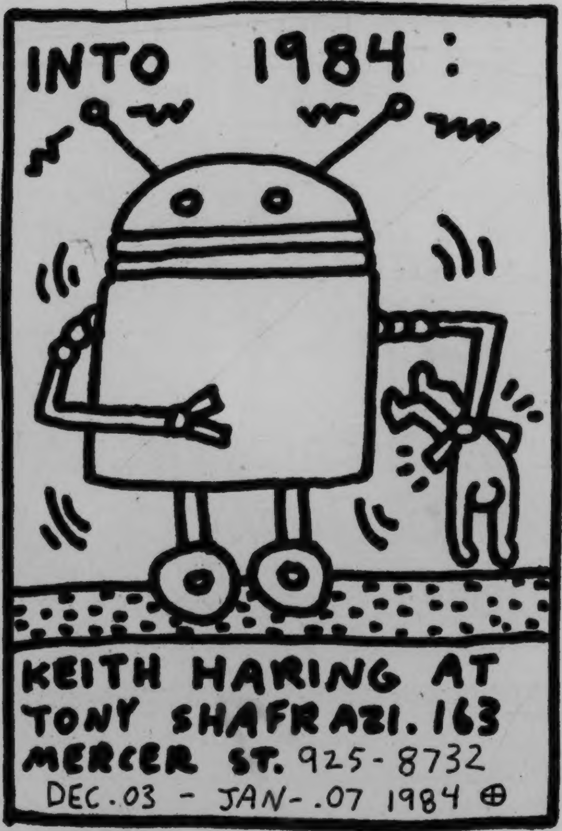
RECENT WORKS

DEC. 5, 1983 - JAN. 7, 1984



INTO 1984:

KEITH HARING AT
TONY SHAFRAZI. 163
MERCER ST. 925-8732
DEC. 03 - JAN-. 07 1984 ⊕

Gregory Amenoff
"In the Fifth Season," 1983
Color Woodcut
41 x 36½ inches
Edition size: 25

Diane Villani EDITIONS
271 Mulberry Street, New York 10012
telephone: (212) 925-1075

FETTING
DAHN
MIDDENDORF
CHIA
SCHLIESSER

GALLERY SILVIA MENZEL
NIEBUHRSTRASSE 69 1000 BERLIN 12
030.324 1920

VOL
71
ISS
11
DE
1983
UMI

SUETIN MALEVICH CHASHNIK

Exhibition of Drawings and Watercolors

Left: Nicolai Suetin 1897-1954
Center: Kazimir Malevich 1878-1935
Right: Ilya Chashnik 1902-1929
Fully documented catalog with 26 illustrations
$10 plus $3 postage.

LEONARD HUTTON GALLERIES

33 East 74th St. (Townhouse)
New York, N.Y. 10021
212-249-9700
Gallery Hours: Mon. thru Sat., 10 to 5

CONSTANCE MALLINSON

NEW PAINTINGS AND PASTELS

NOVEMBER 19 - DECEMBER 31

NEIL G. OVSEY GALLERY
705 East Third Street, 3rd Floor
Los Angeles, California 90013
Telephone (213) 617-1351

December 3 - December 31

Lee Sherry

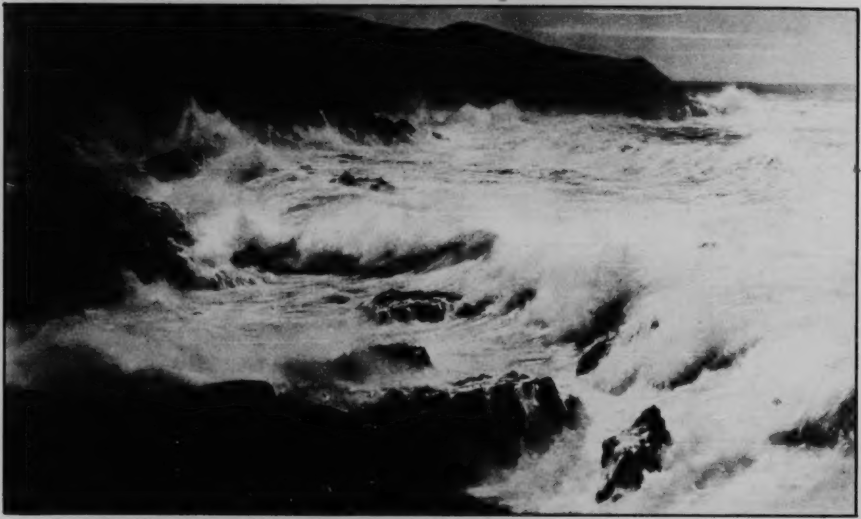
PAINTINGS

NIELSEN GALLERY
179 NEWBURY ST., BOSTON, MA
02116 (617) 266-4835

Lee Newton

WORKS ON PAPER

Peter Ellenshaw



"Saint Finans Bay, Kerry, Ireland" 1983 Oil on Canvas 7 x 12 feet

SELECTED WORKS 1929–1983
EXHIBITION: DECEMBER 6 – JANUARY 7

Hammer Galleries 33 West 57th Street · New York, N.Y. 10019 · (212) 644-4400

JAMES G. DAVIS

RETROSPECTIVE OF PRINTS
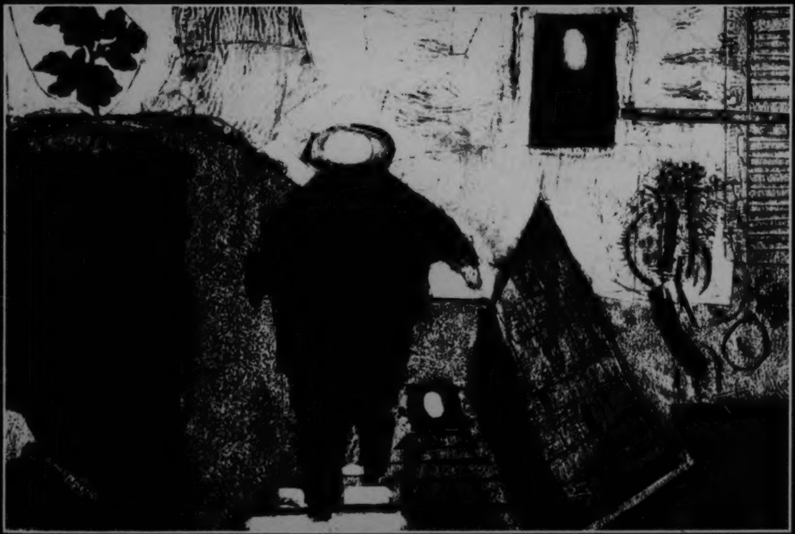
A BRIDGE TO PAINTING

DECEMBER 4, 1983
—JANUARY 9, 1984

UNIVERSITY OF ARIZONA
MUSEUM OF ART
TUCSON, ARIZONA

CATALOGUE AVAILABLE



"MAN/CELLAR II," COLLAGRAPH, 21 × 28

VOL
7
1
ISS
1 1
D E
1983
UMI

VARIETIES OF SCULPTURAL IDEAS
DRAWINGS AND MAQUETTES

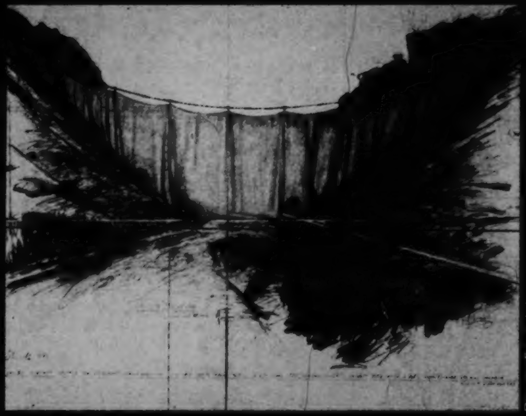

Photo: Eeva Inkeri

CHRISTO Valley Curtain Project for Rifle, Colorado, 1971
Fabric, pastel, charcoal, pencil and crayon, 22 x 28 inches

DECEMBER 22 TO JANUARY 31
MAX HUTCHINSON GALLERY
138 GREENE STREET NEW YORK, NY 10012 212-966-3066

JOEL SHAPIRO
NEW WORK
NOVEMBER 19-DECEMBER 24, 1983
ASHER/FAURE
612 NORTH ALMONT DRIVE
LOS ANGELES, CA 90069
(213) 271-3665

Landscape into Sculpture

Donna Dennis
Mary Frank
Don Johnson
Harry Roseman
Livio Saganic

December 10–January 12

BARBARA KRAKOW GALLERY
10 Newbury Street
5th Floor
Boston,
Massachusetts 02116
Telephone
617 262-4490

JULIAN SCHNABEL
DRAWINGS/NAGOYA
JEAN MICHEL BASQUIAT
NEW PAINTINGS/TOKYO

NOVEMBER 14 -
DECEMBER 10

AKIRA IKEDA GALLERY
17-30, NISHIKI 2-CHOME, NAKA-KU, NAGOYA
8-18, KYOBASHI 2-CHOME, CHUO-KU, TOKYO

ARTISTS' TOYS

TO BENEFIT THE CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY

Abeles • Amenoff • Arnold • Biederman • Bourgeois • Cotton • De Muro • Elozua • Faccinto • Fasnacht • Fitzgerald • Flood • Francisco • Freeman • Friedberg • Gilmour • Grooms • Gross • Hill • Humphrey • K. Jenkins • T. Jenkins • Kiewiech • King • Koscianski • Kyle • Lanyon • Lasch • Leeds • Neill • Porter • Rabkin • Ramos • Rickey • Rifka • Ripps • Samelson • Saunders • Scanga • Scharf • Shea • Siegel • Silva • Sisto • Skagg • Stack • Sugarman • Tada • Talbot • Trova • Vallila • Wallach • Wesselmann • Wiley • Willenbecher • Wirsum

DECEMBER 13–JANUARY 7

VANDERWOUDE TANANBAUM

24 E 81 STREET/NEW YORK/212.879.8200

RHONA
HOFFMAN
GALLERY

CINDY SHERMAN

NEW WORK

215 WEST SUPERIOR
CHICAGO, ILLINOIS 60610
TEL 312.951.8828

PAUL JENKINS

RECENT PAINTINGS

CONTEMPORARY GALLERY

5100 BELT LINE RD. SUITE 544 DALLAS, TEXAS 75240 214 934-2323

Thomas Nozkowski

Recent Paintings

December 1983

Matthews Hamilton Gallery

262 South 16 Street
Philadelphia PA 19102 Telephone 215 545-5308

VOL
7
1
ISS
1 1
DE
1983
UMI

Arman

represented by

Marisa del Re Gallery

41 East 57 Street New York, NY 10022
Tel: (212) 688-1843

Barbara Schwartz

December 3-30

HIRSCHL & ADLER Modern

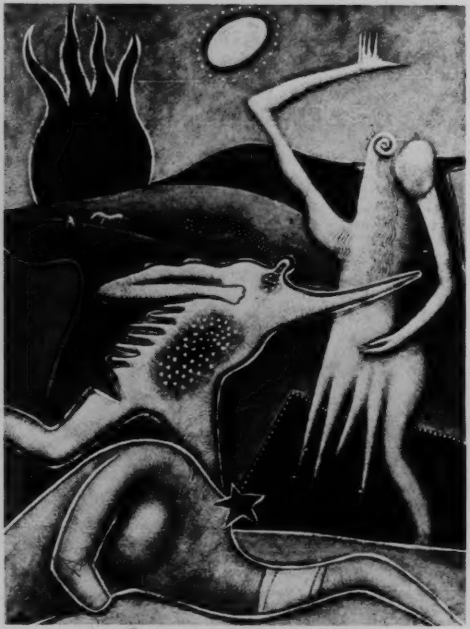
851 Madison Avenue New York 212 744-6700

Recent Painting

CHIA
CLEMENTE
CUCCHI
GAROUSTE
LE BRUN
PALADINO

SPERONE WESTWATER
142 Greene Street New York 212/431.3685

CLAUDE CARONE



Carone Gallery
Ft. Lauderdale, Florida 33301
600 Southeast Second Court
305-463-8833

Picassien,
1982,
Bronze

ARMAN'S ORCHESTRA

An Exhibition of Recent Works in Bronze
November 17, 1983 – January 28, 1984

HERBERT
PALMER
GALLERY

802 North La Cienega Blvd. Los Angeles, California 90069 213-854-0096

H. F. MANES GALLERY

177 PRINCE STREET NEW YORK, NEW YORK 10012
212 505-5722

JANUARY 5–FEBRUARY 4
Len Jenshel: Pictures at an Arboretum
Archie Rand: Recent Paintings

FEBRUARY 9–MARCH 10
Jo Ann Callis: Still Lives
Organic Abstractions: Paintings and Sculptures

MARCH 15–APRIL 21
Garth Evans: Drawings
Marilyn Giersbach: Recent Paintings

ALTERNATIVE GALLERIES

AMOS ENO 101 WOOSTER ST
Lori Lawrence November 19 - December 8
Benefit Group Show December 10 - January 5

ATLANTIC 458 W BROADWAY
Phyllis Janto/Sculptor's Drawings
November 29 - December 18
Membership Group Show December 20 - January 8

BOWERY 121 WOOSTER
Group Show: The Figure December 2 - December 28
Group Show: Original Members December 30 - January 18

CENTRAL HALL 386 W BROADWAY
Membership Group Show November 15 - December 11
Selected Members Group Show December 13 - January 15

FIRST STREET 386 W BROADWAY
Group Show: The 4 Elements: Air, Earth, Fire, Water
December 2 - December 28

GALLERY 84 30 W 57 ST
Mary McCormick November 29 - December 10
All Gallery Show December 13 - December 23

NOHO 168 MERCER ST
Pat Ralph November 29 - December 18
Stephanie Rauschenbusch December 20 - January 8

PHOENIX 30 W 57 ST
Joan Hierholzer November 29 - December 17
25th Anniversary Celebration December 20 - January 14

PINDAR 127 GREENE ST
Vera Schupack Rosa Silverman
November 29 - December 18

PLEIADES 164 MERCER ST
Bernice Leibowitz November 29 - December 18
Gallery Artists: Fire and Ice
December 20 - January 8

SOHO 20 469 BROOME ST
Joan Watts and Sandra DeSando
December 3 - January 4

22 WOOSTER 22 WOOSTER
Anna Bresnick November 29 - December 24

VIRIDIAN 51 W 57TH ST
Andrea Hahn November 29 - December 17
Invitational: Toys, Games, Fancies
December 20 - January 7

WARD-NASSE 178 PRINCE ST
Arnold Altshuler Tatiana Klimov
Jeff Robinson Francesco Santinelli
November 26 - December 15
Robert Penn Cherie Reichgut
December 17 - January 5

ASSOCIATION OF ARTIST-RUN GALLERIES

]

VOL
71
ISS
11
DE
1983
UMI

ROBERT FICHTER
ROD SLATER

DECEMBER 8-JANUARY 10

FAY GOLD GALLERY 3221 CAINS HILL PLACE ATLANTA GA 404 233 3843

GALLERY GROUP SHOW

Judithe Hernández

Pastels

December 1983

Cayman Gallery

381 West Broadway
New York, NY

Shari McCoul

Stephen T. Moore

Karen Moss

November 30 – December 24

Addison/Ripley Gallery Ltd.
9 Hillyer Court Washington D.C. 202 328 2332

JAMES TURRELL

MUSEE D'ART MODERNE DE LA VILLE DE PARIS
DECEMBER 21, 1983 – JANUARY 22, 1984

Represented by

KARIN DEMOREST/CREATIVE DIRECTIONS
P.O. Box 12098 Tucson, Arizona 85732 (602) 748-0162

JAMES COLLINS

November 29 - December 24, 1983

Gallery Yves Arman
817 Madison Avenue, New York, NY 10021
(212) 570-2700

SMALL
PAINTINGS

December 1983

Mary Anderson Armstrong
Anna Bialabroda
Elizabeth Dworkin
Linda Etcoff
Aaron Fink
Jeremy Foss
Joseph Goldyne
Jon Imber
David Kelley
Thomas Nozkowski
Barnet Rubenstein
John Walker
Helen Miranda Wilson
Charles Yeiser
John Urbain

VICTORIA
MUNROE
GALLERY

56 West 57 Street New York 10019 212 246-9616

BARBARA KASTEN

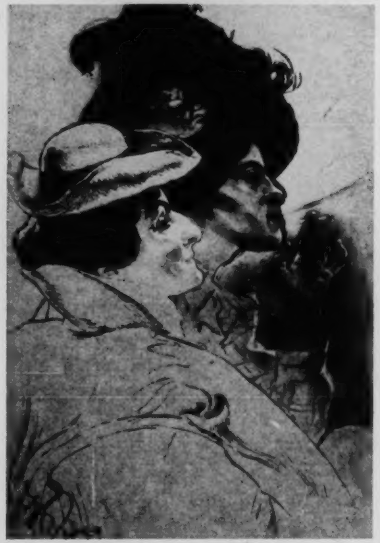
Nov. 29 — Dec. 23, 1983

CAROL TAYLOR, Art
2508 cedar springs dallas, texas 75201 (214) 745-1923

LOUIS LEGRAND
DECEMBER-JANUARY

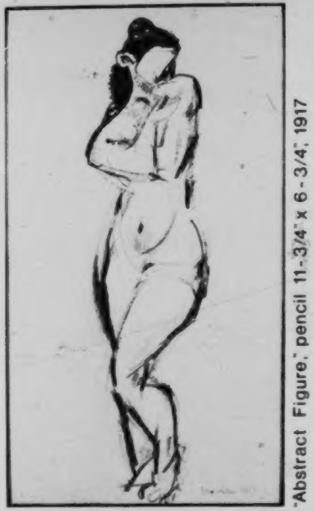


"Profils Parisiens" 1899
Illustrated Catalogue

Jack Rutberg Fine Arts, Inc.
357 N. LaBrea Ave. Los Angeles, CA 90036
Tel: 213 938-5222

VOL
7
1
ISS
1 1
DE
1983
UMI

MAX WEBER
WORKS ON PAPER 1908 to 1950

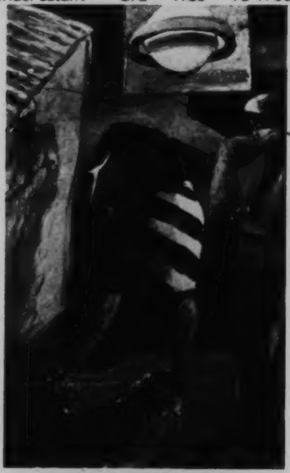


"Abstract Figure," pencil 11-3/4" x 6-3/4", 1917

DEC. 15 — JAN. 28

PEMBROKE GALLERY
1639 Bissonnet Houston, Texas 77005 (713) 521-1001

"Under Saturn" O/C 1983 72" x 60"



SCOTT KESLER
Recent Paintings & Monoprints
December 1 – 31, 1983

C. GRIMALDIS GALLERY
928 N. Charles St., Baltimore, MD 21201
Hours: TUES–SAT 10–5; SUN 1–5 (301) 539-1080

COLORED WALLPIECES

DIKE BLAIR
F. L. SCHRODER
NANCY ARLEN
JIM MARTIN
CLAYTON MITROPOULOS
KATHLEEN ARMSTRONG

NOV 30–DEC 24

SHERRY FRENCH
41 W 57 NYC 308-6440

The SNYDERMAN GALLERY, co-founded by Rick and Ruth Snyderman, who have eighteen years of professional experience in late twentieth century work, specializes in fine woodworking, sculptural and architectural glass, and furniture design. It will also serve as a resource for work in ceramics, fibers, metals and jewelry.

The SNYDERMAN GALLERY will draw on its experience with technical processes, its collection of portfolios and its direct contact with nationally prominent artists.

The gallery is prepared to work directly with museums, contract designers, architects, art consultants, corporate clients and private collectors in the acquisition of significant works, and in the planning of special commissions for public, commercial and residential sites.

The INAUGURAL EXHIBITION: Recent Sculpture in Glass, Craftsmen and Designers in Wood, will run through February 26, 1984.

SNYDERMAN GALLERY

David Salle

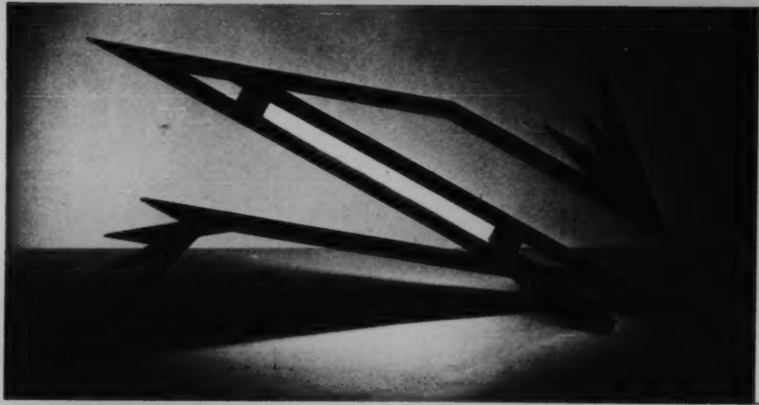
New Paintings
DECEMBER
LARRY GAGOSIAN
GALLERY • 510 N. ROBERTSON, LA, CA 90048 • 213/276-6851

KATHERINE PORTER

PAINTINGS 1976 TO 1983 · NOVEMBER 16 - DECEMBER 31

THE ARTS CLUB OF CHICAGO

109 EAST ONTARIO STREET · CHICAGO, ILLINOIS 60611



Christopher Sproat
"Zoologique"
December 2-30

13 White Street
New York City 10013
212 966 5090

BETTE STOLER GALLERY

PRINTWORLD

☐ 12,000 print listings
☐ 825 top artists profiles
☐ 600 photos ☐ 512 pages

1983/84 PRINTWORLD DIRECTORY

PRINTWORLD DIRECTORY is unique! It is the only print/price catalog with complete documentation of limited edition prints.

PRINTWORLD DIRECTORY quotes the market price of current & sold out editions. It also lists awards, exhibits, publishers, etc. for each artist. It provides complete addresses of print workshops, publishers and galleries.

PRINTWORLD DIRECTORY is a "must" reference for anyone actively involved in the print marketplace . . . an invaluable guide for galleries, collectors, appraisers, consultants, libraries, etc. Send for your copy today! The complete international print reference guide!

Postage/Handling: USA $5, Outside USA $10, Air Mail Europe/Asia $20
1982 EDITION $35.00 NAME ____________
1983 EDITION $49.95 ADDRESS ____________
VISA/MC # ____________ EXP ______

P.O. Box 785 • Bala Cynwyd, PA 19004 (215) 649-5140

VOL
71

ISS
11

DE
1983

UMI

JOHN SZOKE GRAPHICS

PUBLISHERS OF FINE 20TH CENTURY PRINTS

AXTON • BRATT • BRUNI • DAHMEN
HONDA • HWANG • JANAK • KIPNISS
MASI • MOHLITZ • RIZZI • SCHURR
SOLOMBRE • WEST • YOKOI…

John Szoke Graphics, Inc.
144 East 57th Street, New York, NY 10022 • (212) 759-9405

FOR FREE CATALOG PLEASE SEE INSERT

DEALERS INQUIRIES INVITED

Free Subscription

John Szoke Graphics, Inc. publishes about 100 editions a year of fine, 20th century graphic prints ranging in price from $200 to $1,000. If you would like to receive our catalogs free of cost for one year, please complete and return this post card, or phone (212) 759-9405.

Name ______________________________

Firm ______________________________

Address ______________________________

City, State, Zip ______________________________

VOL

7
1

ISS

1 1

DE

1983

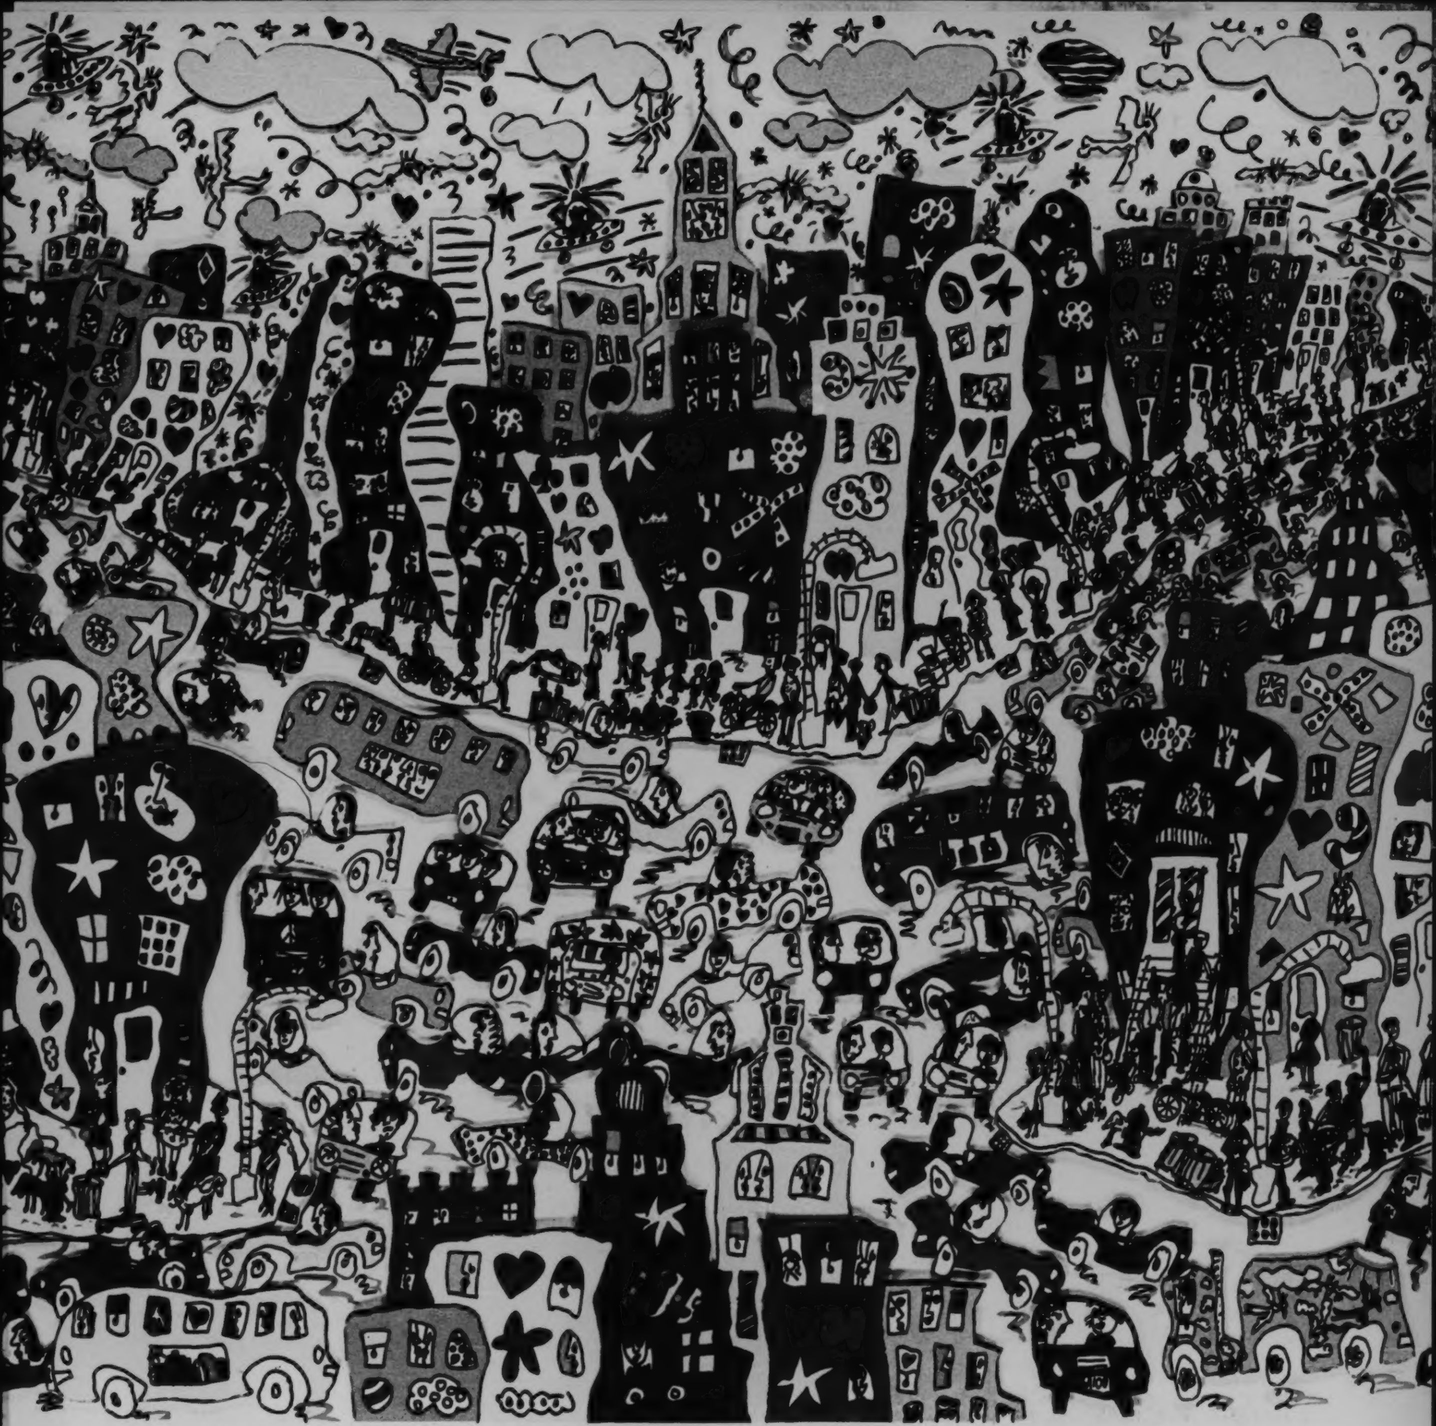
UMI

NO POSTAGE
NECESSARY
IF MAILED
IN THE
UNITED STATES

BUSINESS REPLY CARD
FIRST CLASS PERMIT NO. 1813 NEW YORK, NY

POSTAGE WILL BE PAID BY ADDRESSEE

John Szoke Graphics, Inc.
144 East 57th Street
New York, NY 10022



James Rizzi Crosstown Traffic 3-Dimensional Hand Construction (Detail)

AVAILABLE EXCLUSIVELY THROUGH

John Szoke Graphics, Inc.

144 East 57th Street, New York, NY 10022 • (212) 759-9405

FOR FREE CATALOG PLEASE SEE INSERT

DEALERS INQUIRIES INVITED

VOL
7
1
ISS
1 1
DE
1983
UMI

Acrylic "Sailing the Sun" 25 x 36

BETTY BOWES

DECEMBER 2
THROUGH
DECEMBER 31

Newman & Saunders Galleries
On Philadelphia's Historic Main Line
120 Bloomingdale Ave. Wayne, PA 19087 215-293-1280

Collectors • Dealers • Museums

FINE ARTS
INSURANCE SPECIALISTS

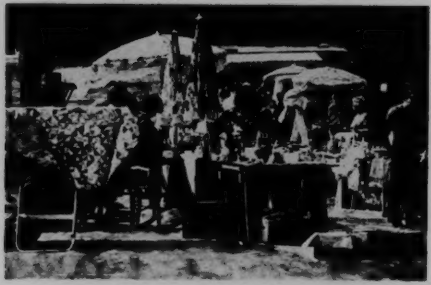
HUNTINGTON T. BLOCK INSURANCE

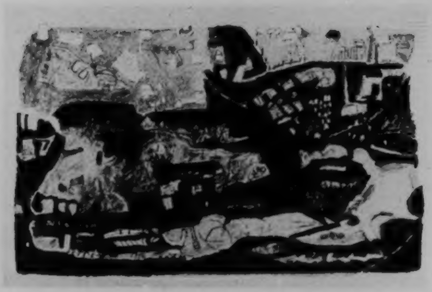
2101 L Street, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20037
Telephone (202) 223-0673
Toll Free (800) 424-8830
Telex 892596

For two hundred years some of the best painting in this country has been done in Maine.
Nothing has changed.

John
Gable



Natasha
Mayers



Representing

- Sigmund Abeles
- Alan Bray
- Gilbert Cass
- Alfred Chadbourn
- Maury Colton, III
- Lynne Drexler
- John Gable
- Sheila Gardner
- Glen Gunderson
- Pat Hardy
- Conley Harris
- Paul Heroux
- J. Thomas R. Higgins
- John Hultberg
- Elena Jahn
- John Laurent
- Viviane Linssen
- Frederick Lynch
- Paul Maddrell
- Natasha Mayers
- William Manning
- Marjorie Moore
- Joseph Nicoletti
- Hearne Pardee
- Stuart Ross
- Abby Shahn
- Robert Solotaire
- Alice Spencer
- C. David Thomas
- Susan Webster
- Gina Werfel

Barridoff
GALLERIES
Annette and Rob Elowitch*
242 Middle Street
Portland, Maine 04101
(207) 772-5011
*Maine License No. 422

THE SIMBARI COLLECTION 1950/83

A superb monograph with full color reproductions of this internationally renowned artist's works. Each book contains a hand signed lithograph—Price $96

Published by SELENE

AVAILABLE FROM TamarArts LTD
THE GALLERY
60 EAST 54TH ST., NEW YORK, N.Y. 10022. TEL: (212) 826-0556

VOL
7
1
ISS
1 1
DE
1983
UMI

THEO TOBIASSE

EXHIBITION
DECEMBER 1-15

PAINTINGS DRAWINGS GRAPHICS bank leumi

בנק לאומי
FDIC

16530 VENTURA BLVD.
ENCINO, CALIFORNIA

• BENEFIT OF • SIMON WIESENTHAL CENTER

IN COOPERATION WITH NAHAN
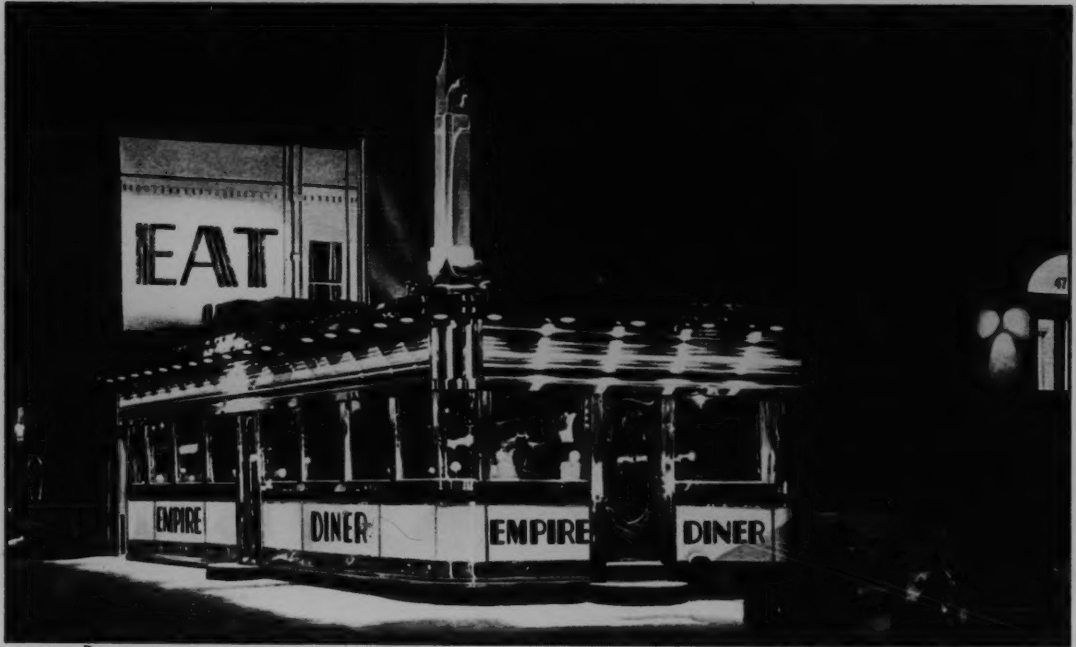
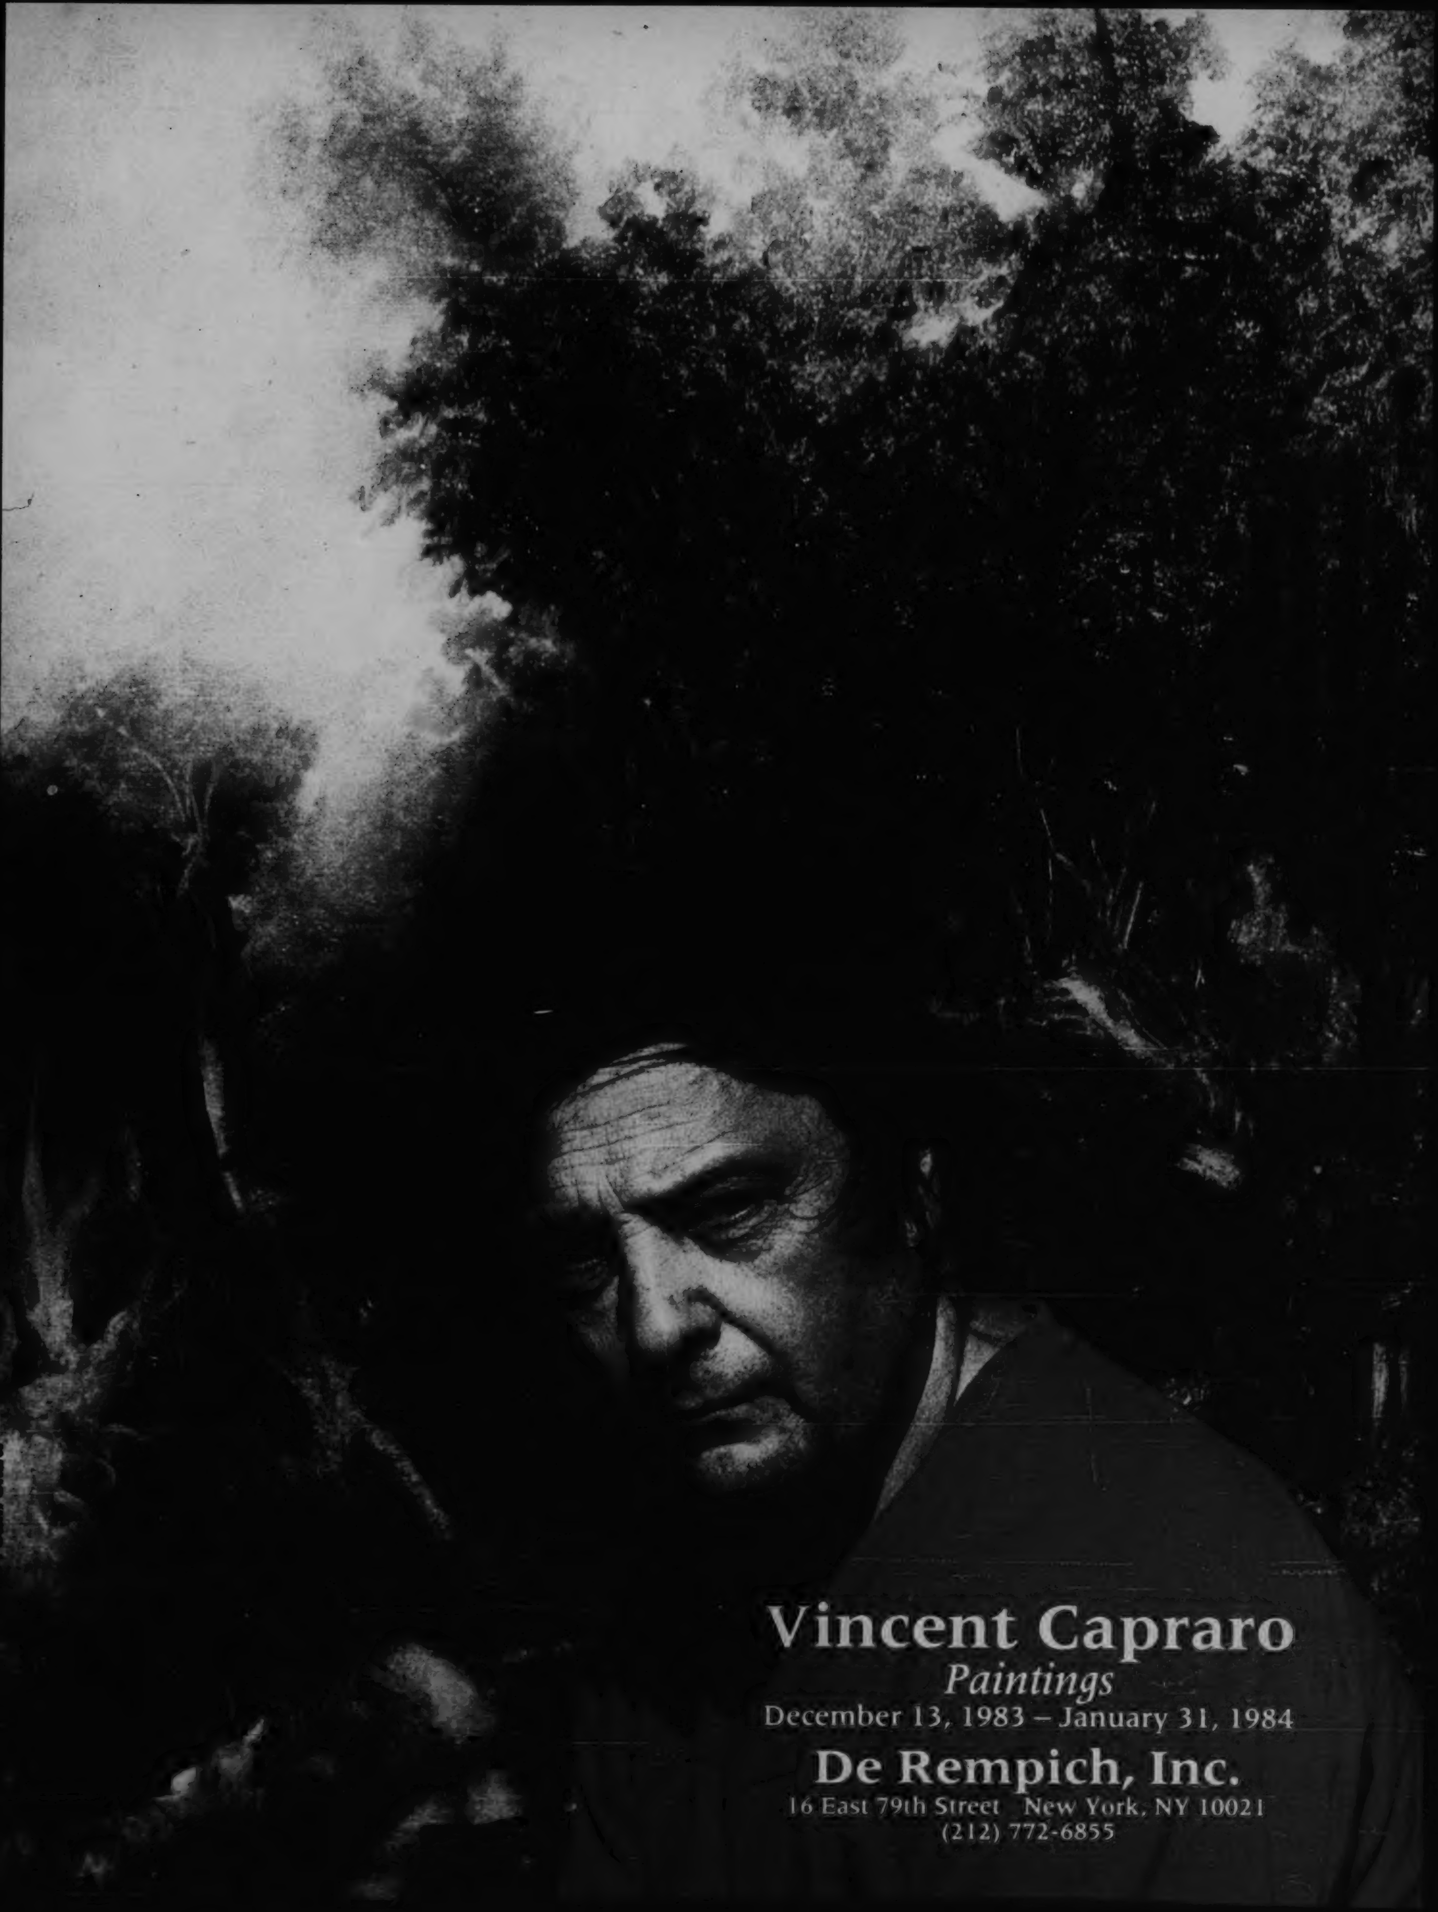
GALLERIES
NEW ORLEANS



John Baeder, "Empire Diner," nine color photolithograph and silkscreen. Edition 175 with 25 artist proofs on 21x30" Arches. Image size 15x24".

OK HARRIS

383 WEST BROADWAY N.Y. 10012 212 431-3600



Vincent Capraro

Paintings

December 13, 1983 – January 31, 1984

De Rempich, Inc.

16 East 79th Street New York, NY 10021
(212) 772-6855

VOL
71
ISS
11
DE
1983
UMI

STOCKHOLM
ART FAIR

4-9 APRIL 1984

Head Office:
Leif Ståhle
MÄSSBOLAGEN AB
Box 174
S-191 23 Sollentuna
Sweden
Tel. 08/96 00 60

Representative in USA:
Jan Eric Löwenadler
799 Park Avenue
New York, N.Y. 10021
USA
Tel. (212)737-6835

emer publicité

BORDUAS, Paul-Emile Morning Candelabra. 1948. Oil on canvas, 32¼ x 43"
Collection, Museum of Modern Art, New York. Gift of the Passedoit Gallery.

The Americas Society presents
CANADA'S REVERED 20th CENTURY MASTER
PAUL-EMILE BORDUAS:
PAINTED WORKS 1943-1960
November 15-January 30
Tuesday-Sunday 12-6 p.m.

Center for Inter-American Relations
680 Park Avenue, New York City
Exhibition was organized by the Musée d'art contemporain in Montréal and made possible by generous grants from the Canadian Consulate General, the Québec Government and Québec Government House N.Y.

THE GALLERY
COLLECTION

Yaacov Agam:
"Fond Marin"

Antoni Clavé:
Etchings, paintings

Francis Bacon:
Etching-lithograph

Giorgio de Chirico:
Important prints

Max Ernst:
Lithograph

Joan Miró:
"La Melodie Acide" etchings, and drawings

Henry Moore:
Etchings and sculpture

Tamayo:
Etchings

Zũniga:
5 lithographs

Nadežda Vitorovič:
Drawings and paintings

Monday thru Saturday
10 a.m.-5 p.m.

Nathan Silberberg Fine Arts
16 East 79th Street, New York, NY 10021 • 212-861-6192

Introducing Sceptre. The superior synthetic. What's in it for you? Sable.

Inside the cupro-nickel ferrule of every Sceptre brush is just the right touch of genuine sable hair, combined with selected synthetic fibers, to give you everything you ever wanted in an artist's brush: more spring, extra colour holding, superb points and durability. Perhaps best of all, each Sceptre brush is carefully crafted to exacting specifications by Winsor & Newton's own expert brushmakers. No wonder these brushes outperform all others in their moderate price range!

The Sceptre line encompasses a wide selection of sizes and shapes for every purpose. There's sure to be a Sceptre brush that suits your needs precisely.

See the complete Sceptre brush line now wherever Winsor & Newton artists' materials are sold. Once you get your hands on a Sceptre, there's a good chance you'll give the others the brush.

Winsor & Newton Inc., 555 Winsor Drive, Secaucus, New Jersey 07094.

Time and expense aren't our main concern. Quality is.

WINSOR & NEWTON

1832 150th ANNIVERSARY 1982

VOL
7
1
ISS
1 1
DE
1983
UMI

TRIVIGNO

FIREBIRD ROOKERY OIL 79" x 168"

COLOR CATALOGUE AVAILABLE
ppd. $8.00

ACADEMY GALLERY
NEW ORLEANS ACADEMY OF FINE ARTS
5256 MAGAZINE STREET
NEW ORLEANS, LA. 70115
504-899-8111

December 8–January 4

NEW WORK IN GLASS

JOEL PHILIP MYERS

MARK PEISER

holsten galleries

PALM BEACH, FLA. STOCKBRIDGE, MASS.

206 Worth Ave./Palm Beach, Fla. 33480 (305) 833-3400

PHILLIP ROBERTS
EXHIBITION OF NEW WORKS

"Missouri River/Kansas City" Oil on canvas, 24" x 30"

December 2-31

db

DONALD BATMAN GALLERY
825 WESTPORT RD. KANSAS CITY, MO 64111 (816)531-2588

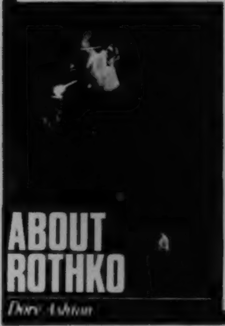
ROTHKO

REVEALED

A restless seeker of knowledge. An idealist in pursuit of a more luminous world. A complex imagist who craved the public's understanding of his life's work—

This is the compelling portrait that emerges from the first full-scale, critical biography of Mark Rothko. Drawing on her 18-year friendship with Rothko, and on her immense grasp of his work, Dore Ashton gives us a brilliantly insightful view of the artist and the art, replete with "the searching and responsible commentary that make her books so distinguished and so good to read." —GUY DAVENPORT

"Incomparable.... No existing biography of an Abstract Expressionist compares with this one." —ROBERT MOTHERWELL



ABOUT ROTHKO

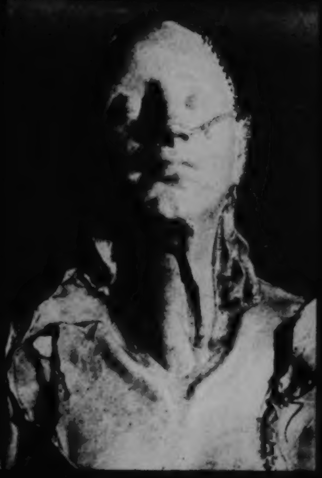
BY DORE ASHTON

$19.95/illustrated with 16 color plates and 30 halftones. At better bookstores, or send check or money order for $19.95 to:

OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS
Dept. BN, 200 Madison Avenue, New York, NY 10016

ARLENE LOVE

SCULPTURE/MONOTYPES



Detail:
St. Agnes
Leather &
Mixed Media

PORTICO 902 SPRUCE ST. PHILA., PA
DECEMBER 9 - JANUARY 14
N. DAKOTA MUSEUM OF ART
MARCH 19 - APRIL 10

Collaborative Projects

Up with People: an exhibition of graphics
December 9 through January 7

Concord
451 Broome Street, New York NY 10013 212 925-2994

SUBTLETIES

November 29–January 14, 1984

- Larry Bell
- Power Boothe
- Vija Celmins
- Edward Corbett
- Leo Dee
- Jim Dine
- Martha Mayer Erlebacher
- Robert Ferris
- Sidney Goodman
- John Gundelfinger
- Ellsworth Kelly
- Bonnie Lucas
- Helen Lundeberg
- Cork Marcheschi
- Agnes Martin
- Peter Milton
- Kenzo Okada
- Leon Polk Smith
- Myron Stout
- Esteban Vicente

Curated by Jeffrey Wechsler
Zimmerli Museum, Rutger's University
New Brunswick, New Jersey

Sutton
GALLERY

[illegible] 212/888 0638

Eight page catalogue available

VOL 7 1
ISS 1 1
DE
1983
UMI

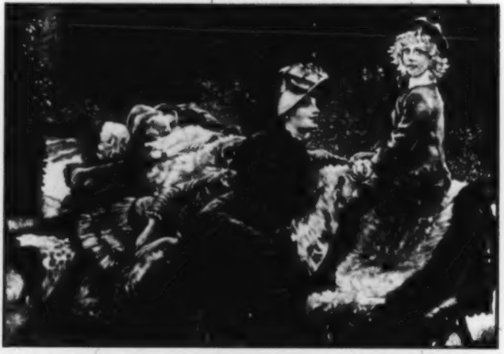
NOVEMBER 22 THROUGH DECEMBER 31, 1983

CLAY INVITATIONAL 1983

WILLIAM BROUILLARD
TOM COOK
ANNE CURRIER
DEIRDRE DAW
ANDREA GILL
CHRISTOPHER GUSTIN
RICHARD HENSLEY
MARK JOHNSON
KAREN KARNES
EVA KWONG
KIRK MANGUS
WALLY MASON
THEODORE RANDALL
CHRISTOPHER STALEY
DAVID WILLIAMSON
BETTY WOODMAN

DBRGALLERY

13225 SHAKER SQUARE · CLEVELAND, OHIO 44120 · 216/491-8062



Tissot, "Le Banc de Jardin," original mezzotint, 1883

Included in our collection are works by:

Dürer
Rembrandt
Callot
Goya
Whistler
Cassatt
Lautrec
Robbe
Renoir
Picasso
Rouault
Matisse
Miro
Kollwitz
Amaya
Folon
Zuniga
Chagall

PASQUALE IANNETTI ART GALLERIES, INC.

Dealers in fine original prints and other unique works from the 16th century to the present

575 Sutter Street, San Francisco, CA 94102
(415) 433-2771

Brentwood Gallery

Jack Earl — September
Then and Now

New New York — October
Haring, Scharf, DePalma, Futura 2000

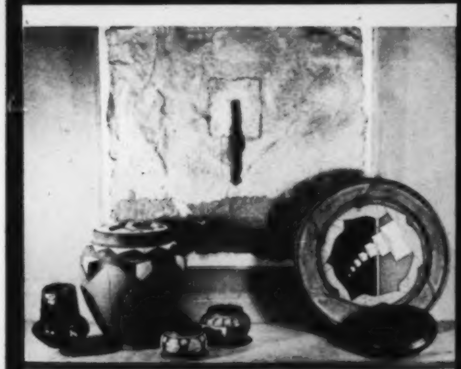
Joe Zucker — November
Paintings and Drawings

Bill Stewart
Ceramic Kingdoms

Thom Bohnert — December
Expanded Vessels

Art to Wear

1221 South Brentwood Boulevard
Saint Louis, Missouri 63117
(314) 863-0808



incorporated gallery

A FINE SELECTION OF CONTEMPORARY AMERICAN ART

1200 MADISON AVE
NEW YORK • N.Y. 10128
(212) 831-4466

Chicago
International
ART
Exposition

May 10–15, 1984

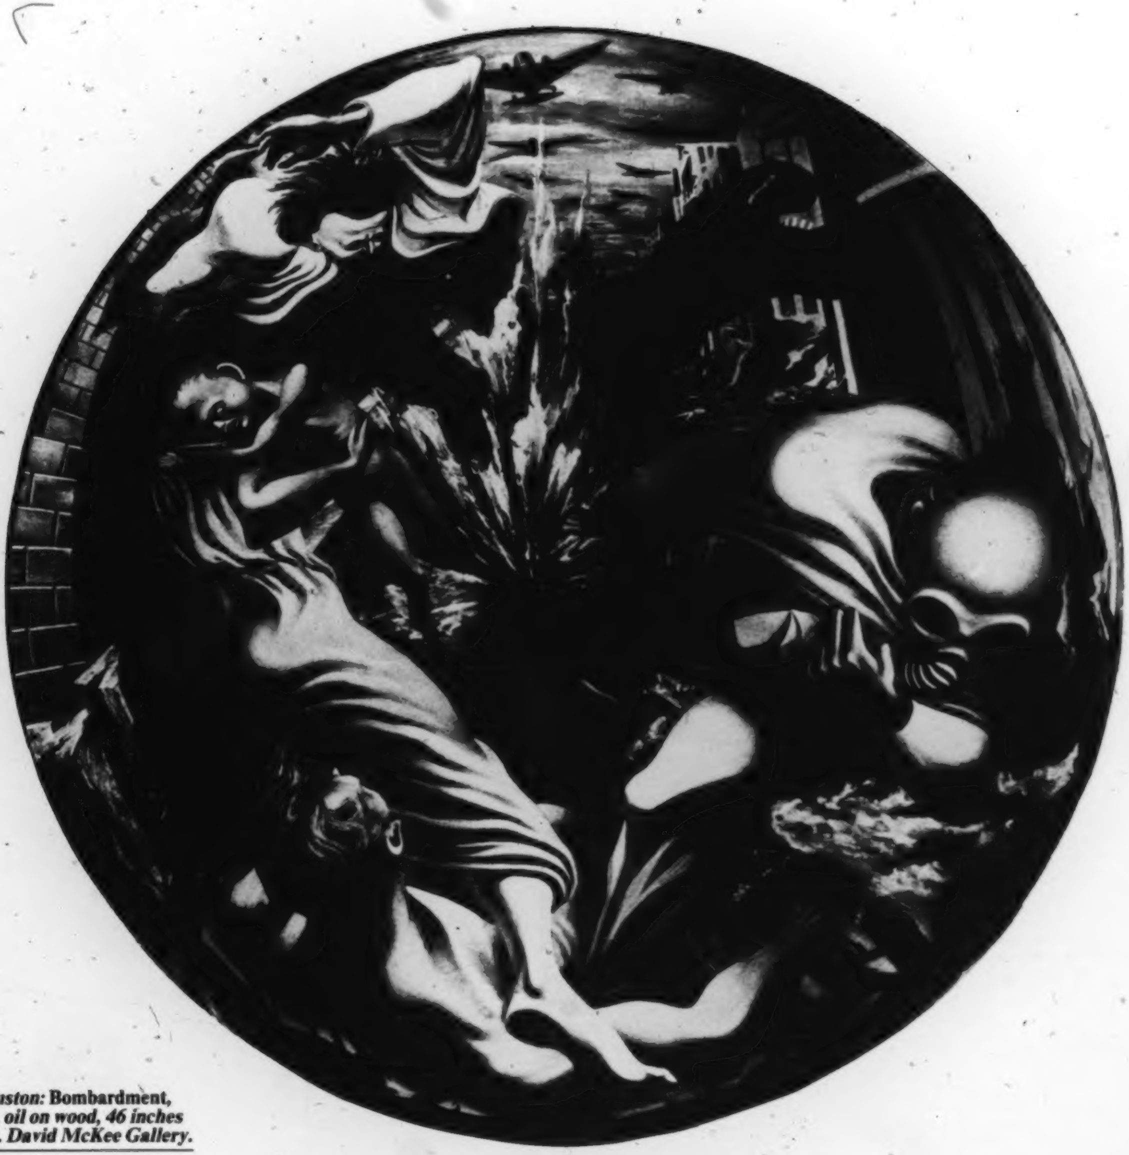
CIAE

Chicago
International
Art
Exposition

Chicago International Art Exposition
600 North McClurg Court,
Chicago, Illinois 60611 USA
Telephone 312.787.6858

A Project of the Lakeside Group

VOL
71
ISS
11
DE
1983
UMI



Philip Guston:* Bombardment, *1937–38, oil on wood, 46 inches diameter. David McKee Gallery.

An Art of Protest and Despair

A show of American social painting in the '30s revealed that its unity lay less in its style than in its themes of exploitation and its desires for a people's art—desires that remain a challenge to the art of the '80s.

BY JAMEY GAMBRELL

The 1930s saw the Depression in full force—millions of Americans out of work and without the means to feed and house themselves. Workers battled their bosses and the police for the right to form trade unions and to strike, and America witnessed the spread of a radical political consciousness and activism that it has not seen since. Many American artists were active participants in the development of that consciousness. At a time when art might have seemed the most unnecessary of luxuries, artists were given unprecedented cultural visibility thanks to the experiment of direct government employment of artists through various agencies as a part of the Roosevelt administration's work relief programs.

The most substantial and influential of these programs was the Federal Art Project of the Works Progress Administration, which was established in 1935. The purpose of the WPA art project was to provide work for unemployed artists, thereby maintaining their skills. Most of the artists employed qualified for relief under the WPA guidelines. In 1936 the FAP had approximately 5,300 artists on the payroll, about half of whom worked in the fine arts (murals, easel painting and sculpture). The others were involved in activities such as teaching art, designing posters or display models for museums, and working on the Index of American Design, which catalogued over 22,000 examples of American decorative art.

Fine artists received a modest salary, and though there were some strictures on the type of work they could submit in fulfillment of their contract, there were virtually no dictates from on high—most cases of censorship involved murals to be placed in public locations. Employment by the government was not perceived to present the problems of cooptation that it would inevitably suggest today. Indeed, many artists would have agreed with painter O. Louis Guglielmi when he wrote in the late '30s:

> The private gallery is an obsolete and withered institution. It not only encouraged private ownership of public property, but it destroyed a potential popular audience and forced the artist into a sterile

William Gropper: Reactionary, n.d., oil on canvas, 18 by 10 ½ inches. Hirshhorn Museum.

VOL 71 ISS 11 DE 1983 UMI

O. Louis Guglielmi: Relief Blues, ca. 1937, tempera on fiberboard, 24 by 29 ¼ inches. Smithsonian Institution.

Joseph Vavak: Women of Flint, 1937, oil on canvas, 25 by 36 inches. Smithsonian Institution.

> tower of isolation divorced from society. The Project has cleared the path toward a sounder and brighter future.[1]

The WPA did much to increase the American audience for art, founding museums, bringing exhibitions and art classes to remote rural areas, and encouraging the development of local artists. Despite an uneasy existence (Congress was always trying to cut funds for the projects) and criticism of the program from both left and right, the artists involved were in the unique position of being able to think of themselves as workers, and a strong sense of solidarity with the working class developed among many of the Project artists. Anton Refregier, in a description of his experience of the WPA, conveys the nature of this communal spirit:

> There was a sense of purpose, a closeness to the people with whom we shared our economic plight, a feeling of being needed by them. . . . There was a close comradeship among the artists, a respect for each other regardless of the direction each of us chose . . . we participated in all major social and economic struggles of the day. We were not degraded by personal opportunism, we were not manipulated by art entrepreneurs. . . . Together, with writers, musicians, actors, dancers and poets, we were creating a people's art.

Identification with those whose lives had been devastated by the Depression was by no means confined to WPA artists alone. American cultural debate in general in the '30s was steeped in Marxist ideology, even if it was often vague, unsophisticated and, as one critic has put it, "uncomplicated by knowledge of Marxist theory." Art's alliance with ideologies of radical political change was reinforced by the activities (exhibitions, conferences, work actions, etc.) of politically left, pro-Soviet artists' organizations such as the John Reed Club, the Artists' Union, and the American Artists' Congress, and by publications such as the Artists' Union's Art Front. Stuart Davis, a member of the editorial board of Art Front and a president of the Artists' Congress, described the reasons for increased social commitment among artists in terms more analytical than Refregier's:

> The artist finds himself without the meagre support of his immediate past and he realizes . . . that art is not a practice disassociated from other human activities. He has had the experience of being completely thrown overboard and sold out by art dealer and patron, and his illusions as to their cultural interests are destroyed. . . . Looking about him, he sees sharp class distinctions, those who have, and those (the great majority) who have not. He recognizes his alignment with those who have not—the workers.[2]

This "alignment with those who have not," though perhaps not always as clearly derived from Marxist class analysis as was the case with Davis, resulted in a marked rise in art's social content and often explicit criticism of the system that had produced the Depression.

A recent exhibition titled "Social Concern and Urban Realism: American Painting of the 1930s," while modest in scope and size, offered an overview of

Arthur Durston:* Industry, *1934, oil on canvas, 50 by 40 inches.
Smithsonian Institution.

Mervin Jules:* Bread, *n.d., tempera on board, 20 ½ by 15 ½ inches.
Jessie Keosian Collection.

Joe Jones:* We Demand, *1934, oil on board, 48 by 36 inches.
Butler Institute of American Art.

the social painting spawned by the Depression crisis. Most of the 41 easel painters in this show (some of whom also worked on murals) were affiliated with the federal art projects at one time or another. The works range in style from a meticulous, almost academic realism (in Katherine Schmidt's portrait Mr. Broe Waits His Turn) to expressionistic political caricature (William Gropper's Reactionary) to a sort of social surrealism combining social content and surrealist esthetics (in Anton Refregier's Guernica and Philip Guston's Bombardment). While the artists do not adhere to any single stylistic school of representational painting, their work addresses the major social themes and implicit political subtexts that have come to be identified with the art of the '30s, usually given the label of social realism.

The theme of unemployment is widespread: in Job Hunters Maurice Kish shows groups of discouraged men in search of work making their way through snow toward an ominous factory whose smokestacks spew forth clouds that merge into the oppressive winter sky. In George Grosz's watercolor sketch Waiting for a Job, the pale, insubstantial contours of four men alternating with intervals of the low stone wall next to which they wait create a series of spatial voids that evoke the men's resigned isolation. Other subjects include the exploitation of sweat-shop workers (Lew E. Davis's Eight Figures) and destitute transients (in works by Joseph Delaney, Harry Gottlieb and Edward Millman). The dreary reality of the factory is presented in Philip Evergood's view of human beings as cogs in the industrial process in Through the Mill. And in Arthur Durston's Industry three identical women seem to have issued from the factory behind them, the woman in the foreground holding a baby as if to suggest the "mass" production of humanity.

> However immediate '30s art may once have been, it now appears ridden with political clichés that together constitute a Depression-era picturesque replete with its own repertoire of gestures.

While some of the work portrays society's victims, implicitly condemning the forces that have victimized them, others are more explicit. Thomas Hart Benton and William Gropper portray strikebreakers and strikers, and Edward Laning and Joseph Hirsch depict scenes of confrontation with the police in, respectively, Unlawful Assembly, Union Square and Landscape with Tear Gas. The list goes on, a litany of social ills that are nearly all of renewed topicality given the economic conditions of Reagan's America.

Though to its original audience this work may have had the emotional impact of immediacy, it now seems ridden with pictorial and narrative clichés that together constitute something like a Depression-era picturesque with its own physiognomical repertoire. A closed language of facial expressions and anatomical distortions comprises a formulaic social melodrama in which every gesture becomes a sign of ideological value. There are good guys and bad guys, and it's immediately apparent who's who.

In Mervin Jules's Bread, a starving worker, or poor Everyman, has hurled a brick through a bakery window in order to steal a loaf of bread. He is turned away from the viewer, who witnesses the scene from inside the bakery, with the unusual vantage point, not of a disinterested observer, but of the shopkeeper or victim of the "crime." Nonetheless, we are clearly meant to sympathize with the man's plight. His face recedes into a colorless expressionist nocturne, where a full moon rises over a grim industrial landscape; his desperation is underscored by the jagged shards of the shop window which echo the elongated, threatening gesture of his hand as he grabs the loaf.

In Joe Jones's We Demand, anatomical distortion serves to illustrate determination rather than desperation. A racially mixed procession of workers snakes through an urban-industrial wasteland in compositional counterpoint to an elevated train. The stalwart black worker who leads them carrying a sign inscribed "We Demand" is allied stylistically and politically with the revolutionary fervor of the Mexican muralists: his mammoth left fist, which virtually zooms out of the foreground, communicates both political power and revolutionary resolve in iconographically loaded terms.

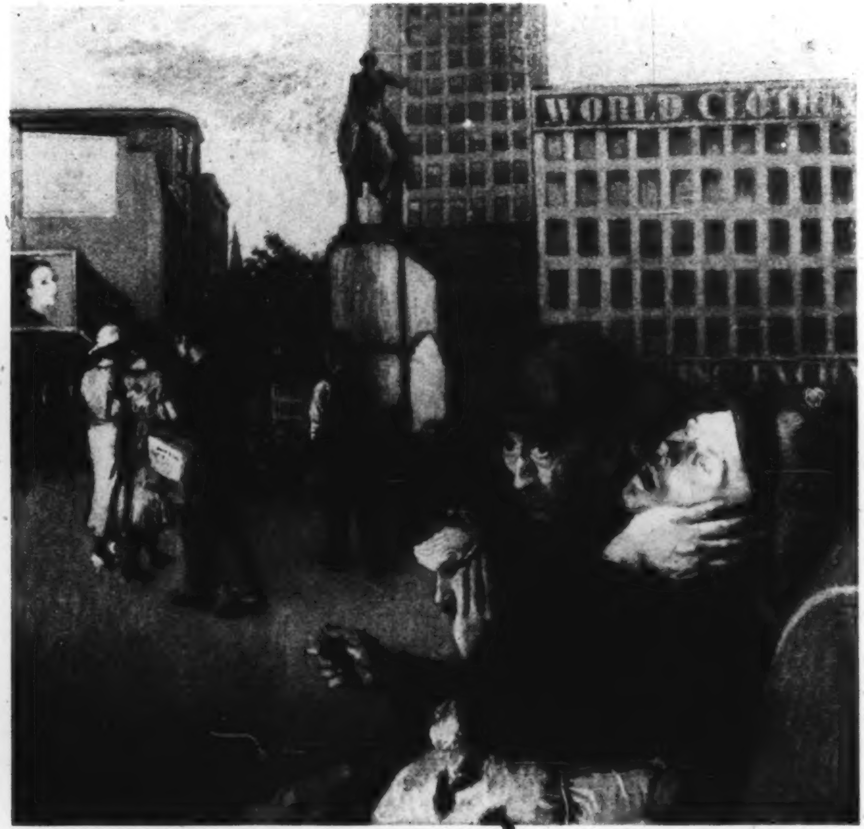
VOL 7 1 ISS 1 1 DE 1983 UMI



Raphael Soyer:* In the City Park, *n.d., oil on canvas, 38 by 40 inches.

These idealized, muscle-bound workers, who populate Soviet art of the period as well, are also to be found in Fletcher Martin's Mine Rescue. Martin studied and worked with the Mexican muralist Siqueiros, whose influence can be seen in Mine Rescue, a study for a mural that was never realized due to the objections of mine-company officials in Kellogg, Idaho, where it was to be installed in the post office. In it, two miners carry the body of an injured fellow worker out of the mine on a stretcher. It is a sort of industrial Deposition from the Cross in which faceless, romanticized workers serve as the grimly determined disciples of an anonymous worker-Christ.

Joseph Vavak's Women of Flint (inspired by the strike against General Motors in that city in 1936–37) exemplifies the liabilities of this socio-political physiognomy. A group of downtrodden women wanders aimlessly in a barren landscape, a lone machine cog in the foreground symbolizing their relationship to industrial society. The women are all hunchbacked, identically clothed in the shapeless, worn garments of poverty, their faces interchangeable masks of oppression and despair. The painting has that sort of facile pathos which can turn even the most sympathetic characterization into caricature.

Another side of the uneasy relationship between art and caricature is evident in William Gropper's Reactionary and Jack Levine's Feast of Pure Reason. Gropper, one of the members of the John Reed Club who traveled to the USSR in 1930, was primarily known as a political cartoonist and satirist whose work appeared in such publications as Vanity Fair and The New Masses. In Reactionary (as in many of his paintings) he has simply transposed a political cartoon into oil and canvas, the result being a predictably skull-like, hawk-nosed, empty-headed old man in a tuxedo, toward whom the viewer duly experiences the intended degree of distaste.

The success of Gropper's portrayal is ultimately its failure, for it relegates the painting to a myopic world in which individuals and events are reduced to schematic conduits of ideological values. The audience is spoon-fed an ideological pabulum—little credence is given to its critical or imaginative faculties. A similar determinism affects Jack Levine's Feast of Pure Reason, a painterly rendition of the shopworn (even in 1937) caricature of fat, corrupt, cigar-smoking capitalists. The painting is, as Harold Rosenberg once wrote about Levine's work, "to such an extent an absorption of big-city unexperienced newspaper Reality [i.e., good guy vs. bad guy sensationalism] into art history that it could serve as a model of Formalism."[3]

Political art of the '30s ranges in style from a meticulous realism (Raphael Soyer) to political caricature (William Gropper) to a sort of social surrealism (Philip Guston).

Removed from its original context, work such as this strikes the contemporary eye as visually and politically naive—an illustrated politics that attempts rhetorical persuasion in a way that is at times too flirtatious with propaganda, and remains inadequate, uncompelling 50 years later. Despite such failings—or perhaps due to this very naiveté, this lack of detachment and irony—the paintings of this period revive nostalgic daydreams of a time when art had a function in strategies of social change. In an essay written for the catalogue of "Social Concern and Urban Realism" Raphael Soyer describes some of the elements of this nostalgia:

> The art world is now different from what it was in the 1930s. It was less confusing then; there was not the restless succession of "isms"; it was easier for young artists

Thomas Hart Benton: Strikebreakers, 1931, oil on panel, 10 ½ by 14 ½ inches. Charles Benton Collection.

Philip Evergood: Through the Mill, 1940, oil on canvas, 36 by 52 inches. Whitney Museum.

VOL 71 ISS 11 DE 1983 UMI

Fletcher Martin: Mine Rescue, 1939, tempera on panel, 15 by 36 inches. University of Maryland.

Robert Gwathmey:* The Hitchhiker, *ca. 1936, oil on panel, 30 by 36 inches. Brooklyn Museum.

> Though its conviction may now seem naive to us, '30s art does revive dreams of a time when art had a function in strategies of political change.

to find themselves. . . . Art was not the big business it has become. There was no such thing as "blue chips" in art. Well-known artists worked daily in modest studios; they were not the "celebrities" and "personalities" they are today.

I feel nostalgic about the 1930s. Those were economically difficult times, but spiritually exhilarating. We looked forward to a bright future. We had hopes that when Fascism and Nazism would be overcome we would have a good world.

Since that time the size of the art world and the American public's experience of art has increased many fold, but the "people's art" that seemed to be in the making in the '30s has not materialized. The very concept, so undefined and hackneyed now as to be a mystification, appears consigned to the utopias of the past. But a renewed interest in the art of the '30s indicates that though spiritual exhilaration may not attend the art of the nuclear age, such desires have not been extinguished. The art of the '30s offers the '80s the unresolved challenge of those desires. ☐

---

1. Quoted in Patricia Hills, Social Concern and Urban Realism: American Painting of the 1930s, Boston University Art Gallery, 1983. Unless otherwise noted, all quotations are from this catalogue.
2. Stuart Davis in Theories of Modern Art: A Source Book by Artists and Critics, ed. Herschel B. Chipp, Berkeley, University of California Press, 1968, p. 466.
3. Harold Rosenberg, The Tradition of the New, Chicago, University of Chicago Press, 1982, p. 49.

"Social Concern and Urban Realism: American Painting of the 1930s" was curated by Patricia Hills and co-organized by Bread and Roses, the cultural project of the National Union of Hospital and Health Care Employees, and the American Federation of the Arts. Originally shown at Gallery 1199 in New York City, it travelled to Boston University Art Gallery, and will be seen at the Anchorage Historical and Fine Arts Museum (Dec. 19–Jan. 21, '84); Lauren Rogers Museum, Laurel, Miss. (Feb. 18–Mar. 31); Butler Institute of American Art, Youngstown, Ohio (Apr. 28–June 9); Norton Gallery, West Palm Beach (July 7–Aug. 18); and the Fine Arts Museum of the South, Mobile, Ala. (Sept. 15–Oct. 27).

Author: Jamey Gambrell is a free-lance critic living in New York.

COMMISSIONER
CLA PER SHERIFF
RO
SING WAY

Ben Shahn: Man by the Railroad Track, 1935–36, tempera on paper, 15½ by 11¾ inches. Hirshhorn Museum.

VOL 71 ISS 11 DE 1983 UMI

For "Available Light": A Brief Lexicon

The premiere of Lucinda Childs's most recent dance production here occasions an extended consideration, itself lexically choreographed, of her work and its context.

BY SUSAN SONTAG

"AVAILABLE LIGHT." 1983. Fifty-five minute work for 11 dancers (five women and six men) commissioned by the Museum of Contemporary Art, Los Angeles: the third of Lucinda Childs's large-scale productions. Music by John Adams, set by Frank Gehry, costumes by Ronaldus Shamask, lighting by Beverly Emmons.

BEAUTY. The visionary authority of Childs's work resides, in part, in its lack of rhetoric. Her strict avoidance of cliché, and of anything that would make the work disjunctive, fragmented. The refusal of humor, self-mockery, flirtation with the audience, cult of personality. The distaste for the exhibitionistic: of movement calling attention to itself, of isolatable "effects." Beauty as, first of all, an art of refusal.

CAREER. As a choreographer Childs has had an exceptionally logical career. The first phase, from 1963 to 1966, consists of 13 performance pieces, mostly solos. The non-dance movements, the use of banal objects and, sometimes, witty monologues, gave these works a Dadaist insouciance; but though movements were often presented as if they had been "found," nothing in fact was ever random or improvised. All requiring feats (some of them stunts) of precise synchronization, these were playful, elaborately structured conceptual works: not dances but the performing of ideas about dance. Such preparatory strategies having run their course, Childs's Untitled Trio (1968)—three ten-minute dances, each for three dancers; without props, words, or music—signals a dramatic change of tone and means from the deadpan comedy of objects and the ironic verbosity licensed by the Duchampian esthetic, the better to pursue what had always been essentially formal concerns.... This second phase, inaugurated by Untitled Trio, was cut short by illness and begins properly (after a period of convalescence, further training, and teaching) five years later. Starting with a revised version of Untitled Trio, Childs created 16 pieces—solos and works for small ensembles—between 1973 and 1978. All between ten and 13 minutes, they explore highly disciplined, complex, gamelike relations in space, using phrases built out of simple movements such as walks, skips, jumps, falls, runs, turns. (Childs's first appearance at the Brooklyn Academy of Music, for some years now her principal performance base in the United States, was in 1977, with a program of six of these "silent" pieces.)... In the third phase, which began in 1979, Childs moved from giving dance concerts to creating dance productions: long works that are wrapped around music, much larger in scale and more ambitious formally—in which, with the co-presence of music, the addition of sets and costumes (the first time the dancers were costumed was at the Brooklyn Academy in 1977), the dance vocabulary is being built back up to rejoin, on its own terms, the mainstream of dance vocabulary.... Since 1981 Childs has also been choreographing for other dance companies.

CHOREOGRAPHY. Childs started by defining herself as a "modern" choreographer; therefore, alienated from "tradition." (Two decades ago, it could still seem plausible to regard modern dance as the antithesis and subversion of classical dance.) When she did start choreographing dances, in 1968, it was with the predilection for keeping the movement vocabulary relatively simple, seeking complexity elsewhere—in the intricate design of spatial forms and of timing. But in the music-based works choreographed since 1979, which propose a much more complex movement vocabulary, Childs has broken radically with the anti-ballet esthetic of the other ex- or neo-Duchampian choreographers with whom she is often (mistakenly) grouped. Of all the adepts of the rigorously modern among contemporary choreographers, she has the subtlest and most fastidious relation to classical dance. If her use of portions of the ballet idiom is less easily recognizable than that made by Merce Cunningham and Twyla Tharp, it is because Childs does not feed balletic movements and positions into an eclectic mix but wholly transforms and reinterprets them. In this, as in other matters, she is adamantly anti-collage. Thus the choreography of Available Light was not conceived first and then illustrated by the music, the set, and the costumes but solicited, presupposed, and was worked out in strict relation to these—to the two-level stage devised by Gehry, the multi-layered music of Adams, the three-color constructivist scheme (black, red, white) of Shamask's costumes.

COMPANY, THE. Founded in 1973 (and first performed publicly in December 1973 at the Whitney Museum). Of the 16 "silent" pieces Childs choreographed between 1973 and 1978, none uses more than five dancers. In 1978 the company was enlarged to nine (five women and four men): the cast of the first two large-scale productions, Dance and Relative Calm. Childs is in the process of expanding the company to 12—Available Light uses 11 dancers—and would like to work with 16 or, ideally, 20 dancers. Childs is of course a member of the company and dances in almost all the works she has choreographed, either in an ensemble role or as the company's only soloist.... Most members of the company are Cunningham-trained and all study ballet as well—for the musicality and the discipline of her dancers has a double model. Her choreography requires dancers who are bilingual: who speak both the language of modern dance (she considers Cunningham's by far the most appropriate modern technique) and the classical language of ballet.

COMPLEXITY. Cunningham in 1952: "For me, it seems enough that dancing is a spiritual exercise in physical form, and that what is seen is what it is. And I do not believe it is possible to be 'too simple.'" The delicate rhythms and intricate configurations and tempi of Cunningham's work, the way attention is com-

HARMONY IN RED & SILVER

A Very Special Holiday Offer From Art in America

This holiday season ART IN AMERICA is offering extraordinary savings on gift subscriptions. Each gift order is only $24.95, a 45% savings off the cover price.

FIRST GIFT

☐ Please enter a one year subscription to ART IN AMERICA for my friend. I pay only $24.95 — over 45% off the cover price.

My Name

Address

City State Zip

Recipient's Name

Address

City State Zip

Gift card to read from

ADDITIONAL GIFTS

Recipient's Name

Address

City State Zip

Gift card to read from

Recipient's Name

Address

City State Zip

Gift card to read from

☐ Check/money order enclosed ☐ VISA ☐ Mastercard ☐ Bill me.

Card # Exp. date Signature

EM303

In US Possessions and Canada, add $8 per subscription; elsewhere, add $15 per subscription. Offer good through 2/28/84.

VOL

71

ISS

11

DE

1983

UMI

NO POSTAGE
NECESSARY
IF MAILED
IN THE
UNITED STATES

BUSINESS REPLY CARD
FIRST CLASS PERMIT NO. 542 MARION, OHIO

POSTAGE WILL BE PAID BY

Art in America
542 PACIFIC AVENUE
MARION OHIO 43306

Available Light (1983) as seen in its premiere at the Museum of Contemporary Art, Los Angeles. Photo Tom Vinetz.

Relative Calm, 1981. Seen here is a passage from "Rise," the work's first section. Photo Nathaniel Tileston.

VOL 71 ISS 11 DE 1983 UMI

manded through a simple, unadorned, unexplained, often decentered presence, offered a new standard of the complex.

CUNNINGHAM, MERCE. Childs, who studied with Cunningham between 1959 and 1963, assumes Cunningham's notion that dance should not express something else (an emotion, a story, an interior landscape) but not Cunningham's method, which is to make the elements of dance self-contained, autonomous, even aleatoric in their mix (and sometimes in their look). "I didn't like it," Cunningham once said, "that a movement meant something." This liberating stance has been associated with a large element of parody in Cunningham's idiom: post-Graham movements (the Cunningham curved back is an ironic comment on the Graham contraction) and laterally tilted ballet positions. Out of this eclectic esthetic, much irony. (Cunningham's choreography is an art of disjunction and, therefore, ultimately comic.) Childs by temperament unifies; her esthetic refuses the eclectic, the disjunctive—it never quotes. Though playfulness is one of her chief standards of grace, her work is virtually free of irony. Its tone is austere but never cool. Embracing the Cunningham position (the refusal of plot, of "meaning"), Childs has drawn other consequences from it; she has dropped the jokes, the kidding around, the wistful lyricism, and reached for the sublime.

DANCE. Childs's work is about the love of dance. (So much of contemporary dance shows contempt for dance.) "I don't want the dancer to be the star," she said in an interview in 1977. "Dance is the thing that is being presented."

"DANCE." 1979. The first of the large-scale productions, a 100-minute work, for the company of nine [see A.i.A., May '80]. Music by Philip Glass, lighting by Beverly Emmons, and a film by Sol LeWitt of portions of three of the five sections ("Dance #1," "Dance #3," and "Dance #4"). Choreographers as different as Cunningham and Pina Bausch have made works with an accompanying, simultaneous image-record, displayed on a TV monitor placed on the stage; in contrast to this additive, fragmenting use, the projection of LeWitt's film, on a transparent scrim at the front of the stage, is a true setting and literal transfiguration of the dance. The synchronized ongoing of film and dance creates a double space: flat (the scrim/screen) and three-dimensional (the stage); provides a double reality, both dance and its shadow (documentation, projection), both intimacy and distance. Recording the dancers from different angles, in long shot and in close-up, LeWitt's film tracks the dancers, sometimes on the same level, sometimes above—using split screen and multiple images. Or it immobilizes them, in a freeze-frame (or series of still shots) which the live dancer passes through. Or it waits with the dancer, as in the beginning of "Dance #4," Childs's second solo, when Childs appears both in large mask-like close-up on the scrim and as a small immobile figure in white on the stage. The film both documents and dematerializes (spiritualizes) the reality of dancing. It is a friendly, intermittent ghost that makes the dancers, seen behind the scrim, seem disembodied, too: each seems the ghost of the other. The spectacle becomes authentically polyvalent, though the film is finally subordinate to the dance. "Dance #2," Childs's first solo, and the concluding "Dance #5" proceed without the film ghost.

DIAGONAL. A signature element in Childs's choreography: a principle of avidity, about space. Dancers often go into low plié arabesque, with the arm continuing the diagonal—the longest line that the body can make. And they often move on the diagonal—the longest distance one can traverse on a stage without changing direction. Childs's adventures with the diagonal have their apotheosis in Relative Calm, two of its four sections being choreographed entirely on the diagonal. In the first section, the whole company dances back and forth on parallel paths from upstage right to downstage left for 23 increasingly blissful minutes; in the third, solo section, Childs dances for 17 minutes in phrases of different lengths, punctuated by turns, on the opposite diagonal. . . .And moving to the diagonal often means an intensification, as in the finale of "Dance #1" of Dance, when suddenly four pairs of dancers dash again and again from upstage left to downstage right. Or in Available Light: Childs's arrival upstage right and slow progress downstage left through a corridor formed by eight dancers, four on each side.

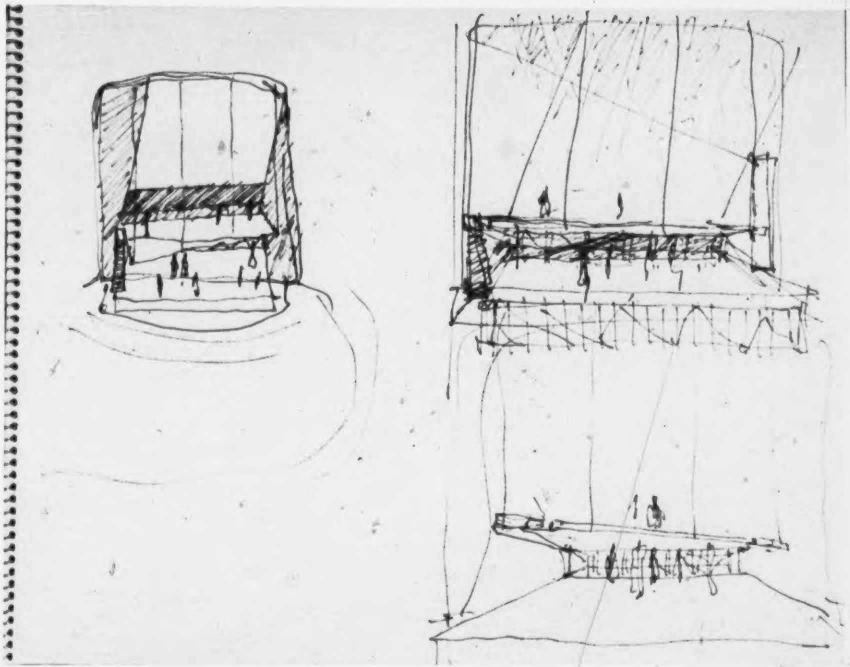
DOUBLING. A recurrent structure in Childs's work: splitting the performer into two versions, the action into two levels, which proceed simultaneously. For example, in an early piece, Street Dance (1964), Childs's voice, taped, was with the audience assembled in a sixth floor loft, while she was down on the street, being seen performing the actions that she was heard describing. Doubling in the sense of several dancers performing the same movements on different paths became, starting with Untitled Trio, the extended subject of the works she created for small ensembles in the 1970s. Transverse Exchanges and Radial Courses (both 1976) elaborate, delicately and strenuously, on the counterpoint of dancers, using the same steps or families of movements, going in and out of sync with each other, through changes of gait, direction, and relation to the floor. Having several people doing the same rhythmic thing—side by side, or one in front of another, or one above the other—has always been part of choreographing ensembles, military, ceremonial and balletic. Indeed, doubling is the most basic principle of artifice—of form itself. What Childs has done is to concentrate on and draw out the implications of doubling, as a formal principle, and as the basis of choreographic syntax: the geometrical, or diagrammatic, idealization of movement. Her recent large works, created since 1979, allow for a more complex orchestration of the theme of doubling. The adding of decor is never merely decorative but functions to create richer possibilities of doubling. Thus the film that LeWitt made as the decor for Dance, a film of portions of Dance projected on a transparent scrim, creates a perfectly synchronized double set of dancers. For example, the split screen allows the audience to see the dancers in the film, never less than life-size, on top; the live dancers (behind the scrim) on the bottom. What LeWitt supplied for Dance with a film Frank Gehry supplies for Available Light with an architecture. In Available Light, the stage itself has become two-level, allowing other variations on the theme of doubling. Instead of traveling ghosts, there are live trackers: one to three dancers are upstairs echoing, playing off, providing counterpoint to what the dancers are unfolding below.

"EINSTEIN ON THE BEACH." 1976. The "opera," conceived and directed by Robert Wilson, with music by Philip Glass; Childs was a principal performer and collaborated on the text. The year she spent preparing and touring in Einstein on the Beach (Avignon, Venice, Belgrade, Brussels, Paris, Hamburg, Rotterdam, Amsterdam, New York) was a turning point. Her 35-minute solo, constructed on three diagonals, that opens Act I, Scene I was a culmination of the second phase of her work and a bridge to the third. Her longest work so far (both as performer and choreographer), it was the first time she choreographed to music—and the experience encouraged her to undertake the long work, for which Glass agreed to furnish the score, eventually called Dance.

EMOTION. The leading notion of the great modern dance pioneers, from Duncan to Graham and Horton, was to return dance to ritual. Though dance-as-ritual looked more abstract than ballet, actually such dances were heavy with descriptive intentions based, above all, on ideas about the primitive, the authentic, both in movement and feeling. Thus Mary Wigman created her "absolute" dances, performed in silence and with a minimum of theatrical support, the better to render extremely emotional "inner states." Childs's turn (in 1968) to dance without props or music or words was truly an absolute conception of dance, for it did not claim to express anything interior. For Childs, as for Cunningham, all notions of dance as ritual are alien; she was drawn to using gamelike forms of ensemble movement, in which the idea of inwardness is irrelevant. The view that dance should not express emotion does not, of course, mean to be against emotion. Childs's point of view is Valéry's, who defined the poem as a machine made of words, whose function is to create a distinctively poetic feeling. It does not "express" emotion, it is a method of creating it.

EUPHORIA. Dance for Childs is an art of euphoria. While the dances of the second phase of her work are playful, extroverted, the new work of the last four years reaches for a poignant "elevation" of mood, a more euphoric kind of buoyancy, a deeper joyousness and a romantic solemnity, distilled through Childs's spare unifying esthetic. "Striving to make it float" she calls the effort. The beauty and distinction of her work incite an objective bliss, one purged of the heaviness of individual psychology.

"FORMAL ABANDON." Work in progress since 1981. Music by Michael Riesman. Two sections have been frequently performed: a 16-minute solo for Childs and a quartet of 22 minutes for the chamber company, two women and two men. A third section, for the full company, just had its premiere in November in Paris.



Frank Gehry: Preliminary sketches for the set design of Available Light, 1983.

FORMATIONS. Childs tends to organize choreographic patterns symmetrically, movement contrapuntally. The dancers move in formations—in twos, and their multiples, more than in trios and quintets. Through Childs most often deploys dancers in pairs, this is the smallest formation, and has nothing to do with partnering in the traditional sense: neither dancer is the consort of the other, one does not assist or accompany or accommodate another. They are duplicates, and therefore equal. The two dancers are doing the same movements: the existence of a pair doubles the movement image. There are "delicate invasions" (Childs's phrase) of one group by another, still keeping their group contour, as in the traveling diamond formations of the fourth section of Relative Calm. Men and women perform the same movements (thus shaving off the gender-specific extremes of movement vocabulary, such as very high jumps), wear the same or virtually identical costumes. All plugged into the same sound, the dancers move on paths, inexorably, to a steady underlying pulse. They rarely take up perilous off-balance positions, such as Cunningham favors. (He also favors asymmetrical formations.) The rule that each element in a Cunningham dance has its own autonomy and can be apprehended in isolation from the other elements of the spectacle also applies to the dancers. In Cunningham's company every dancer is, can be a star. In Childs's work, as each element of the spectacle is strictly coordinated with every other, so is each dancer: she choreographs for the glorified corps de ballet—they become the star. Childs's dances are not exercises in polyattentiveness (more generally, they are not examples of art conceived as a tool for perception). Her choreography demands a concentrated all-over attention; it is cumulative; it aims at transporting, not educating, the audience.

GEOMETRICAL. Available Light is the second act of Giselle as revised and corrected by Mondrian.

HEAD. The positioning of the dancer's head in ballet always implies a look—to a partner, or a central (noble) figure; or to the audience. In Childs's choreography, the head is not posed in this sense; there is no such looking elsewhere. One of the basic conventions of Cunningham's technique is a simple, unmannered use of the head and detached, cool expression. Even while taking part in cooperative tasks—a lift, a pull, a support—his dancers usually seem unaware of each other. (Much humor is milked from this incongruity.) In Childs's choreography dancers never engage in cooperative tasks, indeed never touch each other. Hence their intensely blank performance masks signify another, non-atomized detachment. The effect is never incongruous, or comic; rather it underscores the feeling of purity, "the striving for an elevated state of things" which is the register of Childs's work.

IDEAL. Where are these dancers dancing? Not in the vernacular space, here and now, of Duchampian performance pieces; nor in the anti-dramatic, democratized space of Cunningham's dances—dance as pure, non-cumulative activity with detachable parts and movable borders. (Hence one of Cunningham's characteristic notions: dance as a sequence of open-ended "events.") Instead, Childs's choreography suggests some ideal space, where ideal transactions and transformations take place. (In this, she is close to the ethos of traditional ballet.) Dance as the art of ideal precision; ideal spatial relationships; ideal, undiluted intensity.

ILLUSTRATING. A procedure typical of Childs's early, conceptual (or didactic) work, in which she sometimes used words, in the form of instructions or descriptions, as a device to create a piece—as in Street Dance. This linguistic decor could be live monologues or words on tape that were illustrated by her movements. Some of the early pieces treat movement in the manner of the Surrealist objet trouvé: citing already existing positions, "found" through words. In Model (1964), Childs gives a mock lecture on modern dance and illustrates some awkward positions. In Geranium (1965) she provides a taped sportscast: as the announcer describes a football player falling, tumbling, Childs illustrates the actions in slow motion. Museum Piece (1965) has mock objects: 19 dots in three colors cut out of heavy paper, each about ten inches in diameter, which are an enlargement of a tiny portion of Seurat's Le Cirque. While delivering a mock lecture on pointillism, Childs sets out the dots like plates in a complex pattern on the floor. Then, gazing into a hand mirror, she walks backward, making a slow, circuitous journey through the

VOL
7
1

ISS

1 1

D E

1983

UMI

From Dance, 1979. A film by Sol LeWitt of portions of three of the work's five sections was projected on a transparent scrim in front of the stage, thus doubling the movement. Photo Nathaniel Tileston.

dots, without stepping on them, speaking of why she wants "to enter this body of material."

"Dance #1," the opening section of Dance (1979) as performed at the Brooklyn Academy of Music. Photo Nathaniel Tileston.

JUDSON DANCE THEATRE. Co-founded in 1962 by Yvonne Rainer (then, like Childs, a student of Cunningham) and Steve Paxton; disbanded in 1966. Childs was invited to join in 1963, and did a ten-minute piece called Pastime—her first work presented publicly—at the Judson Memorial Church, where she went on to present most of the work she did in the next three years, as well as to perform in pieces by Rainer, Paxton, James Waring and Robert Morris.

KLEIST'S ESSAY ON THE PUPPET THEATRE. Its subject is an ideal state of the spirit; written in 1810, it is also the first great essay on the dance. Kleist exalts as the summit of grace and profundity in art a way of being without inwardness or psychology. Writing when the characteristic modern oppositions of the heart versus the head, the organic versus the mechanical, were invented, Kleist ignores the obloquy already attached to the metaphor of the mechanical, and identifies the mechanical movements of puppets with the sublimity of the impersonal. The Romantic ideal of the absence of affectation is equated not with the free expression of personality but with its transcendence. These romantic oppositions (and evaluations) continued to dominate sensibility for another century, mutating into what we know as modernism, into "romantic" modernism, which was challenged by "neo-classical" modernism—various ideals of the impersonal as different as those of Duchamp and of Balanchine (who thought ballet should be unconcerned with inner experience). The ideals of the personally expressive and the impersonal or impassive constitute a central contrast in the evolution of contemporary dance. Cunningham is the most important champion of the anti-expressive and anti-subjective, and most of the choreographers who studied with him have extended his emphasis on objectivity and impersonality. Yvonne Rainer's work in the period of the Judson Dance Theatre aimed at "submerging the personality" in impersonal, tasklike movements: "So, ideally, one is not even oneself, one is a neutral doer." In Childs's choreography, one is not a neutral but a transpersonal doer. Her emphasis on impersonality is closer to the virtues extolled by Balanchine than by Rainer, for she assumes that dancing is a noble art. The dancers move on paths, imperturbable—their comings and goings seem implacable. Their impassivity is not the air of detachment, the cool ironic tone of Cunningham dancers. It is a positive impassivity, that recalls the argument made by Kleist—as if grace and inwardness were opposed.

LIGHTNESS, ART OF. Childs's conception of dance is Apollonian: dance should be lively, playful, joyous. Beauty equals power, delicacy, decorum, unaffected intensity. What is ugly is timidity, anxiety, demagoguery, heaviness. (Other exemplars of the Apollonian style: Seurat, Mallarmé, Morandi, Ozu, Wallace Stevens.)

"MAD RUSH." 1981. Eighteen-minute work for 11 dancers (five women and six men), in seven sections; music by Philip Glass. Commissioned and first performed by the Groupe de Recherche Choréographique of the Paris Opera Ballet. Working with ballet dancers, Childs for the first time choreographed some gender-specific passages, such as a quartet section for four men featuring strenuous traveling jumps (tours jetées and tours en l'air). It has since entered the repertory of Childs's company.

MEASURABLE. Seurat calculated exactly the place and the disposition of some 40 tiny figures in Le Cirque—cited by Childs in her early Museum Piece. Childs prepares placing of dancers and timing in the same spirit. Seurat believed that the beautiful had an objective, measurable basis; Childs needs to specify the structure of her work in numbers. The early pieces were timed to the second, but not counted. The method of working out choreography by counts started in 1968, with Untitled Trio, which is when Childs began choreographing in the normative sense: to choreograph means to give movement a rhythmic, countable time structure. It is through counting that space is connected with time, whether or not time is further articulated by music. All the "silent" works of the 1970s are precisely counted. (An example: a dance from 1976, Transverse Exchanges, has 1449 counts.) In works created since 1979, counts are coordinated to—supplied by—music. For instance, in Relative Calm, Childs requested a specific pattern, and numerical phrase base, from the composer Jon Gibson—that the first section be constructed out of 15-count phrases and have 11 sub-sections; that the second section be composed of 17-count phrases and have nine sections, each two to two-and-a-half minutes long; etc. The intricate patterning (designed to activate all the stage space) and subtle variations in timing may seem simple to dance audiences habituated to recognize only the complexities apparent in movement itself.

MINIMALIST. Unlike some other dumb labels that emerged in visual arts marketing campaigns (Pop Art, Op Art) in the last two decades, this piece of linguistic chewing gum, first applied to some painters and sculptors (Sol LeWitt, Robert Morris, Carl Andre), has spread to architects, choreographers, composers, even to couturiers—imposing, as such label-mongering invariably does, a specious unity among widely different artists. (One of those labels, like AVANT-GARDE, numbingly favored by reviewers and im-

VOL

71

ISS

11

DE

1983

UMI

Available Light, 1983. Childs tends to organize choreographic patterns symmetrically, movement contrapuntally. Photo Tom Vinetz.

VOL 7 1
ISS 11
DE
1983
UMI

presarios, that no serious artist would use as self-description, MINIMALIST is perhaps not as punitive and philistine as AVANT-GARDE has become—but it is rarely a compliment.) Muybridge, Mondrian, Stein and Ozu had the good fortune to pursue careers as virtuosi of obsessive repetition and strong patterning without incurring this label, but not Philip Glass or Lucinda Childs. . . . Inevitably succeeded by POST-MINIMALIST.

MOVEMENTS. Childs's movement ideal: clear, clean, deliberate, intense. And directional. The dancers are either moving or are absolutely still. When they are moving, they move continuously, with relatively muted accents and a softer dynamic than in classical choreography, recalling Rainer's prescriptive idea of dance as "movement series"—with "no pauses between phrases and no observable accent . . . the limbs are never in a fixed, still relationship . . . creating the impression that the body is constantly engaged in transitions." Childs has brought the esthetic of the Judson performers, designed (in Rainer's words) to impart to dance a "factual quality," a deliberately matter-of-fact, more "banal quality of physical being in performance," into confrontation with the high energies and lyrical solemnity of the classical dance ideal. Many of the movements that she recasts are ballet movements. In ballet, positions are reached, then held, allowed to shine. In Childs's choreography, the classical position—arabesque, attitude, tendu plié, etc.—is taken, cleanly, but only for a split second. Childs doesn't use in-place movements (like penché, passé developpé, grands battements) that "show" positions, that display technique. Reacting against the modern-dance ideal, exemplified by Graham, of dance as a succession of climaxes, Cunningham and, in more radical form, the Judson choreographers proposed a style of movement that has no climaxes, in which nothing is dramatically framed. From that esthetic Childs has retained the prohibition against making positions that can be framed; but the taboo on climactic passages is starting to weaken. Available Light has several clearly identifiable climaxes. It also has a looser weave—perhaps because, unlike Dance and Relative Calm, the work is not divided into separate sections. Adams's score is a departure from the music Childs has previously used: instead of the sharp boundaries of earlier scores, it evolves with soft-edge transitions; it has a more obvious emotional texture and consists, most starkly in the last 15 minutes, of a succession of climaxes.

MUSIC. Before Available Light Childs had worked only with Philip Glass (three times) or with composers allied to him—Jon Gibson and Michael Riesman are both members of the Philip Glass Ensemble. The composer she chose for Available Light, John Adams, though very different from Glass, has also been labeled a minimalist—and for the work she is currently preparing, a commission from the Pacific Northwest Ballet (in Seattle), Childs is using a score by Steve Reich, another senior figure known for repetitive modular structures, a strong driving pulse. But Childs's choreography is probably not as wedded to this musical school (if such it is) as would seem. The attraction to her of these composers is that they seem to come closest in tonicity and contrapuntal vigor to what is to be found in Bach and the pre-Bachs (Telemann, Buxtehude, Corelli), and it seems plausible that in the future she will be using not only contemporaries but music from the past to which she feels an affinity.

NEO-CLASSICAL. Childs is in the course of founding, almost single-handedly, a new classicism in dance, and this includes rethinking the relation of modern dance to ballet. She is the great classical (or is it neo-classical?) choreographer in the modern (or is it post-modern?) dance tradition. It is, of course, the hallmark of a neo-classical style, whether in dance or in architecture, to be accused of being "merely" mathematical. (Thus John Martin in The New York Times in 1944, on Balanchine's Danses Concertantes: "Mr. Balanchine has done a clever, somewhat mathematical job of choreography, almost totally devoid of dancing." Childs continues to receive similar reviews.) If mathematical means quantifiably precise, insistently formal, majestic, stripped down—as in some Platonic or Palladian kingdom of forms—there is truth in the accusation.

OPENINGS. In Dance: an empty stage, and the propulsive joyousness of the music . . . and then the dancers springing in pairs from the wings, spinning, prancing, skimming across the stage. In Relative Calm: the drone . . . and the dancers already in place, sitting (in diagonal formation) on their carpets of light. In Available Light: the blast of sound that fades into a dronelike hum . . . and the dancers coming on slowly to take their positions.

ORDER. Beauty is identified with order, liveliness, serenity, inevitability.

"PATIO." 1978. I Was Sitting On My Patio This Guy Appeared I Thought I Was Hallucinating. Two-act play by Robert Wilson, décor by Wilson, co-directed and performed by Wilson and Childs. The text of the play is a monologue, spoken first by Wilson (Act I), then by Childs (Act II). Repetition as reinterpretation. Act I is five minutes longer than Act II, and audiences always laughed at different moments in each act, for the way Wilson and Childs said the lines was designed to be contrasting in tone, emphasis, speed. The way the actors moved was similarly opposed. Wilson's movements were angular; he held himself mostly in profile. Childs's movements were constructed in curves, as a spiral. See DOUBLING.

POLITENESS. The classical tradition of dance is related to courtesy. Ballet gestures are based on a system of deference, of hierarchy, and descend from the gestures of real courts. Childs's dancers comport themselves as members of an imaginary, cosmic court, behaving with egalitarian courtliness. There are no angry or erotic emotions. The dancers are grave, imperturbable. They always leave each other enough space.

POST-MODERN. The aging of modernism was remarked by astute observers when modernism was still in its prime. "The word 'modern' has changed meaning," Cocteau observed in 1932, already situating himself safely, ruefully beyond the modern (everyone's favorite vantage point) and predicting that "the modern age will be a period between 1912 and 1930." One of modernism's perennial roles, its demise, has most recently been celebrated with the most successful of new labels—the word "post-modern," first applied to architects, now as well to visual artists and to choreographers after Cunningham. Frequently a synonym for eclectic. But sometimes conflated with MINIMALIST. As in: "History, or maybe just the upcoming season, will show that Childs is not only the apex, but also the culmination of the minimalist postmodern movement" (Allen Robertson, The Village Voice).

PRESENCE/ABSENCE. Dance, most present, incarnate of arts, is used by Childs in the service of an esthetic of absence. This principle was first acknowledged in a Dadaist way, in the notion of the blank, the gap—as in the unpainted painting that is conjured up by discussing its absence, or the drawing that is illustrated by its erasure. Thus the third section of Geranium (1965), a monologue in which Childs announces: "This is supposed to be the third section, but there really is no third section, so it might be best to refer to the third section as a gap"—and goes on to discuss ideas for the third section, such as a glass enclosure that would contain a performer. (It was constructed, and could skim about the stage, in the last piece of Childs's first period, Vehicle—presented in 1966 in the series "Nine Evenings: Theatre and Engineering"—which has a dancer inside a mobile plexiglas box.) Many of the early solos are exercises in absence. Street Dance begins with Childs disappearing into the elevator, after pushing the button of the tape recorder. (She reappears below on the street.) In Carnation, Childs does a disappearing act under a white sheet. In her very first piece, Pastime, Childs assumes various poses inside a stretchable blue jersey bag. What starts as a Dadaist performance is eventually raised to a positive principle: a mysticism of space. The dancers are disembodied, dematerialized. The Duchampian whimsicality of non- or anti-appearance is replaced by the Mallarméan idea of beauty as a tribute to the ineffable, to absence.

QUARTETS. Favorite formation in Childs's choreography, the first multiple of two. Among the short works choreographed for four dancers are Calico Mingling (1973), for four women, and Radial Courses (1976), for two women and two men. In Relative Calm, the second section is for a quartet formation restocked several times from among eight dancers. Its sequel is the fourth section, which consists of two quartets, one of women and one of men.

"RELATIVE CALM." 1981. The second of Childs's evening-length productions. Music by Jon Gibson, decor and lighting by Robert Wilson. Ninety-five minutes, a prologue and four sections, for nine dancers. Though not so labeled, the sections make up one of the traditional four-part sequences: The Times of Day. This is the Symbolic-Romantic version of the subject: Runge rather than Hogarth. Prologue: a star backdrop and the moon swinging pendulum-like in front of the dancers sitting in diagonal formation in carpets of light. The first section, "Rise," is early dawn—the dancers are in identical white jumpsuits; at the end, the stage brightens and the stars blanch out. "Race" is day; the dancers are in beige; it contains an homage to the quotidian, in the form of some inane sentences projected on the cyclorama and the brief appearance of a live dog. "Reach," the solo, is twilight—the stars start to come out—and both stage and cyclorama are cut diagonally, with half of the stage and half of the cyc in shadow, and Childs, in black, dancing in a diagonal wedge of light. "Return," with the dancers in royal blue, is starry, electric night. The conceit of the times of day evolved in conversations between Childs and Wilson; Childs invented the titles of the four sections, whose function was both to convey and to obscure a little the literalness of the scenic underpinning supplied by Wilson's set and lighting.

REPETITION. Childs's early notion of repetition, in the sprightly "silent" dances of the 1970s: dancers using the same steps or families of movements, going in and out of sync with each other. The notion becomes more complex in Childs's solo in Einstein on the Beach: repetition as an accumulation of effects, as layering. (Versus the repetition-as-reinterpretation of Patio.) Strictly speaking, there is of course no repetition in Childs's work, but rather a certain strict use of thematic materials, which are first stated and then gradually modified at a different rate of change (more evenly, not expressionistically) than audiences are accustomed to. In contrast to Wilson's Judson-derived dynamics of slow movement, thin difference, low-contrast change, Childs's work since the late 1970s has a greater density of movement, fast rhythms, and shies away from tableaux. (Whereas Wilson's work tends naturally to take long forms, Childs's work is only gradually assuming them.) Though usually presented as cool choice, repetition always suggests perfectionist zeal. Rainer in 1966 defended repetition because it makes movement appear "more objectlike"—more matter-of-fact, neutral, unemphatic. But repetition is also a method for inducing bliss. Repetition is a technique that seems to suggest simplicity, that in principle enhances legibility or intelligibility. (Rainer: "literally making the material easier to see.") A way of ordering material associated with the idea of the minimal, it could more accurately be called the modern maximalism: repetition as exhaustive patterning; the exhausting of possibilities. Far from making material neutral, the effect is vertiginous, as in much of Childs's recent work—duplications, mirrorings, that are the kinetic equivalent of the static mise-en-abîme. See DOUBLING.

Childs's dancers are anything but automata. To substitute rules or patterns for subjectivity in demeanor is the prerequisite for grace.

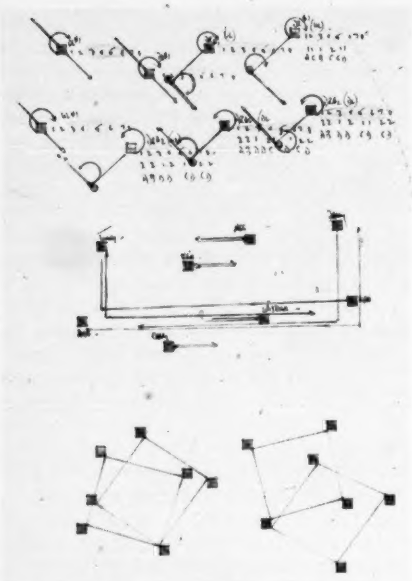
REVIEWERS. Among the responses to the work of the mid-1970s: it's weights and measures, it's children's games, it's "people jogging in unison" (Clive Barnes, The New York Times, on Radial Courses). Monotonous, simple-minded . . . this-is-not-dance. And these-are-not-dancers. If not assimilated to the athletic (Childs's dancers are often praised as marathoners), then the work is described as cerebral. See NEO-CLASSICAL. After being accused of being cerebral or merely mathematical, neo-classical work—following a decent lapse of time, and some lavishly favorable reviews—will eventually be found very beautiful. Thus Deborah Jowitt, The Village Voice, in 1981: "In 1977 Lucinda Childs showed her Melody Excerpt and Interior Drama, and I didn't think much of them. Now they strike me as very beautiful, even thrilling." The trouble is that, once acknowledged as not boringly cerebral but in fact extremely beautiful, neo-classical art soon attracts a new type of disparagement. It is thought "merely" beautiful or elegant. Childs's work has also been called primitive or innocent—"prehistoric ballet" was Arlene Croce's phrase—as if Childs didn't know what she was doing, and was unaware of the balletic sources of much of her dance vocabulary. For other and related reactions, see POST-MODERN, MINIMALIST, WATCHMAKER.

ROMANTIC. The "classical" tradition in dance is romantic, so that a neo-classical idiom in dance will inevitably be, in a restrained key, neo-romantic. (But even this restraint is appropriate. Romantic art is, above all, self-conscious and critical.) The play of ghost, shadow, doppelgänger in Dance. The Pythagorean beauty of Relative Calm, with its allegorical underpinning of The Four Times of Day. (The contact with Wilson's allegorizing sensibility and its innate affinities to a certain German romanticism, helped Childs move away from a dead-end puritanism in her own sensibility.) There are Romantic echoes in all the work since 1979. In Dance, having two solo sections, one in black ("Dance #2") and one in white ("Dance #4"), like Swan Lake's Odile/Odette. In Available Light, the arrival of Childs in the corridor, like the Queen of the Wilis in Giselle. When Available Light was first presented—in July 1983, at the Chateauvallon Dance Festival in an open-air version, with no set and with the dancers in the company's all-purpose touring costumes, the white jumpsuits of the first section of Relative Calm—one saw the choreography in its naked state: without white tutus but very much a ballet blanc.

SCORES. Childs's tightly organized choreographic structures have a graphically remarkable equivalent in the elaborate scores, really spatial maps, she makes for each of her dances—devising a different notation for each new work. Intervals of time as visualized in spatial patterns.

SOLOS. Childs choreographs for herself differently than for the rest of the company. As a soloist she gives herself a wider range of dynamic changes, more evolution in the material (rather than in space). There are two lengthy solos in Dance, one in Relative Calm. In Available Light, which is not divided into separate sections, Childs functions more as a member of the ensemble, less as a soloist. Still, she is separate—in white, when most of the dancers are in red or black. Although she has no solo section as such where she appears alone on stage, she is the only dancer who comes and goes. The rest of the company remains on stage for the entire 55 minutes (except for one brief pause when the music downshifts, and all ten go off, and then return). From her early solos, with their theme of the absent or disappearing performer, to her privileged comings and goings in Available Light, Childs's work has always been structured around an absence. Her solo presence

VOL
7
1
ISS
1 1
DE
1983
UMI



Lucinda Childs: Choreographic score for end of opening passage of Available Light.

Childs: Score for a passage from "Race," the second section of Relative Calm.

Childs: Score for a passage from "Return," the fourth section of Relative Calm.

Childs: Score for the opening movements of Available Light.

itself—grave, hieratic, not wholly expressive—is poised on the brink between presence and absence. Childs's authority, special magic as a solo performer, lies in the embodying of a kind of negative presence.

SPACE. Dancers are travelers, "space eaters" (Childs's words), using up a given space in a patterned, comprehensive way. (An early didactic solo, Particular Reel, 1973, in which Childs covers the stage in ten rows from right to left and then in ten rows from left to right, ending at the point where she started, is a model demonstration of the project of using up space.) The more space the better. Dancers are pulled along a line; and their relations are conceived as parallel, perpendicular, etc. Dancers are always, indefatigably, going somewhere. In a state of non-imploring urgency, they never stop; though they may go into movement-absence, they do so in order to repopulate the space. When dancers "drop out," others come in.

TITLES. After the capers of the mid-1960s, titles have been sober: usually two words, adjective and noun; often a structure or pattern word with a movement word: as in Checkered Drift, Calico Mingling, Reclining Rondo, Transverse Exchanges, Radial Courses. A favorite title form is a contradiction, an oxymoron—one that, in recent works, suggests the paradoxes of self-control: Relative Calm, Formal Abandon. Or a stylish appreciation of the possible: Available Light.

UNAVAILABLE. Dance is about the absent or unavailable object of desire.

VOLITION. The more formal dance is shown to be, the weaker the possible attributions of volition. Dancers in formations—all this mirroring, duplicating and inverting of movement removes the impression of subjectivity. So does the neutral performance mask—the fact that the dancers don't look at each other, or at the audience. (The effect is comparable to the anti-acting style favored by Bresson.) Dancers stop because they are being rearranged or repatterned, not because of any emotion or volition. To substitute rules or patterns—Kleist imagined them as mechanisms—for subjectivity in demeanor and movement is the prerequisite of grace. But the dancers are anything but automata.

WATCHMAKER. Favorite reviewers' metaphor. Childs as watchmaker, her work as choreographic clockwork. If the watch is specified it is not Japanese—as in, "her dances are as delicately constructed as the finest Swiss watches" (Jack Anderson, The New York Times).

WORLD. Dance, since the Romantics, has been about a phantom world. Childs's counts, like the tiny dots of color in the paintings of Seurat, are the building blocks of an art of phantom presences. Things which both are and are not: The moment of plenitude is an evocation of absence; pleasure—as in La Grande Jatte—is shown as rigidity, restraint.

YEARNING. The body in diagonal is a pose of outreach, hailing; of longing—for space itself. However large, the stage is never large enough. Her choreography projects on the finite stage an infinitely large space or territory. Childs's love of space produces movements and structures—among them, the modalities of repetition—that seem choreographic equivalents of Zeno's arguments (called paradoxes) on the subject of motion, according to which, since any line is infinitely divisible, and will be made up of an infinite number of units, each of which has some magnitude, every finite line or space is in fact infinitely great; and, despite appearances, no moving object ever traverses any distance at all.

ZENO'S TERRITORY. Childs's early, provisional title for the work now known as Available Light. ☐

"For 'Available Light': A Brief Lexicon" copyright ©1983 by Susan Sontag. Used by permission of the author.

Author: Susan Sontag's most recent books are* I, etcetera (stories) and Under the Sign of Saturn *(essays). She is writing her third novel.

Fantin-Latour: The Reticent Image

Wielding a double-edged brush, Henri Fantin-Latour oscillated between docu-portraits of his more illustrious 19th-century peers and works of sheer fantasy. A recent retrospective revealed an artist caught between the power of Realism and the pull of Symbolism.

BY JOHN JACOBUS

Henri Fantin-Latour: The Two Sisters, 1859, oil on canvas, 38 by 50 inches. City Art Museum, Saint Louis.

It is an index of the unresolved complexity of his work that Henri Fantin-Latour (1836–1904), who played a key supporting role in the prehistory of Impressionism, has, in our own day, been included in major exhibitions of Realism (Cleveland, 1980) and Symbolism (Hayward Gallery, London, 1972). Given the diversity of his interests and accomplishments, it is all the more baffling that his work seemed stretched a trifle thin when presented in extenso in the recent retrospective that traveled from Paris to Ottawa and San Francisco. Yet the unique personal character and intrinsic quality, if somewhat restricted historical stature, of his oeuvre was confirmed by this generally inclusive exhibition, as well as by the show's painstaking, informative catalogue. Organized by Douglas Druick and Michel Hoog, the exhibition was an excellent opportunity to review the scope and importance of Fantin's work.

Fantin, with his customary dry, laconic style, remains an artist ready-made to confound the critic, an intriguing enigma. At first he appeared as an artist of his own time, extensively if not exclusively concerned with celebrating and documenting the art world around him. Yet after 1870 he gradually withdrew from the company of many of those with whom he had once made common cause. At the outset of his career he was artistically as well as personally allied with both Manet and Whistler, two painters whose careers were destined to soar while his remained earthbound. By the 1870s he had become incapable of appreciating the newer aspects of Whistler's painting, and although he

VOL
7
1
ISS
11
DE
1983
UMI

Homage to Eugène Delacroix, 1864, oil on canvas, 62 by 97 inches. Musée d'Orsay, Galerie du Jeu de Paume, Paris.

always remained friendly with Manet, he disapproved of the latter's gravitation towards the Impressionists.

It helps to consider Fantin's work in the company of the paintings of his more famous friends: the totality of his career takes on its full meaning only in the light (or shadow) of their more sweeping accomplishments. Collectively and individually his work, like his personality, is withdrawn, retiring, sometimes excessively modest and self-effacing in style, especially when compared with the more extroverted, adventurous paintings of Manet and Whistler, or of Degas. Fantin's rigid compositional format, caught between the values of Realism on the one hand and Academic Classicism on the other, remains remarkably constant throughout his long career.

There is a certain stubbornness not only in the shallow frontality of his compositions, whether in portraiture, still life or his more fantastic imaginary compositions, but also in the extremely limited nature of his evolution (more precisely the lack of it) over a 40-year period. More than most major artists of his day, he seems to have ended about where he began. Once formed, he did not allow outside influences to modify or deflect the practice of his craft. In the end Fantin proved to be a surprisingly isolated artist, solitary if not exactly alienated, as were so many of his younger contemporaries. Indeed, the bourgeois nature of his subjects seems to reinforce the closed, stiff character of his composition.

At the commencement of their professional careers, Fantin, Whistler and Manet had major works rejected at the Salon of 1859. In retrospect, Fantin's Two Sisters, Whistler's At the Piano and Manet's Absinthe Drinker owe, in varying degrees, much to the achievement of the Realist movement. Fantin's double portrait was but the first of a series of group portraits, sometimes conceived as genre compositions, for which he would be noted throughout his career. The shallow space against which the compact, flattened design of the figures is placed is not only the hallmark of Fantin's compositional practice for his entire career, but is characteristic of the works of innumerable artists of the late '50s and into the '60s. The seeds of his major group portraits of the next decade are planted here, notably the Homage to Delacroix (Salon of 1864) and An Atelier in the Batignolles (Salon of 1870), not to mention such later works as The Dubourg Family (Salon of 1878) and The Drawing Lesson (Salon of 1879).

Indeed, if he had painted nothing else of value save the two monumental group portraits of contemporary artists, the Homage to Delacroix and An Atelier in the Batignolles, Fantin would merit a distinctive niche in the history of 19th-century French painting. Both pictures, in their final versions, offer a constrained, slightly awkward collection of self-contained individuals whose blunt demeanor is not susceptible of easy unification as a group. Both canvases seem, superficially, to belong to the Realist tradition, and to have a documentary air analogous to that of 17th-century Dutch corporate portraits. However, the Realist, documentary aspect is easily exaggerated, since both groupings of contemporary celebrities or near-celebrities are arbitrary in numerous ways, as much the creation of Fantin's imagination as of his formidable powers of observation.

In the Homage, a painted portrait of Delacroix, curiously derived from a photograph of the recently deceased Romantic painter, is the central focal point. It was substituted for a sculpted bust which figures conspicuously in the numerous preparatory studies. In contrast to the rigidity of the final canvas, the format of the studies is more conventionally fluent, and the general effect a curious blend of the real and the fanciful. This progression from a looser, more spontaneous composition to a final one that is rigid and frontal is typical of the development of other complex designs by Fantin, and indicates the difficulties that he encountered in reconciling the realist and imaginative sides of his temperament.

An Atelier in the Batignolles, 1870, oil on canvas, 79 by 107 inches. Musée d'Orsay, Jeu de Paume, Paris.

Centrally situated, Delacroix's portrait is flanked by the erect figures of Whistler on the left and Manet on the right. Their presence in what amounts to positions of honor is the consequence of their importance, in Fantin's judgment, as leaders of the new movement in painting rather than the result of any special devotion on their part to Delacroix's paintings. In fact it is clear that the older painter was much more a symbolic hero to the new generation than a specific stylistic influence. Nor is it a coincidence that Whistler, with his White Girl, and Manet, with his Déjeuner sur l'herbe, had been the most notorious artists in the previous season's Salon des Refusés.

In the front row of Homage, Baudelaire is seated to the far right, while Champfleury, the Realist champion, is granted an apparently more important position, just below and to the right of the central icon of Delacroix. This is cause for comment since Baudelaire had long been the most ardent supporter of Delacroix (going back to his Salon of 1845) and was publishing a series of articles devoted to his hero just as Fantin was beginning his composition. In sum, the Homage to Delacroix is not as literal a testimony as the title might suggest, and as would be the case with a later picture, The Commemoration, 1876, dedicated to the memory of Berlioz. Instead, it is an invocation in which the person of Delacroix is conjured up to lend support to new tendencies in painting that, in life, he would very likely have rejected.

If he had painted nothing else save the "Homage to Delacroix" and "An Atelier in the Batignolles," Fantin would merit a distinctive niche in the history of 19th-century French painting.

It was in part to correct these inconsistencies and ambiguities that Fantin set forth on the morrow of the 1864 Salon upon two new group compositions that were intended to further clarify his artistic ideals for the critics and the public. These two projects, one to be called Truth, the other The Dinner, finally coalesced into a single large canvas, The Toast! Homage to Truth, that was dispatched to the Salon of 1865. Even before its completion Fantin had his doubts about this new work, in which a group of artists and their friends (once more conspicuously including Whistler and Manet) cluster about a standing nude allegorical figure of

VOL 71
ISS 11
DE 1983
UMI

Fantasy, 1863, oil on canvas, 38 by 51 inches. Montreal Museum of Fine Arts.

Truth, clasping a mirror in her upraised hand. To a considerable extent the picture's problem concerned the reconciliation of real and imaginary figures in a single composition. When confronted with his own work at the Salon, Fantin was so disenchanted that he subsequently destroyed the canvas, preserving only three portrait fragments, one of which was of Whistler.

The failure of this picture, of which we can gain a rough idea from a number of studies, illustrates the central dilemma of Fantin's entire career. It remained impossible for him to reconcile his penetrating observation of reality manifested in his portraits and still lifes, notably in his popular flower pieces, with his lifelong penchant for imaginative and fantastic compositions, of which the 1863 Fantasy, exhibited at the Salon des Refusés, is a typical example. Here the subject, though indecipherable, is vaguely suggestive of a Venetian-like pageant; the work is testimony to his great admiration for Veronese, whose Wedding Feast at Cana he copied on at least five occasions, one as late as 1865–67. Yet Fantasy curiously offers vaguely Sino-Japanese details such as the architectural feature at the upper right. It is also worth noting that Fantin's passion for the music of Richard Wagner (which he shared with, among others, Baudelaire) was manifest in his work as early as 1862, with his first lithograph of the Tannhäuser Venusberg. This composition, which the artist would take up again more than a decade later, is noteworthy for its imaginative character; it was not visually based upon the notorious Paris Opera production of the previous year, which Fantin had in fact failed to see because of the suspension of later performances by the irate composer. Rather, the Venusberg composition seems to have been distantly influenced by the Giorgione/Titian Pastoral Concert, a painting that figures more conspicuously in the genealogy of Manet's Déjeuner sur l'herbe.

> It helps to consider Fantin's work in the company of the paintings of his more famous friends: his career takes on its full meaning only in the light (or shadow) of their more sweeping achievements.

All the more remarkable, then, that this intuitively visionary artist could paint one of the most convincingly realistic portraits of the period, that of Manet, exhibited at the Salon of 1867, contemporaneously with the latter's own retrospective exhibition of his work housed in a temporary pavilion near the Place d'Alma. Understandably, this portrait has been one of the most widely admired of Fantin's works. Posed against a neutral background, in a top hat, firmly clenching his walking stick in both hands and confronting the spectator with a direct, unavoidable gaze, Fantin's model is more the dandy and flâneur than the artist.

It was not until 1870 that Fantin would again attack the problems entailed in a large group portrait, a painting in which, once again, his friend Manet would play an important role, this time as an artist at work. An Atelier in the Batignolles, sent to the Salon of 1870, is more specifically an homage to a particular artist than the picture dedicated to Delacroix six years earlier. Now, a living artist, Manet, engaged in painting a portrait of the critic Zacharie Astruc (whose likeness Manet had actually committed to canvas in 1866), is the object of a serious if somewhat ill-focused gathering. Whistler, conspicuously absent, had by this time ceased to frequent Paris, and his once-ardent friendship with Fantin had cooled. Baudelaire had died in 1867, and in a sense his place as the defender of modernist painting was now taken by Emile Zola, whose articles in defense of Manet had been gathered together in 1866. Fantin himself, who had appeared as the working painter (in his shirtsleeves) in 1864, is now no longer present, and the three major painters included are Bazille (the tall figure second from the right), Renoir (to Zola's left, his head curiously framed by the empty picture frame on the wall—was it originally to have had some other function?) and Monet (seemingly added as an afterthought at the far right, overwhelmed by the towering figure of Bazille).

The frontal symmetry of the 1864 Homage here gives way to a right-to-left movement accomplished through the attentive glances of some of the figures in the right half of the picture. If the 1870 composition is more adventurous, it is less resolved than before, and this is in part caused by the ambiguity of Manet's gaze: is he looking at us, or is he looking at his model, Astruc? The awkward formality of these as well as other multiple portraits by Fantin contrasts with the spontaneously modern and informal gathering of some of the same personalities in Bazille's own studio composition, also of 1870. In any case, on the basis of Fantin's Homage, the intervening portrait of Manet and the Atelier, Fantin can seem to be merely a documentary artist—one whose chief function was to celebrate an illustrious contemporary whose paintings had been so consistently savaged by the critics throughout the 1860s.

That Fantin's role in history was considerably grander than that of a pictorial biographer is demonstrated by the paintings, drawings and lithographs that he continued to produce from the 1870s until his death in 1904. These fall into isolated categories: portraits, still lifes (especially the flower pieces) and the imaginative works (including Wagnerian and related themes), these last increasingly offering analogies with the various strains of Symbolism starting to appear in painting after 1870. Fantin found himself in opposition to the Impressionists and was relieved that Manet declined to exhibit with them in 1874 and subsequently. Even though Monet and Renoir had found a place in An Atelier in 1870, for Fantin these were the painters of Camille (Monet, 1866) and of At The Inn of Mother Anthony, Marlotte (Renoir, 1866), not the painters of the pioneering Impressionist views of La Grenouillère as rendered by both artists during the summer of 1869.

Of his works subsequent to 1870, The Commemoration, sent to the 1876 Salon, is perhaps the most distinctive, indeed unusual. The painting was preceded by several studies and a lithograph carried out the previous year that were themselves provoked by a recent performance of Berlioz's Romeo and Juliet. Berlioz was of course but one more Romantic avatar for Fantin, along with Delacroix and Wagner (Schumann was another). The Commemoration is in effect a translation into paint of a type of public or funereal monument in stone, and in this largely imaginative genre the painter did not have to face the sort of irreconcilable problem that plagued such projects as The Toast! Homage to Truth. In The Commemoration there was no question of including a portrait of Berlioz, and, with the exception of the fragmentary view from behind of Fantin himself in the lower right corner, all the mourners are conventional, recognizable allegorical figures.

A work such as The Drawing Lesson, exhibited at the 1879 Salon, illustrates the other side of the artist's persistent tendency to render homage to

The Commemoration, 1875, lithograph, 24 by 19 inches. Boston Public Library.

Initial idea for The Drawing Lesson, 1879, black chalk on laid paper, 11 by 13 inches. Musée du Louvre, Cabinet des dessins, Paris.

VOL 71 ISS 11 DE 1983 UMI

Edouard Manet, 1867, oil on canvas, 46 by 31½ inches. The Art Institute of Chicago.

artistic creation in his choice of subjects. It is a dual portrait of two young women at work in the artist's studio, the typical triangular composition anchored on the left by an appropriate still life of flowers and studio objects. No fanciful, imaginary or allegorical elements intrude; the concept is gracefully natural and the execution appropriately realistic. It would seem that Fantin has, at this stage in his career, even more deliberately segregated his contrasting realist and imaginative tendencies, further heightening the inherent, unresolved contradictions in his artistic personality.

However provocative his imaginative and musically inspired compositions continued to be, it is in several of the portraits of the 1870s and '80s that Fantin best demonstrated his unique skills of observation and composition. The 1875 painting, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Edwards (the sitters were his English sponsors and dealers), reveals the restrained formal and psychological intensity already apparent in the 1867 Manet. Even more ambitious is The Dubourg Family, 1878, a foursome including the figure of Fantin's wife, Victoria, standing at the right. The bourgeois rectitude of this admirably controlled, self-contained composition demands comparison with similar family portraits by Whistler, Degas or Manet of nearly 20 years before, and even calls to mind certain of Ingres's early family portrait drawings. This tense, retardataire quality is part and parcel of Fantin's working esthetic, the key factor that establishes not only his uniqueness but also his relative isolation as an artist.

Probably the finest of his later portraits is that of his sister-in-law (standing at the left in The Dubourg Family), Charlotte Dubourg, 1882, which did not appear at the Salon until 1887. It is difficult from our vantage point to determine to what degree the intense, penetrating qualities of this likeness are dependent on the painter, to what degree on the sitter. Clearly she exercised a fascination upon the artist; her features come off more vividly than those of her sister, Fantin's wife, Victoria, who is to be seen individually and in groups in other of the artist's portraits. It would seem that throughout his life Fantin was subject to a number of enthusiasms that profoundly affected the course of his art. They ranged from Veronese and Delacroix to Wagner, from Manet and Whistler to Berlioz. From the visual evidence, it would seem that Mlle Charlotte Dubourg, with her unforgettable features and arresting stare, was another of these affecting inspirations. She, like the others, was curiously capable of leading the artist beyond his shy, reticent manner, which otherwise kept his work from consistently reaching the heights attained by his illustrious contemporaries. □

Posed with top hat and walking stick, Fantin's Manet confronts the spectator with a direct, unavoidable gaze. He is more the dandy and the flaneur than the artist.

The exhibition "Fantin-Latour" was jointly organized by the Réunion des Musées nationaux, the National Gallery of Canada, and the Fine Arts Museums of San Francisco; its curators were Douglas Druick, Curator of Prints at the National Gallery of Canada, and Michel Hoog, Conservateur du Musée de l'Orangerie. The show originated at the Grand Palais, Paris, in Nov. 1982, traveled to the National Gallery of Canada, Ottawa, and closed at the California Palace of the Legion of Honor, San Francisco, in Sept. 1983.

Author: John Jacobus is Leon E. Williams Professor of Art at Dartmouth College.

Mlle. Charlotte Dubourg, 1882, oil on canvas, 45 by 39 inches. Musée d'Orsay, Galerie du Jeu de Paume, Paris.

VOL
7
1
ISS
1 1
DE
1983
UMI

Larry Rivers: Now and Then, 1981, acrylic on canvas, 76⅛ by 80½ inches. Marlborough Gallery.

Larry Rivers Painter Familias

A recent mini-retrospective offered many glimpses of Rivers's "extended family," but expunged the absurd, dirty-minded revelations of obsessions and failures that are the truly interesting aspects of any autobiography.

BY GARY INDIANA

The Journey, 1956, oil and charcoal on canvas, 104 by 115 inches. Collection the artist.

Performing for the Family" was the summery title of Larry Rivers's mini-retrospective at the Guild Hall Museum in East Hampton this summer, and its contents reinforced the didactic personal conceit. Along with portraits of intimate friends, offspring, colleagues, the artist's wife and the artist's mother-in-law, numerous family snapshots were on view (graduation portraits, baby pictures, etc.), as well as a hilarious videotape of the artist's mother, garrulously dispensing a mother's wisdom nonstop for 46 minutes. A program of films in which the artist appears ran concurrently with the show: Rudolph Burckhardt's Mounting Tension (1950) and A Day in the Life of a Cleaning Women (1953), Robert Frank's Pull My Daisy (1959), and Lovesick (1982), a Dudley Moore epic directed by Marshall Brickman—which I must confess I skipped. The artist himself appears frequently in his own work—by himself, en famille or cuddled by a somewhat chunky young thing in a one-piece bathing suit.

The show offered a consistent, even plodding survey of stylistic mutations from the 1950s onward, as well as a broad sampling of the different materials Rivers has worked with. There were numerous oils, acrylics, pencil drawings; a doughy-looking plaster sculpture next to a bronze cast of the same piece; a handsome bronze head, Portrait of John Bernard Myers (Rivers's first dealer); color pencil works; one of the Cedar Bar menu paintings; one of the large acrylic paintings of John Ashbery, in which an Ashbery poem fills the top half of the canvas; the wood-and-plexiglas Elimination of Nostalgia, a cleverly blocked family grouping redolent of backyard barbecues and summer leisure; and, among the latest works, four particularly ambitious large canvases: Golden Oldies (1977–78), Now and Then (1981), From Photos of Gwynne and Emma Rivers (1981) and On The Phone (1981).

While the show tried hard for a retrospective feeling, many of Rivers's most appealing works were either unavailable or unassimilable within the

VOL 71 ISS 11 DE 1983 UMI

New York 1950–60 (in collaboration with Kenneth Koch), 1961, oil and charcoal on canvas, 69 by 84 inches.

“family” context. The gorgeous pictures Rivers extrapolated from Japanese coloring books in the early ’70s, or a work incorporating metal foil from the same period, might have ameliorated the slightly clammy atmosphere generated by the prevailing theme of the artist and his extended family. What one felt about the show depended partly on how chummy one cared to get with this particular assortment of depicted individuals.

The emphasis here was on mastery: the assured, sharp draftsmanship that seemed to be there from the beginning, in early pencil drawings on paper, their surfaces audaciously smudged here and there as if to rub away any frozen, purely photographic notion of resemblance. The subjects are often missing an eye, an absence that strengthens those features that are precisely delineated and bolsters the impression that something timeless and unique within the subject has half-emerged upon the surface of the paper. In a drawing from the early ’60s, De Kooning in My Texas Hat, the Rivers line has already taken on the kind of glamour emitted by Japanese calligraphy. The de Kooning drawing (which materializes again in Golden Oldies) is a telegram of the man himself, perhaps the definitive icon of Abstract Expressionism’s Greta Garbo. An earlier drawing in the show, Berdie’s Hands and Feet, has the quickly jotted demeanor of a study sketch, busy with tense lines and appealingly splattered with pastel color. What both drawings share is a compositional felicity that appears almost incidentally in the early drawing, calculatedly in the later one.

Of Rivers’s Abstract-Expressionist period in painting, the show offered The Journey (1956), a monumental canvas with figures sunk into, or floating across, thinly applied color areas slapped on in dribbling swatches; the figures themselves are rendered in a variety of styles from the classical to the crude, in varying states of completion. Other paintings from the same time reiterated the blending of “pure paint” and representation: Double Portrait of Berdie (1953) and O’Hara (1954), both suggesting Raphel Soyer on a mild dose of mescaline; Portrait of Berdie (1953), its inscription of features on a nearly obliterated, violently carved form looking like a de Kooning impersonating a Picasso; Joseph (1954), a standing male nude leaning on a bookcase, the figure surrounded by art books, a canvas depicting a female nude, a flower drawing. Even when the tonal scheme of these ’50s paintings is rather dark, the light resembles Impressionist light, softening contours, thrusting key details forward while pushing others into a background where formal solutions to problems posed in nonfigurative art operate as a duplicate text. Forms are inferred from cues offered by a few strident lines, smeared calligraphy and scattered areas of naturalistic rendering.

Many seldom-seen small works livened the “retro” aspect of the show: the maquette for the cover of Frank O’Hara’s selected poems, a giddy cutout illustration for a Kenneth Koch book. There was also the vast New York 1950–1960, with Koch’s writing squiggling across lubricious squares and stripes of hard color and jumping fields of beige, white and gray. Here, New York 1950–1960 serves as the concluding argument in Rivers's dialogue with Abstract Expressionism.

A description of the later works would be misleading without some enumeration of what Rivers has been depicting since the '50s. His singularity as an artist emerged in that nebulous interzone between American painting's Prometheus syndrome and the flashbulb profundities of Pop Art. In the middle and late '50s, America was not quite ready for the exact reflection of commodity fetishism that crystallized in Andy Warhol. But America was tired of the fatuous spirituality and exacerbated mythos of pure color, pure painting, art as saintly hermeticism. It wanted images of itself that looked modern enough to be taken seriously, which meant accepting a certain ironic detachment from subject matter. In that loosening moment between the sublime and the ridiculous, America discovered Larry Rivers—along with Jasper Johns and Robert Rauschenberg. These were artists of obvious high skill, risk-takers able to promote a sense of outrage for a public that demanded outrage as foreplay to the crushing embrace of its mass media.

The big, late canvases at Guild Hall gave a strong sense of Rivers's inexhaustible vitality, his brilliant color sense, and his innovative skill at composition, but only a fractional idea of his wit.

Portrait of Berdie, 1953, 80¾ by 54¼ inches. Museum of Art, Rhode Island School of Design.

But Rivers never really became installed in the pantheon of blue-chip geniuses, even though his work has sold briskly and expensively for several decades. For one thing, the work was never confusing (or confused) enough in its intentions to appear any deeper than itself, as Abstract Expressionism had; its personalism, its appropriation of found images that were visually appealing in their original state (as contrasted with the inflations of banal advertising design and "topical" garish objects that initially characterized Pop), were taken as signs of a rather naive predilection for the merely beautiful which verged on illustration—illustration tarted up with arty-looking brushstrokes. The work, moreover, seemed only superficially involved with art-historical schemes of "progress." Worse, the ego purveyed by the work was too genial, too jokey. Instead of the simmering, inarticulate volcano the artist was supposed to be in the 1950s (a noxious concept we've regressed to in the '80s), or the gelid, impassive tourist of mass culture s/he was expected to seem in the 1960s, Rivers came across as a nice Jewish guy who liked to paint and draw like the old masters, who changed to new techniques to make sure the stuff got attention.

In short, Rivers's output was often considered too explicit, too focused on the tangible, too funny. By the '60s, of course, it was perfectly permissible to make jokes in a work of art, and to make works of art that were jokes. But they had to be fairly academic jokes about art that pointed directly back to Duchamp's urinal,

VOL 71 ISS 11 DE 1983 UMI

Poem and Portrait of John Ashbery, 1977, acrylic on canvas, 76 by 58 inches.

Golden Oldies '60s, 1977–78, acrylic and which is why they often lacked a punch line. Rivers's Lampman Loves It, the first major American work to celebrate anal intercourse, was clearly beyond the pale of art-world humor, even in 1966. And the historical paintings, the Dutch Masters and Civil War Vets, Washington Crossing the Delaware, Napoleon as The Second Greatest Homosexual, et al., regurgitated images of an historical continuum the '60s was determined to banish from consciousness, the better to rub our noses in now. Everyone liked Larry Rivers's paintings, just as everyone liked expensive, silly Hollywood movies—visually spectacular, but not to be taken very seriously.

This long-standing perception of Rivers (by no means shared by everyone) may have been what the Guild Hall show was intended to rebut. Autobiography is the American version of seriousness—a stark glimpse into the primal depths of the artist's being. The mother-in-law, the ex-wife, the girlfriends, the major poet friends, Bill de Kooning—all this is very pretty, and often very moving. The selection of later work, however, suffers because the truly interesting aspects of any autobiography are the absurd, dirty-minded revelations of the artist's obsessions and failures. No Bad Witch syringes, no nine-inch protrusions of America's No. 1 Problem, no plundering Japanese penises here. The big mixed mediums on canvas, 106 by 144 inches. Collection Jeffrey H. Loria.

late canvases at Guild Hall gave a strong sense of Rivers's inexhaustible vitality, his brilliant color sense, and his innovative skill at composition, but only a fractional idea of his wit.

One can sympathize with the desire to foreground painterly qualities instead of Rivers's spectacular forays into depravity and slapstick. Canvases like Now and Then (1981), with its bravura monochrome and serial imagery, or Poem and Portrait of John Ashbery (1977) with its rainbow overlays and disarmingly smart graphics, convey an autumnal grace by means of an almost mechanical style—a difficult trick, to say the least. Golden Oldies '60s (1977–78), a collage reprise of Rivers's favorite images (Napoleon, French money, Camel packages, the Dutch masters, etc.), is ample evidence that Rivers can always find a fresh way to do things; its effect is similar to the surprise of Warhol's "Reversals" series. These pictures all demonstrate the advances Rivers has made in delivering memorable images and the appropriateness of his adoption of mechanical aids like color stencil and projections. Having long ago established his mastery of draftsmanship, the shortcuts offered by these devices have freed him to explore fresh ideas about color and arrangement, and particularly winning ideas about juxtaposing unrelated images in a consistent style. (The earlier work juxtaposed unrelated styles with related images.) The problem being circumvented by exhibiting these works rather than certain others is one of sensibility.

VOL 71 ISS 11 DE 1983 UMI

On the Phone I, 1981, acrylic on canvas, 52 by 77 inches. Marlborough Gallery.

A sense of humor has always been anathema to American notions of artistic value. Humor is the wrench in the wheels of discourse, the reverse lever of dialectic. Pop Art was allowed to be funny because it seemed to be camping on American consumerism and delusions of empire, from which could be gleaned myriad poker-faced Marxist aperçus. Rivers engendered Pop as much as anyone else did, but the humor in his work was less oracular; it often used American culture as its subject, but instead of exalting banality and ugliness, it appropriated objects and images that had a nostalgic, homemade cachet. One can hardly experience nostalgia in front of a Campbell's soup can, but the fading world of America's naive past—Daniel Webster or the last Civil War veteran—can still provoke melancholy feelings and wistfulness about a simpler time. Rivers's irony is tinged with sentiment, which was to Pop Art what garlic is to a vampire.

Similarly, American art's squeamishness about eroticism is so profound and intractable it amounts to a form of cultural hysteria. It accounts for our fondness for the transcendental, the coy, the conceptual. The pleasures we allow our art to reflect are the very ones reflective people are eager to disown: mindlessness, asceticism, psychic and physical violence, alienation, death, obscurantism. Rivers's art evokes the pleasures of the good lay, the campy jest and being natural.

Jasper Johns has often perpetrated the same visual antics as Rivers, but the exegetical moss that's accumulated around Johns has a tidy, formulaic structure: the work isn't about subject, the subject is an arbitrary field for voluptuous brushstrokes and ingenious patterning. The work is precise, pure, and most carefully calculated when it looks sloppiest. It fulfills the condition of epilogue that all art after Duchamp was presumed to aspire to throughout the 1960s and most of the 1970s. Rivers, on the other hand, has seldom resisted a sight gag, or the opportunity to draw in "impure" embellishments. So much for the antiretinal.

Rivers's irony is tinged with sentiment, which was to Pop Art what garlic is to a vampire: one can hardly feel nostalgic in front of a Campbell's soup can, but America's fading past can still provoke melancholy.

Rivers's vocabulary-lesson pieces, his maps of Africa, his cigar-box covers and his unmocking renditions of Ingres and Rembrandt "golden oldies" are every bit as masterful, and certainly as modern, as Johns's Ballantine Ales, flags and targets. What they lack is the phallocratic fantasy that art has more to do with ideas than with visual pleasure, and that the artist secretes his work in a state of psychic disjunction from his daily life, serenely condensing the life of his times into universal truths. Instead, Rivers sticks himself in the picture, trying to draw while chatting on the phone, inserting phone numbers into the skimpy spots that need to be jazzed up, and shows us what being an artist in his time is really about: doing business, making deals, trying to love, trying to feel, trying to think amid a bombardment of interruptions, and trying to turn an honest dollar. And, between and during all these interruptions, trying to make art. And succeeding. ☐ Author: Gary Indiana's pamphlet Shanghai has just been published by Wedge Press.

Alfred Kubin: Decadence and Beyond

A brief survey charted the transmutation of Alfred Kubin's work from morbid fin-de-siècle fantasies to the enigmatic rustic scenes of the '20s and '30s—subtle observations of an Austria recovering from one war and then collapsing into another.

BY BROOKS ADAMS

Like an Austrian baby food not terribly well known in the States, the fantasy illustrations of Alfred Kubin (1877–1959) have nourished generations of European and American artists nevertheless. Look at the dates on the label for starters: Kubin's life encompasses a span from Art Nouveau through Abstract Expressionism to the dawn of Pop, including pit stops as various as membership in the Blaue Reiter, admiration from the Surrealists and long stints of social realism. Looking at the brief survey of his graphic art, mounted by New York's Galerie St. Etienne and drawn in large part from the Städtische Galerie im Lenbachhaus, Munich (the largest collection of Kubins outside Austria), one felt as if one were glimpsing the underbelly of 20th-century modernism, the basic source of our renewed interest in illustration and another seed that accounts for the slow rebirth of art in Eastern Europe after World War II.

Kubin is perhaps best known in this country for his outrageous early drawings done in Munich around the turn of the century. These more than fully exploit the Jugendstil zeitgeists of orientalism-as-evasion, narcissism-as-impotence and woman-as-destroyer. Fear, Sickness, Bloodsuckers and Exorcism are only a random sample of the early titles. The virtue of the Galerie St. Etienne show (as well as the cause of its slight tedium) was that it did not play up the sensationalistic, self-indulgent aspects of the early work but presented a more balanced picture of Kubin's career.

Alfred Kubin: Sickness, ca. 1902–03, ink and spray paint on paper, 13⅝ by 12⅝ inches. Städtische Galerie im Lenbachhaus, Munich.

The last New York show of Kubin in 1970–71 at Serge Sabarsky's included work up to 1924. The Galerie St. Etienne, in its fourth Kubin show since the first in 1941, delved substantially into the '30s, when Kubin was branded a "decadent" by the Nazis; it also included one work apiece from the '40s and '50s, when Kubin was hailed as a national example of Austrian survival at the Venice Bien-

VOL
7
1
ISS
1 1
DE
1983
UMI

Bloodsuckers, 1905, ink and spray paint on paper, 10½ by 7⅞ inches. Städtische Galerie im Lenbachhaus, Munich.

The Great-Grandmother, 1926, ink and watercolor on paper, 14½ by 12⅜ inches. Museum of Modern Art, New York.

Portrait of a Sick Man, 1921, ink on paper, 14 by 10⅝ inches. Städtische Galerie im Lenbachhaus, Munich.

nale (1952) and the São Paulo Bienal (1955). Like the controversial late work of de Chirico, Picabia and Picasso, the quality of later Kubin depends on whom you read.

I for one sped right past the early work, which did not seem nearly as psychotic as Kubin is supposed to have been, and stopped instead at the '20s and '30s drawings. These at first looked like rather bland book illustrations (which Kubin produced in great number)—almost Biedermeier-revival pictures that seemed to exude mental health. Gradually, however, these enigmatic rustic scenes revealed their subtle, even delicate messages from an Austria recovering from one war and then collapsing into another. Kubin's Portrait of a Sick Man (1921) is genuinely alarming. The man's tightly shut lips and eyes, large bald head and huge dimpled chin held manically rigid above a primly tied neckerchief offer an unforgettable image of psychologically damaged goods. This is someone withstanding tremendous pain or turmoil, perhaps a self-portrait at one remove in the tradition of 18th-century Austrian sculptor Franz Xavier Messerschmidt's physiognomic extremes. On the other hand, the head may be an Austrian tribute to Odilon Redon's painting Closed Eyes, which Kubin could have seen when he visited Redon in Paris. And lastly, the Portrait of a Sick Man anticipates, in its unbearable, almost laughable intensity, Arnulf Rainer's contemporary Austrian self-portraits.

> Looking at this survey of Kubin's graphic art one felt as if one were glimpsing the underbelly of 20th-century modernism, one of the sources for our renewed interest in illustration.

Less directly, I found myself seeing all kinds of connections between Kubin of the '20s and '30s and artists with whom he may have no justifiable links. Doesn't the Great-Grandmother (1926) remind you, in her cozy, gnarled way, of Grant Wood, who incidentally worked in Munich in 1928, and whose Woman with Plants (1929) may have a common source with Kubin's in Memling's portraits? Or Voice Practice (1937): don't its inverted Victorianisms (he's singing, she's playing) depend, at least indirectly, on Holman Hunt's Awakened Conscience? Perhaps most tangentially to Kubin, though most tangibly for New Yorkers in the early '80s who are just beginning to discover the joys of Georg Baselitz's 1960s drawings of crosses, entrails and faintly mangled, masturbatory "new heroes," doesn't the bawdy congregation of animals, a baby, an old crone, and Bavarian yokels in Arson: The Red Rooster (ca. 1935) ring a familiar, almost premonitory, note?

Kubin bridges the 19th and 20th centuries in ways that are too various to catalogue exhaustively but are most definitely literary and, in contrast to any false-modernist stance of illiteracy, defiantly learned. But you didn't have to be a bookworm to enjoy Kubin's drawings, which have an immediate popular appeal: Herding Cattle (ca. 1925), a roadside romp that includes a minor incident of bovine humping; or Bridge in the Bohemian Forest (ca. 1926) in which a turkey confronts a peasant woman whose pile of faggots on her back unconsciously imitates the turkey's not-yet-spread plumage. Tumult (ca. 1935) shows a crowded little room with two men and a woman brandishing a whip over an animal in what seems to be an act of ritual sacrifice or harrassment. And perhaps most typical of later Kubin, November Snow (ca. 1933) is as simple and heartrendingly significant as its subject—one yokel on land waving to another passing in his boat. Unlike Grant Wood, there is no intimation of false feeling or condescension here, nor any of the rapid sentimentality or cloying sensationalism that one senses in Kubin's early work. Rather, we see a quiet transmutation of the young Kubin's seemingly inconquerable phobias and fixations (for instance, the bloodsuckers in a 1905 drawing that devour the young man's hands and cock) into the ostensibly contained yet ineffably pungent observations of a country recluse. ☐

Author: Brooks Adams is a free-lance critic living in Manhattan.

Bridge in the Bohemian Forest, ca. 1926, ink and watercolor on paper, 12¼ by 15½ inches. Estate of Otto Kallir.

The Plague, ca. 1901, crayon and wash on paper, 12¼ by 15⅝ inches. Städtische Galerie im Lenbachhaus, Munich.

VOL

71

ISS

11

DE

1983

UMI

Mark di Suvero: To Intuit, 1983, steel and stainless steel, 12 by 25¼ by 13¾ feet. Photo Steven Sloman.

Risk & Balance: Mark di Suvero

Sensitive to sculptural as opposed to architectural scale, di Suvero's best new steel pieces combine visual sweep and detail, massive size and viewer participation.

BY WADE SAUNDERS

This spring a sizable group of Mark di Suvero's sculptures were seen in New York City for the first time since his Whitney Museum retrospective of 1975–76. Richard Bellamy had 16 small and two medium scale (by di Suvero's standards) sculptures at his Oil & Steel Gallery; three large works were set up at di Suvero's riverfront studio in Long Island City and one at SUNY Purchase. The shows again evidenced the disparity in importance and invention between di Suvero's large and small works, a disparity apparent at the Whitney in 1976. His best pieces are as good as ever. They set a tone for public sculpture, but they aren't influential or decisive, in the way his earlier works were, because their parameters are known and have been absorbed. His weaker sculptures, mainly among the smaller pieces, often lack urgency.

Di Suvero is at his best at his biggest. His work was physically and psychically outsize from the start. It heralded the end of the fussy '50s, a decade in which most sculptors failed to match the ambition and scale, the sweep and immediacy of Abstract-Expressionist painting. Di Suvero, with John Chamberlain and George Sugarman, helped free up sculpture and get it back on a par with painting. His scale increased when he switched from wood to steel in the '60s, and increased again in the '70s when he became comfortable with the steel, and had greater access to cranes, tonnage, and exhibition sites.

His sculptures, with those of Claes Oldenburg and Richard Serra, are among the best massively scaled objects being made. Di Suvero's large pieces are public in a true sense—accessible to body and mind. They invite our touch, often offering a seat or platform that we can board and ride. The motion deflates the immense scale; stationary, the works might seem overblown. Di Suvero's sculptures are not off-putting—cold, grandiose, corporate—as so much large work is.

A profound understanding of sculptural scale, as distinct from domestic, architectural or environmental scale, has been crucial to di Suvero's accomplishment. As Sidney Geist in his ever pertinent review of di Suvero's debut show in 1960, noted, "these pieces always remain in the indigestible condition known as sculpture, and are never assimilated by the idea of architecture or of place . . . . But while Di Suvero's sculpture is so large as to escape thingness, it never overwhelms us physically; one can feel the making man. And the great energy he has put into it comes out; it is not merely energetic, it is energizing."

The largest piece Geist was reviewing was nine feet high by 16 across. Di Suvero's singular genius lies in his preserving that particular immediacy between object and monument in pieces 30 or more feet tall. As the gap between individual and environment has widened, the scale of his sculpture, as the mediating term, has had to increase. A big sculpture in front of a bigger building doesn't necessarily help connect the building with its site. It can be alienating rather than integrating. Di Suvero always gives us a way in, into the sculpture and thus into the place.

The success of the large pieces rests in part on the happy congruence of di Suvero's visual style and personal temperament—both are expansive, direct, democratic. He is a sculptor of straight lines, grading up from the spatial zip of steel cable to the open thrust of wide-flange steel I beams. He uses the beams as they were intended, extending them across space with little trace of sagging. (Pipes rarely figure in the large pieces, possibly because they are so visually slick: our eyes seem to bounce off their convex surface.) Planes are more implied than actual, created by the intersections of lines, not by the inclusion of steel plate. When di Suvero wants mass, he'll often include some object found in a scrap heap. However large these things are in life—a backhoe shovel, a ship's propeller, a tank car—they become small in the context of his sculpture, especially since he opens them up to expose their hollowness. His works retain a consistent quality of transparency and lightness, no matter how much they tower over us nor how heavy they in fact are. A fine balance of sweep and incident keeps them from being oppressive.

Of necessity di Suvero has learned to work outdoors and in an independent and technologically simple manner. He is able to function anywhere he has material and a crane, be it a scrap yard in Greenpoint or a small city in France. For instance, any bends in the steel are done on site by cutting, rigging and pulling, rather than in a shop with hydraulic presses or motorized rollers. This making-do (nothing is subcontracted) permits him to improvise on a massive scale. No other sculptor of note works this large in such a direct and visually risky manner. Even his commissioned pieces change radically from proposed to completed form. His sculptures are seldom site specific; only when they are finished is a place found for them.

VOL 71 ISS 11 DE 1983 UMI

Two views of Arichidea, 1981–82, steel, 22 by 35 feet. All photos courtesy Oil & Steel Gallery, New York.

By 1962 di Suvero had incorporated moving and participatory elements in certain sculptures. But motion was also obvious material for di Suvero's omnivorous sensibility and ambitious reach. Homage to Brancusi (1962), Laurie's Love Seat (1964), and Ride (1967) are all pieces one can sit in and cause to move. Participation, be it riding, pushing or climbing, has become ever more crucial to di Suvero's work: it helps diminish what might otherwise become an alienating size. By putting us in a one-to-one relation with a part of the work, di Suvero reduces the scale of the whole. He draws us close to his pieces and leads us to regard them from different angles: people who won't lie on the ground to look up at a piece will lie on a suspended platform to do so. You become a part of, the equal of, the sculpture when you make it move.

But if we can climb on and move one sculpture, our presumption may be that we can climb on and test other pieces as well: most of the large pieces have one diagonal element that is more horizontal than vertical, probably to permit di Suvero to climb up the piece while he is putting it together. But we can follow his lead. This access and consequent risk obviously began to pose a dilemma, granted his extreme regard for safety. His solution has been twofold: he has pitched his slanting beams at an angle not easily ascendable, and he has reemphasized the rides—hanging elements which safely invite our participation.

Di Suvero's big pieces are roughly divisible into three types: those with large, horizontally suspended elements; those which come up three-legged to a hub—like a switchyard—through or from which beams continue or take off in varying manner; and those that sprawl. The lineaments of the groups extend back ten years or more. Works within each group are often structurally and visually similar. Sculptures with suspended elements—One Oklock (1969), Ik Ook (1972), Mon Père, Mon Père (1975), Arichidea (1981–82)—often have an axis of symmetry which simplifies their construction. Because one side mirrors the other, beam lengths are equal, loads are evenly distributed, and connecting systems need only be thought out once. The axis makes it easier to design and control the movement.

Works that come up to a hub or juncture—K Piece (1972), Etoile Polaire (1973), Molecule (1982)—are the most physically extensive or expansive of di Suvero's pieces, and in a way the most formally challenging since his means are the most restricted. Their gesture has to be perfect. The sprawling pieces—Ladderpiece (1962), She (1978), Sunflowers for Vincent (reworked 1978–'83)—almost always have one or more beams running along the ground, and include more obviously found material. They have a slightly episodic or picaresque quality, with a number of things occurring independently of one another.

Mahatma (1979), as spare a piece as di Suvero has made, was set up in his huge waterfront studio in Long Island City. Di Suvero has introduced motion and participation into it without cluttering the form: an I beam bent like a wishbone can be moved. An arch shape, cut from steel plate, bridges the legs of the wishbone near their midpoint. The center of the arch, profiled like a keystone, balances in a steel trough resting atop a thrust bearing placed at the end of a vertical I beam. Supporting an arch from underneath its keystone demonstrates a weird structural humor. By cutting two eyelike holes in the keystone, di Suvero gives the arch shape a comic, living quality.

A rope loops down from the ends of the wishbone to within easy reach from the ground. By pulling it diagonally and hanging from it, we can both rotate the 12,000-pound wishbone and make its ends bob up and down, so we swing around with a wavelike motion. Since the sculpture lacks a distinct axis, our sense of it remains constant as we turn. But our image of the environment and the sculpture's placement changes radically as we are carried about. Though we supply the muscle to make the piece work, the feeling is that of a strange amusement park ride. The sensations of di Suvero's rides are surprisingly diverse; we can distinguish the pieces kinesthetically. As Max Kozloff noted 16 years

Above, Molecule, 1977, steel, 38 feet high, 58½ feet in diameter.

Below, She, 1976–79, steel, 55 feet long. Collection Eugene M. Klein.

VOL

7
1

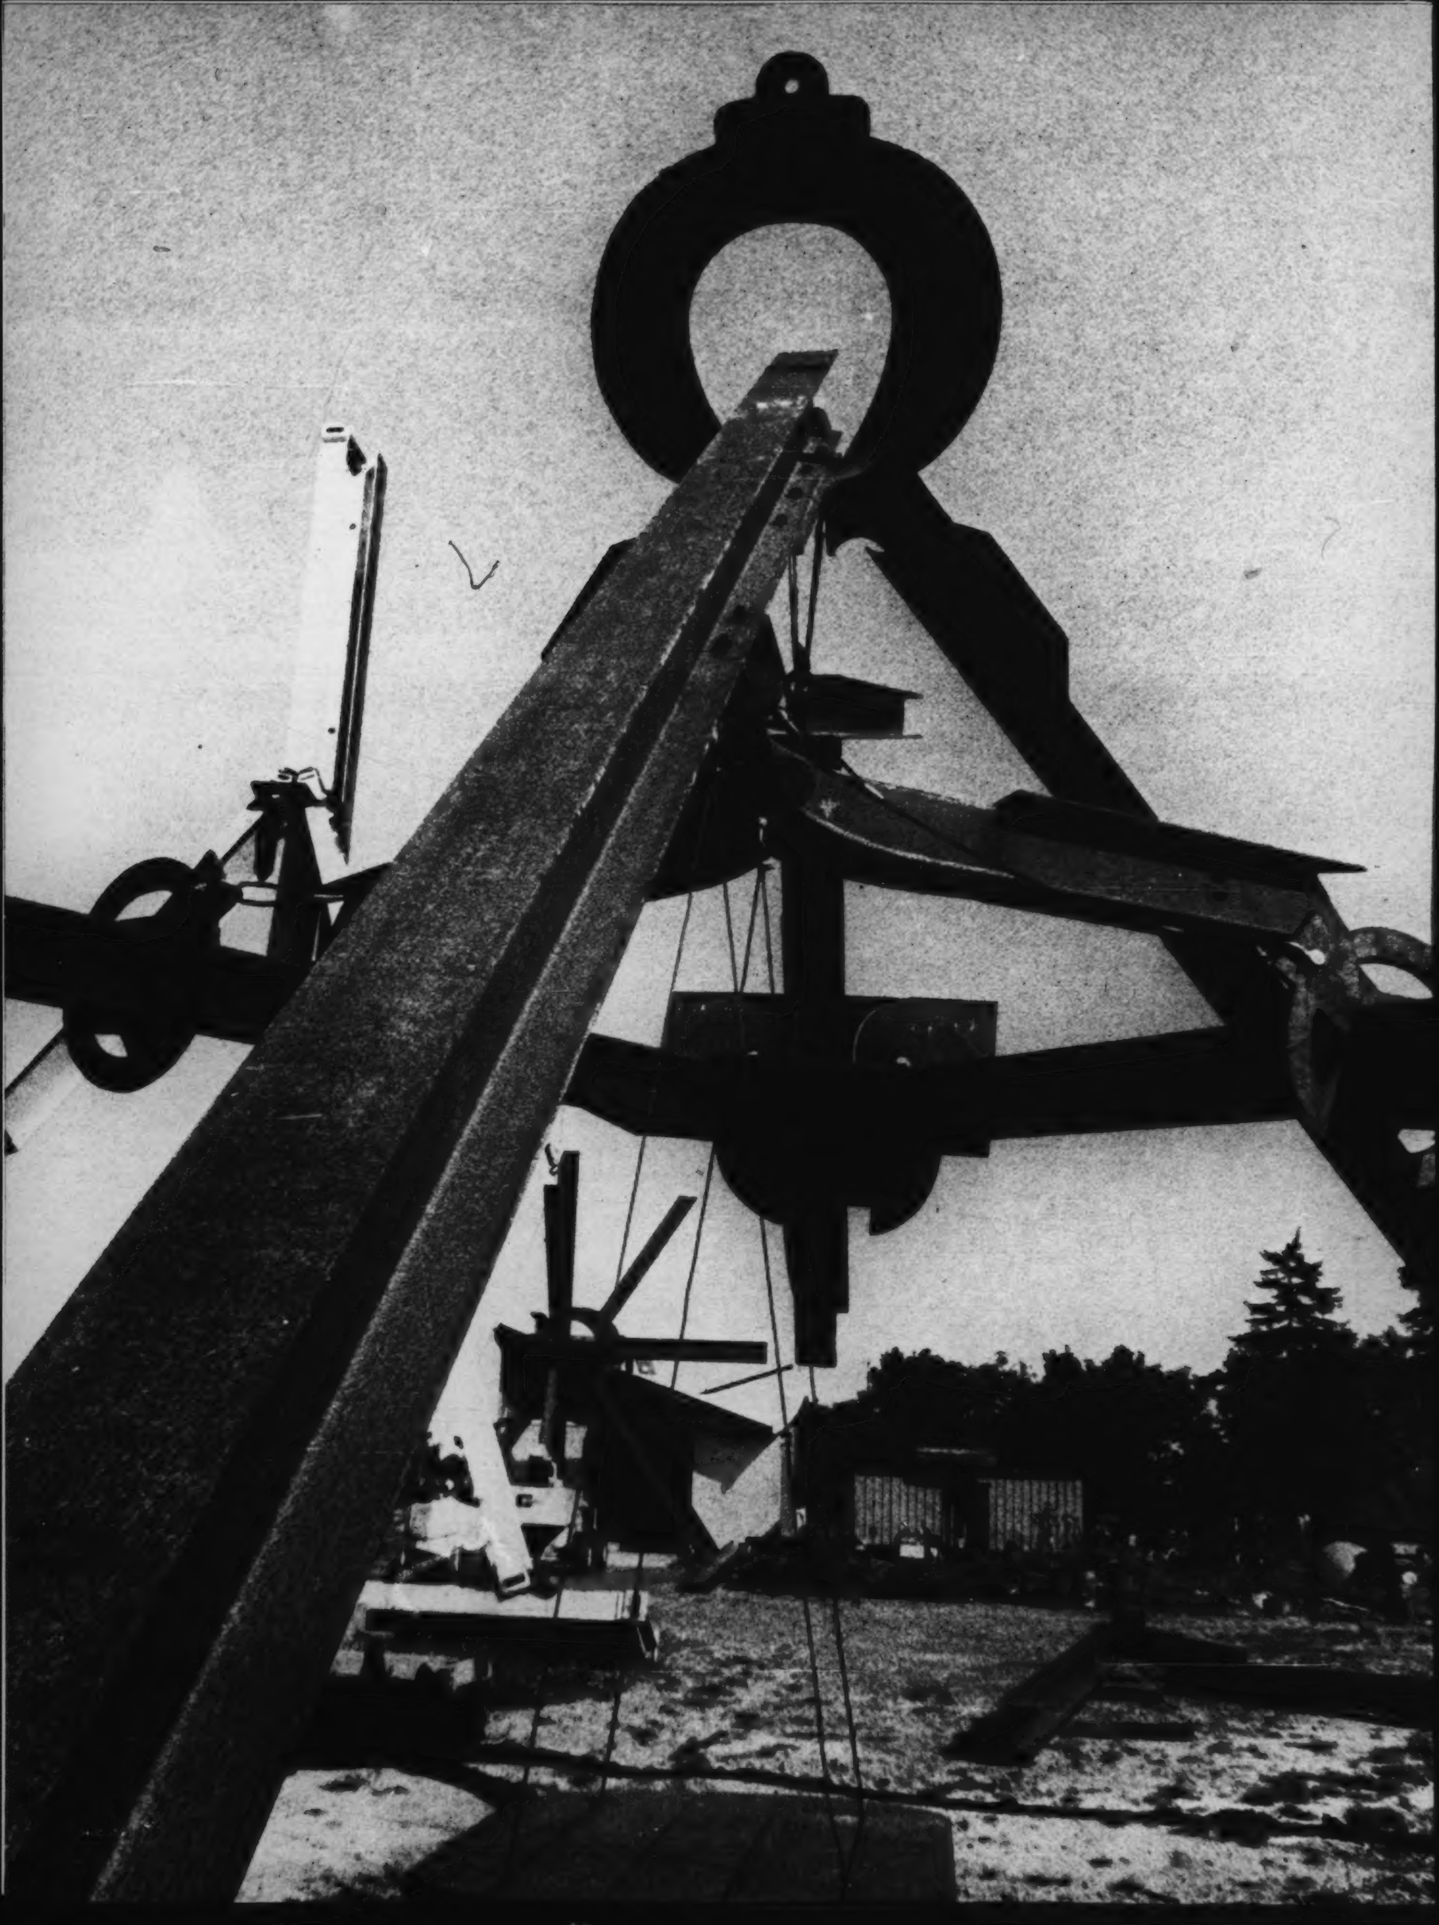
ISS

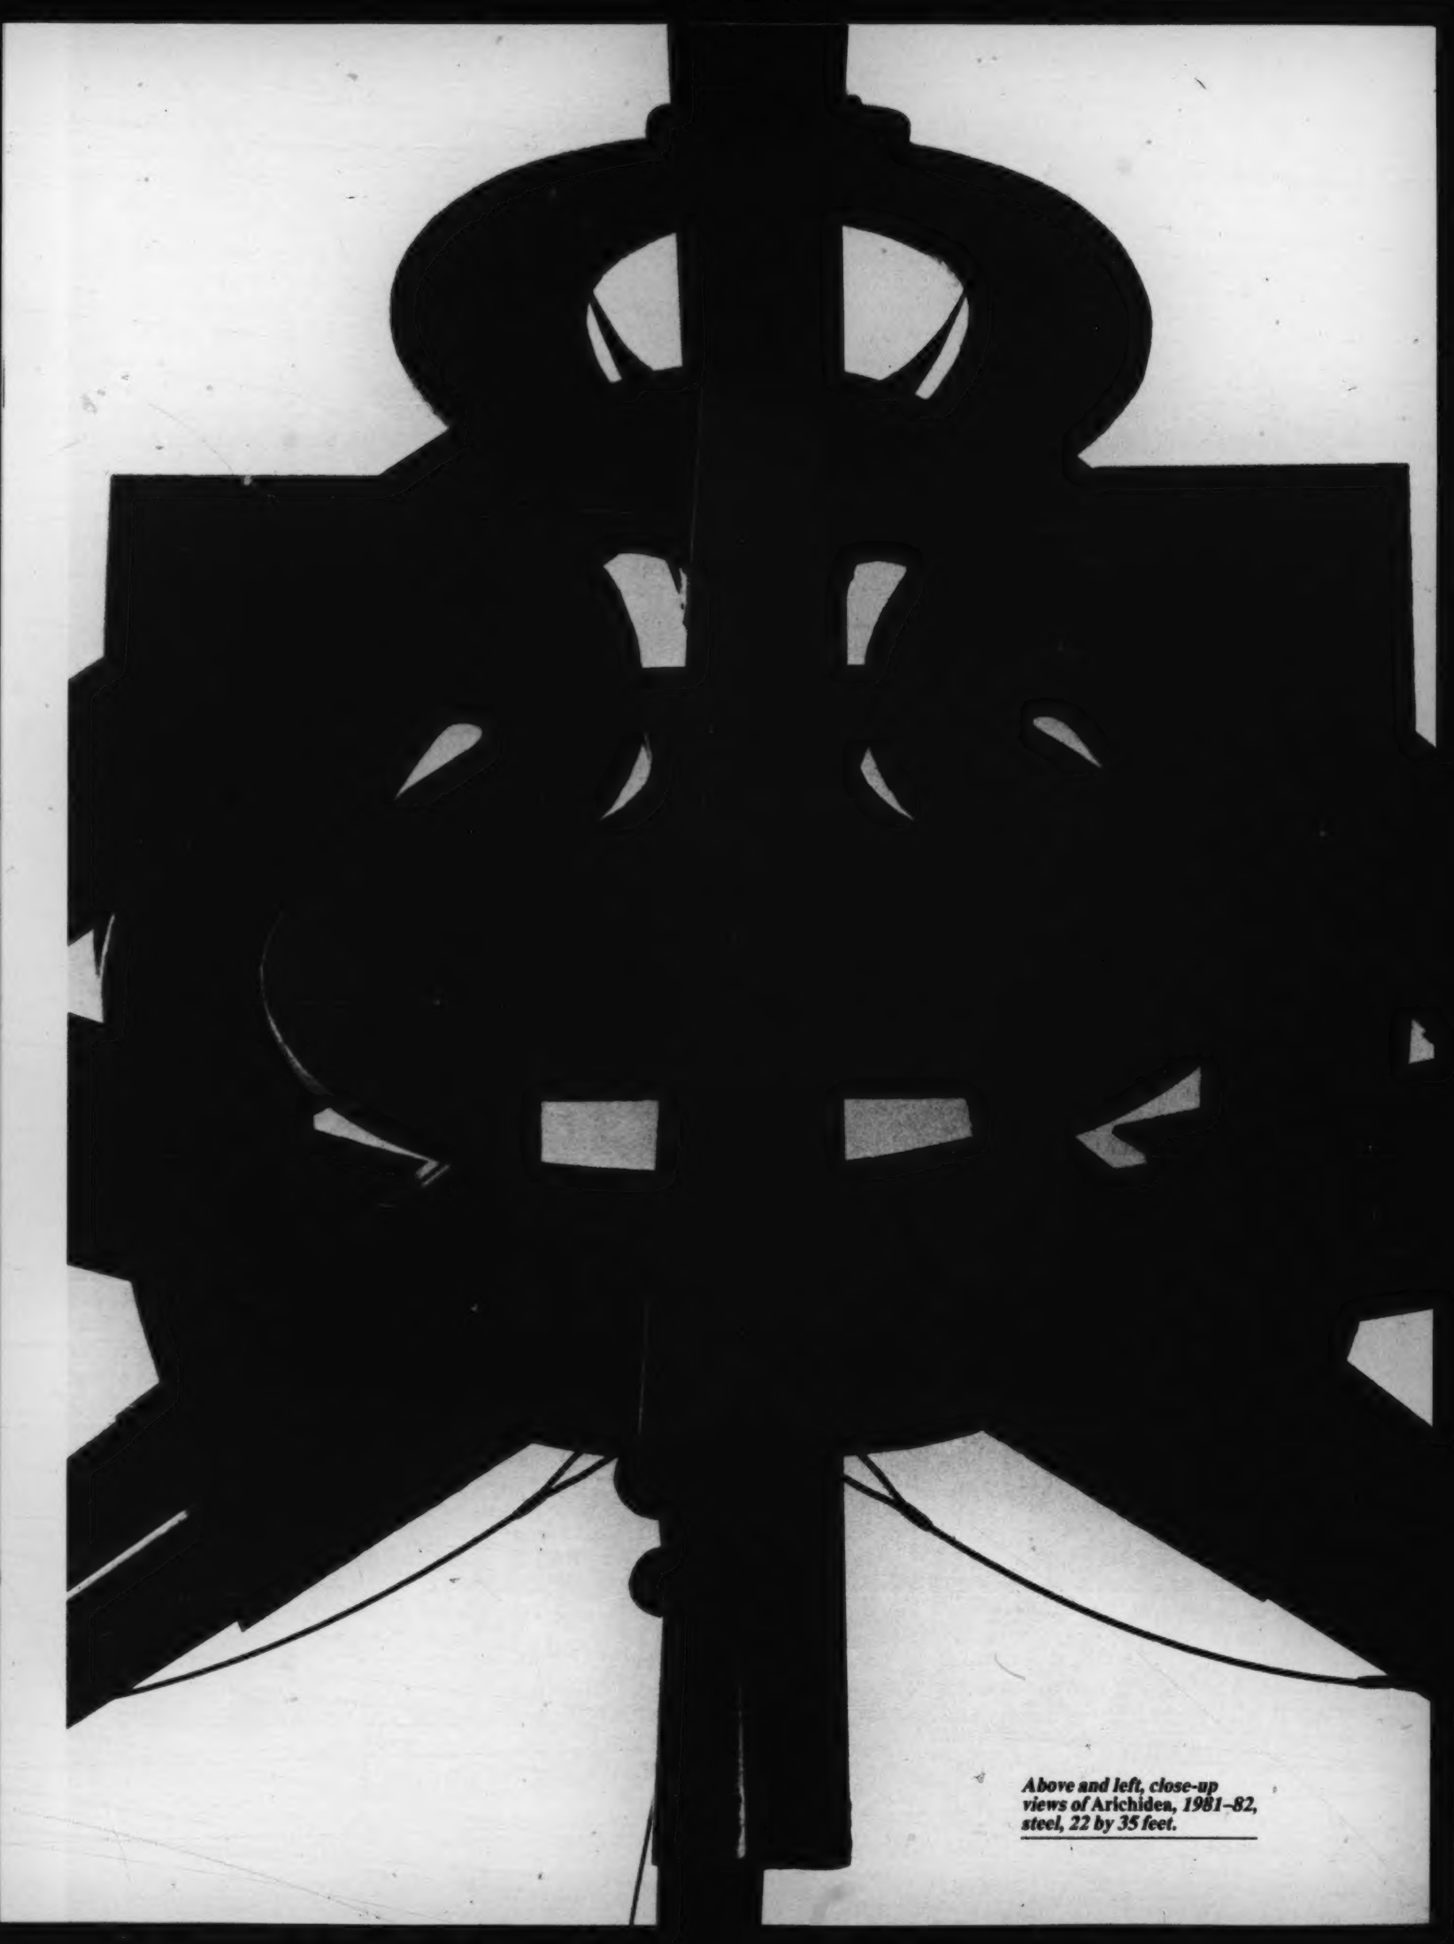
1 1

DE

1983

UMI





Above and left, close-up views of Arichidea, 1981–82, steel, 22 by 35 feet.

VOL 7 1
ISS 1 1
DE 1983
UMI

ago, "No one has yet had the casual seeming nerve and wit, not even Calder, to include people in a mobile sculpture of such magnitude, nor to make mobility and structure such easy concomitants of each other."

Mahatma, Arichidea and Spokenfur—all large pieces with horizontal, suspended wishbones which move—are among di Suvero's best pieces since the early '70s. Some of their power comes from his ever-expanding technical skill, gained by 20 years of direct work with steel. He is without peer among sculptors both in forming shapes by bending and in taking steel towards its physical limits. Early on he figured out how to assemble his beams with the minimum of fuss. He often cut their flanges so they touched web to web and then bolted them together. Later, instead of connecting two shorter beams at an angle, he found ways to bend beams and so maintain or redirect their motion through the vertex. Now he has started joining his beams with wonderfully complex, almost knotted plates so motion can continue in a three-dimensional rather than planar fashion. The plates seem to store and then radiate the energy expended in their making.

For a sculptor so often described as a constructivist, di Suvero's work is becoming increasingly baroque. The works are still predominantly composed of straight beams, but curvilinear connecting elements have assumed new importance. Some early steel pieces look like line drawings folded into three dimensions. As sculpture they sometimes lack visual density and compositional flow. Our eyes move point to point, rather than sweeping through them. They appear to have been made with whatever steel was to hand. Di Suvero is now better able to pick and choose his stock, so the steel is exactly suited to its use. The new sculptures have an ever greater visual density, spatial complexity, and control of detail.

The sculptures strongly hold their space and our attention. Part of that holding is due to di Suvero's edging toward erotic content. His hanging wishbones, which resemble bodies from the waist down, often straddle and ride back and forth over thrusting beams. When we move the piece we are so close in that we cannot see it as a whole. The experience intimates the perceptual disjunctures of sex—the abrupt shifts in scale, the unpredictable linkages of motion and sensation, the simultaneous blur and absolute particularity of experience.

Compared with the other large pieces, Sunflowers for Vincent, To Intuit (1983), and a number of the small works exhibited at Oil & Steel were weak. Though apparently convinced that he can make art out of anything, di Suvero lacks Picasso's, David Smith's, or Stankiewicz's ability with found objects. He is attracted by things whose identity can't be subverted—a giant propeller, for example. When he inserts it along with a couple of railroad wheels in Sunflowers, it isn't absorbed, and the sculpture ends up inchoate. I'd rather talk to the designer or the maker of the propeller than to the sculptor. When di Suvero misses, he misses by a lot. That's refreshing. But in a number of the smaller pieces he keeps missing in the same way. That isn't.

To Intuit, a large new work, was the centerpiece of the Oil & Steel show. Shoehorned into the gallery, it had as much presence as some of the "made to the space" sculpture (Judd, Grosvenor, Bladen) of the '60s and '70s. The canted beams pressed outward against the walls; their massiveness, which we would take for granted outdoors, was unsettling inside. The piece suggested a giant hunk of digging machinery. The shovel constituting a major segment of the work is sensationally real, down to the intricate pattern of hardfacing weld that di Suvero found and left on its surface. It is never quite absorbed into the piece. From the other end (not visible in the photograph) we are confronted by a shiny vertical of stainless steel and by those I beams that are cut and pulled open.

This aspect of the work is simultaneously formal and eccentric. The familiarity of the composition is subverted by the strangeness of the elements. From the side we see a post-and-lintel gate; the shovel at one end balances in intensity the sprung I beams at the other. What's interesting about the piece is that nothing comes together—the four views don't coalesce, can't be connected.

There are nice touches in some of the small pieces that were seen at Oil & Steel. When the main mass in Zar (1983) is set in motion, a coil of stainless tubing on the stationary part sways in sympathy. In Timber Tongs (1977) and Ambivalence (1983) the massive pincers—originally used for lifting and moving—are locked in a half-open position, but then given motion of a different sort within the sculpture. In many of the pieces a plate is cut open and the positive shape and the negative space remaining are both incorporated into the work. We can see how they once fit together, but their original unity is never restored. Di Suvero sometimes bends his plates so much that they lose their identity as steel; an almost living form is wrought from the flat material, a feat too rare in contemporary welded sculpture.

The central problem with di Suvero's small pieces is that they lack specificity, and sometimes seem mannered. One is much like the next in structure, attack, marking, motion and surface. Many of the small pieces are organized in the same fashion—horizontal plate on the ground, a vertical stalk ending in a point, a complex, spreading form of bent and welded steel balanced on the point. Di Suvero's large pieces are partially propelled by his on-the-spot solutions to technical problems; the absence of structural challenges induces a slackness in the small sculptures. They look stuck together casually, without a clear form in mind or sight. The irregular edges of torch-cut steel (no one is better with a cutting torch than di Suvero) don't function meaningfully as marking, as modeling, brushwork or handwriting can. These effects can't carry a sculpture as di Suvero apparently hopes they will in many of his small works.

Parts of the small sculptures do move, but the fact of motion is not sufficiently compelling to make them good. Instead of suggesting that all positions are interesting, the motion says that no position works. At this scale—ranging from 18 inches to four or five feet in height—the motion does not affect us kinesthetically. The matte surface of the rusted steel makes it harder, not easier, to read the form. Adding stainless steel in Untitled (1981) or Zar, or a magnifying glass in Cum Glass (1983), doesn't so much solve the problem as point it up. Perhaps my dissatisfaction with the small pieces is finally traceable to the standards di Suvero has established with his earlier pieces and with his large sculptures. ☐

Author: Wade Saunders is a sculptor and critic. He will show new work in February at the Lawrence Oliver Gallery, Philadelphia.

Oneball, 1981, 22 by 21 by 21 inches.
All photos this page, Steven Sloman.

Untitled, 1981, steel,
30 by 25¼ by 25 inches.

Zar, 1983, steel, 110 by 103 by 89½ inches.
Collection The Edward R. Broida Trust.

Landscape, 1981–82, steel,
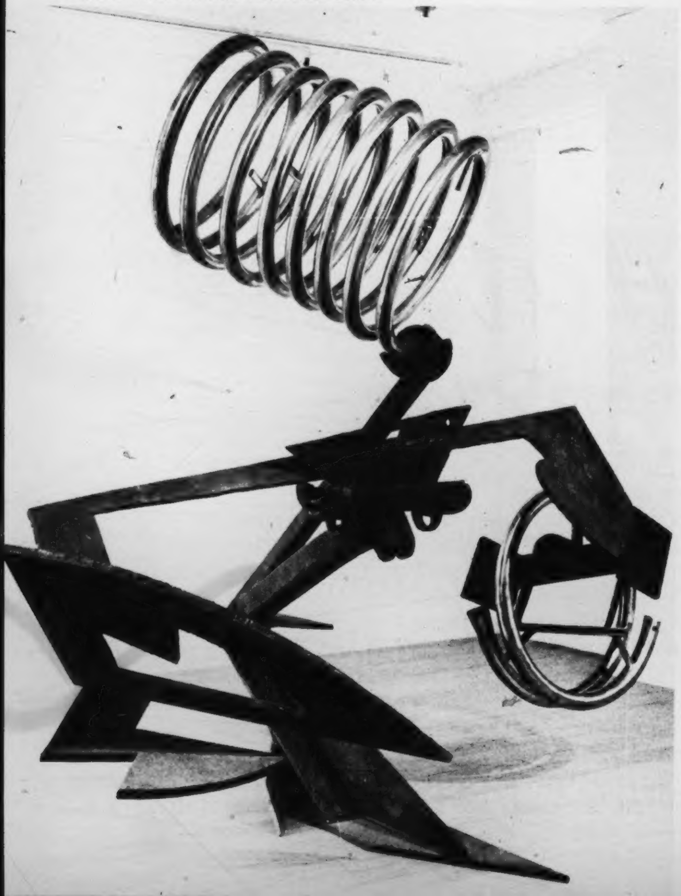
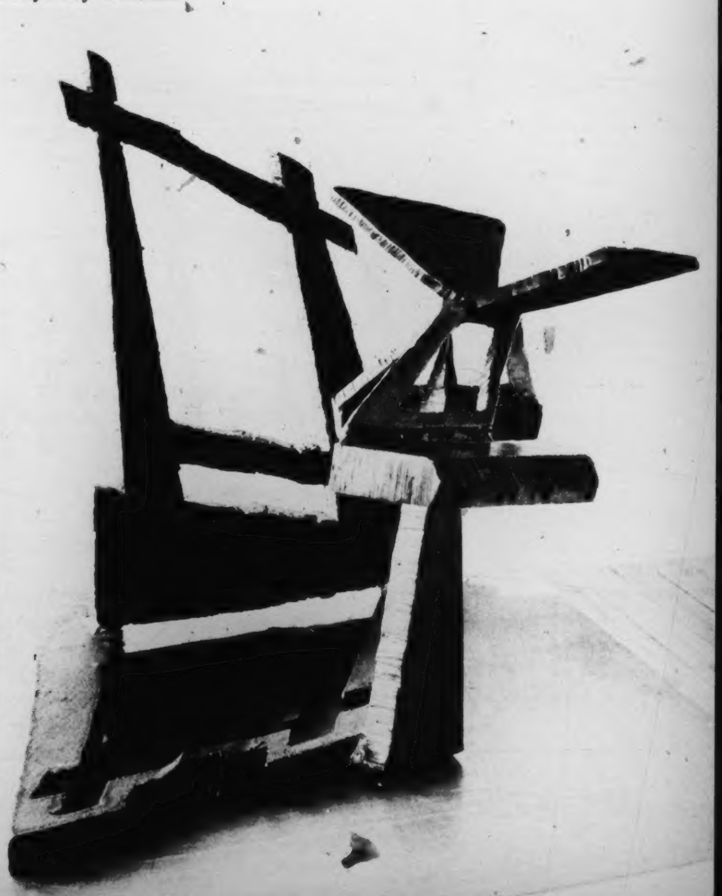
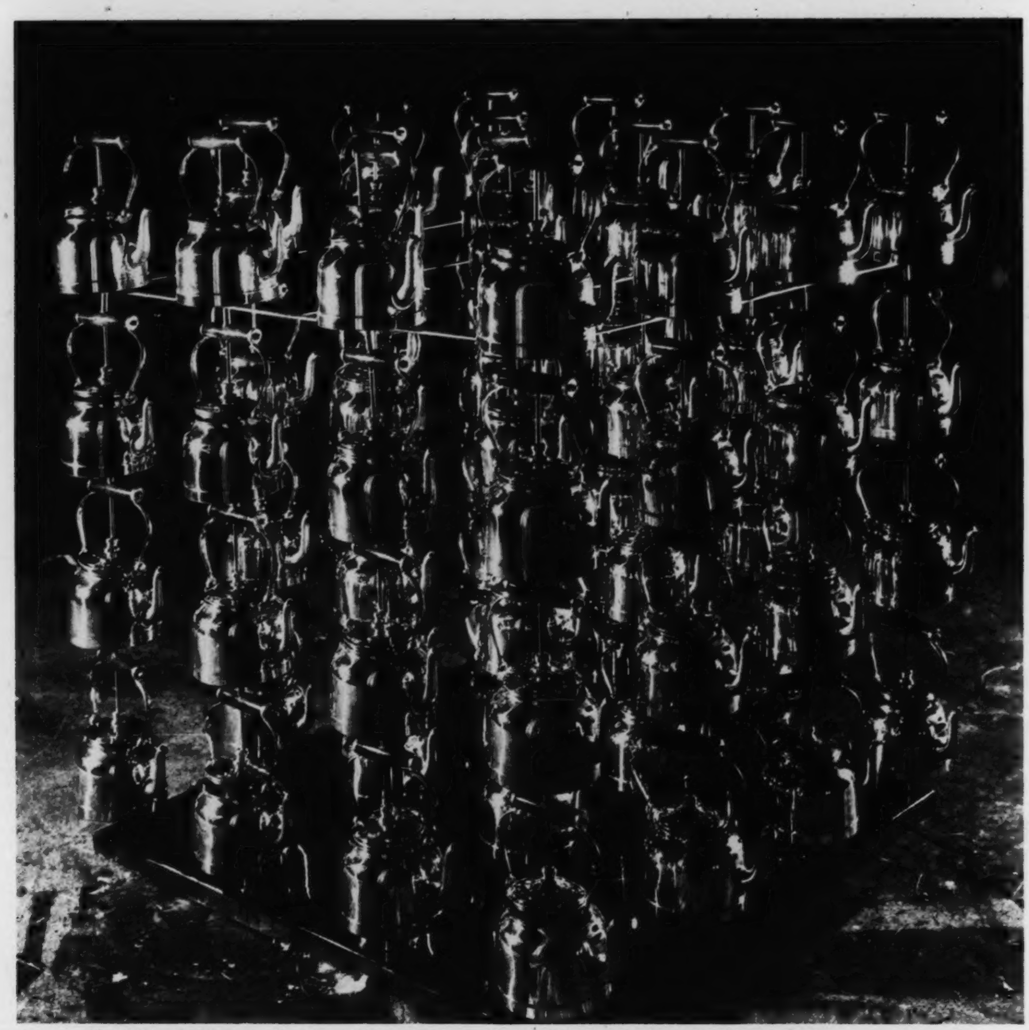
24 by 24 by 20 inches.





VOL
7
1
ISS
1 1
DE
1983
UMI



Arman: 4^3, 1966, aluminum teakettles with steel rods and base, 48 inches high. Collection the artist.

Accumulations by Arman

Massing, destroying or otherwise treating found objects, the French-born Arman has made monuments out of everything from teakettles to cars; below, the author reads these literal-minded sculptures as commentaries on our thing-filled lives.

BY TED CASTLE

Petite Polychromie, 1967, tubes and ribbons of paint in polyester, 42 ¼ by 41⅞ inches.

Thus the science of nations is to be accumulative from father to son, each learning a little more and a little more; each receiving all that was known and adding its own gain: the history and poetry of nations are to be accumulative; each generation treasuring the history and songs of its ancestors, adding its own history and its own songs: and the art of nations is to be accumulative, just as science and history are; the work of living men not superceding, but building itself upon the work of the past.

—John Ruskin, Political Economy

The amount of things in the world is astounding. We are surrounded by things in every situation. Things accumulate around us like sawdust by the sawmill until we are driven to redistribute or destroy them. The accumulation of things is a species-specific custom like murder, laughter and language. Before we know it, each of us accumulates more things than we remember. Hey! Look at this! Remember that? The closets of our minds disclose an order that we can rarely achieve in the houses of our objects where we treasure stuff that has no meaning to anybody else. Anyone who has experienced the death of a beloved person will, in reviewing the "personal effects of the deceased," find thousands of meaningless shards of materials of all kinds, from broken cameras to divorce decrees, testifying to a life activity full of purpose now reduced to a pile of junk. Some of it, of course, can be scavenged into other lives as great museums vie for important collections of teacups and tapestries and as bums spy good clothes cast off on streetcorners, and the way my friends and I often furnish our houses with the detritus of other people. But most of the junk of dead people amounts to a strange paperwork of interests and concerns that we cannot revive, collate or compute—a collection of books in an unknown language full of vowels.

The art object is somewhat of another matter. Here an intention has focused some materials in a certain way to get a picture of a bunch of flowers in a certain color, for example, or to create something like nothing one has seen before, a sort of useless tool—something which can have meaning to more than one and to strangers as well as to lovers and the self, but which has no definite and agreed utility. Such controversial objects—everyone has the right to dislike any kind of art at will—enjoy a special status, whether as points of communication in the arcane value system known as the art world or as possible decorations for your son's bedroom-study.

The art object, because of the work

VOL 71 ISS 11 DE 1983 UMI

An orchestra platform with chairs embedded in concrete, 20 feet high, 40 feet wide, constructed by Arman in 1971 in the Giardini Triennale, Milan.

The platform in the Giardini Triennale being used by the municipal orchestra of Milan.

of the artist, accumulates within itself an intrinsic value which only dematerialization can disperse. We don't have to agree about art in order to agree that it has a general worthiness that might prevent us from shredding the portraits of forgotten ancestors and little pictures of violets painted in oil-based pigments or printed on photographic paper. Enormous boxes of snapshots repine in attics and warehouses all over the world waiting hopelessly for somebody with the love of things to redeem them. They fade, get leaked upon by roofs and dusted by the air; then, abandoned by their relatives, rusted, and torn up by desperate mice who hope that Kodak is something to eat, they become indistinguishable parts of the universe again in an absurd or deliberate conflagration of nature and desire.

I can still recall being little and crying myself to sleep at the thought of the waste that goes on in this world. I wanted everyone to have what they wanted, but all this stuff was going to rot and ruin in front of my eyes. I would try to rescue little plants, bring things like snow sleds in out of the rain. To this day, I still rescue nearly abandoned household appliances and repair things that other people feel should be replaced. But I don't collect things very much; I accumulate the minimum amount of things such as books and telephone directory cards and clothes. In my life I depend on experience (which I call friendship) for almost all my needs. Nevertheless, when I moved house less than two years ago, I was appalled by the amount of objects I was unwilling to abandon and had to cart from one place to the next. Our objects define us, not only in quantity and quality, but just by their existence about us. They define us to ourselves as well as to other people, and defining ourselves is our dearest, most important work in life. You don't have to be an art collector to revere an assortment of otherwise meaningless tchotchkes, treasured household objects which we think of fondly as we dust and handle them. Our objects make us who we are, I repeat, even to ourselves.

Stradivarius fossilus, 1966, broken violin on synthetic marble, 29½ by 15⅛ inches.

Odalisque, 1980, cello cast in bronze, 43¾ by 23¼ inches. Marisa del Re Gallery.

Subir al Cielo, 1982, welded bronze violins, 34¼ by 11¾ inches.

Arman accumulates things we don't notice, the things that make the world go round, collects them and lets them hang together artistically in front of our faces so we should notice them, and notice something special about them—the thing that's on the tip of our tongues but not yet out of our mouths, the almost unspeakable but great reality of things themselves. Arman's work remarks the obvious, as all good philosophy and in fact as things themselves do. Here is a shovel. It is a common object. Almost everyone has used one and everyone knows what it's for. Most people seldom think about a shovel. I imagine even workers who use a shovel frequently scarcely spend a thought on it unless it breaks—as hardly ever happens. A shovel rarely attracts our attention unless we need it now for something like snow or earth moving. When we locate it, it becomes an extension of our bodies and enables us to perform things that would be much more difficult without it. Even the silver-plated shovel with which President Eisenhower overturned the first sod for the construction of Lincoln Center in 1958 was not so much an object of admiration in itself as just a special tool furbished for renowned and gentle use. Arman has never accumulated shovels of any kind, but he has amassed other tools (saws and violins, for instance) in such a way as to question their status as tools and as things.

The meaning of my work is fragmentary. The meaning depends on the things I use, how I use them and then on the whole significance of modern art. I believe very strongly that the human of the last 30,000 years, whom scientists call homo sapiens, is actually the homo artisticus. The big difference between the tool maker, homo faber, and the one who starts to think about his relation to the environment, makes him the artistic man, not the one who knows. One gets some of these thoughts from reading things in anthropology. But I'm sure of this: artistic operations are first of all verbal and secondly visual . . . .

The meaning of every artistic thing from singing and poetry to painting and sculpture is its purpose, which you could say is like a computerized system to advance thinking. A group which is well equipped with art has a better chance to survive than a group which is not. That's why we, as artists, don't have to have a complex about the bourgeois system, because we have already given them reality—they have nothing real without us.[1]

The question of meaning in the work of Arman is generally taken for granted, particularly in the United States. What is the meaning of an accumulation of coffee pots called Colombian Accumulation (1962)? It looks like a pile of junk. What is the meaning of an accumulation of teakettles called 4^3 (1966)? It looks like a display of goods in a fancy store. There is a literal-mindedness often displayed by Americans which seems to suit this work completely, and it is not incorrect to see Arman's work in a literal way. When we do so, though, the intelligence of his art escapes like steam. We are convinced that steam exists (since it is possible to turn it into money), but we are not so sure about intelligence. The intelligence of Arman's work has various aspects, one of which might be called its boxing intelligence.

The sport of boxing pits two possibly equal organisms against each other to see which can manage to cripple the other through well-padded hits. It is a cultivated form of basic human aggression. As such, boxing is irresistible, as well as being primitive, cruel and stupefying. Arman's work hits at the same places again and again, darting back and forth, avoiding one situation and staggering into another. The amount of "stunning" works in Arman's prolific output is "staggering." It is possible to categorize them in different ways, but they are all basically either accumulations—victories for the objects—or destructions—defeats. Some of them are accumulations of already defeated objects, like the recent Homage to Picasso at the Picasso Museum in Antibes, where Arman welded together a large pile of bronze castings of a dismembered guitar. These "tie matches," which form a large part of his recent work—the castings of broken, sliced and disfigured musical instruments that make up his "Orchestra"—are master statements of a philosophical position that is as difficult to pin down as a champion boxer.

VOL 7 1 ISS 11 DE 1983 UMI

There is a clear sense in which the genius of a culture resides in its tools rather than in its artifacts. The case of musical instruments is a curious one because they are tools and artifacts at the same moment. While Arman has concentrated on industrial tools in hundreds of his works, some of his most eloquent pieces are inspired by the shapes of musical instruments. In 1979, he responded to a commission from a women's hospital in a Paris suburb by embedding in concrete a large number of French horns sliced in half, calling it Fallopian Accumulation because of the resemblance of the instruments to reproductive organs. The five different sliced violincellos of 1981–82, shown at the Marisa del Re Gallery in New York in May, together with a collapsed piano and a destroyed harp (each cast in bronze at a small foundry in Le Havre), constitute Arman's "Orchestra"—all actual size and finished in beautiful, colored patinas.

Portrait of Philippe Durand-Ruel, 1965, personal objects placed in a plexiglas box, 34 by 24 inches.

> With Arman's work you're knocked over the head by antiques, given a bloody nose by automobile parts and battered into submission by garbage.

The musical instrument is a tool meant to be beautiful and made to enable us to create and recreate beauty in the form that is least like an object, the form that decorates the medium of life—time. What then does it mean for Arman to smash and dismember such delicate tools? It is not that he has anything against music—in fact, many of his friends are musicians. Rather, this activity calls attention to a whole realm of things about our culture which this essay cannot adequately investigate. First of all, it is brutal, approaching the vicious (as do so many customs we know so well—industrial layoffs, for example). Yet this brutality—the savaging of the delicate and esoteric—is conducted in the name of a system called plastic art which is meant to infuse life with meanings that are as ineluctable as those of music. And then when you look at the objects themselves, you see that brute force, aided by saws, hammers, knives, axes and so forth, has succeeded in creating an icon that is still very much a violincello or whatever the instrument is. It is not in smithereens—it exists in art as a painstakingly analyzed tool of which we can see details never before understood. The precious object has been destroyed in the process of creating another precious object.

An Arman cello dancing in rarefied bronze in a museum, shop, palazzo or factory shows us something about ourselves, about our favorite tools, and about our arts which convene in the cello icon. Such an art work is an object made of another object—a transformation which all of Arman's work resolutely addresses. Paradoxically, this activity, which Pierre Restany calls "the baptism of the object," has an effect that is dematerializing and intellectual.

The piling up of objects found, bought or constructed has been Arman's work all his life, just as it is, in an obvious sense, the work of all of us, as we furnish and polish our palaces. In looking at his work, as I did a great deal in the summer of 1982 when a major retrospective was launched by the Kunstmuseum in Hannover, you begin to think about your own house and all the junk you yourself have embedded in the plastic concrete of daily habits. With Arman's work you're knocked over the head by antiques, given a bloody nose by automobile parts and battered into reverent submission by portraits made of intimate garbage. But as in animated film cartoons, that paradigm of accumulation in which millions of drawings realize battles from which all of the antagonists always recover, the savagery of Arman is playful and disarming rather than heavy and bludgeoning.

I am a witness of my time. As an historical statement you are the fruit of your environment, but as an artist I am a witness of my time. Before it became an explosion, I sensed the invasion of objects. Probably more objects have been produced in the last ten years than in all the history of humanity before this time. This is the center of my thinking about things. It criticizes this situation but it also emphasizes this situation . . . .

I have a theory in which I believe very strongly. I believe that we are all the same; I don't believe in basic differences, but there is one thing. A majority of us can't take any risks. They're afraid. They have been burned very young. The only difference is some people can stand stress better than others. It doesn't matter about creativity or anything else.

Stylistically, Arman sees himself as working between the Cubist explosion of painted forms and the filling up of painted forms as practiced by Pollock. Like the Conceptual artists beginning with his longtime friend Yves Klein and continuing through Joseph Kosuth and many others, Arman sees his work as arising out of painting and relating back to painting at many points—unlike many other "sculptors." But in his more recent work, there is pure Mechanical Fossil of Dijon, 1974, machine gears in concrete, 16 feet high.

Homage to the Garment District, 1972, sewing machines in concrete. Israel Museum.

Long Term Parking, 1982, 60 cars in concrete, 65 feet high. Paris.

VOL 7 1 ISS 1 1 DE 1983 UMI

Piranhas, 1981, welded steel-and-wood saws, 74 by 76 inches. Photo Marisa del Re Gallery.

delicacy of line and form that connects with the classics of modern sculpture without imitating them. There has also been another development in his work which has come into greater focus in the last few years. Arman has found a way to vitiate the domesticity of much of his earlier work by using the knock-out punch of enormous scale.

About 12 years ago, Arman began embedding objects into concrete forms in such a way that the objects are still somewhat visible. In some ways the most interesting of these was one of the first: a semicircular orchestra stand made of cast concrete reinforced by chairs, music stands and a few instruments in the conductor's cube (probably to indicate what the thing is for). Placed in a public garden in Milan, this Arman is unique in that it has a useful aspect—people can sit on it and play music, and it is frequently so used. It has a modesty and rawness that Arman's work sometimes lacks. But it is not very monumental.

Other Arman accumulations of found objects set in concrete include two works of a large number of sewing machines stacked with their tables and all, one in the Billy Rose Garden of the Israel Museum called Homage to the Garment District (1972), and a huge accumulation of industrial gears at the technical college in Dijon called Mechanical Fossil of Dijon (1974). In 1982, Arman constructed the largest work he has ever completed, although he has projects for bigger ones. Called Long Term Parking, it is a tower composed of concrete with 60 automobiles embedded in it that rises to a height of 65 feet at the head of a small parking lot on the grounds of a country club outside of Paris.

Long Term Parking is the grandest of Arman's statements and it concerns the grandest of all modern artifacts which are really tools—the car. We are so familiar with the phenomenon of parking that we scarcely notice it, unless it interferes with daily life. Originally conceived as an even larger pile of cars for Philadelphia, Long Term Parking has the advantage of being located in an ancient rural domaine or park which has been used for many purposes over the four centuries since it was built by the abbot of St. Germain des Prés as a country house. Recently converted into a club for sports and contemporary art (not such an anomaly in France as it might seem in America), the place will be preserved because of its historic value no matter what uses may be found for it. (During their occupation of Paris the Germans built a blockhouse there which recently has become a windowless art gallery.) Arman's monument, located near the 15th-century chateau and accompanied by ancient trees, will probably remain for a long time, testifying to one of the main vices and virtues of our century, the car.

Arman has lived in New York for 22 years, and he has been an American citizen for ten years. At the age of 54 he is producing his largest as well as some of his most beautiful parodies of objecthood. His current project on the monumental scale is an accumulation of permanently immobilized tanks as a symbol of peace and, on the drawing-room scale, the addition to his band of a sliced harp. Having accumulated almost all kinds of things, Arman stands today in high middle age, when as at every other age, there is a crossroads—you can do what you know you can do because you've done it before, or you can go the other way to a village you've never seen and do what you haven't done. Arman seems to be of the experienced opinion that you can travel both roads at once and eventually reach the same place. □

---

1. Quotations are from a conversation between Arman and the author at Vence, France, June 22, 1982.

Author: Ted Castle is a free-lance art critic and fiction writer.

STRAIGHT TALK

Art Scan is the first international telecommunications network, geared exactly to the world of fine art. We are not a computer company trying to sell hardware while promising software. In fact, when you subscribe to Art Scan, a terminal is provided free.

Art Scan will give you the following services, all updated instantaneously and designed to save you weeks of research:

① ArtScan—just type an artist's name and receive a complete listing of his or her recent and past international auction sales.

② Fastfinder—instantaneously and automatically you can access or add to an international inventory of artwork available for purchase, sale, loan, exhibition or research.

③ Mail Box—communicate with other members of the Art Scan international network instantly! Send and receive general broadcasts and personalized messages.

④ Stolen Works—no longer should the buyer beware. Access this data base and receive immediate worldwide listings of stolen works of art.

⑤ Calendar—at the push of a button, scan a directory listing upcoming auctions and consignment deadlines, gallery openings, sales, exhibitions, publications, etc.

⑥ ArtControl—select this service for all your inventory control and accounting needs. Unique security features insure your total confidentiality.

Want to know more? We invite your inquiry and promise you straight talk.

ART SCAN

The International Communications Network for the Art World
1013 Madison Avenue, New York, NY 10021
Telephone toll-free New York State: 1-800-351-1300
Toll-free outside of New York State: 1-800-742-5500

VOL
7
1
ISS
1 1
DE
1983
UMI

FA FABRIANO

FOR THE FINEST PRINTMAKING PAPER, ETCH THIS NAME INTO YOUR MEMORY.

If you want to make prints that make a lasting impression, you need papers that stand the test of time.

The kind of papers they've been making at the Fabriano mills in Italy for 700 years—now available in North America from Grumbacher.

The artisans at Fabriano create their finest printmaking papers today the same way they did for Albrecht Dürer: one sheet at a time.

Whether you require a highly textured surface or a smoother surface, flat white or subtle shades, you get papers of exceptional beauty and dimensional stability.

Papers with the strength to stand repeated printing pressures and a neutral pH to face the years without yellowing.

There are Fabriano handmade and mould-made papers for every type of printmaking: drawings, etching, stone lithography, silkscreen, woodcuts, and embossing.

Ask to see these exquisite papers. Examine them closely. Get the "feel" of Fabriano. You'll never settle for anything less.

Ask for: Umbria, Murillo, Tiepolo, Rosaspina

G™

FABRIANO IMPORTED PAPERS FROM GRUMBACHER

Ask your local artists' material dealers for these products, or write:
M. GRUMBACHER, INC. 460 West 34th Street, New York, N.Y. 10001. In Canada: M. GRUMBACHER (CANADA) Inc. 460 Finchdene Square, Scarborough Ontario M1X 1C4

Review of Exhibitions

NEW YORK

Italo Scanga at Delahunty

Italo Scanga finds the human spirit in the very grain of wood. The large figures in his recent exhibition, over nine feet tall including their low-slung coffee table pedestals, are carved and smoothed from what look to be single tree limbs. They possess some of the psychic animation of Dogon sculptures, those partly divine ancestral figures, carved into wraithlike simplicity from a single block of wood, whose arms are raised in a beseeching attitude toward heaven. You don't need a degree in anthropology to be moved by the Dogon figures' exile. A single Dogon sculpture can stun a room of more riotous art into silence. But for the Dogon, a tribe that's been eking it out for thousands of years in the West African deserts, there are fewer veils obscuring the world of the spirit. Scanga's figures, on the other hand, are reconciled to struggling with what's in front of them. After all, this art is partly about heroism.

Italo Scanga: Woman Throwing a Snake, 1983, painted wood, 118 by 84 by 47 inches; at Delahunty.

R.M. Fischer: Century City, 1983, mixed mediums, 7 feet 9 inches high; at Baskerville & Watson (review on p. 150).

In the past, Scanga's smaller figures have held the object or symbol of their fears in front of them in a gesture of private confrontation and public acknowledgment. Two of his more recent subjects have been Archimedes and St. Stephen. The former in his inadvertent fashion was as much a martyr to faith as the latter, who was by more stringent reckonings the first martyr. The identity of Scanga's latest figures is less specific, but like so many characters of mythic stature, their purpose is defined by the burdens they bear, by the manner of ther undoing. One woman struggles with a red snake, another runs, holding a child out in front of her, and a towering man lugs a massive ball in a posture of resignation. They clearly evoke Eve, Atlas and Sisyphus, but are more general; they celebrate the very nature of struggle, our inevitable confrontation with privately tailored obstacles. Scanga isn't returning to territory he's already mapped in the earlier series titled "Fears." This new work is more complex, psychologically and formally. The latest figures have passed that frozen moment of confrontation and are moved to action—either flight, acceptance, or active resistance to circumstance.

For all the immediate psychological impact of the sculptures, Scanga never lets us forget their origin in art and pan-cultural myth. The pedestals are covered with a flow of rhythmic abstract painting and drawing reminiscent of the loose, landscape-derived shorthand of Kandinsky's early abstractions. The forms of the figures themselves are composites of votive tribal figures from New Guinea to Africa, Mexican santos and the isolated, universalized protagonists of Giacometti's work. Both Giacometti's and Scanga's figures serve in their respective manners as witnesses for all of us. But whereas Giacometti's man is carved away, deprived of his mythic resonance Scanga's subjects are steeped in it, encrusted with its traces.

In a witty, digressive little catalogue essay for Scanga's exhibition last summer at the La Jolla Museum of Contemporary Art, William Zimmer suggests that "Archimedes' emblem, the crude circle, could stand for Scanga and his will to encompass." This could apply not only to Scanga—art is always reaching to encompass something—but right now Scanga's embrace is a little wider ahd his grip a little tighter than most.

—Stephen Westfall

Lynn Hershman at Lincoln Center

Lynn Hershman's recent, elaborately staged multi-media outdoor performance, "Chain Reaction," was billed as "an environmental 'light' opera for fog, film and recombinant news." The announcement for the event was a two-page "newspaper"—a collage of real articles on the illegal dumping of hazardous chemical waste, the Pentagon's animal gunshot experiments and other such reassuring items from the press, all headed by an article describing the "events" of Hershman's performance. The inside spread provided a libretto for the operatic sections of the work, and a précis clarified aspects of the rather thin plot.

At about ten o'clock on a drizzly, early October evening an audience of perhaps 50 people gathered across the street from Alice Tully Hall. An anonymous announcer set the scene—an accidental spill of PCB had contaminated the area. The somewhat fuzzy sequence of events was "reenacted" with a complexly choreographed combination of real actors, music and film clips that were rear-projected onto the windows of Tully Hall: a young boy on a skateboard bumps into a couple buying a "suspicious substance" that turns out to be canisters of fresh air—now an addictive luxury. A set of keys falls from the woman's purse into a grate, hitting a worker who drops a wrench that consequently dislodges a valve, releasing the toxic substance. An explosion occurs.

VOL 71 ISS 11 DE 1983 UMI

Lynn Hershman: On-site view of "Chain Reaction," performed at Lincoln Center, showing action sequence incorporating fog and 16mm projections.

Clean-up crews in white suits arrive (both in the film and on the ground) and a corporate representative assures everyone that there's nothing to worry about. Well, we've heard this story before, and so the victims go right on worrying, entreating the doctor to cure them in filmed "arias" somehow reminiscent of soap operas. "Why is she sick—Doctor/Your bag of tricks—can't heal her/We think we're doomed too/We know the truth—there is no cure/How long we got—Doc-tor.'" The black child whose skateboard apparently set off the "chain reaction," and who has also been contaminated, asks what is wrong—"all I did was breathe," he says. The film projections black out and, rather inexplicably, a man on roller skates, one of the "passersby," places a tape deck in the middle of the street and begins dancing, quite beautifully, to the music.

Hershman's use of film, opera and live actors was lively and inventive. It clearly necessitated precision timing, and except for the occasional odd (no doubt technically induced) gap, was smoothly executed. Unfortunately, as narrative the piece didn't hold together; it was difficult to distinguish the characters and, despite the possibilities offered by the mixture of mediums, the clarity of the story line depended on the spoken/sung text—which was not dramatically cohesive, nor entirely audible.

The main problem, however, lay elsewhere: this was a propaganda piece—for a good cause, certainly—that never seemed to set its sights clearly, dallying a bit too long with formal effects (which were indeed more intriguing than the story line). As a simpler form of street theater it might have been much more effective, but that would have demanded a less elite context than Lincoln Center during the height of the New York Film Festival. There aren't too many random passersby at ten o'clock on a weekend night at Lincoln Center—you're playing to an audience that already knows everything you're trying to tell them.

Increasingly, we are seeing artists attempting to use their work as an ideological weapon against the greater political-military-industrial-economic forces that are endangering our existence. But often one gets the feeling there is a bit too much back-patting going on. If artists are really interested in using their skills to awaken consciousness around specific contemporary issues, then they must closely consider their context and their goals. Presenting us with archetypal villains and victims can be rather like treating a serious illness with a lollipop—it may comfort us with the illusion that something is being done, but won't do much for the infection.

—Jamey Gambrell

Jack Goldstein: Untitled, 1983, acrylic on canvas, 8 feet square; at Metro Pictures.

Jack Goldstein at Metro Pictures

The adjectives "stunning," "striking" and "breathtaking" are easily applied to Jack Goldstein's paintings, for these modifiers' mix of violence and beauty, of the destructive and decorative, describes his earlier canvases as well as those in his recent show. Prior to this exhibition, Goldstein's pictures were mostly war fantasies—black-and-white airbrushed images, delicate as Whistler nocturnes, that presented air raids in progress and buildings burning in a blitzkrieg's afterglow. Whether seen from above (a squadron of planes in formation, bomb blasts shattering the geometries of patterned fields and city streets) or from below (architecture lit indirectly by searchlight or silhouetted against an explosion-studded sky), these battles were depicted as elegantly staged displays. Here, war was seen through an impartial, amoral eye that did not distinguish between firebombs and fireworks. No specific meaning was proposed; no true sentiment was disclosed.

Each of these paintings was a paradoxical knot of antithetical conceits. Goldstein's rendering of a building dissolving into smoke and haze, for example, could be understood as disinterested documentation of disaster and as a Symbolist's reverie on the classic theme of ruins (sic gloria transit mundi) and as. . . . Voices blended. Fact was (con)fused with faintly remembered dream, leaving us to marvel at an airbrush's ability to mist-ify the difference between matter and mirage, fiction and objectivity.

In the new paintings, natural rather than man-made cataclysms have been placed at center stage. But even though Goldstein now pictures lightning storms, erupting volcanoes, meteor showers and a total eclipse of the sun, his basic concerns are apparently unchanged. Again, in over-sized scale he depicts exotic spectacles involving light phenomena against black backgrounds. Again, he finds grandeur in the fleeting and monumentality in ephemeral effects. His images remain mixtures of supposedly incompatible points of view (e.g., the minimal and melodramatic), but now a pronounced Romantic sensibility dominates the blend. If the war pictures succeeded in demonstrating that an idealized record (a painting based on a documentary photograph) was essentially the same as a falsified report (a picture of an imaginary event painted in a photo-realistic style), it was due, in great part, to the feigned impartiality of the artist's voice. But Goldstein's pictures are no longer seamless, uncolored critiques: where they once coupled science and fiction, they now embrace psychedelia and sci-fi.

Perhaps it is the addition of overtly histrionic color that has caused the delicate balance to go askew. Or perhaps Goldstein's celestial subject matter has disrupted his equilibrium, his sense of gravity. Whatever the case may be, the effect is clear: Goldstein's paintings now indulge in the very conceits they once called into question. This does not detract from the beauty of the paintings nor does it keep us from savoring the artist's sense of the spectacular—but it does change the work's status from neutral commentary to cosmic poetry.
—Douglas Blau

Ron Gorchov at Marlborough

Ron Gorchov has created a significant body of work from a singular union of image and format. His saddle-shaped canvases, covered by glowing, vigorously brushed sheets of paint that never quite reach to the canvas edge and a floating pair of eyelet shapes, centered, were a grand alloy of a psychic emblem with overtones of Abstract Expressionism, and the actual shape of the canvas. The saddle plane produced an enveloping effect, akin to that of Cinerama or diorama. But the effect was never so all-encompassing that you lost sight of the eccentric boundaries and curves of the format, or stopped experiencing the painting as an object in space peculiar enough to resist being taken for granted, as might happen with a conventional rectangular canvas. Gorchov's warm color sense and the assured matter-of-factness of his attack combined with the distinctive shape to make most of these paintings powerful enough for a small one to use up an entire wall.

Ron Gorchov: Procession, 1983, oil on linen, 63 ¾ by 81 ¼ inches; at Marlborough.

Gregory Amenoff: Hinterland, 1982, oil on canvas, 80 by 100 inches; at Robert Miller.

I suspect that what has moved Gorchov, in his new paintings, to shake up his imagery a bit has been the sense that his twin eyelet shapes had lost their primal directness. No matter how he varied the color and attack, widened or narrowed the stretcher bars, mirrored the twin shapes or made them parallel, he was still left with an image that was repeating itself, when repetition was not necessarily the point. Such repetition seems to empty work of content instead of reinforcing meaning, particularly when the work suggests a suppressed pictorial sensibility as lush as that of Gorchov's paintings.

In this exhibition Gorchov stretches out in a freer, more improvisational manner. Where the artist had been trying to generate an "actual" experience as opposed to a purely pictorial one, he now seems happy to let pictorialism have the upper hand. An increased number of shapes collide and interlock across the curved plane. The more complicated shapes and color schemes open up the imagery to association. One is variously reminded of body parts—ears and bones—or of sea grasses and Arthur Dove's landscape imagery. Gorchov is painting with washes of oil that streak and pool across the bottom swell of the canvas. In many cases the wash is thin and loose enough for the under-colors to bleed through freely. Some of the color combinations are achingly beautiful, like that light de Kooning gets—intense and washed out at the same time.

Still, this was a transitional show—the alliance between pictorial elements and shape is now an uneasy one. The curved and rounded picture plane had achieved a certain iconic resolution with Gorchov's symmetrical imagery; given the task of presenting more information it winds up reminding one a little uncomfortably of a TV screen. Nonetheless, the horizontal paintings generally work better than the verticals, which tend to squeeze themselves into totems. No matter how much Gorchov pushes pictoriality, his expanded imagery winds up looking grafted on. Choir, the best painting in the show, and a good-sized one, makes it clear that Gorchov is going to need some room to move with his new-found energy. —Stephen Westfall

Gregory Amenoff at Robert Miller

If feelings were the great bugaboo of American art of the '60s and '70s—of Pop, Minimalism and Conceptualism—they are certainly making a comeback now. We call it Neo-Expressionism. By now we know the figurative artists—from the Italians to the Germans to the graffiti artists to the all-purpose New Wavers—but the abstract Neo-Expressionists are only beginning to emerge. One of the leading lights of the new "abstract expressionism" (what else can we call it?) is Gregory Amenoff, who, with his most recent show, turned in a batch of canvases so full of feeling that the viewer had to catch his breath after taking each one in.

Amenoff does not get at feelings, though, the way an earlier generation of Abstract Expressionists did—with wild gesture and all-over everything. He seems to have hooked into the depressive phase of the manic-depressive psychosis that sweeps through American painting from the '50s on. Certainly a work like Lament, with its great, rushing rivers of impastoed red flowing over the giant amorphous forms of sickly greens, bluse and browns, is expressive of a passionate melancholia, of a painter truly working under the sign of Saturn.

The feeling of Amenoff's paint-

VOL
7
1
ISS
1 1
DE
1983
UMI

ings, then, is primarily negative. But the artist has what Keats called "negative capability." He lays out the topography of a certain pathological, post-modern state of mind. In The Space Between, that state is conveyed in tormented reds and sickly pinks, dirty yellows and whites, black blues and blue blacks.

These paintings are topographies; but let's not get them confused with landscapes. Or, if we must use the word, amend it to read "landscapes of the mind." Amenoff's pictures portray a netherland of human emotion, captured in titles like After the Gauntlet, or In The Fifth Season, an outsized, loose network of forms in green and olive and thickly encrusted pinks and blues. These are landscapes of the unimaginable—post-nuclear, post-survival—a brand new primal chaos.

It's strong stuff Amenoff is serving up—de Kooning beyond beauty, Guston beyond comedy. Today's art isn't easy—no modern art has come easily to the artist or the viewer. But Amenoff's murky, garish extremes of feeling make it crystal clear how much more difficult things have become. —Gerrit Henry

Patricia Johanson at Rosa Esman

For more than 15 years this unclassifiable artist has been designing outdoor projects for public use and enjoyment—free-spirited, adventurous comminglings of sculpture, horticulture, landscaping and architecture whose elements all respect an overall ecological balance. In these works, Johanson is able to maintain a degree of anonymity which reminds me of Asher B. Durand's Kindred Spirits, a painting in which the artist leaves himself outside the picture but shows Thomas Cole and William Cullen Bryant in contemplation of a chattering stream in the Catskills. Each century has its image, and upon that of the 19th century (for which she feels a romantic attachment) Johanson superimposes the image of the 20th century, with its modernist abstract art, as well as those of many other times, including remote prehistoric periods. Her writings abound with references to Stonehenge and Carnac, and certainly she knows of the huge animal figures traced in the Peruvian desert by the Nazca.

Patricia Johanson: Tidal Color Garden (certosia insularis), 1982, acrylic, ink and pastel, 36 ½ by 42 inches; at Rosa Esman.

John Tweddle: Vision from Oklahoma, 1981, oil on canvas, 66 ¼ by 96 ¾ inches; at Blum/Helman.

Johanson's latest exhibition consisted, in the main, of two sets of drawings for two outdoor projects: Fair Park Lagoon, commissioned by the Dallas Museum of Fine Arts in association with an organization called "For the People Incorporated"; and Tidal Color Gardens, a project proposal with no specified site. Fair Park Lagoon will be located on the State Fairgrounds near the old site of the museum (renamed the Dallas Museum of Art, its new building will open in downtown Dallas in late January). Johanson was commissioned to develop a project that would involve both the visitors to Fair Park (where a museum of natural history is also located) and the flora and fauna of the lagoon and its island. The north end of the lagoon will be the location of a site sculpture in terra cotta and concrete measuring 235 by 175 by 4 feet. If the visitor could see it from the air he might recognize the form of Saggitaria Platyphylla, an aquatic plant known in Texas and other parts of the South as "Delta Duckweed" because its pulpy roots are a favorite food for ducks and other marsh animals. Johanson chose this plant because it is so familiar that nobody ever looks at it. The fat "leaves" and "stalks" of the sculpture will provide walkways for visitors to explore the piece. Johanson's recent fascination with Celtic and Viking art has entered the design, which incorporates elaborate interlacing. As these lines are written, phase one, Saggitaria Platyphylla, is going out for bids, and construction should start soon. The second phase of the project will be another giant sculpture, in the form of Pteris Multifida, a fern which grows in the vicinity of the lagoon.

Another of Johanson's projects, the Tidal Color Gardens, is a garden complex intended to be built just below the high tide mark so that it would be visible in its entirety for a brief period only, at low tide. (Seen from the air it will be in the form of the butterfly Lethosia Insularis.) As the tide begins to come in, water would flow into the garden and activate a line of waterfalls, move around obstructions into various pools, and fill a pattern of causeways and islands. At high tide the garden would virtually disappear and there would be a brief stasis before the tide began to ebb and the process was reversed. The drawings on exhibition represented four stages of this continuously altering landscape. To my mind Tidal Color Gardens illustrates even better than Saggitaria Platyphylla something Johanson wrote in the catalogue of her 1981 exhibition: "The only way one could really 'see' the garden would be in piecing it together in one's mind. The sensitivity of the viewer would now assume even greater importance than the sensitivity of the garden designer."

Johanson was originally an abstract painter, and she writes that her approach to her work is still basically that of a painter, the big difference being that instead of placing people in front of and outside the picture, she now places them within it. But color, light, shadow, perspective and composition still remain her major concerns. —Lawrence Campbell

John Tweddle at Blum Helman

Any critic reviewing John Tweddle's work finds himself forced to confront the issue of what might be termed real verus false naive art. Certainly Tweddle's work evinces many of the characteristics of naive or folk art produced in this country: it is quasi-narrative and often hinges on biblical allusions. The iconography is drawn from both popular culture and apocalyptic religious symbolism. Tweddle constructs his paintings layer on layer like a storyteller who embroiders a simple tale with ever-increasing detail. His draftsmanship is crude and often caricatural in the manner of graffiti or doodles. He indulges in homespun bad puns—as in Good Pussy, a painting of a beautific feline. The composition of the paintings is generally symmetrical, and the details at the edges serve as "frames" for the principal images. Certain motifs, such as dollar signs, trucks, missiles, tank cars, flames and lightning are repeated obsessively.

For all this, Tweddle is not just another self-taught folk artist. The paintings are much too well done. The draftsmanship, despite its simplicity, is sure and accomplished—one feels that the artist could easily adopt a more polished style. The trapezoid shapes of the paintings appear to allude to modernist concerns with the shaped support. Tweddle may be a truck driver's son from Salem, Ky., but he attended art school in Atlanta and paid his dues on the New York scene in the late 1960s.

Is it valid to question the use of a naive style by a sophisticated artist in an age when artists can freely borrow motifs and styles from all periods of art history? Painting such as Tweddle's must compel us to accept the artist's belief in a social or religious program; otherwise, it suggests a satiric reading of style as yet another popular icon. As regards the real and the false naive, Tweddle seems to have a foot in both camps. I am told that he experienced a religious conversion a while back (he now heads a construction company in Oklahoma in addition to making his paintings). The energy and obsessive nature of his imagery constantly prod one to suspect that Tweddle might just mean it.

—Reagan Upshaw

Ernesto Tatafiore: Vivre Libre ou Mourir, 1982, acrylic and pencil on paper, 60 by 45 inches; at Andre Emmerich.

Ernesto Tatafiore at Emmerich

In an interview with Danny Berger in The Print Collector's Newsletter, the Italian artist Ernesto Tatafiore commented that he most admired the man of the Enlightenment—one made by himself, for himself, in the light of reason and science. For Tatafiore, a great symbol of enlightment is the French Revolution, which he extols—in primitive, childlike images, painted roughly but charmingly—with portraits of Robespierre and Marat and various revolutionary tableaux.

But is Tatafiore really a man of the Enlightenment? Some might argue that the French Revolution turned into a reactionary bloodbath. Maybe it was the beginning of the end of Western civilization, an end that seems ever more imminent as the century crawls on. Is Tatafiore serious? Is that why his figures are so caricatural? Has his work as a psychoanalyst—a profession rooted in the worship of reason and a scientific ethos—so affected his thinking that he's blind to what's been going on in the world?

Tatafiore lives far outside Naples, and he may indeed have constructed some sort of artificial life for himself, half psychoanalysis, half art. Not only French revolutionists, but composers like Mozart and Bach appear in his paintings. The artist has an eye for great spirits. But things are not as rational as they seem: Mozart appears at his pianoforte beside a smoking Mount Vesuvius; all is not well with the 18th century—everything could come to an end if that smoking volcano goes off.

Paul Resika: Jacaranda Bull, End of the Day, 1983, oil on canvas, 51 ½ by 64 inches; at Graham.

If Tatafiore isn't quite sure about the classical past, he's ambivalent about his personal past as well, as is clear in Self-Portrait as Adolescent. His bland, blank face is gray, his hair is white, and his head emits billows of white smoke, much like Vesuvius. "Nothing without pain, nothing without love" is inscribed in Latin on the canvas. Some teenage heartbreak, or a wisdom beyond his years? In another self-portrait, a carved, eaglelike profile shoots out of white smoke from the ubiquitous volcano; there is a falling man in brown to the left and another falling man in green to the right. Now we're getting somewhere. Is this Tatafiore the volcano god, dark alter ego of the reasonable psychoanalyst who loves Mozart?

"Vivre libre ou mourir" reads the inscription on another of the French Revolution paintings—in which a man leaning against a harpsichord holds the head of the headless man standing next to him—but here it's only a motto. So we can reasonably doubt that Tatafiore is extolling the Enlightenment when he paints Robespierre, who symbolizes the blackest side of the Revolution: this is the head man of the Reign of Terror, and there's got to be more here than superficial idealization. There's too much mythos, too much celebration of the irrational and even the numinous—witness Vesuvius—for Tatafiore to be credited as a true creature of the Enlightenment. Instead, his paintings would seem to be an investigation, in words and pictures, of how the modern period began, and the origins of our delusions that we are a rational, peaceful people. Tatafiore's paintings are parodies of enlightenment that show up the ideal in relief while throwing a spooky gray light into the dark corners of history and the human unconscious.

—Gerrit Henry

Paul Resika at Graham

For many years Paul Resika's paintings have paid homage to a nature which he often seems to embrace pantheistically. It is as though the nymph that the Greeks thought was the spirit of the tree had taken refuge in the paint on his canvas, along with the naiads who once lived in the water and the dryads who dwelt in the woods. Since the 18th century nature has ceased to be a reflection of divine purpose, and most painters of nature fall into Ruskin's pathetic fallacy by thinking of nature either in humanist or scientific terms. Resika seems to be an exception. He stands apart, for he projects himself into the paint as it goes on his canvas, rather than into "nature."

VOL 7 1 ISS 1 1 DE 1983 UMI

Resika is an immensely cultivated painter. In his conversation he always seems to have just left the company of Courbet, Manet, Rousseau, Corot, Delacroix and other great masters. In his own art he is a master of two approaches. In some paintings he wraps up his subject with sweeps of the brush, almost as though his hand held that broom which Abbot H. Thayer recommended to Rockwell Kent as the most suitable instrument for the painting of landscapes. In other works the long thin strokes of the brush curdle the paint into the milkiness of the sea as it reflects the impassivity of the sky. Always more expressionistic than impressionistic, Resika's colors are never "synthetic." They evoke particular moods, places and times.

Everything in this latest show was painted in Mexico directly from the outdoors. The series of beach paintings with groups of figures made me think of fire drying up water and sand alike. There was a mini-series of really superb small paintings on paper, all of water or of the sea. In one of them the texture of very shiny paint depicting water was contrasted with paint that appeared as dry as bones bleaching in the sun. Ochlayo, Noon was a subtle tintinnabulation of spots and dabs of green, blue and pink tinged with iron gray. One painting, White Moon, Rising, reminded me of the gray painting to which Turner added a scarlet disk of paint at the last minute on Varnishing Day at the Royal Academy, thus eclipsing the work hanging next to it, which happened to be by his rival Constable. Resika started his painting late in the afternoon, and as he continued to paint into the dusk, the moon rose in nature's sky and thus into the sky of his painting.

I mention these works first, but in this show the strongest impression was left by a series of six large paintings depicting a bull as black as a bible, grazing knee-deep in a field burnt orange by the sun. A mountainlike cliff shoots skyward, echoing a stone building and a tree. In their naturalism, Resika's bulls are absolutely bull-like, his tree, treelike, his mountain, mountainlike. What do these haunting pictures say? To my mind they are a symbol, as national as any flag, of the mysterious brooding calm before the storm that is Mexico, with its ancient civilization and its obsession with death which it shares with its Spanish conquerors. In this exhibition Paul Resika has reached a higher level of achievement than ever before.

—Lawrence Campbell

Jack Chevalier: Oracle, 1982, acrylic on wood panels, 72 by 40 inches; at Hodges Banks (review on p. 153).

Alan Cote: Cupid and Psyche, 1983, acrylic on canvas, 72 by 60 inches; at Washburn.

R. M. Fischer at Baskerville + Watson

At all of 36, R. M. Fischer has made a significant contribution to American art, although it's a contribution far less portentous than it sounds. Fischer, as quite a few know by now, not only from his gallery exhibitions but from his window displays at Fiorucci and Bloomingdale's—makes lamps. The lamps do indeed give off light but their primary purposes seem to be humor and invention—in short, art.

The lamps might seem a bit too funny and funky to some to be considered high art, but it is as easily argued that these very qualities constitute Fischer's contribution. He is no stranger to the lessons of Pop: that a truly American art resides in gigantism and gigantic irony, that wit can be vitality and humor beautiful. In these decidedly post-Pop days, Fischer's outsized lamps stand virtually alone in the flux of Expressionist and decorative trends. They are aglow with aborted technology and luminescent sign language.

This latest exhibition, however, marked a subtle shift in Fischer's work. Where until now the lamps have depended to a great extent on found objects, on fountains and on a general outlandishness, these new objects aspire to what might be called a certain classicism. A good illustration of this was the show's main piece, Century City, a 7-foot 9-inch monster of an extraordinarily good nature. The base is a smooth disc of Carrara marble; a steel pipe runs up from there, securing woks and steel mixing bowls which act as hemispherical containers of light; there is also a hemisphere of white glass, and a dangling light cord with a light in the pull. Gone were a lot of the laughs; present was a futurism more dependent on Buck Rogers than Star Wars for inspiration.

Indeed, Fischer may be said to have invented a new category of design—low tech. This is especially true of Futura, a mélange of plastic and glass lampshades with brass supports set on a limestone base, the whole affair simultaneously baroque and awkward. Home Base is more complicated but similarly humble in materials and tone: three legs made of plumber's piping rise from a circular marble base; they support a big chunk of lava out of which grew flexi-necked desk lamps; a brass cage with brass ornaments and brass-mounted lamps top the whole thing off.

Fischer's new work is, in short, extremely satisfying: a shining relief from glitter, an expressive relief from Expressionism. Fischer's lamps are dumb and dynamic, futuristic but of a touching domesticity. In keeping with the American sensibility, the jokester isn't fooling around. He's creating in a vacuum, from scratch, without a tradition to look back to or a canon to attain to. Fischer's bright ideas are a perfect foil to the high seriousness presently flooding the art scene. And that's a contribution.

—Gerrit Henry

Alan Cote at Washburn

Alan Cote first gained attention for his paintings in the late '60s. His early work depicted brightly colored, bevel-edged bars in a monochromatic field. As paintings, they were aggressive and self-referential. One of the impressive things about them was how the bright bars never disrupted the surface plane—all optical play was denied by Cote's formal control.

Then, about five years ago, Cote's paintings began to change significantly. Rather than continuing to mine the formal possibilities of his earlier work, he started working more freely and spontaneously; each painting resulted more from intuition than from any predetermined formal strategy. The edges of the bars became ragged and some were even submerged into the fields. Cote enlarged his vocabulary to include abraded strokes and curving, feather-shaped outlines. Now it is possible to understand the reasoning behind these changes. Philosophically, Cote's approach bears comparison to Hans Hofmann's: for both, formal means and intuition work together, and the origin of their abstract paintings is often the observable world. The blackish winglike shape in Cote's Falling Bird Rising Shadow Reflection, 1982, for example, not only divides the reddish pink area from the pinkish gray area, but evokes one of Cote's natural sources—the landscape of upstate New York, where he now lives.

Cote's most recent show filled both the uptown and downtown Washburn galleries and contained 19 paintings completed between 1980 and 1983. In the uptown space were 13 paintings ranging in size from 9 by 12 inches to 42 by 38¼ inches; downtown were six larger works, ranging in size up to nine feet wide. Both groups of paintings were distinguished by Cote's precise yet evocative use of color.

In Apollo Rising From the Sea, 1982, for example, vertical strokes of yellow on the left activate a narrow, vertical black ground surrounded by a blue border. To the immediate right of this area horizontal green strokes have been placed over a yellowish tan ground. An abstract stick figure is suggested by black lines on this same ground. The internal rhyming of yellow over black to black over yellow is both subtle and poignant. The ensemble suggests sunlight, blue ocean surface and black ocean depths, with a figure dominating a landscape.

Cote's paintings pose a challenge to those who believe one must abandon abstraction in order to convey heroic subject matter. If the Abstract Expressionists can be divided into those who structured their paintings through color (Newman and Rothko) and those who relied on more graphic means (Pollock and Kline), then Cote's method of drawing with color pulls these two divergent paths together. Cote has moved into a realm where he can embrace the past on his own terms. That he has done so in a little more than a decade is a remarkable achievement. —John Yau

Kiely Jenkins: Rats on Ledge, 1983, mixed mediums, 30 by 80 by 16 inches; at Fun.

Archie Rand: The Marvelettes #20a, 1970, enamel and acrylic on canvas, 46 by 110 ½ inches; at Carnegie Institute (review on p. 152).

Kiely Jenkins at Fun Gallery

A shellacked, wooden, rusticated sign, "Metropolitan Wildlife Museum. No Smoking," hung in the entrance to an enclave of the Fun Gallery. Inside, sparsely distributed specimens held a cadaverous, albeit aggressive, vigil. Wood and shinily painted plaster, glutinous upon gauze and chicken wire, are flesh of Moose Trophy, Dog Trophy, Rat Trophy, and a chihuahua named Canisiminuto.

A large rat head, severed neck pressed to a wooden plaque, projects its rodent snout. Spirals painted on its popping eyeballs give it a Duchampian mien, a rodent's contemplation of the perpetual dissolution of brick to dust. A shelf formed by two joined parallelograms represents a brick wall and sidewalk; it holds two rats foraging for tender comestibles. A pert but shabby behind with a dangly curling tail emerges from a tin can, diffusing a lunar glow. A comrade on hind legs awaits nearby. Graffiti markings on the sooty wall have the peculiar proportions of being the work of the rats themselves. "TITO," sprayed in capital letters above the rat in the penumbral can, vacillates in meaning. Is it a nostalgic tribute to a Yugoslavian potentate, or the affectionate nickname for a street boy?

A river-bottom light box encases two flat, pan-shaped Scud-fish of the Lower Hudson. These brothers of the same species, however, display distinct individual proportions and facial expressions. One petite scud-fish has the drooping eyelids of an intemperate stentor, and the vapid, osculating mouth of a carp. The other manifests humanoid mandibles, and the bulging eyes of an apoplectic.

In a light box without a glass barrier is a cheerless, atmospheric cityscape, Bird on Ledge; here a gaunt sepulchral fowl perches hunched and ominous. A three-dimensional row of desolate, reddish buildings of the early '20s, made of cardboard, appears to be the cynosure of contemplation for this amalgam of carrion bird and mummified chicken.

Drawings with colored pencil of simplified modern buildings show Kiely Jenkins capable of long attendance to a piece of paper. With a palette of yellow, mauve, turquoise, red and green, he has given these buildings the appearance of a salmagundi of separate colored threads meshing to porridge consistency. A restful bleakness emanates from constructs of metropolitan planes and parallelograms, cut from materials resembling foreign notebook papers. These abstracted cityscapes are assembled in containers of shoebox dimension. A faint electrical light suffuses these papers with a crepuscular lambency of televisual depth.

But Jenkins's most ambitious creations are the "Metropolitan Wildlife Museum" specimens; each provides clues to what it desires to become. The moose, the rat, the dogs, the fish, all appear to be straining for movable parts. The eyes, especially, bulge with such a rotundity that it would be cruel not to provide them with the freedom to twirl in their sockets.

The cartoonish nature of the creatures Jenkins has wrought for his third show at Fun Gallery has obvious affiliations to television caricature. The artist admits to the perduring influence of television. New York graffiti art and the ramifications of atomic warfare are two particular concerns of 24-year-old Kiely Jenkins. —Auste

PURCHASE, N.Y.

Jan Groover at the Neuberger Museum

As an abstract painter in the '60s, Jan Groover came to maturity under the sway of Minimalism and Conceptual art, and when she turned to 35-mm photography in the late '60s her work relied on Conceptualist notions derived in part from artists like Bernd and Hilla Becher, Jan Dibbets and William Wegman. In this early work, Groover often deployed her photographs in quasi-cinematic sequences, revealing different aspects of her subject in time and space, capturing what Bergson called the state of becoming.

In the mid-'70s, after three years in New York City, Groover began a series of black-and-white photographs whose grandeur reflects the monumentality of their subject—the walls of lower Manhattan. In the triptych 355.1 361.10 363.8 (1976), Groover photographed three walls at different angles to the picture plane. These seemingly unrelated building fragments are composed so as to form a continuous, pleated screen which, veiled in shadow, poses a deliberate ambiguity as to the time of day captured in the photographs (looming skyscrapers produce perpetual twilight in those downtown urban canyons).

Groover's most outstanding achievement to date came later—in her large color still lifes begun in 1978. These intimate portraits of household utensils and natural objects, shot with a 4-by-5-inch view camera and blown up to 16 by 20 inches, are obviously indebted to Edward Weston's black-and-white photographs of peppers and shells, but Groover deviates from Weston's coolly elegant style through her use of satu-

VOL 71
ISS 11
DE 1983
UMI

rated color and the complexity of her formal arrangements. Not limited, as Weston often was, to a solitary motif, Groover combines and recombines her objects in different clusters, like fugues in some ongoing pantry symphony. In her photographs the objects often seem free of gravity, floating in richly colored chains above her light-filled surfaces.

More recently, Groover has turned to still lifes, figure studies, portraits and landscapes in an 11-by-14-inch format. Abandoning color for black-and-white platinum-palladium printing, she has chosen this medium for its richer, more saturated blacks and generally higher print quality. Her use of it also appears to be a deliberate homage to such past masters as Stieglitz and Paul Strand, who also employed platinum-palladium printing.

After the large scale and luxuriance of her color still lifes, these black-and-white photographs have a decided reticence and an old-fashioned mien. Even her portraits—close-ups of intimate gestures like touching, paeans to male beauty—have an almost icy remoteness. Groover is still at her best in the still lifes, where she uses the paper's capacity for dense blacks to build large abstract shapes that play off against small, normally unnoticed but beautiful domestic objects—in one case a handful of withered mushrooms.

In this retrospective one thing stood out: Groover's superb hand with color—the denial of which, in her recent photographs, is troubling. More troubling, perhaps, is Groover's current position as an artist. A forerunner of photographic styles in her early work, she now seems to have adopted, with her use of traditional genres, an almost archival approach to photography, suggesting a new conservatism on her part.

—Ann-Sargent Wooster

Jan Groover: Untitled, 1980, black-and-white photograph; at Neuberger Museum.

PITTSBURGH

Archie Rand at the Carnegie Institute

Archie Rand's stained paintings were first seen in a 1968 group show. He was 19 and a student of Larry Poons at the Art Students League, but, even at this early stage of his career, Rand was too restless to remain satisfied with being just another precocious student or follower of formalist dicta. By 1970 he had not only reexamined his commitment to Color Field but was moving decisively in his own direction. The result was a series of more than 50 "Letter Paintings," all produced between 1968 and 1971 but till now unexhibited. This show brought together eight of them.

The paintings, which range in size from 3 to 4 feet high and from 5 to 20 feet long, consist of colored grounds across which lists of words are floated—mostly the names of obscure bebop and R & B groups, jazz musicians, hit songs, painters and writers. Some of the grounds are stained while others bear acrylic gel scraped with a comb to form a ridged surface. The letters are painted by hand, spray painted, or done in acrylic gel that has been applied with a pastry gun. As with calligraphy, the emphasis here is not only on the word but on the making of it.

In Clyfford Still (#42), 1971, one of the painting's two sets of musicians' and artists' names is done in the same modulated color as the stained ground. What makes these names legible is that they were "written" with a pastry gun. Over the resulting uneven ground, Rand then applied another list of names, again with a pastry gun. This attempt to integrate the surface with graphic means brings Pollock to mind.

Rand's lists are notable for their obsessive thoroughness. No musical group, however fleeting its success, seems to have escaped Rand's attention. Indeed, Rand's attempt to retrieve from obsurity such now forgotten groups as Nolan Strong and the Diablos or Cleve Duncan and the Penguins takes on something of a heroic cast; certainly, there is nothing nostalgic about it. By using the list format to link the names of these obscure musicians with those of such well-known artists as Clyfford Still, Rand implies an equivalence between the life of the performer on the road and that of the painter in the studio. What is common to both professions, Rand seems to suggest, is the anxiety of isolation and possible failure.

Since Ruscha's early word paintings preceded Rand's by several years, they may well have provided the younger artist with his initial inspiration. Nevertheless, Rand's emphasis on drawing and his obsessive list-making plainly distinguish his work from Ruscha's, with its semi-anonymous graphic style and deadpan humor. The difference in intent is made still clearer by Rand's somewhat melancholic thematic concerns.

These paintings may have been done when Rand was a young man barely out of his teens, but there is nothing naive about them. If the "Letter Paintings" are just the tip of the iceberg (as I think they are), it seems reasonable to suppose that Rand, who is now in his early 30s and still painting, may already have assembled the substance of a considerable career.

—John Yau

WASHINGTON, D.C.

Billy Copley at Middendorf

Fragmentary images of animals—monkeys, sharp-beaked birds, coyotes—merge and fade into one another improbably in Billy Copley's new paintings, much as they do in circus posters. He creates a claustrophobic intensity by loading his pictures with outsized animal figures while nearly eliminating spatial depth. The surfaces of his canvases are rich and busy with palette-knife work and the evidence of his pleasure in painting.

Looking at Copley's works, however, is not entirely pleasurable. They are charged with the threat of animal violence. Like a recurring nightmare, an intent chimpanzee surfaces again and again in the paintings, brandishing an object that looks as much like a knife as a banana. The unpredictability of wild animals is a source of psychological tension in Copley's recent work. The animals all seem wary and alert, poised as though ready to spring into action or to attack. The crisp deliberateness of Copley's painthandling underscores a physical tension as well. Copley occasionally focuses on the special attributes and abilities of his creatures as, for example, in Insouciant, where a disembodied monkey's tail curled around a branch is isolated in one corner.

Individually, Copley's pictures are powerful and convincing, but in quantity their effect dissipates because the mood and tone never really change. One canvas may be brighter than another (in the works at Middendorf he favors a rosy pink, cool blues and earthy browns), or more crowded with detail, but look at a dozen of them and you feel the artist is repeating himself, that the "animal kingdom" he portrays merely provides a convenient pretext for other concerns. Repetition has its uses, but Copley has not yet found a way of incorporating it into the work's content. The relationship between his agitated animals and the energy of his paint handling is obvious, but the parallel of subject matter and technique is an expressionist cliche, and Copley has done nothing to reinvent it here. His painterly dexterity has already far surpassed his subject matter in interest. Copley seems to be on the verge of letting the process of painting transform the convention of the subject, and there is every reason to suspect he will be able to accomplish this transformation. —Kenneth Baker

SAN FRANCISCO

Val Telberg at the San Francisco Museum of Modern Art

To a reviewer who lived through the 1940s, Val Telberg's composite photographs have a strong period flavor. They were inspired by the experimental films of Maya Bill Copley: Untitled, 1983, charcoal on paper, 45 by 35 inches; at Middendorf.

Peter Kennard: Warhead, 1980, photomontage; at Museum of Modern Art, Oxford (review on p. 155).

Val Telberg: Harbinger of Rebellion, ca. 1950, silver gelatin print; at San Francisco Museum of Modern Art.

Deren, the paintings of Pavel Tchelitchew and the complex of attitudes imported into the American art community along with psychoanalysis and Surrealism. It comes as no surprise that the photomontage illustrations of Anais Nin's House of Incest (1951) were by Val Telberg.

All that might be sufficient reason for the recent Telberg retrospective organized by Van Deren Coke for the San Francisco Museum of Modern Art; but there is a contemporary reason as well. Young people to whom Deren and Tchelitchew mean little find in Telberg a sensibility for which they have been prepared by record jackets, New Wave graphics, and the dream-oriented art popularized by spiritual-growth movements. Val Telberg is a 1940s photographer who is well positioned for the 1980s—and still producing.

Working with models in the studio and almost at random in the street, Telberg accumulates images without any preconceived idea of how he will use them. The final work of creation takes place in the darkroom, where Telberg makes sandwiches of negatives and prints the results. In some cases he works over the print with ink; more recently he has dripped developer onto the paper.

Although nine-tenths of his photographs never find their way into a finished work, Telberg uses some images over and over again as if they were actors in a repertory company of the imagination. Stairways and balustrades, a silhouetted hand, the upper half of nude women, a half-seen face that is probably Telberg's own, a man standing in a doorway with arms raised in a dance position: individual elements clamor for attention in the most theatrical way, but are submerged in the twilight ambiguity of a dream. Telberg's approach is that of a director presiding over a theater of dreams. Unlike photomontages that juxtapose discrete images, however incongruous, Telberg's are enriched (or at least complicated) by superimposition, in a deliberate effort to discourage quick readings—the artist has said he intends his photographs to be experienced over a period of time.

On a museum wall the results can seem arbitrary and uneven. Where Rauschenberg's combine paintings offer the kind of instant recognition that is built into advertisements and news photographs, Telberg's composite pictures refer to mental events outside of public consciousness. His locus is not the six o'clock news or the picture files of Life magazine, but something more like a wet weekend spent indoors in reverie and remembered sexuality.

After an initial period of productivity and widespread exhibition during the '40s and early '50s, Telberg explored other mediums (not in this show)—among them abstract sculpture, film and performance. He came back to photomontage in the late '60s, often working in very large scale. Although the size of these pieces reflects the assertiveness of American art at the time, Telberg's imagery continues to elicit generally downbeat emotional responses.

These are exposures of the self that have not been assimilated into an ingratiating style, and they retain an air of the homemade and the uncertified. In recent years Robert Heinecken and other Los Angeles photographers have revived interest in experimental uses of photography. This retrospective pays tribute to a pioneer in the use of composite photographic printing placed at the service of a surreal vision.

—Jerome Tarshis

SEATTLE

Jack Chevalier at Hodges Banks

The inaugural exhibition at this gallery featured Jack Chevalier's constructions and paintings on carved wood panels. His work's salient characteristic is a bold geometric patterning suggesting African or Oceanic motifs and incorporating pictographs and stylized representational elements; previous work often took the form of geometric shields or masks. His constructions abound in decorative detail—lines of paint daubs squeezed from the tube, strips of commercially available wood marquetry, raised surfaces of stretched vellum, deeply incised tesselations.

The recent work tends towards a more planar format. Now, foot-wide planks of mahogany are fitted together with large dovetail notches into rectangular panels. Crudely beveled abutting edges exaggerate the rough-hewn "primitive" quality of the objects, as do the gouged and chiseled relief surfaces and machine-routed grooves that create a variety of geometric forms. And finally, surfaces are painted or stained with saturated color.

Chevalier is now edging towards a lexicon of "modern" pictographs: some are mechanical—airplanes, carnival rides; others are natural—symbols for water, fire, forest, contoured plowed fields. The artist's progress can be charted from totemic constructions like Standing Man with Headdress, to symmetrically patterned panels with human or animal pictographs such as Oracle, to stylized representational scenes such as Infatuation, in which a carnival-ride contraption is set against a deeply carved night-scape whose turbulent sky is an unmistakable reference to van Gogh's Starry Night. Chevalier's lines have become more flowing, less abrupt and jagged, reaching a baroque high in the arabesques of Arc-Light Under Moon-Light.

Inventing a new lexicon of "primitive" symbols is a risky business; the artist's meanings and intentions can be diluted or lost in a cross-cultural dialectic. Chevalier's recent works subsume his symbols into a decorative pattern scheme. They occupy a tense middle ground between symbolic "primitivism" and modernist detachment, and between portentous meaning and decorative jubilation. —Ron Glowen

VOL
7
1

ISS
1 1

DE

1983

UMI

SANTA FE

Jesus Bautista Moroles at Janus

Exhibiting in tandem with Southwest landscape painter John Hogan, Texas sculptor Jesus Bautista Moroles introduced a series of intimately scaled, abstract works in granite that, like his fountains and monumental sculptures of the last few years, continue to explore the properties of his chosen material. The new pieces, standing 3 to 4 feet in height, bring an increased refinement to the juxtaposing of surface and edge treatments that has become Moroles's artistic trademark. Working with a power diamond saw and drill, as well as with traditional hand tools, he slices, splits, bores, grinds and polishes a variety of granites to produce carved and constructed forms that are at once dense and clear.

Vanishing Edge II is an upright stone wedge polished to a glossy black on two sides. The third vertical surface, unpolished and gray in color, is sawn into a row of teeth, or keys. Those keys, some of them chipped or chiseled along the edges, sound a musical scale when strummed, and the way in which they are alternately individuated and run together by the eye as the piece is approached from the thin edge imbues it with a distinctly rhythmic quality. Two works of pink granite, Musical Stele I and Musical Stele II, also have sawn combs with teeth whose slightly irregular edges stand in contrast to the uniformity of the saw cuts themselves. As on a pocket comb, the cuts at the base of the teeth wrap around an extruded spine that is neither flush with the surface nor cut completely through; thus, there are three major elements in the material vocabulary of these sculptures: solid stone, surface cuts, and full cuts through which light passes. The resulting visual effects vary depending on the angle of viewing. Broad surfaces are again polished, while their irregular termini appear hand-chiseled.

All the stelae are slightly bowed in contour from top to bottom. Granite Stele is distinct from the others in that it bears horizontal saw marks on one surface and groupings of partial and full horizontal incisions on the other. Once again the partial cuts read as dark lines, while full cuts allow the passage of light.

The more diminutive Interlocking Round I and Wall Walk I completed this installation. Like the larger pieces, and indeed all of Moroles's work, they gracefully carry birthmarks, whether quarry cuts, traces of backsawing or molecular cleavages that have been allowed to take their own course. Moroles has said that he wishes to bring the quarry into the gallery. Equally, in his sculpture he returns the stone to itself, its nature enhanced. —David L. Bell

WALLINGFORD, CT.

Reggie Bradford at Mellon Arts Center

Smooth transitions between dissimilar forms are the key to the sensual beauty of Reggie Bradford's sculptures. The pieces are small, usually less than 12 inches high, and carved from wood or stone—marble, alabaster, black walnut, African wonder stone. Nonspecific organic shapes derived from fruits or parts of the human body are blended with aspects of the rock or wood itself, and with more recognizable figurative forms—faces, limbs, sexual organs. These varied masses bulge out from the core like outer extensions of inner rhythms.

Bradford, a black artist, is heir to that aspect of African art that values multiplicity, both visual and thematic—and an unexpected harmonizing of otherwise unrelated forms. (In much of African dance, for example, the most revered dancer is the one who can maintain several distinct rhythms simultaneously at different levels of the body, all with effortless grace and elegance.) For Bradford, this rhythmic multiplicity has become a compositional device. Although there is an overall stillness or composure to the work, his shapes tend to burst through each other, forming the outer "visage" of each piece.

In Crossroads, the elongated face of a woman carved deep into the side of a long, narrow piece of soapstone seems to proceed out of the abstracted organic shapes below her chin. Above the face, a flattish rectangular solid twists on its edge; Bradford left the surface of this form rough, in strong contrast with the dark, highly polished face of the woman and the abstracted forms. Although surprising, these shifts are never jarring. Bradford's transitions are smooth and masterful, maximally heightening contrasts but never breaking the work's coherence.

Bradford's thematic associations are also unusual. Although his surface treatment and carefully curved forms seem almost classical, his titles introduce popular jargon with disarming humor. One three-form piece that hovers between the geometric and the sensual is called Bacon, Ham and Baloney. A group of faces piled around each other in a limestone block bears the name Cowboys and Indians. And Peanut is a subtle merging of several profiles of a foot and heel with a cut melon, all polished to a soft, dark sheen.

Bradford obeys no formal taboos either, using sexually suggestive or explicit forms of a size and tactile quality that ask to be touched. Point Blank is dominated by a delicate breast; Forward Thrust is essentially a phallus; Form Fusion can be seen as the lower torso of a man. However, nothing here is impersonal or grotesque, and maleness and femaleness are neither elevated nor degraded. Instead, we see sensual warmth and a frankness that is at times unnerving—perhaps for its very lack of polemics.

Bradford's sculpture is multileveled, visceral, sometimes brash, reflecting the diverse artistic influences and personal history that stand behind it. Its rhythmic synthesis of Harlem, humor, sensuality and the concerns of "high art" demonstrates the strength of Bradford's hand and vision.

—Ellen Priest

LOS ANGELES

Manny Farber at Larry Gagosian

Manny Farber's new oil paintings bring together features of both his abstract color-field paintings of the early 1970s and his more recent realist still lifes. With several works over 11 feet long, Farber has abandoned his previous table-top intimacy for a more sprawling, centrifugal field. In a work like Have a Chew on Me or in the arabesque profusion of Nix, he treads a middle path between the dense abundance of Pollock and the emblematic redundancy of Pop. We read these new paintings for their snaking constellations of trompe l'oeil Polaroids, cancelled checks, paint boxes, tools, glimpses of cruelty and eroticism and notebook pages covered with writing—especially lists; we are also aware of the large zones of pure flat color against which these chains of images are arrayed.

With Farber, the critic-painter, there is a refusal of the modernist insistence that texts and paintings are discrete realms, each with autonomous rules and functions. It is essential to see his images as an écriture, with all the layering and complexity of a textual object, where painting and writing can employ overlapping strategies, mechanisms, effects and ambiguities. His work thus positions itself within a lineage—always unsettling to anyone who believes in "pure painting"—that includes Duchamp's Tum' and Johns's According To What.

Farber's link to these two artists is not simply in his preoccupation with language or in the centrality of irony in his work, but more in his simultaneous deployment of multiple codes and sign systems. All three artists engage the viewer in a shifting, mobile relation with the work, which, never totalizable, slips in and out of a variety of semantic levels—from the literal to the figurative, the discursive to the gestural, presence to absence.

All of Farber's images, through their patient accumulation of intimate details, establish a fragmented, plural field—a social terrain woven out of high and low culture, of daily life and physical work, of private existence. In this rich chaos, what is important for Farber are the points at which objects graze and touch each other, the limits where they overlap or intersect. Coherence lies always just beyond the last of an unfinished series of delicate adjustments, alignments, positionings of signs and figures.

Farber thus works alongside the anomie generated by a cultural surplus of codes and the commodification of signs. For him it is a question of processing the content of his paintings according to a syntactic order other than mere exchangeability or purely formal manipulation. Ever hostile to the static, he is always experimenting with the links between forms and with long chains of metaphoric condensations. No longer viable is the syntax of the briskly framed '20s comic strips which appear in broken pieces around his paintings or of the seamless extension of railroad tracks which hug his surfaces in meandering disjunct segments. But there is no nostalgia for this lost narrative linearity or indeed for any truths outside the shallow plane of his paintings. Farber's deadpan, often acerbic wit is the cover for an outlook that is anti-utopian, suspicious of the unconscious, and that grounds thinking in the proliferating materiality of social life.

—Jonathan Crary

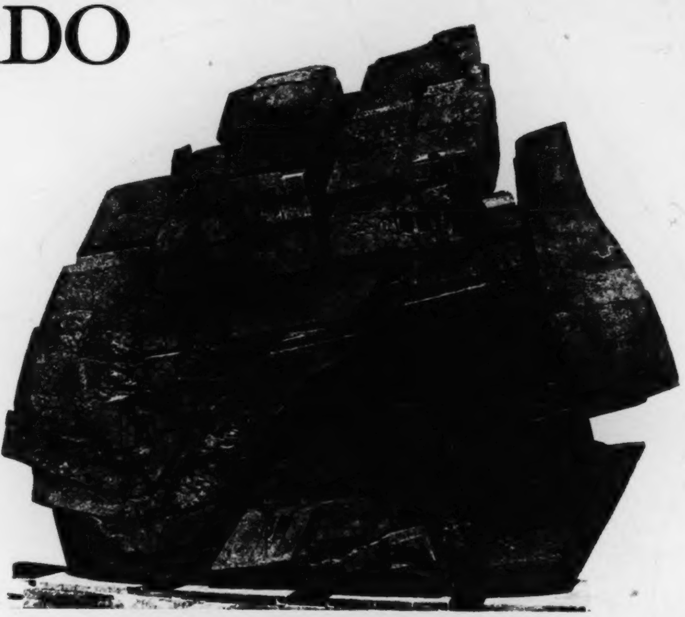
OXFORD, ENGLAND

Peter Kennard at the Museum of Modern Art

Peter Kennard is one of the very few artists—the only one, it might be said—who has had a direct effect in recent British politics. His photomontages are everywhere: on Greater London Council poster hoardings, Committee for Nuclear

VOL
71
ISS
11
DE
1983
UMI

JEAN AMADO
Sculptures



GALERIE
JEANNE BUCHER
53 rue de Seine 75006 Paris

DUBUFFET - VIEIRA DA SILVA - de STAEL - TOBEY - JORN - BISSIERE
AGUAYO - MOSER - SINGER - WAKAKO - NALLARD - GUILLERMO ROUX

Robert Arneson
John Baeder
William Bailey
Jennifer Bartlett
Robert Barnes
Jack Beal
William Beckman
Pegan Brooke
Joan Brown
Stuart Campbell
Squeak Carnwath
Daniel Chard
Gregory Constantine
James Cook
Robert Cottingham
Barbara Cushing
Peter Dean
Roy DeForest
Robert Donley
Valentina Dubasky
Rafael Ferrer
Janet Fish
Vernon Fisher
Patricia Tobacco Forrester
Sondra Freckelton
Jedd Garet
Alain Gavin
Ralph Goings
Ken Goodman
Judy Gordon
Sue Hettmansperger
Peter Holbrook
Robert Hudson
Yvonne Jacquette
Daniel Lang
James McGarrell
Mark Mulhern
Kathryn Myers
Claes Oldenburg
Robert Paulsen
Philip Pearlstein
Phyllis Plattner
Kathryn Porter
Italo Scanga
Susanne Slavick
Jeanette Pasin Sloan
Alexis Smith
Michelle Stone
James Valerio
Philip Wofford
William T. Wiley
James Winn

Contemporary Works on Paper
December 9
January 11

Frumkin & Struve Gallery
309 West Superior Street
Chicago, Illinois 60610
tel. 312-787-0563

Disarmament (CND) posters, the covers of books from left publishing houses, as well as in dozens of magazines and journals from the New Statesman to the New Scientist. He is the one political artist everyone in England can name. Last spring he showed a selection of three years' work at the Museum of Modern Art in Oxford.

Kennard's methods are strikingly simple and direct: he montages two or more found images, mostly reproductions from newspapers and magazines. As these reproductions may derive from different fields (e.g., politics and art history), their combinations can be provocative. With these minimal means he thus achieves a maximum of emotional effect. As he said in an interview a couple of years ago: "I've tried to make the work relate to simple memories in people's minds, iconic in a sense." It is this iconicity which has made his work easily reproducible and instantly recognizable.

Like most political photomontagists working inside or outside the art world, Kennard is producing what might be termed alternative or "anti" advertisements. Well-crafted, with few rhetorical flourishes, his juxtapositions of photos are kept very tight; their drama is the result of a highly efficient elision of images of hardness and softness, power and vulnerability. A globe doubles as a head on the shoulders of a malnourished African child. Three Trident missiles hitch a ride on the back of Constable's Haywain. A hospital "closed" sign hovers over an old woman crumpled in bed.

Manny Farber: Nix, 1983, oil on board, 58 by 133 ½ inches; at Larry Gagosian (review on p. 155).

One of Kennard's most successful works—which unlike the majority of his Heartfield-inspired production is directorial or staged—is Values. An old man, identified only by his hands, is photographed from above, eating from a plate on which are scattered a few pennies and half-pennies. The economy of the image belies its store of associations.

In a way, because these images are so powerful in the world, their presence in a gallery seems almost laconic. On the walls of the Oxford museum their lack of scale and finish looked dilatory and timid, like graphic exercises. And yet however "pleased" Kennard might be about showing on the art circuit, this discrepancy of effect should not worry him. It is not a case of wanting to work on both sides of the fence.

In this regard, the title of this exhibition was revealing: "Despatches from an Unofficial War Artist." Most of Kennard's work has been campaign-based, dealing with nuclear weapons, the erosion of the welfare state, monetarism. These issues have demanded of him a concerted, strategic approach. That he has risen to prominence during the Thatcher administration has made his mandate seem all the more urgent.

As a political artist Kennard has shown that images can be dangerous in our culture (the influence he has had on rejuvenating the identity of CND has been considerable). This effectiveness is a persuasive testament not only to his talents but to the power of the desires and aspirations his images symbolize. In the end, what is most important about his work is that it is there, doing a job in the world, where it is needed.

—John Roberts

Review Contributors

Austé, Lawrence Campbell, Stephen Westfall and Ann-Sargent Wooster are artists who write on art . . . Kenneth Baker is a critic living in Providence, Rhode Island . . . Douglas Blau is a travel writer . . . Jonathan Crary was recently a visiting lecturer in the Visual Arts Department, University of California, San Diego . . . Jamey Gambrell and Gerrit Henry are free-lance critics living in Manhattan . . . Jerome Tarshis writes on art from San Francisco . . . John Roberts is an English critic who writes for Art Monthly . . . Reagan Upshaw and John Yau are poets who write on art.

L'ASSOCIATION
FRANÇAISE D'
ACTION
ARTISTIQUE présente

NEW FRENCH
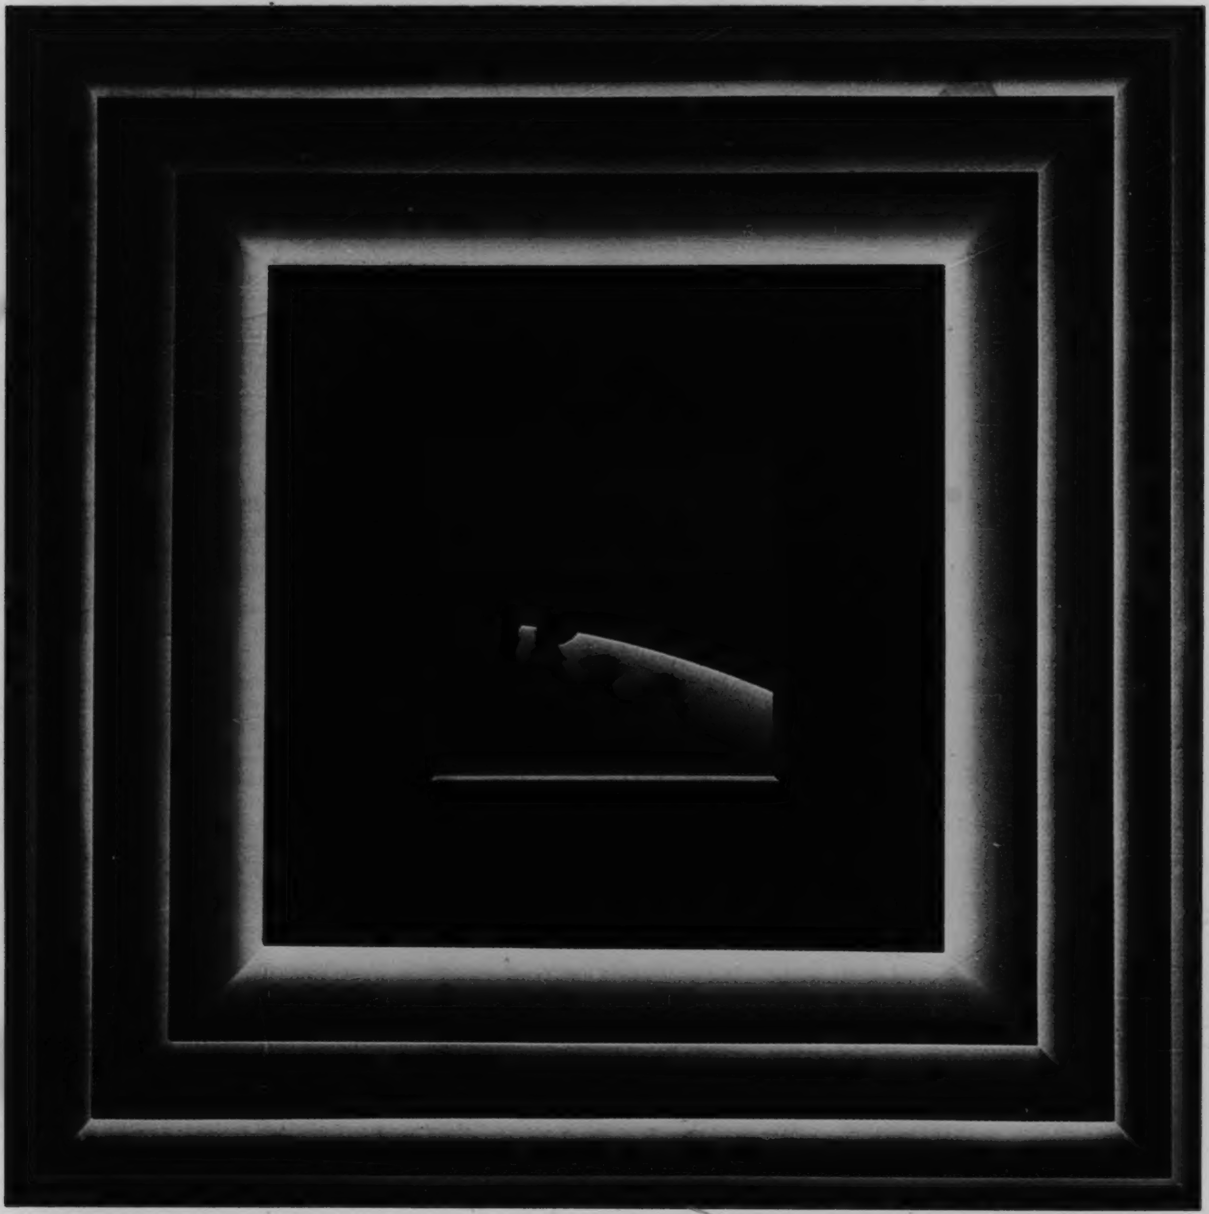
PAINTING

Sélection de
Jérôme Sans

Jean-Michel ALBEROLA
Pierre ANTONIUCCI
Jean-Charles BLAIS
Rémi BLANCHARD
François BOISROND
Robert COMBAS
Vincent CORPET
Bernard FRIZE
Gérard GAROUSTE
Denis LAGET
Jean-Luc POIVRET
Georges ROUSSE

Riverside Studio
Gimpel Fils Gallery
Londres
22 novembre-22 décembre
Museum of Modern Art
Oxford
22 janvier-25 mars 1984
John Hansard Gallery
Univ. de Southampton
8 mai-9 juin 1984
Fruit Market Gallery
Edimbourg
30 juin-4 août

VOL 71
ISS 11
DE 1983
UMI



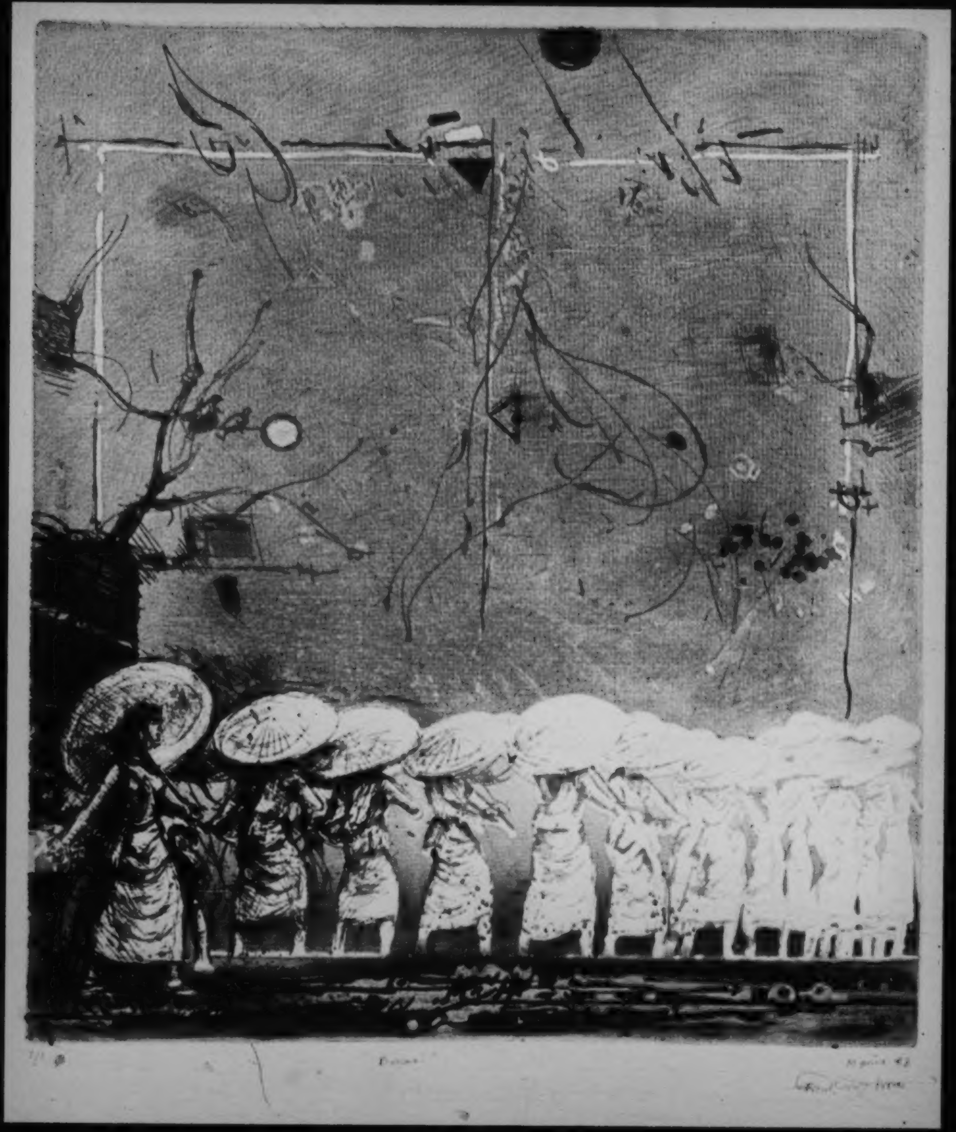
Folly Hilton 64" square acrylic on canvas

George Snyder

Current exhibition:
Eva Cohon Gallery
Highland Park, IL

Exclusive Representation:
afi

Arts Focus, Inc.
401 Capitol St., Charleston, WV 25301 (304) 345-9059
San Francisco Bay Area: 3708 Mt. Diablo Blvd., Suite 210, Lafayette, CA 94549 (415)284-7703



VOL
7
1
ISS
1 1
DE
1983
UMI

J. Seward Johnson, Jr.

Lifesize Bronze Sculpture

"A Little to the Right"
is currently on view in the exhibition
"Bronze at Washington Square"
Washington, D.C.

For information contact:
Sculpture Placement Suite 304 2828 Pennsylvania Ave. NW Washington, DC 20007 202-362-9310

Kenneth Bushnel
Syd Carpenter
James Dupree
Helen Gilbert
Carolyn Hayward-Jackson
Richard Jordan
Woody Jackson
Edward Leshock
Weyman Lew
Bob Reinhardt
Joe Stabilito
Charles Searles
Hubert Taylor
Ryo Watanabe

THE SANDE WEBSTER GALLERY
[illegible] PHILA. PA [illegible]
[illegible]

MARIE PELLICONE

Individuals

Ted Jeremenko
A.B. Meacham
Mort Ostrer
William Pellicone

December 11 - December 31
212 475-3899 Tues.-Sat. 12-5:30 PM
47 BOND STREET
NEW YORK, NY 10012

GALLERY

New York Southampton, NY

ART IN AMERICA PRESENTS THE FIRST POST-MODERN CHRISTMAS GIFT:

Art in America

COLUMN NOT INCLUDED.

NO POSTAGE
NECESSARY
IF MAILED
IN THE
UNITED STATES

BUSINESS REPLY CARD
FIRST CLASS PERMIT NO. 542 MARION, OHIO

POSTAGE WILL BE PAID BY

Art in America
542 PACIFIC AVENUE
MARION, OHIO 43306

NO POSTAGE
NECESSARY
IF MAILED
IN THE
UNITED STATES

BUSINESS REPLY CARD
FIRST CLASS PERMIT NO. 542 MARION, OHIO

POSTAGE WILL BE PAID BY

Art in America
542 PACIFIC AVENUE
MARION, OHIO 43306

VOL 7 1 ISS 1 1 DE 1983 UMI

This holiday season ART IN AMERICA is offering extraordinary savings on gift subscriptions. Each gift order is only $24.95 – 28% off the regular one year rate of $34.95!

FIRST GIFT

☐ Please send a one year gift subscription to the person(s) listed. I pay only $24.95 for each subscription, more than 45% off the cover price.

My Name

Address

City State Zip

Recipient's Name

Address

City State Zip

Gift card to read from ______

ADDITIONAL GIFTS

Recipient's Name

Address

City State Zip

Gift card to read from ______

Recipient's Name

Address

City State Zip

Gift card to read from ______

☐ Check/money order enclosed ☐ VISA ☐ Mastercard ☐ Bill me.

Card # ______ Exp. date ______ Signature ______

EM301

In US Possessions and Canada, add $8 per subscription; elsewhere, add $15 per subscription. Offer good through 2/28/84.

This holiday season ART IN AMERICA is offering extraordinary savings on gift subscriptions. Each gift order is only $24.95 – 28% off the regular one year rate of $34.95!

FIRST GIFT

☐ Please send a one year gift subscription to the person(s) listed. I pay only $24.95 for each subscription, more than 45% off the cover price.

My Name

Address

City State Zip

Recipient's Name

Address

City State Zip

Gift card to read from ______

ADDITIONAL GIFTS

Recipient's Name

Address

City State Zip

Gift card to read from ______

Recipient's Name

Address

City State Zip

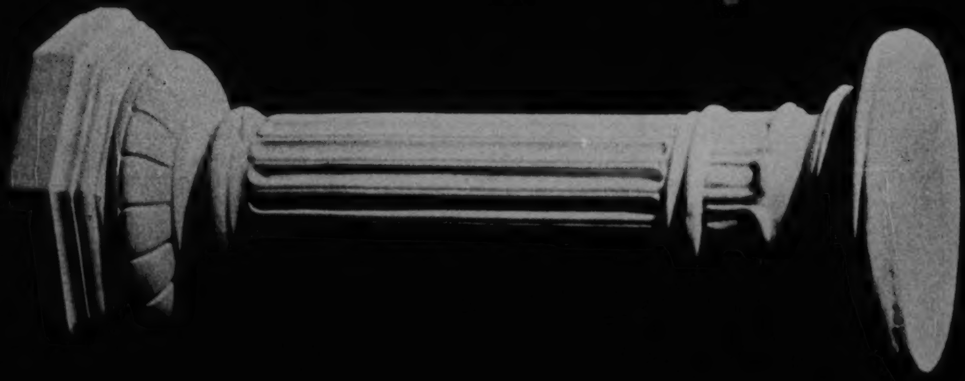
Gift card to read from ______

☐ Check/money order enclosed ☐ VISA ☐ Mastercard ☐ Bill me.

Card # ______ Exp. date ______ Signature ______

EM301

In US Possessions and Canada, add $8 per subscription; elsewhere, add $15 per subscription. Offer good through 2/28/84.



L'ASSOCIATION
FRANÇAISE D'
ACTION
ARTISTIQUE
présente
ZWANZIG
JAHRE KUNST IN FRANKREICH
1960-1980

Sélection de
Marcelin Pleynet

1

Henri MATISSE
Pablo PICASSO

2

François BRET
Olivier DEBRE
Bernard DUFOUR
Simon HANTAI
Jean HELION
Roberto Sebastian Antonio MATTA
Joan MIRO
Judit REIGL
Antonio SAURA
Pierre SOULAGES

3

Gilles AILLAUD
Eduard ARROYO
Vincent BARRE
Vincent BIOULES
Christian BONNEFOI
Pierre BURAGLIO
Louis CANE
Max CHARVOLEN
Thierry DELAROYERE
Marc DEVADE
Yann DUGAIN
Toni GRAND
Claudine HENRY
Jean-Paul HUFTIER
Christian JACCARD
Georges JEANCLOS-MOSSE
Joel KERMARREC
Alain KIRILY
Liane KLAPISCH
Jean-Yves LANGLOIS
Raquel LEVY
Jean-Michel MEURICE
Jacques MONORY
Pierre NIVOLLET
Emmanuel PEREIRE
Jean-Pierre PERICAUD
Jacques POLI
Bernard RANCILLAC
François ROUAN
Winrich-Riitjer RUHLE
Jean-Michel SANEJOUAND
Christian SORG
Hervé TELEMAQUE
Dominique THIOLAT
Claude VIALLAT
Jacques VIELLE
Jan VOSS

4

James BISHOP
Norman BLUHM
David BUDD
Sam FRANCIS
Shirley JAFFE
Joan MITCHELL
Jean-Paul RIOPELLE
Peter SAUL

TUBINGEN
Kunsthalle
15 octobre-20 novembre

BERLIN
Kunsthalle
28 novembre-26 décembre

BRYAN HUNT
A DECADE OF DRAWINGS

November 14—December 11, 1983
University Art Museum, California State University, Long Beach

The fully illustrated catalogue for the exhibition is available for $10 plus postage from BlumHelman Gallery, 20 West 57 Street, New York

UPDATE: CRANBOOK/ THE EXHIBITION OPENS DECEMBER 10th AND CONTINUES THROUGH JANUARY 28, 1984

Atkinson, Sid; Barker, Larry; Bellinger, Gretchen; Berti, Chris; Bertoia, Harry; Bohnert, Thomas; Brill, Glenn; Cobos, Carlos; Devore, Richard; Donoghue, John; Drapell, Joseph; Eshkanian, Reuben; Flack, Audrey; Fleming, Ray; Forman, Robert; Fredericks, Marshall; Gerard, John; Glick, John; Grotell, Maija; Hamady, Walter; Hughto, Darryl; Hughto, Margie; Kaneko, Jun; Kaufman, Glen; Kidd, Robert L.; Kipp, Lyman; Knodel, Gerhardt; Kulak, Gary; Larsen, Jack Lenor; Littleton, Harvey; Mitchell, David; Milles, Carl; Murakishi, Steve; Nicholson, Laura Foster; Ortman, George; Oughton, Larry; Paquin, Ralph; Plum, Jens; Rosenthal, Tony; Schiwetz, Tex; Schmidt, Julius; Seelig, Warren; Sepeshy, Zoltan; Slade, Roy; Stephenson, John; Stephenson, Susanne; Strengell, Marianne; Surls, James; Takaezu, Toshiko; Timock, George; Torreano, John; Wald, Carol; Weaver, Kenneth; Wells, Lynton; Woo, Marie.

ROBERT KIDD ASSOCIATES/GALLERIES/

107 TOWNSEND, BIRMINGHAM
MICHIGAN 48011, (313) 642-3209

VOL 71 ISS 11 DE 1983 UMI

ART SERVICES

ADVERTISING AGENCIES

PAULINE DI BLASI STUDIO Circle No. 1
Pauline Di Blasi
210 Fifth Avenue, Room 801
New York, N.Y. 10010 (212) 683-2977
Advertising & Graphic Design.

ART BOOKS

ARS LIBRI Circle No. 2
286 Summer Street
Boston, Mass. 02210 (617) 357-5212
Rare & scholarly books in the fine arts. Illustrated books. Periodicals & documents in all fields of art history.

ART IN FORM Circle No. 3
P.O. Box 2567
Seattle, WA 98111 (206) 623-6381
Specializing in Contemporary Art Publications; Books, Periodicals, Recordings, Mail Order Catalog & Trade List Available.

WILLIAM AND VICTORIA DAILEY, LTD. Circle No. 4
8216 Melrose Avenue
Los Angeles, CA 90046 (213) 658-8515
Art reference, catalogues raisonnes, illustrated & rare books, 19th & 20th century graphics. Catalogues issued.

PRINTED MATTER INC. Circle No. 5
7 Lispenard Street
New York, N.Y. 10013 (212) 925-0325
Books, Periodicals and Audioworks by Artists. 168 page catalog - $4 postage paid.

APPRAISERS

AUDREY REAL HELFAND Circle No. 6
945 Fifth Avenue Member: I.S.A.
New York, NY 10021 (212) 535-5972
Appraiser of European & American Fine Arts for Insurance, Gift-Tax, Property Division, & Estates. By Appointment

MARK KESHISHIAN AND SONS, INC. Circle No. 7
6930 Wisconsin Avenue, Chevy Chase, MD 20815 (301) 654-4044
836 Rockville Pike, Rockville, MD 20852 (301) 340-6666
James M. Keshishian, A.S.A., Harold M. Keshishian, Appraisal, Cleaning, Restoration and Sale of Oriental Rugs.

KELVYN G. LILLEY AND ASSOCIATES, INC. 8
620 North Michigan Ave., Suite 520
Chicago, IL 60611 (312) 787-0985
Fine and Decorative Arts, Appraisals and Consultations. Over 15 yrs Exp. Recognized by Major Insurance Companies.

PROFESSIONAL ART SERVICES Circle No. 9
17765 Beach Drive, NE, Seattle, WA 98155 (206) 587-7214
Serving Pacific NW. Phd., History of Art, Member I.S.A. Appraiser of American & European Art. Advisor for diversified art investors. Experienced in Insurance, Legal, I.R.S.

TUCKER APPRAISAL ASSOCIATES Circle No. 10
River Oaks Shopping Center
Houston, TX 77019 (713) 529-8878
Independent Appraisers, Fine Art Only. We do not buy or sell. Mrs. Sally Tucker, Member: A.S.A., I.S.A., I.S.F.A.

ART CATALOGS

ART CATALOGUES Circle No. 11
625 N. Almont Drive
Los Angeles, CA 90069 (213) 274-0160
Museum and Gallery Exhibition Catalogues On 20th Century Art, Photography, Architecture, and Cinema.

ART CONSULTANTS

COLSON SCULPTURE SERVICE INT'L Circle No. 12
1375 5th Street
Sarasota, FL 33579 (813) 365-3818, 953-5892
Ceramics Shell Sculpture Casting Set-up and Related Information.

FIELDS AND ROSEN FINE ARTS, INC. Circle No. 13
115 Broadway
New York, N.Y. 10006 (212) 925-0030
Suppliers of Fine Arts for Corporations, Private Collections, Designers, Architects & Art Galleries.

MARSHALL-SCOTT ASSOC. INC. Circle No. 14
200 Lexington Ave., New York, NY 10016 (212) 725-2933
445 West 45th St., New York, NY 10036 (212) 903-4118
Free Listing/Locating Service Buy Sell or Trade Save 25-50% BUFFET/DALI/ERTE/JANSEN/LUONGO/NEIMAN/NOYER/SIMBARI/etc.

MR. FRANZ VILA Circle No. 15
24 East 97th Street, Apt. 20
New York, NY 10029 (212) 410-1702
Advisory Counseling, Analysis & Critique For Corporations, Collectors. Research & Art Education.

ART POSTERS

PACE POSTERS Circle No. 16
115 East 23rd Street, New York, NY 10010 (212) 673-8240
Publisher & Exclusive Distributor of Fine Art Posters including List Art Posters, Save Our Planet, America: The Third Century Bicentennial Posters, Pace Gallery & Museum Posters.

POSTER ORIGINALS LTD. Circle No. 17
924 Madison Ave., New York, NY 10021 (212) 861-0422
158 Spring Street, New York, NY 10012 (212) 226-7720
Major Distributor of American and European Art Posters.

ART SUPPLIES

THE ART STORE CATALOG Circle No. 18
4300 West 190th Street
P.O. Box 2826
Torrance, CA 90509-9970
Send for free catalog. Save 10% to 30% off list.

GRUMBACHER Circle No. 19
460 West 34th Street
New York, NY 10001 (212) 279-6400
Fine quality art materials since 1905. See what our art can do for yours.

JERRY'S ARTARAMA, INC. Circle No. 20
248-12X Union Turnpike
Bellerose, NY 11426
Huge savings on art materials and picture frames.

KENNETH LYNCH & SONS Circle No. 21
Box 488, Wilton, CT 06897 (203) 762-8363
Picture hanging rods, mouldings, security devices, stanchions, vitrines, art storage racks, gallery carts, tablets, and plaques. FREE CATALOG.

MARSHALL MANUFACTURING CO. Circle No. 22
PO Box 649, Deerfield, IL 60015 (312) 478-7111
Transparent, Permanent, & Non-fading Photo Oils, Pencils, Retouched Liquids, Spotting Dyes, Sprays. Send For Free Color Chart. For The Photographic & Graphic Arts Field.

ART SERVICES

RISING PAPER COMPANY Circle No. 23
Housatonic, MA 01236 (413) 274-3345
A full range of archival quality papers, pads and matboards for all artists and all media. Stonehenge, Dansk, Mirage, Gallery, Marker Layout, Photolene, Drawing Bristols, etc.

THE SAINT ARMAND PAPER MILL, INC. Circle No. 24
110 Young
Montreal, Canada H3C 2E7 (514) 935-7526
Finest Linen Watercolor Papers
22x30, 300lbs., $7.50/sheet: Samples.

SHIVA® INC. Circle No. 25
4320 West 190th Street
Torrance, CA 90509 (213) 542-5583
Artists PAINTSTIK®, Solid Oil Paint in Stick Form.
Call (800) 421-1325

UTRECHT Circle No. 26
33 Thirty-Fifth Street
Brooklyn, NY 11232 (212) 768-2525
Major Manufacturer & Distributor of Art & Drafting Supplies at Impressive Savings. Free Catalog.

WINSOR & NEWTON Circle No. 27
555 Winsor Drive
Secaucus, NJ 07094
Manufacturers of the world's finest artists' materials since 1832.

ART TO BUY

SEAN JACOBS Circle No. 28
610 NE 124th St.
Miami, FL 33161 (305) 893-6200
CASH
For Closeouts of Limited Editions.

ARTISTS WANTED

THE ART COLLECTOR Circle No. 29
4151 Taylor St., San Diego, CA 92110 (619) 299-3232
Large Established Art Gallery Seeks Artists For Corporate Market & Potential Shows, Designer Clientele. Send Slides and Resume for Review to Above Address.

AUCTION HOUSES

DuMOUCHELLE AUCTION GALLERIES Circle No. 30
409 E. Jefferson, Detroit, MI 48226 (313) 963-6255
Holds Monthly Estate Auctions, Usually 3rd Weekend of Every Month, Certified Appraisers for Insurance, Probate Donation and loss. Serving Michigan, Ohio & Midwest Area.

HANZEL GALLERIES Circle No. 31
1120 South Michigan Avenue
Chicago, IL 60605 (312) 922-6234
Midwest's foremost auctioneers of fine art properties for over 40 years.

COMPUTERIZED SERVICES

ARTSCAN Circle No. 32
1013 Madison Ave., New York, NY 10021
In NY State, 1-800-351-1300
Outside NY, 1-800-742-5500
International Communication Network for the Art World.

CONSERVATORS & RESTORERS

THE TOMSICH ART GALLERIES LTD. Circle No. 33
11916 Manchester Road
St. Louis, MO 63131 (314) 966-6777
Conservation of Oil Paintings, Art on Paper and Framing Conservation. Appraisals.

CRAFTS

ART IN TAPESTRY, INC. Circle No. 34
10636 Vista Alegre Drive
El Paso, TX 79935 (915) 593-2980
Limited Number Tapestries, Editions With Authenticated Certificate Signed by Artists.

FINE ART CASTING

ALECO FOUNDRIES, INC. Circle No. 35
1930 South 4th Street
Milwaukee, WI 53204 (414) 645-3771
Silicon bronze, ferrous & non-ferrous sand & investment castings. Also production quantities-$75 minimum order.

FINE ART GRAPHICS AND SCULPTURES

STEPHEN J. COPANS Circle No. 36
21500 Califa Street #113
Woodland Hills, CA 91367
ERTE - DALI and others.
25-75% Discount.

FINE ART PHOTOGRAPHY

THOMAS MOON PHOTOGRAPHY Circle No. 37
1 Holden Street
Brookline, MA 02146 (617) 232-8044
Photography Services for the Fine Arts. Black & White, Color, INFRARED. Print or Transparency. All formats.

PHOTOGRAPHIC SPECIALTIES, INC. Circle No. 38
225 Border Ave. North
Minneapolis, MN 55405 (612) 332-6303
Fine Art Cibachrome, C-Print, Archival B&W Printing & Processing. All Mounting & Framing Services.

FINE ART PRINTING

COLOR Q Circle No. 39
AFFORDABLE FINE ART REPRODUCTIONS
2835 Springboro West, Dayton, OH 45439 (513) 294-0406
Get your FREE booklet: "How to gain wider recognition for your artistry, and make more money, too."

CHERYL PELAVIN PRINTMAKER Circle No. 40
13 Jay St. (in Tribeca)
New York, NY 10013 (212) 925-9424
Etching Facilities, Open Workshops, Classes, Editioning, Plate Collaboration & Publishing. Brochure.

STUDIO HEINRICI, LTD. Circle No. 41
430 Washington Street
New York, NY 10013 (212) 925-0788
Fine Art Limited Editions in: Silkscreen, Etching Press Available and Contract Printing.

FINE ART PUBLISHERS

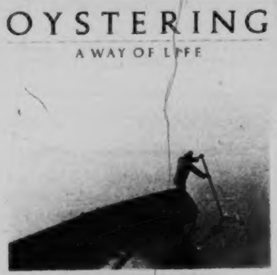
ART EXCLUSIVE GALLERY AND PUBLISHER 42
9, Gustavstreet 5000 Cologne 41, Germany, 49(221) 445044
Original Graphics, Lithographs, Serigraphs, Etchings of Contemporary European Artists. Free information. Illustrated catalog -$3. Dealer inquiries Welcome.

VOL 71
ISS 11
DE 1983
UMI

Art Catalogs
OF SPECIAL INTEREST

SAUDEK SUDEK
Artifacts

THE UNIVERSITY OF IOWA MUSEUM OF ART
*Dada Artifacts, 96 pgs., 54 ill., 1978, $5
*African Sculpture: The Stanley Collection, 208 pgs., 200 ill., 1979, $14
Saudek/Sudek: Images from Czechoslovakia, 31 pgs., 20 Duotone ill., 1983, $10
Lettrisme: Into the Present, 112 pgs., 46 ill., 1983, $5 Postage $1.25 per copy
*Supplementary textbooks for University classes.
THE UNIVERSITY OF IOWA MUSEUM OF ART, Iowa City, IA 52242 (319) 353-3266



GIBBES ART GALLERY SHOP
Oystering: A Way of Life. Photographs by Jack Leigh, documenting the oystering tradition of the South Carolina Low Country. Foreword by James Dickey. 112 pages, printed by Rapoport. $27.00 postpaid. Signed, numbered edition available with original photograph.
GIBBES ART GALLERY SHOP, 135 Meeting Street, Charleston, SC 29401

ERIK DESMAZIÈRES
ETCHINGS 1972-1981

FITCH-FEBVREL GALLERY
Erik Desmazières Etchings 1972–1981. Catalogue raisonné of one of France's foremost graphic artists. Preface by Lucien Goldschmidt. 70 pages, 67 illustrations, complete documentation. Soft-cover (edition 1350) $20. Cloth with original signed and numbered etching (edition 150) $200.
FITCH-FEBVREL GALLERY, 5 E. 57, NYC (212) 688-8522

Robert Motherwell

ALBRIGHT-KNOX ART GALLERY
Robert Motherwell exhibition catalogue co-published with Abbeville Press, critical essays by Dore Ashton, interview with artist by Jack D. Flam. 70 color plates, 20 b&w photos, 176 pgs., paperback $21.95 postpaid. Other publications include Chryssa, Sonia Delaunay, Leger, and Snelson.
GALLERY SHOP, ALBRIGHT-KNOX ART GALLERY, 1285 Elmwood Ave., Buffalo, NY 14222 (716) 882-8700 MC VISA

Master Paintings from The Phillips Collection

PHILLIPS COLLECTION
Master Paintings from the Phillips Collection. Catalogue of national and international tour with 100 color illus. and essays of museum's most famous works. Appendix includes complete b&w checklist of exhibition. Text by Eleanor C. Green, et al. 224 pgs.; 100 color plates, 79 b&w. $18.00 paper.
PHILLIPS COLLECTION, 1600 21st St NW, Washington, DC 20009 (202) 387-2151

AUDREY FLACK

LOUIS K. MEISEL GALLERY
Charles Bell, "Marbles and Toys," 1983 by John Perreault, 24 pages, 9 color & 9 b&w illus.
Audrey Flack, "Light & Energy," 1983 by John Perreault, 24 pages, 12 color & 3 b&w illus. $11 ppd. each.
LOUIS K. MEISEL GALLERY, 141 Prince St., N.Y.C. 10012

ART SERVICES

GONDECK GALLERY AND PUBLISHER Circle No. 43
211 Old Santa Fe Trail, Santa Fe, NM 87501 (505) 988-3580
Bronzes, One of a Kind Welded Steel Sculpture by Bill Prokopiof. Original Graphics, Lithographs, Serigraphs, Etchings of Contemporary Indian Artists. Kevin Red Star.

HOLLY SOLOMON EDITIONS, LTD. Circle No. 44
724 Fifth Ave., Fifth Flr., New York, NY 10019 (212) 757-7777
Editions by Bark, Burnley, Cady, Davis, Dennis, Girouard, Hart, Kushner, MacConnel, Smyth, Wegman. Photographs by Boyle, Burson, Myers, Osinski, Riley, Zeldman, Volz.

FOUNDRIES

JOHNSON ATELIER TECHNICAL INSTITUTE OF SCULPTURE Circle No. 45
743 Alexander Rd., Princeton, NJ 08540 (609) 452-2661
Bronze, Aluminum, Stainless Steel, Ductile Iron: Sand Molding-Ceramic Shell-Rubber Molds-Bronze Repair & Repatine.

KENNETH LYNCH & SONS Circle No. 46
Box 488, Wilton, CT 06897
(203) 762-8363
Casting in bronze, lead, or stone, also fabricating large art work of copper or bronze sheets repousse.

MATTHEWS CLASSIC BRONZE DIVISION 47
2230 North Chico Avenue
South El Monte, CA 91733 (213) 444-0468
Our Lost Wax Casting Capabilities Assure the Quality and Fidelity of Your Art. Contact Mel Schelhauer.

JOEL MEISNER FOUNDRY & GALLERY Circle No. 48
120 Fairchild Avenue
Plainview, NY 11803 (516) 349-0260, (212) 895-1472
THE COMPLETE CENTER FOR BRONZE SCULPTURE: for the Sculptor . . . for the Collector . . . for the Art Dealer & Publisher.

NORDHAMMER ART FOUNDRY Circle No. 49
830 East Fifteenth Street
Oakland, CA 94606 (415) 465-5606
Complete Foundry Facility. Small to Monumental Scale in Bronze. Ceramic Shell and Vacuum Casting.

FRAMERS

ARTISTS' FRAME SERVICE INC. Circle No. 50
1919 North Clybourn
Chicago, IL 60614 (312) 248-7713
Wholesale Custom Framing and Supply. 80 Metal, 200 Wood Styles, Mat Board, Museum Board. Fast Professional Service.

GRAND STREET FRAMES LTD. Circle No. 51
32 Grand Street
New York, NY 10013 (212) 334-9354
Custom Framing with Conservation Materials. Hardwoods or Metal. Cutglass, Mats, Painting, Strippings. Fast Service.

GREY GOOSE CUSTOM FRAMING Circle No. 52
115 North LaBrea Ave.
Los Angeles, CA 90036 (213) 938-6795
Plexiglass Fabrication, Cubes, Pedestals, Sculpture Mounting. Framing to Museum Standards. Wholesale and Retail.

TURNER FRAMING Circle No. 53
7508 Leesburg Pike, Falls Church, VA 22043
Also locations in Great Falls, Fairfax.
Excellence in Quality Custom Framing. Private Individual and Commercial Accounts. (703) 893-1263

ART SERVICES

WALLNUTS FRAME DESIGN Circle No. 54
2018 Locust Street
Philadelphia, PA 19103 (215) 732-8850
Design Consultants to PROFESSIONAL PICTURE FRAMERS ASSOC.
Museum Matting, Exotic Woods, Acrylic Boxes, Pedestals.

GALLERY SPACE

FACTORY PLACE GALLERY Circle No. 55
1308 Factory Pl., 5th fl., Los Angeles, CA 90013 (213) 627-5043
Available For Immediate Occupancy. Five High Quality Spacious Galleries. Renting on a Monthly Rotation Basis. For more info contact Daren Milou de Reiset or Karen Murphy.

HANGING & DISPLAY EQUIPMENT

KENNETH LYNCH & SONS Circle No. 56
Box 488, Wilton, CT 06897 (203) 762-8363
The famous Lynch picture rods made of stainless steel have been the standard in galleries for 100 years. Send for FREE CATALOG.

WALKER SYSTEMS, INC. Circle No. 57
530 South 21 Avenue East
Duluth, MN 55812 (218) 728-4434
Picture Hanging Devices (Rails, Rods, Hooks, Holders)
Panel Hardware for freestanding displays & exhibits.

INSURANCE

HUNTINGTON T. BLOCK INSURANCE Circle No. 58
2101 L Street, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20037
Call Toll Free: (800) 424-8830 for Competitive Fine Arts
Insurance Quotations for Collectors, Dealers and Museums.

MOVERS AND PACKERS

CIRKER'S HAYES STORAGE WAREHOUSE 59
305 East 61st. St.
New York, NY 10021 (212) 484-0234
Moving, Packing and Storage of Fine Arts and Antiques Since 1873.

COOKE'S CRATING & FINE ART TRANSPORTATION INC. 60
3124 E. 11th St., Los Angeles, CA 90023 (213) 268-5101
Fine Arts and Antiques Transportation, Crating, Storage, and Installation, Domestic & International. Call For Free Estimates.

D.A.D. TRUCKING INC. Circle No. 61
419 Broome Street
New York, N.Y. 10013 (212) 226-0054
For Gentleness in Transporting Fine Art & Antiques in NYC and Across the Nation, Call Your D.A.D.

L.A. PACKING AND CRATING Circle No. 62
5852 West Adams Blvd.
Culver City, CA 90230 (213) 933-5602
Specialist in Packing, Crating, Installing, Warehousing, Shipping Fine Art and Antiques. Jim Isenson

PRO-PAK PROFESSIONAL PACKERS, INC.® 64
527 Dundee Road
Northbrook, IL 60062 (312) 272-0408
Fine Arts Packing, Crating and Shipping Specialists. Pick-up and Delivery Service. Full Insurance Coverage.

REGENCY WORLDWIDE PACKING INC. 64
48-41 Van Dam St.
Long Island City, NY 11101 (212) 729-8877
Customized Packing and Crating for All Types of Fine Arts. Shipping and Handling for Domestic and Int'l Transports.

VIDEO SERVICES

VAN GOGH VIDEO Circle No. 65
Star Route 81 A, Rosendale, NY 12472 (914) 338-8943
Video Cassette Art News Magazine Distributed Weekly by Satellite/Cable TV & Cassette Subscription. Production and Distribution Services for the Art World.

To receive information from the companies listed, circle the corresponding number on the REPLY COUPON below, and drop it in an envelope. You will receive information directly from them.

REPLY COUPON

Art in America Reader Service Dept., 850 Third Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10022

DECEMBER 1983
THIS COUPON EXPIRES
March 29, 1984

NAME (PLEASE PRINT) TELEPHONE
ADDRESS
CITY STATE ZIP

Art Services & Schools

▽ Please send information circled.

1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11 12 13 14 15 16 17 18 19 20 21 22 23 24 25 26 27 28 29 30
31 32 33 34 35 36 37 38 39 40 41 42 43 44 45 46 47 48 49 50 51 52 53 54 55 56 57 58 59 60
61 62 63 64 65 66 67 68 69 70 71 72 73 74 75 76 77 78 79 80 81 82 83 84 85 86 87 88 89 90
91 92 93 94 95 96 97 98 99 100 101 102 103 104 105 106 107 108 109 110 111 112 113 114 115 116 117 118 119 120

ALLOW 6-8 WEEKS FOR DELIVERY

VOL
7
1
ISS
1 1
DE
1983
UMI

METRO PICTURES

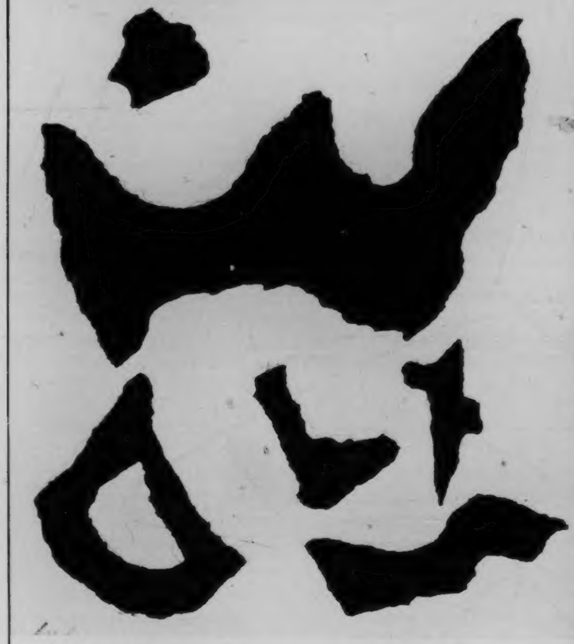
THOMAS LAWSON
3 DECEMBER—7 JANUARY
METRO PICTURES
150 GREENE STREET, NY 10012
212/925.8335

"New Works by the Gallery Artists"

December 13 to January 8.

Göran Asplund
Lena Bergstein
Norma Bessouet
Josely Carvalho
Osmar Fonseca
Ismael Frigerio
Enrique Garaycochea
Shelley Haven
Alberto Luppi
Ana Mendieta
Liora Mondlak
Rhoma Mostel
Catalina Parra
Peter Passuntino
Emma Alvarez Pineiro
Rogelio Polesello

Yvonne Séguy Gallery
61 West 62 Street • Harkness Plaza • New York, New York 10023
(212) 265-3314
Tuesday - Sunday 11 to 7 p.m.



JEAN ARP, 1887-1966
"PAPIER DECHIRE" 1934, 9⅝ x 8¼ INCHES

DOMINION GALLERY
1438 Sherbrooke St. West, Montreal H3G 1K4
514-845-7471 and 7833

FURTHER EXPOSURE

ROXI MARSEN
JANE SWAVELY
MICHAEL YOUNG

Chosen by Jack Tworkov,
Brice Marden and John Walker, for ARTISTS CHOOSE ARTISTS I and II

CDS
Gallery
13 East 75th Street New York 10021 772-9555

JUST THINK WHERE YOUR STUDENTS COULD GO WITH THEIR TALENT

ATLANTA COLLEGE OF ART
CALIFORNIA COLLEGE OF ARTS AND CRAFTS (OAKLAND)
CENTER FOR CREATIVE STUDIES—COLLEGE OF ART AND DESIGN (DETROIT)
CLEVELAND INSTITUTE OF ART
KANSAS CITY ART INSTITUTE
MARYLAND INSTITUTE, COLLEGE OF ART (BALTIMORE)
MINNEAPOLIS COLLEGE OF ART AND DESIGN
SCHOOL OF THE ART INSTITUTE OF CHICAGO

AND OUR MONEY

Over $40,000 in Scholarships Offered by Eight Leading Art Colleges

Eight great colleges of art are conducting a nationwide search for high school seniors qualified to compete for a series of full-tuition scholarships.

We're looking for students who have talent in the visual arts, strong records of academic achievement, and proven leadership capabilities.

We're looking for the best.

The application deadline is February 15, 1984. Winners will be notified on April 15, 1984.*

For more information, write to:

AICA
Alliance of Independent Colleges of Art
Scholarship Program, Dept. A
633 E St., N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20004

*Judges reserve the right not to award one or more scholarships if candidates do not fully measure up to the expected standards.

VOL 71
ISS 11
DE 1983
UMI

L'ASSOCIATION
FRANÇAISE D'
ACTION
ARTISTIQUE
présente

FORMES
VIVANTES
DEUX
GENERATIONS
D'ARTISTES
EN FRANCE
1951-1983

Sélection de
M. Dominique Viéville,
Conservateur du
Musée de Calais

FINLANDE
Porin
Taidemuseo
18 novembre-26 décembre

Helsinki
Hall des expositions
5-29 janvier 1984

SUEDE
Malmö
Konsthall
10 mars-13 mai 1984

ARP
BAERTLING
M. BARRE
BONNEFOI
BUREN
CALDER
L. CANE
CLAISSE
DEGOTTEX
R. DELAUNAY
S. DELAUNAY
DEZEUZE
DOMELA
DUNOYER
GORIN
HANTAI
HERBIN JACOBSEN
M. LAURY
LEGER MAGNELLI
MORELLET
MORTENSEN
PINCEMIN
POLIAKOFF
J.P. RAYNAUD
ROUAN
SOTO
TAKIS
TINGUELY
VASARELY
VIALLAT
VILMOUTH

EXPRESSIONIST PAINTING
BEYOND PICASSO

Picasso Miro
Dubuffet Bacon Jorn
Riopelle Appel
de Kooning Baselitz
Penck Chia Clemente
Cucchi Paladino
Disler Basquiat
Exhibition through January 84

Galerie Beyeler
Baumleingasse 9
CH-4001 Basel
23 54 12

WATCH OUT

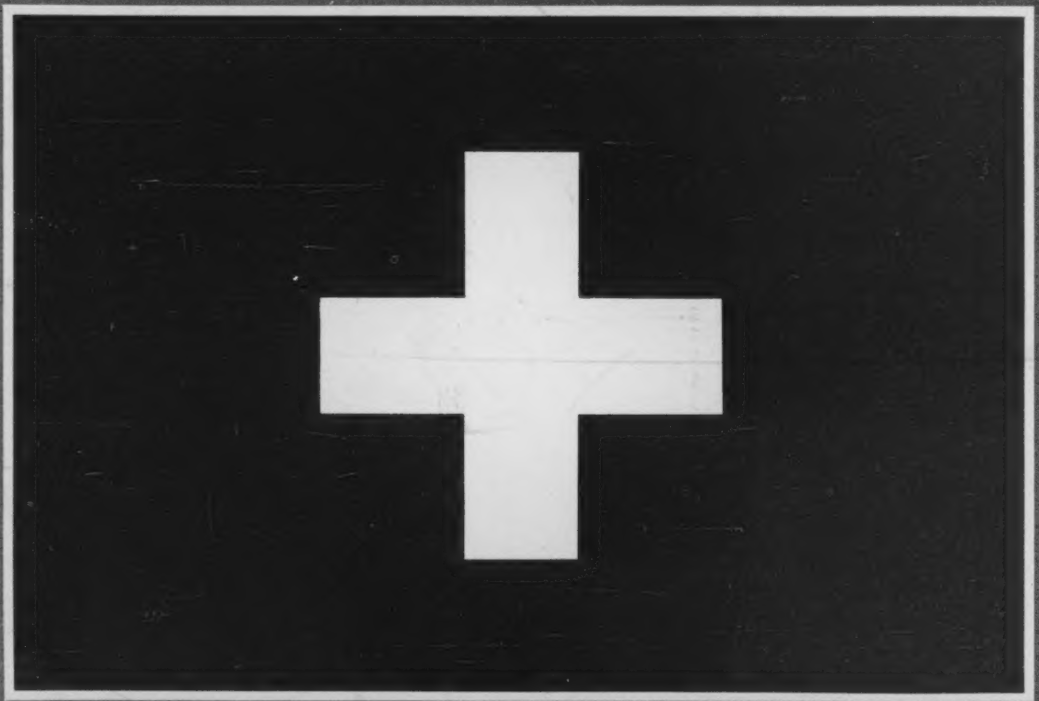
MAN RAY
GENERAL
CATALOGUE
WORKS ON PAPER

We announce that the general catalogue of Man Ray's works on paper is being prepared. We kindly request the owners of these works to send the relevant documentation (description and pictures) to the Studio Marconi, Via Tadino 15, Milan (Italy)

Studio Marconi
Gruppo Editoriale Fabbri

Art In Switzerland

ARTISTS • JOHN ARMLEDER • BALTHUS • JAMES BISHOP • MARCELLE CAHN
CHILLIDA • MARTIN DISLER • HANS FALK • ALBERTO GIACOMETTI • DOMENICO GNOLI
ERNST HAAS • AL HELD • BEATRICE HELG • ROLF ISELI • PIERRE KELLER • PAUL KLEE • YVES KLEIN • JOAN MIRO
ALOIS MOSBACHER • PABLO PICASSO • MAN RAY • ALDO ROSSI • ANTONI TAPIES • JEAN TINGUELY



GALLERIES • GALERIE BEYELER • GALERIE BONNIER • CENTRE D'ART CONTEMPORAIN • PATRICK CRAMER
ANDRE EMMERICH GALLERY • GIMPEL-HANOVER & ANDRE EMMERICH GALERIEN
MARIE LOUISE JEANNERET • M. KNOEDLER & CO. INC., NEW YORK • KNOEDLER ZURICH
GALERIE KRINZINGER • GALERIE JAN KRUGIER • JAN KRUGIER (N.Y.) • KUNST MUSEUM LUZERN
MAEGHT LELONG ZURICH • GALERIE MARIKA MALACORDA • MUSEUM OF MODERN ART • GALERIE ALICE PAULI
GALERIE RIVOLTA • GALERIE SCHLEGL • GALERIE SIX FRIEDRICH • ZUR STOCKEREGG
GALERIE SEVERINA TEUCHER • ANNEMARIE VERNA GALLERY • JAMILEH WEBER GALLERY
GALERIE SONIA ZANNETTACCI • RENÉE ZIEGLER

Art in America

A Special Advertising Supplement: December '83

VOL
7
1

ISS
1 1

DE

1983

UMI

YVES KLEIN

"Vénus Bleue." Edition of 300 copies, numbered and engraved with the "Klein Star."
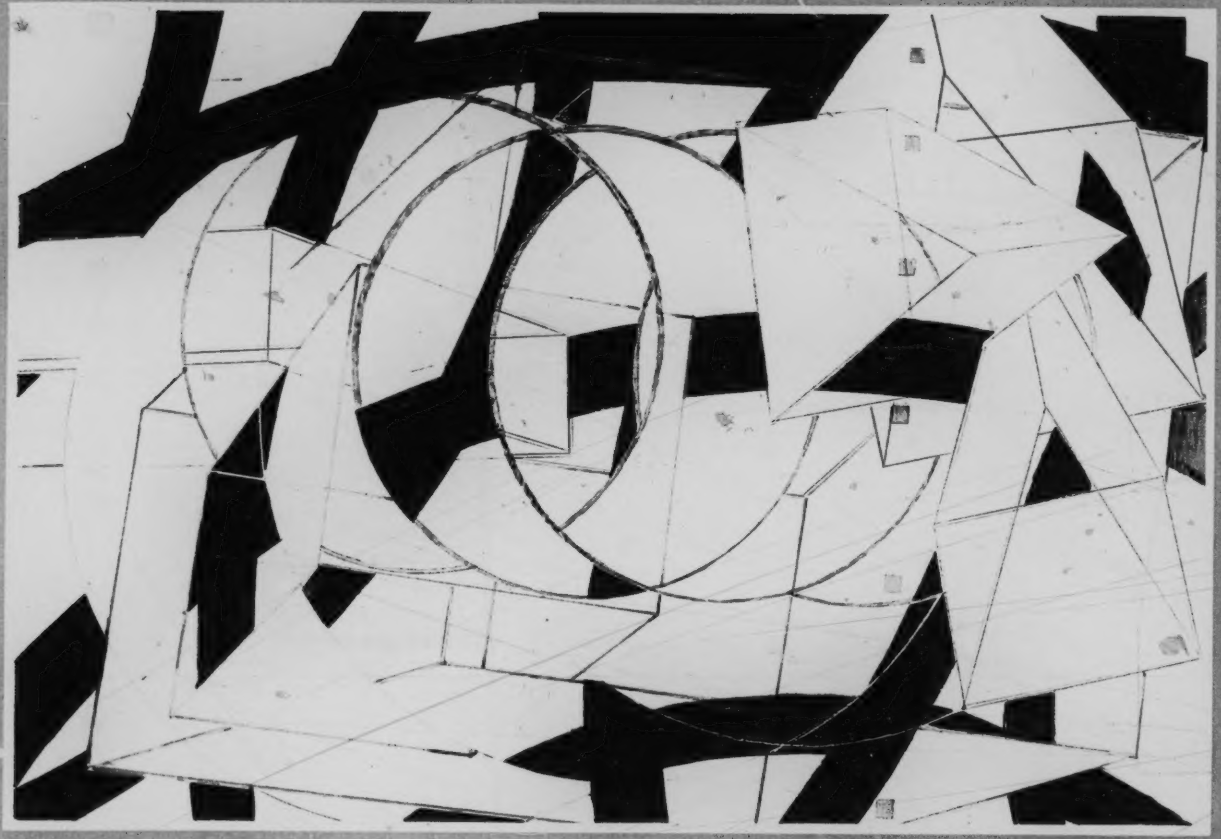
With each copy a signed and numbered certificate from the Estate. Height 70 cm.

GALERIE BONNIER
4, RUE SAINT-LAURENT, 1207 GENEVA. TEL. (22) 35 87 35



AL HELD

"76-C-10" 1976. Colored pencil on paper. 27" x 40" (69 x 102 cm.)

GIMPEL-HANOVER & ANDRE EMMERICH GALERIEN

TODISTRASSE 40, CH-8002 ZURICH. TEL. (1) 202 03 00
Drawings from 1976, January 21–February 18, 1984

ANDRE EMMERICH GALLERY

41 EAST 57TH STREET, NEW YORK 10022. TEL. (212) 752-0124
Drawings from 1976, March 22–April 14, 1984

VOL
7
1
ISS
1 1
DE
1983
UMI

PICASSO

"Femme Mains Jointes" 1938. Oil and charcoal on canvas. 31⅞" x 23⅝" 81 x 60 cm.
XIXth and XXth Century Masters. Exclusive Agent of the Marina Picasso Collection

GALERIE JAN KRUGIER
3, PLACE DU GRAND-MEZEL ET 3, GRAND-RUE 1204 GENEVA. TEL. (22) 28 57 19

JAN KRUGIER
24 WEST 57TH STREET NEW YORK, NY 10019 TEL. (212) 664 1378

MIRÓ

"Personnage et oiseau." 1961/1982. Bronze. 330 cm.

MAEGHT LELONG ZURICH

10-12 PREDIGERPLATZ, 8025 ZURICH. TEL. (1) 251 11 20/251 13 87

VOL
7
1
ISS
11
DE
1983

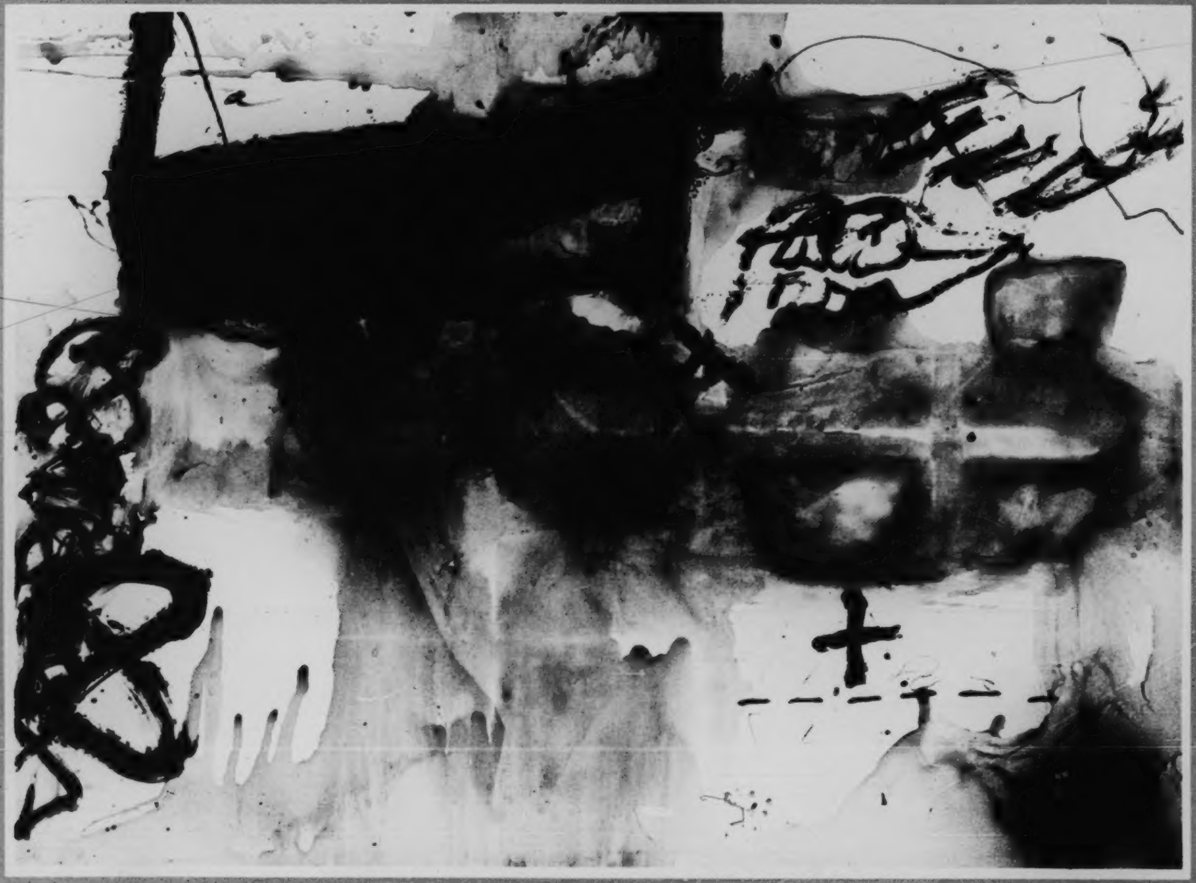

photo: Michel Nguyen, Galerie Maeght Lelong

ANTONI TAPIES

Varnish with black shapes. 1982. 65 x 45¼ in.

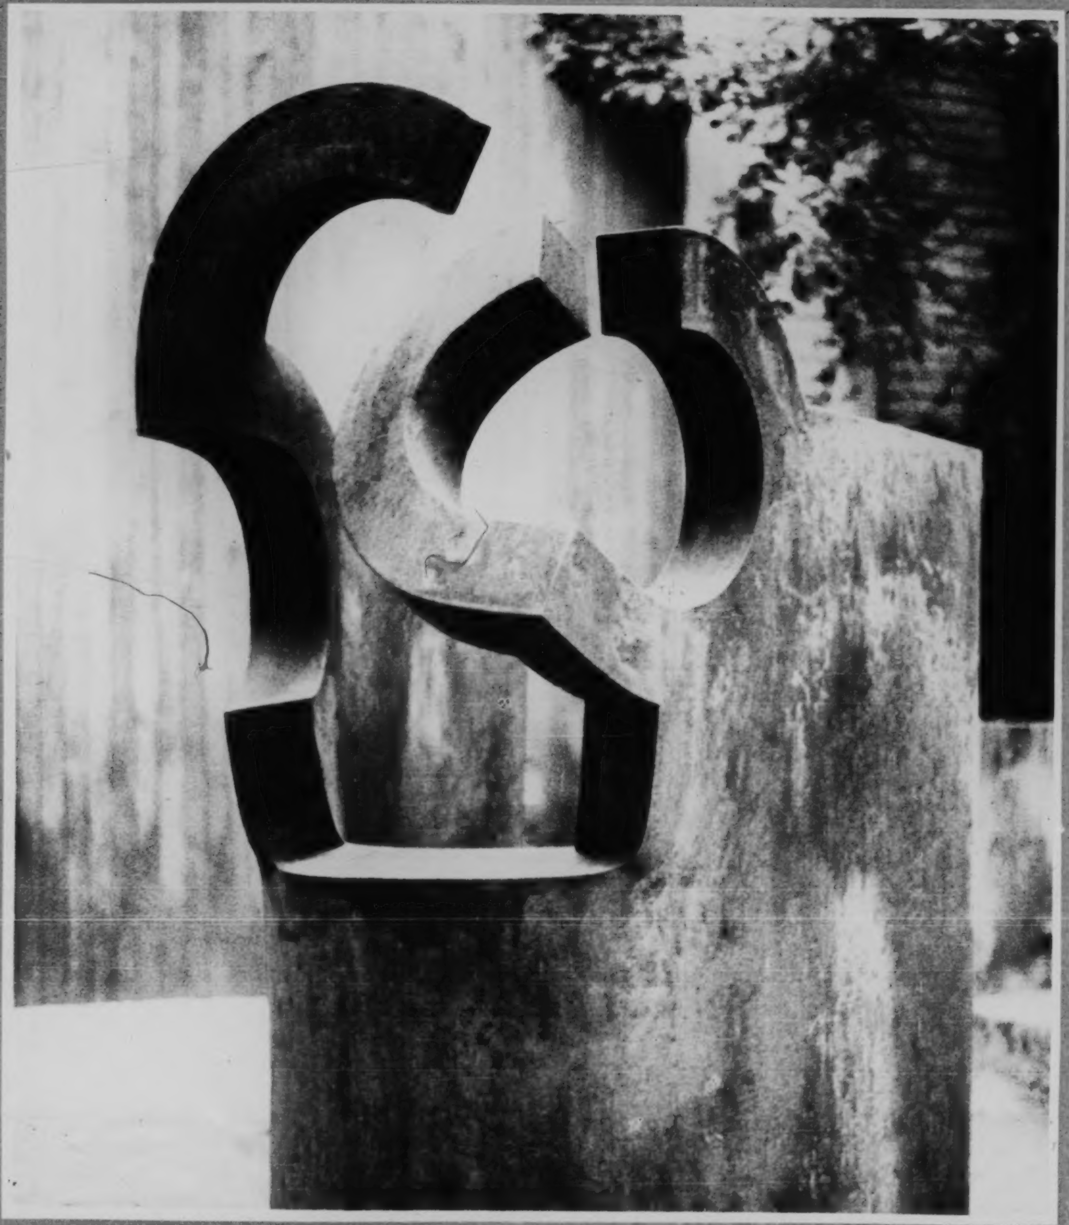
MAEGHT LELONG ZURICH

10-12 PREDIGERPLATZ, 8025 ZURICH. TEL. (1) 251 11 20/251 13 87

UMI



CHILLIDA

"Stèle de Goethe" (Detail). 1982. Steel. 168 x 92 x 115 cm.

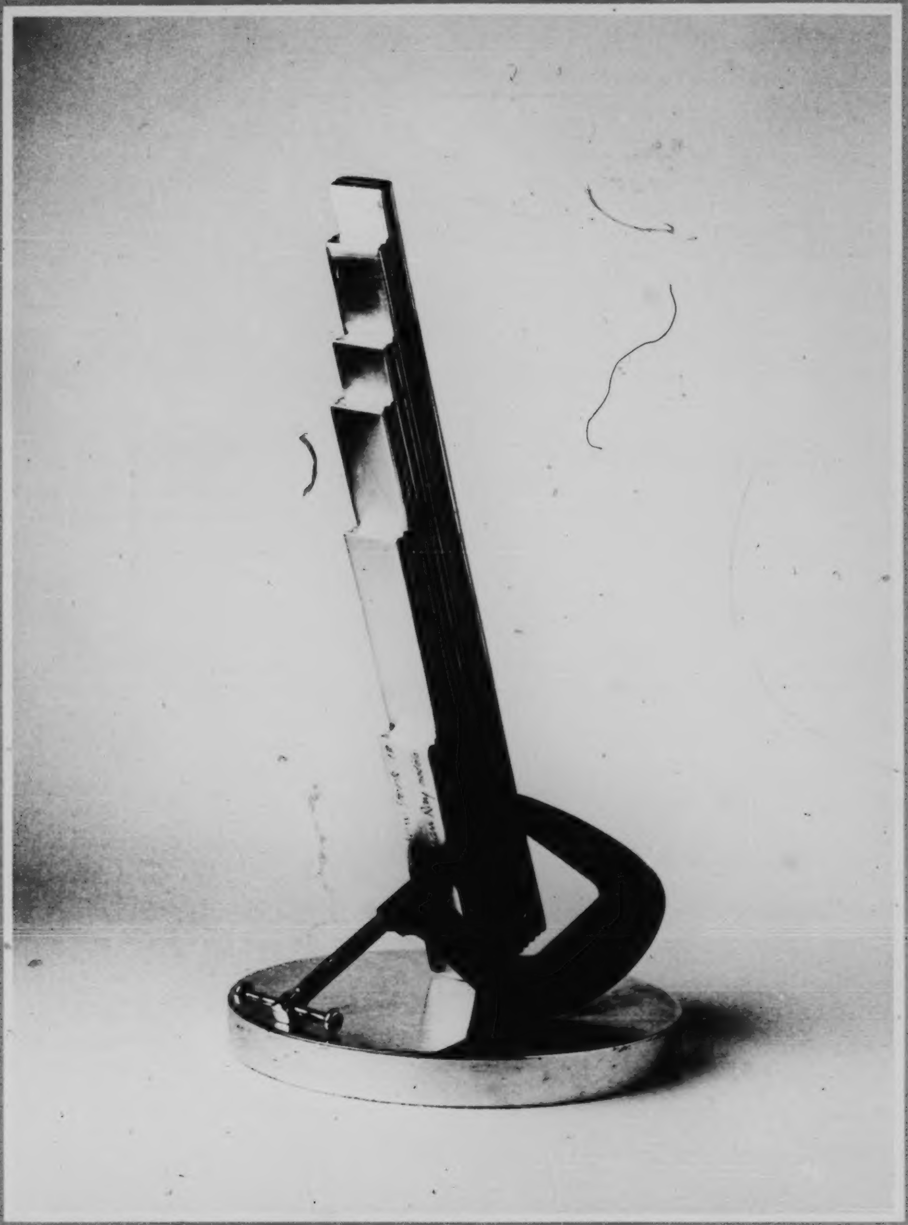
MAEGHT LELONG ZURICH

10-12 PREDIGERPLATZ, 8025 ZURICH. TEL. (1) 251 11 20/251 13 87

VOL 7 1
ISS 11
DE 1983
UMI



MAN RAY

"New York 17." Plain silver. 17¾ inches high (45 cm.)
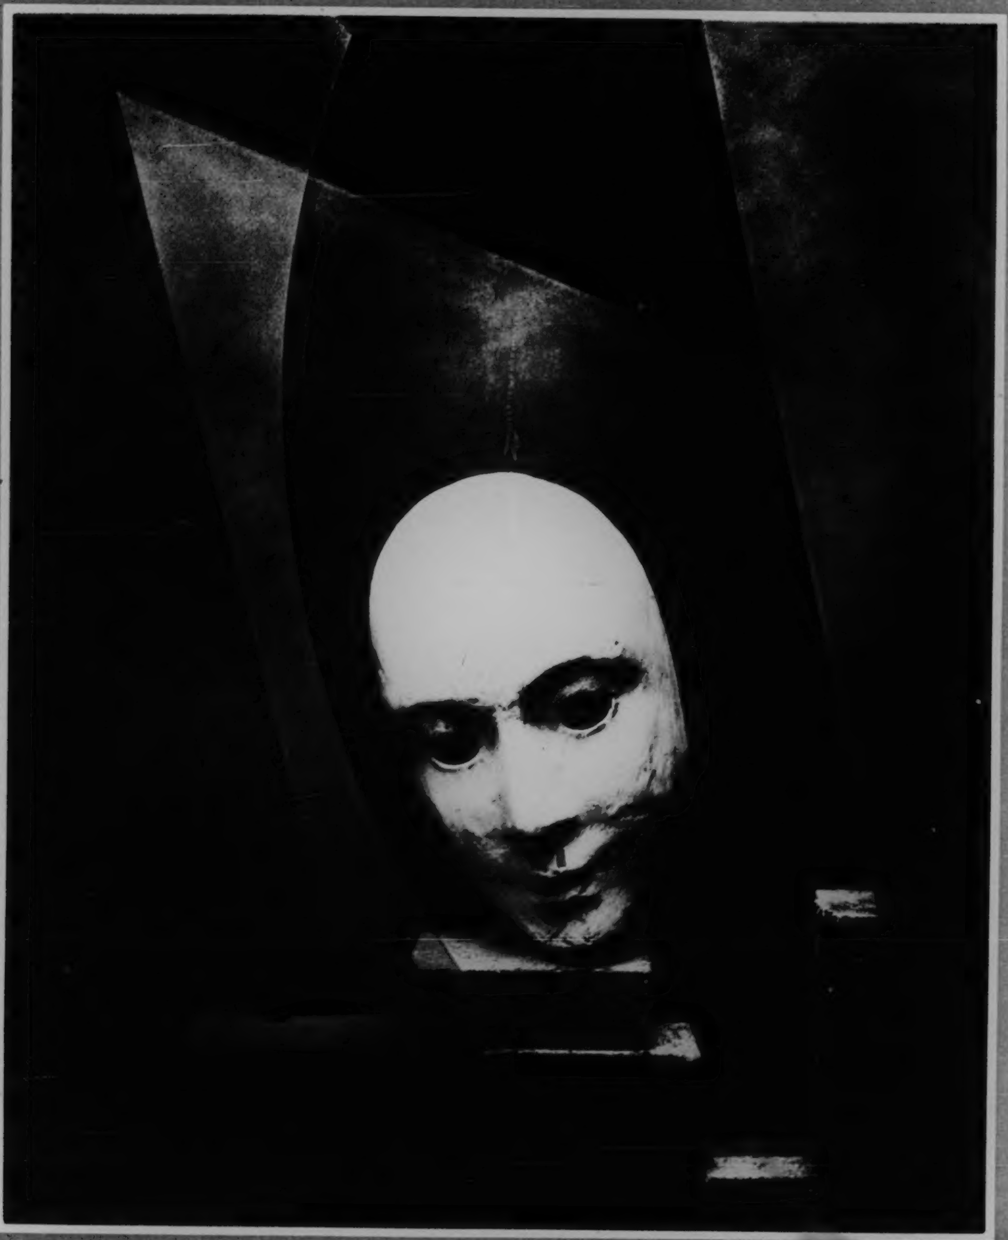
Important selection of paintings, objects, collages and photographs by Man Ray.

GALERIE SONIA ZANNETTACCI
16, RUE DES GRANGES, 1204 GENEVA. TEL. (22) 21 99 75



BEATRICE HELG

"Ballade aux masques II" 1983. Polaroid 24 x 20 inches (60 x 50 cm.)
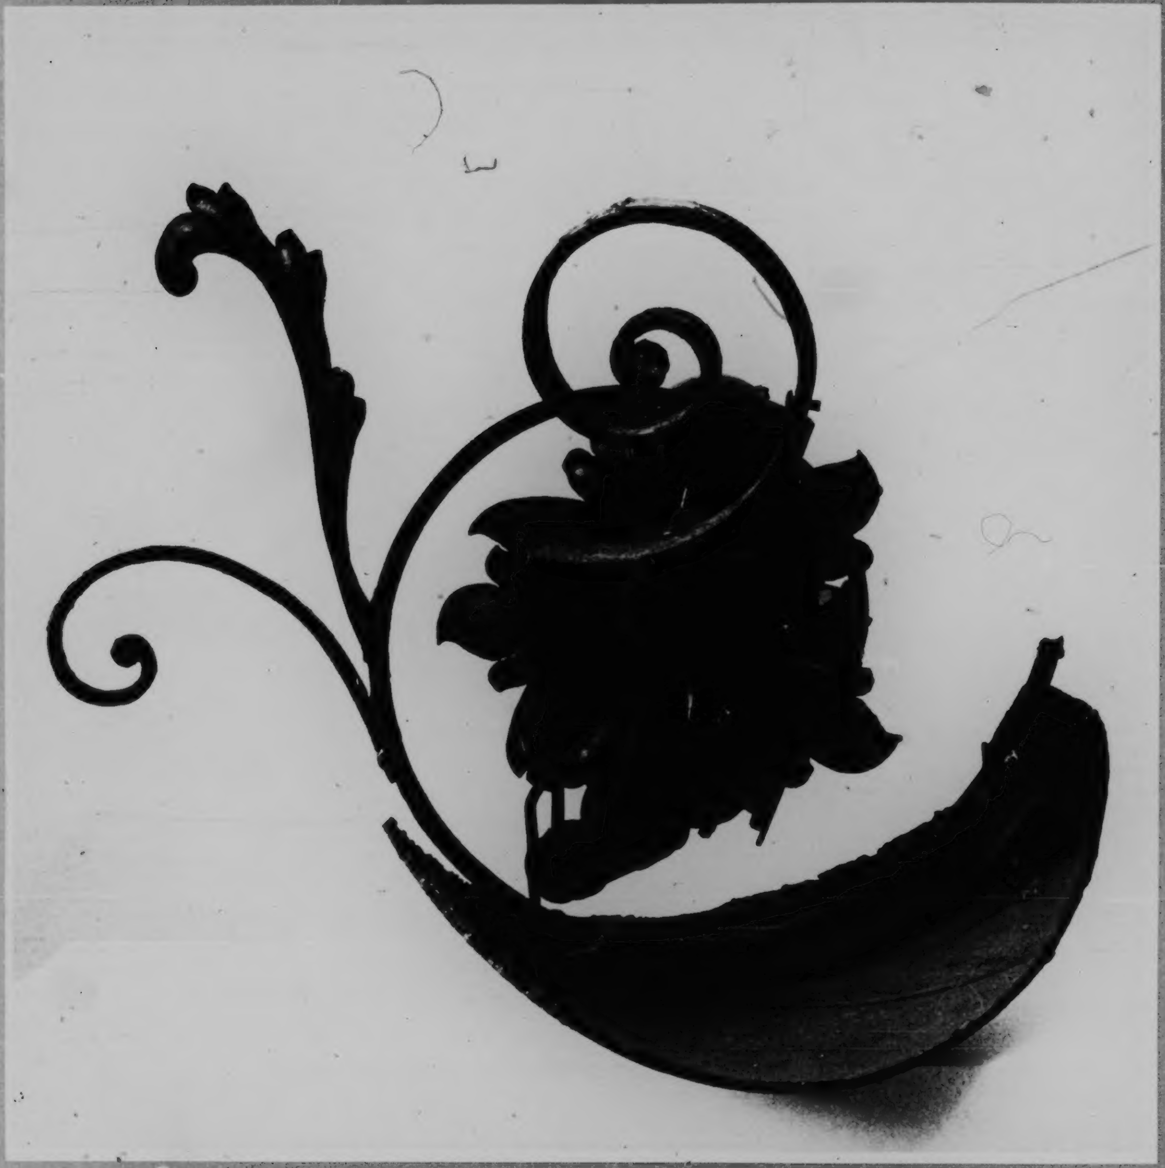
Exhibition: December 1983–January 1984
Beatrice Helg is represented permanently by the Galerie Sonia Zannettacci

GALERIE SONIA ZANNETTACCI

16, RUE DES GRANGES, 1204 GENEVA. TEL. (22) 21 99 75

VOL
7
1
ISS
11
DE
1983
UMI



JEAN TINGUELY

Chien baroque 1981. Oxidized iron with electric motor 220 volts. 50 x 65 x 45 cm.

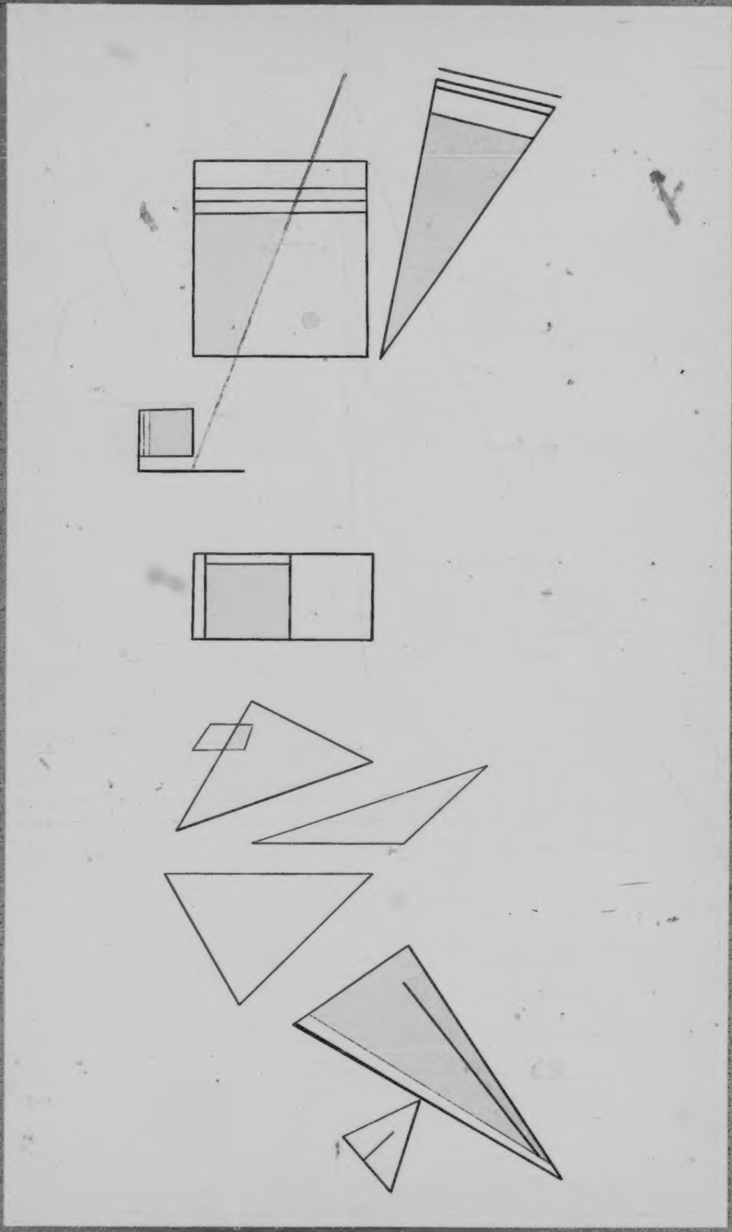
RENÉE ZIEGLER

RAMISTRASSE 34, 8001 ZURICH. TEL. 41 (1) 251 23 22



MARCELLE CAHN (1895-1981)

"Construction lyrique 1." 1966. Oil on canvas. 83 x 50 cm.
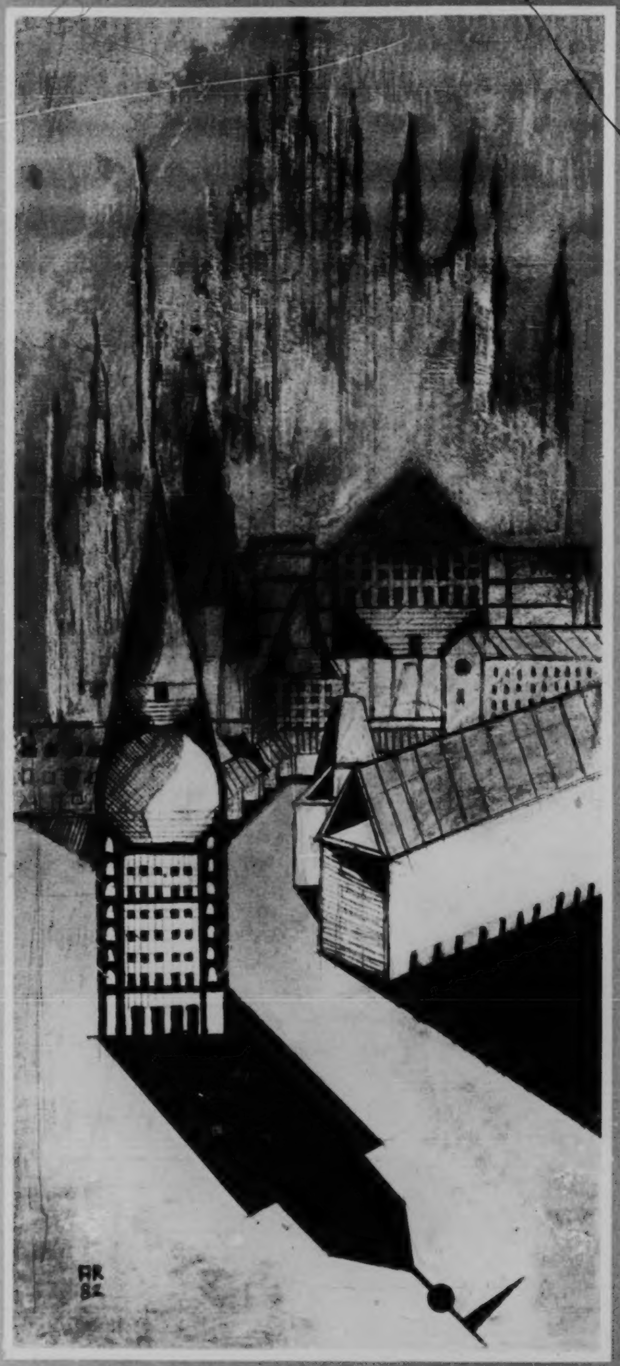
Catalogue $15.00

GALERIE SCHLEGL

MINERVASTRASSE 119, 8032 ZURICH. TEL. (1) 251 49 63/53 62 26

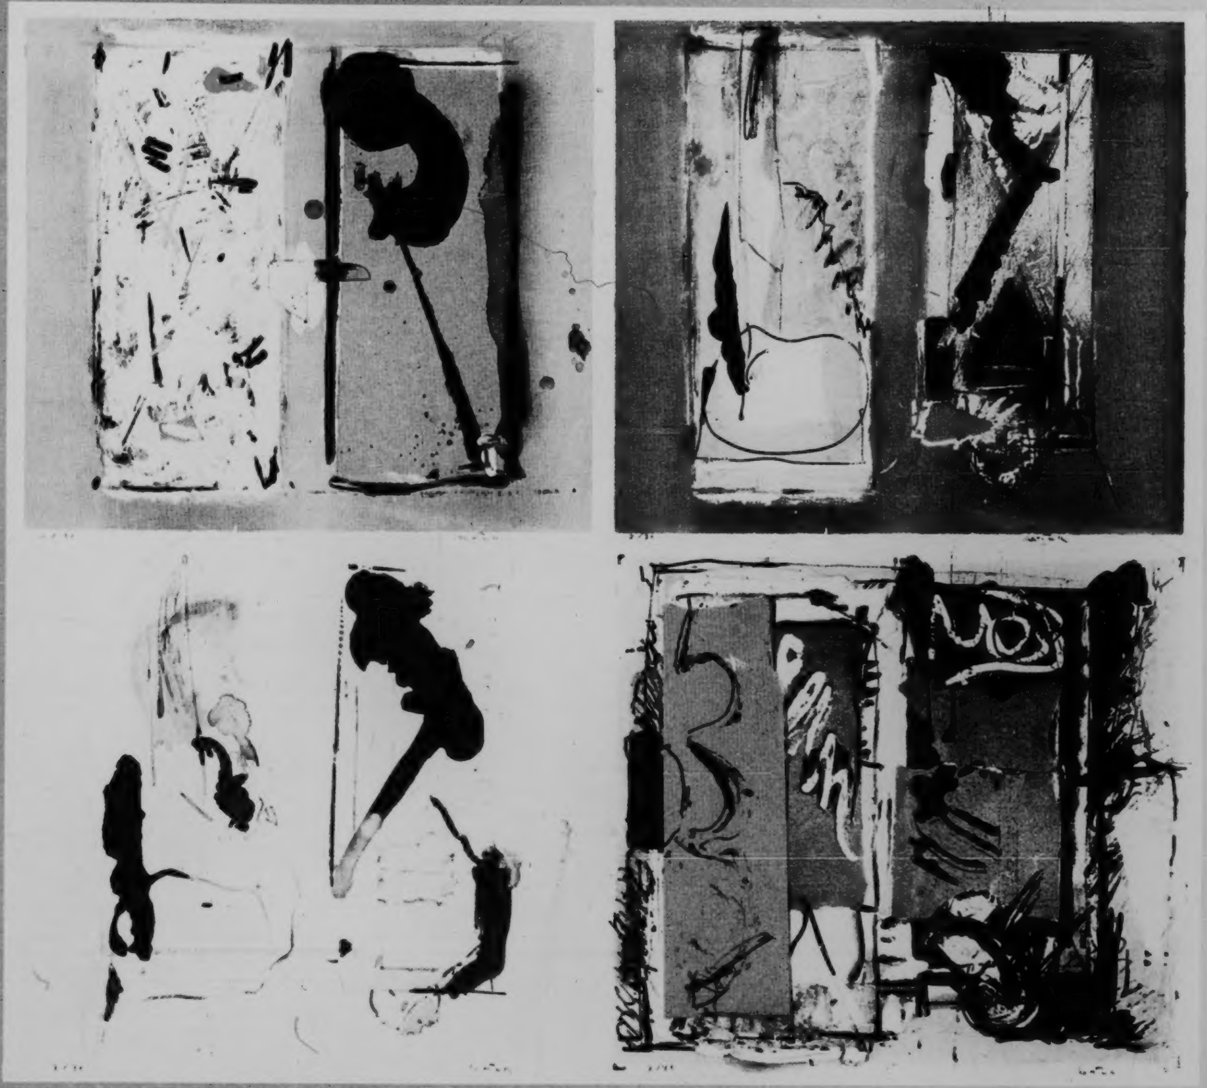
VOL
7
1
ISS
1 1
DE
1983
UMI



ALDO ROSSI

"Edifici con la Fabbrica del Duomo"
Aldo Rossi is represented exclusively by Jamileh Weber Gallery

JAMILEH WEBER GALLERY
SCHANZENGASSE 10, 8001 ZURICH. TEL. (1) 47 79 89



HANS FALK

4 of the 6 lithographs to the theme "Container". The edition is limited to 38.
Each single lithograph was worked over by the artist with tempera, oil, plaster and collage technique.
Each lithograph is a unique piece. The series of 6 comes in a plexiglass container designed by the artist.
Hans Falk is represented exclusively by Jamileh Weber Gallery.

JAMILEH WEBER GALLERY

SCHANZENGASSE 10, 8001 ZURICH. TEL. (1) 47 79 89

VOL
71
ISS
11
DE
1983
UMI

BALTHUS
"Jeune fille assise" Drawing 1976. 100 x 70 cm.
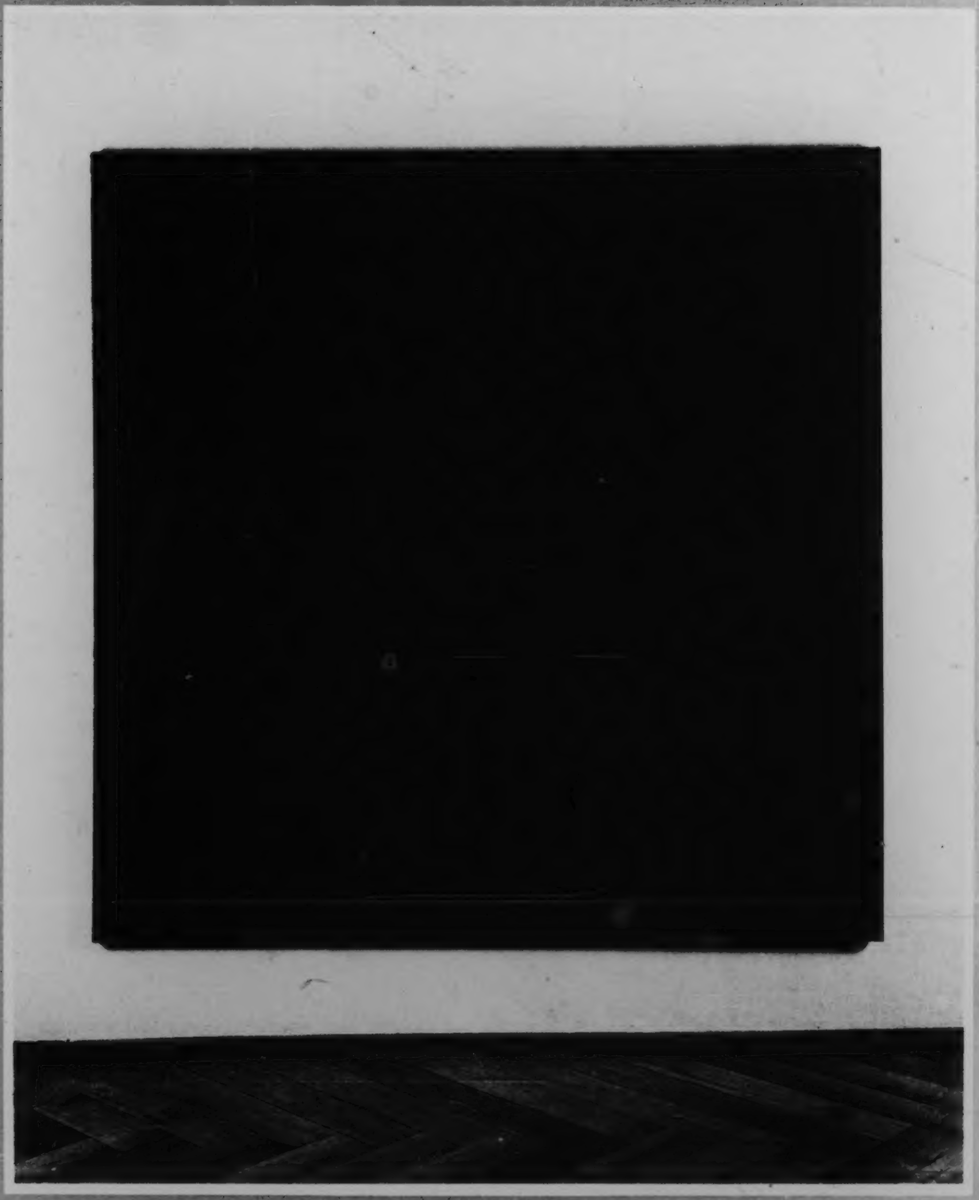
Paintings & drawings: BALTHUS, BISSIER, BOTERO, DUBUFFET, ESTEVE, GIACOMETTI, SCHUMACHER, SZAFRAN, TAPIES, VIEIRA DA SILVA, TOBEY
Sculptures: ABAKANOWICZ, ARP, GIACOMETTI, IPOUSTEGUY, NEVELSON, PENALBA, PONCET
GALERIE ALICE PAULI
7, AVENUE DE RUMINE, 1005 LAUSANNE, TEL. (21) 22 87 62



JAMES BISHOP

Untitled, 1974. Oil on canvas. 195 x 195 cm.

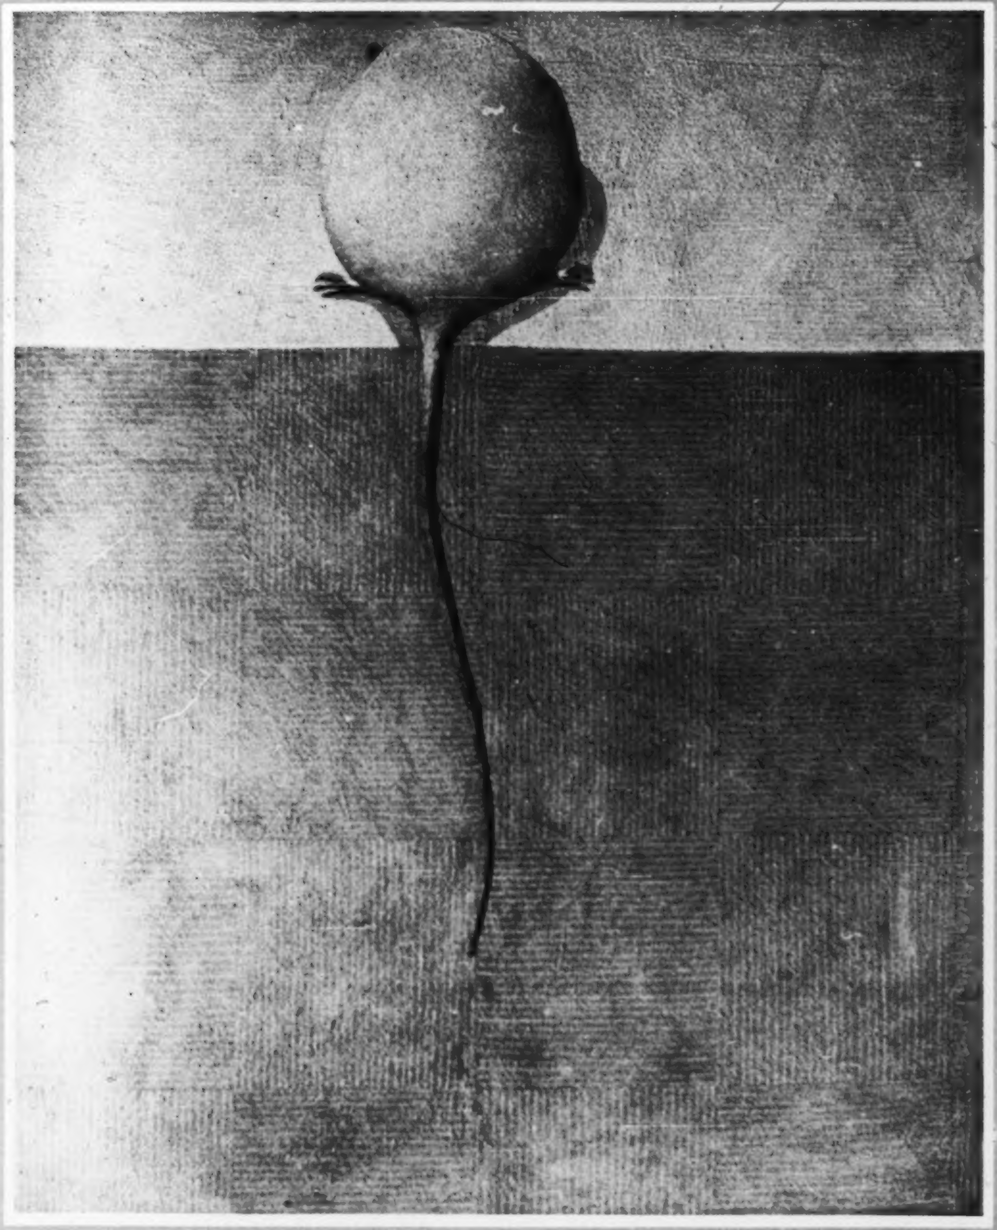
ANNEMARIE VERNA GALLERY

SCHEUCHZERSTRASSE 35 (TURNERSTEIG), 8006 ZURICH. TEL. (1) 361 90 70

VOL
71
ISS
11
DE
1983
UMI



DOMENICO GNOLI

"La souris blanche sur la nappe" 1967. Mixed media: oil and sand on canvas. 130 x 150 cm

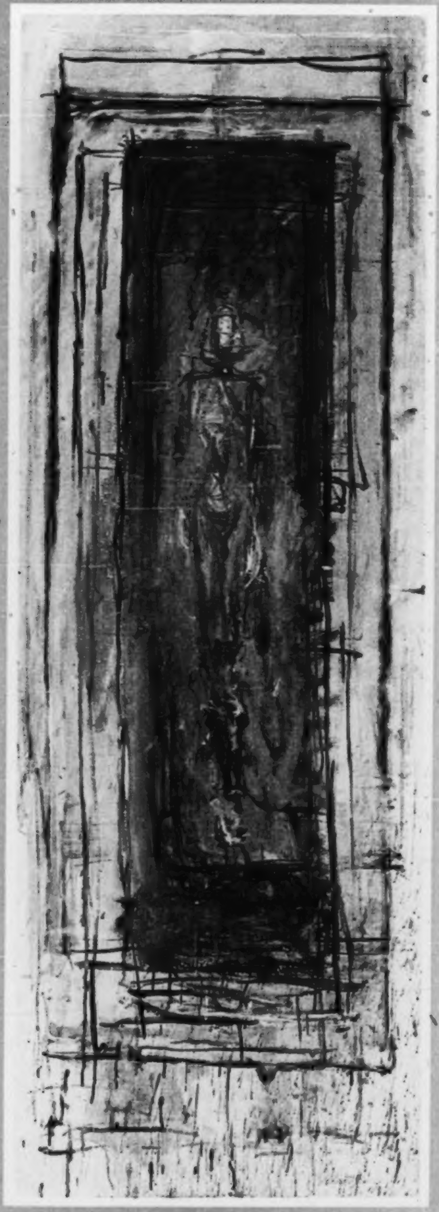
MARIE LOUISE JEANNERET—ART MODERNE
59, AVENUE DE CHAMPEL, 1206 GENEVA. TEL. (22) 46 34 57



ALBERTO GIACOMETTI

"Nu debout" 1953. Oil on canvas. 159.5 x 56 cm.

MARIE LOUISE JEANNERET—ART MODERNE
59, AVENUE DE CHAMPEL, 1206 GENEVA. TEL. (22) 46 34 57

VOL
71
ISS
11
DE
1983
UMI

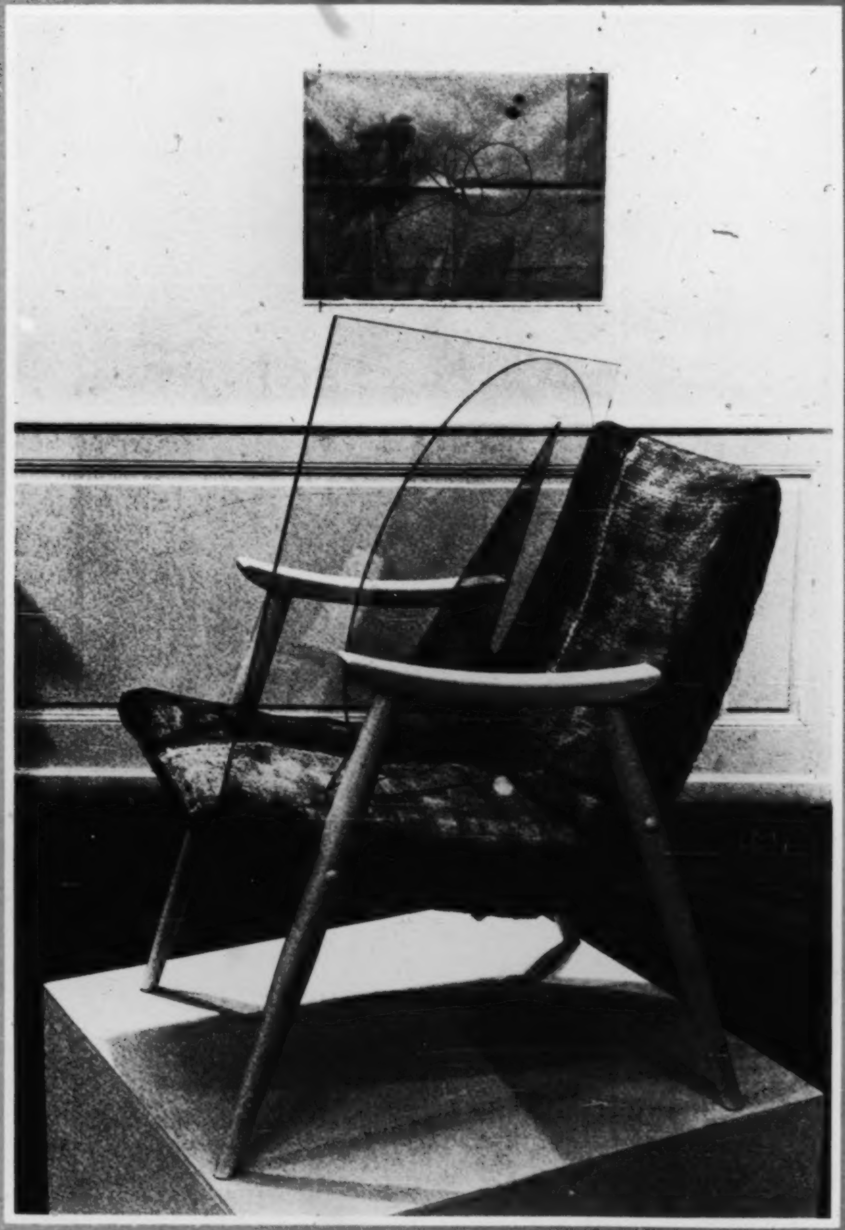

Photo: Georg Rehsteiner

JOHN ARMLEDER

Untitled. 1982. Assemblage: dispersion sur chaise et verres. 92 x 60 x 70 cm.

GALERIE MARIKA MALACORDA

1, RUE DE L'EVECHE, 1204 GENEVA. TEL. (22) 28 64 50

ERNST HAAS

"Rose Study" 1976. Dye transfer print. 16" x 20"

ZUR STOCKEREGG

STOCKERSTRASSE 33, 8022 ZURICH. TEL. (1) 202 69 25

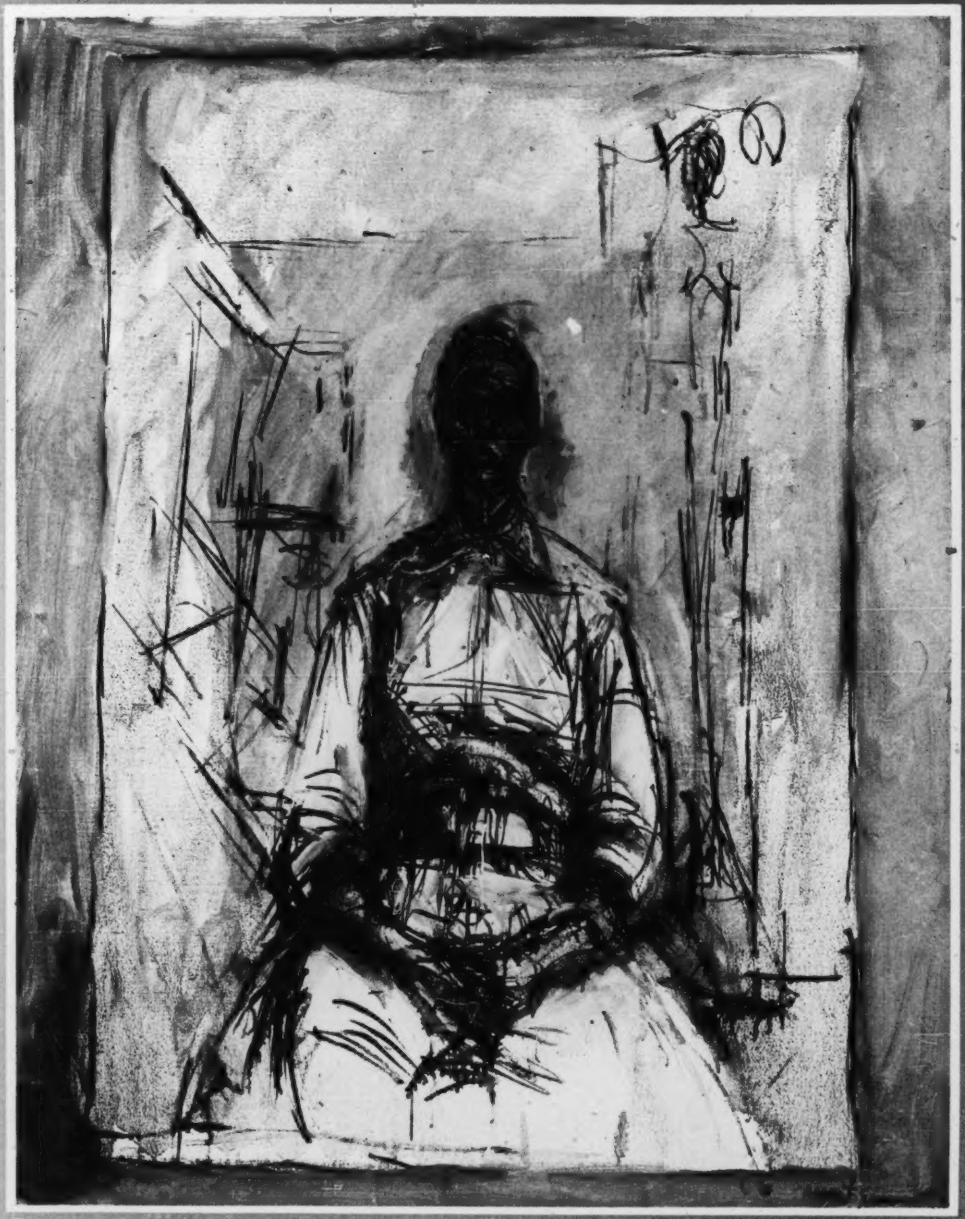
VOL
7
1

ISS
1 1

D E

1983

UMI



ALBERTO GIACOMETTI

"Aicha" 1959. Oil on canvas. 36¼" x 28¾" (92 x 73 cm.)

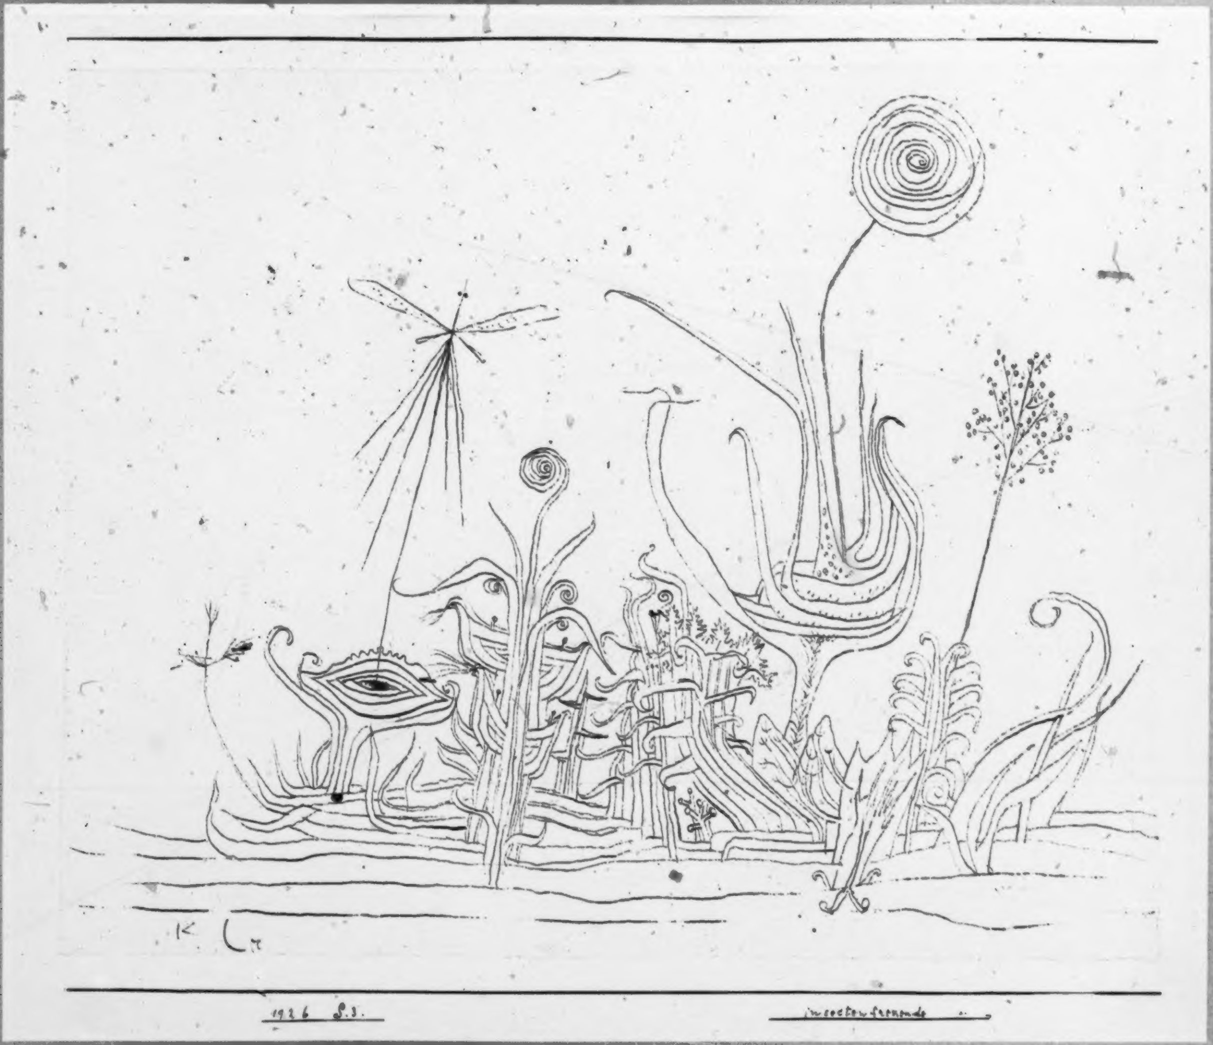
GALERIE BEYELER
BÄUMLEINGASSE 9, 4001 BASEL. TEL. (61) 23 54 12



K Cr
1926 S.3. insecton fressende

PAUL KLEE

"Insecton-fressende" 1926. Ink on paper. 24.5 x 30.5 cm.

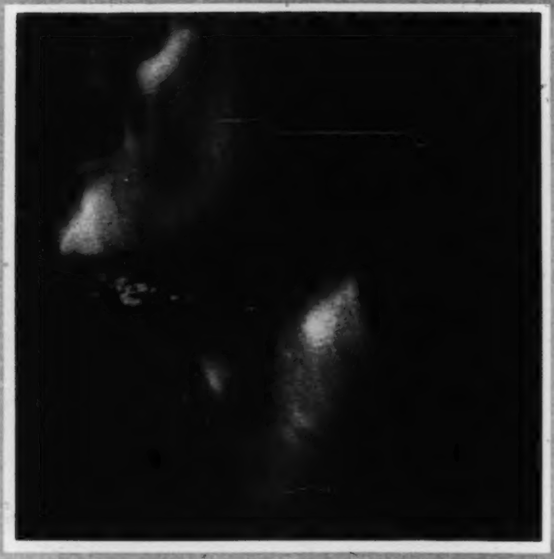
KNOEDLER ZURICH

KIRCHGASSE 24, 8022 ZURICH. TEL. 69 35 00

VOL
7 1
ISS
1 1
DE
1983
UMI



PIERRE KELLER

"Blue Male" 1983. Polaroid SX 70. 100 x 100 cm.

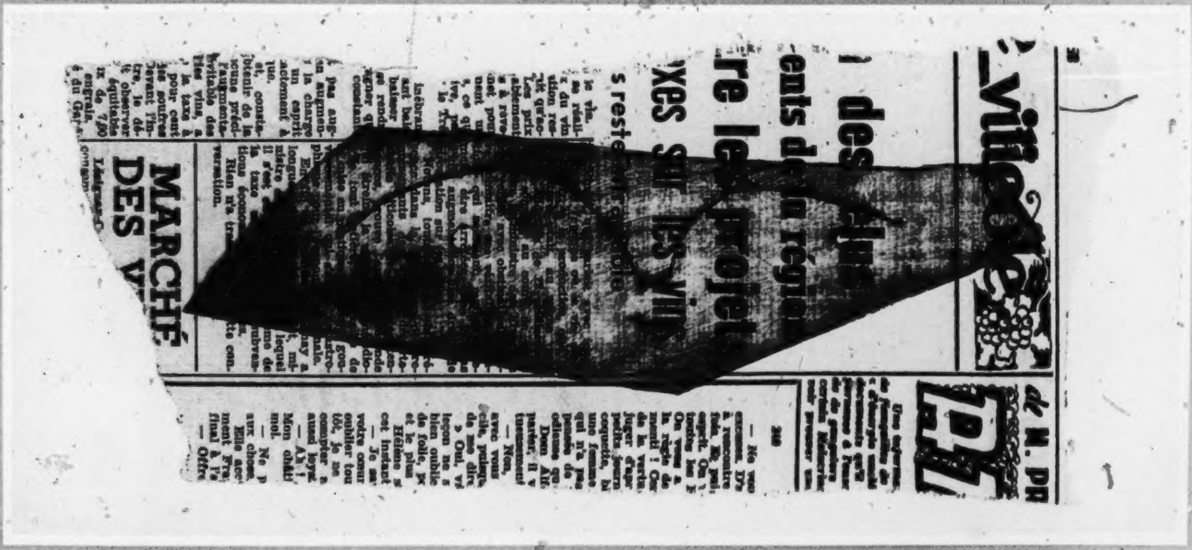
GALERIE RIVOLTA

1, RUE MERCERIE, CH 1003 LAUSANNE. TEL. (21) 22 35 72

KUNST MUSEUM LUZERN
CH 6002 LUZERN. TEL. (41) 23 92 42
EXHIBITION MARCH 84

CENTRE D'ART CONTEMPORAIN
CH 1211 GENEVA 4. TEL. (22) 28 88 03
EXHIBITION APRIL/MAY 84



PABLO PICASSO

"The Illustrated Books: Catalogue Raisonné"

Compiled by Sebastian and Herma Goeppert and Patrick Cramer. Patrick Cramer, Editeur, Geneva, 1983.
The complete catalogue of the illustrated books, albums and catalogues, with 156 entries and 804 reproductions (35 in color).
Preface, poem by P.A. Benoit, chronological table, etc. 416 pp. Full cloth, illustrated jacket, cloth slipcase. 12⅜ x 9¼ in.
Regular edition (English or French) Sw. fr. 180.– or $85. English de luxe edition of 20 copies with an original drypoint etching by Picasso
(Bloch 983) from a numbered edition of 40 impressions with the signature stamp Sw. fr. 5800.–

PATRICK CRAMER

13, RUE CHANTEPOULET, 1201 GENEVA. TEL. (22) 32 54 32

VOL
7
1
ISS
11
DE
1983
UMI

ROLF ISELI

The Large Eavesdropper from Bern (Der grosse Horcher von Bern), 1982.
Soil, wire and acrylic on paper, 64 x 48½ in (163 x 123 cm)

M. KNOEDLER & CO. INC. NEW YORK
Rolf Iseli, Recent Works, November 5 to December 2, 1983

MUSEUM OF MODERN ART, NEW YORK
Monumental Prints: Georg Baselitz & Rolf Iseli, October 11, 1983 to January 3, 1984

INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION DIRECTORY

A guide to current exhibitions abroad

ARGENTINA	BUENOS AIRES	☎ 54 (1)
	RUTH BENZACAR Talcahuano 1216-1° • 1014 • Tel. 41-8549, 42-5614/5568	Audivert, Bedel, Benedit, Benguria, Cáceres, Castilla, De Monte, Iommi, Kemble, Marotta, Michel, Minujin, Robirosa, Smoje, Vegezzi
	DEL RETIRO Florida 943 • 1005 • Tel. 312.58.50	P. Bobbio, M. Bonevardi, S. Camporeale, D. Cugat, J. Diciervo, A. Hilto, L. Lublin, A. Nigro, A. Paparella, G. Priotti, L. Wells, D. Zelaya.
AUSTRIA	INNSBRUCK	☎ 43 (5222)
	KRINZINGER Adolf Pichlerplatz 8 • 6020 • Tel. 32,131	Symbol Tier, drawings, paintings, performance, photography: 17 artists
	KLAGENFURT	☎ 43 (4222)
	CARINTHIA KLAGENFURT Volermarkter Ring 25 • 9020 • Tel. 57.377	Until January 6, Accrochage, new acquisitions of the gallery Until Jan. 6, Caroline
	VIENNA	☎ 43 (222)
	ARIADNE Bäckerstrasse 6 • 1010 • Tel. 52.94.79	Robert Kabas, new works
	GRITA INSAM Kölnerhofg. 6 • 1010 • Tel. 52.53.30	Shirazeh Houshiary, sculpture; Philippe Favier, "New pictures from France" As of Dec. 7, Helmut H. Mark, Evelyn Egerer and other young Austrian artists
	HEIKE CURTZE Grünangergasse 12 • A1010 • Tel. 52 93 75	Until December 23, Philipp Schöpke
	PAKESCH Ballgasse 6 • 1010 • Tel. 52.48.14	December 4–25, Volker Tannert and Herbert Brandl
	NÄCHST ST. STEPHAN Grunangergasse 1/11 II • 1010 • Tel. 52.12.66	Oswald Oberhuber, drawings, paintings and tapestries (catalogue available)
	ULYSSES Opernring 21 • 1010 • Tel. 57.12.26.	Until December 23, Ivan Chermayeff, "Cats, Masks, Tables," collages
	GALERIE HUBERT WINTER Sonnenfelsgasse 8 • 1010 • Tel. 52.92.85	Kunstnachrichten from Picabia to Lüpertz
BELGIUM	ANTWERP	☎ 32 (2)
	AVANTGRADE Volkstraat 60 • Tel. 216.04.81

VOL
71
ISS
11
DE
•
1983
UMI

INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION DIRECTORY

ANTWERP (CONT'D) ☎ 32 (2)

MICHELE LACHOWSKY 27 Waalse Kaai • 2000 • Tel. 237.23.93	Bertrand Lavier
LENS FINE ART Mechelsesteenweg 148 • 2018 • Tel. 237.68.57	Lucebert Tadini
"121" Mechelsesteenweg 121 • 218.86.73	Until December 15, Edward Allington, Anish Kapoor, Julian Opie, recent sculpture. As of Dec. 15, Narcisse Tordoir, new paintings by the Belgian artist
MICHELINE SZWAJCER 17 Venusstraat • 2000 • Tel. 32.71.85	Lawrence Weiner

BRUSSELS ☎ 32 (2)

ALBERT BARONIAN 89, Avenue Emile de Beco • 1050 • Tel. 647.3414	Siegfried Anzinger
ISY BRACHOT 62a, Avenue Louise • 1050 • Tel. 511.05.25	Nollet Hommage à Saverijs
MINETA MOVE 43, Rue Ernest Allard • 1000 • tel. 513 03 80	John Mewling, sculptures Michael Porter, paintings
POST-SCRIPTUM 37, Rue des Eperonniers • 1000 • Tel. 511.96.43	Books and catalogues on contemporary art and photography, records

GHENT ☎ 32 (91)

BARONIAN/LAMBERT Oudburg 22 • 9000 • Tel. 254.057	Blais, Castelli, Combas, Futura 2000
GEWAD 23 Gewad • 9000 • Tel. 25.56.16

KNOKKE ☎ 32 (50)

ELISABETH FRANCK 124 Kustlaan • 8300 • Tel. 606.881	The gallery will reopen in April.
GALLERY TRIADE Res. St. James, Kustlaan 130 • 8300 • Tel. 610.087	Alechinsky, Appel, Atlan, Bissière, Esteve, Fautrier, Herbin, Jorn, Soulages, Bram & Geer van Velde, Vieira da Silva

KRUISHOUTEM ☎ 32 (91)

FONDATION VERANNEMAN Vandevoordewegg 2 • 9770 • Tel. 83 52 87	Martin Baeyens, Agnes Nees, Carlos Revilla, Kim Tschang Yeul, P. Wunderlich

ZWEVEGEM-OTEGEM ☎ 32 (56)

DEWEER ART GALLERY 2 • Tiegemstraat 9 • 856 • Tel. 644.113	Alfred Hofkunst (catalogue available)

COLOMBIA

BARRANQUILLA

GALERIA QUINTERO 1, CRA 51 B Nº 80-65 • Tel. 359.210	Liliana Porter

BOGOTA ☎ 57

GARCES Y VELASQUEZ CRA 5 Nº 26-92 - AA 25936 • 1 • Tel. 284.5593	Luis Caballero, Santiago Cardenas, Beatris Gonzalez, Becky Mayer, Saturnino Ramirez, Carlos Rojas, Bernardo Salcedo, Camilo Velasquez
QUINTANA Carrera 11 Nº 85-62 • Tel. 236.8226	Henry Moore

DENMARK

COPENHAGEN ☎ 45 (1)

ASBAEK Ny Adelgade 8 • 1104 • Tel. 15 40 04	Joergen Haugen Sørenson Freddie A. Lerche

ENGLAND

CAMBRIDGE ☎ 44 (223)

KETTLE'S YARD GALLERY Northampton Street, C.B.3 OA.Q. • Tel. 352.124	Through December 23, recent paintings and sculptures: Jonathon Froud, Peter Noble, Robert Soden, Richard Wiltshire

LONDON ☎ 44 (1)

ANNE BERTHOUD GALLERY 1 Langley Court, W.C.2 • Tel. 352.124	Through December 22, "Interiors"—painting and drawing by contemporary British artists
ART HOUSE 213 South Lambeth Road • Tel. 735.2192	"The Face": 25 known and unknown artists make faces also Selection from the Outsider Archive
ANTHONY d'OFFAY 23 Dering Street, W.1 • Tel. 499.4695	Paintings and sculpture: Baselitz, Chia, Clemente, Gilbert & George, Kiefer, Long, McLean, Webb, etc

LONDON (CONT'D)	☎ 44 (1)
BARBICAN ART GALLERY Centre for Arts & Conferences • EC2 • Tel. 638 41 41	"Young Blood": an exhibition showcasing Britain's young designers
BROWSE & DARBY 19 Cork Street, W.1 • Tel. 734.7984	Through December 22, James Reeve
12 DUKE STREET GALLERY Duke Street, St. James, S.W.1 • Tel. 937.36.63	David Grob Ltd. (by appointment only) 6 St. Albans Grove, London W8. Telephone (1) 937 3863
FISCHER FINE ART 30 King Street, S.W.1 • Tel. 839.3942	Through December 22, an anthology of European architectural drawing from the 18th–20th centuries
GIMPEL FILS 30 Davies Street, W.1Y.1L.G. • Tel. 493.2488	Through December 22, "New French Painting"; Through January 14, Christmas Show: Eskimo/Inuit prints from the Canadian Arctic
ROBERT FRASER GALLERY 21 Cork Street, W.1 • Tel. 434 1911	Salvador Dali: a selection of drawings from the Edward James Collection (1937–1938)
NIGEL GREENWOOD, INC. 41 Sloane Gardens, S.W.1W.8E.B. • Tel. 730.8824	Through Christmas, Glen Baxter, color drawings
I.C.A. The Mall, SW1. • Tel. 930.0493	Until December 18, Robert Mapplethorpe, photographs Until Dec. 11, Barbara Kruger, "Your Comfort is My Silence"
NICOLA JACOBS 9 Cork Street, W.1 • Tel. 437.3868	Through December 24, Ken Kiff, new work
ANNELY JUDA/JUDA ROWAN 11 Tottenham Mews, W.1 • Tel. 637.5517/8	Until Dec. 17, "First Russian Show": Chagal, Exter, Gabo, Kandinsky, El Lissitzky, Malevich, Popova, Rodchenko, Suetin, Tatlin, etc.; Richard Kidd
KNOEDLER GALLERY (Kasmin, Director) 22 Cork Street, W.1 • Tel. 439.1096	Through December, Gillian Ayres, "Smaller Works"
LEINSTER FINE ART 9 Hereford Road, W.2 • Tel. 229.99.85	Through December, "Toujours L'Elégance,": hats, jewelry, Art Nouveau period painting
LISSON GALLERY (Nicholas Logsdail) 66/68 Bell Street, N.W.1 6S.P. • Tel. 262.1539	Bertrand Lavier, sculpture
MARLBOROUGH FINE ART LTD 6, Albemarle Street • W1X 3HF • tel. 629 51 61	Through January 7, John Piper, romantic paintings
MAYOR GALLERY 22A Cork Street, W.1 • Tel. 734.3558	Through December, Salvador Dali, drawings
PICCADILLY GALLERY 16 Cork Street, W.1 • Tel. 499.4632	Through December 22, Christmas Exhibition: recent acquisitions of British & Continental works
REDFERN GALLERY 20 Cork Street, W.1X. 2H.L. • Tel. 734.17.32 734.05.78	Through December 31, "Prints and Literature": an exhibition of prints on literary themes
GALERIE 39 98 George Street, W.1H. 5R.I. • Tel. 487 5038	Through December 9, Waichi Tsutaka Through Dec. 23, mixed show by contemporary Japanese artists
EDWARD TOTAH GALLERY 39 Floral Street • W.C.2 • Tel. 379.6241	December 2–24, Gregor Hiltner, paintings and watercolors
WADDINGTON GALLERIES 2, 4 & 34 Cork St., W.1 • Tel. 439.1866	Until Dec. 23, Michael Moon (2 Cork Street); Julian Schnabel (34 & 11 Cork St.) Through Dec., Calder, Flanagan, Matisse, Miró, Nicholson (2 & 11 Cork St.)

SOUTHAMPTON	☎ 44 (703)
JOHN HANSARD GALLERY The University, Southampton • Tel. 559.122	Until December 24, Rebecca Horn, installations

FRANCE

BORDEAUX	☎ 33 (56)
C.A.P.C. ENTREPOT LAINE Rue Ferrère • 33000 • Tel. 44.16.35	Galleries will be closed during construction of the new museum

CANNES	☎ 33 (9)
GALERIE HERBAGE 17, Rue des Etats-Unis • 06400 • Tel. 39.19.15	The gallery will be closed during the month of December

LYONS	☎ 33 (7)
E.L.A.C. Centre de'Echanges Lyon Perrach • 69002 • Tel. 842.27.39	As of December 16, three French painters: Vincent Bioulés, Louis Cane, François Martin (catalogue available)
GALERIE J.L.J. BERTIN 10, Rue Auguste Comte • 69002 • Tel. 842 62 87	December 6–January 5, African art

VOL
71
ISS
11
DE
1983
UMI

INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION DIRECTORY

LYONS	☎ 33 (7)
GALERIE GASTON/NELSON 99 Cours Emile Zola • 69100 Villeurbanne • Tel. 894 00 69	Until December 23, group exhibition: Edward Allington, Gloria Friedmann, Shirazeh Houshiary, Pierre Keller
NICE 33 (93)
GALERIE LE CHANJOUR 55, Rue de France • 06000 • Tel. 37 30 11	Accrochage: Combas, Di Rosa, Dole, Poivret
GALERIE PAUL HERVIEU 26, Rue Pastorelli • 06000 • Tel. 80.02.10	Paintings and gouaches by Atlan, Clavé, Coignard, Goetz, Hélénon, Marchand des Raux, Papart and Key Sato
PARIS	☎ 33 (1)
ABCD-CHRISTIAN CHENEAU 30, Rue de Lisbonne • 75008 • Tel. 563 25 42	"Tel Peintre—Quels Maitres?" Group exhibition of 25 artists: Arroyo, Chambas, Erro, Jaccard, Klasen, Monory, Thalmann, etc.
ANTIOPE-FRANCE 10, Rue Budé • 75004 • Tel. 354.61.02	Accrochage: gallery artists
ARTCURIAL 9, Av. Matignon • 75008 • Tel. 299.16.16	Still-life paintings by 20th-century masters: Matisse, Picasso, etc.
BEAUBOURG 23, Rue du Renard • 75004 • Tel. 271.20.50	Accrochage
GALERIE ALAIN BLONDEL 4, Rue Aubry-le-Boucher • 75004 • Tel. 278.66.67	Bruno Schmeltz
CLAUDE BERNARD 5-7-9, Rue des Beaux-Arts • 75006 • Tel. 326.9707	Zoran Music
ISY BRACHOT 35, Rue Guénégaud • 75006 • Tel. 354.22.40	December 7–January 7, Gina Pane
GALERIE CLAUDINE BREGUET 19, Rue Guénégaud • 75006 • Tel. 633 40 06	The gallery will close in December
GALERIE JEANNE BUCHER 53, Rue de Seine • 75006 • Tel: 326.22.32. 326.75.23	Jean Amado, recent sculpture
LOUIS CARRE ET CIE. 10, Avenue de Messine • 75008 • Tel. 562.57.07	Accrochage
GALERIE CAROLINE CORRE 14, Rue Guenegaud • 75006 • Tel. 354-5767	Bedarride Group show of gallery artists and original artists' books
GALERIE CROUSEL HUSSENOT 80, Rue Quincampoix • 75003 • Tel. 887.6081	Dokoupil
JACQUES DAMASE 61 Rue de Varenne • 75007 • Tel. 705.55.04	Sonia Delaunay, gouaches, watercolors; cadeaux d'artistes: Calder, Cocteau, Jim Dine, Erté, Fernand Leger, Patrick Raynaud
LE DESSIN 27, Rue Guenegaud • 75006 • Tel. 633.04.66	Through December, Anne Marie Pécheur, recent paintings
ERIC FABRE 6, Rue du Pont de Lodi • 75006 • Tel. 325.42.63	Christian d'Alwee, Jean-Luc Vilmouth As of December 20, Nam June Paik
PAUL FACCHETTI 20, Avenue de Friedland • 75008 • Tel. 563.60.26	By Appointment
KARL FLINKER 25, Rue de Tournon • 75006 • Tel. 325.18.73	Drawings by Hélion, Hubbuch, Kandinsky, Klee, Kupka, Magnelli, etc.
GALERIE FARIS 50, Rue de l'Université • 75007 • Tel. 544.29.48	Altardi, drawings, paintings, sculpture
JEAN FOURNIER 44, Rue Quincampoix • 75004 • Tel. 277.3231	James Bishop, Pierre Buraglio, Alain Clément, Sam Francis, Simon Hantai, Shirley Jaffe, Joan Mitchell, Claude Viallat
GALERIE DE FRANCE 50-52, Rue de la Verrerie • 75004 • Tel. 274.38.00	Until Dec. 10, Antonucci, Bouillon, Fonchain; Dec. 13–17, to commemorate her new book, photographs by Alice Springs; As of Dec. 20, Alfred Manessier
LILIANE FRANCOIS 15, Rue de Seine • 75006 • Tel. 326.94.32	December 1–21, Georges Rinaudo, drawings
MAURICE GARNIER 6, Avenue Matignon • 75008 • Tel. 225.61.65.	Bernard Buffet, permanently.
DANIEL GERVIS GALLERY 14, Rue de Grenelle • 75007 • Tel. 544.41.90	Benrath, Constant, Dubuffet, Eterovic, Gerzo, Ghertman, Malaval, Montyn, Mutal, Nevelson, Olsen, Pan, Pasotti, Sonderborg, Toledo, others

PARIS (CONT'D)	☎ 33 (1)
GALERIE MARWAN HOSS 12, Rue D'Alger • 75001 • Tel. 296.39.45	"Important Works: Masters of the 19th and 20th Centuries," paintings, drawings and sculpture
LAHUMIERE 88, Bd de Courcelles • 75017 • Tel. 763.03.95	Dahmen, Dewasne, Dorny, Magnelli, Picasso
LA HUNE GALERIE EDITIONS 14, Rue de l'Abbaye • 75006 • Tel. 325.54.06	Correspondances–Folon, Milton Glaser
LA HUNE-LIBRAIRIE 170, Boulevard St. Germain • 75006 • Tel. 548.35.85	Books, catalogues and magazines: Fine arts, literature, architecture, graphics, photography and fashion
YVON LAMBERT 5, Rue de Grenier St. Lazare • 75003 • Tel. 271.09.33	Until December 23, Loïc Le Groumellec
GALERIE JEAN-PIERRE LAVIGNES 15, Rue St. Louis en l'Isle Paris • 75004 • Tel. 633.5602	Through January 10, Jean-Charles Meynard, Corps et Graphiques, acrylic paintings
GEORGES LAVROV 40 Rue Mazarine • 75006 • Tel. 326.84.35	Gallery artists: Lepeut, Mabille, Mangou, Plessier, Raginsky, Sosnowski Dec. 6–Jan. 15 Roberto Mangou, exhibition
ADRIEN MAEGHT 46, Rue du Bac • 75007 • Tel. 222.12.59	Raoul Ubac Jan Voss
GALERIE MAEGHT LELONG S.A. 13 & 14, Rue de Téhéran • 75008 • Tel. 563.13.19	Jean-Paul Riopelle Ben Nicholson
1900-2000 GALLERY 8, Rue Bonaparte • 75006 • Tel. 325.84.20	"Made in U.S.A. 1930–1950," period furniture and objects Surrealist paintings
DENISE RENE 196, Blvd. St. Germain • 75006 • Tel. 222.77.57	Through December, Tsai, cybernetic works
GALERIE NATALIE SEROUSSI 34, Rue de Seine • 75006 • Tel. 634.05.84	Until December 10, Giacomo Balla; As of Dec. 19, "Works of the 20th Century": Balla, Gris, Kandinsky, Kupka, Picabia, Valmier
DARTHEA SPEYER 6, Rue Jacques Callot • 75006 • Tel. 354.78.41	Gallery artists
STADLER 51, Rue de Seine • 75006 • Tel. 326.91.10	Alexandre Delay
NANE STERN 25, Ave. de Tourville • 75007 • Tel. 705.06.46	Through January 7, paintings by Zenzo Sakamoto and Anthony O'Carroll
DANIEL TEMPLON 30, Rue Beaubourg • 75003 • Tel. 272.14.10	Through December, Karel Appel
TRANS/FORM 22, Ave de la Bourdonnais • 75007 • Tel. 550.40.32	"Paddock Part I": Hisako Endo, Nobukatsu Endo, Yasuhiko Hata, Seiki Matsui, Katsuto Matsushita, Saburo Minami, Koji Oeshi, Koichi Yamazaki
PATRICE TRIGANO 4 bis Rue des Beaux-Arts • 75006 • Tel. 634.15.01	Through December 17, Bryen
GALERIE VALLOIS 41, Rue de Seine • 75006 • Tel. 329.50.84/85	Chana Orloff, sculpture from 1915–30
ZABRISKIE 37, Rue Quincampoix • 75004 • Tel. 272.35.47	As of December 7, Thierry Delaroyere, recent paintings

LES SABLES D'OLONNE	☎ 33 (51)
MUSEE DE L'ABBAYE STE. CROIX Rue de Verdun • 85100 • Tel. 32 01.16	Donation Sorlier: "Lithography at the turn of the century" Salle Jean Launois (1898–1942); Victor Brauner, Les Mythologies

ST. PAUL DE VENCE	☎ 33 (93)
FONDATION MAEGHT Saint Paul de Vence • 06570 • Tel. 32.81.63	Permanent collection of the Fondation As of December 22, an exhibition of posters
GALERIE CATHERINE ISSERT Saint Paul de Vence • 06570 • Tel. 32.96.92

TOULON	☎ 33 (94)
MUSEE DE TOULON 20, Boulevard Leclerc • 83000 • Tel. 93.15.54	Through December 15, François Arnal: Aujourd'hui le moyen age, medieval archaeology; Japon: Dialectique du dedans-dehors (architecture in Japan)

TOULOUSE	☎ 33 (61)
AXE-SUD 11, Place de la Daurade • 31000 • Tel. 25.37.17	Until December 5, Ben Dec. 8–Jan. 7, FR-IT-ES, 12 artists of French, Italian or Spanish origin

VOL
7
1
ISS
1 1
DE
1983
UMI

INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION DIRECTORY

GERMANY

BERLIN ☎ 49 (30)

GALERIE AKMAK Hohenzollerndamm 7 • 1000/31 • Tel. 883.53.12	Jaune Quick-to-see Smith, oil paintings and drawings: Modern native American art.
GALERIE LIETZOW Knesebeckstrasse 32 • 1000/12 • Tel. 881.28.96	Ben Wood, objects, panels and pictures in glass
SILVIA MENZEL Niebuhrstrasse 69 • 1000/12 • Tel. 324 19 20	Sandro Chia, paintings, drawings, pastels, graphics
R. ONNASCH AUSTELLUNGEN Niebuhrstr. 5 • 1000/12 • Tel. 882.77.18	As of December 10, George Segal, "People in Environments"
GALERIE POLL Lützowplatz 7 • 1000/30 • Tel. 261.70.91	Until December 31, Peter Klasen
RAAB GALERIE Potsdamer Strasse 58 • 1000/30 • Tel. 261 60 96	Peter Chevalier
HANS REDMANN Fasanenstrasse 30 • 1000/15 • Tel. 881.11.35	Until December 23, Heinrich Kley (1863–1945), oil paintings, watercolors and drawings
GALERIE FOLKER SKULIMA Niebuhrstrasse 2 • 1000/12 • Tel. 881.8280	Helmut Middendorf, new paintings
ZELLERMAYER-LORENZEN Thielallee 3A • 1000/33 • tel. 831 17 97	Herman Krauth—young art from Berlin

BONN ☎ 49 (228)

GALERIE LINSSEN Prinz-Albert-Strasse 47 • 5300 • Tel. 21.89.09	German Expressionists, Russian Avant Garde, International classics, Oswaldo Romberg and Jan Voss.

COLOGNE ☎ 49 (221)

GALERIE BAECKER St. Apernstrasse 21 • 5000/1 • Tel. 240 15 26	Louisa Chase, Neue Malerei aus New York (new New York work)
GALERIE GMURZYNSKA Obenmarspforten 21 • 5000/1 • Tel. 23.66.21/2	Kleine Formate West und Osteuropäischer Künstler 1910–1930—(Small Works of West and East European Artists 1910–1930)
GALERIE MAX HETZLER Kamekestrasse 21 • 5000/1 • Tel. 52.78.53	Markus Oehlen, new paintings
GALERIE HOLTMANN Richartzstr. 10 • 5000/1 • Tel. 21.51.60	Gerhard Naschberger
GALERIE JOLLENBECK Maastrichter Strasse 53 • Tel. 51.58.52	"Sculpture Now"
KOLNISCHER KUNSTVEREIN Josef-Haubrich-Hof 1 • 5000/1 • Tel. 21.70.21/221.3740	John Hilliard
PAUL MAENZ Bismarckstr. 50 • 5000/1 • Tel. 51.50.88	Anselm Kiefer
GALERIE ORANGERIE REINZ Helenenstrasse 2 • 5000/1 • Tel. 23.46.84	Salvador Dali
GALERIE RECKERMANN Albertusstr. 18 • 5000/1 • Tel. 21.20.64	Gianfranco Baruchello, paintings
GALERIE WENTZEL St. Apernstrasse 26 • 5000/1 • Tel. 24.24.00	Dominique Gauthier, Neue Bilder (New Paintings); Norbert Kricke, sculpture and drawings; Franz Bernhard
MICHAEL WERNER Gertrudenstrasse 24/28 • 5000/1 • Tel. 21.06.61	Group show: Baselitz, Byars, Broodthaers, Immendorff, Kirkeby, Lüpertz, Penck
GALERIE RUDOLF ZWIRNER Albertusstrasse 18 • 5000/1 • Tel. 23.58.37/8	New acquisitions

DUSSELDORF ☎ 49 (211)

HEIKE CURTZE Citadellstrasse 11 • 4000/1 • tel. 32 68 00	Günter Brus, new paintings and drawings
KONRAD FISCHER Platanenstrasse 7 • Tel. 685.908	Mario Merz
GALERIE GMYREK Mutter-Ey-Strasse 5 • 4000/1 • Tel. 32.77.70	Bernd Zimmer, Abgründe, ihr Berge, tanzt! ("Chasms, Ye Mountains, Dance!")

DUSSELDORF (CONT'D) ☎ 49 (211)

GALERIE MAIER-HAHN Eiskellerberg 1-3 • 4000 • Tel. 32 36 44	Ralf Johannen—Charly Banana, drawings, paintings and gouaches
DENISE RENE HANS MAYER Grabbeplatz 2 • 4000 • Tel. 13.21.35	"Masterpieces of Modern Art"
KUNSTVEREIN RHEINLANDE/WESTFALEN Grabbeplatz 4 • 4000 • Tel. 327.023	Friedrich Becker: Schmuck, Gerät, kinetische Objekte

ESSEN ☎ 49 (201)

GALERIE NEHER Rüttenscheiderstr. 75 • 4300 • Tel. 78.20.71	Works by Dix, I. & J. Generalic, Grieshaber, Heckel, Kirchner, Kokoschka, Modersohn, Müller, Nay, Nolde, Pechstein, Rohlfs, Schmidt-Rottluff

HAMBURG ☎ 49 (40)

ASCAN CRONE Isestrasse 121 • 2000/13 • Tel. 040/47.42.94	Through December 21, Per Kirkeby, works on paper
MUNRO Barmbeker Str. 138 • D-2000/60 • Tel. 47 47 46/48 45 52	Siegfried Anzinger, paintings and works on paper

MUNICH ☎ 49 (89)

GALERIE + EDITION A Amalienstrasse 81 & 87 • Tel: 28.13.64/28.84.45	Through December, James Collins, pastels
GALERIE HEINZ HERZER Maximilianstrasse 43 • 8000/22 • Tel. 29 77 29	Until December 23, Arthur Stoll
GALERIE SIX FRIEDRICH Maximilianstrasse. 15 • 8000 • Tel. 29.50.21 & 29.61.10	Through December, Siegfried Anzinger
TANIT Maximilianstr. 36 • 8000 • 8000/22 • Tel. 29.22.33	As of December 1, Rudi Troeger, paintings and drawings (catalogue available)
CHARLOTTE GALERIE Falkenturmstrasse 8 • 8000/2 • Tel. 22 71 66	As of December 2, Jan Balet
GALERIE PFEFFERLE Maximilianstrasse 16 • 8000/22 • Tel. 29 79 69	Until December 23, Stefan Szczesny, new paintings
GALERIE THOMAS Maximilianstrasse 25 • 8000/22 • Tel. 22.27.41	Drawings by Barlach, Basquiat, Baumeister, Chia, Heckel, Kirchner, Matisse, Middendorf, Mueller, Nay, Paladino, Picasso, Tatafiore, Winter.

NUREMBERG ☎ 49 (911)

GALERIE JOHANNA RICARD Königstrasse 33/37 • 8500 • Tel. 22.50.20	Russian Avant-Garde

GREECE

ATHENS ☎ 30 (1)

JEAN BERNIER Marasli 51 • 140 • Tel. 723.5657	Lucas Samaras, new pastels; "Panoramas Polaroids"

HOLLAND

AMSTERDAM ☎ 31 (20)

AMERICAN GRAFFITI Berenstraat 20 • 1016 G.H. • Tel. 27 63 43	"East Village Artists"—David Bowes, Mike Bidlo, George Condo, Bobby G, Richard Hambleton, Kiely Jenkins, Stephen Lack
GALERIE JURKA Singel 28 • 1015AA • Tel. 26 67 33	Marcel Meeyer, paintings and drawings
GALERIE KRIKHAAR Spuistraat 330 • Tel. 26.71.66	Accrochage: Appel, Picasso, Remé, Sonderlenque, etc.
STEDELIJK MUSEUM Paulus Potterstraat 13 • 1007 A.B. • Tel. 73 21 66	Until Jan. 8, Jean Tinguely; Margot Rolf, textiles; Enzo Cucchi, paintings and drawings; Günther Tuzina, Photoworks

EINDHOVEN ☎ 31 (40)

STEDELIJK VAN ABBEMUSEUM 5611 N.H. • Bilderdijklaan 10 • Tel. 38.97.30	Until January 8, Collection of the Bonn Kunstmuseum

ITALY

BARI ☎ 39 (80)

MARILENA BONOMO Via Nicolò dell' Arca 19 • 70121 • Tel. 21.01.45

BOLOGNA ☎ 39 (51)

DE FOSCHERARI Via Goidanich 1 • 40124 • Tel. 27.52.26.	Piero Manai, still life works

VOL
71
ISS
11
DE
1983
UMI

BOLOGNA (CONT'D)	☎ 39 (51)
GALLERIA FORNI Via Farini 26 • 40124 • Tel. 27.07.80	Mauro Chessa
STUDIO G7, G. GRIGOLO Via Val d'Aposa 7C • 40123 • Tel. 26.64.97.	Tenth Birthday Exhibition: works by artists shown in the gallery between 1973 and 1983
BRESCIA	☎ 39 (30)
PIERO CAVELLINI F.lli Bandiera 18A • 25100 • Tel. 57.401	Eliseo Mattiacci, recent works
FLORENCE	☎ 39 (55)
GALLERIA SCHEMA Via della vigna nuova 17. • 50123 • Tel. 28.40.90.	"Four German Artists": Martin Rosz, Norbert Tadeusz, Nicola van Den Plas, Michael Witlatschil
MILAN	☎ 39 (2)
ARIETE GRAFICA Via S. Andrea, 5 • 20121 • Tel. 79.55.73
ARTRA/STUDIO Via Fiori Chiari 8 • 20121 • Tel. 861.190	Alchemico secco—Giorgio Cortenova
STUDIO CANNAVIELLO Piazza Beccaria 10 • 20122 • Tel. 805.2146	Alighiero Boetti
DIAGRAMMA (Luciano Inga Pin) Via Pontaccio 12a • 20121 • Tel. 874.237	Bello stabile—art and design from U.S.A. and Italy
DISEGNI DI ARCHITETTURA Antonia Jannone Via del Carmine 5 • Tel. 878.384
FRANCOISE LAMBERT Bastioni di Porta Nuova 11 • 20121 • Tel. 650.087	General Idea Dennis Oppenheim
STUDIO MARCONI Via Tadino 15 • 20124 • Tel. 225.543	Enrico Baj Titus-Carmel
MASSIMO MININI Via Cavalieri des S. Sepolcro • 20100 • Tel. 86.71.30	Carla Accardi
FRANCO TOSELLI Via del Carmine 9 • 20121 • Tel. 805.0434
MODENA	☎ 39 (59)
GALLERIA EMILIO MAZZOLI Via Nazario Sauro 58a • 41100 • Tel. 357.605/243.455	Agnetti, Boetti, Calzolari, Chia, Clemente, Cucchi, de Maria, Germanà, Paladino, Schifano, Turcato.
NAPLES	☎ 39 (81)
LUCIO AMELIO Piazza dei Martiri 58. • 80121 • Tel. 42.20.23/769.0521
STUDIO TRISORIO Riviera de Chiaia 215 • 80121 • Tel. 41 43 06	Tomaso Durante
ROME	☎ 39 (6)
IL COLLEZIONISTA Via Gregoriana 36 • 00187 • Tel. 678.45.85	Dario Serra, recent work
DUE CI - ARTE MODERNA Piazza Mignanelli 3 • 00187 • Tel. 679 56 85/678 75 66	André Masson—works from the American period—1941–45
GALERIA IL GABBIANO Via Della Frezza 51 • 00186 • Tel. 679 77 76	Gallery artists: Bailey, Balthus, Botero, Cordio, Cremonini, Guccione, Massai, Morandi, Polizzi, Rieti, Tommasi Ferroni, Tsarouchis
L'ISOLA Via Gregoriana 5 • 00187 • Tel. 679.00.29./678.54.77	Ettore Colla, reliefs and sculpture (1961–68)
GALLERIA IL PONTE Via S. Ignazio 6 • 00186 • Tel. 679.6114	Nino Longobardi, large paintings and works on paper
PRIMO PIANO Via Panisperna 203. • 00184 • Tel. 460.309	Marino Vismara, recent works Bookstore specializing in European catalogues and books by artists
IL SEGNO Via Capolecase • 00187 • Tel. 679.1387	Atanasio Soldati, drawings (1930–50)

ROME (CONT'D) ☎ 39 (6)

SPROVIERI 3 Piazzi del Popolo • 00187 • Tel. 360.8918/361.0975	"The Roman Image—The Sixties" Futurism Dada Surrealism
TONINELLI 86 Piazza di Spagna • 00187 • Tel. 679.34.86	Important sculpture by: Bodini, Fontana, Marini, Arturo Martini, Melotti, Moore, Medardo Rosso, Schmettau, Vangi.

TURIN ☎ 39 (11)

TUCCI RUSSO Corso Tassoni 56 • 10144 • Tel. 779.304	Ivens Machado, sculptures

VERONA ☎ 39 (45)

STUDIO LA CITTA Vicolo Samaritana 10 • 37121 • Tel. 25728	"Feedback": the artist as designer

JAPAN

TOKYO ☎ 170

RYU INTERNATIONAL GALLERY P.O.B. 1363 Sunshine-City, Toshima-Ku • Tel. 987.6160	Contemporary Japanese and Chinese (Mainland) original prints. Catalogue upon request. U.S. $10, sea-mail postage included

SPAIN

BARCELONA ☎ 34 (3)

GALERIA CIENTO Consejo de Ciento 347 • 7 • Tel. 215.63 65
SALA GASPAR Consejo de Ciento, 323 • 7 • Tel. 318.87.401.318.87.36	Alfaro, Arranz Bravo, Bartolozzi, Clave, Fenosa, Gudiol, Iberz, Llove, Miró, Picasso, Tharrats, etc.
GALERIA MAEGHT Calle Montcada 25 • 3 • Tel. 310.42.45	Antoni Tapies
CAJA DE PENSIONES (Centro Cultural) Passeig Sant Joan 108 • Tel. 258.89.07
GALERIA JOAN PRATS Rambla Catalunya 54 • 7 • Tel. 216.02.84	Until December 10, Frederic Amat As of Dec. 15, Perejaume

IBIZA BALEARES ☎ 34 (71)

GALERIA ES MOLI Carretera San Miguel Sta Gertrudis	Azocar, Bechtold, Calbet, Faber, Galbraith, Hedrich, Kugler, Monreal, Seguí, Tomlin, Villanueva, Zush

MADRID ☎ 34 (1)

GALERIA JUANA DE AIZPURU Barquillo 44 • Madrid 4 • Tel. 411 77 58	Until December 15, Juan Navarro Baldeveg As of Dec. 16, Victor Mira
CAJA DE PENSIONES (Centro Cultural) Paseo Castellana 51 • 1 • Tel. 419.0440	Joaquim Sunyer, retrospective
GALERIA KREISLER DOS Hermosilla 8 • 1 • Tel. 431.42.64	Until Dec. 20, Luis Eduardo Aute; As of Dec. 22, Cinco Artistas: Maria Gomez, Angel Lopez Santos, Sofia Madrigal, Vicente Marin, Enrique Vega
GALERIA EGAM Villanueva 29 • 1 • Tel. 435 3161	Santiago Serrano
GALERIA HEINRICH EHRARDT Barquillo 44 • 4 • Tel. 419.52.86	Joseph Beuys
GALERIA JUANA MORDO Villanueva 7 • 1 • Tel. 435.84.42	December 7–January 5, Cesar Luengo, recent drawings
GALERIA DE ARTE MUN Hermosilla 26 • 1 • Tel. 401.01.92	Gallery Artists
GALERIA THEO Marqués de la Ensenada, 2 • 4 • Tel. 410.26.51	Mompo
GALERIA FERNANDO VIJANDE Nuñez de Balboa 65 • 1 • Tel. 435 8025	En Madrid—Segunda Parte: Alexanco, Carmen Calvo, Joan Cardells, Teresa Gancedo, Plensa, Teixidor
GALERIA YNGUANZO Antonio Maura 12 • 14 • Tel. 231 54 10	Christo Michael Graves, architecture

SEVILLE ☎ 34 (54)

GALERIA JUANA DE AIZPURU Calle Canalejaz, 10 • 1 • Tel. 22.85.01	Isabel Esteva

VOL
7
1
ISS
11
DE
1983
UMI

INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION DIRECTORY

SWEDEN

MALMO ☎ 46 (40)

GALERIE NORDENHAKE Östra Rönneholmsvägen 5 • S-211 47 • Tel. 23.15.33	Kenneth Martin, paintings and drawings

STOCKHOLM ☎ 46 (8)

KONSTRUKTIV TENDENS Nybrogatan 69 • 11440 • Tel. 61.16.65/61.50.65	Permanently: International Constructivist Art

SWITZERLAND

BASEL ☎ 46 (8)

KUNSTHALLE BASEL Steinenberg 7 • 4001 • Tel. 23.48.33	Until January 8, Weihnachtsausstellung der Basler Künstlerinnen und Künstler
GALERIE BEYELER Baumleingasse 9 • 4001 • Tel. 23.54.12	"Expressionist Painting Beyond Picasso"

GENEVA ☎ 41 (22)

GALERIE BONNIER 4, Rue Saint-Laurent • 1207 • Tel. 35.87.35	Gerry Bergstein, recent works
CENTRE D'ART CONTEMPORAIN Bd. du Pont d'Arve et Bd Karl Vogt • 1204 • Tel. 28.88.03	PLAN K, theatre; A.E.I.O.U., art magazine
GALERIE ERIC FRANCK 15 Route de Florissant • 1206 • Tel. 47.08.09	Isabelle Champion-Metadier, paintings
MARIE-LOUIS JEANNERET 59 Avenue de Champel • Tel 46 34 57	Hommage à Fontana
GALERIE MARIKA MALACORDA 1, Rue de l'Evêché • 1204 • Tel. 28.64.50	Olivier Mosset, recent works Martin Walde, young Austrian artist
DANIEL VARENNE Galerie Clos de Sierne 15 Chemin de Sierne • 1255 • 84.15.93	Impressionist and 20th-century masters—by appointment only
WEBER 13, Rue de Monthoux • 1211 • Tel. 32.64.50	At l'Espace Hilton—Galerie Weber: Folon, watercolors, prints
SONIA ZANNETTACCI 16, Rue des Granges • 1204 • Tel. 21.99.75	Beatrice Helg

ZURICH ☎ 41 (1)

THOMAS AMMANN FINE ART Restelbergstrasse 97 • 8044 • Tel. 362.62.31	Impressionist & 20th-century masters—by appointment only
GALERIE BISCHOFBERGER Utoquai 29 • 8700 • Tel. 910.43.62	Representing: Chia, Clemente, Cucchi, Salle, Salomé, Schnabel, Tinguely, Warhol. Andy Warhol Dec. 3-Jan.14
GIMPEL • HANOVER • EMMERICH Tödistrasse 40 • 8002 • Tel. 202.03.00	Max Bill New gallery: Chuck Close, handmade-paper editions
KNOEDLER ZURICH Kirchgasse 24 • 8022 • Tel. 69 35 00	As of December 3, Alexander Calder As of Dec. 14, Frank Stella (both shows through January 21)
GALERIE MAEGHT LELONG Predigerplatz 10-12 • 8025 • Tel. 251.11.20	Through December, Pierre Klossowski
MAURER Münstergasse 14-18 • 8001 • Tel. 47.65.00	Accrochage
PETER NOSER Schulhausstrasse 73 • 8002 • Tel. 202.65.81	Sarah Zoelly Gunter Frentzel
GALERIE SCHLEGL Minervastrasse 119 • 8032 • Tel. 251.4963	Willy Meyer-Osburg, new works
STOCKEREGG Stockerstrasse 33 • 8002 • Tel. 202.69.25	Until December 24, Richard Avedon, Irving Penn, photographs
SEVERINA TEUCHER Rindermarkt 26 • 8001 • Tel. 47.10.37	Alois Moosbecher, paintings
ANNEMARIE VERNA Scheuchzerstrasse 35 • 8006 • Tel. 361.90.70	Until December 23, Works on paper by Alighiero E. Boetti, Sylvia Plimack Mangold, Bruce Nauman, A.R. Penck, Emilio Vedova
JAMILEH WEBER Schanzengasse 10 • Tel. 47.79.89	Christian Herdegg, light sculptures and drawings Representing: Aldo Rossi
RENÉE ZIEGLER Rämistrasse 34 • 8001 • Tel. 251.23.22	"Ziegler Editions 1960–1980"

shiva®

SHIVAIR™
AIRBRUSH COLOR
NET 2FL OZ (59ML)

We didn't invent airbrushing . . . .
We just improved the colors.

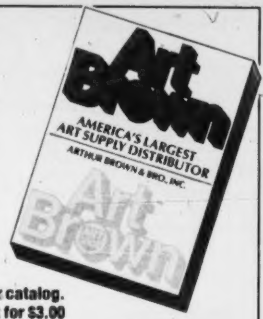
SHIVAIR™
AIRBRUSH COLORS

Shivair colors are a specially formulated, water base, airbrush paint in liquid form. Ready for instant use with airbrush, tech pen or brush. The extremely versatile palette consists of 17 brilliant opaque, 18 lively transparent and 6 neutral opaque grays that are completely consistent and intermixable. All colors dry rapidly to a matte, uniformly smooth finish.

shiva®
4300 West 190th Street
Torrance, CA 90805-2908
Telephone: (213) 542-5583

YOU SHOULD HAVE OUR NEW CATALOG!

ART BROWN



Art Brown
AMERICA'S LARGEST ART SUPPLY DISTRIBUTOR
ARTHUR BROWN & BRO., INC.

The Art Brown catalog is virtually an "encyclopedia of materials" for everyone interested in any form of artwork. 228-pages and color inserts illustrate and describe over 20,000 products from the world's best sources. It's a one-stop shopping center for art supplies!

We'll make it attractive for you to order our catalog. Send in the coupon below with your check for $3.00 to cover mailing and handling costs.

—AND HERE'S WHAT WE'LL DO IN RETURN!

1. We'll send our big 260-page catalog
2. plus we'll give you a $5.00 credit slip towards your first order!

3. plus our 40-page "International Pen Shop" catalog in full color.
4. plus we'll ship your first order prepaid. (That's worth $!)

. . . you'll get back several times the amount you remit for the catalog!

Attached is check for $3.00 for catalogs and credit slips C987

Name______________________________

Address______________________________

City/State/Zip______________________________

ART BROWN
America's Largest Art Supply Distributor
ARTHUR BROWN & BRO., INC.
2 West 46th Street, New York, N.Y. 10036

MAKE YOUR VISION A REALITY

Take a ½" Beta or VHS videocassette, put in all the creativity you've got, and you could be a big winner in SONY's nationwide video contest.

The SONY Corporation of America invites you to enter Visions of U.S.

It's a unique opportunity to express your own creative vision and be judged by some of the finest talents in today's video world: Francis Coppola, Jim Hensen, Joan Lunden, Debbie Allen and others to be announced. The American Film Institute will coordinate all judging. Entries will be accepted in either Beta or VHS and will be judged in three categories: Fiction, Non-Fiction and Experimental.

If you are a winner, you will receive a new product from the SONY Video line. Selected videotapes will travel across the country as a museum exhibit.

For full details and entry forms, see your local SONY dealer or write to: Video Contest, P.O. Box 200, Hollywood, CA 90078.

Don't miss this great opportunity to share your vision — and find out how creative you really can be.

Deadline: February 15, 1984

Sponsored by
SONY Corporation of America
Administered by
The American Film Institute

SONY

VOL
7
1
ISS
11
DE
1983
UMI

GEORGE WOODMAN
Paintings
December

HABER THEODORE GALLERY
24 West 57th Street, New York 10019 (212) 541-9393

TOM JENKINS
NOV 22 – DEC 31

KARL BORNSTEIN GALLERY
1662 12TH ST / SANTA MONICA
CA 90404 (213) 450-1129

Art Books and Illustrated Books

Rare and scholarly books in all fields of the visual arts.

Important illustrated books from the fifteenth century to the present.

ars libri, ltd.
286 SUMMER STREET • BOSTON, MA 02210
(617) 357-5212
Mon.-Fri. 9 to 6 • Sat. 11 to 5

*Distinguished work by 19th and 20th century
European, American
& Latin artists*

HARCOURTS GALLERY
535 Powell Street
San Francisco, CA 94108
415-421-3428

Yoseido Gallery

Contemporary Japanese prints

5-5-15, Ginza, Chuo-ku, Tokyo,
Japan phone: (03) 571-1312

100 page catalog upon request $10.00, air mail $15.00

L.A. Packing And Crating

Fine Art Specialists
Packing, Crating, Installation
Storage, Transportation

(213) 933-5602

5852 W. Adams Boulevard Culver City, CA 90230

THE THIRTEEN COLLECTION

TELEVISED AUCTION OF ART AND ANTIQUES

NOVEMBER 1984

A unique opportunity to have your name and your quality donation presented on television to millions of viewers.

To make your 1983 donation of art or antiques for the benefit of Public Broadcasting station

WNET THIRTEEN

please contact us before December 31, 1983*
The Thirteen Collection
356 West 58th Street, New York, N.Y. 10019
(212) 560-2700 weekdays

Traditional and Contemporary Paintings and Decorative Art • Prints • Judaica • Antique Furniture • Sculpture • Oriental Art • Tribal Art • Art Deco • Rugs • Jewelry • Autographs and Rare Books • Stamps and Coins • Photography and Folk Art

*Donations to THIRTEEN are tax deductible to the extent provided by law.

JAUNE QUICK-TO-SEE SMITH
at
BERNICE STEINBAUM GALLERY, LTD.
903 madison avenue
new york, new york 10022
734-3373

NOVEMBER 23 - DECEMBER 17, 1983

Lynn Chadwick
Eduardo Chillida
Jose Luis Cuevas
Giacomo Manzu
Marino Marini
Roberto Matta
Henry Moore

Tasende
Gallery
820 Prospect Street, La Jolla, California 92037
(619) 454-3691

FACTORY PLACE
GALLERY
1308 FACTORY PLACE, 5TH FLOOR/LOS ANGELES, CA 90013

ATTENTION: ARTISTS • DEALERS • GALLERIES
LOOKING FOR EXPOSURE IN LOS ANGELES?

AVAILABLE FOR IMMEDIATE OCCUPANCY — FIVE HIGH QUALITY, SPACIOUS GALLERIES. RENTING ON A MONTHLY ROTATION BASIS. FOR MORE INFORMATION PLEASE CONTACT: MILOU de REISET OR KAREN MURPHY. CALL (213) 627-5043.

CURRENTLY EXHIBITING: EUGENE IONESCO, BARBARA MENDES, SHIGE UKAI & MANUEL VILLAZON

JON LEON GALLERY
GORDON HART / NEW WORKS
IN PRAISE OF SHADOWS: NATURE
IN PRAISE OF LIGHT: THE CITY
YOJI SHINAGAWA,
THE SHODO MASTER
"TETSUZAN"/CALLIGRAPHY
November 29 – January 14
Saturdays 12 – 6; other days by appointment
31 DESBROSSES STREET NYC 10013 226-7789

PENNSYLVANIA ACADEMY OF THE FINE ARTS

Oldest art school in America offers majors in Painting, Sculpture & Printmaking. Admission to Day school by Portfolio. Accredited by NASAD. Financial Aid available. Approved for Veterans.

Evening & Summer programs in Painting, Drawing and Sculpture.
•
Founded 1805

For catalog write:
PAFA, Room M,
Broad & Cherry Sts.,
Phila., PA 19102

December 3-January 12, 1984
Contemporary American Realism

John Baeder
Richard Estes
John DeAndrea
David Hockney
Richard McLean
Noel Mahaffey
Jack Mendenhall
Alan Wolfson

FOSTER
GOLDSTROM
2722 FAIRMOUNT STREET
DALLAS, TX 75201
214 744-0711

PRICH MATTHEWS
November 29-December 30

ERICSON GALLERY
23 East 74th Street New York, N.Y.
(212) 737-6155

PRINTS

unique / rare

PATRICIA HEESY GALLERY
50 W 57 ST NY 10019 212 245 1420

VOL
7
1
ISS
1 1
DE
1983
UMI

Rosa Esman
Gallery

121 Spring St
Corner Greene
New York NY
10012

212
334 9659

December: Lizbeth Mitty

Please note our new address

MIDTOWN
GALLERIES EST. 1932 11 East 57 St., N.Y. (212) 758-1900

PAUL CADMUS
DRAWINGS • PRINTS • PHOTOGRAPHS
1924-1983
INCLUDING A SELECTION FROM HIS PERSONAL PORTFOLIOS

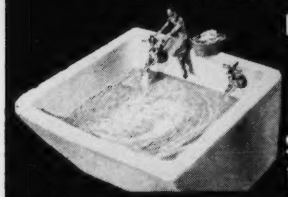
Male Nude NM 167, 1982, 24¼ x 16"

ORNAMENTALISM
DECEMBER 10 - JANUARY 11, 1984

THE HARCUS GALLERY
7 NEWBURY ST, BOSTON, MA 02116, (617) 262-4445

STUART DAVIS
WORKS FROM 1913–1919
42 EAST 57TH STREET
CONNECTIONS
STUART DAVIS, AL HELD,
ROY LICHTENSTEIN, ELIZABETH MURRAY,
DAVID SMITH, GEORGE SUGARMAN
113 GREENE STREET
WASHBURN GALLERY

DOMESTICITY
DEC '83 - JAN '84



SUELLEN HABER GALLERY
133 GREENE ST NYC 10012
(212) 505-7800

NOHRA HAIME GALLERY
1000 MADISON AVENUE

Volker Seding

NEW YORK, N.Y. 10021 (212) 772-7760

THE THIRD ANNUAL ARTISTS' BOOKS
DECEMBER 6
THRU
DECEMBER 31
KathrynMarkelGallery
50 WEST 57 • NEW YORK

SONIA GECHTOFF
NEW WORKS
November 15 - December 31
GRUENEBAUM 38 E 57 838-8245

Index of Advertisers

Acquavella Contemporary Art, Inc. 61
Action Artistique 157, 161, 168
Addison Ripley 76
Akira Ikeda 72
Alliance of Independent Colleges 167
Allport Associates 65
ARCO 154
Ars Libri 204
Artscan 143
Art Services 162-165
Arts Focus 158
Asher/Faure 72
Assoc. Artist-Run Galleries 75

Barridoff Galleries 83
Batman Gallery, Donald 88
Berggruen Gallery, John 6
Block Insurance, Huntington T. 82
Blum-Helman .... Cov. IV, 161
Boone Gallery, Mary 44
Borgenicht Gallery 67
Bornstein Gallery, Karl 204
Boyd Gallery, Roy 49
Brentwood Gallery 90
Brown & Bro., Inc., Arthur 203

Caldwell, Susan 64
Carone Gallery 74
Castelli Gallery, Leo 64
Castelli Graphics 61
Catalogs 164
Cayman Gallery 76
C.D.S. 166
Center for Inter-American Relations 86
Chicago Int'l Art Expo. 91
Chivas Regal .... Cov. III
Cicero, Jan 62
Concord 89
Contemporary Gallery 73
Cooper Gallery, Paula 68
Cordier & Eckstrom 40
Cowles Gallery, Charles 32
Creative Directions 76
Creative Time 54
Crown Point Press 28

Dart Gallery 50
Davidson Gallery, Maxwell 62
Davis McClain 58
DBR Gallery 90
De Gooyer, Kirk 56
Del Re, Marisa 14, 74
De Nagy, Tibor 54
De Rempich, Inc. 85
Dominion Gallery 166

Elkon Gallery, Robert 42
Emmerich Galley, Andre .... Cov. II
Ericson Gallery 205
Esman, Rosa 206

Factory Place Gallery 205
Findlay Gallery, David Jr. 60
Fiterman Gallery, Dolly 68

49th Parallel 58
Forum Gallery 59
Fourcade, Xavier 46
French, Sherry 78
Friedman, Marvin Ross 33
Frumkin Gallery, Allan 52
Frumkin Struve 156
Fuller Goldeen 48

Gagosian, Larry 79
Galeri Bellman 34
Galerie Claude Bernard 45
Galerie Jean Bernier 69
Galerie Beyeler 168
Galerie Jeanne Bucher 156
Galerie de France 43
Galerie Maeght Lelong SA 2
Galerie Silvia Menzel 69
Galerie Rudolf Zwirner 22
Gallery Paule Anglim 66
Gallery Yves Arman 77
Getler-Pall-Saper 61
Gladstone Gallery, Barbara 63
Gold Gallery, Fay 76
Goldstrom Fine Arts, Foster 205
Goodman Gallery, James 16
Goodman Gallery, Marian 60
Greenberg Gallery 58
Grimaldis Gallery, C. 78
Gruenebaum Gallery 206
Grumbacher 144

Haber Gallery, Suellen 206
Haber Theodore Gallery 204
Hadler-Rodriquez Galleries 64
Haime Gallery, Nohra 206
Hammer Gallery 71
Hanover Fine Arts 159
Harcourts Gallery 204
Harcus Gallery 206
Heesy Gallery, Patricia 205
Herstand Gallery, Arnold 4
Hirschl & Adler Modern 74
Hoffeld Gallery, Jeffrey 23
Hoffman Gallery, Nancy 63
Hoffman Gallery, Rhona 73
Hokin Gallery Inc. 52
Holsten Galleries 88
Horan Gallery, Vivian 40
Horwitch Gallery, Elaine 51
Hutchinson Gallery, Max 72
Hutton Gallery, Leonard 70

Iannetti Gallery, Pasquale 90
Incorporated Gallery 90
Irving Galleries 48

Kidd, Robert 161
Kind Gallery, Phyllis 67
Knowlton Gallery, Monique 47
Knoedler & Co., M. 33
Knoedler Zurich 7
Krakow Gallery, Barbara 72
Kraushaar Gallery 62

Lafayette Parke Gallery 5

L.A. Packing & Crating 204
Leavin, Margo 46
Leon Gallery, Jon 205
Levy, Vibeka 68
Locks Gallery, Marian 64
Love, R.H. 65

Manes, H.F. 75
Markel Gallery, Kathryn 206
Marlborough Gallery 42
Maroney & Co., James 10
Martin, Marianne/Fine Art 66
Mathes Gallery, Barbara 24
Matisse Gallery, Pierre 8
Matthews Hamilton Gallery 73
Metro Pictures 166
Midtown Gallery 206
Miller Gallery, Robert 18
Morris, Donald 20
Munroe Gallery, Victoria 77
McKee Gallery, David 79

Nahan Art Galleries 84
New Orleans Academy 88
Newman & Saunders 82
Nielsen Gallery 70

Odyssia Gallery 32
Oil & Steel Gallery 9
O.K. Harris 84
Oscarsson Hood 60
Ovsey, Neil G. 70
Oxford University Press 89

Pace Gallery 1
Palmer Gallery, Herbert 75
Pellicone, Marie 160
Pembroke Gallery 78
Pennsylvania Academy 205
Perlman, Miriam 68
Portico 89
Printworld Directory 79
Protetch, Max 47

Richebourg/McCoy 62
Ringling Museum, John & Mable .. 30
Roger Gallery, Arthur 59
Rutberg Gallery, Jack 77

Salander-O'Reilly 63
Sawyer Gallery, William 56
Schoelkopf Gallery, Robert 66
Sculpture Placement 160
Seguy Gallery, Yvonne 166
Serra Di Felice 59
Shafrazi, Tony 69

Shiva 203
Siegal Contemporary Art 66
Silberberg Gallery, Nathan 86
Snyderman Gallery 78
Solomon Gallery, Holly 67
Sony Consumer Products 203
Sperone Westwater 74
Staempfli Gallery 49
Steinbaum Gallery, Bernice 205
Stockholm Art Fair 86
Stoler Gallery, Bette 79
Stone Gallery, Jeremy 44
Studio Marconi 168
Sutton Gallery 89
Szoke Graphics, John 80, 81

Taghinia-Milani, Leila 67
Tamar Arts 83
Tasende Gallery 205
Taylor Art, Carol 77
Thorp Gallery, Edward 60
Toll Gallery, Barbara 50
Transworld Art/Alex Rosenberg 53
Twining Gallery 57

University of Arizona 71

Vanderwoude/Tananbaum 73
Villani, Diane 69

Wallnut Frame Design 160
Washburn Gallery 206
White Gallery, Martha 57
Willard Gallery 54
Winsor & Newton 87

Yares Gallery 55
Yoseido Gallery 204
Young Gallery, Donald 61

Zabriskie Gallery 63

ART IN SWITZERLAND

Galerie Beyeler 188
Galerie Bonnier 170
Centre D'Art Contemporain 190
Patrick Cramer 191
Andre Emmerich Gallery 171
Gimpel-Hanover & Andre Emmerich Galerien 171
Marie Louise Jeanneret 184, 185
M. Knoedler & Co. Inc. 192
Knoedler Zurich 189
Galerie Jan Krugier 172
Jan Krugier 172
Kunst Museum Luzern 190
Maeght Lelong Zurich ... 173, 174, 175
Galerie Marika Malacorda 186
Museum of Modern Art 192
Galerie Alice Pauli 182
Galerie Rivolta 190
Galerie Schlegel 179
Zur Stockeregg 187
Annemarie Verna Gallery 183
Jamileh Weber Gallery 180, 181
Galerie Sonia Zannettacci 176, 177
Renée Ziegler 178

VOL 71 1 ISS 11 DE 1983 UMI

Artworld

Art for Central America

An extensive art-world protest against the U.S. government's policy in Central America is scheduled for January. Identified as "Artists Call," the protest will take as its focus the "International Day of Solidarity with El Salvador" on Jan. 22. It will include art exhibitions, lectures, films and performances in Chicago, Los Angeles, New York, Washington, D.C. and other cities.

New York benefit exhibitions will be of three types: work by Central American artists, work that focuses on Central American issues, and unrelated work whose sale will support the event. There will also be shows of mail art, art by children and a special print portfolio.

Proceeds from the events will go to as yet unnamed educational, political and cultural Central American groups. A performance in New York titled "The True Avenue of the Americas," featuring murals and images of Central American political and cultural figures, will take place from 11 to 1 p.m. Jan. 21 along West Broadway in SoHo. Among the participating museums, commercial galleries and alternative spaces are ABC No Rio, Brooke Alexander, Art Galaxy, Castelli Greene Street, Susan Caldwell, Central Hall, Paula Cooper, Terry Dintenfass, Fashion Moda, Franklin Furnace, Film Forum, Gallery 345, Barbara Gladstone, Marian Goodman, Metro Pictures, Museo del Barrio, New Museum, Printed Matter, Yvonne Seguy, Taller Latino Americano.

Artists Call can be contacted at the offices of Political Art Documentation/Distribution, 339 Lafayette Street, New York, N.Y. 10012, 212-242-3900.

Remember the FDR Memorial?

Congress has allocated $950,000 for design and preconstruction work on the Franklin D. Roosevelt Memorial slated to be built in Washington, D.C., and it looks like the long-debated project—first authorized in 1955—is back on the track.

Designed by San Francisco architect Lawrence Halprin in 1974 and approved by Congress in '79, the FDR Memorial will feature an 800-foot-long meandering granite wall in an 8.8-acre garden, set within West Potomac Park midway between the Jefferson and Lincoln Memorials. The low-profile, nonmonumental memorial will include waterfalls, fountains, chiseled inscriptions and bronze sculptures of FDR by Leonard Baskin, Neil Estern, Robert Graham and George Segal.

Three previous FDR Memorial proposals were derailed (in '62, '65 and '67), in part due to public controversy. A Washington Post editorial recently argued against the current design on grounds that it costs too much, will displace popular sports fields currently on the site, and will increase traffic congestion along the scenic drive beside the Tidal Basin cherry trees.

But the FDR Memorial has all necessary bureaucratic approvals (by the Federal Fine Arts Commission and the National Capitol Planning Commission), and it has an environmental impact okay from the National Park Service. Congress also has approved the site, the design and authorized construction. The next step for the FDR Memorial Commission, which has supervised the project from the beginning, is to raise funds for construction—estimated (in 1981) at $28-31 million—from both Congress and private sources.

Louvre to Expand

I.M. Pei has been chosen as architect for a vast expansion of the Louvre Museum, to start in 1986 when the French ministry of finance will vacate the Pavillon de Marsan, the Louvre wing it has occupied since 1871. The expansion will include renovation of the wing for a partial reinstallation of the collection as well as construction of a 320,000-square-foot underground level approximately 30 feet below the Tuileries.

The Louvre exterior will remain unchanged, though some interior spaces may be significantly altered, with courtyards enclosed or floors removed. The underground level will house storage and a conservation lab, plus restaurants, a bookstore and an auditorium. There will also be an adjacent underground parking lot.

Funding for the project, dubbed "Grand Louvre," will come chiefly from France's ministry of culture—whose 1982 budget was ca. $1 billion. Further details will be forthcoming when a study by a French commission, headed by civil administrator Emile Biasini, is completed.

People

Douglas Dillon has resigned as Metropolitan Museum board chairman; his successor is J. Richard Dilworth, Met vice chairman since 1968 and former head of Rockefeller Center. Dillon, whose gifts to the Met include the Douglas Dillon Galleries of Chinese Art, numerous art works and some $10 million, will continue to serve on the executive and acquisitions committees.

New trustees at the Met are Laurance A. Tisch, chairman of Loews Corp., and Swiss industrialist and art collector Baron Hans Heinrich Thyssen-Bornemisza.

Sir Richard Bass, president of Bass Brothers Enterprises, and Stavros Spyros Niarchos, head of Niarchos Group Shipping Companies, are new trustees of the Museum of Modern Art. Art dealer Sidney Janis and art historian John Rewald were named as honorary trustees.

Marcia Tucker, director of New York's New Museum, will be U.S. commissioner of the 1984 Venice Biennale, scheduled for next June.

Art critic John Perreault is now curator at the Everson Museum, Syracuse.

John Hallmark Neff, director since 1978 of Chicago's Museum of Contemporary Art, left Dec. 1 to become art advisor to the First National Bank of Chicago and to write.

Allen Wardell, director of the Asia Society Gallery since 1974, will resign within nine months to return to scholarship in his specialty, American Indian art.

Dennis Barrie, formerly director of the Midwest branch of the Archives of American Art, has been appointed director of the Cincinnati Contemporary Arts Center.

Dean Walker, a specialist in 17th-century French sculpture, becomes curator of the Ackland Art Museum, Chapel Hill, N.C.

Previously assistant director, Dan Concholar is the new director of the Art Information Center (suite 412, 280 Broadway, New York, N.Y. 10007) founded by the late Betty Chamberlain.

Detroit accountant David Ward has been appointed managing director of Sotheby Parke Bernet by its new owner and chairman, Alfred Taubman. Graham Llewellyn and Gordon Brunton continue as directors for the auction house.

Grenada Protest

As a protest against the U.S. invasion of Grenada, British art historian Douglas Cooper has withdrawn two works he lent to the National Gallery's Juan Gris retrospective. Cooper, 72, a former Slade professor at Oxford and a leading Cubist scholar, had lent Cup and Glass and Houses in Paris—Place Ravignan (both 1911) to the show. In a letter to National Gallery director J. Carter Brown, Cooper wrote, "I am so outraged and disgusted by the behaviour of the American Government and its idiotic, vengeful and irresponsible President Reagan that I cannot any longer tolerate the idea of being associated with a cultural manifestation in your barbaric country."

The National Gallery, which has never had a work pulled from a show as a political protest before, has returned the pictures.

1984 AVA Awards

The 1984 $15,000 Awards in the Visual Arts go to Louis Carlos Bernal, Rolando Briseno, Robert Cumming, Leonard Koscianski, Donald Lipski, Tom Marioni, Edward Mayer, Genna Watson, Margaret Wharton and Robert Therrien. The annual awards, established in 1981, are given to one artist from each of ten different regions in the U.S.; they are administered by the Southeastern Center for Contemporary Art (Winston-Salem, N.C.) and funded by NEA, the Rockefeller Foundation and the Equitable Life Assurance Society.

NEA Challenge and Advancement Grants

The NEA awarded challenge grants totaling $20.9 million to 35 arts organizations for 1983. This is the first year that previous challenge grantees were eligible to reapply; 25 of the 35 organizations were repeat winners. Recipients must raise three dollars in private funds for every federal dollar contributed.

The 1983 challenge grant total is nearly twice last year's $11.4 million (which was also spread thinner, going to 53 organizations), but still below the $25.8 million given to 120 grantees in 1980.

The largest grant in the nation, $1.5 million, goes to the Metropolitan Opera. Visual-arts grantees are the Art Institute of Chicago, the Museum of Modern Art ($1 million each), the Baltimore Museum ($800,000), the Newark Museum ($750,000), the High Museum, Atlanta ($400,000), and the International Museum of Photography, Rochester ($150,000).

NEA's challenge grant division has also awarded $1.6 million to 29 smaller arts organizations in a new program designed to improve their financial and administrative stability. Grant amounts range from $40,000 to $85,000, and must be matched 3-to-1 in private funds. NEA provides professional consultants who will help grantees to design five-year fundraising and programming plans, which must then be approved by the peer-review panels.

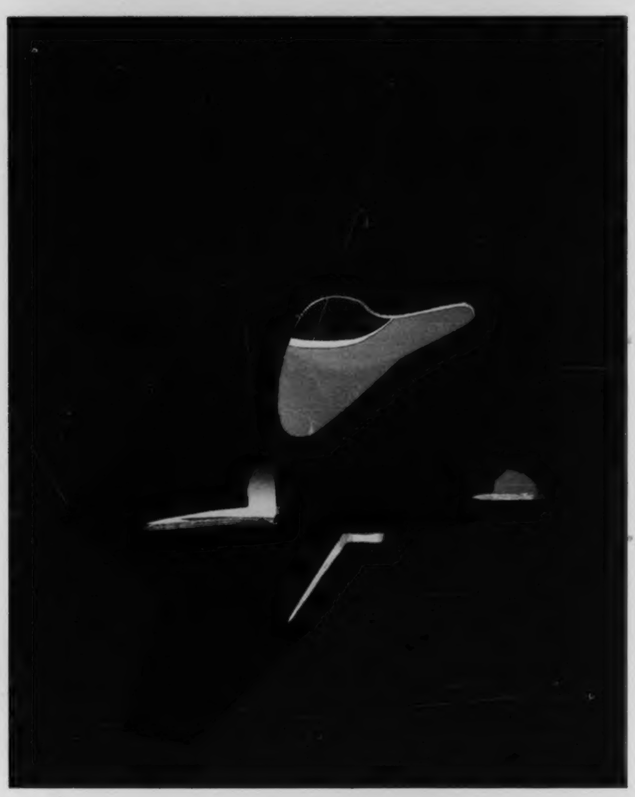
Visual arts organizations receiving the new advancement grants, with tentative funding levels (dependent upon the successful development of a five-year plan), are: and/or, Seattle ($85,000); Creative Time, New York ($81,000); 80 Langton St., San Francisco ($42,000); Franklin Furnace, New York ($50,000); Los Angeles Contemporary Exhibitions ($46,239); Social and Public Arts Resource Center, Venice, Calif. ($56,000); Washington Project for the Arts ($85,000).

A partridge in a pear tree
Two turtledoves
Three French hens
Four calling birds
Five gold rings
Six geese a-laying
Seven swans a-swimming
Eight maids a-milking
Nine ladies dancing
Ten lords a-leaping
Eleven pipers piping
Twelve drummers drumming

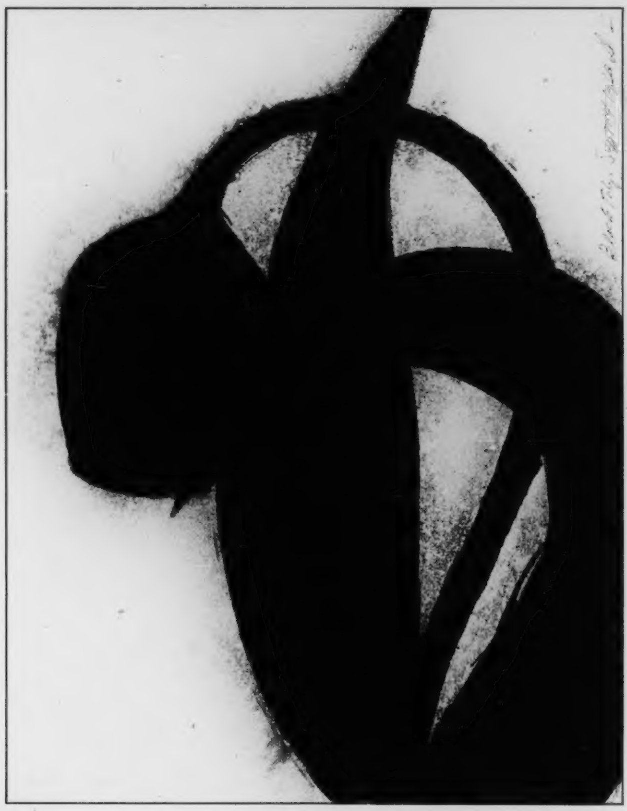
What people gave before there was Chivas Regal.

To send a gift, dial 1-800-528-6148 12 YEARS OLD WORLDWIDE · BLENDED SCOTCH WHISKY · 86 PROOF · © 1982 GENERAL WINE & SPIRITS CO., NEW YORK, N.Y.

VOL 71
ISS 11
DE 1983
UMI



Steve Keister
Sculpture



Donald Sultan
Charcoals

7 December–
7 January

BlumHelman 20 West 57th Street, New York

INDEX

VOL

7 0

1982

UMI

1982 EDITORIAL INDEX TO

Art in America

Issues Indexed: Art in America, Vol. 70, Nos. 1–11, January–December 1982 (Vol. 70, No. 7 is the 1982 Annual Guide to Galleries, Museums and Artists).
The location of each article is indicated by month, year and page. Dec 82:31 refers to December 1982, page 31.

Author Index (includes authors of articles, exhibition reviews and book reviews.)

Artist and Subject Index (Articles and exhibition reviews are indexed by artist or subject; group shows are listed under exhibition title.)

Book Review Index (arranged by authors of books; reviewer's name follows book title.)

AUTHOR INDEX

ADAMS, Brooks.
Al Calderaro at Concord Contemporary Art gallery, New York. ER Apr 82:143
Privileged Portraits: Vigée Le Brun. Nov 82:74-81
The Progress of Ed Paschke. Oct 82:114-122
Richard Hennessy at Hamilton gallery, New York. ER Dec 82:125-126
Romantics and Romanticism by Michel Le Bris. 1981. BR Mar 82:19
Romanticism by Jean Clay. 1981. BR Mar 82:19
Stephen Mueller at Nosei gallery, New York. ER Dec 82:123-124
Walter Robinson at Metro Pictures, New York. ER May 82:144-145
ADAMS, Don and Arlene Goldbard.
Grass Roots Vanguard. Apr 82:21-25
ADAMS, Robert M.
Working Notes: Bernini's Drawings: "Drawings by Gianlorenzo Bernini." Oct 82:105-111
ANTIN, David.
Absorption and Theatricality: Painting and Beholder in the Age of Diderot by Michael Fried. 1980. BR Apr 82:35-41
APGAR, Garry.
Provincial Roundup: French regional art institutions. Sep 82:124-127
ARMSTRONG, Richard.
Report from Detroit: Was Cass Corridor a Style? Feb 82:34-39
ASHBERY, John.
R.B. Kitaj: Hunger and Love. Jan 82:130-135
BAKER, Elizabeth C.
Editorial: How Expressionist Is It? Dec 82:5
Editorial: The "Return" of European Art. Sep 82:5
BAKER, John.
George Greenamyer at Neill gallery, New York. ER Jan 82:145-147
Report from New Brunswick: "Realism and Realities: The Other Side of American Painting 1940–1960." Nov 82:19-23
BALLERINI, Julia.
Cy Twombly at Sperone Westwater Fischer gallery, New York. ER Nov 82:124
Juan Downey at Schlesinger-Boisanté gallery, New York. ER Nov 82:123-124
BELL, David L.
Margaret Newman at Durham gallery, Santa Fe. ER Nov 82:125
BERLIND, Robert.
Alex Katz at Marlborough gallery, New York. ER May 82:143-144
Andrea Blum at Artpark, Lewiston, NY. ER Nov 82:125
"Focus on the Figure: Twenty Years" at the Whitney Museum of American Art, New York. ER Oct 82:133-134
Yvonne Jacquette at Alexander gallery, New York. ER Oct 82:135-136
BOIS, Yve-Alain.
The De Stijl Idea: "De Stijl: 1917–1931, Visions of Utopia." Nov 82:106-117
Martin Barré: Strategies of Concealment. Apr 82:126-128
Report from Paris: "Baroques 81": The Old New. Jan 82:34-35
BOIS, Yve-Alain and Carter Ratcliff.
Report from New York: And Now—A French Wave?: "Statements New York 82". Sep 82:59-63
BONESTEEL, Michael.
Deven Golden at Lurie gallery, Chicago. ER Sep 82:167
Joseph E. Yoakum at Hammer & Hammer American Folk Art gallery, Chicago. ER Nov 82:125-126
L.J. Douglas at N.A.M.E. gallery, Chicago. ER Jan 82:151
Margaret Wharton at the Museum of Contemporary Art, Chicago. ER Feb 82:145
Mike Zieve at Lurie gallery, Chicago. ER Apr 82:151
Yee Jan Bao at N.A.M.E. gallery, Chicago. ER Oct 82:136-137
BOURDON, David.
American Art Since 1945 by Dore Ashton. 1982. BR Oct 82:17-19
Art in Our Times: A Pictorial History 1890–1980 by Peter Selz. 1981. BR Oct 82:17-19
Early American Modernist Painting: 1910–1935 by Abraham A. Davidson. 1981. BR Nov 82:11-13
BOWLT, John E.
"New Russian Wave" at the Contemporary Russian Art Center, New York. ER Apr 82:139-140
BRACH, Paul.
Tandem Paint: Krasner/Pollock. Mar 82:92-95
BRENSON, Michael.
Alain Jacquet at Galerie de France, Paris. ER Feb 82:147
Report from Paris. Summer 82:27-29
CAMPBELL, Lawrence.
Al Held at Miller gallery, New York. ER Sep 82:164-165
"American Figurative Expressionism" at Pearl gallery, New York. ER Dec 82:127
Andre Masson at del Re gallery, New York. ER Mar 82:150-151
Arnold Bittleman at Milliken gallery, New York. ER May 82:143
Arnold Friedman at Zabriskie gallery, New York. ER Mar 82:148
Balcomb Greene at A.C.A. gallery, New York. ER Oct 82:131-132
Claire Falkenstein at Neill gallery, New York. ER Mar 82:147
Cornelia Foss at Berry Hill gallery, New York. ER Feb 82:145
"Curator's Choice: A Tribute to Dorothy Miller" at Esman gallery, New York. ER May 82:145
David Milne at the Center for Inter-American Relations, New York. ER Dec 82-127
Jean Hélion at Miller gallery, New York. ER Jan 82:143-145
Lester Johnson at Gimpel & Weitzenhoffer gallery, New York. ER Summer 82:144-145
Lucien Day at Blue Mountain gallery, New York. ER Nov 82:121-122
Manoucher Yektai at Rosenberg gallery, New York. ER Feb 82:144
Ora Lerman at P, M & Stein gallery, New York. ER Nov 82:121
Vaclav Vytlacil at Diamond gallery, New York. ER Mar 82:145
Willem de Kooning at Fourcade gallery, New York. ER Sep 82:161
William C. Palmer at Midtown gallery, New York. ER Mar 82:151
CARLSON, Prudence.
Arch Limner: Michael Hurson. Summer 82:107-109

INDEX
VOL
70
1982
UMI

Emo Verkerk at Goodman gallery, New York. ER Apr 82:138
Leo Rubinfien at Castelli Graphics gallery, New York. ER Mar 82:146
Lucas Samaras at Pace gallery, New York. ER Oct 82:129
Vera Klement at CDS gallery, New York. ER Jan 82:142-143
CARMEAN, E.A., Jr.
The Church Project: Pollock's Passion Themes. Summer 82:110-122
CASTLE, Ted.
Nancy Holt, Siteseer. Mar 82:84-91
CLOTHIER, Peter.
Carlos Almaraz at Simard gallery, Los Angeles. ER Mar 82:156
Deborah Butterfield at ARCO Center gallery, Los Angeles. ER Mar 82:155
Jim Morphesis at Traction gallery, Los Angeles. ER Summer 82:149
Leon Kossoff at L.A. Louver gallery, Los Angeles. ER Nov 82:129
COCKCROFT, Eva.
Art for the Freeze: artists mobilized for political action. Oct 82:9-13
COCKCROFT, Eva and David Kunzle.
Report from Nicaragua. May 82:51-59
COOK, Scott.
Michael Smith at the Whitney Museum of American Art, New York. ER May 82:141-142
Space Shots: "The Photography of Space Exploration." Feb 82:129-137
CRARY, Jonathan.
Larry Fuente at The Clocktower, New York. ER Nov 82:122-123
DAVIS, Douglas.
The Avant Garde is Dead! Long Live the Avant Garde! Apr 82:11-19
DEITCHER, David.
Richard Prince at Metro Pictures, New York. ER Summer 82:144
ELDERFIELD, John.
Specific Incidents: Helen Frankenthaler. Feb 82:100-106
ELLENZWEIG, Allen.
Artists 1950–81, A Personal View by Hans Namuth. 1981. BR Nov 82:11
Artists' Portraits by Alex Kayser. 1981. BR Nov 82:11
Fred Korth at Pfeifer gallery, New York. ER Oct 82:126-127
George Platt Lynes at Miller gallery, New York. ER Mar 82:141-142
Paris/Magnum: Photographs 1935–1981 by Irwin Shaw. 1981. BR Oct 82:19
Ruth Orkin at Witkin gallery, New York. ER Apr 82:139
Slave to Beauty: The Eccentric Life and Controversial Career of F. Holland Day, Photographer, Publisher, Aesthete by Estelle Jussim. 1981. BR Feb 82:19
FILLER, Martin.
The Architecture of the United States; Vol. 1: New England and the Mid-Atlantic States, Vol. 2: The South and Midwest, Vol. 3: The Plains States and Far West by G.E. Kidder Smith. 1981. BR Summer 82:21
History Reinvented: Adam and his Heirs: Robert Adam. Summer 82: 86-97
On Corbusier and Corbusiana. Mar 82:120-134
Richard Neutra: Domesticated Modern. Nov 82: 93-105
FINEBERG, Jonathan.
Nine books on Kandinsky. 1976–82. BR Dec 82:11-13+
FOSTER, Hal.
Bernd Koberling at Nosei gallery, New York. ER Summer 82:145
Between Modernism and the Media. Summer 82:13-17
Critical Spaces: "Window Room Furniture." Mar 82:115-119
Frank Stella at Knoedler gallery, New York. ER Feb 82:142
Mel Bochner and James Casebere at Sonnabend gallery, New York. ER Oct 82:132-133
The Problem of Pluralism. Jan 82:9-15
Subversive Signs: Barbara Kruger and Jenny Holzer. Nov 82:88-92
FRANCBLIN, Catherine.
Free French. Sep 82:128-131
FRANK, Elizabeth.
Biala at Gruenebaum gallery, New York. ER Jan 82:141
Dorothea Rockburne at Fourcade gallery, New York. ER Jan 82:138
Hermine Ford at Toll gallery, New York. ER Mar 82:147
Jake Berthot at McKee gallery, New York. ER Nov 82:120-121
Louise Fishman at Oscarsson Hood gallery, New York. ER Nov 82:122
Michael Tetherow at Bonlow gallery, New York. ER Apr 82:144
Miriam Schapiro: Formal Sentiments. May 82:106-111
Pat Steir at Protetch gallery, New York. ER Mar 82:143-144
FRANK, Peter.
A Dialectic of Centuries: Notes towards a Theory of the New Arts by Dick Higgins. 1979. BR Feb 82:19-21
GABLIK, Suzi.
Report from New York: The Graffiti Question. Oct 82:33-39
Report from New Zealand. Mar 82:35-41
GABRIELSON, Walter.
Westward Ha!: "Humor in Art". Jan 82:108-110
GALLOWAY, David.
Kassel Redux: A History of Documenta. Sep 82:7-10
GENDEL, Milton.
Report From Venice: Art as Art: The Persistence of the Biennale. Sep 82:33-39
GINTZ, Claude.
Claude Viallat at Centre Pompidou, Paris. ER Dec 82:129-131
GLOWEN, Ron.
Norman Lundin at Seders gallery, Seattle. ER Nov 82:128
Therman Statom at Rubin/Mardin gallery, Seattle. ER Nov 82:127
GORDON, Donald E.
Content by Contradiction: German Expressionist Art. Dec 82:76-89
HALASZ, Piri.
Figuration in the '40s: The Other Expressionism. Dec 82:110-119+
HENRY, Gerrit.
Altoon Sultan at Marlborough gallery, New York. ER Apr 82:140
Gaylen Hansen at Knowlton gallery, New York. ER Jan 82:145
Gregory Gillespie at Forum gallery, New York. ER Mar 82:151-153
Harry Jackson at Smith gallery, New York. ER Jan 82:147
Jerome Witkin at Kraushaar gallery, New York. ER Apr 82:137
Joan Snyder at Hamilton gallery, New York. ER Summer 82:141-142
Manon Cleary at Iolas/Jackson gallery, New York. ER Summer 82:146-147
Martha Diamond at Alexander gallery, New York. ER Dec 82:124
Robert Graham at Miller gallery, New York. ER Apr 82:137-138
Sherman Drexler, Jim Richmond, and David Rohn at Hutchinson gallery, New York. ER Sep 82:163
William Anastasi at Ericson gallery, New York. ER Sep 82:165-167
HOWARTH, Kathryn.
Dona Nelson at Oscarsson Hood gallery, New York. ER Dec 82:126-127
Roberto Juarez at Miller gallery, New York. ER Summer 82:147
HOWETT, John
Katherine Mitchell at Atlanta College of Art, Atlanta. ER Jan 82:149
JUNKER, Howard.
John Harding at Indian Valley Colleges, San Francisco. ER Nov 82:126
KAHN, Barry.
Sam Hsieh at large in New York City. ER Summer 82:145-146
KALIL, Susie.
Four Painters at the Contemporary Arts Museum, Houston. ER Apr 82:144-145
Tony Berlant at the Contemporary Arts Museum, Houston. ER Dec 82:129
KANGAS, Matthew.
Ann Gardner at Rubin/Mardin gallery, Seattle. ER Oct 82:137
Buster Simpson at Western Front gallery, Vancouver, Canada. ER Jan 82:149-151
Gloria DeArcangelis at Sutton gallery, Seattle. ER Nov 82:127
Marsha Burns at Glover/Hayes gallery, Seattle. ER Dec 82:128-129
Michael Spafford at the Seattle Art Museum, Seattle. ER Nov 82:126-127
Mike Hascall at Rosco Louie gallery, Seattle. ER Oct 82:137-138
KARMEL, Pepe.
American Frontiers: The Photographs of Timothy H. O'Sullivan, 1867–1874 by Joel Snyder. 1981. BR Mar 82:23-25
David Hanson at Pfeifer gallery, New York. ER Oct 82:127
Falkland Road: Prostitutes of Bombay by Mary Ellen Mark. 1981. BR Jan 82:25
Frank Gohlke at Light gallery, New York. ER Dec 82:128
Herlinde Koelbl at New School/Parsons Photography gallery, New York. ER Oct 82:127-128
Joel Sternfeld at Wolf gallery, New York. ER Feb 82:143
Photography: Urban Disjunctions. Mar 82:45-49
Raising a Hue: The New Color. Jan 82:27-31
Rajasthan: India's Enchanted Land by Raghubir Singh. 1981. BR Jan 82:25
Report from Milan: The '30s: Art and Culture in Italy. Oct 82:43-47
Richard Haas: An Architecture of Illusion by Richard Haas. 1981. BR Mar 82:25
KIRILI, Alain.
Lingaistics. May 82:122-127
KNAFO, Robert.
Nicholas Nixon at Light gallery, New York. ER Mar 82:142
KRAUSS, Rosalind.
Contra Carmean: The Abstract Pollock. Summer 82:123-131+
KROETER, Steven W.
An Interview with Jack Tworkov. Nov 82:82-87
KUNZLE, David and Eva Cockcroft.
Report from Nicaragua. May 82:51-59
KURTZ, Bruce.
Robert Smithson at the Whitney Museum of American Art, New York. ER Apr 82:135-136
KUSPIT, Donald B.
A.R. Penck at Sonnabend gallery, New York. ER Feb 82:139
Acts of Aggression: German Painting Today. Sep 82:140-151
Agnes Martin at Pace gallery, New York. ER Jan 82:139
Andy Warhol at Castelli gallery, New York. ER Mar 82:150
Caves and Temples: Michael Singer. Apr 82:129-133
Cecile Abish's Museum of the Absurd. Jan 82:111-115
David Salle at Boone gallery and Castelli gallery, New York. ER Summer 82:142
Georg Baselitz at Fourcade gallery, New York. ER Feb 82:139-140
Ger van Elk at Goodman gallery, New York. ER Feb 82:144-145
John Torreano at Hamilton gallery, New York. ER Jan 82:138-139
Nachume Miller at A&M Artworks gallery, New York. ER Apr 82:136-137
Oyvind Fahlstrom's Political Puzzles. Apr 82:106-111
Pousette-Dart in Black and White. Feb 82:126-128
Report from Berlin: "Bildwechsel": Taking Liberties. Feb 82:43-49
Susan Shatter at Fischbach gallery, New York. ER Oct 82:135

LADERMAN, Gabriel.
- Richard Chiriani at de Nagy gallery, New York. ER Oct 82:130

LIEBMANN, Lisa.
- Carlo Maria Mariani at Sperone Westwater Fischer gallery, New York. ER Feb 82:143-144
- Jean-Michel Basquiat at Nosei gallery, New York. ER Oct 82:131
- Rainer Fetting at Boone gallery, New York. ER Feb 82:140-141

LIPPARD, Lucy R.
- Art Tranquil, Art Defiant: Kes Zapkus. Summer 82:132-138
- Binding/Bonding: Harmony Hammond. Apr 82:112-118

LUBELL, Ellen.
- Elyn Zimmerman at Hudson River Museum, Yonkers, NY. ER May 82:139-140
- Michelle Stuart at Caldwell gallery, New York. ER May 82:144
- Pat Lasch at Lerner-Heller gallery and Markel gallery, New York. ER Apr 82:143-144
- Rachel bas-Cohain at A.I.R. gallery, New York. ER Summer 82:147
- Rosemarie Castoro at de Nagy gallery, New York. ER Jan 82:140

MCEWEN, John.
- Life and Times: Gilbert & George. May 82:128-135
- Report from London. Summer 82:43-45

MCFADDEN, Sarah.
- Fogg Extension Gets Reprieve. Apr 82:25-33
- Mia Westerlund Roosen at Castelli Greene Street gallery, New York. ER Summer 82:143-144

MADOFF, Steven Henry.
- Christopher Wilmarth at the Studio for The First Amendment, New York. ER Nov 82:120
- David Smith at Knoedler gallery, New York. ER Oct 82:128-129
- Edda Renouf at Blum Helman gallery, New York. ER May 82:143
- Jeremy Gilbert-Rolfe at Weber gallery, New York. ER Sep 82:165
- Kim MacConnel at Solomon gallery, New York. ER Summer 82:144
- Sending U.S. Art Abroad: Federal Ways and Means. Sep 82:10-15
- William Tucker at Elkon Uptown & Downtown galleries, New York. ER Sep 82:163-164

MALLINSON, Constance.
- George Rodart at Kantor gallery, Los Angeles. ER Oct 82:139

MARMER, Nancy.
- The New Culture: France '82. Sep 82:115-123+

MORGAN, Robert C.
- Howard Kanovitz at Rosenberg gallery, New York. ER Nov 82:124-125

MUNRO, Eleanor.
- Shiva: The Armed Vision. May 82:112-121

NEWMAN, Michael.
- British Sculpture: The Empirical Object. Apr 82:119-125
- New Sculpture in Britain. Sep 82:104-114
- Report from Mexico. Nov 82:57-67

OWENS, Craig.
- Back to the Studio: exhibition of CalArts alumni. Jan 82:99-107
- Bayreuth '82: Documenta 7. Sep 82:132-139+
- Michael Uhlenkott and Jeffrey Vallance at LACE gallery, Los Angeles. ER Mar 82:155-156
- Phantasmagoria of the Media: Dara Birnbaum. May 82:98-100
- Representation, Appropriation, & Power. May 82:9-21
- Sarah Charlesworth at 421 West Broadway gallery, New York. ER May 82:141
- Sherrie Levine at A&M Artworks gallery, New York. ER Summer 82:148

PEARLSTEIN, Philip.
- When Paintings Were Made in Heaven. Feb 82:84-95

PECK, George and Lilly Wei.
- Liubov Popova: Interpretations of Space. Oct 82:94-104

PERL, Jed.
- Japonisme in Art: An International Symposium by The Society for the Study of Japonisme, eds. 1980. BR Mar 82:17-19
- Japonisme: The Japanese Influence on Western Art in the 19th and 20th Centuries by Siegfried Wichmann. 1981. BR Mar 82:17-19
- Léger's Modern Man: Fernand Leger. May 82:88-97
- Rita Baragona at Bowery gallery, New York. ER Mar 82:148

PERREAULT, John.
- The Cultivated Canvas: Robert Zakanitch. Mar 82:96-101
- Report from São Paulo: Crossed Signals: The 16th Bienal. May 82:37-43

PINCUS, Robert L.
- Edward Kienholz and Nancy Reddin Kienholz at L.A. Louver gallery, Los Angeles. ER Jan 82:151
- Jo Harvey Allen at Wyatt gallery, Los Angeles. ER Oct 82:138-139
- Joe Fay at Boyd gallery, Los Angeles. ER Summer 82:149-151

PLAGENS, Peter.
- Audrey Flack on Painting by Audrey Flack. 1981. BR Feb 82:21-23
- King of the Confessors by Thomas Hoving. 1981. BR Apr 82:41-43
- Mixed Double: "LeRoy Neiman-Andy Warhol: An Exhibition of Sports Paintings." Mar 82:9-15
- The New Severity: An Interview with Hollister Grise. Oct 82:112-113
- Pollock Painting by Barbara Rose, ed. 1980. BR Feb 82:21-23
- Site Wars: "The Museum as Site." Jan 82:90-98

RATCLIFF, Carter.
- Ad Reinhardt by Lucy Lippard. 1981. BR Jan 82:23-25
- Alexander Liberman by Barbara Rose. 1981. BR Jan 82:23-25
- Art & Resentment. Summer 82:9-13
- "Criminal Proceedings" at The Clocktower, New York. ER Mar 82:149-150
- Jules Olitski by Kenworth Moffett. 1981. BR Jan 82:23-25
- Kandinsky's Book of Revelation. Dec 82:105-109+
- On Iconography and Some Italians. Sep 82:152-159
- Report from Chicago: The Anti-Hierarchical Dutch: "Contemporary Art from the Netherlands." Sep 82:45-49
- Ruisdael's Northern Prospects. Apr 82:92-105
- Terence La Noue at Hoffman gallery, New York. ER Mar 82:147-148

RATCLIFF, Carter, Hayden Herrera, Sarah McFadden and Joan Simon.
- Expressionism Today: An Artists' Symposium. Dec 82:58-75+

RATCLIFF, Carter and Yve-Alain Bois.
- Report from New York: And Now—A French Wave?: "Statements New York 82." Sep 82:59-63

RICKEY, Carrie.
- Barry LeDoux at The Clocktower, New York. ER Jan 82:142
- Ed Ruscha, Geographer. Oct 82:84-93
- Studs and Polish: L.A. in the Sixties. Jan 82:80-89

RIVERS, Larry.
- Joseph H. Hirshhorn, 1899–1981. Jan 82:16-17

ROBINSON, Walter.
- Peter Grass at Braathen gallery, New York. ER Sep 82:162
- The Thing in the South Bronx: Justin Ladda. Mar 82:135-137

ROSE, Howard.
- My American Folk Art. Jan 82:116-129

ROSENBLUM, Robert.
- The Meanings of Modern Art by John Russell. 1981. BR Jan 82:21-23

ROSKILL, Mark.
- Orphism: The Evolution of Non-figurative Painting in Paris, 1910–1914 by Virginia Spate. 1979. BR Mar 82:19-23
- Russian Avant-Garde Art: The George Costakis Collection by S. Frederick Star and Angelica Z. Rudenstine. 1981. BR Mar 82:19-23
- Towards a New Art, Essays on the Background to Abstract Art 1910–20 by The Tate Gallery. 1980. BR Mar 82:19-23

RUBIN, David S.
- Frederick Wight at Newspace, Los Angeles. ER Nov 82:129
- Victor Henderson at Kantor gallery, Los Angeles. ER Apr 82:147-149
- Vivian Kerstein at Janus gallery, Los Angeles. ER Nov 82:128-129

RUSSELL, John.
- John Hay Whitney, 1904–1982. Apr 82:5

SAATCHI, Doris.
- Report from Basel: A Fine Messe: Basel Art Fair. Sep 82:42-43

SACHS, Sid.
- Christof Kohlhofer at Philadelphia College of Art, Philadelphia. ER May 82:146-147

SAUNDERS, Wade.
- Martin Silverman at Hamilton gallery, New York. ER Mar 82:144-145
- Touch and Eye: '50s Sculpture. Dec 82:90-104

SCHJELDAHL, Peter.
- Postcards From Scandinavia. Sep 82:51-55
- Shermanettes: Cindy Sherman. Mar 82:110-111

SCHULZE, Franz.
- Collection of Architectural Designs by Karl Friedrich Schinkel. 1981. BR Nov 82:13

SELZ, Peter.
- James Melchert at the Art Institute, San Francisco. ER Mar 82:153-155
- Knots & Bolts: "The Art Fabric: Mainstream." Feb 82:107-115

SHANNON, Joe.
- Proximate Vision: Avigdor Arikha. May 82:101-105

SHEA, Judith.
- Design: Beyond Fashion: Mariano Fortuny. Nov 82:25-29

SIMON, Joan.
- Neil Jenney: Event and Evidence. Summer 82:98-106

SKOGGARD, Ross.
- Artists Space, Group Show at Artists Space, New York. ER Jan 82:139-140
- John Seery at Gruenebaum gallery, New York. ER Mar 82:147
- Judy Rifka at Alexander gallery, New York. ER Oct 82:130-131
- Luis Cruz Azaceta at Frumkin gallery, New York. ER Summer 82:147-148
- Lynton Wells at Solomon gallery, New York. ER Jan 82:140
- Markus Lüpertz at Goodman gallery, New York. ER Feb 82:141-142,
- Moments of Vision by Kenneth Clark, 1982. BR Oct 82:19
- Salome at Nosei gallery, New York. ER Feb 82:140
- William Anthony at Marino gallery, New York. ER Mar 82:149

SMITH, Roberta.
- Multiple Returns: Donald Judd. Mar 82:112-114

SOLOMON-GODEAU, Abigail.
- "In and Out of Power" at P.S. 1, New York. ER Mar 82:142-143

STEIN, Judith.
- Bruce Pollock at Fuller, Philadelphia. ER Oct 82:136
- John Ferris at Fleisher gallery, Philadelphia. ER Apr 82:147
- Michael Berkowitz at Freidus gallery, New York. ER Jan 82:145
- Red Grooms at ICA, Philadelphia. ER Dec 82:129

STIMSON, Paul.
- Fictive Escapades: Douglas Huebler. Feb 82:96-99
- Robert Murray at Hamilton gallery, New York. ER Nov 82:119

INDEX
VOL
7 0
1982
UMI

STORR, Robert.
Alice Neel at Miller gallery, New York. ER Oct 82:130
E.J. Bellocq at Freidus gallery, New York. ER Mar 82:141
Hollis Sigler at Gladstone gallery, New York. ER Apr 82:142
Jackie Ferrara at Protetch gallery, New York. ER May 82:140
Keith Haring and Frank Young at Bromm gallery, New York. ER Mar 82:144
Man Ray at Zabriskie gallery, New York. ER May 82:140-141
Manny Farber at Oil & Steel gallery, New York. ER Mar 82:139-140
William Bailey at Schoelkopf gallery, New York. ER Nov 82:124
STUCKEY, Charles F.
The Hundred Headless Woman (La Femme 100 têtes) by Max Ernst. 1981. BR Apr 82:43-47
Man Ray Photographe by Jean-Hubert Martin. 1981. BR Apr 82:43-47
Max Ernst in Köln: Die rheinische Kunstszene bis 1922 by Kolnischer Kunstverein and Rheinland-Verlag. 1980. BR Apr 82:43-47
Scrap Book 1900–1981 by Roland Penrose. 1981. BR Apr 82:43-47
TANNOUS, David.
"American Clay 1981" at The Arts gallery, Baltimore. ER Summer 82:148-149
Christopher James at Dalsheimer gallery, Baltimore. ER Apr 82:149
James Pernotto at Fendrick gallery, Washington, D.C. ER Feb 82:145-147
Michael Smallwood at Addison/Ripley gallery, Washington, D.C. ER May 82:147
Report from Washington,D.C. Summer 82:33-37
Robert McCurdy at Washington Project for the Arts, Washington, D.C. ER Mar 82:153
Scott Kesler at Grimaldis gallery, Baltimore. ER Apr 82:149-151
TARSHIS, Jerome.
"The West as Art" at the Desert Museum, Palm Springs, CA. ER Oct 82:138
TOWLE, Tony.
Adja Junkers at CDS gallery, New York. ER Sep 82:161-162
Group Show at Chinese Chance, New York. ER Jan 82:141-142
Nathan Slate Joseph at Meisel gallery, New York. ER Jan 82:140-141
Robin Bruch at Kornblee gallery, New York. ER May 82:145-146
UPSHAW, Reagan.
Brendt Berger at 55 Mercer gallery, New York. ER Mar 82:140
Charles Clough at Adler gallery, New York. ER Sep 82:164
David Rabinowitch at Oil & Steel gallery, New York. ER Oct 82:125-126
"Figuratively Sculpting" at P.S.1, New York. ER Mar 82:143
Keith Sonnier at Castelli gallery, New York. ER Dec 82:127-128
Robert Delford Brown at Kind gallery, New York. ER Apr 82:142-143
Saul Ostrow at Freidus gallery, New York. ER Jan 82:137-138
Tony DeLap at Elkon gallery, New York. ER Apr 82:141-142
Wade Saunders at Cowles gallery, New York. ER Summer 82:142-143
WEI, Lilly and George Peck.
Liubov Popova: Interpretations of Space. Oct 82:94-104
WELISH, Marjorie.
Vladimir Zakrzewski at Goodman gallery, New York. ER Jan 82:145
WESCHLER, Lawrence.
Lines of Inquiry: Robert Irwin. Mar 82:102-109
WILSON, Judith.
Raymond Saunders at Hunter gallery and Mythology gallery, New York. ER Mar 82:148-149
WOOSTER, Ann-Sargent.
Art Sounds. Feb 82:116-125
Eve Sonneman at Hudson River Museum, Yonkers, NY. ER Oct 82:126
Jackie Winsor at Cooper gallery, New York. ER Oct 82:125
Mary Lucier at the Whitney Museum of American Art, New York. ER Apr 82:138-139
William Dusenbery at the Nassau County Museum, Roslyn, NY. ER Jan 82:147-149
YAU, John.
Alun Leach-Jones at Urdang gallery, New York. ER Apr 82:142
Anna Bialabroda at Pearl gallery, New York. ER Feb 82:142-143
Forrest Bess at Whitney Museum of American Art, New York. ER Mar 82:140-141
George Grant at Parsons gallery, New York. ER Oct 82:134
Jake Grossberg at Marino gallery, New York. ER May 82:142-143
Joseph DiGiorgio at Sachs gallery, New York. ER Mar 82:151
Keith Milow at Nosei gallery, New York. ER Dec 82:124-125
Lawrence Poons at Emmerich gallery, New York. ER Oct 82: 134-135
Maud Morgan at Parsons gallery, New York. ER Sep 82:163
Neill Fearnley at Nielsen gallery, Boston. ER Sep 82:167
Thomas Hart Benton at Salander-O'Reilly gallery, New York. ER Oct 82:133
YOURGRAU, Barry.
Joseph Santore at Thorp gallery, New York. ER Apr 82:141

ARTIST/SUBJECT INDEX

ABISH, Cecile.
Cecile Abish's Museum of the Absurd by D.B. Kuspit. Jan 82:111-115
ADAM, Robert.
History Reinvented: Adam and his Heirs by M. Filler. Summer 82:86-97
ALLEN, Jo Harvey.
Wyatt gallery, Los Angeles. ER by R.L. Pincus. Oct 82:138-139
ALMARAZ, Carlos.
Simard gallery, Los Angeles. ER by P. Clothier. Mar 82:156
"AMERICAN CLAY 1981."
The Arts gallery, Baltimore. ER by D. Tannous. Summer 82:148-149
"AMERICAN FIGURATIVE EXPRESSIONISM."
Pearl gallery, New York. ER by L. Campbell. Dec 82:127
ANASTASI, William.
Ericson gallery, New York. ER by G. Henry. Sep 82:165-167
ANTHONY, William.
Marino gallery, New York. ER by R. Skoggard. Mar 82:149
ARCHITECTURE.
History Reinvented: Adam and his Heirs by M. Filler. Summer 82:86-97
On Corbusier and Corbusiana by M. Filler. Mar 82:120-134
Richard Neutra: Domesticated Modern by M. Filler. Nov. 82:93-105
ARIKHA, Avigdor.
Proximate Vision by J. Shannon. May 82:101-105
"THE ART FABRIC: MAINSTREAM."
Knots & Bolts by P. Selz. Feb 82:107-115
ART FAIRS.
See BASEL ART FAIR
DOCUMENTA
SÃO PAULO BIENAL
VENICE BEINNALE
ARTISTS SPACE, GROUP SHOW.
Artists Space, New York. ER by R. Skoggard. Jan 82:139-140
AZACETA, Luis Cruz.
Frumkin gallery, New York. ER by R. Skoggard. Summer 82:147-148
BAILEY, William.
Schoelkopf gallery, New York. ER by R. Storr. Nov 82:124
BAO, Yee Jan.
N.A.M.E. gallery, Chicago. ER by M. Bonesteel. Oct 82:136-137
BARAGONA, Rita.
Bowery gallery, New York. ER by J. Perl. Mar 82:148
BARRÉ, Martin.
Strategies of Concealment by Y.-A. Bois. Apr 82:126-128
BAS-COHAIN, Rachel.
A.I.R. gallery, New York. ER by E. Lubell. Summer 82:147
BASEL ART FAIR.
Report from Basel: A Fine Messe: Basel Art Fair by D. Saatchi. Sep 82:42-43
BASELITZ, Georg.
Fourcade gallery, New York. ER by D.B. Kuspit. Feb 82:139-140
BASQUIAT, Jean-Michel.
Nosei gallery, New York. ER by L. Liebmann. Oct 82:131
BELLOCQ, E.J.
Freidus gallery, New York. ER by R. Storr. Mar 82:141
BENTON, Thomas Hart.
Salander-O'Reilly gallery, New York. ER by J. Yau. Oct 82:133
BERGER, Brendt.
55 Mercer gallery, New York. ER by R. Upshaw. Mar 82:140
BERKOWITZ, Michael.
Freidus gallery, New York. ER by J. Stein. Jan 82:145
BERLANT, Tony.
Contemporary Arts Museum, Houston. ER by S. Kalil. Dec 82:129
BERNINI, Gianlorenzo.
Working Notes: Bernini's Drawings: "Drawings by Gianlorenzo Bernini" by R.M. Adams. Oct 82:105-111
BERTHOT, Jake.
McKee gallery, New York. ER by E. Frank. Nov 82:120-121
BESS, Forrest.
Whitney Museum of American Art, New York. ER by J. Yau. Mar 82:140-141
BIALA.
Gruenebaum gallery, New York. ER by E. Frank. Jan 82:141
BIALABRODA, Anna.
Pearl gallery, New York. J. Yau. Feb 82:142-143
BIRNBAUM, Dara.
Phantasmagoria of the Media by C. Owens. May 82:98-100
BITTLEMAN, Arnold.
Milliken gallery, New York. ER by L. Campbell. May 82:143
BLUM, Andrea.
Artpark, Lewiston, NY. ER by R. Berlind. Nov 82:125
BOCHNER, Mel and James Casebere.
Sonnabend gallery, New York. ER by H. Foster. Oct 82:132-133
BRITAIN-ART.
New Sculpture in Britain by M. Newman. Sep 82:104-114
BROWN, Robert Delford.
Kind gallery, New York. ER by R. Upshaw. Apr 82:142-143
BRUCH, Robin.
Kornblee gallery, New York. ER by T. Towle. May 82:145-146
BURNS, Marsha.
Glover/Hayes gallery, Seattle. ER by M. Kangas. Dec 82:128-129
BUTTERFIELD, Deborah.
ARCO Center, Los Angeles. ER by P. Clothier. Mar 82:155
CALDERARO, Al.
Concord Contemporary Art gallery, New York. ER by B. Adams. Apr 82:143
CASABERE, James and Mel Bochner.
Sonnabend gallery, New York. ER by H. Foster. Oct 82:132-133

CASTORO, Rosemarie.
De Nagy gallery, New York. ER by E. Lubell. Jan 82:140
CHARLESWORTH, Sarah.
421 West Broadway gallery, New York. ER by C. Owens. May 82:141
CHINA-ART.
When Paintings Were Made in Heaven by P. Pearlstein. Feb 82:84-95
CHINESE CHANCE, GROUP SHOW.
Chinese Chance, New York. ER by T. Towle. Jan 82:141-142
CHIRIANI, Richard.
De Nagy gallery, New York. ER by G. Laderman. Oct 82:130
CLEARY, Manon.
Iolas/Jackson gallery, New York. ER by G. Henry. Summer 82:146-147
CLOUGH, Charles.
Adler gallery, New York. ER by R. Upshaw. Sep 82:164
"CRIMINAL PROCEEDINGS."
The Clocktower, New York. ER by C. Ratcliff. Mar 82:149-150
CRITICISM/THEORY-OVERVIEWS.
Art & Resentment by C. Ratcliff. Summer 82:9-13
The Avant Garde Is Dead! Long Live the Avant Garde! by D. Davis. Apr 82:11-19
Between Modernism and the Media by H. Foster. Summer 82:13-17
The Problem of Pluralism by H. Foster. Jan 82:9-15
Representation, Appropriation and Power by C. Owens. May 82:9-21
"CURATOR'S CHOICE: A TRIBUTE TO DOROTHY MILLER."
Esman gallery, New York. ER by L. Campbell. May 82:145
DAY, Lucien.
Blue Mountain gallery, New York. ER by L. Campbell. Nov 82:121-122
DEARCANGELIS, Gloria.
Sutton gallery, Seattle. ER by M. Kangas. Nov 82:127
DE KOONING, Willem.
Fourcade gallery, New York. ER by L. Campbell. Sep 82:161
DELAP, Tony.
Elkon gallery, New York. ER by R. Upshaw. Apr 82:141-142
"DE STIJL: 1917–1931, VISIONS OF UTOPIA."
The De Stijl Idea by Y.-A. Bois. Nov 82:106-117
DETROIT-ART.
Report from Detroit: Was Cass Corridor a Style? by R. Armstrong. Feb 82:34-39
DIAMOND, Martha.
Alexander gallery, New York. ER by G. Henry. Dec 82:124
DIGIORGIO, Joseph.
Sachs gallery, New York. ER by J. Yau. Mar 82:151
DOCUMENTA.
Bayreuth '82: Documenta 7 by C. Owens. Sep 82:132-139+
Kassel Redux: A History of Documenta by D. Galloway. Sep 82:7-10
DOUGLAS, L.J.
N.A.M.E. gallery, Chicago. ER by M. Bonesteel. Jan 82:151
DOWNEY, Juan.
Schlesinger-Boisanté gallery, New York. ER by J. Ballerini. Nov 82:123-124
DREXLER, Sherman, Jim Richmond and David Rohn.
Hutchinson gallery, New York. ER by G. Henry. Sep 82:163
DUSENBERY, William.
Nassau County Museum, Roslyn, NY. ER by A.-S. Wooster. Jan 82:147-149
EUROPE-ART.
Editorial: The "Return" of European Art by E.C. Baker. Sep 82:5
EXPRESSIONISM.
Content by Contradiction: German Expressionist Art by D.E. Gordon. Dec 82:76-89
Editorial: How Expressionist Is It? by E.C. Baker. Dec 82:5
Expressionism Today: An Artists' Symposium by C. Ratcliff, H. Herrera, S. McFadden and J. Simon. Dec 82:58-75+
Figuration in the '40s: The Other Expressionism by P. Halasz. Dec 82:110-119+
FAHLSTROM, Oyvind.
Oyvind Fahlstrom's Political Puzzles by D.B. Kuspit. Apr 82:106-111
FALKENSTEIN, Claire.
Neill gallery, New York. ER by L. Campbell. Mar 82:147
FARBER, Manny.
Oil & Steel, New York. ER by R. Storr. Mar 82:139-140
FAY, Joe.
Boyd gallery, Los Angeles. ER by R.L. Pincus. Summer 82:149-151
FEARNLEY, Neill.
Nielsen gallery, Boston. ER by J. Yau. Sep 82:167
FERRARA, Jackie.
Protetch gallery, New York. ER by R. Storr. May 82:140
FERRIS, John.
Fleisher gallery, Philadelphia. ER by J. Stein. Apr 82:147
FETTING, Rainer.
Boone gallery, New York. ER by L. Liebmann. Feb 82:140-141
"FIGURATIVELY SCULPTING."
P.S.1, New York. ER by R. Upshaw. Mar 82:143
FISHMAN, Louise.
Oscarsson Hood gallery, New York. ER by E. Frank. Nov 82:122
"FOCUS ON THE FIGURE: TWENTY YEARS."
Whitney Museum of American Art, New York. ER by R. Berlind. Oct 82:133-134
FOLK ART.
My American Folk Art by H. Rose. Jan 82:116-129
FORD, Hermine.
Toll gallery, New York. ER by E. Frank. Mar 82:147
FORTUNY, Mariano.
Design: Beyond Fashion: Mariano Fortuny by J. Shea. Nov 82:25-29
FOSS, Cornelia.
Berry Hill gallery, New York. ER by L. Campbell. Feb 82:145
FOUR PAINTERS.
The Contemporary Arts Museum, Houston. ER by S. Kalil. Apr 82:144-145
FRANCE-ART.
Free French by C. Francblin. Sep 82:128-131
The New Culture: France '82 by N. Marmer. Sep 82:115-123+
Provincial Roundup: French regional art institutions by G. Apgar. Sep 82:124-127
Report from New York: And Now—A French Wave?: "Statements New York 82" by C. Ratcliff and Y.-A. Bois. Sep 82:59-63
Report from Paris by M. Brenson. Summer 82:27-29
Report from Paris: "Baroques 81": The Old New by Y.-A. Bois. Jan 82:34-35
FRANKENTHALER, Helen.
Specific Incidents by J. Elderfield. Feb 82:100-106
FRIEDMAN, Arnold.
Zabriskie gallery, New York. ER by L. Campbell. Mar 82:148
FUENTE, Larry.
The Clocktower, New York. ER by J. Crary. Nov 82:122-123
GARDNER, Ann.
Rubin/Mardin gallery, Seattle. ER by M. Kangas. Oct 82:137
GERMANY-ART.
Acts of Aggression: German Painting Today by D.B. Kuspit. Sep 82:140-151
Content by Contradiction: German Expressionist Art by D.E. Gordon. Dec 82:76-89
Report from Berlin: "Bildwechsel": Taking Liberties by D.B. Kuspit. Feb 82:43-49
GILBERT & GEORGE.
Life and Times: Gilbert & George by J. McEwen. May 82:128-135
GILBERT-ROLFE, Jeremy.
Weber gallery, New York. ER by S.H. Madoff. Sep 82:165
GILLESPIE, Gregory.
Forum gallery, New York. ER by G. Henry. Mar 82:151-153
GOHLKE, Frank.
Light gallery, New York. ER by P. Karmel. Dec 82:128
GOLDEN, Deven.
Lurie gallery, Chicago. ER by M. Bonesteel. Sep 82:167
GOVERNMENT AND ART.
Sending U.S. Art Abroad: Federal Ways and Means by S.H. Madoff. Sep 82:10-15
GRAFFITI.
Report from New York: The Graffiti Question by S. Gablik. Oct 82:33-39
GRAHAM, Robert.
Miller gallery, New York. ER by G. Henry. Apr 82:137-138
GRANT, George.
Parsons gallery, New York. ER by J. Yau. Oct 82:134
GRASS, Peter.
Braathen gallery, New York. ER by W. Robinson. Sept 82:162
GREAT BRITAIN-ART.
British Sculpture: The Empirical Object by M. Newman. Apr 82:119-125
New Sculpture in Britain by M. Newman. Summer 82:104-114
Report from London by J. McEwen. Summer 82:43-45
GREENAMYER, George.
Neill gallery, New York. ER by J. Baker. Jan 82:145-147
GREENE, Balcomb.
A.C.A. gallery, New York. ER by L. Campbell. Oct 82:131-132
GROOMS, Red.
ICA, Philadelphia. ER by J. Stein. Dec 82:129
GROSSBERG, Jake.
Marino gallery, New York. ER by J. Yau. May 82:142-143
HAMMOND, Harmony.
Binding/Bonding by L.R. Lippard. Apr 82:112-118
HANSEN, Gaylen.
Knowlton gallery, New York. ER by G. Henry. Jan 82:145
HANSON, David.
Pfeifer gallery, New York. ER by P. Karmel. Oct 82:127
HARDING, John.
Indian Valley Colleges, San Francisco. ER by H. Junker. Nov 82:126
HARING, Keith.
Bromm gallery, New York. ER by R. Storr. Mar 82:144
HASCALL, Mike.
Rosco Louie gallery, Seattle. ER by M. Kangas. Oct 82:137-138
HELD, Al.
Miller gallery, New York. ER by L. Campbell. Sep 82:164-165
HÉLION, Jean.
Miller gallery, New York. ER by L. Campbell. Jan 82:143-145
HENDERSON, Victor.
Kantor gallery, Los Angeles. ER by D.S. Rubin. Apr 82:147-149
HENNESSY, Richard.
Hamilton gallery, New York. ER by B. Adams. Dec 82:125-126

INDEX
VOL
70
1982
UMI

EDITORIAL INDEX

HIRSHHORN, Joseph H.
Joseph H. Hirshhorn, 1899–1981 by L. Rivers. Jan 82:16-17

HOLT, Nancy.
Nancy Holt, Siteseer by T. Castle. Mar 82:84-91

HOLZER, Jenny and Barbara Kruger.
Subversive Signs by H. Foster. Nov 82:88-92

HSIEH, Sam.
At large in New York City. ER by B. Kahn. Summer 82:145-146

HUEBLER, Douglas.
Fictive Escapades by P. Stimson. Feb 82:96-99

HUMOR.
The New Severity: An Interview with Hollister Grise by P. Plagens. Oct 82:112-113

"HUMOR IN ART."
Westward Hal by W. Gabrielson. Jan 82:108-110

HURSON, Michael.
Arch Limner: Michael Hurson by P. Carlson. Summer 82:107-109

"IN AND OUT OF POWER."
P.S.1, New York. ER by A. Solomon-Godeau. Mar 82:142-143

INDIA-ART.
Lingaistics by A. Kirili. May 82:122-127
Shiva: The Armed Vision by E. Munro. May 82:112-121

IRWIN, Robert.
Lines of Inquiry by L. Weschler. Mar 82:102-109

ITALY-ART.
On Iconography and Some Italians by C. Ratcliff. Sep 82:152-159
Report from Milan: The '30s: Art and Culture in Italy by P. Karmel. Oct 82:43-47

JACKSON, Harry.
Smith gallery, New York. ER by G. Henry. Jan 82:147

JACQUET, Alain.
Galerie de France, Paris. ER by M. Brenson. Feb 82:147

JACQUETTE, Yvonne.
Alexander gallery, New York. ER by R. Berlind. Oct 82:135-136

JAMES, Christopher.
Dalsheimer gallery, Baltimore. ER by D. Tannous. Apr 82:149

JENNEY, Neil.
Neil Jenney: Event and Evidence by J. Simon. Summer 82:98-106

JOHNSON, Lester.
Gimpel & Weitzenhoffer, New York. ER by L. Campbell. Summer 82:144-145

JOSEPH, Nathan Slate.
Meisel gallery, New York. ER by T. Towle. Jan 82:140-141

JUAREZ, Roberto.
Miller gallery, New York. ER by K. Howarth. Summer 82:147

JUDD, Donald.
Multiple Returns by R. Smith. Mar 82:112-114

JUNKERS, Adja.
CDS gallery, New York. ER by T. Towle. Sep 82:161-162

KANDINSKY, Wassily.
Kandinsky's Book of Revelation by C. Ratcliff. Dec 82:105-109+

KANOVITZ, Howard.
Rosenberg gallery, New York. ER by R.C. Morgan. Nov 82:124-125

KATZ, Alex.
Marlborough gallery, New York. ER by R. Berlind. May 82:143-144

KERSTEIN, Vivian.
Janus gallery, Los Angeles. ER by D.S. Rubin. Nov 82:128-129

KESLER, Scott.
Grimaldis gallery, Baltimore. ER by D. Tannous. Apr 82:149-151

KIENHOLZ, Edward and Nancy Reddin Kienholz.
L.A. Louver gallery, Los Angeles. ER by R.L. Pincus. Jan 82:151

KITAJ, R.B.
R.B. Kitaj: Hunger and Love by J. Ashbery. Jan 82:130-135

KLEMENT, Vera.
CDS gallery, New York. ER by P. Carlson. Jan 82:142-143

KOBERLING, Bernd.
Nosei gallery, New York. ER by H. Foster. Summer 82:145

KOELBL, Herlinde.
New School/Parsons Photography gallery, New York. ER by P. Karmel. Oct 82:127-128

KOHLHOFER, Christof.
Philadelphia College of Art, Philadelphia. ER by S. Sachs. May 82:146-147

KORTH, Fred.
Pfeifer gallery, New York. ER by A. Ellenzweig. Oct 82:126-127

KOSSOFF, Leon.
L.A. Louver, Los Angeles. ER by P. Clothier. Nov 82:129

KRASNER, Lee.
Tandem Paint: Krasner/Pollock by P. Brach. Mar 82:92-95

KRUGER, Barbara and Jenny Holzer.
Subversive Signs by H. Foster. Nov 82:88-92

LADDA, Justin.
The Thing in the South Bronx by W. Robinson. Mar 82:135-137

LA NOUE, Terence.
Hoffman gallery, New York. ER by C. Ratcliff. Mar 82:147-148

LASCH, Pat.
Lerner-Heller gallery and Markel gallery, New York. ER by E. Lubell. Apr 82:143-144

LEACH-JONES, Alun.
Urdang gallery, New York. ER by J. Yau. Apr 82:142

LE CORBUSIER.
On Corbusier and Corbusiana by M. Filler. Mar 82:120-134

LEDOUX, Barry.
The Clocktower, New York. ER by C. Rickey. Jan 82:142

LÉGER, Fernand.
Léger's Modern Man by J. Perl. May 82:88-97

LERMAN, Ora.
P, M & Stein gallery, New York. ER by L. Campbell. Nov 82:121

LEVINE, Sherrie.
A&M Artworks, New York. ER by C. Owens. Summer 82:148

LOS ANGELES-ART.
Back to the Studio: exhibition of CalArts alumni by C. Owens. Jan 82:99-107
Site Wars: "The Museum As Site" by P. Plagens. Jan 82:90-98
Studs and Polish: L.A. in the Sixties by C. Rickey. Jan 82:80-89
Westward Hal: "Humor in Art" by W. Gabrielson. Jan 82:108-110

LUCIER, Mary.
Whitney Museum of American Art, New York. ER by A.-S. Wooster. Apr 82:138-139

LUNDIN, Norman.
Seders gallery, Seattle. ER by R. Glowen. Nov. 82:128

LÜPERTZ, Markus.
Goodman gallery, New York. ER by R. Skoggard. Feb 82:141-142

LYNES, George Platt.
Miller gallery, New York. ER by A. Ellenzweig. Mar 82:141-142

MACCONNEL, Kim.
Solomon gallery, New York. ER by S.H. Madoff. Summer 82:144

MCCURDY, Robert.
Washington Project for the Arts, Washington, D.C. ER by D. Tannous. Mar 82:153

MAN RAY.
Zabriskie gallery, New York. ER by R. Storr. May 82:140-141

MARIANI, Carlo Maria.
Sperone Westwater Fischer gallery, New York. ER by L. Liebmann. Feb 82:143-144

MARTIN, Agnes.
Pace gallery, New York. ER by D.B. Kuspit. Jan 82:139

MASSON, André.
Del Re gallery, New York. ER by L. Campbell. Mar 82:150-151

MELCHERT, James.
Art Institute, San Francisco. ER by P. Selz. Mar 82:153-155

MEXICO-ART.
Report from Mexico by M. Newman. Nov 82:57-67

MILLER, Nachume.
A&M Artworks, New York. ER by D.B. Kuspit. Apr 82:136–137

MILNE, David.
Center for Inter-American Relations, New York. ER by L. Campbell. Dec 82:127

MILOW, Keith.
Nosei gallery, New York. ER by J. Yau. Dec 82:124-125

MITCHELL, Katherine.
Atlanta College of Art, Atlanta. ER by J. Howett. Jan 82:149

MORGAN, Maud.
Parsons gallery, New York. ER by J. Yau. Sep 82:163

MORPHESIS, Jim.
Traction gallery, Los Angeles. ER by P. Clothier. Summer 82:149

MUELLER, Stephen.
Nosei gallery, New York. ER by B. Adams. Dec 82:123-124

MURRAY, Robert.
Hamilton gallery, New York. ER by P. Stimson. Nov 82:119

MUSEUMS.
Fogg Extension Gets Reprieve by S. McFadden. Apr 82:25-33

NEEL, Alice.
Miller gallery, New York. ER by R. Storr. Oct 82:130

NEIGHBORHOOD ART.
Grass Roots Vanguard by D. Adams and A. Goldbard. Apr 82:21-25

NEIMAN, LeRoy.
Mixed Double: "LeRoy Neiman-Andy Warhol: An Exhibition of Sports Paintings" by P. Plagens. Mar 82:9-15

NELSON, Dona.
Oscarsson Hood gallery, New York. ER by K. Howarth. Dec 82:126-127

NETHERLANDS-ART.
Report from Chicago: The Anti-Hierarchical Dutch: "Contemporary Art from the Netherlands" by C. Ratcliff. Sep 82:45-49

NEUTRA, Richard.
Richard Neutra: Domesticated Modern by M. Filler. Nov 82:93-105

"NEW RUSSIAN WAVE."
Contemporary Russian Art Center, New York. ER by J.E. Bowlt. Apr 82:139-140

NEW ZEALAND-ART.
Report from New Zealand by S. Gablik. Mar 82:35-41

NEWMAN, Margaret.
Durham gallery, Santa Fe. ER by D.L. Bell. Nov 82:125

NICARAGUA-ART.
Report from Nicaragua by E. Cockcroft and D. Kunzle. May 82:51-59

NIXON, Nicholas.
Light gallery, New York. ER by R. Knafo. Mar 82:142

ORKIN, Ruth.
Witkin gallery, New York. ER by A. Ellenzweig. Apr 82:139

OSTROW, Saul.
Freidus gallery, New York. ER by R. Upshaw. Jan 82:137-138

PALMER, William C.
Midtown gallery, New York. ER by L. Campbell. Mar 82:151

PASCHKE, Ed.
The Progress of Ed Paschke by B. Adams. Oct 82:114-122

PENCK, A.R.
Sonnabend gallery, New York. ER by D.B. Kuspit. Feb 82:139

PERNOTTO, James.
Fendrick gallery, Washington, D.C. ER by D. Tannous. Feb 82:145-147

PHOTOGRAPHY.
Raising a Hue: The New Color by P. Karmel. Jan 82:27-31
Space Shots: "The Photography of Space Exploration" by S. Cook. Feb 82:129-137
Urban Disjunctions by P. Karmel. Mar 82:45-49
POLITICAL ACTION AND ART.
Art for the Freeze by E. Cockcroft. Oct 82:9-13
Report from Nicaragua by E. Cockcroft and D. Kunzle. May 82:51-59
POLLOCK, Bruce.
Fuller gallery, Philadelphia. ER by J. Stein. Oct 82:136
POLLOCK, Jackson.
The Church Project: Pollock's Passion Themes by E.A. Carmean, Jr. Summer 82:110-122
Contra Carmean: The Abstract Pollock by R. Krauss. Summer 82:123-131+
Tandem Paint: Krasner/Pollock by P. Brach. Mar 82:92-95
POONS, Lawrence.
Emmerich gallery, New York. ER by J. Yau. Oct 82:134-135
POPOVA, Liubov.
Liubov Popova: Interpretations of Space by G. Peck and L. Wei. Oct 82:94-104
POUSETTE-DART, Richard.
Pousette-Dart in Black and White by D.B. Kuspit. Feb 82:126-128
PRINCE, Richard.
Metro Pictures, New York. ER by D. Deitcher. Summer 82:144
RABINOWITCH, David.
Oil & Steel, New York. ER by R. Upshaw. Oct 82:125-126
"REALISM AND REALITIES: THE OTHER SIDE OF AMERICAN PAINTING 1940–1960."
Report from New Brunswick: Representational Painting in the U.S.: 1940-60 by J. Baker. Nov 82:19-23
REGIONAL REPORTS.
See CHINA-ART
DETROIT-ART EUROPE-ART
FRANCE-ART
GERMANY-ART
GREAT BRITAIN-ART
INDIA-ART
ITALY-ART
LOS ANGELES-ART
MEXICO-ART
NEW ZEALAND-ART
NETHERLANDS-ART
NICARAGUA-ART
SCANDINAVIA-ART
WASHINGTON, D.C.-ART
RENOUF, Edda.
Blum Helman gallery, New York. ER by S.H. Madoff. May 82:143
RIFKA, Judy.
Alexander gallery, New York. ER by R. Skoggard. Oct 82:130-131
ROBINSON, Walter.
Metro Pictures, New York. ER by B. Adams. May 82:144-145
ROCKBURNE, Dorothea.
Fourcade gallery, New York. ER by E. Frank. Jan 82:138
RODART, George.
Kantor gallery, Los Angeles. ER by C. Mallinson. Oct 82:139
ROOSEN, Mia Westerlund.
Castelli Greene St., New York. ER by S. McFadden. Summer 82:143-144
RUBINFIEN, Leo.
Castelli Graphics, New York. ER by P. Carlson. Mar 82:146
RUISDAEL, Jacob van.
Ruisdael's Northern Prospects by C. Ratcliff. Apr 82:92-105
RUSCHA, Ed.
Ed Ruscha, Geographer by C. Rickey. Oct 82:84-93
SALLE, David.
Boone gallery and Castelli gallery, New York. ER by D.B. Kuspit. Summer 82:142
SALOME.
Nosei gallery, New York. ER by R. Skoggard. Feb 82:140
SAMARAS, Lucas.
Pace gallery, New York. ER by P. Carlson. Oct 82:129
SANTORE, Joseph.
Thorp gallery, New York. ER by B. Yourgrau. Apr 82:141
SÃO PAULO BIENAL.
Report from Sao Paulo: Crossed Signals: The 16th Bienal by J. Perreault. May 82:37-43
SAUNDERS, Raymond.
Hunter gallery and Mythology gallery, New York. ER by J. Wilson. Mar 82:148-149
SAUNDERS, Wade.
Cowles gallery, New York. ER by R. Upshaw. Summer 82:142-143
SCANDINAVIA-ART.
Postcards From Scandinavia by P. Schjeldahl. Sep 82:51-55
SCHAPIRO, Miriam.
Formal Sentiments by E. Frank. May 82:106-111
SCULPTURE-1950s.
Touch and Eye: '50s Sculpture by W. Saunders. Dec 82:82:90-104
SEERY, John.
Gruenebaum gallery, New York. ER by R. Skoggard. Mar 82:147
SEVERISM.
The New Severity: An Interview with Hollister Grise by P. Plagens. Oct 82:112-113
SHATTER, Susan.
Fischbach gallery, New York. ER by D.B. Kuspit. Oct 82:135
SHERMAN, Cindy.
Shermanettes by P. Schjeldahl. Mar 82:110-111
SIGLER, Hollis.
Gladstone gallery, New York. ER by R. Storr. Apr 82:142
SILVERMAN, Martin.
Hamilton gallery, New York. ER by W. Saunders. Mar 82:144-145
SIMPSON, Buster.
Western Front gallery, Vancouver, Canada. ER by M. Kangas. Jan 82:149-151
SINGER, Michael.
Caves and Temples by D.B. Kuspit. Apr 82:129-133
SITE-SPECIFIC ART.
Site Wars: "The Museum as Site" by P. Plagens. Jan 82:90-98
SMALLWOOD, Michael.
Addison/Ripley, Washington, D.C. ER by D. Tannous. May 82:147
SMITH, David.
Knoedler gallery, New York. ER by S.H. Madoff. Oct 82:128-129
SMITH, Michael.
Whitney Museum of American Art, New York. ER by S. Cook. May 82:141-142
SMITHSON, Robert.
Whitney Museum of American Art, New York. ER by B. Kurtz. Apr 82:135-136
SNYDER, Joan.
Hamilton gallery, New York. ER by G. Henry. Summer 82:141-142
SONNEMAN, Eve.
Hudson River Museum, Yonkers, NY. ER by A.-S. Wooster. Oct 82:126
SONNIER, Keith.
Castelli gallery, New York. ER by R. Upshaw. Dec 82:127-128
SOUND IN ART.
Art Sounds by A.-S. Wooster. Feb 82:116-125
SPAFFORD, Michael.
Seattle Art Museum, Seattle. ER by M. Kangas. Nov 82:126-127
STATOM, Therman.
Rubin/Mardin, Seattle. ER by R. Glowen. Nov 82:127
STEIR, Pat.
Protetch gallery, New York. ER by E. Frank. Mar 82:143-144
STELLA, Frank.
Knoedler gallery, New York. ER by H. Foster. Feb 82:142
STERNFELD, Joel.
Wolf gallery, New York. ER by P. Karmel. Feb 82:143
STUART, Michelle.
Caldwell gallery, New York. ER by E. Lubell. May 82:144
SULTAN, Altoon.
Marlborough gallery, New York. ER by G. Henry. Apr 82:140
TETHEROW, Michael.
Bonlow gallery, New York. ER by E. Frank. Apr 82:144
TORREANO, John.
Hamilton gallery, New York. ER by D.B. Kuspit. Jan 82:138-139
TUCKER, William.
Elkon gallery Uptown & Downtown, New York. ER by S.H. Madoff. Sep 82:163-164
TWOMBLY, Cy.
Sperone Westwater Fischer, New York. ER by J. Ballerini. Nov 82:124
TWORKOV, Jack.
An Interview with Jack Tworkov by S.W. Kroeter. Nov 82:82-87
UHLENKOTT, Michael.
LACE gallery, Los Angeles. ER by C. Owens. Mar 82:155-156
VALLANCE, Jeffrey.
LACE gallery, Los Angeles. ER by C. Owens. Mar 82:155-156
VAN ELK, Ger.
Goodman gallery, New York. ER by D.B. Kuspit. Feb 82:144-145
VENICE BIENNALE 1982.
Report From Venice: Art as Art: The Persistence of the Biennale by M. Gendel. Sep 82:33-39
VERKERK, Emo.
Goodman gallery, New York. ER by P. Carlson. Apr 82:138
VIALLAT, Claude.
Centre Pompidou, Paris. ER by C. Gintz. Dec 82:129-131
VIGÉE LE BRUN, Elisabeth Louise.
Privileged Portraits: Vigée Le Brun by B. Adams. Nov 82:74-81
VYTLACIL, Vaclav.
Diamond gallery, New York. ER by L. Campbell. Mar 82:145
WARHOL, Andy.
Castelli gallery, New York. ER by D.B. Kuspit. Mar 82:150
Mixed Double: "LeRoy Neiman-Andy Warhol: An Exhibition of Sports Paintings" by P. Plagens. Mar 82:9-15
WASHINGTON, D.C.-ART.
Report from Washington, D.C. by D. Tannous. Summer 82:33-37
WELLS, Lynton.
Solomon gallery, New York. ER by R. Skoggard. Jan 82:140
"THE WEST AS ART."
Desert Museum, Palm Springs. ER by J. Tarshis. Oct 82:138
WHARTON, Margaret.
Museum of Contemporary Art, Chicago. ER by M. Bonesteel. Feb 82:145
WHITNEY, John Hay.
John Hay Whitney: 1904–1982 by J. Russell. Apr 82:5
WIGHT, Frederick.
Newspace, Los Angeles. ER by D.S. Rubin. Nov 82:129
WILMARTH, Christopher.
Studio for The First Amendment, New York. ER by S.H. Madoff. Nov 82:120
"WINDOW ROOM FURNITURE."
Critical Spaces by H. Foster. Mar 82:115-119
WINSOR, Jackie.
Cooper gallery, New York. ER by A.-S. Wooster. Oct 82:125
WITKIN, Jerome.
Kraushaar gallery, New York. ER by G. Henry. Apr 82:137

INDEX
VOL 70
1982
UMI

YEKTAI, Manoucher.
Rosenberg gallery, New York. ER by L. Campbell. Feb 82:144
YOAKUM, Joseph E.
Hammer & Hammer/American Folk Art gallery, Chicago. ER by M. Bonesteel. Nov 82:125-126
YOUNG, Frank.
Bromm gallery, New York. ER by R. Storr. Mar 82:144
ZAKANITCH, Robert.
The Cultivated Canvas by J. Perreault. Mar 82:96-101
ZAKRZEWSKI, Vladimir.
Goodman gallery, New York. ER by M. Welish. Jan 82:145
ZAPKUS, Kes.
Art Tranquil, Art Defiant: Kes Zapkus by L.R. Lippard. Summer 82:132-138
ZIEVE, Mike.
Lurie gallery, Chicago. ER by M. Bonesteel. Apr 82:151
ZIMMERMAN, Elyn.
Hudson River Museum, Yonkers, NY. ER by E. Lubell. May 82:139-140

REVIEW INDEX

ASHTON, Dore.
American Art Since 1945. 1982. D. Bourdon. Oct 82:17-19
BOWLT, John E. and Rose-Carol Washton Long.
The Life of Vasilii Kandinsky in Russian Art: A Study of On the Spiritual in Art. 1980. J. Fineberg. Dec 82:11-13+
CLARK, Kenneth.
Moments of Vision. 1982. R. Skoggard. Oct 82:19
CLAY, Jean.
Romanticism. 1981. B. Adams. Mar 82:19
DAVIDSON, Abraham A.
Early American Modernist Painting: 1910–1935. 1981. D. Bourdon. Nov. 82:11-13
ERNST, Max.
The Hundred Headless Woman (La Femme 100 têtes). 1981. C.F. Stuckey. Apr 82:43-47
FLACK, Audrey.
Audrey Flack on Painting. 1981. P. Plagens. Feb 82:21-23.
FRIED, Michael.
Absorption and Theatricality: Painting and Beholder in the Age of Diderot. 1980. D. Antin. Apr 82:35-41
HAAS, Richard.
Richard Haas: An Architecture of Illusion. 1981. P. Karmel. Mar 82:25
HAHL-KOCH, Jelena, ed.
Arnold Schönberg-Wassily Kandinsky: Briefe, Bilder und Dokumente einer aussergewöhnlichen Begegnung. 1980. J. Fineberg. Dec 82:11-13+
HIGGINS, Dick.
A Dialectic of Centuries: Notes towards a Theory of the New Arts. 1979. P. Frank. Feb 82:19-21
HOVING, Thomas.
King of the Confessors. 1981. P. Plagens. Apr 82:41-43
JUSSIM, Estelle.
Slave to Beauty: The Eccentric Life and Controversial Career of F. Holland Day, Photographer, Publisher, Aesthete. 1981. A. Ellenzweig. Feb 82:19
KANDINSKY, Wassily.
Sounds. 1981. J. Fineberg. Dec 82:11-13+
KANDINSKY, Wassily and Franz Marc, eds.
Der Blaue Reiter (facsimile re-edition of the "luxus Ausgabe", 1912). 1976. J. Fineberg. Dec 82:11-13+
KAYSER, Alex.
Artists' Portraits. 1981. A. Ellenzweig. Nov 82:11
KIDDER SMITH, G.E.
The Architecture of the United States; Vol. 1: New England and the Mid-Atlantic States, Vol. 2: The South and Midwest, Vol. 3: The Plains States and Far West. 1981. M. Filler. Summer 82:21
KOLNISCHER KUNSTVEREIN and Rheinland-Verlag.
Max Ernst in Köln: Die rheinische Kunstszene bis 1922. 1980. C.F. Stuckey. Apr 82:43-47
LE BRIS, Michel.
Romantics and Romanticism. 1981. B. Adams. Mar 82:19
LINDSAY, Kenneth C. and Peter Vergo, eds.
Kandinsky: Complete Writings on Art. 1982. J. Fineberg. Dec 82:11-13+
LIPPARD, Lucy.
Ad Reinhardt. 1981. C. Ratcliff. Jan 82:23-25
MARK, Mary Ellen.
Falkland Road: Prostitutes of Bombay. 1981. P. Karmel. Jan 82:25
MARTIN, Jean-Hupert.
Man Ray Photographe. 1981. C.F. Stuckey. Apr 82:43-47
MOFFETT, Kenworth.
Jules Olitski. 1981. C. Ratcliff. Jan 82:23-25
NAMUTH, Hans.
Artists 1950–81, A Personal View. 1981. A. Ellenzweig. Nov 82:11
PENROSE, Roland.
Scrap Book 1900–1981. 1981. C.F. Stuckey. Apr 82:43-47
ROETHEL, Hans K. and Jean K. Benjamin.
Kandinsky. 1979. J. Fineberg. Dec 82:11-13+
ROETHEL, H.K. and Jelena Hahl-Koch, eds.
Kandinsky, Die Gesammelten Schriften, Band 1, Autobiographische Schriften. 1980. J. Fineberg. Dec 82:11-13+
ROSE, Barbara.
Alexander Liberman. 1981. C. Ratcliff. Jan 82:23-25
ROSE, Barbara, ed.
Pollock Painting. 1980. P. Plagens. Feb 82:21-23
RUSSELL, John.
The Meanings of Modern Art. 1981. R. Rosenblum. Jan 82:21-23
SCHINKEL, Karl Friedrich.
Collection of Architectural Designs. 1981. F. Schulze. Nov 82:13
SELZ, Peter.
Art in Our Times: A Pictorial History 1890–1980. 1981. D. Bourdon. Oct 82:17-19
SHAW, Irwin.
Paris/Magnum: Photographs 1935–1981. 1981. A. Ellenzweig. Oct 82:19
SINGH, Raghubir.
Rajasthan: India's Enchanted Land. 1981. P. Karmel. Jan 82:25
SNYDER, Joel.
American Frontiers: The Photographs of Timothy H. O'Sullivan, 1867–1874. 1981. P. Karmel. Mar 82:23-25
(THE) SOCIETY FOR THE STUDY OF JAPONISME, eds.
Japonisme in Art: An International Symposium. 1980. J. Perl. Mar 82:17-19
SPATE, Virginia.
Orphism: The Evolution of Non-figurative Painting in Paris, 1910–1914. 1979. M. Roskill. Mar 82:19-23
STAR, S. Frederick and Angelica Z. Rudenstine.
Russian Avant-Garde Art: The George Costakis Collection. 1981. M. Roskill. Mar 82:19-23
(THE) TATE GALLERY.
Towards a New Art, Essays on the Background to Abstract Art 1910–20. 1980. M. Roskill. Mar 82:19-23
WASHTON LONG, Rose-Carol.
Kandinsky: The Development of An Abstract Style. 1980. J. Fineberg. Dec 82:11-13+
WEISS, Peg.
Kandinsky in Munich: The Formative Jugendstil Years. 1979. J. Fineberg. Dec 82:11-13+
WICHMANN, Siegfried.
Japonisme: The Japanese Influence on Western Art in the 19th and 20th Centuries. 1981. J. Perl. Mar 82:17-19

Degrees In Art and Design.

United States International University's School of Performing & Visual Arts offers:
- BA. Art Teaching
- BA. Comprehensive Design
- BFA. Television Production
- BFA & MFA. Advertising Design
- BFA & MFA. Design for Stage, Film and TV (interior design, fashion/costume design, and technical theatre design)

Internships and financial aid available. Write USIU, SPVA, 10455 Pomerado Road, San Diego, CA 92131. Or call (619) 693-4630.

united states international university
USIU
san diego • london • nairobi • mexico city
Accredited by the Western Association of Schools and Colleges and approved for Veterans Benefits.

Dali-Erte-Limited Editions-Sculpture
Miro-Chagall-Wyeth-Neiman
Buy Art Smart
The Art Brokerage, Inc.
300 S. 4th St., 1503
Las Vegas, Nevada 89101
Listing and Locating Service
Buy Sell or Trade
Save 25 to 50%;
Dealer Inquiries Welcome
$25.00 for computer printout
Applicable toward purchase
Noyer, Azoulay, Picasso
Mexican-European-American-originals

C 26